Melt-Down Of N-Plant's Reactor 'Remote'; Evacuation Ruled Out

Accident Called Nation's Worst

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Dick Thornburgh said late Friday that no general evacuation is necessary "at this time," to cope with the threat posed by the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant. A federal official said the possibility of a melt-down of the nuclear core was "very remote."

A representative of President Carter said the actions of officials so far had reduced the chances for another setback.

They spoke at a late night news briefing called while plant and federal officials continued struggling with a dangerous gas bubble atop the nuclear reactor. Federal officials said 25 scientists were sent into the area around the plant to measure radiation.

Advice To Stay Indoors Expires

The governor said his earlier recommendation that young children and pregnant women move from within 5 miles of the plant would remain in effect. He said his advice to those living within 10 miles of the plant to stay indoors would expire at midnight Friday.

"There is no imminent danger," said Harold Denton, director of operations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. But he said: "we are concerned about the status of fuel in the core (of the reactor.)"

He said: "this is easily the most serious accident in the licensed reactor program," adding he felt actions by officials had reduced the chances of another setback.

"Extensive Fuel Damage"

Denton, sent here by Carter, said there has been "extensive fuel damage" and "we must get the reactor in cold condition."

He said from three to five workers had been exposed to more than three rems, which is the limit the NRC allows in any three-month period. But he said no one was exposed past five rems, which is the limit in a single year.

Once the reactor is cooled down, plant officials will have a better opportunity to assure the facility no longer threatens to continue release of dangerous radioactive emissions into the atmosphere.

"Worst Possible Thing"

Denton described a melt-down as "the worst possible thing that could happen. A melt-down would not result in any fatalities. It would result in latent cancer, land contamination and heavy economic loss."

Friday afternoon, NRC spokesman Dennis Crutchfield said up to one-fourth of the fuel rods in the reactor may be damaged. He said that while a disastrous core melt-down is not likely, "the potential is there."

(Related Stories, Pages 6-7, Sec. A, 17, Sec. C)

Crutchfield said a gas bubble has developed inside the nuclear reactor, creating a small risk of core melt-down which would release large amounts of radiation. He said indirect evidence indicated up to one-fourth of the 177 fuel rods may be damaged.

Some Evacuated

Pre-school children and pregnant women began evacuating the area within 5 miles of the plant Friday — about six hours after new radiation leaks were reported and more than 48 hours after the accident which touched off the first leak.

More than 150 pregnant women and young children were at a shelter in Her-

10 Injured In Flash Fire, Explosion At Plant Near Pampa

PAMPA (UPI) — An electrical short circuit in a chemical plant control panel sparked a flash fire and explosion that injured 10 persons Friday, officials reported.

The explosion occurred at 3:45 p.m. at the Celanese Chemical Co., west of this Texas Panhandle community.

Four persons — identified as John Ball, David Ball, Bill Whitley and Don Lawrence — were transferred 40 miles to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center by helicopter, said Department of Public Safety trooper Jerry Burgtorf.

Asked to describe the condition of those most critically burned, Burgtorf said, "Pretty bad."

"You ever seen anybody who's been burned?" Burgtorf asked. "They look kind of black."

Three others — Walker Bird, Betty Saulsbury and Lilly Mayberry — were admitted to Highland General Hospital at Pampa, Burgtorf said.

The other three victims, identified as Kim Dover, George Hamburger and Jana Rogers, were treated and released from the hospital. Ages of the victims were not released.

Only Bird and Lawrence were Celanese employees, Burgtorf said. All other victims were employed by Brown and Root, a construction firm involved in a project to convert the plant from natural gas to coal, Burgtorf said. About 500 Brown and Root employees reportedly are employed at the plant.

Celanese spokesman Al Miller said the plant five miles west of Pampa produces liquified petrochemicals.

At the time of the blast, Miller said, there were 309 employees at the plant, all of whom were evacuated. The plant operates 24 hours a day.

CANCER PLANT SALE — Dianne Morris of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Texas Tech selects plants for the group's plant sale Monday and Tuesday in the University Center ballroom. Proceeds from the sale of mainly indoor green plants will go to the Lubbock chapter of the American Cancer Society, which opens a month-long fund-raising campaign Sunday. The plants were provided the sorority at cost by Robert and Barbara Eddins, owners of Lone Pine Nursery. Sales will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day and the public is invited to participate. Teamsters, Truckers Nearing Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the Teamsters union and the trucking industry neared final agreement Friday on a three-year contract that would head off a possible weekend trucking strike.

The new pact reportedly comes close to meeting President Carter's newly-relaxed inflation guidelines.

Sources close to the talks said the two sides had reached tentative agreement on the key issues of wages and fringe benefits and were going over final contract language.

Sources said the tentative agreement would give drivers wage increases of about $1.50 an hour over three years. Cost-of-living increases could add as much as another $1.10 an hour, assuming an inflation rate of 8 percent.

It was understood that the Carter administration believed the economic settlement taking shape was very close to meeting President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines.

The guidelines limit wage and fringe benefit increases to about 7 percent annually, but under changes approved to accommodate the union, drivers could receive substantially higher benefits and still claim their contract adhered to the program.

One source estimated the labor costs in the new contract would be "30 plus percent" over three years, but predicted the administration would embrace it as meeting the guideline.

While there were numerous reports that the two sides were about ready to wrap up their contract, sources also said unexpected last-minute snags could hold up agreement. Negotiators were working against a midnight deadline tonight.

"We've got our fingers crossed," union President Frank Fitzsimmons said when asked whether a walkout can be avoided. The 70-year-old Teamsters chief crossed fingers on both his hands to emphasize his point.

Fitzsimmons told reporters during a lunchtime break that the morning had produced progress at the bargaining table. Asked about the role the government had played in the talks, Fitzsimmons said the administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability doesn't "really under-

Ravaging bands of thunderstorms drenched parts of the eastern two-thirds of the state Friday afternoon, causing numerous flash flood warnings to be issued.

The heavy rain was caused by a frontal system extending from Oklahoma into South Texas and drawing warm moist air from the Gulf.

Tax Curb Petition May Imperil Bonds

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A NEW YORK bond rating official, who last week said tax limitation petitions being circulated by the Lubbock Property Owners Association could damage the city's bond rating, will come to Lubbock Monday to meet with the city council.

Ben Phillips, assistant vice president in charge of ratings for Moody's Investors Service Inc., requested the meeting two days after learning of the property owners' petition drive.

Phillips told the Avalanche-Journal last week the petition drive "possibly" could have an adverse affect on the city's AA bond rating and could lead to suspension of the city's bond rating, making a bond sale impossible.

The city council is considering selling $8.82 million in general obligation bonds on May 22. A drop from AA to an A rating could cost the city an additional $250,000 in interest.

The timing of Phillips's visit indicates just how concerned Moody's is about the petitions, some say, but City Manager Larry Cunningham downplayed that aspect of the meeting.

"He called and wanted to come visit Lubbock and see Lubbock," Cunningham said. "He hasn't been to Lubbock before.

"He needs to know what we have here and what we're trying to do."

Phillips was invited to visit Lubbock in 1976 when his counterpart at Standard and Poor Securities Inc., another bond rating agency, visited Lubbock, Cunningham said.

Most of the discussion with Phillips probably will be about the upcoming bond sale, Cunningham said, adding "we did not invite him to come talk about that (the petitions)."

"However, I have a feeling he'd like to tell us what kind of effects such tax limitations have on cities, what the effect has been in other cities and how Moody's and other rating agencies are treating that," he said.

"I have a feeling that from his point of view this is very critical to bond ratings

Fast-Paced Rodeo Moves To Final Round Tonight

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A CHUTE GATE slammed open, a bareback bronc jolted into the arena and a fast and furious third edition of the 37th annual ABC Rodeo was off and running Friday night in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The best in rodeo action, featuring a mixture of world champion cowboys from all over the nation and topnotch South Plains contenders, will return for a wild finale at 8 p.m. today.

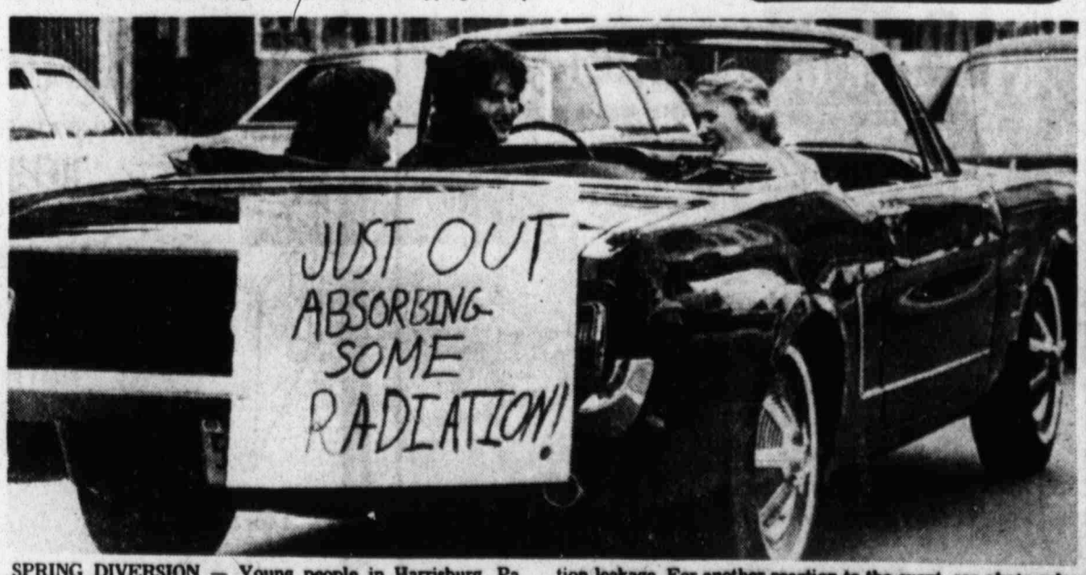

Friday's thrill-packed round played out to a lively crowd of 4,900, rodeo-ready by grand entry time and Rick Presley-ready at the first sparkle of rhinestones in the spotlight.

Presley, who wooed softly with deep-throated perfection and roared out with throbbing rock over a perfect sound system Thursday, had to battle a temperamental sound system for a short time before thrilling his fans with both the gentle and seductive sides of his "tribute to Elvis."

After his final performance in the singing spotlight today, Presley will climb aboard a bull and come out of the bucking chute to give rodeo fans a look at the real person behind the Elvis look.

Presley has made many Lubbock rounds to spread the word about the good work members of the Downtown Chapter of the American Boys Club have done in

Air Control Board Refuses Legal Action Against Texaco Tanks

By MITCH GREEN
A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Texaco Inc. oil tank farm near Seminole will not be subject to legal action by the Texas Air Control Board, even though the tanks were constructed in apparent violation of state and federal regulations and were responsible for dangerously high emissions of lethal hydrogen sulfide on at least five occasions in recent months.

Instead, TACB plans to routinely license the plant wiout legal sanctions, TACB Deputy Director Alex Opiela says.

The proposed permit, already approved by Opiela, is now sitting on Executive Director Bill Stewart's desk, awaiting his final approval.

"It's no secret that this board prefers to take administrative action as far as we can" Opiela explained when asked why there had been no legal action taken against the plant.

Opiela repeatedly referred to the violations as being only "technical" in nature.

"The problem has been solved. It's over with. There won't be any more of those releases," TACB compliance chief Cecil Bradford said.

Bradford said he called Texaco regional superintendent V.J. Ganon into his office in December and received assurances that the hydrogen sulfide emissions would be controlled. Despite a subsequent discharge, Bradford says he is satisfied Texaco will comply and legal action is therefore unnecessary.

An Avalanche-Journal report in January revealed that the plant, in operation since last May, was constructed without applying for a construction permit required by TACB. In the past TACB has filed lawsuits against operations — some much smaller than the Texaco tank farm — that failed to obtain construction permits.

But both Opiela and Bradford insisted the decision not to take Texaco to court did not represent a change in board policy.

If approved by Stewart, the permit will require the plant to use an adequate-sized vapor recovery system to capture dangerous hydrogen sulfide fumes. Les Montgomery, a TACB engineer, says a vapor recovery system previously used by the plant was undersized.

The plant will also have to install an emergency flare system that will automatically ignite the hydrogen sulfide gas if the vapor recovery system fails.

Bradford says the plant was built to consolidate the operations of 13 separate storage facilities, each of which had been emitting hydrogen sulfide into the air.

"Sure it's bad," he said of the plant's emissions, "but not as bad as it was before."

Bradford conceded that there are probably other plants similar to Texaco's that have failed to apply for required air control permits, but he said he did not feel the staff's decision to recommend against legal action would signal laxity on the part of TACB.

"The threat (of agency action) is still there. I don't think people are going to capitalize on what they perceive as a weakness in the agency," Bradford said.

Nuclear Protesters Arrested In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Twelve members of an anti-nuclear group were arrested Friday when they pretended to fall dead at the entrances to the Philadelphia Electric Co. office, police said.

They were identified as members of the Keystone Alliance, a group opposed to the use of nuclear energy. The group on Thursday demanded that the utility shut two atomic plants it operates and halt construction of a third or face acts of civil disobedience.

About 75 protesters used street theatre, songs and signs to demonstrate against radiation discharges.

City Man Named In Slaying

Charles Walter Hill of 3604 Zenith Ave. became the second man Friday to be charged with murder in the April 1, 1978 slaying of Robert Rios Rivera.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy set Hill's bond at $250,000.

In addition, 137th District Court Judge Robert C. Wright ruled that hypnosis was admissable as a means for a witness to identify the first man charged in Rivera's slaying — Gary Lynn Vester.

Judge Robert C. Wright ruled the identification admissible late Friday afternoon after a full day of testimony.

Prosecutors Rick Howell and Mark McBride and defense lawyers Mackey Hancock and Grady Terrell questioned the female companion of Rivera about the use of hypnosis to aid her memory and her subsequent identification of Vester, 20, of 601 Quirt Ave. as one of the assailants.

She testified that she remembered Vester with or without the aid of hypnosis.

Vester is scheduled to go on trial Monday.

Rivera was shot and the woman raped, she told police, after they were confronted by two men as they were parked in a field east of the city.

Hill and Vester reportedly are half-brothers, and Hill was arrested after he reportedly approached deputies at an East Lubbock recreation center and told them they had arrested "the wrong man" in the case.

He talked with deputies last Friday and was arrested Thursday in the 800 block of Main.

Vester originally was charged with capital murder, but the charge was reduced after the criminal district attorney's office decided Vester did not have a sufficient history of violence for a death penalty to be upheld on appeal.

Ford Still Supports U.S. Nuclear Power

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford says the United States must expand its nuclear energy production, but he adds it's not a good time to talk about the subject.

Citing problems at a nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., Ford told a meeting of Associated Steel Distributors on Friday that nuclear power is "not the best subject to talk about ... but let me say that, overall, the safety record of our nuclear energy people has been a good one."

Ford said a safe increase in atomic power production is needed to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

Hart Faces 305-Year Term Despite Innocent Verdict

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — A jury on Friday found Gene Leroy Hart innocent of the 1977 sex slayings of three young Girl Scouts at a summer camp. Hart's family celebrated with champagne even as he was returning to prison to serve previous sentences totaling 305 years.

A jailhouse escapee when the crimes were committed, Hart continues to serve sentences for rape, kidnapping and burglary convictions from before 1973.

Immediately after the verdicts were read, he was returned to the state prison at McAlester.

Hart faced three first-degree murder charges that could have brought the death penalty in this case, which involved the deaths of Lori Farmer, 8; Michele Guse, 9, and Doris Denise Milner, 10.

They were sexually assaulted and killed their first night at Camp Scott near Locust Grove, and their bodies were found along with their sleeping bags 100 yards from their bloody platform tent.

Hart was charged in the case 10 days later.

When court clerk Eloise Gist read the first innocent verdict, Hart tore off his eyeglasses, buried his face in his hands and sobbed for several minutes. Two more innocent verdicts followed.

Garvin Isaacs, his defense attorney — who later was told he faces contempt of court citations for comments he made during the 22-day trial — pounded the defense table with his fist and burst into tears.

Hart, 35, asked to make a statement to the jury but District Judge William Whistler refused. Later, in releasing the jury, Whistler said: "There were some who said this defendant could not receive a fair trial in this case. That has been proved to the contrary."

The verdict appeared to stun the girls' parents. One mother began crying in court, and all later broke down in the district attorney's office. They waited in the courthouse for an hour, then left, still crying.

Some 50 of Hart's relatives and friends greeted the verdict with applause, and were ordered out of the courtroom. Later, in a second-floor walkup the defense team had used as a combination office and living area, Hart's relatives drank champagne as his mother, Ella Mae Buckskin, wailed, "God's gonna bring my boy to me."

A woman juror who returned to the courtroom later told newsmen, "There was never a problem" in reaching a verdict. She said she thought the jurors made up their minds within five minutes of beginning deliberations, but wanted to go over the evidence and sleep on it.

The juror asked not to be identified, saying, "I have to live in this town and I'm already in trouble" (for serving on the jury that found Hart innocent).

In Oklahoma City, meanwhile, Don Sharp, deputy inspector of special investigations for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, said there were no plans now to renew the investigation.

In charging the jury, Whistler had said the case against Hart was circumstantial. A state crime bureau chemist had testified that hair and sperm samples from Hart matched those found on the bodies, and the prosecution offered what it said was incriminating evidence found at a boyhood hideaway that prosecutors said Hart had used recently.

Burglary Charges Filed Against Two

They are Lester Lee Bozeman, 18, of 1509 E. Auburn and Larry Donell Moore, 17, of 3203 E. Eighth St.

Joshua Thompson, 29, of 6301 19th St. was charged with attempted burglary of a habitation in a reported early Friday attempted break-in at an apartment in his apartment complex.

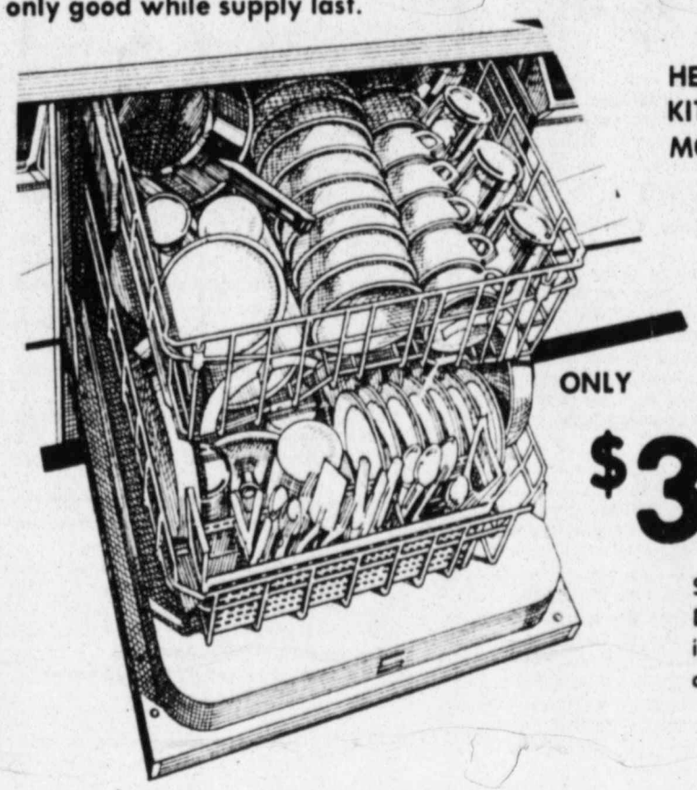

Oscar Martinez Falcon, 21, of 310 Waco was charged with possession of marijuana Thursday.

AN EDITORIAL:

Equal Or Unequal Justice?

THE INTEGRITY of the U.S. Supreme Court clearly is on trial as the justices consider whether a white man is entitled to equal justice under the law despite his race.

A decision is expected by June on the appeal by Brian Weber that he was denied specialized training and a chance for job promotion because of his employer's preferential treatment of blacks.

Attorneys for Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Co.'s Gramercy, La., plant joined with Weber's lawyers in answering "yes" to Justice Potter Stewart's question, "On its face, isn't this a discrimination against white persons?"

There can therefore be no ruling except in Weber's favor if this still is a nation of laws rather than of men.

SUCH A CLEAR-CUT decision is by no means assured, however, although two lower courts have seen it that way.

In order to rule for Weber, the Supreme Court justices will have to abandon the activist social role they've enjoyed since the so-called Warren Court of the 1950s and go back to their Constitutional job of merely interpreting the Constitution and the law.

This will be most difficult for the seven justices who heard arguments in the Weber case. A year ago, four of them upheld in the famous Alan Bakke case the same sort of affirmative action program Kaiser was using.

Perhaps ominously, Justice John Paul Stevens, who straightforwardly denounced preferences based on race during the Bakke case, mysteriously has excused himself from the Weber decision with no explanation.

Another justice, Lewis F. Powell, who concluded in the Bakke case that race could be but one of several factors considered in affirmative action programs, is recuperating from surgery and has not announced whether he will participate in the Weber decision.

THOSE WHO CONTEND that minority and women employes must be given preferential treatment over white males have been reduced, in essence, to arguing that constitutional guarantees of racial equality must be suspended for a time in order to overcome the effects of societal discrimination a generation and more ago.

It should be of grave concern to every American—black, brown and white—that the Supreme Court could even consider stamping its okay on such a pernicious policy.

Justice suspended for "a good cause" is nonetheless justice trampled into the dirt. Today's "good cause" may be tomorrow's perversion of discrimination.

Public confidence in the Supreme Court and American justice will be severely damaged if Weber loses this one.

AN EDITORIAL:

Growth Of 'Societal Suicide'

ATTY. GEN. Griffin Bell really separated the wheat from the chaff at a University of Kansas lecture when he told his audience "we must find ways to curb—and then reduce—our government by bureaucracy if the Republic is to remain viable."

What happened to the South during Reconstruction is a subject of continuing interest to political scientists as well as historians, he said, inasmuch as one part of the nation was under occupation by its armed forces.

"We have no occupation as such today," he said, "but the entire nation—not just the South—is presently regulated by a force more pervasive and more powerful than all the Union armies.

"THAT FORCE," he said, "is the federal bureaucracy, which by laws and regulations, by orders and printed forms, and by a thousand other unseen methods, subjects all of us to some degree of federal government scrutiny and control."

Bell encouraged a return to government by directly accountable public officials. "The only other alternative, I predict," he predicted, "is to have an increasingly costly and inefficient form of government wholly removed from democratic control."

When our society is threatened from within and without by such awesome problems as inflation, military aggression, poverty, and world famine, this ever growing bureaucracy is more than a painful nuisance.

"It is a prescription for societal suicide," said the attorney general.

THE RESTLESSNESS of the American people is now manifesting itself in the notion of calling a constitutional convention through an application from two-thirds of the state legislatures.

The Founding Fathers gave us this alternative way of amending the Constitution, doubtless foreseeing that the people might some day lose control of the federal government and even of the Congress to the extent that they could not achieve their will.

There has only been one constitutional convention—the original one. To force another in such a slap-dash fashion is the height of recklessness.

Lack of control has a good deal to do with the scourge of inflation, fueled by government spending. It has everything to do with frustration caused by inability to govern ourselves. Each of us must now decide who, if anyone, shall be given this enormous power over our lives.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

We're Paying Fortune For Obsolete Treaties

PRESIDENT CARTER, although unrevealed, has asked Secretary of Defense Harold Brown to review our obsolete treaties—some good, some bad, but all of them costly.

He has asked Sec. Brown to list our overseas bases and those installations where we maintain troops. The Defense Department replied with a top-secret, green-covered book. Its list consumed 712 pages.

The top-secret document revealed that we have a military presence in 38 countries. Much of this costly presence results from no fewer than 42 treaties.

And only about 200 of the citations in the 712 pages are officially listed as vital for the security of the U.S.

For years we have poured into obsolete treaties our suffering taxpayers' billions, straining recklessly our dangerous balance of international payments.

THESE WINDOW-dressing defense treaties are utterly useless in frightening or restraining an enemy.

Such obsolete treaties never seem to die, they just spend and spend away.

For example, the Inter-American Treaty, signed in 1947, is still operative. This is typical. The countries lined up by the U.S. to sign the treaties do not support them.

In 1949, 12 nations signed the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Later, Greece, Turkey and West Germany were added.

The member countries agreed to settle disputes by peaceful means; to regard an attack on one as an attack on all NATO countries. They swore to repel any such attack under article 21 of the United Nations Charter.

BUT YOU will find a fateful catch in NATO. Of all of our NATO allies only Greece and West Germany have met their level-of-forces obligations. President Carter adds the money, but our allies renege on their promises.

When France threw out NATO, the loss to the U.S. in our NATO investment inside France exceeded $2.5 billion. The U.S. left in France at least $550 million in facilities usable by France. But we claimed only $370 million of this $550 million.

Then we settled with France for only $100 million. Additionally, we allowed France five years to pay the $100 million. And Washington also allowed this payment without interest.

Moreover, even though France threw out NATO, the U.S. is still obligated, by still another treaty, to come to the aid of France. France has hung on to the Brussels Treaty of March 17, 1948.

THAT TREATY was signed 30 years ago. It formed the Western European Alliance, NATO's predecessor, and is still operative.

Sec. Brown states that of NATO's armed men, 320,000 are Americans. It costs us at least $9,000 a year to maintain one fighting man in Western Europe. That is about $3 billion a year, lethal in our severe international balance of payments problem. Also, you find a Mount Everest of extras.

NATO is indispensable: the issue is not its potential value. The issue is the real effectiveness of disproportionately large U.S. forces if our NATO allies fail to supply their own.

In 1954 the U.S. signed the SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) Treaty. Today, SEATO is largely inoperative.

Japan's reluctance to support it stems largely from America's doubtful attempt to link it with ANZUS, the Australia-New Zealand-United States security pact that was operative in Vietnam.

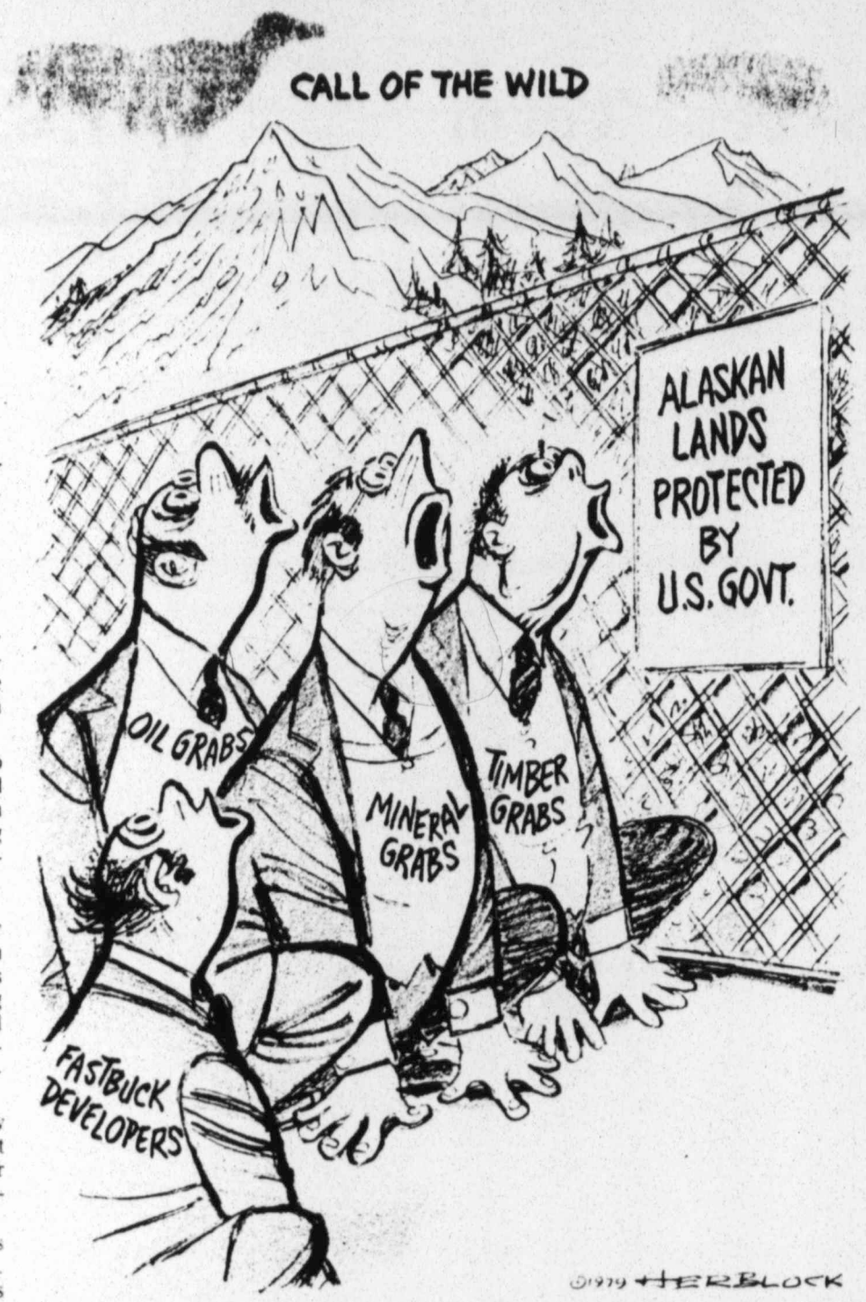

YET WE TAXPAYERS have poured more and more money and trained personnel into the old SEATO setup.

President Carter is very late in ordering Sec. Brown to review the 712-page secret listing.

It means absolutely nothing to merely translate a crusading spirit into frail and ambiguous treaties, promoted to show a united front with the U.S. Nor do the taxpayers' money and trained personnel that we pour into these obsolete treaties.

President Carter, saying America must curb inflation, now encounters an inflationary effect of about $5 billion a year from some of these treaties.

And, hey, that's our money!

GEORGE F. WILL:

An Accursed Thirst

WASHINGTON—In 1975, Saul Bellow told Israel's Prime Minister that America was in a "let's-clean-it-up mood."

"We've cleaned up Watergate, we are now cleaning up the CIA and the FBI and the Medicaid frauds," Bellow added, and it might be disastrous for Israel if the problem of peace in the Middle East were approached in this impatient, "clean-it-up" mood.

It nearly was disastrous. President Carter tried, initially, for a "comprehensive" clean-up of the entire Israeli-Arab dispute, and nearly made progress impossible.

In the Middle East, progress always is provisional. Even the signing of the Israeli-Eyptian agreement may wind up the clock of crisis.

The agreement caps a decade of activist American diplomacy that began with the "Rogers Plan" of 1969, and it represents Carter's skillful triumph over his own initial policy.

In 1976, James Schlesinger accused the Ford administration of treating Israel the way the Nixon administration had treated South Vietnam during the Paris peace talks, of blaming Israel for the failure to reach an agreement.

The Carter administration has, at times, treated Israel that way.

The administration began by courting the extremists, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization. Its aim was a Geneva conference and a "comprehensive" solution.

This policy culminated in perhaps the worst stroke of diplomacy in American history, the October, 1977, attempt to bring the Soviets back into the center of the dispute as "guarantors" of an agreement.

RATHER THAN be dragged to Geneva as a hostage of the extremists, Sadat flew to Jerusalem, gambling that moderate Arabs, such as Jordan's King Hussein, would accept him as a representative of more than Egypt's interests.

He lost that gamble.

Speaking to the Israeli Knesset, he flatly rejected the idea of a merely bilateral agreement.

Three weeks later, at Ismalia, Begin made an offer more sweeping than any other Israeli government had ever contemplated: return of the entire Sinai to Egyptian sovereignty.

But Sadat treated the offer as something taken for granted, as the least Israel could do before beginning to negotiate with him about non-Egyptian matters, such as the West Bank.

FROM THEN on, Sadat was trying to deal where he could not deliver.

But Carter's continuing thirst for a "comprehensive" settlement coincided with, and inflamed, Sadat's desire to make any bilateral agreement contingent upon Israeli concessions to non-Egyptian interests in the West Bank.

Sadat thought this would help him avoid being isolated in the Arab world. Instead, he demonstrated how isolated he already was.

Elections cannot just be "called"; they must be arranged. Neither Israel nor Egypt can organize the West Bank, politically. Neither can arrange electoral structures for a condition of "autonomy" short of sovereignty.

Jordan could, but won't. The PLO might be able to, but should not be allowed to.

In the final hours of negotiations, the West Bank issue receded and Gaza became a face-saving issue, inflated so that Sadat could be seen to be insistent about something.

ACTUALLY, THE firmness of Begin, the hawk, saved the Camp David agreement.

Sadat has been unable to sway other Arab powers, but he has been able to manipulate the American government and press.

And for four months after Camp David, he used various pressures (including the threat to delay the exchange of ambassadors) in an attempt to revise what was agreed to at Camp David.

But Begin insisted on what was agreed to there: full normalization of relations in exchange for full Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian territory.

It is, essentially, a bilateral agreement, and Sadat's attempt to make it more than that is hostage to Hussein and the PLO's Arafat.

They can, by action or inaction, prevent Israel from negotiating self-government for West Bank Palestinians.

IF THEY do prevent that, the agreement will be seen to be merely bilateral, and Sadat will be, in effect, in alliance with Israel and the United States.

If Sadat cannot accept that outcome, the agreement may explode, and there will be no diplomatic outlet for the forces unleashed. This agreement cannot be done over again.

In the Middle East, everyone listens to everyone else's radio broadcasts, and today the air is thick with verbal vitriol directed against Sadat.

Because of Iran, anti-Israel extremism is stronger than it was before Sadat's Jerusalem trip.

So Israel's fate is still to feel the bitter truth of an old saying: Jewish fathers walk a little closer to their children than other fathers do.

ANDREW TULLY:

Peanut Tinder

WASHINGTON—"Let's hang it all out there on the line for everybody to see," said one of Jimmy Carter's important political advisers. "We can't afford to let folks think this is another Watergate."

The man was referring to Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell's appointment of a distinguished New York investigator, Paul J. Curran, as a special counsel charged with examining some $7 million in loans to Carter's family peanut business.

The man is right. For both President Carter and the citizenry, this matter is political. Carter is the man who promised to restore confidence in the Presidency after the Nixon shenanigans.

He said his administration not only would be honest but would give the appearance of honesty.

CURRAN'S APPOINTMENT is the only way Carter can accomplish both of those aims. Curran is a Republican who served as U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York from 1973 to 1975—a Nixon appointee.

Peripherally, I suppose, that matters. But what's really important is Curran's reputation as a straight arrow, a professional. In the old phrase, his reputation says he'll do the job without fear or favor.

Predictably, Bell had been criticized for not naming Curran a special prosecutor. Originally, Curran was not given independent power to press indictments and grant immunity to witnesses.

