WORK ON JUNCTION- SONORA ROAD BEGINS

Men Are Now on Ground Ready to Begin
Monday, and Will Rush Construction
Of Link in Old Spanish Trail.

Bosses, straw-bosses, cars, trucks, laborers, and teams are arriving this week to begin operations.

Work will start Monday on the 10-mile link of the O. S. T., beginning about six miles north west of Junction and extending towards Roosevelt, along the North Llano.

W. C. Hutto & Son were awarded the contracts last December, and it was thought that work would begin shortly after the first of the year, but the delay was occasioned by the contractors having some unfinished road work in Frio County. This work in Frio has just been completed and most of the equipment used there and a considerable number of men working there have been brought here.

M. C. Shipley who will have charge of the grading and graveling, states that within ten days fifteen teams and forty men will be on the job, and that the work will be done as rapidly as possible.

There will be a special group of workers who will do the concrete and bridge work, and who are specialists in their particular line.

With the completion of this gap in the Old Spanish Trail, which will extend almost to the west line of the county, Kimble will have an excellent graded and graveled highway extending through the county from the southeast to the northwest, that will compare favorably in construction, with any in the State, and will be unsurpassed for the beauty of the country through which it passes.

DR. M. C. MCBRIDE

Mrs. W. A. Quisenberry left for Dallas last Sunday to be at the bedside of her father. A telegram received from Mrs. Quisenberry Thursday stated that her father, Dr. M. C. McBride had died that morning.

Besides his daughter, Mrs. Quisenberry, he is survived by his wife and two sons, Dr. R. B. McBride of Dallas, and Dayton McBride, who is a student at the State Medical College.

TEXAN CHARGES ADMIN- ISTRATION BAD FAITH.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The administration was charged today in the House by Representative Garner, democrat, Texas, with failure to keep faith with the American people in the settlement of the British war debt.

"If it had kept faith," he shouted in reply to demands from the republican side for particulars, "it would have come back to Congress for authority to accept terms outside the existing law before it agreed to such terms. Instead of that, it made the settlement first and placed us in a position where we must approve the action or reject the whole agreement and thus lay ourselves open to a charge of a failure to keep faith with the British government."

MRS. J. F. RAGSDALE.

Last Saturday another home was made sad by the passing of a good wife and mother, Mrs. J. F. Ragsdale, at the family home near Copperas.

Through many months of illness, Mrs. Ragsdale has borne her pain and suffering patiently and with true Christian fortitude. She has sought medical treatment and undergone several operations, but it seems little or no relief could be found.

She was born fifty years ago and has been a faithful member of the Methodist Church since she was sixteen.

Twenty-eight years ago she married J. F. Ragsdale, who with their three sons, Walker, Robert and Joe, are left to mourn the loss of their wife and mother.

Funeral services were conducted at the Copperas church Sunday by Rev. R. E. Parker, and interment in the Copperas cemetery took place shortly after the services.

The Eagle joins all who knew this good woman in offering words of sympathy and consolation to the father and sons, whose loss has been so great.

A LITTLE WALK AROUND YOURSELF.

When you're criticising other
And finding here and there
A fault or two to speak of
Or a weakness you can tear;
Then you're blaming some one's meanness
Or accusing some of self—
It's time that you went out
To take a walk around yourself.

There's lots of human failures
In the average of us all,
And lots of grave shortcomings
In the short ones and the tall;
But when we think of evils
Men should lay upon the shelves
It's time we all went out
To take a walk around ourselves.

We need so often in this life
This balancing of scales,
This seeing how much in us wins
And how much in us fails;
But before you judge another—
Just to lay him on the shelf,
It would be a splendid plan
To take a walk around yourself.

TRY IT.

Just stand aside and watch yourself go by.
Think of yourself as "he" instead of "I"—
Pick flaws, find fault, forget the man is you—
And try to make your estimates ring true—
The faults of others then will dwarf and shrink—
Love's chain grows smaller by one mighty link—
When you, with "he" as a substitute for "I,"
Have stood aside and watched yourself go by.
—DeMolay Councillor.

SHEEP AND GOAT BILLS IN NEED OF AID.

A recommendation in writing to Claude A. Broome, president of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas, that the Association immediately send someone, preferably James T. Elliott, secretary, to Austin to lobby for beneficial legislation now pending, was made in San Angelo Friday by R. E. Taylor, of Carlsbad, New Mexico. Mr. Taylor spent most of the week in Austin with J. B. Murrah of San Antonio, and V. A. Brown, of Rocksprings, other members of the Association's legislative committee, in soliciting support of members of both houses for beneficial measures to be introduced. Arriving here, he found Mr. Broome out of the city.

"The Truth-in-Fabric bill has unanimously passed the House since I left Austin, but we look for opposition in the Senate," said Mr. Taylor, "and if the livestock raisers of Texas and the sheep and goat men in particular expect to have passed the four bills they have endorsed, they must send a personal representative to the capital at once. My experience has been that it's the associations and industries that have men on the floor that get the results. The law makers had rather hear personally from someone who can explain the needs of the desired legislation than to get scattering suggestions through the mail."

