Sheriff's run-off key Midland contest

By ED TODD

Card-carrying Democrats will be casting ballots at 27 voting places Saturday to elect the party's nominees for Midland County sheriff and commissioner of Precinct 3 in the Nov. 2 general election.

Heading into the runoff election are Sheriff Ed Darnell, who wants to continue in the job he began almost 36 years ago, and Paul Welch, who was thwarted four years ago in his first bid for the sheriff's post.

Farmer-stockman Jack Leonard is campaigning for the $11,000-a-year commissioner's post held by John Thomas, 58, since 1973.

Thomas, a semi-retired petroleum engineer, was thrown into the runoff after neither he nor Leonard garnered a majority of votes in the three-way May l primary race.

Leonard, the leading vote-getter in that contest, polled 670 votes to Thomas' 564. Knocked from the running was retired masonry contractor, Roscoe Lewis, 66, who received 202 votes. Since then, Lewis has endorsed Thomas for re-election.

The commissioner's job entails setting up the county's $4 million budget, approving department budgets and expenditures, canvassing elections, and, among other duties, keeping the community abreast with county government and vice versa.

Mostly, the job is one of executive decision-making.

Leonard, who manages the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 4149 as a sideline, served in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II.

A first-time political candidate, Leonard has promised to keep county taxes in line and to be a "full-time commissioner" pledged to hard work.

Thomas, in a similar spirit, says that he already is giving his "full time to the job of commissioner" and has contributed "harmony" to the commissioners' court.

A graduate of Texas A&M University, Thomas served as an officer in the U.S. Army Air Corps during the war.

Thomas, in his campaigning, says that he "has represented rural and city residence with equal importance."

The county precinct Thomas represents takes in much of south and southeast of Midland and Midland County.

Thomas was elected to the post in 1972 after defeating the incumbent, Clark Moreland, in a runoff election.

Saturday's winner of the Leonard-Thomas polling duel will entered the Nov. 2 general election unopposed by an Republican contender.

However, a GOP candidate, Dallas Smith, 33, will be challenging the victor of the Darnell-Welch race. Smith, a former trooper with the Texas Department of Public Safety, currently is an $18,000-a-year corporate pilot for a Midland oil company.

Darnell, known then and now as "Big Ed," edged his way into the sheriff's office in a 1940 runoff election.

He defeated Norman L. Woody by 1,049 to 935 votes and entered the general election unopposed.

Darnell succeeded A. C. Francis, who did not seek another term. (Going into the party's first primary in 1940 were sheriff candidates A. B. Stickney and A. R. Green, both of whom were nicknamed "Slim," and Darnell and Woody. In the first go-round, Woody out-polled "Big Ed" 814 to 747.)

In the 1930s, Darnell was a deliveryman for a home-owned Midland bakery and later was a businessman who operated a sandwich shop by the name of "Big Ed."

Darnell, 69, in his campaigning, has assured voters that his "sole purpose" as sheriff is "to provide you with the best possible law enforcement."

Welch, 40, a former detective sergeant in the Midland Police Department, voices a similar approach to the political office. A vote for Paul Welch "is a vote for professional law enforcement in Midland County," he says. Welch has said he will revamp the sheriff's office operations and organization.

Welch, who says he is "looking to the future," also says he wants to serve the Midland County populace "for many, many years to come." The position is salaried at $15,500 this year.

In 1972, Welch came in third — behind Jesse Morales and Darnell — in his bid for party's nomination for sheriff. Darnell, however, handily won that race, 5,794 to 3,298 to 1,943, and then downed GOP candidate Vernon Conn 12,622 to 10,776 in the general election.

Welch, like the other candidates in the runoff, is a family man. He is a veteran of the U.S. Air Force.

In addition to deciding the local races, Midland voters will be making choices for the Democratic party's nominees for the judgeship of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and for a member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Campaigning for a place on the regulatory agency are State Rep. Jon Newton, 35, of Beeville, and Jerry Sadler, 68, of Grapeland. Sadler was land commissioner from 1961 through 1970.

The GOP's nominee for that post is Walter Wendlandt, 46, of Austin.

Contenders in the appellate court's race are Carl Dally, 52, and W. T. Phillips, 53. Dally is a commissioner on the court, and Phillips is a Waco lawyer.

The winner of that race will be unopposed in the general election.

Newton appeared almost confident that he can out-poll Sadler in the commissioner's race if voters do some checking before they pull the Teachers' pay raise to get long look by board

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Increases in teachers' salaries and benefits will be under consideration by the Midland school board during the coming weeks.

Teachers have requested an 11 per cent across-the-board pay increase, rather than the 3.5 per cent increase the board approved in April.

Another benefit area the board will consider is health insurance for district employes.

The request for the 11 per cent increase came at the May 11 board meeting from the salary committee of the Midland Classroom Teachers Association. The teachers contend that the increase is necessary to meet cost of living increases.

The issue is not on the agenda for Tuesday's board meeting. Dr. James H. Mailey, school superintendent, said the issue probably will not be considered until later in the budgeting process. The budget will be approved in August.

"The cost of living has gone up much more than our salary has. We're concerned about maintaining a good school system," Bill Smith of the salary committee said.

Smith said the 11 per cent increase would lift the salary of the average teacher with a matter's degree to about the level of the average wage in Midland. "We're not trying to get rich," he said.

Trustee James Ramsoure said he does not believe that comparisons with salaries in other fields are valid considerations in this issue. "I would rather conpare teachers with teachers," he said.

Ramsoure said the school district does not have the base to meet competition in other professions.

Trustee Don Sparks said he believes that teachers compare well in salary with many other professions at the starting level.

"On a monthly basis, it's not that big a difference," he said. Sparks said the problem that teachers have is their 10-month work year.

He also said he does not believe the pay scale provides as much opportunity for advancement in salaries as some other professions.

School board president Joe Dominey said the board tries to maintain parity with other major school districts in the state and has been successful in doing so.

He said the starting salary for teachers with a bachelor's degree in Midland is the highest of the 33 largest school districts in the state. Other salary categories are in the middle or upper range of those paid by the 33 largest districts, he said.

"We stack up pretty well among school districts that are in our condition," he said.

The board delayed action on the request after receiving a cost analysis at its May 25 meeting. Dominey said the board will not be able to act until it determines what it is able to do in setting a new tax rate.

Dominey said all available state funding has been committed and any further increase provided this year will come out of local funds.

Local funding required for salaries, including the 3.5 per cent increase approved in April and social security, will rise $463,834 from last year.

The average teacher's salary for this year is $12,560, according to Don Furgeson, business manager for the district. The current salary schedule ranges from a minimum of $9,450 to a maximum of $14,985.

The 3.5 per cent salary increase will not apply to teachers with bachelor's degrees and less than two years experience or teachers with master's degrees and less than three years experience.

Because of the way the new schedule is designed, the amount each teacher receives with the already-

Jobless rate drops back to 7.3

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government had good news in unemployment and inflation statistics today, reporting that the nation's jobless rate fell from 7.5 to 7.3 per cent in May while wholesale price increases slowed.

The drop in the unemployment rate brought an end to a two-month period in which joblessness had not improved.

Wholesale prices rose only three-tenths of a per cent last month, after surging eight-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said. The May performance eased fears of a new round of heavy inflation, at least temporarily.

The economic reports, coming only four days before the last round of presidential primaries, could be a plus for President Ford, who credits his policies for the improving economic picture. In its price report, the Labor Department said a six-tenths of a per cent increase in farm prices and a one-tenth of a per cent rise in industrial goods held the overall increase to only three-tenths of a per cent in May.

The combined job and price reports presented a picture of an expanding economy with moderate inflation.

With the jobless rate of 7.3 per cent, the Labor Department said 6.9 million Americans were out of work last month, a decline of 180,000 from April. Total employment continued to increase, rising by 300,000 in May to another new high of 87.7 million.

Since reaching its recession low in March 1975, employment has increased by 3.6 million. At the same time, the number of unemployed has dropped by 1.4 million.

The jobless rate had reached a recession peak of 8.9 per cent last May and had fallen sharply earlier this year before slowing in February to 7.6 per cent. It was 7.5 per cent in March and April.

The May rate was the lowest since December 1974, when it stood at 7.2 per cent. However, unemployment is still very high by historical standards.

Most of the improvement last month occurred among adult women whose jobless rate fell half a percentage point to 6.8 per cent. Unemployment rates for adult men and virtually all other groups in the labor force showed little change.

The rate for adult men edged up from 5.4 to 5.6 per cent, while the teen-age rate fell from 19.2 to 18.5 per cent. Joblessness among whites declined from 6.7 to 6.6 per cent while the rate for blacks and other minorities fell from 13 to 12.2 per cent.

Another bright note was a decline in the average length of unemployment, which fell by seven-tenths of a week in May to 15 weeks, the lowest level in a year. However, in contrast to the reduction in total joblessness, the number of Americans working part-time for economic reasons increased by another 130,000 last month to 3.4 million.

The AFL-CIO and other administration critics contend that if part-time workers and the so-called discouraged workers — those who stop looking for work in the belief that none is available — were included in the jobless rate, the figure would be closer to 10 per cent.

The size of the civilian labor force showed little change last month, holding at 94.6 million following a 720,000 increase in April. Over the year, the labor force has expanded by 1.8 million, with adult women making up 1.1 million of the gain, adult men 500,000 and teen-agers 200,000.

Manufacturing employment declined slightly last month as a result of a strike in the rubber industry that has idled some 60,000 workers, the government said. Unemployment in construction, which was hard hit by the recession, was unchanged last month at 3.4 million.

The average work week for all production workers on private nonfarm payrolls increased three-tenths of an hour last month to 36.3 hours.

Prime rate raised again

NEW YORK (AP) — Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, raised its prime lending rate ¼ per cent to 7¼ per cent today.

The prime rate is what a bank charges for short term loans to its most creditworthy corporate customers. It is not directly tied to consumer or other longer term lending rates, but can indicate the general direction of interest rates.

Most major banks now charge 7 per cent for prime rate loans.

Citibank sets its prime rate according to a formula based on other money market rates and often leads other banks in changes in the prime.

One upward pressure on the prime rate was the announcement late Thursday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York that commercial and industrial loans by leading New York banks jumped $439 million in the week ended Wednesday. That was the largest one-week increase in more than a year.

Humphrey to reassess position next week

By The Associated Press

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he'll reassess his position against actively campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination after Tuesday's primary elections in Ohio, California and New Jersey.

If Jimmy Carter, the present front-runner in the race for Democratic nominating delegates, comes out of those primaries with fewer than 1,200 to 1,300 committed delegates, Humphrey said Thursday, he will begin testing the sentiments of party leaders about mounting an active campaign for himself.

Carter, whom Humphrey said has "lost a lot of his zip," was not immediately available for comment.

On the Republican side, meanwhile, the California Poll, released today, said Ronald Reagan has substantially widened his lead over President Ford in the latest survey of Republican voters planning to cast ballots in next Tuesday's election.

Reagan leads Ford by 24 percentage points, 56 to 32 per cent, with 12 per cent undecided, in the nonpartisan poll taken earlier in the week by Mervin D. Field. In a poll taken a month ago, Reagan led Ford by 10 percentage points — 49 to 39 per cent with 12 per cent undecided. In March, Ford led Reagan by five percentage points in the sampling by the independent, statewide survey.

Among Democrats interviewed in the same poll, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. had more support for his party's presidential nomination than all his rivals combined with 51 per cent. Carter got 20 per cent, the poll said.

The winner of the Republican primary gets all 167 of the state's delegates. In the Democratic primary, 280 delegates are distributed under a proportional system weighted in favor of the winner and second-place finisher.

Reagan said Thursday in California that his earlier statements on keeping peace in racially divided Rhodesia had been misunderstood.

He said he wants to achieve peace in the African nation — not start a war involving American troops. But an aide to the former California governor denied Reagan was backing away from earlier comments.

"Reagan is saying, as part of peace-keeping after mediation, then perhaps we might send a token contingent to help maintain that peace," Jim Lake, the GOP candidate's press secretary, said Thursday.

Reagan said in a news conference Thursday on San Francisco's Nob Hill, "I made the mistake of trying to answer a hypothetical question with a hypothetical answer."

President Ford, asked Thursday about Reagan's comment on Rhodesia, said in Washington he does not believe it would be necessary to send U.S. troops to southern Africa because peace in the region can be won through diplomacy and negotiation.

Leaders of a move to draft Humphrey announced Wednesday they had contacted nearly 400 uncommitted convention delegates and "the overwhelming majority have indicated a preference for Sen. Humphrey."

Humphrey had said previously he would not enter any primaries but would be available for a draft if one developed.

Noting that Carter has over 900 officially committed delegates, Humphrey said, "Carter has a significant lead now. If he came out of the next three primaries with a substantial number of delegates, he'd be in a position" to win.

"If Carter has 1,100 or less delegates, the convention is open," Humphrey said. "I don't want to do anything that will end up as a foolish, abortive effort ... I'm not unaware of the fact he has a very commanding lead."

An Associated Press national poll found most of Carter's supporters favor him because of personal factors rather than because of his stands on issues, and his chief spokesman said there's nothing wrong with that.

But Arizona Rep. Morris Udall said he was very disappointed at the finding. The AP poll found that more than half of all the 2,001 Americans surveyed didn't know where their favorite candidate for president stands on the issues.

The AP poll found that four months of campaigning have not drawn many clear links between candidates and issues for potential voters. The poll of persons aged 18 and older was conducted for The AP by the Roper Organization of New York.

In other political activity Thursday:

—Brown, campaigning in San Diego, said a vote for him is a vote for tight budgets in Washington and in Sacramento. Brown said Tuesday's primary would be "a referendum on the fiscal frugality that has made California the most solvent state in the union."

—Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, still suffering from a fever and strep throat, canceled all personal appearances in his last day of California campaigning before the Democratic primary.

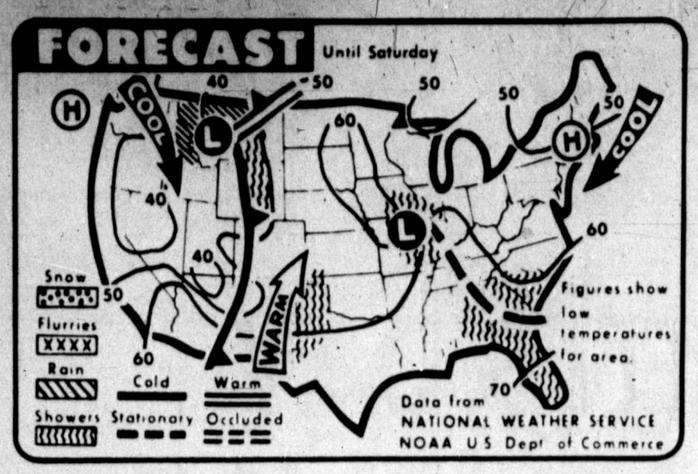

—Udall's campaign for the Democratic nomination centered on national health insurance Thursday as he called for exclusion of private insurance companies from a national health insurance plan.

The Arizona congressman, stumping in Cleveland, said only a federally funded and administered health care system would be adequate. He said a plan which included private insurance companies could not be fully controlled by the government.

Carter has said he favors a program with insurance companies acting as full partners.

—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace arrived in California to renew his long dormant campaign. He was to be in San Francisco today for a round of appearances and television interviews.

voting machine levers.

"If the voters compare my public record with the record of Jerry Sadler, I have no doubt that I will win Saturday," Newton said.

Newton, a member of the Governor's Energy Advisory Council and of the Interstate Oil Compact commission, made note of his working record.

"My public record is one of accessibility to the press, an open door policy for the public, full disclosure of personal financial information, and policies to strengthen confidence in government," he said. However, Newton said that Sadler's "record is just the opposite.

"When he was land commissioner in the 1960s, he pulled down the shades of the General Land Office and excluded the press and the public. He made a mockery of the people's right to know what goes on in government."

Newton noted that he has been endorsed by nearly every major daily newspaper in Texas. "Newspaper after newspaper are pointing out that the Railroad Commission is too important an agency to be left to the tender mercies of Jerry Sadler," Newton said. The position pays just over $27,500 annually.

Going into the race for the appellate court judgeship are Dally who, as a court's commissioner-in-aid, is "doing virtually what a judge does," and Phillips, who has no judicial back-ground. Dally has argued before the U.S. Supreme Court, has had "extensive experience in both the criminal and civil branches of the law," and has been endorsed for the judgeship by Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association leaders and by prosecutors.

Phillips, on the other hand, reportedly has had a lean-to-nil harvest in judicial and appellate experience.

Hail pounds Andrews; rest of Basin spared

Andrews was briefly pounded by hail Thursday evening, but the rest of the Permian Basin was spared from severe weather.

Hail, with some pieces as large as golf balls, fell for about six minutes around 7 p.m. Thursday, a spokesman for the Andrews County Sheriff's Office said. Oddly, though, there was no rain, and only a little wind before the hail, the spokesman said.

Skies were cloudy this morning in Andrews and Midland, and partly cloudy in Lamesa, Stanton and Big Lake. Only Rankin and McCamey reported fair skies. Temperatures were warm in Andrews, Rankin, McCamey and Midland, and cool in Stanton and Big Lake. Light winds were reported throughout the area.

A 20 per cent chance of thunderstorms exists for the Permian Basin tonight and Saturday afternoon, a National Weather Service spokesman said. Tonight's low should be in the middle 60s, with Saturday's high near 90, the weatherman said. Winds tonight should be light and variable.

Felony theft charged pair

STANTON -- Two men have been charged with felony theft in connection with a Wednesday night theft of tubing from the U-Z Industrial Oil lease in Martin County, 20 miles north of Midland, Martin County Sheriff's Deputy Tim Hudson said.

Douglas Vance Dowden, 22, and Ronald Lee Brookshire, 17, out of jail after each posted a $2,000 bond, Hudson said. The two were arrested Thursday in Midland, he said.

The tubing, which was recovered, was valued at $740, Hudson said.

Hudson and Ranger Charlie Hodges investigated the incident.

They were assisted by Dewey Lee of the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

Correction

The Reporter-Telegram incorrectly reported Thursday that James Earl Bradford, 19, 3117 W. Storey St., was charged in connection with the theft of a ring from the Indian Tradition Shop, 400 W. Texas.

Bradford was charged in connection with the theft of a ring from the Robert Britton residence, 3200 Sage St., May 25.

Trustees to eye pay increases

voted raise will vary according to education and experience. The new maximum salary is $15,495.

With the 11 per cent pay increase proposed by the teachers the minimum salary would be $10,159 and the maximum, $16,633.

An 11 per cent increase would bring the total cost of teachers' salaries up by $1,269,154.

Mailey said one cent of the tax rate equals approximately $60,000 in revenue. The tax rate is based on 75 per cent of the actual market value of real property. A house with an actual value of $30,000 would be assessed at $22,500. The current local operations tax is $1.225 for each $100 of assessment, or $275.63 for a $30,000 house.

The proposed raise would require a total increase of approximately 30 cents in the tax rate, or a total tax of $343.13 on a $30,000 house.

Mailey said the school board cannot raise the rate beyond $1.50 per $100 assessment, but could change the assessment percentage.

"Having been a teacher, I can understand their viewpoint, but when you get on the other side, you have to look at your limits," Ramsoure said.

Ramsoure said he does not believe the district should raise the percentage of assessment at this time. He said the district ought to allow some leeway for further needs.

Mailey told the board at its May 25 meeting that a tax increase of 14.5 per cent probably will be required to meet the total 1976-77 operational budget.

James Simmons, a Midland elementary school teacher, said the cost issue boils down to a question of what people want.

"If you want professional teachers, you're going to have to pay them," he said.

He said the district is not paying for the type of person who will be dedicated to the goals of the school system.

Board members agree that it is too soon to determine whether some additional salary increases can be granted.

"If we're already looking at a 14½ cent increase in taxes for operations, I don't know if we'll be able to afford another increase this year," Dominey said.

At the board's May 25 meeting the Teacher Welfare Committee requested the board's consideration of a proposal for the school district to pay for employes' health insurance.

Spokesman Bob Watkins told the board the current plan is optional with the entire cost of premiums borne by the employe. He said only 43.6 per cent of the district's employes are covered.

The optional nature of the plan makes the premiums higher than they would be if all employes in the district were covered, he said.

Watkins told the board the current plan is inadequate, but inproving coverage without full participation would raise premiums to a prohibitive rate.

The coat of full participation in a compreheneive group plan would be approximately $337,680 for all district employes (not just teachers) for 12 months.

