

On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Jr.

We have been reminding our readers recently that there is no charge for parking space in Loraine, unless of course, you park too close to a fire plug and the Chief of Police sees your car parked there.

Everyone should always be very careful not to park near a fire plug. The proper distance from a plug is marked in red. Should your car be parked too close to a fire plug and a fire broke out and the firemen had to use the plug by which your car was parked they would find a hookup could be made to the plug. That would consume time that might mean the loss of a great deal of property. Every second counts when fighting a fire.

LETTER FROM KOREA

Following is the first letter received by parents from Doyle Mayes since his arrival in Korea. We thought it interesting and it gives us an idea of the situation there as seen by one of our men. The letter is dated Feb. 17, 1951.

Dear Mother and Dad: Well I am sorry that I have waited so long to write, but I have not had much time.

I made it across ok, and I feel fine. Boy, it is really cold here. The ship that I came over on stopped in Japan two days. I got your letter there, was sure glad to get it. You ask me if I could tell where I was. Yes, I am now in Pusan, Korea. If you have a map of Korea you can tell where I am. Well I have really seen lots of country. I wish that I could tell you all the things that I have seen. We are sleeping in tents. Taking a bath is something that you can not do here. We have to wash our face and hands in our steel helmets. We also wash our clothes in our helmets. It is very cold but we have lots of good wool clothes to put on so I keep warm. This country is not anything but hills as far as you can see. The people here are really poor and hungry. They will fight each other over a cigarette or piece of candy. They don't have enough clothes to wear and they nearly freeze to death. This town is nasty and dirty. You can smell it miles away. We wonder if it is all worth fighting for.

Do not worry about me, I will be ok. There was about 8,000 men on the ship that I came across on. Sure was crowded. I hope that Fat Maynard does not ever have to come over here because he would not like it. Has Billy Earl ever come home? I might run into the Finch boy over here. Hope I do. A boy from Abilene and one from Dallas is in the same tent that I am in.

Well that is about all I can write tonight. I will write again soon. Don't worry so much. Lots of love, Doyle.

School To Make Survey March 6th

A survey will be made of the Loraine school community Monday, March 6, by the members of the faculty and high school students. This survey will be a part of a study being made throughout the State of Texas of small high schools to ascertain the ability of the communities to maintain such a school as well as their ability to support a school.

With the inauguration of the new Commissioner of Education under the "Gilmer-Aiken" school set-up came many rumors of an impending move to close all small high schools and a directive was issued at one time saying that schools under 60 in enrollment in high school were in jeopardy of losing their classification. However, Commissioner Edgar, upon a study of the matter, revealed that such a ruling seemed to be an unjustified ruling and even though it had been in the regulations of the old State Department for some time he felt that it should be either changed or completely removed from the books. He has, therefore, asked as many of the schools under 100 in high school enrollment as possible, to assist in making a survey that will give to the staff of his office information upon which to pass a better ruling that will be based upon actual facts.

This survey will, because of the results on a state level, be one of great importance to all small high schools of the state of Texas and the administration of our school wishes to urge all patrons and residents of the district to co-operate fully at the time you are presented with a questionnaire to be answered. It is also urged that as many of the people of the district as possible can arrange to be at home on Monday so that this work can be completed in a minimum amount of time.

Following the survey, a community committee will be formed of 15 people representing the various clubs and organizations of the area as well as four members of the school faculty and this committee will evaluate the school and its services in order to make suggestions to the local school staff as well as complete the report of the Texas Education Agency offices. It is hoped that this advisory group may be incorporated into a permanent organization with members serving for short terms and being replaced a few at a time in order to more nearly correlate the functions of the school with the needs and the wishes of the school.

It is also planned that the school census will be taken at the same time as the community survey, thereby relieving the necessity of calling on all residents twice during the month of March. The high school students will be organized into small groups under the direction of a teacher and they will call upon every home in the entire community to gather the information necessary for this study and the school census.

Highlights of Soil Conservation Meet

By Mrs. Hal Bennett
Willie Taylor and Hal Bennett, accompanied by their wives, were among the 2000 or more delegates registering in Oklahoma City for the annual Soil Conservation Districts convention on February 21-24. These representatives of some 2300 soil conservation districts in the U. S. A. and Hawaii. Waters S. Davis of League City, Texas was elected president for a second term. Other outstanding speakers included Governor Murray of Oklahoma, Charles F. Brannon, Sec. of Agriculture, and Dr. Hugh H. Bennett, Chief U. S. Soil Conservation Service, Washington, D. C.

Various speakers talked of the great progress in Soil conservation practices that has been made since 1937 when the first S. C. Districts were organized. Then they hurried to call attention to the great amount of work still to be mapped out and of maintaining present plans on individual projects for all time.

Dr. Bennett named our public school as our greatest potential source of information in carrying ideas of soil conservation practices to the individual homes of our nation.

The programs in general were to make all visitors feel welcome to Oklahoma City where some 600 conventions are held annually. To add spice to the luncheons, banquets and night session, special entertainers were presented in groups and solos. An Indian Band, presented in native costume, had won national fame for their performance in war dances and the eagle dance. They were accompanied by an aged Chief who made the convention president, Waters S. Davis, an honorary member of their tribe.

There was ample time between sessions and at the "round-up" party Wednesday night to chat with farm neighbors from over the nation. The highlight of the bus tour of the city, arranged especially for the ladies present, was an afternoon tea. Their hostess was Oklahoma's first lady, Mrs. Johnson Murray, wife of the governor. The place was the country club where a varied musical program was presented.

On Friday, the Flying Farmers of America and chartered buses took visitors to inspect soil conservation projects and outstanding points of interest in the state of Oklahoma. Texans were surprised to find the largest herd of Texas longhorn cattle and the second largest herd of buffalo now in existence located in the Wichita Mountain wild life refuge. The group on that tour were guests of the Lawton C. of C. and Comanche County Soil Conservation District for a barbecueed buffalo lunch at noon.

A fitting end of the convention entertainment was a stop at the "Holy City", scene of the annual Easter pageant in the Wichita Mountains. The first and last numbers on the convention program were prayers by local pastors. Invocations were a part of every luncheon and banquet. The tour of historic and interesting places in Oklahoma City had included Robinson Avenue, known as the "Avenue of Churches". The first churches of nearly all major denominations of the city are located on this street within a few blocks of each other.

Mr. and Mrs. Barzile Parker of Eunice, N. M., spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Parker.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Gov. Dewey Breaks With Top GOP Leaders on Arms Aid to Europe; Farm Aid Needed to Kill Rackets

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DEWEY:

Breaks With Top Men

The hints at a serious rift in policy within the Republican party during the past few months took on definite form when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey took sharp issue with such top G.O.P. leaders as Taft of Ohio, Wherry of Nebraska, and former president Herbert Hoover over the defense of Europe.

In one of the bluntest statements ever made by Dewey, the New York governor said it would be "utmost of folly" to depend upon sea and air power to protect the U.S. against Communist aggression. He added, "Anyone who thinks you can defend the United States or any substantial part of the world with any two out of three branches of the armed forces, is ignoring every lesson of history."

He then urged faster mobilization and sending more American troops to Europe immediately. He said he felt the deployment of troops was no business of Congress.

This viewpoint is the exact opposite of Taft, Wherry and Hoover who have repeatedly demanded no more American troops be sent to Europe without prior approval of Congress. They have also urged placing our faith in defense on overwhelming sea and air power.

Thus develops the serious rift within the Republican party that could have far-reaching results within the coming year. Politically it could mean that Dewey is dead as a possible G.O.P. standard bearer in 1952.

On the other hand, if Dewey's thinking is the expression of the majority of the Republican party, it could mean Taft, Wherry and Hoover will be stamped isolationists and doomed to ultimate oblivion.

In this connection, it was interesting to note that Dewey said, "Any isolationist speech is an aid to Stalin."

