Two Faculty Members Named After Resignations Last Week

Election of two members of the regular school faculty, routing of school buses, the appointment of librarians and the calling of a faculty meeting were announced this week by John L. Beard, superintendent, as final arrangements for the opening of the Wellington Public School Sept. 4 were made.

Two new faculty members for the city school system were named during the last week, replacing two teachers who recently resigned here.

Mrs. Allard Vandiver, who taught home economics in the high school last year while the regular teacher, Miss Lila Allred, was on leave of absence, was named to that place following Miss Allred's resignation. The latter has accepted a place as full time teacher in Texas Technological College at Lubbock, where she studied.

Following the resignation of Mrs. Guy Crawford in Junior high school, Mrs. Logan Cummings was transferred from West Ward to that place and Miss Bessie Jean Willis elected for the latter vacancy.

Miss Willis is a graduate of North Texas State Teachers College at Denton, where she majored in Primary Education. Before receiving her degree she taught for several years at Fresno and Kelley in this county. She is the daughter of Vander Willis of Wellington.

In addition, Miss Ruby James will give private lessons in piano, accordion and saxophone. She will teach in the Junior high school building, as she has heretofore.

Considerably larger than it has been in any of the past years, the fair will not only include entries from Collingsworth County, but from the 4-H clubs of Wheeler County as well. Cash prizes are being offered for the first time, in addition to the regular merchandise awards which are given each year.

Chief drawing card of their fair will be the speaking program and efforts are under way now to bring Congressman Marvin Jones and former governor Pat Neff, now president of Baylor University, here for the fair.

"We're having a full-fledged carnival—ferris wheel, rides and all the trimmings," said Foy Brantley, who is helping with the arrangements. "There'll be races and a rodeo put on by the men who are in charge of the Abra Fourth of July Rodeo each year. The band concert will include bands from Wellington and Shamrock, and probably the Happy high school band. In fact, there'll be something to interest everyone, no

First Payments Expected Here Late This Week

Distribution Of Cotton Marketing Cards To Be Made Soon

At the same time, Mr. Griffin warned that all farmers who have overplanted acres in either cotton or feed notify the county committee when these are plowed up, since applications for parity payment cannot be sent into the state office until the excess acreage is plowed under.

At the same time, Mr. Griffin announced that marketing cards will be ready to be issued by the first week in September, and he strongly urged that all producers secure their cards before any of their cotton is ginned, in order that a correct record may be kept.

In connection with the issuing of the cotton marketing cards, a county wide meeting of all ginners and cotton buyers has been called for Monday evening, Sept. 4, at 8 o'clock at which time ginners' reports, buyers' reports, and other forms which will be used in connection with the 1939 cotton marketing quota will be reviewed and explained.

H. M. Patterson of the Buck Creek Community Monday ginned the county's first bale of cotton for this season. Mr. Patterson had 1870 pounds of lint cotton and got a 495-pound bale, along with 920 pounds of seed. The cotton was ginned at the Farmers Co-Op Gin.

The cotton was strict middling with a 31-32 staple.

"This quality and this staple was unusually good for this time of year," commented Maurice Dickson, bookkeeper of the gin.

In addition to its being the first bale of the season, Mr. Patterson holds another record. The time required to gather the bale, from picking the first bolls until it was loaded on the truck was one hour and fifteen minutes. Forty-three negroes worked on this bale.

Mr. Patterson states that although some of his cotton has been burned by dry weather, he believes his crop will average one-fourth bale per acre.

FEED FOR EGG PRODUCTION

Fifty eggs a day from 120 hens is the present record of Mrs. Elmer Smith of the Aberdeen Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. Smith attributes this splendid record to the well balanced feed ration that the hens receive—a variety of grain, ground mill feed, minerals, animal protein, green succulent feed and water.

To feed nothing but whole grain is one of the common mistakes in poultry feeding. Grains are used by the hen to produce heat, energy, fat and the yolk of the egg. The other constituents of the hen and egg must be supplied. When you leave out any part of the hen's ration, you are apt to have lower egg production.

Overfeeding grain makes the egg production less. The reason for this is that overfeeding of grain reduces the amount of mash that is eaten by the hens. If grain is fed in the morning, only a light feeding should be given, about three pounds for 100 hens. Then one hour before roosting time give the hens all the grain they will eat.