Watkins said many employes do not participate because they cannot afford the premiums. "If we don't (get full coverage) we're going to put a lot of people in jeopardy," he said.

Sparks called the health insurance "a more realistic" possibility than the salary increase.

"We've got to help them come up with a solution to this problem in some kind of a positive nature," Sparks said.

Sparks said this help might come in the form of partial coverage if not full coverage or some other way.

Dominey also said the board would consider the issue carefully. "It's something we've been anticipating for some time," he said.

Watkins told the board at the May 25 meeting that the insurance proposal is not related to the salary increase request. Smith said the salary committee has met with the Teachers Welfare Committee to discuss the possibility of the salary committee's including the insurance proposal in its salary request.

Stanton blaze destroys cotton

STANTON — Approximately 20 bales of compressed cotton were destroyed by fire around 7 p.m. Wednesday, C. L. Rogers, Stanton chief of police said.

The value of the cotton was estimated at $10,000, he said.

Ninety-seven bales of cotton were stacked between to warehouses belonging to West Tex Compress when the fire began, he said.

Cause of the blaze is unkhown, he said.

Fire-fighting units from Martin County and West-Tex Compress extinguished the blaze in about an hour, Rogers said.

Westside Lions Club installs new officers

Officers of the Midland Westside Lions Club for 1976-77, headed by Jeff Barber as president, were installed Thursday night at the annual installation banquet held at the Elks Club.

Larry Wiles, retiring president, presided at the ladies-night function.

The other officers and directors are Charles McElreath, Carl Tedder and R.T. "Bob" Skellinger, vice presidents; James Lyles, secretary-treasurer; Mack Griffin, Lion Tamer; Leroy Castleberry, tailtwister, and Tony Franks, Daryl Chadwick, Harold Franklin and Charles Elkins, directors. The Rev. J.E. Barrington is the club's chaplain.

Mayor Homer Hodge of Winters, a former governor of District 2-A1, Lions International, was the guest speaker.

He reviewed the history of Lions International in his talk on "Lions Information," and discussed Lionism on four different levels — international, state, subsub-districts, and local.

He urged the club members to get involved in the "true spirit of Lionism," pointing out "if you don't have charity in your heart, you have the worst form of heart trouble."

Hodge also cited the "Objects of Lionism" and the "Lions Code of Ethics" in concluding his address.

District Gov. and Mrs. Paul Bozeman and Past District Gov. and Mrs. Tom Nipp were special guests.

The president's pin was presented to Barber, while Wiles received the past president's pin.

The club's ax handle was presented by the new president to Lion Tamer Griffin.

Gifts from the club also were presented to Mrs. Hodge and Mrs. Collyns.

Fire, theft reported

Burglars took several carpenter tools and a television valued at $2,000 Saturday from a house on Cottonflat Road, according to sheriff department reports'

Bruce Milliken, owner of the house, told sheriff's deputies he and his father were reworking the house and left the tools with the doors locked.

The front door of the house was kicked in and the tools missing when the two returned to the house on Saturday, according to reports.

FIRE REPORTED

A fire in the wiring of a junction box at the residence add—onea—police reports of Mavis West, 2105 Holloway Ave., was reported Thursday afternoon.

Cause of the fire was an electrical short with damage to the wiring and the wall of the residence, according to fire department reports.

Angola admits some fighting continues

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Angola's Marxist government admits that some of its pro-Western foes are still fighting guerrilla actions in the southeast part of the country but claims only pockets of resistance are left.

Officials denied a report in Lusaka, Zambia, that President Agostinho Neto has invited Jonas Savimbi of the National Union (UNITA) to peace talks.

UNITA sources in Lusaka claimed that a letter from Neto was being delivered to Savimbi in the southern bush.

The UNITA sources claimed their guerrillas have been striking with increasing success in southern Angola. But they left open the possibility of forming a government of national union with the Popular Movement (MPLA) which won the civil war.

A government spokesman in Luanda said Angola's northern border with Zaire is still closed, 3½ months after the end of the civil war. He did not elaborate, but sources in South Africa said the MPLA faces organized opposition to its control of the Cabinda oil enclave, which is separated from the rest of Angola by the Congo river estuary and a small strip of Zaire.

Some of the 12,000 Cuban soldiers who helped the MPLA defeat UNITA and the National Front (FNLA) can still be seen in Luanda in green fatigues and Castro caps, lounging in the shade or heading for the beach in army trucks with guitars and bongo drums. But foreigners said the number is far less than were in the city a week ago, before an influx of foreign observers and reporters invited for the trial this weekend of 13 foreign mercenaries accused of fighting for the FNLA.

Two of the mercenaries are Americans, Daniel Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md., and Gary Acker, of Sacramento, Calif. The others are 10 Britons and an Argentine.

Spanking okay under new rules

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—New state regulations for day care centers will allow employes to spank youngsters that misbehave.

The state welfare board's amended rules, however, allow only children who are 5 or older to be spanked, and then only with written permission from parents.

A child can be struck only on the bottom with the open hand.

Previously issued regulations met heavy and concentrated criticism from day care center operators, who claimed they would be put out of business by the tight standards for staff and facilities.

The new ones that were adopted Thursday and take effect June 29 make these changes:

—The number of children per staff member was increased. For instance, there now can be one employe for every 15 three-year-olds instead of a one-to-thirteen ratio.

—Minimum space per child was reduced from 35 to 30 square feet.

—Toilet requirements were lowered from one for every 15 children to one for every 17.

—Children may bring lunches but day care centers must see that all nutritional requirements are met.

—Educational requirements for staff members were reduced. A junior college graduate, instead of a B.A., now can be a day care center director.

Officer testifies

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston policeman has testified he believes a 1974 burglary of the law office of Texas Supreme Court nominee Donald R. Yarbrough was a genuine burglary.

Tom Grubbs of the burglary and theft division of the Houston police department, said Thursday he had no reason to believe the burglary was faked.

Houston vets lose exemption

HOUSTON (AP) — The city tax department has notified 1,500 disabled veterans they cannot receive property tax exemptions under a new state law.

City Tax assessor-collector Gary Webb said the city had notified the vets that the new law violates the Texas Constitution.

City Atty. Jonathan Day issued the opinion which said the new law attempts to exempt property valued above the limit allowed by the constitution.

The city tax department said Thursday in its opinion the constitution provides an exempting to disabled veterans for the market value of property up to $2,000. The opinion said the state law provides an exemption for the first $2,000 of the assessed value of property.

The legal department said the question was whether the exemption would be based on market value of property or the city's assessed value, which is 53 per cent of the market value.

Asst. Atty. Gen. C. Robert Heath said he knows of no other city that has decided not to grant the exemptions although questions have been received concerning the law.

Five men indicted

DALLAS (AP) — Three former public officials are among five men indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury here for alleged conspiracy to embezzle $200,000 in federal student loan funds from 63 schools and institutions.

Indicted were Thomas Patrick Foley III, former chief of collections for the Department of Health Education and Welfare's guaranteed student loan program in Dallas; Cecil Dwayne Evans, former deputy director of the HEW student loan office here; Gene Allen Miller, former student financial aid program officer in the HEW office; Arnold Gene Tate, president of the now-defunct Collegiate Recovery Credit Assistance Corp.; and Charles Edward Gent Jr., former vice president of Collegiate Recovery.

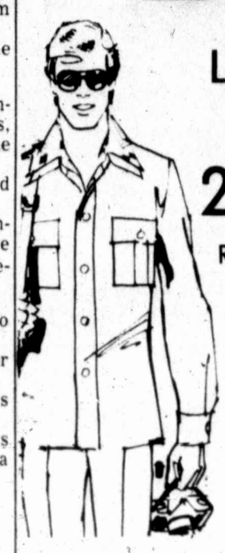

The collection firm itself was also named as a defendant. It contracted to collect delinquent student loans for institutions in five states.

The federal indictment alleges more than $200,000 in funds collected by the agency was not turned back to the 63 schools and institutions to be used for new student loans.

Ray keeping mum to protect book's value

By BROOKS JACKSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elizabeth Ray is claiming to have had relationships with several members of Congress besides Wayne Hays, informed sources say. But her lawyer hints that she's keeping mum on the details so that she doesn't destroy the cash value of her memoirs.

She and her lawyer say the book she has written will spell out details of her alleged liaisons with Washington men. One informed source, asked about a published report that Miss Ray claimed bedroom encounters with 15 members of Congress, said:

"That's the correct order of magnitude. By that, I mean it's less than the capacity of a football stadium and greater than zero."

Seymour Feig, who describes himself as Miss Ray's show business lawyer, declined to say how many men have trooped barefoot across the red carpet in her apartment. "No comment," he said. "Read the book."

Her $14,000-a-year job with Hays' House Administration Committee has ended and her lawyer says she doesn't have any income now.

Although Miss Ray has fled her now famous suburban apartment, Feig remained, negotiating to sell interviews or articles.

"This girl has no source of income," Feig said. "Somebody has to take care of her." He said she has not yet received a congressional paycheck for her last week on the House payroll.

So her economic future depends, it appears, on public acceptance of her book, now being rushed into print by Dell Publishing Co.

Although Feig urges questioners to read the book (Dell hasn't announced yet what it will sell for), it seems doubtful that it will clear up any of the more pressing questions such as who and how many.

The book, called "The Washington Fringe Benefit," names no names and is described as a "novel" by Dell executives.

One lawyer involved in the publication said Dell's attorneys decided against issuing the work as nonfiction because they feared that if actual persons were named, they might sue for libel.

Since the law makes it relatively easy for publishers to win libel suits brought by public figures such as congressmen, Dell's decision to fictionalize Miss Ray's stories is an admission that her claims are weak, the lawyer admitted.

Extensive inquiries have so far produced no support for a published account that Miss Ray kept a tape recorder under her bed to record amorous adventures with congressmen. A Justice Department source said Thursday that, contrary to the account, Miss Ray had not told federal agents of such recordings.

Justice may sue Hays to recover money

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is considering filing a civil suit against Rep. Wayne Hays in an effort to recover public money paid to Elizabeth Ray, who claims she was on the government payroll to serve as the Ohio Democrat's mistress, an informed source says.

The source said Thursday the Justice Department's civil division is weighing the possibility of filing the suit, which would be handled independently of the department's criminal investigation of Hays.

Meanwhile, another source revealed that Miss Ray is claiming to have had relationships with congressmen besides Hays. This source, asked about a published report that Miss Ray claimed bedroom encouters with 15 members of Congress, said:

"That's the correct order of magnitude. By that, I mean it's less than the capacity of a football stadium and greater than zero."

Hays bowed to pressure of his colleagues Thursday and announced he would step down from one of the two leadership posts he holds until the completion of investigations into his relationship with Miss Ray.

Miss Ray, 33, says she was placed on the payroll of Hays' House Administration Committee at $14,000 a year, but that her only duty was to be Hays' mistress. Hays has denied the allegation, but admits having a "personal relationship" with the shapely blonde.

The 65-year-old congressman, reading a prepared statement, said he would temporarily give up chairmanship of the Democratic campaign committee, which disburses funds to party House candidates, until investigations into his conduct are completed.

Several colleagues said Hays probably will step down as chairman of the Administration Committee after the Ohio primary next week.

Justice Department attorneys examining a possibile civil suit against Hays were said to be eyeing the federal False Claims Act as a possible vehicle for the suit. The source said it is possible the lawyers could decide to file such a suit against Miss Ray as well.

The False Caims Act allows the government to collect double the amount of any money the government lost, plus $2,000 in penalties.

Meanwhile, there were these other developments Thursday:

—The House ethics committee met behind closed doors to discuss new names mentioned in the scandal.

Ethics panel chairman John J. Flynt said he expects Hays to testify, but said, "I don't intend to call him the day of his primary."

—President Ford avoided commenting on the fact that his official photographer, David Kennerly, once dated Miss Ray. Ford answered one question about politics as he was leaving his office, but walked away when a reporter tried to ask about Kennerly and Miss Ray.

—A Democratic House leader predicted that if Hays does not voluntarily give up the Administration Committee post, Democrats will oust him at their June 16 caucus. The Democrat said Hays "won't have 30 votes" to count on. There are 287 Democrats in the House.

Martha Mitchell rites conducted

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Martha Mitchell, one of the first and most vocal critics of the Watergate-era Nixon Administration, has been buried alongside a wreath of mums that said, "Martha Was Right."

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, died Monday in a New York hospital of a painful and rare form of bone cancer.

Her estranged husband, former gatty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, and Mrs. Mitchell's daughter and son attended the 90-minute funeral and graveside services Thursday.

Scores of reporters and photographers were present. Mitchell refused to talk with the reporters.

Fannie B. Coleman, a black woman from Mansfield, Ohio, who said she was a childhood playmate of Mrs. Mitchell, wept openly beside the grave and said, "Oh, Martha," as the gray coffin draped with pink carnations was wheeled out of the church.

Mrs. Mitchell was buried at the foot of her mother's grave in the shade of towering oak trees in this Arkansas River community.

"Out of the turbulence of her day, there will come a great revival," said the Rev. Dr. W.L. McColgan during the five-minute services at the gravesite.

The Rev. Richard A. Dodd added that Mrs. Mitchell found that "even great cities have their limitations and imperfections."

Cornelia Wallace, wife of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, attended the services.

"We were both Southerners and I think we understood one another," Mrs. Wallace told reporters. "We saw each other every year and I'll miss talking to that wonderful woman."

The flamboyant Mrs. Mitchell became nationally known for her outspoken criticism of public figures, including those involved in Watergate.

She and Mitchell were separated in 1973 and earlier this year, Mrs. Mitchell went into court in a successful effort to get $36,000 in alimony. At the time, her attorney said she was without money or friends and had piles of bills.

'Doc' divorced

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — Carl H. "Doc" Severinsen, the flashy band director on NBC's Tonight Show, has been granted a divorce in return for his promise to give his ex-wife $75,000 a year alimony, a rural horse ranch, a Cadillac and a Bentley.

Pleas denied

PADUCAH, Tex. (AP) — Defendants in civil suits alleging fraud in connection with cotton sales were denied privilege pleas here Thursday by State District Judge R. J. Balch.

Vaughan B. Nowlin and First State Bank, both of Childress; R. S. Tappand Co, Adolph Hanslik Cotton Co., and Allenberg Cotton Co., all with offices in Lubbock; and H. Molsen and Co., Inc., of Dallas had asked that the suits be heard in their counties of residence.

Balch said the suits will be heard in Cottle County.

All the defendants said they would appeal Balch's ruling.

The suits have been filed by 31 Paducah area farmers seeking redemption of more than $370,000 in checks given in exchange for cotton, or the return of the cotton.

In a related action last month in Lubbock, a bankruptcy referee gave Nowlin time to do a computer search for the money or for the warehouse receipts that signify ownership of stored cotton.

Leftist Lebanese, guerrillas defy Syrian invaders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist Lebanese and Palestinian guerrillas defied a Syrian ultimatum to evacuate mountain strongholds in central Lebanon today and said they would fight to hold them.

A spokesman for the guerrilla command said the commander of the Syrian invasion force in eastern Lebanon ordered leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt's troops to abandon their positions along the eastern edge of the Christian enclave north of Beirut by midnight Thursday.

The spokesman said the Syrians threatened to devastate the leftist positions if the order was not obeyed. But he said there had been no attack by midmorning.

Leftist Beirut newspapers reported some Syrian troops and tanks headed south for guerrilla bases on the Israeli border, a move that could bring a retaliatory Israeli invasion of southern Lebanon. But there was no confirmation of the reports.

The press reports said the Syrians were headed for Marjayoun, a town 40 miles south of Beirut controlled by the Lebanese leftists, after shutting off the so-called Arafat supply trail from Syria to Palestinian guerrilla bases in the Arkoub region of southeast Lebanon.

Israeli officials at the start of the Lebanese civil war 14 months ago said their forces would occupy southern Lebanon as a protective measure if the Syrians moved into Lebanon. But in recent months they have taken a cautious but tolerant view toward the Syrian invaders because their purpose was to curb the Palestinians and leftist Moslems and because they stayed well north of the Israeli border.

Military sources in Beirut said the Syrians took over the Rayak air base in eastern Lebanon, five miles from the Syrian frontier. The base has 12 Hawker-Hunter fighter jets but only two pilots.

Leftist sources claimed the Syrians were mopping up Lebanese and Palestinian radicals in eastern and northern Lebanon. The leftist newspaper As Safir said a Syrian tank regiment moved onto hilltop positions overlooking Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city 60 miles north of Beirut. But telephone connections with Tripoli have been cut for weeks, and the report could not be checked.

There was less fighting in Beirut. A police spokesman reported 38 persons killed and 48 wounded in the last 24 hours, a comparatively small toll.

Meanwhile, the Syrian invasion widened the split between Syria and Egypt.

Germans condemn terrorist acts

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Terrorist attacks on U.S. military installations in West Germany this week are isolated outbreaks of anti-Americanism in a country that supports the presence of U.S. forces here, according to random interviews and recent opinion surveys.

"I reject violence against Americans and institutions," a 35-year-old real estate salesman told a reporter. "I am very glad U.S. troops are stationed here. I have had only positive experiences with them."

Time bombs exploded in a shopping area and officers' club at the Frankfurt headquarters of the U.S. Army's 5th Corps Tuesday. Fifteen American soldiers and a West German were wounded. A group of anarchists claimed it was responsible for the attack on what it called the "U.S. imperialist occupation army."

The next day somebody cut through the fence at an American air base 25 miles west of Frankfurt and set fire to two trucks.

German politicians and newspapers condemned the attacks, which raised fears of a renewal of the urban guerrilla terrorism that swept West Germany in the early 1970s.

Interior Minister Werner Maihofer called the bombing a "low deed" motivated by "pseudo-political" ideas. Helmut Kohl, leader of the conservative Christian Democratic party, sent a letter of regret to the U.S. Army. The Hesse state government offered a $20,000 reward for information leading to the capture of the bombers.

"The objective of the terrorists is unquestionably to bomb the nation into a revolutionary situation, upset the police and cause the state to over-react and thus discredit it," the newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung of Munich commented.

Margot Rieger, 26, a Frankfurt secretary, said she disapproved of the bombing but also opposed the presence of the 200,000 U.S. troops in West Germany.

"I don't particularly like American soldiers here," she said. "They are loud and boastful. But this is no reason to throw bombs into their houses."

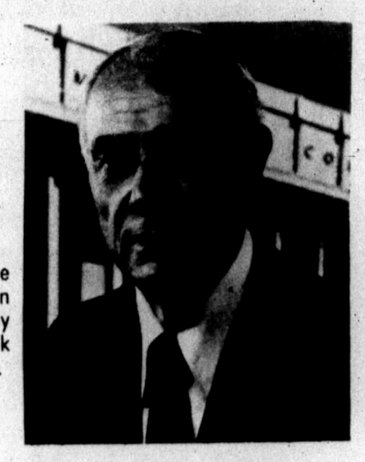

However, polls show that the West Germans overwhelmingly favor having U.S. troops on their soil as a deterrent to the Soviet bloc. A recent survey by Stern magazine showed that 49 per cent regard the United States as their country's best friend, rating it ahead of Common Market partners.

"Our experience is that the Germans are happy to have us here," said Col. Erik G. Johnson Jr., chief of public affairs for the U.S. Army in Europe. "There are no German newspapers urging U.S. troops to get out of Germany."

Johnson said there are numerous signs that American troops, stationed at 168 sites around the country, are well liked locally.

"At Christmas 1974, Germans invited 2,000 U.S. troops to spend the holiday in their homes," he said. "Last Christmas, German families entertained three times as many soldiers — about 6,000."

Vacation boring, claims educator

By DAN EVEN

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Millions of children are about to put their books aside and start summer vacation, but one educator says they'd rather stay in school because learning is fun and sitting in the sun at the ol' fishing hole can be a bore.

"The modern school has become so stimulating and interesting that summer can be a letdown to a child," Dr. Bradley Loomer, a professor of education at the University of Iowa, said in an interview.

He estimated 80 per cent of America's children enjoy school more than their parents did and don't relish vacation as much.

"Most households are sterile as learning centers and kids don't get a chance to stretch mentally," Loomer said. "There's television and that's about it."

The educator said most parents are not meeting the challenge of making summer vacation as interesting as classroom activities.

"Parents are unware of the things going on in schools today," he said. "They have only their past to draw from when it was mostly sitting and reading."

Vacation takes up one-fourth of a child's learning years — three out of 12 years he or she will spend in elementary and high schools — and that is too much time to waste in humdrum or mere entertainment, he said.

"Mental development drops off during the summer break for a great many children because there is no home stimulus," Loomer said.

