Scene of the shooting

Col. Atilla Altikat, military attache at the Turkish embassy in Ottowa, Canada, lies dead in his car while a detective dusts the scene of the shooting for possible fingerprints. Police have arrested a man in connection with the shooting which took place shortly after 9 a.m. Friday.

Attache slain in Ottawa

OTTAWA (AP) — A Turkish military attache was ambushed and slain Friday morning when his car stopped at a traffic light in the Canadian capital.

Telephone calls to news organizations claimed the shooting was the work of Armenian terrorists who, since 1973, have taken responsibility for a string of attacks on Turkish diplomats in retribution for a 1915 massacre of Armenians.

Police said a man found in the area shortly after the shooting was arrested and taken away in handcuffs. Others were being sought, they said.

Col. Atilla Altikat, 45, military attache at the Turkish Embassy, was alone in the car when he stopped at an intersection, police said.

A gunman sprinted about 10 feet to the diplomat's car and began firing through the front window on the passenger side, said Supt. Lester Thompson of the Ottawa police.

He said the weapon was a 9-mm Browning handgun which the assassin threw into the diplomat's car after the killing.

In Ankara, Turkish head of state Gen. Kenan Evren condemned the killing and said in a statement that "all countries must work together to prevent these acts by Armenians." He said, without elaborating, that international cooperation to put an end to attacks by Armenian groups would be "in the common interest of the nations."

The attack took place several miles from the embassy at the corner of Western Parkway and Island Park Drive, one of the most fashionable areas of the city.

The suspect fled into nearby shrubbery and trees. Police set up roadblocks around the area, stopping traffic on adjacent streets and bridges crossing the Ottawa River to Quebec. No details were available on the man arrested shortly thereafter in the neighborhood.

Altikat, posted to Ottawa four years ago, had been living in fear that such an attack might take place, said his 17-year-old daughter, Zeynep.

"I always knew," she said calmly. "He always told us not to go out."

A guard protected the family home around the clock, she said, but only accompanied her father to work when police anticipated danger.

The daughter said her father, a former airline pilot, never discussed his duties at the embassy. "He never talked about it. I never wanted to know." The attache was married and also had a son.

Anonymous callers told the Montreal bureau of The Canadian Press, and the French news agency Agence France-Presse that the killing was the work of Armenian terrorists. One man said the Armenians would strike again.

Armenian terrorists have said they seek return of their homeland, now part of Turkey, and justice for the Turkish massacre of more than one million Armenians in 1915.

Altikat

Last April, 50-year-old Kani Gungor, commercial counselor at the Turkish Embassy, was shot and critically wounded by Armenian terrorists. His life was saved by a three-hour operation but he remains hospitalized.

Earlier this month, nine people were killed and more than 70 injured in an attack at Ankara airport. Two guerrillas threw bombs, sprayed travelers with machine-gun fire and held 15 hostages for two hours before police killed one and captured the other.

In the United States this year, the honorary Turkish consul for New England was shot and killed by an assassin in Sommerville, Mass., and on Jan. 28 a Turkish consul was slain in Los Angeles. Armenian groups claimed responsibility for both attacks.

Witness in Donovan probe slain

NEW YORK (AP) — A gangland rubout in a Bronx street stirred widening national interest Friday as the FBI sought to determine whether the killing was connected to an investigation of Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

The slain man, Nathan Masselli, was the second to die from among witnesses in a special federal prosecutor's probe of whether Donovan was associated with organized crime figures.

"It's a worrisome thing when two witnesses in a prosecutor's investigation are murdered within a few months," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee and a foe of Donovan's.

Leon Silverman, the special prosecutor who investigated Donovan, used almost the same language when he announced Thursday night that, for a second time, he had asked the FBI to enter a murder case to determine whether a federal crime was committed.

"I am disturbed by the fact that any person who has been involved in the investigation has been murdered," he said.

REACHED BY telephone here Friday, Silverman refused to comment on the case.

It was reported that a grand jury in Brooklyn was reopening the Donovan case during the day, but its customary meeting room in the federal courthouse was deserted.

Hatch, speaking through his office in Salt Lake City, said that when he heard of Masselli's murder he ordered his committee staff to keep in touch with the investigation.

The senator's press scretary, Paul Smith, said Hatch's staff was continuing to question FBI investigators to determine why information about possible links between Donovan and the underworld were not diclosed before the secretary's Senate confirmation hearings.

Donovan's spokesman in Washington, Vernon Louviere, has said the secretary was away on vacation and would have no immediate comment on Masselli's death.

Masselli, 31, was the son of Pellegrino William "Billy the Butcher" Masselli, a convicted hijacker and reputed mob boss. The elder Masselli, now in jail, was part owner of a construction company that subcontracted for Schiavone Construction Co., the New Jersey firm Donovan quit to join Cabinet.

THE ELDER Masselli figured prominently in the special prosecutor's report issued by Silverman at the end of June. Taps of his telephone in an unrelated investigation turned up six conversations in which Donovan's name came up.

The New York Daily News reported that Nat Masselli testified last May 29 as a witness in Silverman's investigation.

Donovan had denied at his confirmation hearings that he knew of the elder Masselli's ties to organized crime.

Silverman's report concluded that there was not enough credible evidence to warrant prosecuting Donovan on any charge.

In issuing the report, Silverman said he was leaving behind an intensive investigation of the gangland-style murder of Fred Furino, a one-time official of a New Jersey Teamsters local and alleged Mafia bagman.

Furino, who appeared before Silverman's grand jury and reportedly failed lie dectector tests last April in denying that he knew Donovan, had disappeared June 3. He was found dead, with a bullet to the head, in the trunk of his car in Manhattan on June 11.

THE HEAD OF the FBI's New York office, Kenneth Walton, said Friday that no evidence has been uncovered that would either link the murders of Furino and Masselli or prove that they were unrelated.

He said the only known similarities were that both men had been Donovan probe witnesses and each had been shot in the head.

"It's still too early in the investigation," said Walton.

"If we make a determination through our investigation tha Nat Masselli was killed for reasons other than that he was a federal witness, we have to bow out of the case," he said.

Another investigation touching on Masselli's affairs has been going on for the past month at the direction of Mayor Edward I. Koch.

The city investigations commissioner was probing the deal in which Pellegrino Masselli's company, Jo-Pel Construction and Trucking Inc., was paid to excavate dirt from a city-owned site and then sold the dirt to the city as landfill for $500,000.

Jo-Pel, whose other owner is state Sen. Joseph Galiber, a Bronx Democrat, did the work under a Schiavone subcontract.

Future of public broadcasting in limbo

By VINCE GIORGI

Public TV officials, local school superintendents and cable system operators hope to secure the future of public broadcasting in West Texas during a public meeting scheduled for Sept. 14 in Odessa.

Dr. Richard Meyer, president and general manager of Dallas Public Broadcasting System (PBS) affiliate KERA, labeled the gathering an attempt "to all meet together to try to keep Channel 13, KERA-TV, serving West Texas."

Meyer met Friday in Midland with Bill Holm, Ector County Independent School District superintendent, and Ray Herndon, general manager of Midland TV station KMID, to discuss continuation of public television in West Texas.

Meyer said that public TV reception in West Texas was imperiled after a tariff increase this spring by West Texas Microwave Co., the firm which transmits KERA programs via microwave to many area cable TV companies. The tariff increase made improvements in the microwave system possible, according to George Batsche, the firm's excutive vice president.

But some cable operations decided to drop the service, adding to the tariff burden borne by the remaining cable companies, including Times-Mirror Cable Television of Midland and Cablevision of Odessa.

Cable companies are charged based on the number of miles separating them from the nearest service point on the microwave line. When companies drop out between other cable operations and the point of the signal's origin, near Fort Worth, charges for the remaining cable companies increase.

The number of cable companies that halted all or part of the company's service is unclear. West Texas Microwave Co., another subsidiary of Times-Mirror Cable Television Inc., also broadcasts signals from Channel 8, a Dallas ABC affiliate; Channel 11, an independent; and Channel 39, which provides religious and other programs.

Batsche, who was unable to attend Friday's session but is expected to be at the Sept. 14 gathering, said Thursday that cable operators have dropped the service "to some small degree." One

Complaint no surprise, Anzelc says

Charges filed on the state level between three of the four major teacher organizations have not affected local affiliates as of yet. And, it is hoped by leaders of the Midland groups, it will not in the future.

When the two non-union Texas education associations, the Texas Classroom Teachers Association (TCTA) and the Association of Texas Professional Educators (ATPE), filed a complaint with the attorney general's office of "false, misleading and deceptive acts" by the Texas State Teachers Association/National Education Association, the TSTA/NEA said the groups were "grasping at straws to charge that we violated the Deceptive Practices Act because trade practices are not involved."

Bob Anzelc, assistant director for UniServ and Field Services for TSTA/NEA, was in the area to help with membership drives this week. According to Anzelc, the complaint filed with the attorney general is no surprise.

"Consider the timeliness of it. The onslaught of the other organizations is in no way atypical," Anzelc said. "It happens all the time. In no way is this unique. It always happens at membership time."

While the charges filed by TCTA and ATPE claim that the TSTA/NEA is using false and misleading material, billed as a "fact sheet," in its membership recruitment material, Anzelc claims the material in question was an "in-house document which went to our leaders and was pulled from their material."

The "fact sheet," explained Anzelc, was a comparison of the services, benefits and dues of the state's four major teachers organizations using information extracted from the other organizations' materials and statements.

According to information provided by the TCTA and the ATPE, the documents were being circulated apparently in an attempt to bolster the TSTA's declining membership totals and divert attention from its escalating dues. A TCTA/ATPE news release stated that the TSTA had lost approximately 65,000 teachers since it affiliated with the National Education Association in 1975 and "adopted a more militant union stance."

The TSTA, as did the Texas Federation of Teachers, endorsed Atty. Gen. Mark White in the gubernatorial campaign. According to Anzelc, asking White to inves-

Border businesses offered subsidies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government offered subsidies Friday to Mexican businesses along the 1,760-mile border with the United States and indicated it would try to limit sales of some basic goods to bargain-hunting Americans.

An announcement late Thursday by the Department of Budget and Planning said only that "export controls" would be applied along the border, an apparent step to appease Mexican businessmen who say their stocks are being stripped from the shelves by Americans taking advantage of the nation's severe economic crisis.

A spot check at U.S. border points on Friday indicated no special customs controls had been imposed. U.S. sources said they had no knowledge of any program to limit American purchases in Mexico.

The government subsidies include tax breaks for stores that stock Mexican goods and guaranteed low currency exchange rates for signing dollar contracts, paying off debts to U.S. banks and for all dollar loans from Mexican banks.

In the capital, taxi fares increased sharply Friday and the government issued price increases for eggs and cooking oil. On Aug. 2, the price of corn tortillas, bread and gasoline were doubled in an attempt to combat the worst economic crisis to hit this nation of 70 million people in half a century.

The Mexican Treasury devalued the peso on Aug. 5 for the second time in a year. The currency has plummeted since then, losing more than half its value, from the old rate of 49 to Friday's opening rate of 110 to the dollar. That means shoppers with dollars can buy Mexican goods for about half predevaluation prices.

A gallon of regular gasoline, for example, was set at 10 pesos per liter in the recent price hikes. Before Aug. 5, that was the equivalent of 77 cents per gallon. The peso price is the same, but an American can now buy the same gallon of gas for less than 40 cents.

U.S. residents along the border and a growing number of tourists have seen the situation as a windfall, stocking up on clothing, food and other items. Thousands of Mexican businessmen staged a one-day shutdown this week, saying they could not guarantee supplies to the estimated 7-8 million Mexicans living along the border.

The government said Thursday night it would subsidize imported food and other basic supplies along the border by offering the so-called preferential rate for the dollar, established this month as part of exchange controls here.

Indian to finally head commission

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — For the first time in its 15-year history, the Texas Indian Commission will have an Indian as its executive director when Ray Apodaca of El Paso's Tigua tribe is officially named to the job Monday.

Edd Fifer, chairman of the three-man commission, said Friday the commissioners have agreed to appoint Apodaca, 35, to the state post.

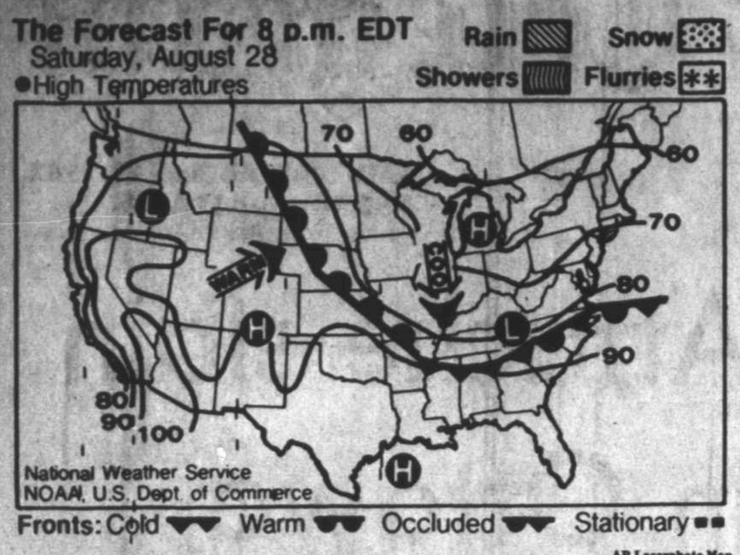
"Ray officially will become executive director Nov. 9," Fifer said. "What we've done is gone ahead and put Ray in as acting executive director. Ray is a sharp, sharp young man."

Apodaca has been the tribal superintendent at the Tigua reservation here since 1977. The Tiguas live on one of the state's two reservations. The other is the Alabama-Coushatta reservation near Livingston in east Texas.

Although only about 1,100 Indians live on the two reservations, Texas is estimated to have an Indian population of about 40,000 — 10th largest in the country.

Apodaca will replace Walt Broemer, who has supervised the state's two Indian tribes for the past 25 years, Fifer said. He said Broemer has retired, but has leave time accrued through Nov. 8.

WEATHER SUMMARY



AP Laserphoto Map

Mercury expected to climb to mid-90s

Today is expected to be dry and partly cloudy, but not as hot as Friday.

The mercury today should climb up to the mid-90s, a slight relief from Friday's record-tying 100-degree reading. And winds should be traveling southeast at 10-15 mph.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, Friday's high tied the record high for the day of 100 in 1977. But, the heat didn't stop the light showers that dripped from the clouds in the afternoon.

NWS recorded .01 of an inch of rain at the airport.

"It was the first noticeable rain in a month for Midland," a NWS spokesperson said.

Tonight should be fair and mild with temperatures lingering in the low 70s with a slight breeze from the southeast.

Sunday's high is expected to reach the upper 90s and it should be partly cloudy throughout the day.

The overnight low of 71 was 11 degrees warmer than the record low of 60 set in 1970.

Young girl shot in mouth area

A girl about 12 years old was shot in the face late Friday night in the parking lot of Taco Plaza on South Big Spring Street.

According to witnesses, the girl stepped out of a small compact and was shot.

Police at the scene said the girl was apparently shot in the mouth area, but added it appeared she was old enough to drive a car. The incident occurred at about 11 p.m., police said.

About the same time police found an abandoned pickup with a bullet hole in the door at the corner of G and Illinois Streets, but said "we don't know if there is any connection."

The girl was undergoing emergency treatment at Midland Memorial Hospital and her condition was unknown at press time.

Local woman found slightly injured

NANAIMO, British Columbia (AP) — Searchers have found a 24-year-old Midlander who was missing for more than 30 hours on Gabriola Island.

Nanaimo RCMP said that Carla Joline Krow was found mid-day Friday clinging to a rock off the east coast of the island which lies in the strait between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Krow was three-quarters submerged in water and apparently had fallen down a 90-foot cliff.

She was taken to Nanaimo hospital, treated for head and rib injuries and released.

Police said the woman had set out on foot late Wednesday after her four-wheel-drive vehicle became stuck in the mud on an isolated logging road.

Concerned friends contacted police when the woman did not return and a search was conducted Thursday and Friday using police tracking dogs and a helicopter.

One-story house damaged in fire

No one was injured and the cause is unknown, according to a fire department report. The fire, which occurred about 2:30 p.m., caused extensive damage to Vicki Harris' bedroom and its contents.

The one-story frame house also sustained heavy smoke damage, according to the report.

Sharon says no to separate state

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mastermind behind Israel's invasion of Lebanon, Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, vowed Friday that his nation "will never agree" to creation of a separate Palestinian state in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

That statement, from a man finally received by the administration after it refused, just two weeks ago, to roll out the red carpet for him, served to keynote the rising tensions between Tel Aviv and Washington in the wake of Israel's aggression in Lebanon.

Only last Sunday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz declared the Palestinians "should have a part in determining the conditions under which they are governed," and, while stopping short of endorsing an independent Palestinian state, said there was "lots of room" for negotiation on the issue.

Not according to Sharon, who insisted that Jordan is already "a Palestinian state" and "Israel never agreed and will never agree to a second" in Israeli-occupied lands.

A State Department official said he expects either Shultz or President Reagan to outline U.S. policy toward the Middle East in a major speech next month, possibly at the United Nations.

THE POLICY statement would be the outgrowth of a review of U.S. Mideast policy now being conducted by Shultz.

"There hasn't been a high-level statement of what the United States hopes to achieve in the Middle East for some time," said the official, who didn't want to be identified.

"There is no question there is a consensus in this administration that there has to be major push on autonomy," he added, referring to the stalled Camp David negotiations aimed at giving the Palestinians some measure of self-rule.

He said the U.S. statement may depend partly on what emerges from an Arab summit conference scheduled in Morocco in early September. The Arab leaders, including PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, are expected to map their strategy toward resolving the Palestinian issue.

Sharon met with Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger after being rebuffed in a bid to visit them while special envoy Philip C. Habib was applying the final touches to an agreement for evacuating Palestine Liberation Organization fighters from West Beirut. The administration made it clear, then, that Israel should deal with Habib.

With Sharon in Washington, Reagan announced on the West Coast that he was sending Weinberger to Lebanon next Tuesday to visit U.S. Marines there before going on to Egypt and Israel to confer directly with their top leaders.

BOTH SHARON and U.S. officials acknowledged following their sessions that serious differences exist between the two countries, particularly on the Palestinian question.

"There is a Palestinian state — Jordan is a Palestinian state," Sharon declared. "Israel never agreed and will never agree to a second Palestinian state, and I made it very clear again today."

"We offer them autonomy," said Sharon. "It's a plan for a transition period of five years, which will enable the Palestinian inhabitants of occupied territories to conduct their lives. That is our plan."

The plan for Palestinian autonomy — or self-rule — is part of the Camp David accords, but negotiatons between Israel, Egypt and the United States to develop a workable autonomy plan have been stalled for months. Egypt doesn't want to rule out emergence of a separate Palestinian state after the transition period.

In Sharon's view, a Palestinian state on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where 1.3 million Palestinians live, is out of the question.

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, repeated for the second time in as many days the American position that the United States is committed to "the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Jordan and our support for its unique and enduring character." Officials say privately this is a flat rejection of Sharon's arguement that Jordan, in effect, is a Palestinian nation.

IN REMARKS to reporters after the meeting with Shultz, Sharon also made clear Israel doesn't plan to withdraw its troops from Lebanon until Syrian forces also withdraw, along with remaining Palestinian guerrillas in northern and eastern Lebanon.

"You have to understand that the Syrians are still occupying 40 percent of the territory of Lebanon," he said. "They, of course, have to withdraw. And our troops, Israeli troops, they also withdraw."

As he left the meeting with Weinberger, Sharon told reporters, "We believe that we are facing a new era where the peace process can move forward." Weinberger did not speak with reporters.

Both Shultz and Weinberger have been openly critical of Israel's war in Lebanon, with Shultz saying it led to some "great strains" in U.S.-Israeli relations.

In an article in Thursday's Washington Post, Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir took sharp exception to views held by Shultz and other officials on the importance of resolving the Palestinian issue, although he did not name Shultz.

Shultz said at a press conference a week ago that addressing the "legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" was "an underlying issue of great importance and is one that is at the center" of the turmoil in the Middle East.

BUT SHAMIR wrote: "To say that the 'Palestinian problem' is the root cause of the Arab-Israeli conflict is, at best, to betray ignorance of the facts of history."

The Israeli ambassador, Moshe Arens, said Friday the ineffectiveness of Soviet weapons in Lebanon "has dealt a blow to the solar plexus of the Soviet Union that it will take them years to recover from."

"A lot of that weaponry has been shown to be ineffective when attacked with the right systems and the proper tactics by the right people," Arens said.

As a result, Arens told the International Israel Bond Leadership Conference, Western capitals and Moscow have an "entirely different" view than they did three months ago of the balance of forces.

"The Russians will be speaking differently in future years," he said. "As a matter of fact they are not talking at all right now.".

"And I dare say that maybe, maybe, even for some of those countries under the Russian boot, like Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia,maybe even their future will be different as a result of that change," he added.

In the Middle East, he said, "the stock of the Soviet Union today is down to zero."

Anzelc says complaint no surprise

"The ATEP and the TSTA have gone essentially with Bill Clements," Anzelc said. "(The complaint) is a membership ploy, a way to embarass White and a way to get our members."

According to Ron Bolin, president of the 606-member Classroom Teachers of Midland, an affiliate of the TCTA, the local group has not endorsed any political candidate.

"As a local organization, we aren't involved in that," Bolin said, adding that while the state organization may endorse a candidate, the local charter explicitly states that it will not take issue in politics.

"We have a more mixed group here," he said. "Probably statewide teachers tend to be more Democratic, but that's not the way it is in Midland. We think maybe it would cause a split."

Midland also is unique in that the CTA of Midland and the local TSTA often join forces.

"On the local level, the classroom teachers (CTA of Midland) and the TSTA work together on a lot of projects," Dorothy Johnston, president of the Midland Educators Association, the local affiliate of the TSTA/NEA, said.

Mrs. Johnston, a member of both the CTA of Midland and president of the 400-member MEA said, "If what is on that fact sheet about TCTA is false, I have never been told anything different."

According to Anzelc, the TCTA began as a department organization of the TSTA, solely restricted to TSTA classroom teachers, until the annual conference last year when it disassociated with TSTA.

Nevertheless, the presidents of the two local organizations involved expressed their hope that the state-level feuding would not affect the cooperation between the local groups.

According to Bolin, the CTA of Midland and the MEA already have set up a joint salary committee, which will study salary proposals to present to the Midland school board in January.

"We've worked together (on the local level) for so long," Bolin said. "We even continued working together when we split up."

Mexico's announcement doesn't halt flow of goods

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Mexican government's announcement that it would control the flow of food and other goods out of the country had little effect Friday as Americans continued seeking bargains south of the border.

"As of now, there seems to be no change," said Manny Najera, U.S. Customs chief inspector in El Paso. "Groceries and stuff are still coming across."

The Mexican finance and budget ministry said Thursday night that it would impose "export controls" that would prevent Americans from emptying store shelves in border cities. No details were given.

Ramon Moreno Corral, chief of customs in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, said Friday that no new regulations had come from Mexico City and customs inspectors had not stiffened the usually lax inspection process.

"Everything is proceeding as usual," Moreno said through an interpreter. He added that normal procedures allow Americans to buy whatever they like and take it across the border, as long as it is for their personal use.

Najera said he didn't know how the Mexican customs agents would enforce the policy once it is imposed because they currently are geared to only check cars as they enter the country, not as they leave.

"They would have to be stopping each and every car," he said.

However, it is possible that new enforcement methods could begin next week, he said. The pattern since the Aug. 5 devaluation of the peso has been that the finance ministry announces new policies each Thursday night and they are enacted days, and sometimes weeks, after the announcement.

Border businessmen have found themselves in a difficult position since the peso devaluation, which cut the value of the Mexican currency in half. Mexicans have found it impossible to pay debts north of the border or to buy American goods because of their loss in buying power.

Earlier this month, the Juarez Chamber of Commerce led a 24-hour protest in which businesses closed their doors to show their discontent with government monetary policies.

Chamber president Octavio Munoz Corral said the combination of American shopping sprees and the inability to import food from the United States means supermarkets are running out of items such as sugar and coffee that are essential to Mexicans.

If Mexico does implement the announced export controls, it could have the reverse of the desired effect, Najera said.

"It could actually leave another smuggling avenue," he said. "We could have people buying out complete shelves of sugar at 11 cents a pound, canned goods and other goods and storing them in Juarez. Then they could import them a little at a time and sell them to individuals."

Future of West Texas' public broadcasting in limbo

cable operator said 18 of 27 West Texas companies dropped all or part of the service.

Meyer said he hopes the meeting will help convince some operators to resume the service and thus redistribute the tariff charges among a larger number of companies.

"I'm hoping that the meeting will produce a consortium approach," said Meyer, who emphasized the importance of continued public TV service to local school districts.

Holm said Ector County grade and secondary school classrooms are wired for educational television reception. He said the school district receives programming, teacher guides and testing from KERA at a subscription cost of approximately $1.50 per student. More than 14,000 students attend Ector County elementary schools.

"We feel like this service is really important to our educational program," Holm said. "We're vitally interested in this service continuing."

Several school systems not served by local cable systems also receive taped programming from the Region 18 Education Service Center.

Herndon, whose interest in cable television dates to 1967, when KMID and Cablevision of Odessa began their joint operation of that cable company, said the purpose of the Sept. 14 meeting "is to find enough subscribers to fund this thing.

"The economics of bringing anything from Dallas out here, whether it's by wire or by sled, it costs money," he said.

Herndon's station will soon switch from NBC to ABC programming using earth stations to capture satellite signals. Meyer and Herndon agreed that satellite will likely replace microwave transmission in the future.

But Meyer said the emphasis during the upcoming public meeting will be on keeping PBS programs in West Texas homes and schools via the existing microwave system.

