Story On Value Of Money Takes First In Essay Contest

Winners Selected Monday From 100 Letters Sent In In Competition

A thrice-told tale of the value of money has been awarded first prize in the Record News' essay contest "What I Could Do With An Extra $500."

It was written by Emily H. Dye, residing at the Moro hotel, who has given a clear and logical account of what she could, or rather what she would do with an extra $500 should some good genii drop that amount into her purse some day.

Is Picked as Winner

It was deemed the best submitted out of approximately 100 essays turned into the contest editor of the Record News, although, of course, there were others that displayed very decided merit.

Second place went to Vivian Ryner Moore, Electra, whose tale of how she would expend her $500 to assure the financial safety of her babies in afterlife should she suddenly be taken from them constituted an appealing and touching treatise. Third place went to Mrs. W. E. Wade, 2012 Elizabeth street, whose story of the old lady who wanted to "go sailing on one of God's ships" was a classic.

Stories Printed

The first and third place winners are reproduced in this morning's edition of the Record News.

The winners of the contest will find checks waiting for them at he Record News office this morning, the first place $25 check for Mrs. Dye, the second place $15 check for Mrs. Moore, and the third place $10 check for Mrs. Wade.

"How differently this would have been answered in different stages of my life.

"In youth, when with life before me, filled with ambition and the desire to conquer; at 16, when with all the courage of youth I assayed my country school and the teaching of my 'children,' many of whom were older than myself—I shall never forget that first voucher for $60. It seemed to me then that it would not take long to save that $500 which would be necessary to enter the university. So at 16 that would have been my answer to your query. Five hundred dollars would have meant to me the means of unlocking the doors, as it were, to the fulfillment of my ambitions.

A Different Story

"After 10 years had passed, how differently would the question have been answered and what a different value would have been placed on the sum involved. For in those 10 years I had known the love of a generous husband and $500 more would only have meant the gift of a pretty bauble or the addition of some kind to my home.

"Another 10 years and the hand of my father time had swept away by sickness and death not only all that my heart held dear but all my worldly goods as well, and I was left alone to battle with conditions as best I might. And again I would have had still another answer for the question.

"And now I am answering the question from the viewpoint of a woman of 60—and how readily I can answer, for if $500 were to be placed in my hands today, tomorrow would find it invested in at least the beginning of a home.

"Youth like the bees and birds can skip from one environment to another and find happiness anywhere so long as comfort endures. But as one grows older and the shadows lengthen toward the close of life, we long for the stability and peace that can only be gained when one can feel that they are under their own roof.

The Need to Save

"I hardly feel I will accomplish my desire before I am called on, but how

ELECTRA, June 7.—Funeral services will be conducted at Kerens, Texas, next Thursrday for W. H. Faughn, Electra tailoring parlor operator, who was fatally injured early Friday morning in an explosion that wrecked the Magnolia Petroleum company's machine shops west of the city. Mr. Faughan died Monday afternoon at the clinic hospital in Wichita Falls.

Two other men, Ogden E. Sims, fireman at the shops and Spencer Gill, blacksmith, were painfully although not seriously injured when a boiler at the shops blew up. Sims was not resting well Monday night, but it is not believed he is badly hurt.

Faughn is survived by his wife and two small children, Pauline and W. H. Jr., by four brothers, H. T. and M. H. Faughn of Electra, J. E. and Z. O. Faughn of Salome Springs, Ark.; two sisters, Mrs. G. A. Arnett and Mrs. Knox Morton of Kerens, Texas, and by his parents, J. W. Faughn of Kerens and Mrs. J. W. Faughn of Salome Springs, Ark.

The body was sent Monday afternoon by the Burris-Dalton company to Corsicana. Members of the family and a number of friends left here Monday night for Kerens.

The dead man, who was born in Bazette, Texas, in 1890, has lived in Electra since 1918. For some time he has been employed at the Magnolia shops, but later bought a down town cleaning establishment which he has been operating. He was a member of the Methodist church and Masonic lodge.

Property damage estimated at $20,000 was caused when a closed safety valve on a big boiler in the shops impounded sufficient steam to cause the explosion. The boiler had been shut down and cleaned out over Sunday and the valve was not opened when the fires were started Monday morning.

Plans Made to Give Jim And Ma Big Reception On Arrival In W. F.

HERE MONDAY

B. Y. Cummings Declares Dan And Lynch Have No Chance

A Wichita Falls "Ferguson for Governor" club appeared on the political horizon Monday night, temporary organization being effected with J. B. Marlow, former mayor, as its chairman. Permanent organization, however, was passed up to complete arrangements for a reception to be tendered the former governor, and in event she should come, too, the governor, during their stay in Wichita Falls next week.

James E. Ferguson will be in Wichita Falls Monday morning to remain in attendance at the meeting of the state democratic executive committee here that day. He will make a speech at Vernon Monday afternoon, returning to Wichita Falls that night and remaining over until Tuesday night when he will speak in the interest of his wife's campaign for re-election. It is not known definitely whether Mrs. Ferguson herself will be in the city or not, although friends stated at Monday night's meeting that every effort would be made to bring her to the city with her husband.

Cummings Talks.

Those at Monday night's meeting, there were exactly 80, 70 of them men, 7 of them women, and 3 children, expressed confidence in the outcome of the July and August primaries. "I am for Ma," was heard time and again in every talk that was made, but it remained for B. Y. Cummings, staunch Ferguson supporter, to put the backbone of sentiment into mere words. "Dan Moody or Lynch Davidson have no more chance of defeating that good woman in her campaign for re-election than I have to be elected queen of England."

SUIT FOLLOWS WIRE CONTRACT

$17,898 Asked Here By Gulf Company Vs. Union Oil

Alleged breach of a sale contract on 100 cars of "new navy gasoline" is made the basis for a suit to recover $17,898.75, filed by the Gulf Refining company Monday in the 78th district court, naming the Union Oil Products company of Wichita Falls as defendant.

According to the plaintiff's petition the defendant company through its president, J. M. Bradshaw, and other agents, entered into a telegraphic contract with it on Oct. 16, 1925, to deliver 100 cars of a specified "new navy" gasoline, f. o. b. tank cars, at 8 1-4 cents a gallon within a 30-day period. Just 23 of the cars were delivered, the petition states, adding that as a result of the defendant's failure to comply with terms of the alleged contract it was forced to buy 77 cars of gasoline on the open market at an increased price of 11 cents a gallon. Damages in the amount of the difference between the contract price and the price actually paid is asked in the suit, plus accrued interest since the expiration of the 30 days, as damages.

Interest in the suit for Wichita Falls oil men will largely hinge, it is believed, on the validity of the alleged contract, consummated as it was almost entirely by wire and telephone conversation, and the power of the courts to force compliance with terms so agreed upon.

It was pointed out that in this way the more important questions with which the representative of this district is concerned would be laid before the voters.

Yanks Teach French 'Blades' Art of Crime

Wealthy Young Men In Paris Supplant Apaches In Violence

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—An American crime wave is lapping the shores of France and robbery "in the American manner" is being practiced along the Paris boulevards by young Frenchmen "of the better class" under the tutelage of 5,000 American crooks posing in the fashionable hotels as prosperous business men according to a French police official who has come to learn methods of crime prevention.

Rene Cassellari, former police commissioner in Paris arrived today to study American methods of signals and other means of checking crime. He said that hold-ups of jewelry stores and banks had so increased in Paris that "we have become appalled."

He said that not the Apaches, but the sons of the middle class families were taking up two gun crime as the result of examples set them by American robbers who swarmed Europe. These Americans, he asserted, were almost impossible to trace as instead of occupying underworld haunts and the "night light" resorts where the real criminals dive they live in the best hotels, dress richly and well, and look just like the average well to-do American living abroad."

TORTURE AIRED IN DEATH TRIAL

Osage County Man Declares Officers Put Him Through Third Degree

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 7.—(AP)—Stories of torturous methods alleged to have been used by operatives in the United States department of justice in an effort to obtain confessions in several Osage Indian murder cases, were told on the witness stand here today by William K. Hale and John Ramsey, testifying as defense witnesses in the trial of Ernest Burkhart, Hale's nephew for the murder of W. E. Smith of Fairfax.

Hale and Ramsey are co-defendants with Burkhart in the Smith case, but it is probable they will not be tried in state court. They are under a federal indictment charging them with the murder of Henry Roan, an Osage Indian and the United States supreme court, which recently sustained the validity of the indictment today ordered a mandate sent to Oklahoma immediately.

Declaring that he was threatened with electrocution and that small charges of electricity actually were applied to his body in an effort to obtain a confession was made by Hale, a wealthy Osage county cattle man.

Hale is charged by the government with having instigated the murders of several rich Indians in an effort to gain control of their estates.

FALLS INTO RIVER

Youth Warns Patrol That "Bad Men" Are on Watch For Officers

BROWNSVILLE, June 7.—(AP) Two U. S. border patrol inspectors were forced to give up search for the body of a man who has fallen into the Rio Grande after having been shot by them when a group ot about 25 persons began shooting at them with rifles from the Mexican side of the stream, they reported when they came to Brownsville for reinforcements Monday. The incident occurred at a spot known as Tahunchal bend.

Joined by federal, county and other officers, they returned to the spot, but the body apparently had been recovered, carried back to the Mexican side and the armed group had dispersed.

The inspectors, V. O. Robinette and C. D. Brown, said they were forced to shoot the man who fell into the river when he drew a pistol as they approached to place him under arrest for illegal entry into the United States.

Hide in Bush.

They had watched him row a boat across the Rio Grande to a landing on the U. S. side before making their presence known, they said.

They had kept watch at the spot, they said, after finding a Mexican boy standing guard over a pile of groceries. Warned by the youth, they said, that they would be killed by "bad men" who were coming if they remained, they had concealed themselves until attempting to make the arrest.

Joined by the youth, the agents immediately began search for the body. As they approached the river bank, however, they said, firing started from the Mexican side, continuing so heavily the U. S. agents were forced to retreat.

Contributions Come In For Milk And Ice Fund

"I am just a poor girl, but I want to give something for the relief of the babies who need assistance in the summer."

So ran a brief note received by the Record News and in which was included a $1 bill to be applied on the Record News Milk and Ice fund. It was an annonymous contribution from a person who wished to be designated merely in that manner.

Added to this was a $10 contribution received yesterday from A. T. Kimmell.

Wichita Falls is beginning to take an interest in the fund, which is sponsored each year in the interests of those hundreds of luckless youngsters who, without a helping hand of this kind, would find little solace when the sun begins to mount above the 100 degree mark. It nearly reached the century figure Monday, 99 degrees, the hottest of the year, being recorded.

SECOND LOVE

MALCOLM DUARD

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY EUGENE MACLEAN

"This is Marcie," said the dulcet voice at the transmitter. "Yes, Marcie Allen. Listen, John, I've got an idea—"

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

John Parrish and Audrey, his rich young wife, have been quarreling because of her frequent reminders of her wealth and his dependence upon her. They invite Marcie Allen into their house when she is ordered out of her own by her father. Marcie, gay, dark, beautiful, is a believer in advanced rights for women. Within a few days she has kissed the bashful Parrish, hugged him on another occasion, embarrassed him by appearing at breakfast in a transparent robe, and as the last chapter ends tells him that she will do anything she can to make him happy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(Names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XII

Parrish's easy blush mounted to his forehead. "Thanks," he said, rubbing his hand on the roughened surface of the flivver's fender, still without meeting her eyes. "But I don't see what you can do."

Marcie bowed her own head, and twined her fingers together. "I love your wife, John," she said, "but I know she is cold. Don't you think that blondes are always cold?"

"I don't know," he said. "I never learned anything much about women."

He leaned away from her, and she perceived that he was eyeing the thin robe she had on. She picked up a fold of it, and held it toward him.

"Isn't this pretty material? See, it has a good thread running through it."

He diffidently fingered the goods, and as he did so, she moved forward so her body touched his hand. He jerked away quickly.

"It's a very nice robe," he said, opening the door of his car. "Very pretty, indeed."

As he seated himself, she flung her arms over the side of the machine, placing one foot on the running board. Her face was very close to his.

"John, dear, have you forgiven me for taking your emerald pin?" she asked, softly, close to his ear.

"I couldn't make out what you did it for," he said, his face averted.

"You remember that I told you about it, before I knew that you knew," she reminded him.