Most kids would rather think of summer as a time to learn as many new things as possible, he said, and are ready to be up and doing things by the time they would start school.

Loomer suggested that parents group possible summer activities in categories that will help a child's mental, emotional, social and physical development and those that will "brush up" a child's reading, computation and verbal-communication skills.

Most children today are emotionally well-balanced and feel good about themselves, he said, but summer group activities help them learn more about their strengths and weaknesses and ways to overcome the latter.

Because summer neighborhood groups are informal, they're great places for social and emotional growth, Loomer said. The groups take the place to some extent of family activities during the summer for children.

Travel is a challenge for a child, but Loomer estimated that less than 25 per cent of American families now take such vacations.

"An ideal situation would be to keep schools open on an information basis — as sort of a resource center — for kids in the summer," he said. "But the problem there is economics."

JON NEWTON
Texas Railroad Commission

The Railroad Commission is one of the most powerful regulatory and conservation agencies in America. Two candidates are in the June 5th Democratic runoff election:

JERRY SADLER, 68, who entered politics in the 1930's, was defeated as Land Commissioner in 1970 after an official reprimand from the Texas House for refusal to cooperate in an investigation . . . bad absentee record in public office . . . investigated by a grand jury for using a state employee to run his private motel . . . sued for civil tax fraud by the IRS . . . in 1969 the Dallas Times Herald declared "Sadler has made Texas government a universal target of ridicule and derision," and in 1976 the San Angelo Standard echoed, "Under Sadler, the Railroad Commission just might become the laughing stock he once made of the General Land Office."

JON NEWTON, 34, three-term House member with solid record of public service . . . authored the law regulating strip mining . . . fought for a Public Utility Commission . . . serves on Interstate Oil Compact Commission, Mining Council of Texas, Governor's Energy Advisory Council, House Energy Resources Committee (vice chairman) . . . endorsed by major newspapers throughout Texas . . . described by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal as "the resident expert on energy matters in the State Legislature" . . . in the first Democratic primary his Bee County neighbors gave him an 85% majority over his seven opponents.

Texas' energy and utility rate problems can be solved only by vigorous, responsible leadership and fresh approaches.

VOTE FOR THE QUALIFIED, RESPONSIBLE CANDIDATE.

VOTE JUNE 5 FOR JON NEWTON.

CIA analyst urges U.S. recognition of China

By MURREY MARDER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States should consider formally recognizing the People's Republic of China as China's "sole government" before the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, a senior analyst of the Central Intelligence Agency has publicly advocated.

Failure to act before the ailing, 82-year-old Mao dies could undermine the pro-U.S. faction in Peking and strengthen pro-Soviet forces, said Roger Glenn Brown, writing in the quarterly magazine Foreign Policy.

Publication of these views of a CIA official on one of the most sensitive subjects in Washington brought reactions of surprise inside and outside the Ford administration.

State Department officials said they were not aware of the publication in advance. They ridiculed speculation that it might be an official "trial balloon."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger maintains tight control over all governmental comment concerning China. The Brown article "was not sent to us for clearance," a State Department official emphasized.

Foreign Policy described the commentary as the work of "a senior analyst at the CIA who is presenting his own views and not the official position of his organization."

One source described the article as representative of "a minority view" in a major, continuing debate on China policy inside the Ford administration.

The official U.S. position is that the normalization of relations with China, since the Nixon administration in 1972 ended a generation of hostility with China, is a continuing process with "no established timetable."

The United States and China operate "liaison offices" in Peking and Washington, while the U.S. maintains diplomatic ties, and a defense treaty, with the nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan.

The Brown article contains many departures from official American assessments of how the triangular U.S.-Chinese-Soviet relationship developed.

The most provocative is Brown's assessment that in the celebrated 1969 Ussuri River clashes between Chinese and Soviet troops, Mao and the late Premier Chou En-lai engineered the intitial Chinese attack on Soviet forces. Part of their objective, Brown concludes, was to isolate the late Defense Minister Lin Piao and his military supporters who sought improved relations with Moscow.

In 1971, by Brown's interpretation, after Lin's death in an abortive coup against Mao, "Mao and Chou systematically exaggerated the threat of war with the Soviet Union to create a crisis atmosphere conducive to party unity during the purge they conducted of pro-Lin military figures ...."

Now, Brown warns: " ...Prolonged stagnation in Sino-U.S. relations could well contribute to undermining the political power of those individuals and groups within China which are favorably disposed toward Washington, and lead to an increase in the relative power of either pro-Soviet elements in the military, the radicals or some coalition of both groups.

"If this happens, China might well revert to a self-imposed isolationism similar to that of the Cultural Revolution or seek a general accommodation with Russia."

The CIA, through a spokesman, Thursday disclaimed any responsibility for the article, describing it as "a totally personal point of view, ...from totally open sources available to all China scholars."

"The agency does not get into policy," the spokesman said. CIA Director George Bush, who headed the U.S. liaison mission in Peking before he was installed as CIA chief on Jan. 30, was not involved in the preparation or publication of the article, the spokesman said.

Spanish king, queen open exhibit at Smithsonian

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The king and queen of Spain Thursday opened the remarkable Columbus exhibit at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology, and they did it in roughly 93 seconds with considerable historical and technical flair.

For one thing, King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia evidently thought that the Spanish treasures being shown for the first time in the New World needed no speeches or fanfare. For another, they thought a two-minute appearance would be as well-received by the crowd as an extended tour while the crowd waited outside the velvet ropes, and in both decisions they were undoubtedly correct.

The king, before reaching the glass cases containing Columbus' letters, walked beneath the pulpit from which, in 1942, the royal warrant of Ferdinand and Isabella was read, to authorize Columbus to sail.

This little pulpit, from the church of San Jorge de Palos, the port from which Columbus sailed, was also the podium from which news of the Columban voyages were announced in subsequent months and years.

Besides all that, it is a delightful example of careful craftsmanship from the past age when even the pulpit of a minor church was thought to be worth a person's good judgment.

The royal couple, followed by a throng of people invited for the occasion, moved on to the great map, the size of a dining table, by Juan de la Cosa. This was veiled in red cloth which was withdrawn to open the show. The map was drawn in 1500 by one of Columbus' navigators who later rose to positions of trust in his own right.

King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella, who sponsored the voyages, were naturally keen to see what, if anything, they were getting for their money. The map was to show them. It is now housed at the naval museum in Madrid.

The map has long been speculated on by scholars for numerous mysteries in it, but anyone can see Cuba looking very much in 1500 as it does today, and it is fascinating to notice on this map the English flags acknowledging the Canadian coast exploration by Sebastian Cabot in 1497.

Guam airliner crash kills 46 persons today

AGANA, Guam, (AP) — An Air Manila propjet airliner crashed and burned early today after taking off from Guam International Airport, killing all 45 persons aboard as well as the driver of a pickup truck on the ground, authorities said.

Killed on board the Lockheed Electra were 33 passengers, all Filipino contract workers returning to Manila from Wake Island, and 12 crew members, said Cleothas Cox, resident director of the Federal Aviation Administration on this U.S. island territory.

"It's pretty safe to say they died instantly," said Dr. Jung Lee Park, a Guam Public Safety Department pathologist.

The plane, flight 702, had stopped at Guam to refuel.

It was taking off, eyewitnesses said, when the pilot appeared to attempt a crash landing.

The plane's tail hit a fence, sending it nose-first into the ground about a mile from the runway.

Another witness said the plane hit a hill, bounced over a highway and hit the pickup.

Armed Marines guarded the crash site. Navy firemen lifted burned and mangled bodies from the charred wreckage.

Authorities said a list of the victims would not be disclosed until families were notified, probably late today at the earliest.

OPEN ALL DAY MONDAY THRU SATURDAY

Dear Friends,

Saturday, June 5, you, the voters, will select your Democratic nominee for Sheriff for all of Midland County. Never before has your vote been more important in a Sheriff's election. I know you have been to the polls many times in the past few months, but I urge you to vote this Saturday in a selection so vital to the future of your community.

During this run-off time, I have continued to conduct a professional and highly ethical campaign, my objective being to show you my qualifications and to project my plans for giving you a strong, modern professional working Sheriff's Department.

I believe the time has arrived when every factor involved in the future, not the past, of your sheriff's Department should be carefully examined. Please examine all aspects of this race, looking toward the future of this great area. When you enter the voting booth Saturday, there will be no radio spots, news paper ads, or television commercials to sway you in any way. No one will ever know for whom you are voting in those few seconds, but in this brief time you will determine the direction of law enforcement for many years to come. My friends, please vote your true convictions.

I ask for your vote. It will be sincerely appreciated. I will do my best to merit your trust and confidence by doing the job as your Sheriff for all of Midland County. YOU WILL HAVE A PROFESSIONAL, WORKING SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT when you employ me as your Sheriff.

Thank you,

Paul Welch

Public utility commission already has funding woes

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, (AP.)—A special fee that could add 60 cents to each $100 of Texans' electric and telephone bills was meant to pay for the new public utility commission.

But a last-minute decision by the 1975 legislature will cause most of the money to flow into the general treasury for lawmakers to spend on other things.

Advocates of utility regulation envisioned a $5 million-a-year commission.

The Legislative Budget Board estimated that an assessment of six-tenths of one per cent—60 cents per $100—on utility companies' gross receipts from consumers would raise a little over $5 million. The assessment was written into the new law.

But the House and Senate decided in the final hours of the session that $1.2 million was enough.

As a result, the agency will receive far more in assessments than it can legally spend. The overflow will pass into the general revenue fund, already so swollen that Gov. Dolph Briscoe can safely promise no new state taxes for a third straight legislative session.

The commission's staff estimates that the assessment will raise between $7 million and $10 million a year. First payments are due Aug. 31.

Companies cannot pass the assessment through to customers in their rates as of now. But the commission will have the power after it begins rate regulation on Sept. 1 to permit this and is expected to do so.

Commission expenditures are frozen at $1.2 million a year by the general appropriation act.

"The problem is, $1.2 million makes it difficult to regulate properly," said commission member Al Erwin.

With only 42 employes, The commission will fall behind on cases when it takes on its rate regulation duties in less than three months, Erwin predicted.

The agency's appropriation is on a par with those of the State Cosmetology Board, the Commission on the Arts and Humanities, the Veterans Affairs Commission and the Historical Commission. None has the public utility commission's workload.

Erwin said the commission might exercise its authority to reduce the assessment, subject to legislative approval.

But mainly, he said, the agency wants authority to spend more of the take from the assessment. There might be a request in January for an emergency increase in the present appropriation.

Erwin said there definitely will be a request for a much larger budget for the two years beginning Sept. 1, 1977.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, a prime legislative mover of utility regulation, said the agency's present budget was added by resolution after a House-Senate conference committee had finished the appropriation bill. He said he sought $5 million a year "on bended knee" but the resolution that passed on the final day of the session carried only $1.2 million.

He observed that some legislative budget leaders weren't keen on utility regulation.

Sores may force Marine swimmer to drop project

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — Suffering from open body sores and unable to bend one leg, disappointed Marine Capt. Alan Jones was close today to abandoning his attempt to swim 700 miles of the Mississippi River.

His companion, insurance agent Wayne Thompson, 33, of Portland, Ore., remained unaffected by the river pollution and poison ivy that threatened to stop Jones.

"But I may have to consider stopping" the swimming adventure, the dejected 29-year-old Vietnam War veteran said Thursday.

"At this point I plan to struggle on as long as I can. Part of the game in river swimming is to expect some problems."

Jones, author of the book "Quit is a Four-Letter Word," said that doctors at a Dubuque, Iowa, hospital "felt I should abandon the swim entirely and not return to the water for several weeks."

Jones, 5-foot-9 and 140 pounds, has lost 8 pounds in his fight against the river. The 6- foot Thompson, normally a 200- pounder, is down to about 190.

"Because of our commitments (to welcoming groups) along the river," Jones said, "I'm going to continue as long as I can."

A native of LeMars, Iowa, Jones won the Bronze Star for heroism and the Purple Heart for shrapnel wounds in Vietnam. He is a physical fitness instructor at Quantico, Va.

The men began their swim May 24 at Minneapolis. It is scheduled to end June 14 at St. Louis.

Jones' infection broke out Wednesday. "It's really getting bad," he said. "I have 10 or 12 large, open running sores and my right leg is swelled so I can't bend it now.

"Doctors don't really know the cause. One theory is that I came in contact with poison ivy, which sounds sort of strange. The water flowing into the sores created a secondary infection."

Roloff hearing continues

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff says welfare workers were barred from inspecting his three children's homes in South Texas "because it violated my conscience."

Roloff's contempt of court hearing continues today before State District Court Judge Charles Mathews.

"These are church homes and we believe we have operated them according to the Bible," the deep-voiced minister testified Thursday. He faces a possible jail sentence for violating a court order.

"We believe we are responsible to the Lord and the parents of these children, not the state," he insisted.

Roloff and two of his child care home superintendents are accused of violating the May 27 order of Austin Dist. Court Judge Jim Meyers to let welfare department staff members inspect his homes as a prelude to state licensing.

The legislature passed a new child care licensing act in 1975 that includes such homes as those operated by Roloff.

On the same day that Meyers ordered Roloff to admit the welfare inspectors, a Corpus Christi judge sentenced Roloff to five days in jail and fined him $250 on each of eight charges of defying the Corpus Christi court's 1973 order to let his homes be inspected.

The start of the sentence was delayed until June 14 to allow him to complete a revival meeting.

Roloff said Thursday he signed an agreed judgment in 1973 "under duress and pressure and I never intended to get a license ... I signed it to get some time for my 400 children. They were closing up every home in the state.

"They could cut both my arms but I would never sign another one again," he said.

Roloff and his attorneys stressed that he adopted his no state inspection policy because of "Biblical convictions," not because of contempt of any judge.

CARL DALLY

Judge of the

Texas Court of Criminal Appeals

"Carl Dally has been a commissioner-in-aid to the court of criminal appeals for half a decade. He has argued before the U.S. Supreme Court and has had extensive experience in both the criminal and civil branches of the law. His opponent is a man with no judicial or appellate experience in criminal cases. We urge Texas Democrats eligible to vote in the June 5 runoffs to inform themselves of the qualifications of the candidates in this and all races. We urge them not to vote for a vaguely familiar name, but to vote for the best man. In the case of the runoff for the criminal appeals court, the best candidate is clearly Carl Dally."

AUSTIN AMERICAN-STATESMAN

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram calls Carl Dally "eminently qualified" and the Houston Chronicle says he is "uniquely suited" to serve on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. $150 million okayed for smog-free engine

By PAUL HOUSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The House Thursday authorized $150 million for the development of a smog-free, fuel-saving alternative to the internal combustion automobile engine.

A major thrust of the bill, sponsored by Rep. George E. Brown Jr. D-Calif., and approved, 296 to 86, is to give a new mission to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration during a deemphasis of the space prograo.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., which has done research on a new auto engine, would be a prime beneficiary of the legislation.

A related bill, sponsored by Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., will come to the Senate floor soon. In addition to the development of a new engine, Tunney's bill calls for government production of a prototype "car of the future," embodying safety and durability features as well as anti-smog and energy efficiency characteristics.

Twice the Senate has passed Tunney bills on the subject, only to have them die in the House.

Brown said, "I think we can put together a bill now (in a Senate-House conference) that can pass Congress."

He called the legislation "absolutely necessary."

"In the short run," he said, "we need to have a less-polluting engine. In the long run, we're running out of oil and we need an engine that can burn other fuels," up to and including powdered cow dung, he said.

His bill would authorize a five-year, $150 million program of research and development to be carried out by government labs and private industry.

The Energy Research and Development Administration would manage the program, but NASA would be expected to do much of the government work on a new engine or engines.

A report on the Brown bill by the House Science and Technology Committee said the most likely candidates for advanced engine development were the Brayton (gas turbine) and Stirling cycle (external combustion) propulsion systems. Other possibilities are diesel, steam, electric, stratified drive and so-called lean burn systems.

Rep. Barry M. Goldwater Jr. (R-Calif.), sponsor of a House-passed bill to promote development of an electric car, opposed the Brown bill.

In the committee report he called it "primarily a make-work type bail-out" for the relatively inactive NASA labs. He said ERDA already has an adequate engine development program and that he feared a Senate-House conference on the legislation would raise federal funding to intolerable levels. A major concern, he said, was that private industry would be too little involved.

However, Goldwater did not strenuously oppose the bill in House debate.

"We massaged the hell out of Goldwater to make sure there would be no amendments or great opposition on the floor," Brown said.

Goldwater said: "The bill is a hell of a lot better than what we started with. We have assurances now that it supplements but does not supplant efforts of private industry."

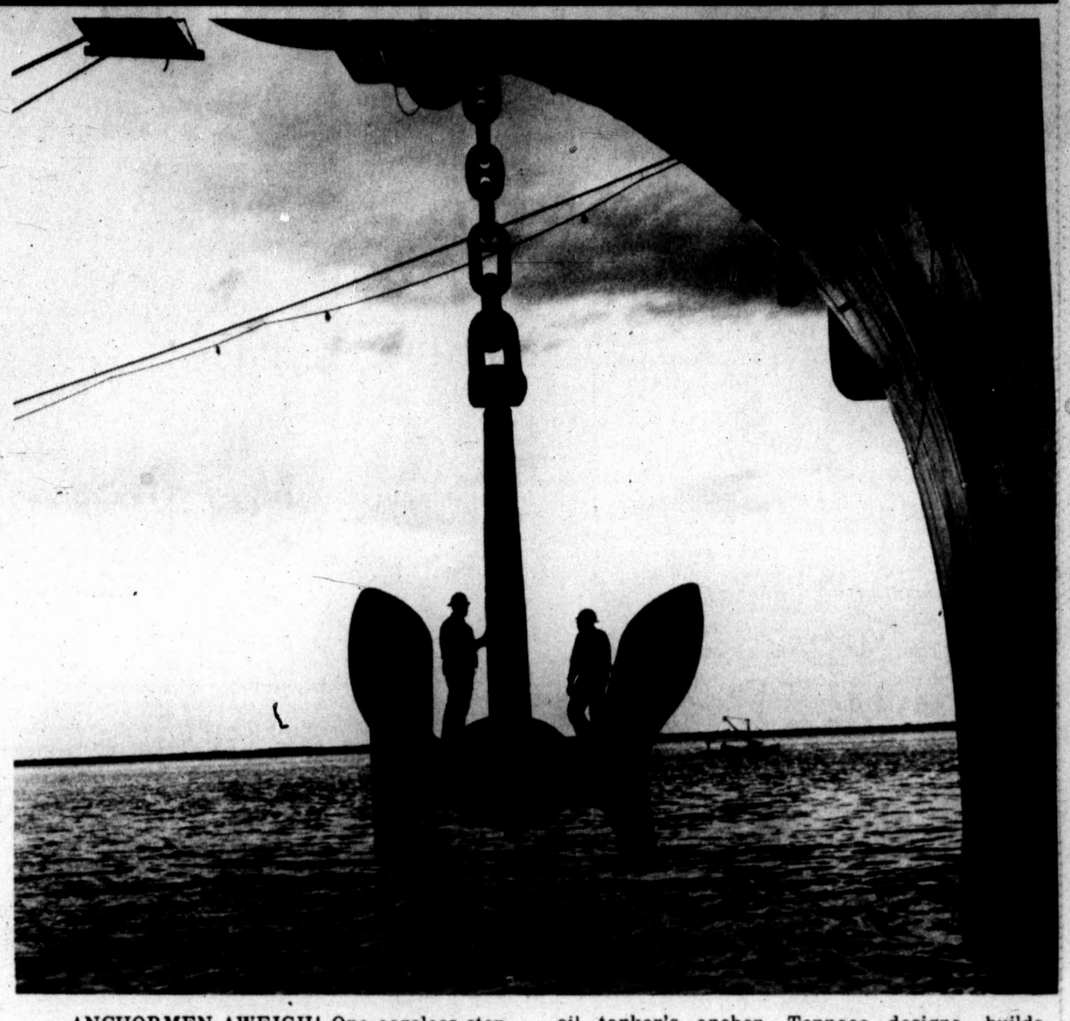

Meanwhile, the development by Volvo of what a California official called "a nearly smog-free car" for 1977 has spurred an intense lobbying effort on Capitol Hill to oppose Detroit's drive for substantial relaxation of federal emission standards.

The California official, Tom Quinn, chairman of the Air Resources Board, appeared at a press conference with Reps. Brown, Henry A. Waxman (D-Calif.) and Andrew Maguire (D-N.J.), leaders of the effort to maintain tough anti-smog requirements.