Meyer said KERA will also preview its fall and winter programming schedules during the public meeting, scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. in the board room of the Special Populations Office at 1215 W. 10th St. in Odessa.

Diggers unearth two human heads

TIERRA AMARILLA, N.M. (AP) — Two human heads, partly preserved in glass containers, have been unearthed by workers digging near the Rio Arriba County Courthouse, authorities said Friday.

Police were trying to determine where the heads came from and why they were buried there. Longtime local residents speculated the remains had been kept for a long time in the courthouse after the murders of two men years ago.

Belarmino Archuleta, a county employee, said he was working Thursday with Henry Ulibarri, a self-employed backhoe operator, trying to find a leak in a water pipe beneath the windows of the county treasurer's office. He heard something break.

"I thought it was a sewer pipe, but when I lifted it up, I saw it was a human skull," he said.

Capt. Robert Rodela of the sheriff's department and state police officer D.W. Osuna also found beside the skull two lobes of a brain and pieces of a glass container, marked with an 1895 patent date, all about four feet beneath the surface.

Three members of the state police Crime Laboratory were called in. They found a second glass container, still unbroken, with a blackened head inside.

The container broke when they tried to remove the locking top, so the remains were bagged and taken to the Santa Fe lab for identification.

Benito Sandoval, 69, of Tierra Amarilla, said that in 1936 or 1937, two men were slain at a lumber camp in El Vado, west of here. Their killer decapitated them and "pickled" their heads in jars, he said.

"They caught the guy who killed them," Sandoval recalled. "At first, they were going to electrocute him, but people started praying for him and all, so they gave him life in the penitentiary."

Like many residents, former Sheriff Dan Rivera, who worked for the department from 1943-73, said he had heard stories about heads buried beside the courthouse. But until Thursday, Rivera thought it might be only legend.

"I've heard that they buried them here because they had them here for court many years ago," he said.

Gonzalo Martinez, 49, a Tierra Amarilla native who lives in Los Angeles, said as a small child, he saw the two heads in jars on a table in the second-floor courtroom. He said his mother later told him the heads were buried near the courthouse and he recalls being frightened whenever he was walking by the area.

Eight Midland millionaires among wealthiest Americans

"You can't be too thin or too rich," the Duchess of Windsor is supposed to have said. Whether that is true or not, one thing is certain. You have to be among the super rich to be listed in Forbes magazine's latest compilation of the 400 wealthiest Americans.

On the list, due to be published in the Sept. 13 edition of the magazine, which will be mailed to subscribers next week, are 67 Texans and of those eight are Midlanders.

Dallas has 20 members of the distinguished group; Houston boasts 21. Seven live in Fort Worth and the balance are scattered around the state.

While the magazine acknowledges the figures given are only "estimated net worths," big figures are involved. The Forbes Four Hundred are not mere millionaires or multi-millionaires. In fact, the lowest estimated net wealth given is $75 million.

Many of those included will not feel an honor in being on the list, Forbes admits. Even so, the article, which includes brief biographies on each of the 400, is no "hatchet job."

Since you don't need fabulous wealth to live very, very well these days ($10 million or $20 million will do fine for many), "What do the really rich do with their money?" Forbes asks.

"Some they give away; philanthropy is 'in' among the very wealthy. But most of it is reinvested, either in their existing businesses or stocks or bonds or in new ventures. The main thing they do, then, is create jobs and ever more of the goods and services needed to sustain the average man's lifestyle," says the magazine.

The eight Midland centimillionaires listed, all credited with major resources and income in oil, are, alphabetically, as follows:

Fred M. Allison Jr., 63, $100 million;
Carlton Beal, 66, $400 million;
Jack Brown, 56, $550 million;
John L. Cox, 57, $350 million;
John Hendrix, 46, $150 million;
Clarence Scharbauer Jr., 57, $250 million;
Cyril Wagner Jr., 48, $550 million;
Clayton Williams Jr., 50, $100 million.

Although four principal heirs of The Hearst Corpoation are not Midland residents, they are on the Forbes' list and their holdings include The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

With their fortunes tied primarily to publishing, the four are George Randolph Hearst Jr., 55, $100 million; twins David Whitmire Hearst and Randolph Apperson Hearst, 66, $200 million; and William Randolph Hearst Jr., 74, $200 million.

How did Forbes arrive at its conclusions on personal wealth? Here's what the magazine will say:

"To arrive at coherent estimates of wealth in all this welter, we adopted a number of rules, mostly based on common sense:

"—Blocks of publicly traded stocks are priced at the market in mid-August for consistency.

"—Privately held companies are valued according to estimated earnings, where estimable, based on multiples then prevailing for publicly traded companies in similar businesses.

"—Lacking reasonable earnings estimates, we adopted rule-of-thumb conventions widely used within respective industries, particularly in evaluating the media: Newspapers, for instance, can be valued at $500 and up per subscriber, or 10 to 15 times earnins, or 1.0 to 1.4 times revenues, in each case subtracting a generous allowance for probable liabilities. TV stations were evaluated for us by reputable media brokers.

"—In some cases, we had to settle for estimates of book value, particularly among private oil producers, where we often did not venture beyond putting a fair estimate on their oil reserves.

"In fact, in every case we went out of our way to be ultraconservative; we wanted to be sure everyone on the 400 belongs on the 400."

Forbes acknowledges the list may not be "absolutely correct." Some of those listed may have net worth beyond the figures given, some possibly less. Forbes says the magazine "probably missed rich folks who deserve a place among the 400," adding that some of those probably are breathing a sigh of relief.

Elizabeth Jane Boeger, left, former head cashier in the Ohio state treasurer's office, and Robert W. Yeazell, sit in a Franklin County courtroom waiting to be arraigned for charges in connection with the disappearance of more than $1 million in state funds. Both pleaded innocent to charges against them.

State employee accused of embezzlement

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The one-time head cashier for the state treasurer's office, who says she suffers from amnesia, pleaded innocent Friday to embezzling $1.15 million in state funds.

Elizabeth Jane Boerger, 49, who has been in seclusion for more than a year, was released on her own recognizance pending an unspecified trial date.

She is charged with theft in office and tampering with public records between April 18, 1977, and Jan. 2, 1980.

Franklin County Common Pleas Court Judge Gerbis W. Fais also accepted an innocent plea from Robert W. Yeazell, 52, Springfield, a former bandleader and past business associate of Miss Boerger. He, too, was released on his own recognizance.

Yeazell is accused of receiving stolen property, namely state money. He and Miss Boerger were indicted Aug. 10 by a grand jury following a year-long investigation by state auditors, private accountants and the Franklin County prosecutor.

Miss Boerger left office in January 1980 after becoming ill. Her doctor later said she was suffering from a form of hysterical amnesia. She was granted disability benefits by the Ohio Public Employees Retirement System.

Last August, State Auditor Thomas Ferguson reported that more than $1 million funds appeared to be missing from the treasurer's office, and the probe began.

The private firm of Price Waterhouse & Co. spent 11 months reconstructing the treasurer's books before concluding that $1.15 million had been embezzled from the state government's main checking account.

Miss Boerger, who used to travel with Yeazell's band and help him run an entertainment booking agency, remained in seclusion during the probe. She spent much of the time on a farm in Shelby County in western Ohio, refusing to see reporters.

She was shielded from the media Friday by her attorney, James Doughty of Springfield, who subsequently filed motions to have the charges against her and Yeazell dismissed because of legal errors.

Judge drops restrictions on reporters

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — A municipal judge who restricted the language that four newspaper reporters could use in stories about a child molestation case agreed to drop the limitations at the instruction of a higher judge.

Superior Court Judge Martin Rothenberg of Contra Costa County ordered Municipal Court Judge Joseph Longacre to lift his ruling that reporters could attend a preliminary hearing only if they agreed to his guidelines for writing their stories.

When the reporters declined to voice their acceptance of Longacre's conditions on Thursday, the judge ordered them out of the hearing.

The limitations were lifted Friday and the reporters were allowed to return to the courtroom in Walnut Creek.

Longacre's press restrictions Thursday came after he rejected a defense motion that the hearing be closed to the news media and the public.

"All reports will be factual, with no editorializing," Longacre said. "There will be no adjectives not used in this court, and there may not be a substitution of words used in this court."

Longacre also told the reporters they couldn't identify victims or their families and "will make it known to the reader that a preliminary hearing does not mean a man is guilty."

The reporters were from the Contra Costa Times, the San Francisco Examiner, the Oakland Tribune and the Tri-Valley Herald.

John K. Nieman, 39, of San Ramon, is charged with 11 felonies, including seven counts of lewd and lascivious acts with a child under age 14, two counts of oral copulation with a child under 14, one count of raping a person incapable of giving consent and one count of raping a person unconscious of the nature of the act.

The charges involve three children ranging in age from 6 months to 2½ years. At least one of the children was under the care of Nieman's wife, Helen, who provided day care in their home.

Contra Costa Times Editor Jack Winning said his newspaper "shares Judge Longacre's concern for factual reporting and for the victims. But we cannot sign away the right of a free press to determine what is published."

"We felt the judge was attaching unreasonable prior restraints," Winning said. "In effect, we felt he was saying that if any stories on the proceedings did not meet his favor, he would have the reporter jailed or fined. Our reporters learned the identities of the victims two and one half months ago, but we have chosen not to identify them because of the same concern the judge has."

F. Ronald Laupheimer, a lawyer representing the Oakland Tribune-Eastbay Today edition and the Contra Costa Times, called the ruling "unprecedented in this country" and said he would ask the Superior Court to overturn it.

Laupheimer said he hoped to obtain a higher court ruling before the end of the hearing, which started Thursday and was expected to last two to three days.

No one answered the phone when a call was made overnight to the Tri-Valley Herald. An employee answering the telephone at the Examiner overnight said no one with the authority to comment on the case was immediately available.

Defense lawyer Barry Burak filed the motion to close the hearing. One of Burak's colleagues, David Larkin of Concord, argued in court that Nieman's right to a fair trial made closure necessary, noting there has been substantial publicity since the case began.

California law says preliminary hearings should be open unless the judge decides the defendant's right to a fair trial would be jeopardized by an open hearing.

Laupheimer argued that the defense and judge had not shown that there would be an imminent threat to the administration of justice by leaving the hearing open.

Pops in the Park Concert to be today

The Midland-Odessa Symphony, directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, will perform its annual Pops in the Park Concert today at 8:15 p.m. at Haley Park.

The Pops in the Park Concert has become a festive event which provides area residents with an opportunity to enjoy a selection of light Pops music.

Pops in the Park is sponsored by Midland National Bank, whose continued support of this concert and the fall Pops in the Plaza Concert downtown make both free concerts possible.

Haley Park is located on Indiana Avenue, next to the Marian Blakemore Planentarium. Bring a blanket, a friend and enjoy a musical evening under the stars.

Group for the deaf to host Hawaiian Party

The Midessa Association of the Deaf Inc. will will sponsor a Hawaiian Party beginning at 5 p.m. today in the Hogan Park Activities Building, according to Charles Archer, president of the group.

Prizes will be awarded for best costumes and for hearty eaters in a watermelon-eating contest.

All friends of the deaf are invited to the party, said Archer. "Please come."

The group takes in deaf people in the Midland-Odessa area.

Laguna Petrolem Corp. sues Midland oil operator

Laguna Petroleum Corp. of Midland has filed a $134,269.55 lawsuit against Midland oil operator Hulen Lemon who, Laguna claims in its petition filed in 238th State District Court, defaulted on contractual agreements on oil ventures in Texas and Oklahoma.

Laguna says that Lemon, part owner of oil, gas and mineral leases in Dawson County and in Blaine County, Okla., had agreed to help finance the "drilling of wells in search of oil, gas and other minerals" on the leases but defaulted on payments.

In addition to the April 1980-to-June 1982 leasehold operating costs of $134,269.55 which Laguna says Lemon owes it, Laguna is seeking $13,314.14 in interest and $20,000 in fees for its legal counsel, Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe & Dawson of Midland, in the litigation.

Laguna also is seeking a foreclosure on Lemon's interests in the leases.

She was born April 28, 1901, in Belmont, N.Y. She had lived in Fort Worth since 1938.

Other survivors include three granddaughters.

Harrelson under medical care during week-long hunger strike

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The man charged with killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was flown from a Texas prison to an Illinois penitentiary hospital Friday during a hunger strike that has lasted more than a week.

U.S. Marshal Bill Jonas confirmed that Harrelson, 44, who previously served a 15-year prison term for a hired killing, was taken from the Federal Correctional Institute at Bastrop to the hospital at the maximum security federal prison at Marion, Ill.

Jonas said prison officials at Bastrop first contacted his office shortly after Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions began denying motions in the Wood case last week, then telephoned again this week wanting to move Harrelson near medical care.

Bastrop officials said "they were afraid it would develop into a physical problem," Jonas said.

Although Jonas said he never heard Harrelson's protest specifically described as "a hunger strike," he said Bastrop officials told him that Harrelson said "he doesn't like us. He doesn't like the food and he doesn't like the way things are going."

Jonas said Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn, one of the prosecutors in the Wood case, concurred in the prison officials' decision to give Harrelson medical care.

Two weeks ago, during an 11-day pre-trial hearing, Harrelson sent The Associated Press a note charging that he was being subjected to "a travesty of justice."

Williams: Charges of homosexuality between lawmakers, pages were lies

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former congressional page Leroy Williams confessed Friday that he was lying when he made charges of homosexual relations between congressmen and pages that helped spark a federal investigation.

Williams, 18, said he lied to bring attention to a lack of supervision of teen-agers participating in the congressional page system.

"For the past few months I have made some very serious accusations," he said at a news conference. "These accusations are not true. I have lied. I regret that I have lied."

"Words can never express the remorse that I feel for the pain and the trauma that I've caused" the families of those implicated and his own family, he said.

Williams had claimed he had sex with three male members of Congress, and also had claimed he arranged a homosexual liaison between a senator and a male prostitute.

Asked if he knew of any homosexual relationships involving congressmen, he said, "There may be, but not to my personal knowledge, and I was not involved in it.

"I knew that there were suspicions about these types of activities...so, I used it as a tool," he said.

Williams said he would testify before the House Ethics Committee in Washington today.

In Washington, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of committee, and Joseph A. Califano, the panel's special counsel, issued a brief statement confirming that Williams will give a statement today. The committee declined any further comment.

Bob Scott of Little Rock, who said he would remain Williams' attorney, said Williams could face legal problems because of the allegations. "There has been no offer of immunity," Scott said.

Williams said he left Washington after serving as a page for seven months because he feared he was becoming alcoholic. "I was becoming an alcoholic, and I was scared of it," he said. "All my life I've had to lead a dual role. I've had to pretend I was heterosexual when I had homosexual feelings."

Scott, who said Williams is undergoing psychiatric treatment, said he had believed Williams all along and said he believed him now.

"I do believe that he is telling the truth now," Scott said. "I regret that he did not tell me the truth to start with."

Williams said he admitted lying Thursday while being questioned at DeGray Lake near Arkadelphia by two investigators for the ethics committee.

"The gentlemen gave me an outing to say this isn't true," Williams said. "I could no longer live with the fraud." It was self-destructive, he said.

He said the investigators did not coerce him, and they would not discuss the subject.

Williams said he got drunk last Saturday as part of an effort to kill himself. He was arrested early Sunday for public intoxication after patrons at a movie theater complained that a man was spitting in their hair.

Williams, who left the page service in January, had acknowledged previously that he failed a lie detector test given by the FBI, but said at the time that he was standing by his story.

After Williams made his charges earlier this summer, both the Justice Department and the ethics committee launched investigations into the matter.

The Justice Department reportedly has wrapped up its investigation and the Washington Post has reported that the sources involved in the sex allegations have not proved reliable

Lawyer quits because of 'questionable' actions, says Williams

But the lawyer, Alvin Binder of Jackson, Miss., denied the charge and said he resigned for health reasons. A judge who approved the action concurred.

Binder, who headed Williams' defense team during a sensational nine-week murder trial earlier this year, withdrew from the appeal phase of the case Monday with the permission of Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper. Cooper's order said he granted the request because Binder had undergone surgery twice since June after gangrene developed in his right index finger.

Williams, speaking by telephone from the Fulton County jail, told Atlanta radio station WAOK on Friday:

"The fact is that Al was allowed to resign by Judge Cooper to avoid a hearing on his removal based on certain questionable activities involving my defense team."

Cooper said his order "speaks for itself."

Williams, a 24-year-old free-lance photographer and self-styled talent scout, was convicted of murder Feb. 27 in the slayings of Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27, two of 29 young blacks whose deaths or disappearances over a 22-month period were investigated by a special police task force here.

Following the trial, authorities announced they were closing investigations into 22 other killings because evidence in those cases was similar to evidence in the Payne and Cater killings. Williams has not been charged in the other deaths, however.

Williams charged Friday that Binder's "questionable activities" included a request for literary rights to Williams' story. He also said "two key alibi witnesses" never were questioned by his attorneys.

Williams said attorney Lynn Whatley, who joind the case after the trial, filed a "request for removal" of Binder last week, but court records show no such request and Whatley denied it.

Stars pay tribute to soap operas

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A hundred squealing girls, snapping cameras and waving autograph books, surged around soap opera idols John Stamos and Doug Davidson.

Anita from West Covina asked breathlessly, "Do either of you have a steady girlfriend?" Both answered no. Another wanted to know if they answered their fan mail. "Yes, and I'd like to thank every one," said Stamos. "The more letters you write the more we're on the show."

So it went Thursday at "Soaps — An American Celebration," a five-day tribute to the 50th anniversary of the soap opera at the Los Angeles Convention Center. The event, which ends Sunday, is designed to bring fans and their favorite stars together.

Stamos of ABC's "General Hospital" and Davidson of CBS's "The Young and the Restless" took part in "Soap Mania," a promotion that features two main shows daily starring soap opera personalities, entertainment on five satellite stages, seminars on the soap opera, plus rock bands and a big band.

Joel Herrick, producer of the show, said the first soap opera was "One Man's Family," which made its debut on NBC radio on April 29, 1932. It remained on the air until May 8, 1959.

"The soap operas are a reflection of our times," he said. "People are looking for inexpensive entertainment and diversion. Basically, I think people see them as a projection of their own lives. It gives them involvement and it gives them diversion from the crazy economy and what's going on in the Middle East. It's escapism."

Smith

SKOWHEGAN, Maine (AP) — A fresh red rose pinned to her dress became a trademark for Margaret Chase Smith when she served as the first woman elected to the U.S. Senate.

Thursday, the red rose was absent but a pale pink rose was at her throat as dedication ceremonies were conducted for a hometown library containing the papers and tapes of her 32-year career in public office.

"This is a very special day, a very meaningful day for me," said the former senator, now 84. "Of course, I am very happy about it and happy that it has happened while I'm still around."

Mrs. Smith was sworn into Congress on June 3, 1940, to complete the term of her husband, Rep. Clyde H. Smith, who had died. She won election to the House in her own right and remained a representative until her election to the Senate in 1948. She lost her Senate seat in 1972 after being defeated by Democrat William D. Hathaway, who served only one term.

MATTAWAN, Mich. (AP) — Donna Hawn Arndt weighed 398 pounds when she decided she cared about herself too much to risk carrying around that amount of weight any longer.

Twenty months and 259 pounds later, the 22-year-old mother of two says, "I'll never get that bad again."

Mrs. Arndt said shopping trips had become endurance sessions of teeth-gritting humor for others, especially when her companions would spot the one-size-fits-all clothing racks.

"'One size fits all — except Donna,' they always said. That was funny. Ha, ha, ha," she said earlier this week.

Mrs. Arndt said she always was overweight, despite attempts by her mother to help her shed pounds and a physician who drove staples in her ears, which supposedly would curb her appetite. Nothing worked.

"I can still remember sitting in science class and having the desk break under my weight," she said.

In 1980, she was hospitalized for minor surgery and became frightened when doctors told her an operation would be dangerous for someone of her weight. She vowed that if she made it through the operation, she would change.

She made it, then bought some diet books. What really worked, she said, was that she just stopped eating as much.

She began counting calories, stopped tasting food as she cooked and stopped eating half the dough before baking cookies.

Now, at 139 pounds — six pounds under a 145-pound goal — "I am feeling great and I am happy with the way I eat.

Wilding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The son of actress Elizabeth Taylor and the daughter of actor Jack Palance have married, a publicist for Miss Taylor said.

Michael Wilding Jr., 29, and Brooke Palance, 30, married on Thursday night in a private ceremony for family and friends, Chen Sam said Friday.

The marriage is the first for Miss Palance, the second for Wilding. Both are students at the Strasberg acting school.

Miss Taylor was unable to attend the ceremony because of recent surgery for impacted wisdom teeth, Miss Sam said, adding that the couple visited with Miss Taylor at her Bel Air home before the wedding.

Name of gay athletic games causes tiff

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Organizers say a nine-day athletic competition for homosexuals from around the world is designed to overcome stereotypes, but much of the limelight so far has been on a court fight over the name of the meet.

The "Gay Olympic Games" were conceived as a remedy for what Dr. Thomas Waddell, founder of the sponsoring San Francisco Arts and Athletics Inc., sees as an epidemic of fear about homosexuals.

About 1,300 men and women — homosexual and heterosexual — are expected to attend the events, which get under way today.

However, much of the publicity for the games emerged from a California courtroom, where the U.S. and International Olympic committees got an order blocking use of the word "Olympic" by the event.

"They (Olympic committees) have unwittingly focused a lot of attention" on the games, said Waddell.

He was hoping an appeals court would give organizers permission to use the word before the opening ceremonies. Meanwhile, the event was dubbed "Gay Bleep Games," or merely, "Gay Games."

Ron Rowan of the U.S. Olympic Committee in Colorado Springs, Colo., said use of the term "Olympic" is protected by trademark law and belongs exclusively to the U.S. and International Olympic committees. An exception has been granted to the Special Olympics for handicapped people.

"We have no intention, nor did we ever, of discriminating against any group or people in this action," said Rowan. "It makes no difference what their (sexual) beliefs are."

Waddell and others argued that the word "Olympic" is used to describe competitions by everything from rats to cooks.

In the gathering here, entrants are not expected to be the world's greatest athletes.

"It doesn't matter how good or terrible they are," said Waddell. "We are emphasizing participation, cooperation and friendship. We are de-emphasizing winning."

There are no minimum physical qualifications and no attempt to prove contestants are homosexual. Heterosexuals are eligible to compete, said Waddell, 44, who finished sixth in the 1968 U.S. Olympic decathlon in Mexico City, but "the participants are predominantly gay."

Holding such an event in San Francisco, where homosexuals make up about 15 percent of the population of 679,000, would be a dramatic counter to the stereotype of "men with lisps who cross their legs like women, mince down the street and have wrist drop," he said.

There will be about 550 women among the entrants from a dozen nations, including Australia, France, Germany and Canada.

After Saturday's opening ceremony, complete with a parade of mounted city police and the gay Freedom Day Marching Band and Twirling Corps, there will be contests in 16 events, from basketball and cycling to swimming and track. The games close Sept. 5.

Entrants will represent 149 cities, 102 of them in the United States. Besides Waddell, who has entered the discus throw, former Olympic Games competitors will be Susan McGrievy and George Frenn, both of Los Angeles.

Ms. McGrievy, the former Susan "Dougie" Gray, swam at the Melbourne Olympics in 1956. Frenn competed on the hammer throw team in Munich in 1972, Waddell said.

If any world records are set, it's not likely they will be recognized. Spokesman Eric Wilkinson says the event lost its initial sanction by The Athletics Congress — governing body of track and field in the United States.

U.T. rates as 'frontier free-for-all'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Playboy magazine rated the "sexual temperature" at 20 U.S. colleges and Brigham Young University landed in the cellar — much to the relief of officials of the Mormon institution.

For its October issue, Playboy polled 2,000 students in a survey entitled "Sex On Campus 1982."

After considering such things as campus style, administration, male-female ratio and the opportunity for sexual fun and games, Playboy said Brigham Young was at the bottom of the heap.

Contacted in Provo, Brigham Young spokesman Paul Richards said Thursday he was delighted to hear that.

"We feel it would be where we would come in if they had surveyed several hundred colleges around the country," Richards said.

Topping the chart is the University of Texas, where Playboy describes the campus style as a "frontier free-for-all."

In contrast, he described the students at the Mormon school as "haloed pioneers" and "vestal virgins."

The magazine said the style of the school owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is best described as "missionaries looking for a position."

It said the hottest BYU hangout is "any plane leaving Provo."

Playboy has this advice on how to come on to a BYU woman: "Don't."

"I'm glad we flunked," said Schipper Clawson, president of the student body at Brigham Young, adding that he found the descriptions of his school "sarcastic and humorous."

"But from my point of view, it's a generalization, a steorotype," said the economics major from New Canaan, Conn. "I mean, I don't have a halo."

The Mormon Church, unlike Playboy, strongly admonishes its followers to shun premarital sex. Some 98 percent of the university's 26,000 students are Mormon and 22 percent are married.

Playboy associate editor Kevin Cook, author of the article, said in a telephone interview from his Chicago office the rankings are his own opinions, but are based on the questionnaires, telephone interviews, visits to some schools and material he'd read.

Cook said he didn't visit Provo as part of his research, but, "I can't wait to get there."

The 20 schools in the order ranked by Playboy are:

The University of Texas, Indiana University, Arizona State University, the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, UCLA, the University of Florida, Sweet Briar College, the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan, Smith College, Rice University, the University of Alabama, the University of Colorado-Denver, the University of Southern California, Harvard University, the University of Iowa, Grinnell College, the University of Idaho, Butler University and Brigham Young University.

Elite unit joins peacekeepers

ROME (AP) — The men in Italy's peacekeeping force in Lebanon, with their distinctive plumed helmets, are members of one of the country's most decorated and popular units.

The Bersaglieri, meaning sharpshooters, were founded in northern Turin in 1836 by Capt. Allesandro La Marmora to provide the King of Savoy's army with an efficient strike force trained in physical fitness, riflery and precision fighting.