"Yes, you did," he acknowledged. "That's what helped puzzle me. Why on earth did you take it, Marcie?"

"Sweet thing," she whispered. "He called me 'Marcie' again." Then, returning to her normal tone, "You said, you know, that you don't understand women."

"That's right—I can't make 'em out."

"I—just—wanted—to—know—what—my—John—boy—would—say," she said, very slowly, her face coming closer and closer to him.

Then, with a sudden movement, she kissed his cheek, and turned and fled.

When, five minutes later, he backed his car out of the garage, she was standing in the doorway, and waved at him. He nodded and lifted his hat. When he passed out of sight, Marcie yawned, and lighted a cigarette.

"It certainly takes John an age to get that awful old car of his started, in the morning," said Audrey, coming down stairs. "He must have been working on it fifteen minutes today."

"Why don't you buy him a spuzzy new one?" Marcie asked, blowing a smoke wreath out the door.

"I offered him one, but he wouldn't take it," replied Audrey. "I told him I hated to see my husband going around looking so awfully cheap."

Marcie looked over her shoulder at her hostess, with a wise smile. "Likely that's why he wouldn't take it," she said. "That isn't a nice way to offer anything, Audrey. You ought to say: 'Papa's baby doesn't like to see her great big sweetums in little bitty car. Baby buy papa a fine, nice big one.' That's the way."

Audrey laughed. "That'd be your method, all right. But if a grown man can't stand it to hear the truth, there's something wrong with him."

Marcie knocked the ash off her cigarette, and puffed a moment.

"Audrey," she said, "you're pretty rough on that husband of yours. Of course, you have lots of money, and he hasn't any, but what's the use of rubbing it in?"

"I don't," said Audrey. "Naturally I have to mention it sometimes, but every time I do, he flies into a rage. Men are such babies."

"Well, you're a chump." Marcie tossed the cigarette but onto the stone step, and ground it with her heel. "You're ragging that man until he's in a frame of mind to do anything. And here I am in the house, lovely, alluring, tender-hearted and very fond of men." She drew her robe around her, revealingly, and struck on attitude. "Just look at me! If I were you, I'd chuck me out—or quit hazing John."

"Go along!" Audrey smote her friend with her open palm, where the robe was drawn tightest. "Run upstairs and get some clothes on. You're a disgrace."

With a placid smile she turned to her household order book, while Marcie, singing, tramped up the steps, and executed a dance movement as she passed along the hall to her own apartment.

Audrey was sitting on the porch when Marcie rejoined her. The dark girl was in a fetching afternoon dress of golden brown, almost as thin as her morning robe, but reinforced by an underslip.

"Audrey," said Marcie, "do you care if I telephone your husband?"

Her hostess looked up. "All right with me. Use that phone there by the door, and I can listen."

Marcie withdrew, and after a brief shuffling of the directory, called Parrish's office. There was a delay before Parrish answered. Audrey, ten feet away, could hear his curt "Parrish speaking—who is it, please?" through the receiver.

"This is Marcie," said the dulcet voice at the transmitter. "Yes—Marcie Allen. Listen, John, I've got an idea—regular business idea. Yes—what?" There was a short silence at her end, during which Audrey could hear Parrish's voice in rapid speech. "Oh—I'm sorry you're busy. But this won't take a minute. You know, I'm sleeping in your house and eating your food and shocking you dreadfully every day. Well, I can't pay any board. But, John—how much does it cost to hire a nice roadster by the day?—How much? It does!—Well, then." She raised her voice triumphantly. "I have my roadster, and I can't afford to buy gasoline for it. So from now on, as long as I'm here, you use my car—I'll pay my board that way."

She hung up the receiver, and sauntered to the porch.

"He won't do it," returned Audrey, with a shake of her head. "If he wouldn't let me buy him a car, he'll hardly use yours. I think he's just devoted to that wretched flivver of his. It's a hundred years old, almost—anyhow it must have been one of the first lot turned out, but he will not let go of it."

"Maybe he can't afford another," Marcie said.

"But I can," Audrey returned. "What say we take a little ride?"

Marcie assented. "I'm all dressed up to go window shopping this afternoon, but I'll give you an hour," she said.

"Much obliged for the donation," her hostess returned politely. "I'll go send for the motor."

Audrey's long, low victoria—a gift from her father—drew up to the curb in a few minutes, and the two girls sank into the back seat. The chauffeur silently threw in his gear, and the car glided away.

The afternoon was almost done when they returned. Marcie took the chauffeur's extended hand and leaped to the ground. Audrey followed her, more slowly.

"I'm almost dead," said Audrey, as they passed in the gate. "Doesn't shopping almost kill you?"

"I love it," Marcie said. "But it is hard on the legs. I wish they had padded floors in stores. Wish somebody would tell me how I'm going to pay for all that stuff I bought.

She flung herself in the porch swing and extended her feet before her, wide apart, her knees straight. Audrey sat down beside her.

"You still have some money left, haven't you?" asked Audrey.

"Yes—or your husband has. He sold my stock for me, you know, and I asked him to be my fiscal agent." Marcie giggled at the high-sounding title. "But when that's gone, what'll I do?"

"Oh, something'll turn up," said her hostess, comfortably. "You won't starve, anyway."

She took off her hat, and brushed the hair back from her forehead. "Why haven't any of the boys been in to see you?" Audrey went on.

"Haven't told a soul that I'm here," said Marcie. "They've probably been around to the house, and found it dark—and they wouldn't dream of asking dad. They all have seen him. Almost all."

She took off her own hat, and ran her finger through the mop of brown curls. "Anyhow, I don't want to see them. That husband of yours interests me too much—haven't time to think of my gang any more."

Audrey smiled, and yawned. "Watch out, or you'll be driving him out of the house," she warned. "There never was a man so shy of women as he is. Why—there he comes, now."

A yellow roadster turned in at the driveway, at the edge of the lawn. Parrish was piloting it. As he saw the girls on the porch, he waved, stopped, climbed out of the car and came across the lawn.

"That's Marcie's car, isn't it?" asked Audrey, as he approached.

"Yep—she's going to let me use it. So I came home early, and took it out to see how it works."

ROBBED OF $500

Woman Cashier in Lunch Stand Held Up by Motor Bandit.

Kansas City, June 7.—(AP)—Miss Arzelia Utterback, bookkeeper and assistant cashier of a lunch company in the downtown business district, was robbed of $500, in receipts today by a man who stepped from a motor car parked at the curb and forced her to drop into the car the sack containing the money. He then drove off.

Four Suspects Held In Dallas Robbery

DALLAS, June 7.—(AP)—Four men and two women, suspects in connection with the $20,000 robbery of the Jefferson bank here last week are in the city and county jails awaiting attempts at identification by bank attaches and patrons locked in the vault as the robbers escaped.

The fourth man and one woman were arrested Sunday night, when plain clothes police raided a north Dallas house on a tip to detectives. The woman was taken after meals were delivered to the jail for three suspects already arrested at odd times since the robbery.

None of the money has been located and as far as is known detectives have no information leading to the possible cache.

Although it is believed two of the men in jail were actual participants in the robbery, neither is thought to be the ring leader.

The third suspect arrested early Sunday was standing behind a curtain, armed with a cocked pistol when officers entering a South Dallas house saw curtain twitch and grabbed him.

No trace of the automobile used by the bandits has been found.

Electra Girl To Address Meeting Of West Texas C-C

ELECTRA, June 7.—Miss Thelma Coffey, daughter of C. W. Coffey of the First State bank, will attend the convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce, June 21-23, in Amarillo, and will speak on "Why My Town Is the Best Town in Texas." This will be given as declamation before the convention and Miss Coffey is given this privilege for having the best essay on the subject in the schools recently. The Electra 20-piece band with Paul Smith, bandmaster, will make the trip, playing for the convention upon arriving. The exact number from the chamber of commerce is undecided at this time, but in all possibility a large delegation will be in attendance.

The party will leave Wichita Falls on the night of June 21 and arrive in Amarillo the following day. The Electra delegation is chartering a Pullman which will be placed on the siding and used as sleeping quarters to relieve the congested hote conditions.

Danger Signals of Indigestion

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning by many physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor on account of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical book tells us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up gainst your heart and lungs 3. A dull lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Ferralina, Nature's great stomach treatment that has given relief to thousands. Ferralin immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including your stomach, liver and bowels. Ferraline makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Ferraline today at any drug store. Ferraline is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the owners have instructed every druggist to refund the purchase price, One Dollar, if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous. Get Ferraline today from your druggist. —Adv.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

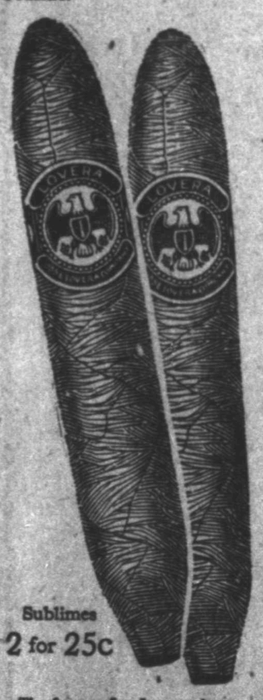

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

SOUTH AMERICA PROMISES BIG POTENTIAL OIL

Standard Oil Reports Bolivia And Argentine Among Greatest Future Fields

One of the coming oil fields of the future will be located along the Bermejo river, with portions of it in Bolivian, and the Argentine republic, according to J. N. Fanning of the Standard, just back from a six-months' tour of duty with the Standard Oil company of Bolivia.

Structural conditions are promising, he reports, and exploratory work indicates that a higher gravity of oil than is now found in other South American countries may be found. The oil is similar in color to the Bartlesville sand in central Oklahoma, but the gravity is not so high.

According to the report wild catting in Bolivia and the Argentine could be made very easy, if the sanitary conditions could be raised to a higher standard than now exist. If the sanitary conditions are adequate the American drillers can withstand the varying climtic conditions, but if both must be endured, then it will be difficult to induce American drillers to go there.

Bolivia is the only South American republic that does not touch the sea on any side. To reach it, one has to travel several thousand miles across the Argentine republic. Leaving Buenos Aires, which is one of he most modern of cities, being termed by many the Paris of South America, one goes via Rosario, the Pittsburgh of South America, and strikes out across the pampas, or plains, towards the foothills of the Los Andes.

The pampas of the Argentine seem unlimited in area, and for miles and miles one crosses plains, dotted here and there by salt plains, that in size make the salt plains of Oklahoma and Texas appear small. Crossing the pampas one encounters game of all sorts including ostriches. Beyond the pampas is Tucuman, the sugar center of the Argentine, and from Tucuman to Oran is located the cane and wheat belt of the republic.

From Buenos Aires to Tucuman one travels for more than a full day over the Ferrocorail de Central Argentine, a British owned railroad, while the government owned Ferrocorail de Estados line from Tucuman to Oran is used. This is one of the scenic railroads of the world, a narrow gauge line with all American equipment. The road climbs into the mountains all the way. At Oran the railroad is left and mules are taken by trail to Bermejo camp, crossing several very dangerous streams.

The Bermejo camp of the Standard is located in a beautiful spot, along the boundary between Bolivia and the Argentine. It could be made the most ideal oil field camp in the world, and it is understood that steps are to be taken to improve the working conditions there.

One producing well has been completed there, it being in Bolivia. It came in for 1,800 barrels initial of 30 gravity oil, and is now down to about 45 barrels a day. It is several years old. Two offsets are drilling to it, but they are in the Argentine.

Other wild catting in the immediate area is around Porcelina, in the Argentine, and also at San Telmo, eight leagues away in Bolivia.

RED RIVER DISPUTE.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—One phase of the Red river boundary dispute between Oklahoma and Texas as presented by Charles West, will not be heard by the supreme court, it was announced today. West asked the court to decide whether lands lying in the south half of the river bed in Oklahoma, which the court decided belonged to the United States, were subject on March 6, 1920, to the federal mineral leasing act.

Contending that the act provided among other things for prospecting for oil and gas on public lands, West sought to obtain a lease on the land in question, but federal courts here held that the supreme court in the boundary dispute had decided the question contrary to his contention.

News Of The Fields

Hamilton, Whitehead

Hamilton and Martin have a sand topped at 867 and drilled two feet in their No. 1 Whitehead to the south of Barkley and Howell's producers in the Orth area which is showing up three bailers of oil per hour. The test yesterday was being drilled three feet deeper into the sand before making test on the beam. This is the first well to be made to the south of the discovery producer.

