MOODY VOTES HOLD RULE IN TEXAS SENATE

Ferguson Desire for Immediate Probe Voted Down

AUSTIN, Sept. 22. (AP)—After a tense day in legislative session, the senate of the 39th legislature in call session was stamped from the present administration into the field of the incoming administration when a resolution by Senator A. E. Wood of Granger, postponing action on confirmation of Hal Moseley, John Cage, highway commissioners, and S. C. Granberry, prison commissioner, was adopted by a vote of 22 to 7. Two senators were absent. The 40th legislature will act on these appointees of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson in January.

Nominees Excepted

Through amendments Judge James Swayne, member of the industrial accident board, and Robert M. Lyles, states attorney to the court of criminal appeals, were excluded from the resolution and their appointments will be acted on when the governor's nominations committee makes a report.

Senator Lloyd Price of Texarkana, withdrew through a motion, his amendment to exclude Commissioner Granberry from the resolution, because he said "Granberry announced that he would welcome an investigation into his actions."

Senator I. D. Fairchild of Angelina county opposed the withdrawal because, he declared serious charges in connection with the commissioners should be made with the legislative session.

How They Voted

The vote on the Wood resolution "yes," Bailey, Berkeley, Bledsoe, Davis, Floyd, Lewis, Moore, Parnell, Pollard, Price, Real, Reid, Rushek, Smith, Stuart, Triplett, Ward, Westbrook, Wirtz, Witt, Wood, Woodward.

"Nays," Bowers, Fairchild, Roy J. Harding, Holbrook, Miller, Parr, Strong.

The vote was considered a triumph for the governor's nominee, Attorney General Dan Moody, in that he has been either confirmed or rejected, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson would have been victorious and the campaign waged by Moody in the race for governor was directed against the highway commission. If the highway commissioners had been confirmed, it would have meant a repudiation of the incoming administration, and if they had been rejected, Gov. Ferguson would have had the privilege of appointing new commissioners, against whom, possibly no complaint could have been made.

Executive Session

Although the senate was in executive session most of the day, and shortly before four o'clock reported that, "progress had been made" enough reference was made in the debate by senator prior to putting the resolution in open session before the senate for final vote, to learn of the bitter fight that was waged behind closed doors, and the written charges and answers, remained in the governor's nominations committee.

Miller Explains Vote.

Senator Eugene Miller of Weatherford filed his reasons for voting "no." He said that he voted "no" because he felt that the constitution places the duty upon the senate to pass on the appointees at this time. "Section 12, of article four of the constitution seems to set out in no uncertain terms that obligation on the state senate. Neither members of the senate nor attorney general was able to show any authority by which the senate was justified in deferring acting on the confirmations until next January.

"Having taken the oath to support the constitution upon taking my seat in the senate I could not

'Red Haired Girl' Traps Youth

HOUSTON, Sept. 22. (AP) Domestic troubles, business reverses and signs of wealth on every hand to make his own poverty more glaring and undesirable, caused Arlie A. Harwood, 23, dental laboratory assistant, to write threatening letters to a prominent Houstonian in an effort to obtain $50,000, according to a signed statement obtained from the young man Wednesday by Post Office Inspector H. H. Black and Deputy Sheriff George Lacy.

Harwood was arrested Tuesday night in the corridors of the post office where he had been lured by letters signed by "a red haired girl," the creation of the men who arrested him. After a three-hour grilling Tuesday night in which he refused to budge from his statement that he had nothing to do with the threat letters, he was locked up in county jail.

FEUD RESULTS IN FATALITY

Wealthy Oil Operator Shot To Death By His Nephew

BLACKWELL, Okla., Sept. 22 (AP)—Reappearing suddenly in Tonkawa after an unexplained absence of several years Joe Hubka today shot and killed his brother-in-law, Joe A. Novotny, wealthy oil royalty operator. The shooting occurred on the main street of Tonkawa in the sight of about a hundred persons.

Hubka was arrested as he stood over Novotny's body.

"There he is, and I'm the guy that did it," Hubka was quoted as saying.

Difficulties arose between Novotny and Hubka several years ago when Novotny purchased a tract of land in the Tonkawa oil field, then in its infancy, from Hubka's mother. Several producing oil wells were brought in on the land.

Tonkawa citizens were aroused over today's shooting and a large crowd milled about the city jail after Hubka was taken there.

Hubka is a brother of Mrs. Novotny. He disappeared soon after the land transaction and was not heard from until his reappearance this morning.

RECORD CROWD WILL WITNESS DEMPSEY BOUT

Odds Heavy On Jack To Down Tunney In Fight

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP) More than $1,500,000 will be at stake in wagers when the opening bell sounds for the first round of the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney heavyweight championship battle tomorrow night, Wall Street wagering firms estimated today. Dempsey continues to be the choice at odds of three to one with reports of a scarcity of Tunney cash.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22.(AP)—While the last injunction move was being fought in court and the last nails were being driven into the serried rows of pine seats at the sesqui-centennial stadium Philadelphia tonight became the center of the most feverish fight furore in boxing history.

Nothing in the last three decades of gloves fighting has even approached the excitement and enthusiasm aroused on the eve of the ten round battle tomorrow night in which Jack Dempsey, king of the heavyweight division for seven years will defend his crown against the attack of the former marine, Gene Tunney.

Jack Favorite

The fact that Dempsey is an overwhelming favorite quoted at odds of three to one in brisk wagering has not dampened public interest. Philadelphia entertaining the greatest sporting event in its history, has gone "fight mad" on general principles. The incoming thousands, most of them from the big eastern and middle western centers of population, but others from such far-away points as Australia and South America testify to the world-wide attention drawn to boxing's classic event.

The first heavyweight championship bout in three years will have the most dramatic and spectacular setting in the annals of boxing or probably any other sport. If the expectations of Promoter Tex Rickard are fulfilled and they seem likely to be approximately 132,000 spectators, will pay something like $1,750,000 to see Dempsey and Tunney match their skill and stamina in a struggle that cannot last more than 39 minutes.

Old Records Broken.

Previous records were established in 1921 at Boyles Thirty Acres, Jersey City, when 90,000 saw Dempsey hammer Georges Carpentier into submission at a cost of $1,626,000.

The experts are nearly unanimous in picking Dempsey to win but support, chiefly moral for the challenger, comes from all walks of fandom. Tunney's war record, his engaging personality, the way in which he has fought himself into a title contending position all have caught the popular fancy.

Those most hopeful of Tunney's prospects base their conviction that he has at least a fighting chance upon several factors. These have to do not only with Tunney's excellent record but unquestioned ruggedness and defensive ability, but a belief that Dempsey will not be the same champion who battered Willard, Carpentier, Firpo and others into defeat. These critics while conceding Dempsey to be the heavier puncher doubt that he has regained his best condition or that his legs will carry him through if the fight is unexpectedly prolonged.

Dempsey Bothered

Then too, observers feel that the harrassing and bothersome series of legal actions, unprecedented in connection with a title bout, have affected the champion's morale. Dempsey's friends, however, are convinced that these moves have served only to stimulate Dempsey's fighting temper and put him on edge.

The rival battlers will not leave their training camps for the scene of battle until tomorrow. Dempsey anxious to avoid any eleventh hour moves by process servers will be weighed in at Atlantic City between one and two p. m., by two members of the Pennsylvania boxing commission. Tunney will motor here from Stroudsburg and be weighed by Frank Keiner, chairman of the commission. The fighters will arrive at the stadium only in sufficient time to don their fighting trunks before stepping through the ropes, some time between 9:30 and 9:45 o'clock eastern daylight time.

INITIAL PLANS TO BE USED ON 11-STORY JOB

Deal Completed Wednesday Involving Structure At Eighth and Lamar

A deal was completed Wednesday between W. B. Later, however, the size was curtailed to eight stories and under this program the work has proceeded recently. The new owner announced last night, however, that he would immediately start on the top three floors and carry out the construction under the original plans.

Larg Property Owner

Through the purchase of the property, Mr. Hamilton becomes one of the largest owners of business district real estate in Wichita Falls.

THE PETTER

—By— Beatrice Burton

Author of "Love Bound" "Her Man"

Illustrated and Copyrighted by Johnson Features, Inc., 1819 Broadway, New York City

READ THIS FIRST:

MERRY LOCKE, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. Her sole ambition is to have a good time and plenty of beaux. At 20 she fails in her business course because she won't study. Then, when her father suddenly dies, she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S little beauty shop at a tiny salary.

At that time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is ANTHONY GAINES, a young lawyer who wants to marry her. Their engagement ends when he learns that Merry goes out with other men. A year later she hears that he is going to marry a girl in Montana, where he has gone to live. She tries not to care.

CASSIE, Merry's older sister, marries her rich employer, MORLEY KAUFMAN. Merry envies her her soft and easy life, and decides that she is going to marry for money, too, if she can.

Through Cassie she meets BILL ERSKINE, a well-to-do bachelor much older than herself. She becomes engaged to him, but he keeps putting off the wedding date.

JINNY, the youngest sister, marries DERRICK JONES, who lives next door, and goes to live with his parents. MOMS, her mother, rents two rooms in her house to help make both ends meet. Lillie Dale comes to live in one of them and a MR. HEFFLINGER takes the other. After a year Moms and he get married and home is no longer the pleasant place it once was to Merry.

During one of Bill's absences from town, she goes out with an old sweetheart of hers, LES PURCELL, not knowing that he is married. His wife threatens to divorce him and name Merry in her suit. Then, on the day when Merry is going to explain matters to her, she tries to kill herself. Finally she and Purcell decide to patch things up. But in the meantime Morley's sister, MURIEL, hears the story and tells it to Bill Erskine. He writes to tell Merry he thinks they're not suited to one another, but Moms announces the engagement, anyway. One night Cassie comes home. She has decided to leave Morley because of his love affair with a MRS. FIFI PELL. She tells Merry that Bill Erskine is in town, and the next morning Merry looks out of the window and sees Bill drive up to the house with Morley Kaufman.

Merry breaks an engagement with Bill for dinner that evening, but in the afternoon she received a letter from him telling of his marriage in Florida.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LV.

She put her bitter thoughts into words just as bitter.

"I'll sue him," she said to Moms, lifting her head from her hands. "I'll sue him for breach of promise, if it's the last thing I ever do!"