There are a few raisers of livestock in the Southwest who can qualify with Mr. Taylor as a lobbyist for measures beneficial to the producers. While president of the National Mohair Growers' Association, he made two trips to Washington in 1921 and spent two months there in the interest of a tariff on mohair. The result was that a good stiff levy was placed on importation of mohair into this country. In view of his experience, it naturally followed that Mr. Taylor was named on the legislative committee of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas, his associates being V. A. Brown, Rocksprings; J. B. Murrah, San Antonio; J. B. Moore, Del Rio, and Louis A. Schreiner, Kerrville.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Schreiner were unable to be in Austin last week. Valuable assistance to the three members present was given by George M. Thurmond of Del Rio, attorney and former secretary of the Association. Three measures besides the Truth-in-Fabric bill, are scheduled for introduction in the House and Senate. One would appropriate $50,000 per annum for two years for the extermination of predatory animals under the supervision of the Bureau of Biological Survey and abetted by an equivalent appropriation by the Federal government; another would provide for the enforcement of the sheep scabies dipping law, assessing a penalty; and the third would confer the powers of a Ranger upon authorized inspectors of livestock raisers' organizations operating in ten counties or more. This bill would permit of the deputizing of inspectors of both the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas and the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association.

Mr. Taylor engaged in livestock raising in Sutton County until five or six years ago when he moved to New Mexico. His residence is in New Mexico, but most of his ranch is across the line in Texas. He has been a member of the executive committee of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas for several consecutive terms and is one of the most active members, attending nearly every quarterly session, despite the distance he has to travel.

General range and livestock conditions on the New Mexico-Texas border are favorable. Grass and weeds being sufficient to sustain herds and flocks without much feeding, Mr. Taylor stated.—San Angelo Standard.

BLIZZARD EXTENDS OVER SOUTHWEST

Another Good Rain Falls, Followed by Sleet
And First Snow in Four Years, With Zero Weather Tuesday A. M.

A rain of .30 of an inch fell at Junction last Friday night, followed Saturday with a noticeable drop in temperature, and a rather heavy sleet that night. Sunday night, snow began falling and continued throughout most of Monday, probably reaching a total of six or seven inches. The temperature here was about 13 degrees below freezing during Monday's snow, but dropped to zero Tuesday morning, being the coldest weather recorded here in years.

The snow which amounted to more than three-fifths of an inch rainfall, was the first since January, 1919, when 12 inches of snow fell here. Six inches fell here the winter before.

Newspaper reports show that the snow extended as far south as Rio Grande City, which was the first time this section has had snow in nearly twenty years.

Many places in the State had as much as two feet of snow, and the temperature in places, especially on the north plains, was much lower than here, with considerable loss of livestock in some localities.

The precipitation during the past two weeks has been more than 2½ inches and this entire section now has an excellent season in the ground and prospects for early spring range and field crops are very encouraging.

More than usual interest in farming is being shown in Kimble County this year, and there is a good basis for predictions that this year will be the beginning of extensive farming operations that will continue to grow until Kimble is numbered among the big farm producing counties of the State.

Notwithstanding the sudden change in the weather and the extremely low temperature, it is thought here that few livestock losses will result, because of the fact that all kinds of livestock were in good condition due to the mild winter and fair range.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sullivan of Flatonia came up last Saturday for a few days' visit with Mrs. Sullivan's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Wright.

COUNTY AGENT GIVES TOPPING DEMONSTRATION

Friday afternoon, February 2nd, several men in the Segovia community met County Agent Frank McMillan, for the purpose of having a pecan topping demonstration, preparatory to doing some budding work later.

After witnessing the proper method of topping trees, all present agreed to work on some of their trees. After the trees that have been topped have put out new growth sufficiently large, a budding demonstration will be held in order that any one wishing to do so, can learn to bud their own trees. By this plan of work, it is made possible and easy for all that are interested in pecan culture to improve their pecan groves by budding to better varieties.

LATE STATE REPORTS OF SUNDAY'S BLIZZARD.

Beaumont.—Not less than 10,000 head of cattle have died in Jefferson County from cold during the last twenty-four hours, according to estimates gathered from cattlemen here today.

The check on the various herds is continuing, however. There are about 40,000 head of cattle in the county.

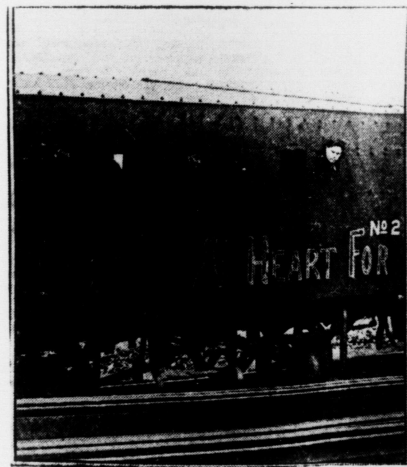

Abilene.—A snow fall of over three inches was recorded here today, snow falling without a let-up from 4 o'clock this morning until 1 p. m. It continued to snow at intervals throughout the afternoon. By 3 o'clock most of the snow had melted under moderating temperature. Crops and ranges will be greatly benefited, while the hard freeze prevented premature budding of fruit trees, which had been threatened during the last several weeks.