FARMERS:

Must Help Curb Rackets

With the government's order limiting the number of slaughterhouses that will be permitted to operate and the amount of livestock they can butcher, it became apparent it is going to take patriotism down on the farm to keep meat off the black market.

While big and middle-size slaughterhouses who provide most of the steaks and chops for the dinner table will be licensed, several hundred thousand farmers who usually butcher a few hogs, sheep, for their own consumption or for local sale are exempt.

While these farmers right now don't account for much of the meat eaten in the United States, they are a potential headache for price controllers. During World War II many farmers sat up their own barnyard slaughterhouses with no more equipment than a tree, a rope, an ax, and a butcher knife.

It wasn't very sanitary, but plenty of racketeers were willing to buy the meat at fancy prices and truck it into the cities for sale at even fancier black market prices.

Price control officials are afraid that some farmers exempted from the slaughtering regulation might be lured into illicit butchering by the prospect of easy money. The job of keeping check on the farmers would require an army of enforcement agents, and is impossible under present conditions. For that reason it will take a lot of patriotism down on the farm if present slaughter regulations are to be enforced.

HOLLYWOOD:

Unpleasant Publicity

Hollywood, that land of make-believe so often in the headlines, appeared in line for considerable more publicity, but of an unpleasant nature.

The new avalanche began to roll when the house un-American activities committee announced plans to investigate certain Hollywood actors that would "inevitably" lead to a revival of the communism-in-Hollywood case.

In 1947 the committee investigated Communist influences in the movie capital in long and sensational hearings with the result that 10 writers and directors were convicted of contempt of Congress for refusing to say whether they had ever been Communists. All went to jail.

The new hearings may do considerable good, but as in all such investigations, some innocent people can expect to be hurt.

EDUCATION

College Enrollment Drop Is Expected

Mobilization is having a drastic effect on colleges throughout the nation. A recent survey of American universities and colleges revealed that most institutions predict they will lose 25 to 50 per cent of their students before the end of this year.

Such a drop in enrollment will result in a sharp cut-back of faculty members, possibly as many as

Hitch-Hiker

William J. Newton, Jr., who first made headlines last August when he landed a seaplane at sea beside the "iron curtain" liner Batory and got into trouble with the FBI, is shown (left) as he was interviewed by correspondent Frank Conniff, after he turned up in Korea. Newton said he had hitch-hiked 12,000 miles to "kill some Communists" to clear his name of the taint of communism. The 8th army gave him a physical, turned him down as unfit.

PRICES:

Reach Record Level

The American public found itself in a strange position, one which it did not entirely understand and which presented frightening possibilities for the future.

The situation began to develop some weeks ago with the enactment of price-wage controls, which most people believed would halt the cost of living spiral. Shortly after the "freezes" went into force, numerous loopholes in the plan were made known by which many foods could jump from 5 to 200 per cent.

Later the glib public was told by the bureau of labor statistics that wholesale prices reached a new record high despite the "price freeze". The main increases were in prices of food and farm products.

This, of course, caused immediate rumblings in labor's ranks. In turn, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan charged farmers against the "freezes" that farm prices were "unreasonably high".

Economic stabilization administrator Eric Johnston, who has the most thankless job in the United States today, issued a statement saying that prices may advance a few more months and finally level off in midsummer.

The average American had no desire to see any one group of the nation's economy—farmers, laborers, manufacturers—unjustly bear the greatest burden of price and wage controls. But the average American was worried about how far he could stretch his pay check without drastically lowering his standard of living. He wanted to know if he could stand it until the midsummer leveling-off took place?

KOREA:

Reds Counterattack

With stunning force and typical blood-curdling methods, complete with suicidal charges, bugle-blowing, bell ringing, whistle-blowing, and drum-beating, Chinese Communists launched a counterdrive against U.N. forces in central Korea.

The counterattack stalled the U.N. advance that began late in January and which had approached Seoul.

Eighth army officers reported elements of nine Chinese divisions and six Korean divisions were used in the counterattack.

At full strength this would mean as many as 150,000 to 200,000 men. However, heavy casualties had been inflicted on the Communists since the U.N. offensive began. Officials claimed Red casualties, by ground action alone, totaled 80,121.

Some military observers believed Communist armies in Korea had been hurt so seriously in recent weeks they could not continue an offensive for a long period of time. Others, however, were cautious with their predictions, remembering the overwhelming manpower available to the Communist cause.

Morale was reported high among U.N. troops during recent weeks as they pushed slowly toward the 38th parallel.

JAPAN:

Progress Toward Treaty

Preliminary steps for a peace treaty between the United States and Japan appeared successfully completed with the announcement that the basic points of a defense agreement to be guaranteed by American power had been agreed upon.

Japan has become more important to American security since the Communist plan of conquest in Asia became clear. The proposed peace treaty hinged on future security measures in Japan.

The security guarantee includes stationing of U.S. armed forces in and about the country. No time limit will be specified and U.S. troops might be stationed in Japan for many years.

And while the arrangement lasts, an attack on Japan would be considered the same as an attack on the United States.

American policy has leaned heavily toward a free and strong Japan as a balancing factor in the Pacific. The United States does not want to place heavy economic or financial burdens or major commercial disabilities upon Japan.

In this respect, however, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand may not agree fully with the United States.

BIG-FOUR:

Meeting Proposed

The United States, Britain and France were reported willing to hold a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Paris sometime during March. Whether or not the Russians would consent is another matter. No one is willing to make a guess.

One of the main problems of such a meeting would be to get the four nations to agree before the meeting took place on just what they would talk about. Britain and France appeared willing to have deputies of the Big Four meet and work out an agenda. The United States wanted to list some of the topics that should be included.

The United States wants to talk about the rearmament of western Germany, eastern Germany, the Soviet Union, and the Communist satellites in the Balkans. Russia would never consent to such an agenda.

It became apparent from the approach of all four governments that nobody expected much to come out of another Big Four meeting. They may meet but it will produce nothing except more frayed nerves and propaganda blasts.

BUDGET:

Congress Accepts Dare

President Truman in presenting his budget to Congress said it was a good tight one and dared the legislators to trim it. Evidently Congress is going to accept Mr. Truman's dare.

Several Democrats and Republicans at least have promised to do so. Senator George of Georgia, chairman of the powerful senate finance committee which will handle the tax bills to pay for the budget, said it could be cut $5 to $6 billion "without harm."

Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, ranking Republican on the senate appropriations committee, termed the President's program "as full of water as a field of melting snow." He urged the senate to squeeze the "water" out.

On the other hand, Senator McMahon of Connecticut asserted talk of a $6 billion cut in nondefense items was "fakery—it can't be done."

Whatever Mr. Truman's motives for making the dare, he certainly stirred up opposition in Congress. The battle may be bitter before it is over.

Engineer

Joseph H. Fitzsimmons, engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad commuter train that met disaster at Woodbridge, N.J., was recovering from injuries received in the crash. He reportedly admitted that he was speeding at 50 miles an hour at the time of the wreck over a stretch of track where speed was supposed to be a maximum of 25 miles per hour. The wreck death toll was 83. Approximately 500 injured.

IRAN:

Red Gift to Royalty

Joseph Stalin's gift of a $150,000 mink coat and a desk set studded with black diamonds to Iran's Shah of Shahs and his new bride caused a number of lifted eyebrows in diplomatic circles.

It is not unusual for presidents, kings and even dictators to send each other presents on important occasions, but Stalin's gift to the Shah of Iran was viewed with deep meaning that more respect for the head of one state to another.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Knowledge of Biological Warfare Is Vital Link in Civil Defense

(This is the third of a series of articles on civil defense by Walter A. Sheard, Western Newspaper Union's Washington correspondent.)

By WALTER A. SHEARD

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With an enemy which places no value whatever upon the lives of individuals, which has no moral scruples as we know them, an atomic bomb is not the only peril faced by the American people in an all-out war with Russia.