For the moment there was no beauty in Merry's face. The hardness in it robbed it of every atom of charm. The green eyes were dulled as by a film, and the tight-drawn lips hid the secret of their Cupid's bow.

Moms did not reply. She began to pile up the dirty dishes on a tray, and when it was full she carried it into the kitchen.

Merry got up and followed her.

"Don't you think that's what I ought to do? Sue him?" she asked, and her voice was as hard as her white face.

Moms, pouring hot water into the dishpan, shook her head without looking up.

"No, no," she answered. "How could you do such a thing? A breach of promise suit wouldn't hurt Bill Erskine's reputation. Such things don't injure a man. But with a girl it's different."

"I don't see why," Merry returned stubbornly. "And even if it did, I wouldn't care. I'm going to do it!"

Moms shrugged her wide shoulders and began to wash the dishes.

"All right, Merry, suit yourself," she said stonily. "If you want to advertise the fact to the world that Bill Erskine wouldn't marry you, go ahead and do it. Only remember, you'll be hurting yourself more than anyone else."

Merry's brain never worked with greater speed, and she could not follow her mother now.

"How would a suit like that hurt me?" she wondered.

Almost without knowing what she was doing, she picked up a red-and-white linen towel, and began to wipe the cups and plates that were steaming on the drainboard.

Moms' mouth smiled, but her eyes did not.

"Why, Merry, can't you see for yourself that you'd be done for? Do you suppose any other man would marry a girl who'd been publicly jilted?" she asked, with a glance. "This way, nobody knows whether you wouldn't marry Bill, or whether he wouldn't marry you. That is, nobody but me and Cassie knows it! And if we all keep perfectly still, and you go out with other people, as if nothing had happened, you can save your pride."

While Merry was thinking over what she said, she spoke again.

"And another thing, you'd look sweet filing this kind of suit against Bill Erskine when you're in danger of being dragged into Les Purcell's divorce case, wouldn't you?"

Merry's heart seemed to jump in her breast. She hadn't thought of that.

"What would you do if Nonie Purcell tried to make out that you and Bill had had trouble over her beautiful husband? What would you do then asked Moms, who always expected the very worst to happen.

There was wisdom in what she said, however, and Merry knew it.

"I wish to goodness I'd done what I wanted to do a month ago," she said weakly. "I wanted to write and tell him I was all through with him, and then I didn't."

"Well, why didn't you?" Her mother looked up again, and their eyes met for a second before Merry glanced away.

"Oh, I don't know, exactly," she said dully. "The house seems so awful these days, somehow. I know it was all right for you to marry again, Moms, only—this house isn't home, any more, to me. I'd have married Bill Erskine or anybody else to get out of it."

There was a breathless pause.

Moms wrung out the dishcloth and hung it up. She walked across the kitchen and put the pans on the stove to dry.

Then she came back.

"Now Merry, look here,' 'she said sternly, "I've had just about enough from you girls, about my second marriage. I'm tired of the way you and Cassie and Jinny and even Lillie Dale, treat Ed Hefflinger! He's my husband and this is my house—"

"I'd Rather Keep on Driving—With you, Cabby," She Said Amiably.

Merry did not wait to hear the rest of her tirade. She walked out of the kitchen and rushed up the stairs, vowing to herself that she would never spend another night under the roof of Moms' house.

Then she thought wildly of leaving town, too. Of going somewhere where no one would know her, or anything about her.

But all the time she was thinking about it, she knew she never would go. She would stay right here and let life carry her along, like a leaf on the bosom of a river.

It was a drifter. The way that was easiest, that was her way. And she knew it.

She had gone into the beauty shop because it was near home and the work was easy. She had drifted along with Bill Erskine for months and months, because a show-down was so unpleasant. She had drifted into a little love affair here, and another one there, because the current had shoved her into them, and then picked her up again, and shoved her along again.

April of the next year found Merry Locke doing the same things that she had been doing the year before.

Lillie and she were still running the beauty shop in the same shiftless, happy-go-lucky way.

They were still living under the roof of Moms' comfortable, gloomy house. Promising each other from week to week that they would get a little flat of their own in the near future where there would be no Mr. Hefflinger. But they never did it.

Merry had a new admirer.

His name was George Leet, and he worked in the wholesale house where Lillie bought some new equipment for the shop. That was how Merry happened to meet him.

He was, as Merry cheerfully said, nobody "to wave flags over." He was tall and thin and serious. Not the least good looking, and anything but a good talker.

He had a little roadster and his idea of a wild time was to take Merry for dinner in a quiet restaurant and then to the movies afterward.

The chances are that Merry liked him because he was so utterly different from Bill Erskine.

She never thought about Bill, if she could help it. He had dealt such a blow to her vanity that she was still hurt and half-ashamed whenever anyone mentioned him.

On the first Monday afternoon in April Muriel Kaufman came breezing into the shop about four o'clock.

Merry glanced up in surprise when she saw her opening the door. It was months since she had seen Muriel. She had not seen much of Cassie or Muriel or any of the people who knew about her and Bill Erskine, ever since his marriage. Purposely she had kept away from them.

"Hello, Mary Ann Locke!" Muriel greeted her with airy cheerfullness. "How's tricks?"

"Fine," Merry came back at her just as cheerfully, giving her a smile that was just as dazzling as if she felt like smiling. "What brings you here to our lowly emporium?"

Muriel swept off the little black silk hat that was pressed down over her dark hair.

"This," 'she answered, shaking her head. "I wondered if Lillie would have time to give me a marcel. I'm going to meet Cabby a five, and I haven't time to go way down town."

Lillie came bustling up from the rear of the shop. She made it a point to be obliging to such people as Muriel and Cassie, always. People who had money and rich friends.

"Why, of course, I can take you, Miss Kaufman," she told Muriel, with her wide smile. "I've an appointment at four thirty." She turned to Merry. "It's that Mrs. Macomber who's always late. She'll just have to wait!"

At a quarter to five Muriel was marcelled and brilliantined. She sat down at the manicure table to watch for Cabby, and while she waited she carefully made up her face.

"Hear the news about Bill Erskine's wife?" she asked Merry, when Lillie and Mrs. Macomber had vanished into one of the booths.

Merry shook her head.

"She had a baby about a month ago," Muriel told her. "I had a letter from her yesterday."

"I didn't know you knew her," Merry answered.

Muriel widened her big brown eyes. "Of course I know her," she said. "Bill asked me to invite her to our house when he was staying with Cassie and Morley a year ago last Christmas. Don't you remember? When Cassie had that big Christmas party of hers?"

"I remember the party, but I don't remember the girl," Merry replied, "I didn't even know you had a house guest at that time."

Muriel colored. "That's right. You and I weren't very good friends last year, were we?" she asked, with a nervous little laugh. "But the girl was at Cassie's party. A little blond girl named Elsie Preston. I thought you met her.

Then it flashed across Merry's mind that there had been a little ash-blonde girl at Cassie's party that night. She remembered how she had come upon Bill sitting with her in a corner, and had taken him away from her.

"But Muriel, the girl I remember was a young thing. She couldn't have been as old as you and me," she said, and Muriel nodded.

"That was the girl. She wasn't as old as we are," she said, "She's only twenty now. Mother says her people must have been crazy to let her marry Bill. He's forty-five or so. But I think it was all right."

She gave a last dab of powder to her nose and tucked her vanity case away.

"I didn't know what to think when your mother announced your engagement to Bill," she said, "because I had known for months that Bill was going to marry Elsie Preston, if he got the chance!"

"You knew that, and you didn't tell me about it!" Merry cried, her eyes dark and sparkling with sudden anger." "You knew I was engaged to Bill, and yet you invited that girl to your house! Well, you're a fine friend!"

Muriel laughed, showing sharp little white teeth. "You're a fine one, yourself!" she said. "You knew I was engaged to Cabby, but that didn't stop you from trying to vamp him every chance you got, did it? Honey, don't think I didn't know that you used to make dates with him, because I did! 'All's fair in love and war,' and I made up my mind to get even with you! I'm sorry now, rather."

With that she got up and walked slowly and insolently out of the shop. She stood waiting on the sidewalk without for another half hour. Then she started slowly away going toward the west.

At six o'clock when Merry left the shop she was nowhere in sight.

But at the corner of Barge street, Cabby Marsh was sitting in his car, plainly waiting for someone.

"Seen Muriel?" he sang out, as Merry came along the pavement. "I was to meet her here, but I'm a bit late."

Merry's lips went up in a smile, that dimpled one of her soft cheeks.

"Haven't laid eyes on her!" Merry replied blithely. If Muriel thought that all was fair in love and war, why not take her at her word?

She opened the door of the roadster and got in.

"I was just starting to walk home, Cabby," she said, smiling up at him entrancingly, "but I'd rather drive—with you. I don't even care when I get home! You could ask me to dinner and I'd be thrilled to pieces!"

Cabby grinned and turned his car. "I'd be thrilled, myself," he answered. "I was going out with Muriel, but as long as she's failed me—where do we go from here?"

He stopped the car suddenly and said something under his breath.

Muriel Kaufman was coming down the street toward them!

Girl Makes Youth Do Walking Stunt

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 22. (AP) —It isn't news any more if a fellow makes his girl walk home.

But, as in the man and dog example, it is unusual if the girl throws the fellow out of the car and drives away.

That happened here Tuesday night. Police were startled as a young woman walked into Central Station and announced calmly she had thrown her escort out of the car because he tried to "abuse" her and later strike her. A few minutes later the youth in question came to the police, much bedraggled from his fall and long walk.

This story also has an unusual anti-climax. The couple "made up" at the station and left together all having been forgiven.

THIS WOMAN'S BATTLE

Wins Against Ill Health

"At times I was hardly able to do my housework," writes Mrs. Margaret Wallace, of 1547 Safford Ave., Columbus, Ohio. How many women have found themselves in this same condition! How many women have fought bravely on, day after day, cooking, washing, ironing, doing the dishes, and keeping the house clean, when they were in a weakened condition and had not sufficient strength to perform these duties.

A friend advised her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a fair trial. "I just can't give enough thanks to it," she writes. "Now I can eat anything at all and I am feeling better than I have for years. I shall never be without your medicine again."

