City digs out of twister's ruins

Aid requested to clear debris

By Phil Ringman
Staff Writer

Cleanup operations dragged into a third day today as the city council and county commissioners officially asked the federal government to help remove tons of debris left by Tuesday's tornado.

Meanwhile, the Red Cross released revised figures on the destruction left in the wake of Tuesday's tornado, estimating that a fifth of the city's population was homeless.

Council members and commissioners passed the resolutions authorizing the Army Corps of Engineers to contract with private companies to remove the rubble of what was once the homes and businesses of some 8,600 families.

Before the joint meeting at city hall, Bob Broussard, a Federal Disaster Assistance Administration official, said he met with City Manager Gerald Fox who said the amount of debris scattered across southern Wichita Falls was beyond the city's capability to remove.

People who want debris removed from their property will have to sign a release allowing the Corps of Engineers to come on their property, city public works director Ernest Lillard said.

The releases will be available at two federal disaster assistance centers scheduled to begin operation Saturday, at the city public works office, and from city officials who will be in the damaged areas, Lillard said.

Lillard said the rubble will be hauled to disposal sites and that the city has been given a permit from the state to burn combustible material.

County Judge Tom Bacus said commissioners had to pass an order similiar to the city's because much of the damaged area was outside city limits.

Red Cross public relations officer Lon Walls said today those homeless came from 6,591 homes, 1,102 apartment units, and 149 trailer homes that were destroyed or damaged.

Walls said the figures for the number of structures destroyed included not only Wichita Falls but tornadoes that struck Vernon and Harrold, Texas. An individual breakdown for Wichita Falls was not available, he said.

The numbers came from house-to-house surveys in those towns, Walls said.

The Red Cross also listed the death toll early today from the tornadoes that struck Texas and Lawton, Okla., at 55.

Injuries for the three Texas cities were listed at 400 and 8,627 families suffered either a major or minor loss, Walls said.

William Wilcox, head of the FDAA, who was also at today's joint city council-county commissioners meeting, said his office had not yet received a formal request from the governor to declare Clay, Baylor and Foard counties major disaster areas.

But Wilcox said the FDAA will make every effort to help tornado stricken residents in those counties.

A Red Cross Disaster Service Center has been set up at Midwestern State University's Clark Student Center to assist tornado victims with buying emergency clothing, food and medicine.

The center will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. every day, including weekends, indefinitely.

Victims will be issued disbursement orders for items that will be honored by area merchants of their choice. The cost of items is being totally according to a national price list used by the Red Cross.

"The merchants know they are to honor these slips when they are brought in. This is cash to them," Norma Crane, Red Cross center supervisor, said.

Merchants will be reimbursed by the Red Cross. Victims will not have to repay the Red Cross for the items.

"This is a gift to them from the American people," Mrs. Crane said.

"This (system) continues to keep the local economy moving. It gives merchants an opportunity to move goods," said Jim Waring, representative from Red Cross headquarters.

Disbursement slips are issued for emergency items only and will vary in each case. A nurse is at the center to help victims secure eyeglasses, prosthetic items, false teeth, and medicines. The nurse will contact the victim's doctor to see if prescriptions are needed and the doctor will call in the order to a drug store.

The center then will issue a disbursement slip to pay for the drugs.

Money slips may also be used to buy gasoline or for such items as replacing a tire on the car.

If a family had to borrow money from a relative or a neighbor to buy emergency items, it may get a disbursement slip to repay that debt. Some form of proof is required, however, that the loan was made.

Families must have proof of their address — a driver's license, a bill that may have been found in their yard or the testimony of a neighbor who can accompany the victim to the center. Social Security cards alone will not be enough proof.

Persons who are insured may also receive emergency assistance also.

Some 18-20 caseworkers are working at the center now, but more volunteers may be needed if the center stays open

Federal officials arrive for inspection

By Jim Miller
Staff Writer

Federal officials, including a presidential assistant, arrived in Wichita Falls this morning to inspect what has been called the fifth worst tornado ever to hit the United States.

Federal Disaster Assistance Administration Administrator Bill Wilcox and Jack Watson, assistant to the president, flew in to Sheppard Air Force Base shortly before 11 a.m.

Watson said President Carter had sent him to the area "to see that the federal government is doing everything that is possible to be done to assist the mayor, the local government and state officials in dealing with this tragic disaster.

"We've got everything in place," he said. "We've had federal officials here virtually ever since the tornado hit. We've been in very close contact with the governor's office."

Watson said he had been told and wanted to confirm by this visit that federal disaster assistance offices will be set up and ready to begin operating Saturday morning.

Asked about the amount of federal aid coming to the striken city, Watson said, "It's difficult to estimate a total amount of aid. By the president's declaration of a major disaster for this area, federal resources from all the agencies are virtually made available on an as-needed basis.

"The basic role of the federal government," Watson said, "is to support and assist the efforts of the state and local government."

Asked when the aid would start, Watson replied, "Immediately." However, Watson did not say how soon he meant by immediately.

Watson said he will be making a report to the president immediately upon his return to Washington, D.C.

Wilcox said he was here to meet with federal coordinating officers to discuss the establishment of disaster assistance centers to aid tornado victims.

"We just want to be sure that all the various activities of

Not Mike Tecton

Who's afraid of IRS?

BURNING HIS 1040 FORM
...Mike Tecton refuses to pay taxes

By Tom Tiede
NEA Writer

McLEAN, Va. (NEA) - Each year millions of Americans worry about the income tax rite of April 15. Millions of others, however, don't worry about it at all. Mike Tecton, for example; he's one of a growing army of citizens who refuse to pay government levies on the grounds they are illegal.

Tecton, an architect, says he has not paid income tax for 20 years. Sometimes he just declines to file the returns on his five-figure salary (it reportedly averages between $20,000 and $40,000). Other times he files, but he claims so many deductions, he says, that he ends up not paying anyway.

Naturally, the rebellion is not appreciated by the Internal Revenue Service. But Tecton says he is motivated by justice rather than greed. "The existing income tax is unconstitutional," he insists, "So, in effect, the only way you are doing anything wrong is when you give in and pay it."

In other words, Tecton says Form 1040 is a crime. A good number of dissident wage earners agree with him.

In 1972 the IRS admitted that one million people regularly refuse to pay mandatory income taxes. Since then, IRS officers have privately said the total may actually be five million or more.

And the rebels are not necessarily an assortment of oddballs. Like Tecton, they are said to be of the fed-up middle class. Many of them are professional people, others are the hard-working backbone of labor. They see themselves as patriots, or, in this case, iconoclasts who occupy the moral high ground.

In general, the rebels argue that the nation was never meant to have an income tax. They say the Fourth Amendment, for instance, guarantees citizens the right to keep the amount of their incomes secret. Also, the Fifth Amendment prohibits government from forcing people to incriminate

Community bulletin board

For as long as it is needed, Wichita Falls Times and Record News as a public service will publish in all of its editions a Community Bulletin Board listing information of a public nature concerning the recovery of Wichita Falls from Tuesday's tornado.

Gathering information for the bulletin board will be the responsibility of the promotions department of the newspapers.

The daily listings will be designed to act as a referal service for those affected by the tornado and to keep the general public infromed about the city's status as the massive recovery effort continues.

All directors of agencies who have information in the public interest are urged to contact the promotions department of the Record News and Times at 767-8341, extension 258, or by coming to Times Square, 1301 Lamar.

Mail delivery

Mail delivery has been suspended in the areas affected by the tornado in Wichita Falls. All other areas of the city will receive regular delivery.

Postal customers affected by the tornado will be able to receive the following services.

Zip code zones 76308, 76309 and 76310 may pick up mail at the University Park Station, 4312 Call Field Road, during regular business hours.

Business hours for both locations will be 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday.

Mail for customers in the affected areas will be held indefinitely. Customers are urged to turn in a change-of-address as soon as possible so their mail can be delivered. This will aviod congestion at the Post Office.

Clothing needed

Wichita General Hospital is collecting clothing to aid the families of hospital personnel who were storm victims.

Anyone with items to donate may contact Paulette Koncelik, social service director at Wichita General Hospital. Call 723-1461 seven days a week during the day.

Disaster team

A Mennonite Disaster Team, skilled in construction, carpentry and masonry, are arriving from Kansas and Oklahoma to assist tornado victims, and will be housed at the First Presbyterian Church.

Between 50 and 200 Mennonites, both men and women, will be here to help as long as needed, according to announcement made to the Elders of the First Presbyterian Church, Hal Oakley, assistant interim pastor, said. Their work is being coordinated by the Red Cross.

The Red Cross is expected to furnish cots for the workers, as well as some food, and the church kitchen facilities will be used. Sunday school classrooms and the undercroft will be used for temporary quarters.

First Presbyterian Church phone number is 767-2547.

Bank service

Southwest National Bank customers can go to the old walkup facility of First Wichita National Bank next to the parking garage in the 700 block of Scott for emergency teller service only.

This service is for people not able to get into the disaster area where Southwest National Bank is located. The walkup facility will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Saturday until further notice.

Federal centers

Federal Disaster Centers to provide assistance to persons who suffered losses in the storm will open Saturday at two locations: 4-H Barn 1626 Midwestern Parkway and Notre Dame High School, 2821 Lansing. Centers will be open 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Claims

Government Employees Insurance Company representatives have announced there are additional claims representatives in Wichita Falls to assist policy holders in service of their claims.

Please call all information to Linsey and Newsom Adjusters, 216 Parker Square State Bank. Present hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 766-4141.

Injured

Senator

The Sheppard Senator, weekly newspaper at Sheppard A.F.B. was not published this week due to publication difficulties at the Times Publishing Company. Publication will resume next week on schedule.

Sheppard AFB

The Sheppard Air Force Base hotline message for Thursday instructs all base personnel affected by the disaster to contact their duty section if they have not done so previously. Several persons listed as living in the disaster area are not accounted for, according to SAFB.

Sheppard personnel in the disaster area are instructed that they may pick up their paychecks Friday at the main post office or the university branch. Personnel are also informed that the Air Force Aid Society is offering loans up to $250 for military disaster victims. Individuals interested in these loans should contact the Personnel Customer Service Section at 851-2224 or 851-2225. The hotline number is 851-2268.

Command posts

Command posts to provide information, medical aid and food to victims have been established at Fairway and Southwest Parkway, and at Bird's Seafood Restaurant on Central Expressway East. Free tetanus shots are available at the command center at Southwest Parkway.

Red Cross

Red Cross service center to determine specific needs of tornado victims has been established at Clark Student Center, Midwestern State University. Case workers will interview families and disbursement orders will be given for eligible persons to exchange for goods with merchants of their choice for food, clothing and other necessities. Merchants can receive reimbursement from the Red Cross.

First Baptist Church
Floral Heights Methodist Church
Western Hills Baptist Church
Notre Dame High School
Midwestern State University Coliesum
Sunnyside Baptist Church

Transportation

Community Action Corp. is offering transportation. Anyone needing transportation should call 723-8186.

MSU employees

Midwestern State University employees who need to get money from the university credit union may call 692-4419, Steve Holland, public information officer, said.

Schools

Students who attend Rider High School, McNiel Junior High and Milam and Cunningham elementaries are not to report to school until Tuesday.

Beginning Tuesday Milam students will attend Cunningham Elementary and McNiel students will attend Rider for the remainder of the year. Rider students will attend school from 7 a.m. until noon. McNiel students will attend from noon until 5:30 p.m. Cunningham students will attend school from 7 a.m. until noon. Milam students will attend at Cunningham from 12:30 until 5:30 p.m.

Taxes

IRS officials said that a tax deadline extension is available to all Wichita Falls residents by filing Form 4868, whether they were victims of the storm or not. Those suffering damage from the storm may also claim their loss on this year's taxes. Those who have already filed may amend their return. IRS office in Triad Building at 2910 Kemp is open Friday and telephone lines will be open Saturday to provide information and assistance. IRS telephone number is 723-6702.

Disabled vets

Glen Neal, national service officer, will be in Wichita Falls Monday and Tuesday to administer emergency relief funds for service connected disabled veterans who were affected by the tornado. Veterans who believe they qualify are asked to come to the Disabled American Veterans Chapter Building at 417 Indiana after 9 a.m. on Monday or Tuesday.

Newspapers

Home subscribers of the Wichita Falls Record News and Times who have been dislocated by the tornado which hit Wichita Falls Tuesday are asked to contact the newspapers' circulation department at 767-8346.

"We will make every effort to deliver a paper to all of our subscribers wherever they are located," Don Brown, circulation manager, said.

Brown said Thursday that distribution of the newspapers to areas not hit by the storm was almost completely restored, but that any subscribers not receiving home delivery should contact the circulation department.

Boys club

Central Boys Club and Northeast Boys Club of Wichita Falls are open and the clubs will supervise the activities of any boys in Wichita Falls between the hours of 3 and 9 p.m. according to to Ronnie London, assistant director of Wichita Falls Boys Clubs.

London said the Southeast Club was demolished by the tornado. Southwest Boys Club may be open by Monday.

City testing ground for satellite system

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tornado-wracked Wichita Falls, Texas, has become the successful testing ground for a new emergency satellite communications system rigged by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Air Force

When the city was struck by a devastating tornado Tuesday, only one outside telephone line was working.

"We felt this would be a good chance to see how this satellite system works," Col. James Butera, director of the rescue coordination center at Scott Air Force Base, Ill.

An Air Force Jeep roved the city's devastated areas, reporting on damage, deaths, injuries and relief needs. A second was stationed at a disaster command post in the state capital at Austin.

"By putting one in Austin and the other in Wichita Falls, we could tie the two command posts together through the satellite," Butera said. "The Jeeps also are equipped with very sophisticated VHF, UHF and other communications gear, so the one in Wichita Falls was place initially at the command post to establish communications links with state police, fire officials, helicopters, search teams and ham radio operators."

Air Force communications experts on the vehicles talk with each other by transmitting through the Applications Technology Satellite No. 6 (ATS-6), in a stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

They also are able to communicate through the satellite with the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center at Scott, which handles request for any outside resources or aid that is needed.

How is the system working in its first real test?

Meanwhile, Les Zeenstra, an engineer for the Communications Satellite Corporation (Comsat), flew to Wichita Falls Thursday afternoon to set up a four-foot portable antenna to establish contact with the Communications Technology Satellite (CTS), a NASA payload being used for a number of experiments in both the United States and Canada.

In one of the experiments, Comsat and the American Red Cross are testing the feasibility of coordinating disaster relief efforts. After several demonstrations with mock disasters, the effort received its first true test during last year's flood at Johnstown, Pa. It worked well then, reported Comsat's Judith Elnicki.

Zeenstra, who can fold his antenna into a suitcase, will establish three channels with CTS, a regular phone channel, a teletype line and a facsimile transmission circuit. This will provide assured links with Red Cross headquarters in Washington, providing officials with information on what help is needed.

Illinois town to help city

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — Polly Smolich says citizens in other communities adopted Canton following the devastating 1975 tornado, so the folks in Canton have decided to return the favor by coming to the aid of the victims in Wichita Falls, Texas.

In 1975, a twister rippted through Canton, destroying scores of buildings, killing two persons and leaving $8 million in damage in it's wake.

"Through others' efforts we got back on our feet," said Mrs. Smolich, who is spearheading a money and clothing drive for those left homeless in the tornado which virtually destroyed Wichita Falls, Texas.

"After reading the newspaper and viewing the devastation that happened to the people in Wichita Falls and remembering that we in Canton went through that and people came forth, we've decided to do what we can," said Mrs Smolich. "Citizens across the nation sent us food, bedding, clothing and sent money to us."

Several points in Canton have been designated as drop-off points for clothing and bedding and a bank has established a Texas tornado fund to send money to the victims in Wichita Falls.

NRC chairman critical of press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission complained in a private meeting about the way the news media was reporting the Three Mile Island nuclear accident, according to meeting transcripts.

NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie at one point maintained that his remarks at a news conference that same day had been misinterpreted, making it appear he advocated immediate evacuation of 10 to 20 miles around the plant, when he meant it as a possibility in the future.

"Oh boy, no matter what you say, the press — up," he complained, alluding to what he believed to be exaggerated reports.

The transcript of the meeting of NRC commissioners March 31 was among those released Thursday by the NRC.

Hendrie also complained about tactics used by reporters to get more information.

The following exchange occurred after the commissioners and several staff members debated what had been said by Hendrie at his news conference about an evacution and the area that would be involved:

Commissioner Richard Kennedy: "Yeah, you said 10 to 20 miles."

NRC staff member Edson Case: "Yes, he said that."

Unidentified voice: "He trimmed it."

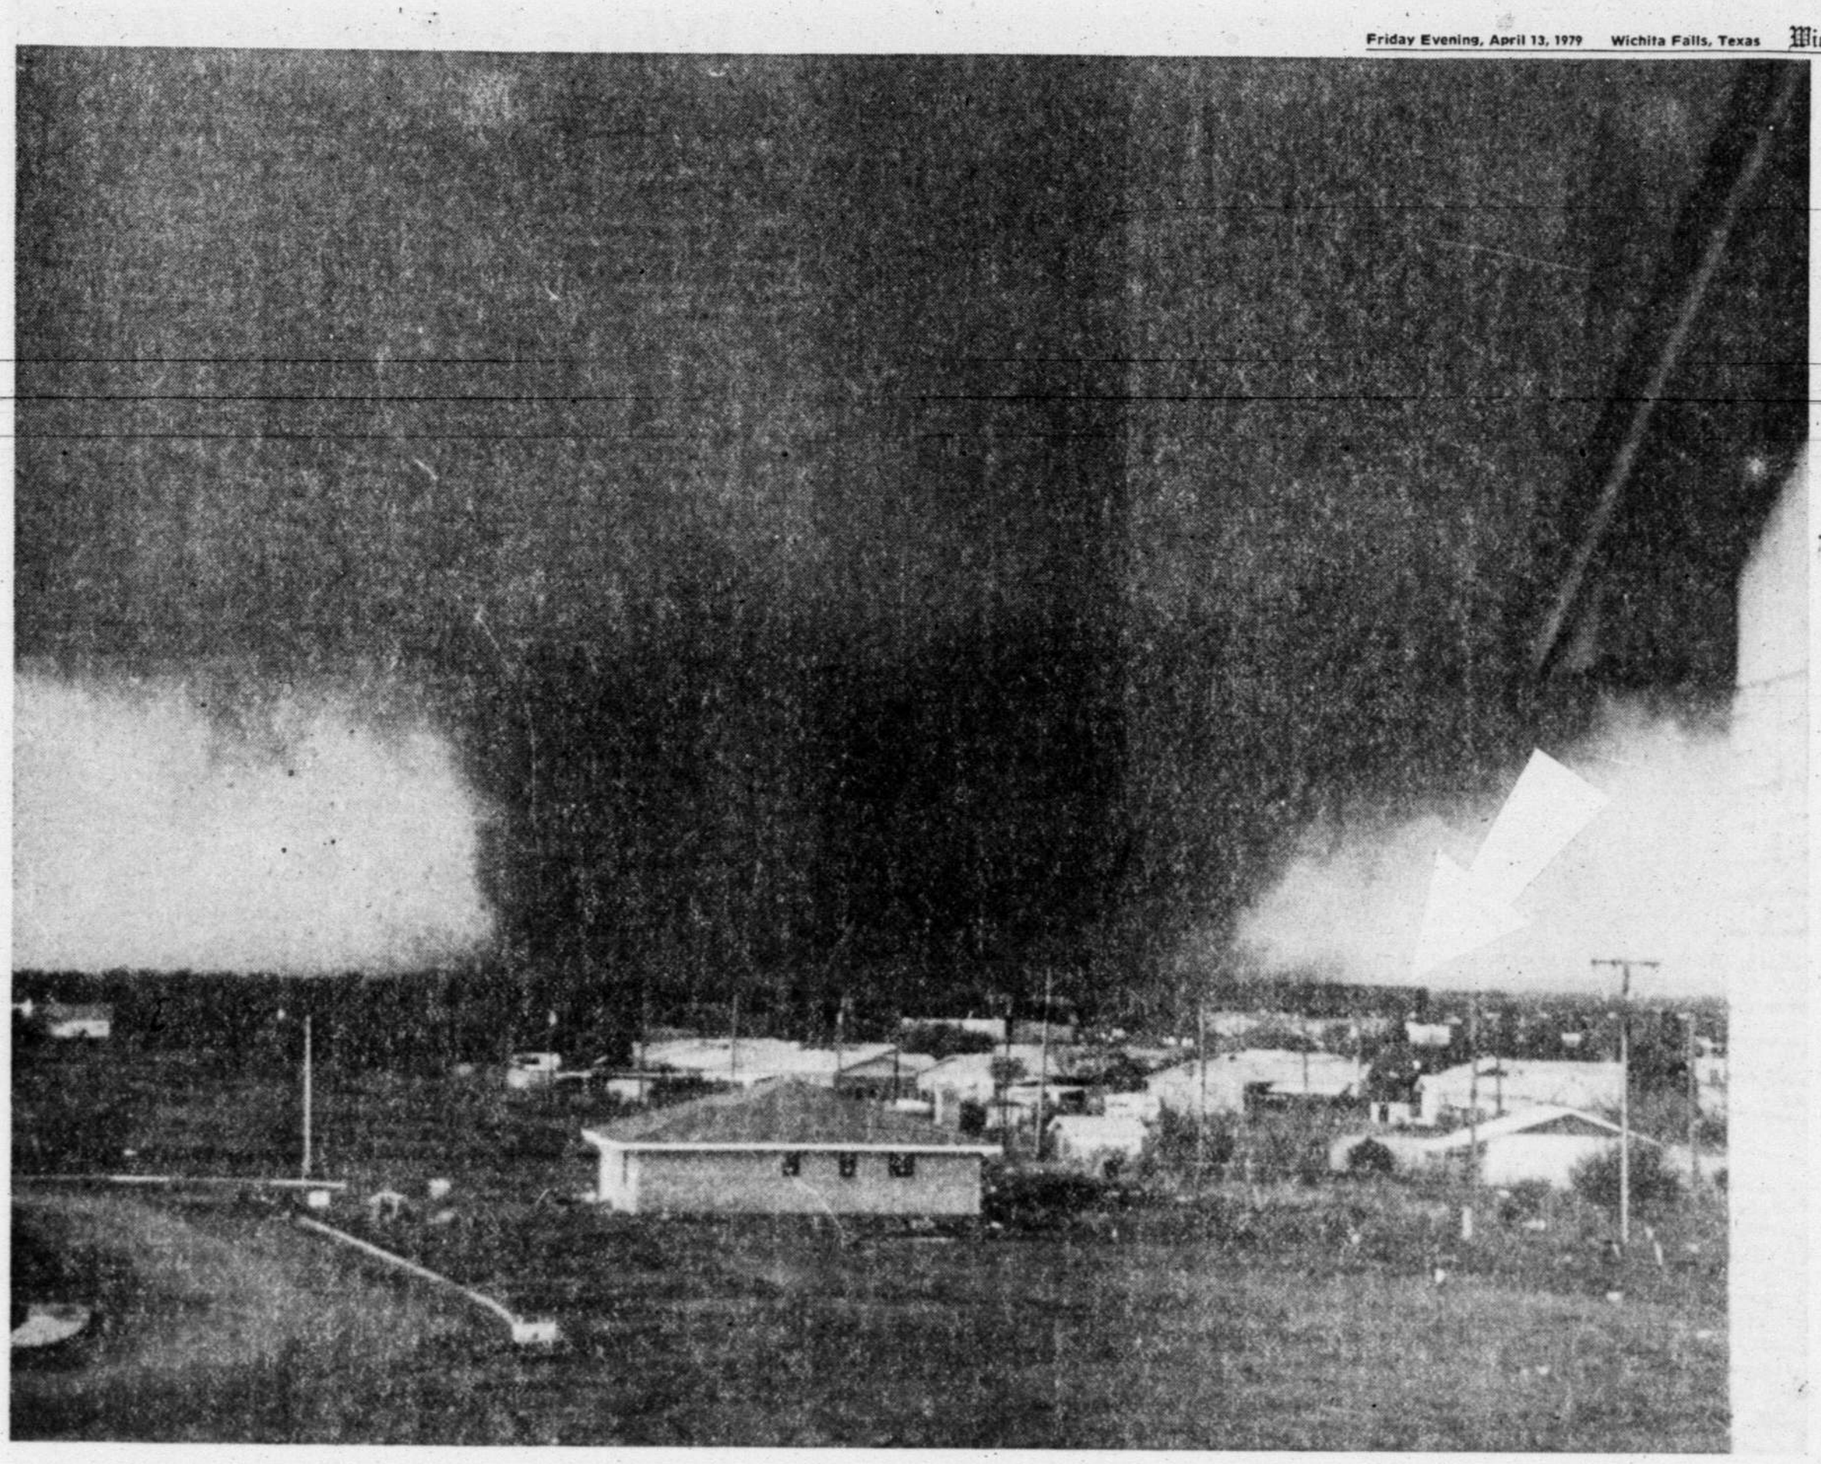

Second unidentified voice: "And we qualified it somewhat later."

Hendrie: "Well, that was a press dodge. You know the press people play this game. They now call up the state emergency planning office. They say, 'The chairman of the NRC just said you've got to evacuate. What have you got to say about that?'"

"(Inaudible) — when are you going to do any. The Pennsylvania emergency state people think 'Whish' when they think about that. (laughter). I think they have a problem with the press." (laughter)

NRC staff member Mattson: "There was a time when I was sitting in rooms the last few days that every time somebody came by the door I felt that way."

Churning tornado

All Saints Episcopal Church, about a mile distant from the photographer, was not struck by the tornado; the deadly funnel passed just north of the church, located at 2606 Southwest Parkway, demolishing Evangel Temple and Sikes Senter.

briefed local government officials and the heads of non-profit agencies about the steps they should take to get FDAA assistance for repairing and restoring public buildings.

He said a disaster field office has been set up at Sheppard Air Force Base.

Officials were afraid a short water supply posed a threat of fire Thursday as residents continued cleanup operations but a light rain during the night eased those worries.

Command posts were established earlier at Southwest Parkway and Fairway and at Bird's Seafood Restaurant Windthorst Road to aid in the cleanup operations.

Personnel were available at the command posts to provide information and food to victims.

Two persons were taken to hospitals from the site after suffering heart attacks, he said.

Water is available at both command posts.

D.J. Pennington, chief of Holliday Police Department, who is assisting the city in emergency efforts, said clean-up was "going real well" in the Western Hills addition in southwest Wichita Falls.

"People are pulling together helping each other. People not involved are volunteering trucks, bulldozers and muscle power," he said.

Pennington, who is working at the Southwest Parkway command post, said "tourist" activity through the area was terrible. "There are too many cars driving down Southwest Parkway looking at the wreckage. It's making cleanup difficult."

Department of Public Safety officers were sent back to their home stations about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Federal disaster "one-stop centers" will be at the 4-H Barn, 1626 Midwestern Parkway, and Notre Dame High School, 2821 Lansing.

The federal centers will be open from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. beginning Saturday and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and be open next week.

Beall said the Red Cross center will also be open everyday.

Establishment of the federal disaster centers comes on the heels of a declaration Thursday by President Carter declaring Wichita Falls and Vernon major disaster areas.

Aid programs made available by the declaration include low-interest recovery loans, temporary housing, financial and technical aid to ranchers, unemployment compensation, tax and legal aid, help for the elderly, and a variety of emergency food, clothing and medical assistance.

Beall said Red Cross workers would also staff the federal aid centers.

"We plan to keep these centers open as long as there is a need among those adversely affected by the storm," state disaster aid coordinator Jess Ward said.

"The sooner they make application for help, the quicker it may be forthcoming."

Ward said Gov. Bill Clements has indicated he will ask for a joint federal-state program to provide grants of up to $5,000 for persons having serious needs not met by other programs.

Electrical service continues to grow

Electric service into the Wichita Falls area continues to be strengthend as four of the seven high-voltage lines coming into the area now have been repaired.

The curtailment of electricity usuage has been lifted. Division manager Tom Locke said service has been restored in all sections of the city except those in the tornado's path.

Texas Electric Service Co. askes any whose electricity is not back on and who needs it to call 766-3331. Crews are working around the clock to rebuild lines where electricity can be used.

Furthermore, the rebels say the 16th Amendment, which introduced the income tax in 1913, is poorly written and inconclusive. Mike Tecton says the original Constitution contains at least 51 citations against taxing incomes, and the 16th Amendment does not specifically invalidate any of them.

But beyond the questions of the 16th Amendment, and beyond those of the Fourth and Fifth, Tecton says the fundamental philosophy of the nation is contrary to the income tax. That philosophy is equality. Tecton says the income tax is inherently unequal, therefore it is, in the rebel view, un-American.

Why should some people pay more than others for the maintenance of government? Tecton says it's a form of discrimination characterized by economic enslavement: "Look at it this way. We all receive equal protection, and we all have equal rights. So it's logical we should all pay equally for the benefits."

The IRS, of course, feels differently about the matter. And that's why, occasionally, it throws tax rebels in prison. Mike Tecton, for one. He says he was hounded by the IRS in the middle part of 1974, and was then tried and found guilty. Eventually he served a four-month sentence in a federal lockup.

Tecton says the court and prison experience was "very trying." He says the stress probably took 10 years off his life (he's middle aged, relaxed, and married to a handsome woman who shares his conservatism). He presently avoids the IRS wrath by filing his returns (zero payment) through his congressman.

Yet Tecton refuses to mellow. He reportedly owes as much as $30,000 in back taxes, but says he'll never repay it. Besides this, he intends to do everything he can to get others to do likewise. "What the nation needs is a revolt," he says. "We must force the government to obey the Constitution."

To this end, Tecton has formed the Thomas Jefferson Equal Tax Society, which he says has 6,000 correspondents. He also publishes an irregular newspaper, USA, in which he counsels readers to burn their 1040s. True to type, he says he doesn't pay taxes on the income earned from the anti-tax enterprises.

He also lectures. And, uniformly, Tecton's speeches call for the abolition of the IRS, and the punishment of congressmen and women who support the IRS. He says income tax is a form of institutional theft, and people must stop it by bringing the full weight of law against responsible officials.

Accordingly, Tecton urges wage earners to form committees to seek criminal indictments against "racketeers" in the United States Congress. The charge: willful conspiracy to violate the Constitution. It can be done, Tecton says, and he believes some congressmen may be convicted within a year.

Tecton hopes the indictments will force lawmakers to eliminate the Tax Code. Even now there is a small move in Congress to repeal the 16th Amendment. Ah, yes, Tecton sighs, think of it: no more W-4s, no more nail biting, no more H & R Block. Only April 15 will remain — a national holiday, no doubt.

Hungarians sentenced for smuggling

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Thirty-seven Hungarians have been sentenced to prison terms ranging up to five years and some of them were fined a total of $200,000 for smuggling in foreign electronic equipment and gold objects and selling them at exorbitant prices, the trade union newspaper Nepszava reports.

The ring was led by three successive heads of a government engineering company's subsidiary in West Germany.

Immediately after their arrival, Watson and Wilcox were taken to Memorial Auditorium for a joint meeting of the Wichita Falls Board of Alderman, Wichita County Commissioners and other state officials.

This afternoon the group will tour the devastated area both from the air and on the ground.

Terrorist attack kills one

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Ambushers shot and killed a member of Northern Ireland's mainly Protestant Ulster Defense Regiment today outside a village near the border with the Irish Republic, army headquarters reported.

THE SKIPPER IS A LADY
...Lt.j.g. Beverly Kelley joins her command (AP)

She's the skipper

"If you do a good job, they respect you for that," she said Thursday after taking command of the Coast Guard cutter Cape Newagen.

