U.S.-Canada summit begins

QUEBEC (AP) — President Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney opened the second day of their "Shamrock Summit" today with smiles and handshakes, then delved into disucssions of East-West relations and nurturing their good neighbor policies.

The two men appeared for photographers at the start of the session, chatting briefly with each other and exhanging a hearty handshake across the conference table in the elaborate, wood-paneled Hotel Chateau Frontenac.

Reagan was queried about whether U.S. missiles might be based in Canada. The president replied such reports were "not true." The question referred to an interview given earlier in the day by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was asked about the basing of missile launchers in Canada. Weinberger said such launchers "might be" placed in Canada.

Later, White House spokesman Larry Speakes stressed that any such action would be a "Canadian decision."

Despite the stubbornly lingering Canadian snows that have piled up against the massive stone walls of this 300-year-old city, a well-rehearsed atmosphere of warmth pervades this summit.

Senate vote nearing on MX

WASHINGTON (AP)—A divided Senate is nearing a decision on continued spending for the MX missile, with President Reagan telling undecided senators a vote against the weapon will undercut U.S. negotiators at arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

With the first of two Senate votes on the issue set for Tuesday, a survey by The Associated Press of all 100 senators shows a 42-42 split. Resolution of the issue rests in the hands of 16 undecided senators, most of whom are moderate Republicans and Democrats.

Another toss-up is shown in the vote count of assistant Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California, who said he found a 46-46 tie with just eight senators still undecided.

At issue is whether Congress will end a freeze on MX funds enacted last year and release $1.5 billion to build a second batch of 21 MX missiles.

It's going to be extremely tight," predicted Fred Werthheimer, president of Common Cause, who has been lobbying against the MX.

Reagan is lobbying hard for the missile system and sources said he has been inviting undecided senators to the White House for chats and calling others on the telephone.

Among the key undecided votes in the Senate are Arlen Speciter, R-Pa., Daniel Evans, R-Wash., Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., Russell Long, D-La., Charles McMathias Jr., R-Md., and Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va.

A major unknown factor in the situation is how Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, will cast his vote.

Goldwater has been on both sides of the issue, first saying he would oppose MX because it could not be made invulnerable to Soviet attack, then saying that to kill it would be a sign of weakened American resolve that would send the wrong signal to Soviet arms negotiators.

The two Senate votes, the first on Tuesday, the second on Thursday, focus on the twin issues of authorizing and appropriating MX funds.

If either vote goes against the MX, the battle is over and the 21 long-range, land-based, multiple-warhead missiles won't be deployed as planned in existing Minuteman silos in Nebraska and Montana.

If the Senate approves the funds, the issue moves to the House, where two additional votes are scheduled tentatively for next Tuesday.

The House vote also is expected to be close, but on Sunday, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he would vote for the MX "mostly as a bargaining [illegible] arms talks being held in Geneva, Switzerland.

On Friday, Reagan lost one important supporter when Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., announced she had switched sides and will oppose it.

Q. — Is there any way to stop receiving so much junk mail such as catalogues and all those give-away schemes?

A. — The U.S. postal service has no provision to have such mailings — classified as "bulk business mail" — stopped. The only such provision by the post office applies to sexually-oriented mail. Individuals may fill out a form at the post office to have delivery of this type material stopped.

New signs slated for courthouse

New signs are to be installed outside all offices at the Scurry County Courthouse to better identify these for individuals unfamiliar with office locations in the local facility.

Installing the signs was discussed Monday during the regular weekly session of county commissioners.

As planned, the signs will be designed to project out from the wall so that they may be viewed easily. A cost of some $600 was estimated for their installation.

During Monday's session, the court also voted to designate which restroom facilities in the courthouse are to be for public use.

The vote — not included on the court agenda — was to designate such restroom facilities on the first and fourth floors as open to the public. Restrooms on the second and third floors will then be designated for county personnel only.

Commissioners heard also a sales presentation from Allen Burkey, representing Transport Life Insurance of Lubbock.

Burkey was attempting to interest the court in a payroll deduction type plan for cancer indemnity insurance.

Also Monday, the court voted to raise the amount of a petty cash fund for the county jail from $150 to $250. The change was requested by Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier.

Top Gold Coater given 'Sizemore'

An annual highlight of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce banquet is the presentation of awards honoring local citizens and their contributions during the past year in four specific areas of activity in Scurry County.

Each of these awards bears the name of one individual who exemplified the qualities which the award honors. These include the Vestal Award, the Winston Award, the McLaughlin Award and the Sizemore Award.

With this issue, the SDN begins a review of each of these awards and the individuals who they are named for.

The award most recently named in honor of a local citizen is the Sizemore Award, formerly called the Gold Coater of the Year Award. It honors work done by individual members of the chamber's goodwill ambassador group.