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

Many other women tell us, as Mrs. Wallace did that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health.

WHOLE BODY ACHED— FELT VERY DEPRESSED

"I was afflicated with constipation which caused me to have all sorts of pains and aches," says Mr. M. J. Snook, of Lamar, Mo. "I did not have a well day for years. I tried many medicines, but received only temporary relief. For four years I did no work, and I thought I would never be well again. At times I could hardly move. Getting up and down out of my chair caused the most acute pain. My whole body ached.

"I grew very depressed over my condition for I have always been very active, and it distressed me greatly not to be able to get about."

"Some one told be to try Black-Draught for costipation which was the cause of all my sickness. I had tried so many things that I hadn't much faith, but I was doing no good as it was, so I thought it would not hurt to see what it would do for me. I am happy to say that it proved to be all my friend had said. I took Black-Draught regularly for some time according to the directions. I very soon began to feel better. I gradually took up my work, and as I grew stronger I was able to accomplish more and more.

"I am 61 years old, but feel as good as I did at 30. My appetite is good and I enjoy my meals. I keep a box of Black-Draught in the home always, and if I seem the least bit inclined to be constipated I take a dose or two, never allowing that condition ot run on. I find it keeps me in good health, and I am now better than I have been in years."

'MA' HAS WAYS TO KEEP POST

She May Call Second Meet Of Solons to Halt Resignation

AUSTIN, Sept. 22.—If Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her advisers want to have the legislative investigation made while the house and senate are in session, as the Ferguson followers of the house unsuccessfully contended when the probe was ordered, an expedient by which they can achieve their wishes has been discovered by the dopesters.

That would be to submit legislative matters requiring more than 30 days, and then reconvening a new session here as soon as the present term ends, not later than Oct. 13.

Under the resolution, the committee appointed Wednesday morning of this week, begins its work immediately on adjournment of the present, first called special session.

Jim Can Watch

If Mrs. Ferguson orders a second called session for tax measures or to deal with deficiency appropriations then the Ferguson friends of the legislature, ignored in the personnel of the investigating committee, according to predictions, will be on hand to observe the proceedings.

Mrs. Ferguson's term lacked but a few months of having gone through without a special session, but now that the first one has been called, there is expected to be no particular aversion on the part of the governor or her advisers to a second session.

Then, too, another 30 days of legislative activities would put off still further the annoying question which is to bob up again sooner or later, whether Mrs. Ferguson will hand over the reins of the executive office to the lieutenant governor and retire to private life.

Terms of Wager

Under the terms of her once-announced intention of resigning she called for an investigation at this session, along with the bond validation. She coupled this with the statement she intended, "when these matters are completed" of retiring to the shades of private life. So that, regardless of there being another 30 days of the legislature after the present term, the investigation was thought to provide grounds on which her resignation might be postponed.

After Mrs. Ferguson had invited an investigation of departments by the present legislature, the fight made by the Ferguson followers of the house was not against it, but was for starting immediately during the present 30-day term.

At The Theatres

Monte Carlo Is A Wow, She Says

By the Flapper Reviewer.

Migosh, Mame, I ain't laughed so much since the pigs et little brother, as they say in Texas, as I did last night at the Olympic theatre watching this picture, "Monte Carlo." It's a scream and I don't mean perhaps. Don't miss it!

How does it go? Well, three dames win a popularity contest or something and get a trip to Monte Carlo. And you should see these three frails. Trixie Friganza is one of them and shes working in a garage carrying flivvers around by one leg when she gets the news. ZaSu Pitts, gee ain't she sad? Shes another one and she's a dress-maker and Gertrude Olmsted, she's a school teacher and you'd never know Gertrude at the beginning. She's beautiful but in the first part of the film she looks like something that came with the groceries.

Well, anyway, they get to Monte Carlo and Gertrude meets Lew Cody, all done up like a Prince. Everybody thinks he is a prince, he's got all the uniforms and everything, even the guy that shoots him for a noble cause or some other reason.

Oh, yes, then the fashion show. That's where Gertrude gets all prettied up and what I mean she looks like a million dollars. She's Miss America at the fashion show and it's some fashion show. I never seen suchc clothes in all my life, not even at the Emporium. It's all done in colors. Gee it's pretty.

Now where was I? Oh yes, Lew and Gertrude. I've never seen him in anything like this before. Hes' always been kind of a mean guy, you know, the kind that breaks up homes and things like that. But he's really funny in this.

They got the funniest bunch of people I ever saw in my life in this show. Remember Trixie Friganza in vaudeville? She's in it and when she did the Charleston I thought I'd die. Then there's Karl Dane and Harry Myers, Cesare Gravina and Roy D'Arcy, the guy that played the crown prince in "The Merry Widow."

And Trixie Friganza falls in love with a duke only he ain't a duke at all, and ZaSu Pitts falls for a count and he ain't a count neither. It's some picture. I got an ache from laughing. If you're going I'll go with you, I wanna see it again.

MEDDLESOME MOLLY THE BAD LITTLE DOLLY

BY MARTHA HART

No more RHEUMATISM

IT'S GONE! That awful agony! Rheumatism can't stand the rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build.

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

And S. S. S. is the thing. Red blood conquers rheumatism. Everybody knows that.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest — days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment—made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

S.S.S.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

ERASMUS A MAN OF VISION

ERASMUS is a man of vision. A man of vision usually is a warrior. Erasmus is a warrior and former member of the state senate. In addition to all these, he is a former editor and he believes that the free system in Texas should be abolished by legislative action and all officers placed on a salary basis.

As a member of the state senate, the did his best to put the fee grabbers out of business and to place the servants of the people upon a salary basis. This battle had been waged for a quarter of a century in Texas and now Erasmus, otherwise the Hon. E. C. Center, has made the interesting announcement that he will be on the firing line under the big dome to push his program while the 40th legislature is grinding. This is the message of the former senator to the people of Texas:

"The conditions here presented ought to convince the people of Dallas and the people of Texas that no material improvement can be had in the matter of law enforcement without abolishing the fee system as a hold. As matters now stand, the paramount issue is not a question of law enforcement but a question of fees. I desire to give notice now to the public as well as to the beneficiaries of the fee system, that the next legislature will be asked to submit a constitutional amendment to abolish all fees in all cases and to put every officer of the state on a salary basis. I also wish to give notice there will be represenatives of the public there to confront the lobbyist for the fee system when they shall go there, as they have always done in the past, to contend for the continuance of conditions which exist solely for their benefit. Every official who shall participate in the fight to perpetuate the fee system may rely upon it tha this activities in that behalf will be disclosed when he presents himself for re-election."

Erasmus is ever a man of his word. He is on the legislative committee of the Texas Press association. He knows the ends and outs of the legislative game. He knows the practices and the byplays and sideplays of the members of the third house, who are ever present when the legislative game is on.

He knows how to get publicity.

He is about 60 now and at least 30 of the 60 years has been spent in the newspaper game, played while he was not playing the law game or the lawmaking game.

Why should there be a fee system? It was handed down from the dark ages.

Why should relics of the dark ages be retained by the people now on earth who elect their own servants and pay the taxes?

Office-holding should not be a grab game. It should not be a money making game. Of course the laborer is worthy of his hirer. An official laborer should be paid a living salary, and if he doesn't like the job it is his American privilege to quit work and seek another job.

Erasmus, the man of vision is going to do his best to smash the system and its backers.

AMARILLO

AMARILLO is on the map. Division headquarters of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad have been transferred from Childress to Amarillo. Amarillo is to have a new two million dollar telephone plant, housed in a building to cost $350,000.

Petroleum gave Amarillo a great boost.

Natural gas gave Amarillo a great boost.

They are converting great ranches into farms out in the west and towns out in the west are becoming cities.

There is a forward movement everywhere in Texas. There is a forward movement under the big dome of the capitol in the city of Austin.

BEST WAGE LAW FOR TEXAS

NOW the labor organizations are going to push a minimum wage for women law in Texas. A. E. Harding, who was nominated in the recent democratic primary election as one of the legislatures from Tarrant county, is drafting bill which he proposes to introduce in the 40th session of the state legislature providing for minimum wages of $15 per week to females employed throughout the state in department stores, five cent stores and 10 cent stores, mail order houses, laundrjes and other establishments. The introduction of this bill will be the singal for an invasion of the hotels of Austin and the corridors of the capitol by a very large and well organized delegation of employers. It always happens.

DEMAND OF COTTON FARMERS

IN AN effort to obtain a better price for cotton and taking issue with the federal government September first crop report as being too high, commissioners of agriculture of six cotton growing states, held a conference in the city of Dallas. A number of the cotton growing states sent proxies. Commissioner Harry Ousley, director of the state farming association committee along with the state commissioners present. Among the resolutions adopted was the following:

Resolved that it is the opinoin of this committee that cotton should bring the cost of production plus a reasonable profit, as anything else would be unfair to our producers and contrary to sound business and that based upon this principle, cotton at present should bring about 25 cents per pound, middling basis. Should there be further deterioration a material increase should be made to this price."

Commissioner Terrell of Texas attended the conference. He declared that with present indications Texas would not produce more than 4,500,000 bales. All the speakers voiced the sentiment that the production of cotton is the major business of the south and indispensible t othe world's progress and must be made justly profitable if it is to be permanent. This resolution was adopted in the closing hour of the conference.

"Resolved that we ask the financial irnterest of the south to obviate hasty selling by making as liberal advances on cotton at lower rates of interest as may be consistent with good banking principles. Being reliably informed that our bankers are able and willing to loan money on cotton properly protected and insured, we therefore ask our producers to hold their cotton off the market until a just price can be realized. All parties who are interested in the prosperity of the cotton producers are earnestly solicited to lend every legitimate assistance within their power to carry out the recommendations of this committee as to the handling of this crop and in our efforts to impress on the world the justness and necessity of securing a price for cotton which will earn for the cotton growers an independent livlihood."

Speaking of cottonseed the conference, in the resolutions adopted, stressed that present prices for seed are lower than justified when based upon the value of the by-products although it was admitted that some of these by-products were too low. Farmers were encouraged not to sell their cottonseed at present prices now quoted in Texas around $24 a ton. Oil mills were also called on not to sell their by-products at present low value. All agreed that a reduction in cotton acreage is the solution of the problem of a low price but opinions differed as to how this is to be accomplished.