As an insignia for his new unit, La Marmora selected black plumes taken from the wood grouse found in the northern Italian mountains. The soldiers sport a red fez when not in combat.

The Bersaglieri have worn their plumes in every major Italian battle, from the Crimean War and the 1900 Boxer Rebellion in Peking, to the decisive victory over the Austrians at Veneto in World War I, the siege of Stalingrad and the battle of El Alamein during World War II.

Their most important battle, and the source of their high esteem among Italians today, was in the battle to wrest Rome from the pope in 1870, when Italy was emerging as a nation from a collection of city-states.

There the regiment provided the firepower for King Victor Emmanuel II's army to crash through Porta Pia, the gates of Rome designed by Michelangelo, and capture the last major holdout against a unified Italy.

The Bersaglieri were virtually wiped out during World War II, suffering 97,000 deaths, 206,000 wounded and 80,000 missing. For their valor, the Italian government awarded them six gold medals of honor.

Soviet mission shows woman can play role in space

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts, including the second woman to orbit the earth, landed their capsule Friday in central Asia and said their nine-day flight proved "women can play an effective role in future space missions."

Svetlana Savitskaya, 34, touched down with crewmates Leonid Popov and Alexander Serebrov in a harvested field 42 miles northeast of Arkalyk in the Soviet province of Kazakhstan, government radio reported.

Soviet media said they landed right on target.

The capsule's red-and-white parachute could be seen falling through the twilight in a film broadcast by Soviet television more than four hours after the cosmonauts touched down at 7:04 p.m. Moscow time (11:04 a.m. EDT).

Miss Savitskaya told television interviewers she felt "normal" and would return to space "with pleasure." Her crewmates also said they felt fine after their mission, and described her work as "outstanding" and "professional."

Perspiring in their bulky space suits, the three were helped from their capsule and presented flowers by the rescue team and television crew that tracked their descent.

Miss Savitskaya is a test pilot who has set 18 world aviation records. She and her crewmates rocketed into orbit Aug. 19 from the Baikonur space center, about 160 miles southwest of their landing site.

On Aug. 20, they joined cosmonauts Anatoly Berezovoy and Valentin Lebedev aboard the Salyut-7 space laboratory for experiments which included medical tests on women in space.

"In the process no substantial difference in the reactions of the female and male organisms to the influence of space flight were found," the official news agency Tass said.

Radio Moscow reported that "cosmonauts and experts are alike convinced that women can play an effective role in future space missions."

"The four men taking part in the flight say Svetlana Savitskaya has acted expertly," the radio said. "Svetlana herself said she felt fine in weightless conditions."

Soviet officials have not announced how many more women are training as cosmonauts.

Miss Savitskaya was listed as a researcher on the mission, her first in space.

Popov, a 36-year-old veteran of two previous orbital flights, was the commander, and Serebrov, 38, made his space debut as flight engineer.

Several hours before landing, the crew separated Soyuz T-5 from Salyut-7, leaving behind cosmonauts Berezovoy and Lebedev, who boarded the space station on May 14.

Miss Savitskaya and her crewmates landed in a flat farm area typical of Kazakhstan province, according to Soviet national television, which interrupted a musical program with the news bulletin.

It showed engineers at the "Star City" control center near Moscow applaud after the landing. The TV bulletin described the weather in Kazakhstan as clear, with a temperature of 72 degrees.

Miss Savitskaya and Serebrov were given the title, "Hero of the Soviet Union," immediately after touching down. Popov, who won the title twice for his earlier flights, was awarded the Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet medal.

Soviet officials did not explain a switch in space craft made by the three cosmonauts, who left earth in Soyuz T-7 but returned in Soyuz T-5.

Tass said only that they "brought to Earth materials from research and experiments performed in Salyut-7 by the main crew in the course of three months of flight."

Berezovoy and Lebedev, who flew Soyuz T-5 into orbit, presumably will return to Earth in Soyuz T-7.

Miss Savitskaya, who is married to a fellow pilot, reportedly has logged 1,500 hours of flight time aboard more than 20 types of aircraft, and has made more than 500 parachute jumps.

The daughter of Soviet air marshal and World War II, Yevgeny Savitsky, she is a muscular, young-looking woman with hazel eyes who wears her dark hair in bangs.

Miss Savistskaya remained in space longer than the first woman cosmonaut, Valentina Tereshkova, who orbited the earth for three days in June 1963.

Miss Tereshkova, who is married to cosmonaut Andrean Nikolaev, has been lavishly honored for her feat. She has been a member of the policy-making Communist Party Central Committee since 1971, and plays a visible role as head of the Soviet Women's Committee.

DEA spokesman says agent charged with smuggling, possessing marijuana

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration says that for the first time since the agency was established in 1973, an agent has been charged with drug smuggling.

The agent, Jeffrey I. Scharlatt, has been accused of smuggling and possessing marijuana, obstructing justice and accepting an illegal gratuity, DEA Administrator Francis M. Mullen announced earlier this week.

Scharlatt, 41-year-old group supervisor in the DEA's Miami office, was named in a five-count indictment returned in West Palm Beach, Fla. If convicted on all counts, he could receive a maximum penalty of 22 years in prison and $50,000 in fines.

Cemetery's superintendent lives in midst of work

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "The cemetery is like my bedroom — I have slept out here in the middle of the night" keeping watch for prowlers, says Richard Pendleton.

Pendleton doesn't live in a typical Greensboro neighborhood. In front of his home are the 10,000 tombstones of Guilford Memorial Park.

Pendleton, the park's superintendent, has been working at the cemetery for the past 27 years. He has lived on the grounds with his wife, brother and seven of his eight children for all but two of those years.

Two daughters and two sons, along with his wife and brother, also work at the park.

Pendleton says his five-room, wood-frame house has "vaults on one side, vaults in front." The nearest grave is only 400 feet away.

His driveway is the narrow road that winds through the forest of tombstones that protrude obstrusively across the landscape.

"When I first came," he recalls, "I came just to help them out a day or two."

He got started in the cemetery business because he didn't like farming.

"I picked cotton from the time I was old enough to get into the fields until I was 16," Pendleton says, adding that working in a graveyard is a lot more appealing than picking cotton where you "stay bent over from daylight to dark."

He wanted out of the cotton patch so badly that "I walked 120 miles from Lincolnton to the sign on (Interstate) 85 saying "Greensboro, 15 miles." He says he caught a ride from there to the park.

Pendleton knew there was a chance of work at the cemetery because his parents lived at the corner of the park at the time. An uncle, then superintendent, helped him get a job.

The narrow roads that wind through the park break the monotony of the granite tombstones and grave markers.

The closely c..t grass clings to the stones as though anchoring them in the parched earth. The air has a sense of stillness which is usually associated with death and is pierced only by the sound of chirping birds. The cemetery — which opened in 1936 — is clean and neat.

Pendleton oversees approximately 10,000 gravesites and supervises his family members in keeping the park clean.

Forest service begins three-year timber study

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Forest Service has begun a three-year study to determine the effects of timber harvesting and forest-road construction on the black-bear population in western North Carolina.

The study also will provide a comparison of activities of bears living in the Great Smoky Mountains National Forest and Pisgah Forest.

Scientists who have studied bears in the western North Carolina mountains say one thing they have found in the preliminary studies is that many black bears in that area spend their winters hibernating in treetop "apartments" instead of caves or holes.

"If a bear is given a choice of a damp cave or a tree where he can be dry and warm all winter, the bear will take the tree," said state wildlife biologist Lauren Hillman of Asheville. "That fact is contrary to popular belief that bears always hibernate in caves or holes. They seem to prefer treetop apartments."

The Forest Service study will concentrate on the Harmon Den area of the Pisgah National Forest near the Tennessee border. The state Wildlife Resources Commission and University of Tennessee biologist Mike Pelton, a black-bear expert, also are assisting in the study.

Pisgah Forest is known as one of the better black-bear hunting spots in the Southeast, Ms. Hillman said, and has a "substantial" black-bear population. Wildlife officials say they have no idea how many of the bears are killed each year by hunters.

"We figure there is at least one bear per five square miles but that is really conservative," Ms. Hillman said. The Harmon Den area includes about 12 square miles along either side of Interstate 40.

In the study, biologists will trap the bears, tranquilize them and weigh them, determine their age and put a collar with a radio tracking device on them. The collar will enable biologists to trace the bears' movements for three years.

"This is one of the few ways we have of finding out what the bear population is," Ms. Hillman said. "The animals are very mobile and it is almost impossible to have an accurate population figure."

Since national forests represent some of the largest undeveloped tracts of land suitable for bear in the Southeast, the study is critical to the survival of bears in southern Appalachia, Ms. Hillman said. Bears prefer areas free from major developmental activities, although previous studies indicate bears may accept some human activity.

"We're trying to find out what we need to do to accommodate bears and the people who harvest the trees," Ms. Hillman said.

Some Indian doctors perform abortions if fetus female

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

NEW DELHI, India — Some Indian doctors, using modern medical tests to determine the sex of unborn children, have been accused of abetting India's traditional — although illegal — practice of female infanticide.

According to doctors and women's organizations here, clinics across the country are performing often risky abortions if the woman is found to be carrying a female. The determination is made by amniocentesis, a test that tells the sex of an unborn child as a byproduct of its more important medical use of determining whether a fetus is physically or mentally deformed.

If the test shows the unborn child is a male, "jubilation" follows in the family, said a doctor in the northern Indian city of Amritsar.

Abortion after an amniocentesis test is risky and painful since the procedure may be done only after the first three months of pregnancy. Nevertheless, abortion always follows if the fetus is found to be a girl, said the doctor, who asked that his name not be used.

A clinic in Amritsar operated by a husband-wife team of physicians was reported by United News of India to have taken out billboards and run ads in movie houses for the sex determination-abortion package.

The clinic, which charges $60 for the combination, was reported to be drawing customers from all over northern India.

Two Indian women's groups have urged the Indian Medical Council to discipline doctors offering the sex determination-abortion package.

By OTTO KREISHER
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — It was a Monday morning late last year and the Senate, which had worked through the weekend on a crush of session-ending business, was trying to get itself into gear for another hectic week.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker rose to inform the senators of the schedule that lay before them. But first he told them, "Thomas Masson wrote a poem entitled 'When I Get Time,' and I could not imagine a better Monday morning than today to include it in the (Congressional) Record."

The poem was a short, whimsical ditty that ended with: "When I get time — oh glorious dream of bliss! A month, a year, ten years from now — But I can't finish this — I've no more time."

If any of the other senators took the time to read Baker's little offering it might have helped ease their transition into another long day, which is just what the Tennessee Republican is seeking to do.

In a body that is more noted of late for abuse of the English language than for its glorification, Baker has establish a mini-ritual of opening each legislative week in the Senate with a poetic offering that he has read into the Congressional Record, the official transcript of the floor proceedings.

The ritual apparently started with no fanfare last Oct. 26 when Baker interrupted his usual morning briefing at the start of the first Senate floor session of the week with the reading of a poem.

"Another week comes before the Senate and I thought that before the onslaught of appropriations bills and other issues that will make the next five days more than hectic, we pause in the throes of Emily Dickenson and her gifted works," Baker said in introducing Dickenson's "The Lonely House."

A week later there was another poetic offering and the ritual was established. On nearly every Monday since then when Baker is taking care of the routine business of the Senate, he pauses to submit a poem into the Record for the enjoyment of his colleagues and the staff.

"He thought it would be a nice way to start the week," a press aide in the majority leader's office said.

"There's no pattern to how he picks them. Sometimes if it's close to a holiday, he picks something appropriate to that," the aide said.

As an example, last Feb. 8, Baker told the Senate that the following Friday was the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln —"the first Republican president" he noted. In honor of that event he offered Vachel Lindsay's poem, "Abraham Lincoln Walks At Midnight."

Baker is a skilled photographer and has a book of his photos about to be released. But apparently he has a flare for poetry as well, judging from the way he introduces some of his poetic offerings.

On a Monday last November, Baker noted: "Leaves have now blanketed the roads, trees are left to stand on their own. November has greeted us with the warmth of spring and for those of us fortunate enough to have taken a Sunday drive yesterday, Washington was perhaps never as beautiful."

In keeping with the season, he offered Robert Penn Warren's "Fear and Trembling" in which the poet notes that "The summer, that is, approaches its final fulfillment. The forest is silent, no wind-stir, bird-note or word.

"It is time to meditate on what the season has meant."

Then again last May 10, Baker introduced Theodore Roethke's poem, "The Waking" with his own lyrical passage: "Warming, sunning, strolling, smiling, enjoying, waking."

Baker's press aide said the senator has always enjoyed poetry and his comment on introducing one poem indicated that his love for the art form was inherited from his father.

"One of my earliest literary recollections is my father's affection for the poetry of Rudyard Kipling," Baker told the Senate on Aug. 16. "One of Kipling's poems, 'If,' seems particularly appropriate today in the light of the urgent business and a fairly short time which we will have to deal with it."

This poem has a beginning and ending that are familiar to even non-poetry fans as its opens with the lines: "If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you..." and ends with: "...If you can fill the unforgiving minute with sixty seconds worth of distance run. Yours is the earth and everything that's in it, and — which is more — you'll be a man my son."

Baker's selection of poems indicates that he is partial to American poets. Offerings by Englishmen Kipling and Alfred Lord Tennyson are the only exceptions noted.

Although he appears to like the lighter and more whimsical poems, Baker also has inserted a few that could be seen as sermons to his colleagues.

An example of this is "An Ambulance or A Fence" by Joseph Malins, which tells about a group of citizens who hire an ambulance to pick up people who fall over a cliff instead of building a fence to prevent the falls.

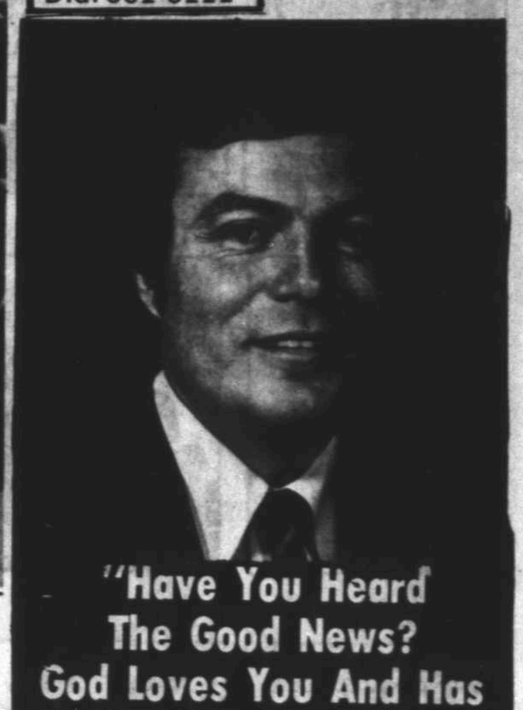
The poem, Baker told his colleagues, "tells the story about decisions and demands. It seems they never let us be."

A key line in the poem goes:

"Then an old sage remarked, it's a marvel to me,
"That people give far more attention
"To repairing results than to stopping the cause
"When they'd much better aim at prevention."

But Baker's comments on the floor and the peaceful nature of most of the poems he offers seems to follow a belief that a rhyme in time saves the mind.

"Another week comes before the Senate and I thought that before the onslaught of appropriations bills and other issues that will make the next five days more than hectic, we pause" for another of Baker's poems.



"Have You Heard The Good News? God Loves You And Has A Plan For Your Life..."

It's no Micky Mouse operation

CASSELBERRY, Fla. (AP) — The big black cat patrolling the two-story warehouse is in charge of keeping out every mouse but one: Mickey.

Mickey Mouse is everywhere in Lou Bauerle's storage depot. Mickey's face is on drinking mugs, spoons, inflatable toys, puzzles, pencils, squeaky dolls, postcards, games and pennants.

Other Disney characters, including Pluto, Donald Duck and Jiminy Cricket, also adorn all kinds of products.

The warehouse, a distributor of Florida souvenirs and carnival paraphernalia, supplies Walt Disney-inspired toys to gift stores, motel lobbies, drugstores and novelty shops.

Bauerle is a middleman who funnels goods from the scores of manufacturers of Disney-licensed products to the retail outlets.

"We're heavy into Mickey Mouse stuff because of our locale," Bauerle says.

But Mickey Mouse is big business all over.

"Anything Disney can put their name on, they'll put their name on," says Dave Davis, a part-owner of Davic Distributors Inc. "For everything that Disney has, they've got a company that makes it."

Walt Disney Productions licenses manufacturers to produce 165 different items with its characters, stories and songs.

The company's character-merchandising department grossed $30.56 million in 1981, according to Disney's annual report.

Manufacturers usually apply to Disney Productions for one-year licenses to produce trademark items, says Tom DeStasio, Disney manager of licensing for the Eastern United States.

Disney conducts a thorough investigation of the applicant-company and the proposed product before granting production rights. The manufacturer ships the items directly to distributors such as Davis and Bauerle.

Distributors mark up prices 25 percent, and retailers double or quadruple those, Davis says.

"You can't work on a 10 percent markup. You can't drive the truck up the street on that," he says.

Florida's Disney World and California's Disneyland also enter into agreements with manufacturers to produce products sold exclusively at the theme parks.

"We try to keep a fairly sizable number of items here that aren't available anywhere else," says Disney World spokesman Charles Ridgway.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, August 29, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Ingrid Bergman, Isabel Sanford (Louise on TV's "The Jeffersons"), Elliott Gould and movie director William Friedkin were born on this date. Although you are a secret worrier, you have little to fear in the months ahead. Good fortune smiles on you in both business and romance. Go ahead and form a new partnership. If certain family members trouble you with their impulsive behavior, other relatives are working behind the scenes to aid your career. Your sincere desire to be of service keeps your clients or customers coming back. Someone influential shows more and more confidence in your abilities. Confide your hopes to mate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Complete old projects rather than starting new ones. Logic is the key to patching up your differences with family member. Deception could lead to disillusionment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get an opportunity to travel today. Heed loved one's plea for privacy. Do not overreact to a piece of confidential news.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Loved one causes confusion by saying one thing, doing another. Win family members' approval by adopting more of a live-and-let-live attitude.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An excellent day for recreation, meditation and romance. Joint finances get a boost from real estate investments. Keep expenses down by seeking free outdoor entertainment.

LEO (July 23-Sept. 22): Vacation trips enjoy favorable influences. Ignore gossip. A real estate investment could prove highly profitable. Join a special club or study group.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A garden party is a fun way to entertain a large gathering. Express your views to family members but avoid controversial topics in group situations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A long-distance phone call brings glad tidings. You feel better about your long-range prospects. A newspaper article or new friend gives you a money-making idea.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Try your hand at a popular form of creative self-expression. Recreational activities that help improve your appearance are especially gratifying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Postponed travel plans can now be successfully reactivated. Aim as high in your personal relationships as you do in business. Be willing to accept new family responsibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It pays to look good. Think about spending money on home improvements. Do not sign any papers until you have studied them and checked with a lawyer.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb. 18): Call or visit friends in a nearby city. Placing all of your financial eggs in another's care is not a good idea. Reserve some time for romance this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You get a lucky break, thanks to a chance encounter at a social event. Show loved ones how much they mean to you. Drop by for a visit and take a gift.

"QUALITY HOME FURNISHINGS FOR LESS"

Aztec exhibit suggests excavation site

Even the design of the installation suggests an excavation site, with sloping cutout walls, angled perspectives and narrow galleries.

The exhibition is made up of more than 100 artifacts from the site of the Templo Mayor, the great temple that was the single most important ceremonial structure of the Aztec empire, and which is at present being carefully dug out in the heart of the huge modern metropolis of Mexico City.

On show here are sculpted works, ceramics and jewelry, all in a marvelously well-preserved condition. Exhibits range from the massive Coyolxauhqui Stone and decorated human skulls to delicate pearly miniature fishes and greenstone frogs.

THE PRESENT EXCAVATIONS in Mexico City began four years ago with the dramatic discovery of the Coyolxauhqui Stone — at night, by accident, by power-company workers digging a hole for voltage transformers.

The site of the temple had been obscure for centuries. Its foundations had been laid at the beginnings of the Aztec empire in the mid-14th century in the Aztec capital, Mexico-Tenochtitlan, over whose ruins Mexico City was built following the arrival of the Spanish conquistadors in 1519.

Tenochtitlan was destroyed during the final struggle between the Aztecs and the Spanish and the Templo Mayor was almost completely razed. For three centuries all traces of it were lost. Then by chance discoveries here and there the site was relocated, and some intermittent excavation began.

THE FINDING OF the Coyolxauhqui Stone spurred the present wholesale excavation. Later buildings which had covered up the temple have been demolished, and all four of the temple's sides have been cleared. It's evident that there were at least seven major stages in the temple's construction, probably as successive rulers built ever-larger structures over the existing ones. The final top one was the one destroyed by the Spanish, but earlier ones survived and have yielded a wealth of finds, a sampling of which make up this exhibition.

An immediate eye-catcher is a cast of the great Coyolxauhqui Stone itself — a 10-foot-wide, 1-foot-thick oval monument, beautifully carved in dramatic relief showing the dismembered body of the evil Coyolxauhqui, sister of the god Huitzilopochtli.

Three other spectacular exhibits are a trio of sculpted stone standard bearers, more than 6 feet tall, crude, menacing figures with fierce black obsidian and white shell eyes.

THE MANY CHAMBERS filled with offerings to Aztec gods found around the Coyolxauhqui Stone were an unexpectedly rich and illuminating source of treasures.

The offerings included images of deities, heavy stone and ceramic vessels, miniature objects, figurines, masks and sacrificial remains. Many of them, especially the masks, came from distant parts of the empire and some were already treasured antiques for the Aztecs.

Among the most charming offerings are the miniatures and jewelry, in alabaster, greenstone, mother-of-pearl and obsidian. There's an obsidian duck-head necklace; another four-strand necklace of tiny fishes, frogs, human faces and shells in mother-of-pearl, greenstone and gold; and miniature boats in greenstone and white stone, with oars and harpoon.

THE MASKS AND SKULLS are a dramatic and somber contrast. There are decorated human skulls, carved stone skulls, and handsome greenstone masks with inlaid eyes of obsidian and shell.

Stone and alabaster are fashioned into images of gods, prominently the rain god, Tlaloc, and an unnamed, horned god with two protuberant teeth. Gods and goddesses are also represented in ceramic effigy vessels — they have expressive features and elaborate headdress, and some are painted with still radiant colors.

Several funerary urns are on show. Two in orange-colored ceramic are outstandingly attractive, decorated with perfectly preserved sculpted relief designs. The remains they contained are thought to have been those of Montezuma I, who died in 1469.

Controversial book waits 30 years for Florida distribution

LIVE OAK, Fla. (AP) — Out of the segregated South of the 1950s there arose a story this town is likely never to forget — a tale of murder, of power and corruption, and of interracial passion and prejudice.

"Ruby McCollum: The Woman in the Suwannee County Jail" was the story of a wealthy black woman who gunned down a prominent white doctor with whom she claimed to have had an affair and how she fared in a justice system controlled by a shocked white society.

So scandalous was its portrait of injustice in the county, bordered on three sides by the river made famous by Stephen Foster, that author William Bradford Huie asked his publishers not to sell the book in Florida.

Huie's version of the murder of Dr. C.L. Adams is being mass-distributed for the first time in the state in a serialization by the Lake City Reporter, a New York Times Co.-owned newspaper 25 miles away in another county.

"IT IS 'THE' TOPIC in Suwannee County right now," said Doug Udell, owner of a small grocery store in Live Oak's black community. "I wish I had about 500 copies of the book. I could make a lot of money fast."

Others believe the story is better left untold. "Most of the people around here don't think the book was true," said Police Chief Jack Garrett. "It was written to sell."

But Brad Rogers, associate editor of the Reporter, said the book was the only one that Huie, a liberal journalist from Alabama, never made money on. His other works include "The Americanization of Emily," "The Execution of Private Slovik" and "The Revolt of Mamie Stover."

"He just didn't think justice had been served," Rogers said.

"He was the forerunner of the Renaissance redneck of the Deep South," said Don Caldwell, publisher of the Lake City newspaper. "He listened to a different drummer."

LEROY ADAMS WAS RIDING the crest of political power, newly elected to the state Senate, when he was shot four times on a Sunday morning in his office by Ruby McCollum, the wife of a reputed gambling kingpin known as "Bolita Sam."

It was said at the time that Mrs. McCollum owed a medical bill and there had been an argument. A $100 bill was found clutched in the doctor's hand.

But when Mrs. McCollum said on the witness stand that she bore a child by Adams, that line of questioning was cut off by objections from the prosecution and sustained by Judge Hal Adams, no relation to the doctor.

Mrs. McCollum spent two years in the Suwannee County Jail awaiting the death sentence before the Florida Supreme Court reversed her conviction on a technicality. Then she was sent to the state mental hospital at Chattahoochee. She spent alomost 20 years there.

She was released to her family in 1973 and placed in a foster home in Silver Springs a few years later. She is still living, but reportedly has no memory of the events chronicled by Huie.

INTRIGUED BY THE FACT that Judge Adams would allow no reporters to talk to Mrs. McCollum, Huie began delving into the story and its principals, including many prominent citizens.

Huie's work, in which he lanced the reputation of Dr. Adams, won him no friends in Live Oak. Once Judge Adams jailed him for contempt and ordered him never to return to the state.

In the introduction to his book in 1956, Huie said he hoped for "tribunals other than those on the Suwannee" if any more legal battles were fought.

"So, sadly, I have asked the publishers not to sell this book through Florida stores," Huie said. "If a Florida bookseller were to be sued, I would be expected to assist in his defense. Being presently in contempt of court in the State of Florida, I would be in a poor position to do this."

Some folks drove north to Valdosta, Ga., to buy the book. Udell remembers as a teen-ager getting a cousin from New Jersey to bring him a copy. It became worn out from being passed around. Libraries had the book, but it was never widely circulated.