It was renamed in honor of the late Paul Sizemore last year following his death on Oct. 4, 1983. He was 76.

Sizemore was a three-time recipient of the Gold Coater of the Year Award. It is presented to the Gold Coater who tallies the most points according to a Gold Coat bylaw point system.

Points are given according to participation in Gold Coat functions, community service and chamber support.

Sizemore had also served as president of both the chamber of commerce and the Scurry County Industrial Foundation.

In 1969, he was among the group of local citizens which presented Snyder as an "All American City" to the panel of judges in New Orleans — an honor the city won.

He was also active in the local Lions Club and the Scurry County Historical Commission.

He was the owner locally of Arrow Construction, which he sold in August of 1972 upon his retirement.

The Gold Coater of the Year award was presented as the Sizemore Award for the first time in 1984. The winner last year was Jack McGlaun.

Winners of the award date to 1978, when Sizemore was its first recipient. He won the honor again in 1979 and in 1982. Other recipients have been R.C. Patton, 1981; and Wedge Turner, 1983.

Two suspects stopped on stolen motorcycle

Scurry County sheriff's officers are calling the theft of a motorcycle here Saturday night cleared with the arrest of a 20-year-old man and a 17-year-old woman in Big Spring, Sunday evening.

According to reports, Robert Lemuel Thames and Debra Lynn Joyner — both of Big Spring — were arrested by highway patrolmen in Howard County after being stopped on a routine traffic violation.

The pair were reportedly riding a 1982 Honda motorcycle owned by Van York Jr. of Gail which had been taken from a residence in the Oasis Trailer Park sometime between midnight Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

An expired license plate on the motorcycle prompted the traffic stop which led to the arrest.

Both Thames and Joyner remained in the Howard County Jail Monday morning charged with one count each of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Money laundered in Texas banks?

DALLAS (AP) — Federal officials say a Laredo savings and loan and an El Paso bank were used by a Mexican investment broker to pull off the largest known scheme in recent years to "launder" drug money through Texas.

Almost $16 million was shuffled through the Tesoro Savings and Loan in Laredo and the First City National Bank of El Paso, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Federal officials are trying to seize $6.5 million on deposit at the El Paso bank and $1.4 million at the Laredo thrift.

Agents also are seeking reimbursement of $8 million that was hurriedly transferred out of the institutions after the Internal Revenue Service placed a claim on the Mexican businessman's funds, the Times Herald reported.

"I feel we're just looking at the tip of the iceberg," said Phillip Jordan, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's regional office in Dallas. "Laundering is here in the Southwest."

Money laundering involves taking cash created from illicit activities and using it in a series of legal financial transactions to make it difficult to trace.

When federal drug agents raided two Anaheim, Calif., motels last June 22, they found $4.1 million in alleged illicit drug trafficking proceeds that were about to be laundered through a California bank.

According to the Times Herald, one of the two people arrested in the motel raid last summer told agents that the money came from the sale of drugs.

A few days later, an attorney representing the two suspects told prosecutors that the two were working for Mexican businessman Mardoqueo Alfaro Magarino, who had paid them to deposit the funds in the Bank of Coronado in San Ysidro, Calif., the Times Herald said.

About the same time, DEA agents received information from confidential informants that Alfaro was involved with a Guadalajara-based drug trafficking ring, the newspaper added.

The informants estimated that the operation garnered profits of between $10 million and $20 million a month.

Based upon that estimate, the IRS immediately placed levies on all U.S. assets in which Alfaro was believed to have an interest, the newspaper said. Authorities said they learned of the Texas and California bank accounts through material seized at the Anaheim motels and transaction records.

However, Alfaro and his business associates quickly managed to slip $8 million out of the two Texas institutions, officials said — $6 million from Tesoro Savings and Loan and $2 million from First City.

Several million dollars from Tesoro Savings and Loan was wired to Panama financial institutions, according to court documents.

Federal officials are trying to force the two Texas institutions to reimburse the government, since the money was released after the IRS had announced its claim on Alfaro's funds.

The institutions said they had no knowledge of Alfaro's alleged connection to the funds and should not have to give the government any money.

Alfaro's attorneys insist there was no attempt by him to evade the IRS action.

Alfaro's lawyer said although Alfaro chose how the money would be used, such as when a certificate of deposit would be purchased and for how long, his name did not appear on any of the accounts in question.

Alfaro has not been charged with criminal wrongdoing and has denied any involvement in drug activities. He has asserted that he is simply an investment adviser and broker for wealthy Mexican citizens.

Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 34-year-old man. I first had problems with a hiatal hernia five years ago with the classic symptoms of heartburn and difficulty swallowing. I was diagnosed by a doctor. I lost 25 pounds and had only occasional problems until recently. Now I have much difficulty swallowing. Regardless of the consistency of the food, I have problems and have had several severe choking spells. I feel that this problem is also stress-related and would like to know what can be done about it.

