Girl Jailed In Robbery On Highway

Sheriff Cal Rose returned to Pampa at 9 o'clock last night from Odessa, where he took custody of a 15-year-old girl charged in alleged connection with a series of robberies at Alamo, Clarendon and Spearman during the past month.

No hearing had been held up to noon today.

Four men, Carlyle Shelton and Hubert Cisco, both of Skellytown, Frank Aree and Ray Reames, both of White Deer, were charged Wednesday with robbery with firearms. Reames has been charged in alleged connection with the robbery of four Okla. motorists on the Will Rogers highway east of Alamo on the night of November 16.

Bonds of the men were set at $3,500 each in a hearing yesterday before Justice of the Peace E. F. Young, according to information of the sheriff's office.

Arrest of both Aree and Reames, Sheriff Rose said today, was made by Texas Highway Patrolman Sergeant R. H. Kelly of Amarillo, in White Deer Tuesday evening, while Constable Lynn Wall of Skellytown made the arrest of Cisco on Monday night in Skellytown, and the arrest of Carlyle Shelton at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning in Skellytown.

After the arrest of Aree and Reames, Sheriff Rose said that a search of Aree's garage revealed a quantity of motor oil, a flashlight, and a sackful of sparkplugs, allegedly taken in the Spearman filling station robbery.

Sheriff Checks on Car
Last Sunday night while on the way to Amarillo to take custody of some negroes wanted here on theft charges, Sheriff Rose said he passed Frank Aree driving his car near Kingsmill. The sheriff slowed down, allowed Aree to pass him, in order to check the license number, then stopped and talked to Aree.

The license tag of a car that had a tail light out 11 miles north of Wellington on the night of November 4 was noted by Texas Highway Patrolman J. L. Pingent, Jr., who stopped the car and warned the driver of the defective light.

At the time the patrolman was keeping a check for stolen cars, and it was thought the car halted might have been a stolen vehicle, Sheriff Rose said.

This occurred on the same night before a filling station robbery occurred in Clarendon.

Pingent notified Sergeant Kelly in Amarillo of the license plate.

Sheriff T. B. Harris of Panhandle was in Pampa Tuesday Sheriff Rose said, and they discussed the case here.

England Confident Of Mine Defense

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—Word has been received in authoritative quarters here that the British navy is confident that means of defense can be devised for a new German mine which some experts consider the most formidable new weapon of the European war.

A well-authenticated report said that the mine, blamed for heavy shipping losses recently, could be exploded by sound waves as well as magnetic force. British hopes of developing a defense were said to be based on this discovery.

Several of the mines were recovered unexploded. They were reported to rest on the sea bottom, rather than to drift or remain attached to cables regulating their distance beneath the surface.

Old And New Toys Will Be Accepted

Toys, both old and new, will be accepted from children 12 years and younger, for admission to the annual toy matinee to be held from 1 to 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the LaNora theater. New toys, however, are especially desired.

A fire truck will be driven to the LaNora theater to collect the toys and take them to the fire station, where firemen are repairing old toys in preparation for their distribution at the Community Christmas tree, to be held December 23.

Dan Kennedy is chairman of the Legion committee, for the toy show, which is sponsored by the theater and the local post of the American Legion. The American Red Cross is sponsoring the Christmas tree, with the Legion as co-sponsor.

Shooting Motive An Official Secret

PORT COLLINS, Colo., Dec. 1 (AP)—A co-ed's motive for shooting and critically wounding tall, blond Walter (Bud) Lyons, her football player sweetheart, was kept an official secret today by Deputy District Attorney Winton M. Ault.

Ault indicated that pending the outcome of Lyons' condition, he would not discuss the story of the shooting told him by Lois Jeanne Vannorsdel, 19-year-old sophomore at Colorado State College, in whose apartment Lyons was injured late Wednesday.

His powerful physique is aiding the 21-year-old, 185-pound, 6-foot 4-inch fullback on the Aggie team in his fight to recover from a bullet wound that punctured his left lung.

The deputy district attorney said Miss Vannorsdel's romance with Lyons had reached "the parting of the way."

Miss Vannorsdel is held in technical custody at the same hospital where Lyons is a patient.

FDR Says Invasion A 'Profound Shock'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt declared today that Russia's invasion of Finland was a "profound shock" to the United States and jeopardized "the rights of mankind to self government."

In a formal statement read to a press conference, the chief executive said all peace-loving peoples would "unanimously condemn this new resort to military force as the arbiter of international differences."

The president's statement in part follows:

First Witness Testifies In Mayor's Trial

Union Manager Accuses Maverick In Testimony

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 1 (AP)—A jury trying Mayor Maury Maverick on the first of several charges that he paid poll taxes for members of a garment workers' union was told by a prosecution witness today that $250 "in silver half dollars was delivered to the union headquarters, here by Maverick campaign workers."

The witness was Miss Rebecca Taylor, head of the San Antonio unit of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, a CIO affiliate. She said the money was delivered only three days before the February 1 deadline for paying poll taxes but she did not know that any of it was used for that purpose.

Miss Taylor previously had told of a luncheon at which she said she and Maverick discussed the need for members of the union to purchase their poll taxes. Shortly after the luncheon, she continued, Maverick telephoned David Dubinsky of New York, international president of the union, and asked for a campaign contribution.

By HARRELL E. LEE

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 1 (AP)—Testimony that Mayor Maury Maverick suggested to officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers union here that the organization assist its members in the payment of poll taxes was given today by Miss Rebecca Taylor, local manager of the union.

Miss Taylor was the first prosecution witness in the trial of Maverick, former Democratic Congressman, on a felony charge of paying the poll tax of another for the last city election.

Every seat in the small courtroom was occupied and the aisles and back wall were lined with people. Maverick arose from his seat and personally entered a plea of innocent to the charge.

Miss Taylor told the jury of a luncheon at which she said she and Maverick discussed the financial inability of many members of the union to buy their poll taxes. Shortly after the luncheon the witness continued, Maverick telephoned David Dubinsky of New York, international president of the union, and asked for a campaign contribution.

The prosecution contends that money received from international headquarters of the union was used to purchase poll taxes.

Germany Claims 194 Ships In All Sunk

BERLIN, Dec. 1 (AP)—D.N.B., official German news agency, reported today that from the beginning of the war to Nov. 28, 194 vessels, totaling 735,768 tons—both allied and neutral—headed for Great Britain, had been sunk by German submarines or mines.

D.N.B. said the sinking of 162 ships—52 of the neutral—totaling 639,689 tons was confirmed by German reports.

Non-German sources, the agency said, disclosed an additional 32 ships of 96,079 tons total, half of them neutral, representing 39,321 tons.

The statement listed 150,867 tons of shipping at tankers and said the average was 7,500 tons per ship—in other words, about 20 tankers.

Mrs. FDR Again Visits Dies Hearing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today made her third visit to the Dies committee to hear testimony by leaders of American Youth organizations.

The first lady said she joined the committee spectators again, especially to hear Joseph Lash, executive secretary of the American Students Union.

"I thought I'd like to hear what he had to say," Mrs. Roosevelt smiled to newsmen as she took her seat among a group of young men and women on the front row.

She showed up at the hearing in the house office building for the first time yesterday morning and returned again in the afternoon when the American Youth Congress had its hearing.

Asked today how she thought the Youth Congress leaders had acquitted themselves, Mrs. Roosevelt thought for a second and then said:

"Well, don't you think I'd better leave that to your judgment rather than mine?"

Whittenburg Sues For Estate Taxes

DALLAS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Suit was filed in United States court here yesterday against W. A. Thomas, collector of internal revenue, for $215,307.11 estate taxes which the executors of the estate of George A. Whittenburg, Hutchinson county, claimed was overpaid.

Wallace In Favor Of New Processing Tax

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 1 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, in an address widely awaited for a possible hint to new administration relief plans, threw out the suggestion today that a continuing source of revenue might be found in a "modern version of the processing tax."

In a speech prepared for delivery before a municipal auditorium audience that included many farmers and was broadcast over a National Farm Network (NBC), the cabinet member said there is "no doubt these (farm benefit) payments are needed."

He added that need for federal funds for national defense and other growing demands on the treasury left it "only common sense to make the farm program self-financing wherever that is possible."

The old processing tax (invalidated by the Supreme Court) was the farmers' tariff, the secretary said. "The producers need a modern, streamlined version of that tax back again."

Among the plans under discussion is the so-called certificate plan. It is a modern version of the processing tax. Under this proposal farmers would get production certificates. Processors of cotton, for example, would be required to buy these certificates in order to sell their goods. The certificates would be equal in value to a certain number of cents per pound or bushel.

The growers would sell their certificates to the processor, either directly or in a pool.