Waxman and Maguire said they will attempt to amend the clean air bill, due soon on the House floor, so that automakers will have to meet the low, statutory limit on nitrogen oxide emissions by 1981.

The original Clean Air Act required that the now standard be met by 1978, but The Ford Administration and the auto industry want to keep the Now limit at a relatively high level through 1981 and then leave future levels to the discretion of the Environmental Protection Agency administrator.

The Waxman-Maguire amendment also would postpone the statutory 1978 limit for hydrocarbons only until 1979, instead of 1982, as proposed by EPA and the industry. The final carbon monoxide standard would be postponed by Waxman-Maguire from 1978 until 1981, not until 1982 as proposed by EPA and industry.

ANCHORMEN AWEIGH! One careless step and they would be awash instead of aweigh. These workmen at Tenneco's Newport News Shipbuilding yard had a weight responsibility—inspecting this oil tanker's anchor. Tenneco designs, builds, repairs and remodels ships at its shipyard in Newport News, Va.

Private, government owned plants possible

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration, which has favored a new private uranium enrichment plant as an alternative to a new governmentowned facility, now is laying plans to make both plants possible.

If Congress requires construction of a new government plant at Portsmouth, Ohio, administration officials say, the plant's nuclear fuel processing services may be withheld from potential new customers, which would mean a proposed private enrichment plant at Dothan, Ala., would be their supplier.

The policy shift was revealed Thursday just before next week's presidential primary in Ohio, where Ford faces a challenge by Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination. The change may give Ford some political comfort in both Ohio and in Alabama where the $5- billion private project would be built.

Last June, when Ford proposed legislation to authorize construction of private uranium enrichment facilities, he opposed any new government facility. The government has maintained a monopoly on uranium enrichment which produces the fuel for nuclear power plants.

The Joint Atomic Energy Committee changed the bill to require the government to build the next plant.

During a campaign visit to Ohio last week, Ford said he would support the bill, but described its proposed government project as "a complementary backup system," a phrase that was not immediately clear.

Meeting with reporters on Thursday, Ford spoke of reviewing "the two-track proposal" — both government and private uranium enrichment — and said "we have to keep our options open."

But Ford's Cabinet secretary, James E. Connor, said Ford did not mean to cast doubt on completion of an "add-on" to the uranium enrichment facility at Portsmouth, Ohio, if Congress decides it wants one.

Connor said the administration was considering using the output of such a new gove nment plant to improve the efficiency of its own existing enrichment operations, rather than to fill the needs of new nuclear power plants due to begin operation in the 1980s.

Connor said most of any new Portsmouth putput would be applied to reduce the amount of raw uranium required by the government's existing custooers for their nuclear fuel, saving them considerable money. Uranium prices have soared over the last year.

Discovery potentials

H. L. Brown Jr. of Midland has completed No. 1 Amoco-Fee as a Wolfcamp lime oil discovery in North Pecos County, 20 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

It was finaled to flow 40 barrels of 36.4-gravity oil per day, through a 16-64-inch choke, and perforations at 9,518-9,541 feet. The pay had been acidized with 1,500 gallons.

Staked as a deep wildcat, it was drilled to 11,269 feet, and plugged back to 9,578 feet, in a 4½-inch liner hung from 8,567-9,600 feet.

Ground elevation is 2,581 feet, and tom of the pay was picked at 9,492 feet.

Wellsite is 990 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 6, block 143, T&StL survey.

Upton project recovers gas

Gas Producing Enterprises, Inc., Midland, was drilling ahead below 10,160 feet, on a 10,600-foot wildcat contract, after the project recovered gas and oil and gas shows on a drillstem test in an unidentified formation at No. 1 Wakefield, Upton County project.

Tool was open 70 minutes on the test from 10,015-10,078 feet. It recovered 1,600 feet of gas and 180 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut mud, plus 200 cubic centimeters of oil and 2,040 cubic centimeters of mud from the sample chamber.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 760 feet from west lines of section 38, block 42, T-4-S, T&P survey, 30 miles south of Odessa. It is about five miles northwest of the Davis multipay field.

Operator takes final

National Exploration Co., Houston, No. 2 Bertha Glasscock, confirmation well and ⅝-mile north extension in the Devil's River (Strawn) gas field of Val Verde County, gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 9.5 million cubic feet of gas per day.

The potential test was taken through perforations at 10,099-10,882 feet, after treating with 20,000 gallons and 20,000 pounds of fracture.

Wellsite is 2,375 feet from south and 1,960 feet from east lines of section 6, block G, GWT&P survey, nine miles northeast of Juno.

The pay opener, National Exploration No. 1 Drisdale, was completed in September, 1975, for 4.636 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 10,223-10,495 feet.

Tom Green test hits gas

Fortune Drilling Corp. of San Angelo, No. 3 Probandt, ½ mile southeast of the Tom Green County part of the Probandt (Canyon) field, recovered 2,845 feet of gas, 60 feet of gas-cut mud, 30 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut mud and 240 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud on a drillstem test in the Canyon.

The recovery was on a two-hour test taken from 7,129-7,213 feet.

The test is bottomed at 7,213 feet, and operator is preparing to run casing for completion attempt.

It is 858 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of section 55, block 7, H&TC survey, 20 miles south of Sterling City. The field currently has four wells.

WT sectors get projects

Exploration has been planned in Andrews County, plans are made to extend a pay zone in a Pecos field and a wildcat has been staked in Runnels.

Wood, McShane & Thams of Manahans rescheduled as a 3,110-foot wildcat in Andrews, No. 1 Crews & Mast, previously planned test in the Block A-34, North (San Andrew) field.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 8, block A-34, PSL survey, 12 miles north of Andrews.

PECOS REENTRY

Bass Enterprises Production Co., Midland, intends to attempt recompletion as a 33¼-mile east extension to the current three-well Wolfcamp area of the Gomez field of Pecos County, at No. 1-B Price.

Originally staked by Bass in 1970 as an Ellenburger test in the field, it tested from Ellcnburger open hole at 21,775-22,262 feet.

It hit the Wolfcamp gas zone while drilling toward the Ellenburger objective, and was temporarily completed from the Wolfcamp gas zone for 1.080 million cubic feet of gas dailyk, from open hole at 15,039-16,181 feet, to deplete gas prior to drilling ahead.

The well was completed as the Devonian gas pay opener in October, 1972, for 5 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 18,679-18,862 feet.

Sidetracked total depth is 22,465 feet. Bass plans to plug back to 15,850 feet and test above that depth in the Wolfcamp.

It is 15,500 feet from north and 650 feet from east lines of section 1, block 203½, S. A. Hopson survey, 11 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

John W. Barbee of Abilene has staked a 3,950-foot wildcat in Runnels, 14 miles northeast of Ballinger, as No. 1 S. D. Faubion.

Drillsite is ⅞ mile southeast of a depleted area, and 1⅜ miles southwest of the lone Jennings well in the Crews, South field.

The new test spots 1,400 feet from northwest and 467 feet from southwest lines of section 24, Antonio Losoyo survey 515.

Extension assured

A second well and ⅜-mile east extension to the Prudence (Atoka) gas field of King County has been assured with the flowing of gas at the rate of 8 to 10 million cubic feet per day at Gus Edwards, Abilene, No. 2 Floyce Masterson.

The flow was gauged through perforations at 6,175-6,181 feet, choke size not reported. The pay had been acidized with 350 gallons.

It was drilled to 6,256 feet, and recovered 2,300 feet of oil and 1,100 feet of salt water on a drillstem test at 6,192-6,256 feet. Operator set 4½-inch casing at total depth.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,307 feet from east lines of section 8, D. N. Robinson survey 8, 14 miles northeast of Guthrie.

Sultanate of Oman's angles make it unusual boom area

By TILLMAN DURDIN
Copley News Service

MUSCAT, Sultanate of Oman — How oil riches bring sudden modernity to desert lands is by now an old story in and around the Arabian peninsula. But the experience of the Sultanate of Oman as an oil boom kingdom has angles that make it more interesting — and more important — than most.

When oil began to be exploited in a big way here in the late 1960s this ancient Islamic monarchy flanking the sea-lanes from the Persian Gulf was in the grip of an aging sultan obsessed with resisting change.

Doggedly he tried to keep his 750,000 tribal Arab subjects in roughly the same state of existence and customs as those of their ancestors at the time of Mohammad the Prophet. Visitors were excluded; almost no Omani was permitted to go abroad; only a few dozen youths a year were given an education; there were only a few score miles of paved roads; and possessing an automobile required the personal, rarely given approval of the sultan himself.

Today, after six years of rule by Sultan Qaboos Bin Said, 35, backward Oman has rushed into the modern world and today is rapidly catching up with oil-rich neighbors that began the development process years before Oman got going.

The ruler lived in seclusion, not in the hot, dry little capital of Muscat, but hundreds of miles south in the green, monsoon-cooled coastal town of Salala. It took months for the little state business that was done to be transacted between officials in Muscat and the sultan hundreds of roadless miles away.

Opposition was brutally suppressed. After a revolt had been put down in 1957, mainly by British forces whose aid the sultan had sought (for three centuries Britain has maintained a sort of informal protectorate over Oman), the sultan had Royal Air Force planes bomb into rubble several of the mountain villages from which the insurgents had operated.

A son permitted to go to England for higher education was put in detention after he returned home because he favored modernization.

Hostesses were Mrs. Edwin F. Alstrin, Mrs. Carlton Beal Jr., Mrs. Ronald A. Britton and Mrs. Paul C. Rea.

Miss Currie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Currie of Garden City. The couple plans to be married June 12 in the First Christian Church.

Phantom driver goes in circles

ADA TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — When Polly Payne drove up her street and got out to get the mail, her automobile began to back up in a circle without benefit of the driver.

"It just kept making perfect circles," said Mrs. Payne. The car continued its strange motion about 45 minutes and was stopped finally by a sheriff's deputy, who unlocked the passenger side door, jumped into the seat and hit the brakes.

DEAR ABBY

Al-Anon helps with the families

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law phoned from the police station to say she had been arrested for drunk driving, so we went to get her out and drive her car home. (I'm surprised she hasn't been picked up before now.)

My husband drove her car home, and if they had given HIM a breath test, he would have been in trouble because he'd been drinking beer all day and was far from sober.

I've known that my husband has had a drinking problem for a long time, but he won't admit it, and no amount of nagging will change his mind.

He wonders why our sex life has diminished, but it's hard to be lovey dovey with a man who is drunk and unable to function half the time.

How does a woman who really loves her husband help him if he refuses to admit that he has a problem?—BLUE IN BURBANK

DEAR BLUE: She calls Al-Anon. It's a self-help group that counsels the families of alcoholics. You need to learn how to cope with problem drinkers, and Al-Anon does an excellent job. They're in your phone book. Get going, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I read about the woman whose husband destroyed all their credit cards. You said since she was employed she could have credit cards issued in her name. That's fine, if she has an independent income, but what about women who are NOT employed, such as farm wives who help run the farm? Or the housewife whose work consists of keeping house and raising the children?

I think the Equal Opportunity Act discriminates against women who are not employed outside the home. Why not include all women and let the chips fall where they may?

You gave a good answer to the working woman, but what about the rest of us?—ROBERTA

DEAR ROBERTA: If a housewife or "farm wife" has no income other than her husband's, she cannot qualify for an independent credit card. And certainly not if her husband won't pay the bills and destroys the joint cards.

Credit cards are issued on proven ability to pay. Women who are financially dependent on their husbands have no credit on their own. It may be "unfair," but it's another fact of life that needs changing.

WOMEN'S NEWS

DEAR ABBY: A while back you did a whole column on what men notice first about women. Some men said they noticed a woman's figure first, some said her face, her legs, her behind, her eyes.

Well, the first thing I notice about a woman is the size of her husband.—RON IN CORRECTIONVILLE, IOWA

Pam Hanson entertained

Pam Hanson, bride-elect of Luther Hawley, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower in the Reddy Room of Texas Electric Co.

The couple is to be married in June.

Vada Thomas was hostess to the party. A yellow and white color scheme was featured in the decorations.

Dr. Johnson had formula

A simple formula for staying solvent was developed in the 18th century by Dr. Samuel Johnson.

He said, "Whatever you have spend less." He wasn't advocating a miserly life though, because he also advised, "It is better to live rich than to die rich."

Judge grants change for individuality's sake

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — County Judge Kim Goldberger granted a change of name to a woman who said she wanted a choice in the matter as "a joyous affirmation of individuality."

Goldberger approved the name change for Susan Marriette Peters, who wanted her last name to be Whitefeather.

In her petition for the change, she described her decision as "a statement of denial of the unequal values remaining from an outdated agrarian culture, built on and maintained by war, slavery, racism and the subjugation of women."

She noted that subservience by women is carried through "by the handing down of surnames through the patriarchal line."

Cynthia Anne Haltom, James Isbell marry

Wedding vows were exchanged by Cynthia Anne Haltom and James Miller Isbell in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The Rev. Bill Curry performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James L. Haltom of 4622 Ric Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Isbell of 2204 Whitney Ave.

Mrs. Kathy Coffman was matron of honor for her sister's wedding, and Donna Folger was the bridesmaid.

Best man was James E. Isbell, the groom's father. Mike Getz was the groomsman.

Ushers were James E. Haltom, brother of the bride, Buc Young and Mark Bailey.

Acolytes for the ceremony were John Grace and David Grace.

Organist was Wanda Gill.

Mrs. James Miller Isbell

The bride was presented in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of filmy chiffon with re-embroidered Alencon lace of ivory. The gown featured a fitted bodice and deep rounded yoke that extended to form a high neckline. A banding on the lace outlined the yoke and encircled the neckline. Multiple rows of lace traced the bodice front and the arch waistline. The full sleeves were encircled with a row of lace above the wide cuffs and on the cuffs at the wrist. The chiffon skirt of chiffon over silk taffeta was A-line and unfolded across the back creating a Watteau hemline that encircled the train. A multi-tiered veil of silk illusion fell from an open coif headpiece sprinkled with seed pearls. Tiny Venise lace flowers accented the edge of each tier. The bride carried a bouffant bouquet of white carnations and Sonia roses with baby's breath and cascading ivy.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will be at home at 403 Humble Ave.

Children give television news

CHICAGO (AP) — A television program broadcast here on Sunday mornings is put together entirely by local youngsters aged from eight to 13.

The half-hour news show called "Bubble Gum Digest" is the brainchild of producer Diane Bloomgarden, 20, who selected a crew of about 17 reporters and anchorpersons after auditioning more than 100 children.

The show is sophisticated and covers wide-ranging subjects from entertainment to politics. Jacob Weisberg, the show's 11-year-old political reporter, even had a quick interview with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller recently.

Anchorpersons make $50 a show and reporters earn $25 an appearance.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROL RIGHTER

(Sat., June 5)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An interesting time when you can attend to practical, down-to-earth matters, not only to relieve you of some present burdens and chores, but also to bring you new methods for accomplishing important ambitions.

ARIES: (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Energetically clear the slate of duties to prepare the day for bigger things ahead. Take time for exercise that will revitalize you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to get into the arguments and sports you like best and have a good time. Take mate along for best results, greater rapport.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show more interest in your home and kin and less in outsiders who have been taking you off the track lately.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Visit with good pals and relatives and talk over important affairs and gain cooperation. Look about for new inventions that make work easier.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to consult with financial experts who can give you most valuable advice for increasing your success. Revise budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get into personal activities important to you and you have fine results. Later, enjoy recreations that most appeal to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can get the data you need from private sources today that will help you get ahead in your personal goals. An enjoyable evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show appreciation for those who have been good to you. Attend social functions where you can make new contacts, further your career also. Handle money wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study career affairs that require more attention from you right now, and get the approval of higher-ups.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find new interests for greater self-expression and get the cooperation of friends. Study data connected therewith. Avoid a sadist.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You know exactly how to handle obligations you have and get good results now which have been difficult in the past. Be happy with loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ferret out what is expected of you by your partners and come to a perfect agreement. Then off to amusements and be happy.

Slight mistake in guide for blind at Florida hotel

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Betty Sweet Epstein is an expert in Braille and does illustrations and maps in which the lines are raised so that the blind can read them with their fingers. Recently she designed a raised plan of the lobby of a Miami Beach hotel where a convention of blind persons was going to be held. The plan included the location of elevators, stairways, a restaurant, bars, lounges, doors and so forth. It turned out satisfactorily in all respects except one. Inadvertently, she got the men's and women's restrooms reversed.

When two hands are joined in the expression of friendship, love, marriage — that's a clasp.

Of course, we have another word: grasp. Little affection implied. Determination to seize, to control. To a sensitive mind grasp suggests GREED.

And does clasp, to a sensitive mind, suggest CLING?

It was Our Lord who said of marriage that "a man shall leave his mother and father and cling to his wife, and they shall be one."

The Church provides the spiritual resources to strengthen marriage, to make firmer the bonds of family.

Reception to honor new associate ministers

The congregation of First United Methodist Church will welcome its two new associate ministers and their families at a Sunday evening reception.

The new members of the pastoral staff, the Rev. Jerry Wyatt and the Rev. Bill Weir, were appointed during the recent annual meeting of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church at Glorieta, N. M.

Mr. Wyatt, son of a Methodist minister, graduated from high school at Petersburg, near Lubbock, and holds a degree in business administration from Texas Tech University, where he minored in music. He received the master of theology degree from Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University last month. He and his wife, the former Melody White of Snyder, are the parents of two small children, Chris, 4, and Kari, 17 months old.

The other new associate minister, Mr. Weir, comes to Midland from Houston where he has served as minister of education at the St. Paul United Methodist Church for the last four years. Prior to that, he held similar posts at two other Houston churches.

Reared at Sulphur Springs, Mr. Weir graduated from Paschal High School of Fort Worth and received a bachelor of science degree from East Texas State University at Commerce. He taught school in Hopkins County for a time and served with the U. S. Army in California and Korea. Later he joined the staff of First Methodist Church of Sulphur Springs as youth director and completed work on a master's degree at East Texas State. He received his theology degree from Perkins School of Theology in 1958. While attending Perkins, he served as a student pastor at Methodist churches in Caddo Mills and Allen.

Mr. Weir served as associate executive secretary for the board of education of the North Texas Conference of the United Methodist denomination for several years. He holds certification as a minister of education in the denomination and is an accredited trainer in courses for youth and parents. He has led Methodist youth travel seminars to Washington, D. C., and to Europe. He and wife Joan have a daughter, Cindy, who will attend Lee High School as a junior next fall, and a son, Andy, a junior high school student.

Sunday's reception honoring the ministers and their families will be at 6:30 p.m. in the church parlor. All members and friends of the congregation are invited to attend.

Rev. C. M. Minor

Rev. Minor appointed to pastorate

The Rev. C. M. Minor has been appointed to the pastorate of Midland's Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St.

Mr. Minor replaces the Rev. Wilbart Bledsoe, Hollowell's pastor since 1971, who was given disability leave from the active ministry during the recent annual meeting of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist denomination.

Mr. Bledsoe and his family will continue to reside in Midland.

The new pastor, Mr. Minor, recently transferred to to the Northwest Texas Conference from the Southwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Choral workshop planned

HOUSTON — Church choir directors and choral conductors throughout Texas and neighboring states are invited to participate in a major choral workshop here June 18-20.

The event is being presented under sponsorship of the Houston Symphony Orchestra's Chorale. Workshop sessions will be held on the campus of Rice University.

Dr. Elmer Iseler, distinguished Canadian choral conductor, will lead five sessions on the preparation and performance of contemporary choral music. Varied works by Stravinsky, Britten and other 20th Century composers will be studied in an informal rehearsal format.

Dr. Iseler is founder-conductor of the Toronto Festival Singers and also conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir. Widely-acclaimed as a teacher and lecturer, he is an acknowledged authority on contemporary choral music. His previous work in the U. S. has been confined to the East Coast, with his upcoming appearance in Houston to mark his first Southwestern workshop.

The Houston Chorale-sponsored workshop is part of a program of continuing education for serious choral musicians of the Southwest. It is the organization's third annual clinic. Previous workshop directors were Robert Shaw and Roger Wagner.

The chorale is the official chorus of the Houston Symphony Orchestra. The 150-voice volunteer ensemble is directed by Donald Strong.

Vacation Bible Schools scheduled

The first Bible and church schools of the current vacation season are planned next week at several Midland churches.

Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, has scheduled its annual vacation church school Monday through next Friday. Classes are planned for children three years old through sixth grade level.