Roberts, Gilmore

The Roberts Oil Company has abandoned its No. 1 Gilmore test in block 14 of the Young county school lands as a dry hole at 654 feet.

The Texhoma Oil & Refining company is testing the sand in its No. 11 Hamilton located 300 feet west and 150 feet north of No. 7 in block 22, league 4 of the Denton county school lands. Sand in the test was drilled from 1707-09 feet.

Texhoma, Abercrombie

In the Oldham district the Texhoma Oil & Refining company set casing and is testing the sand from 1340-43 feet in its No. 8 Abercrombie an east offset to No. 7 in S. P. survey abstract 1281.

Bridwell, Rogers

Bridwell and Heydrick have abandoned their No. 1 Rogers test in the southeast corner of the middle 20 acres of the north 100 acres of section 166 T. E. & L. Co. survey, Young county as a dry hole at 937 feet. The test had a sand which tested dry from 875-80 feet.

Chenault, Rachuig

Chenault-Palmer and Birch's No. 2 Rachuig in section 4 B. B. B. & C. survey, north Young county is showing up as a 150-barrel producer from the sand at 1164 feet.

Petroleum Producers,

The Petroleum Producers have made location for a test to be drilled on the George-Burke land in the J. Ventress survey abstract 103, two miles to the south of Iowa Park. The test will be located 150 feet to the east of the approximate center of the east line of the survey.

OIL FUTURE IS BIG IN TEXAS SAYS PETTIGREW

Many Miles of Potential Fields Are to Be Seen Says Operator

FORT WORTH, June 7.—(AP) The future of the oil business interests in Texas—"this state is destined to lead the world as an oil producer for a number of years," T. M. Pettigrew, president of an oil-banking firm which has sent more than $2,000,000 into Texas within six months time, declared Monday. With a party he is inspecting the Reiter-Foster Oil corporation and the Pandem Oil corporation.

"There remains much undeveloped territory from Breckenridge to Cisco and on up to Burkburnett. In this section lies one of the greatest shallow fields. The new field at Woodson in Throckmorton county will be one of the most important in recent years," Petligrew said.

"Stories of Texas' prosperity are reaching New Yorkers consistently and Eastern capital is looking upon Texas as a land of plenty and a field of unlimited opportunity," Pettigrew declared.

Wildcat Is Watched

W. D. Sheddon and associates in No. 1 Hostetler, in the northeast corner of 24-9n-25w, due west of Sayre, in Beckham county, and the second deepest test to be drilled in Southwestern Oklahoma is drilling ahead at 4,008 feet in the Pennsylvanian formation. This geologic horizon was found at 3,515 feet. It yielded a show of gas at 4,170 feet, and both gas and oil shows at 4,550 to 4,560 feet. The hole is perfectly dry, and four and three-quarter inch tools are being used, the five and three-sixteenths inch casing being set at 4,226 feet, down from 3,712 feet.

Samples of the cuttings from the well are doubly analyzed by geologists and these analysis have been made from 3,008 feet. As a result a perfect log is checked and the geologic story is to be an excellent one. Plans call for sending the well as deep as possible to go and the operators anticipate finding oil sand shortly, or of "running out of hole."

Texas Panhandle operators are closely watching the Shedden test, for they are inclined to think that the story of the origin of the oil and gas in the Panhandle counties may be tied up with the Beckham county area, locally termed the Sayre field.

Pet. Producers, Dill

The Petroleum Producers have abandoned their No. 3 Dill in the south Vernon pool as a dry hole at 2320 feet.

Texas Buys Patent

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—The Texas company announced it had bought sole rights to the invention of L. De Florez, an automatic temperature control system for oil stills, which the company stated "governs the rate of distillation in any continuous process and permits operations to be constantly carried out under most favorable conditions." The process is expected to have an important effect on present methods of refining.

POPULARIZE KNOWLEDGE

"THERE are and have been, many attempts to popularize knowledge," says James H. Robinson in "The Humanizing of Knowledge." "Our schools and colleges are ostensibly devoted to this and there are many books, articles and lectures directed to the same end. The results, however, seem very inadequate compared with the possibilities."

This is felt keenly when one talks with people generally about scientific subjects as well as about the arts. Most men look on anything—book, lecture, music or even newspaper articles—that is other than light in tone and newsy in style as something to be avoided. They are all carefully avoided by the average human as being beyond his comprehension and consequently boring.

Who is to blame? Our schools and colleges? Our writers and speakers—our singers, musicians? Surely the nature of the structure of the earth we live on and our own origin and history should interest us even if the arts do not.

Mr. Robinson avers that the methods of presentation need to be altered. "At present so-called 'serious' books, even when they pretend to be of a popular nature, are rarely written exclusively for the general reader. Scholars and men of science almost always write more or less unconsciously for one another. This is the natural outcome of their training—They are so accustomed to technical terms that they use them without realizing how few of their readers can be expected to understand them.

"Scientifically and philosophically trained writers apparently have no idea how hard their books and articles are for the general reader; how much is included that few can appreciate; how many statements are dark and unintelligible to those for whom the book is ostensibly designed."

Even encyclopedias and dictionaries, Mr. Robinson opines, when consulted by a knowledge seeker who has had his interest aroused by some special scientific subject, discourage by the dry and unfamiliar terms they use so that he loses his interest.

What is to be done about it? "The story form is very congenial to the human mind," thinks Robinson, "and the logic of a narrative or tale is always the best and surest form of appeal." Almost every historical and scientific subject can readily be cast in story form. Mr. Wells' "Outline of History" is an example of this form of imparting knowledge painlessly.

"When one of Mr. Wells' hundreds of thousands of readers has finished his book he does not say 'I have had history' and his heart—'I hope I never have it again' as if it were an attack of pleurisy or a boil. And why? Because Wells manages to HUMANIZE the past of mankind.

HENRY FORD AND HIS PROFITS

IT has been declared through court action that Henry Ford, or rather the Ford Motor company, made net profits of $526,441,951 for the seven year period from 1917 to 1924. Accountants testifying for a plainiff in a suit against the Ford Motor company testified the profit of the Ford Motor company for the seven-year period were $702,080,001.75.

Henry Ford is the most remarkable king of industry that the world has ever known. Now the Ford Motor company is a family affair. It is the property of the Fords, father and son and mother and wife. It has a value of a billion dollars. Employes of the Ford Motor company never strike. The shop is not a closed shop. Henry Ford pays higher wages to the employes then workers in any closed shop in America are paid. In addition to this, there is a bonus for the workers. Merit rules. Skill has a lot to do with merit.

If the accountants are correct, then the Ford Motor company, for a period of seven years, piled up a hundred million dollars in net profits each year. There must be money in the making of tin lizzies, there must be money in making of the tractor; there must be money in the running of the Ford railways.

Henry Ford was a wise man when he spurned the tender of a presidential nomination. If he had made a White House landing, the politicians would have killed him before he had served half the term.

BACK-SEAT DRIVERS

THE announcement that the supreme court of California has decided that back-seat driving is a ground for divorce will be of widespread interest, although it will probably not become a generally followed precedent in other states. Progress in convention has unquestionably increased domestic contention, and domestic contention is at the root of all divorce cases. Many of the courses of true love have run first awry when the wife insisted upon talking to the husband who was talking to somebody else on the telephone. Perhaps nothing in human experience is more maddening than the effort to two people at once and to answer both of them at the same time. But the automobile ranks next to the telephone as a disturber of marital accord.

There are few people who, after the first week or two at the steering wheel do not become convinced that they are competent drivers. They experience the same irritation when they are told to turn left when they want to turn right to "go into second" when they believe the car will take the hill on "high" or look out for an approaching car which they can see with perfect distinctness, as the skipper of a ship would feel if some officer off duty began shouting "port" or "starboard."

It is, unfortunately, a common occurence for formerly loving husbands and wives to descend from opposite sides of the family car after what should have been a beautiful tour and enter the house by different doors in order to avoid each other and avert an explosion. When the children are permitted to drive entire families are arrayed against one another and gloom broods over the home.

The motor car has furnished to the feeble creature called man a feeling of power in which he takes a natural delight. He cannot help mentally merging his personality into that of the purring cylinders and believing that their giant strength is his own. When other people, no matter how near and dear they may be, seek to take this power from him or to instruct him as to how it shall be exercised his fury is quite accountable.

SWIMMING ACCIDENTS

WITH the opening of the swimming season there comes the customary warning against carelessness as it is contained in the news of the accidential deaths from drowning and accidents in the water. Already there have been several deaths in the south, where the swimming season is somewhat earlier than in the north.

It is worth directing attention to the dangers that are but should not be connected with the excellent sport of swimming. Of course, these fatal accidents will be reduced as the younger generation learns how to swim, but always there will be the danger of carelessness and the danger of swimming in places where obstructions and treacherous currents are unknown.

Let us hope that we can pass the summer without a fatal accident in any of the pools or streams in the Wichita Falls country, and it can be done if people will use common sense and if older people will keep a lookout for the children. Swimming should be encouraged in every way and a death from causes that can be avoided goes far toward discouraging the young folks to take the venture necessary to learn to swim.

A WOW OF A SENTENCE

EARL CARROLL gave a wow of a party. Newspaper critics gave him a wow of a hearing. Federal grand jurors gave him a wow of an indictment. A jury in the case returned a wow of a verdict. Then Federal Judge Goddard handed Earl a wow of a sentence. He was given a year for each indictment and a thousand dollars fine in each case in addition to the penitentiary penalty. This was for the crime of perjury. He was not indicted and sent to trial for the wow of a party which included a woman in the raw in a bathtub entirely surrounded by champagne. Next.

MOTHER AND SON

GOVERNOR NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS of Wyoming has a 22-year-old son who is a college man. Governor Ross favors an amendment, which has been submitted to the voters of her state. She is campaigning for its adoption. Her son and all the other college men of the state are fighting Governor Nellie's amendment. This is as it should be. If the amendment does not appeal to the son, why should he vote for it merely to please his mother governor. He is of age. He is free born. He should follow his own flag and his own conventions. He appears to be doing it.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

The Drum----By Britten Austin

"It's a comment on our civilization, isn't it?" remarked the doctor, "that there's substantially no difference between a Bond street medium—when he's genuine—and that fellow. Both work themselves up into an auto-hypnotic frenzy where the subconscious mind runs riot."

"I suppose they do see things sometimes," said Bull, with indifference, searching carefully for a ginger-nut among the biscuits in the tin. "There was a Highlander chap in my regiment during the war and he used to see shrouds round fellows who were going to get killed." He found the biscuit, looked for another. "Were you in the war, doc?"

"Yes," replied the doctor, with the curt abruptness of a man who does not wish to enter into a new turn of the conversation.

Bull glanced up at him under his eyebrows from the biscuit tin. He had met too many men with pasts in this God-forsaken country not to respect incomprehensible reticences when he got the hint. But he wondered suddenly what it was in the doctor's antecedents that made the war-period obnoxious to his memory—and, by extension, why it was that a clever fellow like him, abnormally sober, should bury himself in the African bush. For three years before this, on his own showing, he had been roving all over the waste places of the world, as though in a flight from civilization. He looked like an unhappy man, too, a man who goes about with a secret. He remembered suddenly that he had never seen him smile.

He voiced none of these thoughts, broke the doctor's tight-lipped silence with a resumption of the evidently harmless subject.

"I guess old Mumbo-Jumbo's decease has given our friends a nasty jolt," he said.

"Do they know?" asked the doctor. "Th—do by this time—I told them to cut off his head and pitch it over the stockade. One of their scouts has certainly picked it up."

"Pleasant country!" commented the doctor.

"It's the devil's own habitation," said the other. "I've seen things here that almost make you believe in spells and witchcraft and all the rest of it. It's a country where something Satanic can get hold of a man. You can feel diabolic influences in the air. I can tonight." He shuddered.

"It's that confounded drum," said the doctor. "I was hoping it would leave off after that little incident." The drum, uncanny and subtly menacing, still continued to throb in their ears, maddening in its insistence.

"Not a chance! They're mobilized half-a-dozen witch-doctors for a certainty—and they'll keep going till only a machine-gun can stop the frenzy they're worked up. We're in for a hot time tomorrow, you can take my word for it."