If farmers would let one-third of their cotton land lie idle and raise their needed food and feed, it was generally agreed better days for the cotton farmers were ahead. A big cotton man who was one of the speakers, declared that another 15,000,000 bale crop for the south would be five years of quasi starvation for the producers, and he said it was up to the farmers and to their bankers to put a stop to this condition.

A prominent banker of Texas declared it was a 15 per cent of either too large or too small a crop which established the price basis for cotton.

Texas is the banner cotton producing state, and all the people of Texas are indirectly effected by the price of cotton. It is the money drop of Texas a swell as the south. It throws the balance of trade on the side of the United States when the foreign demand is great for the fleecy staple.

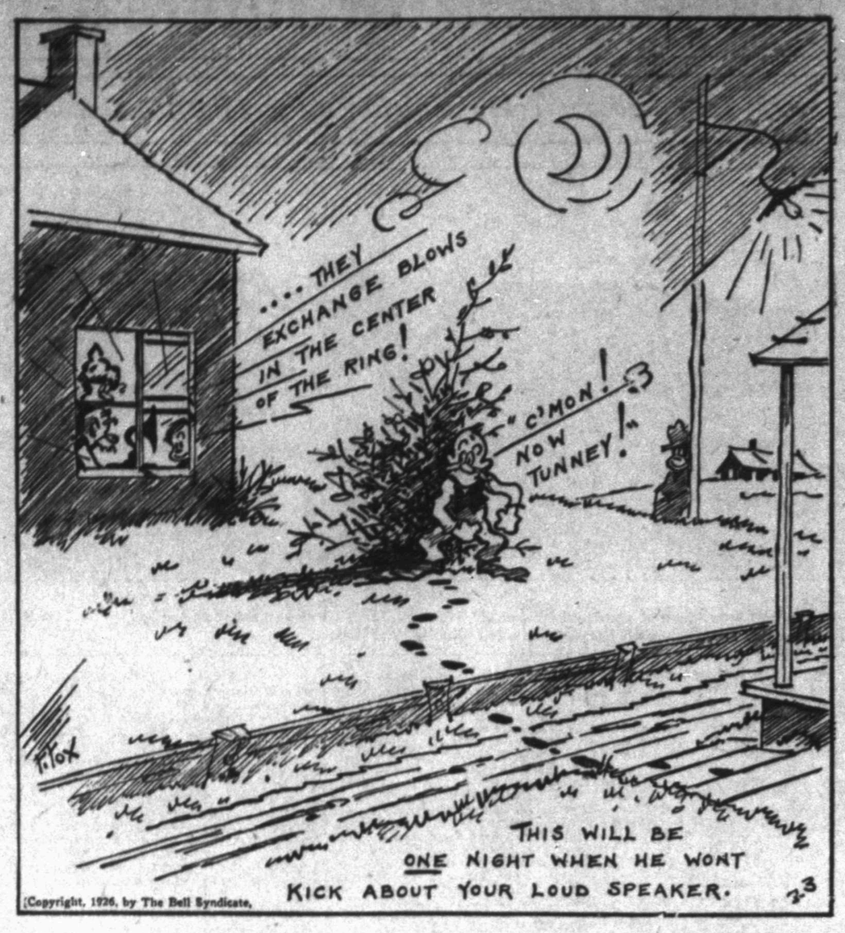

SHIPS OF THE SEVEN SEAS

UNCLE SAM, or rather his shipping board, has ordered the sale of 13 vessels of a total value of $28,000,000. This is said to be the beginning of carrying out the congressional mandate that the government transfer the American fleet to private owners as speedily as possible Will the ships be kept on the seven seas of the world? Will they fly the American flag? They were paid for by the American people.

TEXAS MILLIONAIRES

TEXAS is credited with 96 men with rating as millionaires by an expert of the United States treasury department but a Dallas banker insists that the government is very low. Furthermore, he says that Texas capital works day and night, "and maybe Texas has quite a number of millionaires and near millionaires that even the government does not know about." Well, Uncle Sam has an income tax law. How would it be possible for a Texas millionaire or near millionaire to keep the information away from the government.

Pathetic Figures

The Challenge of the Snake

Meigo O. Frost

Black clouds hung thick in the southeast, as the Reverend Father Girault Duchassois brought the battered hull of the St. Rita to rest against the rough planks of the wharf at Pointe Huitre. St. John's Eve had come on after a stifling sunset. Through the banked blackness great jagged lines of lightning tore. The rumble of thunder rolled like a distant Congo drum. Over the sodden south coast of Louisana the June night was closing down like the grip of a giant hand, sweating and sinister. Fever was abroad—the dreadful Yellow Jack. Hundreds lay stricken.

Father Duchessois was weary with a day of sun-blistering travel, toil and nursing among white and black alike over his watery parish. But he called cheery greetings to the crowd waiting on the wharf, as he recognized tanned faces darkly outlined in the gleam of his boat-lantern.

There was Antonine Paincourt, owner of luggers and keeper of the store at Pointe Huitre—father of Jacqueline Paincourt, beauty among the little priest's parishioners. There was young Perrin Desmare, to whom she was betrothed. There was old Bink Buckingham, godless reveller, allied to no church at all, guide, trapper, shrimper and oysterman, as the seasons ran. Behind them stood others of the little settlement whose towering pile of oyster shells that give it its name gleamed white and ghostly in the background.

"Bon soir, mes enfants," sounded the priest's greeting. There was cheer in it; for all the weariness he could not keep out of his voice. Death he had fought many times in many places—always face to face—always smiling into its visage.

"B'soir, Pere Girault," came their answer, but there was nothing of cheer in their mingled tones.

Stern to bow with the St. Rita, saw Father Duchassois, floated the Wild Horse, workboat of Antoine Paincoast. His swift glance noted that her riding lights were extinguished — that the running lights, green to starboard and red to port, were lit. Through the open sliding side-door of her rough cabin his eye caught the gleam of light on blue metal, as the flame of the boat's lantern swinging from hook in the cabin roof reflected on the barrels of weapons that stood slanting against the wall.

The sun-wrinkles about the little priest's blue eyes deepened as his tanned face grew stern. The slight wiry figure that had been bowed with fatigue straightened beneath the rusty black cassock in whose sable girdle was thrust the heavy, carven brass crucifix of the Oblate Fathers.

From the St. Rita's deck to the rough planks he leaped, confronting the little "roup.

"What do you want with rifle and shotgun in the face of storm like this?" he demanded.

"We hunt a devil, Pere Girault," he said grimly. "Zombi Le Veau. He has gone into the deep swamp in his boat. Jacquenile, my little daughter, is with him. It is St. John's Eve."

St. John's Eve! Night of the year for Voudou revel and devil-worship. Night when the snake-god Gran' challenged the forces of good! Jacqueline! And with Zombi Le Veau, that sullen swathy savage, mixture of strange breeds, who had mocked his ministration, whose strange hold over the blacks and breeds of the south coast gave rise to stranger tales!

No need to tell the little priest more.

Though his ancestors had fought in a New World against savage tribes for the Lilies of Frances, not one of them had swirled into swifter action. He asked no questions. That could wait.

"A drum of gasoline — quick, sluggards!" rang his order. "We go in the St. Rita. Two miles she travels to your boat's one Antoine."

For a moment men moved swiftly on the splintery Pointe Huitre wharf. Over its edge to creaking deck rolled the metal gasoline trum to fill the tank near-emptied by a day of travel. To that deck clattered the needle-pointed, paper-thin cqpress pirogue of Bink Buckingham, lifted from the Wild Horse's cabin roof. Weapons were tossed on the narrow bunk where Father Duchassois slept beneath coarse blankets when night overtook him in far and winding bayous.

Then the thick, black bank of cloud to the southeast was ripped and slashed by the thrust of long and jagged blade. The gleam of that lightning-flash shone on black water, empty and eddying, where a moment before the St. Rita had rested at mooring. To the push of spinning propeller, the little mission-boat was on her way into the pathless reaches of the deep swamp.

To Ribault Cheniere, Antonine? Father Duchassois had questioned, know that the question was needless. Old Antonine Paincourt nodded in silence. Both knew that upthrust outcrop of a clay ridge, shell-mound-crested, miles into the swamp, where ancient live oaks stood squat and twisted, draped with their thick beards of Spanish moss. It was there if anywhere they would find the girl they sought. For there, ran sinister south coast report, was the scene of the voudou orgies, knowledge of which no man would admit—least of all, the swamp blacks.

"Take the wheel, my son," said Father Duchessois to young Perrin Desmare. Then to old Antoine, "Come below with me."

In the little cabin-confessional where so often the troubles of his people had been poured into his ears he seated himself on the edge of the berth, waving Antoine to the only chair.

"How came Jacqueline to go into that swamp with that beast of a Zombi Le Veau?" he asked sharply.

The father's face was bitter with wrath. "A woman's reason!" growled the old man. "Name of a Name! She thinks, the sacre young fool, she is sacrificing herself to save the coast from the fever."

"What!" The note of a war-trumpet sounded in the little priest's voice. "Jacqueline? She holds traffic with Voudou? Do you know what you speak, Antoine?"

"Too well, and too late," came the grim and sorrowful answer. "But not too late to kill in vengeance. Had her mother talked before I left with my shrimp-luggers a week ago, I could have slain the sacre savage then. And we would not be here tonight. But her mother thought she could control her—she feared my anger she said today—she told me nothing till I returned this evening."

The sun-tanned brow of Father Duchassois was knotted in wrinkles of puzzlement.

"But Jacqueline!" he said. "Not yet do I understand. She and Zombi of puzzlement.

"But Jacqueline!" he said. "Not yet do I understand. She and Zombi Le Veau! How did this begin?"

"With a love-quarrel between her and young Perrin Mesmare," came the acrid words of the old man. "How do host young girls ibpecilities begin save through quarrels with their betrothed? All this she told her mother only yesterday. And I was not there! Splendor of God!" he swore in anguish. "And I was not there! Mere Angele, she did not believe that the girl would do, Girault. That much to her credit, I doubt. would have believed myself, had she told me."

"A love-quarrel, you said?" Father Duchassois's keen mind was racing, but there were wide gaps yet to bridge.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Why the Spineless Husband Resents His Efficient Wife—The Old Story of the Young Girl and the "Unappreciated" Married Man.