Biological warfare against people and against animals is one of these perils. This sort of warfare which can spread a wide variety of disease including a number of viruses, rickettsiae, bacteria, fungi, protozoa and soluble toxins, may be waged from within by sabotage, or from without by enemy planes and can be disseminated through a variety of media, chief of which are food, air and water. These infectious diseases taken in by humans through inhalation, absorption through the skin or by food, could be disseminated by aerial bombs and other munitions, by release of infective aerosols from planes or from ground devices, taking advantage of favorable winds, or by release in ventilating systems of large auditoriums. Particularly effective is contamination of water sources.

In addition to humans, biological warfare against animals can be effective since meat, dairy and poultry products are an important source of diet for both military and civilian personnel. Production of wool and leather, might be curtailed and important biologicals and pharmaceuticals such as adrenalin, liver extract and insulin, entirely dependent upon animal glands and organs, could be cut off.

Such animal diseases as foot-and-mouth disease, rinderpest, fowl pest and foreign types of Newcastle disease appear to have greater possibilities for damage in this country.

ON MARCH 4 "Theatre Guild on the Air" plans to do a full hour-and-a-half hour broadcast of "Hamlet", which will certainly be heard by the largest single audience that has ever heard it since Shakespeare wrote the play centuries ago. It will come from the stage of the Belasco Theatre in New York and will be heard over the full NBC network. Stars will be Dorothy McGuire of the movies and Pamela Brown and John Gielgud of the theatre, both now appearing in one of the season's hits, "The Lady's Not for Burning". "Hamlet" was modernized for G.I.'s during the war, and the broadcast will follow along that line.

Irene Vernon, whose latest picture is "Sound of Fury" (a Robert Stillman production for United Artists), is one of the four judges who will hand out 15 savings bonds to the winners of the Num-Z-De beauty contest. It's open to infants from 6 1/2 months to 2 1/2 years old, from March 1 to June 1. Entry blanks available at all drugstores.

Let's Hope Economists Figured Income Accurately

By WRIGHT A. PATTERTON

WHAT PERCENTAGE of each dollar we earn during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1951, does the President ask Congress to take away from us as federal taxes to pay for rearmament and the expenses of the government? That is an important question to each American.

The President asks for a tax that will produce a total of $71 billion. That is the highest total amount the nation has ever been asked to pay, but the President estimates that the total earnings of Americans for the next fiscal year will be not less than $240 billion, and of that amount we will pay out of each dollar we earn 25.9 cents. As a tax, that is mild compared with what we were charged in 1945, when the government took 52.42 out of each of our earned dollars, and at that we were a long, long way from paying the war cost of that year, and added more than 70 billions to our national debt.

Now the President is insisting that we pay the cost of rearmament as we go, and not increase the national indebtedness, and he figures a tax of 25.9, or less than 30 cents out of each earned dollar will accomplish that result.

What the total may be depends entirely on the total of the national income, the earnings of Americans as individuals, corporations, stockholders or bond holders, farmers. If the President is right in his estimate of a national income of $240

Then there is biological warfare against crops in the spread of insect pests and plant diseases which constitute a threat to our food supply. It would be comparatively easy for low flying planes to spread such crop and animal diseases across the vast stretches of the country's great plains where wheat, oats and the meat animals are raised and where population is comparatively meager. The department of agriculture knows about many of these foreign pests such as Japanese beetle, European corn borer, Mediterranean fruit fly, citrus canker and other pests. Our most successful method of keeping down losses is development of strains resistant to specific diseases, which takes time. But it is likely the new organisms which present crop varieties cannot resist, may be introduced, even in peace time, and herbicidal chemicals might be disseminated openly over these vast crop areas where hostile planes might gain access.

OF COURSE CONSTANT vigilance, before-hand knowledge how to detect the effect of biological warfare on both humans and animals, the proper method of fighting the effects, and how state, towns, cities, and counties can be organized to fight these perils is a function of the civil defense administration. Probably one of the most insidious and dangerous methods of chemical warfare is the dissemination of so-called nerve gases, developed in Germany during World War II. These nerve gases are more toxic than any previously known war gases and are nearly colorless and odorless. They are liquids which yield toxic vapors when they evaporate and are laid down near the ground. These gases cut off breathing and blood circulation. Action is prompt and lethal and inhalation for a few seconds may cause death. Exposure to mild traces of the vapor causes bronchial restriction with difficulty in breathing, coughing and a water discharge of the nose. A slightly greater exposure induces painful constriction of eye muscles, terrific pain back of the eye-balls. Larger doses cause rapid and severe broncho-spasms, preventing both inhalation and exhalation. The victim becomes confused and cyanotic, may have nausea and vomiting and falls unconscious. The blood pressure falls, heart beat is slowed and may or may not start again.

The U.S. public health service has worked out treatments for all these inhuman forms of modern warfare in the biological and chemical field. The point is in learning how to combat it; what treatments to give in emergencies and in the full pull for recovery; to pile up stocks of the right kind of medicines, particularly atropine and tridione, plenty of gas masks, protective clothing; how to prevent contamination, hospitalization and a dozen other necessities in case of such an attack.

Doctors and veterinarians must take special courses in how to combat the effects and this professional manpower must come from the private ranks. Therefore full cooperation of the various state, county and local medical and related professional groups is essential. Be ready to volunteer.

(Next week's article will discuss national, state, and regional training centers in the civil defense program.)

THE FICTION CORNER

BEWILDERED BOY

By Willard Olvan Persing

MY HANDS came up shoulder high. I didn't think the kid would use the gun intentionally, but scared and cold as he was his hand shook so much that I was more than a little worried. I wasn't going to startle him into waking any of the townspeople. They would find out plenty soon enough that I had been caught flustered by this teen-age badman.

Otto was standing behind the counter, his hands resting easily on its scarred top. I couldn't figure it, but he was half smiling at the wild-eyed, boyish face that was half covered with a dirty white handkerchief.

"Sure, Son," Otto was saying, "I'll give you the money, after I fix you a bite to eat."

The kid's eyes lit up for a moment, then he frowned and said, "You're trying to trick me into taking off the mask."

Otto shook his head slowly. "I'll put some sandwiches in a sack so you can take them with you." He turned his back on the kid and went to work at the sandwich board.

They seemed to have forgotten me, so I started edging around behind the youngster. I figured that by my Otto was stalling, but I had moved only a few inches when he stopped me.

"Take it easy, Joe, you're apt to ruin his appetite."

At these words from Otto, the kid spun around. I was staring at Otto, trying to figure out what in the world he had in mind. There wasn't any writing on the back of Otto's neck, and it was too deep for me, so

"This the first time you've tried this?" Otto was asking the kid with the dirty handkerchief over his face.

I hooked a stool with my toe and pulled it out where I could sit down and still see what was going on.

Otto turned around with a hamburger in his hand. He reached across the counter and handed it to me. "Maybe this will keep you out of mischief for a while," he said, grinning at my bewilderment.

After all, he was the one getting robbed, so I decided I might as well go along with whatever he was trying to do. All I stood to lose was maybe my job.

"This the first time you've tried this?" Otto was asking the kid. The kid's head nodded quickly, then he frowned and said, "What difference does it make? Hurry up with those hamburgers."

I was checking the kid's description again to see if there was anything I had missed. He had brown eyes and was waving a Luger pistol at us. His hair, if any, was hidden under an old cap pulled down over his ears. I was still trying to figure out how much slack there was in the bulky overalls when Otto dumped the cash drawer out on top of the counter.

He counted the money into a paper sack and placed it a couple of feet from the sack of hamburgers. "Thirty dollars," he said to the kid, "not much pay for the chance you're taking."

The kid reached out and scooped the two sacks together, using both hands. His right hand with the Luger came to rest a few inches from Otto's stomach. Otto slammed a huge hand down over the kid's hand and gun, clamping them to the counter.

I started to yell at Otto, if that young went off, he wouldn't have a chance.

"Take it easy, both of you," he told me and the squirming kid. "That gun isn't loaded." To me he said, "I'm surprised you couldn't tell by looking at the extractor."

