

One Skyjacker Surrenders While 2 Others Still Holding Jetliner

LAKE JACKSON, Tex. (AP) — A hijacked National Airlines plane landed today at the small airport here and a hospital administrator said two persons were treated, one for gunshot wounds and the other for a severe beating.

The two hijackers apparently maintained control of the plane to a late hour. They had released the 113 passengers earlier.

At a late hour, said officials, only three hostages remained aboard the plane crew. One hostess escaped.

The plane, Flight 496, was en route to Kennedy Airport in New York from Miami when it was diverted to Philadelphia by two men.

After nine hours of negotiations, the aircraft flew to Dallas and then on to Houston without stopping. It headed over the Gulf of Mexico and then turned back.

There was no immediate confirmation that the hijackers had received the $600,000 they demanding although police communications indicated they had obtained the money. They also demanded parachutes.

Administrator Bill Smith of the Brazosport Community Hospital identified the two wounded men under treatment there as Raeman W. Reagan, copilot of the plane, and Gerald Beaver, its flight engineer.

The ages and addresses of the two men were not immediately available.

Smith said Reagan had a fractured pelvis, a broken right wrist, and multiple contusions to the face and body. He was listed as in fair condition.

Beaver has gunshot wounds on the right side and was listed in good condition.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Washington said the plane was low on fuel when it landed and there are no facilities for refueling a plane of that size at the Brazosport County Airport.

Police here said they destroyed the plane's tires, and the FAA confirmed the tires had blown.

The airport has a 5,000-foot landing strip but is not used by large jets, although jets of the Dow Chemical Co. land there regularly. Dow has a major installation in this area, all the towns going under the area name of Brazosport.

One of the hijackers was identified as an Ethiopian national named "Taffa" and the other identified only as "Green."

The plane left Philadelphia with only the copilot, flight engineer and four stewardesses as crew.

In Philadelphia, the pilot, Elliott Adams, died out of the cockpit two hours after he landed.

He said the plane was out of gas and he would not subject the passengers to a crash. The hijackers obviously decided to fly with the copilot in charge.

The passengers sat for nine hours in searing heat and high humidity in Philadelphia while the hijackers and the FBI negotiated before the passengers were released. The plane ran out of gas shortly after it landed, stopping the air conditioning.

An escape plane demanded by the hijackers did not arrive from Miami for four hours, and it took another hour and a half for a plane to arrive presumably carrying the ransom money.

"A couple of people fainted," said one passenger, Tom Herring of St. Louis. "It looked like there might have been some cardiac trouble but no one was really hurt. Everyone seemed in good shape."

A pistol-carrying hijacker surrendered to the stewardess he had been holding hostage early today after collecting $550,000 ransom and a parachute.

The gun was found to be unloaded, the FBI said.

The FBI said the man turned his pistol over to the stewardess after the commandeered American Airlines Boeing 727 took off from Oklahoma City.

Arnold C. Larson, special agent in charge of the FBI in Oklahoma City, identified the man as Melvin Martin Fisher, 49, of Norman, Okla.

Larson said Fisher, father of five children, would be charged with air piracy today in an appearance before a U.S. magistrate.

The three-engine jet landed shortly before 5 a.m. EDT at Will Rogers World Airport, eight hours after the hijacking began. Fisher was led from the plane in handcuffs.

Fisher boarded the flight in Oklahoma City. It departed at about 7:45 p.m. bound for Dallas and Los Angeles, but the pilot was notified of the hijacking about a half-hour later and the aircraft turned back to Oklahoma City because of turbulent weather in the Dallas area.

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and warm through Friday, slight chance of evening thunderstorms. High in mid-90s. Low near 70. Southerly winds 10-15 mph. Twenty per cent chance of rain tonight. Yesterday's high, 94. Today's low, 64. Moisture: .05 inch.

City To Study Proposals On Sewage Treatment

By TEX DEWEESE
Demands of the Texas Water Quality Board that Pampa bring its sewage treatment plant operation up to state standards has brought the city face to face with a crucial problem.

City officials today got a first hand memorandum report from Forrest and Cotton, Dallas consultant engineers for the city, setting forth three alternative methods of plant modification that would possibly meet the state board's requirements.

Adoption of the proposals could cost anywhere from $225,000 to $750,000, according to City Manager Mack Wofford.

The city manager said the report of the Dallas consultant engineering firm will be presented to the City Commission at its next meeting on July 25.

Pampa was notified about three and a half years ago that it was in violation of its state permit and that the plant was exceeding its discharge of industrial waste into Red Deer Creek.

Since then the city had adopted an industrial waste ordinance which it now is attempting to have enforced.

The engineer's memorandum report consists of a lengthy and detailed study of existing facilities at the sewage treatment plant and the effluent loading placed on those facilities. The report also contains the city manager said an evaluation of the existing facilities as to their efficiency.

Wofford pointed out that he was sending a letter today to the Water Quality Board in Austin setting forth Pampa's time-table for taking all possible steps to comply with state requirements.

"We want to cooperate in every way with the state board to get into compliance and adopt the most feasible and acceptable plans," Wofford said.