DEAR READER — A hiatal hernia of a portion of the stomach through the diaphragm usually does not cause difficulty in swallowing. If you have that symptom, it means you also have a spasm of the esophagus or that the esophagus is constricted, preventing food from passing into the stomach. Some people have an esophageal spasm and do not have a hiatal hernia.

If a hiatal hernia results in a backward leakage into the lower esophagus, it can cause irritation. Eventually this may lead to scarring and constriction of the area.

You need to be carefully examined to determine if there is a persistent mechanical obstruction or not. And it would be helpful if the symptoms occurred when you were having an X-ray, so the action of your esophagus could be observed.

When excess body fat accumulates in the abdomen, losing that fat will help to relieve hiatal-hernia symptoms. There is much more to managing a hiatal hernia, and I have discussed this in The Health Letter, Special Report 18, Hiatal Hernia and Heartburn. I am sending you a copy, and other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The possibility of scarring and obstruction of the lower esophagus caused by leakage is one good reason for proper treatment of this condition. You can help to prevent this by following a proper lifestyle and, if necessary, by receiving proper treatment. Esophageal spasm, which you may have, may also be eased by antispasmodics.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 84-year-old male. My wife passed away about a year ago. I live alone and do my own cooking. I eat and sleep very well. My bowels function well. I get around very well and drive my own car, do my laundry and clean house. My only problem is that I am always cold. Is this caused by poor circulation or is it just old age? Should I get a checkup? The only medication I take is Tagamet, since I had an ulcer a year ago. I take one a day and eat everything.

DEAR READER — I am glad to hear that you are doing so well. You are a good example of what a person can do to take care of himself.

One feels hot or cold depending on how much blood flows through the skin. The skin has nerve receptors that produce that sensation regardless of what the internal body temperature actually is. This is why feeling cold and having a low temperature are not always related. Physical activity generates heat that is lost through the skin, which makes one feel warm. The loss of brown fat (as opposed to common yellow fat), which generates heat, also may lead to a lower body temperature. Get a checkup anyway to be sure that you are doing all right with that ulcer.

Discover baby

HOUSTON (AP) — An elementary school student who found a baby in a driveway near his home says he thought the tiny, wet object was a lost doll until he saw it move.

Darryl Salsman, 8, said he was walking home from Laws Elementary School in southeast Houston Friday afternoon when he and an 8-year-old friend, Chuckie Winters, spotted what they thought was a doll sprawled in a driveway.

"We looked over there and saw her head moving," Darryl said.

The boys flagged down 14-year-old Brian Houston, who was riding his bike, Darryl said.

The teen-ager said when he picked up the "doll" and realized it was a baby, he asked Darryl's mother, Diane Salsman, for help.

Using attitude leads against no-trump is a modern development. Leading a low card suggests that your suit will be a source of tricks for your side. Leading a high spot-card suggests that your honors are in another suit.

In today's deal, world champion Kathy Wei was East. Playing attitude leads against no-trump helped her make a fine defensive play. West led a heart, a normal long-suit lead, but chose the eight to show weakness in the suit. Kathy won the king of hearts and considered the defense. Since the heart eight was a fairly high spot-card, it was likely that any high cards in West's hand would be in spades, the other unbid suit. But how should that suit be attacked to take best advantage of declarer's possible weakness? After a little thought, Kathy selected the killing defense, the one specific card in her hand that could set the contract. She thrust the spade queen onto the table.

Note the result. Declarer could not develop the ninth trick without giving up the lead to East, who would then lead another spade through South's J-9 to net five tricks for the defense. Note also that declarer could not win by allowing the queen to hold the trick, because another spade would be led and ducked by West, maintaining the defenders' communication to beat the contract.

Although a low spade lead from East might be effective, declarer would have a chance to break up communication by putting up his jack, forcing West to win the ace prematurely.

GROWING ROSES

While the rose is an amazingly versatile plant that thrives on a wide variety of conditions, gardeners can take certain steps to keep plants healthy and blooming.

Rose plants are sturdier and produce more flowers in full sun — at least five or six hours of direct sun is best. Early morning sun is especially good since it quickly dries moisture on plants, thus reducing diseases.

Good drainage and air circulation are essential for preventing diseases and rotting plants.

Roses prefer heavy clay soils although they can thrive in a wide variety of soil types. They also prefer slightly acid soils. Soil can be improved by incorporating compost or other organic material into the top foot. Agricultural gypsum can improve the texture of heavy clay. If possible, prepare flower beds several months before planting to allow organic materials and nutrients to be more available for plants.