San Angelo.—From four to six inches of snow which extended to the Rio Grande was thawing out today. Five inches fell here during thirty-six hours up to 10 o'clock this morning, when the temperature rose above freezing, after having been down to 19 during the night.

THE ROVER

By George Randolph Chester

HURDY GURDY FINANCE

By this token, the town knew that playground park had come into existence, and, if there was a child in that procession who did not acquire the stomachache and have its spinal column jolted painfully, that child was to be blame.

Everything was free, rides, shows, even to the popcorn and lemonade and peanuts, everything!

Maizie Houston sat in the little private balcony of the new cafe, with her father and John Ames, and at one period, around noon, she remained perfectly quiet for a minute and a quarter; then she was fairly active.

They started in by declaring that she must, under no circumstances, go down into the jostling grounds on this packed occasion; but, before 2 o'clock in the afternoon, they were fighting lanes for her, through and through the mass. What to him had been piquant childish fancy of yesterday, was the woman's imperious whim of today and she obeyed the woman even more promptly than he had the child. He knew, at last, why he had been so enthusiastically returned Houston. "We all have. Why, John, my boy, do you know that you and I have options on two hundred thousand dollars' worth of property surrounding Playground park, and that it will double in value within the next two years?"

Chapter VII.

Opening day! Joe Wilks stood at the gate, shrouded in gloom, early in the morning.

"If they wouldn't come in when the gate was free, how do you expect them to pay ten cents?" he worried. "I don't expect those people but once," said John Ames grimly, and he looked back to where his "special policemen," all lumpy men, were waiting impatiently for their guests.

A woman, with two children and a lunch basket, alighted from the street car, walked calmly up to the gate, paid ten cents for herself and five cents each for the children. Joe Wilks looked at her and shook his head. Two women with a child apiece came on the next car. They paid their way in and wandered about dolefully, looking at the painted "fronts" and the yellow lake and waiting for the music. Two cars came by and brought no one; then a car came with seven.

Leopold's hand came out, with gay music, but they brought a scant party of customers behind them.

"Never mind, it's too early in the day," soothed Ames, who was particularly lonely. He had been decided that a golden-haired woman, with perfectly round, blue eyes, would be better off at home on this occasion. "Isn't that one of your friends, Joe?"

He indicated a bow-armed young man with a cigar clamped in the corner of his mouth, and his cap pulled down over one eye.

"That's Mugsy Durkey," whispered Joe, with a gleam of satisfaction, and watching his own work with careful excitement he pulled a lever and Mugsy Durkey found himself walking along beside the other customers, but separated from them by a light little white fence.

Mugsy paid no attention to that trifling barrier, for he was locating the dance floor. Suddenly he found himself walking in at a high gate, which promptly slammed behind him. There was a neat little enclosure behind the gate, entirely surrounded by a solid fence, and in the enclosure were three lumpy, special policemen!

They wasted no time with Mugsy Durkey; they exchanged with him no word; they merely beat his head half off by way of a hint, and hustled him back down the narrow passageway to a barn-like building fenced off from the rest of the lot. Here they tied him to a chair, in the presence of half a dozen other special officers, with clubs. It was not intended that Mugsy should spread the word. After the park had closed for the night, Mugsy would be thrown out.

Mugsy was joined by a fellow with a bleeding nose, then one with a black eye, then five members of the Mud Creek gang, beaten fairly tender. Towards evening the chief of police came back to the barn-like structure and looked them over, and chuckled and went away.

The grounds by this time were a sea of bobbing heads, and a babble of laughing voices. The glare of the band, mingled with the endless tune of the new carousels and the squeak of horns, and the clatter of bells, and the foot of whistles, and the whang of clappers, and the wailing of youngsters, and the cries of the "barkers," and the rush of the roller coasters, and all other discord, formed a harmony celestial to Joe Wilks' ears.

"You win, John!" he exultantly cried, for the 20th time since 3 o'clock. "You win in a walk, old pal! Houston's money is safe!" He paused, still sitting over the gate, and "picking them out," to watch one of the lumpy "specials" dart into a crowd, procure a young man who was "fresh," and give him a warning with murder behind it. "Maizie ought to have been out today. Ain't no toughness here." "You'll be successful as long as you handle it this way," promised Ames with a smile.

It was absurd to have kept Maizie away, but both her father and he felt so responsible for the child. She was but a child, after all. No, she was a woman, with all a woman's charm, and all a woman's soul, and all a woman's capacity for joy and sorrow. She was there alone today, except for her adoring aunt at home, unhappy, hearing in silence the disappointment they had forced on her against her earnest protest. Her round, blue eyes haunted him, and their reproach was even more poignant when Peter G. Houston walked delightedly up to him. Houston's eyes were nothing like Maizie's, but they were a piece of the same color.