A YEAR AGO, A GROUP in Ocala started talk of making a movie about Ruby McCollum. The local chamber of commerce opposed the idea, and quite a controversy simmered. That controversy may have helped take the edge off the current publication.

Caldwell said reaction has been mild compared to the time six years ago when the Reporter's windows were shot out after a story on a house of prostitution.

"I would say a few phone calls, people wanting to know why we're dredging this up. My answer is: It happened," said Caldwell, a Marine veteran. Mississippi-born and a descendant of four Civil War rebels, he has been called a Yankee and a communist in Lake City because of his connection to The New York Times.

"It happened and it's over and it was 30 years ago," said McCall, who like others says his opposition to the series arises from concern for the family of the late Dr. Adams, who is still revered in Live Oak.

AMONG THEM IS Billy Jernigan, whose father married Adams' widow.

"My people know her (Ruby's) people. I'm sure they feel the same way I do. I just wish they would leave it alone," Jernigan said.

McCall and Chief Garrett suggested the Reporter is printing the story to gain circulation in Live Oak.

Caldwell acknowledged circulation has increased. The newspaper's daily circulation is 7,300, with about 1,800 rack sales normal. Since the series began, rack sales are up 300-400, says circulation manager Ken Smith.

"But being an editorial person, circulation was of secondary consideration," Caldwell said. "It's 30 years old and now is the time to publish it."

Caldwell and Rogers hit on the idea of publishing the book last fall. The series began on Aug. 3, exactly 30 years after the murder.

"Ruby McCollum is not a story about a woman who killed a man. It's a story about human life," Rogers said.

To Udell, who as a 6-year-old watched from the bushes as his father and other blacks in neighboring Hamilton County repelled the Ku Klux Klan the weekend after the murder, Huie's book also stands as a reminder.

"There is a whole generation of people in their 30s and younger who don't know the story," Udell said. "I think this book can remind people there is a certain amount of injustice."

Local oilman appointed to Rice board of trustees

From staff and wire reports

Cox, a Midland oilman, is the first trustee to be chosen from outside the Houston area since the school's 1891 charter was amended last May to allow other Texans to serve on the seven-member board.

A 1945 graduate, Cox served on the university's board of governors from 1977 until 1981.

The university's founder, William Marsh Rice, ordered that "any trustee who may be elected or appointed to fill a vacancy in the Board of Trustees shall be an inhabitant of Houston, Texas."

But last May, the university received a state court's permission to amend the charter so that as many as three of the seven trustees may be appointed regardless of where they live.

Edison aide designed AC motor

In 1888 Nikola Tesla, a Croatian who had worked under Thomas A. Edison, devised the alternating-current or induction motor, a revolutionary power device. It was cleaner, safer and far easier to use than steam.

Jordan's Hussein performs high-wire act

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The war in Lebanon leaves Jordan's King Hussein where he's been for much of his 30-year rule, performing a delicate high-wire act over the turbulent Middle East.

On one hand, he faces increased pressure from Jordan's Palestinian majority — 72 percent of its two-million-plus population — for action to recover land lost to Israel.

"If no solution to the Palestinian problem is reached soon, something dreadful will happen," says Maher Irsheid, a Palestinian who lives here and on a farm in the West Bank.

On the other, there is the lesson of Lebanon — allowing guerrillas to operate from Jordan could open Hussein's country to Israeli reprisals.

"The government is well aware of these dangers and will try its best to be iron-handed," said Ahmed Eytoum, director-general of press and information.

Technically, Jordan is not one of the Arab countries providing new homes for Palestinian guerrillas from Beirut. The 1,300 members of the Palestine Liberation Army whose arrival here is to be completed over the weekend were already based in Jordan.

They are part of the Badr force, one of four brigades which make up the PLA, the military arm of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The others are the Hittin soldiers based in Syria, the Egypt-commanded Ain Jalout brigade and the Iraq-based soldiers of the Qadiseyeh brigade.

Since September 1970 when Hussein's Bedouin army crushed guerrilla forces in Jordan at a cost of 20,000 lives, Palestinians have been forbidden to attack Israel from Jordanian soil.

The PLA fighters are considered to be part of the regular army. They live at a Jordanian army camp and are under the control of Jordanian authorities.

"We have rejected the principle of setting up guerrilla organizations in Jordan," Eytoum said. "The PLA members are under our control, and they work for the interests of Jordan."

The PLA unit was set up in 1974, and since then, there appear to have been no problems.

"Everybody knows the limits," observes Mahmoud Sherif, editor of the Amman Arabic daily Ad-Dustour. "It cannot be otherwise. September 1970 is a sad memory in the minds of Jordanians."

But the June 6 Israeli invasion of Lebanon presented a challenge to the delicate agreement.

Hussein's response was to permit the PLA unit to go to Beirut and to provide military hardware. It was not as strong a step as some here might have wished, but it was more than the Palestinians got from some other Arab governments.

Arab reticence to help the PLO is a potentially explosive issue.

"Lebanon exposed the failures of the regimes," said one Arab diplomat who asked not to be identified. "Their inaction will strengthen the radicals. Every Arab state will be called to account. They will pay for their inaction sooner or later. Don't think that the calm you are seeing now will last."

The calm that prevails in Jordan is almost universally attributed here to the leadership of Hussein, 46, who celebrated the 30th anniversary of his accession to the throne Aug. 11.

The British-educated monarch inherited a fractious kingdom, weakened by blood feuds and tribal rivalries.

In the early years of his reign he survived numerous assassination attempts — shootings, bombings and even acid placed in his nose drops — and several coup attempts attributed to followers of then-Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, an arch-rival.

In 1967, Israel captured the West Bank of the Jordan River and Arab east Jerusalem from Jordan.

Since then, Hussein has amassed strong support from the army, gained the assistance of tribal leaders, attracted aid and backing from the West and other Arab states. Recently he has diversified his arms sources, buying Soviet missiles.

Though a moderate voice in Arab politics, he remains a forceful advocate of Palestinian rights.

"He is a symbol of stability," said a Palestinian from the West Bank living here. "No Jordanian could replace him."

A former army pilot agrees.

"I don't know how he does it. He has a magic wand, I think. He must have, to unite Jordanians," he said. "Jordan is really a boiling pot, and the king is the lid."

Irsheid said the Palestinian community in Jordan has been radicalized. "Until six months ago, I was one of the people who said let's work through U.N. Resolution 242 — calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories and security guarantees. Maybe there are some moderate Israelis. But with the Lebanese invasion and polls showing (Israeli Prime Minister Menachem) Begin as popular as ever, what's the point?

"Lebanon has demonstrated beyond any doubt that letting the Palestinians launch a few Katyusha rockets at Israel would only give Jordan to the Israelis," he said. "But in the face of what has happened in Lebanon, Jordan has no choice but to strengthen its defenses."

More than 100 Poles arrested in outbreaks of violence

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish television on Friday reported outbreaks of violence in three cities, with more than 100 people arrested and at least seven policemen injured.

The report came as the martial law regime accused Solidarity of seeking an armed uprising and Warsaw's fugitive union leader said Solidarity's future hinges on protests next week.

Police in Lodz, central Poland's textile capital, detained more than 100 people during a disturbance involving about 800 Solidarity sympathizers at the city's bus depot Thursday, Polish TV said, showing footage of their summary trials in an apparent attempt to frighten other would-be demonstrators.

There were also reports of a massive display of police force Thursday night in Gdansk and in Szczecin, where a top Communist Party leader earlier in the day had lashed out at the union, claiming it was seeking armed rebellion. Details were sketchy, however.

The two Baltic ports were paralyzed during August 1980 strikes that launched Solidarity, the only independent union in the Soviet bloc.

Fugitive Solidarity leader Zbigniew Bujak, in a statement made available here Friday, vowed that protests planned for Tuesday, the suspended union's second anniversary, must go ahead despite the possibility of "victims."

The so-called Gdansk accords that ended the strike and recognized the union were signed Aug. 31. The union went far beyond being a trade union, demanding and gaining numerous social and political reforms with strikes and threatened walkouts by its 9.5 million members.

Two years after those agreements, Solidarity appears to be fighting for its life as government and party officials fire successive attacks at its leaders in a propaganda campaign that recalled threats leading up to the martial law crackdown Dec. 13.

"Calls for demonstrations on Aug. 31 and the demonstrations themselves are meant as a preparatory phase to precede an all-out strike, which in turn would precede an armed uprising if that is what the overthrow of the socio-political system of poeple's Poland requires," said Kazinierz Barcikowski, member of the Communist Party's Politburo.

Barcikowski, chief negotiator of strike-ending agreements two years ago, blamed the United States, Radio Free Europe and Solidarity extremists for inciting trouble. He spoke at the tension-filled Szczecin shipyards on Thursday.

Officials in Szczecin fired 39 workers after protests on Aug. 18, and have threatened to close the shipyard.

Bujak, leader of the Warsaw chapter of Solidarity who has eluded authorities since martial law was imposed, said underground union activists are still calling for protests Tuesday although "we are aware the decision can result in victims.

Iraqi jets swoop down over Khomeini's headquarters

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraqi fighter jets swooped low over Tehran and the religious headquearters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Friday in a threatening display of airpower, while Iran claimed it downed an Iraqi helicopter gunship in border fighting.

Iraq's military command said an unspecified number of its warplanes flew over the Iranian capital and the nearby city of Qum, seat of the Iranian religious leader, "to prove to the Iranian rulers, who are deep in empty arrogance, that our air force is capable of reaching any target inside Iran."

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the Iraqi jets flew low over the capital, shattering the sound barrier, but that anti-aircraft ground fire "prevented them from hitting any target." It said Iranian pilots intercepted the planes and drove them away from Qum, as well as the city of Ilam, 60 miles southwest of Kermanshah.

Iran and Iraq have been at war for two years for control of the Shatt al-Arab estuary — Iraq's sole access to the Persian Gulf.

The Iraqis "bombed the devastated city of Qasr-e-Shirin and the nearby town of Sumar three times" during the day, Iran said. Qasr-e-Shirin commands the main highway to Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

Dog owners often need psychology

Copley News Service

Dogs that chew up our underwear, bark at everyone, and just act growly probably can't handle the fast pace of modern life and could use a bit of dog psychology.

First, though, you have to straighten yourself out.

That's the advice of C.W. (Bill) Meisterfeld, a Petaluma, Calif., dog trainer and psychologist.

"Anyone who has a neurotic dog very likely brought the problem on himself," said Meisterfeld, who counsels canines and their owners when the pet-master relationship goes awry.

"Which is pretty often in this fast-paced society," Meisterfeld said. "These days, people get a dog, teach it, maybe, how to sit up, then ignore the animal and wonder what went wrong."

A happy dog owner, said Meisterfeld, owner of the Meisterfeld Ranch Training Kennels in Petaluma, knows how to relate to the dog, exercises authority over it and treats it with respect.

That's also the opinion of Fon Johnson, who has been an animal trainer-behaviorist for 35 years and operates Fon Jon Boarding and Training Kennels in San Diego.

"If you don't want problems with your dog, there has to be an understanding," said Johnson. "The dog lives with you. You don't live with the dog."

Nine out of 10 times, a problem dog failed to learn that he must conform with his owner's life, said Johnson.

"The owner has neglected to train the dog properly," Johnson said. "It's a lack of education that does the damage. Authority must be established over the dog."

Some dogs — those especially high strung — will have greater difficulty adjusting, Johnson said. They require a little extra work, care and, as any dog, discipline.

Dr. Dennis Fetko of Dog Tutors in San Diego, also an animal behaviorist, says 90 percent of dog owners do not know how to care for their dogs or understand their dogs.

"They are terribly inconsistent with their dogs," said Fetko. "And in so doing, they create anxiety and stress in the animal."

One of the worst ways to treat a dog is to isolate him outdoors. A dog is a pack animal. A social animal.

"He needs to share in the family environment of his master," Fetko said. "Instead, he's isolated. When he develops a tremendous amount of unwanted behavior because he's unhappy, the owners punish him in addition to putting him in isolation."

Meisterfeld said he turned these problem dogs into well-behaved animals:

—A mean little mutt that tore up the interior of his owner's Rolls-Royce when left alone in it.

—A sneaky brute that bared his teeth and snapped at its owner and at strangers.

—A dog that went limp when his master tried to walk him.

Ancient order still follows its code of caring for sick

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

ROME — The Palazzo Malta, a renaissance structure at No. 68 Via Condotti, is the world's smallest sovereign entity.

In the name of the palace's owners, a few coins are minted that no one spends, stamps are printed that no one sticks on letters and passports are issued for the 41 ambassadors who are sent abroad.

The Palazzo Malta is the territory of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, a chivalric and religious order renowned as a fighting force in the 11th-Century crusades.

The order, also called the Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem, of Rhodes and of Malta, is the last of the chivalric orders that undertook the Crusades, later becoming a major naval power operating out of bases on Rhodes and Malta.

IT WOULD SEEM an anachronism in the modern world were it not for its modern crusade — looking after the world's afflicted.

Long since severed from any connection with Malta, the Mediterranean island group it once ruled, or with fighting on land and sea, the order now operates worldwide, running or supporting scores of hospitals, leprosariums and health clinics in places as far removed as Los Angeles (the free clinic at St. Vincent's Hospital) and Beirut (dispensaries in Moslem and Christian sectors of the beleaguered city).

The order's sovereignty resides in the palace on the Via Condotti, a few hundred yards from the Spanish steps and less than a stone's throw from Gucci, Bulgari and Rome's other arbiters of high fashion.

Unlike its elegant neighbors, the order has extraterritoriality, gained irrevocably in 1310 when the knights, defeated in a Crusade to keep the Holy Land, conquered the island of Rhodes as a base from which to fight on against the Moslems, thereby achieving nation status.

Today the cool, frescoed corridors of the palace provide the only ready testimony of the order's martial glories, with portraits of victorious knights and sea captains, uniforms, medals, swords and helmets to remind visitors of the distant past.

The eight-pointed Maltese cross (representing the eight Beatitudes) also flies over the more pastoral but equally sovereign Villa Magistrale on Rome's Aventine Hill, through whose gateway keyhole uncounted tourists have peered at a perfectly framed St. Peter's Square and Basilica not far away. It was there in July that the knights provided a rare display, celebrating their national day — St. John's Day — with a diplomatic reception for the 41 nations, including the Vatican, with which the order has formal diplomatic relations.

WHILE THE RECEPTION brought out all the pomp and ceremony that has been traditional for ages with the scarlet-uniformed knights, the order in recent years has relegated such trappings to a lesser place in its concerns.

"We are 20th-Century crusaders," Msgr. Antonio Jannone, press officer of the order of 10,000 religious and lay members, said, pointing out that international health care and relief functions, and not ceremonies and titles, are the main preoccupation of today's knights.

How the Knights of Malta came to fly their flag over the palace on Via Condotti is a story that reflects much of the courage and religious devotion of the past millenium, and much of the moral and political blindness as well.

According to Knight Cyrille Toumanoff, a retired Georgetown University historian who now serves as historian-in-residence here, the order was started by Italian merchants who founded a hospital in Jerusalem to care for sick and poor pilgrims to the Holy Land.

At first the monastic order focused only on the care of the sick at St. John of Jerusalem Hospital, calling themselves "hospitallers," as they still do.

BY 1136, HOWEVER, the need for protection of the sick and the pilgrims from marauding bands of Moslems and the need to join the battles of the Crusades forced a change in the order, which joined the Knights Templars and the Teutonic Knights in attempting to seize and hold the Holy Land.

From the time their status as a religious order was confirmed by papal bull in 1113 until the last battle of the Crusades in the Holy Land, at Acre in 1291, the knights were showered with gifts of land and other donations, and took recruits only from noble houses, beginning a tradition that was broken only in modern times.

Today, according to Toumanoff, only about 42 percent of the members of the order come from noble families, although the taste for nobility of the remainder is satisfied by simply joining the order, which enobles them within its own ranks.

Proud of their tradition, their possessions and their mission, the knights fell back from Acre to Cyprus. Then, vowing to become seafarers and suppress the Moslems in the Mediterranean, they seized Rhodes and acquired the sovereignty they still have.

For more than two centuries the Knights of Rhodes, as they were then known, rode high as one of the great naval powers of the Mediterranean, four times driving off Moslem fleets trying to besiege them on their island nation.

BUT IN 1522, Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent struck with 250 ships and 250,000 men. Although the knights held out against the onslaught for six months, they were finally forced to surrender on Christmas Eve of that year. The 600 surviving knights and 6,000 soldiers left Rhodes in search of a new home.

After wandering through Greece, Italy and France for almost eight years, the knights won the "sovereign fief" of Malta as well as Tripoli in what is now Libya, although they lost the latter a few years later.

In Malta the knights regrouped their naval strength, fortified the island against attack and built another hospital. Now, for the first time called the Knights of Malta, they occupied the strategic position that would keep the Ottoman Empire out of the western Mediterranean. Frequently they were called upon to defend against Moslem fleets.

The knights' supremacy in the western Mediterranean lasted more than two centuries, with about as much honor paid to their hospitaller work as to their battle successes. The Sacred Infirmary of Malta, founded in 1532, had 11 wards, of which the largest was more than 500 feet long and able to house 500 patients who were served, by tradition, on solid silver. The knights felt that this befitted "our lords the sick."

With Napoleon's arrival in 1798, the knights lost their treasure and their home, and when subsequently the British took Malta from the French, the intensely religious Roman Catholic order lost all hope of returning.

BUT AMONG THE spoils of war that Napoleon did not seize was the Condotti Palace, which had been willed to the knights by a wealthy member. After a good deal of turmoil, the order finally settled there.

While the knights had lost their taste for battle during their many years of defending Malta, they never lost the sense of their first mission as hospitallers, and in the 19th Century began building the institutions that in the years since have spread throughout the world.

The knights themselves are as widely scattered, many if not most of them wealthy or comfortably retired in order to allow for the time and cost of their good works.

About 1,000 members, almost all of them laymen, are Americans, and about 300 are "dames." All are Roman Catholics, an absolute requisite for membership, and each must pass a rigorous screening before admission. Divorced or separated persons, for example, are not admitted, and it is said by the knights that any one of them who separates from or divorces his wife is honor-bound to resign.

Former OMB director Lance at home, at peace in Georgia

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — Five years after his forced departure from Washington and two years removed from a federal bank fraud trial, Bert Lance says he's prospering again and at peace on his north Georgia plantation.

The former federal budget director, once viewed by some as Jimmy Carter's "deputy president," is in control once more at the Calhoun First National Bank, his springboard to political and financial power in the past.

From a secluded lakeside cottage on his property, with katydids buzzing in the pine trees and frogs jumping in the pond, Lance runs an international financial consulting business that he says is doing well.

He talks fondly of Georgia politics and suggests he may seek a U.S. Senate seat in 1986.He still talks of writing a book about the "powercrats" in Washington, but he adds: "Frankly, I haven't been disciplined like Jimmy Carter in sitting down and typing it all out."

AND IF THERE is bitterness for the siege of investigations that drove him from power and into a federal courtroom from which he emerged with acquittals, Lance conceals it behind a philosophy of calm tempered with religion.

"I've gotten out of the high-pressure business. I don't deal in high pressure any longer. I had to be the first one at work and the last one to leave. I've moved away from that. I've quit running to and fro, and I'm very much at peace. I have a lot to do, and I do it — but I don't let that become an end in itself any longer," he said.

The self-described "country banker," whose deep drawl matches a strapping frame, was one of Carter's closest personal and political friends when the former Georgia governor nominated him to be director of the Office of Management and Budget in January 1977.

He won easy Senate confirmation, but soon found himself embroiled in a series of investigations into his banking practices both at the Calhoun National Bank and at the National Bank of Georgia, which he also headed.

After a stormy summer of Senate hearings and investigative reports, Lance resigned from the government in September 1977. Nearly two years later, a federal grand jury in Atlanta indicted Lance and three associates on charges of bank fraud and bank fraud conspiracy.

THE CHARGES INVOLVED allegations of false statements and false entries and misapplication of loans relating to hundreds of overdrafts and loans totaling $20 million to the four men, their friends and their families.

Lance insisted throughout a 16-week trial in 1980 that he had done nothing wrong. The jury acquitted him of nine of the charges and said it could not agree on three others. The Justice Department moved later to dismiss the remaining three counts.

"I've gotten through it. I don't dwell on the past. I think about the future instead of being at all interested in the past, except for the fact that it was an experience I had. I grew from that experience," Lance said last week in an interview.

He said the experience forced him to undergo a profound re-evaluation of what he considered important, and made him learn patience.

"I've always been very impatient about things, and things have to happen yesterday to have been beneficial," he said.

"Well, when you get into that sort of circumstance, things don't happen like that. You march to somebody else's orders. You obey somebody else's schedule. So I gained a great deal of patience. I had to wrestle with that, pretty frankly, but I've learned that now."

"AND I'VE LEARNED to put things in what I believe to be the proper priority...I've learned how important it is to watch things grow, and I know that there's a big world out there and God's in charge, and no matter how we strive to change things, it's really going to happen according to His plan and His order instead of what mine may be," Lance continued.

Home for Lance, 51, and wife LaBelle, is a sprawling compound just outside the city limits of Calhoun, about 70 miles northwest of Atlanta. From a home on a hill, he can see the rugged Cohutta Mountain range on a clear day. The converted cottage that serves as his office lies below his home.

His oldest son, Tram, 30, works with Lance on his private business interests. Son David, 27, is vice president of the Calhoun bank. Stuart, 22, lives out of state and the youngest son, Beverly, 21, graduated this summer from Emory University.

Lance says he travels extensively in his business dealings, with "three or four trips to Europe" and "a trip all the way around the world" this year alone. But he allows only the barest glimpse of what that involves.

"A financial consultant — I think that's a good description," he said. Lance said he focuses on foreign investment in the United States and on "certain venture capital opportunities."

HE HAS HAD TIES in the past to Arab oil and other interests — a Saudia Arabian businessman, Ghaith Pharoan, bought Lance's shares of stock in the National Bank of Georgia — but he said the interests he represents today are not exclusively Mideast.

Lance had promised a Senate committee he would sell his $2.8 million worth of stock in the National Bank of Georgia, but had to ask for an extension of the proposed sale, saying he faced a severe loss.

"I've gotten to where I don't talk about my business interests or involvement because...I've just decided that ain't anybody's business but my own," he said. "I'm now a private citizen, and my business is my business. I think that's pretty much the way it ought to be, to tell you the truth."

Lance says he admires the way the Reagan administration has dealt with such matters. "They haven't attached the same importance to it that the Carter administration did," he said.

Although Lance's legal defense bills during the investigation and trial exceeded $1 million, they were paid by the two banks he headed. Calhoun First National agreed to pay $504,500 and the National Bank of Georgia paid $477,000.

Lance says he is not bitter about the past five years, but continues to insist, as he has before, that the system is awry.

"I THINK THAT what happens in instances such as this — and there haven't been many like it — is that it sort of grows, like a snowball grows if you roll it down the hill through snow, and it picks up whatever may be in its path. This group gets interested, this agency gets interested, this medium gets interested, and so on. And they're afraid of being accused later on of not being diligent in their pursuit, and I think that's what happened in my case," he said.

"I was the person that was perceived by the press to be closest to the president, and therefore it's like a running back in football — you don't tackle the man carrying the ball, you go after the man clearing the way," Lance continued.

"If it hadn't been for the position I had been in, I think anybody in the Justice Department who looked at the record would have never asked for an indictment. There was no crime committed," he said.

Lance contended government lawyers were afraid to stop the investigation "because the Washington Post would say, 'My, this is a cover-up. Somebody's been fixed.' "

But, he added, "The system ought not to be where you can't do what's right because of some fear that somebody will say there was something else to it. The system ought to be such that you can do what's right because it's right."

Despite his past problems with politics, Lance remains an avid observer of Georgia's. There had been speculation that he might seek the governor's mansion this year, but he didn't.

LANCE MADE AN unsuccessful bid for governor in 1974, but polls commissioned by prospective gubernatorial candidates this year consistently showed him to be a popular figure in Georgia.

He has said he may challenge U.S. Sen. Mack Mattingly, a Republican, in 1986.

"That's a long time off...you don't know what may happen between now and then. You don't know who the cast of players may be then, so you just, I think, keep your options open," he said.

Author's spy background adds to novel's intrigue

NEW YORK (AP) — When James Carroll decided to become a full-time writer, he knew he would write a book about espionage. And yet, the 39-year-old author maintains that his new novel, "Family Trade," a sweeping tale about the amorality of international intrigue, turned out to be "a surprise."

His father was an FBI agent during World War II with a background of counterintelligence. In 1948, when the U.S. Air Force needed someone to establish a counterintelligence agency, his father was loaned to the military and became director of the Office of Special Investigations. When John F. Kennedy wanted a new intelligence agency founded as a reaction to the Bay of Pigs, Carroll's father stepped in, creating the Defense Intelligence Agency.

"I was conscious of my dad's job," Carroll says. "But my father considered himself honor-bound...he didn't talk about it."

Which is how the hero's father in "Family Trade" behaves. But, claims Carroll, he never sensed that his own father was in danger and the inner anguish and anxiety of his hero, Jake McKay, "is a product of an overactive imagination. I was never afraid for my dad."

Still, while he was growing up, the government was much like the church, "something to be revered." Carroll even worked summers as an FBI clerk. But instead of government, Carroll chose the church.

He began college at Georgetown University — where the hero of "Family Trade" is enrolled — and transferred to the seminary, completing his studies for the priesthood at St. Paul's College in Washington. Ordained in 1969, he spent five years as Catholic chaplain at Boston University and was known as an anti-war activist.

He began his writing career as playwright-in-residence at the Berkshire Theater Festival in 1974 — the year he began the process of leaving the priesthood, a decision he declines to discuss.

Memories of his adolescence are strong in his book, which begins in the 1960s.