The cabinet member said they were "obvious advantages to such a plan."

"For one thing, it might be possible for the producer to cash his certificate at the time he sold his crop. One of the complaints against the present program is the length of a time a grower has to wait for his check. And the certificate plan would not require funds from the treasury."

Taking up arguments against the processing tax, the speaker said the "overwhelming majority of consumers want farmers to get fair prices. x x x Moderate taxes on the processing of cotton, wheat and rice, for example, would add little to the cost of the finished product."

The secretary said he was not going to discuss the certificate plan in detail but declared "we want to work out a program that will be fair to all commodities."

"Every proposal should be carefully examined, x x x But I feel it is essential that the farmers should—as quickly as possible—get behind

'Store' For Christmas Shoppers Sells Nothing But Sells Men

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1 (AP)—A "store" that sells nothing—slickest service ever offered harassed Christmas shoppers—was boomed by the men about town today as a step toward utopia.

If you are allergic to holiday crowds your worries are over.

This unusual "store"—appropriately named Musée De Noel—is a museum of helpful hints that virtually brings the old family catalogue to life.

It's an exhibit extraordinary combining the best features of a smart rendezvous, specialty shop and department store. Really there are 41 stores rolled into one.

Strictly speaking, it is a woman's paradise but Thursday evenings are reserved for the men—by invitation only.

The first of these unique "for men only" parties was held last night. Several hundred guests dropped in after office hours to sip cocktails while pretty "clerk" with flawless good taste suggested the right gift for anyone from Grandma to the girl friend's nosy little brother.

It's one of the neatest merchandising stunts ever sprung on the holiday spender and the men fell for it.

Customers can't buy anything. They just go in and look over the collecting of 551 potential small gifts ranging from fur-trimmed spats to streamlined can opener.

Each article was picked impartially for its merit from some leading store. It is numbered and marked with the price and name of the place that sells it. Visitors are given pencils and cards on which to jot down the number of their selections.

Then orders may be telephoned from home or the purchases made in a third of the usual time.

If you are wondering where the promoters are cut in—each store pays a fee for an article for the privilege of exhibiting.

Helsinki Ablaze With New Fires

HELSINKI, Dec. 1 (AP)—Finnish defense batteries at the strategic port of Hangoe, in southwestern Finland, were reported to have sunk an attacking Russian warship today.

HELSINKI, Dec. 1 (6:55 a. m., CST)—(AP)—Russia's armed forces struck against Finland with renewed fury today in operations extending from the Arctic Ocean to the country's southwestern shore, adding aerial machine-gunning to their raids with explosive and incendiary bombs.

A large squadron of bombers roared down on Helsinki for the second successive day, machine-gunning the capital proper and its suburbs and setting the modern city ablaze with new fires.

Finnish reports said many of the raiders were shot down. Casualties in the city could not be estimated immediately. Fifty persons were officially listed as killed in yesterday's attacks on the capital alone.

A new government was formed to succeed that of Premier Aimo K. Cajander, which resigned early today even though it had a vote of confidence from an historic session of the parliament.

The composition of the new government was not announced immediately. Details were believed under consideration as President Kyoestti Kallio conferred with various party leaders.

Among the prominently mentioned candidates for the premiership were Valno Tanner, finance minister in the resigned cabinet and described as friendly to Russia, Juhuri Kusti Paasikivi, former premier experienced in Russian affairs and head of the Finnish delegation which recently has been conferring in Moscow over Russian demands, and Dr. Risto Ryti, governor of the Bank of Finland.

(Copenhagen reports said diplomats expected the new government would come to terms with Russia. The Finnish legation in London, however, said there was no question of a "surrender.")

The new attacks followed explanation of an ultimatum broadcast by the Moscow radio threatening annihilation of Helsinki unless an agreement was reached by 3 a. m. (7 p. m. Thursday, CST).

Russian forces were striking today at Finland's farthest northern outposts, at points along the 800-mile eastern frontier and along the southern seacoast around to the extreme southwest.

Near the middle of this front Soviet land forces had occupied territory north of Lake Ladoga and farther south had advanced on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad. (Moscow said this advance was from six to nearly 10 miles).

Warships Bombard
Russian warships were reported to have opened a heavy bombardment of the Russian fortress at Hangoe, on a strategic southwestern Finnish promontory 75 miles west of Helsinki and guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. (Russia had demanded Hangoe for a naval base.)

At the extreme northern tip of the Russian-Finnish border Russian warplanes were reported to have dropped troops by parachute and occupied Petsamo, principal town of Finland's narrow corridor to the Arctic ocean.

This meant that all but Finland's extreme west coast was under fire.

In the northern attacks the Russians were reported in dispatches from Kirkenes, just across the Norwegian frontier, to have machine-gunned refugees trying to cross the Norwegian frontier, and to have set several towns afire in new bombing raids. The Red fleet was reported blockading the Finnish coast in this section, with submarines bottling up merchant craft).

Russians Drop From Planes, Seize Port

KIRKENES, Norway, Dec. 1 (AP)—Russian troops dropped by parachutes from huge bombing planes were reported to have occupied Petsamo, Finland's chief port on the Arctic Ocean, today following bombing raids which left the port and another town in flames.

Violent fighting between the Finnish and Russian forces was reported.

Refugees said the Russians took the ancient monastery of Petengas, ten miles south of Petsamo, cutting off Finnish troops north of that point.

The whole town of Linihamari, in Finland's corridor to the Arctic near the Norwegian border, was in flames from repeated raids by Soviet bombing planes.

Warplanes also bombed Saint-Jorvi, which is just across the Pacific (Pacific) river from Kirkenes, apparently trying to stop refugees from crossing the frozen river into Norway.

Despite machine-gunning from low-flying warplanes, 600 refugees crossed the frontier.

Crowds of women and children were seen on roads leading to the border as Soviet planes roared overhead.

The air raids, during the brief hours of daylight inside the Arctic Circle, continued where they left off yesterday.

Linihamari is the Arctic Ocean terminus of Finland's Baltic-to-Arctic road, known as the "world's northernmost highway."

Finnish Invasion Blamed On Hitler

FORT WORTH, Dec. 1 (AP)—Editor Roosevelt lays Russia's invasion of Finland at the door of Adolf Hitler.

Speaking over the radio here last night, Roosevelt declared "this must be put down as another of Mr. Hitler's fine achievements, since it was he who opened the gates to Communism in Europe and invited the Reds to help themselves."

Roosevelt said that "while the world was still at peace, Mr. Stalin and his mob would not have dared move in and attack anybody."

Christmas Carols Through the Ages

COME, GOOD CHRISTIANS ALL
"Come, good Christians all, and join our caroling. Lift up your voice, give thanks to God and sing."

This French carol, popular with the peasant classes in the vineyard sections of the country, dates from 1483. As "Noel Nouvelet" it was mentioned as being popular in the 16th century by the French physician-philosopher Rabelais.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By ALICIA HART

"I have a lot to be thankful for every year—all the time, of course," writes a young married woman in Texas.

"But this Thanksgiving Day, I'm going to have something else to be thankful for. Something I haven't had in years."

"And that is," the letter continues, "good looks."

"How do I know that I'm going to be good-looking this Thanksgiving? Well, simply because I've decided that good looks are largely a matter of good grooming. I started following a good grooming routine last week and I'm sure that by Thanksgiving, my looks will be something to be thankful for. At least, that is, compared to my appearance a year ago, or even three weeks ago when I started analyzing myself."

The writer of this interesting letter then points out that her hair certainly will be better looking. Because she is brushing it every single night and doesn't intend to skip a day between now and Thanksgiving. Furthermore, once a week she massages hot olive oil into her scalp three hours before her appointment at the beauty shop. During the three hours, she says that the scalp seems to absorb quite a lot of the oil.

PLENTY OF SLEEP IS IMPORTANT. Her hair happens to be dry. If it were oily, she would no doubt use a special tonic for a pre-shampoo treatment instead of hot olive oil. In either case, nightly brushing would be important.

She washes her face with plenty of soap and water at night. Afterward, she pats on special night cream and leaves it on for half an hour, removing only the excess before going to bed. Two or three nights a week she sleeps with oil on eyelids and around eyes. More importantly, however, she gets at least eight hours sleep every night. She knows that no amount of oil or cream will eliminate fine lines and wrinkles around the eyes as quickly and effectively as a great deal of sleep and rest.

FDR Will Restrict Issues At Session

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt has indicated to confidantes, it was said on good authority today, that he intended to restrict as much as possible the controversial issues to be submitted at the next session of Congress.

Legislators who have talked recently with the president said they came away with the impression that Mr. Roosevelt hoped Congress would dispose of the regular appropriation bills, authorize an increase in national defense outlays, take care of relief needs and go home early.