The crewmen seem to agree.

"As long as she is knowledgeable and professional, there will be no problem," said Chief Joe D'Elia, the executive officer of the Cape Newagen. "Once we got over the initial shock, there has been an attitude of acceptance."

With a salute and a firm handshake, Miss Kelley relieved Lt. j.g. Walter S. Miller in the outdoor ceremony at the Sand Island Coast Guard base while her 14 male crewmen stood by.

"I wanted the job, I asked for it and now I want to get into it," said the 26-year-old Miss Kelley of Bonita Springs, Fla.

But she will have to wait until later this month, when the Cape Newagen gets out of drydock, to take the vessel to sea.

"It is the beginning of a challenging experience, but it is something she deserves," said Rear Adm. David Lauth, commander of the 14th Coast Guard District.

Miss Kelley said the biggest challenge will be "responsibility for 14 people, care of a million-dollar vessel and representing the Coast Guard on Maui."

The 95-foot Cape Newagen will be based at Maalaea on the Island of Maui, and will have responsibility for search missions, anti-pollution patrols, boating safety and other law enforcement duties.

Texas House votes to end jukebox industry agency

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Despite reminders of fire bombings and other violence that once rocked the jukebox industry, the House voted Thursday to abolish the agency set up to regulate it.

A bill (HB1470) transfering the Texas Amusement Machine Commission's authority to Comptroller Bob Bullock was tentatively approved on voice vote after the House refused to table it, 46-81.

Rep. Don Henderson, R-Houston, the sponsor, said abolishing the commission would eliminate 26 jobs and save $1 million a year.

"It's a bad, bad bill. If it's not broke, don't fix it," said Rep. Bob Hendricks, D-McKinney.

Hendricks recalled the commission was created in 1971 after the House General Investigating Committee had found instances of violence and corruption in the juke box industry, especially in the Dallas area.

In 1975, the Legislature removed all industry representatives from the commission, he said, and since then "they have functioned beautifully. They cleaned up the industry. You hear nothing of a scandal in the coin-operated vending machine industry."

Hendricks pointed out that the comptroller's department, then headed by Robert S. Calvert, licensed the amusement machine industry and collected the taxes on it before 1971.

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said licensing cleaned up the industry, and enforcement is "not even a minor function" of the commission now.

He said the staff of the commission consists only of accounting and administrative workers, with no enforcement employees at all.

Connally to address oil meet

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Republican Presidential candidate John Connally will address the annual convention of the Texas Oil Marketers Association in Dallas on April 23.

The convention and trade show is scheduled for April 22-25, with approximately 1,250 delegates expected.

The oil marketers association represents more than 800 companies which own, operate or supply service stations.

Also scheduled for April 23 is an address on the state of the oil and gas industry by President Avery Rush of Diamond Shamrock.

The convention will focus on the impact of regulations on gasoline distributors and the nation's energy outlook.

Protesters hit Pentagon with blood

WASHINGTON (AP) — Demonstrators protesting nuclear weapons today threw what they said was human blood on the front pillars at the Pentagon.

One demonstrator was arrested.

The protesters, members of a group known as the Atlantic Life Community, lined up on the steps of the Pentagon's River Entrance carrying placards reading "Temple of Death."

Ten members of the same group were arrested Thursday at the White House after blood was spattered on pillars of the executive mansion.

In today's demonstration, the anti-war placards were placed beneath the office windows of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, but the windows were curtained and there was no indication that the Pentagon chief had observed the action.

Another 60 or so demonstrators were inside the Pentagon's shopping mall area where members said they planned singing and "theater of protest" playlets during the lunch hour.

Retail hamburger prices likely to jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department forecasts the average retail price of hamburger could rise to $1.60 a pound this summer, a 38 percent jump from the average price of $1.16 in the July-September period of last year.

The forecast, based on recent price trends, was included Thursday in a new "livestock and meat situation" report issued by the department.

Donald B. Agnew, who wrote the report, said his "guesstimate" of hamburger prices in March was that they averaged around $1.53 to $1.55 a pound nationally. The exact March figures will be available later this month.

The report said the continuing rise in hamburger prices will lead to more use of "extenders" made from soybeans and other vegetable products in special kinds of hamburger.

Agnew also said he could not yet predict what hamburger prices may average over all of 1979. The average price was about $1.11 a pound last year, a rise of 37 percent from 80.9 cents a pound in 1977.

But if present upward trends continue, retail hamburger prices could average around $1.50 a pound over the entire year, a gain almost as great as 1978's increase.

Agnew's report also said fast-food restaurants may adjust to reduced hamburger supplies and higher prices by increasing their menu offerings of poultry, pork and seafood items.

For us, a challenge

The tornado that ravaged Wichita Falls during the supper hour Tuesday left in its wake a challenge. A challenge to the survivors of the disaster to pick up the pieces and put together an orderly life for the storm victims.

During history, people have rallied in a time of adversity and have conquered.

The city council, led by Mayor Kenneth Hill, moved quickly to develop order from confusion. Their prompt action in passing an emergency ordinance put an end to the efforts of a few persons to profiteer from the disaster. It also put looters and vandals on notice that piracy will not be tolerated.

The resources of Sheppard AFB were again brought into play for the benefit of the community. The regional military hospital facilities and staff were put to use, and military personnel are working with National Guardsmen to maintain order, assist disaster victims, and control traffic in affected areas.

The devastation suffered by Wichita Falls has few parallels in Texas history. The loss of life and property damage have been exceeded only rarely by such natural disasters as the Galveston hurricane of 1900 and the Waco tornado of 1953.

By now, most of the tornado victims have found living quarters. They still need help. The challenge that faces us today is to see how we can help the displaced.

Unfortunately, there is another challenge. It is to put a quick stop to the looting perpetrated by the vultures that gather at the scene of tragedy. Our elected officials have acted quickly to control such despicable actions.

Bentsen boosting solar

"When completed, hopefully in late 1982, this unique demonstration project will provide 28 percent of all the electricity needed in Crosbyton, a town of 2,500 located some 40 miles east of Lubbock," Bentsen said.

Phase one entails a thorough research and development program to evaluate the feasibility of the solar energy concept involved, and to produce the final design and economic information needed before actual construction is begun, under phase two.

The final project will consist of 10 huge mirrored "dishes," each 200 feet in diameter, lined up in a row and facing southward. These mirrored dishes are to concentrate sunlight into receivers suspended above them. The receivers — which will move to track the sun — act as boilers, heating a fluid to power steam turbines.

Under phase one, a 65-foot version of the mirrored dishes is being built to typify conditions that could be expected on the full-size 200-foot dish.

"One million dollars is needed in fiscal 1980 to complete the work on Phase One of this project. Unless the full amount is provided, the project will be abandoned before completion," Bentsen said.

Bentsen urges the subcommittee to provide the full $1 million needed to complete the work planned under the first phase of this innovative program.

Sadat certain of his power

CAIRO — "Every shah has his ayatollah," is a phrase going the rounds of the opposition to Anwar Sadat here in Egypt. But while there are some similarities between President Sadat and the deposed shah of Iran, there are far greater differences. Moreover, though Islam is enjoying a renaissance in Egypt as elsewhere in the Arab world, the religious forces here are deeply divided. They lack a popular leader — an ayatollah.

Sadat resembles the shah chiefly in his penchant for one-man rule. The atmosphere around him exudes the sycophancy of a royal court, and independent men unwilling to bow down have been systematically dropped from the inner circle.

Like the shah, Sadat is prone to euphoric trips. He makes all the big decisions — particularly as regards foreign policy and notably with respect to the peace with Israel.

Corruption, in Sadat's Egypt as in the shah's Iran, is also widespread. Since the downfall of the shah, the government here has put the arm on some prominent persons. Still it is widely believed that many big fish are on the take.

The president and his wife Jehan are frequently mentioned, and they certainly live high. The president's closest associate — the dynamic builder Osman Ahmed Osman — is sometimes called "Sadat's Bebe Rebozo."

But Sadat has not flung Egypt into the headlong economic development that contributed so much to the shah's downfall. Furthermore, the revolution of 1952 which brought to power Sadat's predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, put into practice sweeping social reforms — land distribution, free schooling and health care, subsidized rents and food and guaranteed jobs.

Despite almost incessant war, and not a few defeats, Egypt, in consequence, has been politically stable. Except during early 1977, when food prices were suddenly raised, there has been no mass base for an opposition.

Islamic students present perhaps the closest thing there is in Egypt to popular opposition. Young people have been turning in droves to Islam ever since the defeat of 1967. They sport beards and wear veils, and have organized many Islamic societies. They have carried student body elections at several campuses, and last year their candidates won the national student elections.

Wealth and corruption do not sit well in their eyes, and they have strong doubts about Sadat's peace initiative. On March 19, just before the signing of the treaty in washington, they held a protest conference in Al Azar University, the great center of Islamic learning here in Cairo.

The conference denounced the peace treaty because it did not return Jerusalem to Moslem control. It said accord was impossible because of an irreconcilable struggle between "perverted Judaism and Islam." It went on to attack the regime for supporting "corruption and debauchery," for applying civil instead of religious law, and for using "terrorist tactics against the opposition."

These views are regularly repeated in a couple of glossy publications, presumably financed from abroad. But the students have no mature leadership.

One would-be set of leaders are the Egyptian Marxists grouped around Khaled Moheidine, a former army officer and a deputy in the People's Assembly. But Moheidine has previously negotiated for peace with Israeli leftwingers. So the best he can do is support the Islamic movement.

Probably the most potent catalytic agents for this diffuse opposition are the old comrades of President Nasser. The most active of the Nasserites is Kamal Din Hussein, an original member of the officers' group around Nasser and a tireless worker for a united front against Sadat.

I saw Hussein the other day, and after harsh diatribes against "the one-man show" and "corruption running all the way to the top," he went after the peace treaty. He asserted that apart from not winning back Jerusalem and not gaining sovereignty for the Palestinians' Sadat had sold out for Egypt.

He said: "The Jews will invest here, and they will acquire economic power. They will make Egypt the cornerstone of their ambition to have a state which stretches from the Nile to the Euphrates."

That is nonsense, of course, and Sadat has ridiculed it openly. So even the Nasserites are not apt to make any appeal, unless things turn very sour here. Which means that unless things go very wrong, Sadat, despite the existence of an opposition in Egypt, is almost sure to be in power for a long, long time.

Maggie tells about romance

WASHINGTON—In Margaret Trudeau's discreet book, "Beyond Reason," she reveals that she fell in love with another man when she visited New York with her husband, Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, to attend the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Without naming the person, she describes him as a Southern gentleman, tremendously handsome, charming, a terrific dancer and a passionate person.

Since I was at the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis party that year, I feel I owe it to the people of Canada to issue an unequivocal denial that I was the chap who played a role in breaking up the Trudeau marriage.

It's true that Margaret and I did dance that evening and, while she may have been smitten with my savoir-faire, I did nothing to encourage her to think there was the slightest chance of our having a more intimate relationship. Friends who know about my personal indiscretions will testify that I have never made a pass at the wife of a head of state in all the years I have been playing tennis.

There are many reasons for this. One is that I know how easy it is for a woman who has to attend one official function after another to fall hopelessly in love with somebody like myself. But I am also aware that she is not falling in love with me but with my tremendous serve and my defensive lob.

It's hard for many women to believe that off the court I am just like anybody else, and while they fantasize about my vicious backhand and unbelievable drop shots, I still put on my sneakers one foot at a time.

It's true that while we tangoed Margaret did reveal to me that all was not going well in Ottawa between her and Pierre. But I thought she was talking about tennis. Many women who play tennis find their husbands are not up to the game, and they tend to look for happiness in someone with a faultless overhead.

A smart player will not be taken in by this flirtation. The stakes are too high. If I ever decided to have a fling with the wife of a head of state, it could be so time-consuming that I might easily let my volley shots go to pot.

Many people have asked me, "Well, if you weren't the person at the RFK party, then who was it?"

It's hard for me to say. There were at least 200 people at the party, 50 of whom could fit the description. The Southern gentleman part of it is a red herring, because most Canadians think anything below the Canadian border is south. Also, Margaret could be disguising the man with whom she fell so madly in love. For all I know it might have been Buddy Hackett or Rosie Grier or Howard Cosell.

I do recall that during one fox trot Margaret asked me, "Who is that beautiful senator sitting with Ethel Kennedy?"

"That's Jack Javits of New York," I told her. Yet when I think back on it, I don't believe Jack and Margaret said two words to each other all night.

The revelations in Mrs. Trudeau's book came as a surprise to all of us who have had anything to do with the RFK Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament. Because the party precedes the tournament and is held on a Friday evening, Ethel Kennedy has a strict rule that anyone playing in her tournament has to be in bed with lights out by midnight.

I can understand why many people would suspect that I was the great love in Margaret's life, as it seems likely that she would fall for the top-seeded celebrity in the tournament. But anyone who knows how much I love tennis will tell you that if I have the choice of a romance with the wife of the Prime Minister of Canada or being in top physical shape to play the next day, I will always be asleep by 11 o'clock.

Timing for price gouging is terrible

There's a survey floating around that says the American people are resigned to paying sky-high prices for oil and gasoline and can't work up much excitement over any talk of crippling fuel shortages.

Well, no pollster surveyed me. I'm not resigned to $1-a-gallon gasoline, which I suspect will be only the beginning, and I can work up plenty of excitement over fuel shortages. As far as I'm concerned, the OPEC robbers are temporarily lousing up my life.

Their latest price gouge might, as everybody seems to think, have been a lot worse. And I know they're entitled to charge whatever we'll pay. But their timing is terrible.

Or else mine is.

To be perfectly honest, our way of life didn't suffer overmuch during the oil embargo of 1974-75. We dutifully turned the thermostat down ... wore a lot of sweaters ... kept a heavy hand on the light switches ... and didn't burn up more than a tank of gas a month.

We never do. Old Dad rides the train to work; everything in our village is only a mile away; and we drive our non-gas guzzling compact to summer vacations close to home. There were lines at the local service stations, but we weren't in them. For longer trips, we climb into airplanes.

Now all that's about to change. After years of being under-consumers, we are getting ready to join the group that gobbles up gasoline. And at the worst possible time.

The closer Old Dad gets to that fixed-income retirement status, the less kindly I feel toward the oil barons who keep jacking up their prices — and inflation — in their version of "as the world squirms."

To begin with, there's the projected move to the sun belt, where mass transit is almost non-existent and the wide-open spaces empty gas tanks with alarming frequency.

Also, I am not looking forward to the five-figure tab I'm afraid the movers will lay on me, especially with the price of fuel heading up. I'm giving serious thought to throwing a giant garage sale and starting over in a three-room less. There can't be much demand for tents in the Middle East any more.

Sofas and refrigerators and beds aren't the only things that have to head out. There's the matter of Granny, Gramps, daughter, three little granddaughters, three goldfish, a zillion toys, and one very large dog who gets carsick on a trip around the block.

Think we can move this clan in one automobile? No way.

So there's a two-car caravan headed across the country smack in the middle of the summer when everybody else and his mother-in-law will be headed someplace on vacation and most gas stations will be closed on weekends and we won't dare run the air-conditioners because that eats up gas and the kids will get hot and fight a lot and the dog will throw up all over everybody.

See why I'm mad at the sheiks?

There's more.

After years of campaigning, I have convinced Old Dad that it's now or never time to visit Greece and Italy. If we wait any longer we won't have any git-up-and-go for donkey rides, cathedrals and museums, not to mention the scratch for air fare. (He says we don't have it now, but he always talks like that.)

So guess what? The airlines are hit by a sudden fuel shortage, that's what. Thanks to the latest OPEC outrage, they are being forced to raise fares and cancel flights and you wanta take any bets on who might not get to Rome this year?

Not that I am against President Carter's decision to phase out price controls on domestic oil. As near as I can understand it (and I'm still having trouble with "new new oil"), it's the only thing that will convince the oil companies it's no longer wiser to let their oil stay in the ground.

I guess I have to believe him when he says this will lessen the sheiks' grip on our throats by (1) cutting imports, (2) reducing consumption, (3) increasing domestic production and (4) forcing us to get going on solar energy.

Anything that could add 740,000 barrels a day to domestic output can't be all bad. And the president says he's "going to the wall" to keep the oil lobby from pouncing on Congress "like a chicken on a June bug" against his proposed tax on "windfall profits."

Although I have to confess I don't see how you encourage production by raising prices if you take the raise away in taxes.

The president refuses to believe, he says, that Congress will make "a few already rich companies billions of dollars richer" in a "massive rip-off of the American people."

The final blow, though, is the news flash that the folks in charge of switching us over to the metric system are thinking about selling gasoline in liters instead of gallons.

Tips offered for shopping for margarine

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Margarine, touted as a cheap but flavorful substitute for butter, has adopted a health food image in recent years.

Manufacturers appeal to modern America's fear of fat, stressing such words as "polyunsaturated" and cholesterol in their packaging and advertising campaigns.

Studies show that people with low levels of cholesterol in their blood suffer fewer heart attacks, on average, than those with high levels. But there is no evidence that moderate shifts from saturated to polyunsaturated fats in the diet will have any affect on a healthy adult's risk of heart disease.

People with a good medical reason for shifting to polyunsaturated fat, however, should be aware that margarine can vary in polyunsaturated fat content by more than 400 percent from one brand to the next.

Land O Lakes regular margarine contained only 10 percent polyunsaturated fat, lowest of all the samples Consumer Reports tested. Soft Promise margarine has the highest polyunsaturated fat level, 51 percent.

If you're on a reducing diet, note that a tablespoon of regular, sweet unsalted or soft margarine contains about 100 calories, the same as butter.

Whipped margarines have about 65 calories per tablespoon, while spreads have about 74 calories. The only liquid we tested, Squeeze Parkay, provided 102 calories per tablespoon.

Diet-imitation margarines have about 50 calories per tablespoon.

When shopping for margarine, you should keep the following tips in mind:

- Never buy from an unrefrigerated case.
- Don't buy torn, soiled, greasy or wet packages.
- Don't buy more than a two-week supply. Refrigeration or freezing won't stop margarine from turning rancid.
- Refrigerate at 45-degrees Fahrenheit or less and keep covered to avoid picking up flavors and aromas of other foods.
- Avoid using whipped or diet-imitation margarine or a spread for frying. Vegetable oil is higher in polyunsaturates anyway and is often cheaper than diet, whipped and soft margarine.
- Whipped margarine should be measured by weight rather than volume for baking.

In the regular margarine category, Land O Lakes received Consumer Reports' top rating for possessing none of the defects for which we tested, including, among other things, artificial buttery flavor and aroma, plastic flavor and aroma, and unacceptable melting properties.

The following regular margarines, listed in order of sensory quality (as are all grouped ratings), were rated Good: Promise; Fleischmann's Corn Oil, Kroger Corn Oil; Mrs. Filberts Golden Quarters; Imperial; Parkay; Saffola; Mazola; Empress Corn Oil; Blue Bonnet; Allsweet; Nucoa; A&P Corn Oil Table Spread, and A&P.

Among sweet unsalted margarines, Chiffon, Fleischmann's Sweet Unsalted Corn Oil and Mother's were rated Good. Mazola was rated Fair.

There were no real stand-outs among soft margarines. Rated Good, in order of sensory quality, were: Soft Parkay; Empress Soft Corn Oil; Soft Fleischmann's; Land O Lakes; A&P Soft; Soft Parkay Corn Oil; Mrs. Filberts 100 percent Corn Oil; Mrs. Filberts Soft Golden; Soft Stick Chiffon; Nu-Maid; Soft Imperial; Soft Chiffon; Soft Blue Bonnet; Nucoa Soft, and Coldbrook Soft. Promise soft margarine rated only Fair.

In whipped margarines, Good ratings went to Whipped Miracle, Whipped Parkay and Soft Whipped Blue Bonnet. Whipped Chiffon was rated only Fair.

Only Diet Mazola Corn Oil Imitation was rated as high as Good among diet-imitation types.

What's up in political humor?

Last year was marked by a singular absence of humor among the nation's public officials, complains Rep. Frank Thompson. "Where, for example, was a match for the elegant understatement and sophisticated drollery of a Billy Carter or the rollicking mirth and belly laughs of a John Mitchell?" asks the New Jersey Democrat.

But Thompson insists that 1979 will prove far more interesting — at least if his predictions for the year come true. Here are some of them:

— On the eve of bankruptcy, Cleveland is saved from financial ruin when Mayor Dennis Kucinich arranges for his city to be annexed by Amarillo, Tex. Mayor Ed Koch of New York opens merger talks with Biloxi, Miss.

— Boxing promoters make final plans for a bout between presidents Idi Amin of Uganda and Julius Nyerere of Tanzania. Former Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes agrees to take on the winner.

— Sen. Bill Bradley announces the hiring of Rick Barry and Meadowlark Lemon as his legislative aides.

Kucinich as Tut?

— Philadelphia third-baseman Pete Rose quits baseball to join the Salvation Army, calling club owners "just a bunch of money grubbers."

— MGM signs John Travolta and Dolly Parton to play Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara in a remake of "Gone With the Wind."

— Warner Bros. signs former Mayor Kucinich to star in the life story of King Tut.

Doctors to receive copies of patients' hospital bills

By KEN O'QUINN
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A patient leaving a hospital after treatment might think he is on the road to recovery — until he sees the bill.

To help stem rising medical costs, Maine's largest general hospital will be sending doctors a copy of patients' bills to give them some insight into what a patient faces after a hospital visit.

The move is a recommendation of the Maine Medical Center's study committee on medical costs, whose main goal is to enhance cost-consciousness in doctors.

"It is hoped physicians reviewing the bill will become more aware of how heavy some of the costs are and in retrospect will recognize that there might have been some things that could have been omitted," said Dr. E. Charles Kunkle, a neurologist at MMC and chairman of the committee.

In a recent experiment, a copy of the hospital bill of one of their patients was sent to 50 physicians. One-third of the 42 physicians responding found the total cost far above their estimate, and a dozen found one or more tests or procedures which could have been omitted.

As a result, Dr. Kunkle said the committee had agreed to send all doctors who admitted patients a copy of one of their patient's bills this spring and again later this year.

from the Texas Energy Extension Service

We are building a new 2300 square foot home. It is brick with a cedar shingle roof. It will have double pane windows, insulated steel doors, and other energy efficient features. What kind of insulation should we put in the attic and how much? We want the insulation to be effective for 30 to 40 years or more. A. R. C., Abilene.

Let's start with the question about the amount of insulation in the attic. Insulation is measured by inches and "R" value which is a relative measure of an insulating material's resistance to heat transfer. Optimum recommendations for the Texas climate call for R26 to R30 in the attic. Adding insulation beyond these recommendations will probably cost more than it will save in energy costs.

Concerning your question about which type of insulation to use in the attic, some type of loose-fill insulation or batts would probably serve your purposes. Batts are usually made from glass fiber or mineral wool. Loose-fill is commonly made of glass fiber, mineral wool, or cellulosic fiber. If you choose cellulose, be sure it has been chemically treated for fire and moisture resistance and has passed federal specification HH-1-515D. The best way to tell which insulation is best is to obtain quotes from contractors in your area and choose the one which gives you the most "R" value for your money.

Your final comment that the insulation should be "effective" for 30 to 40 years is important. The types of insulation mentioned above should last for a lifetime. Their effectiveness is in part determined by the way the insulation is applied and the proper density achieved. For this reason it is very important to have a reliable contractor. After a period of time you can expect some settling of the insulation, and at that point you may want to blow more in.

For more information about kinds and amounts of insulation, the Texas Energy Extension Service has available a fact sheet which you can obtain free by writing the Texas Energy Extension Service, Center for Energy and Mineral Resources, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Savings bonds a rip-off

By SYLVIA PORTER
Field Syndicate

The 6 percent interest that the millions of you who own the familiar U.S. "E" Savings Bond can earn if you hold your bond to maturity in five years is outrageously low against today's interest-rate levels and, actually, against the levels of most of this decade.

The fact that the U.S. Treasury's thousands of loyal, volunteer salespeople are being wooed into promoting your purchase of more millions of dollars of these bonds at 6 percent in 1979 is an embarrassment to the knowledgeable volunteers, a disgrace to the Carter administration's financial officials.

The reluctance of Treasury Secretary Blumenthal to act at once to raise the interest rate on the "E" bonds to the new maximum of 7 percent just voted by Congress shows an abominable disregard on the part of a public official for the welfare of America's small savers.

I no longer will remain silent about this rip-off. Nor should you tolerate such shameless treatment any longer, either.

In the recent law raising the limit on the public debt, Congress finally approved a clause permitting the Treasury to boost the rate paid on U.S. Savings Bonds (E and H now, EE and HH starting in 1980) from 6 percent to 7 percent.

The Treasury has raised the rate on savings bonds eight times since the program was begun in World War II.

Even 7 percent on a fairy long-term bond against the background of high interest rates in the 1970s is no sensational "shakes" for you. You easily can get much more than a 6 percent on many top-notch savings mediums these days.

As for the Treasury, the sophisticated open market is forcing it to pay in the 9 percent-plus range to investors in its short-, intermediate- and long-term obligations.

But if Blumenthal were to seize the chance to raise the savings bond rate even to 7 percent, at least it would be a gesture of fairness, an indication that he sympathizes with your plight.

It would put him in a different light than many of us see him now — and that light, Mr. Secretary, isn't becoming at all.

The inside report I get, though, is that Blumenthal wants to drag his feet — in the hope that interest rates soon will be heading down sharply and he won't have to touch the 6 percent rate. (Interest rates would have to plunge plenty before 6 percent in five years would become equitable! That is not in the foreseeable future.)

At this point, let me get my "bona fides" on paper without qualification. I was among the first. I always have remained and I still am a devoted partisan of the U.S. Savings Bond program. I believe in it as the greatest mass investment-savings plan for average investors ever devised by any nation anywhere in all history. I am proud of my long-term connection with it, of any contributions I have made.

My major argument is that this is a form of "forced savings," and that by small payroll deductions regularly, you can build a sizeable nestegg over a period. I also believe that it's far better for you to earn a mediocre return on "something" than to be able to earn a spectacular return on "nothing."

This is the "heart" of the savings bond program. BUT, BUT ... How much should you be penalized just because you're small, unsophisticated and need the discipline of payroll deductions?

Even worse, Blumenthal has pondered long and hard and has come up with new bonds (EEs and HHs) to replace the familiar E and H bonds beginning in January 1980. The terms are even less favorable!

As written now, on the new EE bonds, you still would get 6 percent if you held them five years — but your maturity date would be stretched to 11 years, nine months. An "improvement"?

You no longer could buy a $25 bond at a discount. (Admittedly, these little denominations have just become too expensive to issue.) The smallest denomination you could buy would be $50, to cost you $25 and to rise to $50 at maturity.

You would have to hold your EE bonds until after six months from issue date to redeem them. Today, you can redeem two months after issue date. Another "improvement"? And you still would earn only 4.5 percent after one year of ownership. Hooray?

Q: What, then, should you, an E bond buyer, do?

A: Knowing as I do what havoc you would raise with management of the public debt if you cashed in on a massive scale, I dare not write, "Cash in!" Realizing that this cash-in would result in an even more inflationary management of the debt, I cannot in good faith with my nation, suggest, "Show 'em.!"

But in good faith with you as well — and "I" and "you" are the same — I submit this report to you. You can easily come to your conclusion. (And maybe Blumenthal will see this report, too.)

Energy aid expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the world's energy crisis intensifying, the World Bank, a United Nations' financial agency, will expand its assistance for oil and natural-gas production in the developing countries.

Bank officials said some 60 countries could benefit in the early 1980s from an accelerated program of exploration and development for oil, natural gas and coal.

The program will give priority to countries that depend heavily on imported oil and have the greatest need for technical assistance.

The bank's help will include aid in devising national energy policies, the updating of existing geological surveys, the commissioning of new surveys, the financing of exploratory drilling and the financing of the eventual production facilities.

School slate organized

By PAT ZAJAC
Staff Writer

All Wichita Falls public schools except Rider, McNiel, Cunningham and Milam will open at their regular times on Monday. Dr. Lee Williamson, school superintendent, said today at at press conference.

Teachers and staff of Rider and McNiel will report to Rider at 8 a.m. Monday. Teachers and staff of Cunningham and Milam will report to Cunningham at 8 a.m. Monday for planning.

Students at the four schools above will not go to school until Tuesday. McNiel and Milam were destroyed in the tornado, so McNiel students will attend Rider and Milam students grades 1-6 will attend Cunningham.

— Rider students will attend school from 7 a.m. until noon. Buses will run one hour earlier than in the past. Lunch will not be served at the school.

— McNiel students will attend Rider from 12:30 until 5:30 p.m. Buses will run the same routes as in the past. Bus students should be at their bus stops at approximately the same time before school started before the storm.

For example, if a child was normally picked up at his bus stop 45 minutes before school started, then he should be at the bus stop 45 minutes early now. For the first few days, have your child at the bus stop early until schedules are definately established. McNiel students are asked to eat lunch before coming to school.

— Cunningham students will attend their school from 7 a.m. until noon. Lunch will be included.

— Milam students grades 1-6 will attend Cunningham from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. This schedule will include lunch. Bus transportation will be available only to those children who have previously been riding the bus.

— Mrs. Shores' morning kindergarten class at Milam should report to the Milam parking lot at 8:15 a.m. Tuesday. They will attend Jefferson and will be returned to the parking lot at 11:45 a.m.

— Mrs. Shores' afternoon kingergarten will leave the parking lot at 12:15 p.m. and will be transported to Crockett. They will be returned to parking lot at 3:45.

— Mrs. Wales' afternoon kindergarten will meet at the parking lot at 12:15 to be transported to Fowler and will be returned at 3,45 p.m.

"I urge parents of these kindergarten children to bring them to the parking lot for the first couple of days until the children learn where they are to go in their new building," said school superintendent Lee Williamson. "Then, if you wish to take them to and from school, fine!"

— After the first couple of days, it may not be the kindergarten teacher on the bus. But there will be an adult to accompany the children.

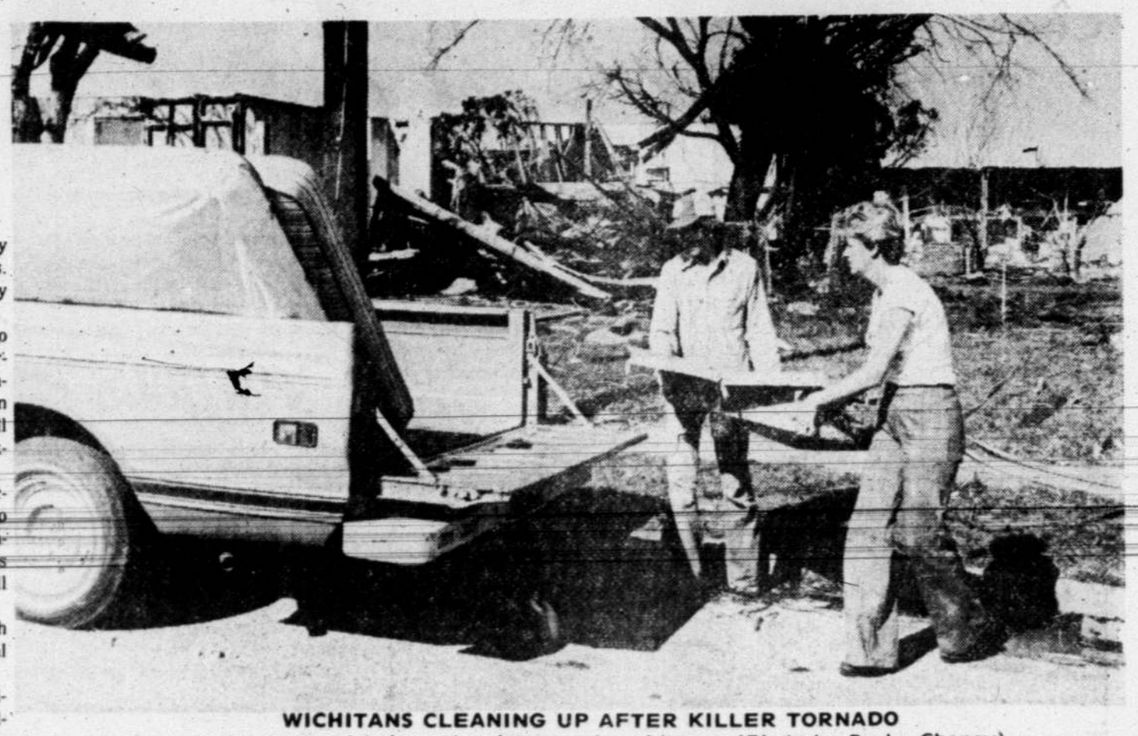

— Parents may transfer their children to closer schools if they have found temporary housing in another part of town. Parents who wish to transfer their children are asked to go to the new school and tell the principal where they have been attending.