"The world was a scarier place," he recalls. "When I was growing up we really thought there would be a war. Now, we're afraid there will be a war, but know there won't be."

Since Berlin was the "fundamental place of the East-West conflict," it holds a central place in the book. Carroll remembers with a shudder his adolescent trip to East Berlin, before the Wall. He had a movie camera and tried to sneak some pictures from under the train's mandated window shade. He was caught by the guards, and an American officer destroyed his film. He and his friends were convinced "we'd be hauled off to Siberia."

They weren't, but Carroll had to return to Berlin later to authenticate "Family Trade." He reacted to the Wall much as his hero does. He says, "It's a grim spectacle, a shocking difference between East and West." Says his hero, "I'd have been disappointed if it wasn't hideous."

Doing research is essential for Carroll, who traveled to Ireland to get background for his best seller, "Mortal Friends." Carroll, whose other books include "Fault Lines" and "Madonna Red," says, "The act of going to a place is like getting my imagination in gear. Travel makes my perceptions more active."

But he says traveling for a new novel is being put on hold due to the birth of his son this spring. The child, he says, is thriving — much like his career — in the Boston home where Carroll lives with his wife, author Alexandra Marshall and daughter Elizabeth.

CIA purchasing agent charged with stealing

ALEXANDRIA, Va (AP) — The FBI says that a CIA purchasing agent with 20 years service has been charged with stealing agency property, including sophisticated night vision equipment.

The FBI identified the suspect as Jerry Wayne Rossie of Annandale, Va. He was arrested Wednesday and ordered held in lieu of $5,000 bond by U.S. Magistrate Quin Elson of Alexandria pending further proceedings, the FBI said Thursday night.

Rossie was charged with taking "amplifiers, typewriters, tape recorders and sophisticated viewing equipment including binoculars equipped with a gyrocompass and a night viewing scope," according to the FBI.

As oil income drops, Khadafy's influence with Arabs wanes

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy, Libya's leader, has come on hard times. His huge oil income has plummeted and his dream of leading Africa and the Arab world against "Western imperialism" has lost its credibility.

Once regarded by the United States as the main paymaster of international terrorism and the most dangerous source of instability in the region, Khadafy's financial problems and diplomatic setbacks have sharply reduced his international dimension.

Yet within Libya, his personality cult continues unabated and his face and sayings decorate every wall in the nation's dusty capital.

THE WORLD OIL GLUT cut the value of Libya's petroleum exports from the 1980 high of $25 billion to an estimated $8 billion this year. For the first time since Khadafy took power in an army coup on Sept.1, 1969, the booming economy is in decline.

Rigorous austerity measures are in force and imports of virtually all consumer goods are banned. But Libya's three million inhabitants still enjoy a higher standard of living than those of most countries in the region.

The camel, once the sole means of transport in Libya's vast Sahara wilderness, is being replaced by trucks and automobiles traversing modern superhighways in the desert. Tripoli's traffic jams rival those of Rome.

Khadafy spent more than $100 million building hotels and conference halls for a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity in early August. The summit was canceled for lack of a quorum and Khadafy lost his chance to be the organization's chairman and Africa's spokesman for at least 12 months.

Twenty-two African countries boycotted Khadafy's long-awaited summit, dealing his international prestige a calamitous blow.

MORE AND MORE ARAB LEADERS ignore his hardline stand against Israel as irrelevant. His multi-billion-dollar, Soviet-supplied military arsenal is considered almost meaningless because, diplomats say, he has acquired four times as many MiG fighter bombers and T-72 heavy tanks as he has pilots and drivers to operate them.

When the Israeli invasion trapped the Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas in Beirut, Khadafy wrote to PLO leader Yasser Arafat urging him to commit suicide rather than surrender. The PLO responded by inviting Khadafy to lead the way.

When Khadafy offered to supply the hardware for a vast Arab army to drive Israel out of Lebanon, most Arab leaders did not even send a reply.

In the past decade, Khadafy has tried from time to time to merge Libya with all its neighbors, in pursuit of his ultimate goal of a unified all-Arab state that could use its wealth, power and resources to destroy Israel and dominate the entire region.

ALL THESE SCHEMES COLLAPSED, as did Khadafy's military interventions in Uganda, Chad and the Central African Republic. The would-be mergers with Egypt, Tunisia, Chad, Niger, Mali, Sudan and Algeria — even with distant Syria — now are forgotten.

Yet the charismatic 40-year-old Libyan leader shows no sign of discouragement. He often appears in public, smiling as broadly as ever, dressed in a variety of flamboyant uniforms, well-tailored safari suits or traditional Arab dress, his hair trimmed shorter than the Afro he wore in his heyday.

He responds eagerly to the cheers and chants of a claque of armed bodyguards, many of them women, that surrounds him wherever he goes. Bystanders join in the cheering.

But diplomats say there is no reliable way to gauge his real popularity. Few complaints are heard. Government spies are everywhere. One widely displayed quotation from the "Green Book" has it that "democracy is the supervision of the people by the people."

THE SHELVES OF TRIPOLI'S state-owned supermarkets are filled with low-quality products from the Soviet bloc. Gone are the days when the private merchants stocked every conceivable luxury for wealthy Libyans and foreign oil workers.

Most storefronts in the city center are boarded up. A decree last year banned private commerce as anti-revolutionary. Long lines form in the multi-story supermarkets for bread, milk, electric light bulbs or flashlight batteries. Libya has to import most of its food and has virtually no domestic industry other than oil.

The system of government by state-appointed Revolutionary Committees is based on Khadafy's "Third Universal Theory" as laid down in the Green Book. The First and Second Universal Theories, according to Khadafy, are capitalism and communism. Political parties are "a falsification of democracy." Parliamentary rule is "a form of tyranny."

ISLAM IS THE STATE RELIGION. The sale and consumption of alcohol are banned in accordance with the Koran. Only foreign diplomats can openly ignore the prohibition.

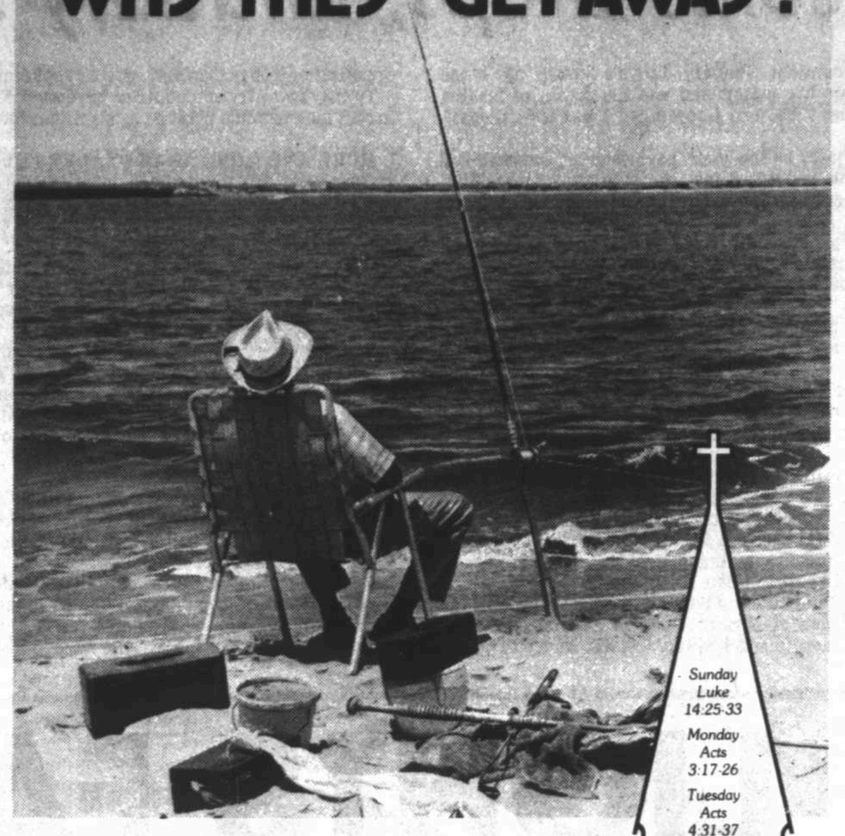
WHY THEY GET AWAY!



Fishin' is relaxin' — sometimes too relaxin'!

It's embarrassing to explain that the big one got away because you took a little nap with your rod in the sand.

There is a special worship time in the churches of our land . . . the time for parents and youngsters to keep a vital appointment with God. There's so much truth for kids to learn. And so many convictions for grown-ups to apply in every-day life.

In selecting his first disciples Jesus talked bluntly to those of us who understand fishin': He expects us to be fishers of men! Bring your children to church every week.

The Newspaper BIBLE

YOU HAVE A LOT TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Hallelujah! I want to express publicly before His people my heartfelt thanks to God for His mighty miracles. All who are thankful should ponder them with me. For His miracles demonstrate His honor, majesty, and eternal goodness.

Who can forget the wonders He performs--deeds of mercy and of grace? He gives food to those who trust Him; He never forgets His promises. He has shown His great power to His people by giving them the land of Israel, though it was the home of many nations living there. All he does is just and good, and all His laws are right, for they are formed from truth and goodness, and stand firm forever. He has paid a full ransom for His people; now they are always free to come to Jehovah (what a holy, awe-inspiring name that is.)

How can men be wise? The only way to begin is by reverence for God. For growth in wisdom comes from obeying His laws. Praise His name forever. (Psalms 111)

Thank the Lord for all the glorious things He does; proclaim them to the nations. Sing His praises and tell everyone about His miracles. Glory in the Lord; O worshipers of God, rejoice.

Search for Him and for His strength, and keep on searching! (Psalms 105:1-4)

Hallelujah! Thank you, Lord!

How good you are! Your love for us continues on forever. Who can ever list the glorious miracles of God? Who can ever praise Him half enough? (Psalms 106:1-2)

Mennonites share stark heritage

By WILLIAM C. REMPEL
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

BOGDANOVKA, Soviet Union — Spring is "mud season" in the Ukraine. Winter's reluctant retreat leaves avenues of black ooze in place of dirt roads. And lingering cold, gray skies drape the landscape like a great damp blanket.

It was on such a dreary spring morning in 1922 that my Mennonite grandparents hitched a small farm wagon to a pair of half-starved horses, put my great-grandmother aboard with the smallest children and a few belongings, including the family Bible, and walked out of this village.

Shoeless, their feet wrapped in rags, they stepped down a muddy and forbidding road leading many months later to America, the end of an emigrant's rainbow.

FOR ARON AND SUSANNA REMPEL, as for most of the 170 million people living in Russia in the years after the Bolshevik revolution, it was a time of change and uncertainty, of civil disturbances and famine, a time when survival often required extraordinary effort and good fortune.

They said farewell to friends and family on the outskirts of town that morning in 1922 — ignoring the doubts of some who warned: "You go to your death, all of you" — knowing they would never see their home again. To tearful friends, Susanna, still unaware that she was pregnant as her long journey began, said: "We will see you in heaven." And when she turned down the road with her family she never glanced back.

But two generations later I looked back, peeking into history through the stories my grandmother tells about life, death and disorder in Russia after the revolution, to see how that revolution had changed the life of one family in a remote corner of the Ukraine even as it changed the world.

AND 60 YEARS LATER, the Moscow-Zaporozhye Express carried me deep into a part of the Ukraine seldom visited by Americans, the agricultural heartland of the Soviet Union.

The train slowed its rapid pace through rolling Ukraine countryside as it approached a congested railyard. The shiny green cars of the Moscow-Zaporozhy Express eased past a team of rail workers, with a woman swinging a sledge hammer, and then snaked through a maze of tracks and switches, groaning at each slow turn.

Stained and dirty boxcars loomed along the twisting path, blocking both our view and the warm early morning sunshine that had streamed through the large compartment windows, falling on crisp white linen tablecloths and tall glasses of hot tea.

During the brutal years of civil war boxcars much like those we were passing were full of people. All across the Ukraine, railyards became impromptu refugee camps choked with families desperate for space on the next cattle car bound almost anywhere away from the fighting.

Boxcars carried Aron, Susanna and their four children along the refugee routes through strife-torn Russia, a hazardous passage that actually began in Siberia, where my grandfather had been working when the revolution began. The family was trying to return home to Bogdanovka in 1920, dodging the wildly changing fronts of the civil war, when fighting stopped their train about 200 miles short of its destination. The family was forced to camp along the tracks outside Kharkov with hundreds of other stranded travelers.

Already it had been a grueling trip, taking nearly two months to travel about 1,800 miles from the region of Omsk, east of the Ural Mountains. Along the route food was scarce and lawlessness rampant.

EARLIER, A MAN sharing their crowded boxcar was hurled out of the moving train by the group of passengers nearest him when they noticed his body was thick with tiny gray insects — lice, with bites like fire, carriers of the dreaded typhus fever.

And at one stop a crowd of refugees was transformed into a mob when a boy of about 14 was caught stealing. He was tied to a post and, before the eyes of Susanna's 10-year-old daughter, beaten to death by the crowd.

But, as they waited outside Kharkov, violence touched the family directly. Unseen assailants attacked Aron and Susanna while they slept, using chloroform to render them unconscious, and escaping with most of their belongings.

Susanna was the first to awaken, feeling nauseated from the chloroform, her cheek resting on the ground instead of the trunk that had been her pillow. She reached for a familiar object on the ground in front of her and broke into tears. It was her dental bridge, now missing its gold teeth.

"I felt so...violated. They reached even into my mouth!" she recalls decades later in her home at Reedley, Calif., still distressed at the memory. She is 91.

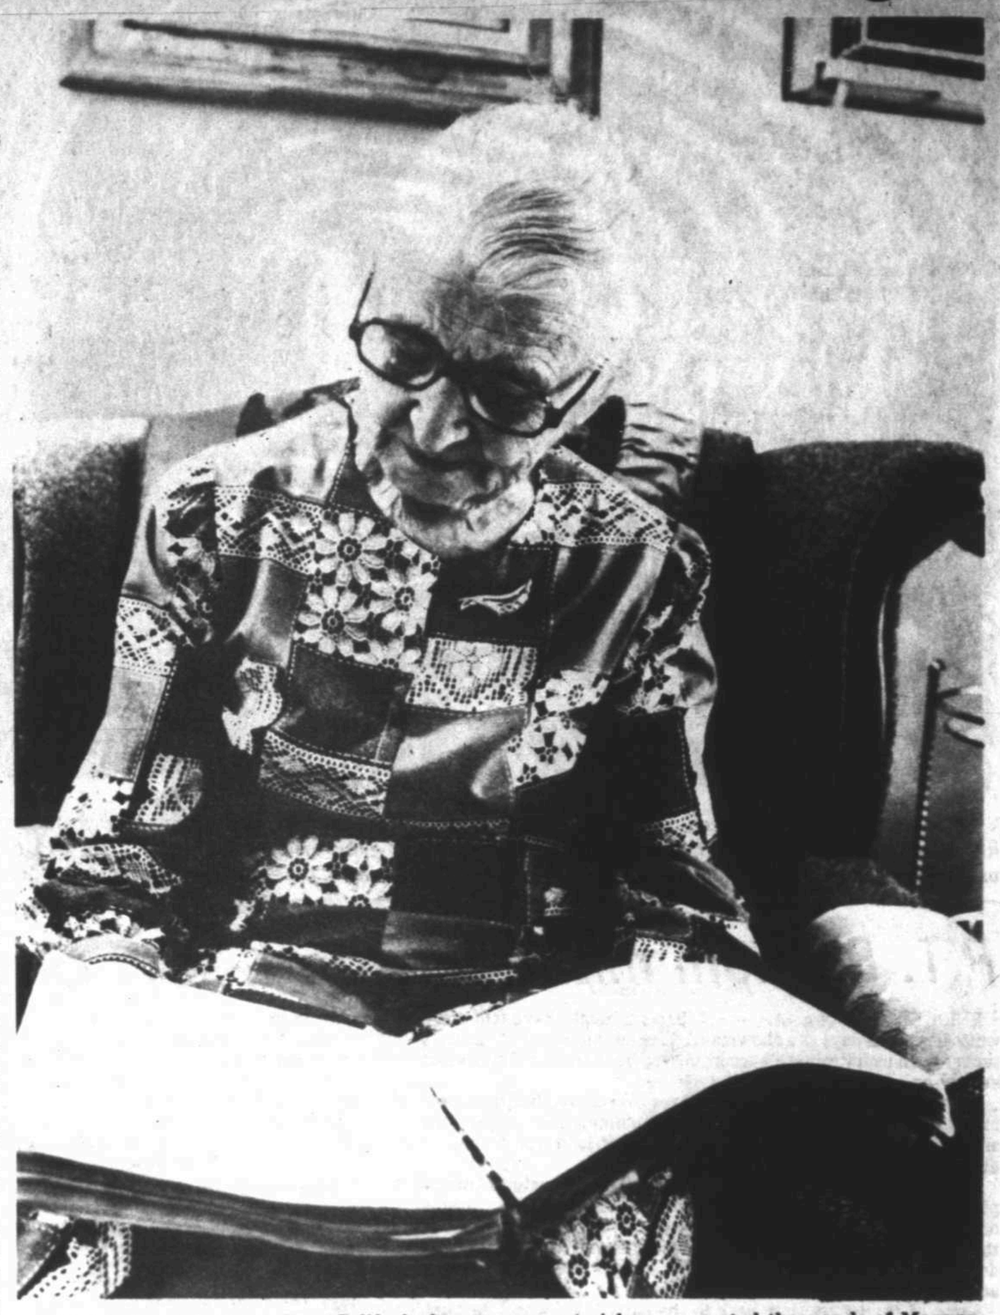
The Moscow-Zaporozhye Express pulled clear of the dingy boxcars and increased speed nearing the edge of the railyard. A sign in large raised letters, mounted on a low grassy hill, proclaimed in Russian: "Glory to the October Revolution!"

Through the windows of my compartment the Ukraine appeared to bear much resemblance to the American Midwest: rolling fields of wheat and rye, rows of vegetable crops and fruit orchards, small gentle streams and great Mississippi-like rivers such as the Dnieper. But to persecuted Mennonite farmers from northern Prussia 200 years ago, the Ukraine most resembled "the promised land."

German-speaking Mennonites were talented and prosperous farmers, but they were also pacifists in an age of military conquest and frequent European wars. Before settling in Prussia they had been killed and imprisoned throughout central Europe and particularly in Holland during the Spanish occupation.

Polish kings invited the Mennonites to farm along the Vistula River, and a large Mennonite settlement grew around Danzig, the present-day Gdansk. But, when Prussian rulers gained control of the region, pacifist beliefs were not tolerated. So, when Empress Catherine the Great sent an emissary to Danzig offering Mennonite farmers freedom of religion, self-government, cheap land and exemption from military service to come develop the great agricultural potential of the Ukraine, a mass migration of Mennonite families began.



Susanna Rempel of Reedley, Calif., looks at the German Bible she smuggled out of Russia when the Bolshevick Revolution and subsequent violence uprooted thousands of Mennonites and sent them into exile. Many subsequently settled in the United States.

The colonists settled on the banks of the Dnieper in a region once dominated by Cossacks and runaway serfs. As more arrived, they spread farther east to the peaceful Molochnaya River, creating new villages with German names, surviving hardships akin to early settlers of the American West and converting Russia's virgin land into the nation's breadbasket.

My grandparents, Aron Rempel and Susanna Krause, were descendants of those early colonists.

The Russia of the czars, however, was far from a shining example of civil liberty. It was repressive, and free speech was reserved for those who said nothing ill about the ruler.

Boarding the midnight train out of Moscow, after two days in the grim and colorless Soviet capital, I carried a burdensome sense of paranoia and suspicion into my harshly lit compartment. It had begun to grow from the earliest moments after my arrival at Moscow's Sheremetevo Airport.

At the bottom of the jet ramps, young, starched passport control officers sternly guard the entrance to the Soviet Union. Unlike the smiling hostesses of Intourist, the official tourist agency, these scowling officers can make visitors feel about as welcome as agents from the Central Intelligence Agency.

An officer in a small green booth took my passport and visa and then put me through a crude test of nerves, alternately staring at me until I had to fight blushing and then gazing at the wall as if I were on another continent. Trying to appear neither nervous nor impatient, I waited under his humorless control for nearly 10 minutes.

Finally, with the air of one separating spies from tourists he demanded, "What is your name?" as if in the long wait I might have forgotten. But, given a correct answer, he stamped my visa, and the gates of Moscow swung open

I WAD ADMITTED to a world where, in a few hours, I witnessed furtive exchanges of government-banned books; I met a Soviet citizen whose government denies him the freedom to leave the country to live with his American wife; I toured the one-room studio of an artist whose satirical work is banned from public exhibition by the state. Later, I was cautioned repeatedly against speaking freely in homes, hotels or automobiles because of police surveillance.

So, it felt good to pull out of the shadows of Kursky Station at three minutes past midnight, rolling south into a new day and into a land with fewer uniforms and more smiles.

Artash, my roommate for the first leg of the trip, began the journey in traditional Russian fashion by sharing his bottle of vodka. Because he spoke no English, I offered the only Russian toast I knew: "Mir i druzhba (peace and friendship)." Then, conversing through the use of my Berlitz phrase book, we shared a post-midnight snack of sausage, cucumbers and Hershey's chocolate bars until the vodka was gone and Moscow was far behind.

I awoke to urgent pounding on my compartment door. We were in Kharkov, where my grandmother had lost her gold teeth 60 years before, and having overslept I had only two minutes to get off before the train pulled out again. Artash grabbed my bags and rushed them to the platform.

The next morning another electric-powered express train delivered me to a sun-drenched station platform in Zaporozhye, a sprawling industrial city on the wide, blue Dnieper where the first Mennonite colonists settled in the 1780s. Zaporozhye today has factories that produce cars, steel — and smog. It is a Soviet version of Pittsburgh, a city that Zaporozhye would like to recognize as its official "sister city." Preliminary inquiries about such a relationship originated here before the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan but have not been followed up.

"We understand the politics is not favorable, but...perhaps at another time," shrugged an official at the Zaporozhye Friendship Society.

I WAS GREETED at the Friendship Society by Luka Nechayenko, a prominent local historian and journalist, who narrated a history of the Mennonites in Russia from across a table with a small American flag mounted as its centerpiece between flags of the Soviet Union and Ukraine. Nechayenko, a tall and distinguished-looking man retaining the crisp and serious manner from his previous career as a military officer, was born the same year my grandparents walked away from Russia. Today he heads the state television and radio office in Zaporozhye, is a member of the Communist Party and is a critic of capitalism, past and present.

The Mennonite farmers, he said, took advantage of the cheap land and financial incentives offered by the czars to acquire other profitable enterprises that included mills, breweries and factories.

"The special privileges afforded foreign colonists allowed many of the German Mennonites to become rich," Nechayenko asserted critically. "And, as is typical of capitalist enterprises, the exploitation of their workers was severe."

Russian employees of the Mennonites had been underpaid and overworked, he said, leading to labor unrest at some factories before the revolution of 1917.

But he conceded that the Mennonites "did prove to be very good farmers. They introduced crop rotation techniques; they used sophisticated farming equipment; they developed a type of grain that did well not only here but in America."

Orlando shut-ins 'attend' telephone Sunday school

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The call goes out early every Sunday morning: Pick up the telephone and get on the line; time for the conference-call Bible lesson.

Twenty-four Orlando shut-ins — elderly or handicapped people confined to their homes — are participants in Sunday school classes held on a telephone hookup.

The pilot program conducted by Marion and Bee Landis of First United Methodist Church is patterned after a similar program in Pensacola. It's designed to help those physically unable to attend church.

Class members listen in on conventional telephones while the Landises conduct the lessons by a speakerphone at the church. Members can reply to their teachers and join in discussions along with everyone else on the 25-line hookup.

The class lasts half an hour and costs the church $37.23 — for telephone charges.

And it's already so successful, there is a waiting list for others who want to join.

Members of the "Listen and Hear" class were selected by church leaders who visited many of the home-bound church members to tell them of the experiment.

"We have known many of the class members for years," says Mrs. Landis, a former public school teacher. "That makes it very nice for us and for the whole class because I think we are all more at ease."

She and her husband, who met in a Sunday school class at the church, trade off teaching portions of the lessons and discuss in advance how they will handle the teaching.

"Most of them know the Bible," Landis says. "They need something now to feed them spiritually, something to live by, how to apply what they know to their current situations."

Non-denominational bible studies offered by First Christian Church

Trinity Bible Studies, a non-denominational disciplined Bible study for laymen, is being offered at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., with the first night session scheduled for 7 to 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

A day session Thursdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m. began this week. It is still possible to enroll in the day session by being in the church's social hall Thursday at class time. All classes are held in the church's social hall.

Both sessions continue for 10 weeks. Registration is closed after the beginning of the second class meeting.

This fall's study is the second in the series. Last spring the course covered the Old Testament. This fall it will cover the New Testament.

Registration for those who have taken the Old Testament Survey is $6. Registration for new students is $10. This fee covers the cost of the supplies.

For more information call the Rev. Steve Church at 682-2541.

Man harvests jojoba beans to survive

SUPERIOR, Ariz. (AP) — Picking jojoba beans wasn't his first choice, but Melvin Austin says he's traveled most of the western United States "looking for work and there just ain't none."

"You can't buy a job," the tall thin man says, his long red hair stringing out from under a blue baseball cap and gray flaking through his full beard.

Austin says harvesting the oil-bearing beans from the native, wild-growing plants "keeps me eatin'" and free in the lush mountains around this copper-mining town 60 miles east of Phoenix.

"As long as I can walk, I'll never ask for public assistance," the 44-year-old says in a Tennessee drawl. "Even if I couldn't walk, I'd never ask for any public assistance."

Yet he thinks the federal government should do more to help young, unemployed people with families, and he dreams of better economic times.

Austin camps in the mountains around Superior, spending a few nights periodically in the luxury of a motel room paid for by his picking. In town he stocks up on simple provisions.