This outline did not account, however, for three highly controversial questions—extension of the reciprocal trade treaty law beyond its June 12 expiration date, amendment of the Wagner labor relations act, and suggested special taxes for emergency defense expenditures. Recent statements of Secretary of State Hull have indicated to many analysts that the administration intended to make a vigorous fight for extension of its trade treaty program. Opposition is strong in the senate, where western members have been especially critical of the program, but opponents' strength remains untested in the house.

Kuhn In Jail As Bund Seeks Funds

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—The German-American Bund set out today under the leadership of a "fuehrer pro tem" to raise funds for an appeal for Fritz Kuhn, convicted of forgery and theft from the bund's treasury.

The jailed fuehrer still was in the saddle—in absentia—while National Vice-Leader G. Wilhelm Kunze moved ahead with plans to convince the law that Kuhn could not possibly have stolen from the funds because he controlled them absolutely. That's the bund's "leadership principle."

While Kuhn morosely contemplated the walls of his Tombs cell,

Finland Gets Sympathy But No Assistance

(By The Associated Press)
Finland got sympathy from most of the world today, but no concrete offer of assistance in her defense against the Soviet Russian invasion.

Germany and Japan notably kept aloof from the general outpouring of indignation at the Russian onslaught.

In the United States, President Roosevelt asked Russia and Finland to refrain from bombing defenseless civilians. Senator King (D., Utah) suggested withdrawal of the United States' recognition of Russia.

Germany was officially silent, but authorized sources in Berlin said the Nazi regime which divided Poland with the Soviet was "sympathetic to Russia" and had "an understanding of Russia's desire to protect Leningrad."

Japan kept silent, both officially and in her press.

"It is too far away," said Yakichiro Suma, the Japanese foreign office spokesman.

The Italian press made barbed reference to "brutal pressure" by Russia on Finland, thus signifying a difference of opinion with Italy's axis partner, Germany.

The Scandinavian countries, apprehensive of the violence so near their borders, maintained official neutrality.

From Spain came words of sympathy for the Finns. The Madrid newspaper, ABC, called Russia the "brutal, cynical neighbor" of Finland.

Javelinas, Buffs Tie

KINGSVILLE, Dec. 1 (AP)—Texas A. and I. and West Texas State shared the Alamo conference football championship today.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie here yesterday. Both had been undefeated in conference play.

The wobble of the earth's axis is called the "precession." It is caused by an uneven gravitational pull of the sun on the earth. This would not occur if the earth were exactly globular.

awaiting his day of sentencing, Kunze, a tall former Philadelphian, made it plain he had no immediate intention of claiming the leadership to which Kuhn had named him successor.

Men Of Science

We're all familiar with men of science, working patiently in shiny laboratories in the never-ending war against disease, plague and famine. The achievements of these men have been celebrated—in the drama, in fiction, and in history.

We're not so familiar with the work of another kind of "scientist"—a worker who battles other enemies of mankind. That worker is the business man. And his fight is against unemployment, depression and a long list of economic ills that plague a people.

The banker makes an excellent case in point. We don't often think of him in the role of scientist or research specialist. But, if he is a good banker, he must be as keen and analytical in his field as the chemist is in his. His laboratory is his community. His patients are those individuals and industries which depend on banking to provide the financial corpuscles which keep the economic blood stream flowing healthily. Like doctor or laboratory technician, he too works for a fuller, happier life for his town, his state and his country. He must have the gift of foresight—the power of calm and cool reasoning. His is a vast and inescapable responsibility—to the area he serves, and to the thousands of people who own the money which is entrusted to his care.

The banker, or any other business man, may fail to achieve his ambitions. So may some individual scientist fail. But in the final summing up, individual failures are submerged in the tide of progress. Slowly and tortuously, through trial and error, the war against disease wins on many fronts. And, in spite of occasional setbacks, so does the war against unemployment and human want and despair. We would do well to think less of depression these days, and more of the immense advancement that has been made in bettering the life of the average person. And never forget that this progress, like most signal scientific progress, was made under a system of free enterprise which permits free men and free women to work out their destinies to the limit of the capabilities.

The Nation's Press

THEY ASKED FOR IT
(Chicago Tribune)

Great Britain, which has been for many years a heavy purchaser of fruits in this country, is now out of our markets by orders issued in London. Thanks to the repeal of the arms embargo, Great Britain's purchasing power in America is being directed into war materials. The British intend to use the United States as an arsenal and to buy agricultural products, so far as possible, in the colonies and dominions. In consequence, American orchardists already have lost 17 million dollars in export business, other farmers face similar losses, and huge surpluses of fruits are being piled up in this country.

This effect of the repeal was foreseeable and was foreseen. Readers of The Tribune may recall an editorial published in this newspaper on Sept. 18, fairly early in the discussion of the neutrality bill. If the embargo is repealed, we said at that time, "the allies will have to buy their dollars with the greatest care to obtain the maximum of military value for them. Accordingly, it seems probable that if the embargo is repealed the allies will buy their staples, so far as possible, from the dominions and colonies with which long term credit arrangements can be made. It seems unlikely that the dollar hoards will be dissipated to any great extent in buying here what can be bought on credit elsewhere." If the embargo is retained the allies will still spend their money here, but they will be more inclined to buy the things we produce regularly, including the agricultural products of which we have a superabundance."

The point was ignored by many congressmen from states which were certain to be in the first line of economic victims. The state of Washington provides a good example. One of its principal industries is the growing of apples and an important market for these apples has been England. Senator Bone was absent when the vote was taken because of illness. The other senator from Washington, Mr. Schwelienbach, betrayed the intent of his constituents by voting for the repeal and in this was followed by the solidly Democratic representation of Washington in the house. Representatives Magnuson, Wallgren, Smith, Hill, Leavy, and Coffey all voted to run the apple growers of their state. Whether they did so out of an excess of party loyalty or out of old fashioned stupidity is scarcely important.

Behind The News

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—Steamship people would be very happy if someone important here—President Roosevelt, for instance—would just issue a statement to the effect that neither submarines nor mines are sinking any ships in the Caribbean Sea.

Right now the steamship lines are paying the penalty for those spectacular announcements earlier in the fall about submarines off the American coast. Tourist and "cruise" trade to the Caribbean and South America has fallen off badly; even the coastwise steamship trade between American ports has been affected.

What has happened, apparently, is that the traveling public has got the jitters.

TRAVEL CONCERNS HIT BY FEARS

The United States Travel Bureau, an offspring of the Interior Department, has received many letters from steamship companies and from hotel and resort operators in the Caribbean Islands and in South America, expressing alarm over the falling off in their anticipated winter business.

With travel to Europe naturally cut to the bare bone, it was expected that the southern group would get an extra share of the business; on the contrary, many cancellations in booked cruises have been reported, new space is not being sold at the normal rate.

Travel agencies are hopeful that by the time the winter season really begins the public will have changed its mind. Two of the offices contacted here said that the scare took place in the off-season, and that

Sharing The Comforts Of Life ---

UNNECESSARY MISERY AND POVERTY RESULTING FROM COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Undoubtedly, the majority of people believe that collective bargaining reduces poverty, misery and suffering. Due to this belief, we have enacted laws, like the Wagner Law, encouraging collective bargaining.

But, instead of collective bargaining reducing poverty and misery, it is one cause, if not the most important cause, in the United States of much unnecessary misery and poverty.

Why? And how?

(1.) Because a collective bargaining labor contract is not a contract binding both sides but is a one-sided option that gives the workers the right to work when they want to but binds them to nothing. This greatly reduces the ability of employer to plan and reduce selling prices.

(2.) Because it prevents the fair distribution of production.

(3.) Because it is a great waster of human energy.

(4.) Because it prevents the most efficient workers from being employed by the owners of the most efficient equipment, thus reducing production.

(5.) Because it miseducates and obstructs people from learning. The primary purpose of collective bargaining is to interfere with other workers having the right to learn and /or to work. It keeps square pe... round holes.

(6.) Because it teaches people to have disrespect for the rights of others. This, thus, breaks down the concepts of democracy and of the teachings of Jesus and substitutes coercion, and tyranny for the free consent of the contracting parties.

(7.) Because it permits many workers to get much more than they produce on a competitive basis. These workers who get this wealth by arbitrary, dictatorial methods are not the kind of people who save and abstain and, thus, increase the tools, the equipment, the capital absolutely necessary and essential to increase production and thus reduce poverty and misery.

(8.) Because it discourages and discourages those who are robbed of the fair share of the fruits of their labor by compelling them to exchange the products of their labor for less than it should and would exchange for on a free market.

(9.) Because this disheartening causes millions of people to be supported by taxation which causes misery and suffering of those who produce and pay the taxes.

