SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1869.

NO. 63.

General Canby's Orders for Enforcing the Law.

HEADQUARTERS, Fifth Military District, STATE OF TEXAS, Austin, Texas, Jan. 20, 1869.

General Orders No. 5.

To insure concert of action and an efficient co-operation between the civil and military authorities in the enforcement of the law, the following regulations have been established, and are published for the information and government of all concerned:

1. If any Magistrate should, by force, or intimidation, be hindered in or prevented from the execution of any duty devolved upon him by the laws of the State, or should be injured or threatened with injury in person or property by reason of the performance of any such duty, he will report the facts to the Post Commander, who is required to give all needful protection, and to see that the offenders are brought to justice.

2. If any Sheriff or other peace officer is obstructed or resisted in the service of any process, or in the execution of any other legal duty, or is refused the assistance which he may lawfully demand, he shall report the fact, with the names of the parties; to the Post Commander.

3. Whenever any combinations or conspiracies as defined by the law of the United States, of July 31st, 1861, to defame and punish certain conspiracies, may be organized and directed against the laws or officers of the State of Texas, the offenders shall, upon conviction by a military commission, be subject to the same penalties as are prescribed by that law, and it is made the duty of all Magistrates and peace officers having knowledge of any such combination or conspiracy to report it to the Post Commander.

4. Whenever any prisoner shall break or escape from any penitentiary, jail or other place of penal confinement, or from the custody of any Sheriff or other officer, after having been duly arrested, the fact will be immediately reported to the Post Commander, setting forth the name of the escaped prisoner, his age, residence, and description of the crime for which he was committed, and whether under conviction or awaiting trial and any other fact that may lead to his apprehension. A like report will be made in the case of all persons against whom warrants have been issued, who have fled or otherwise evaded arrest. In all such cases it shall be the duty of the Post Commander to issue his warrant for the arrest of the criminal wherever he may be found within the limits of his post.

5. Sheriffs of counties and marshals of cities and towns, (when the municipal is independent of the county organizations) whenever any felony or other grave crime has been committed within the limits of their respective jurisdictions, will immediately report the fact to the Post Commander, giving the nature of the crime, the name of the person, against whose person or property it was committed, the time when and the place where it was committed, and, if known the name, residence, and description of the offender. Whenever any person, so reported, has been arrested, the Post Commander will be notified of the fact.

6. On the first day of each month, Sheriffs of counties and marshals of cities and towns, and all other peace officers, not included in the force of any Sheriff or Marshal will make to the Post Commander a consolidated report of all crimes committed, and of all arrests made within the limits of their respective jurisdictions during the preceding month. The first report made to include the period from the 1st of January, 1869, to the date of the report. Post Commanders will forward the consolidated reports to Headquarters, retaining a copy, and will also thereto a report of crimes committed within the limits of their posts, and not included in the reports of Sheriffs and Marshals, and a report of all arrests made by military authority during the same period.

7. The Clerks of the Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction in this State will, as soon as practicable, report to these Headquarters the name, residence and description of all persons under indictment for felony or other grave crimes, who have forfeited their bail or failed to appear for trial.

8. The Sheriffs of counties and Marshals of cities and towns will, as soon as practicable, report to these Headquarters the condition of the jails or other places of confinement under their charge, as to capacity, convenience and security, and whether any repairs or improvements are needed to make them secure. They will also report whether adequate provision is made by the county or town for the care and subsistence of the prisoners who may be confined in them.

9. Whenever any Magistrate, Clerk, Sheriff, or other official, is required to perform any service not devolved upon them by the laws of the State, he will be allowed and paid from the reconstruction funds the same fee or compensation as now allowed by law for similar services. The accounts for such services will be forwarded through the Post Commander, for his approval or remarks, except when the service is required from District Headquarters, in which case they will be sent direct.

10. A list of the civil officers of the State, within the limits of each post, will be furnished the Post Commander, and he is desired to confer freely with them, and endeavor to establish such relations as will insure concert of action and an efficient co-operation in the enforcement of the laws.