He wound up in Superior by way of Texas, after stints at construction and salesman jobs in Utah and New Mexico.

He says at least a dozen out-of-work area miners and others from Globe, about 25 miles east, are picking beans for $2 to $3.50 a pound.

On one four-day pick, Austin says he brought down a bit over 25 pounds and was paid almost $88 but adds, "That's high."

Texas Water Commission renews weather modification licenses

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has approved renewal of weather modification licenses for Irving P. Krick, Inc., of Texas and the Colorado River Municipal Water District, with the renewed licenses to expire Aug. 31, 1983.

The licenses were approved with no changes in personnel.

Weather modification activities in Texas must be carried out by licensed operators, but an operating license does not mean that any specific projects will be permitted, the TWC notes.

Operating permits for specific projects must be approved through the Department of Water Resources.

P.T. Barnum misunderstood, says researcher

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — P.T. Barnum might have told a few white lies in his days as a showman, but never did he say, "There's a sucker born every minute," according to one of the nation's leading experts on circuses.

Fairfield author Arthur H. Saxon's research shows Barnum spent more time donating money to the poor, building low-cost housing and attracting businesses to his native city of Bridgeport, than he did under the circus big top.

Saxon is writing a series of books he hopes will paint a human picture of Barnum, whom he describes as one of the most misunderstood men in the world. The 39-year-old, two-time recipient of the Guggenheim Fellowship has spent the past decade tracking down more than 3,000 letters and documents related to Barnum across the nation.

Some of the letters date back to the early 1860s when Barnum, then publisher of one of Connecticut's first weeklies in Bethel, wrote to friends from a Danbury jail cell after he was found guilty of libel, Saxon said.

Other documents, Saxon said, date back to Barnum's most profitable years as long-time owner-operator of a New York museum during the prime of his life.

As Saxon points out, Barnum didn't start the circus, for which he is best remembered, until the age of 61. Before that Barnum served as mayor of Bridgeport from 1875-1876 and was a state representative for two terms. And documents show, Saxon said, that both Republican and Prohibition parties wanted to put Barnum on their presidential ticket in the late 1880s.

"Everyone thinks that he said 'There's a sucker born every minute,' but I've seen no evidence that he ever said that," said Saxon. "He really wasn't a con man. That (the quote) was made up long after his death.

"Actually the word 'sucker' had a different meaning in those days. The word was slang for people from the Midwest."

Barnum, who was called "Taylor" by his family and just plain "P.T." by associates, held the first Bridgeport library card and served as president of the Bridgeport Hospital and other local facilities he helped build.

Zimbabwe lets British editor out of prison

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The government released a British editor and reporter of Zimbabwe's biggest newspaper earlier this week after holding them in a maximum security prison without charges since July 29.

"We're both well and glad to be freed," said Aubrey McDowall, 53, senior assistant editor of The Herald, after he and William Hipson, 37, the paper's crime reporter, were freed.

The detention orders when they were arrested said they were suspected of conduct "prejudicial to the good order and safety" of the state.

USA Today will present 'massaged' news

ROSSLYN, Va. (AP) — The U.S.A. is about to get what it has never had — a newspaper published coast-to-coast, aimed at the general reader.

The paper will be called USA Today and the person who plunks down a quarter in Macon, Ga., will read the same paper as the person who buys it at the Los Angeles International Airport in California. It debuts on Sept. 15.

This is to be a polished, packaged, colorful newspaper, heavy on business news and lifestyle trends, and full of sports and what its creators call "quick reads."

There will be enough weather news to drench a climatologist.

In USA Today, says editor John Curley, the news will be "massaged." Rather than simply telling readers what they already know, Curley says his reporters will focus on the news' impact. Staff instructions offer this illustration: Don't say, "A jet crashed yesterday, killing 534 people" but rather say, "Airline takeoff regulations may be overhauled after yesterday's jet crash that killed 534 people."

THE FOUNDER, chairman Allen H. Neuharth of the Gannett Co., believes USA Today will appeal to two special audiences — Americans traveling away from home and people who are newcomers to where they are now living and still interested in what's happening where they came from.

The paper's target audience, an affluent readership aged 20 to 50, appeals to national advertisers.

The first edition will go on sale Sept. 15 in five states around Washington, D.C. The following week the paper will be available in the Atlanta area; the next week in Minneapolis; a week later, Pittsburgh.

By next April, Gannett will add Chicago, Denver, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Seattle. More areas may come in 1984 — if the paper survives. There is plenty of skepticism at a time of struggle for many newspapers.

"It's a judgment call," Neuharth says of Gannett's multi-million dollar investment in USA Today. "And until you go out into the marketplace, you don't know."

WITHIN SIX MONTHS, USA Today will be available Monday through Friday from 42,000 newstands and convenience stores and airports and from 58,000 newly designed vending machines that look like television sets on a pedestal. The paper will be within access of seven out of 10 Americans.

The Wall Street Journal already circulates nationally, but aims for a business audience. The New York Times prints a national edition in three other cities.

In the 1970s, Dow Jones & Co. sought a general audience with the National Observer, but it was a weekly, lacking timeliness. It failed.

Gannett has grown prosperous buying and publishing hometown newspapers and now it is eager to make a national splash.

Neuharth, 58, has been in newspapering since he started pounding out stories on a 1926 Royal typewriter for the college paper at the University of South Dakota.

In an interview at USA Today headquarters across the Potomac River from Washington, Neuharth explained why he thinks he can induce 2,250,000 people to become readers by 1987 — the success Gannett is projecting.

"A LOT OF PEOPLE in our business say you've got cable news, you've got all-news radio, you've got the TV networks doing more with news, therefore there's a glut of news and information," he said. "I think just the opposite.

"Our research indicates that the more people read or hear or see, the more they want. People want more substance and less sizzle."

They love their hometown papers, he said, and still they yearn for more.

He shrugged off any suggestion that Gannett is going for the national influence that is now denied the company because, while its papers have 4 million readers, they are scattered in small communities.

He said Gannett is after profits, not power.

"We don't have any power that we try to use," he said. "All of our newspapers are totally autonomous and independent voices. They are all over the lot on candidates and issues. That's going to continue; USA Today will be one more voice."

HE SAID HE EVEN doesn't know whether the paper will endorse presidential candidates.

How the country takes to this venture is a matter of intense curiosity within the industry. Newspaper readership has fallen behind the growth of population. In the last decade, 168 daily papers merged or suspended publication.

Neuharth said USA Today is not intended to replace anybody's regular newspaper. He does not want it to compete with the Cincinnati Enquirer or the Richmond, Ind., Palladium-Item, or any of the 86 other daily papers Gannett publishes. Instead, he says the new paper will be "a second buy."

Editor Curley, 43, former Washington bureau chief and general manager of Gannett News Service, has assembled a staff of 238 people, three-quarters of them borrowed from Gannett papers around the country. Everyone there — even Neuharth — wears a nametag.

Staff members have been putting out trial papers, holding briefings and getting detailed memos.

"TELL THE STORY quickly and clearly," one instructs. "Don't waste words. Don't waste space on a story that's not worth telling."

The four news sections each will have a "cover story" probing a trend or topic in 800 to 1,200 words. Major stories will average closer to 500.

Foreign news, especially, is to get short shrift and what is carried will emphasize the meaning to this country of events abroad, Curley says. But the 50 states will be covered with a two-page blanket of items from all over.

Many events that might occupy a lot of space in another paper — the latest turn of events in the Mideast, for example — will be handled on USA Today with just a brief mention.

The weather page uses every graphic trick, describing and predicting the weather with arrows and boxes, swirling jet streams, a seven-color map, state forecasts, airport reports, worldwide conditions — and instructions headlined "How to Use This Page."

"WE EXPECT THAT sports will be the single greatest grabber," Neuharth said. "The jocks have a greater hunger for more news and information than any other type of reader."

The prototype issues show what readers will get: a colrful 40 pages of news, and lots of graphs and sketches, lots of state-of-the-art color pictures and news summaries.

It is a newspaper with a debt to the space-age technology that will make it possible to transmit it by satellite to newspaper printing plants in 15 cities.

The business section will stress news that can be useful to readers; the lifestyle section will beat these drums: self, health, good living, travel and books. There will be stories on computers, television, newsy people, science, showbiz.

Sports will get a big play. The paper tells potential advertisers that it will offer "coverage on every run scored in every inning of every game, every day."

To be a success, Gannett figures, USA Today will have to sell only to 4 per cent of the 61 million people who buy a daily paper now.

Increasing equity mortgage combines features of two others

By The Associated Press

Another entry has been added to the already crowded field of unconventional mortgages. It's a kind of hybrid — a cross between a fixed-rate loan and an adjustable one.

The new type of mortgage goes by a variety of names: increasing equity mortgage, accelerated equity mortgagc, growing equity mortgage, etc.

The idea is relatively simple: your payment starts out at the same level it would with a traditional, fixed-rate, 30-year mortgage, but it increases every year for a fixed period, usually by 3 percent to 5 percent annually. At the end of that time, the loan is paid off. The extra money is not interest; it goes to pay off the loan's principal, boosting your equity much faster than with a conventional mortgage.

The increasing equity mortgage differs from an adjustable rate mortgage in several key ways. The interest rate does not fluctuate — only the payment. The life of the loan is much shorter — generally less than 15 years. You know, in advance, just how much your payment will increase. And the amount of interest you pay in the long run is much, much less.

The increasing equity mortgage is attractive to investors in what is called the secondary market. These investors buy mortgages from lenders who then use the money to make new loans.

As interest rates have risen, long-term loans have become less attractive investments. With an increasing equity mortgage, however, there is less chance that the investor will get stuck for 20 or 30 years with a loan that is paying interest below market rates.

The new mortgage recently got a boost from the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. and the brokerage houses of Salomon Brothers and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith which announced a plan to raise money for the increasing equity loans. The interest rate is expected to be slightly below the rate on conventional mortgages.

Jim Kendall, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, predicted, however, that it would be some time before increasing equity mortgages become widespread. Monthly payments can jump sharply before the loan is paid off, he said, and buyers traditionally have been more concerned with the size of the monthly payment than with the total amount they eventually will have to pay if they hold the loan to maturity.

But there are advantages for the homebuyer. "You can budget," said Kendall. "It's a big increase, but at least it's spelled out."

Guaranty Savings, a state-chartered savings and loan association in Milwaukee, was one of the first thrift institutions in the country to offer the increasing equity mortgage, Kendall said.

"We've been pushing this fairly hard," said Gerald J. Levy, president of Guaranty, which introduced the "Accelerated Equity Mortgage" or AEM about a month ago.

Charles Sandine, a mortgage officer with Guaranty, said there are several varieties of the AEM; payments increase by either 3 percent, 4 percent or 5 percent annually.

Cairo's trash collected with donkeys

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Cairo's donkey-driven garbage collection system has been called the best recycling process in the Middle East, but some social workers say it perpetuates "a sort of slavery."

In one of the world's largest and most crowded capitals, Cairo's 14 million inhabitants produce 7,000 tons of garbage daily. From sunset to a few hours beyond sunrise, an estimated 25,000 zebaleen (garbage collectors), clothed in filthy ragged robes, comb the streets of the city collecting garbage in rickety wooden donkey-drawn carts.

About 80 percent of the zebaleen are members of Egypt's Coptic Christian minority. The zebaleen migrated from southern Egypt about 30 years ago and now live as social outcasts in 11 dumps around the city, with little hope of breaking out of a vicious circle of poverty and ignorance.

Many workshops and small industries depend on the zebaleen for paper, tin, glass, plastic and bones. Paper, glass and plastic are reprocessed. Tin is fashioned into children's toys. Bones are used to make glue and paint.

The Christian zebaleen feed organic waste to pigs, which they breed, raise, eat and sell. However, Egypt's Moslem majority is prohibited from eating pork.

"This is the most effective system Egypt could have," said Rene Willems, chairman of a group from the All Saints Episcopal Church that is concerned about the welfare of the zebaleen.

Willems says several Western organizations are attempting to improve the health and education conditions of the zebaleen.

"It's a sort of slavery now," he said of the life of the zabaleen.

They live among garbage and pigs. The stench nearly overwhelms visitors from outside. Their children have a 40 percent mortality rate and nearly all of them are infected with disease, according to a World Bank report.

"It has been said if we go live there to help them, we would die within a week," Willems said.

The largest zebaleen village is the Mokattam dump, less than three miles east of the city center in the limestone hills that provided the stones for the great pyramids.

The only access to this village of 8,000 people is a steep, narrow dirt trail. Every morning, donkeys can be seen arduously dragging the heavy carts up the ascent.

The door to Attiya Khalil's fenced-in mud-brick and tin-sheet home opens into a yard which is the center of most family activity, cooking, washing and sorting the garbage. A small fence separates the 17-member family's living quarters from the pigsty.

After sorting the day's haul, the Khalil women and children carry the meager remains of the garbage to the outskirts of the village to be burned.

Less than a dozen buildings in the village, including a Coptic church, have water and electricity. The women trudge down the trail to buy water for 25 piasters (30 cents) a bucket.

Mokattam's Coptic priest, Saman Ibrahim Moussa, considered the leader of the zebaleen community, cannot live with them because of the health risk. He said 99 percent of the zebaleen are illiterate because instead of going to school they start working at age 5.

Now There's The Stronghold

Q: What is The Stronghold?
A: The Stronghold is a private, secure safekeeping facility located in Midland's Western Park Plaza. It exists totally as a strictly confidential convenience for secure safekeeping of those irreplaceable jewelry, art objects, or other valuables you may not want to leave in your home while away from the city. Included will be specialized storage areas for computer records, classified maps and other documents. A secure and comfortable conference room will be available.
Q: When will The Stronghold be open for use?
Q: Why are you soliciting memberships now?
A: Many of the safekeeping boxes will be custom designed to store items in the Art Vault, such as rare paintings or gun collections, and special accomodations will be made for unusual sizes. The Main Vault will be designed with bank standard boxes, two feet deep and ten inches wide, in three, five and ten inch heights. Larger sizes will be available at a later date.
Q: How much like a bank is The Stronghold?
A: From the standpoint of security, equal if not better. As for convenience, much better. The Main Vault is secured with a 7½" Diebold steel vault door with triple interlocks. The vault itself is constructed with a concrete floor and one-inch thick steel floor, walls and ceiling. The entire vault area conforms to the Bank Standards Act. Access to the area is obtained only with carefully checked authorization.
Q: How does The Stronghold differ from a bank?
A: Convenience. Operating hours at The Stronghold are 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. For example, a valuable necklace may be removed from the vault for a Saturday evening gala and returned later the same evening.
Q: You said that security at The Stronghold was comparable to banks'. How?
A: Twelve television cameras with recording equipment operate at all times, inside and outside The Stronghold. The Stronghold is as secure as modern day electronics can make it. A variety of sensing devices detect any unusual activity and report it immediately. Only the viewing booths are exempt from observation — for total privacy.
Q: Why do you also have a conference room?
A: For the convenience of examining art objects or jewelry and exchanging securities or valuable papers in comfortable surroundings, with the knowledge that total security is in effect at all times. Non-members may also reserve the conference room.
Q: If I need a custom-designed strongbox, how big can it be?
A: The Stronghold will accommodate anything you can carry through the door.
Q: I know my paintings will be safe — what about their condition?
A: The Art Vault is kept under constant temperature and humidity control. We want your art collection to remain valuable as well as secure.
Q: What about cost?
A: Strongbox rentals begin at $200 a year. Please feel free to call us if you need more information. Our number is 694-7754.

Elevator etiquette often awkward

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

A woman got on an elevator in a downtown Los Angeles office building ecently. Curious about how the three people already in the elevator would eact, she continued to face them.

The trio, obviously uneasy, unconsciously moved closer to the elevator's ack wall. Their gaze darted nervously between the floor-display panel over he door and the woman.

"The ultimate egregious faux pas a person can commit in an elevator is to ace the back," explained Phoenix psychologist Layne Longfellow, who lecures on psychological contracts — behavioral conventions that are never articuated.

"EVERYONE KNOWS HOW you're supposed to behave on an elevator but nobody has ever been told how," Longfellow said.

The convention calls for getting on the elevator; turning to face the door with hands in front or at the sides; avoiding eye contact with other passengers, usually by staring up at the panel above the door that ticks off the passing floors; refraining from talking, including suspending conversations with companions, or conversing in a very low voice and avoiding touching other passengers.

Facing the back of the elevator violates this contract, Longfellow said, so other passengers' behavior becomes governed by a desire to neutralize the violator.

"Everybody allocates as much space as possible to the lunatic who's facing the wrong way." Longfellow said. "If you'll do something so outrageous as to stand backwards and look at them, God knows what else you would do."

Few researchers delve seriously into what might be called "elevator etiquette." But the subject does reveal something of how man adapts to the challenges and spaces dealt to him in modern urban life. Some social scientists have come up with theories about elevator behavior based on proxemics — the study of how people space themselves — and intimacy.

"IN PUBLIC, WE maintain an invisible bubble of social distance around us," Bernard Grofman, professor of social psychology and political science at University of California, Irvine, explained. "You don't cross into another's personal space, but that's very difficult in a crowded elevator.

"What happens in elevators is people try to act as if they occupy no space at all," he said. "That's why you see people in elevators literally shrinking, hunching over, putting elbows in close to bodies, putting hands down and avoiding hand gestures.

"These are all signs to other individuals that we're not threatening them or trying to invade their personal space," he continued. "But if we happen to do so, it's only because of circumstances beyond our control."

Generally, the four corners of an elevator are taken first. When a fifth person gets on, he usually stands in the center.

"When the sixth person gets on you can watch the shuffle start," Longfellow said. "People don't quite know what to do with the sixth person. Then another set of rules comes into play governing body contact."

In an uncrowded elevator, men will often stand with hands folded in front or women will hold their purses in front.

"AS IT GETS more crowded you can see hands unfold and come down to the sides," Longfellow said, "because if you have your hands folded in front of you in a really crowded elevator, there's no telling where your knuckles might end up. So out of respect for the privacy of other people you unfold them and put them at (your) side."

The status, sex and even color of fellow passengers' clothes can affect the unconscious allocation of space, according to Robert Sommer, psychology professor and former head of the psychology department at University of California, Davis.

High-status individuals are accorded more space, he said. "If the president of the company gets on, he'll be given more space."

Studies have shown that men leave more space between themselves and other men than women do with other women.

But "the situation is erratic when the sexes are mixed and much more unpredictable," he said. A woman will generally move closer to other women in the elevator than to a man unless she knows the man.

People tend to put more space between themselves and others wearing bright colors, Sommer said, explaining, "it's too much stimulation."

ELEVATORS THREATEN unwanted intimacy.

"You're in a very small, very tight space," Longfellow said. "People are really concerned about being that close to someone they don't know."

"Eye contact, especially in American culture, is the root to intimacy," Longfellow explained.

"Everyone faces the same direction so eye contact can be averted," Sommer said. "You can tolerate a closer presence at your sides facing forward than someone in front of you facing toward you."

"Making eye contact signals a willingness to engage in personal interaction that is inappropriate for casual contacts in public space," Grofman said.

So eyes are riveted to the floor-display panel because by looking at the numbers you avoid eye contact with one another, Longfellow said.

"THIS HAS A FRINGE benefit," he continued. "As long as I look at the numbers, I don't have to look you in the eye. But I do have you in my peripheral vision. It's a way of keeping track of what's going on in the elevator without looking at people directly."

It also, Grofman said, permits the passenger to give the appearance of having something to do.

"Elevator time is dead time," Grofman said. "In this culture, it's awkward to have dead time. Focusing on the panel shows you're intent on your mission of getting to the floor you want."

Conversations are a dilemma for elevator riders.

First, there is the warning, instilled in us as small children, not to talk to strangers. But acquaintances, too, present a difficulty when encountered on elevators.

"It's awkward to know how enthusiastic to be," Grofman said.

Older 49ers, Cowboys look like class of NFC

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

How does the best team in the National Football League get better?

By getting older.

Not even Coach Bill Walsh could have figured before the 1981 season that San Francisco's rookie-laden defense and relatively young offense would reach the pinnacle after 1980's 6-10 performance.

The question now, of course, is: Can the 49ers win it all again?

Or will Dallas, loser in the National Conference championship game by the length of Dwight Clark's fingertips, make a record sixth appearance in the Super Bowl?

Or is there a dark horse hidden among the rest of the NFC's contenders? Can Bert Jones slow down Los Angeles' quarterback merry-go-round? Will any team dominate the Central Division?

Joe Montana, in only his first full season as the 49ers' quarterback, was the NFC's best, rarely spectacular but always in control. Joining Clark and Freddie Solomon among his receivers this year are tight end Russ Francis, after a year in retirement, and hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah, perhaps the Bob Hayes of the '80s.

The defense, which got inspirational leadership from linebacker Jack Reynolds last year, can stand on its own, especially Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson, 1981's rookie trio.

WHILE ATLANTA'S offense, starting with quarterback Steve Bartkowski, was breaking just about every team record, the Falcons' defense was going down the drain with injuries. The return of linebacker Joel Williams won't solve all the problems.

The acquisition of Jones supposedly solved Los Angeles' biggest problem, but who's to say Coach Ray Malavasi won't start playing games at quarterback again by going to Vince Ferragamo if the Rams aren't instant winners? The offensive line is LA's other major question mark.

Young Dave Wilson may supplant Archie Manning as New Orleans' quarterback. Whoever takes the snap, he'll be able to pass deep to rookie Lindsay Scott. That'll divert some attention from runner George Rogers, seemingly the Saint's total offense when was Rookie of the Year and led the league in rushing last year.

SOMEDAY, DALLAS Coach Tom Landry is going to find a full-time punter to take the extra work away from Danny White. But how much better can White get? He was the NFC's No.2 passer last year.

He has a solid receiving corps in Tony Hill, Drew Pearson, Butch Johnson and, this year, Doug Donley. Don't expect Tony Dorsett to match his 1981 performance, but look for more yards from Ron Springs.

Defensively, the Cowboys have a couple of holes to fill due to the retirement of linebacker D.D. Lewis and safety Charlie Waters.

The Giants made the playoffs for the first time since 1963 thanks to awesome rookie linebacker Lawrence Taylor's contribution to an already fine defense. The offense sputtered until running back Rob Carpenter showed up in midseason. With the arrival of rookie runners Butch Woolfolk and Joe Morris, prospects are even brighter.

Rookie receiver Mike Quick will put some pep in Philadelphia's soggy aerial game, but not as much as the return of innovative Sid Gillman as quarterback coach. Defensively, the Eagle were the best in the league last year.

Washington won eight of its final 11 games last season with the league's youngest offensive line and quarterback Joe Theismann having his best year. St. Louis had the conference's leakiest rushing defense a year ago, and the young Cardinals still look a year or so away from contention.

A lot of Detroit fans figured they would see their heroes in the Silverdome on Super Sunday. The Lions never even made the playoffs. But one or two breaks going their way this year and the division title should be theirs.

ERIC HIPPLE took over for injured quarterback Gary Danielson in electrifying fashion last year and will likely remain the starter. Receiver Freddie Scott had his first 1,000-yard season, Billy Sims was third among NFC rushers and the Lions' offensive line was first-rate. Only the secondary was vulnerable, particularly against the bomb. Detroit lost five games in the final minute.

Minnesota, a one-back team the past few years, has rookie Darrin Nelson this year, joining 1,000-yarder Ted Brown. Expect more from quarterback Tommy Kramer, now that his personal life has been stabilized. But don't expect much more from the Vikings' mediocre defense. And the Vikes can't even count on the weather as a friend anymore, now that they're moving indoors.

Just how far back the Packers come depends to a great degree on Green Bay's ground game, 26th in the league last year with Eddie Lee Ivery injured. Quarterback Lynn Dickey has excellent receivers in James Lofton and John Jefferson. And the Green Bay defense improved dramatically last year.

Lee Rebels call long distance

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

ANDREWS — After almost three hours of battle here Friday night, the Midland Lee Rebels outscored the Andrews Mustangs by a 4-2 margin, but it was one of those head busting affairs that left both Lee coach Spike Dykes and Andrews boss Bill Shipman with some blessings to count.

For the Lee Rebels, Dykes new Wishbone attack showed some long distance capability, scoring three times from over 45 yards out. And after last spring's Maroon-White 6-0 intra-squad scrimmage, that had to be a pleasing sight for the Lee coaches. Also Lee showed a passing game worthy of note, completing six of 11 attempts for 115 yards with only one interception. In the spring game, a pass completion was like a biblical miracle.

LEE'S "No Name" attack showed the speed that everyone knew was there somewhere. It came out of hiding Friday.

"I thought it was a good evening for us," Dykes said. "Andrews is a very aggressive team and our conditioning seems very good. I was glad to see the offense break some big plays, but we still have a way to go. We certianly know where to go to work next Monday. There are certain down situations that we need to work on, but I was pleased with the way the kids performed."

Assistant Lee coach Jack Tayrien liked what he saw of the Wishbone. "The dull old Wishbone isn't so dull, is it?" he asked.

Shipman, who faces the task of defending the District 2-4A crown for the second year in a row with a 20-game regular season winning streak on the line, also liked what he saw of his eager troops.

"On the last 30 plays of the scrimmage, we became a football team. I'm very much encouraged with what I saw and very proud of our defense. We were spotty early in the scrimmage and Lee stung us with some big plays. I really think Lee is a better team than they were last year at this point of the season. They have the ability to strike quick against anyone," Shipman said.

ANDREWS SCORED once in its first series of plays when quarterback Bill Morrison hit former Midland High athlete Bruce Sears with a 15-yard TD pass. Lee came back in its first series for two scores. The first came on a five-yard plunge by fullback Greg Woodberry, a TD that was set up by a 21-yard run by fullback Leonard Freeman, a 13-yard pass from Mike Mercurio to Mike Barton and a 12-yard ganer by fullback Scott Ackroyd. The other was a 46-yard bomb from Paul Cox to Luther Johnson, who ran through Mustangs to get to the goal.