(10.) Because it retards production by strikes, by arbitrarily shortening working hours and by sabotage.

(11.) Because collective bargaining is a primary cause of inflation. When the collective bargaining units set their wages so arbitrarily high that there is so little left for workers who are not permitted to participate in the collective bargaining units, it invariably becomes necessary, from a purely humanitarian standpoint, to reduce these arbitrary wages by inflation. In other words, employers pay the arbitrary wages in dollars, but the dollars buy less. This inflation works untold hardships to debtors and creditors and prevents workers from getting the fruits of their work, thus greatly discouraging them and stopping their initiative and their productive effort.

(12.) Because, when other workers and impractical theorists see arbitrary wages being paid to those participating in collective bargaining, they come to believe all wages can be raised without regard to increased production resulting from more knowledge and better equipment. This causes unemployment; as, when the total wages become higher than the production can be sold for, there ceases to be employment.

In short, there is probably nothing that interferes with the free and natural division of labor as collective bargaining does. The whole purpose, heart, soul and crux of collective bargaining is to prevent the free and natural division of labor. Every economist knows that production is multiplied a thousand fold by dividing labor; that anything which interferes with the free division of labor reduces production.

Practically every country that goes into dictatorship, goes in by the collective bargaining route. Collective bargaining in Spain, Italy and Germany, before they had dictators, so restricted and curtailed production, people were willing to have a dictator who would put a stop to this interference of production by strikes—sideways and slowdowns.

Unless the people of the United States can come to understand collective bargaining is a prime cause of unnecessary poverty and misery, collective bargaining will be curtailed and thus cause so much unnecessary misery and poverty that we will be willing to give up what liberty we have left, in order to put a stop to the curse of collective bargaining that so greatly reduces production and causes so much unnecessary poverty and misery.

The columns of this paper are open for any believer in collective bargaining to refute these conclusions.

It would be another month before it would be known definitely whether the winter trade would be badly hit. A third agency, however, said that bookings for winter travel normally begin to pick up in volume by Thanksgiving, and that that pick-up was not yet in evidence.

FOREIGN SHIPS ARE WITHDRAWN

One material factor in the slump is the fact that a large percentage of cruise ships heretofore were of British, French or German registry. Most of these have been withdrawn, and while replacements have been obtained the withdrawals have caused a natural dislocation.

For the most part, though, it is the public's jitters that is blamed; and that is considered by some to be traceable directly to the emphasis which the administration some time ago put upon reports that submarines were cruising close to American waters.

However, one insurance company which sells travel policies is now refusing to sell such policies for any Atlantic ocean trips—although, as U. S. Maritime Commission people point out, there is no actuarial basis for any fear that travel policies sold on tickets to the Caribbean or South America would cause any loss.

An Alaskan hunter shot a wolf at 200 yards by disguising himself as a snowbank. The wolf, seeing this strange apparition, was probably ready to die.

UNCOMFORTABLE EITHER WAY

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1—Buster Keaton has his best role in years in the MacDonald-Bady musical, "New Moon," but it's doubtful that even such substantial recognition means as much to the four-faced comic as the ribbing he has been receiving from W. S. Van Dyke, the director. Makes him feel right at home.

Late the other evening a messenger rushed to Keaton's house with a 380-page script and a note ordering him to read it all and to learn as much as possible of his part. He couldn't find any mention of the character he had expected to play, but he selected one that seemed faintly suitable and studied the lines. Next morning, hollow-eyed, he met Van Dyke and was told apologetically that he had been sent the wrong script.

About that time an assistant director went around the set distributing sheaves of new dialog for the day's shooting. Other members of the cast studied theirs, so Keaton memorized his—although he still couldn't identify himself among the characters. Called for his first scene that afternoon, he found the situation completely strange and got a raking-over from Van Dyke for not knowing the proper lines. Through some puzzling circumstances, Keaton again had been given a wrong script.

He'll get even with the director and nobody realizes it better than Van Dyke himself. The comedian has a long-standing reputation as a ribber to maintain, especially on the Metro lot. Back in his silent stardom days his dressing room suite was full of electric chairs, crash boxes, musical bathroom fixtures and a terrifying chute by which he could, and would, slip even the most dignified visitors clear out into the street.

John Gilbert's bungalow, No. 1 spot of interest for studio tourists, stood right next door. Keaton enjoyed stringing a clothesline between the two buildings and pinning on an assortment of red flannel underwear, intimate feminine items and a dozen diapers.

GRANT IS CAREFUL ABOUT HIS ROLE

"His Girl Friday" is a rewrite of "The Front Page" with the former male and female leads interchanged, and it has come in for a good deal of wise-cracking. Yet, with the treatment given it by Director Howard Hawks, along with the help of an able cast, it looks like another hit which can be added to Cary Grant's list of screen credits.

Mr. Grant is an actor who is doing very well in spite of himself. More than two years ago, when he was a good deal less in demand than he is at present, he signed reluctantly for the lead in "The Awful Truth." Almost immediately he got cold feet and declared that he'd give $10,000 just to get out of the commitment. Director Leo McCarey was so angry that he said he'd pay Grant $20,000 to get out. But the picture was made, and it made Cary Grant.

SEVERAL WERE WARY OF GARRO COMEDY

Among the stories turned down since then by Cary Grant was "Minotchka." When the comedy was being readied for Greta Garbo, he seemed the best choice for the lead opposite the star. But he wasn't sticking for any star, thank you, and neither was William Powell, who had a chance at the role. Their error was Melvyn Douglas' gain.

Mr. Grant didn't like "His Girl Friday," either, but now he's beginning to suspect that it may be pretty good.

It has been estimated that the national income of the United States now is between 60 and 70 billion dollars.

People You Know

By Archer Fullingim

How many poor people in Pampa did not enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner? At Christmas a lot of people make special efforts to provide Christmas dinners for the poor, but you didn't hear anything about such generosity this Thanksgiving. Anyway, Joe Hawkins, a young man who has known suffering and has a keen sympathy, did not wait until Thanksgiving to become a G-d-fellow. While delivering clothes on his cleaning route, he came across a destitute family who were down to cases. He knew the family well, and he saw to it that they had a Thanksgiving. He collected food and money at other houses of his customers after he had told the story of the family.

Joe did not tell us this story, but a friend of his did. Bill Kenton, the young man who plays the accordion in the Cornshuckers band, halls originally from Mt. Olive, Ky. He worked for two summers at the 200 in Cincinnati, O., but most of the work he has done has been over the radio and before audiences. He doesn't particularly care for hillbilly music, but he plays scores of hillbilly songs.

He learned them while playing over stations in the middle-west and south. Most people don't know why they think Bill Kenton's accordion music is superior, but a few know that it's because his bass is tops. Bill says one of the most apt pupils he has ever had is Vincent, a high school student, who is noisy at times and then quiet for long stretches. But whether serious or horsingplay his mind is always brilliant, and his personality always compelling.

Insurance organizations keep careful watch for diabetes. They know that life may be greatly prolonged. They watch for the presence of sugar in the excretions of the body. Many insurance companies offer free annual examinations to insure this discovery and prolong the life of the client.

This should indicate to everyone the importance of having regular examinations so that necessary steps may be taken to lengthen life. Although this may actually have the ultimate effect of increasing the number of deaths from diabetes, it will add years to many lives.

We know that some types of people tend more often to get diabetes than do others. This applies particularly to those who are overweight and who put too great a strain on the digestive mechanism of the body. These people, particularly, can do much to prevent the disease by watching their diets.

We know too that there is a tendency for mothers and fathers with diabetes to give birth to children who will have this disease—if not during youth, probably later in life.

The Family Doctor

Dr. Morris Fishbein

(This is the last of a series of 14 articles by Dr. Fishbein on the nine principal causes of death in the United States.)

Ninth among the chief causes of death in the United States is diabetes with a rate that rises steadily each year because human beings live longer. In 1937 diabetes caused 30,587 deaths, which was 2.1 per cent of all causes.

Diabetes now affects anywhere from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 people in America. Proper use of insulin and our present knowledge of diet continues to prolong many lives and particularly to control diabetes among children, a condition which was formerly invariably fatal. The average length of life of the person with diabetes has been definitely increased since the discovery of insulin. A child born previous to 1914 and who developed diabetes could scarcely expect to live even a year, but today the life expectancy of a child 10 years old with this disease is more than 30 additional years.

But diabetes represents the breakdown and degeneration of certain organs and tissues in the body, and even with the best of control, death may eventually result from this cause.

Insurance organizations keep careful watch for diabetes. They know that life may be greatly prolonged. They watch for the presence of sugar in the excretions of the body. Many insurance companies offer free annual examinations to insure this discovery and prolong the life of the client.