"Stroke of genius, John!" he exclaimed. "When we get through with this, I want to talk to you about other matters, in which I'd like to have you an interest."

"Plenty of time for that," laughed Ames. "This looks pretty good just now. Joe Wilks is happy as a king. He tells me he's going to get a frock coat and look the part."

"Joe has a right to be happy," enthusiastically returned Houston. "We all have. Why, John, my boy, do you know that you and I have options on two hundred thousand dollars' worth of property surrounding Playground park, and that it will double in value within the next two years?"

"I shouldn't wonder," calculated Ames. "How much would you give me for my share tonight?"

"Thirty thousand," promptly estimated Houston. "I'd give you an additional five thousand for your contract with Joe Wilks. I'd make money out of it; but I'd be taking the gamble."

"I don't think I'll close with you just now," laughed Ames, and went out of the squalling place for quiet. He jumped at a street car, headed for the Houston home!

Chapter VIII.

John slipped up through the shrubbery of the Houston grounds. He had seen the golden head of Maizie on the screened end of the veranda, and he wanted to surprise her.

She was sitting quietly by herself, crooning a cradle song. In that deliciously flute-like voice, and lured earnestly with something in her lap. It was a golden-haired doll, and she was curling its burnished tresses, so like her own.

John Ames stopped, sobered? What phantasy of mind had been on him! He had seen women, and grown women, playing with dolls, but not like this; and he suddenly realized that more number of years no more marks the difference between a child and a woman than it marks the difference between a child and a man. Something like humiliation crept upon him, that, at thirty, after having sought seriously, in all the paths where women walk, for that one whom he should know to be his mate, he should fall into this folly, which attacks every man at least once in his life; when he mistakes the father in him for the lover.

It was an indication of his fundamentally healthy mind, that presently he smiled, and crept stealthily away, and took another street car down town, and plunged into a toy shop, just before closing time, and bought the biggest and prettiest golden-haired doll he could find.

With this in his arms, and enjoying the friendly grin of the other passengers in the street car, he hurried back to the Houston house, and slipped up on the Houston porch, and held out the doll before the astonished and delighted blue eyes of the Houston Maizie. Her eyes could grow no rounder, but they expanded in all their heavenly bliss.

"Oh, you darling, John Ames!" she cried, and clapping his cheeks between her warm little palms, she kissed him smack on the mouth.

It was that kiss which took all the last vestige of woman from her, in John Ames' thought, and made her a baby again.

When Peter G. Houston came home an hour later he found Maizie and Ames on the floor, gravely discussing her family of dolls, with the Princess John in the seat of honor.

"Well, that's a hot occupation for a commercial genius!" exclaimed Peter G. Houston, and granted his way to the floor himself, where Maizie clasped his bearded cheeks between her warm little palms and kissed him smack in the mouth.

"An ex-commercial genius," corrected Ames, with a smile. "I think I shall accept that offer of yours, and go away tomorrow."

PUTTING YOUR OWN TOWN ON THE MAP.

There are two ways of putting a town on the map. The man who prints a map upon a piece of paper puts a dot—a mere speck—with the name of your town attached to mark the location of your town. This is put there not because of you, but in spite of you. This method is all right for the study of geography, but it doesn't cut much ice in the material welfare of your town.

There is another way, though of putting your town on the map really, honest-to-goodness, put it there so that everybody knows you ARE there. It's no one man's job either, nor can any one individual accomplish this task. This is how it's done: When the citizenship of any town hide their hammers and forget to knock; when they discover the splendid habit of boosting their town and its best interests; when they are willing to lay aside in large measure their own personal interests, and pull and work for the public good; when they stand FOR progress and not in the way of progress; when they tell others when they meet about the Best town of them all—their town; they will wake up to find their town sure enough on the map, the way that counts in the world's affairs.

The process of putting your town in its rightful place may seem a slow and a tedious one; the sacrifice you may be called upon to make may seem a bit heavy sometimes; you may think you are doing more for your share; but don't worry; don't get weary in the game; push right ahead strengthened by the thought that you are doing the right thing, and when victory really comes, which it surely will, the consciousness that comes to you of duty done, will then repay you well for every effort made, for every sacrifice endured, and YOUR town will most certainly be on the map, to remain there a fitting monument to your efforts and to your sacrifice.

Believe in your town; work for your town; boost. If you can't say something good for your town, then at least, say nothing.

Hide your hammer and buy a horn.—The Dallas Merchant.

Women Ousted to Make Room For Henchmen says Hudspeth

Washington, Feb. 1.—Charges that many competent women agricultural extension workers had been discharged by the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture without hearing, and in many instances without reason, in order to provide places for "favorite henchmen of the administration," were made today by Representative Hudspeth (Dem.) of Texas in a resolution introduced in the House.

Work of the department, the resolution said, had been seriously crippled.

UVALDE SHERIFF WITH DOZEN OR SO INDICTED.