A couple of days later Bell gave him those prosecutorial powers. But the critics were straining at a gnat.

CURRAN HAS been around the bases. Even without full authority to prosecute, he could have raised a public fuss if he decided a crime had been committed and the Justice Department ignored his finding.

Under the original ground rules any "prosecutive decisions" by Curran were to be approved by Philip Heymann, head of Justice's Criminal Division.

Atty. Gen. Bell has given Curran a broad mandate. Curran's job is to look at those loans to the Carter business and see whether any part of them went to the Carter Presidential campaign.

I SUPPOSE Heymann still could overrule Curran if the special counsel reported he had evidence that money was used to help finance Carter's campaign.

But Heymann—and the Justice Department, and Jimmy Carter—would be living dangerously if such an eventuality occurred.

Richard Nixon could inform them of the fatal effects that result from the bandying-about of the noun, "coverup."

Bell says the inquiry will be carried out "without even the possibility of deference to high office"—meaning the Presidency. For Jimmy Carter's sake, that's the way it's got to be.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Let There Be Light

NEVER MIND the flap over that article on how to build your own hydrogen bomb. What we really need is a handy-dandy do-it-yourself kit for generating electricity in our own back yards.

Looked at your light bills lately? Scary, aren't they?

Even the Federal Power Commission is beginning to gulp. It says homeowners are now paying 400 percent more for electricity than they did in 1957.

If you can't remember back that far, back when the light bill was smaller than the mortgage payment, go back five years and you'll find your rates are up an average 59 percent.

For industries, it's even more. They've been hit with a 100-percent hike since 1974. They're not any happier about it than the rest of us, but a few are striking back.

HOSPITALS HAVE always had back-up generating systems, and so have some schools and public buildings.

Now owners of factories, department stores, apartment houses and office buildings are getting charged up about creating their own kilowatts.

In New York, home of two big Con Edison blackouts in recent memory, more than 30 businesses are threatening to produce their own power. Some are actually doing it, both in New York and other parts of the country.

It's complicated, full of legal booby traps, and expensive. But one company in Louisiana says it's worth it. It spends $1.5 million a year to run its own plant—but it had been paying the power company $3.4 million a year.

The process is called "co-generation" and what it does is capture steam that normally is wasted anyway.

THIS INVOLVES diesel engines and electric generators and boilers and such, all of which is far too complex for a backyard operation.

But what's to keep some bright young engineer from cutting the idea down to size and putting out a manual any homeowner can understand?

The light companies, as you might imagine, are against it. They don't warm up to the idea of anything that smacks of competition.

You can't blame them much. It's lack of competition that got them where they are today—in the catbird seat.

Most places have only one electric company that can, and does, charge whatever it's comfortable with.

There's the local utility commission, of course, but it's usually a friendly group of political appointees that gives the light company what it expected to get.

THE COMMISSIONERS and the utilities have worked out a slick plan: The light company asks for twice the rate increase it really wants, the commission holds hearings and listens to the public squawk its head off and then it solemnly cuts the rate request in half.

That way the utility gets what it wants and the householders are supposed to think the commission is taking good care of them. Their bills go up, but they tell themselves the new rates would have been twice as bad.

And there's always the usual public announcement from the light company about how the higher costs are simply the price we have to pay for the convenience of "safe and reliable" electric power.

GIVEN THEIR monopoly position, the utilities have their share of critics crying rip-off.

Each one has a personal mission to tell us why our light bills are now the fourth biggest item in our budgets, right after food, housing and medical care. And why they don't have to be.

For openers, they point out that utilities hire lobbyists to make sure we pay the highest possible bills to bring the folks they work for the highest possible benefits.

What we don't realize, they tell us, is that some utilities even sneak the salary and expenses of their lobbyists onto our bills. Plus six-figure executive salaries and perks.

Federal laws call for a 48-percent corporation tax, but power commission records show that utility companies don't pay more than 7.2 percent.

But here's the grabber: Federal Tax codes permit utility companies to bill us for the taxes they don't pay.

In 1976, they charged us $2.45 billion for federal taxes, although they paid only $374 million. That litte caper cost us $2.08 billion.

And then they wonder why they have a poor public image. They're so worried about it, in fact, that last year they spent over $60 million on advertising and public relations.

EXCEPT THAT, you guessed it, they didn't pay it. They tucked the costs into our monthly statements. We may be mad at 'em, but we still have to pay for their efforts to shine up to us.

Maybe they're getting the feeling that their customers are fed up, and they're right. People all over the country are joining consumer groups to challenge the utility giants.

One economist even wants the government to take them over, a suggestion that, considering the way Uncle Sam bungles the railroads, postal service and almost everything else, is enough to make anybody blow a fuse.

Index Of Economic Indicators Reveals Slowdown For System

WASHINGTON (AP) — An index of economic indicators pointed again in February to the kind of slowdown in the economy that the Carter administration says is necessary to help control inflation.

The index, known formally as the composite index of leading indicators, declined 0.9 percent in February, the second monthly drop in a row, the Commerce Department said Friday. The index fell 0.3 percent in January.

It is designed to point to future trends in the economy, and the trend for the first two months of the year definitely was down.

A Commerce Departemnt official, Courtenay Slater, said in a speech that the economy probably grew at an annual rate of only 2 percent in the first three months of the year, down sharply from the 6.9 percent rate of growth in the final three months of 1978.

The administration is forecasting overall growth in the economy of 2.2 percent, down from 4 percent growth last year. It says the slower growth is needed to ease the recent strong demand for goods and services that is putting upward pressure on prices and making it difficult to restrain inflation.

The index is not yet signaling a recession, though it is close to giving that indication. A decline for three consecutive months is one indication that a recession may be coming, but it is far from a foolproof measure.

Had it not been for some major revisions in the index by the Commerce Department, the February decline could have been the fourth in a row.

The department originally reported the index had fallen in November, December and January. The revisions reported Friday, however, changed the December index from a 0.1 percent decline to a 0.4 percent increase.

Revisions in the index occur frequently as new information on the economy becomes available. The January index also was revised from an initial 1.2 percent decline to an 0.3 percent drop.

The changes meant that the index has fallen in three of the past four months, rather than for four consecutive months.

The Commerce Department said six of 10 individual components of the index were negative in February, led by a decline in the money supply. Also negative were the average workweek, changes in liquid assets, stock prices, building permits and new orders for consumer and other goods.

Partially offsetting the declines were gains in sales deliveries, sensitive prices and contracts and orders for plant and equipment. A 10th component, the job layoff rate, was unchanged.

The Commerce Department said the index in February stood at 142.3 of the 1967 base figures of 100.

Local Market Selling Buffalo

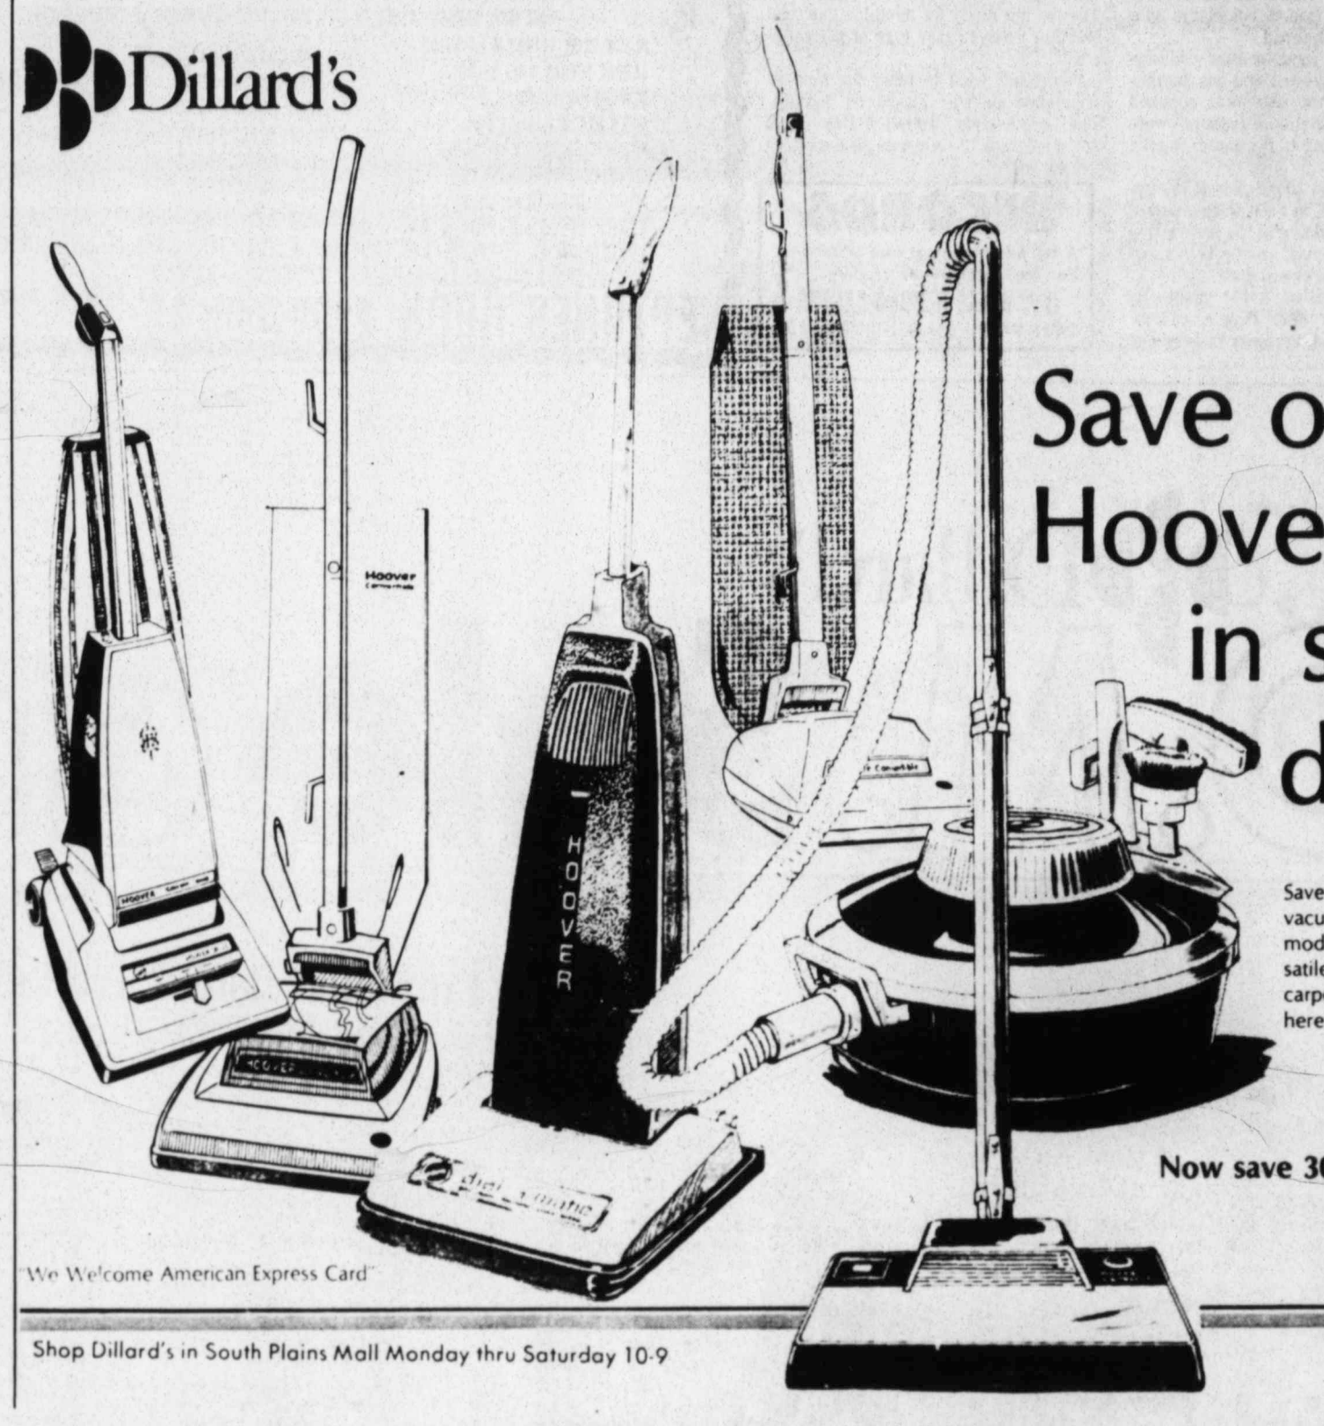

The American Plains Indians called it "tatonka" and they used practically every part of the great animal.

The meat was their main diet, but the hides made footwear, clothing and shelter. Sinew was used for sewing and binding. Bones were utilized as tools and the skulls were worshipped.

Now, Lubbock and area residents may get a taste of "tatonka" — American buffalo meat — during a special sale now underway at Super 'M' Warehouse Foods in Monterey Center.

Super 'M' is offering government inspected steaks, roasts, ground buffalo and stew meat while quantities last (or until April 7). The meat reportedly is tasty, high in protein and low in cholesterol.

Children Taken Out Of School To Avoid Exposure To Radiation

BAINBRIDGE, Pa. (AP) — Don Fletcher showed up at Bainbridge Elementary School near noon Friday, along with a steady stream of parents. He wanted to get his brother away from Three Mile Island.

"I came to get my little brother, because this stuff ain't nothing to play with," said the 21-year-old Fletcher.

Four miles south, at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant, more radioactive gas had been suddenly released early Friday morning.

This seemed to worry people after two days of relative calm over radioactivity escaping from the plant, and after they had been assured by the governor there was absolutely no danger.

"I'm frightened and I'm mad," said Pam Crawford, who picked up her son and planned to take him to her mother's in Maryland. "I don't see how they could allow this to happen."

Tears welling in her eyes, she added, "I'd like to know why we weren't informed when it was happening."

"They just want to take their kids out," principal Anthony Paviglianti said in explaining the exodus. "Some say they're going to western Pennsylvania. Some said they're going to Maryland."

State officials had called for pregnant women and pre-school children to leave from a five-mile radius around the plant but insisted there was no need for a general evacuation. However, some grim-faced residents loaded belongings into vehicles and hit the road.

In Harrisburg and nearby suburbs, streets were congested and gas stations jammed. After the alert was sounded about the new radiation, telephones were so tied up it took up to 15 minutes to get a line.

People scurried along sidewalks, apparently hurrying to heed state officials' advice to stay indoors in the area within 10 miles of the plant. Some stores and some state offices closed early.

State police called traffic moderate, and a spokesman said, "People are leaving. But mostly they seem to be going home. We have no problems anywhere. No accidents, no blockages."

In Bainbridge, Scott Sargen, a burly Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. worker, was in a rage as he came to the school for his two children.

"It's disgusting," he shouted. "I'm going to get my children. We'll probably go to Virginia. We just want to get away from here. They're not organized. They're not ready for anything like this. But I'm going to take care of my children!"

Paviglianti tried to quiet the man as frightened children looked on. Earlier, one small child fretted, "I'm really scared. I think my mom might come and get me soon."

Susie Myers, a teacher, said she explained to her class what was happening. "One little girl cried," she said. "Her daddy works on the island. But they're calmed down now."

Ethel Reno, a cafeteria aide carrying a tray of food, walked into the principal's office with a worried-looking little girl.

"Is it OK if Shannon eats in here?" she asked. "The other kids are scaring her."

Pennsylvania Homeowners Evacuated From Area Of Radiation

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — They left their homes "frightened and mad" to seek shelter from the dangers of a nuclear accident and to protect their children and unborn offspring.

The first group of about 150 pregnant women and young children who live near the Three Mile Island plant came to a state care center Friday after the governor suggested that those "particularly susceptible to the effects of radiation" leave the area.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh also closed 23 schools within five miles of the crippled plant, where more radioactive gas leaked into the atmosphere south of Harrisburg Friday morning.

"I was just scared, that's all," said Harriett Baylor, 27, who fled Middletown with her three young children.

"I was afraid we were going to die. I knew you couldn't run from something like this. I just thought they had everything under control, that nothing like this could happen."

Dr. Joseph Trautlein, a Red Cross official at the Hershey Arena where evacuees are staying, said he had treated two pregnant women and a small boy who were suffering anxiety and needed reassurance.

The scene at the arena was one of overnight bags, diapers and bottles, and adults supervising children's games. Most of them were from Middletown.

"I'm frightened and I'm mad," said Pam Crawford, who picked up her son at school Friday in the town of Bainbridge, four miles north of the plant, and planned to take him to her mother in Maryland. "I don't see how they could allow this to happen."

With tears in her eyes, she added: "I'd like to know why we weren't informed when it was happening."

"They just want to take their kids out," Bainbridge school principal Anthony Paviglianti. "Some say they're going to western Pennsylvania. Some said they're going to Maryland."

Thornburgh had called for pregnant women and pre-school children to leave from a 5-mile radius around the plant.

"This and other contingency measures are based on my belief that an excess of caution is best," Thornburgh said after discarding suggestions for a general evacuation.

"There is no reason for panic or implementation of emergency measures," the governor said about continuing leakage of radiation from the plant where equipment failed at dawn Wednesday. The accident damaged the nuclear fuel and triggered the leaks.

"The continued presence of radioactivity in the area and the possibility of further emissions lead me to exercise the utmost of caution," Thornburgh said.

The state has set up 10 to 15 mass care centers in this central Pennsylvania region to accommodate persons who have no relatives or friends able to provide temporary housing.

Radiation Leak Reports Jam Phones

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Reports of a new radiation release from the Three Mile Island nuclear plant caused telephone lines in the Harrisburg area to jam Friday morning.

"The lines have been overloaded because of the situation at the nuclear plant," said Jim Smith, a spokesman for Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania.

The company asked all customers to make only essential telephone calls and warned of substantial delays in getting dial tones. In addition, callers trying to reach the area by long distance reported getting repeated circuit busy signals.

Anti-Obscenity Bill Draws Support From Governor Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements swung his support Friday to 10 anti-obscenity bills sponsored by the chairman of a special House committee that investigated the child pornography problem last year.

Clements told his weekly news conference the bills by Rep. Ralph Wallace, D-Houston, would allow greater control of obscene materials as permitted in the U.S. Supreme Court's "Miller" decision.

"Miller" makes community standards — rather than an all-encompassing definition — the test in determining whether material is obscene.

"I support, in concept, those bills. The rise in pornography — which has been linked to mass murders in Houston and Illinois — and the reprehensible use of children in pornography must be addressed in Texas," Clements said.

On other matters, the governor:

— Endorsed legislation exempting child care institutions operated in the name of religion, including those owned by evangelist Lester Roloff of Corpus Christi, from state licensing.

During last year's race for governr, Roloff had backed Clements against Attorney General John Hill, who vigorously sought in the courts to bring Roloff's children's homes under regulation.

— Announced he is abolishing the Governor's Coordinating Office for the Visually Handicapped, firing its six employees and transfering its duties to the Texas Commission for the Blind.

"A single, well-run commission serving all needs of the blind will be a more effective instrument," Clements said.

— Declared he will sign, if passed by the Senate, a House-approved bill automatically restoring ex-convicts' right to vote once they have served their sentences, including parole or probation.

— Said he has determined that 6 million gallons of diesel fuel are available to meet a High Plains shortage, but they will have to be shipped from the Texas Gulf Coast and this will add 9 or 10 cents per gallon to the cost.

"We are getting this information out to the users and letting them know it is available," Clements said.

— Pledged his help, if needed, to a Laredo grand jury investigation into possible local government corruption. He said the probe involved "a series of Martin-related scandals," referring to former Mayor J.C. Martin, who has been convicted of federal charges.

— Chided the Texas State Teachers Association for endorsing collective bargaining for teachers. "I do not believe the people of Texas want their teachers organized in a union. I don't either," he said.

— Defended his policy of obtaining a criminal records check from the Department of Public Safety on each employee of his office and each person he appoints to a state board or commission.

A governor would be "derelict in his responsibility" if he didn't do this, he said, twitting Attorney General Mark White for not making such checks on persons he hires.

"I venture to say a lot of the attorney general's supporters are surprised to hear about that," Clements said.

White later told reporters, "I tend to know the people I hire. I don't just hire people off the street."

The Texas Civil Liberties Union, meanwhile, sent Clements a letter contending he had violated the Federal Privacy Act by requiring employees to disclose their Social Security numbers before the checks are made.

It also said the DPS, in its information-sharing contract with the National Crime Information Center, had agreed to release arrest records only to criminal justice agencies.

— Said Texas does not inspect nuclear power plant boilers now but he hopes to have a bill ready for the 1981 Legislature. The Texas Department of Labor and Standards has that authority now, but the Senate has passed a bill to take it away. Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, the sponsor, said the federal government has preempted that power.

Wallace welcomed the governor's support of his anti-obscenity package, saying it would "help bring to the attention of the House that we need to give it higher priority in consideration."

None of the bills has been heard by committee yet, but Wallace said he expects hearings within the next two weeks.

In general terms, the bills would:

— Raise from a misdemeanor to a felony, punishable by up to 10 years in prison, the manufacture or wholesaling of obscene devices and materials. A jury would decide whether something was obscene based on community — rather than nationwide — concepts of morality.

— Provide prison sentences of up to 20 years for inducing a child under age 17 to take part in a sexually explicit movie, play or photo session.

— Make it a crime to sell sexually explicit materials to minors or admit them to pornographic movies.

— Provide up to a year in jail for displaying at newsstands frequented by minors books or magazines that contain nudity or sexually arousing pictures and other materials.

— Add commercial obscenity to the state's organized crime law, which increases penalties for a number of crimes when committed by a group of criminals acting together.

— Authorize destruction of obscene materials used in evidence in criminal cases, but have the Department of Public Safety analyze and catalog it if it depicts persons under 17 engaging in sexual conduct.

— Enable landlords to break leases if they find their property is used for prostitution, exhibition of obscene material or the staging of nude dances or simulated sexual intercourse.

— Require operators of "adult" book stores and movie theaters to keep records of persons and businesses from whom they obtain their materials and disclose the records to peace officers.

— Require operators of "adult" book stores and movie theaters to file with the attorney general and secretary of state affidavits revealing the true ownership of their establishments.

San Angelo Prepares For Air Base Closing

SAN ANGELO (AP) — San Angelo leaders say their local economy will certainly survive without Goodfellow Air Force Base although they would prefer to keep it.

What the city officials really want is the Air Force to say once and for all if the base will stay open or get shut down in an economy move.

The government said Thursday the base will close but military authorities disagreed on a timetable.

Grady Elder, manager of the Chamber of Commerce-Board of Development, said, "There is no question that we will keep on fighting. In no way are we giving up."

But he tempered those remarks by adding, "We must be prepared for a closing. We've been planning for some time for the re-use of the base in case an announcement was made. If we find out we can't buy a six-month delay and that closure is imminent, then we will look into re-use plans."

Mayor Tom Parrett, who carried 20,000 signatures to Washington earlier this year in efforts to save the base, said, "I think the citizens of San Angelo can face this thing with pride with the feeling we have done everything possibly can. I do not think we need to apologize for the effort we have put forth.

"My feeling is — and I have talked to several people in San Angelo who have the same sort of feeling — that if this is something definite, we don't want any more of a reprieve. If it's going to happen, let's get on with" plans for adjusting to the closure.

Chamber President Joe Mertz said he didn't thing the economic impact would be as bad as some have thought, although Goodfellow is one of the largest employers in this widely diversified ranching, farming, industrial and educational center.

At least two committees met to determine how to put the base to its best use should the Air Force leave town.

Most of the outcry from the local citizenry came from the area of town where Goodfellow civilian employees and retirees live.

Agriculturalists Get Honors At Tech Fete

Eighteen students, three outstanding agriculturalists and three faculty members were honored Friday at the sixth annual Ag Honors Banquet ad Pig Roast sponsored by the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Sciences.

Nine students were honored for scholarship and nine as outstanding all-around students. James L. Cromer of San Saba was recognized as the college's most outstanding scholar and Linda K. Goehman of Menard as the college's most outstanding student.

U.S. Rep. Charles W. Stenholm of Stamford, rancher Bob Brown of Throckmorton and general manager E.C. Dick Weekly of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo were presented the Gerald W. Thomas Outstanding Agriculturalist Award — Stenholm for agribusiness, Brown for production and Weekley for public service.

Dr. Norman W. Hopper of the plant and soil sciences faculty and Dr. Fred C. Bryant of the faculty in range and wildlife management were named outstanding teachers. Dr. C. Boyd Ramsey was recognized with the second annual research award presented by the college. He is an animal scientist and director of the Texas Tech Meats Laboratory.

Cromer, recognized as having the highest grade point average in the college, also received the outstanding scholar award in the Department of Agricultural Engineering. Goehman was named outstanding student in the Department of Agricultural Economics as well as for the entire college.

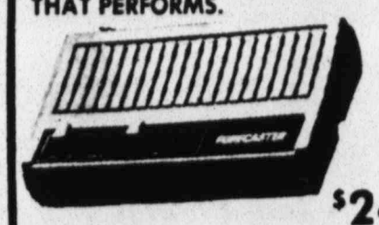

Other students receiving departmental honors for academic performance were:: George Rodney Warren, Gorman, for the Department of Agricultural Education; Catherine E. Lokey, Amarillo, Animal Science; Kregg L. McKenney, Colorado City, Agricultural Economics; Barbara L. Rudd, Lubbock, Entomolgy; Clifford M. Peters, Lubbock, Food Technology; Catherine P. Westbrook, Lubbock, Park Administration and Landscape Architecture; Sid Wes Perry, Hermleigh, Plant and Soil Science; and Philip A. Lorenz, Houston, Range and Wildlife Management.

Outstanding students, in addition to Goehman, included: David R. Booth, Amherst, Department of Agricultural Education; Brent W. Barker, Lockney, Agricultural Engineering; Charles R. Isom, Idalou, Animal Science; James C. Powell, Fort Worth, Entomology; James W. Stalder, Borger, Food Technology; Suellen G. Sharp, Dallas, Park Administration and Landscape Architecture; Terry J. Moore, Lubbock, Plant and Soil Science; and Diana J. Webb, Dallas, Range and Wildlife Management.

SHRINE EVENT — E.D. "Buck" Allred of Wildorado, potentate of the Shriners' Khiva Temple, will be honored at a reception and dance at the Civic Center here Saturday at 8 p.m. Wayne Perrin, entertainment chairman, said about 500 are expected to attend. Allred, a farmer and rancher, is active in community, civic and Masonic activities.

Savings Bond Sales Suspended Until U.S. Debt Limit Decided

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department announced Friday that it was suspending all further borrowing until Congress acts to raise the nation's debt limit.

The most immediate consequence will be that U.S. Savings Bonds will not be sold starting Monday "until further notice."

The Treasury also postponed the weekly bill auction that had been scheduled Monday to sell $6 billion in government securities.

The Treasury Department last postponed one of its weekly bill sales in December 1973, according to a Treasury spokesman who asked that his name not be used. That action also was prompted because Congress had not acted on a new debt limit bill, he said.

Savings Bonds sales have been suspended several times in recent years for the same reason, he said.

The Treasury announcement came about 24 hours after the House postponed action on a Senate-passed bill to raise the current temporary debt limit from $798 billion to $830 billion.

House Democratic leaders delayed the vote until Monday because of conflict over a balanced budget amendment attached by the Senate to the bill.

Without the legislation, the nation's debt ceiling at midnight Saturday will drop to the permanent legal ceiling of $400 billion.

"Present cash projections confirm (Treasury) Secretary Michael Blumenthal's statement on March 12 that without an increase in the temporary debt ceiling, the Treasury will be unable to meet its obligations on Tuesday," the Treasury said in a statement.

The Treasury Department borrows money to make up the difference between government receipts — mostly taxes — and spending and to redeem previous borrowings.

Before Friday, the Treasury department had canceled five sales involving $10.7 billion in bills, bonds and notes and an unspecified amount of 24-day bills.

The Treasury also announced a number of other borrowing suspensions, including:

•Suspend after this week the sale of Retirement Plan Bonds and Individual Retirement Bonds because "without new legislation to increase the public debt limit, the government lacks authority to issue new debt obligations."

•Withhold action on special securities issued in connection with state and local government tax-exempt bonds.

The department also took a number of steps to gather money to cover its commitments.

"All of the Treasury's funds in tax and loan investment accounts with commercial banks have been called in in order to maximize operating balances at Federal Reserve banks," the department said in a statement.

It added that securities in the Exchange Stabilization Fund, which was set up to buy foreign currency and help stabilize the dollar, "have been redeemed in order to allow the Treasury to borrow approximately $3 billion from the Federal Reserve without exceeding the current debt ceiling."

And the Treasury asked the Federal Reserve to pay to the government on Monday, rather than Tuesday, the approximately $700 million the central bank earns each month.

A spokesman said an added debt-limit problem would be that the money paid into Social Security, civil service and other trust accounts "will not earn interest" starting Monday.

Treasury officials refused to comment on what effect the Friday announcement would have on the issuance next Tuesday of some $7.5 billion in Social Security checks.

"We are hopeful and fully expect that Congress will act on this (the debt limit) by Monday," said a source at the Treasury Department, who declined to be identified.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a 25-year-old man, with an income of $12,000 a year. I have $3,700 in a savings account and approximately $1,000 in Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds. This year, I devised a monthly savings plan which involves a $25 deposit in the savings account, the purchase of a $50 E bond through payroll deduction and the purchase of company stock by contributing $10 through the employee stock purchase program. Do you think this program is too conservative?

A. In my opinion, yes. I feel a young person who has spare cash put aside should build for the future by putting money into things that are expected to grow in value.

The only part of your program aimed in that direction is your purchase of stock of the company where you are employed. The stock you named in your letter is a good one and should do well during your working career. My advice is to put as much money as the employee stock purchase plan allows into that stock.

Your present savings account gives you a nice reserve for possible emergencies. Fine. But there's really no pressing need to add to it.

Your E bonds could cause tax problems in the years ahead. E bonds now being sold are scheduled to reach their final maturities — and stop accumulating interest — exactly 25 years after their issue dates. And, when an E bond reaches its final maturity, you are supposed to pay federal income tax on the accumulated interest.

So, if further extensions of maturities are not granted on E bonds, you can look forward to paying income taxes on your E bond interest during years in which your earnings and your tax bracket will be higher.

The U.S. Treasury recently refused to grant further extended maturities to older E bonds. As a result, many loyal long-term holders of E bonds will be subject to fat tax bites during their top earnings years.

Unless that decision is reversed, I'd caution you and others who are trying to build up a nestegg to steer clear of that potential tax trap.

Q. I notice that many utility company common and preferred stocks are paying very good dividends. Just how reliable are these dividends, in comparison to companies outside the utility group?

A. They would have to be called more reliable than most. No dividend can be said to be absolutely safe. A company must pay dividends on its preferred stock, before paying dividends on its common. The dividends on most preferred stocks are at fixed rates and never change. Dividends on common stock can be raised, lowered or omitted — depending on a company's profits.

So, looking toward the future, the common stock of a company whose earnings are growing is usually a better choice than the same company's preferred.

Remember that government regulatory agencies allow utility companies to earn reasonable rates of return on their invested capital. Because of this, reductions or omissions of utility dividends have been few and far between in recent years.

Q. I bought 100 shares of stock at $100 a share. Its present price is $53 a share. I do not want to lose this stock but I would like to take a capital loss for tax purposes. Could I buy 100 more shares now, at $53, and sell the 100 shares I have owned tomorrow, or is there a certain length of time I must wait to buy or sell?

A. Yes, there is a specified length of time. It's 31 days or longer. If you do what you propose within 30 days, you violate the "wash sale" rule and your capital loss will be disallowed.

You could buy 100 more shares now; wait at least 31 days; sell your original 100 shares. You would be in the clear. Or, you could sell the 100 shares you now own; wait at least 31 days; buy another 100 shares. Clear again.

Since you evidently like that stock, the first of the two methods in the above paragraph seems best suited for you.

FREE ENERGY

World production of geothermal power, in which the earth's heat is used to produce steam that drives generators, now totals about a million kilowatts. Geologists believe this could be increased tenfold, a pollution-free source of power that would be equivalent to burning a billion tons of coal.

Tech Regents Told Tight State Budget Affects Three Areas

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Tight state finances are threatening to cut into the requested budget of Tech, the School of Medicine and the proposed School of Nursing, the Texas Tech regents were told Friday.

"The general finance situation in Austin is as bad as I've seen it in recent years," Bill Parsley, director of Tech public affairs, told the regents. "What looked like a normal session at the beginning is now a tight money situation."

Legislators are even considering funding state agencies and universites on a year-to-year basis rather than biennially, he said.

In addition, the numerous challenges to the constitutionality of the ad valorem tax means that schools may have to find alternate sources of funds for such items as major repair and rehabilitation of buildings, he added.

The fiscal outlook for the next two years changed, he said, after the state comptroller lowered his estimate as to how much state treasury money there would be available in the next two years.

The original estimate showed $2 billion and it was on that estimate that the Legislative Budget Board made its recommendations for funding for Tech and other schools, Parsley said.

But unofficial figures now place state treasury funds at between $200 and $600 million less than was expected, which could eventually mean less money for Texas Tech.

The tighter money situation will particularly affect repairs, new programs and some special items, Parsley told the board. Tech's School of Nursing is just one of the new programs requested which may suffer — others include the proposed schools of pharmacy, allied health and veterinary medicine.

Texas Tech requested $260,935 for 1980 and $394,817 for 1981 from the state legislature to fund the nursing school. The LBB concurred with those figures in its recommendation, but alloted no money for pharmacy, allied health or veterinary medicine.

Gov. Bill Clements recommended only $124,800 for the nursing school in 1980 — less than half of the Tech request — and $150,084 for 1981.

Parsley told the regents that Tech President Cecil Mackey and others have made it clear to Austin legislators that there is a need for the nursing school. "They are short 150 or more nurses at the teaching hospital and because of that can't open any more beds," he said.

Although Parsley said he hated to use the word "priority" because all Tech budget items are important, he told the regents that, "I think nursing has been named as our priority (in Austin)."

Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president of Health Sciences Centers, said the Tech request for some $260,000 for the first year of operation in the nursing school is the amount needed to get the program off the ground.

He said the money was requested for a dean, a small initial staff and faculty members needed to plan the curriculum and some operating funds. Plans call for students to begin enrolling in the fall of 1980.

Dr. Teddy L. Langford, dean of the nursing school, was contacted by the Avalanche-Journal after the regents meeting and said if the governor's recommendation of $124,800 is accepted, "It will make a major difference in the quality of the program."

She said it would mean operating with only about half the resources needed and that because it would slash the number of faculty hired, it would also lower the first-year enrollment of students.

A faculty-student ratio of one to eight is preferred in nursing schools, she said, and would be the ratio preferred by the school accrediting agency, the National League for Nursing.