This should indicate to everyone the importance of having regular examinations so that necessary steps may be taken to lengthen life. Although this may actually have the ultimate effect of increasing the number of deaths from diabetes, it will add years to many lives.

We know that some types of people tend more often to get diabetes than do others. This applies particularly to those who are overweight and who put too great a strain on the digestive mechanism of the body. These people, particularly, can do much to prevent the disease by watching their diets.

THE BOY Wonder, who will be four Christmas weeks, has been doing a bit of work lately on his first letter to Santa Claus. But, he can't get the thing to the point where he feels that it is exactly what Santa Claus would like to read. He is set on making a fine impression, and he doesn't intend that any slip of the pen shall mar his aim in that direction.

He has already dictated one letter, added some of his own penmanship, signed it properly and all that, and had me to mail it. Since then he has had several afterthoughts, and we now are busy composing a new one which will ask Santa Claus to wholly disregard the first one. For that first Santa letter was not the fine product that he wished it to be. I have always made waste, we have agreed. This new effort will be something to make Santa's postoffice elves sit up and take notice.

I WAS doing a bit of thinking out loud over the clocklike precision with which that excellent Claude High school saw snow before Santa Day. A St. Louis union extended its picketing activities in a recent labor dispute by making door-to-door calls. That personal touch.

Czech parents in Prague will not permit their children to be vaccinated because they fear German doctors might inject harmful substances. The Nazi brand of Aryan blood, for example? A mule in Kentucky just died after living for 36 years. They're even stubborn about dying, it seems.

Primitive Mexicans had about 100 different kinds of alcoholic drinks. Shortly someone will discover Americans can't even bathe but gin as their own invention.

The blood feudists of Albania operate under the "Law of Lek." This provides that a feudist may arrange for a period of truce during which he will not be shot if he goes to town, holds a party or gathers his crops.

Overcrowding in the Campo Santo cemetery in Genoa, Italy, resulted in the erection of rows of marble tombs on the flat roof of its great public mausoleum.

Delivery of milk on a house-to-house basis was begun in the middle ages. Cows were driven to each domicile and delivery was made on the spot.

STAMP NEWS

The sale of new issues on the London market has been brought almost to a standstill by the war. Restrictions on mail from belligerents, and even from Poland and the Czechoslovakian protectorates of Bohemia and Moravia, has almost entirely cut off except those operating to adjacent countries. The northern, or Great Circle, Clipper route from U. S. to England has suspended operations. Submarine warfare has slowed surface mails, and until the convoy system is effectively organized, mail dispatch by ships will continue to be delayed.

Dealings with enemy nations are forbidden British collectors and until neutral nations set up philatelic brokerage systems, stamp trade in Europe will remain stalemated.

The war is expected to produce a flood of occupational, charity, war tax and other special issues, similar to those issued in 1914-1918. There is no doubt that warring governments, realizing a vast potential income is available in stamp sales, will make the best of the opportunity.

The Postoffice Department has approved the use of a new special delivery envelope to expedite service. The envelope will have a bright yellow and green border and can be easily spotted by mail clerks among a mass of ordinary mail. The department will not supply such envelopes, but will permit any company or manufacturer to print them.

Train Cats To Ride Torpedoes Urges One Of Many Inventive Yankees In Letter

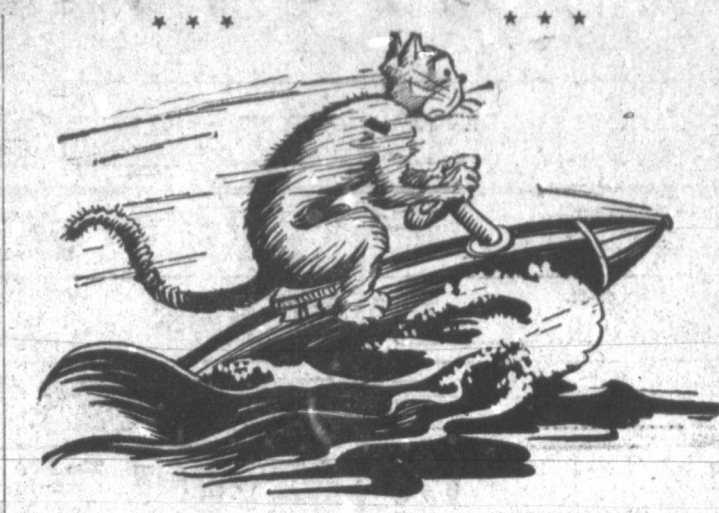

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—When Hitler told the world that his Nazis had invented a secret weapon which could annihilate Britain and France like a lightning-bolt from Mars, he shocked into action that fertile imagination of the Yankee inventive brain.

It is now rapidly giving off bright ideas as to how to doublecross this new mystery weapon or otherwise win the war. A dozen a day, letters containing brilliant and sometimes wild suggestions flash upon War and Navy departments. Like this one:

"Hitler's new invention is an air-plane bomb so powerful a single explosion will blow down everything for a mile around. The Nazis plan to wreck London in a single night. To foil the blackout, they will sneak up on the city by following the moonlight reflected from railroad tracks."

"But they'll never bomb New York. If the Government adopts my new invention. Over the rear wheel of the last car of each train leaving New York at night, I fasten a nozzle. From this nozzle, squirrels black paint over the rails."

EVERY SUGGESTION
Cockeyed? Well, perhaps mildly eccentric. But the letter was duly referred "through channels" to the proper authority. For army and navy both have men whose job is to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest just such strange food for thought. And every smallest crumb of these general experts pass on to special experts—for infantry, at Fort Benning, Ga.; for cavalry, at Fort Riley, Kansas; for coast artillery, at Fort Monroe,

Va., or for Field Artillery, at Fort Bragg, N. C. Maybe back will come word:

"This guy's got something." The U. S. military leaders believe it is better to waste a lot of time picking a rare ten-strike from a barrage of screw-balls, than to have one such experience as befell the British War Office after the World War.

The Britons were clearing files from ten years before the war. They found a complete set of drawings and plans embodying the basic principle and many features of the modern tank that finally, following three years of bloody losses, broke the German line in 1917 and helped win the war. But upon these plans, submitted in 1905 by a patriotic British inventor, was scrawled in large, official hand the words: "The man's mad!"

Most of Washington's ready letter-writers are excited about bombs bursting in air or a new form of death-ray. The War department is looking over a device composed of streams of electrons that a California inventor says can explode ammunition and gasoline as far away as two miles. Another suggestion is to drop on the enemy glass cases full of locusts, says one writer, but another with a meaner disposition says, rattlesnakes.

If that sounds Hollywood, note that Frank Capra's latest production is a system for guiding airplanes and releasing bombs by remote control. The famous movie director is stockholder in a company about to market this device, which uses garbled radio impulses.

Garbled-word experts are bombarding War and Navy departments with "unbreakable secret codes," all of which ignore the military axiom of "simplicity" save this one:

"Dear Admiral: 'I am undoubtedly in a class by myself because I have been thinking how to save the Government some money. It is on torpedoes. I read in the papers where the Navy is expanding, and I hate to think that means more torpedoes missing the mark because the mark keeps moving away. Now, everyone knows torpedoes are unreliable, but cats are very reliable, and easily trained. Here is my idea:

"Just train cats to ride the torpedoes, and steer them. Of course, you got to make the cat comfortable, so build a seat on each torpedo. It would save money not only on torpedoes but on cats; you know cats have nine lives."

No cats, but seals really were tried out in the last war. A pair were trained to follow a British submarine by the smell of the oil discharge. The idea was that they would follow and so betray German submarines taking to the open sea. But those swimming oil hounds turned out to be fine chasers of submarines and everything else afloat. The seals just wouldn't concentrate.

New Nazi Mine Warfare May Be Result Of Effective British Defense Against Subs

A German torpedo, launched on its mission of death, strikes the water after being shot from the tube of a torpedo boat, left.

The statement recently made in the British Parliament that the Nazis were probably turning out two new submarines per week and would, therefore, have perhaps as many as one hundred by the end of the year, looked very serious, but there are a number of buts.

CREWS MUST BE SPECIALLY TRAINED
It is the experience of all naval countries that it is easier to build submarines than it is to train officers and crews to man them, especially at far distances from the base of supplies.

The submarine is one of the most complex pieces of machinery that makes the waters. Men have to get used to cramped conditions of life as to operations, meals, sleeping quarters, etc., that are unknown even on small destroyers. It is estimated that it takes at least six months properly to train a submarine crew. They can't be trained on land or in a naval college. They must be trained in actual submarines.

Even in peacetime the hazards for crews of submarines are far greater than those for men serving on other vessels. In wartime these hazards are increased many times. It is, therefore, harder to find the type of men fitted for this service than for any other in the navy. In many navies the rates of pay are higher for submarine crews than for those on ordinary war vessels.