The amount of mash that is eaten is determined by the amount of grain that is fed. For best results feed equal parts of mash and grain in the winter months, and three parts of mash to two parts of grain during the hot weather. Mrs. Smith keeps a good laying mash in feed hoppers before her poultry flock all the time.

Green feed is essential for good health, livability, egg production and hatchability in the poultry flock.

Minerals play an important part. Oyster shell keeps the bones and egg shells in good condition.

Grit helps grind the feed.

Salt—one per cent of the mash, well mixed into the mash is required.

Never forget water. It is a necessary part in the hens' ration for the production of eggs.

The only major league manager who directs his team in street clothes is Connie Mack, veteran leader of the Philadelphia Americans.

They returned by way of Salt Lake City, Utah, and through Pueblo, Colo. They were gone two weeks on the trip.

Consider Stock In Digging Silo

With the purchase of three ensilage cutters by banks of Wellington, and the likelihood that a number of trench silos will be dug in the county during the coming weeks, instructions for the digging of these trenches were given out by W. K. Cottingham, county agent.

"The size of the silo must be in proportion to the number of live-stock to be fed, since ensilage exposed to the air will spoil if not used within a short time," he warned.

"A long, narrow silo is much better than one that is wider and not so long," he pointed out.

Complete instructions for the building of the trench silos can be obtained from Mr. Cottingham, or from any of the three vocational agriculture teachers in the county, Ronald Davis of Wellington, G. S. Dowell of Quail, or E. A. Peck of Samnorwood.

Wyoming Woman Recalls Early Families In Buck Creek Area

By MRS. E. L. RANKIN,
Lance Creek, Wyoming

All the years I have been living in Wyoming I have been keeping up with most of you Collingsworth County people by reading a paper published in Wellington. For a good many years my father, I. T. Goodnight, has been sending me The Wellington Leader. I always enjoy reading every copy, but last week's paper was of special interest because of the many accounts of early pioneer days in various parts of the county.

In the summer of 1890, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Loyd, a brother-in-law and sister of my father, set out in a covered wagon from the old home nest in Tarrant County to find a location for themselves and my father in the Panhandle of Texas. They had agreed that a section would be enough for them both.

They traveled some time and finally camped under a cottonwood tree near the "Red Bluff." My uncle built a dugout near the present home of Mrs. Jennie Sweat. In the early fall, the J. W. McIntush family from the same neighborhood in Tarrant County joined the Loyds. A dugout was built for them on the next school section to the north and east.

After hog killing time, which was about the middle of December, my father set out with his family, worldly possessions and the bacon and lard for the Loyds and McIntushes, landing in old Salsberry. Father went through with an emigrant car. Mother and we youngsters—four of us—went on the train.

Our dugout was soon built on the south side of Buck Creek from where Loyd had settled and the little company of three families were ready for winter. When the sand storms began to blow in the spring, the Loyds left and went back to "Texas" but Goodnight and McIntush stayed and helped to establish the present Buck Creek community.

There were a number of new families moved into the vicinity during the following year, one being that of Professor Russell. In the spring of 1892 Miss Nonie Russell taught a little subscription school in the upstairs of their house. The following pupils attended the school: Ezmond and Walter McDowell, Herbert and Tom Jones, Carrie, Della and John Clement, Pearl, Tom and Alice McIntush, and the writer went part of the time. The next year a school house was built near where Buck Creek school house now stands.

W. D. Collings taught the first free school. Other pioneer teachers were Mr. Goodwin, Jeff Lawrence, Mrs. Willie Yates, and Wilton Neely. Part or all of the following pioneer families still reside in the community: Hayhurst, Jones, Atkinson and Hunter.

About 20 million immigrants came to the United States in the 30 years between 1880 and 1910.

IT ISN'T OFTEN THAT J. I. CASE CO. ANNOUNCES A NEW TRACTOR!

New Flambeau Red
CASE Tractor

NEW PERFORMANCE

NEW ECONOMY

NEW CONVENIENCE

NEW LOW UPKEEP

Such expedients as giving an old tractor a touch of streamlining and other outside redressing and publicizing it with new model nomenclature have always been taboo with this institution. A new model thus becomes a landmark in company history, and such a role is fore ordained for the new D (standard) and DC (tricycle) series which enter in field as the new Flambeau Red Case Tractors.