When preparing soil for planting, mix in a half cup of bone meal or superphosphate. However, do not apply fertilizer until the first set of flowers begins to fade on everblooming types, or until eight to ten weeks after planting for once-blooming roses. Give each plant a heaping tablespoonful of a complete fertilizer such as 6-10-4 or 8-8-8 every four to six weeks until Sept. 1. Later applications of fertilizer could promote soft fall growth and subject the plant to possible freeze damage.

Some old roses are drought resistant and can exist on rainfall only in much of Texas, but most modern roses need watering to develop more attractive plants and blooms. Avoid watering foliage to prevent diseases. Deep watering at weekly intervals is far superior to frequent light sprinkling.

Mulches can help conserve water while moderating soil temperatures during hot weather. Mixing mulches with well-rotted cow manure during the winter can add both organic materials and nutrients to the soil.

Disease and pest resistance can vary with varieties, but roses planted in sunny areas with good air circulation have the least problems. Insecticides can control most pests, and fungicides are effective against blackspot and powdery mildew, the two main diseases which attack roses.

Traditional heavy pruning may be appropriate for Hybrid Tea roses, but most old roses require less severe methods. Remove weak or dead canes anytime during the year, and do general thinning in February or early March. Shaping plants and cutting back strong canes one-fourth to one-third their length will produce more attractive plants. Prune climbers and one-time bloomers only after they flower in the spring.

Improper cutting of blooms can injure roses. It is best to cut few, if any, flowers during the first blooming season. Use sharp tools and leave at least two leaves between the cut and the main stem. Late afternoon is the best time to cut roses.

After blooms have been cut, immediately plunge the stems into warm water (about 100 degrees F.) then recut them an inch or so from the base. Flower preservatives can double the useful life of roses and many other cut flowers (a non-cola soft drink such as 7-Up mixed equally with water is an effective flower preservative.) A pure water source is equally important for preserving blooms. Use rain water or distilled water, since sodium and other materials in tap water can shorten the life of cut flowers.

SAFE AT SECOND – Pinch runner Michael Carter beats the throw to second by a bunch, but Lubbock High's Ralph Ramon boots the ball anyway during Saturday's championship game of the Snyder Baseball Tournament. The Tigers won the tournament with a come-from-behind rally, 8-7. Now 10-2 on the season, the 10th ranked Tigers will travel to Midland High for a game Thursday. (SDN Staff Photos by Noble Young)

Tigers rally, edge Lubbock in finals of baseball tourney

Jay Mayo's bases-loaded double in the bottom of the seventh helped to lift Snyder past Lubbock High in the championship game of the Snyder Baseball Tournament here Saturday, 8-7.

Snyder was scheduled to play Andrews in the championship game, but rain and cold weather had plagued the three-day tournament and the Mustangs elected not to play.

Snyder trailed 7-3 going into the bottom of the seventh inning, but got cracking when Ricky Hunter lashed a single off of LHS pitcher Mike Navariz. One out later, Justin Webb also singled. Chris Fryar followed with a double to bring in Snyder's fourth run of the game.

Willie Greathouse then walked to load the bases and Bobby Velasquez came up with a single just out of reach of the third baseman to make it a 7-3 game.

The fireworks abruptly stopped when Mayo slammed a two-run double to tie the game. Velasquez came in with the winning run when the throw back home sailed past the Lubbock High catcher.

Justin Webb picked up his third win in relief for the Tigers. The senior came in for Charles Bollinger and worked the sixth and seventh stanzas.

"Justin threw real well in the tournament. I was pleased," said Coach Albert Lewis.

Webb gave up two hits and struck out five batters. Bollinger, who went five innings, allowed seven hits and fanned nine batters.

Narviaz gave up 10 hits and nine walks in taking the loss. He struck out three batters.

Bollinger, voted Most Valuable Player of the tournament, led Snyder with two hits. Steve Parker also collected two.

Mayo, catcher Ricky Hunter and pitcher Jimmy Cain were also on the all-tournament team.

Lubbock High put three players on the squad: Danny Odle, outfielder; Alvin Hargers, designated hitter, and Rance OBrien, catcher. Also on the squad were Andrew Ochoa of Levelland, Cuby Owens of Kermit and Jerry Perez of Plainview.

"We appreciate the effort of Jimmy Ward (parks superintendent) and all the parks people helping get the field ready. And we'd like to thank all the people that did so much in helping us with the tournament," said Coach Albert Lewis. "We couldn't have made it without them."

Snyder will play Midland High on Thursday and Abilene next Monday (March 25) before opening District 2-4A play on March 29.

Lewis said he would start Cain against Midland High, but will work him, Bollinger and Webb over the next two games so that all three will be ready for district play.

BC advances to semifinals; Memphis State will go, too

HOUSTON (AP) - Memphis State guard Andre Turner had leg cramps and Boston College's Michael Adams had four fouls, but both were on the court in the final seconds when their teams needed them Sunday.