TRAWLERS WILL RELEASE DESTROYERS
Therefore, it would appear that while the Nazis can turn out two submarines per week, they would have a hard time training crews in advance, so that they can supply the men for these new submarines every week.

The British trawlers will release a great number of destroyers for duty further out in the oceans. Here again the might of the British navy will make itself felt. If the trawlers are as effective as they are expected to be in driving the submarines away from the coastal regions, the submarines will have to operate at considerable distances from their home bases. Here the destroyers will hunt them down, aided by airplanes.

The British Admiralty makes no boasts. It fathers no predictions. But there is a feeling among those sea lords that the submarines will have such a hot time that all Nazi attempts to blockade Britain will fail. As more and more German submarines are sunk, it will become harder for the Nazi bosses to find new crews to venture out in the dangerous little shells. Food, munitions and airplanes from America and the British Dominions and colonies and troops from the empire will continue to arrive in Britain.

was made by bombers which roared over the capital at 1:15 p. m. (5:15 a. m., CST) bombing and machine-gunning with devastating effect. An hour and 40 minutes later the raid was still in progress.

One Bomber Crashes
The raid still was in progress at 2:55 p. m. (6:55 a. m., CST). Finnish anti-aircraft batteries were reported to have shot down several of the raiding planes which were flying low. One bomber was said to have crashed as the result of rifle fire from a hill occupied by civil defense guards.

Smoke rising in various sections of the city indicated new fires. Many wooden buildings were aflame in the working class section.

It was in this region that Soviet warships yesterday dropped leaflets urging the proletariat to revolt against "bourgeois tyranny."

Officially 50 were known to have died in yesterday's raids alone. Casualties in the countryside still were undetermined.

Among yesterday's bombing victims was a Finnish scientist, Vaenoe Sihvonen, professor of physicochemistry at the Helsinki Technical Institute. His colleague, Doctor Ana-Vyornen, also was killed.

While civilians were taking punishment, Finnish troops were stubbornly holding strategic points. The thrust back of the Russian offensive at Karelia.

A new government has been formed but not announced.

Hundreds of Russian prisoners were reported captured on the Karelian Isthmus where the Red army was invading Finland. (Moscow reported an advance of from 6 to 10 miles here yesterday.)

Helsinki newspaper offices received reports from many sections of the capital that citizens were being machine-gunned from Russian planes in the early afternoon.

M. Heikki-Klemetti, director of a Finnish male chorus which recently toured the United States, said a low-flying Russian plane had machine-gunned his suburban home.

There was no news of Jan Sibellus, Finland's noted composer who came to live in the capital Nov. 2 in order, he said, to be with his people in a time of stress. Civilians at that time were being taken out of the capital.

(One Stockholm newspaper printed an unconfirmed report that Sibellus had been injured. Finnish quarters in Sweden discounted the report.)

Stokowski May Lead S. American Tour
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—As a result of war in Europe, Leopold Stokowski may lead a grand concert tour of Latin America next summer and hundreds of American tourists may accompany him on the maiden voyage of the finest passenger boat ever built in this country, the S. American.

The project developed from the coincidence that the America, when she is completed next spring, will be barred from the European trade routes by the neutrality law, if the war is still going on, that next summer, as usual at that season, scores of the country's finest musicians will be idle.

The idea is to have Stokowski, best known as conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, organize a large orchestra, and arrange a tour of 30 or 40 concerts throughout Latin America.

Little Westerners Upset Big Sandies 9 To 7

Lubbock Wins 2nd Straight Grid Title

By Staff Writer

A good little football team beat a good big football team yesterday afternoon in Amarillo when the last known Butler field tradition was shattered by the Lubbock Westerners' stunning 9 to 7 upset of the mighty Amarillo Golden Sandies.

In winning, the Westerners retained the crown they gained last year in Lubbock, on the same date and from the same team.

Amarillo broke loose near the end of the first quarter when M. T. Johnson staged a dazzling 74-yard run for a touchdown and Boyter kicked the extra point. Johnson was broken into the clear by the line but he had little protection for the next 50 yards of his run. Near the Lubbock goal line Johnson's interference formed again and two Lubbock tacklers were removed as Johnson cut from the sidelines to cross the pay stripe in front of the goal posts.

Lubbock was the recipient of a quarterback's gift preceding their march for a touchdown. Lubbock had kicked from her own 15-yard line to the 45. Three plays netted Amarillo 5 yards and on a fourth down the Sandies elected to try for a first down rather than punt. Lubbock took over and then pulled the rabbit out of the bag. First Tyson, who had been the spearhead of the Lubbock attack, flipped a flat zone pass to Barker, end, who completed a lateral to Jackson who went to the Amarillo 45. Next Tyson stepped back and shot a flat zone pass to Hill, end, and he slipped the ball to Alford who went to the Amarillo 15. Four plays later Tyson powered the last half yard across the goal line and followed with a place-kick to tie the score.

Westerners Take Lead

Still trailing because of penetrations, which favored Amarillo 2 and 1, the Westerners stood toe-to-toe and battled the huge Sandies down for down until Lee Jackson turned magician and put a left-footed kick out on the Amarillo 1-yard line. And once more the Sandies took a chance—and lost. Figuring to fool the Westerners, the Sandie signal-caller decided to run the ball out rather than punt but the play failed to fool the Lubbock line which churned ahead to throw Andrews behind his goal line for two points.

Although the clock on the score board said 10 minutes remained in the game, the Sandies were never able to reach mid-field, and the power or punter. They were bottled by a fighting band of Westerners already dead tired battling a weight handicap of about 15 pounds per man.

Gill Outstanding

If there was a star in the Lubbock team he didn't shine bright enough to be spectacular. It was a team of 11 boys doing one thing—playing great football. Maybe the work of Joe Tyson, big fullback, was outstanding in the Lubbock backfield and if there was a line star it was a boy named Storrs. Johnson flashed as Amarillo's star but he was also thrown for terrific losses on attempted passes while Andrews was the victim of some great tackling. He led the Amarillo ground work, however. Amarillo's line had a star and it was Co-Captain Gill who was injured and removed from the game just preceding the Lubbock touchdown. Gill was in nearly every play and his offensive work was M. T. Hank. Amarillo's ends, Boyter and Redus, gave the best exhibition of end play seen in the district this year.

Lubbock will meet Electra in a bi-district game at a time and place to be decided.

Ten Games Ago Norton Had Neck In Guillotine

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT

COLLEGE STATION, Dec. 1 (P)—Ten football games ago a tired man started the season at Texas A. and M. with his neck in the guillotine.

Today Homer Hill Norton had an unbeaten team, a certain post-season bowl bid in the offing, the Southwest Conference title and more than a light glamor to shift his talent to other places.

Rain seeped and mud slowed his massive warriors, but yesterday, while 40,000 wet customers shrieked, his Aggies whipped the University of Texas, 20-0, to close a perfect ten-game season in which stout competition scored only 18 points.

Early today Coach Norton left fog-shrouded College Station on a duck hunt, not to be back until Tuesday. On that day the Aggies, while not officially admitting anything or confirming any rumors, are expected to vote a preference for the New Orleans Sugar Bowl game.

Admittedly anxious to play in the Rose Bowl, the Aggies, nevertheless, were believed to harbor a feeling they were running second to Tennessee's Vols.

Reliable reports were that Norton had been approached by a major Pacific Coast school regarding the possibility of his taking over the coaching duties. Norton, rain-soaked and weary after a "produce or else" season, had little to say about such reports before ducking to privacy after the game.

Looses Two Regulars

So today it wasn't certain whether Norton, whose contract expires this year, would even be back at A. and M. Observers felt, however, that he wouldn't leave a team that loses only two regulars out of the starting lineup—a team patiently built while the pressure was rather terrific.

Muddy visitors to the Aggie dressing room, keyed up by the Cadets' first unbeaten season in 20 years and the first conference title since 1927, couldn't get in to slap Norton's back. The man the wolves put on football's spot at the start of the season was too busy wading through the stench of liniment hugging his boys.

The boys who felt before the opening Oklahoma Aggies game that Norton, a sick man the past two years, had been given an ultimatum, felt their way around the first two periods against Texas yesterday, then poured across three touchdowns in the last half to smother a rival of 45 years.

Hideout Works

Valiant efforts on the part of Dana Bible's green kids stopped the Aggies at every turn during the rainy first half, but the prize sucker play of football—the old sideline hideout—finally broke the ice.

On the second play of the third period Walemon (Cotton) Price, Aggie passer, drew back and threw diagonally across field to Earl (Bama) Smith, stretched flat in the fire of the sidelines. The Alabama sophomore, a tricky runner who had played less than 15 minutes all season, appeared out of nowhere, bagged the pass and headed down the sidelines.