The doctor filled his pipe, while the black soldier-sergeant cleared the table, left a bottle of whiskey and two mugs between them and went out. "Well" he said, with an apparent equanity at variance with the strain dent in his eyes, "I'm glad I've got you here. You're the fellow to teach 'em a lesson!"

Bull was pouring out the whiskey. "I don't want to throw bouquets about, but I'm glad I've got you here, doc. I shouldn't have had a dog's chance with this sickness."

"Just as well we're both here," agreed the doctor. "We'll call it providence. Here's how!"

Bull lifted his mug also.

"Here's to the old country!" he said, and drank the toast. "Doc, why in heaven's name did you and I come to this cursed limbo of all wickedness?" He shuddered again. "It gives me the creeps tonight. I wish to God I could silence that infernal drum! I've been too long out here, I suppose. You know how fellows go back? I don't mind telling you I have to fight it off sometimes. It sort of invades one. I'm almost as bad as a nigger when I listen to that drum—and I can't help listening to it. It gives me a funny sort of sacred feeling—almost superstitious. As though those dancing ju ju-men—I can see 'em—were really calling up evil spirits to wipe us out, as they think they are."

The doctor glanced at him keenly. "Have a good go of quinine when you turn in tonight—and talk about something else now," he suggested.

Bull poured himself out some more whiskey.

"Talk about the old country, shall we?" he said, taking a deep drink "Lord, doc! can you imagine it—at this moment? Can you see 'em all, men and women in evening dress, and the lights in Piccadilly Circus? There they go, the lucky brutes, not in the least realizing how lucky they are—not a thought for you and me in the depths of this cursed jungle! Jove, doc, why aren't we there with a little woman on our arm—going to a theatre perhaps. Can't you see the electric signs blazing down the streets? There are other things too—things other chaps seem to get naturally just as if it were their right. I'd give a lot sometimes to be seeing the kids off to bed in the nursery, with—with someone I used to know, poor little woman! She'd have loved 'em, too!" He sighed. "Were you ever married, doc?"

"Yes." The monosyllable was as curt as that which acknowledged his war-service.

Bull forbore to probe. He looked down a vista of his own memory and sighed again.

"I never married. But it wasn't my fault—nor hers either. Fate plays some fiendish little tricks on us poor mortals—catches you sometimes in a trap that seems specially laid for you. Don't you think so, doc?"

He started out into the darkness beyond the tent where the black soldiers had settled again around their fires. The uncannily sinister throbbing of the distant drum filled the silence unbroken by any response from his comrade. He resumed on an impulse to talk that would help him to forget the spell that caught him when he listened.

"Well, I've known what a woman can be to a man, and that's something. But it was a funny business—with a rotten ending. D'you think a woman can love two men at once, doc?"

The doctor shrugged his shoulders.

"I've given up trying to understand women," he said.

"Yes I suppose you're right. But this one haunts me—I feel I ought to understand her. Sometimes—you know what a man gets like in this infernal country when he's alone—I catch myself talking to her out loud. She's always with me—I have to prevent myself from believing in ghosts sometimes. I suppose it's because—well, I don't see why a man should be ashamed to confess it," he spoke almost with defiance, "because I loved her as I've never loved a woman before or since. And she loved me—I'm sure of it."

"What was wrong then?" queried the doctor from out of preoccupations of his own.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Shall Miss Twenty Give a Medical Student a Ten-Year Option on Her Heart?—Which Shall Miss Sixteen Choose, Education or Dates?—What can be done for the Middle-Aged "Loneliness?"

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20 in love with a boy of the same age. He is studying medicine, and will be seven years more at school. Then it will be two or three years more before he will be well enough established in his profession to be able to marry.

He lives in another city and I do not see him often. He wants me to wait for him, and to promise that I will not go out with any other man during that time. It seems to me that ten years is a long time to ask a girl to wait. What do you think? CALIFORNIA.

Answer:

I think that nine times out of ten a long engagement works out disastrously for both the man and woman, and that any girl is very foolish that goes into one. Try to take a cold, dispassionate, appraising view of the proposition that this young man makes to you.

He asks you to deny yourself all of the pleasures of girlhood, and to spend the ten best years of your life sitting on the anxious seat, on the chance that he will come back and get you. You are to have no beaux, no parties, no dances, no good times. You are just to sit at home with mother and father and suck your thumb, instead of running around and having good times with the other boys and girls. You are expected to get all the happiness you require by just thinking about him and wondering what he is doing. Nice, cheerful prospect, isn't it?

Worse still, you are to give up every opportunity of marrying anybody else, with no certainty that he will marry you. The ten years between 20 and 30 are the years when a woman is prettiest and most attractive. They are her matrimonial harvest time, and if she doesn't make her hay while the sun of her girlhood shines she is apt to gather in a very poor crop.

Now when the ten years are up, in which you have done your patient waiting stunt, the man may want to marry you, and he may not. In the long years in which you have been separated the chances are that you will have grown very far apart. Environment and associates will have changed and molded you both.

You will not come together as the ardent boy or girl of 20, but as a mature man and woman, who have learned to think different thoughts and have different viewpoints, different habits.

Each of you may have lost the characteristics that appeal to the other, or your tastes may have changed so that the qualities you wind entrancing now will bore you to tears then. Not many of our fancies survive ten years.

Of course, people often do marry at the end of long engagements, but in most cases it is merely the paying of a debt of honor on the man's part. He feels bound to marry the girl he has kept from marrying some other man, while on the woman's part it is desperation. She has given up all other men for this one, and it is her last call to the dining car.

Don't put yourself into this unfortunate position. Don't cut yourself out of all the pleasures of girlhood. Don't give any man a ten-year option on your heart and hand. Tell the young man to go on with his studies, and that when he is ready to talk business to call around again, and if you love him then as you do now, that you will say "yes."

DOROTHY DIX.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Today's planetary aspects promise stimulation of effect, assure enthusiasm and encourage optimism. Under such favorable influences, any enterprise on which your heart is set can be safely launched with every hope of ultimate success. All dealings that are related to financial matters can be safely consummated under such auspices. Any work of a constructive nature can be commenced. In the evening, the aspects become more benign than actively favorable, and they promise happiness to all lovers. Advantage should be taken of this opportunity to press your suit "Who listens once will listen twice: A heart is surely not of ice, and one refusal no rebuff."

Children born today, although they may be lacking in pulchritude and any considerable degree of physical strength will, if ordinary attention be paid to alimentation, escape almost all the ailments that are peculiar to infancy. They will, however, not be so fortunate in their 'teens, as the signs indicate that at this period they will suffer from a serious, although not necessarily dangerous illness. They will possess very attractive dispositions and be endowed with a strong and an alluring personality. This, although it must facilitate their efforts for success, will not deter them from being persevering and studious. They will be cautious, and never express an opinion unless sure of basic facts.

If today is your birthday, you apparently have, as a motto "'Tis not in mortals to command success; but we'll do more, Sempronius,—we'll deserve it." You possess exceptional intelligence, combined with tenacity of purpose, and unflagging perseverance. You also have a stout heart, and never allow disappointment to dull the edge of your ambition. No matter what difficulties arise, you are superior to them all, and overcome them.

You are sincere, frank and loyal. Your many friends respect and esteem you. Your kin renders you a love and an affection that is reciprocated in every way by you.

Successful people born this date are:

Thomas Sully, artist.

William M. Meredith, lawyer.

David D. Porter, second admiral U. S. navy.

Henry C. Trumbull, editor and author.

J. Q. A. Brackett, lawyer and politician.

Henry R. Shelley, organist.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

STARTING IN.

We saved, I remembered, at least for a year
To buy the piano, this chair over here
We earned in a summer—a quarter, a dime,
Yes, even a nickel, we saved at a time,
The young folks today—well, I don't want to scold,
(They say it's a habit we get when we're old),
But the young folks today, though the young folks may scoff,
Seem to want to start in where their parents left off.

The old house is pleasant, and daughter declares
That all of its fixings they must have in theirs,
We started quite simply—I know we were wed
At least twenty winters ere one day we said,
"We now can afford orientals, we guess,"
Perhaps it was thirty, it wasn't much less.
But they must have sealskins and satins and golf—
They want to start in where their parents left off.

And yet, I remember that half of the fun
We had was the saving; a thing wasn't done
Until we could do it—we figured and planned,
And then went and brought it, the cash in our hand.
I hope I'm not foolish, or doing them wrong,
But they spend so much money they won't have it long—
Yes, really to worry a bit I begin
That the youngsters will end where their folks started in.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX.

1. What is cambium?
2. What is the function of pith in the stem of a plant?
3. Is a potato a root?
4. Why does a tree die when the bark is peeled off?
5. Why should the wound be painted when a tree is pruned?
6. What is a common tree that sheds its bark?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

NATURAL TREE GRAFTS

The art of grafting one kind of tree on to another is a very ancient one and was known to the Chinese thousands of years ago. A delicious fruit may be sensitive to frost, but by grafting it on a stock that is hardy, the saps of the two plants flowing together will lend hardiness to the good fruit. Only species of plants closely related to each other can be successfully grafted, however. But besides the grafts seen in gardens, one may sometimes see a natural graft in the forests. Often when young trees of the same or closely related species grow up together, where they happed to touch the bark gets rubbed away by the swaying of the trees. The living tissues under the bark are brought together, and frequently grow together so that the parts of the trees above the junction are grafted on to each other.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Tycho Drahe was an early Danish astronomer.
2. Simon Newcombe was an early American physicist.
3. Copernicus was an early Polish astronomer.
4. Radium was discovered by the Curies of Paris.
5. Algebra was first developed by the medieval Arabs.
6. George Washington was a proficient surveyor.

A Thought in Time, Fellas.

The calendar says "June again," assures us summer's near,
And whispers words of warning, Folks, to which we should give ear.
Says this, "Go light on gifts for brides and grooms and graduations.
Or park yourselves at home instead of going on vacations!

A FAIRY TAL
By Lee Shippey.

Have you a little fairy in your home?
We've four in our house, and we understand
Why they're called fairies! They don't need a wand
Nor need they look like pictured elfs or gnomes
In story books; nor do they often come
Softly as stealing moonlight. Our wild band!
When they're all in the house it trembles some!!

Yet sure they're fairies. They have mystic powers
Surpassing those of many famous elves,
For every day those rogaish lads of ours
Outdo all other fairies by themselves
As causing things to vanish past recall——
Toys, time, shoes, spoons—and money, most of all!

The Ingredients.

Byron: "What makes you think this musical show of yours will be a success?"

Blasco (theatrical magnate): "We've got a shrewd manager, a rude ticket-seller, a dude leading-man, a stewed comedian, a sued leading lady, lewd lines, and a nude chorus."

THE BANKER AT HOME
(Overheard By George W. Braun.)

His Wife: William, I wish you'd tell me——

Banker: I'm not the teller!

His Wife: I know, dear, but I wanted you to tell me if you think my eyebrows look all right tonight.

Banker: H'm, they're a little overdrawn! And that reminds me—your household account doesn't balance this week! Let me see the stubs of those checks again.

His Wife: If you want to see some stubs, look in your smoking stand! I've told you time after time——

Banker: What did you say about a time deposit? I thought I told you at four per cent our capital stock——

His Wife: Who said anything about time deposits! Shut the window, silly! I feel a draught in here.

Banker: Which window, Do you mean the cashier's window, the paying teller's window, or the assistant-cashier's window? And I'm sure that if there was a draft I would have record of it! What are you reading, anyway?

His Wife: I'm TRYING to read THE FUN SHOP, but you won't keep still long enough for me to——

Banker: A fund shop, eh? Well, if they have plenty of funds I'd like to get their business! Glad that you are taking interest in financial matters, my dear! I knew that you would find something sensible to read some day, my own. But remember not to take too much interest! Four and a half per cent is enough!

DINNER STORIES

In a certain mental home it was proposed to institute an honor system. That is, the inmates were to be placed on their parole and would be free to roam the grounds at will.

The scheme was put to the inmates themselves, the authorities having agreed that they would know better than anyone else whether they could play the game honorably.

It was put to the vote.

"Hi, Riley," called one man to another, "did you vote for the honor system this afternoon?"

"You bet I did!" retorted the other, "six times."

A concert had been arranged by the workers of a certain factory, and all the local "stars" were booked to appear.

Miss Brown, the favorite soprano, was announced to sing, and before she began she apologized for her cold. Then she started.

"I'll hang my harp on a willow tree—e—e—ahem!

"On a willow three—e—e—oh!"