I didn't have any answer for that. "That thirty dollars is your next two weeks wages," Otto told the kid, "and you can have all you want to eat." He slipped the gun out of the kid's fist and placed it out of sight under the counter.

The kid was still scared. "Aren't you going to tell the cops?" Otto grinned and pointed at me. "That's them, Son."

The kid paled and wilted. That took all the fight out of him.

I stared at the kid for a minute, then stood up and headed for the door. "Time to make my rounds," I said, "Otto, you should hire some young fellow to help out in here, you're getting too old to do it all yourself."

Labor Leaders Angry

FIVE of the nation's top labor spokesmen, led by Phil Murray of the CIO, have had it hot and heavy with Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson over the government's manpower program.

The ill feeling which flared between them looked like a curtain-raiser for more trouble on the labor front, and raised one of the most difficult problems of any defense or war program.

Purpose of the labor leaders' call on Wilson was to keep the nation's civilian manpower program under the labor department. This has been the subject of a bitter backstage battle for some time, with Wilson and Gen. Lucius Clay wanting to take manpower away from Secretary of Labor Tobin and Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg, and with the latter threatening to resign if the labor problem is taken out of their hands. Labor leaders have good reason to fear General Clay and any manpower commission which he organized. They recall that during the recent war and before he went to Germany as military governor, Clay demanded of FDR that there be compulsory allocation of labor under a labor draft.

That was one reason why the five leaders went to see mobilization czar Charlie Wilson last week to try to keep civilian manpower under the labor department. They got nowhere. Wilson's attitude during the bitter meeting was "I'm running things—well, I'll do it my way," though he didn't put it quite so bluntly.

He didn't have to. On the way to the meeting the labor group had read a news story telling of Wilson's and General Clay's plan to set up their own manpower commission under civil service commissioner Arthur Flemming — with Clay, however, as the real boss. Wilson did not deny the story. Nor did he seem concerned when the labor leaders reminded him that he was setting up a board to control labor without consulting labor.

Simple Table Decorations Help Build Family Culture

By Ertta Haley

DO YOU TRY to make every meal a thing of beauty? A memory to cherish? A way of building taste and culture? If not, try it for awhile and see how much pleasure you and the family can have.

One woman can get together an economical casserole and salad and set it on the table with flair, while another has to spend hours in her kitchen on a meal that is not enjoyed nearly as much. Often the secret of enjoyment lies in the way the table is set, and the way in which the meal is served.

Even the simplest meals can be turned into the loveliest occasions with the proper settings. A single houseplant placed in the proper container and tasteful appointments in china and glassware can increase the appeal of the meal.

Eye-catching accessories need not involve straining the budget, but they will probably stretch the imagination. It's fun to see how creative you can really be, even with a limited budget and storage space.

Many decorations which are chosen can be used for both table and buffet, and they may go on mantel, desk and console as well.

The style and trends reflected in the furnishings of your home will dictate in some degree the kind of table settings you have. You will have china and glasses, along with silverware, which goes along with a traditional, Colonial or modern house. Table decor should conform to these to be in the best possible taste.

Seasons will help you to plan interesting centerpieces for your tables, too, and this will help foster appreciation of nature in the youngsters.

Provincial Styles Use Plaids, Florals, Copper

If your home is done in one of the Provincial styles, then plaids, florals or any of the early American china patterns will be perfectly in keeping for table decor. Any of the pottery pieces might also be used for accessories.

The burnished or sun-baked tones which you see in pottery can be chosen for pottery pieces. Use these for table service, especially for the very informal meals. They can serve a dual purpose by being used as flower, fruit and plant containers when the occasion demands.

Burnished copper and even brass have the color and sturdiness which is also in good taste for homes in Provincial styles. The skillets can be used to serve oven meals from the broiler, for rolls, plants or flowers.

If you have a collection of peasant figurines and can tuck plants in them, these are excellent to use either singly or in groups as a centerpiece for the table.

Backgrounds for the table depend a great deal on what particular style your dishes are. For plaids, use cloths or place mats in one of the colors predominating the plaid, or at least one which harmonizes well with them. For delicate floral dishes, sheer white cloths are always good, and they may be starched cottons, organdies or linen.

Modern Tables Need Clean, Simple Lines

Should the predominant style of decoration in the home be Modern, then you'll need to make the table simple, sleek and completely uncluttered.

Table decor for tables in homes where Modern is the main influence may be as inexpensive as possible, or they may be as expensive as you wish since pottery, glass or high priced silverware are used.

Lines are often rectangular or square, but they may have odd shapes even though the basic lines are simple and graceful. Many pieces of this period have square shapes with suddenly rounded or turned up corners.

Colors may be muted or bright, whatever is in keeping with the home, but most often solids are used. Deep colors and off shades are especially good.

Breakfast pottery, which these homes have, often have pieces which can serve dual purpose. Many of the water pitchers make clever flower and plant holders, while crystal blocks, bowls and pieces used on mantels, coffee or side tables may often be brought to the dining table for centerpieces.

Plants offer excellent material for the tables, and are best when used simply, such as a single spray in a rectangular container without any decoration. Ming trees and other Oriental figurines may also fit well into Modern decor.

Table linens for the modern table are severely simple, and most often rely just on color and texture for their handsome appearance.

You might have an assortment of inexpensive table cloths in textured cotton or rayon in aqua, forest green, chartreuse, wine or brown, as a basis for the dining table wardrobe. Woven and simulated place mats in natural or deeper colors will help out for breakfasts and luncheons.

Traditional Types Should Spell Elegance when Formal
Elegant crystal and silverware are part of the traditional or Eighteenth century home, and are therefore at home on the dining table. When you have to be formal, it can be done on short notice with your fine damask or linen, ornate silverware and exquisite china. In this case the floral centerpieces which are most appropriate, should have a purely classical line, and must be carefully arranged rather than massed.

Tall candelabra, tall salt and pepper shakers, and even tall silver vases for the flowers will be entirely in keeping with the traditional table set for formal dining. Informal dining will call for your porcelain birds, figurines and ceramic flowers that can be arranged to fit any shape in tables. Flowers are not necessary if you have enough figurines and ceramics to make pleasing settings from them. Many of the epergnes will hold flowers and fruit at the same time, and are in good taste for informal occasions that will still have that "dressed up" look.

For long buffet tables, you will probably want to use more of state silverware in your collection. Serving dishes and their lids, set end to end are good for holding flowers, in the absence of other suitable containers.

Give Variety to Table With Different Cloths

China, silver and glassware are usually not changed at different intervals and women want to know how they can achieve different effects with the tables. The easiest way to do this, no matter what style of decor you use, is to change the background on which you set the china and silverware.

Linens are replaced, and these hold the key to changing the table just enough to give the necessary variety.

For informal dining you can have place mats of inexpensive cottons, many of which can be made at home. The same is true of the smaller cloths so useful at breakfast and luncheon.

A colorful solution to this problem can also be provided by smartly styled place mats made from flexible vinylite plastic sheeting formed with three dimensional surfaces that look like fabric but give no laundering or ironing problems. They're easily cleaned with running water or a damp cloth.

In the absence of much centerpiece information, you can add colorful coasters to the table, thus giving a more interest. These should, if possible, match the place mats.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Plan Together, Stand Together

"THE FAMILY that prays together stays together" is a saying as beautiful as it is true. I have another saying to match it: "The family that plans together stands together."

If you and your husband and children don't plan together yours isn't a real home and it isn't a real marriage.

These are days of planning; revolutionary planning. We all have to get new viewpoints in these days. Never in the entire history of the world have peace-loving countries faced such catastrophic possibilities.

There isn't one of us whose life isn't going to be touched by the onrush of events in the next few years, and the survivors—and there'll be millions of quite prosperous and secure survivors—are the ones who look ahead today.

Marcia Connelly is a forward thinker. She writes me a most heartening letter from which these are excerpts:

"My husband, Frank, began to be tired, overworked and depressed about three years ago. He's always been a hard worker, but since the war he's had all sorts of troubles; strikes in our very small business, difficulties in getting inventory, high prices, high wages. He became very silent, anxious about me and the boys, but never ugly or interfering."