The letter to the board was sent to meet a deadline which falls tomorrow, the city manager added.

When the City Commission gets the engineers' report and proposals, it is expected to make an exhaustive study with members of the city staff to determine if any of the three alternative proposals are feasible and just what steps can be taken to bring the sewage treatment facilities into compliance with the state requirements.

Peace Talks Resume

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnam peace talks resume today after 10 weeks amid speculation that secret talks will soon be held.

Poliburo member Le Duc Tho is due back from Hanoi in the next few days, and this could mean further behind-the-scenes sessions with presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger or other U.S. officials.

Tho was in Peking Wednesday and held a "very friendly and cordial" conversation with Premier Chou En-Lai. Radio Peking reported.

The long series of secret talks between Kissinger and Tho have covered a broad range of issues but have not produced any significant change in the conflicting negotiating positions.

Washington has always preferred private talks, contending that the Communists used the weekly semipublic sessions only as propaganda platforms. But North Vietnam in the past has refused to participate in secret talks unless the regular weekly sessions were also being held.

June Rainfall Reduces Use Of City Water

The June rains put a dent in Pampa's income from water consumption, City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

Although the exact loss of cold cash will not be known until billings for the month are ready to go out next week, the city manager said it will be a sizeable amount.

That is reflected, he said, by the fact metered water sold in June of this year was 21,566,000 gallons less than June of one year ago.

The total June 1971 gallonage sold was 110,380,000 gallons contrasted with only 88,814,000 in June this year.

Most of the reduction is attributed to rainfall that made it unnecessary to water city lawns.

McGovern May Broaden List Of Running Mates

McGovern Fund Plan Under Study

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, climaxing his dramatic rise from political obscurity by winning the first-ballot nomination of a divided Democratic party, was considering a broadening list of vice-presidential possibilities today after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy rejected his bid.

Soon after the votes of Illinois sent McGovern's total soaring past the magic 1,509 mark in the jammed, brightly lit convention hall, and even before the official result had been announced, Kennedy phoned McGovern from Hyannis Port, Mass., to offer congratulations.

During their 15-minute talk, McGovern offered Kennedy the No. 2 spot for the race against President Nixon. Kennedy rejected it "for very real personal reasons," according to McGovern spokesman Richard Dougherty.

Earlier in the evening, Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, another prime prospect, told McGovern through aides he didn't want to be considered.

McGovern aides said the nominee would make no announcement about a running-mate before midday.

One close adviser said he felt the list of those under consideration was expanding as the victorious nominee sought the counsel of Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie, his defeated rivals whose withdrawal from contention a day earlier had signaled Wednesday night's triumph.

Those being mentioned include five senators — Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Philip A. Hart of Michigan, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, and Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota; two governors, Ohio's John J. Gilligan and Wisconsin's Patrick Lucey, and labor leader Leonard Woodcock.

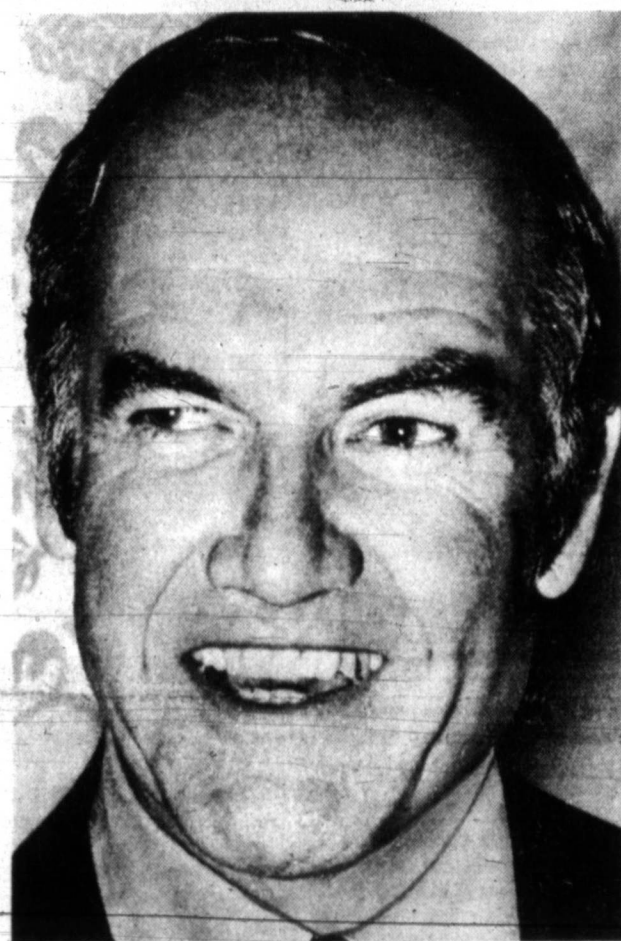

Within minutes after clinching the nomination, McGovern received congratulations and promise of support from all the candidates he had conquered, except Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. But labor leaders in particular remained bitterly opposed to the senator, as did many delegates.

One sign in the hall read: "McGovern Will Bomb—in November."