If the nursing school receives the full $260,935 requested, she said the first year enrollment would be about 75 and include freshmen and more advanced students.

"An R.N. is a license, not a degree," she said, explaining that some registered nurses may enroll in the school to receive further training and a B.S. degree in nursing.

The school's curriculum will be structured so that beginning students will need four years to complete the program, but students with some previous training may complete the degree requirements in a shorter time.

Adequate funds for the opening of the school are necessary, she said, because the school needs a core nurse faculty with varied specialties in order to properly train nursing students to be generalists.

Lockwood agreed that a cut in nursing funds would affect the number of faculty that could be recruited, but said about the amount of money the legislature may appropriate. "We'll just have to see what we get to work with."

Although there is nothing definite on the subject, Parsley said there is some talk in Austin of funding budgets for only one year at a time. He said the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, among others, has considered the idea and if such a plan is put into effect the legislature would re-evaluate economic conditions in the summer of 1980 and then vote on state budget requests for 1981.

Parsley warned the board, "We're going to lose, one way or another, the 10 cent ad valorem tax."

He said the tax will probably be eliminated by one of three means: repeal by the state legislature, repeal by a public vote or by being ruled unconstitutional in a pending court case.

"I think the 10 cents is gone," he said, adding that the only two alternate sources of funds for repair of university buildings (which is normally funded by ad valorem taxes) would be applying for general revenue funds each time repairs are needed or the possibility of passage of a bill now in the House which would create a special fund for such purposes.

Noting that the legislature has many things to cover in the remaining eight weeks of the session, Parsley said, "I don't want to sound too pessimistic but the Legislature will have to do a lot of work and a lot of compromise to have anything to replace the ad valorem tax this session."

He estimated the chances for such a replacement this session to be about 50-50.

Parsley's assistant, Mike Sanders, said of the many bills introduced this session, four are of particular interest to Texas Tech.

State Rep. Froy Salinas' bill to amend the education code to allow two students on the Tech board of regents faces a Higher Education Committee hearing soon.

Robert L. Pfluger, board of regents chairman, asked Mackey's opinion of the bill and the Tech president termed it a "serious error" to allow special categories of people, whether students, faculty, staff or other special constituency, to serve on the board which he said should represent all the people of the state.

Mackey recommended that the board "oppose any special representation on the board."

Radioactive Leaks Reported In Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Radioactive water or gas escaped from Florida Power & Light Co.'s Turkey Point nuclear power generators south of Miami four times last year, the Miami News reported Friday.

The newspaper and its Cox Newspapers Washington bureau said government records showed that the incidents included the overflow of 3,300 gallons of contaminated water from a spent-fuel pool.

Tech Ag College Honors Top Student

Linda K. Goehman, daughter of Mrs. Werner Goehman of Menard, is the 1979 outstanding student in the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Sciences.

Miss Goehman was selected by a committee of faculty representatives from each department in the college and recognized at the sixth annual Ag Honors Banquet-Pig Roast at the university. Criteria included academic standing and overall social achievements and contributions.

Earlier this year the 20-year-old junior was named Elanco Products legislative intern for this session of the Texas Legislature to work as a member of the staff of the House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock.

$40,000 Theft Of Furniture Reported Here

Lubbock police today are continuing their investigation into the alleged disappearance of more than $40,000 worth of furniture from a local furniture dealership.

Frank King, owner of King's Furniture at 2216 Ave. H, told police Friday he felt someone had been removing furniture from his place of business "a little at a time" over a period of about 18 months.

According to a police report, King indicated he felt the furnishings were removed from his store and warehouses slowly, so as not to attract attention.

Thieves took more than $1,200 worth of plywood decking and siding from a house under construction early Friday morning, said police.

Ninety-five sheets of decking and 26 sheets of siding were removed from the house at 6019 14th St. which belongs to Dub Turner Construction Co., of Lubbock. Police found tracks apparently made by a truck near the house. The loss was tentatively set at $1,264.

Ray Tutlewski of 4408 76th Friday reported that a ladies watch, valued at about $1,600, had been taken from the bedrom of the house.

A stereo, television set, gun, watch and skateboard were among the items taken from Barbara Thompson's residence at 1810 3rd St. Friday, according to police reports. The missing property, worth approximately $551, was removed through the front door, said police.

Harris said the gun, valued at $300, was taken from beneath the front seat of his car.

A Texas Tech coed told police she awoke about 4:45 a.m. today when a man walked into her bedroom, lay down beside her and placed his head on her chest.

The 21-year-old woman said the man, whom she did not know, began to rub her leg but never tried to rape her. Reports indicated the intruder was fully clothed, while the woman was clad in a nightgown.

The man reportedly said nothing, just lay beside the student with his head propped on her chest for about 15 minutes, then ran out the front door.

The man, who is wanted on a charge of sexual abuse, was described as white, in his late teens or early 20s, tall, muscular and with brown hair.

Police also were investigating the reported theft of a pickup truck about 1:45 a.m. today which resulted in the victim's being sent to St. Mary's Hospital.

Reports state a policeman had stopped a traffic violator in the 400-block of Parkway Drive when another motorist drove up beside him and said a man covered with blood was lying in the middle of the street.

Upon investigating, the officer found Raymond Dominguez, 24, of 2415 Auburn St., No. 187, lying in the 1000-block of Parkway Drive. Dominguez, who was treated and released at St. Mary's Hospital, said someone stole his truck and stabbed him in the head.

Dominguez said he had to jump from his vehicle to escape from the thief. The suspect was described as short, thin and wearing a jean jacket, white T-shirt and blue jean pants.

Police about 10:45 p.m. arrested a man running a projector at a movie theater in the 1800-block of Broadway and booked him into the county jail on a charge of commercial obscenity. Reports indicate the owner of the business also was wanted by police on the same charge.

An undercover policeman said he paid the $5 admission fee at the theater and watched a movie depicting men and women having sex.

Governor Unaware Of Little Beer Bottle Law Okay

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he doesn't know anything about the "little bitty beer bottle bill" passed this week but has nothing against allowing smaller beer containers.

The Legislature completed action on the bill, and Clements must decide whether to sign it or veto it.

"I'm not particular about my beer. I will drink it in large or small containers," he joked at his weekly news conference.

The bill inspired heated debate in the House Wednesday and Thursday, but Clements said, "I've never heard of the bill before right now."

Most of the debate centered on provisions that prohibit brewers and distributors from selling directly to consumers. Keg beer, for instance, now is sold directly from distributors' docks.

Clements said he always has believed that wholesalers should not sell directly to consumers but should deal only with retailers.

The bill allows sale of beer in cans or bottles of 7, 8 and 16 ounces in addition to the presently authorized 12, 24 and 32 ounces.

Commitment To God Leads To Construction Of Chapel

By MARLENE McCORMACK LEE

ROUGH AND READY, Calif. (NEA) — The history of this once-rowdy mining town is laced with colorful events. In 1850, for instance, it seceded from the Union.

Only three of the 300 buildings from that era exist today. But a fourth, built just 20 years ago, rivals those landmarks in charm and personality.

It is the wedding chapel build in 1959 by Lisetta Scheaves to fulfill a life-long dream.

"I was 63 when I started the chapel," she explains. "That's the time when most women are thinking of retiring."

But retirement was the furthest thing from Mrs. Scheaves' mind. More than 50 years ago, she dedicated her life's work to God if he would reunite her with her husband after they became seperated in a shipwreck.

IN AMERICA

It was late in the summer of 1921. Mrs. Scheaves was traveling with her husband, Harold, and their 9-month-old daughter from Portland, Ore., to San Francisco by steamship. Harold was to attend the University of California at Berkeley.

Off the northern California coast, the Alaskan Steamship Co. vessel hit a reef — and "sank in 25 minutes," Mrs. Scheaves explains.

The crash woke up the passengers and everyone headed for the lifeboats. But about 50 of the ship's 132 passengers were lost at sea, she adds.

Mrs. Scheaves was wearing only her nightgown and a coat her husband had retrieved from their cabin. That was the last she saw of him.

She spent the night in a crowded lifeboat, praying for her husband's safe return. A passing freighter finally spotted the shipwreck passengers and rescued them. Mrs. Scheaves and her husband were reunited — and she vowed to keep her promise.

After that fateful trip, they continued their journey to San Francisco. Subsequent years took the family — which eventually numbered five — back to Portland, then on to Colorado, where Scheaves worked as an assayer for a mining company.

Scheaves retired in 1945 and bought an assayer's office in nearby Nevada City. The couple settled in Rough and Ready in 1953.

It was only after her husband's death in 1958 that Mrs. Scheaves got started on her project: to build a non-denominational church open to everyone.

Completed in 1959, the small chapel can seat 18 worshippers on white-painted benches beneath a towering cathedral ceiling.

One of the most attractive furnishings inside the chapel is a 150-year-old ornate wooden altar trimmed in gold. It was donated to the chapel by a handicapped woman visiting from San Francisco.

Between 10 and 15 weddings are performed in the church each month. Mrs. Scheaves says that a priest or minister of the betrothed couple's choice performs the ceremony.

The chapel is now officially owned by Mrs. Scheaves' younger daughter Jacqueline. But at 83 Mrs. Scheaves remains active in its operation because, as she explains, "it has been a great joy to me."

Parent Course Set At Sunset Church

Sunset Church of Christ is hosting a "Confident Parenting Course," today and Saturday, sponsored by the National Training Institute, a division of Sweet Publishing Co. of Austin.

The course is being offered to members of Church of Christ congregations all over the South Plains.

"Confident Parenting" is a Biblically oriented seven-hour course designed to help parents fulfill their responsibility of guiding their children toward proper spiritual development. The course is designed for couples, single parents, prospective parents, and foster parents.

Ron Rose of the National Training Institute staff is the Christian educator who is leading the study. He has done extensive work in family education with emphasis in fathering, family night and family communications. He currently works with Marriage and Family Encounters and edits the new "Family Notebook" page in Christian Bible Teacher magazine.

Missionary Sets Address In City

Few American missionaries are born in a foreign country and return to it as an adult missionary, but Elmer Schmelzenbach, who is speaking today and Sunday at Lubbock's First Nazarene Church, did.

He is speaking at a 7 p.m. banquet today in the church, located at 46th Street and Avenue Q, and at the 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services Sunday.

He is to be featured speaker at a "Faith Promise Convention" of the Lubbock church.

Schmelzenbach was born and raised in Swaziland. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Schmelzenbach, were pioneer missionaries of the Nazarene denomination. He grew up in the African country but returned to the United States for schooling (college and Bible schools), before going back to Swaziland for a six-year tour. Then he served more than 30 years in the nearby Union of South Africa.

In Africa Schmelzenbach, like his father before him, developed a lasting friendship with an African King Sabusa, who was reluctant-to let the younger Schmelzenbach leave the continent, even for schooling.

The missionary is retired now and lives in Oklahoma City, but he said he is busier now than when he was a missionary. He formerly was booked solid for appearances every week of the year, but now is restricting his appearances to every other week. He has not had a vacation in seven years.

He has two sons and a daughter. Both sons are missionaries, carrying on the Schmelzenbach name in South Africa. The daughter lives in Montana.

REV. ELMER SCHMELZENBACH

Missionary Slated As City Evangelist

Parker Henderson, a longtime missionary to Thailand and now missionary-in-residence in Lubbock, will be evangelist for a spring gospel meeting at Sunset Church of Christ April 8-11.

Henderson has been an instructor in the Sunset School of Preaching since he began a furlough from his work in Thailand. He was the first American evangelist to enter Thailand in February, 1958, and was supported by the University Avenue Church of Christ in Austin for more than 21 years.

This summer he and his wife will begin working in Trinidad where he will direct a School of Preaching there under the oversight of Lamesa's North 14th Street Church of Christ.

Church Sets Note Burning

ANTON (Special) — First United Methodist Church of Anton is holding a dedication and note burning service at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Rev. Carlton Thomson, district superintendent of the Plainview District of the United Methodist Church, is presiding at the service.

Missionary Union Sets House Party At Wayland

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Texas Woman's Missionary Union (WMU) is presenting a "Mini-House Party" today and Sunday at Wayland Baptist College in Plainview.

The Mini-House Party, which features Christian missions, is one of six regional meetings celebrating the centennial of Texas WMU. The WMU is an auxiliary to the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Women and men from Baptist churches in the Plainview area are attending the Mini-House Party, which is a regional version of a statewide meeting.

"Brave Past-Bold Future" is the theme of the event.

The Mini-House Party began at 1 p.m. today and concludes Sunday morning.

Speakers include Jack Gray, missions professor, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Boswell, missionaries to Brazil; Mrs. Charles Love, missionary to Guyana; and Mrs. Woodson Armes, a writer from Stephenville.

SMU Offers Church Communications Clinics

Continuing Education Units of credit will be issued for the first time by Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, to both clergy and laity enrolled in three Church Resource Systems (CRS) Communications Clinics slated in April.

A CRS Communications Clinic is slated April 19-20 at St. John's United Methodist Church, 1501 University Ave. Dr. Ted Dotts, pastor of the church, is dean of the clinic.

CHURCH NEWS

CRS is an audio-visual sales, communication training and video production ministry owned by the seven annual conferences in Texas and New Mexico and operated by the Media Division of the United Methodist Communications Council.

The clinic is planned for pastors, coordinators of communications, directors of Christian education, local church secretaries, news letter editors, volunteer teachers, United Methodist Women and other laity of area United Methodist churches.

The clinic will train local church pastors and leaders how to produce weekly newsletters; develop a clown ministry; use of learning center; Television Awareness Training; and Evangelism-Communication.

The Television Awareness Training will help participants to "step back" and look at television's persuasive prescence in their lives; to study television from the point of human values; to consider ways in which to effect change in television programming; and to look at the positive values which television presents.

A Parish Newsletters course, entitled "The Front Line Communicator," will include the purpose, writing, layout, design and production of a newsletter as its main focus. It is planned to help the parish paper editor to upgrade current publications.

The Evangelism-Communication course begins with the Gospel message and then develops a communication program — from the telephone to direct mail to television ads — in order to deliver a message to the urban resident, young single, or the established family.

The clown ministry course, Clownibration, will discuss the theology-philosophy of a clown ministry and use of clowns in worship and ministry. The title of the course is "A Ministry of Caring."

The Use of Learning Centers course, entitled "Audio-Visuals in Teaching Children, Youth, and Adults," is designed to help church school teachers, including weekday teachers, and church leaders prepare and use learning centers in open classroom settings. The course will include demonstration of techniques for using cameras, films, filmstrips, records, cassettes, slides, overhead projectors and art activities.

The faculty for the clinic includes:

Margie Brown of Dayton, Ohio, a professional clown and clown trainer who has both performed and given workshops across the nation. Miss Brown has directed several Christian clown caravans. She is currently working on an advanced degree through United Theological Seminary.

Ruth Anne Brown of Des Moines, Iowa, is a professional media resource specialist and media utilization trainer who has directed national continuing education events for both United Methodist Communications and the Association of Media Educators in Religion.

School Of Prayer Set In City

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 11th Street and Slide Road, is hosting the first diocesan School of Prayer in the Northwest Texas Diocese today and Saturday.

Rev. Donald N. Hungerford of Odessa and Mrs. Betty Gilmore of Midland are leading the school of prayer for men and women at the Lubbock church.

The event begins with registration at 5 p.m. today, followed by a 6:15 p.m. supper in the local church. Sessions of the school are being held from 7 p.m. through 9:30 p.m. today.

The event reconvenes at 8:30 a.m. Saturday with a Holy Eucharist service in the local church. A Continental breakfast begins at 9:15 a.m., followed by more sessions of the school from 9:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Saturday.

The participants will attend a lunch at 11:45 a.m. Saturday, followed by a session at 12:30 p.m. The event concludes at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Rev. Hungerford is rector of St. John's Parish in Odessa and Mrs. Gilmore is past president of the diocesan Episcopal Churchwomen.

The School of Prayer is a joint project of the diocesan Churchwomen and the diocesan Commission of Christian Ministry and Mission.

Purpose of the school is to deepen, through study of prayer, the devotional life of those attending. The school is designed for persons at all levels of prayer experience and is concentrating on participationg and training in prayer and discussion of prayer.

St. Christopher's Sets Cantata

The chancel choir of St. Christopher's Episcopal Church will present "The Seven Last Words of Christ," a cantata by Theodore DuBoise, at 5:30 p.m. April 8, during a Palm Sunday service.

Celebrant for the service will be the Rev. Evans Moreland of Amarillo.

The cantata was first given at the Chapel of Saint Clotolde on Good Friday, 1876. The composer was a French organist and teacher. It is one of his most widely known compositions, which he lived to see accepted as traditional pre-Easter music. According to a church spokesman, the cantata is considered to be a very meaningful piece of music, in as much as it reflects the mood of Jesus Christ's last day on earth.

The singers will be under the direction of choirmaster Steve Cumming and accompanied by organist David Stoebner.

The church is located at 2807 42nd St.

Methodists Plan 'Holy Week Revival'

Forrest Heights United Methodist Church, Elgin Avenue and 33rd Street, has scheduled a "Holy Week Revival" April 8-15 with different guest speakers during the revival.

The guest speakers will lead evening worship services April 8-13. The revival concludes on the morning of April 15, Easter Sunday.

The church has also planned a presentation at 12:10 p.m. each weekday of the revival, given by Rev. Al Lindley, pastor, on the "Seven Last Words."

Guest speakers for the evening worship services during the revival are Rev. Marvin James, April 8; Rev. weldonm McCormick, April 9; Rev. Bill Wright, April 10; Rev. Herb Tavenner, April 11; Rev. George Butler, a Communion service April 12, Maundy Thursday; and Rev. Lane Boyd, April 13, Good Friday.

Rev. Lindley will lead an early service Easter Sunday for the church youth in a local park. Following the early morning worship service April 15, the youth and Rev. Lindley will return to the church for breakfast and participation in the regular services for the day.

Grace Baptist Observes Two-Year Mark Sunday

Grace Baptist Church celebrates its second anniversary Sunday.

The event begins at 10 a.m. Sunday and continues throughout the day. A dinner will be served following the morning worship service.

Grace Baptist Church is an independent Baptist church. In the past year, the church has started a Christian school for grades one through 12, as well as a bus ministry.

Rev. A.B. Black is pastor of the church, which is located at 3600 Frankford Ave.

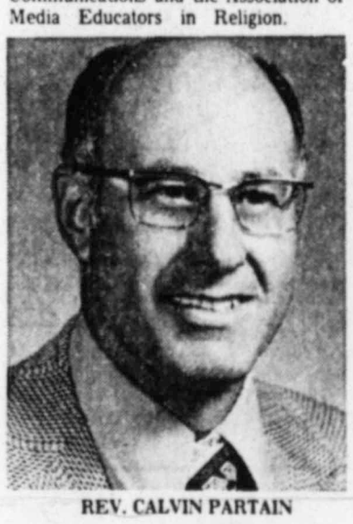

Pioneer Park Church Sets Evangelist For Meetings

Pioneer Park Church of Christ, Eighth Street and Avenue T, is sponsoring a gospel meeting Sunday through Wednesday with Truitt Adair as evangelist.

Sunday Bible Class begins at 9:30 a.m., followed by a morning worship at 10:30 a.m. and an evening worship at 6 p.m.

Weekday services are scheduled at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Topics for the Great event are "Expect A Harvest," "You Can Do Great Things for Your God," "Putting Life Back Into Worship," "What We Need Is Some Good News," "A Dynamic Church Begins With Me," and "Thinking People Become Christians."

REV. CALVIN PARTAIN

Parkview Baptist Schedules Revival

Parkway Drive Baptist Church, 2913 E. 2nd St., has scheduled a revival Sunday through April 8 with Rev. Calvin Partain as evangelist.

Rev. Partain was pastor of the First Baptist Church in O'Donnell from 1962 to 1970. He is now pastor of the Crestview Baptist Church in Farmington, N.M.

Singing for the revival will be led by Floyd Montgomery of Plainview. His wife will be singing specials with him during the revival services.

Services Sundays are at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Weekday services will be held at noon and 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Wayne R. Williams is pastor of the local church.

"Surroundings count — but not much. And where there is love, surroundings do not count at all."

My grandmother told me this. But for the longest time I did not understand what she meant. I thought people were a product of their environment. I thought people grew according to their circumstances: business people became merchants; religious people became clergymen; concerned people became firemen and nurses.

Now and again, I still pass slums; children playing in filthy alleys and on broken sidewalks. And I remember my questions. Where do the children of alleys sleep? How are they warmed? And how do they grow in surroundings that strangle clean air, comfort and beauty?

Grandmother could never answer all my questions. She would just smile and tell me, "Jesus Christ was born in a stable and He was the Savior of all mankind."

I understand now. Surroundings do not count at all — not where there is love. And love is found in church.

Radiation Amounts Surprise Officials

shey. And about 130,000 people living within a 10-mile radius of the reactor had been advised by the governor to stay indoors. He also ordered 23 schools within 5 miles of the plant to close.

No estimates were available as to the number of people leaving the area. In a fire hall in Dover — nearly 20 miles from the plant, several families watched television and waited. "I don't like taking any chances whatsoever with my children, especially when I don't know what I'm dealing with," said Sue Duncker of Strinestown, who brought her children — 8 months and 28 months — to Dover from their home about 5 miles from the plant.

Plant officials said some of the fuel used to power the reactor may have melted. They said the problem was not that the reactor was getting hotter, but that the cooling process was being delayed. The officials said the reactor was under control, but the release of radioactive gases could be prolonged.

In a total melt-down, the reactor's uranium core goes into an uncontrolled reaction. The buildup of radiation would create so much heat that the core would melt, and the mass of molten metal would burn its way through the floor and into the earth, emitting huge amounts of radioactivity.

NRC Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie said Friday night that there is "evidence of severe damage" to the nuclear fuel rods at the nuclear plant. But he said there "is no imminent danger of a core melt." An NRC spokesman, asked to clarify "imminent damage," said Hendrie meant it was "not a matter of concern over a period of an hour or a few days."

After a briefing by NRC officials, Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa. said: "Nobody knows whether the chance is one in a thousand or one in a million or one in 10....But they (NRC officials) now admit for the first time that a melt-down is possible."

Meanwhile, Wayne Pines of the Food and Drug Administration said samples from a nearby river and tap water showed no contamination.

Crutchfield said the sealed reactor vessel, which should always be full of cooling water, apparently has developed a pressurized gas bubble at the top. He said unless attempts to reduce pressure inside the reactor vessel are handled carefully, the bubble could expand, leaving the top of the fuel rods exposed, instead of under water. That would cause the rods to overheat and melting could occur.

Burst Of Radiation

Thornburgh's limited evacuation order was prompted by a severe burst of radiation from the plant.

Jack G. Herbein, vice president for generation of Metropolitan Edison Co., the major operator of the plant, said Friday no nuclear fission was going on inside the core.

He said although the heat within the core was within the limits at which the reactor operates normally, it led to a pressure buildup that forced the venting of radioactive gas radiation — one early in the morning, one at 11 a.m. and a third at 3 p.m.

Government and plant officials issued conflicting reports on whether the new leak was expected, but they agreed that the amount of radiation was a surprise.

Levels Not Expected

"I did not expect the radiation levels to be that high," said E. C. McCabe, an NRC section chief who was at the plant site on the Susquehanna River, 15 miles southeast of the state capital.

McCabe said two employees received radiation of 1,500 millirems during the 3 p.m. "puff" of radiactive vapors. The average American is exposed to about 100 to 120 millirems during a year.

Herbein said the radiation releases would continue periodically for up to five days as the reactor core is cooled. "I suspected yesterday that the cold shutdown would be completed by today and now it probably will be completed for the next five days," Herbein said.

Rods Appear Cracked

Herbein said it appeared some of the long, thin hollow rods in which the pellets were contained cracked during a period when a bubble of steam developed in the core as the pressure dropped too rapidly.

This cracking released radioactive gas and byproducts into the reactor coolant. It was gas from the coolant which has been vented to the air since the accident Wednesday.

Thornburgh, after speaking with President Carter and the chairman of the NRC, said there was "no reason for panic or implementation of emergency measures." He said the evacuation and other steps taken were "based on my belief that an excess of caution is best."

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter had been briefed on the situation by the National Security Council and had told the chairman of the NRC to "err on the side of caution and safety" in responding to the accident.

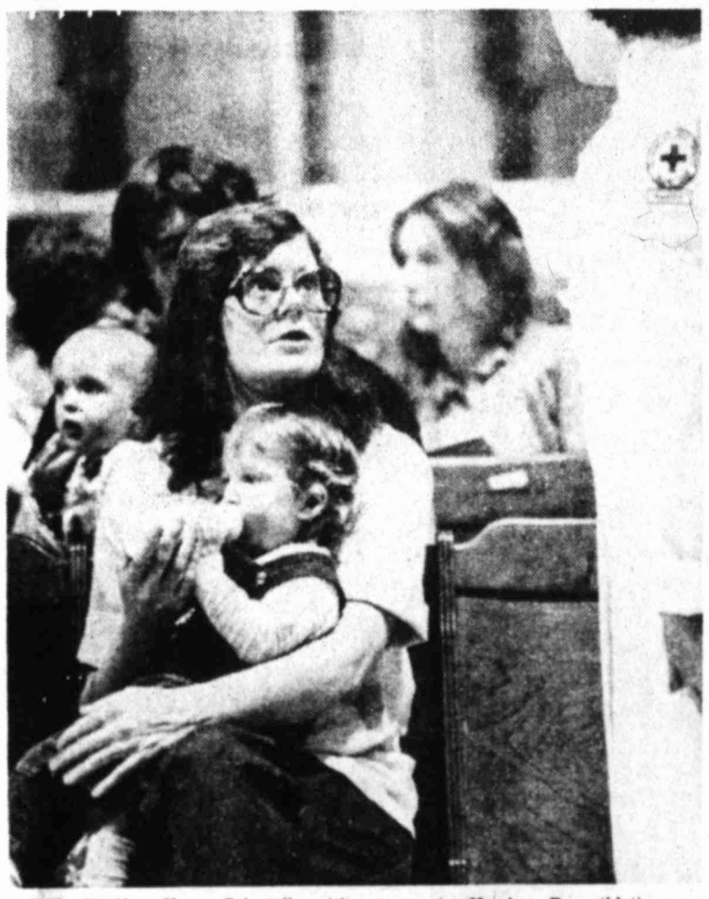

Care Centers Set Up

The state set up about 15 mass care centers in the four-county area of York, Dauphin, Cumberland and Lancaster.

The lastest radioactive leak, measured at a high of 25 millirems per hour near the plant, was shot into the air at around 6 a.m. while radioactive waste water was being moved into drainage tanks.

It came about 12 hours after Charles Gallina, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission investigator, said: "Based on what we've been able to see so far, the danger is over for the people off site."

NRC officials said an automatic device vented radiated gases from the reactor's cooling water system because of a dangerous buildup of the gases. "The venting of the tank because of the pressure is necessary," McCabe said. "If you rupture that tank you would have a substantial (radiation) release."

Shah Takes Refuge In Tranquil Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, deposed from power in Iran, endangered in Morocco and unwelcome in the United States, sought at least temporary refuge Friday in the tranquil Bahamas.

Accompanied by Empress Farah, their two children and about 30 other persons, the shah arrived amid tight security at Nassau International Airport just before noon aboard a Royal Air Maroc Boeing 747 belonging to Morocco's national airline. The plane was believed to have been provided as a courtesy by Morocco's King Hassan.

Reporters and photographers were kept about 200 yards away as the shah was taken to a waiting helicopter and the rest of his party boarded other helicopters or limousines. Several hundred pieces of luggage were unloaded from the huge airliner.

The shah and his party were described as sullen by the helicopter pilot. "The only reason they talked to us at all was that we were the pilots," said Bob Andrea. "They didn't look very happy."

Bahamian officials refused to say where the shah was staying, but The Associated Press learned that he and members of his family were at the secluded Paradise Island home of James Crosby, chairman of the board of Resorts International Inc., which owns casinos on the island and in Atlantic City, N.J.

Other members of the shah's party were staying at a nearby resort called the Ocean Club. Club officials said they were trying to make alternate arrangements for guests displaced by the Iranians.

About four hours after their arrival, the shah, his wife and children emerged for a brief session with photographers. The family posed for about five minutes while newspaper and magazine photographers and television cameramen took their pictures.

A spokesman for the party said the shah would not answer questions. However, the shah, asked if he would settle in the Bahamas, replied: "I'm afraid not, but it's a beautiful place. We are visiting."

Surrounded by security men, the shah, although suntanned and smiling frequently, appeared thin and worn.

Government officials said the shah was welcome for a "brief visit."

Asked if the shah would be welcome to settle on any of the 700 Bahamian islands (only 15 of which are populated) William Kalis, a spokesman for the official news agency, said: "That decision would have to be made by those much higher in the government."

Paradise Island is just across a bay from Nassau. Security in the area was tight, with police and private officers patrolling the only road leading to the Crosby home.

The shah fled Iran on Jan. 16 and has been exiled in Morocco since Jan. 22. But the Moroccan government has been known to be uncomfortable with his presence there.

His departure Friday followed increasing demonstrations by leftist students and labor unions campaigning for his expulsion.

"One shah in Morocco is enough," was one of the slogans scrawled on university walls in Rabat and Casablanca, reflecting a leftist claim of a parallel between the discredited Iranian monarchy and King Hassan's autocratic regime.

The shah had been treated as virtually a non-person in Morocco, never referred to in official newspapers and broadcasts.

Iranian Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who engineered the shah's downfall, had said he would ask for the shah's extradition. The revolutionary regime said it would try the shah in absentia for alleged crimes against the people, a trial which could end with a death sentence.

Bond Sale

all over the country," Cunningham said. He predicted Phillips would "share the concerns of Moody's and what the underwriters of bonds will be thinking and feeling on issues like this."

The petition drive "is bound to be one of his reasons for him wanting to come and visit us, but I'm sure that's not the only reason."

"Probably the size of our upcoming bond issue and the fact that we have $15 million (in bonds) to go after that is one of the reasons," Cunningham said. "Besides, it's a convenient time for him."

Phillips had other business in Texas and decided to come a day early to visit Lubbock, Cunningham said.

The "primary significance" of Phillips's visit, Cunningham said, is that "he needs to have a better view of what the community looks like — we need to let him know what a thriving, active community it is."

That will be accomplished with a "chamber of commerce-type tour" of the city with the council, Cunningham said, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Mahon Library.

Phillips's visit to Lubbock "also will be helpful to him in terms of the upcoming bond sale to know first hand about the projects (to be financed) and why we need them," he said.

It is also significant in terms of the city's future development, Cunningham said.

"We'd like to visit with him about the Justiceburg (reservoir) project. We need to give him an idea what we're planning for and what we'll be taking to the voters."

That information could be "critical to the city's future," Cunningham said.

Following the tour of the city, council members will eat lunch with Phillips at city hall and discuss the upcoming bond sale, the property owners' petitions and future city development.

Dockside Fire Destroys Liner In Virgin Islands

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — A raging fire destroyed the Italian cruise ship Angelina Lauro Friday, but officials said all the crew and passengers aboard when the blaze erupted fled safely to shore.

Firefighters abandoned the smoke-enshrouded hulk as it settled into the mud beside the pier where it was docked, listing slightly but still upright in the shallow water with the upper decks aflame.

Several firemen suffered smoke inhalation during the losing, four-hour battle and one remained under treatment at Knud-Hansen Memorial Hospital.

Bonsaver Gezza of Genoa, the chief deck steward, said about 25 of some 800 passengers and around 55 members of the 285-member crew were aboard when the fire broke out at 4 p.m. (2 p.m. CST). He said there was "absolutely no panic" in the evacuation.

The fire department said the last few crew members to leave were evacuated by a hook-and-ladder truck.

Clouds of steam mixed with black smoke as the 700-foot Angelina Lauro settled in the mud at dockside, where the water is only 29 feet deep. The Italian ship normally drew nearly 29 feet, meaning it was just clearing the bottom when it docked.

Capt. Scotto de Carlo, from the vessel's home port of Naples, said his ship "is touching on the bottom on its port side." He said earlier plans to tow the ship to sea where it could burn out were "impossible now."

Firefighters on the dock and aboard the U.S. Navy destroyer Corry, which pulled alongside, continued pumping water over the upper decks, trying to flood the engine rooms to keep the flames from reaching the 1,400 tons of diesel fuel in the ship's tanks. Officials said the engine room fire walls were blocking the flames from the tanks.

Three other cruise ships had been tied up to the West Indian Co. dock in this tourist port of St. Thomas Island, and the one closest to the burning Angelina Lauro put to sea, leaving a gap of about 1,000 feet between the blazing ship and other vessels.

As firemen withdrew, the Angelina Lauro was listing away from the pier.

"We're going to cut holes in the front of the ship and let it go down," said Jerry Morrison of Wilmington, Del., a chief petty officer from the Corry. The Corry was on of two Navy destroyers here for the weekend and it had been suggested they tow the Angelina Lauro to sea before it settled to the bottom.

Teamsters, Truckers Nearing Agreement

J. Curtis Counts, chief industry negotiator, asked whether the two sides could reach an agreement before the deadline, replied, "I've been in the business all my life and you have to be an optimist."

Counts confirmed that the Carter administration had agreed to allow some of the costs of the contract to be passed through in increased trucking rates, but he also told reporters that higher prices could also threaten a company's ability to compete economically.

It was understood the trucking industry was seeking assurances that Carter administration inflation-fighters would not object to Interstate Commerce Commission-approved rate increases to cover the costs.

The two sides have made substantial progress on economic issues in recent days. But chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz cautioned Thursday that "major differences" remained in both economic and non-economic areas.

Sources who asked to remain anonymous said the two sides tentatively had agreed to increase union wages by 80 cents in the first year and 35 cents in each of the second two years, or a total of $1.50. In addition, cost of living increases in the second and third years could mean another $1.16, based on an industry assumption of an inflation rate of 8.5 percent.

Sources also disclosed that management had given in to the union's initial demand to a $30-a-week increase over three years for health and welfare and pension benefits.

The current contract covers 300,000 union members. While a national trucking strike is possible by Sunday, Teamsters leaders could decide on a strategy of selective strikes or could seek extension of the existing pact while bargaining continues.

The negotiations are being watched with unusual interest by the administration, which regards the talks as crucial to President Carter's anti-inflation program. Under the program, unions are asked to hold their increases in wages and fringe benefits to roughly 7 percent annually.

The administration has agreed to relax the guidelines twice to accommodate the giant union.

The most recent decision came earlier this week when officials agreed to exempt from the guideline 21 cents of a 58-cent cost-of-living increase that the union is demanding to catch up for past inflation.

Earlier, the administration said increases to maintain existing health and pension benefits also would be exempt from the 7 percent standard.