New Oiling System

The new design has no network of oil pipes inside the engine. All oil passages are drilled in the solid metal, including new provisions for positive pressure oiling to valve rocker arms and push rods. New external tubes take oil pressure to steering post gauge and provide flood oiling for the governor. Even the pump intake strainer has greater capacity for still greater certainty of lubrication under extreme temperatures.

Case Implements

The following tractor mounted implements are available: Two-way, one-furrow tractor-mounted plow; 2-row lister; 2-row lister and middle buster; 3-row middle buster; 2- and 4-row loose ground lister planters.

New Fourth Gear

The new tractors are provided with a new fourth gear which with rubber tires gives from 2 to 10 miles an hour at rated engine speed—a time-saver between jobs and for hauling, a fuel-saver in light field work when engine can be operated at half speed or less. On steel wheels with engine running at rated rpm, the four gears give speeds at 2 1-4, 3 1-4, 4 1-4 and 9 miles per hour. However, these are only four of the many rates of travel which can be secured by use of the governor control and the full pulling ability of the engine at slow speeds.

Regular Equipment

Regular equipment for the D includes fenders, platform, swinging drawbar, belt puller, transmission and pulley brakes, starter gear on flywheel, radiator shutter, engine temperature gauge and gasoline or kerosene-distillate manifold. All these units are also standard equipment for the DC, which also includes a power take-off with "sunbonnet" and operator's clutch, 12-inch extension hubs and differential turning brakes. Special equipment listed includes electric starter, battery, generator, and lights; cushion seat with backrest; muffler; the well-known CASE motor lift and various types of wheel equipment.

Eligah Taylor Funeral Rites Held Thursday

Had Made Home With Daughter At Lutie Last 17 Years

Funeral rites for Eligah Taylor, 79-year-old resident of the Lutie Community, were conducted Thursday, August 24, from the Methodist Church in Samnorwood, with Rev. O. C. Coppage of Shamrock, pastor, in charge.

Mr. Taylor died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grant Jolly, with whom he had made his home for the last 17 years. He had been in ill health for several months.

Mr. Taylor was highly respected and loved by all who knew him, not only in his home section but throughout the county. A large crowd of friends from the entire section gathered to pay tribute to his memory at the funeral rites. His friendliness and strength of character made for him an outstanding place in his community.

Born at Little Rock, Arkansas, on August 8, 1860, Mr. Taylor was 79 years and 15 days of age at the time of his death. On May 1, 1887, he was married to Miss Mattie Hare of Dublin, Texas.

At the age of 20 years he joined the Methodist Church and for more than ten years he served as a church steward. He was a member of the church at Brady.

Surviving are six children: Mrs. Grant Jolly of Lutie, Mrs. Charley McInturff, Mit Taylor, Mrs. Walter Self, Mrs. Inas Shipley, and Cecil Taylor, all of Oakland, Calif.; 22 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. A sister, Mrs. Nannie Golden of Corpus Cove, Texas, also survives.

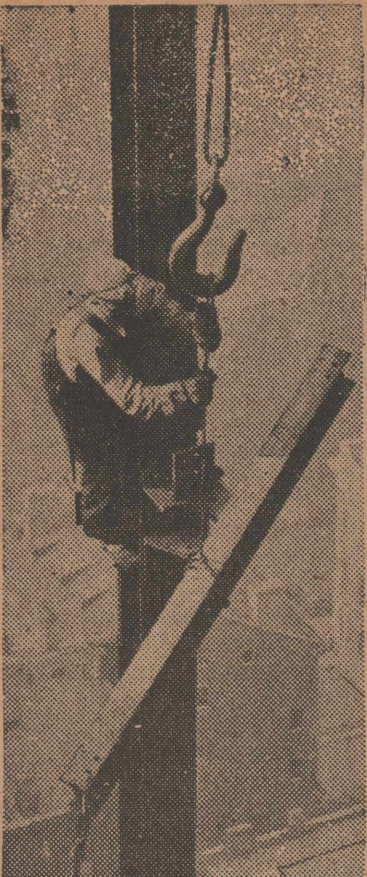

Pall bearers for the services were Floyd Thompson, Will Bennett, C. L. Lowry, Frank Gulley, Joe Rountree, and Lee Roark. Flower bearers were Maxie Honeycutt, Majean Fritts, Joyce Rountree and Lyna Mae Lowry.