Her voice broke on the high note each time. She tried twice more. Then a voice came from the back of the hall:

"Try hanging it on a lower branch, miss!"

A Scotsman had been promised a present of a new hat.

Before it was bought the donor called and asked: "Would you rather have a felt or a straw hat, McPherson?"

"Weel," said the latter, "I think I'll take a straw one. Maybe it will be a mouthful for the coo when I'm done wi' it."

A man in a hospital for the insane sat dangling a stick with a piece of string attached over a flower pot. A visitor approached, and, wishing to be affable, remarked:

"How many have you caught?"

"You're the ninth," was the reply.

JEWISH GATE IS DEDICATED

Phillip Delivers Principal Address Sunday Afternoon

Appropriate services were held Sunday afternoon at Hebrew Rest in Rosemont Burial Park when the gate and fence to that section devoted to Jewish burial was dedicated. Rabbi Samuel Phillips of Temple Israel was in charge of the services and made the principal address. The gate and fence are the gifts of the Wichita Falls section of the national.

Rabbi Phillips spoke on the burial ground, and commended the council for its good work in marking off the Jewish burial place. It is the plan of the council to beautify this part of the cemetery, planting flowers and shrubs.

Prominent Minister Praises True Story Magazine

Carthage, Texas, April 17, 1926.

Gentlemen:

As a father and a minister of the Gospel I believe that Macfadden is a trade-mark of cleanliness and wholesomeness in life and literature. I have read much of his publications and have found the sunshine of life in them all.

I feel sure that nothing will appear in the pages of "True Story" magazine that could bring a blush to the most innocent maiden's cheek.

Let young men and women read the Gospel of life, with its pitfalls and tragedies; then point out the right way and they will turn to the right every time, unless mentally diseased.

Without the slightest hesitation I am delighted to recommend "True Story" magazine to parents—its moral tone is magnificent.

Sincerely yours,
Henry E. Summers, M.D., Th.D.

ROMANCE CULMINATED

A wedding that was the culmination of a romance begun in high school took place Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock when Miss Ruth Biffle became the bride of Herschel Alexander, both of this city. The ceremony was performed in the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morris, the latter being a sister of the bride. The spacious living room of the Morris home lent itself most admirably for an artistic arrangement of flowers and potted plants. The mantel was banked with roses, tiny Dorothy Perkins buds and blossoms with their gay pink coloring and trailing vines being used, while arched above it was trellis arrangement of the same kind of flowers, making a beautiful improvised altar before which the wedding service was read. Large baskets of roses, sweet peas and other garden flowers in the most alluring shades were also used, tied with immense bows of pink and white ribbons.

Shortly before eight o'clock Mrs. Paul Ketchen in her lovely voice, sang, "The Hour That Gave Me You," with Miss Helen Huffman accompanist. As the last words of the song died on the air the soft strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Huffman floated out on the soft morning air. Rev. W. M. Pope who read the vows entered the living room and took his place before the improvised altar, followed by Miss Marjorie Sneed and Jimmie Biffle, bridesmaid and best man. Next came little Don Robert Morris, ring bearer, carrying the ring in the heart of a big white rose, then little Misses Mary Ann Grooms and Mary Keith King of Duncan, the two year-old neices of the bride, attired in very fluffy dresses of pink and blue georgette, strewed rose petals in the path of the bridal couple. The bride and groom took their places and the impressive ring ceremony was read, after which Miss Huffman at the piano played the recessional.

Following the ceremony and congratulations the happy couple left for Tulsa, later planning on an extended trip into Texas as a honeymoon.

The bride's attire was a lovely white crepe dress, with accessories to match, and she carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses with a shower of buds and ribbons, while the bridesmaid wore orchid crepe which set off her fair beauty, and her bouquet was sweet peas and snapdragons. The bride's going away costume was navy blue crepe Romain.

Both of these young people are Waurika's own, having graduated from the local high school, and Mrs. Alexander attended the University of Oklahoma for one year. She has been employed as bookkeeper for various firms and has been very prominent in all the church and social affairs of the community. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Biffle who are pioneer residents of Jefferson county.

The groom has grown to manhood in Waurika and is the son of the late W. E. Alexander and Mrs. Alexander, who have been prominently identified with Waurika's growth through all the years since first coming to this place. He is a director in the Waurika National bank, of which his father was one of the founders, and is owner of the Alexander Insurance company.

On their return they will be at home with the groom's mother, Mrs. W. E. Alexander, where a home is in readiness for them.

Guests for the wedding were the immediate relatives of both parties and Mrs. Chas. G. Stuard. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lang King and their little daughter, I. K. Grooms and his two small daughters from Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Minis Ray from Temple, Andrew Ray from Oklahoma City, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Contway and their small son and Rube Brown and his three sons of Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Powell of Lawton.

GUM-DIPPING

-the Extra Process for Extra Miles!

Breaks all Tire Records

The 500 mile Speed Classic at Indianapolis has always been a Battle of Tires.

In 1911, Firestone won with fabric tires at 74.59 miles per hour. In 1920, Firestone won with cord tires at 88.55 miles per hour. In 1925, Firestone won with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons at the record breaking average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

In 1926, Firestone again won this great Speed Classic with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. The ten cars to finish "in the money" were all Firestone-equipped. These ten cars went the distance without a single blow out and with but two tire failures—one due to a puncture and the other to a leaky valve.

This performance is even more remarkable when you consider the terrific speeds at which the cars traveled over this fifteen-year-old, rough brick track.

Experienced race drivers will not trust their lives or risk their chances of victory on any other tires. And in the commercial field, large truck, motor-bus and taxicab fleet operators who keep careful cost records on their tire mileage are among the big users of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

The City Transportation Co., of Tacoma, Washington, writes: "One of our 12 buses on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires has gone over 40,600 miles and still looks good for many miles of extra service. I have no hesitancy in saying that for all around tire safety and mileage, Firestone cannot be beat."

From the Calumet Motor Coach Company, Hammond, Indiana, comes the following: "We operate 40 buses all equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. The very low cost per mile on which these tires operate is considerably less than that of any other make." In writing to express their satisfaction, the Hayes Bus Lines, Columbia, S. C., say: "We operate 19 buses equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. A number of these tires have run over 45,000 miles without ever having been removed from the rim."

The largest taxicab companies in the world standardize on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. William R. Rothwell, a taxicab operator of Detroit, Mich., writes: "Two of my Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have run 76,000 miles."

Hundreds of thousands of car owners voluntarily testify to the safety, comfort and economy of Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. W. H. Peacock, Birmingham, Ala., enthusiastically writes: "I have had Firestone Balloons for thirteen months and they have delivered in that time 24,469 miles." H. C. Staehle, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "My Firestone Balloons have gone 49,900 miles and are still in good condition." W. H. Miller, Homestead, Pa., expresses his satisfaction this way: "Have driven my Gum-Dipped Balloons 30,000 miles and it is impossible to furnish better evidence of most miles per dollar."

These records of endurance, speed, safety and mileage could only have been made because of Firestone development of the Gum-Dipping process which insulates and saturates every fiber of every cord with rubber, reducing friction and heat and building greater strength and endurance in the cords—assuring you at all times—

Sam Blythe claims this is a true one. Maybe he is right; Sam generally is.

He says a Washington wholesaler wished to learn the relative qualities of two brands of mucilage. He handed one bottle of each brand to his negro porter.

"Henry," he said, "take these and test them and see which one is the stickier."

Hours passed before Henry reported. Wearing a somewhat unhappy not to say distressed, expression, he entered his employer's office and placed the two bottles on the latter's desk.

"Well, Henry," said the jobber, "what's the result of your experiments?"

"Boss," stated Henry, "it's lak dis: Dis yere one gummed up my mouth the most; but dis yere other one, the taste lasted the longest."

Blind Man Robs Woman Sightseer

NEW YORK, June —As a result of a wealthy woman's desire to "see the town," in a taxicab, Harry A. Silverman, 45, and blind, was arraigned in Essex Market court and held without bail for the grand jury on a charge of larceny. According to Mrs. Harriet Sakin, 21, pretty wife of a wealthy merchant, she boarded a taxi and told the driver she wished to "see the sights of East Side." Mrs. Sakin was driven to Silverman's home, she told the court, and there she saw several men, among them Silverman. Then she heard Silverman say: "Give her the works boys." She was attacked, beaten and robbed of $3500 in jewels and a similar amount in furs. She complained to police and had the blind man arrested. The others had fled.

Puppy Brings Luck To Fishing Craft

PORTLAND, Me., June —The fishing schooner, Henry Ford of Gloucester is here with a record catch of 45,000 pounds of halibut and a strange story of luck, with a seven months old Newfoundland pup as its hero.

Two weeks ago the craft was trying to find smooth water off the Isle of Miquelon to chop away ten tons of ice that had accumulated and start for home. But out from the distant land came a swimming dog, and the Henry Ford's luck changed overnight. The seas calmed and sailors labored to gather the catch.

Captain Morrisey, who says he is taking no chances, has tied the dog to the rudder post. "I wouldn't take $500 for her right now," he said.

DALLAS SPLATTERS LOSING STREAK AT SPUD EXPENSE WINNING BY 14-2 SCORE

Steers Get to Youthful Lester White For 13 Base Hits, Love Master Of Situation

DALLAS, June 7.—(AP)—The Steers snapped out of their losing streak after seven straight defeats by smothering the Spudders 14 to 2 Monday. Just one week ago the Spudders started the Steers on their spectacular descent.

Slim Love was master of the situation after a week of ineffectiveness had afflicted the entire staff. Rhino Williams led the attack with two doubles and a single.

Conley's men got to the youthful Lester White for 13 hits which combined with the Californian's wildness and two breaks in the Wichita Falls defense toward his overwhelming downfall.

White hurled great ball until the fourth inning when singles by Woeber and Hungling, a walk to Love, then a single by Gross and a double by Williams scored four runs. Dallas got to White for two in the fifth and four more in the sixth. Two walks, a wild pitch, a passed ball, a poor throw by Brainard, a double by Woeber and a single by Morse accounted for the sixth inning runs

Wichita Falls scored once in the seventh on a single by Metzler and Distel's double, but the Steers crossed the plate for three more in the same inning A walk to Gross, single by Williams, a stolen base by Williams, an inflied out and a three-bagger by Riley scored the Dallas trio

The Spudders scored again in the ninth on a single by Metzler and a triple by Lapan

Shippers Defeat Waco in Eleventh

BEAUMONT, June 7.—(AP)—Beaumont came through with a terrific slugging rally in the ninth, knotted the count with 5 runs, then Yank Davis singled in the eleventh, won 8 to 7. The fielding of Deviveros prevented a Waco run in both extra innings. The Cubs filled the bases with none out in the tenth, but after a pop fly, Deviveros made an astounding stop for a double play. Lopez blasted the eleventh with a triple, and again it was Deviveros sensational fielding that prevented a run that might have won. Score:

Ninth Inning Rally Gives Fort Worth Fandom Heart Failure—Almost

FORT WORTH, June 7.—(AP)—Jakie Ats' Cats won their fourth straight game by defeating the Shreveport Sports 5 to 2 here this afternoon. The Sports took a one-run lead, which the Panthers tied in the fourth and passed in the fifth. Betts hurled the win and Adkins went the bitter route for the Sports.

There was a dizzy moment for the Fort Worth fans after the game seemed already pocketed in the first of the ninth. Taylor filed to Windle back of third. Hoffman flied to Calvo. The stage was set. Then Woehrs was safe at first when Konetchy dropped Lindimore's throw. Immediately, Kearns doubled to left, scoring Woehrs. But that was all. Wilder grounded to Windle and the jig was up. Score:

Stribling Quoted Even Money In Berlinbach Fight

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Despite an impressive display of punching power in his workout today, William L. (Young) Stribling's chances of lifting the light heavyweight crown from Paul Berlenbach Thursday night at Yankee stadium were quoted at even money. Until today, the Georgian had held the rare distinction as challenger of ruling a slight favorite.

Two of Stribling's four sparring partners found the southern contender in an aggressive mood. Jake Warren, a negro heavyweight, retired after one round, with an injured shoulder, while Lee Anderson, negro light heavyweight, was knocked out in the second round with a right to the jaw. Stribling then closed by stepping three fast rounds with Benny Touchstone, Florida heavyweight and one round with his brother, Herbie Stribling.

Both champion and challenger reported by their trainers as under the weight limit of 175 pounds, will have their final workouts tomorrow.