The union's initial contract demands called for more than double the amount allowable under the guideline, while the industry described its first offer as "well within" the president's program.

A typical Teamsters union member makes $9.75 an hour in wages although some drivers make considerably more because of overtime and mileage bonuses. Fringe benefits bring total average compensation to about $12.65 an hour.

Arena action stepped up its pace as contestants raced to beat times and scores set in the first two editions of the 1979 benefit.

Bareback bronc riders took back their upper hand, with all riders staying aboard to the bell and none being a bit bashful to grab the rigging and look hard for a pickup man. Two cowboys failed to qualify.

Rusty Riddle of Weatherford took the bareback scoring lead with a 74 on Tucumcari while Joe Eckert of Elk City, Okla., and Ike Sankey of Rose Hill, Kan., ran close behind with 73. Other scores were a 70 for Chick Elms of Stephenville and a 66 for Monk Dishman of Beaumont and Danny O'Hoco of Winston, Ariz.

A Lubbock cowboy took the hardluck spot in saddle bronc competition, spilling into the dust to cheers of fans seeing wilder action but more scoring in the event.

Calf ropers,eyeing scores to shoot for, threw fast loops but left barriers intact in their bid for part of the $15,000 total prize pie waiting at the final round.

Waltzing calves kept the crowd roaring but allowed more low times — four within a second: a 10 flat for Kenny McMullan of Big Lake, a 10.5 for Jess Blackwell of Electra, a 10.6 for Gail Turner of Lawton, Okla., and a 10.9 for Carl Guillary of Pineville, La.

Bull riders gained in their cowboys 5, bulls 7 bout that gave Jody Tatone of Boardman, Ore., a high 82 followed by a 75 for Jerome Robinson of Fort Collins, Colo., and a 69 for Paul Hughes of Kim, Colo.

Steer wrestlers pegged their steers in short times — Byron Walker of Ennis in 3.6, Royce Rucker of Killeen in 4.4, Lloyd Hodges of Stephenville in 5.5 and Steve Fryar of Big Spring in 5.9.

Three-tenths of a second separated the three lowest times in girls' barrel racing, with Nita Jacobs of Vernon rounding the cloverleaf in 14.3, Ronda Hancock of Bentonia, Miss., in 14.5, and Kristi Wood of Akron, Colo., in 14.6, a time shared by Julie Thompson of Elko, N.M.

Miss Rodeo America, Debbie Johnston of Fort Worth, made her first appearance at the coliseum and Miss Rodeo Texas, Carole Spurlock of Port Arthur, made her final 1979 ride in the Friday grand entry. Miss Spurlock, who was sponsored this week at the rodeo by Luskey's Western Wear, flew on to Woodville and another rodeo after the grand entry.

Getting their first look at the western art of rodeo were a group of foreign student pilots from Reese Air Force Base who got a behind-the-chutes tour before rodeo time.

Announcer John Mann kept the explanations simple and steady so the students and all fans could understand the action in the arena and interpret the twinkling changes on the Winston scoreboard.

Unique Direction, Fine Cast Aid Play

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

The battle lines are drawn at the entrance to the Lab Theater on the Texas Tech University campus. Step inside, and the current production of Sam Shepard's stinging drama "Curse of the Starving Class" will draft you, skip boot camp, throw you directly into the war zone and leave you void, damn near numb with hopelessness. The talented cast squeezes every possible bit of energy and imagery out of Shepard's lines and movements and, in the process, equates the destruction of a family with that of a culture (or class) and metaphorically links one particular family's struggle with a more universal fight for humanity, for survival, for some sense of purpose.

A-J THEATER REVIEW

But the play, aided in no small way by a terrific cast and some rather unique directorial decisions, sees most of its power brooding — perhaps festering is a better word — in cynicism. In other words, Shepard may provoke questions by displaying a brutal social conscience, but he leaves little room open for answers. He tells us it's just no use bucking fate — because there's always bound to be at least one sniper ready to emerge and blow you away just at the precise moment you think you've got the enemy licked.

On the surface anyway, the play deals with the Tate family, living on a run-down farm of sorts and slowly self-destructing. Weston Tate is finding it hard navigating his life through a boozy haze. His wife Ella has given up and put her hopes in selling the house and the land and escaping to a magic land called Europe. Daughter Emma is just reaching womanhood and is already being forced to give up her dreams in favor of an ugly truth. And the son, Wesley, is the key figure: the settling influence who initially symbolizes a hope for the future. Director Jerry Cotton forces us to become a part of the proceedings, to watch the show as though peeking through a keyhole, by completely re-designing the theater for this production.

There's a refrigerator blocking the left aisle. And the set is built where the seats once stood. The audience is situated in chairs and upon cushions surrounding the set, so close that no personal quirk or emotional nuance can be missed. The cast members often step out of the literal Tate home environment and speak directly to the people in the audience, as though genuinely seeking understanding or approval or, perhaps, absolution. The result is our own rather devestating personal involvement.

Indeed, the production becomes all the more gripping in our inner need for a survivor to savor.

Cotton, the man who fought to get this play on a Lubbock stage despite an earlier censorship controversy, emerges as a triple threat for his abilities in directing, acting and casting. As Weston, who first dilutes the inherent nitroglycerin in his blood with alcohol and later makes the mistake of believing he can no longer be held accountable for his past, Cotton is nothing short of superb. We can actually taste the scum on the drunkard's teeth, sense the danger as he licks his lips while discussing murder, feel the pain as the truth hits him like a dagger in the night. The ingenious use of Dick Rodean's live bassoon music, moody and lingering in the air with an ominous threat, adds to the tension.

But there's more. Tobyn Leigh Probasco gives probably the best performance of her Tech career as the daughter whose eyes grow wild with the innocence of dreams, but who can also use those same eyes to emit little darts of evil when faced with a confrontation. The scene in which she taunts crooked lawyer Bruce Zwingelstein immediately comes to mind, as does her exit in which she warns us nothing is to be trusted and is then proven fatally correct. Bruce K. DuBose is a man with a future on the stage, as he adapts perfectly to the rather difficult part of the son: the message carrier, the role of transition.

Shepard has Weston admitting early on that he didn't recognize the poison in his father ("until I found myself carrying it around." We pray, then, for the next generation's survival but, when Wesley is asked why he's wearing his father's tainted, soiled clothes, we know he is not just speaking literally when he answers, "They fit me." Face it, fate fights dirty — in this case by pushing the son into following footsteps he'd longed to avoid.

FAMILY CONFRONTATION — Jerry Cotton, left, confronts his son, played by Bruce K. DuBose, in a scene from the current production of "Curse of the Starving Class" at the Lab Theater. The play, one of the most potent ever produced at Tech, will be staged at 8:15 p.m. nightly through Wednesday. Cotton also directed. Call the University Theater box office for further details. (Staff Photo by Gary Davis)

And the manner in which Cotton as director and DuBose as an actor pull off the transition, the identity exchange, is one which will not soon be forgotten. (A small warning to those sensitive to skin: DuBose does have a semi-nude scene, not in the least gratuitous, though a strategically placed towel should keep the censors at bay.)

In short, this story about the Tates, their struggle for survival and their eventual doom is one of the more powerful and compelling dramas I've seen performed. A complex work made viable to the masses by clear-cut and unique staging, it is a conception deserving of appreciation. It is a play whose statement jumps off the set and into the audience, so closely enmeshing itself within our own realities that the only possible resulting feeling can be dejection and no hope for debate.

Simply the fate of a "starving class?" Judy Blue (as Ella) tells us that's not true when confronted with the fact she's not starving because she still has food of some sort. "We're hungry," she yells in retaliation, "and that's starving enough for me!" Food is not all the Tates — and we — hunger for. Jerry Cotton's production of "Curse of the Starving Class" makes that point perfectly clear and, through a conclusion cleverly lit and stunning in its impact, leaves us reeling from the blow.

• • • • •

"Curse of the Starving Class" will be staged at 8:15 p.m. nightly through Wednesday. Tickets are available each night. Call the Tech University Theater box office for further ticket information.

Jerry Cotton has double-cast several roles. Tonight, Sunday and Tuesday will see Deborah Vonne Lemen as Emma, Tobyn Leigh Probasco as Officer Malcolm, Jerry Smith as Ellis and Karl E. Gore as Slater. Monday and Wednesday will find Miss Probasco as Emma, Miss Lemen as Officer Malcolm, Gore as Ellis, and Smith as Slater. The rest of the cast includes DuBose as Wesley, Judy Blue as Ella, Cotton as Weston, Zwingelstein as Taylor and Warren Dayton as Emerson. Lighting is by Sara O'Neill. Costumes were designed by Miss Probasco.

Strangling Suspect Pleads Insanity

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Kenneth Bianchi, 27, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Friday in the Jan. 11 strangulation deaths of two female Western Washington University students.

Whatcom County Prosecuting Attorney David McEachran said he will seek the death penalty if Bianchi is convicted of two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of Karen Mandic, 22, and Diane Wilder, 27. Their bodies were found in the back seat of a car in a residential neighborhood.

Bianchi also has been questioned by Los Angeles police in their attempts to solve the "Hillside Strangler" deaths of 13 women. No charges have been filed in connection with those deaths.

According to papers filed with Whatcom County Superior Court, three doctors concluded that Bianchi is suffering from a severe multiple personality condition.

Escaped Italian, Wanted In Britain For Bank Fraud, Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Pierre Luigi Torri, accused of being involved in a $300-million international fraud and escaping from a London jail more than a year ago, has been arrested in New York, an FBI spokesman said Friday.

Torri, 45, was seized Thursday in midtown Manhattan, according to FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel.

Federal agents made the arrest after being informed that the Milan-born banker was staying at a hotel on Central Park West. He was arrested on an extradition warrant which had been requested by British authorities, Ertel said.

Torri was originally arrested in London on May 18, 1977, along with four other Italian men and charged with creating and operating two bogus banks in London named Baer Securities Ltd. and International Commerce Bank, according to Ertel.

On Sept. 22, 1977, Torri and two others escaped from a London courtroom cell by sawing the bars.

Two Irish Groups Claim Murder Responsibility

LONDON (AP) — A terrorist bomb blasted apart an automobile outside Parliament Friday and killed a top Conservative Party leader who fiercely opposed the Irish Republican Army's battle to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Within two hours of the blast, two Irish guerrilla groups had claimed responsibility for the assassination of Airey Neave, a member of the House of Commons and right-hand man to Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher.

The shocking attack on Parliament's doorstep came as the Conservatives readied for a political campaign many expect will end with their victory in national elections May 3. Neave, a 63-year-old World War II hero, was considered likely to become Northern Ireland secretary in a Thatcher-led government.

Police said an estimated half-pound of explosives placed in the front of Neave's blue sedan detonated as he was driving up the exit ramp from Parliament's underground garage, beneath a flower-decked yard adjacent to Parliament's hallmark, the clock tower that houses the famous bell Big Ben.

"The car was blown apart. There were bits everywhere," according to Ian Showell, a photographer for Britain's Press Association news agency, one of the first persons on the scene.

Both of Neave's legs were blown off, police said. He was dragged from the shattered auto by garage attendants and rushed to nearby Westminster Hospital. His wife, Diana, dashed to be at his bedside, but he died before she got there.

Scotland Yard sources said it was not clear whether the bomb was planted in Neave's auto while it was parked in the Parliament garage, or was a time bomb planted earlier in the day elsewhere. A man on a motorscooter reportedly sped from the scene after the blast.

A man purporting to represent the Irish National Liberation Army, military arm of the Irish Republican Socialist Party, telephoned a Dublin newspaper and said:

"This is the first attack in a new campaign against the British political and military establishment and will continue until there is a complete withdrawal of the British political and military presence" from Northern Ireland.

The IRSP, a left-wing revolutionary splinter group of the IRA's Marxist Official wing, is allied to the movement's Provisional wing fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

Soon after, a further claim was made to the same newspaper by a man claiming to represent the Provisional IRA. He said, "We have this message for the British government: Before you decide to have a general election you had better state that you have decided not to stay in Ireland."

Still later a man called Dublin newspapers, claimed to represent the Irish National Liberation Army, and gave the group's usual code word to support his identificaton. He said the bomb, weighing 2.2 pounds, had been planted beneath the driver's seat of the car and that he was calling back because the first statement was "not taken seriously." He said another statement would be made later.

The bombing triggered a nationwide security alert. British intelligence reported last month that the Provisional IRA planned a major bomb blitz of London and English cities during the election campaign.

Britain's ambassador to the Netherlands, Sir Richard Sykes, was shot to death in The Hague on March 22, and anonymous callers later claimed responsibility for the Provisional IRA.

Neave, who represented a district in Berkshire, west of London, was the Conservatives' spokesman in Parliament on Northern Ireland and had long called for tougher measures against the IRA. He opposed the outgoing Labor government's withdrawal of some army units from Northern Ireland and demanded the death penalty — abolished in Britain — for terrorists.

He refused to have police bodyguards and frequently told friends: "I've been at risk all my life."

Neave was an attorney and served as an artillery officer in World War II. He was captured when the Germans overran France in 1940. After attempting several escapes, he was sent to Colditz Castle, where prominent prisoners and persistent escapers were locked up. He finally escaped from Colditz, one of the handful of Allied prisoners to do so, and got back to England.

He was a junior prosecutor with the British legal mission at the Nuremberg war trials in 1946 and was elected to the House of Commons in 1953.

Mrs. Thatcher canceled a scheduled Friday night television and radio broadcast to the nation that would have kicked off the Conservatives' election campaign. In a statement she described her close associate as "one of freedom's warriors — courageous, staunch, true. He lived for his beliefs and now he has died for them."

Britain's outgoing prime minister, James Callaghan, said he was "shocked and appalled" by Neave's "cowardly murder."

In June 1974, a 20-pound gelignite bomb exploded in a hall of the 800-year-old Parliament building, the Palace of Westminister, wounding 11 persons and starting a fire that damaged the historic building. The IRA claimed responsibility.

The guerrillas have been blamed for more than 500 bombs in English cities since March 1972. Sixty-four persons have been killed in those bombings and guerrilla shootings in England.

The last MP to be murdered in the precincts of Parliament was Spencer Percevel, who was Conservative prime minister when he was shot in the lobby of the House of Commons May 11, 1812. His assassin, John Bellingham, was convicted of murder and hanged.

Assault Judgement Jail Term Dropped

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A 25-year-old man jailed for 11 days in December for failing to pay court-ordered damages to a woman he sexually assaulted has won a battle to remain out of jail.

Superior Court Judge Robert Satter ruled on Thursday that Joseph Polumbo Jr. of Berlin couldn't pay off the $12,357 debt. Jailing him would be unconstitutional, Satter ruled.

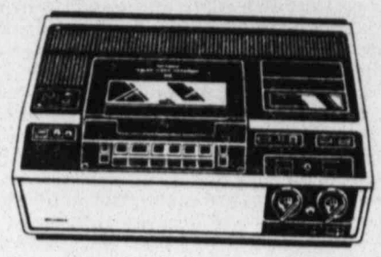

The debt resulted from a civil suit brought by a woman Polumbo was convicted of assaulting. After he failed to pay for more than a year, she sued and won an order jailing him until he paid or proved he could not pay.

Polumbo received a suspended sentence after being convicted of criminal charges in the case in 1975.

Pregnant, Unwed Teen-Agers Have Little Hope For Future

By SANDRA STENCEL
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — "She's 15½ years old, unmarried, from an unstable home, and expecting a baby, not necessarily her first." That is how the typical pregnant teen-ager was described at a symposium sponsored by the Red Cross. At a time when the nation's overall birth rate has dropped to its historic low point, teen-agers now account for nearly one of every five births in the United States.

Instead of being an occasion of great joy, giving birth means something far different for thousands upon thousands of teen-agers every year. It can usher in a dismal future of unemployment, poverty, welfare dependency, emotional stress and health problems for mother and child.

"The girl who has an illegitimate child at the age of 16 suddenly has 90 percent of her life's script written for her," population expert Arthur A. Campbell has said. "Her choices are few and most of them are bad." Campbell's words were written a decade ago, in the Journal of Marriage and Family, but are equally true today.

The extent to which teen-age pregnancy has become a national problem is perceived in the proposed budget for fiscal year 1980 which President Carter sent to Congress in January. It requests $60 million for a new program to provide medical and other supportive services to pregnant teen-agers, adolescent parents and their babies — at a time when the president is calling for restraint in spending for most social-welfare programs.

Joseph A. Califano Jr., Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has described teen-age pregnancy as "one of the most serious and complex social problems facing our nation today." Carter and Califano's concern is shared by most family planning and child welfare organizations, even those that have reservations about the administration's approach to the problem.

Each year about 1 million teen-agers become pregnant, and about 600,000 of them actually give birth. Nearly a quarter-million of these births are to girls between the ages of 15 to 17, while over 12,000 are to girls under 15. Thousands of adolescent pregnancies are terminated by abortion. About one-third of all legal abortions performed in the United States involve teen-agers.

The pregnant teen-ager who does not opt for abortion is far less inclined than her counterpart of a generation ago to get married, and she is far more likely to keep her baby. Nearly two of every five births (39 percent) to adolescents are out of wedlock.

Why in the age of "The Pill" has there been such a sharp rise in teen-age pregnancies? Family planning experts point to two principal factors. First is the obvious increase in sexual activity among young people. Second, they say, is the non-use or improper use of contraceptives by teen-agers. Some girls get pregnant because they want to have a baby. It is surmised that these girls believe a baby will bring them the love and affection

Hypertension Screening Used To Save Lives Of Employees

By DIANNA SINOVIC

NEW YORK (NEA) — Twenty-three million Americans have hypertension. Half of these people work, and are thus the targets of new programs to screen and treat the disease on the job, at little or no cost to the patient.

High blood pressure, or hypertension, is a silent killer, yet most hypertensives are uncontrolled. Either they don't realize they have the disease, or long-term treatment seems too "inconvenient."

But with the work-site program, the patient can easily get check-ups and treatment, often on the job site. The employer gets healthier workers; recent government figures list industry losses to cardiovascular disease, the consequence of high blood pressure, at $16 billion annually.

One current program involves screening and treating employees at New York's State Department of Mental Health. Dr. Leslie Baer, of the Hypertensive Control Program at Columbia University School of Surgeons and Physicians, directs the program.

"What's important about the work site in treating hypertensives is that the majority of the people we treat are outside the health care system," he says. "They're outside the system until seriously ill, when the costs are much higher.

"By screening and treating people as early as possible, they can avoid major medical expenses later on."

The average cost for stroke victim care, from onset of the stroke to discharge from the hospital, ranged from $13,000 to nearly $20,000 — and that's just the hospital bill, according to a recent study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Baer's program is based on the assumption that most hypertensives don't realize they have the disease.

Of the nearly 7,000 employees screend through Dr. Baer's program so far, 27 percent or about 1,800 were borderline or higher hypertensives. Only a small fraction of those were already under treatment.

"At our sites now, we have more than 200 under treatment. The majority of those identified as hypertensive now have normal or near normal blood pressure readings.

"We've encountered some very sick people through screening," he says. "Some are very young, and some very high blood pressure combined with other health problems. Yet they were unaware of their problems."

During the work day, employees visit screening nurse Yvonne Parchment, who records their blood pressures. Those with borderline or higher readings are sent a letter with these findings, that recommends they see either the program's doctor or a private phyician. The letters are personally signed by Dr. Baer — "to help impress the seriousness of the findings," he says.

Mrs. Parchment does a follow-up on each employee to see if treatment is continuing and whether blood pressure returns to normal.

Treatment, which demands a life-long regimen of medication or diet, is the chief stumbling block in controlling the disease, according to Dr. Baer. There is no charge to the employee for consultation with the doctor, through the work site program, but medication is paid for by the patient.

Funded through the State Health Department and Columbia University, Dr. Baer's work will be used to develop a model program for other work sites.

"We've picked up a cross section of the work force in the program, from high ranking executives to the dock workers, for example," he says, "which proves that hypertension can strike anyone regardless of background or education."

Work-site programs depend on large numbers of employees to work efficiently. This means either a large work force — a government agency, for example — or large union with a central office.

Programs that screen for, but don't treat, the disease aren't enough, Dr. Baer say. "You have to motivate people to take the treatment.

"We're still improving detection and trying new methods of motivating people," he says. "Even now, with a physician conveniently available, we have employees who miss appointments. We try to follow up why they missed, because the next time we see them they may be stroke or heart attack victims."

Four Miss Cinderella Shows Slated Tonight

Local radio personality Steve Sever will serve as master of ceremonies for the South Plains Cinderella Girl Pageant set for 7 p.m. today in the Coronado High School Auditorium.

Sever, 25, has been in broadcasting nine years. He is a disc jockey and program director at KLLL radio station.

Contestants will be judged tonight by a panel of three judges in the four Cinderella age categories: Cinderella Tot, ages 3 to 6; Miniature Miss, 7 to 9; Cinderella Miss, 10 to 12; and Cinderella Teen, 13 to 17.

Judges will select the winners in each age group on the basis of close-up appraisal, sportswear and party dress modeling and talent presentations. Cinderella Tots do not compete in the talent category.

'Better Half' Cartoonist Dies

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Ruth Stanford Ireland, known as Ruth Barnes when she helped create the syndicated cartoon strip, "The Better Half," has died at home at the age of 61.

Her death Thurday was apparently due to a heart attack.

She and her first husband, the late Bob Barnes, created the strip which currently appears in newspapers throughout the world, including The Avalanche-Journal.

She was still writing the strip at the time of her death. Another artist was doing the drawing.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My grandchildren are eight and thirteen years of age. They live out of the state. They never write to me to tell me how they are and what they are doing. When I ask their mother what they would like for a birthday or Christmas, I get a list — not so much as a "Hello" or "How are you?"

I love these children and don't want to write them off. But, I'm sorry to say the only connection I seem to have with them is at gift-giving time. Needless to say, they never send me anything. Actually, all I want is an occasional letter.

I simply cannot understand this kind of selfishness. Please tell me how to deal with this hurtful problem. — Ignored Grandmother

Dear Granny: The children are not to blame. This is the way they were brought up.

If you lived closer, you might be able to establish some sort of relationship. Living out of the state makes it difficult. Do your best when you are together and perhaps when they are older you can become a part of their lives. I hope so, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to "Nothing Ahead, Plenty Behind" was the best ever. I, too, spent 24 years in a shell of fat, seeking a magic cure and eating myself sick, then crying because I'd done it again. One day I "saw myself" when I opened a door and faced a full-length mirror unprepared. I joined Weight Watchers where I learned I was not abnormal, crazy or ALONE.

The first and most important step is to realize there is only one person in the world to whom your weight and size really matter and that is YOU! If you are unhappy because of it — YOU are the only one who can do something about the problem. After losing 78 pounds and enjoying three years of normal weight and three years of experience as a Weight Watcher lecturer, I can honestly say I've never seen a person who could not lose weight on a sensible, controlled food program. Please tell your readers not to be ashamed to admit to THEMSELVES that they need help. There are weight-control groups everywhere and the group therapy is an important aspect of losing the excess pounds. But most important is to begin caring enough to help yourself. Believe me, it's worth it! At age 40 I am a happy woman and no longer hiding under the bed eating peanuts! — M.L.G., Omaha

Dear Omaha: Thanks for letting us know how it is with someone who has made it. Other excellent self-help groups for weight loss are The Diet Work Shop, Overeaters Anonymous and Tops. Look in your phone book if you're interested.

Dear Ann: I have an aunt who is very nosy. She has always irritated me by asking none-of-your business type questions. The woman thrives on gossip and loves to be in the know.

I've been married less than a year and every time I see this aunt, she greets me with, "Are you pregnant yet?" I learn just last month that I am pregnant, but we don't want to announce it for at least another two months — or as long as I can keep it a secret.

I dread seeing my aunt because I know she'll ask me the question — as always — and I am a lousy liar. Any suggestions on how to answer? — Drawstring Dolly

Dear Dolly: Tell your nosy aunt that when you are ready to make the announcement, she will be among the first to know. You will have told her no lie and this response is operative for as long as you want to use it.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I don't know if you have advised any grandmothers lately, but you have one waiting now. I am 51 and have not had a period in a little over two years. I started menopause at 45. My period shortened. Then I missed months, and now nothing. My husband insists I've hit the safety zone, but this grandma isn't convinced. Is there a way to tell? I have heard about estrogen tests. Are they 100 percent accurate? This nervous grandma only wants the pitter-patter of little feet that belong to grandchildren, not grandpa's overconfidence. — Grandma.

You must be a new reader. Lots of young grandmas ask me this question, although not all in your charming style. Both you and grandpa can read the following to decide if you have reached your "safety zone."

If you have not had a period for one year and are past 50 (you qualify on both points) you are considered safe. There are a variety of tests available to prove this, but as you have guessed, none of them is 100 percent infallible. By one year after menopause begins, ovarian hormone levels fall by 80 percent, but other hormones (such as follicle stimulating hormones and gonadotropins) rise. Tests for these hormones are rather expensive and can never be 100 percent reassuring.

The old rule of no ovulation for a year after age 50 is a pretty good one. Until then some form of contraceptive should be used. After age 51, women should continue contraceptives if they continue to menstruate.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband had a stroke caused by a blood clot. He has made wonderful physical progress, but we are still battling with the emotional stress. Do have anything on this problem? None of our doctors warned us of this traumatic experience, although they were excellent with the physical aspects. — Mrs. D.B.

Contact someone at a local rehabilitation facility. You will most likely find one associated with a large hospital. There has been much written on this important aspect of stroke rehabilitation. If you can't find anything you might find some pertinent pages on the subject in my booklet, "Stroke — Hope and Help," which you can get by sending 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.See the section beginning on page 8.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Does one have to go to one's family doctor in order to get a referral to a plastic surgeon? I want to have plastic surgery on my nose, which has bothered me (mentally) for years. — H.D.

No law says you have to. It is not a bad idea, however. Plastic surgery takes great skill, and your own doctor would recommend a surgeon whose work he values. This would be important for your ease of mind. Your general health status should be assessed by your doctor before any surgery.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was told once that older people who live in Florida the year round cannot abide winters up north anymore because their blood has become thinned out. True or false? — M.D.

False and pretty silly. The reason people have trouble adjusting to northern winters is because it is just plain cold. Nothing to do with blood thinness or thickness. The idea persists, though.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have the late Dr. Thosteson's book, "The Everyday Medical Handbook." Did he have any other hardcovers? Also is there a list of his small booklets? — L.F.

For L.F. and others who've asked:

Dr. Thosteson's last hardcover, completed before his death was "Every Woman's Medical Guide." You can get a complete listing of his (and my) booklets by writing me in care of this column and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Our practice of continuing to update the little booklets will be continued by me as circumstances dictate.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

South was quite happy with the dummy as he put the ace of diamonds on West's queen. He had 11 sure tricks and could get his 12th with a successful finesse for either the queen of hearts or king of spades. With both finesses working, he would make seven. With both losing, he could complain about bad luck. Then South found a way to be sure of six even with both finesses wrong.

At trick two he ruffed a diamond with a high trump. Then he led a trump to dummy and ruffed another diamond. When West followed it became apparent that West's queen of diamonds lead had been from king-queen. No one leads the queen from queen-x-x.

Now South drew the last trump and played three rounds of hearts to ruff the last one in dummy. Then he led dummy's jack of diamonds and discarded his five of spades. West was in with the king.

He had his choice of losing leads. A spade lead would be up to South's ace-queen. A heart lead would allow a ruff in dummy and a discard of the queen of spades.

Hints from Heloise

HI GALS AND GUYS:

I am writing about one of my favorite subjects today — cleanliness in the home. It's all out war against household pests.

The easiest way to get rid of them is — don't get them in the first place, but this is next to impossible. You bring them in with vegetables and groceries. Sometimes they wander in unassisted.

Spilled foods, crumbs, open packages or open garbage containers are an invitation to "dinner." Use a soapy sponge and clean all surfaces where food is spilled or prepared. Sweep and mop your floors regularly or, if you are lucky enough to have a carpeted kitchen, vacuum it after each meal, or at least once a day.

Since the kitchen or dining room may not be the only place where food is served, food wipe-ups may also involve a family room or even a bedroom.

Wash dishes, pots and pans, etc. after each meal. Dispose of the garbage each day and make sure the containers are clean and odor free.

Of course your kitchen isn't the only place where pests love to hide out (sometimes they don't hide — they come out at the wrong time — when one of your eagle-eyed friends is there).

Clean your mattress and springs regularly as well as all upholstered furniture.

As you can see, I've only hit the high points but every little bit helps.

Hang in there — with lots of effort and very little spare time left, you'll make it! — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

I have read your column for years and have never noticed this hint before.

I find eggs stick in the egg container in the refrigerator. I came up with the idea of spraying the egg rack or containers with vegetable spray.

It works great! — Judson Burnett

Sounds good! There is nothing worse than trying to dig out an egg that has stuck to a tray. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I have learned so many helpful things from you and your readers — now I have something to share that will be (I hope) helpful to you.

For years I have had hummingbird feeders around my home and, for just as many years, I've been plagued with ants crawling into, and plugging up, the feeders.

Finally (I'm in my 80s now), I've found a solution!

Spreading a narrow, but thick, ring of petroleum jelly around the string or the stand holding up the feeder (no need to put it on the feeder itself) stops the ants in their tracks. Happy bird-watching! — Elizabeth Burmeister

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently my husband broke his leg. When it was set the doctor put a walking cast on. The cast was so big I had to take the seam out of his jeans, all the way to his thigh. Instead of pinning it together with safety pins, I sewed in self-gripping nylon tapes.

This can be bought by the inch, foot, or yard at any fabric shop.

With his jeans fastened in this fashion, he had no more cold drafts on his leg.

When his cast comes off the self-gripping fastener will also come out and I'll just sew the seam back in. — Joyce Oehlers

Service Sorority Hosts Meeting

The district meeting of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, service sorority, will be held in Lubbock tomorrow.

More than one hundred women from the Lubbock area are expected to attend the meetings at the Party House of Sentry Apartments. Also attending will be Julia Hallford of Dallas, state president of the organization, who will be one of the speakers for the all-day meeting.

The meeting also will include workshops on member orientation and involvement in the state and national projects of the sorority. Anna Helmstetler of Lubbock, past state preisident, will lead one of the workshops.

St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital is the national project of the sorority which raised more than one million dollars last year for this cause. The state project is support of the March of Dimes. On a local level, members raised money to buy a hearing aid for the county deaf program.

DEADLINES

Pizza Gaining In Popularity As Favorite 'Fast' Food

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — Thick crust or thin, with or without anchovies, pizza is gaining as a staple of the American diet.

Americans ate a mere $700 million worth of pizza at restaurant chains in 1974 but spent $1.6 billion on the dish last year. And pizza's popularity is contributing to a greater demand for its ingredients, says an Agriculture Department economist.

Mushroom consumption has doubled in 10 years, and the tomato — used in both paste and sauce for pizza — has become the nation's top processed vegetable crop.

Burgers Still Bigger

Not that pizza is about to knock off hamburgers as the nation's number one "fast" food. Last year Americans spent a whopping $11 billion at hamburger restaurant chains. But pizza, trend watchers say, has more room to expand.

"There's no doubt pizza's becoming more popular," said Robin Ashton, senior editor of Institutions, a food industry publication. "You can eat only so many hamburgers, hot dogs, and chicken."

Teen-agers may have something to do with the boom. A recent Gallup poll found "Italian foods," including pizza, lasagna, and spaghetti, to be their favorites. The ever-popular hamburger ranked only third, behind steak.

Ashton thinks pizza is riding the wave of popularity shared by many ethnic specialties, including Mexican food. "People are more adventurous eaters than they used to be," he said.

Pizza aficionados sem to be divided into camps — thin crust lovers and thick crust lovers. Some are loyal to anothr variety — deep dish or Chicago-style pizza. In Milwaukee, pizza is often served cut up in little pieces, and in Pennsylvania, the sauce is put on top of the cheese.

As for toppings, hamburger and pepperoni appear most popular, followed by mushrooms and olives, says William Crawley of Pizza Hut, the country's largest pizzeria chain. Some people even relish a sprinkling of anchovies. "I don't care for them myself," Crawley confessed. "You give me an anchovy and I'll give it right back to you."

The restaurant chain is now embarking on a campaign to remove pizza's junk food stigma. "We think pizza is more nutritious than any food you can buy at a chain restaurant," Crawley said.

Plenty of Calories

Is the average slice of pizza more nutritious than, say, the average hamburger? No, says Karen Lechowich, a dietitian with the American Dietetic Association. If the hamburger has lettuce and tomato, they are about equal.

Although pizza does have some valuable nutrients, its most notable element is fat. Besides, an average-size slice with sausage topping has 234 calories, and, as Miss Lechowich pointed out, most pizza devotees don't stop at one piece.

Pizza, the Italian word for pie, first sprang up in Naples, but much of the pizza served there these days is eaten by tourists. True Italian pizza is a bit different from its American cousin.

Italians tend to eschew toppings, sticking to tomato sauce, mozarella, and a little oregano.

"The best is baked without a pan," said an Italian embassy employee in Washington who doesn't find the American version tempting. "When I want pizza, I make it at home."

PEOPLE — PLACES — THINGS

Our Check's Been Mailed

DELLE, Utah (AP) — The Delle Motel and Cafe, closed last week when it was unable to pay its power bill because of the large tab built up by its biggest customer — the federal government — is back in business with lights and heat on.

The Delle couldn't pay Utah Power & Light Co. its $2,000 because the Bureau of Land Management hadn't paid its $5,500 tab.

But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, stepped in and had his staff make a few phone calls. UP&L agreed to resume service with a guarantee to be paid when the government funds are received and the BLM and Bureau of Reclamation said checks would be issued this week, Hatch said.

The BLM lodged work crews from the Young Adult Conservation Corps at the motel, and they ate at the cafe. Unfortunately for the Delle's owners, the BLM takes a while to pay its bills.

Asked if the BLM would still patronize the cafe after the arm-twisting by Hatch, cafe manager Daniele Estrada said she wasn't sure "they'd be invited back."

Korchnoi Trails In Tourney

KORCHNOI

The match may be resumed before the scheduled start of the sixth round on Sunday.

Liberzon appeared in an invincible position Thursday night, and if he continues on to victory, he will join four others in a first place tie with four points each. Korchnoi, with a loss, would remain tied with eight others at 3½, after missing a chance to take sole leadership in the $45,000 tournament that has attracted 73 leading world masters.

Korchnoi is ranked the No. 1 player in the world despite his 6-5 loss to Russia's Anatoly Karpov at a match in the Philippines last year. The tournament founder said Thursday he thinks Russian players who had entered and canceled at the last minute did so to avoid playing Korchnoi.

TV Executive Resigns

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Following on the heels of his boss, the No. 2 executive at 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.'s television division has announced his resignation.