Classes will begin at 9:30 a.m. daily, concluding by 11:30, according to school co-directors Billie Meckley and Birdie Lamkin. All children of the community are invited to participate in the school.

Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., will hold Bible school classes Monday through Friday next week, with sessions at 8:30 a.m. daily.

The Rev. Elbert Smithen, Bellview's pastor, announced that classes will be held for children 3 years old on up to those of third grade level.

Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, will hold its annual Bible school June 8-11 and 15-18. Class sessions will begin at 9 a.m. each day, concluding by 11:30.

The school will offer classes and special events for children 4 through 13 years of age.

Rev. Henning expected to move to Big Spring

BIG SPRING — The Rev. William F. Henning Jr., of Atlanta is expected to become pastor of Big Spring's First Presbyterian Church soon.

The Big Spring congregation recently voted to call Mr. Henning as its minister to succeed the Rev. R. Earl Price who left to accept a pastorate at Dallas.

Plans for the installation of the new pastor are pending his being received into the Presbytery of Tres Rios, when the Presbytery has its meeting at Odessa June 9.

Mr. Henning, an Atlanta resident for three years, is a former pastor of the Sweetwater Presbyterian Church, and before that held church posts at Beaumont and Fort Worth and in California. He also has filled synodical posts.

Gospel team to perform

Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas St., will be host to a widely-known gospel music team, the Bailey family, during the Sunday evening worship hour.

The service will begin at 7 p.m. and will be open to the public, said the Rev. Paul Coxe, pastor of Gardens Assembly.

The Bailey evangelistic team consists of the Rev. Floyd Bailey, wife Emma Lou and daughter Kathy. The group will be presenting a number of original songs in the Sunday evening service in addition to familiar and well-loved gospel favorites, Pastor Coxe said. They will present their vocal numbers to the accompaniment of piano, accordian and bass guitar.

Kirvin calls Sivage

DALLAS — The Rev. Vernon W. Sivage, a former Midland resident, has been called to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Kirvin following his recent graduation from Dallas Theological Seminary.

Mr. Sivage's parents are Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Sivage of Midland.

Mr. Sivage was one of 150 persons completing requirements for degrees from Dallas Theological Seminary. He completed a rigorous four-year graduate program at the school which included study in Biblical languages, theology, missions and evangelism to be awarded the master of theology (Th. M.) degree.

Elaine Odom returns

Elaine Odom is beginning her third summer as interim organist at Memorial Christian Church.

Miss Odom is a student at Southwest Texas State University, San Marcos, where she is majoring in voice and organ. For her debut performance on Memorial Christian's new pipe organ Sunday morning, she will present keyboard works by Jean Langlais, Dietrich Buxtehude and J. S. Bach.

Convention plans set

Plans have been finalized for a four-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in Irving, June 10-13. Some 100 Witnesses from two Midland congregations are expected to attend the meeting, said David Ross, city overseer of the religious group.

The local delegates will join an anticipated crowd of 35,000 who will attend the seminar at Texas Stadium.

The theme of the conference is "Sacred Service," and it will be developed in a series of Bible lectures, symposiums, discussion periods and in four Bible dramas to be presented in full costume.

The material is designed to examine the problems confronting society today, and to suggest concrete solutions to overcome them.

Principal speaker for the convention will be N. H. Knorr of New York City, president of the Watchtower Bible & Tract Society, Inc., who will discuss "Will Serving God Solve Your Problems?" It is scheduled for Sunday, June 13, at 2 p.m.

A baptismal service will be one of the highlights of the meeting on Friday, June 11.

Ross said 94 conventions are scheduled this summer in the U. S.

Handbell choir concert slated

First Christian Church's music ministry will present a San Angelo handbell choir in special concert here next week.

The concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the First Christian sanctuary, 1301 W. Louisiana, will present the Christian Ringers of First Christian Church of San Angelo. The ensemble is composed of nine junior high school students under direction of Ron Lowe, minister of music and youth at the San Angelo church.

The concert will be open to the public at no charge.

Memberships rising again

NEW YORK (AP) — Membership is rising again in America's religious bodies. Attendance is steady. Outlays for new buildings are up. Financial contributions are at a peak. But they haven't kept up with inflation.

These are key points from recent compilations of the 1975 statistics on the religious situation in this country.

Over-all, membership in U.S. churches and synagogues began climbing again, after registering slight losses in recent years. It rose by 1 million last year to a total of 132,287,450 or 62.3 per cent of the population.

The percentage had been 61.9 per cent the year before, a ratio that had been slipping ever since a 1967 peak of 64.4 per cent, but which now seemed headed back up.

A breakdown shows there are approximately 73 million Protestants, 49 million Roman Catholics, 3 million Eastern Orthodox, 6 million Jews and 1 million others.

Neverthless, it's still a "period of slow growth" for the churches, says Constant Jacquet, editor of the new Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches 1976, compiled by the National Council of Churches.

The value of new church construction rose to $947 million last year, compared with $814 million the year before — still off from the peak $1.2 billion in 1965.

Attendance held steady with 40 per cent of U.S. adults attending church or synagogue in an average week, according to a Gallup poll. That proportion has remained constant from 1971 through 1975, after edging down from a 1958 peak of 49 per cent, mostly because of a drop in Roman Catholic attendance.

Vietnam refugees face hardships

By MIKE SHANAHAN

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Before joining 130,000 others in a desperate flight to the United States a year ago, Tran Minh Tri was a lieutenant in the Vietnamese army, a career military man and a member of a wealthy family.

Now he lives with his mother, two sisters and two brothers in a sparsely-furnished garden apartment in this central Florida city and he works for the minimum wage, $2.30 an hour, at a plant known in the local Vietnamese community as the "chocolate banana factory." His salary supplements the family's monthly welfare check of under $200.

Of 27 laborers in the Tropical Fruit Specialities Inc. plant, 16 are Vietnamese. They personify what has happened to the refugees in the year since the fall of Saigon last April 30 — not only in Florida, where there are 6,000, but nationwide.

A year ago the 16 included a lawyer, an air force pilot and the wife of a senior official in one of Vietnam's 44 provinces. Now they dip frozen bananas in chocolate by hand and sprinkle them with peanuts, turning out a product called "Banana Bob," for sale to tourists at nearby Disney World.

Interviews with refugee families here and elsewhere, and with American resettlement officials, show that many of the Vietnamese suffer today from culture shock and from high unemployment. Many migrate from state to state in search of work or of reunification with relatives living elsewhere in the country. A fierce determination has developed among some Vietnamese to enroll in American schools, the interviews showed, even if the refugees have to sign up for welfare checks to support themselves while they study.

An estimated 61 per cent of the refugees who want to work have found jobs, according to federal officials. But examples of underemployment abound in every state. In Los Angeles, the former director general of Saigon's Interior Ministry does yard work. An air force colonel delivers newspapers. A medical doctor is a night watchman.

In Orlando, a former aide to Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky works as a clerk for the gas company and teaches judo at the local YMCA.

A former district chief drives an airport limousine.

The migration from state to state in search of jobs is bringing many of the Vietnamese eventually to California.

Gary McComber of the California Health and Welfare Agency expects the state's refugee population to reach between 44,000 and 53,000 by the summer of 1977.

Like California, the Washington, D.C., area had an enclave of Vietnamese before Saigon fell, so the capital also has been the destination of many dissatisfied with their initial homes in America.

"This is a very mobile crowd," said Jeanne MacDaniels of the Washington office of the International Rescue Committee, "especially when the sponsorships break down after a few months." Some American sponsors promised jobs, housing and financial help and found they couldn't deliver, she said.

There has been some exploitation. In Orlando, a former air force pilot was sponsored by the manager of an apartment house who paid him nominal wages for maintenance work and charged the refugee for furniture donated by a church.

In another Florida case, a man sponsored a Vietnamese girl of 20 who spoke very little English. He escorted her to a county office for a blood test before it was discovered that he intended to marry her without the girl's knowledge.

A Vietnamese psychiatrist, Dr. Daniel Le Dinyh Phuoc, studied 157 families in Los Angeles. He said nearly half reported serious troubles with their sponsors.

Officials of private resettlement agencies say that when churches or community organizations became sponsors, more people were available to provide long term help and the relationships have held up. By contrast, individual sponsors frequently failed to understand the cultural barrier or to anticipate the economic burden they were assuming.

Culture shock has compounded sponsorship problems. The refugees moved from a conservative Asian culture to the fast pace of American life. Traditionally close Vietnamese family life may be the first casualty.

Psychiatrist Phuoc says Vietnamese usually relieve their emotional problems within the family, but in the United States, "I'm not sure how much it will help because the foundation of our families has been changed or destroyed.

"Women are working while men sit at home. Children are learning a language their parents cannot understand. Discipline; respect for age, even the food, all are different in the United States."

In California and elsewhere, women frequently have found it easier to find work than their husbands, mainly in secretarial jobs. Marital problems have been aggravated in some households where husbands feel humiliated at having to babysit while their wives support the family.

"My mother-in-law is very unhappy," psychiatrist Phuoc said. "In Vietnam she used to manipulate everyone in the family, tell them what to do. Here everyone is independent. Now she cannot sleep or eat and acts very depressed."

Many refugees have yet to understand the full size of their new country in relation to South Vietnam, a long and slender land with less than 10 per cent of the land mass of the United States.

One American who worked in Vietnam and now lives in the Midwest reports that refugees who settled in small towns suffer from crushing loneliness. "Even if they get help on the basics from their sponsors there is no socializing."

Only in New Orleans and Miami have sponsoring agencies taken over apartment buildings for the exclusive use of refugees, thus creating "Little Saigons."

The refugees are all in the United States under a special immigrant parole granted by Congress. They have no guarantee of ever being allowed to become citizens or even resident aliens. As a result, most government jobs are denied them, including military enlistment, the best job possibility for many refugees.

Uncertainty over whether Congress will approve legislation changing their status has raised fears among many refugees that if the United States establishes relations with the Communist government in South Vietnam, they will be deported in exchange for information about Americans still unaccounted for in the fighting. No amount of argument dissuades them from this viewpoint.

South Vietnamese are reluctant to seek medical help, even when it is offered free. One father in Orlando, a former helicopter pilot, treated his young son's fever with an ancient Vietnamese remedy - a series of crude parallel scratches on the boy's back into which was rubbed a solution believed to be a cure for the illness.

Resettlement officials agree that if there is one common denominator among Vietnamese, it is their determination to learn to speak English fluently and then to obtain training in a profession.

"They all want to go to school and many think someone should support them while they do it," said Ms. MacDaniel.

Captains pin 13-0 defeat on M-Cubs behind Sealy

By TED BATTLES

Manager Denny Sommers is looking toward Steve Hamrick, the lefthander from Cornell University who has compiled a 6-3 record, as his slide stopper at 7:30 p.m. today when the Midland Cubs go against the Shreveport Captains, who took the first two games of this five game Texas League series.

Manager Johnny Lipon will counter with Rich Anderson, 2-5.

Although Midland had won 11 of 15 games going into the Shreveport series, they were plainly showing the effects of their aches and pains in a 13-0 loss to the Captains Thursday night at Cubs Stadium.

Still, even a healthy Midland team probably would have had its troubles against Randy Sealy.

OVER IN Shreveport a couple of weeks ago, Sealy showed he was tough to beat even with three runs. And by the time Shreveport built up a 7-0 lead in the sixth inning, it was pretty obvious Midland's doomed was "sealed" again.

It was the second win over the Cubs this season for Sealy, a 1973 graduate of Brazoswood High along the Texas Gulf Coast, and last year as a 10-5 pitcher for the Captains, he was 2-1 against the West Division champions. Midland beat Randy 8-6 in April 1975, but has lost four in a row to him since.

The Captains not only beat the Cubs Thursday but handed righthander Wayne Doland his first defeat in seven decisions this season.

DESIGNATED HITTER Harry Saferight and third baseman Frank Grundler did the damage offensively. Saferight brought home the first run with a sacrifice fly in the third, plated another with a fifth inning single, sent two more scampering home with a triple in the sixth and added another with a ninth inning sacrifice fly to wind up with five rbi for the night.

Grundler knocked in three with a two-run triple in the fifth and a single in the ninth. Every batter in the Captains' lineup not only hit safely but all except two had two hits.

Behind 7-0 the Cubs weren't about to

Celtics, Suns move NBA series to east

BOSTON (AP) — Accustomed as they are to winning, the Boston Celtics find themselves in a familiar position going into tonight's fifth game of the National Basketball Association's championship series.

Unaccustomed as they are to winning, the Phoenix Suns — the Celtics' opponents in the nationally televised best-of-seven series — find themselves in an unfamiliar position.

So far, each team has won two games, both on their home courts.

The pattern of the first four games was exactly the same as the Celtics followed in their two previous playoff series this season — against Bufflo and Cleveland, both of which they wound up winning in six games.

Ending — and winning — a championship series on the road also has been the Celtics' pattern over the years. Of the last three NBA titles they won — in 1968, 1969 and 1974 — the Celtics clinched them on the road.

The last time they won a championship at historic Boston Garden was 10 years ago, when they completed an unprecedented run of eight straight league titles.

Should the struggling but favored Celtics beat the Suns for the 13th consecutive time at home tonight, they could win the crown on the road again — in Game Six at Phoenix Sunday. If a seventh game is necessary, it would be at Boston Wednesday night.

Beating the Suns now, however, will not be as easy as originally expected. The Suns are bursting with confidence after defeating Boston twice at Phoenix. And they no longer are fearful of the proud, tradition-laden Celtics.

They also realize they have avoided embarassment and humiliation by preventing a much-discussed Celtics sweep, and now have little more to lose, in this, their first experience in championship competition in the eight-year history of the franchise.

"I never thought at the beginning of the season that we'd be in the position we're in now," said Ricky Sobers, the Suns' battling backcourt rookie, "because we had so many new players."

Sobers had a lot of company in his thinking. The Suns appeared to have excellent potential, but they were considered a team of the future rather than of the present.

But after a slow start in which they fell eight games below the .500 mark by mid-season, they rallied in the stretch and gained the "wild card" playoff berth in the Western Conference, finishing with a 42-40 record.

Nevertheless, their chances in the playoffs were considered the worst of the 10 teams participating. But they eliminated Seattle in six games and shocked defending champion Golden State in seven games, and they were only one step away from climbing the highest mountain...in the NBA.

Again, they were given little chance against Boston, and again they have stubbornly refused to fold.

Although many observers felt the Suns would be beaten quickly by the playoff-hardened, unbendable Celtics, Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn was wary of the rapidly improving Phoenix team.

"They're a very formidable team," warned Heinsohn. "This isn't going to be an easy series. Phoenix is nobody's patsies.

In other respects, Heinsohn has been wrong...at least in the eyes of the officials. And he has had the same opinion of the officials.

The volatile Heinsohn has insisted that the officials — at least those in the last two games — have spent too much time calling fouls on his players. As a result, the Celtics have lost valuable playing time from some of their players because they have been forced to the bench with an excessive amount of fouls and have been forced to loosen up on defense instead of applying their pressing, pressure tactics.

Heinsohn's dissatisfaction with the officials followed similar complaints by Phoenix Coach John MacLeod after the Suns lost the first two games.

Now, MacLeod says, "I think it's time that we should each stop saying we are getting beat by the officials. Now, let's let the players play.

Leg work paying off during Amateur play

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The golfer whose legs can hold out over the hillocks and hollows of the Old Course at St. Andrews will be the man to win the British Amateur championship.

It is 36 holes of golf a day from now on.

Even Vinny Giles, the favorite who is seeking to defend his title, admitted all that golf makes a man tired.

"I won two matches fairly comfortably Thursday, but my legs felt they had done a lot of walking," said the 33-year-old lawyer from Richmond, Va.

"The trouble with this course is there is no cutting any corners. No matter how quickly you win, you still have to walk 18 holes."

Giles won 6 and 5 Thursday morning in the fourth round and then 4 and 3 in the afternoon. But the Old Course—the oldest golf course in the world—is built so that you have to

El Paso collects 3-1 win

By The Associated Press

Shreveport hung a 13-0 defeat on Midland in Wednesday night's most lopsided Texas League game as base hits fell all over the lot in every park..

Elsewhere around the circuit West Division leader El Paso bested Jackon 3-1, Amarillo defeated East Division leader Lafayette 6-3 and Arkansas outlasted San Antonio 7-5.

Despite their low score, El Paso banged out 13 hits and Jackson 11 in a free-swinging fray. Winning pitcher Bob Nola, 5-0, gave way to reliever Larry McQueen in the seventh inning after scattering nine Jackson hits and giving up the lone run. Loser George Milke dropped to 3-4.

Amarillo shelled five Lafayette hurlers for 12 hits and broke a 3-3 tie with three runs in the eighth. John Andrews of Lafayette socked his fifth home run in the second frame. Vic Bernal, 3-3, was the winner in relief and Gene Lanthorn, 0-2, absorbed the loss.

M-Cubs topple to Caps

make up that kind of deficit with much of their batting punch missing.

ABOUT THE only managerial moves left to Sommers these days are pitching changes. Third baseman Mike Umfleet is still suffering headaches from a beaning Monday night and just how long he'll be out remains uncertain. Infielder Bill Huisman and outfielder Earle Chew are both nursing injuries and, of course, Bill Droege took his .318 average, 28 rbi and 20 extra base hits to Wichita.

That doesn't leave much room for masterminding, not that it would have done any good against Sealy.

Sealy was only the second pitcher to blank Midland this season. The other whitewash came at the hands of El Paso's Bob Nolan, 1-0, in seven innings.

"I was really surprised me," Sealy said, "About all I had was a fastball. Once in a while I'd slip over a curve, but mostly it was the fastball, which I really didn't think was that good. However, I was spotting the ball where I wanted it pretty good."

SEALY ALLOWED just four hits, two of them of the infield variety. Scott Thompson grounded a single to left in the first, Ed Putman reached first as second baseman Paul Djakonow made a diving stop on his grounder up the middle in the second, but couldn't recover in time for a throw, Steve Verban beat ot a hit to short in the fifth and then Mike Sember singled to center with two out in the ninth.

The only other flaws in Sealy's performance were walks to Tyrone in the fourth and Tony Franklin in the sixth.

Buffs name grid coach for 1976

STANTON—David L. Thompson will be the head football coach at Stanton High School this fall.

Thompson, who was an assistant coach at Alice, replaces Bob Richardson, who resigned his position recently to become a counselor in the Stanton system.

Thompson, a 32-year-old native of Seminole, Okla., was all-conference two years at East Central State where he graduated. Thompson also played at Oklahoma.

Thompson has been an assistant coach at Hobbs, N. M., Frederick, Okla., Rawls, Floydada and Electra before going to Alice.

THUMAN L. JONES, retiring Athletic Director for the Midland Public Schools was honored along with his wife Ruth, Thursday evening at the Ranchland Hill Country Club. 'Tugboat' not only coached at Midland High School, but was AD for 10 years.

Sloan proves golf talent too

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Midland's Texas Tech exes had their day with the members of the Red Raider coaching staff Thursday with a full slate of golf and barbeque.

The coaches, however, seemed to come out on top in both catagories. Steve Sloan, head football coach at Tech, won top honors with a 75 in the golf tournament at the Midland Country Club while Tech's head recruiter Mike Pope was second with a 78. Taylor McNeel, the offensive running back coach, won third with an 80. All three received oil core bookends for their performance.

The day ended with a barbecue at the VFW hall where more than 50 hard core Tech fans were on hand to hear Sloan and head basketball coach Gerald Meyers talk.

SLOAN SAID that he thinks his Raiders will be an improved club this year, but they will face one of their toughest schedules in history.

"We open against Colorado," Sloan said: "They have the largest team in the nation, including the pros. When they walk on the field, the stadium slants in their direction. I just hope the fans don't get injured."

Sloan said that his Raiders could win the conference if the injury situation doesn't become severe. Injuries were a problem for Tech this spring as four had knee surgery.

Meyers, of course, lamented the fact that he will lose star center Rick Bullock for the 1976-77 season. Bullock was instrumental in leading the Raiders into the second round of the NCAA cage playoffs before Tech lost to Missouri.

"You can't replace a player like Bullock," Meyers said. "But we will have a more balanced team. I just hope we cam stay in the top division next year."

TWO MIDLAND Tech exes, C. H. Brockett and Bob Dean, made special presentations during the barbecue. Meyers was given a extra large red and black crying towel since he is losing Bullock to graduation. Meyers said, "Everyone knows I can use it, but where were all the laughing towels when we had our most successful season ever last year."