Lost Her Job
"I'd been a dressmaker when I married, and I tried to get in with a big shop, but my styles weren't today's and I lost that job. Then I went into a hotel as noon waitress, but noon wasn't their big hour, and they wanted me at night, which I couldn't do. Both these efforts distressed Frank, and he was glad when both failed."

"I tried to make him tell me where we stood financially, but he

"I asked him to eat what he liked at noon downtown, but to let me see what I could do to serve meals for one whole month. Well, we've had shellfish salads and sometimes a chicken salad for supper since, but meat has never been the main dish on our table for three years. We sleep better, our bills are negligible, and we eat better, too."

"Then we moved. We moved from the city to an abandoned outlying shabby old place that we bought for $11,000. It had electric light, but antedated plumbing and it hadn't been painted for about 40 years. Labor was high, but Frank's a 'laborer,' and he worked right along with the men. The house is divided into five small apartments now, and if I had 10 I could rent them all tonight. We have a bank balance; the boys flourish in country air; and best of all, Frank is a younger and more confident man than he was even when I married him. He has moved his business to some little sheds in our back yard. The boys help week ends."

That is Marcia's letter, and what Marcia did other women can do. So don't be satisfied with silence, evasions, even irritable snubs from the man of the house, win him somehow to a mood when all his anxieties are brought out into the open; and bring out your own assortment. Perhaps something that you have been doing—Shirley's dancing lessons, Bill's school marks—have been fretting him out of all proportion. You may be sure that his worry is all for you and the children, as yours is for him.

28 Offenses For 7-Year-Old

Big Question Is How to Reform Him

BELLAIRE, OHIO—What would you do with a 7 year old bank burglar?

"He's too young for the reform school and too ornery for the children's home," says Judge Harry Albright.

The Judge was thinking not only of the latest escapade of a youngster whom we shall name Jimmy. He was thinking also of Jimmy's police record of 28 offenses. He said Jimmy had:

Stolen a car; broken into a private home with two 10 year old girls; set fire to papers around the Bellaire police station; pinched all the keys from a used car lot and distributed them up and down the street, and burglarized a number of business places.

To cap this record, Jimmy pulled a $16 burglary of the Belmont Federal Savings & Loan Co. with his 5 year old brother Saturday night.

Jimmy tossed a brick through the company's window, rifled the petty cash drawer and picked up two boxes of book matches. Tracks in the snow enabled police to locate the younger brother. He readily admitted his part in the burglary—his first crime. But Jimmy steadfastly refused to talk.

"Well, I guess I'll have to call in the FBI."

Jimmy took a peek at him to see if he was kidding. Then he replied:

"Okay, then, I'll talk." Albright finally decided Monday to send Jimmy temporarily to the county's child welfare board.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Adoption Affects I.Q.

By Lawrence Gould

Will early adoption raise a child's "I.Q."?

Answer: Definitely, report Drs. Marie Skodak and Harold M. Skeels in the Journal of Genetic Psychology. An exhaustive mental test of 100 adopted children showed that "The intellectual level of the children has remained consistently higher than would have been predicted from the intellectual, educational or socio-economic level of the true parents," and equal or superior to that of "own children" of the families by which they were adopted. A normally healthy child whom you adopt will be as "bright" as one of your own would be.

Can you worry too much over war news?

Answer: Not if you mean trying to find out what you can do to serve your country. But just making yourself miserable thinking about world conditions is of no use to you or to anyone else. It is perhaps "natural" to feel as if you were somehow responsible for the world crisis and should have to suffer for it, but the feeling is unrealistic and neurotic. In fact, such self-punishment may even be made an unconscious substitute for useful action. Once you've seen your duty and have done it, the less you can think about the war, the better.

Will psychoanalysis rewrite history?

Answer: Yes, eventually, maintains Dr. Raymond de Saussure in his contribution to a volume on "Psychoanalysis and the Social Sciences." While the task is an enormous one and methods of investigation will need to be greatly improved, psychoanalytic understanding of the motives that spur men to action will throw new light on events whose cause and meaning have otherwise been obscure. To take one recent example, it might well be said that only a psychoanalytic approach can explain why Hitler appealed to the German people.

KEEPING HEALTHY Everybody Needs Table Salt Daily

By Dr. James W. Barton

SINCE IT IS KNOWN that all liquids—water, milk, tea, coffee, soft and hard drinks—definitely maintain overweight, because fat tissue holds water, most overweight people now take less fluid or liquid daily. In addition, as table salt holds 70 times its own weight of liquids in the tissues, many overweight people are cutting down on their table salt in and on foods, or are using salt substitutes.

Besides overweight, there are other diseases in which liquids and table salt must be reduced, because too much liquid in the tissues brings on attacks: such conditions as epilepsy and Meniere's disease. In high blood pressure most physicians advise reduction of liquids and table salt.

Both liquids and table salt are needed foods; everybody requires a certain amount of them every day. However, because too much of them maintains overweight and causes the attacks mentioned above, there are many who do not have these diseases, who are not getting enough liquids and table salt. And just as too much causes symptoms, so also does not enough cause symptoms.

In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Henry A. Schroeder (Washington university), states that lack of table salt makes the kidneys unable to do their work properly. This causes various symptoms—symptoms that are often not recognized as being caused by inadequate functioning of the kidneys. This inability of the kidneys means less volume of urine to remove body wastes, rapid gain in weight, and sometimes an increase in the heart rate.

The symptoms complained of are: 1. drowsiness, weakness and lethargy (often wrongly attributed to quieting or pain-killing drugs); 2. loss of appetite, sometimes with vomiting; 3. nausea and sometimes abdominal, and occasionally abdominal, and muscular cramps, and 4. an increase in edema (swelling with fluid) where edema is already present.

Treatment is more salt and injection of salt in veins.

REMOVES WASTE
NOT GOOD FOOD

When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as millions do—chew FEEN-A-MINT. Doctors say many other laxatives, taken in large doses, start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where they often flush away nourishing food you need for pep and energy! You feel weak, tired. But gentle FEEN-A-MINT is different. Taken as recommended, it works chiefly in the lower bowel—removes waste, not good food! You avoid that weak feeling—you feel fine, full of life! Get FEEN-A-MINT, 25¢, 50¢, or only 10¢.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Don't suffer longer with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exercising or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritation due to cold, dampness or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used regularly by millions for over 50 years. While often otherwise caused, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 million of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Grass Is Best Tool In Conserving Soil

Fort Worth Feb. 23—Grass, man's best tool for anchoring soil against erosion, was given a sound vote of confidence during 1950 by Texas farmers and ranchers.

Increased respect for this weapon against soil and water waste is reflected by last year's seed harvest, which shows 746,599 pounds of native grass seed harvested by Texas farmers and ranchers. It was pointed out today by Louis P. Merrill, Soil Conservation Service regional director here.

Leading the native grass seed harvest parade in Texas were little bluestem 400,325 pounds, and blue grama 202,410 pounds, both farm season forage plants.

The 1950 seed harvest, Merrill said, also reflected widely increased use of King Ranch bluestem by conservation-wise farmers and ranchers. It is a deep-rooted introduced perennial grass known for its erosion-resisting and forage qualities and its adaptation to wide extremes of rainfall.

Throughout Texas, a total of 506,537 pounds of King Ranch bluestem seed was harvested, easily a new record seed take for the popular drought and cold-resistant grass, the regional director said.

Of the KR seed harvested in Texas last year 463,082 pounds or about 91 per cent of the statewide harvest were taken from the farms and ranches of soil conservation district cooperators, Merrill said. An additional 8,430 pounds of KR seed were harvested from the Soil Conservation Service nursery at San Antonio and U. S. land utilization project areas.

From Texas' more than 4½ million acres in close-growing, soil-conserving legumes, a total of 25,216,000 pounds of legume seed was harvested during 1950, Merrill announced.