Ron Beckman, executive vice president of the TV division, and president of the sports division, announced Thursday that his resignation will be effective April 15.

Sy Salkowitz, president of the TV division, announced his resignation March 12. Beckman said he had been considered to fill Salkowitz' job but that he had not been "passed over."

Promotional Tour Put Off

TORONTO (AP) — Margaret Trudeau says she will not be making promotional appearances in Canada to plug her book "Beyond Reason" in the immediate future because she does not want to divert attention from the May elections in Canada.

MRS. TRUDEAU

Mrs. Trudeau has been separated from her husband, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, since May 1977.

Mrs. Trudeau's decision not to make personal appearances in Canada was announced in a statement issued by Random House, publisher of her autobiography.

"I have made this decision without pressure from any persons or parties and because of my concern that to do so might divert the attention of the media and electorate from the issues before them.

"'Beyond Reason' is my full story," Mrs. Trudeau said. "I have been honest and candid and I believe it speaks for itself."

D.V. Bradstreet, Random House president, said Mrs. Trudeau will probably be making personal appearances in the United States.

DJ's Marathon Goes On

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — After more than 300 hours on the air, Bill Tinsley, a 20-year-old local disc jockey, was still "going strong" Friday afternoon.

"I guess I'll keep going until they carry me out of here on a stretcher," Tinsley, at the microphone for WATN since March 17, said several days ago. "I don't know when I'll quit."

Tinsley claimed the world record for continuous broadcasting on Tuesday after being on the air for 240 hours and 13 minutes, breaking the mark set last year by John Heller of WDJM in Marquette, Mich.

Tinsley is allowed five minutes an hour as a rest period.

It Just Fell That Way

ROCKY RIVER, Ohio (AP) — Patricia Luke, 31, told the judge that all she had done was toss rock salt in the air over Irving E. Richards' front lawn, and she had no intention of spelling an obscene word.

"You mean to tell me that you threw rock salt across the lawn, and it came down in a pattern of a word?" Rocky River Municipal Judge Milton D. Holmes asked incredulously.

Richards testified that the four-letter word was burned in his lawn in 4-foot high letters, and he had little success in eradicating the obscenity.

Holmes fined Mrs. Luke, of Cleveland Heights, $75 and gave her a suspended 30-day jail sentence. She had told the judge she was angered because Richards refused to answer the door when she went to his house March 10.

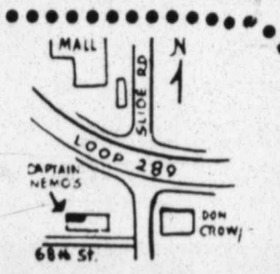

Striking Worker Killed By Delivery Vehicle

COON RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — A striking employee of Plastics, Inc., was killed by a large delivery truck in Coon Rapids as he manned an informational picket line, the company said.

A union official identified the dead man as Donald Pilla, 21, St. Paul. He said a truck delivering pallets to the company's Coon Rapids plant drove over Pilla about 2:15 p.m. Thursday.

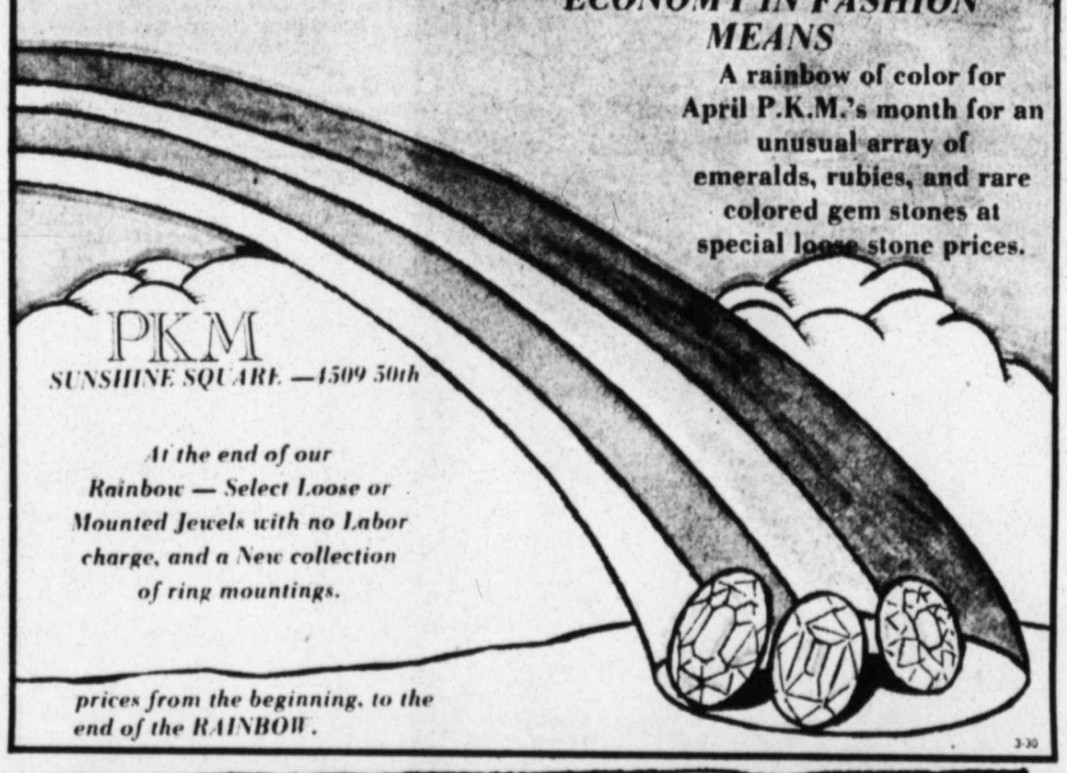

About 200 production and maintenance workers have been on strike against Plastics, Inc., since March 7 over a contract wage reopener.

Gold Sales In United States Promote South African Economy

By EARL OFARI
(C)1979, Pacific News Service

"There never was a time when gold wasn't valuable," the ads from the Gold Information Center say. "Turn some of your labor into gold."

Sound interesting? More and more Americans think so, as inflation and the declining value of the dollar push gold prices through the roof. Just don't call the Gold Information Center if you're interested in buying.

"We don't have a product to sell," manager Leslie Mirrin says, "so we don't want the public contacting us."

But the center's parent organization, the International Gold Company or Intergold, does have a product to sell — the Krugerrand, South Africa's one troy ounce gold coin. Intergold is a New York corporation owned by the South African Chamber of Mines, a quasi-governmental trade association representing 115 corporations and mining companies in South Africa.

Intergold and the Gold Information Center are part of an international campaign to sell the Krugerrand, involving banks, trust companies, depositories, coin wholesalers, government agencies and, finally, thousands of middle-income investors who see gold coins as a hedge against inflation.

Because the sale of Krugerrands currently amounts to nearly 20 percent of South Africa's total foreign exchange earnings, the coins have been the focus of protest campaigns opposing the South African apartheid system. But protests or not, sales of the Kruggerand since 1970 have approached 20 million coins, each currently valued at $220, the market price of an ounce of gold.

The United States has now been targeted by Intergold and the South African gold producers as the major market area for the coin. Rather than showing signs of diminishing, the public campaign to sell the Krugerrand is moving ahead full throttle.

"Gold is gold is gold," a coin broker for a major West Coast coin agency says. "There are no politics involved in our sales," he says, "only business."

But groups such as the New York-based Committee on Africa see things differently. "There is no more direct way to invest in the oppression of apartheid than to invest in the Krugerrand," according to Paul Irish, associate director of the committee. "The profits go directly to the South African government for the purchase of arms, oil and other equipment that maintains the apartheid system."

The committee has won some notable victories in its campaign against the Krugerrand, even though sales have dramatically increased. In November 1977 the major TV networks announced that their affiliates would no longer broadcast ads for the Kruggerand, following negotiations with the Committee, the National Council of Churches and the National Conference of Black Lawyers.

And in January 1978, Merrill Lynch, the big brokerage firm, announced that it would stop all sales of the coin through its branch offices.

However, says Irish, "Small investors are now getting into the market who have little concern for the issues involved, or are ignorant of them.

"We've achieved victories and created a national awareness of what the Krugerrand represents," he says. "But in a sense we've been winning a battle and losing the war, as long as the present economic conditions prevail."

The power behind the sales campaign is the Johannesburg-based South African Chamber of Mines. The Chamber markets the coins internationally through Intergold, and also administers the mines which control nearly all of South Africa's gold production.

As part of its mine administration, the Chamber also recruits workers, 90 percent of whom are black. Their monthly wage of $115 is about one-fourth that of white workers ($563). This gives the mining industry the dubious distinction of having the largest income gap between the two races of any industry in South Africa.

'Gold is gold is gold,' a coin broker for a major West Coast coin agency says. 'There are no politics involved in our sales; only business.'

In the face of threatened sanctions and protest actions over apartheid, Intergold prefers to keep a low profile. Much of its promotion work is assigned to the Gold Information Center.

The New York firm of Rubenstein, Wolfson & Co. also provides public relations assistance to Intergold. Although an executive with the company, Jerry Gast, refused to provide any financial details of planned expenditures, he did say that he expected a spring sales campaign to be successful and that Kruggerand sales would continue to be brisk.

The sales campaign, according to Mirrin, receives boosts from coin dealers around the country who are encouraged to take out separate ads for the Krugerrand. The money spent has certainly paid off for South Africa.

In August 1978, Chamber of Mines report listed sales that month at 541,120 coins, a 98 percent rise from sales of August 1977. The report stated that "there is a strong likelihood of 1975's record total of 4.8 million coins being exceeded."

For Intergold this is only the beginning. While the corporation would not supply any figures on projected sales for 1979, a Florida coin wholesaler estimated next year's figures at 10 to 12 million coins.

The Africa Fund, which monitors corporate investments in South Africa, expects about one-third of these sales will be to individual, rather than institutional investors.

In practical terms, the price of gold is on the rise (around $220) with some experts expecting an increase to $300 an ounce by year's end. Currently, this amounts to more than a half-billion dollars in foreign exchange earnings for the South African government from the sale of Krugerrands alone.

The enormity of the profits has apparently dictated a shift in Pretoria's gold marketing strategy. Until the promotion campaign for the Krugerrand began, gold bullion was primarily sold in bricks or ingots, and mainly bought by institutions. The coin, with the same high quality and value but at an affordable price, presents new opportunities to tap the small investor market.

Beyond the intrinsic value, the coins also represent a tax bargain. As coins they do not have to be registered with either the IRS or the Treasury Department's assay offices in San Francisco or New York. The result: no federal or state taxes. Capital gains taxes on sales are also easy to avoid. If an unregistered coin were bought for $150 and sold for $250, the seller would be in a position to pocket a neat $100 without anyone being the wiser.

While over-the-counter sales of Krugerrands are certainly lucrative, some investment consulting firms are attempting to open an even bigger area for sales. An investment report recently circulated by the American Coin Exchange recommended considering the Krugerrand among the assets to be included in employee profit-sharing plans of businesses. One pension consulting firm in Los Angeles will structure a company profit-sharing plan with about 15 percent of employees funds earmarked for Krugerrand investment. "We set up about one or two a day," a spokesman for the company said. "We get calls coming in from all over the country." Investment Rareties, a Minneapolis investment firm, will even establish gold Keough plans, or individual retirement accounts.

Despite the obvious advantages offered by the Krugerrand market, a growing number of American investors prefer to go straight to the source — gold mines themselves. At present, about 40 percent of South African gold stocks are held by Americans at a market value of $4 billion.

The gold shares are called "kaffirs," a negative term South African whites call Negroes. For those willing to take the risk on "kaffir" buying, the rewards can be substantial. This year the yield on some of the mine shares was more than 20 percent.

Dividend checks are mailed directly to the investor and the 15 percent South African withholding tax can be claimed as a U.S. tax credit against income. Like the Krugerrand, the gold shares are viewed as a hedge against the shaky dollar. And since they are bought exclusively through funds and investment companies, they shield the investor from public disclosure.

With so much success with the Krugerrand and gold sales, what is the next step for Intergold? An executive with the corporation says that more of its marketing and advertising dollars will go toward the promotion of gold jewelry. Television ads are already appearing in some parts of the country.

The best bet is that those sparkling 14K bracelets and chains will contain South African gold. "You have to figure," Leslie Mirrin of the Gold Information Center says, "that the percentage of gold in the jewelry is about the same (90 percent) that South African produces for the free world market."

Watermelons found along the Tigris River have been known to reach weights of as much as 275 pounds.

Yemens Share Language, Religion, Centuries-Old Disputes

By BARBARA S. MOFFETT
National Geographic Society

WASHINGTON — The Yemens, North and South, have long been among the world's most isolated countries — by geographic chance and cultural choice.

Tucked under Saudi Arabia on the southwest corner of the Arabian Peninsula, the Yemens share a common religion, Islam, and a common tongue, Arabic, but they have never been unified under a single ruler. Some of the disputes between them trace back centuries.

Now those disputes, and the Yemens themselves, have attracted attention because of the strategic location of the nations, commanding the southern strait into the Red Sea and the shipping lane to the Suez Canal. Events there could influence the entire oil-rich peninsula.

The last two decades have been marked by internal strife in both countries, and by conflict between them. An attempt to unify the Yemens in 1972 failed. Since then old differences have widened: South Yemen, or the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen, has taken a strong pro-Soviet turn while North Yemen, or the Yemen Arab Republic, has looked increasingly to Saudi Arabia and the West.

Events reached a flash point last June when the prime minister of North Yemen, Col. Ahmed al-Ghashmi, was killed by the explosion of a bomb carried in a briefcase by a South Yemeni ostensibly on a peace mission. Soon after, a coup disposed of South Yemen's leader, Salim Robava Ali, who was murdered.

Both North and South Yemen in recent years adopted "republican" forms of government. North Yemen in 1962 threw off the last of a series of monarchs who had ruled it since the ninth century. South Yemen, formerly the British Crown Colony of Aden, declared itself independent in 1967.

Each country calls itself a republic, but the governments are far from democratic. South Yemen is better described as an authoritarian, almost totalitarian state, guided since 1969 by the radical National Liberation Front.

In North Yemen, military officers dominate government and politics. The government suffers from age-old divisiveness caused by deep mistrust between the country's two Islamic groups, the Zaydi community of the Shia sect and the Shafai community of the Sunni sect.

The landscape of North Yemen is dramatic — and surprising to those who think of the Arabian Peninsula as a sandy waste. Along the Red Sea coast stretches the Tihama, a hot, humid desert where the Semitic population of the rest of the country is augmented by people of Negroid descent.

East of this coastal plain are mountains that average 9,000 feet in elevation. They taper off into interior plateaus and valleys that are green in the spring and summer with cotton and tobacco fields.

The deep ravines and sharp, steep ridges of the mountains make it difficult to reach the interior, and have provided a formidable barrier to outsiders throughout the centuries.

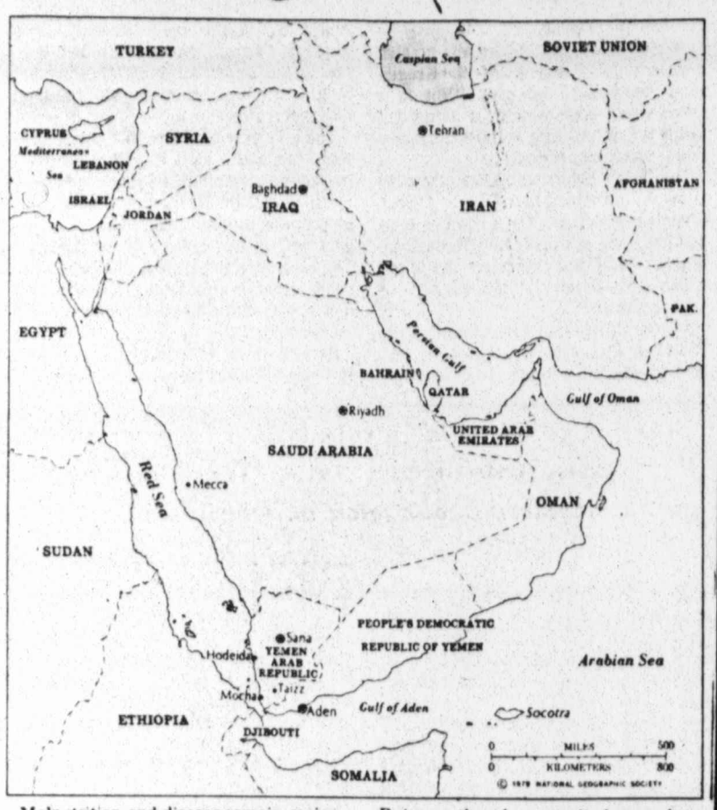

More than 6 million people occupy the country, a full third of the total population of the entire Arabian Peninsula. Most of the people are scattered in villages and towns, working as farmers and sharecroppers.

The climate of some interior regions is considered the best in southern Arabia. The average year-round temperature in Sana, the capital, is 63 F.

The area attracted settlers in ancient times when it was a land of prosperity. Three thousand years ago it was called "Arabia Felix" — happy Arabia — because of its fertility. Caravans organized by the Kingdom of Saba, once ruled by the biblical Queen of Sheba, moved frankincense and myrrh northward to the Mediterranean as well as goods from India and the Horn of Africa.

By the fourth century A.D. the commercial basis of the region declined. Even the once-booming frankincense market evaporated when the Roman Empire banned cremations and the religious rituals that consumed the substance.

Today, economic life is primitive by world standards. At the time of its independence 17 years ago, North Yemen had no formal government or public administration, no school system, no local currency or banking system, and almost no electricity or health and sewage facilities. Since then some progress has been made, although literacy, for example, is only 13 percent.

Malnutrition and disease remain major problems, reducing life expectancy to only 45 years. Many families subsist on bread. Vegetables are eaten, but the Yemeni method of boiling them for a long time robs them of much of their vitamin content.

The economy has had a shot in the arm from oil — not North Yemen's but Saudi Arabia's. As many as 1 million North Yemeni citizens work in Saudi oilfields, sending back more than $1 billion a year in remittances.

But even though per capita income has risen to about $390, North Yemen is still one of the world's poorest nations. And the new relative prosperity has brought problems: Inflation is averaging 35 percent.

Millions of dollars in aid have flowed into North Yemen over the years from a variety of countries, including the United States and Saudi Arabia. As of December 1978 the World Bank had lent North Yemen $148 million for development.

Modern industry is in its infancy. Textiles, using locally grown cotton, are the leading industry. There is no oil, and the only commerical mineral being exploited is salt, about 100,00 tons produced annually from a deposit at al-Salif.

Until the 18th century North Yemen was the source of nearly all the world's coffee. Mocha, the Yemeni coffee, derives its name from the country's once-prosperous coffee port, now almost a ghost town. Hodeida, north of Mocha, has taken over as the country's chief port.

Land that once yielded coffee now is likely to produce qat, a shrub whose leaves release a stimulant when chewed. Qat consumption — which takes place at a daily communal "chew" that lasts for hours — has increased so that now the average Yemeni spends 30 percent of his income on it.

As a merchant in Sana put it, "A man can go a long time without food or water, but not one day without his qat."

The basic unit of North Yemeni society is the extended family rather than the individual. A family's status is partly based on economic worth, and membership, established at birth, is essentially permanent.

Social standing is indicated by status symbols such as the curved dagger worn by men. Members of the highest group, for instance, wear the dagger on the right side of the belt.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is ideal for you to make plans and adopt a new and more satisfactory means by which you handle your business and financial affairs. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get on the good side of those you depend upon monetarily. Study an investment in which you could gain a good profit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day for expanding in personal matters and with little disappointment. Avoid one who has ulterior motives.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A respected higher-up will now give you the boost you need for getting ahead. Show that you have common sense.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get in touch with good friends who can show you how to gain a cherished longing easily. Avoid arguments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Doing whatever will add prestige and be of help to others is wise today. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make those changes that will help you get ahead faster. Follow your intuition in whatever you do since it is accurate now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find more modern and practical ways of handling business and home affairs and get better results in the days ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An opinionated partner is more willing to cooperate now, so come to a fine agreement. Try to be less critical of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good time to attend to weekend chores. Study a new plan whereby you could advance more quickly in your career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Getting busy at improving conditions at home is wise in the morning. A new project has good propspects so study it well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Become more efficient at routine tasks in the morning so you'll have more time for recreation later. Sidestep a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will easily understand anything of a financial nature, so be sure to give a fine education and permit to go into business early in life. Teach to smile more. Good spiritual and ethical training is a must here.

Log Cabins Making Comeback On American Building Scene

By ROBERT C. RADCLIFFE
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — With house-building weather getting under way, more Americans than ever — or at least since pioneer days — are looking forward to a new life in a log cabin, if not year-round at least on weekends and vacations.

Most will be doing their own building, families taking advantage of the 400 or so big and little companies selling cabins in kits. Usually everything is delivered as a load of pre-cut logs, trucked to the chosen site up in the mountains, down by the lake, or, sometimes, in deepest suburbia.

There will be some 50,000 log cabins going up this year, the National Geographic Society reports, compared with about 1,300,000 conventionally built single-family houses. That will be a record in what's seen as a revived national love affair with the log cabin.

One reason for loving logs is that they are cheaper to build with than two-by-fours, siding, insulation, and dry wall or paneling, according to the Log House Council of the National Association of Home Manufacturers.

Costs, they admit, also depend on whether the do-it-yourselfer swings a hot hammer of merely a sore arm. Prices of kits range from about $1,500 to $25,000 plus. Expertise and aptitude as well as family cooperation are needed to grappel with the many designs for what the trade actually prefers to call log houses.

Today's "cabins" frequently are big and sprawling, gentled by two bathrooms, air conditioning, storm windows, and non-smoking fireplaces. But you can still buy a one-room, pre-cut cabin, humble and honest as the birthplace that launched Abe Lincoln toward the presidency.

Besides Abe, Presidents Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, James Buchanan, and James Garfield are said to have started life in a log cabin. Such humble beginnings became a sure-fire vote-getter when William Henry Harrison turned around an intended political slur and campaigned winningly as a straightforward man of the people, a "log cabin and hard cider" candidate.

Log cabins are not native Americans. The first colonists lived in huts copied from Indians' dwellings or in simple houses built half-timbered style as in England.

Swedes supposedly brought log cabin building to the New World first, settling in Delaware in 1638. Building with logs really caught on after Germans reintroduced the idea when they immigrated to Pennsylvania in the early 1700s.

In a day when an adventurous squirrel could have traveled from the Carolina coast to northern Minnesota without touching the ground, logs were ideal building materials. A reasonably handy farmer armed only with a broadax could build a four-walled house in a summer.

Thousands of these houses, some 200-plus years old, survive east of the Appalachians, their squared logs often still tightly dovetailed together at the corners. Today's new houses are made of peeled round logs usually chinked together airtight with a long spline.

Log construction fans brag about cozy warmth in winter, swearing that the logs by themselves are not only good insulation from cold, but hold room heat well, releasing it slowly when stove, fireplace, or furnace cools.

Mandel Fights Rehearing Bid

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dissatisfaction with a court ruling is not sufficient reason to grant a re-hearing in the case of former Gov. Marvin Mandel and his co-defendants, say attorneys for Mandel.

Two of the three judges of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., overturned mail fraud and racketeering convictions against Mandel and his co-defendants.

Federal prosecutors are seeking a rehearing before the full court in an attempt to persuade the court to reinstate the 1977 convictions.

In a 36-page document filed Thursday, defense attorney Arnold M. Weiner argued that a rehearing before the full court is an unusual measure intended only for special situations.

In its request for a rehearing, the U.S. attorney's office argued that the existing opinion creates legal confusion because it contradicts prior decisions.

The defense said, however, "The court's opinion reflects a careful and painstaking review of the voluminous record; each of the court's statements is supported by the evidence; and, to the extent that it voices disagreement, the government is in error.

"Furthermore, the government's claims of conflict with other decisions are not only incorrect, but, even on their face, are greatly exaggerated," the defense argued.

The convictions were overturned Jan. 11 when two of the three appeals court judges ruled that the trial judge had made several errors in admitting evidence and testimony and in his instructions to the jury.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAR. 31, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 12, 23, 35, 46, 58, 69 ..... Do less, take it easy
Highs: 13-22, 36-45, 59-68 ..... Physically great day
Lows: 1-11, 24-34, 47-57, 70-75 ..... Low energy cycle day

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 7, 21, 35, 49, 63, 77 ..... Easily hurt today
Highs: 1-6, 22-34, 50-62, 78-85 ..... Temperment high
Lows: 8-20, 36-48, 64-76 ..... Depression prevails

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 16, 33, 49, 66, 82 ..... Hair brained idea likely
Highs: 1-15, 34-48, 67-81 ..... Decisive day
Lows: 17-32, 50-65, 83-95 ..... Take notes or you forget

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Another Appeal Made On Bhutto's Behalf

LONDON (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Donald Coggan, appealed to Pakistan on Friday to spare the life of former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

In a telegram to Pakistani leader Gen. Zia Ul-Haq, Coggan, spiritual head of the Anglican Church, said: "In the interests of compassion and common humanity, and in the name of the God whom we both worship, I plead for the sparing of the life of Mr. Bhutto."

Bhutto is under death sentence on conviction of ordering the killing of a political opponent. He could be executed next week unless spared.

He fought the case unsuccessfully to the Supreme Court and his last remedy lies in mercy from Zia, who ousted him from office.

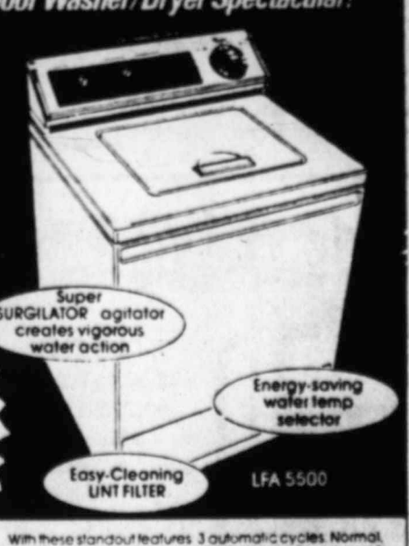

Pope John Paul II has previously appealed to Zia to spare Bhutto. President Carter, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and other world leaders made similar appeals.

Montana Okays New Press Law

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Montana Gov. Thomas L. Judge has signed into law a measure that protects news organizations as well as individual reporters from forced disclosure of information they gather in the course of their work.

The new law, which won overwhelming approval in the Legislature, replaces a statute under which The Associated Press was forced last year to give a tape recording to prosecutors in a murder case.

In that case, District Judge Peter G. Meloy held that Montana's reporter shield law protected individual news reporters but not news organizations.

The revised law, which will go into effect July 1, stems from an April 10, 1978, incident in which two sheriff's officers attempted to search the AP's office here for the tape recording. Their effort was stopped when the AP obtained a court order quashing the search warrant.

But prosecutors later subpoenaed the tape and the AP was forced to give it up after Meloy held that news organizations were not protected by the shield law. The Montana Supreme Court refused to stay execution of Meloy's order.

The recording, which contained no confidential information or information from confidential sources, was of a telephone interview between AP newsman Steve Moore and Clyde Rector, who was accused of slaying a highway patrolman in the small town of Eureka, about 300 miles from Helena.

At the time of the interview, Rector was holed up in a house and allegedly was holding two men hostage. As reported at the time by the AP, Rector admitted shooting the patrolman.

Rector was later tried for murder but was found innocent on the strength of evidence that he may have acted in self-defense.

Garwood's Lawyer Says Facts Will Aid POW

CHICAGO (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, accused of desertion and collaborating with the enemy, will argue that he was shot during his capture and "surrounded by death" during nearly 14 years in Vietnam, his attorney said Friday.

The deaths of fellow prisoners of war will help explain Garwood's actions that led to the charges that he urged American soldiers to quit fighting, attorney Dermot G. Foley said in a telephone interview from his New York office.

Garwood, 32, faces a possible death sentence if convicted of the formal charges pending against him. The Department of the Navy, which includes the Marine Corps, is conducting an investigation.

"One particular (POW) death still overwhelms Bobby," Foley said. "He has enormous difficulty talking about it. He can't deal with it at all to this day. But when the story comes out, it will greatly help explain what he did those 14 years."

Foley said the deaths of fellow POWs, "plus the fact that Bobby received very bad treatment in Vietnam, especially after 1969," are facts that need to be made public.

But Foley said the specifics can't be released without possibly damaging Garwood's ability to defend himself.

Lt. Col. Arthur Brill, the Defense Department spokesman on the Garwood case, said he could not comment on the information released by Foley.

Meanwhile, Foley said Garwood was shot twice and killed two Viet Cong during his capture in September 1969. Foley said Garwood was stripped to his underwear and put on a boat after his capture.

Garwood was then transported through "back country around the Da Nang airport and finally pushed into a building without anyone looking after his wounds. From that point, it's tough to reconstruct the story until we talk more."

The attorney added that Garwood is "under tremendous pressure and in dire need of psychiatric help," but can't receive it because the psychiatrist could be forced to testify at a court martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemey.

A Navy captain attempted on Thursday to question Garwood about other Americans possibly still in Vietnam. "But he regretfully could not answer because of the formal charges hanging over his head," Foley said.

Garwood returned to the United States on Sunday after spending nearly 14 years in Vietnam. The military had classified Garwood as a prisoner of war, but the Marine Corps filed formal charges against him last week and requested a full-scale investigation.

Since his arrival, Garwood has been assigned to the Great Lakes Naval hospital north of Chicago.

SUBSIDY PROGRAM RAPPED

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel learned Friday that a rural housing group has reservations about part of a subsidy program designed to help poor people buy better homes. David Raphael, acting director of Rural America, criticized a law passed last year enabling the Farmers Home Administration to make subsidized loans to low-income rural families. The law provides that a family does not have to spend more than 25 percent of its income for housing financed by the agency, with the government making up the difference. But Congress also specified that borrowers have to repay all or part of the subsidy when they sell or transfer their houses. Raphael said "it seems to us patently unfair to ask low-income people to repay their subsidies when middle- and upper-income people receive millions every year in tax advantages linked to their home ownership."

WHAT'S UP?

What's up in stress?

Everything from a stubbed toe to a clogged drain adds to life's stress. But these are the 10 major contributors and the points assigned each on the Holmes-Rahe scale of life events used to determine susceptibility to stress, according to Good Housekeeping magazine.

Event	Points
Death of spouse	100
Divorce	73
Marital separation	65
Jail term	63
Death of close relative	63
Injury or illness	53
Marriage	50
Fired from work	47
Marital reconciliation	45
Retirement	45

A total of 150 points in a year indicates a person has a 37-percent chance of developing a stress-related physical illness. The probability jumps to 80 percent with a score of 300.

Divorce, Leachman style

Cloris Leachman

Is it true what they say about divorced women? No, says Cloris Leachman, who just recently became one herself, ending her marriage of 25-years to producer George Englund.

"The myth says we die a little each day we are alone without a man," Leachman notes in US magazine. "What a crock! Truth is, most of us feel relief. It's terrific to be alone, if you choose.

"I'm not a hungry or a desperate woman. I'm past needing a body in the house. I can eat alone just fine. And I can sleep alone, too, if I choose to."

Does she or doesn't she? "Sometimes yes and sometimes no," she says. "I go as I always have where my life takes me. If one is discriminating, the sleeping-with-someone is not often."

Is she discriminating? Leachman giggles, "sometimes yes and sometimes no."

What's up on television?

"Supertrain" may come and go, but some television shows run on and on. These are the tube's oldest troupers and the dates they premiered, according to Us magazine:

1. "Meet the Press" (Nov. 20, 1947)
2. "Search for Tomorrow" (Sept. 3, 1951)
3. "Love of Life" (Sept. 9, 1951)
4. "The Today Show" (Jan. 14, 1952)
5. "The Guiding Light" (June 30, 1952)
6. "The Tonight Show" (Sept. 27, 1954)
7. "Walt Disney" (Oct. 27, 1954)

Captain: TV veteran

SKID ROW "Uncle Sam" is the character played by John Carradine in "Americathon," an upcoming United Artists film about the future, when all those things that worry us today happen. A bankrupt United States is forced to hold a 30-day, 24-hour telethon to raise $400 billion to save the country from falling into the hands of a jogging clothes and running shoes tycoon who holds the mortgage on the country.

Davey Lopes is a thief.

What's up in stealing?

There's one time when its legal to steal: when you're playing baseball.

To do so without getting caught in the act, observe these tips offered by Los Angeles Dodger Davey Lopes, often called the greatest base stealer in baseball today, in connection with the Pitch, Hit & Run youth program, sponsored by Burger King.

1. Concentrate and stay alert on the base paths.
2. Outsmart the other team. Run not when they expect you to, but when they don't.
3. Stay on top of the situation. Know the inning, the outs, the batter, the pitcher and so on.
4. Watch your coaches and follow their signals.
5. Know how fast you can run; don't try to outrun the throw when you can't.
6. Be as aggressive on the base paths as you are at bat. That puts the pressure on the other team.
7. Unless trying to avoid a tag, always run in a straight line from base to base.
8. When running the bases on a hit, know where the ball is, who is throwing it and what kind of arm he has.
9. Run inside the bases. You lose precious steps by running outside and circling the bases on a wide turn; that could make the difference between being out or safe.

What's up in shopping?

What happens when Mom turns over the marketing to Dad, Junior or Sis?

Brand switching, that's what. In a majority of cases, they select a brand different from the one normally chosen by the woman of the house.

These are the products experiencing the most changes of brand when other family members do the shopping, according to a new survey by the Cadwell Davis Savage advertising agency:

Beer
Frozen main dishes
Frozen pizzas
Bar soaps
Toothbrushes
Shampoo
Mouthwash
Hand lotion
Frozen vegetables
Soft drinks

At the very bottom of the list was disposable diapers. Apparently that is one area where Mom's opinion is still not challenged.

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac

Apr. 1 — Lon Chaney (1883-1930), the actor, known as "The Man of a Thousand Faces," whose macabre characterizations are the classics of the silent screen. His films include "The Miracle Man," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Phantom of the Opera" and "The Penalty."

Apr. 2 — Buddy Ebsen (1908-), the actor and dancer who made his Broadway debut in 1928. He has starred in films and in theatre, but is probably best known as the star of the TV series, "The Beverly Hillbillies" and "Barnaby Jones."

Apr. 3 — Marlon Brando (1924-), the actor who won an Academy Award as best actor in 1954 for his performance in "On the Waterfront." He won a second Oscar in 1972 for "The Godfather," but refused to accept the award.

Apr. 4 — Dorothea Dix (1802-1887), the social reformer and crusader for humane care of the mentally ill. Through her efforts, more than 100 mental institutions across the nation were founded or improved.

Apr. 5 — Bette Davis (1908-), the actress who won Academy Awards in 1935 for "Dangerous" and 1938 for "Jezebel." Her other films include "Of Human Bondage," "Dark Victory," "Now, Voyager" and "All About Eve."