Dear Miss Dix—I married a man who din't have a thing, not even a job. I have worked and helped him start business in which he is prospering. I spend my entire time taking telephone orders and doing my housework, nd I never have time for any of the pleasures in which other women ofter indulge.

My husbnd is naturally indolent. He won't do anything that he can get out of doing and most of our trouble is over things that should be done and which he doesn't want to do. He is very abusive to me. Swears at me and curses me. He is most considerate about the house, and after I have everything clean will tramp in mud. He has an eye out for every pretty woman he sees.

At times he seems to think a lot of me, but it doesn't last long. Something goes wrong and then he is all to pieces again. What is the trouble with us—is he tired of me? Would it be better if I were to leave for a while. If you can solve this problem you are surely some woman, as it has me at my wits' end.

MABEL.

ANSWER:

It takes no particular wisdom for an outsider to see what is the trouble in your household, Mabel. It is as plain as the nose on your face. Your husband has come to look upon you as a taskmistress, as a goad in his side, and he resents you continually prodding him along the way he should go.

That is why he gives you oaths instead of appreciation for allyou have done. The one thing that a man ever forgives his wife for is supplying him with an artificial backbone.

There is no more cruel thing in life than the fact that the wife who tries to help her husband nearly always pays the price by losing his love. She does this even when she tries to help him by the traditional method of being saving and industrious. How of, ten do we see a man turn from the shabby, ill-dressed drudge who has made corns on her hands working for him and who wears made-over clothes to save him the price of new ones to some butterfly of a woman who has never done anything but conserve her beauty and adorn it in Paris finery.

Still worse is the case of the woman who undertakes to put pep into a pepless man and to brace him up with her own strength. He will take the work of her hands, he will adopt her suggestions and act upon them, he will let her push him up the ladder of success, but he doesn't love her for it. He isn't grateful for it.

She becomes to him like the still small voice of conscience, nagging him about his faults and weaknesses, and she gets on his nerves until she irritates him beyond endurance. She keeps him from doing the things he wants to do and she makes him do the things he he doesn't want to do, and he hates her for her inference in his pleasures.

Deep down in every man's soul is the desire for his wife to look up to him, to regard him as an oracle, and that is why no husband can endure a superior wife. She shames him in his own eyes and turns from her to the fluffy-ruffled woman who doesn't tell him where to get off nor worry him with her ambitions.

So there you are Mabel, and if you want to get your husband back you will have to be more of a lady love and less of a slave driver. Let your husband hire a girl to do the telephoning and get some pretty clothes and quit criticizing him. Refrain from telling him what to do next and you will find that his attitude toward you will change. Probably the business will slump and you won't have so much money but you'll have more peace at home.

Lyrics of Life

THE WIND

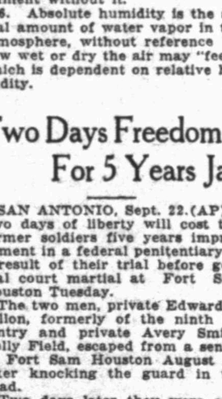

I told my father that I thought
The wind was such a funny thing:
Behaves the way he really ought,
Until the birds begin to sing.
And then forgets his manners pleasing,
And starts to pulling, starts to teasing,
Grabs someone's hat,
And things like that,
And makes folks sad, and angry, too.
"Yes," father said, "just like boys do."

I told him that you couldn't tell
Just what it would be up to next:
It always does a thing pell-mell.
And that's why people get so vexed.
When everything is nice and quiet
The wind begins to romp and riot,
Runs here and there,
Spoils someone's nap with noisy tread—
"Just like a boy," my father said.

I told him that the wind could be
So nice and helpful if it tried,
Could blow the ships across the sea,
The little lake, or ocean wide.
But now an dthen, without a reason,
Right in the middle of the season,
It misbehaves,
And makes big waves,
Instead of helping like it should—
"And," Father said, "like youngsters could."

Tomorrow: "American."

WIERD BIRDS

Everybody has heard about the little bird that perches on the back of the almost blind rhinoceros and sees for him. Stranger still is the little sicsac which gets its food by picking a crocodile's teeth for him and in return for this service is never molested by the fierce animal.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Strawberries are 90 per cent water.
2. Milk is 87 per cent water.
3. Potatoes are 75 per cent water.
4. There are no animals that can live without water indefinitely.
5. Water is all important to life because it will dissolve so many substances; blood of animals and sap of plants and protoplasm of both could not move or carry nourishment without it.
6. Absolute humidity is the actual amount of water vapor in the atmosphere, without reference to how wet or dry the air may "feel," which is dependent on relative humidity.

Two Days Freedom For 5 Years Jail

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 22.(AP)—Two days of liberty will cost two former soldiers five years imprisonment in a federal penitentiary as a result of their trial before general court martial at Fort Sam Houston Tuesday.

The two men, private Edward C. Dillon, formerly of the ninth infantry and private Avery Smith, Kelly Field, escaped from a sentry at Fort Sam Houston August 21, after knocking the guard in the head.

Two days later they were captured east of the reservation by Captain Charley Muller, post prison officer.

Both men had been tried on previous offenses, Dillon being under a three year sentence and Smith a five year sentence.

After brief deliberations the court found both men guilty and gave them an additional five years for their efforts to get away.

One topic which proved interesting was that of the blind boy whose sight was restored by the grafting of pig's eyes into his eyesockets.

After a few minute's conversation, during which there were many exclamations, a bright-eyed boy of ten raised his hand and said: "Please, they should have grafted cat's eyes, then the boy could have seen in the dark."

My Favorite Stories

THE FULL OF THE HONEYMOON

In Chicago a vaudeville comedian married a lady who was likewise connected with the profession. Immediately after the ceremony he left his bride in her room and went to the nearest blind tiger where, meeting a number of very congenial friends, he proceeded to celebrate the recent event fittingly. Several happy hours passed.

Toward dusk the bridegroom went to the telephone and called his hotel and asked to be connected with his room. His new wife answered. In a slightly husky voice he said:

"Is that you, friend wife? Well, this is friend husband. I just made a date for dinner. How's things breaking for you?"

BROOKLYN, Sept. 23. (AP)—The league leading Cardinals slugged the Brooklyn Robins into submission here today to the tune of 15 to 7, burying three opposing hurlers under an avalanche of 1 hits for a total of 26 bases. As Cincinnati was idle today, the St. Louis lead on first place was increased to two games and a half. In winning the game that practically clinched the championship Bottomley and Thevnow hit home runs, Lester Bell three triples and a double, O'Farrell a triple and Southworth a three bagger, a double and a single. Arthur Reinhart went the route in the box for the Cardinals, yielding 11 hits. Jess Barnes was knocked off the mound in the second inning when five successive hits were made after two were out. Rube Ehrhardt followed Barnes and in the fourth St. Louis scored four runs at his expense. Bob McGraw finished the contest. The game was the last of the season between the two clubs. It's a Different Babe Ruth Pushing Yanks to Pennant

No one wishes to belittle the part Babe Ruth has played in helping the Yankees in their fight to win the American League pennant. The irresponsible, bright-light loving Babe, bothered with a peevish disposition, boils and blackmail attempts against him is gone. Left last spring. Ruth's faithful training and diligent effort to reform himself have borne fruit.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22. (AP) "Happy" Johnson, 23, of Dallas, Texas, a Dallas rooter, was shot through the thigh during a friendly scuffle with a friend on a train near Alexandria, La., today while enroute to New Orleans for the Dixie series.

Johnson was brought to a New Orleans hospital. The accident occurred when a pistol dropped from the pocket of George Miller of Dallas while the two were scuffling. The pistol discharged when it struck the floor. The two were passengers on the Dallas rooters' special.

Vernon Lion, Lightened By Graduation, Building Around Speed This Year

Veteran Material Lost To Baggett, Who Centers On Lighter Squad

VERNON, Sept. 23.—The snarling Vernon Lion of the past several seasons that proved an ever-serious menace to ambitious football teams of the North Texas and Panhandle section is no more. At least, so pre-season statistics have it.

For E. A. Baggett finds himself confronted this year with a squad whose ranks of veteran and seasoned material has been shattered heavily by graduation and ineligibilities.

The bulky, fierce-charging forward wall of the 1924 and '25 seasons have gone. In its place will be found an equally courageous front line attack, but a line that conservative estimate places as an average of 15 pounds to the man lighter.

Passing Attack Lost

Not this year will Vernon's backs display the versatile running, passing and kicking advances so well known to grid fandom of the Wilbarger metropolis, for it just isn't there and won't be there unless a miracle is performed here in the lair of the Jungaleers.

Baggett does not profess to be a miracle man but with it all a spirit of optimism permeates the atmosphere each afternoon at the high school field as the Lions chase through their daily conditioning signal and scrimmage exercises.

And Baggett seems most optimistic of all. For although he has no Ryan, no Crouch of other days to plunge the line, to punt 50 and 60 yards to launch a dazzling and bewildering aerial attack as used to be the process when the Lions found the sledding not of the best on straight football, he will be enabled to put on the field a speedy set of backs, A No. 1 ball carriers, who can sweep the ends, smash off tackle and, in short, display a sharp running attack that should gather in much yardage.

Flash Real Speed

In Captain Willie Gelhausen, chunky fullback, Shorty Key and Jake Castleberry, half backs, Baggett has three veterans who can step with the most nimble-footed backs in the section. Rounding out with Chest Luttrell or perhaps Dolf Hollar at quarter, both more or less inexperienced men, but fast and nervy, Vernon should present a running combination that will prove the class of backfield speedsters in the section.

What passing that will be brought into the attack will be done by Gelhausen and Key, neither of whom unfortunately for Vernon can heave the ovel like the incomparable Ryan.

"Just Wait!"

Having scrimmaged but little this fall, Baggett hasn't obtained a complete line on several of his prospects. Right now the outlook for a winning team is not of the best, but the lads and the coach are working earnestly and there's just a hint of "you just wait. No telling what we're liable to uncover and spring on you after we get started good."

The Lions' first scheduled game a practice affair, is with Memphis at Memphis October 1. Vernon had expected to play Wichita Falls Junior college this week but the Indians called the game off. Meanwhile, Baggett is trying to line up other practice contests.