The teams also played one quarter of realistic football, and Lee was the only team able to score in that exercise, thanks to a sizzling 72-yard scamper by halfback Darrell Fennell.

Andrews scored on a one-yard plunge by Eric McCullough when the teams went back to the series plays as Morrison hit three of four passes for 42 yards in the drive. Lee's Billy Gibbs, another burner, scored from 61 yards out for the final score. Both teams had chances to add one more score to the totals without getting in.

Shipman may have run into a good problem with his Mustangs. Brent Petross, a converted running back, has been speculated as the starter, but Morrison hit on seven of his last eight passes for 87 yards. In all, Andrews completed 10 of 14 passes for 128 yards, showing the one obvious flaws of the Rebel defense. Andrews gained almost nothing on the ground, but they moved very well behind the aerial attack of Morrison.

"Morrison did have a good night," Shipman said, "but I'll let you speculate on who will start for us next week."

DEFENSIVELY, Lee linebackers Freeman and Michael Johnson were outstanding as were linemen Anthony Adams, John Denton and Eric Cooper. Luther Johnson also had one stunning hit from his secondary spot.

Lee's sophomores scored a 4-1 decision over the Andrews junior varsity as quarterback Puhl Webb scored on runs of 29 and one yards. Walter Jones broke a 19-yard TD and quarterback Chris Embrey hit Robert Johnson with a 56-yard scoring bomb. Andrews' score cam on a 58-yard run by Johnny Rose.

The Lee JV defeated the Lamesa varsity by a 4-0 count Friday afternoon, but no details of that scrimmage were available. Either the Lee JV is awesome or Lamesa is in for another long season.

The Rebels can now gear for their home opener Friday against Lubbock Coronado, and there are not as many question marks to be answered as there was a week ago.

SOC big plays burn Bulldogs

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

ABILENE—Officially, there was no winner Friday night at Shotwell Stadium in a scrimmage between Midland High and Dallas South Oak Cliff. But there would be few who could say the Bulldogs weren't outplayed.

The first time South Oak Cliff touched the ball, a little speedster by the name of Tim Goodson took the hand off from quarterback Mark Davis and swept to his left, made a couple of good moves, broke a tackle or two and left the Bulldog defense watching his heels as he went 70 yards to score.

That play fairly well describes the scoring of the entire night for South Oak Cliff. Twice more the scrimmage would end, the Golden Bears would strike quickly, once on a quarterback Charles Simpson to Gabriel Johnson TD pass for 50 yards when the two teams' second strings were playing. And the next one on a Stanley Crear 71-yard jaunt on the second play of the second half (a half played in a regular game situation).

TAKING INTO consideration that South Oak Cliff only scored on big plays, the Midland eight-man defense didn't do too badly. The Golden Bears managed to put together several sustained drives only to see them come up short of the end zone. And on a few occasions MHS stopped them cold.

The first such non-scoring drive ended on the last play of South Oak Cliff's first 15-play series when field goal Charles Silmon's attempt was blocked by Bulldog John Hibbitts, who was probably the most consistent player of the night for the Purple Pack.

That kick, like all three PAT attempts he would make, never got high off the ground. They were low, line drive shots and could have been blocked, but Midland High failed to do so.

OFFENSIVELY, Midland wasn't able to get untracked. The front line had a lot of trouble with the SOC defense— making first downs, not to mention touchdowns— hard to come by.

But like the defense, there were some bright spots on the night. Hibbitts, playing at fullback, one of several two-way players for MHS this season, hit his holes hard and fought for everything he could get. Through the air, tight end Chuck Dickenson came up with two fine catches, as did split end Earl Phillips, from quarterback Mark Page.

Although Midland didn't play the way Coach Pat Culpepper would have liked to have seen, he didn't seem too concerned about the outcome of the scrimmage.

"We dug in and came up with some big plays," he said. "I'm really not too concerned about the scrimmage, though. In the past we've been so used to getting up for the Brownwood scrimmage, that we just didn't seem to get as high for this one. We do need to be ready for next week," when the Bulldogs travel to Lubbock Monterey.

From pregame reports SOC "was just like I said they would be, great speed and great personnel. These things are great learning experiences. And it will help us get ready for Monterey by showing us who we can depend on in game.

"It was obvious that their players dominated the scrimmage most of the night. We had some good plays. Chuck Dickenson had a couple of good catches and John Hibbitts did well, blocking a field goal plus several other fine plays," Culpepper appraised.

MHS volleyball teams triumph

MONAHANS—Midland High's girls volleyball team defeated Alpine 19-17, 15-5 to run their unbeaten string to three in the opening round of the Monahans tournament Friday. Midland plays Monahans at 9 a.m. today.

Coach Linda Jolley's JVs also went 3-0 with a 14-16, 15-12 and 15-12 win over Crane and will face Big Spring at 10 a.m. today.

Sixteen teams are in each bracket of the double elimination tournament. If Midland wins this morning, the Bulldogs will play at 2 p.m. If they lose, they will play at a6 p.m. Monahans, Wink and San Angelo Central also advanced Friday. San Angelo plays Wink at 11 a.m.

Meyer to haunt Cowboys

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Ron Meyer, trying to make the transition from college to the National Football League, challenges a former employer Saturday night for his first victory.

The Dallas Cowboys, who hired Meyer as a scout in 1971 and 1972, will host the New England Patriots in an 8 p.m. NFL exhibition matchup.

Meyer is familiar with the site of the game, Texas Stadium. That's the home of the Southern Methodist Mustangs, who went 10-1 and gained the Southwest Conference football title under Meyer last year.

Has the change been a drastic one to him?

"Football is football," said Meyer. "I'm happy with the way things have gone except we've lost two games. We've been organized, the players are responding. The wins will come.

"My dream was to coach in the NFL and it would be ironic if my first win came against the Dallas Cowboys."

Some 58,000 fans were expected for the 8 p.m. CDT kickoff and temperatures were expected to be near 100 degrees.

Although the two teams have never met in preseason, the Patriots are 0-4 in regular season games against Dallas, losing 35-21 on a Monday night nationally televised game in 1981 at Foxboro.

Cubs beat Diablos

EL PASO—Midland's Cubs defeated El Paso's Diablos, 7-6, in the series final here Friday night to shave the magic number for a Texas League West second half flag to any combination of three Midland wins and three El Paso losses.

Doug Welenc, 13-10, went the route for the win, retiring 10 of the last 11 batters after a three-run Steve Michael homer in the sixth gave El Paso a brief, 6-4, lead.

The Cubs four-run sixth began with Joe Carter's double and ended with an rbi single by Javier Fierro and a two-run single by Dave Owen.

Randy Ready hit his 20th homer for two runs in the fourth and singled in the second, scoring on a hit by Michael, who had 4 rbi for the night.

Midland goes to San Antonio for five games, starting tonight, as the Dodgers slipped out of the race after a 6-3 loss to Amarillo Saturday night. The Gold Sox host the Diablos in a final five-game series.

Vilas gains finals in AMF tennis

SOMERS, N.Y. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina saved three match points Friday night to advance to the finals of the $50,000 AMF Head Cup USA by defeating French Davis Cupper Henri Leconte 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

In a late match, Mats Wilander of Sweden met Eliot Teltscher to determine the other finals berth.

Jordan upset

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Unseeded Claudia Kohde of West Germany defeated 10th seeded Kathy Jordan 6-2, 6-7, 6-2 Friday to reach the semifinals of the $100,000 Volvo Women's Tennis Cup at Ramapo College.

Stadler, Shearer in first

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Masters champion Craig Stadler, forced to contend with a driver so wildly erratic "it's kind of scary," scrambled his way to a 2-under-par and a share of the lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

"That's the worst I've driven the ball probably this year. I didn't play worth a damn today," Stadler said.

"I've got to try to find a shot that works. It's kind of scary. I've been driving the ball well all year and now I don't know where it's going," Stadler said after posting his 36-hole total of 138.

One of his shots from the fairway — one of the few times he played from the short grass all day — found the cup for an eagle-2, but another one trickled into a pond and led to a double bogey-7, the high and low spots of a round that included four birdies, the eagle, a bogey and a double bogey along with four one-putt pars.

At the halfway point of this elite event, he shared the top spot with Australian Bob Shearer, who birdied the last three holes for a 69 that matched Stadler's two-round total of 2-under par.

"I couldn't have played those last holes any better," said Shearer, who holed from 20 feet on the 16th, then watched in delight as his approach shots snuggled in less than four feet from the flag on the last two.

Tom Kite scrambled back from a triple-bogey disaster and, with nine 3s scattered across his card, salvaged a hard-won 68 that left him at 141, only three back.

"I'm certanly proud of the way I came back. I'm a little closer, but there's a long way to go," said Kite, who holed an 8-foot putt for triple bogey on the fourth hole. He drove deep into the woods and bushes, containing poison ivy, took one shot at extricating it from the jungle, then took a penalty drop.

Haynie fires sizzling 8-under 64

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion Sandra Haynie shot a tournament-record 8-under-par 64 Friday to take the lead midway through the $165,000 LPGA Henredon Classic.

Haynie, a 39-year-old Dallas native who earlier this year won the Peter Jackson Classic and the Rochester International, posted nine birdies and needed just 25 putts on the 6,191-yard, par-72 Willow Creek Golf Club course.

She also set a second-round tournament mark as her 64 broke by two strokes the record set in last year's inaugural by Marlene Floyd-DeArman, and tied Floyd-DeArman's 36-hole record of 137.

For about 30 minutes, Haynie's back-to-back nines of 32 shared another tournament record with four players, but Marty Dickerson shot a 31 on the front nine to rewrite the record book once more. Dickerson finished with 68 to stand at 4-over-par 148.

Henderson swipes way with four more thefts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rickey Henderson swiped four bases to break Lou Brock's major league record for stolen bases in a single season, but Jim Gantner's two-run single in the bottom of the eighth lifted the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-4 win over the Oakland A's.

Henderson broke Brock's eight-year-old record of 118 steals in the third inning when he drew a two-out walk and stole second on a pitchout after Brewer starter Doc Medich made four pickoff attempts. He walked, stole second and scored in the sixth and he walked, stole second and third — giving him 122 for the season — and scored in the eighth on Dwayne Murphy's sacrifice fly.

Trailing 4-3, the Brewers loaded the bases with one out in the eighth. Ben Oglivie led off with a single and Gorman Thomas drew a walk off Preston Hanna, 0-1. Bob Owchinko relieved and, after Don Money's sacrifice, he walked Charlie Moore intentionally to load the bases. Ganter then singled.

MEDICH, 9-11, allowed only four hits over eight innings and Rollie Fingers pitched the ninth inning to earn his 29th save.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead in the third off Tom Underwood, who relieved in the first when starter Steve McCatty left with a sore shoulder. Gantner walked, went to third on Paul Molitor's double. After Gantner was caught off third on Robin Yount's grounder Cecil Cooper followed with an RBI grounder and Ted Simmons then lifted a sacrifice fly to score Yount from third.

The A's came back to take a 3-2 lead in the sixth with the help of Henderson's second stolen base of the game. He drew a leadoff walk, stole second and scored on Gross' single. Murphy then cracked his 20th homer of the season.

Orioles stretch streak to seven

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Comer, making his first start since May of last year, pitched an eight-hitter Friday night as the Texas Rangers posted a 4-3 victory over Baltimore in the second game of Friday's twi-night doubleheader, ending the Orioles' seven-game winning streak.

The Orioles won the opener 3-1 and dealt Texas its fifth straight defeat as Jim Palmer notched his ninth consecutive victory to tie his third longest career winning streak and post his 259th career triumph.

The other two runs off Sammy Stewart, 7-7, scored in the second on doubles by Mike Richardt and Bucky Dent and a single by Don Werner.

Comer, 1-4, who had made 31 relief appearances this season, allowed another run in the fifth on a bases-loaded force play grounder by Dan Ford. He struck out five and walked one.

SINGLETON ALSO hit a solo homer in the opener in support of Palmer's five-hit pitching. Tim Stoddard hurled the ninth inning to pick up his 12th save.

Mike Smithson, making his major-league debut, allowed doubles by Al Bumbry and Glenn Gulliver, the first two batters he faced, for Baltimore's first run.

Singleton homered in the fifth, and Gary Roenicke, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games in the doubleheader, had an RBI single in the eighth.

Baylor sparks Angels over Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — Don Baylor drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Bobby Grich belted a two-run homer Friday night, powering the California Angels to a 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Rookie Ricky Steirer, given his first major league start on his 26th birthday, earned the win with relief help the last three innings from Luis Sanchez, Andy Hassler and Doug Corbett. Corbett, just recalled from the minors, got the last out on a diving catch by right fielder Bobby Clark after Boston scored five runs the last two innings.

Steirer, 1-0, was a late replacement for scheduled starter Luis Tiant, who bowed out with back trouble, blanking Boston for six innings on two hits, but Luis Sanchez came on after Dwight Evans opened the seventh with a single and took third on Carl Yastrzemski's double to right. Carney Lansford hit a sacrifice fly off Sanchez for Boston's first run.

Baylor put the Angels in front with a two-run single with two outs in the first. Baylor also singled home Doug DeCinces, who tripled in the sixth.

The Red Sox narrowed the lead to 7-3 with two runs in the eighth on Jerry Remy's RBI infield single, his 1,000th career hit, and a run-scoring single by Yastrzemski.

Jays beat Yanks on Upshaw's hit

TORONTO (AP) — Willie Upshaw drilled a two-run single to snap a fifth-inning tie and lead Toronto to a 10-3 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night as the Blue Jays snapped a five-game losing streak.

Damaso Garcia, who went 3-for-5 and scored three runs, led off the fifth inning against left-hander Dave Righetti, 8-6, with a single and Garth Iorg followed with a walk. The runners advanced on a wild pitch and Jesse Barfield drew an intentional walk to load the bases.

With two out, Upshaw singled on Righetti's 2-2 pitch to give Toronto a 5-3 lead. Buck Martinez then lofted a fly to center field, but Jerry Mumphrey dropped the ball and Barfield raced home.

Minnesota defeats Cleveland, 5-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tim Laudner homered and Minnesota capitalized on two Cleveland errors in a five-run third inning as the Twins beat the Cleveland Indians 5-3 Friday night.

Al Williams, 5-7, pitched 6 1-3 innings, while Ron Davis pitched the final 2 2-3 to record his 17th save. Lary Sorensen, 10-10, took the loss, allowing all five runs, although only one was earned.

John Castino opened the third with a double, Tom Brunansky walked, Larry Milbourne booted Kent Hrbek's grounder to short as a run scored. Gary Ward singled homer another run and a wild throw on a double play attempt let Hrbek score.

Brett, Royals spank Chisox

CHICAGO (AP) — George Brett's three-run single highlighted a four-run fourth inning and Paul Splittorff hurled eight innings of four-hit ball Friday night to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 7-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The triumph enabled the Royals to remain in a first place tie in the American League West with the California Angels, who defeated Boston 7-6. The third-place White Sox fell seven games behind the leaders.

Kansas City, which collected 16 hits against four White Sox pitchers, loaded the bases in the fourth on singles by Lee May, Jerry Martin and Frank White. John Wathan hit into a force play as May scored to break a 1-1 tie.

Ferguson aerials spark Buffalo win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two touchdown passes by Joe Ferguson and the running of Arthur Whittington powered the Buffalo Bills to a 20-14 victory over the Washington Redskins Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The victory raised the Bills preseason record to 2-1. The Redskins are winless in three games.

Ferguson sandwiched scoring strikes of 6 yards to Frank Lewis and 17 yards to Buster Barnett around a Whittington 1-yard touchdown run as the Bills opened a 20-7 lead midway through the third quarter.

Ahead 6-0 at the half, the Bills marched 80 yards in four plays to take a 13-0 lead with 13:01 remaining in the third quarter. Whittington started the drive moving 52 yards around the right side of the Redskin defense.

Three plays later, Ferguson found Barnett in the end zone with a 17-yard scoring strike and a 20-7 Buffalo lead. Ferguson, who retired for the evening after the drive, completed 15 of 19 passes for 156 yards and two touchdowns.

Falcons edge Eagles, 24-21

ATLANTA (AP) — Ray Strong scored on a one-yard touchdown plunge with 38 seconds remaining as the Atlanta Falcons overcame a second-half Philadelphia rally to down the Eagles 24-21 Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

Second string quarterback Joe Pisarcik threw a pair of touchdown passes, including a 19-yarder to Tony Woodruff with 3:28 remaining to give the Eagles a 21-17 lead.

The Falcons, 1-2, had taken a 17-0 halftime lead on the throwing of Steve Bartkowski, who fired two touchdown passes while rookie Scott Norwood added a 19-yard field goal.

The Eagles, 2-1, who could muster only five first downs and 97 total yards in the first half behind quarterback Ron Jaworski, came to life under Pisarcik.

Pisarcik connected on a 4-yard scoring pass to Calvin Murray midway in the third period, then set up a 1-yard scoring run by Leroy Harris early in the fourth period with his passing before connecting with Woodruff.

Braves nip Mets on Ramirez homer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rafael Ramirez hit a one-out, solo homer in the eighth inning to snap an 8-8 tie and give the Atlanta Braves a 9-8 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

The loss extended New York's losing streak to 11 games, while Atlanta now has won seven of its last eight.

Ramirez lined his fifth homer into the left field seats off Jesse Orosco, 2-10, and made a winner of right-handed reliever Donnie Moore, 2-0.

The Mets chipped away at an 8-0 deficit, finally tying the score 8-8 with five runs in the sixth inning on a run-scoring single by Brian Giles, a two-run single by Rusty Staub and two more RBI singles, by Mookie Wilson and Bob Bailor.

The Braves scored five unearned runs in the first two innings and led 8-0 after a two-run homer by Matt Sinatro, his first in the major leagues, in the third inning.

Bob Horner drove in two runs with a single and Glenn Hubbard had a two-run double in the first inning after a throwing error by Mets right-hander Charlie Puleo on an attempted sacrifice bunt opened the gates.

Dale Murphy singled home another Atlanta run in the second and one more run scored on an error by Puleo when he dropped a relay to first base.

In the third, Chris Chambliss beat out an infield single, and one out later Sinatro clubbed a Pete Falcone delivery into the left field seats for the 8-0 lead.

The Mets scored one run in the bottom of the third on a single by Wilson, and New York added two more in the fourth on RBI singles by George Foster and Hubie Brooks.

Soto six-hits Phils as Reds cruise, 8-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mario Soto scattered six singles and Ron Oester rapped three hits, including a two-run triple, as the Cincinnati Reds cruised to an 8-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Soto, 11-9, fanned eight to bring his major league-leading strikeout total to 221.

The Reds staked Soto to a 5-0 lead in the first inning, loading the bases on two walks by loser Larry Christenson, 8-9, around Dave Concepcion's double. Cesar Cedeno singled for the first run and Oester's triple made it 4-0.

Wayne Krenchicki belted his second home run of the season in the second, putting the Reds ahead 6-0. The Phillies' lone run was unearned, coming on Manny Trillo's RBI single in the third.

Christenson was forced from the game in the third inning after straining a thigh muscle running to first base. A team official said he probably will miss his next turn in the pitching rotation.

Vilas gains finals in AMF tennis

SOMERS, N.Y. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina saved three match points Friday night to advance to the finals of the $50,000 AMF Head Cup USA by defeating French Davis Cupper Henri Leconte 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

In a late match, Mats Wilander of Sweden met Eliot Teltscher to determine the other finals berth.

Jordan upset

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Unseeded Claudia Kohde of West Germany defeated 10th seeded Kathy Jordan 6-2, 6-7, 6-2 Friday to reach the semifinals of the $100,000 Volvo Women's Tennis Cup at Ramapo College.

Stadler, Shearer in first

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Masters champion Craig Stadler, forced to contend with a driver so wildly erratic "it's kind of scary," scrambled his way to a 2-under-par and a share of the lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

"That's the worst I've driven the ball probably this year. I didn't play worth a damn today," Stadler said.

"I've got to try to find a shot that works. It's kind of scary. I've been driving the ball well all year and now I don't know where it's going," Stadler said after posting his 36-hole total of 138.

One of his shots from the fairway — one of the few times he played from the short grass all day — found the cup for an eagle-2, but another one trickled into a pond and led to a double bogey-7, the high and low spots of a round that included four birdies, the eagle, a bogey and a double bogey along with four one-putt pars.

At the halfway point of this elite event, he shared the top spot with Australian Bob Shearer, who birdied the last three holes for a 69 that matched Stadler's two-round total of 2-under par.

"I couldn't have played those last holes any better," said Shearer, who holed from 20 feet on the 16th, then watched in delight as his approach shots snuggled in less than four feet from the flag on the last two.

PGA title-holder Ray Floyd was next, two shots back at par 140 after he finished a round of 71 with a bogey on the final hole.

Tom Kite scrambled back from a triple-bogey disaster and, with nine 3s scattered across his card, salvaged a hard-won 68 that left him at 141, only three back.

"I'm certainly proud of the way I came back. I'm a little closer, but there's a long way to go," said Kite, who holed an 8-foot putt for triple bogey on the fourth hole. He drove deep into the woods and bushes, containing poison ivy, took one shot at extricating it from the jungle, then took a penalty drop.

Haynie fires sizzling 8-under 64

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion Sandra Haynie shot a tournament-record 8-under-par 64 Friday to take the lead midway through the $165,000 LPGA Henredon Classic.

Haynie, a 39-year-old Dallas native who earlier this year won the Peter Jackson Classic and the Rochester International, posted nine birdies and needed just 25 putts on the 6,191-yard, par-72 Willow Creek Golf Club course.

She also set a second-round tournament mark as her 64 broke by two strokes the record set in last year's inaugural by Marlene Floyd-DeArman, and tied Floyd-DeArman's 36-hole record of 137.

For about 30 minutes, Haynie's back-to-back nines of 32 shared another tournament record with four players, but Marty Dickerson shot a 31 on the front nine to rewrite the record book once more. Dickerson finished with 68 to stand at 4-over-par 148.

Henderson swipes way with four more thefts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rickey Henderson swiped four bases to break Lou Brock's major league record for stolen bases in a single season, but Jim Gantner's two-run single in the bottom of the eighth lifted the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-4 win over the Oakland A's.

Henderson broke Brock's eight-year-old record of 118 steals in the third inning when he drew a two-out walk and stole second on a pitchout after Brewer starter Doc Medich made four pickoff attempts. He walked, stole second and scored in the sixth and he walked, stole second and third — giving him 122 for the season — and scored in the eighth on Dwayne Murphy's sacrifice fly.

Trailing 4-3, the Brewers loaded the bases with one out in the eighth. Ben Oglivie led off with a single and Gorman Thomas drew a walk off Preston Hanna, 0-1. Bob Owchinko relieved and, after Don Money's sacrifice, he walked Charlie Moore intentionally to load the bases. Ganter then singled.

MEDICH, 9-11, allowed only four hits over eight innings and Rollie Fingers pitched the ninth inning to earn his 29th save.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead in the third off Tom Underwood, who relieved in the first when starter Steve McCatty left with a sore shoulder. Gantner walked, went to third on Paul Molitor's double. After Gantner was caught off third on Robin Yount's grounder Cecil Cooper followed with an RBI grounder and Ted Simmons then lifted a sacrifice fly to score Yount from third.

The A's came back to take a 3-2 lead in the sixth with the help of Henderson's second stolen base of the game. He drew a leadoff walk, stole second and scored on Gross' single. Murphy then cracked his 20th homer of the season.

Orioles stretch streak to seven

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Comer, making his first start since May of last year, pitched an eight-hitter Friday night as the Texas Rangers posted a 4-3 victory over Baltimore in the second game of Friday's twi-night doubleheader, ending the Orioles' seven-game winning streak.

The Orioles won the opener 3-1 and dealt Texas its fifth straight defeat as Jim Palmer notched his ninth consecutive victory to tie his third longest career winning streak and post his 259th career triumph.

Lamar Johnson's sixth homer of the season, following a walk to Larry Parrish, snapped a 2-2 tie in the third inning of the second game.

The other two runs off Sammy Stewart, 7-7, scored in the second on doubles by Mike Richardt and Bucky Dent and a single by Don Werner.

Comer, 1-4, who had made 31 relief appearances this season, allowed another run in the fifth on a bases-loaded force play grounder by Dan Ford. He struck out five and walked one.

SINGLETON ALSO hit a solo homer in the opener in support of Palmer's five-hit pitching. Tim Stoddard hurled the ninth inning to pick up his 12th save.

Mike Smithson, making his major-league debut, allowed doubles by Al Bumbry and Glenn Gulliver, the first two batters he faced, for Baltimore's first run.

Singleton homered in the fifth, and Gary Roenicke, who extended his hitting streak to 16 games in the doubleheader, had an RBI single in the eighth.

Baylor sparks Angels over Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — Don Baylor drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Bobby Grich belted a two-run homer Friday night, powering the California Angels to a 7-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Rookie Ricky Steirer, given his first major league start on his 26th birthday, earned the win with relief help the last three innings from Luis Sanchez, Andy Hassler and Doug Corbett. Corbett, just recalled from the minors, got the last out on a diving catch by right fielder Bobby Clark after Boston scored five runs the last two innings.

Steirer, 1-0, was a late replacement for scheduled starter Luis Tiant, who bowed out with back trouble, blanking Boston for six innings on two hits, but Luis Sanchez came on after Dwight Evans opened the seventh with a single and took third on Carl Yastrzemski's double to right. Carney Lansford hit a sacrifice fly off Sanchez for Boston's first run.

Baylor put the Angels in front with a two-run single with two outs in the first. Baylor also singled home Doug DeCinces, who tripled in the sixth.

The Red Sox narrowed the lead to 7-3 with two runs in the eighth on Jerry Remy's RBI infield single, his 1,000th career hit, and a run-scoring single by Yastrzemski.