Apr. 6 Harry Houdini (1874-1926), the magician and master of escape who freed himself from chains, handcuffs, ropes, straight jackets, bank safes, prison cells and sealed chests. He was also noted for his exposure of fraudulent mediums, claiming there was no spiritualistic phenomenon he couldn't duplicate by natural means.

Apr. 7 — Billy Holliday (1915-1959), the most important jazz singer of her time. Her peak years were between 1936 and 1942, when she was associated with saxophonist Lester Young who gave her the nickname "Lady Day." The film "The Lady Sings the Blues," based on her autobiography, introduced her music to a new generation.

Iranian Majority Supports Khomeini Despite Disruptions By Separatists

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Armed separatist tribesmen attacked polling places in scattered areas of Iran Friday in an bid to disrupt a nationwide referendum, but millions who did vote apparently were giving a massive show of support for establishing an Islamic republic, state radio said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties in the violence.

The radio said armed dissidents attacked polling places in three towns in the western Kurdish region. Shooting broke out in the Kurdish capital of Sanandaj and a grenade exploded in one voting station there, it said.

In the northeastern Iranian region populated by the Turkoman ethnic minority, the radio said, Turkoman tribesmen fired at polling stations in at least three towns. A Turkoman sympathizer told a reporter by telephone that dissidents had taken over several polling places in the town of Gonbad-e-Qabous.

As many as 50 persons are believed to have been killed this week in fighting between revolutionary authorities and dissident Turkoman tribesmen in Gonbad-e-Qabous.

A similar rebellion in the Kurdish region earlier this month cost an estimated 200 lives. New unrest was reported Thursday in the autonomy-minded Baluchi region of southeast Iran.

Leaders of these ethnic groups, and of the Arabs of the southwest, had called on their people to boycott the referendum.

Many of them are Sunni Moslems, a minority sect here, and resent rule by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary government because it is dominated by ethnic Persians and Shiite Moslems.

Leftist groups, fearing an Islamic republic will undermine their hopes for Marxist reform of Iranian society, also called for a boycott.

Khomeini and his provisional government said Friday they were sending emissaries to investigate disorders and to try to negotiate settlements in the Baluchi and Turkoman areas.

The state radio reported a heavy turnout on the first day of the two-day referendum, and said most Iranians apparently cast bright green ballot signifying support for Khomeini's call for creation of an Islamic state to replace the ancient monarchy.

In Tehran, trash bins at polling stations were brimming with discarded red "no" ballots. At one polling station, a Moslem priest told a reporter he had observed some 2,000 people vote over three hours and that only "two or three" had voted against an Islamic republic.

Some Iranians said voters were being pressured to vote in favor by the presence of the armed militiamen and by the fact that the ballots were being cast in public view. But no direct harassment of "no" voters was reported.

Complete results of the referendum, which continues Saturday, are not expected to be known for five days.

Voters casiting negative votes could write on the ballots the form of government they preferred. But some Iranians were critical of the basic "either-or" choice offered voters, including Ayatollah Shariatmadari, Iran's second-ranking Shiite Moslem after Khomeini.

Once the results of the referendum are known, a proposed Islamic constitution already drawn up will be published for the first time. It will then be subject to endorsement by an elected constituent assembly.

Hotel Fires Motive Apparently Revenge For Job Refusal

BOSTON (AP) — A slightly built teenager admitted setting a string of fires at two plush hotels because one of them refused to give him back his former job as a busboy, police said Friday.

The fires Thursday morning forced 1,900 hotel guests into the streets, injured 64 people and caused at least $750,000 damage. Four victims remained hospitalized Friday in serious condition.

Julio Valentin Rodrigues, 18, of Boston, stood silently at his arraignment Friday in Boston Municipal Court on two charges of arson. Judge Francis X. Morrissey entered an innocent plea for him. He was held on $200,000 bail. A hearing was scheduled for April 17.

Police said Rodrigues was picked up Thursday night at a Greyhound terminal where he was waiting for a bus to New York.

Police Sgt. John Doris testified the youth said he had used wads of burning paper to ignite draperies and furniture.

Rodrigues had spent the evening drinking, Doris said, and at about 12:30 a.m. he went to the seven-story Copley Plaza Hotel, which had recently refused to give him back his old job after he quit.

"He was upset that when he tried to get his job back, they refused to rehire him," Doris said.

He testified the youth said he first lit the draperies in a first-floor meeting room, then set fire to a sofa in a third-floor hallway.

Different Factors Cause Increase In Teen Pregnancies

their parents have failed to provide. Such hopes usually are unfulfilled.

Janet Forbush, director of the National Alliance of Concerned School-Age Parents, asserts that most unwed teen-age mothers "have the baby and then . . . whammy." The "whammy" turns out to be 2 a.m. feedings instead of Saturday night dates. It may mean dropping out of school to pay the pediatrician's bill. It also may mean conflict between the girl and her parents if she continues to live at home. It is the babies who most often bear the brunt of these frustrations.

For some girls the problems start even before the baby is born. Pregnant teenagers face far greater health risks than women in their 20s — and so do the children born to teen-age mothers. They are two to three times more likely to die in their first year than the others.

Kristin A. Moore of the Urban Institute in Washington estimates that half of the $9.4 billion spent last year on Aid to Families with Dependent Children goes to households where women first became mothers while still in their teens.

Some food for thought about food for grass.

Maybe you've noticed . . .

That to spread bag upon bag of fertilizer on a lawn and still have a lawn that leaves a lot to be desired is frustrating and expensive. You're often left, as they say, holding the bag.

But there's help . . . from a-Perm-o-Green Lawn.

Like people, a good, healthy lawn requires good, healthy eating habits. The proper mixture of water and nutrients must be added to the naturally available supply of light and air.

a-Perm-o-Green's lawn treatment program utilizes a liquid mixture of nutrients, insecticides, fungicides and weed control substances scientifically developed by a team of agronomists who understand your lawn and what it needs. Consisting of a precisely timed series of feedings applied by highly trained personnel, the a-Perm-o-Green Lawn program provides an economical and effective way for homeowners to enjoy vigorous, healthy lawns. Not just part of the year . . . but throughout the lawn's natural growth cycle.

Each seasonal application is designed to serve specific needs:

• In the spring, the balanced application includes nitrogen, phosphorous, potassium and trace elements to give your lawn a vigorous root system and strong shoot growth.

• In the early summer, your lawn will receive another balanced application of fertilizers plus slow-release nitrogen and insect control, if necessary.

• The later summer application consists of hot-weather nutrients plus slow-release nitrogen and insect control, again if necessary.

• The fall application provides winterizing nutrients to promote deep root growth plus fungicides, as required, to help control fall brown patch.

Getting a beautiful lawn won't cost you a pretty penny.

In fact, the annual cost of the a-Perm-o-Green Lawn program is, on the average, substantially less than the cost of the homeowner attempting to maintain his own lawn with dry fertilizers, insecticides, fungicides and weed control. There's also the savings in time since a-Perm-o-Green takes care of everything. And there's no investment in a spreader and other tools.

The cost is based only on lawn area to be treated—not on total lot size. Prices start as low as $19.50 per application. Considering the great grass you'll be getting, that's not a great amount.

No contract . . . no obligation.

You may start or stop the program at any time. And your satisfaction is guaranteed. After all, we're confident that you'll stay with a-Perm-o-Green because you want to, not because you have to.

Sensible Home Landscaping Affordable

A barbecue fireplace; a screen, landscaped patio for entertaining; a place for badminton or volleyball; and two carefully placed trees for a hammock with a fountain in the background; all this is a possible dream for many homeowners.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, garden center and landscape professionals know that most homeowners want a beauty in their home landscape for both family enjoyment and sound financial investment.

Home landscaping in 1979 will give owners a better return on their money than ever before. The nursery industry has more varieties of disease-resistant, beauty-creating plants than at any other time.

And thanks to their national Green Survival program, the nursery experts know how to make these same beautiful landscape plantings save money on heating and air conditioning costs. Vines and certain other plants can add additional insulation. Properly placed trees and shrubs will block cold winds or shade a home from summer's heat. An air conditioning condenser, well shaded with plants, will save as much as three percent on its cost of operation.

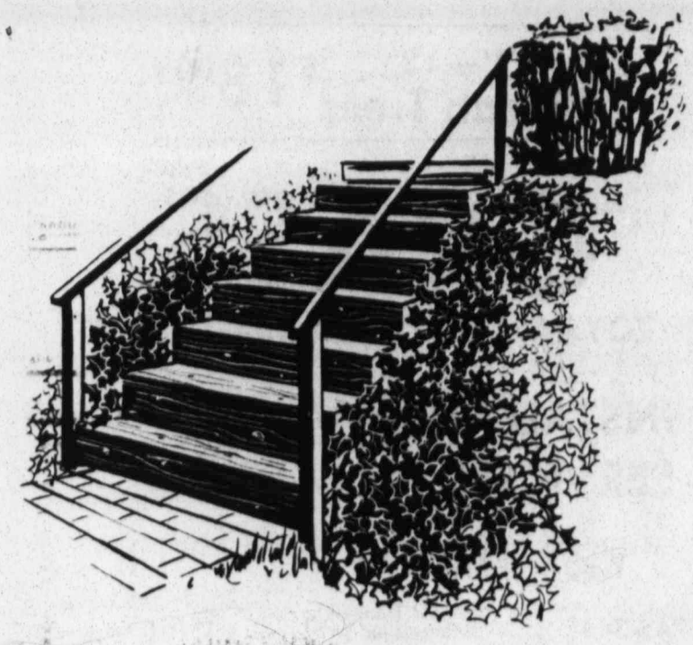

Combining beauty and money-saving practicality is a big part of your local nursery garden center's commitment to Green Survival. They know what plants are best for your particular conditions of soil, shade and exposure.

Most nursery and landscape professionals will advise that a master plan for the entire landscape be prepared before further planting is done. This plan can be quite elaborate, or just a simple sketch. The important thing is to know what your landscaping objectives are so that all your plantings work toward a common goal. This kind of planning is important to the beauty of your home and to holding the line on expenses.

Make a sketch of your property. Use graph paper to plot the size and location of your house, garage, drives, walks, patio, etc. Locate existing trees, shrubs, gardens and other features on the paper. If you are not sure of all the plant names, just take a leaf and your nursery expert will identify it.

Finally, when you visit your local nursery or garden center advise them how you will be using your yard. Let them know if you want a formal yard, or if you are more interested in a place for sports and recreation.

There are hundreds of varieties of plants to do the job to fit your lifestyle. No matter what your style, professional assistance will assure you of a beautiful landscape through professional guidance is another expression of Green Survival.

BEAUTY ENHANCES VALUE — Healthy ground cover by steps and other sloping parts of the landscape is a beautiful way to protect the environment and increase the value of your home, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Homeowners Find Plants Help Save Energy Bucks

You probably never thought of trees, hedges or ivy as energy savers or that they could put money in your pocket. Research, however, has shown that these items, properly planted, can produce energy savings of ten to thirty percent.

Shade trees are major energy savers. On a sunny, 80[illegible] day, shade trees can reduce a home's inside temperature by as much as eight degrees! Natural cooling such as this means less hours or even days that your air conditioner has to operate. With today's utility rates, that can mean big dollar savings during the summer months.

Deciduous trees are best for year round energy savings. These trees, planted on the west and south sides of a home, provide good shade during the summer and then shed their leaves to allow the winter sun to warm the roof and walls.

In cooler climates, tall hedges and evergreens provide good windbreak protection. Planted on the north side, or the side of prevalent winter winds, these natural windbreaks prevent heat loss from the home. Research has shown fuel savings of up to 40-percent from properly planted windbreaks.

Vines provide good natural insulation. During the summer months, the leaves shield walls from direct sunlight while the air current beneath the leaves helps dissipate house heat. In the winter, vines form an insulating air layer which helps retain heat.

The American Association of Nurserymen suggests you consult your local nursery garden center for advice on what energy savings plants will work best for you. Saving energy through the wise use of living plants is not only a smart investment, it is also a beautiful way to improve your home landscaping. It's another expression of Green Survival.

Birth Defects' Cause Studied

ROLLA, Kan. (AP) — Four top state health officials were in this tiny southwest Kansas town Friday, trying to find out what has caused an abnormally high rate of birth defects.

Four of 17 babies born in this town of 380 people since 1975 have had birth defects.

Joseph Harkins, secretary of the Kansas Department of Health and Environment, and three department epidemiologists planned to review the records of farmers in the area to determine whether the herbicide 2,4,5-T had been used.

The herbicide was recently banned by the Environmental Protection Agency while a study was made to determine whther it might cause birth defects.

Harkins cautioned Thursday that the links between 2,4,5-T and birth defects in the town were being "blown out of proportion."

Dr. Donald Wilcox, a state epidemiologist, told a House Agriculture Committee earlier this week that the chemical had been used in the area, but Gov. John Carlin's press secretary, Bill Hoch, said Thursday that "Wilcox's information was less than first-hand information and you cannot conclude a study of this magnitude with anything less than first-hand information. There is reason to believe that aerial sprayers did use the herbicide, but we cannot confirm it."

Wilcox's testimony before the Agriculture Committee came as a result of consideration in the Kansas House of a resolution urging the EPA to lift its recent ban on most uses of 2,4,5-T.

Lithuanian Legation Continues Struggle

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — As do most other foreign envoys in this city, Dr. Stasys Backis opens his ornate legation at 9 a.m. five mornings each week, takes a seat behind a large desk, and waits for his office to fill with gaggles of people seekipg the attention and favors of the dimplomatic community.

Only in the case of Dr. Backis, he waits in vain. he is the charge d'affairs of the Lithuanian Legation, a mission in name only, a post representing a nation that no longer exists. Lithuania was one of three Baltic nations rudely and violently annexed by the Soviet Union during the Second World War.

The Communists are said to have murdered 35,000 resisters during the annexation, and they sent thousands more to prison. But they did not take over all of Lithuania. The sovereign legation in Washington, as it happens, has for 39 years remained in the control of the prewar spirit of the country.

Though powerless, and perhaps even unrealistic, that control is recognized by the United States government. Periodically, Dr. Backis presents his legation's credentials to the State Department; and, annually, the mission is listed in the formal diplomatic documents, between Libya and Luxembourg.

To be sure, the recognition is unique in the world. Exiled Lithuanians maintain an office in Rome and another in London, but they are not formally considered to be national interests. Even U.S. officials quietly admit that the diplomatic recognition here is far more emotional than it is legal.

So it is that Dr. Backis opens his doors each morning, it is as much out of habit as actual need. Whole days pass without vistors to the legation. The telephone does not ring for hours on end. Dr. Backis says the principal work of the legation now is to collect and distribute information.

Occasionally, the information can be tragic and infuriating. Backis says the Russian suppression of Catholicism in Lithuania has led to a spiritual crisis. Reportedly, one-third of all Lithuanian marriages fail each year. And the Reds have built a museum of atheism in the deeply religious country.

Then there are distressing tales of personal suffering. Dr. Backis has not seen or heard from one of his brothers since annexation (another brother died in Siberia). And reports pile up of Lithuanians refused permission to migrate West; in one case a woman has not been allowed to join her exiled husband.

But the news from Lithuania is otherwise scarce (facts have to be smuggled out, Dr. Backis says). Therefore the information gathered and given by the legation is largely the ponderous, if impassioned, recitation of worn arguments. The data represents a lobbying effort that is now four decades old.

That effort has been forgotten by most Americans. Even some of the one million Americans of Lithuanian heritage are unaware of the continuing effort to re-establish an independent Lithuania. As for the legation itself, it has unhappily become somthing of a diplomatic chuckle in Washington.

Some who are aware of the five-story outpost say it is an absurd relic. Beyond this, it is down at the cuffs. Dr. Backis is the caretaker, as well as charge d'affairs, and the only other person in the mission is his wife, Ona, who does the cleaning. The couple lives in an apartment in the building.

Backis does not deny the legation's privation. He keeps a close eye on the thermostat, and the lighting is so dim the dust on the drapes is hidden. But he says it's just another result of the Russian crime. The last 17,000 square feet of prewar Lithuania may be poor, but it is resolutely free.

Besides, Backis insists the legation's purpose is as viable and correct as ever. he says the three million people in annexed Lithuania are the most philosophically autonomous in the Soviet sphere, and exiles here and elsewhere continue to believe that someday, somehow, the Russians will be driven out.

Even now, the envoy adds, President Carter has included a Lithuanian dissident in his remarks regarding human rights. And Pope John Paul II has said that "half my heart" is with the captive Catholics of Lithuania. soon, Backis says exiles will ask the United Nations to decolonize the Baltic states.

Hope lives. But in truth nobody knows how long it will live. Dr. Backis is 72 years old, and many of the other organized Baltic exiles are also getting along in years. There is worry that once they pass, there will not be enough younger people with sufficient rage to continue this most one-sided struggle.

And there is another worry. When Lithuania was invaded in 1940, the U.S. froze the nation's assets here. Since then the assets have been used to cover mission expenses. Now the funds are nearly gone. If there is no money to pay for it, sadly, the last bit of Lithuania may disapper from the earth.

Warranty Programs For Buying New And Used Houses Growing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

You probably wouldn't think of buying an automobile without a warranty. Now, you may be able to get the same kind of guarantee for your house.

Warranty programs for both new and old houses are growing, as buyers try to make sure that their expensive dreams don't turn into nightmares of leaky roofs, peeling paint and faulty furnaces.

Protection for new homes is provided — at no direct charge to the buyer — through the Home Owners Warranty Corp., a subsidiary of the National Association of Home Builders. Coverage for older houses is available through the Home Protection Program of the National Association of Realtors; the cost to the consumer varies, but generally is about $250 a year.

A report by the staff of the Federal Trade Commission said as many as 10 percent of all new homes may have "major defects, such as inadequate insulation or faulty plumbing." David C. Eisenstein of the FTC said: "The indications are that this is a major problem — roofs that leak the first time it rains, plumbing that is not hooked up, foundations that are unsound."

Why so many problems? Jane M. Snow, director of communications for the Home Owners Warranty Corp., said the troubles are relatively minor when the complexity and size of the industry is taken into account. "There are 3,000 components in a house," Miss Snow said. "I don't think the perfect house has ever been built."

Miss Snow said that the term "major defect" is open to interpretation. "A leaky roof is not a major defect in the structural sense," she said. It would become a major defect only if caused by a basic fault like a sagging foundation. She said HOW statistics show major structural defects in only one-tenth of 1 percent of all new homes.

The HOW program is in its fifth year. Over 450,000 homes are now covered by 10-year HOW warranties which are offered by 12,000 builders in 45 states. Miss Snow said 12 percent of the new homes sold last year were covered by HOW warranties; this year, she said, the corporation hopes to provide warranties for 25 percent of the 864,000 new homes expected to be sold.

During the first year of a HOW warranty, the builder guarantees that the house is free from major structural defects and from defects due to non-compliance with approved building standards. During the second year of the warranty, the guarantee against major structural defects continues. The builder also warrants that the plumbing, heating and cooling and electrical systems will perform according to approved standards. During the third through 10th years, the warranty covers only major structural defects.

Builders participating in the program carry insurance to back up the warranty so that homebuyers are not left holding the bag if, for example, the construction company goes out of business. The cost of the coverage — $2 per $1,000 of selling price — is borne by the builder, but may be built into the price of the house just as the cost of an automobile warranty is built into the price of the car.

There is a conciliation and arbitration program to handle disputes between builders and buyers over defects and repairs.

Warranty programs on existing houses are more complicated. The actual warranty is provided by one of a number of companies approved by the National Association of Realtors under its protection program.

There are two basic plans: inspection and non-inspection.

Under the inspection program, you must have the house you are considering inspected in seven basic areas: roof, exterior and interior walls, floors and ceilings; foundation and basement, electrical system, plumbing system, central air condition and central heating system. You then have the option to purchase a one-year warranty against defects. An inspection alone usually costs about $75 to $100; an inspection and warranty will cost $250 to $300 a year. The warranty carries a deductible ranging from $20 to $100.

Under the non-inspection program, you can purchase coverage even if you have not had the house checked.

Tax Appeal Fails For Organization

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Tax Court has rejected an appeal for tax exemption by the Hawaiian branch of "est," the philosophical self-awareness system.

Est of Hawaii had appealed to the court after the Internal Revenue Service turned down its request for tax-exempt status. The court agreed with the IRS in a decision filed Wednesday.

Tax exemptions are granted to religious, charity and educational organizations, but the law specifies that they must be non-profit and their income cannot benefit any individual.

While "est of Hawaii" is non-profit, the court observed, it is controlled by and pays royalties to parent, profit-making organizations.

Thus, Judge Theodore Tannenwald Jr., wrote, the non-profit "est of Hawaii" is simply an instrument to subsidize the for-profit corporations, has no life independent of those corporations, and is not entitled to a tax exemption.

Conflicting Reports Issued On Nuclear Accident Scene

Minute by minute, the official explanations of Friday's trouble at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant kept changing: The new release of radiation was unexpected. No it wasn't. Yes it was. We're considering evacuating. There's no need to leave. Some people should go.

From utility spokesmen, federal government representatives and state authorities: Conflicting reports.

Contradictions started Wednesday, hours after the 4 a.m. accident. The first word of trouble came from James Cox of the Pennsylvania State Police: A "general emergency" had been declared at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg. "They said there is no radiation leak."

Less than an hour later, from officials of Metropolitan Edison Co., which operates the plant: A small amount of radiation has been released into the atmosphere; no significant radiation is expected outside the plant area itself. By the end of the day: above-normal radiation levels reported as far as 16 miles from the 200-acre site.

Thursday morning, radiation was still leaking.

Thursday evening, with low-level radiation still beaming from highly radioactive water within the plant, from Charles Gallina, a Nuclear Regulatory Commission inspector at the scene: "At this time, the danger is over for people off site."

Friday morning. While Energy Secretary James Schlesinger tells a breakfast meeting that the accident, while serious, "underscores how safe nuclear power has been in the past," there are reports of new problems. By the afternoon, those problems had mounted to the point that Dennis Crutchfield, an NRC spokesman, was saying that while a disastrous core melt-down was unlikely, "the potential is there."

Here is a chronological look at what was said starting shortly after 9 a.m.:

—John Comey of the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency: There has been an uncontrolled release of radiation. "We've notified all four counties (surrounding Harrisburg) of the potential situation. We don't know what it is yet or how bad."

—Gov. Dick Thornburgh's office: The release was "unexpected;" evacuation of the four counties is being considered.

—E.C. McCabe, section chief with the NRC: A 30-millirem-per-hour reading was taken south of the plant. It "is not an indication of a serious problem. It is indicative of a gaseous pocket that was released and dissipated. We have not heard of anything serious enough for an evacuation yet." (The average American is exposed to about 100 to 120 millirems per year.)

—Frank Ingram, an NRC spokesman in Washington: The release was not unexpected. It occurred as an automatic part of the recirculation of reactor cooling water. The amount of radiation released was higher than normal, but is decreasing "to somewhere near the normal range."

—Jan Strasma, another NRC spokesman: "Yes," it could happen again.

—Ingram: There are conflicting reports; my initial information might have been wrong.

—Paul Critchlow, spokesman for the Pennsylvania governor: "We are advising people within a 10-mile radius to stay indoors throughout the morning until further instructions are handed down. There is no need for an evacuation. There was a series of uncontrolled bursts of radiation from about 6:40 a.m. until about 9 a.m. this morning. Our people do not believe there is any immediate danger ... The heavier dose of radiation that was released into the atmosphere will be dissipated by noon ... Levels are pretty much down to normal."

—McCabe: "I did not expect the radiation levels to be that high. The venting of the tank because of the pressure is necessary. The plant is not cooling down as fast as would be expected. There have been some problems with the letdown system. It has been slower than we would have liked, but we are progressing."

—Critchlow: "The company had hoped to shut the reactor today. But they are finding more fuel damage than they had anticipated and this apparently is resulting in the increased radiation charge."

FOCUS

—Comey: "Businesses in Harrisburg appear to be releasing employees. People are leaving the Harrisburg area."

—David Milne of the State Department of Environmental Resources: Company employees "were transferring radioactive waste from one storage area to another and this apparently caused the higher radiation eruption."

—Jack G. Herbein of Metropolitan Edison: The release was between 7:30 a.m. and 8:15 a.m. and was intentional. "The situation is under control ... I suspect we will have to vent gas from the same tank again."

As the day wears on, contradictions mount. An early afternoon briefing by the governor:

—Thornburgh: Pregnant women and pre-school children within five miles of the plant should evacuate the area. Schools will be closed. "There is no reason for panic." The evacuation is based on "my belief that an excess of caution is best ... Current readings are no higher than they were yesterday. However the continued presence of radioactivity in the area and the possibility of further emissions lead me to exercise this utmmost caution."

—Tom Gerusky, director of the state Radiological Protection Bureau: "They were moving water from one unit into another and a valve filled. It was unexpected and unplanned and they could not stop it."

—A spokesman for Metropolitan Edison: "It was controlled. When the pressure subsided, the valve was closed." The radioactive releases were larger than expected.

—Thornburgh: "We cannot predict what the situation will be in 24 hours."

—Crutchfield: A gas bubble has developed inside the nuclear reactor, creating a small risk of a core melt-down which would release large amounts of radiation. Indirect evidence indicates that up to one-fourth of the 177 fuel rods may be damaged.

'Harrisburg Syndrome' Called Remote By Regulatory Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the next three days or longer, Harrisburg, Pa., and communities downwind of it face the "remote" but nagging threat of a nuclear catastrophe caused by the melt-down of an atomic powerplant core, spreading radioactivity far and wide.

What seemed on Wednesday like a "dirty" but limited accidental shutdown of Three Mile Island Unit 2 became the Harrisburg Syndrome by Friday.

Things that should have been prevented by the plant's government-approved safety systems happened anyway.

The reactor's vital cooling water was partly displaced by a gas bubble that could, if it grew, let fuel rods overheat. There was no easy way to get rid of the bubble.

And the fuel itself appeared to be damaged — perhaps split open, perhaps twisted out of shape, perhaps still reacting in spite of the control rods meant to stop the reaction.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials said the reactor must be cooled down and its internal pressure relieved slowly, carefully over the next three to five days, while the gas bubble is — they hope — swept out, little by little, by the constant flow of water through the reactor.

A false move or an equipment failure could mean that the heat constantly pouring from the reactor's radioactive fuel rods would build up within moments to the 5,000-degree temperature that could cause them to melt.

That is considered to be the worst thing that can happen to a nuclear reactor.

Melting fuel, composed of the heavy metals uranium and plutonium, and other highly radioactive materials, could sink through the cooling water to collect in a growing, molten puddle at the bottom of the reactor. That would generate more heat and melt more fuel.

The heat could form steam bubbles, further reducing the protective cooling effect of the water and making the rest of the fuel melt even faster until most, or all, of the reactor's core was melted or shattered.

The reactor core itself is sealed inside a cylindrical steel vessel about 40 feet tall, and this, in turn, stands inside a large, domed containment building with walls, ceiling and floor of reinforced concrete several feet thick and lined with steel at least one-quarter inch thick.

Nuclear experts agree there would be no chance at all that the melting core might explode like an atomic bomb, but they also agree it would be almost certain to break out of its heavy concrete and steel prison, releasing great amounts of radioactive gas and particles into the air, the earth and any water around it.

At temperatures in the thousands of degrees, a melting core could convert the water that should have cooled it into high-pressure steam and literally crack or explode open the containment building, letting radioactive vapors escape directly into the atmosphere.

Or, more slowly, it could burn its way through the massive floor and into the earth, letting radioactive materials seep slowly upward, around the building, to the outside environment.

The thought of glowing liquid uranium burning its way into the earth led nuclear scientists long ago to joke grimly that it might not stop until it reached China, the other side of the earth.

In fact, they are sure that molten nuclear fuel would not sink very deep, but this feared catastrophe was fancifully called "The China Syndrome," a name now popularized in a movie about a fictional near-miss nuclear accident.

No matter how it escapes, the radioactive gas from a melted reactor core could be carried many miles from its original site by the wind; just how far it could go, and where it might fall, would depend on the wind and the weather — rain, for instance, would tend to wash it to earth.

But escaped radioactive materials could also be carried off by water.

The Three Mile Island plant derives its name from its location on a long, low island in the Susquehanna River south of Harrisburg.

If nuclear fuel melted into the earth there, it could be picked up by ground water and carried into the river, which wends its way through Pennsylvania and Maryland into the Chesapeake Bay.

If all goes well, none of that nightmarish scene may occur.

NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie called it "a very remote possibility" Friday.

But it was a lot less remote than was thought Wednesday, and Harrisburg and its downwind and downriver neighbors could only keep their fingers crossed.

Silkwood Case Judge Warns Jurors To Avoid News Of Nuclear Industry

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The judge in the Karen Silkwood case against a nuclear reactor fuel manufacturer formally took notice Friday of recent incidents involving the nuclear power industry in a special instruction to jurors.

The action came as more radiation leaked from a crippled reactor near Harriburg, Pa., but he did not specifically cite that case.

In addition to his normal admonition, U.S. District Judge Frank Theis warned jurors in the case "to be particularly careful" and guard against exposing themselves to any nuclear industry news.

The judge said it isn't practical to sequester jurors in long civil cases because "it makes them virtual prisoners." He said he is depending on the jurors' "good judgment to follow the instructions of the court."

Miss Silkwood's estate is suing the Kerr-McGee Corp. for $11.5 million claiming negligence in connection with her contamination with deadly radioactive plutonium. She was a lab worker at Kerr-McGee's nuclear fuel plant at Crescent, Okla., when she was killed in a Nov. 13, 1974, auto accident.

The company contends she contaminated herself, possibly to dramatize her accusations about working conditions.

Since the trial of the case opened on March 6, there have been several incidents of bad publicity for the nuclear industry.

The first incident was the federal government's closing of five Eastern nuclear power plants for testing of their ability to withstand earthquakes.

That was followed by the release of the movie "The China Syndrome," a fictional account of an accident at a nuclear plant.

On March 23, a truck carrying thousands of pounds of uranium was involved in an accident near Wichita and several barrels of uranium being taken to a Kerr-McGee plant in Oklahoma broke open.

Witnesses have testified Miss Silkwood felt strongly about the hazardous nature of nuclear materials and was upset because she felt workers weren't informed and that the nuclear industry downplayed the potential for disasters.

"I prefer to think of it as the quiet voice of Karen Silkwood saying 'I told you so,'" Silkwood lawyer Gerry Spence has said to colleagues discussing the incidents.

A union investigator testified Friday that despite her plutonium contamination, Miss Silkwood was determined to give a New York Times reporter documentation of alleged falsification of reactor fuel rod quality records.

Miss Silkwood had been asked by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union to gather documentation of her claims that Kerr-McGee was falsifying the records. Witnesses have testified she had the alleged documentation with her when she was killed while en route to meet union investigator Steve Wodka and investigative reporter David Burnham. The documents were never found.

World-Famous Tower Marks 90th Year

PARIS (UPI) — What's big and brown, looks like a clothespin, has appeared in hundreds of films and paintings, weighs 7,000 tons and turns 90 years old today?

It could only be the Eiffel Tower, one of the world's most visited tourist sights.

Since its opening at the Paris Exhibition of 1889, more than 70 million people have visited the tower, sometimes referred to as the world's tallest lamp post.

Each year, Gustave Eiffel's engineering wonder has more than 3 million visitors, who take away 1.9 miniature copies of the tower and send 1.5 million postcard pictures of it to the folks back home.

"I should be jealous of the tower — it's more famous than I am," Eiffel said shortly before his death in 1923.

Besides attracting tourists, the tower also has drawn a good number of publicity seekers. People have climbed it backwards, on their hands, on stilts, piggyback and naked. The mayor of Montmartre once rode down it on a bicycle.

The tower also has been deadly. Hundreds of persons have jumped to their deaths from the Paris landmark. A pilot once was killed while trying to fly his plane through the tower's arches and a Hungarian tailor made a fatal leap when he attempted to demonstrate a combination raincoat and parachute.

The Eiffel Tower can gain weight and shrink. A freeze can decrease its height by six inches. A new paint job, performed once every seven years by 60 men who take four months to complete the task, will put on extra weight. It takes 6,000 gallons of paint to cover the towers 210,000 square yards of surface.

There are 1,710 steps leading to the top of structure, which took 200 men about 27 months to construct at a cost of $1.6 million — in 1889 dollars.

The tourist sight almost never made it past its 20th birthday. It was scheduled to be torn down in 1909 and was saved from destruction only when the French army discovered its tower would make an excellent communication station for army posts stationed hundreds of miles away.

NICE STOP — Lubbock High's Noel Jaime arrives safely at second base with one of his four steals that he picked up against the Hobbs Eagles Friday. Hobbs shortstop Van Dennis reaches for the ball but it has already gone by and stopped in Jaimie's back pocket. The Westerners defeated Hobbs 12-5. (Story, Page 3, Sec. Wadkins No Match For Tom Terrific

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Tom Watson responded to Lanny Wadkins' dramatic hole-in-one with an equally spectacular eagle-2 and stretched his lead to three shots Friday in the second round of the $300,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Wadkins played early in the mild, breezy day and used the ace on No. 17 as the key to a 4-under-par 67 that put him at 133, nine shots under par on the tough Harbour Town Golf Links.

At that point Wadkins, going for a second consecutive title and third of the year, appeared in firm command of this event that annually grows in prestige and importance.

But three hours later, the gritty Watson came to those same stretch of holes leading to choppy waters of Calibogue Sound and deftly holed an 8-iron shot from the corner of the fairway for an eagle-2.

That propelled him to another 6-under-par 65 and a 130 total and, for a second consecutive week, set up a head-to-head battle between the Watson — who appears to have regained the form that won him 1977-78 Player of the Year honors — and Wadkins, the outstanding performer so far in the 1979 season.

Wadkins won last week in the howling winds of Sawgrass, beating Watson by five shots for the Tournament Players Championship, his second victory of the season. It was Watson's third runner-up performance.

More importantly, however, he grooved his swing for the first time this season and came out of that event "feeling better about my game than I have all year," he said.

And he has good reason to.

His total, 12 under par, is 1 stroke off the course record for two trips over this quietly beautiful layout that is lined by lakes and ponds and forests of moss-dripping oak and cypress.

He has played the back nine in 31 each of the first two days. He finished birdie-eagle-par-birdie and used only three putts on those last four holes.

Strangely, Wadkins, unknowingly, almost predicted it.

"Does a hole-in-one tend to demoralize the other players?" he was asked early in the day.

"Well," he replied, "they kind of back off for a minute, but they don't let it bother them too much."

It was 4 shots back of Wadkins to the threesome of Tom Kite, Bill Rogers and Mike Morley tied for third at 137. Kite had a 68, Morley and Rogers 67s.