Sox Trounce Sox

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—Big Jim Edwards southpawed the White Sox to a 10 to 5 victory over the Red Sox today in the final game of the series which was won by the locals two games to one. Edwards allowed the visitors only four hits after Thomas had been driven off the mound in the first inning. The White Sox played an uphill game. Willie Kamm's triple following Barrett's single and Schalk's bunt for a squeeze play put Chicago ahead in the sixth and they were never headed. Wingfield's wildness in the seventh inning increasing the lead. Score:

Waco's Shortstop No. 2 Aired Out

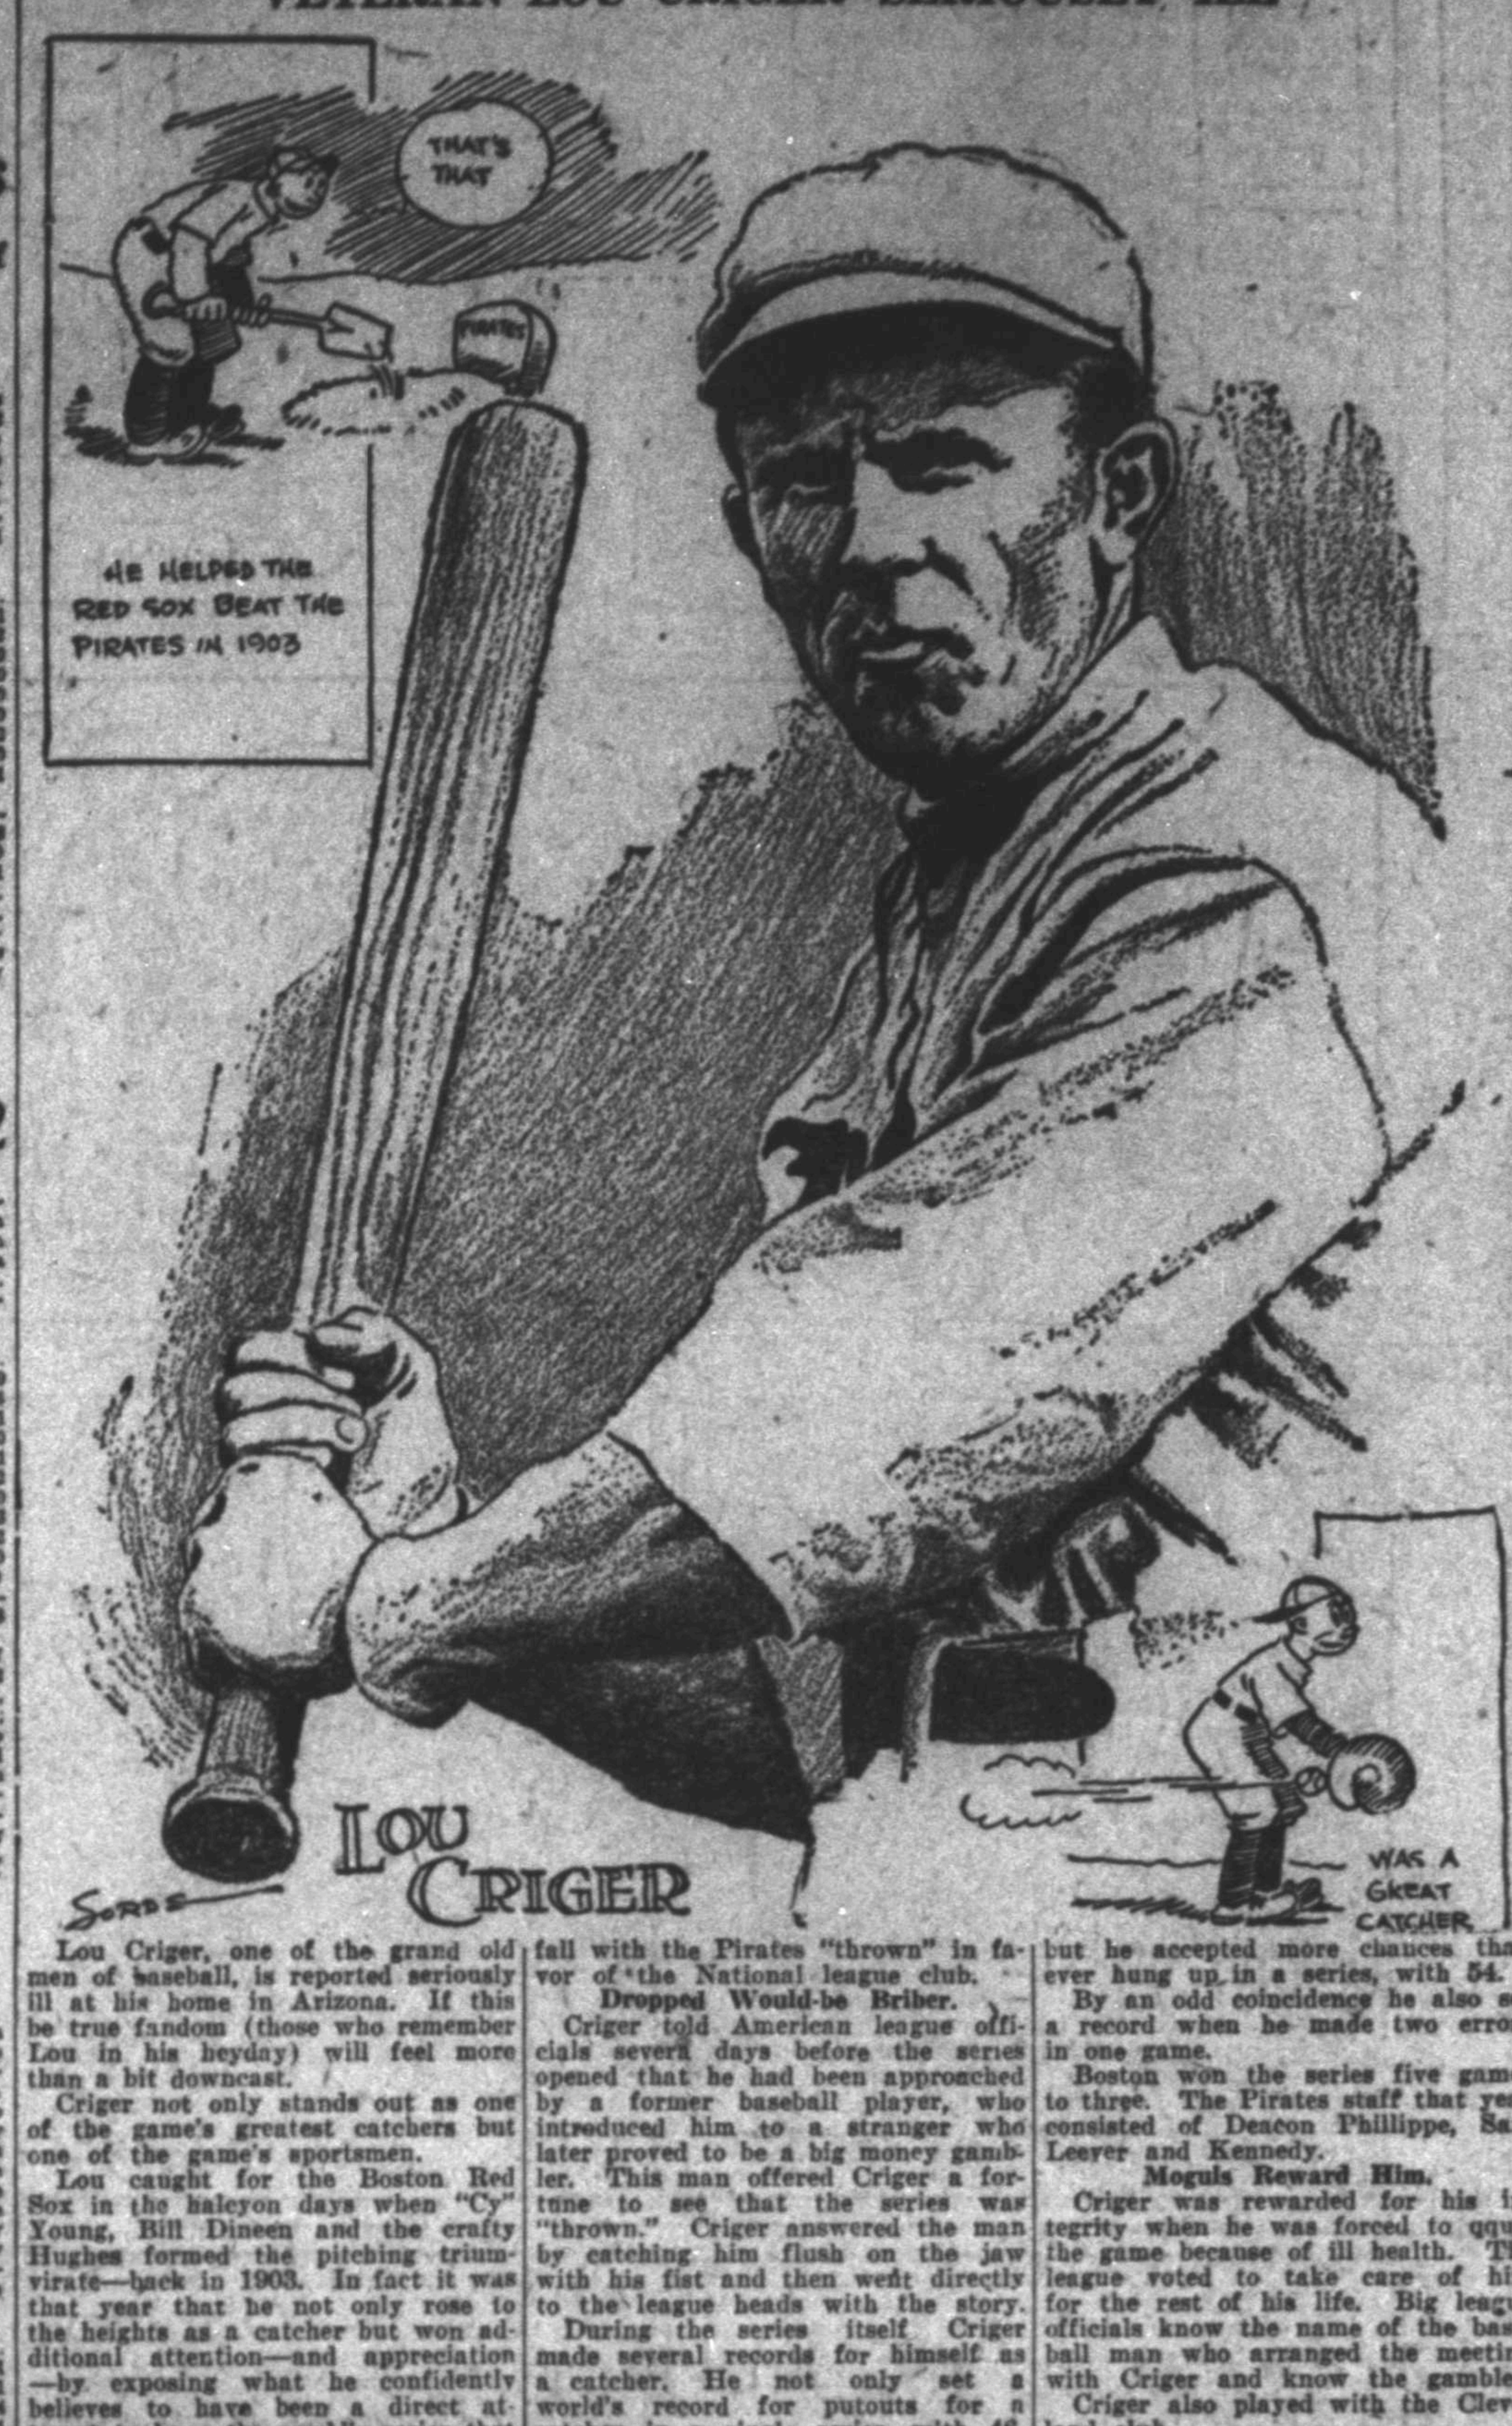

WACO, June 7.—(AP)—The Waco baseball team is again without a shortstop. Walter Novak, the youngster from the Norfork team of the Virginia league, who was traded to Waco by the Giants as part consideration for Andy Cohen, has been sold back to Norfork for $2,000, this raising the price paid for Cohen to $22,000.