— Rider students who attend the VocTech centers for a half day, should plan to attend classes at the tech center on Monday. If the student ordinarily rides the bus from Rider to the Tech Center, the bus will be available.

It is very important that Rider VocTech students attend Monday so that individual planning can be done.

— Damage at Rider is estimated unofficially at $400,000. The cafeteria, agricultural building, gym, and science wing were damaged severely. Memorial Stadium was damaged extensively. McGaha. Bonham, Cunningham, Lamar, Sam Houston and Jefferson elementaries had glass damage. There was damage to the cafeteria roof at Fowler, Williamson said.

Windows at the schools will be replaced quickly. There may be some roof leaks in the schools for the rest of the year, he added.

Race with a twister

By LOUISE GREGG
Staff Writer

It's been tried before — with varying degrees of success.

Jumping in a car or pickup and trying to outrun a driverless tornado is what several people think of first when they see a tornado funnel crawling on the ground toward them.

That's what Wichitans Charles and Dolly Sloan did Tuesday evening when they spotted the heading in their direction.

Minutes before they were doing what hundreds of other Wichitans were doing — listening to TV weather reports.

"I went outside and climbed on top of the house so I could see where it (the tornado) was," said 46-year-old Mrs. Sloan. "My husband stayed inside to listen to TV."

The Sloan's live in the 3400 block of Barrett Place, on a corner. The black southwesterly cloud looked mighty close. "I could see that it was throwing stuff in the air and coming straight at us," recalled Mrs. Sloan. "It got closer and closer."

Without further dillydallying, she climbed from the roof top and she and her husband jumped in their brand new '79 Chevy pickup. "It had 3,000 miles on it," recalled Mrs. Sloan, discounting their material loss. "We were so lucky."

They raced east on Hampstead. Their dreaded competitive vehicle, roaring and raging down a zigzag track,suddenly began to gain momentum. It veered closer and closer like a helter-skelter Cosworth V-8 or maybe an Offenhauser. The Sloans realized they were out of the running. They were losing the race.

Nonetheless, they sped on across Jacksboro Highway past the Armory. They decided to call a halt to the race when they reached the highway overpass, a landmark that appears just before Wichita Falls Clinic.

Already cars were parked beneath the underpass. The Sloans abandoned their pickup and ran. Up, up they "climbed the steep incline as far as we could go. We sat on a 12-inch concrete ledge and held on to one. We knew winds create a suction so weheld on tightly."

Mrs. Sloan removed her eye glasses, Sloan, whose eye glasses were plastic, left his on. "We turned our heads and covered our eyes."

For two or three minutes the Sloans listened to the noise of their adversary. "We felt pressure. We heard noises — cars being thrown around."

When it was over, the Sloans heard more terrible noises — "People in cars were hollering for help. All were injured," she said, but not critically. "There was miracle after miracle that night."

The Sloans and others who had found safety in the shelter of the underpass helped the injured until rescue people came.

Then, carrying jumper cables (the only item salvaged from their new pickup), they "hitched a ride with two or three people" and finally got home. "It was raining...and a bit of hail."

"We didn't get a scratch," marveled Mrs. Sloan. "Debris was everhwhere" in the vicinity of the underpass. "Under the circumstances it was a very safe place. The worst thing was that we got splattered with mud."

For a race with a tornado there aren't any trial runs. "It's a split-second decision" to enter the race at all.

"We couldn't beat it," reflected Mrs. Sloan." "It was bad judgment. The tornado was so-o-o big, so wide. It was difficult to judge its speed and direction."

"But we did the best we could," she added.

That's all anyone can do.

Debris removal begins next week

Removal of debris from private property will begin next week under contract by the Army Corps of Engineers and private contractors.

Mayor Kenneth Hill and City Manager Gerald Fox said today they wanted to clarify statements made Thursday concerning the removal of debris from private property in the disaster area.

"The removal of debris effort will not begin until next week," Hill said. "And it will be done by contract between the Corps of Enginners and private contractors."

City personnel will not be doing this work, he said. Disaster area property owners are urged not to call the city switchboard concerning debris removal. Individual property owner releases, which will be necessary for private contractors to enter property for debris removal, will be available at the disaster assistance centers.

"Please do not remove debris from private property to the street right-of-way," the mayor implored. "This will only tie up the access within the disaster area."

Tree damage tax loss

Trees, too, can suffer loss of limb, cuts and gashes and deep wounds as a result of a tornado. Some can be mended — others may be damaged so heavily they are lost forever.

Robert C. Webb, Wichita Falls landscape architect, estimates "Tens of thousands of trees were lost in the city (during Tuesday evening's tornado). Because of the broad swath" many old and ornamental trees were toppled to the ground, some of them split apart, some snapped off at the base and some uprooted.

"Many will be saved. It's amazing how trees can adapt to injury," said Webb. The landscape architect said he had received numerous calls. "The only problem is...many of our own people lost houses. We're on stand-by. We've sent men to help our competition who lost most of their plants. Everyone who wants tree services gets on a waiting list. We are moving with three crews."

Brightest news about the city's fallen trees is that Internal Revenue Service has confirmed "storm damage on trees is considered a tax loss." This is the news from Frank Rogers, revenue agentwith IRS in Dallas offices.

Skilled treemen (Webb said the term "tree surgeon" is not exactly right) bind up the wounds of trees by various methods.

"Cement is used for cavity work, cables for bracing and screw eyes are threaded to hold trunks and limbs together."

"If a tree is girdled — if the cambian layer has been stripped off all around or if the tree is uprooted" it can't be saved.

And fortunately, Webb said, "trees can be planted any time of the year if they are balled and burlapped."

Circus, Burk were ready to help

By DOROTHY CROWDER
Burkburnett Bureau

BURKBURNETT (Special) — The first elephant had entered the ring and the performance was about to start last Tuesday night at the Carson and Barnes Circus in Burkburnett, a performance that would benefit the Burkburnett Boys Club.

Meanwhile, a message was broadcast from KTRM-AM, the only Wichita Falls station on the air, asking anyone in the Burkburnett area to get a message to the manager of the circus.

The portable generator which the circus uses to light up the ring was needed at Wichita General Hospital. Without hesitation the plug was pulled and the manager said to Jesse Williams, president of the Boys Club, "I'm sorry but we have to respond. We will have to cancel this performance."

Strangers to Wichita County, the circus personnel immediately loaded their vehicles and reported to the American Red Cross to donate 70 pints of blood. Their powerful electrical generator was put into service at the hospital.

Within an hour of the tornado's destruction, equipment and work crews from the City of Burkburnett joined volunteers from other area towns trying to be of help to Wichita Falls. Burk volunteer firemen dug through the debris in search of victims. Their Jaws of Life rescue tool was placed into service several times.

About 11 p. m. word was received by Hugh (Buddy) Preston that his dairy trucks were needed to transport water to Wichita General and Bethania Hospitals. Preston placed his milk trucks at the disposal of rescue workers and opened his plastic bottling plant to Wichita County workers who needed containers for the water.

Asked how many containers were donated, Preston replied, "We don't keep count at a time like this."

Miraculously spared of any destruction which hit most of its neighboring cities, Burkburnett felt helpless. Wanting to help, needing to help, the city was powerless to act to the extent it wished. Running low on water from its own wells, the City of Burkburnett continued to fill the dairy trucks to take water to Wichita Falls.

The Rev. Albert Lindemann, president of the Burkburnett Ministerial Alliance, summed up the feeling. "At this point all we can do is standby. The need will continue for a while and we will be prepared to help."

Vehicle permit decals canceled

By MARTY SABOTA
Staff Writer

Plans of requiring vehicle permit decals for entry into tornado stricken areas in hopes of curbing sightseers were cancelled three hours after they were initiated by city officals this morning.

The city's sticker supply ran out about 9:30 due to overwhelming demand, said Dane Bennett, city budget director.

City officials have reinstated their operation of checking motorists' identification at barricades set up on the perimeters of the stricken areas.

Bennett said when the decal plan was instituted at 6:30 a.m. today, property security and cleanup operations would be hampered if the area was crowded with weekend sightseers. Under the plan, only vehicles bearing windshield decals were to be authorized for entry into an area covering approximately eight square miles.

The complete depletion of the sticker supply forced a return to the old system, but Bennett said only necessary traffic is requested in the areas.

"A few people who aren't supposed to get through will no matter how careful we are," he said. "That'll happen."

Bennett implored people without business in the stricken area to stay away.

No penalties will be imposed on unauthorized persons found in restricted areas, he added.

"We're just asking that people please cooperate to expedite entry to this area," he said.

Salvation Army aids victims

The Salvation Army has provided shelter for approximately 100 persons and served more than 30,000 meals to victims of Tuesday's tornado.

The services continue, with the exception of the shelter which has been turned into the Salvation Army's headquarters, according to Capt. Harvey Harwell, commander.

"Ready-made sandwiches are badly needed, but mostly we need cooking utensils, pots and pans and cash donations," he said.

The Salvation Army is located at 2900 Fifth.

Disaster victims and workers have been able to get food and drink from their mobile vans and a stationary van, which is located at Cynthia and Jacksboro Highway, in one of the city's hardest hit areas.

Capt. Joseph Benett, divisional disaster coordinator, and Maj. David Mikles, both of Dallas, are in Wichita Falls.

"Equipment, supplies and officers and staff workers are coming in from all over the state. We also have 25 to 30 volunteers working," Benett said.

The relief agency's clothing distribution center at Harrell Elementary, located just east of Beverly Circle on Seymour Road, "has more clothing coming into it than it has going out," Benett said.

Mail delivery procedures set

Mail delivery will be suspended in the Wichita Falls areas affected by the tornado. All other areas will receive regular delivery.

Customers affected by the tornado will be able to receive the following services:

— Zip code zones 76302, 76303 and rural route 5 may pick up mail at the Main Post Office, 1000 Lamar, during regular business hours.

— Zip code zones 76308, 76309 and 76310 may pick up mail at the University Park station, 4312 Call Field Road, during regular business hours.

— Business hours for both locations will be 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

— Mail for customers in the affected areas will be held indefinitely. Customers are urged to turn in a change-of-address as soon as possible so that their mail can be delivered, avoiding congestion at the Post Office.

Bell official says service near normal

A Southwestern Bell Telephone official said today that long distance circuits are operating at "more than 100 percent" of normal capacity and predicted service would be restored to the last two large areas without it by sometime Sunday.

Mack McGee, Bell's district manager, said it might still be easier for Wichitans to call out on long distance than for others to call in, but that service was nearly normal now.

He said local phone service in the Sikes and Midwestern Parkway areas, knocked out by the loss of two main circuits running down Midwestern Parkway and Southwest Parkway, was expected to be restored either Sunday afternoon or night.

McGee said the company's business office would be open Saturday to take disconnect orders from customers whose homes were destroyed.

McGee said that phone bills would be adjusted for customers whose homes were damaged and there would be no installation fee when these customers moved into other housing.

Water still contaminated, power conservation ended

Although normal water service has been restored and prohibitions on water useage have been lifted, tap water in Wichita Falls is still contaminated and must be boiled or disinfected when used for human consumption.

Fred Hays, spokesman for public utilities, said problem areas have been isolated and valved off and the city is working on these areas with hope that service will be restored soon.

Hays warned city residents that the tap water is still contaminated and must either be boiled or disinfected. He said it will probably take two or three more days to purge the system. Public announcements will be made when the water is safe, he said.

Contaminants will be in the water until the city is able to flush all fire hydrants, according to Dane Bennett, city budget director.

Division Manager Tom Locke said, "Lifting of the curtailment was made possible by the repair of a second large transmillion line into the Wichita Falls area."

He said the excellent cooperation received from customers during the curtailment was sincerely appreciated.

M.C. McGee, district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said most of the phone service had been repaired, but there has been about an 800 percent increase in long distance useage.

Thursday morning he said telephone service in the whole southwest and southeast sections of the city will have to be rebuilt and could give no estimate when the job would be completed.

Area damage surveyed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tornado damage in Baylor, Clay and Ford counties is being surveyed and consideration is being given to extending a disaster designation to those areas, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday.

Wichita and Wilbarger counties already have been designated major disaster areas for federal financial relief.

Individuals or organizations wishing to make cash contributions for relief of Wichita Falls tornado victims may contact their local Red Cross chapter, Clements added.

Gov. Nigh figures $11.1 million loss

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. George Nigh estimated the total damage at $11.1 million in his telegram to President Carter requesting a federal disaster area designation for the five southern Oklahoma counties which were ravaged by tornadoes Tuesday night.

Nigh said he expects the request to be granted later today for Comanche, Jefferson, Tillman, Stephens and Carter counties.

In the telegram, Nigh said the "most destructive" of the tornadoes struck Lawton, killing three persons and injuring more than 100 others.

"Nearly 100 homes were destroyed and 300 were damaged," he said. "In addition, several farmsteads were struck, causing damage to barns, sheds, machinery and livestock."

Former labor leader on trial for murder

CLEVELAND (AP) — Anthony D. Liberatore, on the FBI's most-wanted list for more than a year, is scheduled to go on trial on Oct. 1 in connection with the bombing death of a Cleveland rackets figure.

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Harry Hanna set the trial date Thursday. Liberatore, 57, has been charged with aggravated murder and aggravated arson in the bombing death of racketeer Daniel J. Greene.

Board of Realtors offering rental aid

By LEON HOOTEN
Business Editor

Wichita Falls Board of Realtors has established a rental coordination center to provide assistance in securing rental property and to try to prevent price-gouging in the housing industry.

"We will support city, state or federal officials who want to take action in price-gouging cases and will make the tax equalization board aware of an increase on property values because of inflated rentals," Karl King, Board of Realtors president, said today.

Persons may call for rental assistance or report suspected price-gouging at 723-7365 or 322-0739, King said.

The rental coordintaion center working with the disaster control board will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and as long as it is required, or helpful, King added.

He also said Realtors would appoint a fair market committee to determine if rental or sale property has been highly inflated in value because of the disaster.

Board also needs to know of any mobil home lots with sewage and water connections. If lots are available, please call 322-0739.

Property managers are reminded by Wichita Falls Planning Department that lot clearing authority forms will be available at the board at 2315 N. Ninth. Property managers were also reminded by the planning department that authority must be obtained from property owners before a structure can be torn down. King said this is especially true in the case of out-of-toqn owners of damaged property in Wichita Falls.

Emergency food stamps available

Tornado victims will be elegible for emergency food stamps at the three federal disaster centers in Wichita Falls and Vernon, said Larry Carnes of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

The food stamps will be available for up to two weeks (April 14-22) and will be issued the same day application is made. To qualify for emergency coupons, a resident must file a short application form declaring he suffered a loss of income or resources, which creates an immediate food need, as a result of the tornado damage.

A family of four can qualify for as much as $191 under the emergency program.

Psychologists assert dieting can be dangerous

That's the label three psychologists have put on what they feel is one of America's most dangerous myths.

"Dieting often does as much good as holding your breath," said Wayne Wooley. "It's contrary to what the body is geared to do."

"Whole lives can be controlled by feelings of fatness," added Wooley's associate, Susan Dyrenforth. "It's a myth we all participate in. What we ask is that people quit living in a myth of self-hatred and start living in the real world."

They offer no magic diets, no promise of weight loss. In fact, after 15 weeks of going to weekly clinics, most people show an average weight loss of four pounds.

The cost of treatment at the clinic, which is part of the department of psychiatry at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, is $45 a week for either a two-hour group session or a one-hour individual session.

What the clinic does offer is peace of mind. The clinic's message is simple: If it feels good to eat that hamburger, maybe it would be better to go ahead and eat it instead of trying to starve.

In fact, the three psychologists have found that dieting seldm does any good in the long run for many of their clients.

"Being hungry sets off an evolutionary alarm, a panic reaction far stronger, because it is more fundamental than any motivation to become thin," Ms. Dyrenforth said. "'I'm going to starve!' the alarm says."

Iowa Park

IOWA PARK HORTICULTURAL CLASS plant sale begins began today at the Iowa Park Greenhouse on the high school campus. The sale will continue through 5 p.m. Saturday.

Bedding and tomato and pepper plants are available, said Jimmy Howell, instructor.

Burkburnett

CITY MANAGER GARY BEAN today said Burkburnett is using its own city supply of water and is not getting Wichita Falls water.

Therefore, boiling of water in Burkburnett is not necessary. But Bean said conservation of water is important as the water volume is low.

BURKBURNETT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT COUNCIL is collecting clothing and household articles for relief of Wichita Falls victims.

Henrietta

AN ADDITIONAL MORNING SERVICE is set for Sunday at Henrietta First Baptist Church.

The service will be at 8:30 a.m. with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and regular worship service at 11 a.m., according to the Rev. Lesley J. White, pastor.

Special music by adult choir at 7 p.m. will be entitled "Alleluia — A Praise Gathering" under direction of Jim Branum, minister of music at the church.

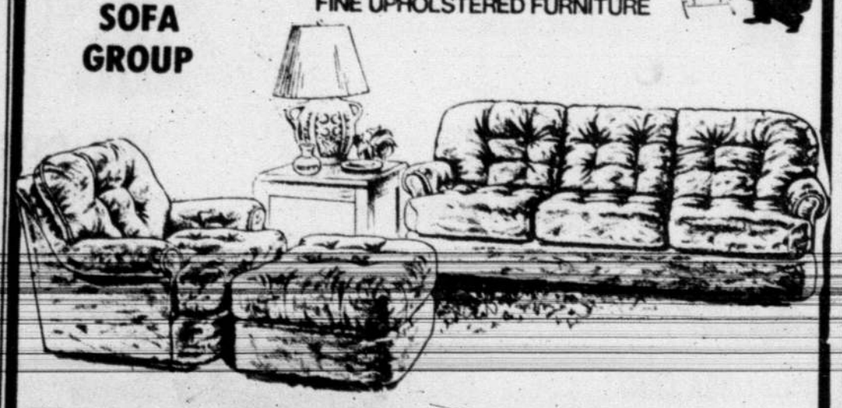

BILLY GARRISON WAS ELECTED president of Henrietta Independent Independent School District board of trustees at reorganization of the board following canvass of April 7 school election which saw re-election to the board of Eddie Heard and Dr. Leroy Schaffner.

Other officers for the new year are Heard, vice president; Cratus Douthitt, secretary; and Weldon Pollard, assistant secretary.

Humorous look at Uganda spying

Publisher defies CIA to publish story

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The editor of a monthly magazine said he will publish an edition today with a humorous article about spying in Uganda — despite objections from the CIA about certain portions of the article.

"We've got to make some deletions where we agreed to ... where the CIA made a case where certain lives would be in danger," Oregon Magazine Editor Tom Bates said this morning before leaving for the printing plant.

The article, "I was Idi Amin's Basketball Czar," is an account of spy activities in Uganda by Jay Mullen of Medford, Ore., who was a CIA agent in that African country in the early 1970s, Bates said.

Printing of the May edition of the magazine, with the spying article, was set to begin today.

Bates characterized the article as lively and humorous. "We didn't expect any trouble from the CIA over this," he said Thursday before meeting with the CIA representative.

One section of the story is subtitled "How I Punched Idim Amin in the nose and live to tell about it," Bates said. That was an account of an altercation between Mullen and Amin following an impromptu race in the Uganda president's swimming pool.

"We did not agree to a lot of other deletions with regard to operations that Jay discusses. If we agreed to all the deletions they asked for, the story would have been grossly disfigured," he said.

CIA Associate Counsel John Greany flew to Portland Thursday night and met privately with Bates and Mullen for five hours while reporters hovered outside.

Neither Greany nor Bates proposed going to court over the article.

"He (Greany) said he would call the (CIA's) general counsel during the night," Bates said. "We have no idea what it will be. I'm gonna go out and try to get them (the presses) rolling. We will proceed to make the deletions we agreed to so far."

Bates said he didn't agree with Greany on all CIA objections, but added, " ... "It's not a particularly adversary thing. They made some very good points."

In Washington Thursday night, CIA spokesman Herbert Hetu confirmed that Mullen, a former CIA employee, sent the article to the agency in keeping with an agreement CIA employees make when they join the agency.

"There were some things we felt should be deleted in the interest of national security," Hetu said. Greany's trip to Portland was arranged, he said, because there were things that should not be discussed over the telephone.

Bates said, "He (Mullen) was there to spy on Chinese and Russian agents, too. They even tried to seduce him with a beautiful agent."

He said Mullen, who had a degree in African languages, ostensibly was a professor of the university at Kampala, Uganda. "He ended up coaching the national basketball team," Bates said. "They didn't have too many people over there that knew much about basketball."

Mullen's past CIA connections were revealed after he returned to Oregon and ran in the Democratic primary for the state House of Representatives in 1978. He lost after opponents found that one of the firms listed in his biography was a CIA front.

The magazine, about nine years old, is circulated monthly in Oregon and prints articles and photographs of state issues and events.

Krueger gets Mexico post

State

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger has confirmed that he has been appointed by President Carter as special coordinator for Mexican affairs, meaning he will oversee multi-agency negotiations between the two countries.

BOB KRUEGER

The president and the State Department agreed on Krueger after Carter decided to leave Patrick Lucey as ambassador to Mexico.

A Krueger aide confirmed the position had been offered to his boss although he said the White House did not give a concrete title.

"The word we get is that he will be a special envoy," the aide said.

White House said Hamilton Jordan said the details of Krueger's assignment will not be completed until Krueger and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance confer when the president returns from a vacation.

Carter is to meet with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo in June.

Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita M. Kreps is the second major Carter administration official this week to hint the nation may see tighter monetary policies.

Mrs. Kreps said Thursday a "modest tightening" of credit might be needed to help cool the overheated industrial sector of the economy. She added that current economic indicators are presenting "a somewhat mixed picture" of what is occurring.

Three aircraft missing

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Civil Air Patrol searched today for three airplanes, two fighter planes and a chartered aircraft, with a total of five persons aboard.

CAP spokesman Don Raymond said a chartered twin-engine plane with three passengers disappeared Thursday while en route from Ruidoso, N.M. to Albuquerque.

A spokesman for Holloman Air Force Base at Alamogordo said two F5E fighter planes didn't return from a training mission Thursday.

Names of the missing have not been released.

Violation alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group has complained to the Justice Department that officials of General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. may have violated federal antitrust laws when they met to discuss emission control systems.

The Center for Auto Safety, in a letter to Attorney General Griffin Bell, contended the meeting violated a 10-year-old consent decree under which the four major U.S. automakers agreed not to share information concerning research and development of equipment needed to meet federal clean air standards.

GM recall announced

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors Corp. is voluntarily recalling 172,000 of its 1977 and 1978 Chevrolet Monza, Pontiac Starbird and Oldsmobile Starfire automobiles to correct a problem that could make steering difficult, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced today.

China protests Vietnamese attack

World

TOKYO (AP) — China accused Vietnam today of sending armed vessels into the sea around China's Paracel Islands to "reconnoiter and shoot a Chinese patrol boat." A strong protest was lodged, China's Xinhau news agency reported.

Xinhua quoted the Chinese protest note as saying: "The Vietnamese authorities sent (on Tuesday) three boatloads of military personnel armed with bazookas, light machine guns, submachine guns ... to intrude into the sea area of China's Xisha (Paracel) Islands and carried out reconnaissance at a point some 550 yards from the coast.

Americans order South Africans out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today ordered the expulsion of two South African military attaches in retaliation for that country's decision Thursday to expel three U.S. defense attaches in connection with an alleged spying plot.

Undersecretary of State David Newsom informed South African charge d'affaires William Retief of the expulsion order this morning, department spokesman Hodding Carter announced.

Carter declined all comment on the substance of South African charges that the United States had violated South African sovereignty by engaging in aerial photography of "very sensitive areas" of the country.

But, Carter said, "I can assure you there won't be an apology" to South Africa for the alleged spying operation.

"We do not feel we have any reason to offer one," he said.

Carter said the administration hoped that strains in U.S. relations with South Africa will have no effect on the negotiations.

State adamant on nuke waste

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — While a state health official renewed his pledge that no highly radioactive waste from the Three Mile Island nuclear plant will be allowed in South Carolina, federal officials have refused to say whether some of that waste may end up at the Savannah River Plant.

Heyward G. Shealy of the state Department of Health and Environmental Control, who turned back two truckloads of waste from Three Mile Island earlier in the week, said Thursday no more shipments would be allowed in the state without "written confirmation" of their contents.

Shealy said any firm bringing wastes from the Harrisburg, Pa., plant must first give assurances that it is low-level radioactive material.

Spokesmen for the Department of Energy and Nuclear Regulatory Commission refused to comment on whether some high-level waste from the accident site might end up at the Savannah River Plant near Aiken.

What caused near-disaster?

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Crew members of a Trans World Airline jet which took a 25,000-foot nosedive last week are unable to explain to federal investigators what caused the near-disaster.

"I'd like somebody to tell me" how it happened, the pilot, Capt. Harvey Gibson told a National Transportation and Safety Board hearing Thursday.

The officials at least learned why the pilot was calm enough to recover control of the aircraft — he has considerable experience as an acrobatic pilot of small planes.

Asked if the acrobatic piloting experience helped him in any way, Gibson replied, "It sure didn't hurt."

Gibson said he heard a "slight buzz" just before the aircraft with 87 passengers on board went into the first of two rolls and the nosedive on a New York-to-Minneapolis flight.

The 44-year-old resident of Las Vegas, Nev., was vigorously questioned by Federal Aviation Administration attorney James Dillman about an erased cockpit voice recording. All three crew members denied erasing the tape or seeing anyone do it.

Gibson said it was a routine practice to erase the tapes after landing. "As far as I know, it's done by everbody," he said. One reason is that the tapes sometimes include disparaging remarks about supervisors.

The pilot also said the tapes are automatically erased and start over every 30 minutes, so the tape — even if it had not been intentionally erased after landing — only would have recorded the cockpit conversations of the last 30 minutes of the troubled flight.

"Nobody wishes more than I did that we had the information," Gibson said. But the tape "would have shown nothing about the incident but only what happened afterward, and I'm pretty proud of what happened."

Factory production shows gains in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two months of winter sluggishness, the output of the nation's factories rebounded a strong 0.8 percent in March, the government said today.

The March increase, following a slight rise in February and no change in January, produced a first-quarter total of 0.9 percent. That would be equivalent to an annual growth rate of 3.5 percent, the Federal Reserve said.

Production had risen 2.1 percent in the fourth quarter of 1978, or at an annual rate of more than 7 percent, government figures show.

Government economists have been predicting considerable slowing in the economy in the first quarter, with real growth in the 2 to 2.5 percent range, compared with the heady 6.9 percent of the fourth quarter.

They do not believe, however, that the slower growth will contribute to a recession that some economists believe could hit later this year.

"Advances were widespread among products and materials" in March, said the report from the Federal Reserve. "Rebounds from earlier weather effects contributed significantly to substantial increases in production of motor vehicles and parts, steel and coal."

The rate of auto assemblies increased about 6 percent in March to an annual rate of 9.4 million units, the central bank reported. Figures on coal and steel were not immediately available.

The largest increase in factory output was in consumer durable goods, which rose 1.9 percent in March after a 0.1 percent rise in February and a 0.6 percent drop in January. The Federal Reserve said this was "reflecting increases in basic metals and in parts for equipment and consumer durables."

Windjammer hunt expands

BALTIMORE (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard sent seven long-range aircraft into an area of the Atlantic today 240 miles east of the Virginia coast in search of the schooner Pride of Baltimore and its crew of 11. The sailing vessel is four days overdue in Norfolk, Va.

The area was selected with the aid of a computer used by the Coast Guard to analyze information known about the ship and weather conditions.

Baltimore City officials said the crew, which includes a seasoned captain, Charles Whitcomb, 52, eight men and two women, most of them in their 20s with some sailing experience, may have tried to avoid a weekend storm off the Carolinas and headed out to sea.

They predicted that the wooden replica of an early 19th century Baltimore clipper — which has been overdue before, sometimes as long as 10 days — would arrive at Norfolk today.

At Texas Electric we're working to turn Wichita Falls' power back on

Employees at Texas Electric are working around the clock to restore power to Wichita Falls following the devastating tornado that hit last Tuesday.

Restoring service along the tornado's path and adjacent areas will be a time-consuming and tedious task. Many power lines are down in the area. It's vital that you keep away from these downed lines . . . AND warn children of the danger.

Emergency crews from other electric utilities throughout the state and Oklahoma are helping us in this clean-up effort.

We don't know how long it will take to restore power in the hardest hit part of the city, but we appreciate your cooperation and patience during this difficult time.

We are doing everything we can to turn the power back on.

Adair's crew battles blaze

Heat from the blaze was so intense it blistered the paint on several small frame houses 100 yards away. About 150 residents in the area left their homes and sought shelter in nearby motels, according to Kenedy County Deputy Sheriff Clark Slater.

No one has been reported hurt since the well blew out before dawn Thursday.

An Exxon official at the site, who asked not to be identified, called the fire a "premature blowout." He said firefighters were trying to dig a diagonal hole that will enable them to flood the fire. The tedious operation could last four to five days, he said.

However, Slater said he was told it could take up to 12 days.

Firemen from surrounding communities helped in showering the nearby frame homes with water to keep them cool, but despite the curtain of water, the heat damaged the paint on the homes.

Authorities said about 20 homes in the danger area were evacuated.

The digging crew had drilled to about 2,200 feet when the well, located on the northeastern edge of town, blew out and caught on fire.

"The rig crew could tell the well was coming in on them. But it came in so fast they did not have time to cap it," said William A. Sears, manager of Exxon's South Texas division.

Prison officials knew of escape attempt in '74?

HOUSTON (AP) — The defense attorney for Ignacio Cuevas says Texas Department of Corrections officials knew in advance of a 1974 prison escape attempt in which two inmates and two hostages were killed.

Attorney Will Gray Thursday introduced a copy of a letter dated March 28, 1974 from the U.S. Department of Justice Drug Enforcement Administration regional office in Dallas to TDC Director Jim Estelle.

The letter said information had been received from four extremely reliable informants that the escape attempt would be made at the Huntsville prison in the near future.

Inmates Fred Gomez Carrasco, Rudolpho Dominquez and two hostages died Aug. 3, 1974 when they tried to break out of the prison library ushing the hostages as shields.

Cuevas survived the escape attempt and was convicted of causing the death of hostage Julia Standley but a state Court of Appeals ordered a new trial, saying the trial judge failed to disqualify a juror.

The Rev. Joseph O'Brien, one of the hostages, testified he had been made aware of the letter and its contents when he talked to the prison official in charge of such records.