Not many elevens in this section care to meet the Bengals in practice sessions. The reputation Vernon has built the past several years has scared most would-be opponents away.

Yaqui And Dutch Primed For Battle

Early Star Back To Help Out

George Bolin, end on the first football team ever to carry the banners of Wichita Falls Junior college into action, and letter man on the first basketball and baseball squads also, visited the old scenes again yesterday. Bolin, now a student in the University Medical school at Galveston, was a member of the first class to graduate from the local Junior college.

Much improvement is apparent in every phase of college activity since the early days, said Bolin. Bolin was prominent in class and club affairs too.

THE CARD

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, versus Dutch Mantell, Amarillo. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Joe Kopecky, Chicago, versus Jack Vincent, Lawton. Catchweights, two falls to a finish.

Time: 8:15 tonight.

Place: Eleventh and Ohio arena.

All set, announced Matchmaker Alec Ross last night.

The four principals were said to be on hand, each in good physical condition and prepared to give his best.

Arrangements were said to have been completed for the announcement at the arena or of a round-by-round report of the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

There is quite a bit at stake in both matches. Yaqui Joe, if he beats Mantell, stands in a fair way of obtaining a match with Jack Reynolds, the Indiana wrestler who disputes Matty Matsuda's claim to the welter championship and who in the east and middle west is recognized as the champion.

Mantell figures the Indian as the victim in the first of a series of "revenge" battles he is lining up with Yaqui, Bill Romonoff, Jack Gorman and Matsuda.

Kopecky is working with the idea of earning a chance at Johnny Meyers' middleweight belt.

Jack Vincent is a top-heavy middleweight, in fact, more of a light heavy, but the Chicagoan believes that if he can beat Vincent and a few more men of his calibre Meyers will be unable to refuse him a match.

Longhorns Take Two Easy Drills

Coach Stewart Fears Jinx Of Injuries Already Taking Hold

AUSTIN, Sept. 22. (AP)—The Longhorns were sent through two easy drills Wednesday, as Stewart was afraid to tinker with his men because of the frequent visits of old man injury to the Longhorn camp. The afternoon workout was of a much lighter nature than the morning drill which consisted largely of tackling and blocking.

Joe King, flashy quarterback of the Longhorn team was unable to go through the evening drill due to a high fever that kept him in bed. King worked out in the morning drill, and authorities are hopeful that he will be able to get into the game Saturday. Harry Phillips, one of the few linemen that were counted on as reliable reserve men is laid up with a cranky charlie horse, and was forced to take his workout in a track suit today.

Aggies Look As Poor To Coach

Bible Calls His Squad Most Amateurish He Ever Saw

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 22. (AP)—"This year's squad of Aggies is the most inexperienced team I have ever known," Coach Dana Bible of Texas A. and M. college said today. He intimated doubt as to the outcome of the football game Friday with Trinity university of Waxahachie.

Bible said it has been necessary for the coaches to give Aggie players individual attention on account of their inexperience.

The team will leave here Thursday noon and arrive at Waxahachie in time for a field workout that night.

PADUCAH Sept. 22.—Thirty-seven men of whom only three are last year's men have reported for the Paducah Dragons eleven. Coach McDonald, who taught and coached at Doc Stewart's camp at Kerrville through the summer, says he will not be able to assemble very much "beef" out of his candidates, but will have speed and "head work" sufficient to hold his own in this district.

PACK PACKING POTENT PUNCH

New Stars Developing As Practice Proceeds At College

Raymond Michell, lettering halfback of the Pack of '25, returned to school Tuesday and appeared in the old uniform. Lynch, letter man with Sulphur Springs in '24 and '25, and a real flash in the Walters game, is showing up splendidly and promises to give the Coyotes some of the classiest broken field running seen here in many years. Lynch was one of the mainstays of the Sulphur Springs outfit that won the district title in '24 and came next to Tyler in 13-12 battle for the championship last year.

Ray Developing

Perk Ray is still showing much development to the eyes of the fans and is every day more and more giving the promise of a good triple passing, running and plunging combination.

The whole Pack is going into the practice grind with high hopes not only for Lawton's scalp but for a championship season. The line is being the subject of most of the attention. According to Coach McCallum, there is plenty of size and weight in the line candidates but there is too big a lack of experience and confidence to build a forward wall to lead the way properly for the backfield. It will take several weeks of earnest effort and hard games to get the clumsiness and greenness out of the youngsters. Since the first conference game does not come until October 23 there is plenty of time to build a smooth-running machine.

Wichita College Meets Arlington

Grid Contest For Locals Dated October 29 At Arlington

ARLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 22. (AP)—The football schedule for the North Texas Agricultural college for the present season is announced by Coach Moore as just completed. It has six games at Arlington and four away. Some of these games are with teams that have withdrawn from the Junior College association and are consequently non-conference, not counting on the championship standing.

The first game Friday with Burleson is such a game. Hillsboro Junior college, Wichita Falls Junior college, Paris Junior college and Tarleton are the conference teams played. Gainesville and Wesley are in the conference but not on the schedule.

The chedule is as follows;

September 24, Burleson college at Greenville; October 1, Clifton college at Arlington; October 9, Hilisboro Junior college at Arlington; October 15, Texas Military at Terrell; October 23, Thorp Springs at Arlington; October 29, Wichita Falls at Arlington; November 5, Paris Junior at Paris; November 11, Meridian college at Arlington; November 19, Weatherford at Weatherford; November 25, Tarleton at Arlington.

TWO GAMES ON LOCAL FIELDS

Pups And Indians To Be Hosts in At Home Week-End Battles

Although the Coyotes play away from home this week, there will be no lack of entertainment for worshippers of the pigskin sport in Wichita Falls. Friday afternoon the Coyote Pups of Junior high school will play their first practice game with Archer City high school. The Pups are this year expecting to capitalize on the experience gained last year and are in earnest for a bid at the Junior league title.

Fort Sill's soldier eleven will furnish the opposition for the Junior College Indians in their opening game Saturday afternoon. Much interest has been shown in the probable rating of the college boys as the relative newness in the school of most of the candidates makes the outfit more of a mystery.

Ludgate has plenty of ability and much heftiness in his bunch to get somewhere. Ludgate predicts that his crew has enough power to set a new mark for the Junior college in football this year, and even to overcome anything that the older and more experienced Military outfit will have to offer.

With more than enough candidates to make two teams Ludgate has been running two teams under the generalship of Tom Peery and Olin Harvey as quarterbacks. Captain Stephenson has been training himself to undertake the punting duties for his team and has been getting away with some hefty boots during the last few days.

YANKS JOLTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.(AP)—The New York Yankees' pennant hopes were given a jolt today when the White Sox defeated them, 2 to 1, while the Indians trimmed Boston, cutting the lead of the league leaders to two games. Chicago outhit the visitors but were doomed to defeat until the ninth when Shocker weakened after two men were out. Harris started the rally with a walk and Mostil, who was out of the game because of a lame shoulder, ran for him. He took second on a passed ball and scored the tying run on Hunnefield's double to center. Barrett drove over the winning run with a two-base hit to left field. Score:

Frederick Plays First Grid Rival

Game With Team of Mountain View Set For Friday

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 22.—With the Mountain View high school team as its opponent the Frederick eleven will play its first Southwestern conference game here Friday afternoon. Frederick's team is light, but shifty. Coach Ralph Higgins has devoted the early training period to football fundamentals with a liberal amount of "skull practice" at night and fans are anxious to see if these night sessions have been wasted. Only three old men from the nucleus of the team. Louis Pope, all-Southwestern back for two years is one of them and Frederick Wessel and Standfield Cox are the other two. The remainder of the team is composed of last year's second string men and new aspirants to grid team positions.

Jim Reese and His Merry Men At Electra Bubbling Over With Grid Confidence

His "Four Horsemen" Promis Trouble for Rest Of School Ball Chasers

BY BLONDY CROSS
Record News Sports Editor

ELECTRA, Sept. 22.—"You tell ol' Bud McCallum we're going to beat him two touchdowns at least! Tell him I have 'four horsemen' I didn't use against Wilson at all!"

And then he grinned all over his face.

It was smiling Jim Reese, Electra high school's football mentor, talking. He was alluding to a 13-0 defeat handed his charges last week by the Wilson, Okla., eleven and this year's conflict with Wichita Falls in the Texas interscholastic moleskin championship scramble.

I had dropped in on Jim and his Tigers during football practice. He didn't put the boys through any scrimmage stuff while I was there, so I didn't get to see his 'four horsemen' in action. Will look 'em over next trip.

Glad Coyotes Are Strong

Jim wouldn't step out with any further info on his hosses other than to remark, "I've got 'em. You'll see 'em.

When told that Wichita Falls has the making of a wonderful eleven this fall, heavy and powerful, Jim laughed again and said, "Well, that's all the better. It'll be a better game when we tackle 'em. And anyhow, I'd like to see Bud go over pretty good this year. Strong competition makes stronger teams, providing they don't all get killed off, and we'll need some power when we meet the boys down the state in the semi-finals."

The Wilson setback has served to make the Electra gridders take matters all the more seriously, according to Reese. The Tigers are buckling down all the harder. They're in dead earnest and mean business.

Powerful Forward Wall

Reese did not show his full strength against the Oklahomans. Shot in quite a bit of untried material. Withheld several of his best men most of the game. That's the usual pre-season process.

Most of his line veterans were shoved into the affray. Wilson was unable to gain through these boys. In fact, the two touchdowns came as result of fumbles and a fluke pass.

The showing of Sylvan Cloninger and George Brown at wing positions is more or less remarkable. Oren Sargent and Captain Budley Avens at tackle posts loom as a pair of mighty tough flank men and Buster Fowler at guard is of the type that breaks through and knocks 'em dead behind the line of rimmage. Ro/ Coolidge, veteran at center, will prove a thorn to the opposition.

Gene Sarazen In Unexpected Loss

Walter Hagen Stays In Race For U. S. Professional Crown

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 22. (AP)—Gene Sarazen fell to an unexpected defeat Wednesday in the second round of the Professional Golf association championship, losing an uphill fight against Johnny Golden of Paterson, N. J., 4 and 3.