Novak started off in sensational manner but the hot weather of Texas disagreed with him and he has been in a slump of late. He leaves immediately for Norfork.

Scout Don Curtis of the Waco club leaves Monday night for a tour through Oklahoma. President C. R. Turner has been attracted by two shortstop prospects on teams in that state.

"We are through selling players and intend to win a few games now," said President Turner this morning.

VETERAN LOU CRIGER SERIOUSLY ILL

Lou Criger, one of the grand old men of baseball, is reported seriously ill at his home in Arizona. If this be true fandom (those who remember Lou in his heyday) will feel more than a bit downcast.

Criger not only stands out as one of the game's greatest catchers but one of the game's sportsmen.

Lou caught for the Boston Red Sox in the halcyon days when "Cy" Young, Bill Dineen and the crafty Hughes formed the pitching triumvirate—back in 1903. In fact it was that year that he not only rose to the heights as a catcher but won additional attention—and appreciation—by exposing what he confidently believes to have been a direct attempt to have the world's series that fall with the Pirates "thrown" in favor of the National league club.

Dropped Would-be Briber.

Criger told American league officials several days before the series opened that he had been approached by a former baseball player, who introduced him to a stranger who later proved to be a big money gambler. This man offered Criger a fortune to see that the series was "thrown." Criger answered the man by catching him flush on the jaw with his fist and then went directly to the league heads with the story.

During the series itself Criger made several records for himself as a catcher. He not only set a world's record for putouts for a catcher in a single series, with 46, but he accepted more chances than ever hung up in a series, with 54.

By an odd coincidence he also set a record when he made two errors in one game.

Boston won the series five games to three. The Pirates staff that year consisted of Deacon Phillippe, Sam Leever and Kennedy.

Moguls Reward Him.

Criger was rewarded for his integrity when he was forced to quit the game because of ill health. The league voted to take care of him for the rest of his life. Big league officials know the name of the baseball man who arranged the meeting with Criger and know the gambler.

Criger also played with the Cleveland club.

Draughon's Business college baseball team took the long end of a wild 15 to 0 score from the Fort Worth and Denver railroad team Monday afternoon in the Independent league diamond.

Janeway pitched for the college nine and was afforded airtight fielding and hard hitting. The whole team was hitting the ball hard and in the pinches.

Mapp made a wonderful catch in left field of a line drive off the bat of Arbuckle and saved the shutout victory for Janeway.

Helen Out of Hospital Inside of Two Weeks

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—In another week it is expected Helen Wills, American Lawn tennis champion, will be out of the hospital. She is rapidly convalescing from the operation for appendicitis which she underwent on Friday last. She has a healthy appetite too and today sat up in bed and disposed of the first real food she has had in about four days and seemed to relish it.

Mlle. Lenglen was one of her callers today. She brought a bunch of posies. The French star was one of the few favored visitors permitted to observe the California girl enjoying her luncheon, most of the others having to content themselves with leaving bouquets and cards while overseas tennis enthusiasts bombarded the American hospital with cablegrams conveying good wishes.

SEED PLAYERS ADVANCE

FORT WORTH, June 7.—(AP)—All of the sixteen seeded players advanced to the second round in the annual Texas open tennis tournament, which opened at Meadowmere here today. Fifty-three entries were received, including that of Brian I C. South African star, who drew a bye in the first round.

Lucien La Coste of San Antonio and John Barr and Witcher Settle, both of Dallas after receiving byes in the first round, played their second round matches winning their way to the third with little difficulty. All were seeded in the draw.

IRVINE SOCKS KENNEDY OUT IN 2 ROUNDS

Hurley Fails to Show Up For Tilt, Sherrod Wins

Jack Hurley, Hot Springs welter, originally billed with Tommy Irvine of Oklahoma City in the American Legion main fisticuff last night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena, failed to show up, so Pat Kennedy, fat and pudgy 167-pounder from Kansas City, elected to substitute against the 150-pound Irvine. Kennedy neither could nor would stand Irvine's punches. The Oklahoman dropped Kansas in the first round for the count of eight and then pushed him over at the bell. Kennedy found a soft spot in the canvas at the start of the second canto and flopped at the first opportunity, going down and taking the count before a short right slap to the cauliflower region.

Half the legion's fighters left promoters in the lurch. Johnny Sherrod, Fort Worth lightweight last night, but usually rated in the welter class, subbed for Wildcat Monte against Tex Ray, also of Cowtown. Monte had come up with an injured fist, result of a prizefighter trying to play baseball instead of sticking with the gloves.

Fast Finish

Sherrod was given a referee's verdict in six rounds. The final chapter proved a riotous melee with both boys standing head to head and almost toe to toe, slugging it out at a speedy clip.

Roy Reynolds of Waco and Virgil Masters of Ada were given a draw in four rounds. The "fight" was a sorry affair. However, both "fighters" apparently did their best. Masters deserved the decision by a wide margin although Reynolds came back comparatively strong in the last round. Either would look better behind the plough than in the squared circle.

Speedy Lets Out a Yap

Buckshot Peoples beat Sailor Murphy in every round, contrary to opinion of the great Speedy Sparks who sat at ringside and hooted the decision. Murphy kept boring in throughout the four rounds, but wasn't clever enough.

Scrappy Williams won the decision in a three round special event with Joe Vernon. The boys, fighting at catchweights, looked to be in the featherweight class.

A couple of peewees opened the card in four rounds.

It was announced Speedy Sparks, the Lawton wonder, tangles with Tommy White of Texas City over the 12-round route at the arena Wednesday a week hence.

STORY

I wish I could impress upon young married ones who may read this message the importance of saving for a home. And when that first $500 has been saved, place it where the addition of the years may bring to those who survive the safety of a home and its surroundings.

So do I answer, what would you do with $500? Just a home or at least the beginning of one, no matter how small.

You may not find it here, as $500 is not easily made. However, that is my sincere desire, and if not fulfilled here, I still have that promise of our dear Lord, who said 'in my Father's house are many mansions—I go to prepare a place for you.' And I can't help but feel that this 'place' of which he speaks will be just a home."

SECOND PRIZE

By MRS. E. W. WADE.
2012 Elizabeth.

I know an old woman, who is nearly sixty years old, who has borne 11 children and reared them to man and womanhood; who has never had a vacation in her life and has never seen the real ship. Yet, she still dreams of some day "going a 'sailing'" on one.

I have a fancy for "going a'sailing" myself and made her acquaintance at the show window where a full-rigged ship, in miniature, did strange things to my imagination.

I hadn't noticed the halting, big-eyed old lady until she said "I mighty wish I got to see one once."

The story of "mighty nigh seeing one" came out as I walked home with her to a tumble-down house not far from the business district and we became friends over a scrap-book of ships cut from magazines and papers.

And as they sailed o'er their pages, none were so gallant as this old lady whose hard years had never quenched her spirit for adventure nor dimmed her dream of "some day 'sailing far away," and whose faith was still so great she could say "I know God will let me take one teeny little sail. He's got so many ships and so much water."

If I had an extra $50 I could make this old woman happy the rest of her life by "one teeny little sail" on one of God's many ships, anywhere. He has so much water.

Congressman Hurls Inkwell and Water

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP) An exchange of blows, the throwing of an ink well and a glass of water occurred today at the capitol in a fight between Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, on one side and Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning of the District of Columbia and his counsel, Frank J. Hogan, on the other.

The encounter was staged before the house judiciary committee where an investigation of Mr. Fenning's administration is under way.

Mr. Hogan received a slight injury above the left temple, but the participants were separated before others were injured.

Representative Rankin admitted the throwing of the ink well, Hogan the throwing of the glass of water, and Fenning said he did all in his power to reach Rankin with his fists, but was unsuccessful. Rankin said some one had struck him and that he thought it was Fenning.

The fight was precipitated when Rankin became angered over an interruption by Hogan to his line of questions.

To Hold Funeral For River Victim

MEXIA, June 7.—(AP)—Funeral of Jim Karner, 18, drowned when thrown from a fishing boat in the Navasota river near Groesbeck Saturday night, will be held Tuesday. The body was not recovered until Sunday morning.

Hundreds joined in the search around Groesbeck dam. Swift, whirling water at the scene of the drowning swept the boat from beneath the feet of Karner and his companion, Dick Dorsett, who saved himself by clutching at roots.

Karner, son of Phil Karner, and a high school football star, is survived by two sisters, Elizabeth, Colorado University student, Annie Lee, and a brother, Phil, Jr., and his father.

Chauffeurs Threaten Strike in Argentine

BUENOS AIRES, June 7.—(AP) Circulars printed by a labor newspaper and attributed to elements affiliated with the chauffeurs' union and automobile refueling stations urge the chauffeurs to prepare for a strike in protest against the passing of sentence upon the Italians Sacco and Vanzetti, under conviction for murder in Massachusetts.

After denouncing the court decision in the case the circulars exhort the proletariat to declare a general strike in the event "our comrades are executed." They also charge the police with obstructing the liberty of speech and the right of assembly.

NEW PICTURE A REAL THRILLER

"Whispering Canyon" Features Jane Novak In a Powerful Role

That blond beauty of the screen, Jane Novak, more charming than ever, is given a splendid role in the new Banner production, "Whispering Canyon," now showing at the Mission theater And she rises to her opportunities splendidly as Antonia Lee, orphan, whose only inheritance is the timber tract known as Whispering Canyon. She emerges with new acting honors—honors which are shared by Robert Ellis, the leading man, and the other members of the company. Miss Novak is deservedly featured.

The story of "Whispering Canyon" is a gripping, thrilling romance among the California red-woods in which a lone, courageous girl and an upstanding youth match their wits and their courage against the ruthless timber baron, Lew Selby, who seeks to gobble up the girl's inheritance and to force her lover to abandon the sawmill in the protection of which his father had lost his life. Only after an hour or more of thrilling episodes and smashing climaxes do the lovers succeed in worsting their unscrupulous enemy. Director Tom Forman deserves credit for getting out of the scenario every ounce of suspense and emotion of which it is capable and yet of always keeping his characters entirely human and believable and the colorful episodes always plausible.

If you crave thrills, suspense, rapid action, a clear-cut conflict between youth, love and honesty pitted against unscrupulous wealth, by all means see "Whispering Canyon." In addition to Miss Novak and Mr. Ellis the bast includes Josef Swickard, Lee Shumway, Eugene Pallette, James Mason and Edward Brady.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Better weather and crop advices were reflected in moderate declines in the cotton market early today. Rallies followed on covering and July sold up from 18.16 to 18.25, or six points net higher, late deliveries barely recovered the early losses, however. December selling up from 17.33 to 17.46 and closing at 17.37, compared with 17.42 at the close last week. The general market closed steady net five points higher to six points lower.

The opening was steady at a decline of two to seven points and at the lowest levels of the day. Prices showed net losses of four to nine points under liquidation by recent buyers combined with southern and local selling which appeared to be inspired by belief that rains late last week had relieved drouthy conditions in the eastern belt, and relatively easy Liverpool cables.

The forecast for general fair and warmer weather this week except for possible showers in the southwest during the middle of the period, probably encouraged selling on the over-Sunday weather news but after initial offerings had been absorbed, the market was under comparatively little pressure. Fears for the failure of better crop news to bring in more general or aggressive selling led to covering, but demand for new crop positions was limited and at the best they were 6 points or two under Saturday's closing figures.

Trade opinion was considered largely responsible for the relatively firm duling of July, while there also was covering by shorts on the afternoon of near month shorts on the afternoon of vance. Last prices were within a point of the best on July but showed reactions of three or four points on the later deliveries. Private cables attributed the easier ruling of Liverpool to hedge selling and liquidation. Some traders here injected the question whether more rain was not needed in some eastern belt sections but selling was accompanied by claims that most points in the Carolinas and Georgia had received enough for the present.

Exports today were 1,707 bales, making 7,567,191 so far this season. Port receipts 8,416. U. S. port stocks 822,861.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—(AP)—The cotton market was active today and the price spread was a trifle wider than it has been of late, the extreme range on December being 12 points. The market started out lower in keeping with unfavorable Liverpool cables and reports of rains over Sunday in the drouthy districts of the eastern belt. At the lowest of the morning prices showed losses from Saturday's close of eight to 12 points. The decline attracted some trade buying and price fixing as well as more or less covering and in the final trading July traded up to a level with the previous close and October to within a point of that level. The close was a little off from the top showing net unchanged to seven points down.