Turner sank a game-winning jumper with six seconds to play in overtime that gave the fifth-ranked Tigers a 67-66 victory over pesky Alabama-Birmingham.

Adams, a darting, zig-zagging bundle of awkward moves, then took to the Hofheinz Pavilion court and sank 19 points to lead the Eagles to a 74-73 upset victory over 10th-ranked Duke.

Memphis State raised its record to 29-3, while Boston College improved to 20-10.

The two teams with the dazzling guards will go head to head in the Midwest Regional semifinals Thursday at Dallas in the Round of 16, hoping to earn a trip to the Final Four in two weeks at Lexington, Ky.

After Turner sank his game-winner, he headed for the bench with cramps but Coach Dana Kirk summoned him back on the court.

"He was the only one to play 45 minutes but with five seconds to go, I had to pull him off the bench," Kirk said.

Memphis State threw up a press to prevent a desperation shot by UAB, and Kirk wanted his "little general" in the game.

"He intimidates people in the open court the way a big guy does in the paint," Kirk said.

Boston College Coach Gary Williams faced a similar problem in the waning moments against the Blue Devils with his star guard weighted down with four fouls. But Adams stayed in the game.

"You have to go with your player," Williams said. "He's been there so many times. I didn't want to lose the game with our best player on the bench."

Turner missed a shot at the end of regulation play that would have won the game for the Tigers. But he didn't miss in the overtime with his 17-foot fadeaway jumper in the overtime that sent the Tigers to Dallas.

Farmers seeking profits, not credits

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A legislator says a federal subcommittee's survey of farmers and their monetary problems shows they are anxious to make money — not more loan commitments.

The "thin thread" of consensus is that "farmers don't need more credit," said U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford. "They need to make money so they can pay off the loans they have now."

Stenholm said the consensus is forming among members of the subcommittee as they traveled around the country listening to farmers.

He said he will help write proposed legislation designed to make farming in the United States more profitable.

Minor injuries result from minor accidents

Two persons were treated for minor injuries and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital following two separate traffic mishaps in the city Sunday evening.

Listed as injured in the first accident at 5:27 p.m. at the intersection of U.S. Highway 84 and College Ave. was Debra Dawn Cline of 2712 Ave. U.

She reportedly sustained minor injuries when the 1985 Chrysler she was driving was in collision with a 1974 Buick driven by Mary Hargrove of 2606 Ave. G.

Injured in the second accident at 7:01 p.m. in the 600 Block of East Highway was Ira Pruitt of Snyder. He was a passenger in a 1967 Ford driven by James Donald Vaughn of Rt. 3, Snyder.

The Vaughn vehicle was involved in a collision with a 1982 Ford pickup-stock trailer rig driven by Michael Dewayne Pate of Hillsboro.

Pate also sustained minor injuries, according to police reports, but declined medical treatment at the scene.

Pair arrested in disturbance

Snyder police logged 16 misdemeanor arrests — including two following a disturbance at a local restaurant — over the weekend.

Officers were called to the Spanish Inn Restaurant at 1:59 p.m. Saturday by employees who said two men had gone into the kitchen and started a disturbance with the cook.

By the time police arrived, the subjects had left the restaurant but they were found and arrested a short distance away at 2:08 p.m.

A 22-year-old man was charged with driving while intoxicated and his 29-year-old brother was charged with public intoxication in connection with the incident.

In other weekend action, eight subjects were jailed for public intoxication and six for driving while intoxicated.

One of the PI suspects was also charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon and a second was charged with possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia.

One of the DWI suspects was also charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Dear Abby

You Can 'Poison-Proof' Home To Prevent Needless Tragedy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the problems of the elderly and those with arthritis in opening pill containers with child-resistant caps. If it's any consolation, they really do work, and since their appearance, the incidence of child deaths from aspirin has been reduced by 88 percent.

However, pharmacists also have non-child-resistant caps available—all you need do is ask. But please warn grandparents whose grandchildren come to visit that their homes (and especially grandmother's purse) are a treasure trove for a curious child.

Keep medicine and poisons out of reach. Have a bottle of syrup of ipecac on hand in case your local poison center or your physician recommends its use to induce vomiting. Lastly, put your name, address and emergency numbers (including that of the poison center) on or next to your telephone. If you have more questions, please call your local poison center or pharmacist.

ELIZABETH BENNETT,
SEATTLE POISON CENTER

DEAR MS. BENNETT: Thank you for a timely and valuable letter—especially since this is Poison Prevention Week. Some poison prevention tips:

— Never take medicine in front of children.

— Never call medicine "candy."

— Store all cleaning supplies out of sight and out of reach of children. (Never leave cleanser or detergent under the kitchen or bathroom sink.)

— Keep all products in their original containers.

— Discard old medicines by flushing them down the toilet.