Finally Cowboy Jack Crain, the Texas thunderbolt who gained on by 24 yards all day against the Aggie Cadet line, steered him out of bounds after a 44-yard gain.

Big John Kimbrough plowed the Texas line for six to draw in the defense and Price shot a touchdown pass to sophomore Jim Sterling deep in the end zone. Bill Audish kicked the point.

Rolling then, the Aggies struck again in the same period on a brilliant air and ground attack. Price, ignoring the wet ball, stamined a 30-yard pass to Herbie Smith, five feet, seven inch end, and the little fellow hurried on nine more yards to the three.

Texas Aggies Crush Texas In 20-0 Rout

DALLAS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Texas Aggies, unbeaten and untied, waited today for all the "bowl" returns to come in while five of their Southwest conference neighbors squared off for games that will determine the runner-up spot in a lopsided race.

Two tussles—one a neighborhood brawl between Texas Christian and Southern Methodist and the other between Rice and Baylor—are scheduled tomorrow with the conference finale to come Dec. 9 when Rice meets S. M. U.

The Aggies finished far ahead of the field by trouncing Texas 20-0 yesterday at College Station. At the same time Arkansas was winding up its football business for the year by beating Tulsa 23-0 in a traditional Thanksgiving Day tilt at Tulsa. It was a non-conference tilt.

Southern Methodist, waging battle for second place, meets the revitalized Horned Frogs at Fort Worth. T. C. U. can not hope to finish on the runner-up rung but could stay out of the cellar, a region now occupied by Rice, by beating the Ponies.

Baylor, now riding in second place, goes to Houston to tackle the hapless Owls and with a victory could clinch at least a tie for runner-up.

British Navicert System In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (P)—Great Britain's navicert system, designed to speed approved American goods through contraband patrol areas to neutral European ports, went into effect today.

The system amounts to a pre-examination of American exports by British consulates. The consuls were authorized to accept the first applications for such examinations today.

A navicert, or naval certificate, may be presented to a British contraband patrol to show that the British government already knows the nature of a shipment and has no objection to its transportation to a neutral country.

For the present, the system will apply only on American shipments to Belgium, Iceland, Italy, the Netherlands, Denmark, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Norway and Sweden.

Business Note

Looks like the business of exporting football players, long one of the principal industries in the West Virginia soft coal regions, will reach a new high this year. . . . The Rev. Edward Belanger of Clarksville, has been doing a little research work and he finds no less than 28 lads from that section in front line positions on major eleven from Rhode Island to California and as far south as Georgia (Tech).

Harvesters To Play In Groom Tonight

A Harvester basketball team, with only one starting letterman from last season in the lineup, will get its first taste of competition tonight in Groom where the green and gold quintet meets the Groom Tigers.

With only three practice sessions behind them, the Harvesters are expected to be ragged. But Coach Odus Mitchell has decided to see how his boys can take it right from the start.

He has announced his starters as Bearden and Carlisle, forwards; Terrell, center; Duraway, leftman, and Seth Cox, guards.

The Harvester reserves or "B" team, will get their chance preceding the Harvester-Tiger game when they meet the Groom second string.

Although there will probably be a couple of home games prior to December 13 when the House of David bearded quintet plays here, no other games have been scheduled as yet.

The North Star lies almost directly over the North Pole.

Lubbock And Electra To Play Bi-District Battle

(By The Associated Press.)

Twelve district champions, only two of them undefeated and untied in season's play, were certified today in the Texas Interscholastic league football race.

Added to the five titlists already determined were seven others last night with such powers as Gainesville and Amarillo being shoved unceremoniously from the picture.

Gainesville lost under the penetration rule in a scoreless tie with Sherman in the District 6 playoff game. Amarillo was nosed out by Lubbock 9-7 in the District 1 battle.

Electra won in District 2 by crushing Childress 40-0; unbeaten, untied Sweetwater marched into the District 3 throne room with a 26-7 conquest of Big Spring. Woodrow Wilson (Dallas) smashed Dallas Tech 41-0 to win the District 8 crown. Breckenridge downed Cisco 20-0 for the District 9 gonfalon and Brownsville beat Robstown 6-0 for the District 16 title.

Previously Sulphur Springs had won in District 6, Masonic Home (Fort Worth) in District 7, Waco in District 10, Naacogdoches in District 12 and Austin (Houston) in District 13.

Undefeated, untied El Paso High was battling to a 7-7 deadlock by Austin (El Paso) in the District 4 title game. The executive committee will select the champion Monday.

Port Arthur defeated Beaumont 12-7 to tie the South Park (Beaumont) for the District 14 championship. The committee will decide the representative tomorrow.

Austin, the other unbeaten, untied team remaining in the race, plays Kerrville at Austin tonight. Austin can take the title with a victory or tie and can be tied for it by Kerrville with a loss.

Tyler plays Marshall tomorrow in District 11 and can take the title with a victory or deadlock with Kilgore for it with a tie. A loss would bring Kilgore the championship.

Next week the teams will pair like this in the bi-district round: Lubbock vs. Electra, Sweetwater vs. Austin-El Paso winner, Sherman vs. Sulphur Springs, Masonic Home vs. Woodrow Wilson, Breckenridge vs. Waco, District 11 winner vs. Naacogdoches, Austin (Houston) vs. District 14 champion, District 15 winner vs. Brownsville.

Several of the bi-district games already have been arranged.

Masonic Home plays Woodrow Wilson at Fort Worth Dec. 9.

Sherman meets Sulphur Springs at Sulphur Springs Dec. 8.

Waco and Breckenridge play at Waco Dec. 8.

Aggies Likely To Get Sugar Bowl Invite

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (P)—Half filled now, a couple of the football bowls are going to be tanked right up to the brim before the week is over if the same form that held good in yesterday's juicy Thanksgiving day menu doesn't spoil before Saturday.

The Texas Aggies completed an undefeated season of ten games with a 20-0 conquest of their old rivals, the University of Texas Longhorns, and the mighty Tennessee Volunteers caged the Kentucky Wildcats 19-0 to extend their undefeated, and unscored upon string right up to the final fray of the season.

These developments, as half the country observed the calendar holiday, gave the two winners everything they needed to get to the Rose and Sugar Bowls except the railroad tickets. Until they get them, figuratively at least, nobody will know just which will go where, but the best brains are booming Tennessee for Pasadena and the Aggies for New Orleans come New Year's day.

The other halves of the casts in these two spectacles are likely to be filled to the satisfaction of the public on Saturday when Southern California attempts to hurdle a WP-SP Washington eleven and Tulane tackles its most bitter foe, Louisiana State.

Providing U. S. C. and Tulane triumph, their assignments for next New Year's day already are laid out for them. The Trojans will be hosts in the Rose Bowl and the Green will receive at the Sugar Bowl.

There is no reason to believe that either will miss their parties. While attention already has turned to the gridiron's post-season activities, there still are some attractive morsels of the regular program remaining.

The prospective Rose Bowl rivals have games pending on December 9, Southern Cal against UCLA and Tennessee against Auburn.

Mobetie To Enter Kellon Tournament

Special To The NEWS

MOBETIE, Dec. 1—The Mobetie basketball girls' and boys' teams will attend the first tournament of the season when they journey to Kellon on Dec. 8 and 9. Both teams are enthusiastic and are showing that same spirit which dominates the basketball season each year.

Most of the regulars are back on the girls' sextet, and the prospects are excellent for a very successful season. The girls have already had one chance to show their ability, when they defeated the McLean and they proved that they were able to last 42-9 last week.

To date, the boys have played no games, but they have been working faithfully since football season and their prospects are good for a fair record as a few of the regulars are back, and also several squadmen.

United States bean production decreased this year by almost 2,000,000 bags.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, John reveals that the old prospector, known as "Big Red," was robbed of a rich mine claim by a gambler, whom he believes to be Benthorne. Dawson is puzzled by Alton's return to the house after her first interview with her father, and by her efforts to get Douglas involved. He believes Alton might have wanted to "trap" Douglas, blame him for a murder she intended to commit.

CHAPTER XV

Dawson waited as his question struck home. Douglas was on his feet at once, to deny the detective's charge, but it was evident that his faith in Alton had been shaken.

"That's crazy," he shouted. "Tell him, Alton. I know you could never even think that, much less... I wanted to come here. It was all my idea."

"Miss Johnson has just told us that she detested you when she first met you, but she pretended to fall in love with you," Dawson argued. "She came here tonight with the intention of killing your father, but Mrs. Benthorne's timely intrusion prevented her. Isn't it logical to believe that she might have changed her plans, led you to believe you suggested coming here, sent you to Benthorne's study and then returned through the secret entrance?"