San Antonio, Feb.—Alleging that a conspiracy existed in the counties of Uvalde, Val Verde, Kinney and Maverick, from October, 1920, until April 1922, to import and possess liquor from Mexico in violation of the national prohibition act, a special Federal grand jury in the Del Rio district has indicted G. H. Johnson, sheriff of Uvalde County; Kay Reager, his deputy, and Fred McKenzie, a rancher; Sam Idalock, J. H. Davis, Ed Dean, Frank Clamp, and others upon whom warrants have not yet been served.

The indictment alleges that the defendants, subsequent to the formation of the alleged conspiracy and until the last overt act in April, 1922, possessed great quantities of intoxicating liquors intended for use in violation of Title II of the national prohibition act. The indictment specifies that the allegations were only that the conspiracy was for the purpose of violating this title and did not exist for the illegal sale of liquor, although other violations were incidentally alleged.

From Our Exchanges. CAN SOME RADIO BUG BEAT THIS?

Brady radio enthusiasts are contemplating making application to the Radio Truth society of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in behalf of R. K. Finley, Sr., Fife's original radio bug. Friend Findley brought the most remarkable radio story of the year to Brady last Saturday, and not only vouches for the truth of the experience but has available witnesses to prove the facts in the case. Mr. Finley relates that last week while tuning up for a concert program, he plainly overheard a telephone conversation between J. M. Young, superintendent of the Fife school, and parties at Pear Valley, with whom Mr. Young was attempting to arrange a basket ball game. So astounded was Mr. Finley that he called his son who verified the fact that it was an actual telephone conversation they overheard. They then called Mr. Young on the phone and repeated his conversation to him, much to his astonishment.

The experience evidently is a rare one, as no other radio fan has been known to duplicate the feat. Mr. Finley has one of the best radio sets in the county and derives much pleasure from the many programs broadcasted from all corners of the U. S., and with which he has been enabled to tune in.—Brady Standard.

Now for the Crooks to Wail!

Listen, now, folks, for the oil promoters' anvil chorus.

Some of the opposition to the Denison bill offered in congress recently was based on the claim this bill was unnecessary, so far as Texas stock frauds are concerned, because a bill for the Texas Legislature was at that time being drafted.

But the bill introduced at Austin Thursday by Representative Johnson will be fought much more bitterly than was the Denison bill.

The Johnson measure would put out of business about 99 out of every 100 of the Fort Worth fraud artists.

The cry which will be raised against it is that it is a boost for "big business," particularly in the oil industry. The people will be told an organized effort is being made to put all the "independents" in the oil game out of the State. They will be told this is the primary object of the proposed law, instead of its professed purpose of quelling the swindlers and grafters.

If other blue sky laws with "teeth" in them are introduced, the cry will be the same.

In it, the promoters will be joined by the brokers; the publicity agents; landlords and subsidized newspapers.

Organized crookedness dies hard. It always dies fighting. Where millions are at stake, as they are in the fight of the oil promoters and their accomplices for the existence of their nefarious business, believers in righteousness and honesty are subject to any sort of assault.—Fredericksburg Standard.

Sheep and Goat Raisers Agree on Shearing Prices.

There was quite a large number of sheep and goat raisers met in the Court House at Kerrville last Saturday and agreed upon prices for shearing for the coming Spring.

Chas. Real was selected as chairman and Jim Peril as secretary of the meeting.

It was agreed to pay 3 1/2 cts. on goats where the owner furnished everything except knives, combs and handles; 5 cts. where the shearer furnished everything.

For sheep shearing 5 1/2 cts. where owner furnished everything except knives, combs and handles; 7 1/2 cts. where shearers furnished everything.

The proposition to hold a sheep and goat exhibit in the summer was discussed and generally favored.—Kerrville Mountain Sun.

IN MEMORIAM

Talking in whispers
Nods of the head,
Lonely the Household—
Mary is dead.

Free from her labors,
Freedom from pain,
Efforts of loved ones
Given in vain.

Closed are her eye-lids,
Still is her breath—
See! she is smiling,
Even in death.

Still are the fingers
Clasped on her breast,
Ended their labors,
Taking their rest.

Speak of her gently,
Tenderly share
The grief of her loved ones,
Mourning her there.

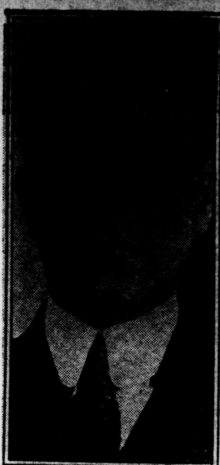

Reverence her memory,
Precious as gold,
God keep her spirit
Safe in His fold.

Speak then in whispers,
Nods of the head,
Hearts are all broken—
Mary is dead.

GATES TIRES

The Tire with the Wider and Thicker Tread

ANOTHER SURPRISING RECORD—

In our whole ten years' experience, winter sales have never before kept our factory working as it now is—24 hours every day.

It's happened often enough in summer, but now it's occurred in mid-winter.