Leading in the Texas legume seed harvest was Hubam sweetclover, 11,258,947 pounds, a versatile conservation crop respected for its ability to overcome cotton root rot, decrease soil loss and runoff and improve soil productivity. Second was hairy vetch, 19,819,087 pounds a winter cover crop known as a veritable store-house of soil nutrients. The harvest of native and introduced grass seed and legume seed in Texas last year totaled more than 30 million pounds, the regional director said.

"The 1950 seed harvest is a clear indicator that the Texas farmer and rancher is paying increased attention to the use of grasses and legumes as his best weapons in improving the soil and fighting soil and water waste," Merrill said.

Spanish Club News
The Spanish Club is sponsoring All School Stunt Night on Thursday, March 1, at 7:30, at the high school gym. Everyone is urged to attend. No one should miss this exciting show! There will be a variety of interesting and entertaining numbers by local talent. Almost every class in school has a number planned, and there will also be people outside of school participating in the band concert preceding the stunts.

Proceeds of the show will go to the trip into Old Mexico that the Spanish Club is planning. It is a new thing for the Spanish Club to make such a trip, and everyone is urged to attend this All School Stunt Night; because not only will you spend a very

Most of the Sophomores are back today after being out for quite a while with the mumps. Some of them were pretty bad cases while others just had it in one side.

All the Sophs are present today except the boys who have gone to Sweetwater to the Fat Stock Show. Let's hope they have lots of luck.

There seems to be quite a few black knees around this morning. It couldn't be from the skating rink, could it? We have one Soph who had a little bad luck at the skating rink. Mary sprained her ankle rather bad the other day. She is back to school today and seems to be doing all right.

Margaret Phillips spent the weekend at Lubbock. Wonder why she went up there?

Campus Chatter

Thursday night, March 1, the Spanish Club is sponsoring "All School Stunt Night" which promises to be very interesting to all age groups. Admission will be 15, 25 and 35c. Proceeds of the show will go on a trip to Old Mexico which the Spanish Club is planning. We would like to urge each and everyone of our readers to attend this entertaining program. Bryan Mahon will sing and C. H. Martin and other musicians in town will join the band for some of the numbers. Their parents at the Homemaking officers will be elected and in Homemaking cottage. Refreshments will be served. The Soph Juniors are still planning to have their play, "This Ghost Business," on Friday night March 9, at the gym. Everybody in dear ole L. H. S. has their fingers crossed, hoping the Juniors will not have something else to stand in the way. They started practicing on it again Monday night February 26.

Also on Monday night, the 26 the Seniors gave a 42 party for their parents at the Homemaking cottage. The Senior trip was the

Senior News

The whole Senior class made it out this morning except for Kenneth Merket. Kenneth is in Sweetwater showing his calf at the stock show. It is the same calf that won reserve championship at Colorado City's Stock Show. We hope he has good luck this time, too.

The annual staff sent off sixteen more pages Saturday, February 24. This leaves only one more sixteen page section to be sent off. The staff is justly proud of the '51 Loralainian, and are all eagerly awaiting the day it arrives.

Refreshments of cake and coffee were served and the Senior trip was discussed. The class is planning a trip that will include such points of interest as Shreveport, Louisiana, Natchez, Mississippi, New Orleans, Louisiana, and Houston, Texas. Max's first schooling came at the age of six in the first grade at Loraine. Mrs. Georgia Johnson was his teacher at that time. During high school, Max has been in the Jr. play, 4 years in the Spanish Club, and on the Annual Staff.

Some of Max's favorites are: day Sunday; dish, fried chicken; actor, Errol Flynn; actress, Ava Gardner; sport, football. As for girls, Max has no comment! His ambition is to be a Geologist, and plans to enter Texas Tech in the fall.

The Seniors wish Max the best of everything.

Here is what another person wanted:

"If I were getting a loan, I would look for low interest and long terms. I would want the privilege of paying any part of the principal or the loan in full at any time without penalty."

I would also look for a loan from a lender that operated on a sound basis, and one that was best fitted to serve the interests of farm and ranch people."

We meet these tests and many more and would like to tell you about our loan.

SPORTLIGHT Giants Have Caught Pennant Scent

By GRANTLAND RICE

IT WOULD START A breezy argument if the Giants, training at St. Petersburg this spring, should win the National League pennant. Especially if at the same time the Yankees, training in Arizona and California, should fail to win the American League flag.

The sunny state of Florida would have something to say about a situation of this sort. And the far western rebuttal would be backed with alibis.

Whatever happens, Leo Durocher expects to win the National League pennant, with anything like an even break from that cockeyed wench known as Dame Fortune.

"No one can say what will happen to any one club from the draft," Leo says. "But we haven't many young rookies. Most of our squad have been around for some time and we certainly shouldn't be hit any harder than anyone else."

Up to June, 1950, the Giants have had less than their share of good pitching. At least we'll say our pitching has been spotty. We were already out of the race last season when we got Jim Hearn from the Cardinals and Sal Maglie began to win. I know from that spot on we played the best ball in the league.

For the first time, starting this spring at St. Petersburg, we have the ball club I've been hoping to get. That means first-class pitching—with the probability of six good starting pitchers. We have a fine infield, especially strong around second with Stanky and Dark. We have a high-grade outfield and we have our share of power. We can get runs.

"The Dodgers will be good again this new season and so will the Phillies. The Phillies will miss Curt Simmons more than a little bit. Simmons would have been ready for a big year. Boston will be good again. Losing practically none of their veterans, the Cardinals will be dangerous for a while at least. But I like the Giants. I like them better each week as the season draws closer. The club is well rounded, as well rounded as the Dodgers, and I'd rather have our pitching. Hearn, Maglie and Jansen outmatch any three in the league on any single club."

Condition and Hustling

You can rate one thing about Leo Durocher—there is no manager in baseball who handles his team better on the field. And there is no

Concerning the Customers

"Baseball," said one of the best-known club owners in the game, "has one bad weakness. It has never paid enough attention to the care and comfort of the customer or the fan. Most of the stands are out of date. Most of them are dirty. The seats are too narrow and uncomfortable. There are many, many thousands of women fans in this country but they get little consideration. Even racing is more thoughtful in this respect."

"Now it may be impossible to make needed improvements with the war scare over the land. But the change is bound to come if baseball is to hold its place. Baseball today is getting more competition than it ever knew before. For example there is a little thing known as television. Television is holding the attention of almost numberless millions now."

Homemade ink eradicator can be produced by whipping up a solution of one part of chlorinated laundry bleach and ten parts of water. It's best kept in an old iodine or mercurchrome bottle with a rubber stopper to withstand the destructive effect of the bleach, and with a glass rod as an applicator. Use it along with a blotter just like commercial eradicator, but don't expect it to work on typewriter ink.

Interruptions

Lesson for March 4, 1951

PEOPLE KEEP making your life shorter every day. For time is the stuff of which life is made, and you never do have a full 24 hours a day. After taking out what has to be spent in sleep, eating and so on, and taking out what has to be spent on your job, whatever it is, there still ought to be a few hours to call your own. But if you are like most people, you live from one interruption to another. If it isn't the telephone it's the door-bell. The more important you are, the more you are likely to be interrupted. Once there was a teacher who became president of the college where he had taught. In later years he mused the change. "It seems to me," he said, "I never get a consecutive half-hour any more to think about anything. No day is ever what I planned. Life has become one long series of interruptions."

Dr. Foreman

UNscheduled Stops

THE LIFE of the Master himself, to judge from what we read in the Gospels, was a long series of interruptions. The tenth chapter of Mark is a good example. Jesus himself at this time had one great thing in mind: the Cross. He was going up to Jerusalem not to talk to beggars or to listen to lawyers' arguments or to hold interviews with puzzled young people. He was going to die.

A man on his death-road might be spared interruptions. He could not be blamed if he said to interrupters one and all: "Sorry, I can't be bothered. See my assistants if there is anything you want done."