O'Brien, shot during the escape attempt, was asked about statements made by two previous witnesses who quoted the chaplain as saying Cuevas shot him.

The chaplain said he remembers making the statement, but added that he was seriously wounded at the time and in a state of shock, and actually he does not know who shot him.

TDC official Bobby Maggard testified he took possession of the hand guns of the three convicts and their ammunitiaion.

"I personally removed Carrasco's revolver by taking it from his hand," Maggard said. "He still had a firm grip on it. I found Dominguez' weapon lying on top of his body. Cuevas had no weapon on him. (Department of Public Safety officer Danny) Williams told me he had the weapon and gave it to me.

"Danny Williams handed me two spent bullet hulls and one live round he said he had taken from Cuevas' revolver."

Committee probes NTSU's alleged mishandling of funds

By SUSAN STOLER
AP Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A few hours after resigning as president of North Texas State University, C.C. "Jitter" Nolen appeared Thursday before a House committee investigating alleged mishandling of funds at the Denton campus.

The House General Investigating Committee heard testimony in closed session on the school's relationship to the NTSU Education Foundation, Inc., a private fundraising organization.

Subpoenaed with Nolen were James A. Reid, foundation executive director; Jane G. Smith, university vice president for student affairs; and university regent E.E. Stuessy of Austin.

Earlier in the day, the regents accepted Nolen's resignation in an emergency meeting here. John L. Carter, vice president for fiscal affairs, was named acting president.

Nolen became NTSU president in 1971 and promised to increase private contributions to the fourth-largest state-supported university. The foundation was chartered in 1972 and contributions have risen from about $85,000 that year to $700,000 in 1978.

"My intention always has been to serve the university to the best of my ability and with the best interest of the university in mind," Nolen said after resigning. "It is unfortunate when innocent individuals are involved needlessly when their only desire is to serve the university."

Carter has said that checks originally made out to the university have been altered to make them payable to the foundation. Reid says the donors agreed to the change, but Carter disputes that.

Rep. Richard Slack, chairman of the investigating committee, did not say when it would issue a report on the North Texas State situation.

Slack, D-Pecos, said the committee has been studying the situation for two weeks with information coming from several sources. Rep. Frank Gaston, R-Dallas, started an independent probe and has cooperated with the committee, Slack added.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he did not know if other witnesses would be subpoenaed.

Clayton earlier admonished the five committee members about the seriousness of the investigation.

"This university does not need a black mark or anything that would be a discredit to the people of the state or the students at the university or the employees," Clayton said.

Any evidence of criminal activity should be turned over to the Travis County district attorney, he added.

"We don't want a whitewash, but at the same time we're not on a witch hunt," Clayton added.

Trouble in onion fields

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Officials in this South Texas town braced today for possible violence as some onion field workers who walked off the job last week decided they wanted to go back to work.

"We need to work, that's all," said Juan Guerrero, who said he fears for his safety.

Texas farm workers union members walked off the onion fields last week in a strike aimed at higher wages and collective bargaining rights.

"Yes, I anticipate trouble," Willacy County Sheriff Oscar Correa said.

"A whole bunch of it, but I don't know when."

Tempers fueled by a hot afternoon sun almost spilled over into violence later in the day Thursday. Strikers, upset when a grower replaced them with workers who said they were from Mexico, tried to convince the strike breakers to leave a western Willacy County field.

"We thought everything had stoppd here," said strike leader Jesus Moya.

A busload of Texas Farm Workers Union members headed for the field after hearing reports that workers were back at work.

Houston mayor's records probed

HOUSTON (AP) — The campaign finances of Houston Mayor Jim McConn are under scrutiny by federal authorities investigating extortion allegations against suspended city purchasing director Jack Key, a political fund-raiser for the mayor.

Federal officials subpoenaed McConn's campaign contribution and expense reports Thursday.

Key is charged with forcing a $4,000 payment from Jimmy's Tire Center, which held a city contract to repair tires on municipal vehicles.

The investigators are reported to be probing Key's role in a $100-a-plate country club dinner held last summer to raise money to retire McConn's campaign debt.

An FBI affidavit said Key made an unauthorized contract change that cost the city at least a $558 increase in service charges billed to the tire company during a four-day period in March. The FBI said half of the increased profits were to go to Key.

City Attorney Bob Collie said the city will refuse to pay the increased amount billed by the tire firm since the contract change.

Dallas schoolgirl killed on bus

DALLAS (AP) — A 16-year-old high school sophomore died Thursday in Dallas when the school bus on which she was riding brushed against a utility pole while she had her head out the window.

Officials said Debra Lynn Tramel suffered a broken neck and died instantly.

The bus driver said a car was parked directly in front of him, and he had to steer sharply to the left to pull out around it. The girl had just gotten on the bus and had her head out a window at the back of the bus when it pulled away from the curb.

Authorities said information on the accident will be turned over to the Dallas County grand jury as a matter of routine, but that no action is expected.

House defeats controversial bill

By LEE JONES
AP Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has reversed itself and defeated, 75-48, a bill opponents called an attempt by bankers and savings and loan associations to head off minority competition.

Thursday's vote meant two dozen reprentatives had changed their minds since the bill won tentative approval the day before, 79-49.

A black legislator called the bill the most "despicable" thing he had seen in more than six years in the House.

The measure would have prohibited ownership of bank or savings and loan stock by nonprofit organizations that receive state or federal money.

"The bill is just saying you can't go to the federal government and get your dollars and my dollars and invest them for this particular purpose," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, the sponsor.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, observed that the only witness for the bill when it was heard in committee was from the Texas Savings and Loan League.

"'We don't to have to compete with those folks' is what they are really thinking," said Wilson, a moderate to conservative legislator.

"It's all right to talk about job opportunities as long as it's job opportunities with a shovel. ... But God forbid they would own a bank," Wilson said.

Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, said the bill would prevent organizations from using economic development money from the U.S. Community Services Administration to buy banks.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, said such a bank might make home improvement loans in rundown neighborhoods that other lending institutions have "redlined."

Salinas said he thought a group of blacks in Lubbock was trying to obtain a federal grant to start a savings and loan association.

Presnal said he knew of no groups that have used federal grants to buy bank or savings and loan stock so far, "and I hope they never do."

"I don't want anybody using federal money to buy a bank. They can get out and work for a living just like I do," said Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline.

"You are not stopping the grants, Mr. Hollowell, but you are stopping the opportunity of people to make it in this world. ... I have been in the House six years and I have never seen anything as despicable as this," said Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston.

Both chambers of the Legislature were off today, and only the House worked on Thursday. The Senate began its Easter break a day earlier than the House.

Representatives passed and sent to the Senate, 118-9, a bill restoring the traditional two-semester school year that was replaced in 1972 by the present three-quarter academic year.

The House passed on voice vote and sent to the Senate a bill enabling the Texas Employment Commission to direct a jobless person to take a "suitable" work assignment.

An employer could ask the commission to direct persons to work for him. Refusal to accept a job would result in loss of unemployment compensation. The commission could require a person to work only in jobs that are "suitable" in terms of his or her past wages, training and job experience.

In addition, an employer would have to allow time for a person whom the commission forced to work for him to continue searching for a job of the worker's own choosing.

House members passed, 101-29, a Senate bill allowing cities to pay legal fees for policemen who are sued because of injuries or property damage arising from performance of their official duties.

Senators now must decide whether to accept House amendments, chiefly one giving a city the option of refusing to pay a policeman's attorney fees.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills that would:

— Repeal the law allowing elected county officials to form grievance committees to grant pay raises that county commissioners have denied.

— Require appointment of interpreters for deaf persons involved in criminal or civil court cases or administrative proceedings before such local bodies as city councils and school boards.

Winning tentative House approval were bills that would:

— Eliminate the requirement of annual tuberculosis tests for school employees.

Ruling sidetracks electric rates bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A parliamentary ruling by Speaker Bill Clayton sidetracked a House bill Thursday that would strip city councils of their authority to set electric rates.

Electric utility companies sought passage of the bill because it would enable them to present rate increase requests directly to the Texas Public Utility Commission.

City officials opposed the measure.

In recent years, city councils have tended to reject rate increases. Electric companies have appealed to the commission, but their old rates remained in effect while they awated a decision.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, raised a point of order that the House State Affairs Committee had violated House rules by rewriting the bill to make it reach far beyond the original intent.

Clayton upheld the point of order, sending the bill back to the House Calendars Committee. He said the committee had the power to decide whether to let it die or return it to the state affairs committee for repairs.

Sedate library center of storm

BOSTON (AP) — For most of the last century, while George and Martha Washington hung sedately in the back hall of the Museum of Fine Arts, the Athenaeum sat in quiet obscurity as a last toehold of the proper Bostonian.

Now, George and Martha are the center of a spirited brouhaha over where they will reside for the next century or so, and the Boston Athenaeum is suddenly in the undignified position of having its finances aired in public.

The paintings were done by Gilbert Stuart, and the one of George is among the most familiar in existence. Because the left side and the bottom are unfinished, it looks as though the somber-faced president is rising from a cloud. Copies of the portrait hang in classrooms across America.

The Athenaeum loaned the pair to the museum in 1876. For the first 100 years, they hung in a hallway until the museum moved them to a more prominent spot upstairs during the Bicentennial.

Last week, both the paintings and the Athenaeum emerged from the shadows when word leaked out that the private library on Beacon Hill was selling the portraits to the National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington for $5 million.

As five television cameras rolled, 10 newspaper photographers snapped and 40 reporters scribbled, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., stepped to a microphone and announced "the SOS campaign — Save Our Stuarts."

Mayor Kevin H. White added it would be a big public fund-raising drive to keep the pictures in Boston. He said he wanted the Athenaeum and the Smithsonian to hold off on the deal for six months.

All of this is painful for the Athenaeum, a dignified place that takes pride in its tranquility and reserved ambiance of old Boston.

The private library is one of the few in the country that is supported only by the donations of its 1,049 members. These people, called proprietors, own shares of Athenaeum stock, and they, their guests and outside scholars are the only people allowed to use the library.

The shares cost $300, but they are passed from father to son like family heirlooms and rarely come up for sale. In what's left of Boston's old-guard society, owning one is as important as going to the symphony, having a Harvard degree or being able to talk about jibs and spinnakers.

The Athenaeum, founded in 1807, was once Boston's major art museum and only library. When the Museum of Fine Arts was started, the library loaned it some of its best paintings and sculpture.

But inflation has eaten into the library's income, and it was discovered that its 130-year-old building needed about $1 million worth of repairs. And the library needed cash.

"The majority of people who use the Athenaeum are outside scholars," said Rodney Armstrong, the library's director. "We have our little family of members, but that's a very limited group to appeal to for funds."

So the Athenaeum's trustees, whose names read like a roll call of Brahmin Boston, voted to sell the art on loan to the museum.

The museum got first pick, and it purchased nine works for $1,225,000. But, according to Armstrong, it said it was not interested in the Washington portraits. He strongly denies reports that the museum offered $1 million for the pictures.

The Athenaeum delayed selling George and Martha, because the trustees hoped the other art would bring in enough money. But it didn't, and last year, the library had a deficit of $147,000.

So the trustees accepted the Smithsonian's offer.

"We really have no alternative," said Armstrong. "It's a very sad thing. It's painful to everybody."

Mayor White, however, said the Athenaeum's action is the equivalent of the Louvre selling the Mona Lisa to the Arabs.

The city went to the state Supreme Court to temporarily block the sale, but no hearing has been set. Its lawyers argue that the $1,500 used by the Athenaeum to buy the paintings from Stuart's destitute widow was raised through public subscription and therefore is a public trust.

Armstrong rejects this argument.

Half the money, he says, was put up by Athenaeum members, and the rest came from cash left over from a fund to build a statue of Washington in the Public Garden. This cash was turned over to the library in 1831 with no strings attached, he says.

Circus center of Kansas couple's lives

SEDAN, Kan. (AP) — You know the circus is in your blood when you renew your wedding vows at a circus convention, or when your great-grandson becomes a clown at 20 months, or when a busload of people tours your houseful of circus memorabilia.

Aden and Velma Lowry are such people. And they're the first to admit that their lifelong interest in the big top cannot be termed just a hobby.

"It's more than a hobby. You could almost call it a full-time job," said Mrs. Lowry, surveying the basement of their home. There were several hundred circus posters on the walls, as well as items like a costume once worn by one of the Flying Zeneros.

The Lowrys live four blocks up Sedan's Douglas Street from the childhood home of Emmett Kelly, 80, the famous clown who died March 28 in Sarastoa, Fla.

Although they are of the same generation as Kelly, they didn't know him in his youth. But he stopped by the home in later years and so have some of his children, said a beaming Mrs. Lowry.

Every room in the white frame house has some memento of the circus: Living room rugs imprinted with lions and clowns, Italian-made clowns above the window valances, even bedspreads with circus figures on them.

They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary two years ago at the Circus Fans convention in Las Vegas, where they were married a second time in front of friends.

Their interest in the circus dates to their childhood, the Lowrys said, and their parents were enamored of circus life.

"My parents were circus buffs," Lowry said. "When we were small I listened to them tell all about circuses and sideshow freaks. My dad took me to every circus that came near here."

Mrs. Lowry began collecting circus items in 1926, and ever since friends and relatives have been sending toys, home decorations and clothes related to the circus.

AN IDEAL CHOICE — Bunk beds and matching, stacking furniture provide an ideal way to provide extra living space in a boy's room. Laminated tops take away the worry of upkeep, and light weight rattan chairs are easy to move to get the best view of the television set.

Dear Abby

She learns divorce not what she wanted...what to do?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I'm divorced and miserable. Even though I was the one who asked for the divorce, it was a terrible mistake.

I know there must be thousands of divorced people (men as well as women) who would give anything to get back with No. 1, but they don't know how to go about it.

Abby, will you please ask readers who were divorced, regretted it and got back with No. 1 again to write and tell you how they accomplished it?

DEAR SORRY: All right. Readers? And please let me know how it was the second time around with No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions.

Her "old-fashioned" parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. (She's been insurance, then she may live where she chooses, and by her own rules. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been making an issue out of our 3-year-old grandson's choice of toys. He enjoys playing with his sister's dolls and his mother's shoes.

My husband says this is an indication that the boy has homosexual tendencies.

Could my husband's suspicions about his grandson be a reflection of his OWN repressed homosexual desires? I wonder because he seems to hate woman — particularly me. He attacks sex as though it were a contest. When it's over, he is surly and mean. No love, no tenderness or closeness. I submit but I don't enjoy it.

I am not worried about my grandson, but I am worried about my husband.

Am I justified? — NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Only a trained psychotherapist would be able to determine whether your husband is projecting his own "homosexual tendencies" to his grandson.

His attitude about women and lovemaking is no more conclusive proof of homosexual tendencies than your grandson's choice of toys.

Couple's attempt to collect for time figuring taxes fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having to fill out your income tax return isn't forced labor, the U.S. Tax Court has decided.

The court ruled in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander D. Walter Jr. of Redlands, Calif., who had sought a tax deduction of $5-an-hour for the time spent preparing their taxes.

While any money spent on books or experts to help prepare taxes may be deducted, the law doesn't allow the taxpayer to charge off his own time.

Walter appealed to the court, contending that this makes the tax law illegal because it forces him to do work for the government without pay. This, he said, amounts to "involuntary servitude," which is prohibited by the Constitution.

Judge Samuel B. Sterrett said he agreed that Walter's time is valuable, but rejected the claim, commenting: "his reward is the privilege of living in a civilized society. ..."

Tillers reduce toil of gardening

By ALLAN and Sheila Swenson
NEA Garden Columnists

(Fourth of a Series)

Power tillers take toil out of gardening. Fact is, millions more people have discovered how efficient rotary tillers can be. You can use them to turn tough sod into vegetable gardens, prepare beds and borders, dig holes for trees and shrubs.

I want to have a great garden. My check/money order in the amount of $ is enclosed for the following book(s):

Tillers are perhaps the second most important power tool for homemowners, after lawn mowers, of course. You can dig deeply with a tiller, turning under old leaves, compost, manure, seaweed, and mulch to improve the soil so roots can penetrate much more easily.

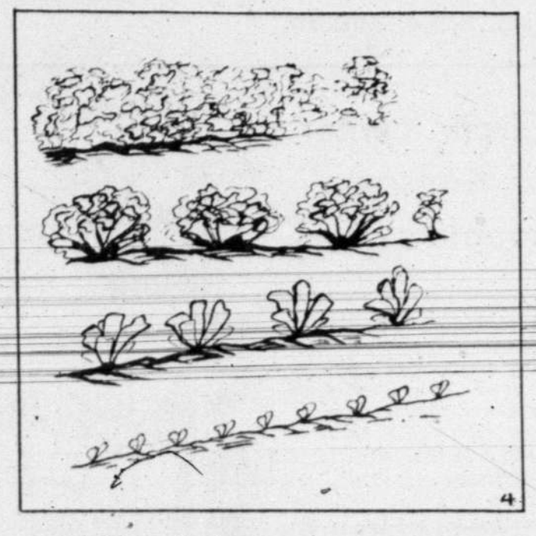

By fork or spade, it is tedious work, despite the obvious exercise hand labor provides. Tillers also let you lightly scratch the surface to cultivate berry patches and between vegetable rows.

You have a wide choice of power tillers since many manufacturers offer them. The solid build and power of the Troy Bilt tiller is well matched to the heavy duty it can perform. Large front wheels pull it slowly or more rapdily, depending on gear position.

The tiller itself is rear mounted. This machine and others with rear-mounted tillers have obvious advantages. They turn soil well, easily incorporating surface material into a 4-to-12-inch depth, depending upon how you set the digging level.

Because the wheels are in front, you leave no wheel tracks. With a Troy Bilt, too, you can control it with one hand from the side so your footprints aren't in the newly dug bed itself.

The Toro tillers are front-mounted, but the four-horsepower model is easy to handle. By leaving wheels attached, this type of tiller will neatly cultivate the surface to remove weeds. It also can be set without wheels to dig more deeply, as when turning turf under for new garden spots.

Whichever tiller you buy or rent, look for one with a reverse. That lets you back out of tight corners, rather than try to turn the machine by brute strength. Never, of course, leave the tiller running if you must remove roots or debris clogged in its tines. That's dangerous. Shut it off first.

Tillers are versatile. If you wish to plant berry bushes, shrubs or some trees, digging can be tedious. Simply position the tiller in the desired spot and let it loosen the soil. You can then let it dig more deeply so removing soil by spade is easier.

Tillers have an autumn value, too, in adding mulch to gardens to suppress weeds. When you clean up in the fall, let your power tiller turn the organic mulch of straw, grass clippings and leaves into the soil. There the mulch will decay, improving soil condition and adding useful minor elements as well.

About Cosmos

Next to rugged sunflowers, cosmos may be the easiest flower on earth to grow from seeds. Its large seeds sprout in 7 to 10 days. Within a few weeks the tall, ferny plants are covered with a 3 to 4-inch diameter blossoms and fat, shiny buds.

Cosmos has few pests and is virtually carefree. It can be grown anywhere in this country. On dry sandy or gravelly soils, cosmos will not ordinarily reach the heights given in descriptions but the compact plants will show an improved ratio of blossoms to foliage.

Cosmos is available mostly in mixed colors: wine, lavender, purple, pink, rose and white. Plants grow to heights of 3 to 5 feet depending on how early you plant seeds and on average soil moisture levels. In rainy, windy areas staking is advised.

Cosmos is used principally as a temporary flowering shrub or hedge or as graceful background flower. It is no great shakes as a cut flower because the blooms are not long-lived. In landscape situations this is no great detriment because hordes of new blossoms are waiting to cover the spent blooms.

Of all garden flowers, cosmos is perhaps the best for attracting wild birds, particularly finches and other seed eaters.

No flower garden is complete without this sun-loving flower which has a habit of peeking over or through fences, its blossoms held at waist-to-shoulder level for easy picking.

Harvest more beans this way

Now comes intensive gardening with recommendations to plant bean seeds in broad bands. Bands are up to four feet across, narrow enough for the center to be weeded or harvested from either side.

To check the effect of close spacing, researchers at the University of Tennessee planted bush snap beans and bush limas in broad bands. The yield of bush snap beans continued to increase with the plant population until the plants were crowded into rows six inches apart with four inches between plants in the row.

The yield of pods from plants on 6x4-inch centers was almost double that from plants spaced four inches apart in rows 36 inches apart.

Bush lima beans have larger, more spreading plants than bush snap beans. Yet, they also responded positively to close row spacing. Yields of limas continued to increase until rows were spaced only 9 inches apart.

Mulches help produce greater average yields

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Mulches generally help produce greater average yields and size of vegetables and reduce the number of aphids infesting plants, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department Research Center at Beltsville, Md.

On the basis of two-year tests, the researchers have also reported that since all the mulches tested were opaque, they prevented weed growth around the vegetables. The mulches are available for small gardens. They have been used commercially on large acreages for several years.

In 1977, the scientists tested one mulch, aluminum bonded to brown wetproof paper, on lettuce, cabbage, squash and cucumbers.

Mulched plots produced iceberg lettuce weighing three times more than bare-soil plants and cabbage weight was 49 percent more. Yields of acorn squash were 26 percent higher in mulched plots and their average weight was up nine percent. Twice as many cucumbers were harvested early (by July 13) from mulched areas, helping early marketing.

In 1978, muskmelon was grown with four synthetic mulches, black polyethylene, white polyethylene bonded to black polyethylene, aluminum embossed on black polyethylene, and the aluminum-brown paper.

The most muskmelons (117) were harvested from the black polyethylene plots with aluminum-brown paper second (99). Unmulched plots produced 92.

Earliest crops (before Aug. 15) came from black polyethylene and aluminum-black polyethylene, with white polyethylene-black polyethylene second. The white-black provided the heaviest fruit, 4.7 pounds, but no more melons than unmulched plots. Aluminum-brown paper muskmelons averaged 4.6 pounds, and black polyethylene the smallest, 4.1 pounds.

Soil temperature was highest under black polyethylene on both cloudy and sunny days and was considered the "best all-around conventional mulch" because it absorbs heat, causing seeds to germinate earlier and grow faster, which brings earlier and bigger harvests.

Entomologist Floyd F. Smith said he'd use aluminum if he had serious disease problems because reflective mulches repel sucking insects that transmit virus diseases from plant to plant.

Ask Doc Gard'ner

By NEIL SPERRY

DEAR DOC: We really like geraniums, but they always poop out in the summer. What's the trouble?

RX: The heat. Even in the shade, it's pretty warm for geraniums here in North Texas. I'd suggest leaving them in pots so you can give them bright light in spring and fall and some shade during the summer. Also, the standard types are more heat- tolerant than the Martha Washingtons and the ivy leafed types.

DEAR DOC: We have a cherry laurel hedge of 20 plants. About half look super, but the other half are yellowed and not very vigorous, The strange thing is that the good and bad plants are intermingled. There may be two good ones, then a bad one. What causes it?

RX: Iron deficiency. You ned to apply a soil acidifier and some type of chelated iron or iron sulfate (copperas). Plants vary in the tolerances. Those that are yellowed are simply more susceptible to alkaline soil problems. And one warning — keep iron products off your sidewalk and masonary.

DEAR DOC: Why are my schefflera's leaves cupped? Otherwise, the plant looks excellent.

RX: It sounds like it's growing in too dark a surrounding. Move it nearer a bright window.

DEAR DOC: We planted a bermuda lawn last fall (September). It's greening up beautifully this spring, but there are a good many weeds. We're wondering if we can use weed killers on the grass yet.

RX: Yes, it should be mature enough. However, I'd wait a couple more weeks so it can lose some of its succulence. Use one of the broadleafed weed killers for non- grassy weeds, and either D.S.M.A. or M.S.M.A. for the grassy types. Don't use these last two materials on St. Augustine lawns under any circumstances.

DEAR DOC: Our pruple sage lost all its leaves this winter and it doesn't look too eager to come back. Will it?

RX: Time will tell, but I'd be tempted to guess no. Most of the ones I've seen in our part of the state have lost most of their top growth. You'll probably have to replant.

Repotting Plants

1. Remove loose soil and trim root ball.
2. Fill new pot with 1" small stones and 1" Sphagnum Peat Moss.
3. Firm basic potting mix around root ball.

Peat moss key to repotting

If you are planning to move some of your plants outdoors when the spring weather gets warmer, remember that this is a good time to repot them. You'll need Canadian sphagnum peat moss, potting soil or garden loam and sand or vermiculite. The sphagnum peat moss is your assurance that plant roots will have access to the water and nutrients they need, because it will keep the soil friable and help retain moisture. Here is the best way to go about repotting:

1. Remove all the loose soil and trim the root ball.
2. Fill the new pot with one inch of small stones and then one inch of plain sphagnum peat moss.
3. In a separate container, thoroughly mix equal parts of sphagnum peat moss, potting soil and sand or vermiculite.
4. Place root ball in the pot and firm the peat moss and soil mixture around it. Then, water soil mixture until it is moist to the touch.

Keep in mind that sphagnum peat moss should be pre-moistened before using. The easiest way to do this is to pour warm water over it and let it sit overnight. If more water is needed the next day, sprinkle the peat moss with water from the tap or garden hose.

Kitchen: the home's welcoming spot

By JOANNE SCHREIBER
NEA Writer

A kitchen should be a cheerful and welcoming place, for good cooking and good conversation. If your kitchen could use a color lift, consider coordinated wallcoverings and fabric, to brighten wall and counter areas, provide a protective cover for major appliances and dress up a small round table-and-chair combo.

Since quilting is a favorite needle art, choose a bright patchwork design called "Quilting Bee," shown here in a self-adhesive wallcovering and matching fabric. The wallcovering is used over the cabinets and along the sides of the storage cabinets. The matching fabric is used as a tablecloth, chair seats, appliance covers and laminated to the window shade.

Self-welting is used to trim the appliance covers and chair seats. Since you can get approximately 15 yards of two-inch bias strips from a square yard of fabric, you need only get one extra yard of fabric for the welting.

To make a floor-length round tablecloth, measure from floor to table edge, across the table and down the other side. Add the measurements. (For a 30-inch table with a 30-inch drop, 30 inches plus 30 inches plus 30 inches equals 90 inches.) Make a square of cloth to equal the added measurements. You will need five yards of 45-inch fabric to make a 90-inch square.

Plan one width of fabric for the center of the table; add split widths on either side to make the square. Press seams open after joining fabric sections.

Now fold fabric in quarters. Take half of measurement — 45 inches for the 90 inches square of fabric. Thumbtack a tape measure to the folded corner and measure and mark 45 inches all around the quarter circle. Cut along marked lines. Finish round cloth with narrow hem.

The chair covers are finished with ties, so they may be easily slipped off for laundering. Back the sections of the chair covers with a firm nonwoven interfacing.

You'll want to give the appliance covers an interfacing, too, so they will hold their shape. Kitchen aids such as blenders, food processors, toasters, mixers and coffeemakers function best when they are kept clean and free of kitchen grease. An appliance cover is more than a decorative accent — it helps prolong the life of your costly appliances.

Appliance covers need not be exact fits, so long as they provide adequate protection. There are patterns for standard appliances, but you can easily make your own patterns from newspaper.

Charlie loses another of his 'angels'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kate Jackson, who played Sabrina Duncan on ABC's popular "Charlie's Angels" series, will not be with the show when it returns next fall, the network said today.

The decision was made by the producers of the show, Spelling-Goldberg Productions, said ABC spokesman Ellis Moore.

"It was decided for the good of the show and her future career that she not return," Moore said.

He added that it was a "production decision," not involving the network.

Miss Jackson had reportedly been unhappy with the series, which just completed its third season, and was anxious to take acting roles outside of a television series. She becomes the second "Angel" to the series, following Farrah Fawcett-Majors, who left after the first season.

Cheryl Ladd, who replaced Miss Fawcett-Majors on the show, David Doyle, who plays unit leader to the bouncy female detectives, and Jaclyn Smith, the only original "Angel," will remain on the show.

Government nixes man's plea for no raise in pay

CHICAGO (AP) — Andrew Bavas figures $40,000 a year is enough, so he turned down a pay raise from the federal government.

But the Department of Health, Education and Welfare won't let him do it. In fact, he says he's being punished for his boldness, with a job change that will cut his pay.

"For public officials to be lapping up every dollar they can get at a time like this is indecent," Bavas said.

He works with university urban affairs programs under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act and has been a visiting associate professor at Northwestern University for a year, with the government paying his salary. In November, Bavas learned he would receive a $1,272 step increase, largely automatic if a supervisor terms an employee's work acceptable.

But Bavas decided his salary was sufficient, and wrote a letter to regional HEW director Christopher Cohen, turning it down.

In a letter to Bavas, Cohen wrote: "I empathize with your desire to waive your merit or step increase. However, as was explained to you ... the law and its implementing regulations do not permit any employee to waive payment of an increase."

He said no one in Chicago or the nation's capital could remember a federal employee doing what Bavas was attempting.

Cohen told Bavas he could take the raise and contribute it to the federal government, which Bavas said he'll do. Cohen also agreed to look into the amending of the Civil Service regulations.

"The matter is simple," HEW spokesman Lee Feldman said Wednesday. "Congress, in order to prevent coercion of federal employees by their bosses, wrote into the law that they cannot turn it down." He said an employee can voluntarily reduce his salary by electing to take a position at a lower grade level.

Bavas is being transferred at the end of the month to another, unspecified position in Philadelphia. He will be reduced from grade level 15 to 13. His salary "most definitely" will be cut, said an HEW spokesman.

"I think the intent is to drive me out of government," Bavas said. "They want me out. I don't fit. ... I go around telling everyone I'm overpaid, they're overpaid. To the bureaucracy, that makes me a person who doesn't fit."

Forum cancels week's activities

All activities scheduled at the Woman's Forum next week have been cancelled. Hopefully activities will resume the week of April 22, according to Rosemary Whitehead, Forum president.

Brunch honors WFHS senior

Black and white decorations and a floral centerpiece were used.

Special guests were the mother and sister of the honoree, Mrs. Joe Maxey and Lynda Maxey.

Miss Maxey is vice president of the senior class and senior class beauty; band officer, member of the Coyote News Staff, officer in Pride of '79 and plans to attend Midwestern State University.

Driving under influence

MILWAUKEE (AP) — James Malinowski can thank his brandy-soaked chewing tobacco for getting him acquitted of a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol. He can also thank it for getting him into trouble in the first place.

Malinowski, 36, of rural Waukesha, said in court recently that he had been chewing some of the brandy-soaked tobacco when he took a breath test after being stopped by sheriff's deputies last August.

The tobacco, he argued, produced unreliable test results showing him to be inebriated. A courtroom experiment last week in which Malinowski chewed a brandy-soaked chaw and then took the breath test supported his argument.

Circuit Judge Michael Skwierawski, in finding Malinowski innocent, said that there had been no testimony to disprove the defendant's argument.

Sprouted wheat possible answer

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Sprouted wheat could provide quality bread products at a lower price than No. 1 wheat, both in the United States and in poorer nations, wheat industry spokesmen say.

"We hope a market will develop, especially in countries that are not now trading customers for regular wheat," said Scott Hanson, administrator of the Washington Wheat Commission in Spokane.

Sprouted wheat would be priced between prices paid for livestock-grade wheat and No. 1 wheat, which are about $1 a bushel apart, Hanson said Thursday.

Previously, sprouted wheat didn't work well in baked products, and was considered usable only for stock feed.

But a $3,500 research study, financed by the wheat commission and conducted at Washington State University, showed sprouted wheat was suitable for baking when mixed with unsprouted wheat at proportions up to 50 percent.