This is just another indication of how many more motorists are now asking for the tire that has the wider and thicker rubber tread—the Gates Super-Tread Tires.

Like Produces Like:—Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.—Galatians 6:7.

In many cases, measures that "big business" oppose are for the good of the common one, like us, but the proposed State Income Tax law, that is now being so strenuously opposed by the most prominent business men of the State, is one which the average citizen would do well to assist in defeating. There are enough occupation taxes, franchise taxes, income taxes, etc., without end, to drive the ordinary man crazy and discourage the extraordinary ones. It does seem that ways to reduce expenses should be sought rather than ways of raising additional revenue for ever-increasing and abnormal expenses. Shouldn't thrift and industry be encouraged by reasonable laws rather than discouraged by exorbitant taxation?

TWO MEN DETAINED.

Friday afternoon local officers arrested two men on the ground of being suspicious characters, and placed in jail. They will be detained for further investigation.—Fredericksburg Standard.

It is rapidly coming to the point in this and many other counties in this section, where these "suspicious globe trotters" will have to be "detained." A good way to detain these $100,000 wagger walkers, is to arrest them for vagrancy and place them on the county roads where their first honest toil will be registered. It is going to be more and more of a problem if this class is encouraged by being allowed to go on "Reeing" the towns unmolested.

HORNISH'S BI-WEEKLY.

Recently mention was made of the change of the Hornish publication from a monthly to a semi-monthly, and this week it changes its name but is still a twice-a-month paper, which brings to mind the old saying, "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Notwithstanding so many recent changes, we still recognize the old sheet and are always glad to get it, and read such pertinent paragraphs as the following, which also run along our way of thinking:

"There seems to be quite a few San Angelo boys who seem to think that because Abraham Lincoln had little school education, and became president, that not attending school is a good way to line up for the presidency."

"Here's a confession: Sometimes I think that my efforts to carry enlightenment to the heathen of West Texas amounts to about as much as a hen that insists on setting on a China egg. Anyhow, we are determined to keep on publishing this epistle of everlasting bliss till we are called further hence. Come on with your subscriptions."

"Every once in a while some gob bobs up and starts a report about some West Texas financial institution being weaker than this editor's finances. We doubt if there is a single bank in West Texas that isn't in a good financial condition, but circulating such reports might have a tendency to start a run on one of them. Go forget it! West Texas is all right—there will be no broken banks."

GUARDING THE RUSSIAN CROWN JEWELS.

These are the Soviet officials who are guarding and placing an assayed value on the Russian Crown Jewels seized by the Soviets, to be disposed of in foreign markets to help stabilize the Russian Republic. The Jewels are kept in the secrecy of a gray guarded building.

The Eagle is glad to mention the following announcement received recently, and congratulate our good friends, Editor and Mrs. Wright:

"Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Wright announce the arrival of Mable Beatrice, January Twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred, twenty-three; one twenty-five, a m. weight eleven pounds."

Doctors testified that a woman subject to a sanity test played the piano. Presumably some one of the popular crazes.

It may be culturally disheartening that farmers care more for the value of plant sales than plant research—

It is still a tie score between an umpire and a woman. Neither of them has lost an argument yet.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

From The Austin Statesman:

TEXTBOOK COMPANIES
THREATEN LAW SUIT.

That the new contracts for textbooks made on behalf of the State are binding and will be contested for as such by textbook companies affected, was the contention made by representatives of the latter late Monday before the Senate committee on educational affairs. This committee conducted a hearing on the Pope bill, already passed by the House, providing for the extension for three years from December 1, 1922, of the then existing contracts for textbooks. It is contended by the book companies that the various contracts recently awarded by the textbook commission were awarded legally, that the contracts and bonds incident thereto were drawn up by the attorney general and that the Governor acted upon proper authority from the commission and has signed the contracts which it is claimed, are therefore binding obligations for the State.

When questioned as to the legal authority of the Governor to act for the commission in approving the form of contract and bonds, it was pointed out that such act on the part of the Governor was ministerial and not discretionary and came upon authority from the State textbook commission and is in compliance with the law. In response to queries as to the eligibility of certain members of the commission, it was contended that the legal provisions were complied with.

Enactment of the Pope bill, it was contended, will place the State in the awkward position of having two valid and existing sets of contracts for textbooks on the same subject. The publishers securing the new contracts, it was stated, would enforce their legal rights through the courts, if necessary, the result being that the State would be compelled to pay for two sets of textbooks, one not needed.

The Senate educational committee adjourned after the hearing without taking any action.

BLOWING UP DIPPING
VATS CLASSED AS ARSON.

Recent opinion of the court of criminal appeals in which it was held that the blowing up of a dipping vat by means of gunpowder or other explosive constitutes the offense of arson, will have a salutary effect and operate as a deterrent to this class of offenses, in the opinion of Clifford L. Stone, assistant attorney general.

"This practice of blowing up dipping vats, especially in East Texas, has been quite prevalent, and little attention was paid to the law on the subject," said Assistant Attorney General Stone, "as long as the offense was classified as a misdemeanor, but now that the court of criminal appeals has held that this offense constitutes arson, which is a penitentiary offense, there is every reason to believe there will be a decrease in the blowing up of dipping vats."