The passing of the former open champion, who had been looked upon as a strong contender for the title now held by Walter Hagen, came as the major upset of the tournament and featured a day's play which found other favorites, including Hagen, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel and Harry Hampton coming through to victory.

Bulldog Eleven Loses Star Man

Jack Russell Is Called Ineligible In Rule At Altus

ALTUS, Sept. 22.—Football prospects at the Altus high school were handed a staggering blow recently when Jack Russell, star back and triple-threat man was declared ineligible by the state board. Russell was expected to do all the kicking for the "Bulldog" eleven, and it will be hard to fill his shoes, Coach Adam Eaglinger said.

Injuries are keeping several promising men on the side lines. The first game for the blue and white is a southern conference game at Anadarko, October 1.

knowingly vote to do something that it apparently forbids."

Senator Miller said the men should have been granted a hearing and that it is not fair to keep these men under a cloud of suspicion for four months. "If they are not entitled to be confirmed then, the senate should have done its duty to the state and should not have passed the buck to the next senate, and should have rejected them in no uncertain manner at this time. If these men are not the proper men for their respective places, then they should not be permitted to hold office these next few months. All these matters could and should have been threshed out at a hearing before the senate."

Senator R. S. Bowers of Burleson county filed his reasons for voting "no," saying that Moseley and Cage should have had an opportunity to answer charges that were filed with the governor's nominations committees against them. If they are guilty they should not be permitted to remain in office. If not guilty they should be confirmed."

40 Bills Passed.

The senate passed to third reading, 49 houses road district validating bills, and 43 senate bills.

A long session of the legislature was assured when Governor Ferguson submitted 16 matters for consideration, all of which were accompanied by bills. The most important was the proposed measure to confirm and validate bonds which have been or may be issued by any county or political subdivision or defined district in Texas. If passed, the measure would cover all invalidated bonds in the passed and future, it is believed.

Amendments Proposed.

Among other matters submitted were a proposed amendment to the criminal procedure to permit persons convicted of a felony to testify for the state and defendants; an amendment to the banking laws to grant the commissioner of banking greater discretion in filing claims against insolvent banks and trust companies; an act to relieve the Sealy and Smith foundation for the John Sealy hospital and the estate of John Sealy, deceased of Galveston, and legates from payment of inheritance tax and that the city of Galveston be not relieved of the obligation under a lease executed by the board of regents of the University of Texas.

An amendment to the laws governing forfeiture and resale of public free school lands and validation of forfeitures and resale was submitted, along with an amendment to the civil statutes for the payment of associations in judgment in law, in court of admiralty or maritime.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.(AP)—A more reactionary sentiment developed in the cotton market today based on the extent of recent declines but after an early advance to 16.12, December broke to 15.91 in late trading, or 17 points net lower and into new low ground for the present movement. Closing prices were at the lowest of the day with the market weak at net declines of 12 to 14 points.

The reactionary and steadier tone of the earlier market was promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables, rumors of a settlement of the British coal strike and belief that the southern storm might have caused greater damage to the crop than had yet been realized.

Offering seemed to increase around 15.94 for October and 16.32 for January, however, the market weakened later under continued hedge selling with a renewal of liquidation and re-selling by early buyers. The weekly report of the weather bureau contained references to insect and storm damage in the south, but on the whole seemed as favorable as expected and, if anything, probably encouraged some of the early southern participated in anticipation of a bureau rally. October sold off to 15.63 and January to 15.90 in late trading, or the lowest price touched since the advance to 13.25 for December contracts. Two more private mid-month crop reports were published, one making the indicated crop 16,045,000, and the other 15,900,000 bales. According to a canvass today, members of the New York cotton exchange are expecting a government crop indication of 15,244,000 bales tomorrow. Exports today 27,717, making 327,223 so far this season. Port receipts 57,145; U. S. port stocks 952,797.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22.(AP)—The cotton market developed a further decline today in moderate trading. Although the start was steady with a small gain of 10 to 22 points the market soon turned easier on pre-brawn influences, particularly the expectation of traders that the government, tomorrow will show a larger indicated crop than it did two weeks ago. There was also a good deal of hedge selling and comparatively little constructive support. As a result prices declined nearly all through the session with only trifling rallies from time to time and finally showed declines from the highs of 33 to 35 points. There was a moderate rally of seven to nine points in the late trading and the close was nearly showing net losses of 16 to 17 points for the day.

As Liverpool came in better than due, first trades here were one to seven upoints up and prices gained a little more right at the start. October trading up to 15.92. December at 16.10 and January at 16.14 or 10 or 12 points above yesterday's close. These were to highs of the day.

The reaction which soon set in carried prices downward steadily, the low points being reached in the last hour with October at 15.59, December at 15.75 and January at 15.80, or 33 to 35 points down from the highs and 21 to 24 points under the previous close. There was a rally of moderate proportions in the final trading.

Exports for the day totaled 21,727 bales.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.(AP)—Indications of prompt settlement of the British coal strike did much today to make wheat prices average lower, after frequent irregular changes the wheat market here closed unsettled, ⅛c off to ⅝c up, corn at ⅛ to ⅜c gain, oats unchanged to ⅞c higher, and provisions unchanged to 42c advance.

Unsettled weather tended to strengthen prices both of corn and oats. The official forecast however, failed to indicate any frost.

Shorts buying provisions found offerings rather light.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.(AP)—The stock market turned reactionary today after an opening outburst of strength. The sudden reversal in form was not associated with any development in the day's news, but the maintenance of relatively high call money rates intensified the uneasiness over the credit situation with the result that bear traders were again able to force the liquidation of stocks by raising the "bogey" about an increase in the federal reserve re-discount rates. Directors of the Boston federal reserve bank met late today and decided to continue the 4 per cent rate. Action on the New York rate will be taken after the close tomorrow.

The market was largely professional in character, with much of the day's business originating with floor traders.

Chief speculative interest in today's market was divided among three issues: U. S. Steel common; General Motors and Allied Chemical. Steel closed 1¼ points net lower at 145⅝ after having touched 147⅜ with some of the selling probably influenced by a cut in scrap steel prices in Chicago and reports that incoming business this month was running substantially below deliveries, indicating another drop in unfilled orders. Allied Chemical was bid up three points to a new record high at 247 on reports that the preferred stock would be retired, the common split up on a 2 to 1 basis and a dividend of $4 or $5 paid on the new issue. The present stock prices only is $4.

General Motors closed nearly a point lower at 156⅝ after fluctuating between 155⅝ and 159. Weakness cropped out in some of the other motors, Hudson falling two points; Mason 2¼; Mack Trucks 2¼ and Jordan, Rupp, Willys-Overland and Nash yielding a point or so.

Establishment of a new record high level by "Nickel Plate" common at 129¾, the strength and activity of the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues and the heaviness of New York Central featured an otherwise quiet rail list.

Call money held steady at 4½ per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were slightly firmer. Demand sterling was back to $4.85 and French francs rallied five points to around 2.75 cents.

SLAYER BEGS TO BE HANGED

He's Disappointed When Jury Votes Him Life in Penitentiary

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 22. (AP)—Convicted of murder Tom Johnson, confessed slayer of 14 men and participant in 1,700 crimes, was disappointed today because he faces life imprisonment instead of hanging.

Johnson was found guilty by a jury last night of slaying Leonard Erdall, attorney and former University of Minnesota football player, during a holdup.

"I want to be hanged; I don't care what I've done," Johnson declared on the stand during the trial and today he still clung to the same desire. "I want to be taken to Iowa and be hanged," he said.

"The people I've killed come dancing into my cell at night. I can't get away from 'em."

Johnson was arrested several months ago at Seattle. He had planned to kill himself there, he said, but at the last moment "saw a light from God" which caused him to give himself up to police.

Minneapolis police claimed him first, but Johnson was disappointed because the Iowa authorities did not get him. He said he had committed a murder near Sioux City. He pointed out that if he had been convicted in Iowa the penalty probably would have been death.

ALTUS, Sept. 22.—With a total of 184 bales of cotton ginned up to date in Altus this season, and with other gins in operation at several towns and communities in Jackson county, all of the gins will be in operation continually within a few days. LIONS BAND PROGRESSING

Good Headway Made by New Musical Unit Of Luncheon Club

In the first rehearsal held by the Lions boys band Tuesday night 48 boys were present, each bringing his instrument and a dozen others were there but did not have instruments which have been ordered and have not yet arrived in town. Indication are that the band will grow into a first class organization, according to announcement made at the Lions club luncheon Wednesday noon at the Kemp.

B. G. Ripley announced that there are places for seven alto horns, five trombones, one piccolo, one 3-flat clarinet, three b-flat clarinets and four baritone honrs. All the other places have been filled 100 per cent. Paul Seeds is director of the band.

Rehearse on Minstrel

To finance the organization by the Lions club, the members are rehearsing nightly on the minstrel to be given Tuesday and Wednesday nights of next week at the Majestic theatre. Tickets have been distributed among the members, and enthusiasm was expressed by a number of Lions at the Wednesday luncheon in rexard to the minstrel. The proceeds of the entertainment go to finance the boys' band.

Judge John Kay, local attorney spoke to the club on "The Common Law." Explaining what it is he said, "The Common Law is that by which we are governed in the path of life, it is that part of the law which runs the country. It is a body of rules made from habits, customs, maxims and proverbs of the people and that is the reason the common law is respected.

New Statentes New Law

"New Statutes become what the common law has been. If they run couner o he common law, he courts will scrutinize it closely. The common law is different from that which is legislated. It depends on the decisions of the judges. Whether you like it or not the judges have the last and best to say and it is important that we select high class men as judges who know the customs of the people. The supreme court of the United States has boasted that a federal statute may mean little unless it has first been passed on and its meaning determined by the court."

Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes sang a selection from "Rose Marie," the "Serenade." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. E. Shepherd and Mrs. Joe Crouch played the violin obligato.

Joe B. Hatchitt, president, presided at the meeting.

We All Worship Some Kind of God, Minister Asserts

"Everybody worships some kind of God. It is natural for people to be religious. Some may not worship the true God, and few may be pretending, but at some time in life you become a part of the God you worship," declared A. E. Davis, evangelist who is conducting a revival meeting at Eighteenth and Holliday last night when he talked on the subject, "Weighed in the Balance and Found Wanting."