Hymns included a duet, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," by Mrs. Jack Lowry and Mrs. John McWhorter and "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," by the choir.

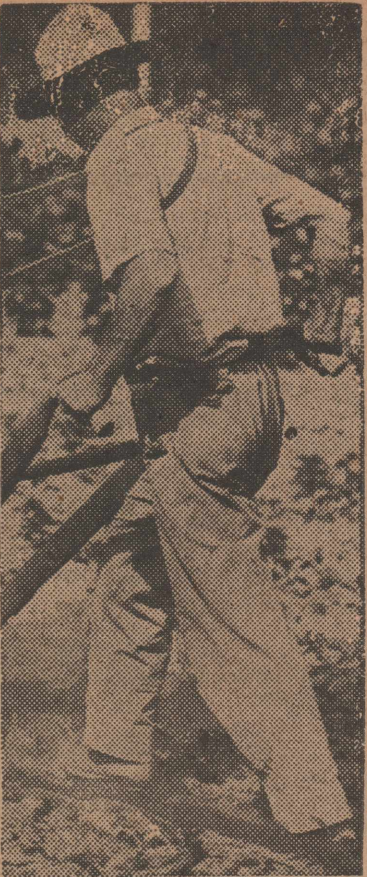

Interment was in the Plymouth cemetery, with the Ellis Funeral Home in charge.

Mrs. L. C. Callahan and her daughter, Suzanne, both were graduated in the same class with the degree of B. S. at the State Normal School at Florence, Ala.

Labor Day Heroes

The Man Behind — INDUSTRY

And the Man Behind — THE PLOW

Labor Day honors workers behind the machinery of industry—men who swing sledge hammers, guide girders, keep factory wheels spinning. They deserve it. But, so does another type of laborer who toils long hours that these men may eat, that they may have the products to work on. You know him—and well. Don't forget to doff the hat to the farmer, too, on Sept. 4.

Turkey Growers Reminded To Put Birds On Full-Feed

With Thanksgiving coming one week earlier this year than in former years, it is already time for turkey raisers in the county to start plans for fattening their birds, W. K. Cottingham, county agent, reminded this week.

"Turkeys should be on full feed by October 1 if the growers expect to receive full benefit of the Thanksgiving market," he said.

Worming and vaccination for fowlpox was also recommended by the agent. The latter practice, he explained, is not practiced here, although he stated the belief that it would cut the loss of turkeys if used more widely.

"If the birds are wormed and vaccinated, they will have plenty of time to recover completely before being put on full feed," Mr. Cottingham concluded.

Deck's DIDACTICS

By H. D. W.

The Wellington Skyrockets have suddenly found themselves confronted with a game that had not been listed on their schedule. This is the game with Mangum which will be played here on September 15. Both Wellington fans and officials were opposed to playing any Oklahoma teams this year, due to the difference in age limits. Last year when Wellington had a senior team, the Mangum boys on the average were two years older. This year the difference in age is even greater. Mangum insisted on Wellington fulfilling the second engagement of a two-year contract and the game is set for September 15. However, Wellington may not take too bad a drubbing. This year's edition of the Rockets has its points—in fact several points.

The Samnorwood Fair has been set for September 15, and cash prizes will be offered on all exhibits. Wood Coleman, who is chairman, expects the best display of community booths in recent years, and he says that there will be no comparison in the livestock exhibit this year with that of former years.

What we need is a good rain and no war.

The war crisis continues to be very grave, but there is very little that can be learned. The news is censored from every country that might be involved. The radio continues to repeat the same items time after time until they become stale. The reason is that the foreign correspondents have been barred from first hand information. They have to submit their articles to government officials before they can talk over the radio or send them to their daily papers. This has been true in Germany all along and in the last few days it has been true of the dispatches from England and France.

This country must not again send our boys to be slaughtered on European soil. Nearly everyone agrees on that. But there is quite a difference of opinion on selling supplies to warring nations. Some think it should be cash and carry, but realistic thinkers know that effective help in providing supplies will quickly involve selling on a credit. And both of these schools of thought know that when they talk of selling supplies to every one who can come after it that they are talking of England and France. They have the sea power that will enable them to transport vital commodities.