But Jesus did not say anything of the kind. He did not turn away from the unscheduled stops on his life's highway. He took time to clear up misunderstandings; he took time for little children when even his best friends thought he ought not to be disturbed; he took time to answer the question of the rich young man; he did not brush off James and John when they came to him with their ill-considered petition; he even took time to take care of a beggar's need.

Ministries by the Wayside

JESUS DID not always take the initiative in every situation, though indeed he controlled every situation. When the Pharisees asked him about marriage he did not say, "Let's not talk about marriage; let me suggest the topic of salvation instead." When the young man ran up to him, Jesus did not ask: "Did you have an appointment for an interview?" Jesus not only did not resent other people's initiative. He never seems to have resented an interruption in his life.

Does this example of Jesus mean that we ought not to plan our days ahead of time, or that we ought never to try to "budget" our time? Must we never plan any project, but always wait till other people suggest what we are to do?

Not at all. The example of Jesus means that if and when interruptions occur, if we share his spirit we shall not be irritated by them or resent them. For what Jesus did, always, was to make use of the interruption. Each one was turned into a "Wayside Ministry." Indeed, a large part—some would say the larger part—of Jesus' life was made up of just such by-the-way ministries.

Life's By-the-Ways

HOW MANY of Jesus' teachings we would never have had, if no one had interrupted him, or asked him questions! How many of his miracles would never have been done if he had refused to perform any but those he planned and scheduled himself! It is what we do "by the way" that makes up life's service, for the most part.

In Jesus' story of the Good Samaritan (no doubt an incident from real life) we are not told what were the original errands of the priest, the Levite and the Samaritan. Very likely the first two were on time for their appointments.

But the priest and the Levite missed a wonderful chance, just because the poor beaten traveler was not so to speak, on their agenda. The Samaritan was delayed, and maybe bothered, by what he did for the man in trouble. But what he was willing to do by the way, something he had not planned for at all, won him the immortality of the Master's praise.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS
by Lynn ChambersFish Demand Careful
Cooking to Preserve
Delicate Full Flavor

MANY PEOPLE WHO really like fish have accustomed themselves to the disagreeable odors that often go with its cooking; many more people would be very fond of fish if it didn't fill the house with odors during its preparation.

How few home-makers realize that the cooking of fish entails no unpleasant smell! Here is a delicate food that is tender and tasty. When cooked only to the point of doneness, at proper temperature, its only odor is as savory as that of nicely cooked chicken or beefsteak!

Many of the broiled fish recipes call for high temperature, but for only a short time. If cooked just so, fish can be downright delicious. Do give it a chance.

YOU NEED DO little to fish to make it pleasing. It's tender and juicy, easy to prepare, delightful for meal variety. It can be seasoned or served with sauce, but in every way, it's good.

Creole Salmon (Serves 4)

1 pound can pink salmon
1 egg
1 green pepper, finely diced
1 small onion, finely sliced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon green pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 cup bread crumbs
3 sprigs parsley, diced finely
2 tablespoons butter

Mix salmon and egg in saucepan. Add chopped green pepper and onion, seasonings, tomatoes and half the crumbs. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add minced parsley, cook 5 minutes longer. Turn into greased casserole, or individual baking dishes, sprinkle with remaining bread crumbs and bake in hot oven (400°) until crumbs are brown. Serve while hot.

Spanish Style Fish (Serves 4-6)

4 cod steaks
2 egg yolks
Flour
1/2 cup oil
3 tablespoons honey
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon allspice

Cut steaks into serving pieces. Add 2 tablespoons water to egg yolks and beat slightly. Dip fish into egg yolks and then into flour; brown quickly on both sides in hot oil. Add honey, lemon juice and allspice and simmer fish until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes, turning once.

*Baked Fillet of Fish (Serves 6)

6-8 fillets of lean fish (sole, haddock, bluefish)
2 tablespoons butter or salad oil
2 teaspoons chopped onion or 1 clove garlic, very finely minced
1 bay leaf, broken very fine
2 tomatoes, skinned, thickly sliced
1 green pepper, sliced
Juice 1 lemon
Salt, pepper

Melt butter. Add onion (or garlic) minced, with bay leaf, stir over low heat until soft. Arrange tomato slices with overlapping slices of green peppers to cover bottom of large shallow baking dish. Sprinkle the sautéed onion or garlic over top. Add salt and pepper. Arrange the fish fillets on this "bed" of tomatoes and peppers. Sprinkle with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Cover with waxed paper; bake in moderate oven (350°) 20-30 minutes. Pour over this Mustard Hollandaise Sauce. Brown under broiler. Serve at once.

*Mustard Hollandaise Sauce

3 egg yolks
3 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons cream
6 tablespoons butter

Mix in medium small bowl (or top of double boiler) the egg yolks, mustard, tarragon vinegar, salt, cayenne pepper, cream. Place over hot water (not boiling) and beat until mixture begins to thicken. Add butter, bit by bit, stirring continuously until sauce is rich and creamy. Remove from over water. If too thick, thin with a little additional cream.

Broiled Rock Lobster Tails (Serves 4)

4 small rock lobster tails
1/2 cup melted butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and pepper

Crack heavy black shell of lobster tails, lengthwise to make tail lie flat. Turn lobster over and remove thin under shell with scissors. Combine butter, lemon juice, parsley, salt and pepper. Preheat oven and broiling pan at 400°. Place lobster tails on back on pan, brush with butter and set pan about 4 inches from heat. Broasting frequently with butter, broil about 15 minutes or until lobster tails are well browned. Serve hot or cold with lemon wedges and mayonnaise.

Rock Lobster Fries (Serves 6)

2 1/2 pounds boiled rock lobster tails
1 1/2 cups flour
2 tablespoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
3 eggs, beaten
3 cups fine bread or cracker crumbs
Butter
Tartar Sauce
Lemon slices
Watercress

Remove cooked meat from lobster tails; cut into egg-size chunks. Roll lightly in a mixture of flour and seasonings. Dip floured pieces in beaten eggs. Roll in fine bread or cracker crumbs. Melt enough butter to fill 1/4 inch depth in skillet. Sauté lobster until nicely browned on all sides. Serve with tartar sauce, garnish with lemon slices and watercress.

Tartar Sauce (Makes 1 1/2 cups)

1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon chopped onion or chives
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle
1 tablespoon chopped sour pickle
1 tablespoon chopped pimientos
1 tablespoon capers
Mix all ingredients, blending well.

Leftover pieces of fish are just the thing to add to a crisp green salad, served with a lemon-French dressing that's really tart.

When serving sauce with fish, take a bit of time preparing attractive lemon cups for serving the sauce accompaniment. Halves of lemon, scooped out and scalloped at edges are lovely.

Frankfurter scallop is easily made with sliced frankfurters and scalloped potatoes. Add about one tablespoon of prepared mustard to each cup of white sauce used.

Chunks from cooked lobster tails are seasoned and mixed with egg and bread crumbs to make these lobster fries. Serve with a tangy tartar sauce, French fried potatoes and green salad for a satisfying meal.

College Students
Getting Jitters,
Educators Report

CHICAGO—American college students have war jitters, university officials throughout the nation report.

As a result many men students have adopted a "what's the use" attitude and dropped out of school.

The survey of more than 53 colleges and universities showed that many students had been called into reserve units and that large numbers of students planned to enlist after mid-term examinations rather than wait to be drafted in June so they might have their pick of the services. Some students just did not show up after Christmas.

A University of Texas official said about 400 students had dropped out of school to enlist in recent months.

Students at Princeton said dormitory janitors had been asked to make a check to see just who had come back from the Christmas holidays. University officials there predicted their enrollment would drop to 2,000 next fall, a decline of one-third.

Victims of Worry

A Duquesne University official said a check showed that five per cent of the students had adopted a "don't-give-a-darn attitude" and were cutting classes and ignoring their studies. He said another 20 per cent were the victims of worry and general tension.