Scientists were invited to WSU at Pullman to use sprout-damaged wheat in making breads eaten in their native countries. Research showed seven of nine Egyptian, Moroccan, Iranian, Indian and Pakistani breads made from sprouted wheat were of comparable quality to the same breads made of soft white wheat.

Also, samples of the sprouted wheat were sent to the U.S. Grain Market Research Center at Manhattan, Kan., where analysis showed it was wholesome, officials said.

"All we tried to establish was that (sprouted wheat) could be used for certain end products," Hanson said.

Extensive damage reported in rural areas

By BRENDA SIMMONS
Regional Staff Writer

Affects of Tuesday's tornado in Wichita Falls, Vernon and Lawton, Okla., has overshadowed destruction in Tillman, Jefferson and Cotton counties in Oklahoma and in Clay County, Texas.

No deaths or major injuries were reported in the rural areas but some extensive damage was caused by the deadly tisters, which left 11 dead and 66 injured in Vernon, 44 dead Wichita Falls and three dead in Lawton and hundreds others injured in the two cities.

The same tornado which caused damage to the eastern and southern sections of Vernon crossed the Red River into Oklahoma hitting Davidson and Hollister.

Four homes were hit by the funnel in Davidson and numerous barns and outbuildings on U.S. 183.

"Some livestock found in fields were killed," Tillman County Undersheriff Raymond Reed said.

Reed said the same tornado traveled northeast to Hollister, Okla., causing extensive damage to one home and demolishing a grainery storage and killing some livestock there also.

The funnel swept into Vernon about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and destroyed a restaurant, motel and farm implement dealership.

"The real tragedy is that the hardest hit area was that of low income families. I feel a lot of people who lost homes aren't insured," Maj. James Cook of Austin, a National Guardsman formerly of Vernon, said.

It was reported that the tornado first hit near Crowell and that is stayed on the ground until it battered Vernon before moving across the Red River.

Harrold, Texas, and Lockett, Texas, also were hit on the continuous path from Crowell.

Vernon has been declared a federal disaster area by President Carter making the area available for federal aid.

"The shock is over and everyone has faced reality," Sheriff Clinton Russell said while stopping for lunch at the National Guard Armoy. "The people have really cooperated with each other and are trying to rebuild their lives."

The airport west of Grandfield received severe damage as well as five homes about four miles north and a mile east the Tillman County town. A stockyard and its fencing and outbuildings also was destroyed. The Tillman County sheriff's department did not know how much of the livestock was involved.

The tornado skipped on along fields causing some damage in Oklahoma communities of Chattanooga, Marlow, Faxon and Geronimo and then hit Lawton where most of the damage was in the downtown area. An estimated $10 million in damage has been done in Lawton.

The same tornado which left Wichita Falls stunned moved northeast from Sunnyside housing addition into Clay County where about 75 homes were destroyed.

Damage there has been estimated at several million dollars. Apparently two tornados formed in Clay County, one heading from Dean on Texas 79 to Petrolia and the other to Jolly.

Waurika, Okla., also was sideswiped by the tornado causing several homes to be demolished and about 10 homes damaged.

China asks Ohio firm to develop hotel plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — China has asked a Columbus company to develop a plan for a hotel in a mainland city, company officials said.

Citing the "sensitive nature" of current negotiations, officials at John W. Galbreath Co. declined on Thursday to give details of the firm's proposal, or to indentify the city where the hotel might be built.

Daniel M. Galbreath said officials of the firm, which recently completed multi-million dollar construction projects in Hong Kong and Saudi Arabia, are expecting an invitation to visit China by May.

New $1 billion plant planned near Vernon

By JOE BROWN
Regional Staff Writer

VERNON, Texas — West Texas Utilities Co. officials said Thursday a 1,920-acre tract of land has been purchased eight miles southeast of Vernon for construction of a $1 billion coal-fired electric generating plant.

The plant will be built on land purchased from the W.T. Waggoner Estate. Center of the site is about three miles southwest of Oklaunion and the same distance from the Fort Worth & Denver Railway tracks.

The land purchase agreement was signed Thursday at the Waggoner Building by Jerry J. Johnson, WTU vice president and director of administrative services, and Killen Moore, trustee of the W.T. Waggoner Estate.

Other WTU representatives present were Walter Meller, manager of Systems Operations; J.B. Jordan Jr., chief right of way agent; and Sherwyn McNair, director of information services, all of Abilene, and Sam Russell, manager of the Vernon WTU office.

Meller said the site near Oklaunion was chosen after a study of possible locations by Tippett and Gee, an Abilene, Texas, consulting firm.

First indication that a power plant would be constructed in the Lake Kemp-Lake Diversion area came in December 1976, when it was announced that WTU had contracted for water rights from the lakes.

The contract with City of Wichita Falls and Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 2 provides for WTU to use up to 20,000-acre-feet of water per year for power generation. A permit has also been granted by Texas Water Rights Commission.

The plant will be operated by WTU, a firm serving a 53-county area, but is being considered as a joint project to be shared by other companies in the Central and South West Corp.

The latter is a utility holding company with headquarters in Dallas that operates Public Service Co. of Oklahoma, Southwestern Electric Power Co. and Central Power and Light, as well as WTU.

Engineering design and construction of the plant will be managed by CSW.

No date has been set for beginning of construction, but Meller said preliminary environmental impact studies will start immediately.

Total cost is expected to exceed $1 billion. The plant will consist of three generating units to be built successively, which means construction work possibly will be under way about 15 years.

Police chief hit button to sound Vernon sirens

VERNON, Texas — The early warning sounds of tornado sirens in Vernon Tuesday afternoon have been credited with saving scores of lives by giving residents sufficent time to scramble to safety.

Who pushed the button Tuesday, since the Wilbarger County Civil Defense director, Ed Luttrell, had resigned three weeks earlier?

Perhaps a better question is who makes the decision of "when" to engage the five sirens scattered across Vernon.

In this case it was Police Chief Wayne Hendrix in his scout car watching the storm develop who radioed back to police headquarters to ask that City Manager Sam Felps sound the alarm.

This also brings up the question of what happens if officials react too early and sound the alarm and a tornado doesn't strike, or if they wait too long and the public isn't warned early enough to find shelter.

To confirm tests

Reactor checks to take time

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Technicians at the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant will not be able to examine the reactor's core for several months to confirm tests showing that an "insignificant" amount of uranium melted, Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials say.

NRC officials said Thursday a test on a sample of the reactor's cooling water revealed there had been less damage to the core than previously feared.

"It indicated that no fuel melting occurred or, if it did, it was exceedingly small ... That is great news," said NRC spokesman Jim Hanchett.

But he said the actual extent of core damage won't be known until the reactor can be physically inspected.

If any of the 100 tons of uranium pellets in the core had melted or were otherwise damaged, it could have meant serious radiation contamination of the coolant water.

The NRC also said plant technicians had successfully completed a project to remove disolved gases from the cooling water by slowly lowering pressure to about 300 pounds per square inch.

That means that perhaps only one step — getting another sample of coolant — remains before the plant can be switched to a safe cooling system and final shutdown.

Residents have been reassured by reports that conditions at the plant are steadily improving and by examinations of more than 200 persons whose bodies show no unusual radiation.

Radiation levels in the area Thursday remained approximately as low as normal levels. The highest ground radiation reading announced Thursday was one-tenth of a millirem per hour, a measure of the amount of radiation energy absorbed by the body. After the accident there were readings of 50 millirems per hour.

Readings taken from the air above the plant reached 1,200 millirems shortly after the March 28 accident; they have now dropped to less than three-hundredths of a millirem.

Meanwhile, signs that things are getting back to normal around the damaged Three Mile Island nuclear power plant are nowhere more apparent than at the Bainbridge Elementary School.

Two weeks ago, many students at the school had tears of fear in their eyes and dozens of equally frightened parents streamed into the school to take their children out and away.

Now the school, three miles from the generating station, is bedecked with Easter artwork and filled with youthful laughter and talk.

Jill Bartle asked her fourth grade students how many had been worried after the accident. All but three or four raised their hands. No hands went up when she asked how many are worried now.

Pilgrims re-enact crucifixion

A Catholic procession led by Fransiscan friars in brown robes wound through the narrow "Street of Sorrow" under a hot midday sun, stopping for devotions at each of the 14 stations of the cross.

Starting in the early morning hours thousands of worshippers filed through the crusader-built Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the traditional site of Calvary and of Jesus' tomb.

Israeli soldiers armed with assault rifles patrolled the lanes of the old city on alert against terrorist bombs, but they stayed away from the church. The task of keeping order was left to church officials, Arab police and scouts.

Israeli tourism officials estimated 60,000 Christian pilgrims came to the holy land in the last month, and another 40,000 Jewish tourists arrived to celebrate the week-long Passover holiday.

Easter week climaxes on Sunday with pontifical high mass outside the marble-encased sepulchre conducted by the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem. On the same day Eastern churches celebrate Palm Sunday to mark the beginning of their Easter week.

Air fare increases approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board is allowing most of the nation's airlines a 4 percent across-the-board fare increase.

The board said Thursday most of the increases will go into effect May 15 on domestic routes. The carriers had cited the rising price of fuel in making the request.

In Zambian capital

Rhodesians hit Nkomo headquarters

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian commandos in a daring two-hour raid inside Zambia's capital destroyed the office-residence of guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and two other guerrilla headquarters before dawn today.

Nkomo, co-leader of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance fighting the white-dominated Rhodesian government, was not in the building at the time, Western diplomatic sources said. He was reported safe and somewhere in Lusaka.

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, the Rhodesian military command confirmed the raid by its ground forces but gave no details. A brief communique said:

"Combined Operations Headquarters confirms international news reports that Rhodesian ground forces have carried out attacks against Zimbabwe Peoples Revolutionary Army targets in Lusaka. These are complementary to the air raids launched on terrorist bases in Zambia."

Diplomatic sources said the raiders covered the 60 miles from the Rhodesian border to Lusaka overland by motor and no planes were used.

A Zambian government spokesman said there were "a few casualties" resulting from the raid. But there was no indication that any of them were Rhodesians.

The Zambia Mail newspaper said a car in which a civilian family was trying to escape the explosions and gunfire was hit and all the occupants were killed. The paper did not give the size of the family.

The raid began at 3 a.m. and ended at 5 a.m. Only the smoking walls of Nkomo's office-residence, a sprawling mansion in the tree-lined suburb of Woodlands near a local golf course, remained standing after dawn.

Residents said the attack also destroyed Zimbabwe House, the main offices of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union, located in the suburb of Emmasdale, and Liberation Center, in the suburb of Kawala. That building housed offices of ZAPU, the South-West Africa People's Organization and the African National Congress.

JOSHUA NKOMO

SWAPO is waging guerrilla war in Namibia, also called South-West Africa, against South African troops in the South African-controlled territory. SWAPO's military bases are in Angola.

The African National Congress is a black militant organization banned in South Africa, which has sent in blacks with Soviet arms to fight the white minority regime in South Africa. But its activities have been sporadic because of tight South African security.

Persons living near Nkomo's office-residence said an abandoned four-wheel drive military vehicle was found burning in the street not far away from the ruins. They said it might have been used by the Rhodesian commandos and abandoned.

Other residents said they saw black troops in the area and thought they might have been Zambian soldiers. But some 80 percent of Rhodesia's armed forces are black, and many of them are in Rhodesian commando units.

Residents also reported that Zambian authorities had detained an unknown number of whites and blacks for questioning after the raid, the fifth into Zambia this week.

Nkomo and Patriotic Front co-leader Robert Mugabe have vowed to sabotage Rhodesia's national elections next week, and Rhodesia's biracial transition government has been bombing Zambian guerrilla camps to immobilize the terrorists.

The elections will install Rhodesia's first black-majority government. The guerrillas oppose the election on grounds whites will continue to dominate Rhodesia because of constitutional checks.

The provisions give whites, who make up less than 4 percent of Rhodesia's 6.7 million population, control of the military and judiciary and guarantee them 28 of Parliament's 100 seats, enough to block constitutional changes.

Commandos hunt Idi Amin

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's Tanzanian invaders said today they were sending out commandos to hunt down Idi Amin, but the invasion force of Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles made no move to pursue the remnants of Amin's shattered army as they fled eastward toward the Kenyan border.

Tanzanian military source said commandos were being sent east and north from Kampala, Uganda's occupied capital, into areas still theoretically under Amin's control.

An official of the new provisional government said Amin would be tried for murder and treason if caught. Radio Kampala, in the hands of the invaders, said he "deserves the gallows."

"Amin has killed hundreds of our brothers and sisters," the broadcast said. "All Ugandans who love their motherland must from now on help find Idi Amin wherever he is."

The onetime strongman, last reported at Jinja, 50 miles east of Kampala, replied in broadcasts transmitted from Soroti, 200 miles northeast of Kampala, near the Kenya border.

"We have got our soldiers controlling the country," he asserted.

Amin's troops were reported streaming east toward the Kenyan border in a chaotic rout. Residents of towns along the way said they were looting, harassing residents at gunpoint and stealing cars as they fled.

The new government ordered them to surrender themselves and turn in their weapons "or be dealt with accordingly."

The Kenyan government was reported moving military reinforcements to the border, apparently to prevent an exodus of Amin's troops. One traveler who reached Nairobi today said he saw a Kenyan convoy of about 300 trucks and armored personnel carriers moving toward the frontier.

Yussufu Lule, Uganda's new provisional president, was expected to arrive in Kampala today for the capital's second anti-Amin political rally in as many days. Lule had planned to fly in Thursday but was grounded by bad weather in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's troops and Ugandan exiles fighting alongside them overran Kampala Wednesday after a slow march up through southwest Uganda, setting off frenzied celebrations and looting.

Four African governments recognized Lule's provisional government on Thursday. Nyerere, who is sponsoring the new cabinet of anti-Amin exiles, was the first, but within hours his allies ruling Zambia, Botswana and Mozambique endorsed the new regime.

Nyerere in a broadcast Thursday night from Dar es Salaam said he ordered the invasion of Uganda to punish Amin for his seizure of 710 square miles of Tanzanian territory last October, not to overthrow him.

"Tanzania reserves the right to punish the aggressor who had earlier made a bragging and naked invasion of our territory," he said.

"The work of removing dictator Idi Amin from power is the work of Ugandans and not of Tanzanians."

The Tanzanian Foreign Ministry accused Amin of "unparalleled barbarism" during the Ugandan occupation of Tanzanian territory. Amin's "troops massacred thousands of Tanzanians, committed untold atrocities and perpetrated wanton destruction of our property," it said.

Nyerere said he was keeping his troops in Uganda at the request of Lule's government and they would remain until all is calm. "But if the new government requests us to withdraw tomorrow, we will do so," he said.

Three persons slain in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Gunmen have killed an American serviceman, a former bank director, and a high school student in three Turkish cities within 24 hours.

Officials said they thought leftist terrorists killed Master Sgt. Edward A. Clypool, 23, of Richards, Mo., and wounded Staff Sgt. Jeffrey P. Vail, 22, of Myrtle Beach, S.C., in Izmir Thursday.

The gunmen fired from a speeding car at the soldiers, who were both in uniform and returning to their quarters from duty at the Turkish-U.S. Logistics offices annexed to the NATO base in the Aegean coast city.

The former bank director was killed in Ankara Thursday night by gunmen who forced their way into his home. Police said the victim was Omer Sunar, who resigned as director of Sekerbank several months ago.

It was not immediately clear whether Sunar's death was another in the chain of political attacks which have claimed about 1,500 lives in Turkey in the past two years.

Hess impostor story draws rebuttal

BERLIN (AP) — "Hugh Thomas doesn't have all his cups in his closet. The man is completely crazy," says the wife of Rudolf Hess, dismissing a British surgeon's claim that her husband, the last lonely inmate of Berlin's Spandau Prison, is an imposter.

Dr. Thomas, 43, is a former member of the medical team at Spandau where the Nazi leader has spent nearly half his life. He makes his bizzare allegation in a book to be published next month.

Thomas says he doesn't know the real identify of Spandau's last inmate. "What I do know is that he cannot be Hess. It is essential that a surgeon ... with the requisite experience should examine the prisoner as soon as possible before it is too late," Thomas said Thursday.

Hess's wife, Ilse, and his son, Wolf-Ruediger, rejected the British surgeon's claims. A spokesman for Hess's son, said the younger Hess has "no doubt about the identity of his father."

Hess, who will be 85 on April 26, was Adolf Hitler's deputy Reichsfuehrer and closest aide. The Nuremberg war crimes tribunal sentence Hess in 1946 to life in prison for "waging aggressive war." He has been behind bars since 1941 when he parachuted into Scotland on a self-proclaimed peace mission.

Alfred Seidl, who has represented Hess since 1946, dismissed Thomas' claim as "a joke." Eugene Bird, a retired U.S. Army colonel, who was one Hess' guard, said the allegation "is not worth of comment."

The Soviet Union, which administers Spandau with the Americans, Frenchand British, has repeatedly rejected the other Allies requests to commute Hess' sentence.

Amin defeat marks change in policy

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The capture of Kampala by Tanzanian troops apparently spells the fall of one of Africa's worst despots. But it also marked the breach of one of post-colonial black Africa's most cherished principles.

Idi Amin's eight-year rule over the once-prosperous Central African country of Uganda was one of the most brutal in modern history.

Tens of thousands of his countrymen were butchered or tortured by the men of Amin's "State Research Bureau." Cabinet ministers, educators, professional men and clerics regularly disappeared. Thousands of foreigners were summarily expelled, and the economy crumbled.

All the while Amin, bedecked with medals from neck to waist, entertained the world with outlandish antics and pronouncements, accumulating wives, children and titles and lavishing whisky, arms and power on his Nubian, Palestinian and Ugandan cronies.

But when Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles began their drive 2½ months ago to crush Amin, not an African government uttered a word of support for the invaders. None condemned them either.

The Organization of African Unity tried fruitlessly for a cease-fire that in effect would have rescued Amin, and African leaders kept silent when Libya sent a 2,600-man expeditionary force to the aid of Moammar Khadafy's moslem ally in Kampala.

To Western observers, the lack of initial support for Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere — one of the most respected leaders in Africa — might seem unfair.

But to African leaders — saddled with random national boundaries drawn by colonial conquerors and torn by a mass of conflicting and constantly warring tribes, ideologies and factions — stability and security have evolved as the most cherished principles in the 20 years since the demise of European colonialism.

About the only principles the OAU has agreed on since it set out to forge African unity — apart from the struggle against white minority regimes in southern Africa — have been the inviolability of national sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Whether right or wrong, the capture of Kampala was the first time in poat-colonial history that the army of one African state seized the capital of another.

And despot or not, Amin had been leader of a soverign state which Tanzania had invaded. The silence of Africa largely reflected an inability to react to the new dilemma.

On a continent where only a handful of states are over 20 years old, there is hardly a government not threatened by secession, rebellion or violent overthrow.

At least six wars have been fought over the past year alone, 4 million Africans live outside their borders as refugees, only two of 50 black african states have functioning democracies and there have been some 42 coups and civil wars in 20 years.

Under these circumstances, the only hope for the stability necessary for development was to live and let live, to accept the colonial boundaries as the starting pont for fledgling nationhood and agree they were inviolable.

Aside from the problems of OAU strictures, another factor has prevented African leaders from jumping on an anti-Amin bandwagon; the Amin mystique.

Although educated Africans privately deplored Amin and found him a profound embarrassment, even they could not deny his popularity among the vast majority of common people.

His elaborate ploys to humiliate former British colonialists delighted poor blacks. At the same time, common tribespeople found more empathy with his folksy proclamations and glittering shows of power than with the aloof and often corrupt styles of their own leaders.

At the OAU conference in Gabon, where Amin was reguarly applauded by passersby, an African minister remarked: "There is a mystique of bigness and arrogance about him that fascinates the average African. If you elected a king of all africa, Amin would win."

U.S. dollar gains on yen

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose today against the Japanese yen in Tokyo, but was not traded against European currencies.

Markets in Europe were closed on Good Friday, the start of the Easter weekend.

In Paris, banks issued an "indicative" quotation of 4.3675 French francs for the dollar, close to Thursday's 4.3687 closing quotation.

The only other dollar quotation was 843 Italian lire, issued by Banca Nazionale del Lavoro in Rome. Thursday's quotation was 843.55 lire.

Bullion markets in London, Zurich and elsewhere were also closed.

The dollar had fallen against the yen earlier in the week, after two weeks of increasing value.

Harris Poll

Kennedy improves in poll showing

By LOUIS HARRIS
Chicago Tribune

If the 1980 presidential election were held today and Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter were the two major party candidates, Reagan would trail Carter by a narrow 49-46 percent. Only last December, the President was favored over Reagan by a much more substantial 55-38 percent.

However, among the same cross section of 1,323 voters surveyed nationwide in the latest ABC News - Harris Survey, Sen. Edward Kennedy would finish far ahead of former Gov. Reagan by 58-38 percent if they were the two candidates.

If such a disparity between the Carter and Kennedy showings were to continue throughout 1979, the pressures would be certain to mount within the Democratic Party to have Sen. Kennedy declare himself a candidate in time to run in the primaries next year. At present, it can be said that Kennedy is the strongest likely nominee the Democrats could run. By contrast, it now appears that Jimmy Carter would probably be involved in another squeaker, as he was in 1976 against Gerald Ford. Reagan by 55-40 percent, but Kennedy is ahead by a much more substantial 64-30 percent. In the suburbs, Reagan runs ahead of Carter by 51-45 percent, but Kennedy is far ahead there by 57-40 percent. In small towns, Reagan leads Carter by 53-44 percent, while Kennedy just edges out Reagan by 50-46 percent. In rural areas, Carter is in the lead by 50-45 percent, but Kennedy soars to a 57-39 percent margin over Reagan.

— Among those whose education never went beyond the eighth grade, Carter is ahead of Reagan by a substantial 57-36 percent; Kennedy does even better, leading Reagan by 61-30 percent. Among those with a high school diploma, Carter wins by a narrow 48-47 percent, compared with a landslide Kennedy lead of 64-33 percent. Among the college-educated, Carter is ahead by 49-47 percent, while Kennedy is ahead by 52-44 percent.

— Reagan leads Carter among men voters by a close 49-48 percent, while Kennedy is ahead among this group by a much wider 56-41 percent. Among women, Carter has a 51-44 percent edge, but Kennedy really opens up a substantial lead by a much larger 60-34 percent.

— Carter holds a big 75-19 percent lead over Reagan among blacks, but Kennedy has an even more substantial 88-8 percent lead. Among whites, Reagan is ahead of Carter by 50-46 percent, but Kennedy leads Reagan among whites by 54-42 percent.

— Among white Catholics, Carter and Reagan end up in a 48-48 percent tie, but Kennedy runs far ahead, 65-33 percent. Among white Protestants, Reagan is ahead of Carter by a clear 55-42 percent. Reagan also leads Kennedy among this group, but by a much closer 51-45 percent. Among Jewish voters, Carter leads Reagan by 53-37 percent, but Kennedy holds a much more substantial 70-23 percent margin.

— Among union members, Carter holds a surprisingly low 53-43 percent lead over Reagan, but Kennedy rises to a 64-32 percent lead among the union rank and file.

— Among conservatives, Reagan is ahead of Carter by 59-38 percent. He also leads Kennedy among conservatives, but by a closer 52-45 percent. Among middle-of-the-road voters, Carter is ahead by 53-42 percent, but Kennedy is much further ahead by 62-35 percent. Finally, among liberals, Carter is ahead by a substantial 65-30 percent, but Kennedy leads by a much larger 79-17 percent.

Among the "gut" Democratic voters — Easterners, big city residents, the less well-educated, blacks, white Catholics, union members and liberals — Kennedy does far better than Carter. This makes sense, since the Massachusetts senator could be expected to roll up big majorities and bring out a sizable turnout among these groups.

But the surprise is that Kennedy runs a better race against Reagan in the South, the Midwest, the suburbs, small towns and rural areas, and among the college-educated, among women, whites, white Protestants, conservatives and middle-of-the-road voters. Prevailing wisdom would have it that nearly all of these groups would be sources of Kennedy weakness in an election situation.

Thus, Kennedy's strong showing in the hinterlands, in small-town America, and among other Middle America segments of the electorate must be taken as a sign of the weakness of both Carter and Reagan. Compared directly with Kennedy, the President simply does not impress, even though he would be a slight favorite to defeat Ronald Reagan today.

Lengthy refinery strike ends

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — Union members working at Tenneco Oil Co.'s refinery in this New Orleans suburb have voted to end a 67-day strike and will return to work after the Easter holiday.

The 385-member Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers local voted 234-64 Thursday to accept a new two-year contract and end a walkout that started Feb. 3.

Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union officials said the new contract will allow the workers to ask top management to intervene if they are told to do a job they think is unsafe.

"Before, where our members were dealing in safety matters with some pressured foremen to keep a job done, now we have response from the top leaders in the plant," said James Bergeron, an international union representative who headed the union negotiating team.

'A JURY OF ONE'S PEERS'

Denver juvenile jurors give youths trial by their peers

By SUSAN GUFFEY
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Juvenile offenders who want a jury of their peers are getting just that in an experimental program which provides advice as well as punishment for nonviolent Denver youths.

Unlike many adult juries, members of the youth panels are eager to do their "duty" as they review cases ranging from shoplifting to burglary.

The jury program is the newest addition to Denver County's "diversion" program for young offenders. The idea is to keep troubled youths out of Juvenile Court when possible and still teach them a lesson about right and wrong.

Seven students from the city's 29 junior and senior high schools sit in judgment each week on three cases referred to them by the district attorney's office.

Dozens of students have volunteered for juries in the month-old program and those who have served are asking for more duty, according to Zoralee Steinberg, a counselor for juvenile offenders and organizer of the program.

Asked why he was serving on the volunteer panel, one juror said, "Why do adults serve on juries? It's our duty, isn't it?"

Prosecutors choose which cases are to be decided by the youth jury. Violent crimes or "anything too serious" goes to Juvenile Court, said District Attorney Dale Tooley.

Accused youths must admit they are guilty. Otherwise their cases go to Juvenile Court. They also must agree to accept the "contract" decided upon by jurors.

At one end of a courtroom table was a four-boy, three-girl panel. At the other end was 14-year-old Tommy (not his real name,) accused of shoplifting $3.40 worth of gum and cigarettes.

Twice before Tommy had been caught shoplifting. He was sent home each time after being lectured by police.

Jurors listened as Tommy's father talked of shame and bewilderment at his son's actions. He said Tommy was reacting to peer pressure about his below average height and added that it didn't help that the family was Mexican-American.

During deliberations, jurors asked Mrs. Steinberg how they could tell the father to stop talking about his son's height and give him more positive reinforcement. She told them to just say it and they did.

The decision: Tommy would have to keep in touch with Mrs. Steinberg for six months and would be required to find something besides television to fill his spare time.

Another case involved a 16-year-old boy and his 12-year-old sister, both accused of burglary. The boy admitted faking a break-in at a neighbor's house where the girl was babysitting. He planned to fence a television and stereo, which he said he took for "fun money."

The girl acknowledged to police that she allowed his scheme. She sat quietly before jurors, her eyes occasionally filling with tears.

The defendants' mother said te neighbor used to be "closer than my sister," but not any more.

Jurors decided the boy should pay back $400 within five months, attend summer school and work part-time — "so you'll have something to keep you busy," said one juror.

They told the boy they thought his most serious offense was causing the rift between his family and the neighbor.

"Paying the money back is not going to mend the friendship, but it will teach you responsibility," said another panelist.

The sister had been punished enough, they decided. Her only mistake, the jurors said, "was trusting your brother like we've all been taught."

Talmadge issues denial of report on violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials in Sen. Herman Talmadge's office and the chief attorney for the Senate ethics committee deny that the senator has acknowledged minor violations of Senate rules.

The denials followed a report in Thursday editions of The Atlanta Constitution which said lawyers for Talmadge and the ethics committee, which is looking into Talmadge's financial conduct, reached an agreement in which Talmadge acknowleged he had violated Senate rules.

Carl Eardley, the committee's chief counsel, said Thursday no such agreement had been worked out.

And he said that any agreement would state only findings that certain events had occurred — not that any violations took place.

Eardley said that he and James Hamilton, Talmadge's attorney, were working on a stipulation — a legal agreement that certain items were not in dispute.

However, Friday editions of The Constitution quoted Eardley as also saying Talmadge "has admitted facts that others, probably including members of the Senate ethics committee, might consider as pertinent statements of wrongdoing."

Financial misconduct allegations the committee has filed against Talmadge concern only violations of Senate rules, not of federal laws. The committee hopes to start hearings — its version of a trial — on April 23.

Hamilton told the committee Wednesday a nine-page agreement was in the works that would stipulate that certain actions took place.

But Eardley said, as did Hamilton Wednesday, the language of the agreement remained to be worked out in several instances.

In addition, Talmadge's office issued a statement saying the proposed agreements "concern only basic facts which are not in dispute. They are simply to expedite the Senate hearings. They are in no way an admission of any knowing or any intentional wrongdoing of any kind and any such interpretation is totally inaccurate."

The statement also said the newspaper report was "grossly in error" and that its version "both misinterpreted the meaning of the stipulations and inaccurately stated them."

The Constitution had quoted unnamed committee sources as saying the agreement stated that false claims were made about campaign expenditures and receipts to the Secretary of the Senate, that taxes on gifts of stock to Talmadge's former wife Betty were not reported and that gifts and property were not reported to the Secretary of the Senate.

Eardley said the question of taxes on gifts of stock to Betty Talmadge was not a subject of the stipulation. And he said Talmadge was "never going to admit he filed a false claim."

Talmadge's office said the senator "has offered no stipulation relating to gift taxes and no stipulation has been proposed that any gifts he received or any property owned by him was improperly not reported."

Toxic chemical cars derail

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Illinois Central Gulf Railroad officials worked today to get three railroad tank cars carrying toxic chemicals back on the tracks after the cars derailed, authorities say.

The derailment Thursday night spurred policemen and firemen to evacuate a factory and begin other precautionary procedures after initial reports of leaking vapors, authorities said.

The tank cars contained methyl chloride, vinyl chloride and alcohol, said Dave Waite, a spokesman for the Jackson-Hinds Emergency Operations Center.

A General Electric Co. plant was evacuated and evacuation of a nearby truck stop had begun, Waite said.

There were no reported injuries, he said.

Steve Terry, manager of the truck stop, said the derailment occurred "about 200 yards from the back of our lot in a wooded area.

"They were running out there telling all my people to evacuate when they hadn't even found out if it was leaking at the time," he said. "But I suppose it was just a precautionary measure."

Blaze strikes nursing home

WHEATON, Md. (AP) — A three-alarm fire struck a nursing home in this Washington, D.C., suburb today, and authorities said at least one patient was taken to a hospital suffering apparent smoke inhalation.

Flames were reported showing from windows on one of the floors of the University Nursing Home when firefighters arrived shortly after 8:30 a.m. The fire was under control within a half hour.

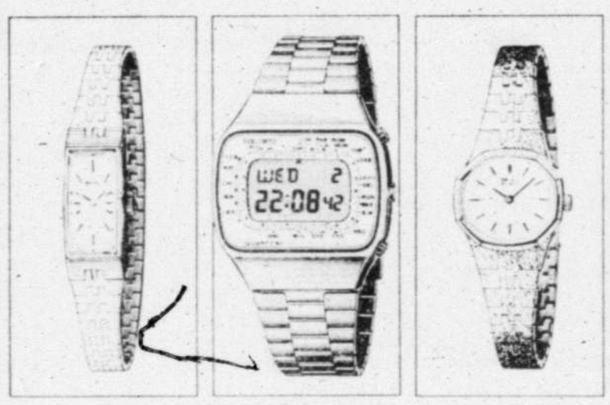

Authorities said the extra alarms were called primarily to have extra manpower on the scene to evacuate patients. Ten ambulances also were dispatched.