When this country once sets forth on an unalterable course, then I will follow my country to the last step. The United States is my country and without it I might be a slave or I might be a pauper, but until this country does set its sails, irrevocably, I intend to con-

Wins Scholarship

George Langley of Wellington was notified recently that he had been awarded a scholarship to Texas Technological College for the coming session. He graduated from the Wellington high school this spring.

time to speak my mind. At the present that is the right of every American.

Here are some of my beliefs presented without explanation. American blood should not be spilt on European or Asiatic soil. We are being driven, whether war comes or not, to devote our attention to the continents of North and South America. Let us continue to be friends and make better friends of Canada, which may become in time the successor to Britain. Let us become better friends of and stimulate greater trade with Mexico and all of the South American countries. Let us remember that we are now a creditor nation and not a debtor nation and push Hull's reciprocal trade treaties with all friendly nations to the utmost.

To that I might add that we should reserve our final opinion of the situation in Europe until it has actually settled. We have seen it change before our eyes within the past ten days. Germany made a treaty with the hated communists of Russia. Japan found herself isolated and started making overtures to the United States. Spain quit her former allies. Italy is left facing a war in which she has everything to lose and nothing to gain, and the probabilities are that she will either say neutral or side with the allies. England and France now appear firm where a year ago they sold out a deserving republic, but there is still suspicion of England's governing class. Russia remains an enigma and can jump in any direction. There is nothing in any of this that justifies an American citizen in making up his mind definitely.

And yet here are some plain facts. Emotionally most people in this country have made up their minds. Over ninety per cent of them sympathize with England and France. These countries have been vastly superior to Germany in appealing to the American public. However, no combination of nations has yet been able to convince the American people that we should send troops to other lands. Our convictions on that score are firm still. That is our hope. If we stay firm with that belief, if we act in keeping with it, then we may conserve our best young men, may remain strong, and by so doing may be able to pull these other nations back to some semblance of culture and civilization after they have crippled themselves in a devastating war. We tried to settle that old business with guns in 1917, but we failed.

Since I am convinced of only one thing and that is that I do not know anything about what is going to happen in Europe, it is a relief to report the opinion of John Jones. Questioned about whether or not he thought Roosevelt was meddling he said: "Well, if two of your friends are about to fight, you don't take sides. You just try to argue them out of it."

Dealing with the migration of dispossessed farm families from Oklahoma to California, the book mentions such towns along the 66 highway as Texola, Shamrock, McLean and Amarillo.

High Schools In County Allotted 28 NYA Places

Each School's Number Of Aid Students Based On Enrollment

Twenty-eight boys and girls in the four high schools in the county will be able to continue their school work through assistance from the NYA work during the coming year.

Notice of these places was received last week, and superintendents of the four schools, with Logan Cummings, county superintendent, apportioned the number of places to each school on the basis of enrollment.

This number is twelve more places than were allowed in the four schools last year. Two of this year's number were for colored children.

The Wellington schools were allotted NYA jobs for thirteen white and two colored children. Quail school received five places, and Samnorwood and Dodson four each.

Students employed in this NYA work will work in libraries, do clerical and stenographic work, or engage in campus improvement work.

The feed will be cut with an ensilage cutter and will be covered with dirt from eight to twelve inches deep.

The committee of boys who visited Mr. Atkins' place reported to the rest of the boys at Quail that it was the most interesting place they have yet visited. Their reports tell of about one hundred head of steers, a bumper feed crop, the largest apple orchard and grape vineyard any of them have ever seen, a well equipped farm, and a real country home. The report closes by saying that "there are some successful farmers, and Mr. Atkins has inspired us to be the kind of farmers that he is."

Starkey Installs Butane Storage Tank This Week

Installation of a 500-gallon storage tank for butane gas has been completed by Oran Starkey of the Starkey Electric Company. The tank is located at the J. B. Clark Filling Station at the end of Eighth street.

This was installed primarily to accommodate farmers in the county using butane gas, as heretofore it was necessary to send the butane bottles to Amarillo to be refilled, Mr. Starkey explained.

This is the only storage tank within a radius of 100 miles.