If there should be any vacancies, he will recommend and will procure the recommendations of responsible citizens of suitable and competent persons to fill them.

11. The duty of enforcing the laws and the responsibility for any failure, rest in a great measure upon the subordinate Magistrates and peace officers. The timely exercise of the powers with which they are invested will generally preserve the peace and prevent the commission of crime. When crimes are committed, these powers must be promptly and energetically directed to the arrest and punishment of the criminals. The complaint, the issue and service of warrants are not matters of form, but duties to be performed. To fail in these is to surrender society to the dominion of lawless men, and to invite disorder and violence.

12. Post Commanders, while looking to the full execution of the duties committed to them under the authority of the 3d section of the law of March, 1867, are required to see that these duties are not harshly or oppressively executed; that arrests are not made without sufficient cause; that the manner of arrests shall, as far as practicable, be the same as is prescribed by the laws of the State; that when arrests are made the charges shall be examined into, and the accused parties discharged, or held for trial, with as little delay as may be consistent with the ends of justice; and that prisoners awaiting trial shall be subjected to no greater restraints than are necessary for their safe keeping.

It is hoped that the support of the military will render any active aid to the civil authorities unnecessary; but if the necessity should arise, and there should be any organized or armed resistance to the authority of the United States, or to the authority of the Provisional Government of Texas, it will be met by the prompt and energetic application of all the means under the control of the military authority.

13. In the execution of the difficult and delicate duties devolved upon the army, the observance of the highest degree of discipline is absolutely essential, and the Commanding General expects from the troops such orderly conduct and observance of law as will command the respect of all good citizens.

By command of
Bvt. Maj. General CANBY,
Louis V. Canino, A. D. C., A. A. G.

Andrew Johnson's Fated Camp Followers.

The New York Tribune concludes an able editorial on what may be expected of the new administration in the following happy strain:

"For ourselves, we contemplate serenely the advent of an administration that will be independent of politics so far as mere politicians are concerned. We have seen so much of the 'caucuses,' the 'delegation' business, the 'making of public opinion,' the aggressive, eager rushing of incompetent men demanding in an imperious manner to be conciliated and honored, that the change will be for the best. General Grant can find no better model than General Washington. All we can expect from him is that he will not take into his counsels men who have been disloyal to the war, or untrue to the principles of the Republican party. To entertain any other suggestions would be to doubt his honor. Beyond that we care nothing. The country will be abundantly satisfied with the Cabinet, if the work of the Government is well performed. We beg General Grant not to mistake the din, and clatter, and bustle of the Capitol for Public Opinion. Public Opinion is quite content. It certainly does not intend to judge General Grant's administration before he begins it. It will be quite reconciled to see the 'unappreciated statesmen' earning their livelihood by hard, bodily labor, and the ten thousand anxious 'Leaders of the Party' obtaining 'recognition' by the sweat of their brows. The Republican party needs its best men in the advance. It has passed through the struggle of a mighty war. It has seen the overthrow of slavery. It has sustained freedom in spite of the treachery of the outgoing President. It has outlived corruption and shame in its own counsels. It has seen one great and trusted leader carry to the opposition all the weight that came from his splendid intellect and his great name. The issues that have thus far welded it together are dead. It is a triumphant army bivouacking upon a well-fought field with nothing more to conquer. It has saved the nation,—now it must purify the Government of the nation. And now we begin the new Administration, trusting that, so far as Republicanism is concerned, good men and strong men will be placed in position; that the tainted camp-followers of the Johnson army will be dismissed from their positions, and that General Grant will rest upon a regenerated and mighty organization. The Republican party must show itself worthy of its triumphs, its destinies, and its fame."

Horrible.