Jays beat Yanks on Upshaw's hit

TORONTO (AP) — Willie Upshaw drilled a two-run single to snap a fifth-inning tie and lead Toronto to a 10-3 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night as the Blue Jays snapped a five-game losing streak.

Damaso Garcia, who went 3-for-5 and scored three runs, led off the fifth inning against left-hander Dave Righetti, 8-6, with a single and Garth Iorg followed with a walk. The runners advanced on a wild pitch and Jesse Barfield drew an intentional walk to load the bases.

With two out, Upshaw singled on Righetti's 2-2 pitch to give Toronto a 5-3 lead. Buck Martinez then lofted a fly to center field, but Jerry Mumphrey dropped the ball and Barfield raced home.

The Blue Jays added three more runs in the sixth on Iorg's sacrifice fly and a two-run double by pinch-hitter Glenn Adams.

Minnesota defeats Cleveland, 5-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tim Laudner homered and Minnesota capitalized on two Cleveland errors in a five-run third inning as the Twins beat the Cleveland Indians 5-3 Friday night.

Al Williams, 5-7, pitched 6 1-3 innings, while Ron Davis pitched the final 2 2-3 to record his 17th save. Lary Sorensen, 10-10, took the loss, allowing all five runs, although only one was earned.

John Castino opened the third with a double, Tom Brunansky walked, Larry Milbourne booted Kent Hrbek's grounder to short as a run scored. Gary Ward singled homer another run and a wild throw on a double play attempt let Hrbek score.

Brett, Royals spank Chisox

CHICAGO (AP) — George Brett's three-run single highlighted a four-run fourth inning and Paul Splittorff hurled eight innings of four-hit ball Friday night to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 7-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The triumph enabled the Royals to remain in a first place tie in the American League West with the California Angels, who defeated Boston 7-6. The third-place White Sox fell seven games behind the leaders.

Kansas City, which collected 16 hits against four White Sox pitchers, loaded the bases in the fourth on singles by Lee May, Jerry Martin and Frank White. John Wathan hit into a force play as May scored to break a 1-1 tie.

Ferguson aerials spark Buffalo win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two touchdown passes by Joe Ferguson and the running of Arthur Whittington powered the Buffalo Bills to a 20-14 victory over the Washington Redskins Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The victory raised the Bills preseason record to 2-1. The Redskins are winless in three games.

Ferguson sandwiched scoring strikes of 6 yards to Frank Lewis and 17 yards to Buster Barnett around a Whittington 1-yard touchdown run as the Bills opened a 20-7 lead midway through the third quarter.

Ahead 6-0 at the half, the Bills marched 80 yards in four plays to take a 13-0 lead with 13:01 remaining in the third quarter. Whittington started the drive moving 52 yards around the right side of the Redskin defense.

The Redskins cut the lead to 13-7 moving 73 yards on 9 plays, helped by two Buffalo penalties.

Three plays later, Ferguson found Barnett in the end zone with a 17-yard scoring strike and a 20-7 Buffalo lead. Ferguson, who retired for the evening after the drive, completed 15 of 19 passes for 156 yards and two touchdowns.

Falcons edge Eagles, 24-21

ATLANTA (AP) — Ray Strong scored on a one-yard touchdown plunge with 38 seconds remaining as the Atlanta Falcons overcame a second-half Philadelphia rally to down the Eagles 24-21 Friday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

Atlanta backup quarterback Mike Moroski added four pass completions for 37 yards in the 65-yard drive.

Second string quarterback Joe Pisarcik threw a pair of touchdown passes, including a 19-yarder to Tony Woodruff with 3:28 remaining to give the Eagles a 21-17 lead.

The Falcons, 1-2, had taken a 17-0 halftime lead on the throwing of Steve Bartkowski, who fired two touchdown passes while rookie Scott Norwood added a 19-yard field goal.

The Eagles, 2-1, who could muster only five first downs and 97 total yards in the first half behind quarterback Ron Jaworski, came to life under Pisarcik.

Pisarcik connected on a 4-yard scoring pass to Calvin Murray midway in the third period, then set up a 1-yard scoring run by Leroy Harris early in the fourth period with his passing before connecting with Woodruff.

Braves nip Mets on Ramirez homer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rafael Ramirez hit a one-out, solo homer in the eighth inning to snap an 8-8 tie and give the Atlanta Braves a 9-8 victory over the New York Mets Friday night.

The loss extended New York's losing streak to 11 games, while Atlanta now has won seven of its last eight.

Ramirez lined his fifth homer into the left field seats off Jesse Orosco, 2-10, and made a winner of right-handed reliever Donnie Moore, 2-0.

The Mets chipped away at an 8-0 deficit, finally tying the score 8-8 with five runs in the sixth inning on a run-scoring single by Brian Giles, a two-run single by Rusty Staub and two more RBI singles, by Mookie Wilson and Bob Bailor.

The Braves scored five unearned runs in the first two innings and led 8-0 after a two-run homer by Matt Sinatro, his first in the major leagues, in the third inning.

Bob Horner drove in two runs with a single and Glenn Hubbard had a two-run double in the first inning after a throwing error by Mets right-hander Charlie Puleo on an attempted sacrifice bunt opened the gates.

Dale Murphy singled home another Atlanta run in the second and one more run scored on an error by Puleo when he dropped a relay to first base.

In the third, Chris Chambliss beat out an infield single, and one out later Sinatro clubbed a Pete Falcone delivery into the left field seats for the 8-0 lead.

The Mets scored one run in the bottom of the third on a single by Wilson, and New York added two more in the fourth on RBI singles by George Foster and Hubie Brooks.

Soto six-hits Phils as Reds cruise, 8-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mario Soto scattered six singles and Ron Oester rapped three hits, including a two-run triple, as the Cincinnati Reds cruised to an 8-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Soto, 11-9, fanned eight to bring his major league-leading strikeout total to 221.

The Reds staked Soto to a 5-0 lead in the first inning, loading the bases on two walks by loser Larry Christenson, 8-9, around Dave Concepcion's double. Cesar Cedeno singled for the first run and Oester's triple made it 4-0.

Wayne Krenchicki belted his second home run of the season in the second, putting the Reds ahead 6-0. The Phillies' lone run was unearned, coming on Manny Trillo's RBI single in the third.

Christenson was forced from the game in the third inning after straining a thigh muscle running to first base. A team official said he probably will miss his next turn in the pitching rotation.

Tough selling job at A&M

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - If Jackie Sherrill had known eight months ago what he knows now, he wouldn't be worrying about the Texas heat, trying to beef up his offensive line or praying that his starting quarterback remains healthy.

Instead of trying to convince his new team, the Texas Aggies, that it is a winner, he would be coaching the University of Pittsbugh to a possible national championship with a mountainous offensive line protecting Dan Marino, possibly the best college quarterback in the country.

"I've enjoyed it but it's something that I wouldn't do again," Sherrill said Friday. "Emotionally, it was very tough but I am a better man than I was on January 19."

Sherrill said he's glad to be in Texas now but he wouldn't have gone down the road had he known the pitfalls involved in accepting a six-year, $250,000 per year contract.

"You had a billion people pointing their fingers at you and saying you've lost your mind, that you are wacky for leaving a national championship team," Sherrill said. "It was a great experience but it was a very hard experience physically and mentally.

"But it's made a better person out of me. I know I am a lot tougher person now and I was pretty tough before. A lot of people said a lot of things they didn't know anything about."

Sherrill's contract terms were criticized in academic circles as placing undue emphasis on athletics.

Sherrill was coming off his third straight 11-1 season at Pittsburgh with the 1982 team tabbed as a national contender. The Aggies, coming off a 7-5 season and torn by the firing of Coach Tom Wilson, compared poorly with the Panthers.

"The team at Pittsburgh knows they can win," Sherrill said. "They know how to win and what it taks to win. That's what you are always trying to establish.

"And you have to say that Dan is the best in football," Sherrill said. "He's the best in the last 10 years. "You don't realize these things till you have a Tony Dorestt. For the next 20 years you are then looking for another Tony."

The Aggie offensive line, although not as awesome as Pittsburgh, is bulking up for the season, Sherrill said.

"Since January they've added about 60 pounds to their bench presses and they've put on about 20 pounds," Sherrill said. "That show me they're tryin to improve."

Federal agents question Cowboys on coke raids

DALLAS (AP) — Federal agents questioned an undisclosed number of Dallas Cowboys' players about their alleged association with some of the 34 arrested in a series of cocaine raids three weeks ago, a Dallas newspaper reported today.

In a copyright article, The Dallas Times Herald reported that sources from two federal agencies said agents questioned some players late last week about possible purchases and use of cocaine.

TWO PLAYERS named by federal agents in connection with the investigation were running back Tony Dorsett and defensive end Harvey Martin, the newspaper said. Both Dorsett and Martin denied they have been questioned by federal agents.

One federal source, not identified in the story, told the newspaper that Coach Tom Landry invited FBI agents to talk to players at the team's Thousand Oaks, Calif., training camp after he saw a published photograph of Martin and an accused drug dealer.

"Yes, I told them they could come out here if they wanted to," Landry told the newspaper Thursday night at Thousand Oaks.

"They gave me the impression that it would just be a fact-gathering thing. When there is a big drug bust and there are pictures, then somebody is going to ask questions.

"For all I know, they might be talking to some players when we get back to Dallas," said Landry, who declined to confirm that he had invited the FBI to question players.

DORSETT SAID he had not been questioned by federal agents. He declined furthur comment.

"I haven't talked to nobody about anything having to do with drugs," Martin told the newspaper. "I don't know why everybody wants to make a scapegoat out of me. I was never friends with those people."

Federal sources, not identified by the newspaper, told the Times Herald that prosecutors are not inclined to make any cases against players based only on the testimony of accused drug dealers.

One of the sources told the newspaper that prosecutors consider it wrong to "ruin a players" career" by bringing drug charges without corroborating evidence such as recorded conversations.

Stone was accused in a federal indictment of distributing and buying cocaine. He is in the Dallas County jail in lieu of $500,000 bond.

Duran ready to begin push for 'any' title fight

DETROIT (AP) — Former lightweight and welterweight boxing champion Roberto Duran insists he's ready for a shot at yet a third title — any title.

First, though, he has to get by little-known Kirkland Laing, a Jamaican fighting out of London, on Sept. 4 in a scheduled 10-round super welterweight bout at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

At a news conference Friday to promote the Laing fight, Duran said he was ready to meet anyone, anywhere, for any title.

"It's all the same to me, any title," the Panamanian said through an interpreter. "The weight makes no difference. All fights are hard; all of them are tough."

Duran lost the World Boxing Council welterweight title to Sugar Ray Leonard on Nov. 25, 1980 in New Orleans on an eighth-round knockout, when he left the ring crying, "No more! No more!" and later explained he had stomach cramps.

After the humiliating loss, he won a pair of 10-round victories last year, but was unsuccessful in his attempt to take the junior middlweight crown from WBC champion Wilfred Benitez on Jan. 30 — Duran's last fight.

"When I fought Benitez, I was not in the shape I would like to have been in. I had not prepared properly," Duran said. "But I'm not here to talk about Benitez. I'm here to fight."

Duran, 31, has won all but three of his 77 professional bouts — 55 by knockouts — over a 15-year career, and insists the losses to Leonard and Benitez did not damage his reputation.

In fact, he's already looking toward his Nov. 19 fight with Tony Ayala Jr., the World Boxing Association's No. 3 junior middleweight, at San Antonio, Texas, and an eventual rematch with Benitez.

GOLF—Golf pro Charles Coody has been charged with reckless conduct and cruelty to an animal in connection with the shooting of a neighbor's dog in Abilene, according to an assistant DA. The misdemeanor charges filed Thursday afternoon against Coody in Taylor County Court-at-Law allege he shot and wounded a dog belonging to Sonny Wooley, said Assistant District Attorney Randy Dale. Dale said the five-year-old German Shepherd was shot in the neck and the hips while Wooley's 7-year-old daughter, Sunni, stood nearby. A veterinarian treated the dog in time to save its life. Coody's wife, Lynette, denied the accusation. She said the Wooleys' dog is "a menace to the neighborhood," and has entered the Coody yard and attacked the family's dog three times...

TROTTING— Mystic Park, the 3-year-old colt favored to win the 24th International Trot for the U.S.was scratched because of illness, leaving U.S. hopes to Spice Island, trained, driven and partially owned by Swedes. Mystic Park, winner of 13 of 16 starts this year, suffered a touch of colic Tuesday morning, but recovered quickly and worked out well Thursday. But the colt, syndicated for $3.25 million, developed a 104-degree fever Thursday and was scratched from the 1¼-mile, $250,000 International by trainer-driver Frank O'Mara. As a result, chances of a second straight French win inscreased. Ideal du Gazeau and Jorky, the French representatives, finished 1-2 last year. JIM MURRAY

If Pete is serious, Skins may be back in Boston

The Washington Post and Los Angeles Times

The commissioner of all football, the Honorable Alvin Ray "Pete" Rozelle, has told the Congress of the United States, described by Ambrose Bierce as a body of men who go to the Capital of their country in order to increase their own, that he will not support any anti-trust legislation unless it be retroactive and block the moving of a franchise from one city to another from this day backward.

Fair enough. L.A. will not now need the Oakland Raiders. We'll get the Rams back. Or, on second thought, maybe Cleveland will get them back. Does Chicago now get the Cardinals; Boston, the Redskins; New York State, the Giants; Detroit, the Lions? Maybe L.A. will get the Chargers back. Gene Klein would love that. The Kansas City Chiefs would have to go back to Dallas, the Baltimore Colts will have to go back to a bus reading "Have Team, Will Travel."

The headlines read: "Rozelle Warns Congress." Warns them of what? That the NFL owners under his control will stop contributing thousands of dollars to the campaign chests of selected senators? That he'll take his football and go home? Won't expand into favorite locations of the Congressmen unless he gets the exemption he wants?

SOMEWHERE, J.P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller must be watching this with morbid fascination. Here's a stunt they never thought of. Pro football has some kind of a sacred right to operate in violation of anti-trust laws that Standard Oil or General Motors never considered. Rozelle is saying, in effect, "Restrain trade or, by God, no more new franchises." The threat is velvet-glove. With Pete, it usually is. "The league will not consider expansion in this uncertain climate," he says piously, "where we cannot assure a team will stay in the city chosen."

Pete also denied he was "dangling" franchises in front of potential Congressional supporters. Well, this reporter has personally heard him in press conferences admit the league was "considering" sites from Indianapolis, to Phoenix, to Memphis, to Jacksonville, to Birmingham. If that's not "dangling," it will do.

Why should Pete Rozelle be able to restrain trade? Not even Charlie Schwab, Andrew Carnegie or Diamond Jim Brady could do that. Ford Motor Company, which employs hundreds of thousands more Americans than the NFL does, cannot stop even German and Japanese "carpet baggers" from entering their market. Hell, we can't even stop illegal alliens.

THE REALITY of the situation is, the league, a.k.a. Pete Rozelle, let the "Los Angeles" Rams move out of town without a court fight. The league left the nation's second-most-important market without a franchise. The league let the Lions move out of town, the Cardinals and Giants move out of state, and, when the Minnesota Vikings threatened to leave Minneapolis-St. Paul unless they got a domed stadium, the league supported them.

The league permitted the loss to L.A., a community which had taken the Cleveland Rams in from the cold in 1946 and housed them in a tax-supported structure for three decades, and helped them to grow from a waif on the doorstep to a multi-million dollar corporation in a multi-billion dollar business. You can believe the fiction if you want that Rams' owner Carrol Rosenbloom got league permission for his move. Anyone who is around him knows Carrol didn't give a fig for league permission or approval from a commissioner who owed his job to him. Rosenbloom got permission after the fact.

After visiting this indignity upon L.A., shrugging its shoulders as it lost its franchise, the league next stepped in when L.A., like any license landlord protected by the Constitution, went out and got itself a new tenant. After, all, bondholders had to be paid. In a classic piece of chutzpah, the league and commissioner told them no. When someone asked in a press conference at Super Bowl XV if L.A. would get an expansion franchise, the commissioner murmured something about "the owners" being unwilling to reward "rule-breakers." Observers took this to mean L.A. would get an expansion franchise over the commissioner's dead body. Boomtowns like Rutherford, N.J., were more deserving.

L.A. TOOK no legal steps to block the departure of the Rams. For one reason, they got no encouragement or help from the league to do so. But did Oakland get encouragement and help? Legal aid? Financial input? The entire might of the NFL? You better believe it. Several million dollars worth, to date. If the league spent the money and energy and man hours to keep the Rams here that they spent to keep the Raiders there, the Rams would probably still be here.

Rozelle, who got his nose bloodied in every court he's been in on this matter, has really taken the case to the highest court he can–the Congress. You know how congressmen are. Promise them a dam, and they'll vote for anything. Promise them a pro football franchise and they'll tear up the Constitution.

What Rozelle proposes to do with his insistence on retroactivity in franchise shifts is to change the rules. Unless he words it carefully, the game will have to go back east of the Mississippi where it was 'til the Cleveland Rams broke free.

YOU CAN change the rules in football. One year, it's okay for interior linemen to go downfield under a punt, the next year, it's not. But you can't change the rules retroactively. That would mean you have to go back through the charts of last year's games (or games of five years ago) and change the results.

The commissioner is powerful. A $2 billion TV contract gives you a lot of power with a body of men, some of whom have proved susceptible to FBI men in bedsheets posing as Arab sheiks. But, changing the rules in the middle of a game is something not even a Congressman can do without holding his nose. It doesn't matter whether you do it for a franchise or a satchelful of oil money. It's called taking a bribe. Franchise-scam. Football-gate.

FIND THE LOOT
beneath your boot

Probably no region in the world has more buried treasure stories than West Texas. Now, you may not find Maxmillian's treasure at Castle Gap, but there are a lot of places you can prospect for coins, artifacts, and memorabilia that is worth more in a lot of cases than finding money.

Fireball offers the full line of metal detectors from White's Electronics. From the TR A.G.C. Series 2 at $79.95 to the 6000/D Series 2 at $499.95, there's nearly a dozen different models with the price and the features that let you select just what you need to become a treasure hunter.

Regardless of which White's detector you choose, you'll get maximum depth penetration, discrimination against junk and earth mineralization, and the selectivity you need to really search an area.

White's detectors operate from self-contained battery packs, with either regular or NiCad rechargeable batteries. The exclusive White's circuitry is low-drain for long, economical battery life.

Come in to Fireball, and get the friendly, expert help you need to select the exact model you need.

LET'S TALK ABOUT . . . The Birds and the Snakes and the Catclaw and your plans for the coming hunting season.

Fireball has the complete selection of guns, ammunition, knives and related equipment. Like snake leggings -- to beat both the snakes and the catclaw.

But -- unlike a lot of places that have people who seem imposed upon to sell you hunting equipment -- Fireball has a group in Ken, Richard, Nicky and Keith who know about guns and hunting -- and have time to talk about it.

You can't beat these prices.
And you'll have almost as much fun as a hunting trip.
With no catclaw -- and no snakes.

Danny DeVito, star of the now-NBC show, "Taxi," which the network will show on Thursday nights, and his wife, Rhea, announced that they're expecting their first child at a recent party celebrating the show's network switch.

Keeping stage act afloat requires some juggling on part of owners

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — "Places, please." The stage manager's usual warning to actors that the curtain's going up. But at Jones Beach Theatre, they're also warned the stage has gone up — or down.

It floats on water in a small bay in Long Island, N.Y., right near the Atlantic Ocean. Both tide and stage can go up or down by as much as four feet before the players take that final bow.

"There's a great deal of adjusting to do," concedes

ENTERTAINMENT

MISS STUART, AN ex-actress, laughed. "It does sound a little strange at first to hear, 'Places, please,' then: 'There are four tide steps on the front pontoon tonight.' But you get used to it."

Last week, no musical was on the water-borne boards. Instead, the big show was a weeklong jazz festival with such stars as Gerry Mulligan, Mel Torme, Miles Davis, Benny Goodman and the Modern Jazz Quartet.

It ended Sunday, as did the eight-week season at Jones Beach, which this summer offered a mixed bag of attractions — John Davidson and Phyllis Diller, "Grease" and "West Side Story" and jazz.

"I'd never seen a show out there before they asked us to take over," admits Horner, a soft-spoken man whose company took over there three summers ago, a year after the death of bandleader Guy Lombardo, the theater's longtime impresario.

That it is, his wife agrees. For starters, she says, they've got to restore the stage — unused and open to the elements of fall, winter and spring — every year before the summer shows can go on.

"FOR EXAMPLE, YOU come out and find the orchestra pit underwater, with seaweed in there," she marvelled. And once the season begins, they start thinking almost as much about rain as the production.

They still shudder about one stormy stretch last year. Rain forced cancellation of a "Damn Yankees" revival — starring Joe Namath, late of the New York Jets — for three Saturday nights in a row.

"We check with the weather people at Kennedy Airport all the time," she said. Still, the uncertainties force them to have two versions of the same musical ready on any given night, she added, one with show-shortening "rain cuts" and one without.

The Horners, who produce Broadway shows and are executive directors of the American Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Conn., also think a lot about jetliners in their Jones Beach operation.

Their open-air theater is right in the flight path of Kennedy International. Fortunately, says producer Stuart, they get help from air traffic controllers who divert flights from the area from 8:30 to 11 p.m. so the roar of jet engines won't drown out the sounds of the floating shows.

Brisk ocean breezes also must be considered, she said. All the sets must be built to withstand the wind blowing in from the Atlantic, "but they can't be too solid or heavy because they'll sink the pontoon they're on."

BUT AT LEAST they don't have to worry much about the scores of small boats that share the bay with the beachfront theater.

The police do a pretty good job of keeping small craft away from the big shows, Miss Stuart says. Only once in her four seasons at Jones Beach has any incident occured, that during "The Sound of Music."

Wayne Newton's show nothing to cheer about

By ROBERT HILBURN
The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Eddie? Is that you?

I tried to call right after Wayne Newton's opening Friday night at the Greek Theater, but you weren't home. So I'm phoning you now.

I know how much you love this guy. You've told me all about the times you've stood in line for hours in Las Vegas to see his show.

But, I must tell you, I had just the opposite reaction Friday. Halfway through the flat, uninspired affair, I was willing to stand in line just to get out of there.

I realize Newton is supposed to be "Mr. Excitement" and the "Midnight Idol" and all that. And, I know how he's just huge in Vegas. But his Greek show seemed tired and labored. And this was his first L.A. concert in nearly 20 years. So you'd think he'd be at his best.

Granted, I see how Newton could connect in Vegas. He certainly offers something for everyone — old songs, new songs, good songs, dumb songs, country songs, pop songs, Presley songs, Sinatra songs, even a couple of Wayne Newton songs. And the arrangements were crisp.

The Greek audience also got a kick out of how he kept kissing the women at the edge of the stage. They also seemed to enjoy how he winked at people in the front rows, laughed at his own jokes and kept referring to himself as "The Chief." I guess he does that because he's part Indian, right?

But Newton exhibited little in the way of sharp timing or warmth, though he always paused with his head down after ballads to show us how much he had been touched by the tune.

But I tell you, I will give him credit. He came up with one thing that would be great if the guys who made the zany "Airplane" film ever do a spoof on Vegas entertainers.

I mean Newton was kidding, wasn't he?

Eddie...Eddie?

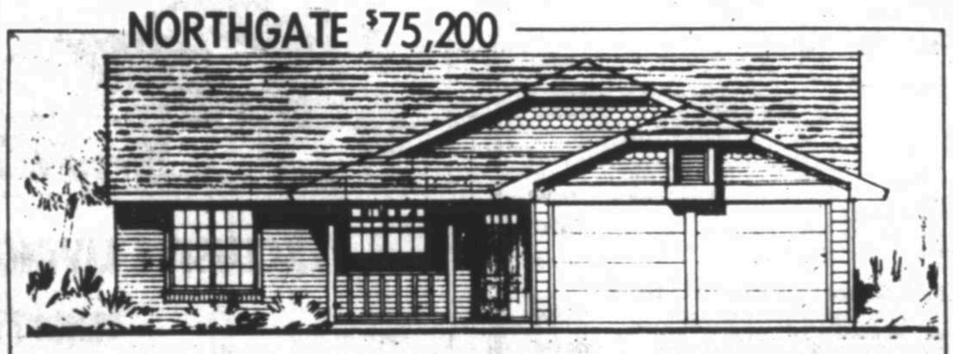
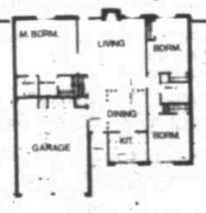
$1450 Limited Closing Costs in Northgate only

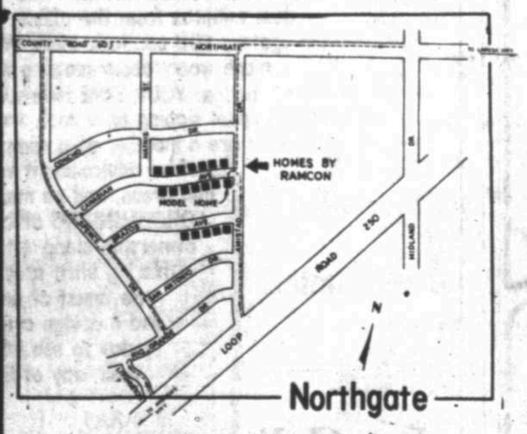
NORTHGATE $75,200



4909 Canadian



$673.30 Per Month



You can't afford NOT to buy any longer!

Total move in costs of $5250 is based on 5% down or $3800 plus $1450 limited closing costs based on 15 days prepaid interest. The first year's payment of $673.30 (principal and interest only) is based on a loan amount of $71,400. The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 10 7/8% for 95% loan-to-value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 15 7/8% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6 months Treasury Bill plus 4.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. The 7 1/2% mortgage increase can be more if the original loan principal exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. Annual percentage rate approximately 14.575%.