The fire came two days after nine mental outpatients died in a fire at a halfway house in Washington.

Backpacking

...Not exactly a sport for lonely fools

By JODY COX
Staff Writer

What kind of a fool would strap 40 pounds of food and equipment on his back, hike 10-15 miles a day through rough country, sleep on the hard, cold ground at night, forego the necessities of bathing for a week or ten days and still think he'd had one heckuva vacation?

A backpacking fool ... and he wouldn't be lonely, either. The numbers of such fools are growing and it's not hard to see why. It's an avocation that can instill a measure of independence and self-reliance in a person while keeping his body in good shape.

It's also one of the best ways to get back in touch with the natural world, an experience that gives a person a better perspective on himself, his fellows and the rest of the human race. And it's not a bad way to alleviate the stress and tension brought on by an everyday routine of work.

Backpacking merely is hiking extended over several days but it does require a little more thought and planning than an afternoon's walk in the country. Even so, backpacking is nowhere near the ritual, specialized sport some would have you believe. The essentials can be obtained at a reasonable price and the actual trip most often can be financed at low cost.

The basics of backpacking start, of course, with walking. Modern society, including many people's style of life, often seems to be prejudiced against this oldest form of human movement, but most people can pick it up quickly with a little practice.

If you're planning on a backpacking trip, it's wise to take several shorter hikes you take off. Start with a short half-day walk or two, building up to at least one full-day hike of ten or so miles. This is especially true if you're breaking in a new pair of hiking boots, the most important item you'll need.

If your feet are warm, dry and comfortable, your trip is going to go a lot smoother and happier. Durable, supportive and well-fitting boots or shoes are the difference between a good and a bad backpacking esperience. You can use a tennis or athletic shoe with a good arch support for the shorter, easier hikes, but if you carrying a pack, you're going to need a little bit more.

Good hiking boots, like the timeless Irish Setter manufactured by the Red Wing Boot Co. or any other well-designed and built alpine boot, are priced in the $60-70 range these days. The designs with the lug soles are suited for rough, rocky terrain such as you'll find in the Rocky Mountains. Flatter soles, but still with a good heel elevation, are compatible with the sandy, flat land in the North Texas area.

Sturdy socks are another must; they can be wool or the self-drying wick blend coming onto the market. Clothing should be loose and it's best to go with the layered look — as you get warmer or cooler, you can put on or remove clothing to compensate.

A hat can make the difference, both in cool and wet weather and dry, warm sunshine. It helps to have a brim for shade.

Foul weather gear is a necessity; a good poncho can keep both yourself and your equipment dry. Wool sweaters worn under windbreakers can serve well even in summer, besides the sweater can be worn to bed for extra sleeping warmth.

Your bedroll might consist of the latest in down or synthetic sleeping bags, or it could be an old bag you've had for years. It pays to be comfortable at night, so whatever you use, make sure it'll keep you warm.

Packs come in all sizes, shapes and prices these days; be selective and make sure the pack rides on your back comfortably. When you pack it, soft items like clothing and your sleeping bag do best closest to your back with hard items to the outside and above your shoulders. (That last piece of advice doesn't apply to all packs — some ride best with heavier items in the bottom.)

A tent isn't always a necessity to a backpacker; he often can make do with a ground-cloth or poncho on top of him or slung between two trees. Don't drag a heavy tent along with you because it's usually more trouble than it's worth — unless it rains.

It always helps to make plans for emergencies. A small medical kit should be carried not only for serious problems but also for everyday scratches, blisters and insect bites.

Other miscellaneous equipment includes a pocket knife, water bottles if you're going to be where water isn't, matches if you're going to where you can build a fire and a compact camp stove if you're going to a place where fires are prohibited, and nylon line or rope.

BACKPACKING NOT FOR THE WEAK
...this sport carries a lot of weight

Food really isn't a problem or a big cost outlay — you just have to look for the kinds of food that are non-perishable and light. Dried fruits, nuts and candy are good for snacks, dried soup or stew mixes do well as dinner entrees and oatmeal or cream of wheat are good in the morning. Hot drinks such as coffee, tea or bullion are the best beverages.

You can pay a lot more money and go with the commercially produced freeze-dried complete meals, but be wary. Some of the various brands are a long way from par in both taste and food value.

The Wichita Falls area doesn't provide too many areas in which to take a good backpack; perhaps the best is just outside Lawton, Okla., at the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge. It's also a jim dandy place for a day hike. You can call for reservations at the refuge tourist information center.

Other areas, though a good five- to eight-hour drive away, include the Ouachita National Forest in southeastern Oklahoma, Guadulupe National Park in Texas just south of New Mexico's Carlsbad Caverns or the Pecos Wilderness outside of Las Vegas, N.M.

Martial arts beneficial

EEEEAAAGGHH!!!! KARATE!!

Upon hearing "karate" we sometimes prejudicially picture little oriental men screaming the word with bared feet and bared teeth, pointing rigid fingers at us though prepared to do us in with a series of well-aimed chops or possibly by scaring the bejabbers out of us.

Alas, we've seen too many movies. It's unfair to take the martial arts such as jujitsu, or sports such as judo, and create caricatures or silly cartoons out of them by making movie idols of Bruce Lee types and other supposed macho practitioners of deadly force. I'll take Mary Poppins.

Instead let's look at the benefits from a physical fitness point of view. These combative disciplines develop hand and eye coordination, speed, strength, agility and flexibility. The competitor learns to think on his feet, quickly, while moving. Protective instincts are developed where reactions come almost without thinking. All these develop a comfortable confidence in knowing you can protect yourself in dangerous situations.

And unfortunately our society often does provide a dangerous environment which is why schools teaching martial skills remain popular — sometimes with a majority of students being female.

"Martial" can be translated in a number of ways including its relationship to the military and Mars, the Roman god of war. However, these arts are weaponless and one must depend upon hands, feet, knees and elbows in addition to nerve and practiced skills. Ancient Japanese warriors, the Samurai, were small in stature and couldn't depend upon overpowering an opponent by sheer force. Therefore they had to incorporate intelligence and the use of their opponent's foolish movements to maim, paralyze or kill him. The source of power was the enemy himself. The Samurai would at first yield to their opponent's lunge and then convert its force against the attacker, using its leverage and weight to apply tremendous pressure with a variety of grips and locks. The art is called jujitsu.

KARATE, KUNG-FU, JUDO
...all provide physical fitness

Such combinations of wit and the economic use of leverage is also the gist of judo. However, though jujitsu is its father judo is not at all hostile. Instead it is strictly a sport where one's acquired skill is denoted by the color of one of five belts the competitor wears to fasten his loosely-fitting uniform. A white belt indicates a beginner, while black indicates the highest, awesome level of skill. Points are scored by judging falls, throws, holds and breaks (of holds, not bones). Judo was introduced into the Olympic Games at Tokyo in 1964 where the Japanese suffered a bit of embarrassment when the heaviest division was won by a Dutchman and not one of their own.

There are other disciplines such as karate, which translates from the Japanese as "empty hands" and is a counter-attacking style that applies pressure to an opponent's sensitive areas. There are karate practitioners who apply mental concentration to the point where they can use fists or the sides of their chopping hands to break any number of boards or, sometimes, bricks. They've even used thir heads for such timber cutting.

There are sub-divisions such as tae-kwon-do (Korean karate) and other martial sports such as aikido, kendo, shotokan and kung-fu by way of China and a former television series. All of them involve blocks and parries where an attacker's own force is utilized against himself. Brain overpowers brawn.

I have neither, being a pacifist in most matters who relies more on speed of foot than speed of hand to carry me out of touchy situations. My only objection to these sports is an abhorrence of those who seek to heighten self-esteem by converting their hands and feet into deadly weapons, who dream about bringing giants to heel. I prefer to enjoy judo because of its safe, sportsmanlike approach that brings ancient oriental respect into the ceremonies that surround it.

On the other hand I realize such a gentle philosophy does little good to a man or woman who lives in a situation where they may be called upon to defend themselves. I only suggest that before you endeavor to study these martial, combative, arts you have a clear idea as to why you are doing so. Are your motives sporting or macho?

Jujitsu, judo, karate or kung-fu: all of them can provide physical fitness, interesting competition or the means of protecting yourself. You need only to go to the yellow pages of your local phone book to find available schools.

By the way did you hear the one about the karate instructor who joined the army, saluted — and knocked himself out?

Shots fall for Lietzke in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke was amazed.

"It's very surprising," he said Thursday after becoming a reluctant leader in the opening round of the 43rd Masters Golf Tournament with a 5-under-par 67.

"I don't have the confidence in my shots to win the tournament," Lietzke said. "I don't know where the shots came from today, but maybe it's the start of the confidence I need."

The 27-year-old Tucson Open winner confessed to being in a trance when he put together four straight birdies on the back side of the picturesque 7,040-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club course to forge ahead of the select international field of 72 players.

"I was in a trance until the 17th hole," he said. "I had a 5-foot putt there to break it. If I had made it, I very well could have birdied the 18th."

Instead, he settled for a par at 17 and then got his only bogey of the day at 18. It left him little daylight, looking over his shoulder at two of the top shot-makers in the game — Tom Watson, the favorite and Player of the Year in 1977 and 1978, and Jack Nicklaus, showing signs of overcoming perhaps the worst slump of his career.

Watson, leading money winner this season, was tied at 68 with three unexpected first-round contenders — Leonard Thompson, Joe Inman and Ed Sneed.

Despite ideal weather, Nicklaus, who had a 69, labeled it "the kind of course you could not take a run at" because of difficult pin placements.

"There were seven holes today where if you put the ball on the wrong side of the hole, you could putt it right off the green," the five-time Masters champion said. "My putting was okay, I just didn't make much.

"You always breathe a sigh of relief when you have a good round ... especially when you are not sure what you might shoot when you start out," Nicklaus added, after only his second subpar round in the 15 he has played so far this season.

"I'm very satisfied with the round," he said. "It puts a lot of confidence back in my head."

The 69 left Nicklaus in a tie with former U.S. Open winner Lou Graham, young pros Andy Bean and Craig Stadler and the 1970 Masters champ, Billy Casper, who at 47 said he "struck a blow for the old folks."

Veteran Rod Funseth, who surprisingly tied for second here last year, and Ray Floyd, winner of last week's Greater Greensboro Open, were in a group at 70. South African Gary Player, the defending champion, was one of eight players in at 1-under 71.

Hale Irwin, often a contender but never a winner in the Masters, had a 72, while Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw and Lanny Wadkins were in a large group at 73.

Wadkins, only two-time winner on tour this year, appeared to have his game going again when he toured the front side in 4-under.

Then, disaster struck. Wadkins went double bogey-bogey-double bogey around Augusta National's "Amen Corner" to open the back nine and took another bogey at No. 14 for a fat 41.

Arnold Palmer, a four-time Masters champion who used this tournament to become the game's most popular player, recovered from a double bogey and three bogeys on the first five holes to record a 74.

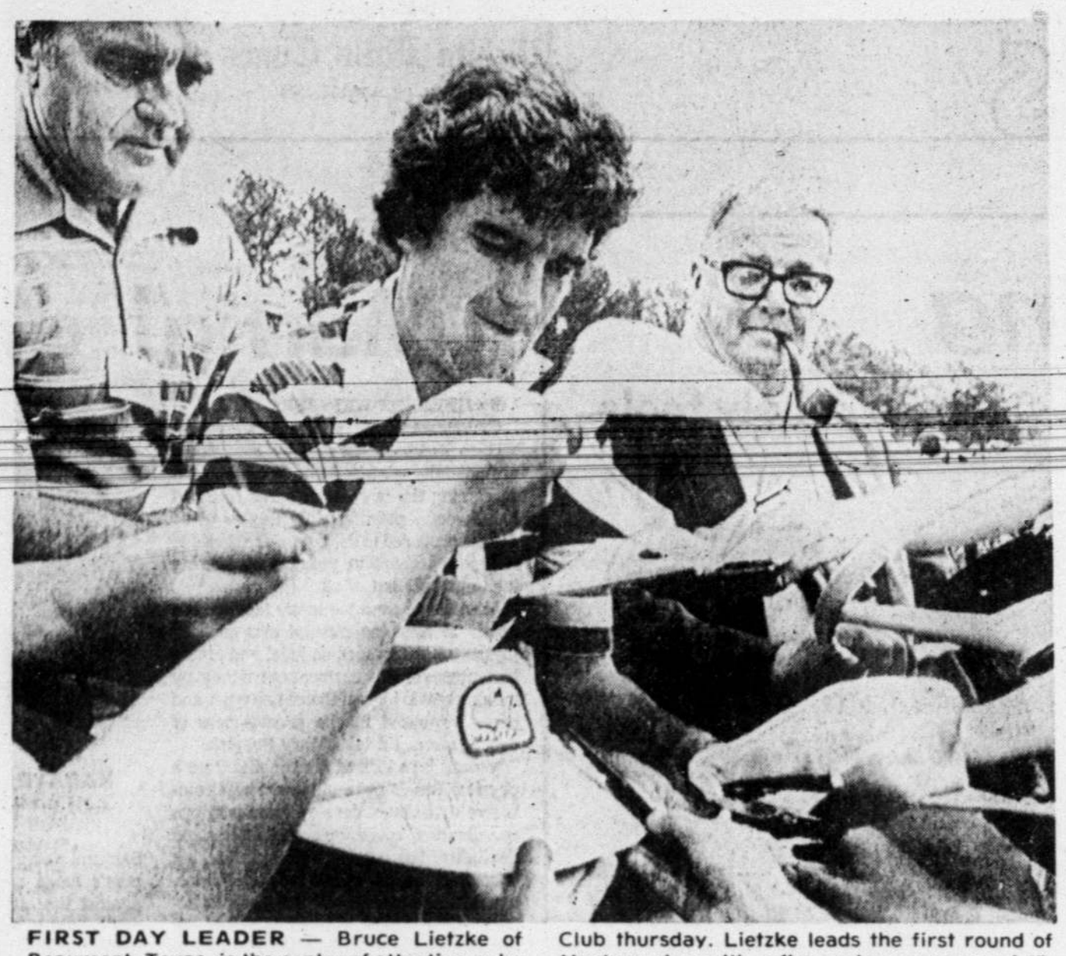

Lietzke, appearing in only his second Masters, said it "was an easy stroll in the park. I never was in trouble. It could have been a course record if I had putted well. I had it in there close a number of times."

The former University of Houston golfer 2-putted eight times from 15 feet or less.

"If this had been any other tournament than the Masters, I'd probably be home fishing right now," Lietzke said.

Watson, who won here two years ago and finished second last year, said he played at ease through the tough stretch — Nos. 10, 11 and 12 — with a pair of birdies and a par.

"You feel like when you play those holes in even par, you're getting away with murder," Watson said.

'Amen Corner' where Masters 'is won or lost'

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — They call it "Amen Corner," that fearful stretch of holes leading away from the colonial clubhouse to Rae's Creek and the far reaches of the Augusta National Golf Club — Nos. 10, 11 and 12.

"That," said Tom Watson, "is where the golf tournament is won and lost."

And, if that's true, he's well up on the rest of the field in the 43rd Masters.

"You want to play 'em in par," Watson said. "If you can do that, you might be one or two up on the field. All you want to do is get around 'em in par.

"If you've had two pars and you're on the green in regulation on No. 12, you just say a very thankful 'Amen'.

"I played them 2-under," Watson said, grinning that little-boy grin and admitting, "that's like stealing."

The 10th is a 485-yard par 4 with a slight dogleg to the left. The 11th is 445 yards, a straight-away par 4 with a pond to the left of the green and the creek behind it. The 12th is a very difficult par 3 with the creek in front of the green.

And, while that stretch was mastered by Watson, it claimed its share of victims Thursday in the first round of the famed Masters.

The prime example was Lanny Wadkins, the only two-time winner on the men's tour this season.

He'd just stormed over the front nine in 4-under-par 32 and was well among the leaders when he made the turn to the back nine.

Wadkins got his second shot aon No. 10 gainst a bank, was just short of the green in 3 and took 3 more to get down. Double bogey.

He missed the green and bogeyed the 11th.

And he hit the creek on the 12th for another double bogey that sent him reeling back in the pack — a plunge from 4 under par to 1-over in three holes.

Japan's Jumbo Ozaki also had a spot among the leaders, then played those holes double bogey-double bogey-bogey.

Former champion Gay Brewer was 1 under par and played them bogey-bogey-triple bogey.

Tom Weiskopf was even through the front nine, got by 10 and 11 without damage, then made triple bogey 6 on the 12th.

That, however, was 1 shot better than David Graham of Australia, who took a quadruple bogey 7 on the hole.

Even Jack Nicklaus couldn't escape. He three-putted No. 12 for bogey and wasn't too upset about it.

"The grain on the green runs right to the water," said Nicklaus, who shot a 69. "If I'd taken a run at it, really tried to make the putt, I might have putted it right in the water and gone for a really high number."

Joe Inman, tied with Watson at 68, one shot off the lead, managed to get around the corner in par and was the happiest man alive.

"If you're trying to win the golf tournament, you just pray, 'Dear Lord, let me get by 'em in par', and if you can you breathe a big sigh and go on about your business."

"They are," said Watson, "very tough holes. You have to play very good golf shots. One mistake and you're going for a big number."

Tom hopes to become 'Terrific' again

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Six weeks ago, Tom Weiskopf, following the pro golf tour into Florida's Sun Belt, was stricken with a stomach ailment and hospitalized in Orlando, Fla.

He missed Orlando's Citrus Classic. The next week, he teed it up in Jackie Gleason's Inverrary tournament but had to withdraw — again with the chronic stomach ailment.

On to Doral in Miami. There, it was discovered he had two five-irons in his bag, exceeding the 14-club limit, and he was penalized 2 strokes. He shot 297 and tied for 67th.

He failed to make the cut in the Tournament Players Championship at Ponte Vedra. The next week at the Heritage Classic in Hilton Head, S.C., he was disqualified for playing a provisional ball. The next day, his $150,000 house in Pine Top, Ariz., burned to the ground. He finished 44th at the Greater Greensboro Open.

Tom wasn't exactly riding a streak of good luck when he came to Augusta to play in his 12th Masters.

He was cruising along at even par in Thursday's first round until he dumped his tee shot into the water on the short 12th, blowing to a triple bogey 6. He fought back to even par and then, after a brilliant recovery shot, three-putted the final hole for a 73. Distraught, he slammed his putter into the bag.

A hiss was heard in the crowd. There was an ugly buzz and someone was heard to say:

"That's old Terrible Tom — can't keep his cool."

TOM WEISKOPF ...riding bad luck

Weiskopf strode briskly to the club house, obviously upset. There, his playing partner, J.C. Snead, sought to console him.

"Don't let it get you down," Snead said as Weiskopf gulped down a plate of ice cream. "That's the way it is with people. They give you a label and there's no way you can shake it off.

"Everybody's got a label. Jack Nicklaus is the Golden Bear. Palmer's got Arnie's Army. There's Merry Mex (Lee Trevino) and Gentle Ben (Crenshaw).

"Hell, I've seen Merry Mex mad enough to chew nails and Gentle Ben — he's as gentle as a rattlesnake."

Weiskopf, 36, is a superb golfing talent who has been runnerup four times in the Masters, won the British Open and barely missed winning the U.S. Open and PGA crowns. In 1973, he demonstrated his true potential by winning five tournaments in the space of eight weeks, shooting in the 60s in half of his rounds.

A lean, 6-foot-3 stylist, he is regarded by his peers — even Jack Nicklaus — as being the finest striker of the ball in the game.

"I don't think my temper is any worse than that of the other guys on the tour," Weiskopf said. "I have never been fined for profanity or conduct unbecoming a pro golfer. I have been fined only for telling the truth.

"I have pulled out of tournaments when I was playing badly. I didn't lie and say I was sick. Once at Westchester I quit for personal reasons involving my friend, Bert Yancey."

Weiskopf admitted that he was frustrated by the worst start since he joined the tour in 1965 — 94th on the money list with $9,027 — but he didn't regard it as "doom's day."

"To some players, golf is the No. 1 priority in their lives — not me," he said. "I have no ambition to be the greatest player of all time. Golf is a means of occupying my time for a short period of my life. Other things are more important."

Weiskopf said he was a victim of other people's — not his own — expectations.

"They tabbed me a super star. When I didn't live up to predictions, they had to find an excuse to get off the hook. My temper became the goat."

He worked hard to achieve his brilliant 1973 record, which included the British and Canadian Open titles.

"I proved myself," he said. "The feeling was unbelievable. I think I can do it again. Then the people will call me — as they did then — 'Tom Terrific' instead of 'Tom the Terrible.'"

Ex-Ranger Harrah goat of Texas win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

There was Toby Harrah playing third base for the Cleveland Indians ... and there was Buddy Bell at bat wearing the red, white and blue of the Texas Rangers.

And then there was Harrah later wearing a red face.

"You can see why I'm glad to be out of Dallas," said Harrah after being charged with a costly error that handed the Rangers a 5-3 victory over his Indians Thursday night. "I don't know who the scorer was — but he missed the play. The ball hit the heel of my glove. It was a hit, not an error."

A once-popular figure with the Rangers, Harrah's latter years in Texas were not the happiest of his professional life. He had an especially tough time with the press because of his erratic fielding. And, it seems, he's still carrying a grudge against the Texas writers.

"The writers forget that I only made 11 errors last year," said Harrah with a trace of bitterness in his voice. "And I played about 50 of the games at shortstop."

Ironically, Harrah's bases-loaded error in the third inning that opened the gates for three Cleveland runs was made off a ground ball hit by Bell, the very player that he was traded for.

"I thought I hit the ball pretty good," said Bell, perhaps trying to lift the goat's mantle off Harrah's shoulders. "You have to have some sympathy for any player who makes an error. Toby's a good player, though. It won't affect him."

The Rangers loaded the bases in the third on walks to Bump Wills and Billy Sample and an infield single by Al Oliver. Then Harrah let Bell's grounder roll through his legs, scoring two runs.

John Ellis followed with an RBI single for Texas' final run of the inning. Sample drilled an RBI single in the fourth for the final run off starter and loser Rick Waits. Texas scored an insurance run in the eighth on a home run by Oscar Gamble off reliever Victor Cruz.

Angels 7, Twins 1

Yankees 5, Orioles 0

Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss cracked successive home runs to ignite a five-run New York burst in the second inning and Tommy John pitched a three-hitter as the Yankees defeated Baltimore.

Nettles, who went 6-for-13 in the three-game series at Baltimore with six RBI, connected off Mike Flanagan after a leadoff single by Reggie Jackson. Two pitches later Chambliss homered.

Red Sox 12, Brewers 10

Jim Dwyer's first American League hit, a two-run pinch single with two outs in the ninth inning, led Boston over Milwaukee.

Blue Jays 9, White Sox 6

Rick Cerone's three-run homer capped a six-run, eighth-inning rally to lead Toronto over Chicago. A leadoff homer by Rico Carty and a two-run single by Roy Howell preceded Cerone's big hit.

Mariners 4, A's 3

Pinch-runner Joe Simpson scored on a passed ball in the eighth inning as Seattle rallied to edge Oakland. Simpson ran for Bruce Bochte, who reached on first baseman Jeff Newman's error which let Seattle's Dan Meyer score the tying run.

Pirates end tailspin as 'Cards drop first

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

For Don Robinson, it's a matter of control. For John Milner, it's a matter of self-control.

Robinson, whose wildness cost him a chance at a victory last weekend, was razor-sharp on the mound for Pittsburgh Thursday night.

And Milner, once an unhappy starter on the mediocre New York Mets but now a satisfied reserve with the Pirates, made the most of a rare opportunity.

Those two performances helped the Pirates halt a three-game tailspin and turn back the previously unbeaten St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

In the rest of the National League, the Mets shaded Philadelphia 3-2, Atlanta clobbered Los Angeles 10-2 and San Francisco edged San Diego 4-3.

"Giving up no walks is a lot more gratifying than getting nine strikeouts," said Robinson, who did both against the Cards. "I gave up seven hits and if I walked a couple it would have been like giving them nine.

"The walks cost me a chance for a win last Saturday," when he was gone before the Pirates edged Montreal 7-6. "I walked some guys and I hit one with a pitch. You can't do that. You have to keep them off the bases."

He did that by checking St. Louis on seven hits. The only one that hurt him was Keith Hernandez' home run in the fourth inning.

Milner, who usually rides the bench, got his shot when starting first baseman Willie Stargell sat down with a bruised hip. "I know what my job is here," he said. "I have to be ready to go when they need me."

He was, getting three of Pittsburgh's 10 hits. In the sixth inning, after Omar Moreno walked and Dave Parker tripled to tie it 1-1, Milner pulled a double down the right field to put the Pirates ahead to stay.

Mets 3, Phillies 2

The Phils had plenty of punch against Pat Zachry, but not when it counted. The Mets' slender right-hander survived a 12-hit barrage by squeezing out of one jam after another. His biggest feat was getting Pete Rose out four times with Phils in scoring position.

"I have no special feelings about Pete Rose. I was just out there trying to get him out," said Zachry.

Braves 10, Dodgers 2

Four runs batted in by Barry Bonnell and the four-hit pitching of Larry McWilliams carried the Braves past Los Angeles, which lost for the third straight time after winning four in a row.

Bonnell hit his third homer, a two-run shot, off Andy Messersmith in the second inning and ripped a two-run double in the ninth. Dale Murphy also homered for Atlanta.

Giants 4, Padres 3

San Diego pitcher Eric Rasmussen breezed through the first seven hitters he faced, then ran headlong into trouble. Before he got out of it he'd given up a San Francisco run in the third and three in the fourth, two on Darrell Evans' homer.

Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer for the Padres.

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Flames started the season with so much promise. Now they face a summer of doubt and frustration.

The 12-game unbeaten string that began their campaign is so much water under the bridge. Far more significant, much more aggravating, is the 12 losses in the 13 games of their playoff history and their fifth straight first-round series loss.

The Toronto Maple Leafs blasted the Flames 7-4 Thursday night to sweep their best-of-three preliminary round in the National Hockey League playoffs. The New York Rangers, on an overtime goal by Phil Esposito, edged the Los Angeles Kings 2-1 to take their first-round series.

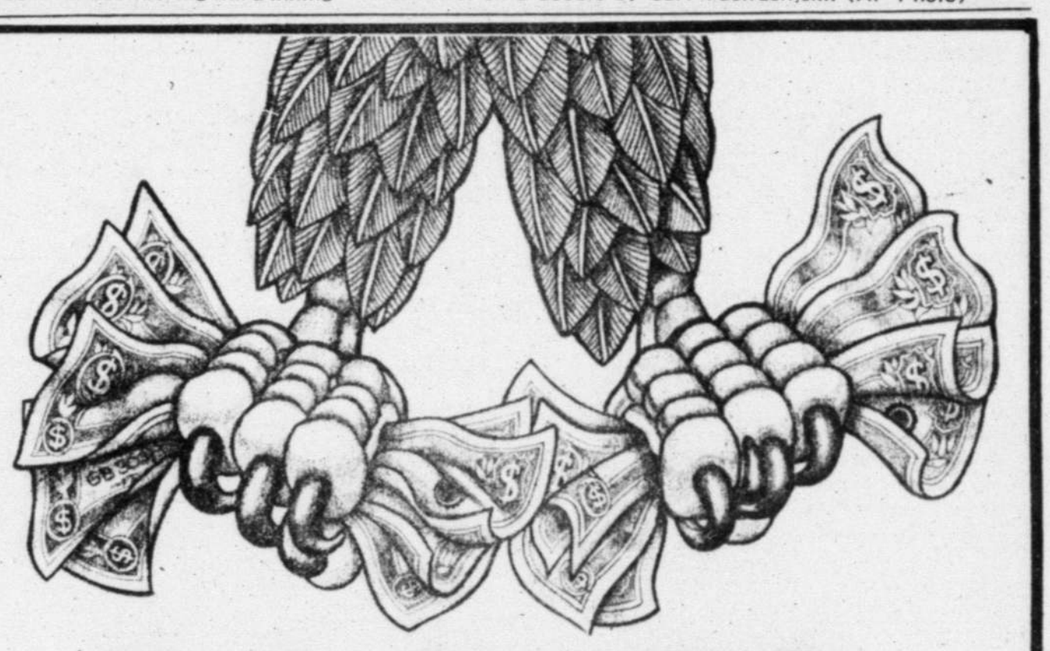

Those teams can look ahead. So can the Buffalo Sabres, who snapped a 15-game winless streak against Pittsburgh and tied their series with a 3-1 victory over the Penguins.

And so can the Philadelphia Flyers, who managed a 6-4 victory over the Vancouver Canucks to force a deciding game in that best-of-three set Saturday. Both Philadelphia and Buffalo will be at home for their decisive games.

For the Flames, though, there is only disappointment. Toronto center Darryl Sittler scored twice and right wing Ron Ellis once in a record-setting 23-second span of the first period to send the Maple Leafs into the quarter-finals and send the Flames home for vacation.

"When we're on the road, we play cautiously at first to get the feel of the game, and start coming on stronger as the game goes on," said Atlanta General Manager Cliff Fletcher.

"But then they get three goals in 23 seconds and the next thing you know we're trying to play catchup hockey. The game plan went out the window."

MSU slate altered

The Midwestern State University four-game baseball series against Lubbock Christian College, originally scheduled for this weekend in Lubbock, has been rescheduled for May 4-5.

Lubbock Christian and Midwestern State are fighting it out for second place in the Texas Athletic Conference standings, but because of the week's circumstances in Wichita Falls, the "big" games were rescheduled.

It's do-or-die for four teams

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns may walk into their dressing room and find track shoes instead of sneakers before they try to sweep their best-of-three National Basketball Association playoff series from the Portland Trail Blazers.

"A three-game series is like a 100-yard dash," explained Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "Any time you have a chance to finish a series, you better do it."

The Suns have a chance to finish the Trail Blazers Friday night, since they took the opener 107-103 at Phoenix Tuesday night.

Portland isn't the only team needing a fast finish to stay alive as first-round action continues. The New Jersey Nets, Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers all faced do-or-die situations.

The Trail Blazers will have the homecourt advantage for their last-ditch attempt, but the Suns may well have the confidence advantage.

"We won 50 games this year," said MacLeod. "Those weren't gifts. Teams didn't just lie down and let us run over them."

The Philadelphia 76ers' fast break ran over the Nets in Tuesday night's rough 122-114 victory, and New Jersey knows it can't afford to let that happen again.

"They just got too many points on the break," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, noting the 76ers converted 31

Saturday in Superdome

Rossman defends WBA title against Galindez

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mike Rossman will defend the World Boxing Association light heavyweight championship against Victor Galindez in the Superdome Saturday. This time, it is "official."

Rossman won the title by stopping the Argentine in the 13th round in the Superdome last Sept. 15 and was set to defend it against Galindez Feb. 24 at Las Vegas.

On that Saturday afternoon, Rossman showed up in the ring at Ceaser's Palace, as witness by a good-size live crowd and a national television audience, but he stood there waiting and waiting and waiting...the fight never came off.

The bout was called off because the WBA and the Nevada State Athletic Commission could not agree on who should appoint the officials.

"Boxing is being run by guys who sit behind big desks, smoke cigars and drink whiskey all night," said the disgusted 22-year-old Rossman at the time.

Saturday when he shows up in the ring at the Superdome, Rossman this time is expected to get company in the person of Galindez. The WBA and the Louisiana State Athletic commission have agreed that the WBA should appoint neutral officials, meaning no Americans and no Argentines.