Defensive line coach Bob Patterson, who recruits in West Texas for Tech, was the recepient of the other award. Patterson was presented with a cartoon drawing of a Midland Lee athlete that got away from the Raiders when he chose Nebraska. The cartoon was signed Junior...as in Miller.

Coghlan nabs win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova's Eamonn Coghlan, defending champion in the 1,500 meter run, voiced the sentiment of most of the stars in qualifying trials at the 55th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field Championships.

"I caught up when I was supposed to," said Coghlan Thursday after winning a lackluster 1,500 heat in the ordinary time—for him—of 3:43.16.

John Ngeno, Washington State's defending double winner, said somewhat the same thing after qualifying for the 5,000-meter run with a third place finish.

"I was taking it easy," admitted Ngeno, who has won four NCAA titles at 5,000 meters. "I wasn't pushing myself because I have to run the 10,000 (final) tomorrow (Friday)."

That was the scene, everybody running, jumping or throwing, just good enough to qualify for Friday semifinals or Saturday finals. There wasn't anyone even close to a record on a beautiful, sunlit day with the temperature in the low 70s and a refreshing wind blowing out of the northeast.

Only one defending champion was eliminated, Louisiana State's Larry Shipp in the 110meter hurdles in which he finished sixth in his heat. UCLA's James Owens had the best time in the event — 13.88. Other qualifiers included San Jose State's Dedy Cooper (13.92), Arizona State's Gary Burl (14.10), and Auburn's James Walker (14.04). They'll be in the semifinals today.

Among the other defenders competing in the first of the three-day meet were: Coghlan in the 1,500; Ngeno in the 5,000; Reggie Jones of Tennessee in the 200; James Munyala of Texas -El Paso in the 3,000-meter steeplechase; and Earl Bell, the world record breaking pole vaulter from Arkansas State.

Tennessee's Jones ran second in his 200 heat, and won a heat of the 100-meter sprint in 10.34, fastest of the qualifiers for today's semifinals. Munyala finished fourth in his heat of the steeplechase in 8:54.85, just qualifying. Bell was among 13 pole vaulters who qualified by clearing 16 feet, 6 inches.

He set a new world mark last week of 18-7¼, but he'll still have to beat Don Baird of Long Beach State, best in the British Commonwealth, and Russ Rogers of Southern California and Pac 8 champion Mike Tully of UCLA.

Longshot grabs Bicentennial golfing lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ray Floyd surveyed the scoreboard, allowed a sly little smile to cross his face and observed: "I've been there before. I know how to handle it. I know how to prepare for it."

The tough, tour-tested Floyd, a former PGA champion, holder of a half-dozen titles, a record-setting, runaway winner of the Masters a couple of months back, was two strokes off the pace—but quite possibly in command—after the first round of the $200,000 Bicentennial Golf Tournament.

Of the other leaders, only Frank Beard has been there before. And Beard, once one of the game's greatest, has been mired in a deep, dismal slump for three years. He hasn't won in five.

On top after Thursday's opening round over the tight, tidy, little 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club course was longshot rookie Tom Purtzer, who parlayed some phenomenal putting into a six-under-par 65.

The veteran Floyd and thirdyearman Randy Erskine, who hasn't even come close to winning, were at 67, two shots back. With Beard at 68 were Jim Simons and Mike McCullough, two more non-winners.

While some of the more obscure names were moving to the top, a number of the game's top attractions were having their problems despite playing conditions—warm and sunny with just a gentle breeze—that Floyd characterized as "the best you could ask for."

Defending champion Tom Jenkins stumbled to a fat 77. Johnny Miller made a pair of double bogeys on his way to a 73.

Leg work pays off

walk 3,482 yards out and 3,432 yards in. The outward nine holes and the inward nine lie side by side in a long line, with 14 holes sharing seven big double greens.

Hundreds of years ago, when the Old Course was first laid out, Scots played just nine holes and then went home. But the game became so popular it was converted to 18 holes—and the rest of the world copied it.

Giles' victims Thursday were both Englishmen—Sandy Dunlop in the fourth round and Michael Kelley in the fifth.

In today's quarter-finals he faces another Englishman, John Davies, a Walker Cup player who has never lost to an American in this country. Victory in that match would take Giles to the semifinals in the afternoon.

Astros stage rally in 7th to dump Cincinnati, 4-3

By The Associated press

The Cincinnati Reds were about to count "10" over Larry Dierker when the Houston pitcher suddenly came up with a knockout of his own.

Back in April, Dierker started against the Reds in Cincinnati and failed to retire any of the six batters he faced, allowing four hits and two walks before he was lifted.

In Houston Thursday night, Dierker hit Pete Rose with a pitch, Dan Driessen singled, Joe Morgan homered, the Reds had a 3-0 lead and Dierker had faced nine Cincinnati batters without getting anyone out.

"I started out exactly like I did in Cincinnati, but I knew I'd have to get an out sooner or later," Dierker said. "I wasn't extremely sharp, but after the first inning I made up my mind to be uncompromising on most of my pitches."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 3-2 in 10 innings, the St. Louis Cardinals cooled off the Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, the Montreal Expos upended the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-1 and the Chicago Cubs nipped the New York Mets 2-1. Atlanta and San Diego were not scheduled.

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Astro nine after Dierker's shaky start, especially with unbeaten rookie sensation Santo Alcala on the mound for Cincinnati.

"It didn't look good, did it?" said Manager Bill Virdon. "But you never know what's going to happen in this game."

What happened was that Houston's Greg Gross stroked a two-run single in the second inning and Bob Watson's RBI grounder tied the score in the fifth.

The Astros then loaded the bases in the seventh on singles by Dierker and Cesar Cedeno and a walk to Bob Watson before walks to Jose Cruz and Cliff Johnson forced two runs across the plate. That was enough to make a winner of Dierker, although he gave way to Ken Forsch for the final three outs.

Dodgers 3, Giants 2

Bill Russell bounced a basesloaded single over San Francisco's drawn-in infield to drive in the winning run in the 10th inning, giving unbeaten Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough his seventh victory of the season.

The Dodgers loaded the bases against Gary Lavelle on Ron Cey's single, a sacrifice, an intentional walk to Dusty Baker and an error by shortstop Chris Speier, who booted a double play grounder. Russell then hit a chopper over Speier's head.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 1

Don Kessinger pounded out two doubles and a single and Mike Tyson added three hits, including a run-scoring triple, helping Bob Forsch gain his first victory of the season. Forsch hurled eight strong innings and Bill Greif worked the ninth as the Cardinals ended the Phils' road winning streak at 13 games, four short of the major league record.

"This is the first bad day we've had in a long time, and it really wasn't that bad," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark. "There were just a couple of plays. We missed a double play and then things went to pot."

Expos 7, Pirates 1

Don Stanhouse stifled Pittsburgh on five hits as he earned his first win as a starter and his first complete game since 1973 when he was with the Texas Rangers. Stanhouse also delivered a twoprun single and Barry Foote and Gary Carter homered as the Expos snapped a six-game losing streak and ended the five-game winning streak of Pittsburgh's Jim Rooker.

Cubs 2, Mets 1

Mick Kelleher's tie-breaking off Mickey Lolich with two out in the seventh inning scored Larry Biittner from second base with the tie-breaking run.

Cagle is resigning MHS coaching post

After eight years as Midland High School basketball coach, James Cagle, 37, resigned today to become head cage coach at Duncanville High School.

Cagle became the third head coach to resign at MHS this year. Football Coach John Reddell resigned to become football coach at Trinity-Euless while baseball Coach Arlen Dickson resigned to go into private business.

Cagle, after serving one year as a football and basketball assistant, took over to lead the Bulldogs to 175 wins against 85 losses. His teams won three district titles, two regionals and reached the state semifinals one year and the finals another year.

TWO OF his players, Gary Brewster and Ronald Taylor, were named all-state.

Succeeding Jay Spears, Cagle's first team an 11-20 record, finished 19-16 the next year and then reeled off five straight 20-plus victory seasons. Last year's team finished 14-20.

At Duncanville, Cagle will be facing a rebuilding job with a team that won "only six or seven" games last year. However, the school has been AAAA for only two years and a projected enrollment is for 4,000 students in three or four years, according to Cagle.

Sealy ends 2 streaks

CUBS BRIEFS — In pitching his shutout, Randy Sealy snapped Wayne Tyrone's hitting streak at 12 and Mike Gordon's at eight....Manager Johnny Lipon, who did his last Texas League stint as a player with Beaumont in 1942, will go with Doug Nelson, 3-3, in Saturday's 7:30 p.m. tilt while Denny Somners will start Chuck Rogers, 4-6,...

Lipon feels his club is beginning to come around, despite the continued absence of shortstop Jimmy Sexton, the Texas League's leading base stealer last year. "For a while our defense was hurting us."

Lipon, a shortstop,played. nine years in the major leagues, seven with the Detroit Tigers and two with the Boston Red Sox. He rates playing in the same Red Sox lineup as Ted Williams as one of the high points of his career.....

SEALY, IN his fourth year of pro ball after signing out of high school, was signed to a Pittsburgh Pirates contract this spring. "I was in camp with the Pirates, but the White Sox ripped me for 10 runs and then I developed back trouble, so I wound up back in the Texas League."...

Mike Umfleet, who was hit in the head by a thrown ball Monday and hospitalized, still had headaches, but is developing an appetite, which is a good sign.

"He could wake up tomorrow and feel fine," says Midland Cubs trainer Wayne Carter, "Or it may be a week. You just don't know about those things."

Brewers trade 2 for Carbo

BOSTON (AP) — Bernie Carbo, reserve outfielder for the Boston Red Sox, was traded Thursday night to the Milwaukee Brewers for right-handed reliever Tom Murphy and outfielder Bobby Darwin.

Boston also received an undisclosed amount of cash in the deal.

Carbo, who hit a dramatic home run to tie the sixth game of last year's World Series, was used sparingly this season by Boston. He played in only 17 games and hit .236, with two home runs and six runs batted in.

WAC teams top poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State and Arizona, arch rivals bound for a showdown in the first game of the College World Series next week, have finished first and second in "Collegiate Baseball" newspaper's poll.

In the final poll released Thursday Arizona State was first with 493 power index points and Arizona was second with 489 points.

The two teams meet in the opening round of the College World Series June 12 in Omaha, Neb. Six other teams, all ranked in the top 10 as well, will participate in the tournament, which begins June 11.

ASU has won 20 straight games and has a 52-8 record, including six straight victories over Arizona during the regular season. Arizona is 51-16 and has won its last seven.

Also in the College World Series are No. 3 Eastern Michigan, No. 4 Oklahoma, fifthranked Clemson, Washington State in seventh place, eighthplace Auburn and No. 10 Maine.

Tiant, Red Sox handcuff Yankees after meeting

BOSTON (AP) — It could have been the team meeting before the game or Louis Tiant's dominance over New York, but the Red Sox finally came to life and beat the division-leading Yankees.

"If they (meetings) help like that, we ought to have a meeting every day," centerfielder Fred Lynn joked following the 8-2 victory at Fenway Park Thursday night.

In the only other American League game, the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Detroit Tigers 6-2.

The Red Sox' victory against the American League East leaders moved Boston to within seven games of the top. However, the Yankees won the other two games of the abbreviated-by-rain series.

For Tiant, now 7-3, it was his 21st lifetime victory against New York, against nine losses.

"We get paid to win; we don't get paid to lose," said Tiant, who went the distance, giving up eight hits and walking none. "I've beaten them before; why can't I beat them again?"

Following the game played before a crowd of 29,505, the Red Sox announced that pinch hitter Bernie Carbo, along with an undisclosed amount of cash, had been traded to the Milwaukee Brewers for slugger Bobby Darwin and relief pitcher Tom Murphy.

Tiant allowed New York two runs in the first inning on a triple by Roy White, a double by Chris Chambliss and a single by designated hitter Carlos May. Then the veteran hurler settled down and shutout the Yankees the rest of the way.

"I was making some mistake and I paid for it," Tiant said about his shaky beginning. "But I made them hit my pitching."

The Red Sox drove New York starter Dock Ellis, 4-4, from the mound in the second inning while putting together three walks, a hit batsman (Carlton Fisk) and four singles. Designated hitter Cecil Cooper and Jim Rice each knocked in a pair of runs that inning.

"I think we got on the right track tonight," Cooper said. "Now if we can just string six or seven together."

Boston scored twice more in the bottom of the eighth on a double by Lynn, his third hit of the night, and a single by Carl Yastrzemski.

"We had good pitching and good hitting combined. Usually we've had just one," Lynn said. "We're pretty loose. We talked a little about it before the game."

Dwight Evans said Manager Darrell Johnson was low-key at the meeting prior to the game.

"He kind of simplified the game. We were making the game kind of tough," Evans said.

"Timely hitting is the big thing," Johnson said. "That's the whole answer right there."

Bill Travers, 6-2, scattered nine hits as Milwaukee salvaged the fifth game of the series after dropping the first four. Don Money knocked in two runs with a homer and triple and Robin Yount hit a pair of sacrifice flies for the Brewers. Dave Roberts, 4-4, took the loss.

Extra police were on hand for the game in Detroit after Milwaukee pitcher Jim Colborn and first baseman George Scott received anonymous threatening telegrams.

It's up to business

Robinson F. Barker, chairman of the board of PPG Industries, says American business must take its case to the people now if the free enterprise system is to survive.

Speaking at Wichita Falls recently, Barker warned of things to come, setting a deadline for business to accomplish its mission. The business world would do well to heed the advice of this distinguished business leader.

He explained that survival of American business is in jeopardy, with less than a decade remaining to "take its case to the American people" if the private enterprise system is to survive.

Barker didn't charge that the system is in a dying state, but he did say that its reaction to "change and criticism now and over the next decade" will be of critical importance.

"The role of business leadership," he said, "is pivotal in the shaping of public decisions that will direct the course of politics, economics and government for a long time."

This places a tremendous responsibility on the shoulders of business leadership, but it is something which the leadership can and must meet.

"As long as it is good politics to be aggressively hostile to big business, we will stay in the soup, with the fires of regulation, government planning and divestiture getting hotter by the day," Barker continued.

The business executive discounts the radical fringe, which advocates destruction of all big companies, but he said that requests for more disclosure of important business information and demands for higher ethical standards in behavior are the whole ball game.

"What I am talking about," he said, "are openness, honesty and marketing of good products at a fair price ... Living in the goldfish bowl will be uncomfortable for a while," but understanding and support of employes and customers inevitably will follow fair business practices.

"We do ourselves a disservice if we apologize to the world or to ourselves for an imperfect private enterprise market economy," Barker concluded, "because the American system, despite its flaws, has no equal anywhere in the world."

Barker's observations certainly merit serious, continuing study ... and action.

Again, election day!

Don't forget, please, that Saturday once again is election day in Midland ... and across the state.

The occasion is the Democratic party's runoff primary election, which makes it most important for the candidates involved and for the party as a whole.

It is most encouraging that 937 votes were cast in the absentee balloting, which ended Tuesday. The number, considerably larger than usual, hopefully indicates record balloting Saturday.

On the homefront, two red-hot races will be determined — naming the party's nominees for Midland County sheriff and a member of the Midland County Commissioners Court.

The candidates have presented their cases well and it now is up to the voters to make their choices. The determination should be made by a large, representative number of voters.

Statewide, there also are two highly important contests — a place on the Texas Railroad Commission and a judgeship on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

The Reporter-Telegram previously has endorsed Jon Newton of Beeville for the Railroad Commission post and Carl Dally of Austin to fill the vacancy on the Appeals Court. It again recommends Democrat voter support of these two candidates.

The important thing, however, is to vote. It will require only a few minutes of your time Saturday.

INSIDE REPORT:

Vice presidency is very important post

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
Copley News Service

Unfortunately there is still little likelihood of vice presidential candidates being selected on the basis of real ability.

As matters now stand the party presidential nominee usually selects his vice presidential running mate in the intense hours immediately following the nomination votes in the national convention. By that time the winner is dog-tired and is likely to select the vice presidential nominee not on the basis of who is the best-qualified man but who will bring the most votes to the ticket.

The presidency of the United States is such a burdensome assignment, with such complex problems, that no one man can carry this load alone. He and the nation need the strongest possible man as the vice presidential nominee.

For democracy to work at its best each party should name its most qualified man or woman for the presidency and the second most as the vice presidential candidate.

In recent years vice presidents have become presidents and in many cases they were not big enough or sufficiently qualified for the task. They spent months trying to learn what the job was all about.

Not only is the president the chief executive of the nation but he is the commander in chief of all our armed forces.

He establishes foreign policy. He heads up his own party politically. He should be able to unify the nation. He should have executive and administrative experience and know how to select the best-qualified people for Cabinet and other top positions plus some understanding of finances and the ability to handle budgets. This is especially true since the United States has become the largest corporation in the world, with annual budgets of something like $400 billion.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt died, Harry S. Truman as vice president took over the White House. He was not well trained for the position and was lacking in many essential qualities. The nation was fortunate in how rapidly he developed and how he continued to grow in the job.

When John F. Kennedy was assassinated, Lyndon B. Johnson as vice president became president.

Before Richard Nixon resigned to escape impeachment he had already appointed Gerald Ford to succeed Spiro Agnew, who pleaded "no contest" to a number of serious charges. Think what would have happened if Agnew had still been vice president at the time of Nixon's resignation and had taken over the leadership of this nation. It would undoubtedly have been a field day for those practices which we do not need or want in America.

When FDR was in the White House he selected such an unlikely man as Henry Wallace to be his running mate. This was pure politics and could have been disastrous for the country had he ever taken over.

It is a trite but true saying that the vice president is only one heartbeat away from the presidency.

It seems only intelligent and logical that there should be great care taken in selecting a vice presidential nominee. Unfortunately this is not the case and the need for change grows constantly.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

CIA-DIA bickering revealed

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The recent intelligence revelations have intensified the backroom bickering between the Central Intelligence Agency and Defense Intelligence Agency, "a smoldering, subterranean feud of charge and countercharge, of snoop and countersnoop.

The CIA finally summarized its grievances late last year in a top-secret report, criticizing the DIA'S handling of intelligence, charging that it merely duplicates the CIA's functions and calling for a drastic shakeup of the intelligence community.

The "Taylor Report," named for Project Director Edmund Taylor of the CIA, recommended that all intelligence resources should be placed under a general intelligence director.

Under the Taylor plan, the director would manage both the CIA and DIA, with complete control over the intelligence budget. He would make his headquarters presumably at the CIA center in Langley, Va.

Financially speaking, the plan is attractive to the CIA, which now receives only about 20 per cent of the national intelligence budget. For the Taylor reorganization would put the CIA clique in the dominant position.

The Taylor Report sharply criticized the quality of U.S. intelligence, particularly that produced by the DIA. The document charged that the overlapping intelligence effort produced conflicting reports, created dangerous confusion, prevented coordination and created a false sense of security.

The top-secret report produced an almighty howl from the Pentagon's intelligence chiefs, who complained that it was inaccurate, unfair and one-sided. The intelligence programs outside the CIA, they insisted, were well conducted and coordinated. In any event, they argued that the real issue wasn't control over intelligence but the excesses of the intelligence agencies.

The Taylor Report was submitted to President Ford, who asked for another, inter-agency report presenting all sides. The second report offered a range of alternatives for the President to choose from. Intelligence sources tell us they are dissatisfied with the few organizational changes that have been made. These changes won't strengthen main failings, they say, where national security is at stake.

Beyond this, security prevents us from discussing the failings more specifically.

FUDDLE FACTORY: Below the top layer of government are a host of anonymous deputies and assistants, faceless men and women with unseen power, who often pull the strings that cause the leaders to move.

One of the second-level sachems at the Commerce Department, for example, is the assistant secretary for domestic and international business. He is largely invisible to the voting public, but he carries a big stick. He can make his influence felt in business circles around the world.

Ex-Vice President Spiro Agnew during his glory days installed Tilton Dobbin in this strategic post. After Agnew fell from grace, Dobbin helped the deposed and disgraced Agnew make some international business contacts.

Word of the Dobbin-Agnew relationship reached Rogers Morton, then the commerce secretary, who quietly got rid of Dobbin. But unknown to Morton, Dobbin's loyal assistant, John Gleason, stayed on as a deputy assistant secretary. Thus Agnew still has a good connection at Commerce.

Dobbin was replaced, meanwhile, by Travis Reed. He quickly became known inside the Commerce Department as "Travelin' Travis." During his first five months on the job, he took 13 trips. Many times he found an excuse to fly to his ski chalet in Idaho.