At the start Liverpool came in one to four penny points lower than due and this together with reports of rains in the eastern belt over Sunday caused bearish prices to show losses of four to seven points. There was a slight rally soon after the start but prices soon eased off again when the weather map confirmed the early reports of rains in the east. July trading down to 17.50, October to 16.96 and December to 16.95, or 8 to 12 points below the previous close.

The market gradually rallied during the period after mid-session and July made a new high at 17.58 in the final trading and October advanced to 17.04 while December duplicated an earlier higher at 17.03, or unchanged to four points under Saturday's close. The close was a little under than the best.

Exports for the day totalled only 1,707 bales.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—Big buying gave a decided lift to wheat values today, but free selling to realize profits wiped out much of the upturn. Sensational reports of crop damage in Kansas and Nebraska were current and drouth complaints came also from the spring wheat states of the northwest. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ¼ to 1¼c net higher with corn ⅝ to one cent up, oats showing ⅝c to ⅞c gain and provisions at a rise of 10 to 87c.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat. Some adverse field advices were received both as to corn and oats as well. Provisions went higher with hogs and grain.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, June 7.—(AP)—Wool sales at San Angelo, Texas, are estimated at about 35 per cent of the offerings. Growers are generally unwilling to accept bids of dealers. In Ohio dealers are getting little wool at their price. A small quantity of Ohio wool is reported bought on a mill order for 38 cents to growers, but dealers are unwilling to pay more than 35 to 36 cents for wool in bins in stock. Mills are making a little more inquiry for these wools, but bids are lower than the sales last reported.

Financial

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—An outburst of buying carried prices sharply upward towards the close of today's stock market after an early period of dullness and irregularity. Closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from one to six points interspersed with a smaller number of losses, most of which were of a fractional character. Total sales were 1,107,800 shares.

There was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden display of strength although the further indications of easier money rates furnished by the lowering of the charge on commercial paper and the statement of President Parsons of the F. W. Woolworth company that retail trade had definitely turned for the better last month, had a bullish effect on sentiment.

U. S. Steel common was prominent in the recovery moving up a point to a new high on the current upswing at 127¾. Independent Steels also displayed a strong undertone, Bloss Sheffield advancing 3½ points and Gulf States and Republic a point or so. The recent stiffening tendency in the prices of certain steel products has attracted fresh buying in the steel group.

Rumors of a price cutting war between the two largest interests in the motor industry had a restraining effect on trading in the motor shares, but special strength developed in Willys-Overland common, which advanced 1⅝ points to 27 on total sales of nearly 90,000 shares. Buying of this issue was based on large current earnings and reports that the company was planning the early introduction of a new light passenger car similar to the light cars used abroad. General Motors closed unchanged at 129¾ after fluctuating within a narrow range.

Rails were quiet but firm. Chief speculative interest centered in about a half-dozen low-priced issues. Pullman climbed nearly four points to a new high for the year at 176½ in anticipation of a stock dividend at next month's meeting of the board of directors.

Call money renewed at four per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Time money rates were unchanged, but commercial paper rates were easier, being quoted at 3¾ to 4 per cent instead of on a flat four per cent basis.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Renewed selling of French francs in New York and London carried the local demand rate on Paris below three cents for the first time since the middle of last month. Demand sterling held firm just above $4.84. Italian and Belgian currencies ruled slightly lower around 3.72 and 3.05 cents, respectively.

Police Dog Saves Mistress, Drinking Poison to End Life

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Alexa Morris, wife of Charles H. Morris, bank employe and former aid to the Dawes reparation commission, is recovering today from an effort to end her life after her husband had deserted her.

Nigger, her police dog, barked so loudly yesterday when she swallowed poison that neighbors were alarmed and broke down the door to rescue her. Morris, who married the girl in France during the World war and who is said to have been employed after his return as a stenographer for Vice-President C. G. Dawes, during his campaign, was advised of his wife's attempted suicide, but did not visit her. The girl had been saving money to return to France.

GULF MOTOR FUEL
NO-NOX
STOPS KNOCKS
PUTS CARBON TO WORK

PUTTING the old demon, carbon, to work sounds like a paradox—nevertheless that's just what GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel does and here's how it happens: Compression is power. The more compression the more power. Greater compression is secured by reducing the displacement or space in the combustion chamber. Carbon deposits materially reduce this space—old time gasoline would not withstand this added carbon compression — clicks — knocks — pings or detonations of distress quickly following sudden acceleration or heavy pulls.

No-Nox withstands higher compression—stops the knocks or detonations, thereby increasing engine efficiency. GULF No-Nox and Carbon Deposits work together for more power and greater mileage.

Turns Mountains Into Mole Hills

This guarantee goes with it: GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline—that it contains no dope of any kind—that the color is for identification only—that it positively will not heat the motor, winter or summer.

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is priced three cents per gallon higher than ordinary gasoline—and is worth it.

FIVE KILLED IN HOUSTON FIGHT

Seaman Shoots Four To Death, Wounds Others And Kills Self

HOUSTON, June 7.—(AP)—Five persons are dead, another is seriously wounded and a seventh is in a hospital with slight wounds as the outcome of a shooting affray in a bungalow near Houston's water front early today.

R. R. Tarter, 30, native of Kentucky and Steward on the shipping board vessel Brush apparently crazed by jealousy suddenly whipped out a pistol, shot Mrs. Edna Milam, 33, who lived in the house and Johnny Domange, 29, sailor, of Port Arthur, Texas, who he apparently believed was his rival for the affections of the woman; A. K. Latiolas, 21, of Houston, a chance inmate of the bungalow; Cora Robinson, negro maid, Bill Sonnier, 25, and Anderson Beckman, both sailors of Port Arthur.

Three hours later Tarter shot and killed himself aboard ship.

Mrs. Milam, Domange and Latolias died almost immediately. The negro maid, who was shot in the thigh while she was running from the scene died during the day. Sennier's jugular vein was severed by a bullet but Beckman escaped with a bullet in the leg.

Tarter had known the woman for five years, the authorities learned. He recently returned to Houston after a long absence and found Domange and the woman apparently on very friendly terms. At a gathering at her home last night an argument ensued, the nature of which has not been fully developed. At its climax Tarter whipped out a pistol and began to shoot.

Tarter was known on the water front as a peaceable man. He seldom used liquor, his intimates said.

"The ship stayed a little too long in port this time," dryly remarked a water front habitue known to Houston as "the king of the basin" who also said the furnishings of the bungalow where the killings occurred were bought by Tarter.

Mrs. Milam was said to have a husband and three children in Galveston, from whom she had been separated.

Push Plans For Trip to Amarillo

Plans for the trip to Amarillo for the 1926 meeting of the West Texas chamber of commerce are being rapidly completed by committees from the membership of the chamber of commerce and by the staff of that organization. Special committees will canvass the city Tuesday in an effort to complete the sale of the 125 tickets, the number required for the special train. About 30 of the tickets have been sold.

Plans for one of the most unique parades ever given at a convention of this kind are being made by the committee in charge. This will likely include a burlesque bull fight.

Indications are that many will go to Amarillo by automobile. Those firms, however, who can do so are urged to purchase tickets as the number of 125 must be sold to guarantee the train. Several firms have announced they will purchase two or three tickets. In this way it is believed the required number of tickets will be sold within a few days. Any one who desires to purchase a ticket and who may not be seen by one of the committeemen may mail their check to J. W. Chatham, industrial commissioner of the chamber of commerce and reservation will be made.

The two principal addresses were made by Mr. Cummings and C. C. McDonald. Mr. McDonald spoke first, epitomizing the achievements of the Ferguson administration: "We have not had an abler administration since the days of Jim Hogg," he declared. He ended a humorous commentary on the Ferguson opponents of the past two years with a statement that the "aspiring young lawyer from Georgetogu" would soon follow in the footsteps of "Little Felix" and "Doctor Butte," the last of whom, he said, felt the call of Texas politics in mid-ocean two years ago and was now in Porto Rico.

Nothing to Show

Mr. McDonald called attention to the Moody charges, declaring that not a one of them had been proved. Two powerful Texas newspaper organizations, he stated, had kept a private detective to shadow every movement that Ferguson had made for the past two years, yet there was not a thing to show for it.

The pardon record he upheld as the greatest single achievement of the administration. "When the Fergusons went into office the pardon office was on the second floor of the capital," he stated. "They moved it downstairs where it would be accessible to mothers and wives of those unfortunate enough to be in the state's penitentiaries. A green carpet that covers the floor of that office bears the stain of thousands that it has harbored since its removal and imprints of brogan shoes of Texas citizens who have gone to their governor with the assurance that there would find a disposition to temper justice with mercy."

B. Y. Cummings followed Mr. McDonald. Fergusonism as an issue in Texas politics would never have appeared, he declared, if they had treated Jim Ferguson half-way right back in 1917. Mr. Cummings stated that he had voted for someone by the name of Ferguson for governor since he was a young man. He added that once the July primary was over it was his intention to visit Denver, and look up the hotel where the former governor once was employed as a bellboy. "He is a man of the people, who has spent his whole life for the people," he declared.

Other Speakers.

Others making brief talks in the interest of the Fergusons were F. W. Fischer, D. J. Carrithers, W. B. McNeeley, Bob Simmons, J. L. Lackey, and J. E. Robertson.

Definite arrangements for the Ferguson speaking next Tuesday night will be left up to the entertainment committee it was decided. The following members were appointed: W. F. Wallace, J. I Staley, W. T. Willis, Joe Art, W. B. McNeeley, Fred Weeks, F. W. Fischer, J. L. Lackey, J. C. Straus, J. E. Robertson, D. M. Hardy, C. K. Walsh, D. J. Carrithers, T. P. Moore, B. Y. Cummings, C. C. McDonald, and J. M. Simmons.

A finance committe with Joe Art as chairman was appointed also to contain D. M Hardy, J. I. Staley, W. T. Willis, Joe Art, F. W. Fischer, W. F. Weeks, and R. M. Waggoner.

C. C. McDonald will introduce the former governor at Tuesday night's speaking, it was decided. F. W. Fischer will preside.

Judge W. H. Taft Confined to Home By Light Illness

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft was prevented by illness from attending today's session of the supreme court.

Confined to his room, the 88-year-old chief justice and former president, reluctantly acceded to the advice of his physician not to attempt to be present at the session which is the last the court will hold until October. Heretofore he has insisted on attending, despite minor disabilities.

That he was too ill to go to the capitol did not become known until shortly before the court assembled at noon. The seriousness of the attack was not immediately disclosed. For several months he has been intermittently suffering from ailments brought on by the advance of age and by depletions resulting from the active life he has led in a long succession of public offices.

At the chief justice's home it was said that his condition was not serious but that the doctor had advised him to rest in bed for two or three days after a period of strenuous work in connection with the closing up of the term of the court.

Arrangements have been made for the chief justice to leave Friday for his summer home at Murray Bay, Canada, and it was the intention today to carry out these arrangements.

"The chief justice is simply worn down by hard work," said his secretary.

Kiwanians Cut Up In Scandalous Fashion At Zero Hour Picnic Here

Zero hour of Kiwanis was observed by the local club members Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the Municipal club grounds when 85 Kiwanians and their wives gathered for the festivities. Shortly after 6 o'clock, Rex Watland, vice-president, called the group to attention, and following the singing of America, a moments silence was kept in memory of the hour when clubs over the United States and Canada were meeting at the same time.

Mr. Watland read the message sent by the International Kiwanis president, John H. Moss, which portrayed the idea that the zero hour was to emphasize the Kiwanis obligation of "We Build," to make better the community, the family and the nation.

Following the lunch which was prepared under the direction of Kenneth Bebb and his committee, games and stunts in charge of the program chairman, Walter Nelson, Jr., were enjoyed. Police worked practically without clues Monday in their efforts to run down the yeggs who sometime Sunday night effected an entrance to the Beacon shoe store on Indiana avenue and the Mahaney cafeteria on Ninth street and took from the safes of those two place cash approximating $1,000. Those responsible for the work carried the job out after the manner of professionals, making no noise sufficient to raise an alarm, and failing to leave any finger prints or other means of identification.

Entrance to the Beacon shoe store was made through the skylight to the building. The safe was found as usually by employes Monday morning, save that when it was opened and, its cash contents gone. Money amounting to approximately $500 was taken according to the manager, G. G. Wallace.