When Rossman, of Turnersville, N.J., won the title from Galindez — the same night Muhammad Ali rgeained the heavyweight championship from Leon Spinks — there were three Latin American officials.

There was no doubt that Rossman won the 13th round — the round in which the fight was stopped — and so he was an obvious winner on the cards of judge Wally Schmidt and Arseino Bernal. Only referee Carlos Berrocal had it close and even he had Rossman ahead at the end of 12 rounds — 116-115.

Saturday's fight will be the second defense of the title for Rossman, who stopped Aldo Traveraro of Italy in the seventh round in Philadelphia last Dec. 5.

That fight was the 34th victory against four losses and three draws for Rossman. He has scored 22 knockouts.

Galindez, who is 31 and had problems making the 175-pound weight limit in September, has a record of 51-6-4, with 30 knockouts. The brawling Argentine, who is busy but not particularly a powerful puncher, won the WBA title by knocking out Len Hutchins of Detroit in Buenos Aires Dec. 7, 1974.

Before meeting Rossman, he defended the title nine times, eight of them going the limit and another one going into the 15th round before he won.

Rossman, finishing up his training Thursday, received the WBA championship belt he earned last September. The fact that he had nit received until now obviously bothered him.

"I feel a lot better today than I didn yesterday," said Rossman, who is in a position for a lot more money than any championship belt cost if he gets past Galindez again.

People are also talking about rumors that say Rossman wants to split with his father-manager Jimmy Dipiano and that his contract is for sale. It is a question that few people are asking either the fighter or the father these days.

Rossman reportedly is getting $175,000 to fight Galindez, who reportedly is receiving only $50,000.

The bout is scheduled to be televised by ABC on its Wide World of Sports show beginning at 4 p.m., CST.

OU plan to build new baseball complex approved

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A $1 million plan to build a new baseball complex, along with a $5.5 million football stadium expansion and a $6.1 million student recreation center were approved Thursday by the University of Oklahoma Board of Regents.

"What the Regents did was to initiate the architectural process," OU President Dr. William Banowsky said of the new baseball complex plans. "We have sent out letters to all architect firms throughout the state."

He said it will take about two months before replies are received. The plans will then be reviewed by the OU architect, who will recommend five to the Regents.

The student recreation center and plans to build in the south end zone of Owen Field were tenatively approved earlier.

Although the exact site of the baseball park is undetermined, Banowsky said the facility will include a new baseball field with lights, an irrigation system, new concrete stands, restrooms, concession stands, lockers, showers and equipment storage.

CART lists 44 entries to Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An Indianapolis 500 without most of the top drivers might cut attendance somewhat, but the race will almost certainly be run and even more certainly infuriate the sponsors who pay thousands of dollars to paste their decals on the world's fastest billboards.

"For a sponsor, it's a cold, hard business decision," said one U.S. Auto Club spokesman. "Sponsors don't care about the infighting (between USAC and Championship Auto Racing Teams). If they build a program around a car driving in the 500, and then the car isn't even in the race, I would think they'd be throughly honked off."

CART, which had threatened to boycott the May 27 Indy 500 and stage its own $1 million race on the same day, submitted 44 entries to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Thursday.

But CART President Pat Patrick emphasized the entries were made only to meet Sunday's deadline and avoid technical disqualification, implying there is still no guarantee the CART drivers would be in the race.

He said CART would continue to press its demands for more control, and he said he has asked CART's attorney to advise him of possible options should the dispute with USAC and the Speedway not be resolved to CART's satisfaction.

"I think what they (CART) are doing is drawing attention to themselves," said the USAC spokesman, who asked not to be identified. "I don't think it's any more than a publicity stunt. If they don't (drive at Indy), I know a lot of their sponsorship is going to go down the drain."

The 44 CART entries pushed the total to 83.

The CART entries were delivered by Jim Melvin, president of Michigan International Speedway and executive director of the breakaway organization.

Before Thursday's announcement, four-time winner A.J. Foyt, an original director of CART who had defected back to the USAC, was the only big-name driver entered in the race.

The CART entries included cars for former Indy winners Al and Bobby Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock, two-time USAC national champion Tom Sneva, and other top drivers such as Danny Ongais, Wally Dallenbach, Rick Mears, Mike Mosley, Pancho Carter, Salt Walther and Larry Cannon.

USAC recently lowered the allowable manifold pressure for all turbocharged engines to make them more equivalent to each other.

Storms, floods hit nation

By The Associated Press

At least 275 persons had fled their flooded neighborhood near the swollen Mississippi River at Ste. Genevieve and Cape Girardeau, Mo., today, while states from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes cleaned up after spring's first rash of tornadoes.

Thunderstorms rumbled across Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia late Thursday and 10 tornadoes — seven in Alabama — were reported, leaving a trail of downed trees and power lines and damaged buildings.

Two twisters touched down in Michigan and one appeared in Mississippi, causing damage but no serious injury.

The storms produced heavy rains over much of the nation's midsection. In Mississippi, the drownings of three teen-aged sisters as they tried to find safety from floodwaters near their rural home were attributed to the weather.

Flash flood watches were in effect through the morning for portions of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

The Illinois River, which had been receding for the past week, reversed itself and began rising to levels which officials said could be higher than those which forced thousands of persons to flee their homes last month.

An undetermined number of families along the southern end of the Illinois River have evacuated their homes in the last two days because of flooding.

In the Midwest, a band of showers and thundershowers reached from northeastern Arkansas into upper Michigan. Rain and showers also were reported over northern Texas, the Texas panhandle and southwestern Oklahoma.

Snow fell over the northern Rockies while rainshowers spread over western Washington. In the northern plains, a winter storm warning was in effect in eastern Montana. Travel advisories continued for a large portion of the Dakotas.

Temperatures were below freezing over most of the central and northern Rockies and the western portions of the central and northern Plains. Readings remained in the 70s along the Gulf Coast and across Florida.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 75 in Key West, Fla., to 22 at Alamosa, Colo., and Laramie, Wyo.

Portrait sale delayed

BOSTON (AP) — The Washingtons are staying in Boston — at least until the end of the year.

The Smithsonian Institution and the Boston Athenaeum have suspended until that time negotiations for the sale of Gilbert Stuart's stately portraits of George and Martha Washington to the national museum.

A statement issued Wednesday in Washington and Boston by Smithsonian and Athenaeum officials said that "in view of the proposed campaign to raise the $5 million necessary" to purchase the paintings that the Beacon Hill library and the Smithsonian "have agreed to suspend any further negotiations until the end of this year."

The suspension followed Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's announcement Wednesday of the formation of "The SOS — Save Our Stuarts" fundraising campaign to match the $5 million the Smithsonian had offered to pay for the paintings.

Besides Kennedy, the fundraising committee includes Boston Mayor Kevin H. White; former U.S. House Speaker John W. McCormack; Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill 3rd; Howard Johnson, president of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts where the paintings now hang; William O. Taylor, president and publisher of the Boston Globe and James T. Dorris, publisher of the Boston Herald American.

Meanwhile, Mayor White said the fundraising effort would continue even if the city wins the suit it has filed against the Smithsonian and the Athenaeum to prevent the sale.

Volcano in action

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (AP) — Residents of this Caribbean island living near the volcano Soufriere heard a loud explosion early this morning, ashes fell nearby and the crater puffed out smoke, the government said.

The government announcement said residents of the island, located in the Lesser Antilles, fear a major eruption and are leaving.

In 1902 much of the island was destroyed when of Soufriere, which had been inactive until recently, erupted.

Ex-Bentsen aide handed nomination

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — Vacationing President Carter announced today he is nominating Sally Angela Shelton, a former aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to be ambassador to Barbados, Grenada and the new commonwealth of Dominica.

Miss Shelton also will serve as the first accredited U.S. minister to St. Lucia if confirmed by the Senate.

As envoy to Barbados and Grenada, she would succeed Frank V. Ortiz Jr., who is being reassigned.

Milk production up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk production last month totaled about 10.6 billion pounds, slightly more than in March of last year, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Thursday that milk output in the first three months of 1979 was about 30 billion pounds, up 1 percent from 29.8 billion pounds in the first quarter of 1978.

Guerrillas hold off Somoza's troops

OUTSIDE ESTELI, Nicaragua (AP) — Leftist guerrillas held the northern Nicaraguan city of Esteli for the seventh day today despite heavy fire from President Anastasio Somoza's artillery and planes.

Reporters stopped at a roadblock four miles south of the city could see explosions and smoke as the national guard's fighters attacked with rockets.

A lieutenant commanding the roadblock on the Pan American Highway said heavy fighting was under way and the national guard, Somoza's combined army and national police force, hoped to recapture the city today.

Refugees from Esteli said the guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front who overran much of the city on Saturday captured the communications center, knocked out an armored car and destroyed a Sherman tank that had been firing into the city.

At least 400 guerrillas were reported in the city, fighting from the protection of a network of barricades and trenches.

The national guard appeared to be beefing up its forces in the area. One soldier said 200 troops went through the roadblock Thursday.

The Red Cross has estimated about 5,000 of Esteli's 35,000 inhabitants have fled since the fighting began. There were unconfirmed reports that a family of four Americans was trapped in the city.

Esteli was heavily damaged in an abortive Sandinista-led rebellion against Somoza last September in which at least 1,500 persons were reported killed across this Central American nation.

Refugees said the guerrillas appeared to be more heavily armed than they were in September and the firing was more intense.

There was speculation the guerrillas planned only a hit-and-run attack but stayed in the city when they encountered only light resistance. Diplomatic sources predicted the Sandinistas might try take on the national guard in another city in an attempt to relieve government pressure on the guerrillas in Esteli.

The national guard reported guerrilla attacks in Cardenas, Colon, Orosi and Sapoa, near the Costa Rican border. The guard said there was no reports of casualties.

There was some confusion in guerrilla pronouncements. One rebel communique said there would be a cease-fire in Nicaragua during the Easter holy week, but another said there "will be no holy week in Nicaragua."

Guard forces appeared to be bracing for an attack in Managua, which escaped most of the anti-Somoza violence that has plagued this nation of 2.5 million for the last year. Heavily armed patrols prowled the city and jeeps with heavy machine guns were seen at some intersections.

South Africans hold U.S. plane

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South Africa has impounded the plane it claims the U.S. Embassy used for aerial espionage and has ordered the United States to remove the craft once it is stripped of photographic gear.

Three members of the embassy's military staff have been given one week to leave the country.

The U.S. Embassy refused to comment. But a State Department official in Washington admitted the plane, a twin-engine C-12A, was equipped with a camera and took aerial photographs. However, he said he would not call the photography espionage.

Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha leveled the surprise spy charges on TV Thursday. He charged that the plane was Ambassador William P. Edmondson's private aircraft and that it "was converted for use as a spy plane by the installation of an aerial survey camera under the seat of the co-pilot.

"In flight, the device enabled the camera to take pictures of the ground below." Botha continued. "Photographs in our possession reveal that the embassy aircraft was engaged in a systematic program of photography of vast areas of South Africa, including some of our most sensitive installations."

He gave no details but said, "we have the necessary exhibits and will show them if need be."

The pro-government Citizen newspaper reported today that Edmondson was "pale and appeared flabbergasted" after a meeting with the South African foreign minister at which, the newspaper said, the ambassador was shown photographs allegedly taken by the plane's camera equipment.

Botha's charges came one day after the Rhodesian newspaper, the National Observer, reported that the same plane had been fitted with the sophisticated a aerial survey camera when it was in that country to deliver Stephen Low, the U.S. ambassador to Zambia, and Robin Renwick, a British envoy, for unannounced consultations on next week's Rhodesian elections.

Botha said it was the kind of conduct that could be expected from the Soviet Union. He demanded an official apology from the Carter administration.

The prime minister did not say how many Americans were ordered out of the country or identify them. But the State Department said three men were given a week to leave: Col. Alvin M. Crews, a defense attache; Maj. Bernd McConnell, an assistant air attache, and Master Sgt. Horace E. Wyatt Jr., crew chief of the plane.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the plane was assigned to Crews, not to the ambassador.

Sources close to the embassy said the plane had "gone everywhere" on official business, including to other African countries.

Relations between the Carter administration and South Africa's white-minority government already were at a low point because of American opposition to South Africa's apartheid policy of racial repression and the U.S. administration's support of black nationalist movements in Southern Africa.

"It is particularly unfortunate," said Hodding Carter, "that the South African government chose to act as it did at a time when we are engaged with it in seeking solutions to the problems in Namibia (South-West Africa) and elsewhere in Southern Africa."

In South-West Africa, which South Africa continues to control in defiance of the United Nations, the United States is backing a U.N. plan for independence which the South African government thinks is weighted in favor of the leftist South-West Africa Peoples Organization, a guerrilla movement.

Idaho faces danger of rubella epidemic

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The head of Idaho's Bureau of Preventive Medicine says the state's 100 recently confirmed cases of rubella, a disease that can lead to birth defects, is "a full blown epidemic."

Rubella is commonly known as German or three-day measles. Symptoms include a slight fever, a rash on the face and neck, swollen glands and stiff joints.

The epidemic poses a "real danger to unborn babies," said Dr. Fritz Dixon. He said the 100 confirmed cases means that as many as 1,000 persons may have contracted the disease without knowing it.

"We have a full blown epidemic underway at the present time and after rubella gets started, there are usually eight to 10 unreported cases for every reported case," Dixon said.

Department of Health and Welfare officials said large-scale vaccination programs are the only way to stop the disease from spreading.

If a woman contracts the disease during the first three months of pregnancy, the virus can penetrate the fetus causing blindness, deafness, mental retardation, abnormally small brains and damage to the heart and major arteries.

Since symptoms are often mild, many persons who contract the disease are unaware they're carrying the virus. The disease can pass easily through the air between persons in the same room.

Private physicians report four pregnant women are known to have already contracted rubella, increasing probabilities they'll deliver infants suffering Congenital Rubella Syndrome. Babies infected with the disease are scheduled to be born in September and thereafter.

Studies indicate between 25 percent and 50 percent of the women contracting the disease during the first three months of pregnancy give birth to infants with congenital defects.

Profiles ...Stones join Keith

TORONTO (AP) — Rock guitarist KEITH RICHARDS will be accompanied by MICK JAGGER and the rest of the Rolling Stones rock group at two benefit concerts for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Oshawa, Ont., on April 22, the promoters said.

Richards was convicted last October of heroin possession and received a two-year suspended sentence. He was ordered to perform the concert — with benefits going to the institute — as a condition of his probation.

The federal justice department has said the sentence will be appealed.

MONTREAL (AP) — World chess champion ANATOLY KARPOV of the Soviet Union beat JAN TIMMAN of the Netherlands in second-round play Thursday at the Man and His World Chess Challenge Cup.

The three other matches in the round were adjourned until today, one of several days left open in the month-long schedule for the completion of adjourned matches.

Former world champion BORIS SPASSKY of the Soviet Union will finish his match with Lubomir Kavalek, of the United States. LJUBOMIR LJUBOJEVIC, Yugoslavia, will finish a game with LAJOS PORTISCH of Hungary, and ROBERT HUEBNER of West Germany will complete play with BENT LARSEN of Denmark.

CLEVELAND (AP) — A river that used to be so polluted it once caught fire may become a fountain of youth — for a monster in a disaster movie.

A advertising executive has asked permission to use a bridge over the industry-lined Cuyahoga River as a backdrop for a movie in which a monster feeds on river pollution and rises to threaten human life.

"It is one of the gloomiest places in the entire county — the ideal location for a monster scene," said MORTON MYERS, president of American Searchlight Advertising Co.

Myers asked county commissioners on Thursday for permission to use the Detroit-Superior bridge for one day to shoot a scene for the yet-untitled movie he plans to produce.

Commissioners said they would grant Myers' request if his liability insurance is approved.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — MIKHAIL BARYSHNIKOV, considered by experts the best dancer of his generation, will dance the title role in the Louisville Ballet's season-opening performance of IGOR STRAVINSKY'S "Petrouchka" October 18-20.

ALUN JONES, artistic director of the Louisville company, made the announcement Thursday. Jones successfully lured Baryshnikov to Louisville last year — the dancer's first appearance with a regional company — to perform the role of the Poet in GEORGE BALANCHINE'S "Night Shadow".

Jones said that ever since Baryshnikov's sellout performance here last fall, "people have asked if we'll bring him back. Some even suggested we should get someone else for next season. I'm not sure there is anyone else when you talk about Baryshnikov."

She's making 'hard times' for J.J.

By EARL WILSON
Field Syndicate

NEW YORK — Mrs. Terry Allen Kramer, the frank-speaking producer of the hit show "I Love My Wife," has set off a few firecrackers under Dyn-O-Mite Jimmy (J.J.) Walker of TV with whom she's been having a quiet war.

Blasting him for claiming that the emotional stress resulting from six years on the "Good Times" program forced him to pull out of playing the lead in a black version of her show, Mrs. Kramer said, "Mr. Walker is unprofessional and irresponsible."

Angered because J.J.'s manager Jerry Kushnick was "making World War III out of it," Mrs. Kramer said, "I'll make it World War 17."

"Nobody made J.J. sign to do the show," she said. "He wanted to do it. His manager said the pace, the speed, the Broadway exposure would be good for his career after TV.

"We tried to satisfy his whims but he was uncooperative from the start. He would not pose for poster pictures, he would not give interviews. He wouldn't come to rehearsals. We were told that he said, 'What a comedown Broadway is.'"

She'd also been told that he went to a basketball game though "too sick to rehearse."

Manager Kushnick denied all this and said, "The TV show was just too confining and here he was being confined again." He said J.J. would pay any financial loss suffered through his cancellation.

Mrs. Kramer and partner Harry Rigby hired J.J. (at $7,500 a week) and five others to do the wife-swapping comedy 16 weeks starting April 24.

"But he quit. What about those talented people? He couldn't have cared less. We are making every effort to find a replacement so we can give employment to those young talents."

Mrs. Kramer was negotiating with other black TV stars.

Kushnick said Dyn-O-Mite's emotional stress "made him sick to his stomach for a week."

"I'm sick to my stomach, too," Mrs. Kramer said.

JAMES MASON'S wife, Clarissa Kaye, who made her Broadway stage debut in "Faith Healer," was formerly a contortionist. Mort Gottlieb, producer of the Mason show, said at the opening, "She discusses it and will gladly do a back flip or whatever contortionists do." She's multi-talented, having been a circus performer and night club entertainer in Australia.

Besides arranging gifts for the crew, Mrs. Mason helped as hostess at an opening night party the Masons gave for 50 at Le Cirque.

RYAN O'NEAL claims he's boxed 150 rounds getting in shape to play a boxer in the movie "The Main Event" that he's making with Barbra Streisand. Statisticians figured out that was more than Ali boxed with sparring partners getting ready for his first waltz with Leon Spinks.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The last election we had, the winner ends up with Sadat and Begin on his hands while the loser gets to spend all his time playing golf. — Wayne Mackey.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: The reason some people are overweight is there are times when they go starch craving mad. — Red O'Donnell.

Rockefeller estate donates $4.4 million frame house

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bassett Hall, a house built before 1766 in what's now called Colonial Williamsburg, has been given to the historic community by the estate John D. Rockefeller 3rd.

The gift, valued at $4.4 million, had been the Williamsburg home of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his family since 1936. It includes 585 surrounding acres, according to an announcement made Thursday by Carlisle H. Humelsine, chairman of the Colonial Willliamsburg Foundation.

Film unpretentious, charming

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

The romance is youthful and innocent: a French boy and an American girl living in Paris meet by chance and fall in love. They run off on a sentimental trip to Venice, aided by a boulevardier of aging charm.

Laurence Olivier is ideal as their companion, and solid support comes from Sally Kellerman, Arthur Hill and Broderick Crawford. The latter portrays Broderick Crawford, a role he does to perfection. The rating is PG, but there seems to be little to preclude an enjoyable outing for the entire family.

'1941' destined for greatness

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Writer

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - There's always one picture, filming in Hollywood, that everybody thinks is destined to be a great one. Currently, the one is "1941" and, after watching some of the shooting, this time maybe "everybody" is right.

It shapes up as a wild one — the words generally being used to describe it are "zany" and "silly" and "way out."

"The whole movie is a whimsy," says John Milius, using yet another word. Milius is one of the co-writers and the executive producer of the film.

For Spielberg, after such distinctly non-silly films as "Jaws" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," it's pleasant to be involved with something silly, zany, way out and even whimsical.

"1941" is set in the year 1941 which, already, sets it apart from a lot of other movies. But it is set at the tail end of 1941 and, if you remember your history, that was when Pearl Harbor happened. And, shortly after Pearl Harbor happened and the war began, the West Coast got panicky.

The movie is mostly about that panic, about the air raids on the coast that people saw or thought they saw, about the submarine attacks on the shore line that people saw or imagined, about the panic and riots and mass nervousness that ensued.

That may not sound like the stuff of whimsy to you, but it does to Milius, Spielberg and company. Milius says the script is compiled from incidents he has read about or heard about or, perhaps, invented, and all of them have been compressed into one day.

"I am a World War II buff," Milius says. "Isn't everybody?"

Spielberg says that he, too, is something of a World War II fan. But he has had little to do with the creation of this picture's script, having merely been hired on as a director. And that, to him, makes a very big difference.

"I probably won't see this picture again, once it's finished," he says. "I never did see 'Jaws' again, after I finished it. The difference is that movies I have written or had a hand in writing — like 'Sugarland Express' and 'Close Encounters' — I like to see again.

"But pictures I just direct, like 'Jaws' and this one, I just direct and that's all."

He is, however, enjoying working on this. It's a complete departure — his first outright comedy. He says he finds comedy hard work.

"I only know two comedians or comedy writers who are happy," Spielberg says. "And I can't think who they are."

Penny Marshall, who is making her movie debut in "1941," was standing next to us. Spielberg turned to her and asked if maybe Rob Reiner, her husband, might be one of those two happy comics.

"Yeah," said Penny. "I guess he's happy."

Spielberg and I reminisced about the first time we met, back in 1971, when he was just a youngster, breaking in, and directing an episode of "Night Gallery" with Joan Crawford. He remembered how nice the big star had been to him, the rookie director.

"Maybe if she'd been worse on the set," he said, "she would have been nicer at home." The reference was to the recent revelations about her mistreating her children, contained in the autobiography of her daughter, Christina, called "Mommie Dearest."

Spielberg says he is currently working seven days a week, as he spends his weekends shooting a new ending to "Close Encounters." He says time has gone by and he has some new ideas and "it's nice for a director to have that option — filmmaking is not a dry cement process."

They were shooting a USO scene for "1941." Supposedly, two servicemen — Treat Williams (from "Hair") and Bobby DeCicco (from "I Want To Hold Your Hand") were fighting over a girl, Dianne Kay (from "Eight Is Enough").

The fight swirled in, around, over and below the dozens of jitterbuggers. It had to be choreographed and timed to the split second, as the fighters jumped over a leg here, ducked a flying body there. It took hours to plan and rehearse.

To shoot it, Spielberg was using a new camera, remote-controlled. Mounted on a conventional camera boom, it seemed to have a mind of its own, as it spun around to pick up the action swirling around the ballroom.

"My next movie," said Penny Marshall, as a body flew past her, "will be more intimate." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.) PENNY MARSHALL, who makes a special appearance in "1941" as a hostess at the Hollywood USO, lectures the USO girls, including Dianne Kay (blonde in hat) and Wendie Jo Sperber.

Census director unsure he can afford it

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government wants Vincent P. Barabba to come back and supervise its elaborate 1980 census. He says he wants the job, but he's not sure he can afford it.

Barabba, 45, now market research manager for the Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N.Y., served as director of the Census Bureau in the Ford and Nixon administrations.

He said he has been asked to take the job again — this time during the big 1980 census — but he also said conflict-of-interest laws may make it financially impossible for him to do so.

"It's hard to look your kid in the eye and say you can't go to the college of your choice because Daddy wants to be director again," said Barabba, who headed the Census Bureau from 1973 to 1976.

He said he would take a "significant" pay cut to accept the job which pays $47,500. And he said there might be other financial losses as well.

He would not discuss the exact financial problems he may face. But he would be subject to provisions of a new ethics law — it takes effect July 1 — which is aimed at "revolving door" employees who take government jobs for short periods, then move to jobs in private industry in the same fields.

The theory behind the law, which critics say will keep good people from taking government jobs, is that the employees should not be allowed to use influence and contacts they build up within a federal agency on behalf of a private corporation later.

"I understand why they write the laws," Barabba said, "but they don't leave much room to be a nice guy."

The most controversial section of the law would prohibit former government workers from participating for two years in any matter that was part of the employee's "official responsibility."

Other laws require some government employees to excuse themselves from any official decisions that might benefit them personally. For example, President Carter asked his cabinet officers to divest any stocks that might present a conflict of interest or an appearance of one.

Reactor complaint filed by state attorney general

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Attorney General Jan Eric Cartwright has filed a complaint with the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, seeking an investigation of the proposed Black Fox nuclear generating plant to determine whether it can be operated safely and at a reasonable cost.

Cartwright said the commission, the state agency in charge of regulating public utilities, should investigate the cost, safety and feasibility of the nuclear plant being constructed by Public Service Co. of Oklahoma near Inola in Rogers County.

He had said earlier he was considering asking the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission to reopen hearings on Black Fox, and he said the complaint filed with the state commission does not mean he has given up the idea of appealing to the federal agency.

"We are not ruling out any other approach at this point," he said. "We plan to explore every possible means of making certain this office and the public is informed about all aspects of Black Fox."

Cartwright said one alarming thing about the plant being built in northeastern Oklahoma is that its original $1.75 billion price tag has soared to $2.9 billion, and is still climbing.

He also said the recent failure at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania may have a damaging effect on "the willingness of lenders to loan large sums of money for constructing nuclear power plants."

The attorney general said the Three Mile Island plant may be out of service for at least two years, adding that there have been reports the customers of the facility will have to make up losses incurred by the long shut down.

"The state of Oklahoma is interested in learning what plans PSO, et all, have made for financing repair and decontamination of Black Fox ... should an accident occur," he stated. "Specifically, the state is interested if PSO intends to directly rely upon the ratepayers of the company to finance such repair and decontamination through surcharge of rates."

He said the Three Mile incident makes it imperative that state officials explore all aspects of the Black Fox plant before consenting to its continued construction.

PSO has said the Black Fox plant will have two reactors at the Black Fox site, but Cartwright said the company also "has reportedly formulated plans to construct ...four additional nuclear generating plants."

He said those plants would generate much more electricity than PSO could use in Oklahoma, and said the commission should determine whether PSO plans to supply other states' energy needs from plants based in Oklahoma.

"We don't want to have potentially dangerous plants here if we aren't going to get the energy they produce," he said.

Cartwright also said the Three Mile Island facility reportedly was insured by a "pool of about 140 companies" with a policy that "reportedly provides (for) assessing other nuclear plants throughout the country $5 million per reactor" if the damages exceed $140 million.

Recovering

Gail Weber of Lawton, Okla., offers comforting words to her 10-year-old son Ray in an area hospital. Ray was injured when hit by flying debris in Tuesday's tornado. The twister caused an estimated $13 million in damage to insured structures, destroyed 140 dwellings, did major damage to 100 other structures and caused minor damage to 430 more. About 732 families are displaced in Oklahoma. (AP Photo)

Kerr-McGee exec defends manual

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Kerr-McGee Corp's health manual adequately informed nuclear fuel workers about the cancer risks of their jobs, a former company health officer has told jurors in the $11.5 million Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination trial.

Lawyers for the Karen Silkwood estate closely Thursday questioned defense witness Al Valentine, 39, of Los Alamos, N.M. He is a certified health physicist who helped design Kerr-McGee's plutonium plant near Crescent, Okla. He now works at a scientific lab.

Silkwood lawyers have asked other witnesses about the manual, which on one page says "Radiation is safe" in capital letters.

"If you really told the workers all you knew about radiation, you couldn't have gotten anyone to work in that plant, isn't that true?" Silkwood lawyer Gerry Spence asked.

"No, that's not true," Valentine said. "If I believed I was out killing people, I wouldn't be in this job."

Miss Silkwood was a Kerr-McGee lab technician who became heavily contaminated with plutonium a week before dying in a 1974 car crash. Her estate is suing for $11.5 million alleging the company was negligent. Kerr-McGee contends she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine specimens to embarass the company.

"Aren't you aware a large body of scientists say present plutonium exposure standards are nothing more than a license to kill?" Spence asked.

"I'm aware of a few individuals who are saying that," Valentine said.

"Yes, I did in saying there is some risk associated with any radiation," he said.

But the witness refused to accept the testimony of previous witnesses that there is a direct link between inhaled plutonium and cancer.

"I am not aware of a single cancer case that has resulted from plutonium in the lungs to this day," Valentine said.

The witness said portions of the Kerr-McGee manual he wrote in 1970 are from a 1959 study of plutonium's effect on lab animals. Reading from that study, Spence asked if certain passages establishing links between alpha particles and cancer were included in the nuclear fuel plant's manual. Valentine said they weren't.

GOING ON THE PHONE BOOK

Oklahoma humorist becomes a 'cover boy'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Will Rogers once said, "There's more talking and less said over phones than in Congress."

But despite his apparent disdain for telephones, Southwestern Bell has plastered the picture of the famous Oklahoma humorist on a million telephone books in Oklahoma in recognition of the 100th anniversary of his birth on Nov. 4, 1879.

Rogers apparently disliked telephone books even worse than telephones, ranking them right alongside dictionaries.

"I got me a dictionary one time, but goodness it dident (his spelling) last long. It was like looking in a telephone book. I never called up anybody in my life if I had to look up their number.

"Nobody is worth looking through all those numbers for, and that's the way it was with my dictionary," Rogers wrote in 1933 in one of his columns.

The facets of Rogers' life are depicted as part of the background surrounding the cover portrait and the last page of the directory explains the significance of the background scenes.

Using the telephone was a chore for Rogers, especially after the advent of the new-fangled dial telephones.

He said if you get a wrong number dialing, "You have to cuss yourself instead of some innocent girl."

Panel considers ending Sooner 'double dipping'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A practice dubbed "double dipping" would be banned in most instances under a bill headed for a joint legislative committee.

Double dippers, as critics call them, are persons who draw a state salary while also receiving state retirement benefits. That arrangement is legal under current statutes but would be changed by the proposal.

Critics of the legislation contend the bill would "hurt the little person and the big one is going to keep on" receiving both state pay and state retirement money.

Public Employees Retirement Director J.O. Spiller said Thursday 44 state employees picked up retirement benefits in 1978.

Spiller said most of those were part-time officials whose retirement benefits were in the range of $150 per month.

However, Bob Lester, a senior assistant to Gov. George Nigh, receives $514 per month from the state troopers' retirement system, plus an annual salary of $24,000.

Spiller said another 97 persons mostly in "county type" jobs got state retirement checks since they did not exceed the earning ceiling that permits them to receive retirement income.

The Senate version would exclude from the bill's provisions employees of the state House and Senate. Under the Senate bill, its sergeant-at-arms would be permitted to win retirement benefits in addition to salaries.

Fuel company hearing scheduled

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Corporation Commission has scheduled a hearing for May 10 on an application to declare Mustang Fuel Corp. a public utility and place it under the commission's regulatory powers.

The three commission members and Attorney General Jan Eric Cartwright filed the application, and the hearing next month will give Mustang officials a chance to show cause why Mustang is not subject to commission regulation.

Commissioners Hamp Baker, Bill Dawson and Norma Eagleton and Cartwright contend Mustang should be regulated because it sells and distributes natural gas in Oklahoma and because its activities affect utility rates.