The opinion of the higher court, which was handed down last Wednesday, was in the case of J. A. D. Johnson from Cass County and the appellant was given a term of two years in the penitentiary on conviction of blowing up a dipping vat.

Contention was made that the vat in question was not a building, or even a house and therefore appellant could not have been convicted of arson. This, however, was not sustained by the higher court. "In our opinion," said the court, "the structure was beyond doubt, a building within the meaning of that term in article 1214, supra, and one whose explosion would be punishable thereunder." The fact that the vat had no walls was immaterial, according to the opinion.

GILMORE CHOSEN CHAIRMAN R. R. COMMISSION.

Railroad Commissioner Clarence E. Gilmore late Wednesday was named chairman of the State railroad commission succeeding Allison Mayfield, deceased. Although under the seniority rule, Commissioner Earle B. Mayfield, United States senator-elect, would ordinarily have become chairman of the commission, he relinquished his privilege and nominated Mr. Gilmore for the chairmanship. "Since the law provides that a chairman of the commission shall be selected," the senator-elect declared in a statement, "and such is necessary in order to conduct the business of the commission in an expeditious manner, upon my motion Commissioner Gilmore has been duly elected chairman of the railroad commission of Texas today."

"The rule of seniority has always been respected on the commission and my associate, Commissioner Gilmore, has insisted that I accept the chairmanship; but, since I am to leave the commission within a few weeks, I feel that Commissioner Gilmore should be elected chairman and have insisted upon his election."

SENATORS QUIZZING
NEFF APPOINTEES.

Recess appointees of Governor Neff who will be up for confirmation by the Senate at the executive session to be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, are being closely questioned as to their clan affiliations, if any, by the Senate committee on nominations.

J. M. Pitillo of Waco, member of the State Industrial Accident Board, was one appointee who was called before this committee. He presented a letter from the secretary of the Waco clan accepting his resignation last July, one year after he joined.

Judge S. H. German, of the commission of appeals, told the committee that he had gotten out of the clan several months ago. He was recently appointed by Governor Neff to succeed Judge French Spencer. Judge German's home is at Livingston.

It is generally accepted that the Senate at its executive session will refuse to confirm the appointment of five members of the State textbook commission. However, this failure to confirm has no more affect than a protest, as the commission has already served its term and completed its duties.

TAX EXEMPTION AMENDMENT BEEN PROPOSED.

A proposed amendment to the constitution exempting from taxation for a period of ten years, all property used in the manufacture of cotton, woolen, worsted, leather or silk goods, has been introduced in the House by Representatives Carpenter and Irwin of Dallas County. The proposed amendment was referred to the House Committee on constitutional amendments.

In the event of the adoption of the amendment, tax exemption is to commence on January 1, 1924, and continue for a period of ten years. After that time the amendment limits the tax that may be levied against such cotton, woolen and silk manufacturing plants to 15cts. on the $100 property valuation. During the ten-year period all such factories shall also be exempt from all other classes of taxation except such as may be levied for the benefit of the public schools of the State. The amendment, should it be adopted is to be submitted to a vote of the people on the fourth Saturday in July, 1923.

BILL CONCENTRATING
PENITENTIARY SYSTEM

A bill designed to carry out Governor Neff's program for concentrating the State penitentiary system on the state farms in east Texas as recommended by the chief executive in a message last week, was introduced in the senate today by Senator Cousins of Hemphill. The bill was referred to committee without discussion.

The proposals under the Cousins bill in short are as follows: disposal of the Shaw farm, Ferguson farm, Wynn farm, Goree farm, all machinery and all equipment not necessary for the operation of the central penitentiary plant; Eastham farm to be converted into a training school for boys; Huntsville plant to be converted into an insane asylum; permission be granted to prison commission to work convicts on public roads under honor system, work to be arranged in conjunction with the state highway department.

fifty prisoners to be worked in a state cement plant and establishment of an honor farm.

The central penitentiary plant would be located in Brazoria and Fort Bend counties, where the State owns four farms. Provision for centralization also is made in the bill:

The Senate passed finally a Senate bill making the bondsmen of county commissioners liable for misapplication of public funds and another applying to county judges on the same point.

Mrs. Anna Clover, of R. F. D. 5, Winfield, Kans., says: "I began to suffer some months ago with womanly troubles, and I was afraid I was going to get in bed. Each month I suffered with my head aches and sides—a weak, aching, nervous feeling. I began to try medicines as I was getting worse. I did not seem to find the right remedy until someone told me of

CLUB AND SOCIETY NOTES.

(Edited by Mrs. A. W. Loeffler)

MRS. CONRAD HOLEKAMP COMPLIMENTS SISTER.

One of the prettiest affairs of the season was given Saturday afternoon, by Mrs. Conrad T. Holekamp, who complimented her sister, Miss Cecil Martin, with a reception from two to four o'clock in honor of her marriage to Mr. Lee J. Corkill.