WT Tracksters Favored In Meet

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

The 100-meter dash takes just a snap of the fingers longer than ten seconds. The 1500 meters just short of four minutes.

But, between them, the two races are expected draw much of the attention in today's running of the Texas Tech Invitational.

The two-division meet will be staged on Tech's Fuller Track Field, with preliminaries beginning at 11 a.m.

"If we can just get the weather like today. . ." wished Tech track coach Corky Oglesby.

"I think we can have some super times," he added. "That 100 meters should be a super race, if the guys run like they have in the past.

"And the 1500 meters and 800 meters. And, added the Tech track coach without stopping for breath, "what about the high hurdles?"

The field looks to be the strongest in its 13-year history. In the university division will be meet favorite West Texas State, Lubbock Christian, Wayland Baptist, Eastern New Mexico, Angelo State, UT-Arlington and the host Raiders.

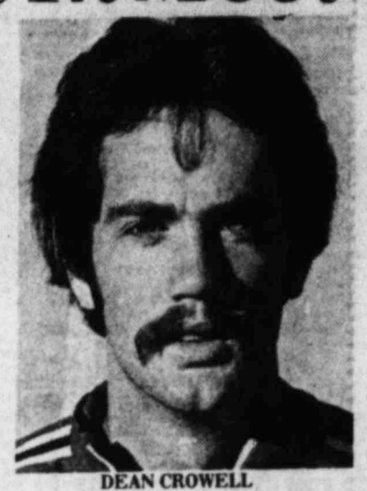

The loaded junior college list has New Mexico JC, New Mexico Military, Odessa, Ranger, South Plains, and Southwest Christian.

New Mexico Junior College, which won the national junior college indoor championship a couple of weeks ago, will be the team favorite, with Odessa College expected to challenge.

"I think you have to favor West Texas," commented Oglesby, "with their depth in the sprints and hurdles, and their Kenyans in the distances. But, we could challenge, and UTA and Angelo have some awfully strong people."

WT has the individuals to challenge in each of these featured races.

The 100 meters — all races except the mile relay will be at the metric distances today — will have Wylie Turner of Angelo State, John Thomas of WTSU, Wayland's Chuks Abigide, and Gilbert Smith of UTA.

DEAN CROWELL

All have run 9.4 or better in the 100-yard dash. Turner is a former NAIA national champion, and Abigide ran on Nigeria's Olympic team of 1976.

The high hurdles field will include Frank Postel of Wayland, who made it to the U.S. Olympic Trials final heat, and Mike King of ENMU, who has run 14 flat this season.

Also, in the highs will be Zach Cummings of WT.

The 800-meter field will have Tech record-holder James Mays and teammate Robert Lepard, the WT duo of Gabriel Boit and Joseph Barno — both Kenyans — and Angelo State's Randy Wilkovich.

Mays has run 1:50.16 this year, Lepard 1:52.

Raider hurdler Dean Crowell will be trying to reach into the 52s in the 400-meter event today. He has a best of 53.25 this spring.

Steve Patridge of Wayland is defending champion in the discus. This season, Patridge reached 177 feet in a meet at Tarleton.

Randy Pool, an NAIA all-America, has gone 6-9 in the high jump and will be one of the favorites in that event.

LCC Baseballers Host Dallas Baptist In Pair

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

"Down the road, here comes Mary; Hair of gold and lips like cherries; It's good to touch the green, green grass of home..."

Well, you might not be able to see the green grass on Chaparral Field for the dust, and after a month on the road old Mary ain't what she used to be, but you can bet Larry Hays understands the sentiments in that song.

Hays and his Lubbock Christian College baseball team will be coming back to town for the first time in almost a month this afternoon, taking on Dallas Baptist in a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m.

The last time the Chaps visited the friendly confines of their home field was Sunday March 11. Now, 19 games later, they're back.

And it couldn't come at a better time. This series with DBC (it was supposed to be played in Dallas but inclement weather forced the move), paired with Midwestern's visit to Texas Wesleyan, makes for a very interesting weekend in Texas Conference baseball.

LCC just took three of four from Midwestern and TWC swept Dallas Baptist. Now it's time to find out who the real heavyweights are.

And neither favorite is likely to have an easy time of it.

"In times past we've always wanted to win four out of four from Midwestern," confessed Hays. "But after going there we're tickled to death to get what we did. Their three pitchers were as good as we've faced."

Of today's foe Hays says, "Well, Texas Wesleyan and Dallas Baptist four straight and that's not an easy thing to do. Last year we won our Dallas Baptist series 5-3, it's going to be hard to repeat that. Dallas Baptist has improved and we're still real young right now."

The Chaparrals are expected to use John Ross (3-2) and Kevin Burke (4-0) on the mound today.

"We feel like we've got some of our problems worked out," said Hays. "We put (Bobby) Doe at short stop. That helped us a great deal. We moved Bowles and Hann. We moved (Richard) Bowles and (David) Hanna to left field and DH and that's made us a little solider there."

The pitchers are also coming around.

"We got three complete games in this last conference series," Hays said. "John Ross threw a super game -a shutout -and our two freshmen, Kevin Burke and Noel Delgado, both gave up one run apiece and another freshman, Chris Cook, relieved the game we got beat and I think he shut them out for the last three or four innings."

Leading pitchers for LCC are Burke (4-0 with a 2.52 ERA); Ross (3-3 and 3.23); Delgado (2-1 and 2.98) and Gary Swann (2-2 and 6.43).

After this weekend's series with DBC, LCC will host Panhandle State Monday, travel to Hardin-Simmons Tuesday and then host Texas Wesleyan Friday and Saturday

Major-League Umps Reject Latest Offer

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifty major league baseball umpires decided at a meeting Friday to reject contract offers from the National and American leagues.

Richie Phillips, the umpires' lawyer, said, "In no way can this be termed a strike. It's more of an action.

However, he added, "I am not optimistic that it will be settled before the opening of the season."

The regular season starts Wednesday in the American League and Thursday in the National League.

Paul Pryor of the National League has signed his contract for the 1979 season and may be the only regular umpire working when it begins. American League umpire Ted Hendry, a rookie last year, also signed before the current wage dispute.

But the other 50 umpires said they would stick together and would not sign their individual contracts.

"I don't think the umpires any longer have blind faith in the league presidents. We understand that local and minor league umpires will be used. This would provide an inferior product and cause total chaos in major league baseball," said Phillips.

He added that he will negotiate all 50 contracts. He said he planned to contact the two league presidents — Lee MacPhail of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National League — Friday night to tell them of the umpires' decision.

"You can contemplate the umpires will be picketing — informational picketing. The umpires no longer will stand to be abused," Phillips said. "The two leagues have been avoiding conferences, and MacPhail and Feeney have taken the view that their offers are fair because they say they are fair.

"I believe the umpires feel more pride in their decision to see this through as a unit than they have ever felt."

The two leagues had issued an ultimatum to the umpires — sign the contracts by midnight Friday, or be released and rehired only when staff openings become available.

Phillips said using minor leauge umpires would put a great strain on major league baseball.

The umpires were advised by Phillips not to talk to the media. However, American League veteran Ron Luciano, president of the Major League Umpires Association, said, "I don't have a job anymore, and I want one."

Raiders Hold Scrimmage

At the midway point in spring football workouts, Texas Tech coach Rex Dockery will send his Raiders through a controlled scrimmage today.

The open-to-the-public session will begin at 10:30 a.m. in Jones Stadium.

The Raiders have made several personnel shifts since start of drills, and the weekly scrimmage sessions help evaluate the changes.

The Raiders will have two more weeks of work before winding up. The annual Red-White spring game will be held in Jones Stadium on April 14.

Tickets for that final game are now on sale from members of the Double-T Association and at the Tech ticket office on the north end of Jones Stadium. With the tickets will go an opportunity — for persons 18 years of age and older — to serve as honorary coaches for the game. The week of the game, four names will be drawn from the ticket purchasers, and they will then help the Raider aides coach in the contest.

Two City Baseball Tilts On Schedule

The Dunbar Panthers, who won their first game of the season against Bovina Thursday afternoon, will host the Lubbock Christian High Eagles at Mackenzie Park in the last nondistrict game for the Panthers this season.

In the first game beginning at 1 p.m., the two schools' varsities will battle, with the Dunbar JV taking over in the second game.

Lubbock Christian defeated Dunbar earlier this week 6-2 at the LCHS field.

In other concluding nondistrict games, the Estacado Matadors will resume action in the Snyder Tournament, Monterey will be at Pecos for two games, Coronado hosts Monahans in doubleheader, with Lubbock High receiving an open date.

District competition for the city high schools begins next week. Single games will begin at 2:30 p.m. instead of the 4 p.m. nondistrict times. The doubleheaders will still begin at 1 p.m.

American Tennis Stars Record Milan Victories

MILAN, Italy (AP) — U.S. stars Vitas Gerulaitis and John McEnroe won quarter-final matches in the $200,000 World Championship Tennis tournament but top-seeded Bjorg Borg of Sweden was upset by unseeded Australian John Alexander Friday.

Gerulaitis beat Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-2 and McEnroe defeated Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-1, 6-3. The two will meet in Saturday's semifinals.

Alexander ousted Borg 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. The 23-year-old Swede, winner of the WTC's Milan leg last year, played erratically, showing little fighting spirit and determination.

The 28-year-old Alexander downed Borg in one hour and 29 minutes and agreed "Bjorn played badly in the two final games of the match."

The Swede, given a special escort in Milan because of a terrorist threat, committed two double faults and bad mistakes in the last minutes of play at the Milan Indoor Sports Palace.

He left the court in a hurry, dodging reporters. He was reported en route to his residence in Monte Carlo within one hour after the loss. If Borg was a disappointment, Alexander, now a resident of Atlanta, played at his best.

He served powerfully, moved fast to the net and volleyed successfully. Borg, the sixth of the eight top-seeded players eliminated in the Milan competition so far, seldom played his terrific, backhand crossed shots.

Alexander, who had eliminated two unseeded Italians in the previous rounds, conceded Borg could have played better, but quickly added, "Sometimes poor showings are also due to better play of the opponent."

He said the turning point of the match was the eight game of the third set when he broke Borg's serve and climbed to a 4-4 tie, from a 2-4 disadvantage. He then held his own serve and broke Borg's serve again to win four straight games and the match.

Gerulaitis, seeded second, made short work of Smid, and said he needed a quiet performance after the close, dramatic second-round match against countryman Peter Fleming Thursday night.

McEnroe, winner of the previous WTC leg in New Orleans last weekend, said he expected a tough challenge from Gerulaitis in Saturday's semifinals.

"We know each other very well. It will be a tough match. I knew from the very beginning I was going to play Vitas in the semifinals as we both were drawn in the lower part of the scoreboard," McEnroe said.

He said he needed a win in Milan to move ahead of U.S. ace Jimmy Connors in the overall WTC standings. Connors, who pulled out at the last minute from the Milan competition, has a total of 360 points against McEnroe's 280.

The winner of the Milan competition, awarding $35,000 for singles, is given 110 points for the WTC standings.

McEnroe also was in the running for the finals in the $9,100 doubles competition. He is paired with the 23-year-old Fleming.

Gerulaitis and McEnroe both expressed amazement at the elimination of Borg. Gerulaitis said, "One can not always play at his best, in any tournament."

Borg, who had downed Alexander in their previous match in 1978, won the WTC leg in Richmond, Virginia, defeating Argentinian star Guillermo Vilas in the finals. At New Orleans, he lost to McEnroe in semifinals.

The tourney officially is called the Ramazzotti Cup.

Collegians Eye Spots In All-Star Competition

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Hundreds of college athletes will get the chance to become stars of a weekly television sports program if the proposed "National College All-Stars" show can get enough advertiser backing.

About 800 college athletes would participate in the syndicated programs, which would test their skills in nine events, said Jack Ogle, a former Oklahoma City television newsman who's spent the last 16 months trying to turn the idea of the show into a reality.

Ogle said it will cost $3 million to produce one-hour shows that would be aired for 26 weeks. He said 12 regional editions of each program would be prepared for the first 10 weeks, featuring preliminary competion. Only one version of the remaining 16 shows would be prepared.

Backers of the program have sold about 60 percent of the advertising they need, said Ogle, 48. If they can sell 80 percent in the next few weeks, they will go ahead with plans to begin filming the program May 14 in the Bahamas. Their schedule calls for all 26 shows to be completed by July 11

Matadors Split Tourney Games

SNYDER (Special) — The Estacado Matadors, competing here in the Snyder Tournament, split a pair of contests Friday, falling 6-1 to the powerful hosts in the opener and then defeating Jal 14-4 in the second game.

Snyder jumped on starter Hector Limon (2-4) in the first inning for 3 quick runs, and the host team was in control from there on out.

The Matadors got their only run of the game in the first.

But things took a definite turn upward in the second game as the EHS bats exploded on Jal and the game was called on the 10-run rule in the fifth inning.

Brett Parker singled to drive in Davis Tennet to start things off for the Mats in the second. With the bases loaded Micheal Sykes hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Parker.

Then the Jal hurler started giving Estacado some freebies. Three runs came in on two walks and a hit EHS batter.

EHS got 2 more runs in the third and then after a scoreless fourth, sent six more Matadors across the plate in the fifth, finishing Jal.

Plainsmen Continue Golf Lead

Brian Sheffield shot a 73 Friday at the Meadowbrook Municipal Golf Course to lead the Monterey boys to another District 4-AAAA win.

Monterey's team total was 300, 21 strokes better than Coronado and Plainview, which tied for second. The Plainsmen are now firmly entrenched in first place with a season total of 1,230. Coronado is second at 1,299.

In the individual category Hereford's Miles Goforth fired a 74 to finish second to Sheffield for the day.

Sheffield's effort on Friday not only won him the individual medalist honors but it moved him into first place in the season standings. After four district meets he owns a culmative score of 296.

But right behind him is teammate Clif Baggett with a season score of 298. David Groom of Coronado is the only other district linkster even within striking distance of the Plainsmen duo. Groom owns a season score of 314.

The teams will take off a week from district wars before returning to 4-AAAA action at Plainview April 13. Two more district matches remain, at Plainview and at Hereford on April 20.

Team Totals (Friday and season totals) — Monterey 300—1,230; Coronado 321—1299; Plainview 321—1323; Hereford 324—1343; Monterey B 320—1349; Plainview B 345—1369); Coronado B 349—1392; Hereford B 345—1409; Lubbock High 340—1418.

Westerners Go Singles Route Past Eagles 12-5

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Lubbock High Westerners don't play an explosive brand of baseball but they're effective nonetheless.

Friday afternoon at Mackenzie Park the Westerners parlayed seven singles and two doubles into an easy 12-5 victory the Hobbs Eagles. In other words, the Westerners tallied 3 more runs than they did hits and now own the best record in the city (11-3).

"That's our game," explained Lubbock coach Bart Hernandez after the game. "We really don't have any power hitters — but we can sure nickel and dime you to death."

But the way the game started it looked like the Hobbs Eagles would be the ones doing the nickel and diming. The visitors jumped on LHS starting hurler Sammy Chavez for 4 runs in the top of the first.

And the Eagles got those 4 runs on only one hit — a single — and three walks from Chavez.

However, the Hobbs moundsmen were also inflicted with the free-pass fever and literally gave away the game in the bottom of the first. Eagle starter Bo Thomas issued six bases-on-balls in that frame and the Westerners threw in a base hit to score 6 runs.

LHS ace David Rush came in to get the final out in the top of the second, and the game was never in doubt again for the Westerners. Rush finished the game, giving up only 1 run to make his record 4-1.

"David just came in and put out the fire," said Hernandez. "But he's been the one throwing strikes consistently for us so far."

Meanwhile, Hobbs was having its problem finding someone who could either get the ball over the plate or get the LHS batters out. The Eagles threw four pitchers in the game: Thomas, Rick Ross, Mark Beeson and Van Dennis.

And LHS continued to chip away. The Westerners got a run in the second, 3 in the third and 2 more in the fifth. The only extra-base hits came in the third and keyed a 3-run LHS outburst when Oscar Lopez and Rush hit back-to-back doubles.

"We got some timely base hits," said Hernandez. "And we ran the bases real well — and worked the hit-and-run all day."

Particularly effective on the bases were Noel Jaime and Larry Walker, thw Westerners' Nos. 1 and 2 batters. Jaime had four stolen bases to his credit and Walker added three.

"If we can get our No. 1 and 2 hitters on base, we can be tough," said Hernandez. "So far we've been able to get them on and play our kind of game. It's been successful."

Now the Westerners begin preparation for their district opener with Monterey on Tuesday.

"It ought to be interesting," said Hernandez. "We play a different style from them — they've got a little more power.

"But we'll get our share of singles, a few doubles and well. . . maybe we can nickel and dime them."

Ponies Outlast Monahans 12-11

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Echoing through the Monahans dugout Friday afternoon was the question, "Is Segrest going to pitch?"

When Monahans saw that Coronado was starting Russell Johnson on the mound, the Loboes relaxed with 8 runs in the second inning to build an 11-2 lead at Chaparral Field.

But Coronado chipped away at the deficit, and when pinch-hitter Ben Pollard socked a two-out double to left field to knock in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning, Coronado had edged Monahans 12-11 in a nondistrict baseball game.

The pitch?

"A fastball," smiled Pollard. "A fastball right over the heart of the plate."

In fact, it looked like the Mustangs wouldn't have any trouble scoring the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Third baseman Bryan Brock walked, then Harp delivered his bunt single.

Outfielder Donny Arterburn loaded the bases with no outs while trying to move the runners over to second and third with a second bunt. However, Lobo pitcher Pena's throw to first was wide of the bag.

But the Lobos then temporarily stifled the Mustangs' winning hopes when Coronado relief pitcher Ricky Powell lined into a double play, putting the pressure on Pollard.

"This was one of the most unusual games I've ever been involved in," said Coronado coach John Dudley. "When we got so far down I really thought it was just too many runs to make up. I didn't tell the players really much of anything other than we would have to try and get the runs back three or four at a time."

After the first inning, the Mustangs scored in every frame. Coronado accounted single tallies in the second through fourth, and seventh innings, with 4 runs crossing the plate in both the fifth and sixth frames.

"The keys to the game were those dropped fly balls in right field," said Monahans coach Bren Holland. "You could see the momentum turning then."

The problem Holland referred occurred in the bottom of the fifth inning. With two out, Coronado left fielder Sam Law hit would seemed to be a routine fly ball to right. However, the ball disappeared in the sun and bounced out of Lobo right-fielder John Bourissa's glove allowing Ricky Powell to score the second Mustang run of the inning. Coronado had two more runners cross the plate before the inning ended.

Powell, the fourth pitcher Coronado used, got the win. Powell (1-2) traveled four innings without allowing a run, struck out two and gave up three hits. Pena, who took over for starter Johnny Grimes in the sixth, was charged with the loss. He's 0-1.

Monahans sent 13 batters to the plate during the 8-run rally in the second. Four Lobo batters socked doubles during the eight-hit inning.

The win raises the Mustangs' record to 9-5. Today, Monahans and Coronado will play a doubleheader at the Coronado High School field. The first game will start at 1 p.m.

Monterey Baseballers Roll 13-3

PECOS (Special) — Randy Ledbetter and Steve Coleman each drove in 3 runs and Kent Potts scattered six hits as the Monterey Plainsmen easily defeated the Pecos Eagles 13-3 Friday afternoon in a nondistrict baseball game called because of the 10-run rule.

Monterey, which defeated the Eagles at Lowrey Field earlier this week 14-4, took control of the contest in the second inning with 6 runs.

Monterey and Pecos will return to action today in a doubleheader. The action gets underway at 1 p.m. The Plainsmeen will take a 9-3 record into the competition.

If Monterey is able to sweep the twinbill, the Plainsmen will start the district season next week riding the heals of a six-game winning streak. The Plainsmen will face Lubbock High in the loop opener at Mackenzie Park.

CARDS MAKE CHANGES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals optioned shortstop Mike Ramsey and pitcher John Fulgham to the National League team's Springfield, Ill., farm club Friday and released pitcher Jim Willoughby. A team spokesman said the cuts reduced the club's roster to 29 players. Four more players still must be cut to reach the 25-player limit by opening day.

LHS Golfer Leads Locals At Amarillo

AMARILLO (Special) — Lubbock High's Cindy Wolfe turned out to be the low girl on the totum pole Friday — that is she turned out to be the lowest round among Lubbock competitors in the Amarillo Girls Golf Relays and the only A team Hub City golfer to qualify for the second round of tournament play today.

El Paso Coronado gave the best team showing as it finished the day's play with a first-place total of 350. The Amarillo High Sandies took possession of second place after closing out the round with a 336. But no Lubbock teams were among the six lowest scores which qualified for today's finals.

The Coronado A team added up a total of 422 for the ninth position and the Monterey Plainswomen took the 12th spot with a 471.

Cross-City Rivals Set For Another Rematch

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The two quickly are becoming Lubbock's answer to Frick and Frack, or Nip and Tuck.

Last week, they were Pete and Repeat, as both recorded a 10.5 (100-meter time) in the short dash at their respective track meets. So naturally they found themselves listed in the group of the state's top high school sprinters, with a converted time of 9.7 in the 100-yard dash.

Only seven runners in the state have traveled the distance faster than the two Lubbock products.

However, both will be out to change that today when they go head-to-head at the Indian Relays in Seminole.

The two have started quite a rivalry already this year. However, Humphrey currently holds a slight 2-0 advantage in the one-one-one competition. The Matador sprinter edged Isaacs (Dunbar) at the Lubbock Invitational 10 flat to 10.1.

Then at the City Meet, two weeks back, Humphrey was first with a 9.8, while Isaacs placed third, running a 10.0. Kelvin White of EHS turned in a 9.9 on the cold, windy night to place second and separate the pair. And last week, on separate runways, they tied.

That means, Humphrey holds about a three-step margin over Isaacs after three races. Or, not that much.

While Estacado and Dunbar are visiting the Seminole affair, Monterey, Coronado and Lubbock High will journey to Hobbs for a seven-team invitational meet. The Plainsmen are fresh off a team win at Big Spring, while CHS fared well last week — placing third behind Midland Lee and Hobbs — at the Mustang Relays in the Andrews.

Along with the Seminole and Hobbs meets, other South Plains track encounters include Friona, Plainview, Jayton and the Snyder girls' meet. Two-day affairs, which started Friday, will wind down at San Angelo and Amarillo, too.

It was the strong performance of Humphrey — who placed fifth in the long jump and ran legs on the winning EHS sprint and mile relay teams — that helped the Matadors to the team title at Andrews.

Prior to the start of the season, many expected this to be a down year for the traditionally powerful Matadors. But after faring well the past couple of weeks, that's changed. Even, EHS coach Percy Hines, admits things are coming around.

"We lost a lot of top people from the team (last year)," said Hines. "So I thought this would be a rebuilding year for us.

"But we've really been getting some good times from some kids. I think right now we are farther a long that we were at this time last year."

Any reasons why?

That certainly seems true of the EHS mile relay team which appears destined to break the 3:20 mark in the near future. According to Hines, if each member of the team brings his time down .7 seconds then that's exactly what will happen.

"I don't think there's any doubt that we'll get down there," said Hines. "It's just a matter of time."

PHIL HOOD

Hood Resigns Cage Position At Monterey

Monterey girls' basketball coach Phil Hood submitted his resignation to the Lubbock Independent School District Friday afternoon, according to assistant to the athletic director Hollis Gaines.

Hood is leaving Monterey to enter private business in Lubbock.

He has been the coach of MHS girls' basketball since the program began three years ago. The 38-year-old coach led MHS to a city championship in his first season, a district title and a trip to the state playoffs in 1978, and a district runnerup spot to Plainview last season.

SMU Netters Crush Raiders

DALLAS (Special)— Southern Methodist University, the nation's No. 1 tennis team, humbled the Texas Tech netters here Friday, defeating the Raiders 9-0.

Tech, now 8-8 and 0-1 in SWC play, will now try to even its conference mark when it travels to Waco to face Baylor today.

The Raiders' best match of the day came from Chow Wah, playing in the No. 2 singles position. Wah was defeated by Mark Turpin 7-5, 7-6.

"SMU is just so good," said Tech coach Mark Hamilton, with a trace of awe in his voice. "Just to give you an idea, Mark Vine — who won the SWC three years ago — is now playing in the No. 4 position. And Drew Gitlin, who was the Texas state champion last year, plays No. 5.

"But I think we've got a good chance against Baylor," added Hamilton. "They have the same team they had last year when they beat us 8-1. But we've got four new players from last year."

SMU 9, TEXAS TECH 0

Singles — Jai Dilouie, SMU, def. Doug Davis, 6-3, 6-1; Mark Turpin, SMU, def. Chow Wah 7-5, 7-6; Tom Cain, SMU def. Harrison Bowes, 6-4, 6-0; Mark Vine, SMU, def. David Chrissey, 6-4, 6-3; Drew Gitlin, SMU, def. Randy Clayton 6-3, 6-2; Jeff Turpin, SMU, def. Robert Davis, 6-3, 6-1.
Doubles — Dilouie-Turpin def. Davis-Bowes 7-6, 6-3; Cain-Vine,SMU, def. Chrissey-Wah, 6-3, 6-0; Turpin-Gitlin, SMU, def. Davis-Gregg Davis, 6-4, 6-2.

COACH NAMED

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ron Mason, a Canadian who never had a losing season as hockey coach at Bowling Green University in Ohio will take over as coach at Michigan State, it was announced. Mason, 39, replaces Amo Bessone, who is stepping down after 28 years.

Rain Hampers UT Net Meet

AUSTIN (Special) — The second round of the three-day University of Texas Women's Tennis Invitational was delayed for seven hours Friday due to heavy rains.

And when play finally resumed at 3:30 p.m. the Texas Tech women didn't fare that well. However, the Raiders did have three players advance to the consolation finals to be played today.

DIVISION II

Consolation — Colleen Blair, Northeast Louisiana, def. Sandra Carillo, Tech, 8-2; Maria Miranda, Lamar, def. Carrie Settree, 8-6. Championship — Blair-Scanlon, NE Louisiana, def. Settree-Cary Garton 6-2, 4-6, 6-0.

DIVISION III

Pearcy Sets Mark In Angelo Relays

SAN ANGELO (Special) — Van Pearcy of Andrews set a new record in the long jump at the San Angelo Relays Friday night by leaping 23-6.

However, the Mustangs still trailed Kerrville Tivy aftere first day of competition in the team-title race. Andrews scored 12 points, while Tivy leads the Division II compeition with 16 points. In all divisions, most of Friday's action was in the form of preliminaries. Only a few events were finaled, in field events.

In the Division I team race, San Angelo Central and Midland Lee both recorded 12 points each. Breckenridge tops Division II with 30 points, while Lazbuddie tops the small school race with 16 points, thanks primarily on the first-place finish of Charleson Steinbock in the pole vault.

The two-day competition will conclude today with the finals in the running events.

Fifty-six teams are competing for team and individual titles.

NHL Accepts Four WHA Franchises

NEW YORK (AP) — Hockey's civil war ended Friday. The National Hockey League voted in favor of an expansion which would accept the New England Whalers, Quebec Nordiques, Winnipeg Jets and Edmonton Oilers for next season — effectively ending the turbulent seven-year history of the World Hockey Association.

"No matter what business you're in, any time when you've been at war and see peace at hand, it's got to be gratifying," said NHL president John Ziegler at a joint news conference with WHA president Howard Baldwin. "I'm happy to see that the effort both leagues have put into fighting each other now will be channeled into the development of our sport in North America.

"I look at this not as the end of the WHA but as the threshold of the rejuvenation of hockey in North America."

The WHA was born with 12 franchises in the 1972-73 season, with each franchise costing only $25,000. For the right to come into the NHL, each of the four expansion clubs will pay $6 million and make equal contribution toward the total of $6.35 million in closedown costs required to put the Cincinnati Stingers and Birmingham Bulls out of business.

"I feel for them (Birmingham and Cincinnati)," said Jack Kelly, the Whalers' director of hockey operations. "But I fully expect their good players will be gainfully employed, and where the cities are concerned, I wouldn't be surprised to find them at a high level of minor league competition next season."

The four incoming clubs will boost the NHL complement to 21 teams, 16 of which will make the playoffs, and will force a moderate realignment in the four current NHL divisions.

Winnipeg and Edmonton will join the Smythe Division with Chicago, St. Louis, Vancouver and Colorado, while Quebec will enter the Adams Division with Boston, Buffalo, Toronto and Minnesota.

New England will join the Norris Division with Montreal, Detroit, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, while the Washington Capitals — current residents of the Norris Division — shift to the Patrick Division with the New York Islanders, New York Rangers, Philadelphia and Atlanta.

The teams will play a balanced 80-game schedule in 1979-80, with each club paying two visits to each of the 20 other arenas. While that will interrupt the rivalries built by this year's unbalanced schedule, there was little doubt that a similar unbalanced schedule would be implemented in future seasons.

For now, though, there is satisfaction enough that the NHL finally has taken positive action on the matter which met four negative votes in the past three years.

"I don't feel very good about it," said Toronto president Harold Ballard, an outspoken foe of the WHA since its inception. "But in unity, there is strength."

An imposing force, the NHL Players Association, has not yet voiced its approval of the expansion. The players are empowered to void their collective bargaining agreement with the owners if a "merger" takes place, but Ziegler said Friday he had met with NHLPA director Alan Eagleson and expressed "great faith" that the matter would be resolved to the satisfaction of both parties.

Meanwhile, implementation of the expansion would take this form:

The incoming clubs would stock their franchises through an expansion draft June 13. They would protect two skaters and two goalies, with other players reverting to the NHL clubs who own their rights.

Players not fitting those categories would go into the draft pool. Ongoing NHL teams then would compile protected lists of 15 skaters and two goalies, with remaining players joining the grab bag.

First-year players would be exempt from selection.

Each of the four teams then would choose, at $125,000 per pick, until their rosters numbered 15 skaters and two goalies. No NHL team would lose more than four players.

Rapp Named A&M Women's Cage Coach

COLLEGE STATION, (UPI) — Texas A&M officials Friday announced the hiring of Cherri Rapp to coach the Aggies' women's basketball team.

"We are very pleased to have a coach with the credentials Cherri possesses to join our staff," said A&M athletic director Marvin Tate. "Not only are we impressed with her background in women's basketball, but she had a strong desire to come to Texas A&M."

Miss Rapp had been coach of the women's team at North Texas State and was a former star for the two-time national champion Wayland Baptist Flying Queens.

Baker Leads Stock Car Qualifying Run

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Buddy Baker, returning after a year's absence to one of the few short tracks on which he enjoys racing, took the pole position with a track record qualifying speed Friday for Sunday's $110,000 Southeastern 500 Grand National stock car race.

Baker earned his third pole position in seven races so far this season with a speed of 111.668 mph around the .533-mile Bristol International Speedway oval.

That beat Lennie Pond's previous record of 110.958 mph by .101 of a second set last August, and it edged defending Southeastern 500 champion Darrell Waltrip by .088 of a second.

Waltrip, who qualified a few cars ahead of Baker, hit 111.099 mph. They were the only two over the old record.

"Darrell asked me before I went out, 'You're gonna run second, aren't you?'" Baker said. "I told him we were running pretty good, and asked how fast. I told him about a 17.10 (seconds). He said, 'If you run a 17.10, I'll eat my stopwatches.'

"Well, I saved him dinner, but not by much."

Baker's speed came out to 17.192 seconds.

"We had run about 17.30 in practice, but I knew once we stopped up the front end and all the things the crew does to make it faster in qualifying we could do a little better," Baker added. "This is really the mechanics' race today. Sunday it's the drivers' race."

Sunday's noon CST race will be the 21st start of Baker's career here; he has yet to win.

"I've got the best chance I ever have had to win — being on the pole is an indication of that," Baker said.

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — The qualifiers Friday at Bristol International Raceway for Sunday's $110,000 Southeastern 500 Grand National stock car race, with type of car and qualifying speed in mph:

1. Buddy Baker, Chevrolet, 111.668
2. Darrell Waltrip, Chevrolet, 111.099
3. Donnie Allison, Chevrolet, 110.632
4. Bobby Allison, Ford, 110.333
5. Cale Yarborough, Oldsmobile, 110.324
6. Benny Parsons, Oldsmobile, 110.055
7. J.D. McDuffie, Chevrolet, 110.042
8. Dave Marcis, Chevrolet, 109.048
9. Dale Earnhardt, Chevrolet, 108.955
10. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet, 108.856

Remember These Old Hockey Favorites?

NEW YORK (AP) — Though the World Hockey Association will complete its regular season and playoffs, only four of its current six teams will join the National Hockey League next season.

The demise of the Cincinnati Stingers and the Birmingham Bulls would raise to 26 the number of WHA franchises which have come and gone.

For the trivia-minded, here is a list of departed WHA franchises:

The Stingers, Bulls, Indianapolis Racers, Minnesota Fighting Saints, "new" Minnesota Fighting Saints, Vancouver Blazers, Philadelphia Blazers, Jersey Knights, New York Golden Blades, New York Raiders, Ottawa Civics, Ottawa Nationals, Toronto Toros, Houston Aeros, San Diego Mariners, Phoenix Roadrunners, Los Angeles Sharks, Michigan Stags, Baltimore Blades, Calgary Cowboys, Denver Spurs, Cleveland Crusaders and Chicago Cougars.

Added to that list are three clubs which never got off the ground: the Miami Screaming Eagles, the Dayton Gems and a San Francisco franchise.

Champs Gain 7-B Honors

Included in the list are Jim Pole, Jim Avery, Kelly Doshier and Roger Kedding, all of Whitharral. Also, Jarrol Layton and Ken Eubanks of Three Way and Larry Henderson of Sundown rated all-district honors.

On the girl's team were Belinda Richardson, Tammy Davis, Rene Cooley and Elnora Peacock of Three Way, Sundown's Robi Carpenter, Bledsoe's Shari Hale and Leesa Bilbrey, and Whitharral's Kristen Corkey and Roxanne Polk.

White Sox Put Blomberg On Waivers

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Ron Blomberg, in the second year of a four-year, $600,000 contract, was placed on irrevocable waivers Friday by the Chicago White Sox.

"I'm poorer but not wiser," said White Sox owner Bill Veeck, who signed the injury-plagued Blomberg as a free agent before the 1978 season.

Keeping Blomberg, Veeck said, "would be compounding a stupidity. You may not grin but you bear it. It's not the first mistake I've made, nor, I am certain, the last."

Blomberg, a designated hitter-first baseman with a career batting average of .293, was placed on waivers for the purpose of giving him an unconditional release. The White Sox asked him to report to their Triple A team at Iowa, but he refused.

Before the waivers expire next Thursday, any team in either league can put in a claim for Blomberg. After that, he becomes a free agent and can negotiate for himself.