Basing his sermon on the fifth chapter of Daniel, he told how Balshazzar, king of the Chaldeans, desecrated God's temple and blasphemed the golden vessels. "The house of God is holy and it is dedicated to his worship only," he said in drawing his first lesson.

"You are weighed in the balance and found wanting. There are certain standards of society which must be kept and a perfect gentleman and a perfect lady will not ignore them.

"The balances of God Almighty are the ten commandments, and God's law is symmetrical. He who sins in one part has sinned in all," he told the congregation.

He likened the ten commandments to a chain of ten links and showed a break in one link affected the whole. Brief, pungent sermons based on the commandments followed the evangelist's statements.

"All hath sinned and come short of the glory of God, but the eleventh commandment is that we 'should love one another as I have loved you,' quoting from St. John, and when that time comes, we will find a nation built in a day."

At the close of the service, a little girl suffering from tonsilitis came for the prayer of faith.

Mary Beth Martin Hike Club Leader

Miss Mary Beth Martin was unanimously elected president of the Hiking club of the Junior college Wednesday morning at it's first regular meeting of the year. Miss Martin, who was elected vice president for this year at the last meeting of last year, was given this position to fill the place vacated by the absence of Miss Marguerite McCord, president-elect for this year. Miss Dolores Peavy was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy thus created by the promotion of Miss Martin.

Several new members were present at the meeting, making the club roll, as heretofore, one of the largest in the school. Plans were made for a hike and swim for the following Saturday afternoon, and announcement of the requirements for points toward the coveted "W" was made So far in the history of the organization, which is almost as old as the school, it is said that but one girl, Miss Edna Prechel, 1926 graduate, has acquired the necessary 800 points for her "W".

ENLARGE COFFEE SHOP

The Holt Hotel which was recently opened has received such patronage at its coffee shop that it has found it necessary to increase its capacity. Work has begun on the rebuilding of the coffee shop and four or five tables will be added.

Little rearrangements will be required and service will not be interrupted, G. M. Holt, manager of the hotel said yesterday. The kitchen is to be removed to the space in the southwest corner of the hotel building and the space now occupied by the kitchen will be made into a dining room.

GLEE CLUBS ORGANIZE

Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs have organized in the Junior high school Mrs. Hermonie Vaughan will be sponsor for both clubs.

Hodgins Has An Idea Lions Minstrel Will Be A Scream--and It Will

"It will be a scream and a knockout from start to finish," said Chief George L. Hodgins, last night, in speaking of the Lion's minstrel show.

"When the curtain goes up next Tuesday night at the Majestic, we will see a capacity house and the snappiest bunch of song hits and minstrel gags pulled in a long time," continued Mr. Hodgins who is director general of the big Lions show.

Joe Marlow, one of the prime favorites in minstreal shows in this part of the state, will be in his usual role as one of a galaxy of star end men and will scintillate in "Don't Be a Fool, You Fool."

Dell Brasher and Loula Nolan will take the leading parts in "I Wish I Had My Old Gal Back Again."

Salesman Sam Gose will bring a wonderful hit in "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses." Other numbers will be announced during the week.

The proceeds of the show will go toward equipping the newly organized Lion's Club Boys' band, with instruments and an instructor. The band was organized Tuesday night with 65 boys in actual attendance and it is planned to have a hundred-piece band composed of boys from 12 to 20 years of age.

Information from the Lions clubs of Electra, Burkburnett and Vernon state that many people from those cities will be in attendance at the minstrel show next Tuesday night at the Majestic.

STREET SUIT ON IN ELECTRA

Insurance Company Seeks To Cllect On Highway Assessments

The Republic Insurance company of Texas took active steps in district court here yesterday to force the payment of paving assessments in Electra, when they filed suit against ten defendants who own property in that city.

A petition alleges that a paving contract was entered by the city of Electra with the Jordan Construction company for the paving of certain streets, namely: Electra street, Roosevelt street and Garrison avenue and that such contract was legally made and that the work done by the Jordan Construction company was legally approved by the city of Electra.

Later the petition alleges, the assessment bonds were purchased by the Republic Insurance company and the defendants mentioned have not paid the assessments.

Those cited in the petitions are: J. S. Phillips, H. M. Prince, Duncan and Cooper, W. L. Simmons, Walton and Baird, Walton and Morgan, M. W. Jerevick, Leo Sobel, Bessie Cocks, and A. B. Franklin.

T-O Fair Notes

CORRECT, AFTER ALL!

A car lot shipment of prize calves which arrived here yesterday for exhibition at the Texas-Oklahoma fair, was thought to have increased considerably in numbers when counted as unloaded, but after 14 West Texas mule-eared rabbits had jumped the loading corral fence and escaped the calves registered a perfect check by actual count.

FIRST CASUALTY RECORDED

The first casualty of the fair occurred yesterday when one of the prize exhibits coming from West Texas was destroyed in transit.

One of the western counties was bringing in a large pumpkin for showing at the Texas-Oklahoma fair, and after measuring the regulation door of a railroad car it was found the pumpkin would not go through the door. A flat car was then employed to transport the huge specimen to Wichita Falls, and, although it had been securely fastened, the pumpkin broke its moorings and bounced off.

The incident is regrettable as it is believed by many that this pumpkin would have won first prize at the fair could it have been preserved for the showing.

HE SAW THE LIGHT!

When Hal Worth asked "Foghorn" Clancy if he would get his cowboys to help in staging the Pageant of Progress, that worthy mentor of the saddle and lasso expressed the opinion that his cowboys would probably object to wearing those tight fitting breeches and anyway they didn't know any more about fighting Indians than some of the village jelly beans.

Hal was at a loss to understand the strange expressions until it dawned upon him that Clancey had probably seen rehearsals of that Spanish episode or the coronation, and hastily explained that he wanted some regular cowboys to lend color to the episode relating the early cattle days of the country.

DON'T BE MISLEAD

When the enthusiastic throng of fair visitors are introduced to the various queens of the pageant, such as Miss Amarillo, Miss Altus and Miss Vernon, etc., they probably will labor under the impression that some of these Misses are merely faked to lend numbers to the gorgeous display, but don't be misled, dear public. Every one of those ladies are bonifide representatives of the city of which they are named, and if you don't believe it just make the public remark that Miss Amarillo is prettier than Miss Altus, or vice-versa, and you will soon learn that they are the real stuff, especially if the crowd is well mixed with visitors.

The vaudeville bills will show Thursday and Friday, coming from Amarillo and going to Fort Worth.

Several changes for improvements have been made this year, Mr. Noble said yesterday. Under the new arrangements, the performance will be continuous after 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will include the vaudeville and feature pictures as previously. Mr. Noble announced also that a reduction had been made in prices for the new season, the entire lower floor seats will be 75 cents and none reserved, and the balcony seats will be fifty cents each.

BURNETT IN FAIR PAGEANT

Tom Burnett, who was one of the leading members of the famous wolf hunt participated in here many years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt, has assured the fair association that he will appear in person in the great Pageant of Progress which will be staged the first night of the fair.

Mr. Burnett will appear in the episode which shows the forming of the party for the big hunt and other scenes in connection with that historic incident.

Mr. Burnett will also furnish the pageant with a number of pieces of property, all of which have considerable historic value, the most interesting being the original chuck box which was carried on the hunt and from which Roosevelt ate while on the hunt.

100 HEREFORD ENTRIES FILED

Big Display of Cattle Pronounced For Fair This Year

More than 100 entries in the Hereford division of the livestock exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair have already been registered in the office of the secretary of the fair association, R. E. Shepherd announced yesterday when two more entries came in by mail. This is by far the largest showing of Herefords in the history of the fair and probably the largest showing in the state with the exception of the Dallas fair and the fat stock show at Fort Worth.

John M. Gist, of the Terrace Lake Hereford farm at Midland has filed for a large exhibit of his prize thoroughbreds, and C. M. Largent of Merkel, will also send a big exhibit. Mr. Largent is sending 30 head of Herefords, some of whom have won ribbons in various showings throughout the southwest.

Another exhibit of the Ayreshire breed was also received yesterday, this entry coming from the Fairfield farm at Topeka, Kan.

Every department of the fair has announced increased entries, and the livestock department will be full to overflowing with a great increase over last year.

ON THE OLD TRAIL

After many years idleness from the trail and the wagon train, a man who has been a historic figure in Wichita Falls for three score years, will again take up the trail and drive a supply wagon as he did in olden days.

This man, whose name is withheld by request, drove the first ox team to Fort Worth from Wichita Falls. He stated that it was some adventure and that it took him 30 days to make the trip.

Eight yoke of oxen have been secured for this special event, and it will be of considerable interest to those who have never seen a yoke of oxen.

TO OBSERVE FEAST

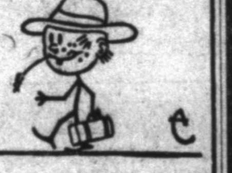

Succoth, the Feast of Tabernacles, will be celebrated by the Jewish congregations of the city this evening at 8 o'clock at Temple Israel when Rabbi Samuel Phillips will speak on the topic, "Succoth, Festival of Faith."

Announcement was made that the Sabbath school of Temple Israel will open Saturday, Sept. 25 at 10 a. m. and parents are invited to send their children to the school.

PROPERTY VALUES GAIN

A 12 per cent gain in assessed valuation of Wichita Falls property in 1926 is shown in comparison to assessed valuations of 1925, according to W. R. Hyer, tax collector, yesterday. Total valuations for this year in assessed valuation is $45,100,060.

Valuations of real estate aggregated $34,585,700 and personal property $10,514,360.

Fair Boxes Go Fast These Days

Wichita Falls people who think that they can just drive out to the fair grounds and get a box in the grand stand as they please will be due a great disappointment, it was emphasized at fair headquarters yesterday, when requests for season box seats had been checked up.

"The season boxes are going fast, reservations coming in from many surrounding towns, and by the end of next week there will not be a single box left," Manager Shepherd stated yesterday, "and all those local people who want season boxes should make their reservations at once or be sadly disappointed. We have had the biggest run on box seats we have ever had, and every available seat in the grand stand as well will be packed to overflowing."

MILLER TO SPEAK

A talk by the Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, will be the feature of the chapel program at the Junior college building at the regular assembly period today.