Pilot killed in crash

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP) — The pilot of an A-7 Air National Guard jet was killed when the plane apparently lost power and crashed outside of Camden, officials said.

The pilot, 1st Lt. David Hatfield, 28, of Columbia, S.C., was on a solo training flight when the craft went down, according to Col. Robert Johnson, commander of McEntire Air National Guard Base near Columbia, where the pilot was based.

Calvin Atkins, a high school student who said he saw the plane go down, said he heard what sounded like an engine going dead before the plane crashed near Wateree Dam.

Prisons probe panel selected

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Legislative leaders have appointed a 10-member committee to investigate the Corrections Department, and the special panel will have its first meeting Monday.

House Speaker Dan Draper said Rep. Carl Twidwell, D-Midwest City, will head the House delegation. Other House members will be Reps. Jerry Smith, R-Tulsa; Ron Sheppard, D-Seminole; Mick Thompson, D Poteau, and Jerry Steward, D-Oklahoma City.

Livestock killing dogs destroyed

WALTERS, Okla. (AP) — A pack of wild dogs that has been mauling area livestock has been tracked down and destroyed here by a group of farmers and law officers.

"It was a shame it had to be done," Walters Police Chief Jack Northrip said.

He said the wild dogs were tracked to a pump house about four miles north and five miles east of Walters after area farmers reported the canines were attacking and injuring cattle.

He said some calves had been killed by the dogs.

Law officers shot six dogs and farmers killed another five.

NOTICE TO ALL
LONE STAR GAS CUSTOMERS
IN WICHITA FALLS

The devastating tornado which struck Wichita Falls Tuesday evening caused a tragic loss of life and possessions. The cost in terms of economic suffering together with a stoppage of utility services to the effected and afflicted citizens of the City also cannot yet be fully determined. Lone Star Gas Company service crews from a number of cities have been working to assist Wichita Falls rebuild and, hopefully, have an early return to normalcy. Lone Star's automated computer system is designed to routinely handle our customer billing service program. For this reason persons who have damaged homes, apartments, offices or other buildings may receive payment notices, together with all our 1.1 million natural gas users in Texas. Should you receive a notice regarding your payments, defer your attention to this matter until a more convenient date.

We regret the suffering, personal deprivation and inconveniences causes by the unexpected disaster.

More ex-royalists executed in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Firing squads executed seven more of the shah's men today, including the general in charge of political prisoners at Tehran's Qasr Prison and the chief of air force counter-intelligence. In a renewal of tension, hundreds of anti-government demonstrators meanwhile assembled in a park and an estimated 1,000 Khomeini supporters marched through the capital.

The Islamic Revolutionary courts also sent five policemen to jail and freed one.

The latest deaths, announced by the state radio, raised to 116 the number of confirmed executions since the forces of Shiite Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ousted the last royal government of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi two months ago.

The Qasr Prison official was Gen. Bijan Yahyai, who was tried by a revolutionary court in the prison. In an emotion-packed trial, former prisoners and their relatives told of torture at the prison during the monarchy.

Yahyai was shot in the early morning along with the air force counter-intelligence chief, Gen. Hashem Berenjian, the radio said. Five of Yahyai's police colleagues drew jail terms of one and two years.

The radio said a policeman, an army sergeant and an army lieutenant were executed at 5:30 a.m. in the city of Khorramshah on charges of murder.

The pro-government demonstrators, shouting slogans and waving pictures of Khomeini, marched through downtown Tehran exhorting workers and farmers to support the Islamic Republic and to resist communist infiltration.

In the capital's National Park, several hundred protestors, organized by a group known as "The Republicans" who had supported shah-appointed Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, demonstrated against the Islamic Republic. The group was protected by Islamic militiamen before dispersing when counterdemonstrators set up a din by beating on bongo drums and shouting support for the republic.

Khomeini announced the Islamic Republic on April 1 after a two-day national referendum that showed wide public support for the religious government.

In Ahwaz, the former police chief, Maj. Hssein Torbatian, was executed on charges of putting down demonstrations in the nearby city of Behbahan and of being "corrupt to the core," the radio said.

Gas supplies to stay tight

NEW YORK (AP) — Petroleum industry sources say they are afraid the tight gasoline supplies of recent months may continue through the rest of this year.

The fears stem from continued high demand, despite efforts to encourage conservation, and the fact that gasoline inventories are running substantially below last year's levels.

"It's not precarious now, but how they'll get through the summer like that is hard to imagine," said Mark Emond, editor of the Lundberg Letter, a Los Angeles-based newsletter that covers the gasoline industry. "The problem with gasoline is getting through August."

According to the American Petroleum Institute, an industry group, the supply of gasoline last week was 235.5 million barrels, compared to 264.1 million barrels a year ago and down from 242.7 million barrels a week earlier.

The industry tries to build a large inventory of gasoline before the start of the peak summer driving season, and then uses gasoline from that inventory, plus newly made gas, to supply consumers during the summer.

The supply usually peaks about this time of year, but it hit 265 million barrels the week of Feb. 16 and has been declining since.

Industry spokesmen downplay comparisons with last year, saying supplies were unusually high. But even so, supplies ran short last year because of unexpectedly high consumption.

Gasoline price offenses probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department, citing unusually high selling prices in New York City, is conducting a nationwide investigation of possible illegal prices charged by wholesalers for crude oil or gasoline.

The department's Economic Regulatory Administration is focusing its inquiry on "spot market" sales, involving limited quantities of bulk crude oil or refined products available for immediate purchase on the open market.

The department urged dealers to "report any unusually high spot market prices or other suspected violations" of federal price regulations, in effect since 1973, which set maximum allowable prices for wholesalers and retailers.

The agency cited unofficial reports that in the New York metropolitan area, spot market prices for unleaded regular gasoline have risen more than 20 cents a gallon since last November.

If violations are suspected, the department said, the wholesalers involved will be referred to the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution.

"Opportunity for illegal price increases are especially great with the threat of possible supply shortages," said ERA Administrator David Bardin.

Bardin said illegal pricing could include increasing costs artificially by selling products through related companies in a so-called "daisy chain" operation. Any such illegal price hikes ultimately would mean higher retail costs for motorists or consumers of home heating oil.

Federal regulations set price ceilings on petroleum wholesalers and retailers based on what each was charging as of May 15, 1973.

CHILDREN OFTEN DRAG PARENTS ON A PELL MELL RUN ACROSS SIX FLAGS OVER TEXAS
...park officials say an orderly strategy is more likely to make the day memorable and productive

How to enjoy all of Six Flags

By LOUISE GREGG
Special Writer

Ways of enduring in a theme park such as Six Flags Over Texas are nothing to be taken lightly.

The Arlington amusement park attracts more than two million guests each year, and with dozens of breath-taking rides, scores of shows, souvenir shops, eateries and simulated cultural sites family pandemonium is sure to break out unless there's a battle plan for the day's visit.

To see as much as possible at Six Flags with a minimum of temper, tiredness and disappointment, authorities suggest guidelines. Get "psyched down" for the event, they say. Relax! Try to forget that you left the butter out of the refrigerator and the back door unlocked.

When you enter the park, limit the number of "don'ts" you tick off to youngsters in your party. Parks are places for "dos," and millions of dollars have been spent to assure children a day of fun they won't forget. They will especially enjoy the new 200-puppet show, which features Liza Minelli's voice and two singing cows.

Picking a day to visit the park should not be done like drawing for a lottery. Saturdays are always crowded, especially in April and May when school groups take trips. Sundays are good but better yet are Wednesdays and Thursdays in the summer.

The day before a holiday is often crowded, whereas the holiday itself sees only moderate attendance. Theme parks are most crowded between 1-5 p.m. After dark, parks exude a more relaxed atmosphere and lines for rides are shorter. The twinkling of myriad lights, the cooler breeze give to the park a magic touch not felt during the day.

Dress for Six Flags should be casual. Promoters stress comfort (especially shoes) and modesty. A delicate balance between too little and too much is recommended. Promoters stress that Six Flags caters to families and young children and what might be nifty on the Riviera could be offensive to some.

Handicapped guests of the amusement park find facilities excellent. A wheelchair ramp has been built to the entrance of the Southern Palace, where live shows are presented. There's a ramp at the front curb. Six designated restrooms have been equipped for wheelchair-bound guests.

For folks who have lost some of their boundless youthful energy, Six Flags has installed many more benches and shady rest areas for moments of rejuvenation. It's advisable that guests sit and rest as they drink cold soft drinks — avoid gulping refreshments on the run.

To lessen the crush of disgruntled humanity, the park has expanded eating areas to eliminate long waiting lines. Several streets have been widened to accommodate the flow of hungry guests.

If dogs and cats are brought to Six Flags, directors urge owners to be kind. Do not leave animals in stifling parked cars. Kennels are available for pets — and they're air-conditioned. For an entire day pets may be kept in comfortable quarters for 25 cents!

The biggest mistake of visitors is to "attack" the park like a kamikaze. Running pell mell from one ride to another soon exhausts energy and makes for confusion. Random strategy also defeats the purpose — many shows, rides and desirable sights are missed. A souvenir map — free — allows you to chart an itinerary so there'll be no criss-crossing. You can plot a path where you'll see and do most everything without re-tracing footsteps.

To avoid panic, groups should arrange a meeting place in case someone, especially a small child, gets lost, separated from his party. Make it a place easy to find but not the park entrance mall. That spot is always crowded.

Hours to visit Six Flags are variable. Generally the park is open 10 a.m. to 0 p.m. weekends until its daily opening May 19-Sept. 3. During most of the summer it remains open until midnight. Parking space is adequate and advance entrance tickets to the park are advisable. For more information call 461-1200 in Arlington.

Chisholm Trail Days celebrated in Cowtown

Chisholm Trail Days will be celebrated Thursday through April 22 at Fort Worth's Stockyards and Will Rogers Coliseum. Activities will coincide with the Copenhagen-Skoal Rodeo Superstars Championship Rodeo at the Coliseum.

From 7-10 p.m. Thursday, a free public square dance will be held on the parking lot between N. Main Street and the old Cook's Discount Store.

Riders in the Chisholm Trail Ride will depart at 8 a.m. April 20 from Lake Country Estates. They will arrive in the Stockyards at 11 a.m. for lunch and depart the park at 1 p.m. Others may join the ride as they proceed towards the river.

Cowboys will highlight livestock (horses and bulls) that will be sold at 10 a.m. April 20 in Cowtown Coliseum.

A Senior Citizens Fair will be held 9 a.m. to p.m. April 21, at Barn A on Mule Alley in the Stockyards.

From 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. that same day at Cowtown Coliseum an Old Time Fiddlers Competition will be held. First prize is $2,000.

From 2-5 p.m. April 21 on E. Exhange Avenue, square dancers will perform. Concessions and a shoppers' bazaar will be featured and a street dance will begin at 9 p.m.

At 11 a.m. April 22, the fiddlers contest will resume and the Senior Citizens Fair will be back from 1-6 p.m. Final event will be a Longhorn steer auction at 3 p.m.

Will Rogers —

Tour is set

An Azalea and Will Rogers Attractions Tour is scheduled for April 22, departing at 7 a.m. from the Will Rogers Building in the State Capitol Complex in Oklahoma City. The tour is sponsored by Oklahoma Tourism and Recreation Department in cooperation with Plaid Line Tours, Inc., of Oklahoma City.

The one-day tour will stop in Muskogee's Honor Heights Park for two hours so visitors may view the world famous azaleas. Buses will then travel to Claremore to the Will Rogers Museum. Will Rogers, Oklahoma humorist, is buried here and the museum exhibits many of his trophies, keepsakes, personal effects, saddles, ropes and manuscripts. Dinner for travelers will be at Will Rogers Hotel.

Nearby Oologah is next on the itenerary. This is the town where Rogers was born and visitors may see his old homeplace, furnished much as it was when he lived there with his parents and brothers and sisters.

Following an afternoon rest and coffee stop, buses will return to Oklahoma City, arriving 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for the tour must be in by April 18. Information by contacting Plaid Line Tours, Inc., Seven Santa Fe Plaza, Oklahoma City, Okla. 73102 or call (405) 521-2406.

Traveling museum moving through state

Oklahoma humorist Will Rogers will be honored by a traveling museum which contains more than 100 photos of the folksy, down-to-earth philosopher who became a politician at large during the 1920s and '30s.

The occasion is Will Rogers' 100th birthday, and the 42-foot "Museum on Wheels" is one of Oklahoma's Will Rogers Centennial projects.

"We are going to try to visit every county in the state at least once during the year, including the Panhandle," says Al Turner, director of Oklahoma Museum Association. The mobile museum is funded by the association and the Oklahoma Humanities Committee. The tractor truck used to pull the museum was donated by Tom Inman Trucking Co. of Tulsa.

Momentos of Rogers include items pertaining to his Wild West shows, vaudeville, motion pictures and politics. His ancestry and early life in Oklahoma will be depicted. A painting by Charles Banks Wilson commissioned by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for use on its 1979 directory covers will be on display along with Rogers' rope that he used in vaudeville plus a film and discussion group.

Museum on Wheels schedule for April: Five Civilized Tribes Museum, Muskogee through Thursday; Guthrie, April21-22; Davis, 23; Sulphur, 24; Coalgate, 25; Atoka, 26; Tishomingo, 27; Ardmore, 28-29; Marietta, 30.

May schedule: Chelsea, 2-3; Oologah, 4-6; Collinsville, 7; Pryor, 8; Tulsa, 10-11; Vinita, 14-16; Miami, 17; Nowata, 18-19; Durant, 23-24; Lake Murray State Lodge, 25-29; Hugo, 31.

June schedule: Hugo, 1; Idabel and Broken Bow, 2-3; Wilburton, 5; Poteau, 6-7; Western Hills, 9-15; Lake Texhoma State Lodge, 18-24; Arrowhead State Lodge, 25-30.

Communities wishing to participate in the Will Rogers Centennial by having the mobile museum visit their towns should contact Al Turner, Oklahoma Museum Association, Box 1321, Guthrie, Okla. 73044.

Disaster workers were 'in the blind' for days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear technicians and officials groped through the crisis at Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island atomic powerplant "in the blind" for days, uncertain exactly what was wrong or what to do about it, transcripts of their meetings reveal.

The transcripts of tape-recorded meetings, filling more than 700 pages, were made public Thursday.

Two full days after the accident began March 28, Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie complained, "I don't have the impression that they have a good grip on it. We are operating totally in the blind."

Then, referring to requests from Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh for advice about the possibility of a mass evacuation, Hendrie went on: "His information is ambiguous. Mine is nonexistent, and — I don't know — it's like a couple of blind men staggering around, making decisions."

The five-member NRC met with staff members daily to follow developments in the Three Mile Island incident, which they have called the most serious accident in the history of commercial nuclear powerplants in this country.

The transcripts reveal no major information which was not quickly reported to the public at the time, but they convey vividly the worry and frustration of the officials as they tried to make sense out of fragments of information about a kind of accident they had never imagined.

On March 31, Hendrie said it would be "several days out into the next week" before hydrogen gas in the reactor could become flammable and another week before the hydrogen could become explosive.

The transcript from April 1 shows that while President Carter was visiting the crippled facility, NRC officials were still assessing various turns the situation might take — including a hydrogen explosion — and various reponses to ensure the safety of persons in the area — including an evacuation.

Discussing the possibility of a hydrogen expolsion, Dudley Thompson, an NRC official, said, "Right now we believe it takes 5 percent of oxygen to become flammable; 11 percent to be a detonation mixture. Right now we think we've got 5 percent. ... But so, for all practical purposes, we've got to assume the mixture is flammable, but I don't think anybody is assuming right now that he thinks it's an explosive mixture."

The discussion then turned to other topics and NRC Commissioner Richard T. Kennedy remarked, "Meanwhile, I'm going to check to see if the president is arriving at the (reactor) site."

There were no suggestions that the hydrogen posed any danger to the president.

In a meeting March 31, Roger J. Mattson, NRC director of systems safety, told the commissioners bluntly: "No plant has ever been in this condition, no plant has ever been tested in this condition, no plant has ever been analyzed in this condition in the history of this program. ..."

Mattson was one of at least three staff members who, on March 30, were urging a precautionary evacuation of the area downwind from Three Mile Island, some 10 miles south of Harrisburg, Pa.

But the commission did not recommend it, partly because the wind was shifting erratically and nobody could be sure which way "downwind" would be when people moved out.

By March 31 Mattson had gained more confidence that the reactor could be controlled, and he changed his mind about evacuation.

The transcripts show that NRC officials also complained that plant operators and the plant builders, Babcock and Wilcox, were slow to recognize how seriously their reactor was damaged and to relay important information to the NRC.

Mattson said on March 30 the reactor core was severely damaged and might even have suffered some fuel melting. But the NRC had trouble convincing Babcock and Wilcox representatives of that severity until some 40 hours after the accident, he said.

Heat sensors in the reactor showed high readings that hinted at core damage, he said, but the sensors were suspected of being wrong.

Mattson said an apparent hydrogen explosion in the reactor building about ten hours after the accident began March 28 was not reported to the NRC until March 30. The presence of hydrogen should have been a tip-off to core damage, he pointed out.

"That would have given us a clue hours ago that the thermocouples (heat sensors) were right and we had a partially disassembled core," the transcripts quote Mattson as saying.

Citing other reactor accidents, apparently in non-commercial or foreign facilities, Mattson said, "It's too little information too late unfortunately, and it's the same way every partial core meltdown has gone.

"People haven't believed the instruments as they went along. It took us until midnight last night to convince anybody that those ... temperature measurements meant something. By four o'clock this morning Babcock and Wilcox agreed."

Complicating the problem was the discovery in the reactor vessel of a large hydrogen bubble which threatened to block the vital flow of cooling water.

That could have caused overheating and pssibly a melt-down of the reactor core, releasing large amounts of radioactivity.

But nobody was sure how the bubble could be removed, and to make matters worse there was concern that oxygen might slowly join the hydrogen to form a potentially explosive mixture.

And he added that "this core isn't in any great shape to be rattled at the moment." ving at the (reactor) site." On the subject of an evacuation, one official described the response to "the worst kind of situation" as "a 360-degree evacuation ranging anywhere from 10 to 20 miles from the site of the plant."

TI increases National merger offer

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas International Airlines has increased its merger offer to National Airlines in its attempt to gain control of the carrier.

A Texas International spokesman said Thursday the new offer consists of $15 cash and $35 principal amount of an 11¾ per cent senior sinking fund debenture due in 1989 in exchange for each share of National stock it does not currently own.

Texas International earlier offered $8 cash, for one share of TI common stock and $30 principal amount of an 11¼ per cent senior sinking fund debenture due 1989.

TI now owns 2.1 million shares of National stock, which is about 24½ per cent of the total outstanding. Pan American Airline, also seeking control of National, owns about 24 per cent.

Last week, a Civil Aeronautics Board administrative law judge recommended that the full board reject Pan Am and TI attempts to merge. Both airlines said they planned to move ahead.

Two states defy anti-inflation effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-eight states and 35 large cities are agreeing to comply with the nation's anti-inflation program, the Council on Wage and Price Stability says.

But the states of Maryland and Louisiana and the cities of Cincinnati and San Diego have not yet come aboard, the council said Thursday. Officials in those two local governments indicated they may not.

The guidelines for state and local governments are the same as for businesses and unions — employee wage increases of no more than 7 percent this year and prices held a half a percentage point below the average of the last two years.

All local governments have been asked to comply, but the council late last year asked the states and those cities and counties with 5,000 employees or more to promise that compliance in writing.

In Louisiana, Jane Laborde, press secretary for Gov. Edwin Edwards, said "he is not planning to comply with the guidelines."

In fact, she said, Edwards will continue to champion a 10 percent pay raise for the state's civil servants, teachers and retired people, despite criticism from the council. The state Civil Service Commission has approved the action, Ms. Laborde said, and the Legislature takes the matter up next week.

Edwards wrote the council last month that he was pressing for wages beyond the guidelines because the state has a surplus of money and its employees' buying power is being eroded by inflation.

Maryland, meanwhile, has asked for an extension while it considers a council ruling on how the wage guideline applies to so-called step increases in employee pay scales, said council spokesman Joseph Carter.

The cities had other reasons for not pledging compliance, and both involved paperwork.

Otto Bos, press aide to San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, insisted that "we have taken steps we think are frugal and cost conscious" in the wake of California's tax-cutting Proposition 13 vote last year.

Davis murder trial headed to birthplace

HOUSTON (AP) — The murder-for-hire trial of Cullen Davis is headed back to Fort Worth, the place of its birth, sent there by a frustrated state district judge in Houston tired of hassling with it.

Despite prosecution objections, District Judge Wallace "Pete" Moore returned the case Thursday to the Tarrant County presiding judge, who will have the jurisdiction to try it or move it somewhere else.

Moore had tried to grant the defense request to move the case out of Harris County due to the large amount of publicity received by the first three-month trial, which ended in January with the jury deadlocked at 8-4 for conviction.

But judges in Austin and El Paso wouldn't take it, citing time and space restrictions. District Judge George Hamilton in Corpus Christi agreed to preside in the case, but attorneys for both sides ruled it out.

"That judicial district has had three cases of notoriety moved there in recent months, and we felt that adding this one would overload the system," said Jack Strickland, assistant district attorney in Tarrant County.

During a hearing before Moore Thursday, he introduced as evidence the county's voter list of almost 1 million people, saying the court should be able to find at least 12 unbiased jurors among them to hear the case.

To buttress his argument, Strickland called as a witness Tom Moran of the Houston Chronicle, a reporter who covered the trial.

"I think the state and Mr. Davis could receive as fair a trial here as anywhere else in the state," Moran said.

Just another television coincidence?

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's no shock when two or more networks come up with programs that are similar, sometimes very, very similar.

It is unusual, though, to find high quality in each of the like products. Remember the three networks' versions of "Animal House"? None was exactly art. CBS yanked its copy after a solitary showing. NBC's just bit the dust, and ABC's version isn't carrying the network.

But here's a new twist in the art of creative coincidence — a pair of look-alikes that are good, each packing its own share of inspiration and integrity, in spite of sharing a unique theme.

A few weeks ago, CBS aired a TV movie called "No Other Love," a story about a marginally retarded couple who fell in love and wanted to get married. They fought the objections of family and friends, and overcame.

Tonight, ABC offers a story about a young retarded couple who fall in love, want to get married, then overcome the objections of family and friends. The appearance of both movies in a period of just a few weeks has prompted cries of "Ripoff!" and "Can't Hollywood ever do something original?"

CBS' movie chief, William Self, says that the CBS property was in existence for several years, even before Lee got started on hers. "My impression," he said, "is that she didn't rip us off, and we certainly didn't rip her off. It's just one of those things."

Miss Lee doesn't plan any legal action, she says, "Because 20th Century-Fox (the television division made "Normal People") made the corporate decision not to get involved in a suit against CBS," one of 20th Century's good clients.

Miss Lee says she's afraid that viewers will read about her movie and say to themselves, "I've seen that, I don't need to see that again." Maybe. But if they do watch, they'll find it a nice little experience.

As I say, "Like Normal People" is based on a true story, that of the poetic Roger Meyers and his wife, Virginia. They meet in a progressive home for retarded adults, but one of the founders of the place doesn't seem so progressive when Roger and Virginia decide to marry.

He threatens to throw them out of the project, and is generally obnoxious. "Any talk of marriage between retarded people is a social obscenity," he screams.

Our hero, a right thinking counseler, discovers the old man has a severely retarded child and is afraid of the prospect of a retarded couple producing more handicapped children.

The conflict is resolved when Roger and Virginia are conveniently led to see the light. The counselor (Zalman King) convinces Roger that having babies isn't as easy as it looks on TV, Roger agrees, and a suitable operation is performed.

It's good stuff — touching, warm, and all that, even if some of its thunder was muffled by the earlier CBS movie. I recommend this, even if you saw the other one. After all, there's not enough good television around to waste any.

27—Help Wanted Male-Female

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY

We are looking for an individual to supervise the sales, service and collections of our newspaper.

WE OFFER THESE BENEFITS:

1. We pay for using your car on the job
2. Family hospitalization Plan
3. Paid Vacation
4. Paid life insurance
5. Retirement program
6. Stock Purchasing plan

Here is the type person we are looking for — if you qualify, come in to see us.

1. Good driving record.
2. A mind for detail and thoroughness.
3. A sincere interest in creating good customer relations.
4. An interest in training boys to be successful.
5. Determination to complete projects that you start.

You don't need to bring us a world of experience — if you bring the right attitude, we will train you in the right methods to be successful.

DUTIES INCLUDE:

1. Working with Times and Record News carrier boys.
2. After a training period, you would be assigned to a specific geographical area.
3. Be responsible for the good service, proper collections, sales calls on non-readers and good customer relations in your assigned area.
4. Regular contact with parents of your carrier boys.

Please apply in person Monday through Friday, 8 to 5 p.m. Times Publishing Company, 1301 Lamar, Personnel Department.

Doctor contends having sex not a memorable experience

BOSTON (AP) — Having sex can cause a temporary but bewildering loss of memory, a New York doctor reports.

Argentine newsman dies in ambush

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Gunmen killed an Argentine television journalist today in an automobile ambush near his downtown studio, police reported.

Ruben Valdez, 37, was the 37th journalist slain in Argentina since political violence erupted in the mid 1970s. Sixty-one other reporters have disappeared, according to relatives.

Jurors do jail time

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — The jury and attorneys for both sides in an Ellis County escape trial accidentally locked themselves in a jail cell and had to spend 20 minutes trying to figure out how to escape. The jury later found the defendant innocent.

The 12 jurors were taken to the jail to inspect it. The county attorney, defense attorney and two jailers joined the jurors in a jail cell and shut the door behind them. That's when they realized no one had the key.

For the next 20 minutes, they beat on the floor of the cell, hoping someone in the law enforcement center below would come to their aid, said county attorney Ken Weltz.

Inmates in adjacent cells beat on the floors, too, and gave the deputy sheriff suggestions on the art of jailbreaking. One prisoner, who had escaped from the jail twice before, suggested pulling the fire alarm, but the trapped officials didn't like that idea.

Later in the day, the jury found Thomas Weigel innocent of attempted escape from the jail Jan. 18. Weigel faces trial April 23 on charges of robbing the Nekoma State Bank in January.

Base conditions to be monitored

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A congressional subcommittee will monitor conditions at Tinker Air Force Base and hold on-site hearings if necessary to make sure the Air Force keeps its promise to safeguard the health of employees, House civil service investigation subcommittee Chairman Rep. James Hanley, D-NY, said.

Hanley said conditions at Hill Air Force Base, Utah, one of six air logistics centers, have improved since his subcommittee studied health problems allegedly caused by toxic chemicals. His remarks were reported by the Washington Bureau of the Daily Oklahoman.

Hanley said, "I have every reason to believe" conditions will improve at other logistics centers including Tinker, which uses similiar chemicals.

But the subcommittee plans to watch closely and to probe what type of safety program Tinker has, "to make sure that they're not just window dressing it," Hanley said.

Tinker Air Force Base employess have also complained of such symptons after being exposed to toxic chemicals and fumes.

Among the chemicals used were trichloroethylene and chloroform.

Air Force officials have said if workers wear protective equipment they will not receive chemical exposures higher than those now considered safe.

GM plans layoffs

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — General Motors will lay off 600 production workers at its Harrison Radiator Division plant at Lockport, N.Y., for one week beginning Monday.

A GM spokesman said it was a delayed reaction to the nationwide trucking strike and lockout in which a tentative agreement has now been reached.

Meanwhile, 500 workers who had been on short shifts for three days at GM's Chevrolet axle plant in Buffalo were put back on full eight-hour shifts.

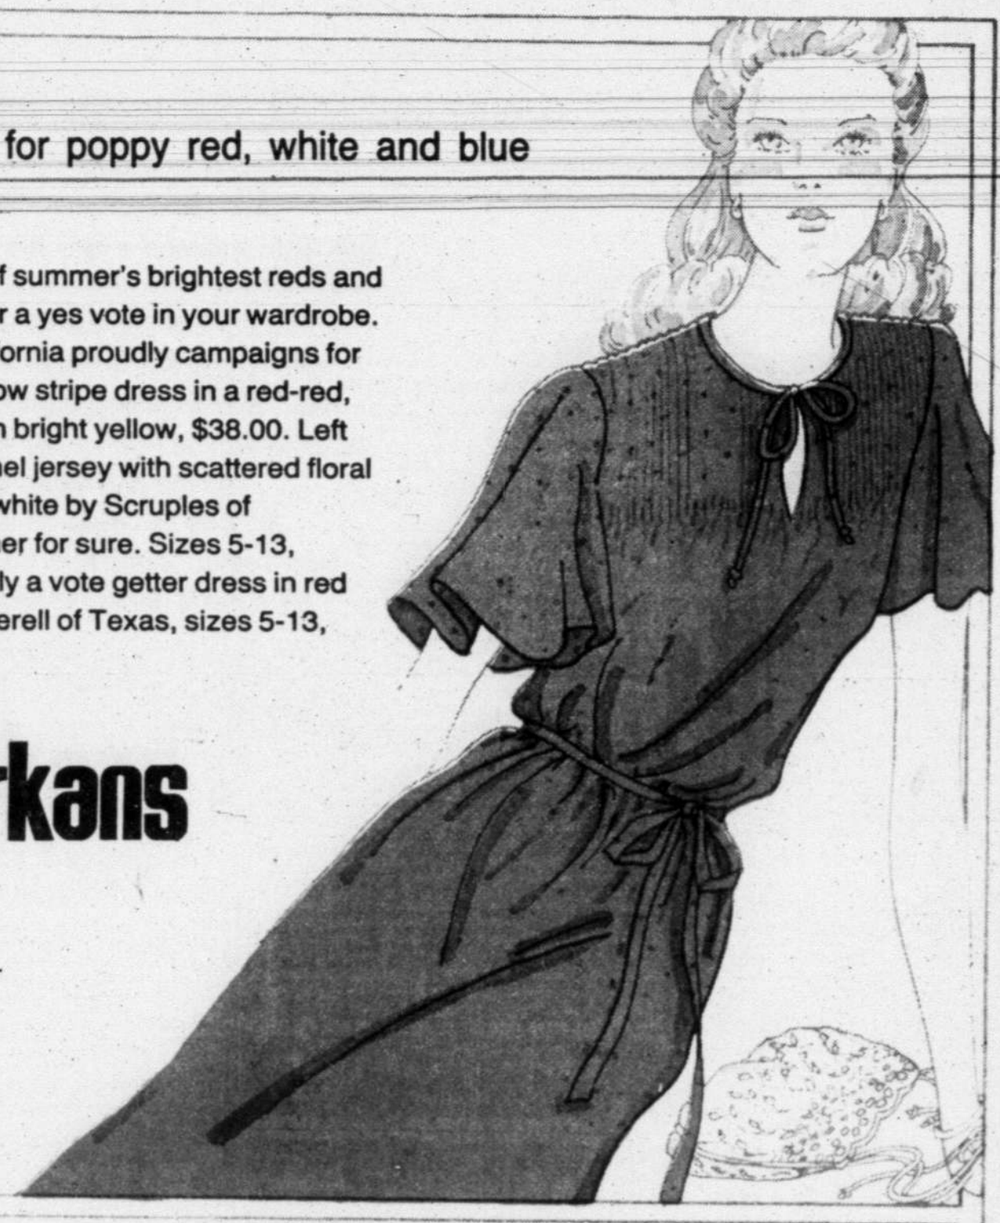

At the Ford stamping plant near Buffalo, 3,000 workers were off the job until Monday. Ford had previously announced that the workers would be laid off because of the truck strike for one day, Thursday. They also will be off for Good Friday and the Easter Weekend.