If no team picks him up, the White Sox would be responsible for paying off his contract.

Veeck said no other teams expressed interest in Blomberg. "He and I remain the only two people in the country that think he can hit," Veeck added.

Blomberg, who was the No. 1 choice in the 1967 baseball draft, came to the majors with the New York Yankees in 1969 and remained with them through 1977. He missed the entire 1977 campaign with injuries and batted only twice in 1976 when he had a shoulder injury.

After signing the no-cut, no-trade contract with the White Sox, he began the 1978 season with promise, winning the opening-day game with a homer. But injuries again slowed him down and he came to bat just 156 times, hitting .231 with five homers and 22 RBIs in 61 games.

SHORT SHORTSTOP — Chicago White Sox rookie shortstop Harry Chappas signs autographs for fans before an exhibition game with the Cincinnati Reds at Payne Park in Sarasota, Fla. One tall fan, in the background, finds the height relationship amusing, but Chappas, who stands only 5-foot-3, doesn't think his height should have anything to do with his ability to play the game. He also takes the constant kidding about his size with good humor. (AP Laserphoto)

City Softball Under Way

Area men's softball teams will resume tournament action at 8 a.m. today in the second day of the Lubbock Men's Pre-Season Slow Pitch Tournament.

Sixty-four teams entered the affair which began Friday night and will conclude with the championship game at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Until that title contest, however, games will be played non-stop throughout the city. Four of the teams entered are from Amarillo while most of the rest are from the Lubbock area.

The tournament reached a new high in terms of according to the directors of the city affair.

More than 35 teams had to be turned away from competing once 64 teams had entered.

'Stand-Pat Royals' Tag Holds For KC In '79

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City fans will have no problem recognizing the Royals this season. The same nine starters who lost to the New York Yankees in the final American League playoff game in October will open the season Thursday night against Toronto.

Front-office types have always detested the label, "the Stand-Pat Royals," but this year, more than ever, it seems to fit.

And even manager Whitey Herzog says it's difficult to favor the Royals in the Western Division since California has acquired Rod Carew's magic bat.

"If you're honest about it, the Angels should win," Herzog said. "But they have to beat us. Carew would help anybody. If the Angels all play up to their potential, there might not be a tight race. But they've still got to win it on the field."

Several regulars must shake an assortment of ailments and post-operative problems if the Royals are to keep pace with the 92-70 record that bested the Angels and Texas Rangers by five games in '78.

As Herzog prepared to break spring camp, the infield consisted of Darrell Porter behind the plate, Pete LaCock and John Wathan alternating at first base, Frank White at second, Fred Patek at shortstop and George Brett at third.

Porter's throwing arm has been sore all spring, Brett is coming off thumb surgery, McRae sat out much of the spring after shoulder surgery, and Patek, with a sore shoulder, has been throwing to first base on one bounce.

Nowhere do the Royals look more solid than on the mound. Righthander Dennis Leonard, a 20-game winner last year, will open against Toronto. The other starters will be Rich Gale, 10-11 last year, and lefthanders Paul Splittorff, 19-13, and Larry Gura, 16-4.

Steve Busby, still on the comeback trail after shoulder and knee surgery sidetracked his promising ccareer two years ago, has won a job but will likely not start until the team moves into Boston for a three-game series in late April. Busby's control is spotty, but the biggest concern, his velocity, has been a pleasant surpise.

Al Hrabosky and Steve Mingori return as the lefthanded relievers, but the righthanded bullpen jobs loomed as perhaps Herzog's most difficult decisions. Thirty-six-year-old Marty Pattin has pitched like he was 10 years younger in competition with Doug Bird, George Throop and Ed Rodriguez.

Herzog may decide to keep 10 pitchers and put utility man Jerry Terrell, still limping with a late-season ankle injury, on the disabled list.

One spring experiment that didn't work out was moving Otis, a gold glove winner in centerfield, to first base. This would have opened center for Wilson, who Herzog believes could steal 100 bases if he played regularly and could get to first.

"The more I thought about it, the more I realized how much we rely on defense to win," Herzog said. "We were taking the best centerfielder in the American League, a guy who never makes any fundamental mistakes, and moving him to a new position. But this does not elmiminate Willie from being in the lineup."

Depending on what turns up, the Hurdle-Wilson combination may be a day-to-day decision. If the team is hitting well, Herzog may play Wilson in left for his speed. Both expect to play quite a bit.

The bench may be the most versatile it's ever been. Second-year infielder U.L. Washington, another speed-burner, filled in at third base while Brett's thumb was recuperting, and can also play second base and shortstop.

Jamie Quirk, re-acquired from Milwaukee, has seen duty as backup catcher, third baseman, shortstop and first baseman.

"We're in a division that's spent the most money in baseball, with teams trying to help themselves," said Herzog. "And we're getting in a position where we're never favored to win. They keep spending millions. People don't think of us as not winning. They think of us as not beating the Yankees, but I'm too worried about the Angels, Minnesota and Texas to worry about the Yankees."

Despite three successive setbacks to the Yankees, season ticket sales are up for the third straight year. About 12,000 were sold this season, up from 10,000 in 1978. But Herzog is under no illusions.

"Actually, it's not really a 'wait til next year' type thing,'" he said. "We won our division."

Cincinnati Edges Astros

By The Associated Press

Ron Oester's bases-loaded base hit in the thirteenth inning gave Cincinnati a 2-1 victory over Houston in an exhibition baseball game at Tampa, Fla., Friday.

Each team scored a lone run in the second inning.

Jose Cruz had a leadoff single for Houston and scored on a sacrifice fly by Allan Ashby. For Cincinnati, Champ Summers reached base on a fielder's choice, then scored on a base hit by Ray Knight.

Tom Seaver pitched seven innings for Cincinnati, giving up six hits and one run. Doug Capilla pitched the last three innings allowing just two hits to get the victory.

The Reds made another squad cut Friday, sending pitcher Dan Dumoulin back to their minor league complex. Cincinnati now has 32 players in camp, seven more than the opening day limit.

At Mesa, Ariz., Mike Krukow gave up just one run in five innings in pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Krukow, recovering from a back injury suffered while shoveling snow after compiling a 9-3 record last season, struck out the side in the first inning and finished with six strikeouts. He had been in two 'B' games prior to the start.

"I'm not realy happy, though," he said. "I couldn't get the ball in. That's my strength, jamming people."

Bill Buckner's third-inning home run became the winning blow after Dave Kingman hit a two-run homer in a three-run Chicago first. Both homers came off San Francisco's loser, Vida Blue.

"I don't think Vida's ready yet," Buckner said.

At Winter Haven, Fla., Right-hander Bob Stanley pitched eight strong innings in his final Florida tuneup and George Scott lined his third spring homer in the Boston Red Sox' 9-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Stanley, who had a 15-2 record mainly as a reliever last season, prepared for a start in Cleveland April 8 by handcuffing the Cardinals on four hits.

The only St. Louis run was unearned, scored in the third on an infield hit, Stanley's throwing error, a wild pitch and an infield out.

Stanley struck out six and walked only two before giving way to Allen Ripley, who retired three batters in order in the ninth.

The Red Sox scored seven runs off Bob Sykes. Designated hitter Butch Hobson drove in three runs with a pair of singles, while Scott scored three times on two walks and his homer.

At Tempe, Ariz., Glenn Abbott tuned up for his expected opening night starting assignment with six shutout innings and Bobby Valentine had two extra base hits and scored two runs as the Seattle Mariners defeated the Oakland A's 3-0.

Abbott and relievers John Montague and Rafael Vasquez combined for a three-hitter as the Mariners broke a six-game losing streak.

The only hits allowed by Abbott, who is tentatively slated to start the regular season opener against the California Angels Wednesday night, were two singles by Glenn Burke.

Bruce Bochte singled home Seattle's first run in the fourth inning off losing pitcher Rick Langford. Valentine, picked up by Seattle this week after he was cut by the New York Mets, tripled in the fifth inning and scored on a single by Joe Simpson.

Pete Mackanin singled with the bases loaded in the last of the 10th inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 win over the Detroit Tigers at Clearwater, Fla.

Rookie Lonnie Smith began the inning against Aurelio Lopez with a triple to right center field. Following an infield out, the Tigers intentionally walked Tim McCarver and Del Unser before Mackanin delivered the game-winning hit.

Pitcher Nino Espinosa made his first start in a Phillies uniform since being acquired from the New York Mets in a trade earlier in the week. He allowed one run on five hits in six innings of work.

The run came in the first inning on a walk to Jerry Morales and singles by Jason Thompson and Steve Kemp. The Phillies tied the game in the fourth on a walk, single and run-scoring infield out by Bake McBride.

At Sarasota, Fla., The Chicago White Sox tagged Gene Pentz for six runs in the seventh inning and defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-2.

Loyola's New Coach Quits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Mulligan, who was appointed head basketball coach at Loyola University last Tuesday, announced Friday he would be unable to guide the team next season.

Mulligan, 49, cited personal problems as the reason for his decision to resign as coach three days after signing a contract with Loyola.

Athletic director Richard Baker said a new coach would be named next Monday.

"Unfortunately, problems of health within my family are such that I would not be able to fulfil my responsibilities as a family man if I continued at Loyola," said Mulligan. "The time demands of heading up a major college program are too great.

"I wish the university well and know they will find a very capable replacement."

Mulligan was named to succeed Dave Benaderet, who resigned as the Loyola coach Feb. 7. Benaderet coached the Lions for six seasons. The team was 5-21 during the past season.

Mulligan was the head coach at Saddleback Community College in Mission Viejo, Calif., for the past four seasons. There was no announcement as to Mulligan's future plans.

Burt Reynolds Look-Alike Weathers Situation With Equanimity

DOUBLE TAKE — Gary Richardson of Houston is a medical equipment salesman and a Burt Reynolds look-a-like that has gotten Richardson on national television talk shows and a two week contract at a Las Vegas night club. (AP Laserphoto)

HOUSTON (AP)— Gary Bun Richardson gave a familiar shrug, flashed a familiar smile and said of Burt Reynolds, "Hell, he looks like me. I'm two years older and had a mustache long time before he did."

The resemblence between the famed actor and the heart pacemaker salesman from Houston is spooky.

The only tipoff that you are in a conversation with Richardson and not chatting with Burt is the Texas twang in the voice.

The facial expressions, the movements, the walk, the shirt with a couple of buttons unbuttoned are things you have seen scores of time on the television and movie screens and seeing again in the townhouse in the southwestern suburbs of Houston.

Richardson, 44, father of three teen-age daughters and recently a grandfather, admitted in a recent interview he enjoyed the look-alike attention but sure wasn't counting on it to make a living.

"I'm selling pacemakers and I will sell pacemakers to pay the bills and raise the two daughters still at home and help support the wife and feed the dog," he said.

But, the almost mirror image of Reynolds has brought Richardson some show business work, a couple of television commercials and a determination to develop a comedy act of his own.

"The look-alike is what you can call a hook," he said. "It gets you started, but you can't go with that alone. I am now in an amateur comedy workshop in Houston, writing my own material, and hoping I can really do it as Bun Richardson."

Dressed in a light blue mod cowboy outfit with a pair of sea turtle boots, Richardson said his wife of 22 years "just takes it in stride" when the women flock around for his autograph or to have a picture taken with him.

Does the wife think he looks like Burt?

"Naw, I don't think so. Golly, when you been married 22 years you don't really look at each other unless there's an argument going."

Richardson said sometimes his daughters "bring around some of the young boys who want to see if I really look like Burt. Now in those cases, you must remember one thing–give them a hard, hard handshake, one they won't forget."

The whole thing started about 15 years ago when Reynolds was appearing as a half-breed blacksmith on the Gunsmoke series.

"I was in Alamagordo, N.M., and this waitress came over and said I looked like Burt Reynolds and I said, 'Who the hell is Burt Reynolds?'"

From then on the Richardson-Reynolds show was on the road.

Last year, while visiting Las Vegas, Richardson had an opportunity to meet Reynolds and thought, "I don't look like that."

Reynolds told Richardson, "Have fun, but don't ever be rude and if you get trapped by the ladies, do me well."

Richardson answered, "I already have."

As the Houston salesman recalls, "Then I had a session with old Jack Daniels, black label, and decided to audition for the Gong Show. They took me and I scored a 10, a nine and an eight and lost."

Later, he consented to do a look-alike skit in Charo's Las Vegas act. He had a two-week run, getting all expenses plus $500 a week. Richardson called it his paid vacation.

He said it was fun walking around the swimming at Vegas with the folks thinking he was Reynolds.

"But when they approached me, I always told them the truth — I was just old Gary Bun Richardson from Houston, Texas. If they wanted an autograph, I signed BR. That's for Bun Richardson."

By the way, Bun isn't a nickname. It's on his birth certificate, thanks to a grandfather named Bun.

There was one time up in Dallas, during a medical convention, that Bun went into a Western wear store to buy a hat similiar to the one worn by Reynolds in the movie "Smokey and the Bandit."

"Someone went into the bar next door and told some people Burt Reynolds was in the store and before long there was a crowd outside wanting to get autographs. There was even one guy out there who said he wanted to punch me. Finally someone called the police, they came and got me out of there."

Richardson said he wasn't always so receptive to fame.

"Listen, in high school, I was so bashful I'd call a girl for a date and hope to hell she wouldn't answer and if she did I would hang up.

"And then I changed and became the life of the parties. You know, I did real funny things like putting a lamp shade on my head," he said.

Now Bun the pacemaker salesman is Bun the Burt and he hopes soon to be Bun the comic.

Area Spelling Bee Event Set

County winners from 18 area counties will participate in today's Lubbock Regional Spelling Bee at 1 p.m. in Moody Auditorium on the Lubbock Christian College campus.

Dwarfs Display Bare Bottoms

MIDDLETOWN, N.J. (UPI) — Doc did it. Dopey did it. Grumpy did it. Happy did it. Sleepy did it. Sneezy did it.

Bashful was bashful. He didn't do it.

What six of the Seven Dwarfs in the Middletown North High School play did was bare their bottoms at the audience at the end of a Snow White skit during last Saturday night's annual student-faculty frolic.

School officials said the stunt was "a spontaneous act on the part of some students."

Peter Smith, assistant principal at the Monmouth County school, called the incident "misplaced humor," and said next year's frolic has been canceled.

He then handed out suspensions ranging from one to three days, the last ending today.

The student playing Bashful was not suspended.

Target Prices Of Corn, Wheat, Cotton Eyed For Increase

COTTON MARKETING — Electronically classing and marketing cotton was observed Friday at the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association by a group of U. S. representatives and marketing specialists. Explaining the classing device to the group is PCCA General Manager C. L. Boggs. From the left are Reps. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Charles Rose of North Carolina, Barbara Schlei, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford. (Staff Photo).

Target prices for corn, wheat and cotton are expected to be recommended for increases by House Agriculture subcommittees, according to U. S. Reps. Charles Rose of North Carolina and Kent Hance of Lubbock.

The two congressmen along with Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Barbara Schlei, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, were in Lubbock Friday to tour various agricultural industries.

"I'm optimistic that the bill to raise target prices for corn and wheat will be approved Wedneseay by the subcommittee," Rose said. Rose is chairman of the House subcommittee on livestock and grains.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Glenn English of Oklahoma, calls for a wheat target of $3.63 a bushel and a corn target of $2.35 a bushel.

The legislators visited the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association to view the electronic marketing system, Telcot.

"I believe the Telcot system is a pioneer showing the way to electronically market other farm commodities to the benefit of both the buyer and the seller," Rose said, "and for better efficiency and higher financial return."

Rose said the government should consider the system for other farm products not as a regulator of the program, but to encourage it for private enterprises.

A hearing on cotton policies is expected to take place in about two weeks, according to Hance.

"There will be an effort to increase the target price for cotton," Hance said. "A small increase in the loan rate may also be considered."

The group also toured the Lubbock Feedlots and the denim mill owned by American Cotton Growers at Littlefield.

By DUANE HOWELL

A GRAIN COMPANY EXECUTIVE warned this week that nearby corn surpluses from the record 1978 crop could cloud the fact that 1979-80 demand could exceed production.

Bernard Steinweg, executive vice president of the North American Grain Division of Continental Grain Co., told the eighth International Commodities Conference at Chicago that the record 7.1-billion-bushel corn crop of 1978 has obscured a record utilization of about 6.6 billion bushels.

A corn crop of 6.5-6.6 billion bushels in 1979 would be below potential utilization, Steinweg said.

"We are presently forecasting a 1979-80 demand of about 6.9 billion bushels," he said. "Any reduction in supply could affect market availabilities and necessitate the release of corn held in the grain reserve."

SUPPORTING HIS VIEW OF STRONG DEMAND for next season, Steinweg reviewed current corn usage requirements.

"Domestic usage will be up for two reasons," he predicted. "Industrial usage continues to gain primarily because of growth in the wet milling sector. Feed consumption, the most important component, should be up more than 10 percent from a year ago."

The livestock consumption base — grain consuming animal units — is up about 6 percent, Steinweg said.

"Amount fed per animal has increased primarily because of highly favorable livestock-feed price relationships," he said. "We also will feed less wheat."

CONCERNING THE EXPORT MARKET, Steinweg noted that there are both "negative and positive factors."

He explained that France and Thailand will have larger exports of corn than a year earlier. On the other hand, South Africa and Brazil have experienced serious drought. In fact, Brazil, normally an exporter of corn, could be an importer for the second straight year.

The Soviet market will take less than the 11 million tons of U. S. corn a year ago, with exports more on the order of 7 million tons, the grain executive said.

"We also expect U. S. corn exports to the European Common Market to be down due to the larger French corn crop and to greater overall Common Market production of all grains — wheat and barley, as well as corn."

STEINWEG POINTED TO THE CHINESE market as one of the most positive elements in the entire export picture. "We expect U. S. corn exports to that destination to be between 3 million and 4 million tons." he said.

Exports also will increase to Eastern Europe, Spain, Taiwan, South Korea and the Western Hemisphere, especially Mexico, due in part to reduced domestic production in some areas or reduced availabilities from traditional suppliers. The most striking factor, Steinweg believes, is simply an overall growth in use of feed grains.

Steinweg said world surplus coarse grain stocks are located chiefly in North America. He said the surplus situation here is not indicative of most of the remainder of the world.

"Crop difficulties elsewhere, as well as here, would reverse decisively world stock building in coarse grains," he said.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures declined while wheat and corn futures were mostly higher Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Forecasts of rain in the Corn Belt and heavier-than-usual precipitation for the next 30 days led to buying in corn, as traders speculated that unusually wet fields could delay preparations for planting.

A government report showing larger-than-expected export shipments of corn at 942,000 tons during the week of March 18 also were a supporting factor, analysts said.

Cattle Futures Go Up

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 5 to 95 points higher with the exception of distant June at 5 lower Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 31,035 cars. June and August were up the most at the day's highs. The market rallied after a loss of 35.

Aggressive evening up ahead of the week and month end and Monday's first delivery day made for hectic trade. Support came on improved tone to cash cattle and beef and on the belief that a trucker strike will be averted.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 102½ to 104½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with the best top $73.50 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 111,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 15,900 head on Monday.

Feeder cattle futures closed 65 to 105 higher led by August after April and May gained the 150 limit. Sales totaled 6,174 lots.

The market rallied after April fell 90.

Evening-up ahead of the end of the month and Monday's first delivery day made for erratic trade. Support was derived from firmer tone to cattle and beef and optimism in regard to the trucker labor situation.

There have been 765 deliveries thus far. About 1,900 head are expected on Monday at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 37 higher to 20 lower on sales of 6,001 contracts. February was up the most while August showed the largest loss.

Fluctuations in live cattle futures contributed to unsettled trade. Good support came on light hog runs and higher prices following the recent strings of losses. Some technical buying was also noted.

Wholesale hams were up 1½ to 3 cents at 79 to 86½ cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up $1 to $2.50 with the best top $47.50 per hundredweight in Sioux City. Kill was 275,000 head. Receipts at the major markets are expected to total 32,000 head on Monday.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 27 higher to 2 lower with July at both extremes. Volume was 3,665 cars. Earlier, May was up 112 and off 57.

Erratic trade followed similar action in other meat pits in month and weekend evening up. The setback forced prices to the lowest since July with softness in midweight bellies at noon a factor. Light hog runs brought early demand.

Deliveries total 79 thus far. Wholesale bacon was off ½ to 1 cent at 48 to 50 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Famed Radio Team On 'Saturday Night'

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8824

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — Could it be that "Bob and Ray & Jane, Laraine and Gilda" is just what Mssrs. Elliott and Goulding have been looking for?

"We want to do 'The Calvin Coolidge Story,' and maybe this will give us the impetus," Goulding — Ray to you — says.

"This'll wrap it up," Bob Elliott suggests.

Indeed, it is "Bob and Ray" of radio fame, joined by Jane Curtin, Laraine Newman and Gilda Radner from NBC's "Saturday Night Live" for 90 minutes of nearly nonstop comedy. Nearly nonstop because they've got Grammy-winner Willie Nelson for a tune or two.

The comedy special, "Bob and Ray & Jane, Laraine and Gilda," airs tonight night in the "SNL" time slot, 10:30 CST.

"We do all routines we've done for years," Elliott says, "and I think they work well in this show. As long as we've been doing these things, we've had kids as fans. They're always writing for tickets.

"So we're not unknown to the people who watch 'Saturday Night Live.' They seem to like the droll kind of stuff we do."

Elliott and Goulding have been at it for years, since 1946 in fact, when they teamed up as "Bob and Ray" at Boston's WHDH. Bob had the morning record show, and Ray broadcast the news each hour.

"We were on the same wavelength," Goulding says, "and these things just sort of developed naturally."

"Bob and Ray" moved to New York and NBC in 1951, bringing with them a number of the characters they had developed in Boston — people like Wally Ballou, Kate McGoon and Tex Blaisdell.

They had a morning show on the network's flagship station, WNBC, and a 15-minute network program every Saturday night. There was a "Bob and Ray Show" on television for several months in 1951 or '52.

Bob and Ray brought their act to NBC radio's weekend "Monitor" program, and spent eight years there, doing live comedy.

"We were in the studio every weekend," Goulding says, "and whenever there was a technical problem somewhere along the line, they called on us to keep things going."

"We did crossword puzzles most of the time," Elliott says. "They'd give us a rundown of the show, and we'd talk about routines that might be related to what the others were doing. But when they threw it to us, most of the time, we just started talking. We had fictitious studio tours and things like that."

They spent a couple of years on the Mutual radio network, a year at CBS and three years doing the evening drive-time show for New York's WOR.

Elliott and Goulding have a Broadway play to their credit, "Bob and Ray — The Two and Only," a book containing scripts of some of their best-known routines, and they were in a movie, "Cold Turkey," in which they played Walter Cronkite, David Brinkley and Arthur Godfrey.

They spend a good deal of their time today on commercials — recently and notably one for American Express.

In the NBC special, broadcast live, they appear, variously, as Dr. Derrell Dexter, the Komodo dragon expert, reporting on the world's largest lizard; as Wally Ballou, winner of over 13 diction awards, with a fast-breaking news story from Times Square on cranberry-growing, and as Elmer Litzinger, a loose-lipped spy in an Eastern European country.

'Boulevard Nights' Studies Youth Gangs Of East Los Angeles

Filmeter is compiled by Dick Kleiner in Hollywood and the N.E.A. staff in both Hollywood and New York.

NEW RELEASE

BOULEVARD NIGHTS (R) — Richard Yniquez, Marta DuBois, Danny De La Paz. Drama. Interesting but uneven character study of Mexican-American youths in East Los Angeles. Classic strong brother-weak brother story wrapped around gang warfare. Standout performance by newcomer De La Paz. Caution: some strong language, violence. GRADE: B-minus (Handler)

GENERAL RELEASE

THE CHINA SYNDROME (PG) — Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Michael Douglas. Thriller. This is a "what if" story — what if there was a malfunction in a nuclear power plant, and what if the gal TV news reporter sniffed it out, and what if the nuclear scientist didn't find it, and what if the power company brass tried to cover it up? It leaves you wondering — what if a real one had a flaw and blew up and left a hole in the sand clear down to China? GRADE: B-plus.

THE DEER HUNTER (R) — Robert DeNiro, John Cazale, John Savage, Meryl Streep, Christopher Walken. Drama. This is a powerful, memorable look at three Pennsylvania steel workers who go off to fight in Vietnam. Director Michael Cimino has created images you may never forget. It is too long and some of it is forced, but it remains a classic film. GRADE: A.

THE GREAT BANK HOAX (PG) — Richard Basehart, Ned Beatty, Charlene Dallas, Burgess Meredith, Michael Murphy and Paul Sand. Drama? Small-town bank officials discover they've been embezzled and stage a robbery to cover it up. It isn't a comedy, nor is it a heist film. It's just flat and obvious, and a waste of good acting talent. GRADE: C-minus. (Handler)

THE LAST WAVE — Richard Chamberlain, Gulpilil. Suspense drama. This compelling, well-paced thriller is an Australian product directed by Peter Weir. Chamberlain, as a Sydney tax lawyer, is mysteriously drawn into a criminal case involving a gang of aborigines. What follows is a fascinating study of tribal culture — and an entertaining movie that misses a few payoffs but ultimately satisfies. GRADE: B-plus (Booth)

MURDER BY DECREE (PG) — Christopher Plummer, James Mason, David Hemmings, Susan Clark. Mystery. Sherlock Holmes vs. Jack the Ripper, but the issue is clouded with red herrings (radicals and psychics, etc.). Director Bob Clark tries hard to create a mood, but the mood is misty and the total effect is a film that is tedious. GRADE: C-plus.

NORMA RAE (PG) — Sally Field, Ron Leibman, Beau Bridges. Drama. Forget the drab title, this is a grabber of a movie. It's about the attempts — by a union organizer from New York and his ally, a little Southern gal — to organize a tough textile mill in the South. Director Martin Ritt must be commended not only for what he did, but for what he didn't do — he didn't seize on the obvious cliches, and so he has a warm, surprising film. GRADE: B-plus.

ON THE YARD (R) — John Heard, Mike Kellin, Thomas Waites. Drama. A prison drama that escapes the confines of a cliched setting. Plot and characters unfold gradually, showing how each of a varied group of cons comes to be his own victim. A nod to acting, directing and editing. Caution: strong, language, some violence. GRADE: A-minus (O'Brien).

THE WARRIORS (R) — Michael Beck, James Remar, Thomas Waites. Drama. Street gang action — it's "West Side Story" without soul and "A Clockwork Orange" without brains. But...the actors' bluster, the violence choreographed more for bravura than blood, and the New York subway settings combine for one great, visually arresting spectacle. Perversely fascinating. Caution: may be hazardous to your health, since film is rumored to have incited several attacks by inspired viewers. GRADE: B (O'Brien)

Evangelist, Governor Vow Joint Admiration

AUSTIN (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff saw the Capitol's political "facelifting" for himself and collected Gov. Bill Clements' support Friday in his fight against state licensing of his homes for wayward children.

Clements told a news conference he supports legislation to exempt the Roloff homes from state Department of Human Resources licensing.

"I support what Roloff is doing in his schools and I am going to support the bill to correct this inequity," Clements said.

The governor met Roloff for the first time Thursday night at a fervent, Bible-and-flag-waving rally where the evangelist reminded Clements of his support in last fall's election.

"Austin, Texas — especially Capitol Hill — has had a facelifting," Roloff said. "I knew we needed a new governor."

Roloff returned to Corpus Christi after meeting Attorney General Mark White for the first time Friday. White called the visit "a social call" and said he had "no vendetta" against Roloff.

The attorney general said he had asked the state Department of Human Resources for a report on Roloff's situation since the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear his appeal last fall.

Former Attorney General John Hill, whom Clements defeated in the governor's race last November, won several court decisions that Roloff's homes must be licensed.

Administration Asks Extension For Use Of Nitrites In Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration asked Congress Friday to let food processors continue using the preservative sodium nitrite for at least another year, despite a study showing the substance may cause cancer.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland told reporters that if Congress accepts their plan, they can begin getting nitrites out of the food supply next year and rid food of the additive entirely by May 1, 1982.

It could be removed from some foods sooner, they said. But acting too quickly could expose the public to new threats from food poisoning, they added.

In a letter dated Friday but prepared last month, Attorney General Griffin Bell told his fellow Cabinet officers that current law requires any additive found to cause cancer to be banned as soon as possible.

The secretaries asked Congress to waive that part of the law for nitrites until May 1, 1980, to allow time for industry to find other preservatives and perhaps make changes in the law to allow consideration of an additive's benefits.

"Nitrites pose a unique and difficult paradox in our quest for food safety," Califano said. "They are a chemical additive that protects the public health in one critical respect and yet threatens it in another."

Sodium nitrate and its derivative, nitrite, are used in about 7 percent of the foods Americans eat, especially cured meats like bacon, to stop the growth of botulism bacteria. That kind of food poisoning, Califano said, "doesn't just give you a stomachache. It kills you."

But last August, the government announced that a three-year study by scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology indicated nitrites may cause cancer in animals.

Ellen Haas, an official of the Community Nutrition Institute, a consumer activist group specializing in food issues, denounced the secretaries' proposal "as a purely political, non-scientific and concessionary move."

She called for an immediate ban because of the cancer threat, which government and university scientists have been asked to verify.

A 1954 law requires a substance to be banned immediately if it is found to cause cancer in humans or animals, regardless of the dosage which caused the cancer or any benefits the chemical might have.

But Califano said, "We cannot responsibly do that. ... We need a reasonable period in which to act." The review of the MIT study won't be complete until this fall, he said. If he and Bergland agree its findings are valid, a phase-out would be allowed under the bill they propose.

"Our first responsibility is to assure the safety of the nation's food supply. ... In the case of nitrites, this legislation is designed to fulfill that responsibility by protecting against the risks of both cancer and botulism," he said.

Bergland said that meat-industry officials "aren't happy" with the decision to continue moving toward a ban, "but feel it is a reasonable compromise that eliminates the uncertainty."

Government officials say they prefer to gradually ease nitrite out. Some industry spokesmen say the only practical alternative to the substance now is almost-constant refrigeration of sandwich and other cured meats, and a gradual end to nitrite use would allow time both to ease the law's restrictions and to develop a substitute preservative.

In late 1977, the Agriculture Department sharply reduced the amount of nitrite processors could use to cure bacon.

It was thought then that cancer was a threat only when bacon was fried quickly, with the nitrite remaining in the meat mixing with proteins in the mouth and stomach to form nitrosamines, some of which are the most potent of carcinogens.

Shortly after the bacon rules took effect, the MIT study was made public, and the new round of regulatory steps began.

Blazes Plague Historic Battlewagon

HOUSTON (AP)— The Battleship Texas, moored at the San Jacinto Battleground, was closed to public tours Friday after a second electrical fire broke out below the main deck.

Volunteer firefighters from three cities worked throughout Thursday to snuff out the blaze, but the smoky fire flared again later in the day. Once again it was extinguished.

The fire was centered in the vicinity of the vessel's former ammunition magazines for the rear turrets, an area closed to public tours.

Fighting the blaze were firemen from Deer Park, La Porte and Pasadena.

Researchers Study Underground Homes

Underground dwellings have been part of American life since settlers began building homes. Sod "dugouts" offered early prairie residents many advantages over conventional frame homes — advantages also offered by the dugout's modern counterparts, according to researchers at Texas Tech University.

Settlers on the arid Texas plains in the 1800s found lumber and building stone in short supply. So they built homes from the only available material, the earth itself. The dugouts were scooped into an embankment and roofed with sod. A south-facing door caught the summer breeze and kept out the wintertime "blue northers."

The earthen blanket and southern opening generally kept the interior at a reasonably comfortable temperature, in turn reducing energy consumption. Conservation of the settler's main energy source, a rapidly dwindling supply of buffalo chips, was thus prolonged.

Modern home builders coping with today's rapidly decreasing energy resources might do well to re-examine underground housing, according to investigators in Texas Tech's Department of Family Management, Housing and Consumer Science. The researchers are studying the energy-saving benefits of underground dwellings and other forms of alternative housing.

"We're one of the few universities in the U.S. conducting research on interiors of underground homes and on factors which keep consumers from investing in them," research assistant Rachal Wortham said.

"Some consumers think that housing built into the earth is dark, damp and uninhabitable. With today's design and technology nothing could be further from the truth.

"Few such dwellings are entirely underground. Most are exposed on one or more sides and, unlike the early dugouts, admit much natural light and ventilation. Adequate curing of building materials, good waterproofing and dehumidification of the interior can assure a comfortable, attractive and healthful environment. Interiors can be as beautiful as the homeowner is imaginative."

The dwellings offer an escape from crowded surface conditions, noises of civilization and rising fuel costs.

"A building surrounded by soil is covered with an earthen 'blanket' that protects it from noise, wind chill, unwanted air filtration and heat loss from the interior, which result in decreased fuel usage and lower utility bills," Miss Wortham added.

While temperatures at one location fluctuate greatly fropm season to season — sometimes as much as 100 degrees — only a few feet below the surface fluctuations are much less.

"Day to day differences are generally less than 10 degrees Fahrenheit," she said.

The stable conditions insure a comfortable interior temperature that requires far less energy to maintain than in an above-ground dwelling. Fuel costs range from 40 to 70 percent lower, according to tests conducted at the University of Minnesota.

Site selection is expremely important, Miss Wortham said. "Soil and ground water conditions should always be tested before construction begins. The ideal site is the south side of a hill or artificial mound. A south-elevated home takes advantage of seasonal conditions.

"In the wintertime the sun will shine into the windows of a south-elevated home and provide natural heating. The summer sun strikes at a higher agle, which requires an overhang to shade the building's exposed south side and thus to reflect hot summer rays.

"Below-ground dwellings offer protection from wind, storms, dust and pollen. And because storm damage would be much less, insurance premiums could be reduced. Fire insurance premiums should also be lower because most underground dwellings are built of concrete."

If underground dwellings offer so many advantages, why aren't more built?

"They're different," Miss Wortham responded, "and people are reluctant to accept things that are different. We've also found that a status aspect is involved: Few people are willing to give up a large, visible surface dwelling for a home nobody can see.

"There are also special building problems. Construction is somewhat different, and not many contractors are familiar with the techniques. With building codes which must be met, most contractors are hesitant to tackle innovative housing.

"Initially, earth-integrated structures are probably also more expensive to build than are conventional homes. Most are constructed from concrete, which is more expensive than many other building materials. However, fuel savings within a short period of time more than pay for any additional first cost."

Surveys by the Texas Tech researchers show that underground dwellings are sometimes difficult to finance, Miss Wortham said. "Bankers are often skeptical when you ask about financing an earth-integrated structure. They are naturally concerned about resale potential and marketability. As underground housing gains more consumer interest and proves its feasibility, loans will be more easily obtained."