"No! No!" Alton almost screamed the words. She turned to Douglas. "You couldn't—you wouldn't believe I could do that to you?"

In the first place the steps were uncomfortable. Secondly, Joey wanted a cigarette. Bad enough to be stuck in this house for half a day, without a shave, without a drink, but to have Dawson take his cigarettes was just going too far. Perhaps the copper had some new ideas on third degree, new psychological technique, Joey decided. Hell, even if Dawson did break down that alibi there was nothing to worry about, ballistics tests would show his gun had not killed Benthorne. He looked up at Krone, on the step above him, trying to keep awake.

"Got a smoke, Krone?" Joey asked. "Dawson took mine."

Krone shook his head. "I could use one too, Joey," he said. "This waiting around is getting on my nerves. Wish Flynn would get back."

Joey stared at the wall. He tried to picture his position so that he might be able to sleep, but the step was too narrow. Match, you dimes against your pennies, Krone, he suggested, flipping a coin.

Krone won the first toss, then lost three in a row. Intent upon the game, he failed to notice Mrs. Benthorne's approach. Only when she stood beside him, did he look up, then scramble to his feet.

"Sorry to disturb you, officer," Mrs. Benthorne said. "But Mr. Alton is quite upset. He's demanding another sleeping tablet. Will it be all right to give it to him?"

"Maybe I ought to ask the Captain," Krone ventured, then took matters into his own hands. "Sure, Mrs. Benthorne, I'll see that your Dad gets his pill. Where are they?"

She handed him a small box. "I thought you'd prefer to give it to him yourself," she explained. "With the one he's already taken he should sleep soundly for several hours."

DI TORIO watched Krone disappear into Alton's room, then stood to one side as Mrs. Benthorne started down the stairs. "I'm sorry to interrupt your game, Mr. Alton."

"Di Torio," Joey supplied. Nice of her to be so friendly. Well, they were all in the same boat. Maybe she shot Benthorne. "You haven't got an extra cigarette?" he asked.

Helen Benthorne laughed. "I saw the Captain take yours," she said. "Yes, I'm sure I can find you some downstairs. There is a box full in the living room." She swept past him.

Cigarette Joey waited. It wouldn't be his brand—that special brand—but anything would taste good. Dawson sure had nerve taking his smokes. Why would the copper want them? Then Joey remembered.

He ran down the steps, pounded on the closed door of the study. "Dawson, Dawson," he called through the panel, "come here. There's something I want to tell you."

"I know now why you wanted my cigarettes," Joey began, when Dawson came from the study. "Before you start dreaming up any ideas to send me up the river, I want to put you straight on a few things. I was here last night, before Benthorne was killed."

Dawson grinned. "I knew that, Joey. At least, I knew you were here."

"The cigarette?" di Torio asked. "Uh-huh. Alton found it in the passage-way. Your special brand, I believe, Joey."

"Alton!" Joey spat out the name. "Why that old..." He stopped as Krone came down the stairs.

"Alton's sound asleep, Captain," the patrolman reported.

"Gave him another sleeping pill. The old man was pretty wild for a bit there. Crying and carrying on. Mrs. Benthorne was afraid it might affect his heart. Mind if I get a bit of air? Stuffy in here and I might get sleepy."

Dawson nodded. "You were saying, Joey."

"I'll say plenty before I'm through, Dawson," Joey answered. "I got a alibi—airtight—but I'll forget it. I left the Chateau at 11, not 12, like I told you. I did want to see Benthorne, and you know why. It was easy, with this doorway opening right on the street. That was the way I always came in. Benthorne ought to tell you about that."

"I was there, all right, and I remember tossing away that cigarette, and stepping on it as I came in out of the rain. And then—" He stopped as Helen Benthorne returned from the living room.

"I found you a cigarette, Mr. di Torio," she said pleasantly, offering the box. "Care for one, Captain?"

"Thanks," Dawson searched his pockets for a match. "Got a light, Joey?"

A match flared, flickered out seconds later as Joey lit his cigarette, inhaled deeply.

"That's three on a match," Mrs. Benthorne said lightly. "I'm not superstitious. I hope neither of you are."

JOEY laughed hollowly. He should have noticed that.

"Captain Dawson," Mrs. Benthorne went on, "I'm sending Jameson in for Miss Johnson—Poor girl. You've probably worn her out with questions, and I know she'd appreciate a little rest. It will be all right for her to go to my room, will it not?"

"That's thoughtful of you, Mrs. Benthorne, under the circumstances," Dawson wondered if Alton would have been as considerate. "It will be quite all right. Jameson will find Miss Johnson in the study."

"I'd like to make a few telephone calls, too, if it is permissible," Mrs. Benthorne said. "There are certain arrangements that must be made—"

"By all means, go right ahead," He did not add, however, that the telephone wires were tapped.

Joey waited until the dining room door swung shut behind her. "Come on down here, Dawson," He nodded toward the passage-way to the street. "I'll show you."

(Editor's note: In the midst of a new air bombardment of Helsinki by Soviet Russian planes, Lynn Heinzerling, the Associated Press correspondent in the Finnish capital, today telephoned the following story to the outside world via Copenhagen.)

By LYNN HEINZERLING
HELSINKI, Dec. 1 (AP)—Fourteen Soviet planes were seen near Helsinki early this afternoon, but no bombs were dropped at first.

The United States legation has arranged for quarters at Grankulla, but has not yet decided to evacuate. Slightly thoughtful as his office received reports from various points, Finnish Foreign Minister Eljas Erko made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"Despite the fact that we have shown to the last a willingness to try to find a peaceful solution of the difficulties which have arisen between Finland and Russia in the face of the Soviet demands and despite the fact we have tried all means possible to avoid any conflict on the frontier, we have been attacked today.

"As a reason for the attack the pretext was used that we invaded Russian territory and our troops threatened Leningrad.

"We haven't done anything of the kind."

(The sirens of passing ambulances drowned the conversation here, and then there was a crash as another bomb fell nearby.)

"Our troops were on border duty only for possible attack against Finland, and what happened today showed we have done right. Our frontier has been bombarded and Finnish territory occupied.

"Our capital has been twice attacked and Viborg (Vilpuri, east of Helsinki) has been attacked even

God The Creator To Be Subject
"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 3.

The Golden Text is: "Let all the earth fear the Lord: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast" (Psalms 33:8, 9).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created" (Psalms 148:5).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is individual, incorporeal. He is divine Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence. He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else. He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit or Mind" (page 331).

1939 Traffic Deaths May Show Increase

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (AP)—Only prompt improvement in walking and driving habits can head off a national traffic death toll for 1939 greater than last year's.

The national safety council reported today the accident trend took a turn for the worse in October, and that if it continued in November and December the 2 per cent saving in lives for the first ten months of 1939 would be wiped out.

The council began a nationwide year-end safety campaign designed to reduce the usual super-heavy December traffic toll.

The October record showed a 4 per cent national fatality increase over October, 1938; a 13-per cent increase over September, compared with an advance of only 10 per cent in the normal year; fatality increases in 21 states, reductions in 19, eight states not reporting; a 7 per cent increase in deaths in cities, which showed consistent reductions earlier in the year.

October deaths numbered 3,410, compared with 3,260 last year. The ten-month total was 28,650 compared with 26,090 for the same period of 1938.

WTSC Leases Air Field

CANYON, Dec. 1 (AP)—Dr. J. A. Hill announces leasing by West Texas State college of a half section of land two miles north of Canyon as the laboratory flying field for the civilian pilot training program now under way here.

The lease is for 1½ years, subject to renewal, and is an arrangement with Wilson Campbell of Canyon, the holder of the lease on the Jacobson property. A hangar will be built by the Amarillo Air Service headed by Thornton Oxnard.

Oxnard and associates will begin flying instruction immediately in connection with their federal contract. Twenty students are taking the course. Ground training is being given by Supt. J. W. Reid of Dumas, who comes here twice a week. He is a former army pilot. The landing field will be designated as an approved landing field on flying maps.

The college also has another aviation project taking form. The NYA vocational groups on the campus are building an aviation mechanics work shop under the football stadium, and it will be equipped with machinery valued at more than $60,000 by the government. David Bleiner of Amarillo will teach this course.

Mexico May Protest British Blockade

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1 (AP)—Germany, according to usually reliable sources, is pressing Mexico to protest to Britain and France against the blockade of German ports.

These sources said Germany had advised Mexico she was ready to fulfill her part of their oil-barter agreement, but that the blockade prevents delivery of finished goods to discharge the 16,000,000 peso ($3,200,000) debt which the reich incurred by earlier purchase of Mexican petroleum.

Informants said that Mexico, anxious to obtain German manufactured products already had established informal diplomatic contacts with Britain and France on the question of oil shipments.