Other universities reported many students were ignoring their classes and that grades had dropped in many cases.

J. D. Williams, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, reported: "The uncertainty of the mobilization program has contributed to restlessness, impatience, confusion, frustration and in some instances despair on the part of many students. Some seem relieved when they actually were called to active duty."

At Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Brown and Princeton, a "general unrest" was reported. A Dartmouth spokesman said the school already had lost a "sizeable percentage" of students through enlistments.

At the University of Florida, J. Hillis Miller, the president, scheduled a meeting of all 8,000 male students in an effort to combat the despondent attitude caused by the war threat and draft. Professors said grades in all except reserve officer training courses had plummeted and the student newspaper estimated about 50 men a week were quitting school to enlist.

Scholastic Averages Drop

"We need a clearer outlook for students," said Willis Tate, vice president of Southern Methodist University. "Many of the weaker students—those in the lower half of their class—definitely are studying less. After all, they've lost their incentive because of the present draft laws."

Other schools reported the scholastic average had dropped slightly, partially because of the "terrible turmoil at present" and a bitterness among students.

Frustrated Setter Is Made Happy by Bad Golf Players

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Zev's Peerless Beau, son of a field trial champion, was a frustrated English setter. His owner was too busy to take him to the field more than once or twice a year.

Then one day Harry Wheeler, Zev's owner, took him out on the golf course for a run. Someone hit a golf ball and Zev wanted to retrieve it. Wheeler ordered the disappointed Zev to heel.

When a ball dropped into the rough and an unhappy golfer beat the bushes in a vain attempt to find it, Wheeler gave Zev the "go ahead."

Zev almost held a point on the missing ball and then raced into the brush after it. A few moments later he retrieved. Before the afternoon was over, Zev had found six lost balls.

Zev had a new occupation now—retriever of lost golf balls. His owner says he's no longer a frustrated dog.

Navy Gives In to Pupils; Will Not Call Up Teacher

CHICAGO, Ill.—The navy surrendered recently to a 12 year old girl.

She is Janet Smith, who wrote Rear Adm. J. Cary Jones, commander of the 9th naval district.

Janet, supported by 165 school-mates, asked deferment of their favorite teacher, Perry J. Rockwell, 26, World War II radioman and a naval reservist, who had been called up as of February 1. The children said they needed Rockwell more than the navy did and asked that his service call be put off until June 25, the end of school.

Admiral Jones, after conferring with other navy officials, agreed with Janet and granted the deferment.

Gls' Korean Paper
Never Misses Issue
Despite Hardships

KOREA—Despite the hardships of war, rain, cold and enemy bullets, the men of the 24th regiment in Korea get their daily newspaper.

Col. John T. Corley, Brooklyn, one of the army's most decorated officers, started the paper for his troops when he took over command of the 24th. He called it The Eagle Forward and it has never missed an issue.

The little two-page mimeographed newspaper has become one of the most popular publications in Korea.

The first page is devoted to world news of importance, including the latest war developments in Korea. The second page tells the activities of units within the regiment and the achievements of individual soldiers.

One of the most popular features, called "The Old Soldier's Aid," was Corley's idea.

It consists of a daily bit of advice on how troops can protect themselves from the weather or the enemy. Lately the "Old soldier" has been giving sage tips on how to take proper care of the feet.

The paper comes out every day except Sunday, and the two soldiers—Sgt. Milton B. Fulcher and Pfc. Cornelius Boykin—who make up the staff, have never missed an edition.

They collect and write news and then crank it out on a mimeograph machine. The paper has a press run of 600 copies. When the division was on the front the paper was taken up on chow trucks. The men read it and passed copies from foxhole to foxhole.

The paper has been put out by candlelight, Korean gaslight, and flashlight.

Glowing Automobiles Urged To Reduce Night Accidents

WASHINGTON—Highway collisions might be reduced by making vehicles "glow" in the dark, an Iowa psychologist believes.

Dr. Donald Hoppe suggested in a report on experiments conducted at Iowa State College that "reflective sheeting" applied to the rear of all vehicles would make them visible from greater distances. This sheeting, consisting of hundreds of tiny glass beads adhering to a plastic backing, is designed to reflect the glow of oncoming headlights. It is now used to some extent by trucks.

Old White House Mementos Selling for 25¢ to $100

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Bits of wood, bricks, nails and other souvenirs have been salvaged from repair operations on the White House and have been offered to the public at prices ranging from 25 cents to $100.

Applications are being handled by members of congress or directly by the "Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion, Fort Meyer, Va."

Persons applying for the mementos must certify that they will not resell them. They must also pay postage or freight. There will be no profit for the government since all money received will go for administration, packing and other costs.

The commission said that such items as pieces of old lath, stone and metal would sell for 25 cents, paid in advance. A brick, of which there are about 200,000 can be purchased for $1.

The top limit of $100 a purchase will buy enough bricks—for perhaps 60 cents a brick—to face an ordinary fireplace. Each item will be accompanied by a metal tag showing that it is genuine material removed from the White House.

Some items are offered in a small "kit" from which the buyer can, if he chooses, make assemblies. For example, two pieces of old pine could be made into a tray. An old square nail and a piece of stone could be mounted on wood or encased in plastic to make a paper weight. Several pieces of wood could be made into a cane.

Muskegon Bank Sells Dollar Bills for 98 Cents Apiece

MUSKEGON, Mich. — The Muskegon Savings bank came up with a novel advertising scheme. The bank advertised that it would sell crisp dollar bills for 98 cents.

Before the offer was withdrawn it had cost the bank $400 as some $20,000 worth of dollar bills were exchanged for 98 cents. And a bank official said it was worth the trouble.

"Americans have a sense of humor," one bank officer said. "I feel sure this new type of bank advertising was enjoyed by everyone in the community."

Joe Stalin and Churchill Turn Out to be $28 Busts

CHESTER, England—Joe Stalin and Winston Churchill were put on sale for $28 apiece in Chester recently. A furniture warehouseman set the prices of Madame Rinaldo's waxworks, which had lain unclaimed in his warehouse for 12 years.

Napoleon and Franklin Roosevelt were priced $141 each.

GRATEFUL RELIEF
FROM CONSTIPATION

"Until I started to eat ALL-BRAN regularly 2 years ago, it was necessary for me to take enemas a few times every week. I haven't taken one since!" Carroll S. Heydt, 516 N. Penn St., Allentown, Pa.

Just one of many unsolicited letters from ALL-BRAN users. If you suffer from constipation due to lack of dietary bulk, try this: eat an ounce (about 1/2 cup) of crispy Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily, drink plenty of water! If not completely satisfied after 10 days, return empty box to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Mich. Get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Soil District Report For 1950

The 1950 accomplishments of the Mitchell County Soil Conservation District were announced by the board of supervisors at a recent meeting.

Some practices such as cover cropping and stubble mulching were lower than the last year figure while others show an increase in production. Drought conditions existing at planting time last fall curtailed planting of the winter legumes and other winter cover. Some of the co-operators still have the seed for these crops on hand and unplanted. Only 363 acres of cover crops were planted in 1950 compared to an acreage of 2364 in 1949. Most of that planted was alfalfa and sweetclover.

Range improvement was reported by Eddie K. Norris on 28272 acres of range land. Norris, a range conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service, made the survey of range conditions at the end of the fall growing season. Range reseeding was successful on 102 acres. This acreage consisted mainly of King Ranch bluestem grass plantings. Terraces built to district specifications by cooperators were 235 miles. Four miles of field diversions were completed in addition to this amount.

The acreage of newly applied contour farming was 5786 and that of stubble mulching was 5057 acres.

Forty-eight new farm or ranch plans were made last year. This added 23696 acres to that already under agreement with the district bringing the total to 446,844 acres of active plans.

John McGuire, secretary-treasurer of the board, gave the following financial statement: Account State Appropriated Fund Account opened 3, 21, 50 $9860.00 Deposits during 1950 11,197.00 Total 21,057.00