"A most singular and revolting tragedy occurred in this county on Saturday evening last, the particulars of which we give as they have reached us. A young man by the name of Tobe Crain, a resident of this county, met a funeral procession of blacks; on their way to bury a little child. Turning his mule he accompanied the procession to the grave, and joined in the singing. The negroes state that at the conclusion of the hymn, and without notice of any kind, he shot a little negro boy through the head, killing him instantly. He then shot a negro man in the head and face inflicting a severe, if not dangerous wound. This occurred on the Henderson road, about five miles from town. The negroes, when the shooting took place, scattered in every direction. Crain then mounted his mule and rode to a road-side grocery, about two hundred yards distant. While standing at the door, a negro slipped up behind him, and shot him in the back, and then ran. Crain mounted his mule again and started off seeming unconscious of what he was doing, and appearing to exercise no control over the animal, which wandered off into an open field, when Crain got off and laid down. In the mean time the intelligence of the affair was received by a party of four negroes who were building or repairing a bridge near the residence of Col. M. J. Hall, a mile and a half this side of where Crain was. The negroes became greatly excited, and gathering guns, started to the scene of disturbance, and finding Crain in the field, one or more of them shot and killed him. Crain was drinking, and if the negroes' account of his conduct be true, must have been crazy drunk.

The sheriff as soon as he heard of the affair, sent out a deputy at once, and steps have been taken for a rigid investigation of the whole matter. Six persons are now under arrest; two white men and four negroes. There are also two black men at camps in charge of the military. We forbear giving names or making any comment on this deplorable affair, until more facts are developed. It is but just to say, the community are greatly shocked at this tragedy, so well calculated to inflict injury on us abroad.—Marshall Republican.

A Progressive Southerner.

Occasionally a man is found at the South who comprehends the age in which we live, and the ideas and institutions to which it has given birth, and who is disposed to join the march of progress. Hon. R. H. Glass, of Virginia, belongs to that class. Speaking of the programme marked out by the Conservative or rebel party State, he says: "I have changed, because events have changed and our government has changed. A mighty revolution has swept over our political and social systems; and are the people of Virginia to remain stupidly blind to the new line of departure? Have they to follow longer the lead and cling longer to the fallen fortunes of the Northern Democracy, who have failed to afford them any relief, and who are powerless to extend relief to themselves? I shall do no such thing; and they who are seduced longer by the jack-o'-lantern lights of those shipwrecked mariners who are still dreaming and speculating about the defunct constitutions and platforms of the past, are simply gambling away what still remains from the debris of war, of the homestead of their good old mother Commonwealth, and dancing at her funeral. They shall dance by none of my music nor will I dance by theirs."

A job printer in a little town among the forests of Maine advertises as follows: "My new and highly polished Excelsior press has printed in the last three months handbills of all colors, sufficient, if pasted together, to form a paper ribbon seven inches wide and of a length to encircle the whole globe. The whole amount of paper used in my office, on various presses, since it was started, would be sufficient to completely cover the earth in an envelope of papiermache three-eighths of an inch in thickness. My Excelsior press will run off more bills in five minutes than any other four presses in the State will in an hour. There are but two presses of this kind in the world—one is in my office, and the other I have stowed away in the cellar. The inventor is dead, so that no new one can be made."

The Legislature of Illinois, which recently, by the way of a "joke," ceded Chicago to Indiana, has passed a bill vesting all political, civil, and social power in the State in "the female portion of the population above the age of sixteen years." It is made unlawful for any male over twelve years old to be out after dark, unless protected by a woman qualified to vote. This, it is supposed, is another legislative joke.

A writer in Putnam for February, upon the feasibility of a canal across the isthmus, makes the statement that by a new route just surveyed, a levee of 176 feet only need be made.

The Acorn's Lesson.

A FABLE BY LA FONTAINE.