Reed also maneuvered Treasury Secretary William Simon into inviting him on a Middle Eastern tour. Simon had asked for Charles Hostler, an expert on Middle East commerce.

As Hostler's superior, Reed said he wouldn't let Hostler go unless he could go along, too. After some bureaucratic maneuvering between aides, Simon wound up signing an invitation for Reed to join him on the trip.

Because it appeared that Simon was specifically requesting Reed, the new Commerce Secretary, Elliot Richardson, approved his travel — despite the fact that Richardson considered Reed's rovings already excessive.

From the Middle East, Reed cabled back his intention to take a side trip to Paris. This was too much for the Commerce brass, who turned him down. In a snit, Reed fired off his resignation by cable to Washington. It was happily accepted.

But the crafty Reed had made arrangements for his political future. He not only had retained Dobbin's man, John Gleason, but had promoted him.

So the grateful Gleason owed Reed a favor. The favor was to install a new Commerce field office in Boise, Id. And who was the new Idaho office manager? Reed's special assistant, Wiiliam Glassford.

Now Glassford can move freely throughout the Idaho business community spreading the good word about Travis Reed. For Travelin' Travis has started traveling around Idaho preparing to run for political office.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter's blue-collar showdown seen in Ohio primary

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

CLEVELAND — Rep. Morris Udall, liberal darling of fashionable suburban salons, arrived here last week and immediately drove to Klein's Bar for a payday beer-and-chaser with auto workers — setting the tone for a campaign whose outcome could determine the Democratic party's fate in 1976.

Udall, the clear underdog against Jimmy Carter in next Tuesday's Ohio primary, is perceived well to Carter's left in a state where Democrats disdain flaming liberals. Nevertheless, cheered by beating Carter among Michigan blue-collar voters, Udall is concentrating here on wooing working men, particularly around Cleveland.

The stakes are enormous. A Carter win in Ohio would neutralize his probable California loss and all but assure his nomination. A Udall upset, however, would so fortify suspicions of growing voter resistance to Carter that a battle to the death at Madison Square Garden would be guaranteed.

This poses an irony for a party that has suffered grievously from sectarian strife. Udall, self-appointed guardian of the party's liberal tradition, can only stop Carter's consensus nomination by defeating him in white neighborhoods where anti-black emotion runs high.

Outwardly, the odds against Udall seem prohibitive. With Ohio measurably less liberal than Michigan, Carter leads both in southern Ohio and in conservative areas within the Udall-targeted Cleveland area such as west side Cleveland and suburban Parma. To conplicate matters, Sen. Frank Church has scheduled six days in

Evans Novak

Ohio, threateninq Udall's liberal suburban base.

But Udall enjoys an asset here that he lacked in Michigan: help from the United Auto Workers (UAW). Despite UAW president Leonard Woodcock's endorsement of Carter, politically potent UAW regional director Bill Casstevens has put the union behind Udall in Cleveland (and was at Udall's side at Klein's Bar).

Carter and Udall both started from scratch in Ohio last week. Carter's newly arrived manager here is Tim Kraft, architect of Carter's triumphs in Iowa and Pennsylania. But a new face for Udall arrived in Cleveland May 26 as his Ohio manager: political consultant Mark Shields, who had resisted Udall's year-long pleas for help until personal misgivings about Carter changed his mind.

Shields, who managed John J. Gilligam's 1970 election as governor of Ohio, immediately transferred Udall's state headquarters from Columbus to Cleveland, establishing the new emphasis. Shields is operating autonomously, without direction from Udall's brother and national campaign manager, Stewart. That frees Ohio from Stew Udall's dogma giving priority to precinct organization that handcuffed his brother's campaigns in New York, Wisconsin and other primaries.

Consequently, Shields is concentrating the $250,000 Ohio budget (lavish by Udall standards) on radio and television, especially in the Cleveland market reaching over 40 per cent of Ohio Democrats. One newly filmed TV spot compares the Udall and Carter records to underscore Udall's attack on Carter as a trimmer not to be trusted by working men.

Besides going after blue-collar votes, this attack is intended to provoke Carter into losing his icy composure.

Accordingly, Udall strategists were delighted when Carter opened his Ohio campaign with an angry indictment of anybody opposing his nomination as an enemy of change and reform.

Carter's vulnerability and Udall's difficulty in exploiting it are typified by reactions of the influential leader in one ethnic Cleveland ward. He has rejected Carter's courtship because "there's something about Jimmy Carter that scares me." But after listening to Udall address the Cleveland City Club last Friday, the ward leader told us: "I'm afraid he's too intelligent, too much like Jack Gilligan." Thus, this leader sees a shaky Carter plurality in his ward.

What might yet save Udall, paradoxically, is white resentment over Carter's substantial black support. Endorsement of Carter last week by Zeke Forbes, brother of black city council president George Forbes, "could give Udall the west side," according to one powerful Democrat there. Detroit's black Mayor Coleman Young, who lost white votes for Carter in Michigan with his absurd attack on Udall as a Mormon, could do the same here during an Ohio speaking tour. Udall operatives have been delightedly passing word that former Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes, now an NBC commentator in New York but still the black most hated by this city's whites, joined the anti-Mormon attack on Udall in a network radio commentary.

Udall is so doctrinaire a liberal that he displays little empathy for urban whites, chiding Carter for not supporting forced racial busing. That makes winning the Ohio primary all the more essential for Carter. If he cannot carry Cleveland's west side against the champion of the liberal suburbs, how would he fare there against Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan?

Study shows union members receive higher pay

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Union members make substantially more money than nonunion workers for doing the same job, according to a study released by the Council on Wage and Price stability.

The study said that in 1975 the average wage of a union member was about 16 per cent higher than that of a nonunion worker in the same occupation.

But the Princeton professor who did the study, Orley Ashenfelter, said that the existence of a substantial differential between union and nonunion wages does not mean that unionism contributes to wage inflation.

ASHENFELTER said that the popular conception is that because unions command a premium wage, they boost the cost production and cause inflation. Ashenfelter said that economic analysis is deficient on the role of unions in inflation and that it is "unclear what the presence of these differentials or movements in them imply for the course of aggregate wage inflation."

The Council on Wage and Price Stability is the White House monitoring agency set up in September 1974 to keep track of wage and price developments in the private economy and to watch for government regulations which contribute to inflation.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN professor George E. Johnson said that while only about 25 per cent of the American work force belongs to a union — a percentage which has held fairly constant since the Korean War — union members take home between 45 per cent and 50 per cent of the wages paid.

The Ashenfelter study said that the average black male gains more by being a union member than any other worker and that unions by and large have tended to narrow the wage gaps between black and white males. The only exception, Ashenfelter told the symposium, is the construction industry.

THE BLACK MALE union member earned 22 per cent more than his nonunionized counterpart, a difference that "was considerably larger than for either white males or for black or white females," the study reported.

On the other hand, according to Ashenfelter's analysis, unionism widens the differential between men and women, not because women gain less by joining a union, but because women are less likely to become trade union members than men.

The study estimated that "unionism tends to widen the male-female wage differential by perhaps 3 per cent."

THE STUDY ALSO found that:

—The difference between union and nonunion wages narrows in periods of prosperity and widens during periods of economic distress. In 1967 union members earned 11 per cent more than their nonunion counterparts, a differential which increased to 14 per cent in 1973 and 16 per cent last year.

—The less skilled the occupation, the more the union can do for its members. For example, in durable manufacturing union laborers made 22 per cent more than nonunion laborers last year, while union craftsmen made 6 per cent more.

—THE DIFFERENCE between union and nonunion wages is highest in the construction industry. "Unionized craftsmen in construction earned some 49 per cent more than comparable nonunion craftsmen in construction, while the comparable differentials for craftsmen in manufacturing were only 6 to 7 per cent."

'Silence' victim doing fine

Newsday

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. — First Lt. James J. Pelosi of West Hempstead, N.Y., who endured 19 months of "The Silence" by his West Point classmates three years ago after having been convicted of violating the U.S. Military Academy's honor code, is currently with the U.S. Army in West Berlin. For almost three years, he has been a company executive officer.

"I've been extremely happy. A considerable number of West Point graduates have gone out of their way to help me establish myself as a junior officer here," he said Wednesday in a telephone interview from West Berlin.

"The Silence" traditionally has been used to force the resignation of a cadet who is convicted of violating the honor code but who refuses to quit and cannot be dismissed for lack of evidence. Though Pelosi's honor board conviction was dismissed for lack of evidence, fellow cadets invoked silence from November 1971 until his graduation in June 1973. He had been accused of completing an answer on a quiz after the examiner had given the order to stop writing.

"I received 30,000 letters from people, almost all supporting me. Since I graduated from West Point, I have been trying to answer each of them individually. It's taken me three years and I'm still not finished," says Pelosi.

The 24-year-old officer said that he recently had been commended by the Army for administering first aid to two victims of a truck crash in East Germany. Pelosi, who was traveling on vacation, said he was the first person on the scene, and helped the driver.

Pelosi said that he had heard about West Point's current widespread cheating scandal over Armed Service Radio. He also was aware of the case of 19-year-old cadet plebe Steven Verr, who this year was subjected to "The Silence" for violating West Point's honor code. Verr's admitted violation was that he told an upper classman he was crying because his parents had been in an auto accident when in fact he was actually crying because he had been denied food because of hazing.

Asked if he saw any similarity between Verr's case and his own three years before, Pelosi said, "No. He (Verr) admitted his discrepancy, so he is in violation of the honor code. But I'd rather not say anything more. I don't know enough and don't think it's fair to."

Lyn Hunt voted honor

GALVESTON — Lyn I. Hunt of Midland, graduating medical student at The University of Texas Medical Branch, has been selected by her classmates to receive the Gold Headed Cane Award for epitomizing the ultimate in patient care. The award is considered to be among the highest honor a graduating student can receive.

Hunt was selected in a runoff with five other finalists, including Randy D. Bryn of Midland.

Following graduation, Hunt will begin a residency in pediatrics at the University of California Hospitals at at Los Angeles.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald A. Hunt of 1900 Hughes St.

Regulation may doom some cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oddshaped greeting cards could fade from the drug store counters, a victim of a plan to make the Postal Service more efficient.

The Postal Service has announced on Wednesday it plans to restrict the size of envelopes, effective April 15, 1978. Envelopes smaller than the specifications will be banned and a surcharge, of an amount to be determined later, will be levied for any envelopes larger than the specifications. Specifications will be set later by the Postal Rate Commission.

Most envelopes now in use will meet the specifications, but greeting cards, which come in a wide variety of shapes and sizes, will be heavily affected, postal officials said.

The delay until April 15, 1978, is to allow all envelope manufacturers to conform to the specifications.

Envelopes can be sorted more efficiently by machine if they all conform to size specifications, a Postal Service spokesman said. He said the size rules are expected to save money for the financially ailing agency.

The envelope measure was one of a series of money-saving rules approved by the Postal Service's board of governors.

Another innovation is a discount, effective July 6, for large business mailers who sort their own first-class letters before mailing.

These mailers will pay 12 cents per letter, instead of the regular 13-cent rate. This is the first discount ever offered on first-class mail. To qualify, mailers of at least 500 first-class letters must bundle their mail according to the zip code of the destination.

Myra Sue and Ronald Pruet.

Reception to honor former Midlanders

Ronald and Myra Pruet, former Midland residents and authors of a new book, "Run From the Pale Pony," will be honor guests at a reception here Saturday morning.

The volume concerns coping with chronic illness.

The reception, open to the public, will be between 10 a.m. and 12 noon Saturday in the J. H. McClure residence, 3303 W. Golf Course Road.

The Pruets, who lived in Midland from 1957 to 1965,, while Pruet was an employe of Aztec Leasing Co., and later was an independent oil man, now make their home at Oxford, Miss. Pruet, a graduate of Texas Tech University, received his doctorate in economics from The University of Texas-Austin in 1969 and now is a member of the economics and finance faculty of the University of Mississippi.

Chess Club art show this weekend

The Midland Chess Club's second annual "meet the artist" art and crafts show will be a Saturday and Sunday event here.

The exhibition and sale, featuring a wide array of art and craft items created by artists and artisans from Midland, Odessa and elsewhere in the Permian Basin and the state, will open at 10 a.m. Saturday, continuing until late afternoon. Sunday, the show will reopen at 12 noon, continuing until 6 p.m.

Site of the show will be the covered parking area of the new Midland National Bank, North Marienfeld and West Illinois streets.

Food and refreshment concessions are to be operated by the Midland Assembly No. 193, Order of Rainbow Girls, with proceeds to be used for various projects of the Rainbow Girls organization. The Midland Chess Club will use its proceeds from the show to help finance a state chess tourament, said club member Andy Lattu. The exhibition and sale is being coordinated by Jo Elliott, Midland artist.

Planetarium sets programs

Titled "How to Watch a Flying Saucer," the programs deal with astronomical objects often misidentified as flying saucers. The presenlations, open to the public, will begin at 7:30 and 9 p.m. today, and at 10:30 a.m. and 2 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

The planetarium is located in Haley Park, corner of West Indiana and South K streets.

Beards required

MITCHELL, S. D. (AP) — The clean-shaven look is out for Mitchell males.

As part of the Bicentennial Corn Palace Stampede celebration, Mitchell men are required to grow beards or to purchase a $2 shaving permit.

Those who grow a beard will become Brothers of the Brush and will have an opportunity to purchase a button with that designation.

Beatles to become 'nostalgia'

Washington Post

Get ready for another round of Beatlemania.

No, it's not that the Fab Four are getting together again. But the records they made from 1963 to 1970 were soon reissued and became the subject of a giant promotional campaign aimed at the new generation of pop music listener — the 10- to 15-yearolds — too young to have experienced the frenzy caused when John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr arrived on the American rock 'n' roll scene a dozen years ago.

The excitement starts all over again Monday, when Capitol Records releases "Got To Get You Into My Life." The "new" Beatles single, first issued in 1966 as part of the "Revolver" album, is one of 28 selections on a new compilation album, "The Beatles: Rock 'n' Roll Music" (Capitol SK-BO-11537), scheduled for release June 11. This double-record set will "ship gold — there are advance orders for 1 million sales — and will be followed, in mid to late July, by the simultaneous reissue of all of the Beatles' original '60s single hits.

A new wave of Beatlemania has already swept England, where a similar reissue program got under way in February. It was just a few weeks ago that 23 of the records in the British Top 40 belonged to the Beatles. Six of those singles, including "Yesterday," "Hey Jude" and "Paperback Writer," all of which have had a turn in the No. 1 slot, are still on the charts, and there has been a resurgence of interest in Beatles memorabilia and the entire Beatles album catalog.

Record company executives here and in England have found, much to their amazement, that many youngsters now buying Beatles singles and albums were unfamiliar with the group before the blitz began. "The 10 -to 15-year olds have scarcely heard of the Beatles," says Dan Davis, vice president for creative services, mechandising & advertising, press & publicity at Capitol Records. "It's a real comeuppance for those of us in the record business. It makes some of us feel real old."

Davis, who is directing the $750,000 Beatles promotional and advertising campaign that will soon blanket the nation's television and radio stations, newspapers and record stores, says that although many youngsters are familiar with the solo records that John, Paul, George and Ringo have made since the breakup of the Beatles in 1970, they don't "make the connection" between the four individuals and the group. He cites the case of his own 9-year-old daughter as an example.

"Here's a child," he points out, "who has access to any record in the world. She knows who Paul McCartney and Wings are, and she plays their records all the time. She knows firsthand and enjoys all the (post-1970) individual albums. But she's never seen the Beatles on TV or anywhere else, and I have never heard a Beatles album on her turntable. She's simply had no desire to play them until now.

"The Beatles are a new discovery for her. She's acting like they're a new act, as if they're the latest sensation. Which, I guess, is exactly what they represent to her."

Davis has undertaken an informal series of "demographic surveys," which tend to support his findings. He's been polling radio station program directors across the country, and reports that their telephoned song request patterns confirm what he has observed in his daughter.

"These kids have heard about the Beatles, and they may actually know a track or two from hearing it as a 'golden oldie' on the radio. But they didn't experience Beatlemania on the Ed Sullivan show, so the process is going to be one of discovering the Beatles all over again."

(Optional Add End Begins)

Though Davis points out that the reissue program has "'nostalgia aspect that should make it attractive to those in their 30s," it is clear that the music itself has been selected with an eye on a younger, more rock-oriented audience. "The Beatles: Rock 'n' Roll Music" consists entirely of up-tempo rockers. Ballads such as "Yesterday," "Eleanor Rigby" and "Michelle," with which the Beatles first broke through to the over-30 market have deliberately been omitted.

Nor ahve any songs been included from "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" or "Magical Mystery Tour," a pair of 1967 albums that marked the beginning of the Beatles' electronic, highly experimental phase. Every song in this new compilation, from the Chuck Berry-written title tune to the infamous "Helter Skleter," which Charles Manson and his followers interpreted as a command to slaughter, is a straightforward, hard-hitting rocker.

Navy jet intrusions reported

Newsday

WASHINGTON — A Navy jet trainer burst out of its assigned military airspace off the South Carolina coast twice last week and swept close to three Florida-bound airliners. One of the civilian planes was forced to alter its course to avoid the path of the onrushing Navy jet.

The incidents, which were confirmed by the Federal Aviation Administration, were the latest in a long series of reported intrustions by military aircraft into the jammed civilian air lanes along the East Coast. Some FAA air traffic controllers have claimed the military jets appear to be using commercial airliners and private aircraft as "targets of opportunity" for practice intercept missions. FAA officials and military authorities say there is no evidence to back up that charge, although both now concede that military aircraft have on occasion strayed from training areas and into commercial lanes.

Two of the civilian airliners involved in the latest incident were on commercial flights from New York City. The third was on a flight from Boston and Hartford. The Navy jet was a McDonnell Douglas TA-4, a training model of the A-4 Skyhawk, based at the Jacksonville, Fla., Naval Air Station.

The incidents were disclosed after an aviation industry source said several controllers at the FAA's Jacksonville Regional Air Traffic Control Center had seen an unidentified military jet which seemed to be stalking three commercial airliners on May 25. At a Newsday reporter's request, the FAA investigated and confirmed that a Navy jet had been flying maneuvers in civilian air lanes off the southeast Atlantic coast on that day.

But the FAA said the Navy jet had flown into civilian airspace accidentally because its navigational gear was faulty. Rear Adm. Norman K. Green, commandant of the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, acknowledges a general problem with "spillouts" of military jets into civilian air lanes, but declined to discuss details of last week's incidents.

GIL GONZALES is in charge of the newly-opened U.S. Navy recruiting office in Midland. The office is in Room 203 of the Midland County Courthouse Annex, 218 W. Illinois St. Gonzales, a first-class boatswain's mate, also heads up a recruiting station in Odessa.

Bentsen offers terrorism bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to make acts of terrorism a federal crime with a mandatory death penalty for any terrorist whose activitis result in the death of a person was introduced Thursday by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

Bentsen introduced a second measure that would require the president to cut off foreign aid to any country that harbored terrorists.

"No form of lawlessness is more senseless or vicious than an act of violent terrorism: a bomb left in a luggage locker at an airline terminal to kill and maim indiscriminately, a building set on fire, a sniper's bullet," Bentsen said in a statement.

Bentsen said 800 persons have been killed and 1,700 injured in international terrorist incidents since 1968. He said the figures include 24 U.S. citizens who were killed.

In cases of kidnaping, sabotage and destruction of federal property, which already are federal crimes, Bentsen's bill would add two years to the normal sentence when such crimes were committed as acts of terrorism.

Government acts to plug 'leaks'

By R. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among the most closely held secrets in government is advance information on employment, prices and the economy in general.

The information in the government's reports on April wholesale prices and employment being released today is an example.

Outside of the people directly involved in preparing statistics, only the President and the chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers are entitled to know them in advance.

THE CHIEF reason for guarding against premature disclosure of statistics is that the information could be used by speculators to turn a quick profit on financial markets.

But the secrets have not always been so closely guarded. Prior to October 1974, when new regulations took effect, as many as 40 to 50 others knew, including top department officials.

Leaks of the information, including leaks to reporters, were common. Although advance word still occasionally reaches unauthorized ears, leaks are guarded against and frowned upon, almost as much as if they involved confidential negotiations between governments.

JOSEPH W. DUNCAN, a deputy associate director for statistical policy of the Office of Management and Budget, said he was not aware of any recent leaks.

"If we were aware of any, we would take all actions possible to stop it," said Duncan, who is directly responsible for administering OMB's regulations on statistics.