Here is a checklist of potential poisons found in the home. These products should be locked up or kept out of reach of children.

KITCHEN: aspirin, drain cleaners (lye), furniture polish, powdered and liquid detergents, cleanser and scouring powders, ammonia, oven cleaner, rust remover, dishwasher detergents.

BEDROOM: all medication, jewelry cleaner, cosmetics, perfume.

LAUNDRY: bleaches, soaps, detergents, disinfectants, bluing, dyes, spot removers.

CLOSETS, ATTIC, STORAGE PLACES: rat poison, ant poison, mothballs, insect sprays.

PURSE: aspirin, all drugs, cigarettes.

BATHROOM: all drugs and pills, shampoo, wave lotion and sprays, nail polish and polish remover, suntan products, shaving lotions, toilet bowl cleaner, rubbing alcohol, room deodorizer, hair remover, boric acid, denture tablets, deodorants, pine oil and bath oil.

GARAGE, BASEMENT, WORKSHOP: lye, kerosene, bug killers, gasoline, lighter fluid, turpentine, paint remover and thinner, paint, weed killers, anti-freeze and fertilizers.

GENERAL: flaking paint, repainted toys, broken plaster. Some flowers and plants are poisonous.

FIRST AID FOR POISONINGS: Keep syrup of ipecac on hand in your home, but do not use except on the advice of your physician or the poison center. (Call information now for your local poison center's 24-hour hot-line number, and keep it on or near your phone.)

Poison prevention is the best antidote for poisonings, but accidental poisoning can occur in any home. The natural impulse is to act at once, but the wrong treatment for poisoning is often more harmful than none. So call your physician or your local poison center for advice immediately.

The number of children who have died and or have been seriously injured ingesting poisonous substances found in the home would make you weep. It is the responsibility of adults to poison-proof their homes to prevent children from becoming victims.

Santcuary leader urges more aid

AUSTIN (AP) — A 41-year-old refugee halfway house director is urging that aid be furnished to Central Americans fleeing war in their countries.

Sanctuary leader Jack Elder, director of the Casa Oscar Romero, a Catholic Church-sponsored shelter for Central American refugees in the Texas border town of San Benito, made the comments at First United Methodist Church Sunday.

"We are approaching a time when, in this country, to be a lukewarm Christian is to take an active role in persecutions of people in this hemisphere," Elder said in a sermon at a special afternoon service.

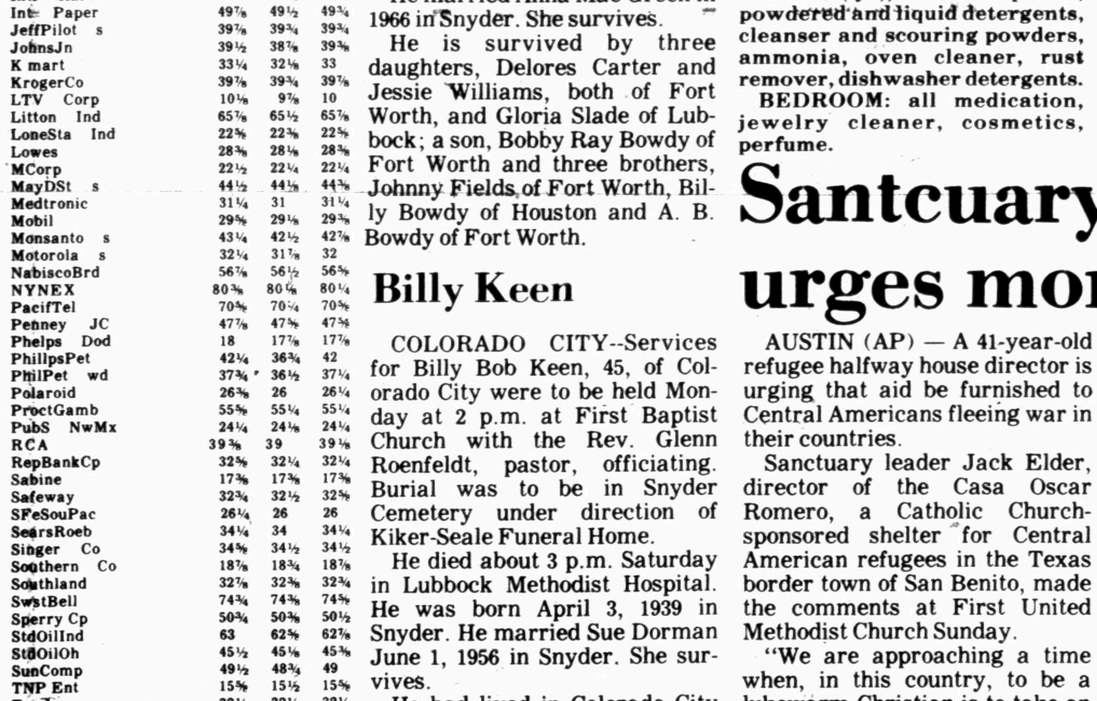

"It's time for us to resist, each in his own small way. To join us in our struggle for peace," he said.