A country clown, reflecting once upon a punkin (thoughtful dunce!) Was fain to chide Omnipotence. As clearly waiting common sense. "Had I," he said, "the world arranged, Some things, at least, I would have changed; This punkin here, so large and round, Would not have grown upon the ground, But yonder oak, whose branches spread, Their giant arms above my head, Had borne the fruit which one may see Would well become so large a tree; While acorns, had the power been mine, Had fitly graced the slender vine. It seems to me the plainest case That both are greatly out of place, If 'Providence,' whom parsons praise As wondrous wise in all his ways, Had but consulted me, I wren Things in their order we had seen; Then in their due proportion all Had been adjusted, large and small; And wondering Wisdom had not found The punkin growing on the ground, Nor haply laughed aloud to see The acorn pendant from a tree!" Fatigued with thoughts so sage and deep The clown was now inclined to sleep; And so beneath the shady oak He laid him down, but soon awoke, For on his face, by luckless hap, The acorn falling broke his nap, And eke his nose! from whence the blood Was streaming in a tiny flood! "Zooks!" cried the clown, who greatly feared A mortal wound; till in his beard He spied the cause of all his woe, The acorn that had struck the blow. "Good lack!" he muttered, "I have found Why punkins grow upon the ground! For if they grew on oaks instead, Where now had been my foolish head?"

The Waters' Pianos are built of the best and most thoroughly seasoned material.—Advocate and Journal.

Our friends will find at Mr. Waters' store the very best assortment of Pianos, Melodeons and Organs to be found in the United States.—Graham's Magazine.

MUSICAL DOCTORS.—Since Mr. Waters gave up publishing sheet music, he has devoted his whole capital and attention to the manufacture and sale of Pianos and Melodeons. He has just issued a catalogue of his new instruments, giving a new scale of prices, which shows a marked reduction from former rates, and his Pianos have recently been awarded the First Premium at several Fairs. Many people of the present day, who are at once, if not confused, with the glowing advertisements of rival piano-makers, probably overlook the modest manufacturer like Mr. Waters; but we happen to know that his instruments earned him a good reputation long before "Exposition and 'honors'" connected therewith, were even thought of; indeed, we have one of Mr. Waters' Pianos for sale now in our residence (where it has stood for years), of which any manufacturer in the world might well be proud. We have always been delighted with it as a sweet toned and powerful instrument, and there is no doubt of its durability; more than this, some of the best amateur players in the city, as well as several celebrated pianists, have performed on the same piano, and all pronounce its superior and first-class instrument. Stronger endorsement we could not give.—Home Journal. (Feb 19 69) 17.

THE SOCIETAS.—The Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday night, and among other business that was transacted before the meeting, it was decided that the Club give another social dance on April 1st, 1868. Ladies, please take note and prepare to have a social and pleasant time. The Spring fashions will just suit for this occasion.

NEW STABLE FOR THE EL PASO MAIL LINE.—We paid a visit to this stable, and found it built and arranged in a manner best adapted for the comfort and ease of the stock, both in winter and summer. The stable is situated on Alamo Plaza, fronting the Menger Hotel.

The great regularity and promptness with which this line fulfills its contract for delivering the mails from the extreme northwestern part of our great State, is highly commended by all who have business transactions that way. Unless molested by Indians—who seem now to have almost unobstructed possession of our Western frontier—on the occasion of extraordinary floods, this El Paso and Eagle Pass mail is always "on time."

PRAIRIE FARMER ANNUAL AND AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL DIRECTORY.—This valuable pamphlet of a hundred and fifty pages, containing complete instructions concerning the farm and garden, including in and out doors duties, telling what is necessary to be done, and when and how to do it, has been sent us by the publishers of the Prairie Farmer.

Nowhere is this work so valuable as on the Southern farm, where system is sadly neglected.

The directory is 30 cents, or is sent free to subscribers of the Farmer for 1868. Address

A London letter writer says "Few Englishmen, even at this day, have the moral courage to let their beards grow." A full beard is seen only among the highest class, who are above law; the lowest below law, and Bohemians and other outlaws, who are beyond the law. Father Ignatius shaves his head and walks the streets in his Benedictine gown and cow. Father Purchas, the Brighton Ritualist, has a mustache like a shoe brush. But there is not a banker's clerk in England who dares let a hair grow beyond the strictly regulation whisker."

Ex-Governor Wise seems to have undergone a remarkable change of opinion since the war. He writes that he "praises God for the war every day, notwithstanding its disaster and deaths, as a special providence, indispensable to free me and my heirs forever from the weakness, if not wickedness, of African slavery."