The large living room was most attractive with a cheerful fire crackling at one end of the room, pink shaded lights and vases of pink carnations placed throughout the room; pink maline further carried out the decorative scheme.

The guests were met at the door by Miss Dorothy Mudge, who presented each one with a pretty pink ribbon-tied booklet which bore the announcement. Miss Cecil Martin and Mr. Lee J. Corkill, February 4, 1923, on Corkill, February 4, 1923. On these booklets were to be written either a verse, advice or a recipe for the bride. Miss Elsie Mathis had charge of the bride's book where the guests registered; Miss Elsie Buck, Mrs. John R. Martin and Mrs. C. T. Holekamp served the stimulating coffee with whipped cream, from the buffet; on the dining table reposed the large white heart-shaped wedding cake, outlined with tiny pink roses and surmounted with a pink love bird. Pink carnations and maline completed the charming table decorations. Mrs. Frank Baker presided over the cutting of the cake; Miss Elsie Mathis cut the heart; Miss Fay Taylor, the wish bone; Miss Gladys Van Cleif, the thimble; and Mrs. Lola McCollum, the wedding ring.

The guest of honor, Miss Cecil Martin, was gownned in a handsome blue taffeta, with silver trimming; she wore a black fur and a corsage of pink carnations.

CORKILL-MARTIN.

Saturday afternoon at the Episcopal Church, Miss Cecil Martin and Lee J. Corkill were united in marriage, Rev. Richard Mercer performing the ceremony.

The bride wore a coat suit of navy blue with accessories to match, and the groom a dark blue serge.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Martin, and one of Junction's most popular young ladies. Mr. Corkill is a brother of Mesdames J. D. Motley and J. M. Hankins, and during his stay here has made many close friends. He has been with the Hankins Drug Store for several months, but has recently gone into business for himself.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for San Antonio, where they will spend their honeymoon. After this week they will be at home to their friends in Junction.

The Eagle, along with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Corkill, extend congratulations, and wish for them a long, happy and prosperous life together.

SIMMONS-WILLIARD.

Mr. C. W. Simmons, a ranchman of the South Llano vicinity, and Miss Grazie Williard, of Junction, were married Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage, by Rev. R. E. Parker.

The Eagle joins the many friends in extending congratulations.

POWERS-BLACK.

James J. Powers, a civil engineer of Dallas, but who has been at Menard for sometime on contract work, and Miss Myrtle Black, a teacher from Menard, were married here last Saturday by Rev. Parker, and left immediately in Mr. Power's car for San Antonio.

The Junction public schools were closed all day Monday on account of the inclement weather. On account of the inability to heat the building properly in extreme cold weather it was thought best to dismiss for that day. The regular school work was resumed Tuesday.

FLAPPERS ORGANIZE.

Eight of Junction's "flappers" met at Schreiner Park last Friday night and organized the E. H. E. Club, which is to meet once a month in places known only to the club members. All future members will be elected by ballot, one black ball disqualifying any proposed member.

Miss Emma Pickett was elected Counsellor and Joan Wilson secretary and reporter.

Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, fruit and coffee were served to Misses Emma Pickett, Lola Mae Nance, Louise Newman, Joan Wilson, and Messrs. Freddie Oliver, Frank Graves, Dick Faley and Bobbie Smith.

THE ANGEL OF DEATH.

The Angel of Death has been here in our midst, Sad hearted in Junction we mourn.

A loved son; three dear mothers an aged man; a babe; All these have crossed the bourne

From which no traveler e'er returns.

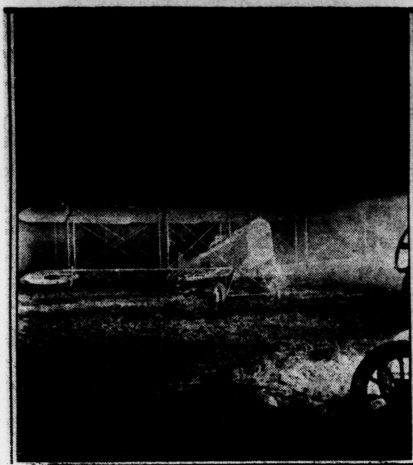

Before tomorrow's dawn, Oh, God! we sorrowing cry to Thee

Praying Thy comforting love To grant a vision to all our bereaved,

Of the "many mansions" above, With no more sorrow, pain nor death.

Where tears are all wiped away, For Father, we are helpless and need

Thy comfort in sorrow's day. —Contributed.

Adaptability

KIMBLE COUNTY has been regarded as an exclusively stock-raising county so long, that many people hesitate to try something new, but the increased population demands greater production, and the only way we can secure greater production is by increasing the variety of the products we grow.

MANY Vegetables and field crops that are grown elsewhere have been found to be well adapted to Kimble County soil and are now being successfully raised here.

OTHERS Will also be found desirable and profitable, and it is to our advantage to experiment and find what can be grown here, that is being grown elsewhere.

TRY SOMETHING NEW THIS YEAR!