Half of the about 100 worshipers signed pledges, following the service, agreeing to help pay for legal appeals for Elder and movement volunteer Stacey Merkt and for aid to Central Americans seeking sanctuary in Austin.

Elder and Merkt, volunteers at a movment halfway house in San Benito in South Texas, were convicted last month on federal charges of conspiring to transport Salvadorans whom the government considers illegal aliens. They are scheduled to be sentenced March 27 in Brownsville.

Elder could be fined and sentenced up to 30 years in prison.

Elder's Austin appearance was the beginning of Central America Week, a series of daily educational events planned around the country by the sancutary movement.

BILL SIGNED--Senate Bill 2 by Senator Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls will now provide significant additional money to small schools for vocational education, special education, and other special classes. Supreme Court considers case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for a Texas town went before the U.S. Supreme Court today to try to convince the panel that a city should be allowed to forbid the establishment of a home for the mentally retarded in a residential neighborhood.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ruled last year that Cleburne's refusal to allow such a facility only four blocks from the city square violated the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution.

The full appeals court refused by an 8-7 vote to review the ruling, and Cleburne appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In accepting the case last fall, the Supreme Court agreed for the first time to consider the rights of the mentally retarded to live in a group facility, and a city's authority to keep them out.

At stake is a modest four-bedroom home that Jan Hannah and Bobbie Northrop, longtime Johnson County residents, bought in Cleburne for $59,000 in July 1980 with the intention of providing 24-hour care for 13 mildly and moderately retarded people.

Following protests from residents in the neighborhood, the City Council refused three months later to grant a special use permit required by the city ordinance for homes for "the insane or feeble minded" even though the state had approved the facility.

Mrs. Hannah and Mrs. Northrop filed suit in Dallas federal court, where U.S. District Judge Robert Porter ruled against them in 1982. But Porter's ruling was overturned by the appeals court.

"There was not any desire on our part to keep the mentally retarded out of Cleburne," City Manager Lloyd Moss said. "This case deals with the sanctity of a city's zoning ordinance. It's our contention all along there's basically no discriminating intention, period. Never was and never will be."

Among the reasons the council cited in refusing to allow the facility at the proposed location four blocks from the town square was opposition from neighbors. The council also said the facility was a safety hazard because it was situated in a 500-year flood plain.

Council members also said they opposed the facility because it was across the street from a junior high school, which has about 100 special education students, many of whom are mentally retarded.

"They decided what they wanted and then tried to back that up with arguments, rather than the other way around," said Mrs. Hannah, who said she has worked with the retarded for 18 years.

She and Mrs. Northrop operate three smaller homes serving a total of 24 mentally retarded adults in neighboring towns.

Elliott W. Atkinson Jr., a Baton Rouge, La., attorney who represents 66 Louisiana subdivisions involved in similar cases, calls the issue "a nationwide problem that is beyond everyone's comprehension in magnitude."

Smoke scare

A defective part in a heater unit is now being blamed for smoke which filled a local residence and caused a Snyder fire run Sunday morning.

Local units answered the call to the Ida DeShan residence at 3798 Sunset Dr. at 8:25 a.m.

Firefighters at the scene found only smoke, however.

Hit-and-run here at local store lot

Two minor traffic accidents — one involving a hit-and-run incident — were logged in Snyder during the weekend.

The hit-and-run mishap was reported on the parking lot of the Minute Market at the intersection of Ave. F and East Highway at 11:06 a.m. Saturday.

A 1984 Renault owned by Richard Dupree of 3781 Sunset Dr. was parked at the convenience store when it was apparently struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

The second mishap was reported at 12:19 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of 37th St. and the Brick Plant Road.

Involved in it were a 1981 Ford driven by Dennis Snyder of 4116 Eastridge Dr. and a 1985 Ford driven by Brice Britt Fuqua of Hermleigh.

Proud Texan at one time was hunted man in home country

SILSBEE, Texas (AP) — Mirek Mandlebauer is now a proud Texan, complete with a ranch-style home, an oilfield job and a gold Lone Star State emblem that gleams from a chain around his neck.

But once, he was a hunted Czechoslovakian rebel who barely escaped into Italy amid a hail of gunfire.

A native of Prague, Mandlebauer now claims this small town north of Beaumont as his home and is the only Czech roughneck on an oilfield crew he has worked with for the past seven years.

Mirek, or "Mike" as he is now known, calmly recalls the details of a night 17 years ago when he and a friend outraced death to fulfill a dream of freedom.