But the Commerce Department recently learned that West German banks apparently were finding out U.S. trade figures a half-hour early. Because the figures showed a big U.S. trade surplus, the banks were buying U.S. dollars in anticipation that the dollar would be worth more after the figures were publicly released.

THE AGENCY CLAMPED down on the number of reporters who could have the information the customary half-hour ahead of time and prevented them from leaving its news room until after the actual release time had arrived. The leak stopped.

Another reason for maintaining secrecy is that advance word on some statistics, such as employment and unemployment, could be turned into a political advantage, especially during an election year.

Since President Ford is the only one of the 1976 presidential candidates who has access to statistics ahead of time, he could benefit from this knowledge. But there apparently has been no consideration of keeping the information from him, since the President is held to be entitled to all government information as it becomes available.

Usually there is only a 24- hour lag between the time information is finally compiled and its actual release to the public through the media.

THE TIGHT CONTROL has been welcomed by government economists, statisticians and others who say they can recall occasional attempts during resigned President Richard M. Nixon's administration to bend statistics to political winds.

The new regulations would make it more difficult for a department head to do what former Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent did with some trade figures on May 23, 1973.

DENT CALLED a news conference to announce a big trade surplus in April 1973, the nation's first monthly trade surplus in 18 months. At the time, Nixon was under considerable pressure because of the Watergate scandal and the White House was sure to welcome any good news.

Dent's action was unusual in several respects.

First, he released the statistics 24 hours ahead of schedule. Second, the normal procedure, then and now, was to release statistics in a press release without public fanfare. Third, political appointees, then and now, are supposed to wait at least one hour after statistics are released before commenting on them.

DENT EXPLAINED that the trade information became available early and he felt it should be released for early consumption by financial markets. But Dent did not do it that way again, even though much better trade statistics were still to come.

To The People I Serve

Tomorrow at the polls, you will once again pass judgement on my record as your Sheriff. On the basis of that record-in which I take considerable pride-I respectfully ask for your vote. To those of you who have given so many hours to this campaign, and especially to the young people who have worked so hard for me, I want to express my special thanks.

It is a great pleasure and a high honor to serve as your Sheriff, and I have never enjoyed working for you more than I do now. With the new equipment, modern facilties and trained personnel which we needed for so many years, we are now in better position than ever to do the best possible job ... and we are doing that job for you. You demand, and we would be satisfied with, nothing less.

We have the finest community anywhere, and I am dedicated to keeping it that way. The lessons of experience have taught us to be prepared for any situation, and we want to continue using that knowledge in these troubled and challenging times. There are those who seek to benefit from less diligent enforcement of our laws, and constant vigilance is necessary to prevent them from doing so.

If you stand with me for good, clean law enforcement by honest, dedicated men and women who know their jobs, then I hope you will go to the polls tomorrow and let your voice be heard and your vote counted in this important election. I ask for your help, and for your continued support

Thank you so much!

Sincerely and gratefully,

Ed Darnell

Rain or shine, Fun A' Fair will go on as planned

By LUANNA CROW

If Midland falls victim to an Independence Day thunderstorm, "Well, we'll just enjoy a West Texas rain," according to Harry Clark, chairman of the Bicentennial Fun A' Fair committee.

Clark said no alternate arrangements have been made for the all-day event July 3 which will be held in booths and under canopies on the Courthouse square.

However, the long list of entertainment and activities planned for the Fun A' Fair easily could draw a crowd — even in the rain.

The event was discussed in detail Thursday afternoon during a meeting of the Bicentennial Commission held in the administrative offices of the Midland public schools.

The Fun A' Fair will feature booths for dunking prominent Midlanders, a soap box which can be rented to "tell the world" what's on your mind, a genealogy booth to show residents how to trace their family trees and many more activities. Booths also will offer a variety of foods and merchandise.

Entertainment for the 200th birthday celebration will run the gamut from Jojo the Clown and puppet shows to Austin country and western musician Alvin Crow and twirlers.

Eugene Greenwood, chairman of the entertainment committee, said this group was suffering "an embarrassment of riches." So many organizations desiring to perform that the committee is limiting resentation times to 30 minutes or less.

Clark said the result will be 12 hours or more of continuous entertainment.

Additional features on the entertainment lineup are twirlers, church choir groups, a mariachi band from Odessa, a polka band, square dancers, singing groups, a street dance, a traditional dance inside the Hilton Inn featuring Mark Anthony from Lubbock, Dallas instrumentalists The Shoppe and comic magician Walter Blaney.

Although alcoholic beverages will not be sold on the courthouse grounds, a beer garden will operate "on the back side of the Hilton Inn." Sandwiches, measuring 4 feet in length will be sold by the inch.

Still another major activity complementing the Fun A' Fair will be the Art Frazier World Fairs Carnival which will operate in the downtown area near the courthouse. It will begin Friday, July 2, and continue through Monday, July 5.

Ken Nordeman, carnival committee chairman, described the carnival as "fairly extensive" with about 30 games and concessions and about a dozen major rides such as ferris wheel, bob sled and bumper car.

The equipment used is the same as that used for the state fairs in both New Mexico and Colorado, he said.

The Midland Bicentennial Commission will keep 20 per cent of the carnival gross from all rides and shows requiring tickets.

The July 3 event will start at 9:30 a.m. at the courthouse's Bicentennial Plaza with an opening ceremony featuring "music, a choral group and possibly some brief remarks," according to commission chairman Joe Dominey.

Hooper Sanders, chairman of the booths and concessions committee, said physical preparations for the day-long event will begin July 2 when the courthouse sqaure begins filling with brightly decorated booths, displays and other decorations. Streets will be blocked to traffic a block away from the site. Sanders said electrical outlets and water will be available to participants.

Booths will be assigned next week, he added.

Additional Bicentennial activities scheduled for that weekend include the Texas Tech University cattle drive which will thunder down Wall Street from Fairgrounds Road at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, July 1. The Frazier carnival opens the following day, with the Fun A' Fair scheduled Saturday. On Sunday, Midland church bells will peal at 1 p.m., simultaneously with bells across the nation marking the time 200 years ago with the Declaration of Independence was reportedly signed.

Sunday afternoon's activities will feature a 4 p.m. religious service in Wadley Barron Park. The following day, the Bicentennial Commission will participate with the Midland Kiwanis Club in presenting the Kiwanis' annual Fourth of July celebration in Midland Cubs Stadium.

The program will feature "a very major fireworks display" featuring $6,000 in fireworks.

Expenditures for the Bicentennial celebration reported in the meeting indicate the Commission is in "pretty good shape" financially, assisted in part by a recent $2,000 matching grant from the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas.

Standwick sentenced

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge has sentenced Joseph Edward Standwick, 25, to three 75 year prison terms after the clerk pleaded no contest to three murder charges.

During the sentencing Thursday, State District Court Judge William Hatten repeatedly referred to reports from three psychiatrists who said Standwick was competent to stand trial on the charges.

Standwick was charged in the deaths of Morris L. Williams, 46, Daniel Louis O'Connor, 53, and Charles Albert Ogel, 52.

Williams, an American Party official and an insurance underwriter, was beaten with wine bottles and shot three times in house Sept. 16.

O'Connor, a real estate dealer, was found tied, and stabbed with an ornamental spear in his office Sept. 19. Papers were piled around the body and ignited in an effort to burn it.

Ogel, a building engineer, was beaten and shot in his mobile home Oct. 20.

Hatten assessed the prison terms on the recommendations of prosecutor Jerry Guerinot. The sentences were to be served concurrently.

Lutherans like modern words

NEW YORK (AP) — To a questionnaire about new worship materials, pastors of four North American Lutheran denominations have responded with an overwhelming approval of using contemporary language — such as "you" instead of "thee" in reference to God — in prayers of public worship.

Branch unopposed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — No protests were voiced Thursday in a Texas Savings and Loan Department hearing on an application by Citizens Savings and Loan Association for a branch office in the Dellwood Plaza Shopping Center in Midland.

Citizens Savings and Loan has a main office and one branch office already located in Midland. Their application states that the additional branch will not "unduly harm" any other savings and loan association operating in the area and that there is a public need for the office. They also assert that the volume of business in the area would "yield a profit to the association in a reasonable time."

The record of the fact-finding hearing will be forwarded to W. Sale Lewis, Savings and Loan Department commissioner, within 15 days.

CARL DALLY

Judge of the

Texas Court of Criminal Appeals

"Carl Dally has been a commissioner-in-aid to the court of criminal appeals for half a decade. He has argued before the U.S. Supreme Court and has had extensive experience in both the criminal and civil branches of the law. His opponent is a man with no judicial or appellate experience in criminal cases. We urge Texas Democrats eligible to vote in the June 5 runoffs to inform themselves of the qualifications of the candidates in this and all races. We urge them not to vote for a vaguely familiar name, but to vote for the best man. In the case of the runoff for the criminal appeals court, the best candidate is clearly Carl Dally."

AUSTIN AMERICAN-STATESMAN

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram calls Carl Dally "eminently qualified" and the Houston Chronicle says he is "uniquely suited" to serve on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Dally is also endorsed by newspapers in Dallas, Lubbock, Corpus Christi, San Angelo, Tyler, Bryan, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Victoria and Wichita Falls.

Ask your lawyer, your district attorney, any judge, or informed friend about the candidates in this important race. Then vote for the best man.

Recruiting limits alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two former Marine recruiters say they were ordered to limit the number of blacks they took into into the corps.

Marine generals denied any knowledge of recruiting discrimination but said they would look into the charges.

Former Marine Sgt. Harold Faulkner, asked if recruiters could induct only a limited number of blacks, told a House panel Thursday: "We have been limited, yes." He also said "there was no secret" about the quotas.

Faulkner said his superior in the Austin, Tex., recruiting station told him and other recruiters last year that "we can only put in two blacks this month, only one next month." He said the limits lasted for "four or five months of 1975."

Former Marine Sgt. John Pitchlynn said there was a racial quota in the recruiting station in Tulsa, Okla., where he had worked until last November.

He said an offical Marine teletype message that "was discussed with us" conveyed a sense that "we had to be careful on the number of blacks signed up. We can recruit only 10 blacks this month." Pitchlynn quoted the sergeant in charge as saying.

In another matter being investigated by the House panel, Faulkner said he signed up Pvt. Lynn McClure but that he saw nothing unusual about the young Texan who later was killed during a boot-camp training exercise.

Faulkner said he had no knowledge that McClure was not mentally sound. "I felt I checked him adequately," Faulkner said.

Salvation Army pledges total $83,475, Snelson announces

Pledges totaling $83,475 toward the Salvation Army's capital fund campaign goal of $350,000 were announced by Pete Snelson, chairman of the development fund, Thursday noon at the first report meeting honoring campaign workers held at the Hilton Hotel.

Ed Magruder, chairman of the patterns gift division which had its kick-off two weeks ago, announced that 30 per cent of its goal had been reached and that the response by Midlanders had been excellent.

The special gifts division, under the chairmanship of Richard Mendenhall, which began its contacts only last week, announced that eight per cent of its goal had been reached with early pledges.

In appealing for the campaign workers to make their contacts, Deane Stoltz, chairman of the Development Council, said: "Don't deny anyone the blessing which can come from contributing to this very deserving campaign."

Both divisions of the fund drive will report at the second luncheon Wednesday.

The $350,000 Development Program will fund the modernization and expansion of the Army's facilities at 300 S. Baird St. It is the first capital fund appeal to the general public since the Army began serving Midland 25 years ago.

Snelson stressed that anyone desiring to have a part in the campaign may obtain information by calling the Development Fund office at 682-8259.

Regional park discussed

By DEBBIE PIERCE

Governmental officials from Midland and Ector counties met Thursday with state governmental officials and tossed around an idea for a regional park to be located between Midland and Odessa.

The park idea was the brain-child of the Community Relations Team of Levi Strauss & Co., a group seeking ways to raise money to perform a service to both communities.

The 26 persons attending the luncheon agreed to answer a questionaire for 'Levi's CRT group to provide input so a more concrete proposal can be determined by the two cities' parks departments.

Herb Etheridge, Levi's plant manager, presided at the discussion session, and noted that the meeting had been planned to acquaint city and county officials with the CRT and also to explore the possibilities of a regional park.

He said the CRT believed that, one day, Midland and Odessa will be a large metroplex similar to Dallas-Fort Worth and that a regional park would serve as a connector between the two cities. He said the CRT also believes an insufficient number of parks and recreational facilities are available now in the two-city area and that this situation will get worse.

Robert W. Bechtel, a vice president of First National Bank in Midland, said the group was just talking about "a park" unless a concrete suggestion of what type park could be determined and unless the facility had something to draw people to it. He suggested the idea between the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum was something unique to the West Texas area.

City of Midland parks officials Robert Thomson and Wayne Kohout suggested a lake offering water-based activities would be popular in this area.

The idea was also proposed that greenery, trees and water near U.S. 80 between the two cities would encourage more visitors to remain here.

Kohout also said the group needs to determine if a regional park is really desired for Midland and Odessa. He said a marina or large zoo could be a good joint venture for the two cities since both suggestions would not be feasible for either city working alone.

Thomson added that areas such as transportation and health could also be studied as project ideas.

Midland and Odessa parks officials are expected to go over the suggestions with members of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

Howard tax value increases

BIG SPRING — The total oil tax value in Howard County will increase by approximately $2.5 million in true market value over last year, Howard County commissioners were told Thursday.

James Rapier of the Midland firm of Pritchard and Abbott, the evaluation engineer firm which apprasied the county's mineral tax roll, made the estimate.

The commissioners court was meeting as a board of equalization for oil property, but heard no complaints from any oil firms about the values set by Pritchard and Abbott.

The 1975 county tax rolls show a 100 per cent or "true market" value for taxed property in Howard County of $436.5 million. Of this amount, $225.3 million was listed on the oil rolls.

The remainder of the taxed property is apprasied by the local joint tax appraisal office. Carlton Harry, senior tax appraiser for this real and personal property, was unable to estimate the total of these tax values.

Values are set parcel by parcel, Harry said, and no running total is kept. He felt, however, that new construction would substantially increase the taxable property.

PROOF OF LAST WEEK'S STATEMENT
OPPOSITES USUALLY DO NOT MARRY EACH OTHER! Studies of Terman (Stanford University) tend to show that there is a tendency for like to marry like — that there is a fair correlation between husband and wife in intelligence, appearance, etc.

National champions make same mistakes

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When today's hand was played some years ago in the match between Sweden and Germany, both declarers make the same simple mistake. It's a consolation to all of us to know that even national champions can make simple mistakes when they're competing in an international tournament.

Opening lead – ♡ 5

At both tables of the match declarer won the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts, dropping East's singleton jack. Both declarers made the mistake of leading a trump to the ace and another trump right back. East naturally took all of his trumps and then got out with a club.

South could later lead the ten of hearts for a finesse, but he still had to lose a heart trick. This, added to the three losers in trumps and the two losers in clubs, was one trick more than he could afford.

RIGHT TRUMP PLAY

South should leave the trumps alone. He needs a trump in dummy to take care of his own fourth heart, and he must not let an opponent draw dummy's trumps.

After taking the king of hearts, declarer cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond. Then he leads the ten of hearts for a finesse. East ruffs and returns the king of trumps.

South wins with the ace of trumps and leads a heart to dummy's ace. East can ruff and draw a second around of trumps, but that still leaves one trump in the dummy. Declarer can eventually ruff his last heart with dummy's last trump to make sure of the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S2 HQ7653 DKQ652 CQ4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts. Since you have 9 points in high cards, you know that the combined count is 25 to 27 points. You want to play for game in hearts if partner has three or more hearts. Other wise you will choose between three notrump and five diamonds.

Dally fears name may beat him

By ROBERT HEARD

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Carl Dally, one of four commissioners on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, says a Waco lawyer is close to beating him for a seat on that court simply because his name is Phillips.

That's ridiculous, says W. T. Phillips. There is no similarity between the confusion over names in the Texas Supreme Court race and his campaign for the criminal court, he claims.

Houston lawyer Don Yarbrough—not Houston lawyer Don Yarborough, who ran for governor three times—won the Democratic nomination for a Supreme Court seat. There is no Republican nominee.

Dally says a lot of voters may have thought Phillips, who has no judicial experience and hasn't tried a felony case in the past 10 years, was Hawthorne Phillips, a supreme court justice who died a year ago, or John Phillips, a judge on Austin's Court of Civil Appeals.

W. T. Phillips received 522,183 votes in the May 1 primary, almost 200,000 more than Dally, who has served as commissioner on the court for five years and has written more than 750 opinions.

Dally received 330,712 votes, and a third candidate, Jim Vollers, 274,362.

Voters must choose between Phillips and Dally in Saturday runoff.

Asked what effect he thought name identification may have had in the first race, Phillips said, "I don't think it had any. I hadn't even thought of it until they (critics) mentioned it. I don't see how it could have."

Not only is his first name different from those of the judges, his home town is different, too, he said. In the Yarbrough-Yarborough case, only one letter in the last names is different, he said.

Dally speculated on several possible reasons for Phillips' high vote.

"I think his name is a more common name than Dally or Vollers," he said.

And Dally's name was not listed first on the ballots in any of the major cities.

Worst, he says he has discovered a lot of people assume every candidate running for an appellate court has judicial experience and is qualified. And they vote for a name like Phillips because it is a familiar one in judicial races.

Not only does Phillips lack judicial experience, he has never tried a criminal case before the court he wants to sit on, Dally said. Phillips had to get another Waco lawyer to point out the court to him on a recent trip to Austin, Dally said.

"No, sir. That is not correct," Phillips said. "... Well, that's absurd, but that's okay."

It is true, Phillips says, that he has never argued a criminal case on appeal, and, what's more, he is proud of it. He considers himself "the most fortunate person in the world" because it has not been necessary to press an appeal to that court. All of his clients in criminal cases have been satisfied with how their cases came out, he said.

He has handled 24 criminal cases in the last decade. Twenty pleaded guilty and drew sentences averaging 3.9 years. Three cases are still pending, and no outcome is listed in Waco district court records on the 24th case.

Don Hall, a former district attorney in Waco, says when Phillips was more active in criminal law he tried "everything from misdemeanors to murder." Hall was the prosecutor in many of those cases, and he says Phillips is well qualified to be a criminal appeallate judge.

Hall said Phillis has a good legal mind and can easily brush up on current criminal law.

"That story conflicts with what other lawyers up there say," Dally responded. The present district attorney, Martin Eichelberger, says he and Phillips have been friends but he still thinks Phillips is unqualified.

All six of the men who have served as president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association have endorsed Dally.

"I don't know of a single district or county attorney that does not support me," Dally said.

Phillips, 63, graduated from Baylor Law School in 1937. He has practiced civil and criminal law for 39 years. He and his wife Martha have one daughter.

Dally, 52, graduated from Denver Law School and began his practice in Texas in 1954. He served as assistant district attorney in Harris County for six years and then represented defendants in criminal cases for 10 years before the criminal appeals court appointed him commissioner. He and his wife Edith have one son.

As commissioner, Dally draws the same pay as the judges and has all of the duties and powers of a judge except voting on whether to affirm or reverse cases and on administrative matters.

If Dally loses to Phillips, he still will be a commissioner.

Asked if he would be able to work with Phillips after having charged him with being unqualified for the judge's post, Dally said, "I don't know. That will remain to be seen."

Error forces delay in swine flu plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is being forced to delay its mass swine flu vaccination program for four to six weeks because a pharmaceutical company made two million doses of the wrong vaccine.

The slip-up occurred at Parke Davis & Co., the U.S. Public Health Service said.

It will push back the government's plans to provide the first shots to high-risk elderly and chronically-ill persons starting in late July.

"The company has since changed strains and has significantly increased its production," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. But he added, "we will probably not have enough to begin innoculations of the high-risk group in late July."

The high-risk group will receive a combination vaccine against the swine-type influenza and A-Victoria influenza.

The government hopes to innoculate most Americans by fall against the rare but potentially deadly swine flu, which broke out at Ft. Dix, N.J., in February.

Parke-Davis was one of four drug companies producing the experimental vaccine for the government. The others have been making the right vacine, officials said.

The mistake was discovered last week during routine government tests.

Baptist group flays abortion

HALLETTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Southern Baptist leader of an antiabortion organization has sent 15,000 letters to clergy and laity, urging the denomination's convention June 15-17 in Norfolk, Va., to adopt a resolution strongly opposing abortion.

The Rev. Robert Holbrook, coordinator of "Baptists for Life, Inc.," says in his letter that "certain of the news media and abortion advocates" have pictured past convention actions as favoring abortion, and the convention should take a stand clearly against it.