"I running after shot was firing, and Peter was behind me. But then you get scared," he said in speech thick with a middle-European accent. "The danger to be killed is more powerful than everything else. You don't worry about nothing else, just try and get out."

The blue-eyed, blond-haired European proudly proclaims, "I'm an American citizen. I'm very happy."

But he is quick to recall times when harsh conditions of a Communist-ruled country made life difficult and generated thoughts of escape.

Mandlebauer says correspondence with an uncle living in Sweden, along with a desire to discover what lay beyond the barbed wire confines of his world, first sparked thoughts of freedom.

"I always have idea I go escape from the communist country because I want to find it out on my own what's going on here," he told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal recently.

"Their propoganda working bad over there against the United States," he added. "They make sure people think about this country as bad."

So in 1968, Mandlebauer plotted an escape to Italy through Yugoslavia and managed to get a travel permit. But he and Peter had some trouble at first.

"Dark was coming down and we was passing little village, and you know we was stranger over there every dog start barking," he said. "We just get biggest attention you can get."

Mandlebauer says the barking dogs are probably what caught a lone border patrol guard's attention, which started one of two dashes Mandlebauer would make to the border that night.

"We both ran in different directions (when the guard started shooting)," he said. "Finally, I know we may be safe."

After Italy granted them political asylum, Mandlebauer and Peter spent the following months in refugee camps, waiting for officials to approve requests to emigrate to the United States.

Peter's approval never came, and he later moved to West Germany. Some refugees had been waiting up to years to go to America. Mandlebauer believes his electrician, welding and multilingual skills were the reason officials granted his request six months later.

Mandlebauer says immigration officials started his life in America by placing him in Salem, N.J., where he worked for a glass company for nine months. He then moved to Houston, where he worked for the same company for nine years until moving to Silsbee.

Looking back on the events, he says the life he now leads was worth the fear, frustration and endless nights in Italy when nightmares of border patrols dragging him back to Czechoslovakia invaded his sleep.

Mandlebauer says his story is one many Czechs still dream of.

"If they open border in Czechoslovakia, will be nobody left over," he said.

Two inmates are attacked

ROSHARON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections' Ramsey II Unit was locked down today after four inmates beat two fellow prisoners with a claw hammer and a brass rod as they slept, authorities said.

"If it takes five or six days to clean it up, then that's what we'll do. I'm in no hurry," Warden Michael Moore said.

Ralph E. Davis, 30, and cellmate Bruce K. Efco, 34, suffered numerous head injuries and lacerations in the attack Sunday morning, said prison spokesman Charles Brown.

Davis, serving a 99-year sentence for aggravated robbery in Dallas County, and Efco, sentenced to 65 years for aggravated robbery in Travis County, were taken to the TDC hospital in Galveston in serious and unstable condition, Brown said.

The assault occurred about 8:15 a.m., shortly after guards unlocked cell doors, Brown said.

Brother says...

75-year term is not enough

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — The 75-year prison term David Port drew for killing a Houston letter carrier was not enough to suit Woody Schatz, the victim's brother.

"It's still not enough. We'll never have our sister back again," he said Saturday after a jury recommended the prison term and a $10,000 fine for Port, 18.

The same jury Friday convicted Port of murder in the June 7, 1984, shooting death of Debora Sue Schatz.

The 23-year-old woman was gunned down as she was delivering mail in the upper class Houston neighborhood where Port lived with his parents.

The conclusion of the three-week trial left Ms. Schatz's sister Darlene Sanderson "relieved. I've been waiting a long time."

Two other brothers and another sister were on hand for the trial. Ms. Schatz had eight brothers and sisters.

Doug Newell, a New Braunfels postman who had heard some of the trial testimony, said he was happy with the jury's decision if the Schatz family was pleased.

"We're hoping it'll have a positive effect on keeping anyone from doing it again," he said.

The case has drawn nationwide attention because Port's parents refused to testify against him. Bernard and Odette Port claimed the same protections that bar spouses from testifying against one another applied in their case.

But a judge rejected their argument and ordered them jailed on contempt of court charges. Both were behind bars while their son remained free on $20,000 bond, but both have since been released.

Neither was asked to testify in their son's trial and neither appeared in the New Braunfels courtroom until Saturday when the jury was deliberating sentencing.

Both refused comment after their son was handcuffed and taken to the Comal County Jail following formal sentencing.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmermann said Port likely would remain jailed in Comal County until the case is transferred back to district court in Harris County. He then likely will be transferred to the Harris County Jail until he is sent to the Texas Department of Corrections, Zimmermann said.

Zimmermann said he would ask for a new trial and failing that, he would appeal the case. He called the 75-year sentence "predictable. It's like an aging adult you know is going to die. You're just waiting for it to happen."

Zimmermann said Port's fate was sealed when State District Judge I.D. McMaster ruled a confession the defendant gave police was admissible in court.