Earlier in the evening, as the Democratic National Convention proceeded through its rites of nomination, McGovern left his penthouse suite at a hotel up the beach to tell antiwar demonstrators he stood by his pledge for total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

"I'm not shifting my position on any of the fundamental stands I've taken," said McGovern, ringed by security agents as he faced the noisy, shouting demonstrators who had occupied the lobby six hours earlier.

After two straight all-night sessions, the climactic round of nominating speeches proceeded swiftly, with little semblance of the old-time hoopla and floor demonstrations. At last the roll call was reached and, as the clock struck midnight,

DEMO PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE MCGOVERN

Texas G.O.P. Leaders Rap Demo Party Choice

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Republican leaders were quick Wednesday night to criticize the Democratic Party's nomination of Sen. George McGovern for president of the United States.

Texas Republican chairman George Willeford and Rep. Bob Price, R-Tex., from Pampa, joined in heaping criticism on the Democrats and their presidential nominee.

Willeford said the nomination of McGovern "must seem to most Texans final evidence that the National Democratic Party has lost it."

Willeford issued the following statement:

IN NOV. 7 ELECTION

Rep. Price Asks Opponent To Denounce Demo Nominee

By TEX DEWEESE

Pampa congressman Bob Price issued a statement today calling on Graham Purcell, his Democratic opponent in the Nov. 7 election, to denounce the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, and go on record in support of the re-election of President Nixon.

The News was unable to contact Congressman Purcell for a direct reply to Price's challenge. His Wichita Falls office said he was enroute there from a tour in the Panhandle but had not arrived late this forenoon.

However, his Washington office said Purcell had already made it clear he did not favor the nomination of Senator McGovern and that he would not actively support him.

The congressman's Washington representative said Purcell plans to run his own campaign and not his opponent's.

He added that Purcell was ready and willing to debate anywhere with Price on the real campaign issues in the new 13th Congressional District.

Congressman Price's statement today went on to say: "I ask him (Purcell) to take a firm, positive stand against the man who is far to the left of the best interest of our district, our state, and our nation. Anything less would be a disservice to the principles which have made America great."

"My opponent should also declare in no uncertain terms, his position on the radical program put forth by George McGovern. It is now clear that these are the critical issues of this campaign."

"We should not give up in Vietnam at a time when the enemy aggression is finally being brought under control."

"We should not cut our defense expenditures in half. We should not grant amnesty to draft dodgers and deserters. We should not destroy the incentive of oil and gas exploration at a time when our nation is faced with a massive energy crisis and exploration is at a 25-year low. We do not need guaranteed give away welfare programs that will bankrupt this country. However, I do believe we should ask to provide better jobs and job opportunity for our people."

"Our President has been a courageous leader for this nation. He has provided this leadership in spite of problems he inherited from previous administrations. He has done this even at the risk of his career."

"The candidacy of George McGovern is not an acceptable alternative to the continuing leadership of our President. We must, therefore, work hard to defeat this radical McGovern program and all those associated with it." Price concluded.

Price issued the statement in Wichita Falls and left for an appearance today in Childress.

Kennedy Rejects Bid To Join November Race

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

Sen. George McGovern, climaxing his dramatic rise from political obscurity by winning the first-ballot nomination of a divided Democratic party, was considering a broadening list of vice-presidential possibilities today after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy rejected his bid.

Soon after the votes of Illinois sent McGovern's total soaring past the magic 1,509 mark in the jammed, brightly lit convention hall, and even before the official result had been announced, Kennedy phoned McGovern from Hyannis Port, Mass., to offer congratulations.

"I'm not shifting my position on any of the fundamental stands I've taken," said McGovern, ringed by security agents as he faced the noisy, shouting demonstrators who had occupied the lobby six hours earlier.

After two straight all-night sessions, the climactic round of nominating speeches proceeded swiftly, with little semblance of the old-time hoopla and floor demonstrations. At last the roll call was reached and, as the clock struck midnight,

McGovern's nomination was assured.

Bedlam burst through the vast hall as supporters celebrated the victory of the man whose youthful legions had humbled the party's mighty.

Forty-five minutes later, when Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien announced the final totals, the hall again went wild. Jubilant McGovern workers, their long quest against what seemed overwhelming odds crowned at last with success, kissed and hugged one another.

A third roar went up five minutes later as O'Brien declared McGovern the party's nominee and designated a committee to inform him of his designation. The committee is headed by Ribicoff, who nominated McGovern in a losing quest four years ago and again Wednesday night as "a candidate tuned to the challenges of the future."

Behind him, in order, came Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who inherited much of Humphrey's labor support, with 486.65; Wallace 377.50; Rep. Shirley Chisholm 101.45; former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina 69.5; Humphrey 35; Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas 32.8; Muskie 20.8; Kennedy 10.65; Rep. Wayne L. Hays of Ohio 5; former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota 2; and Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota 1.

Rainstorms Hit Pampa, Other Areas

A thunderstorm hit Pampa about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and sent water rushing down the streets and flowing through Red Deer Creek.

Lasting until about 6 p.m., the storm left up to .30 in some parts of the city, but the U.S. Weather Bureau reported an official .05 inch for Pampa.

Sweeping in from the north, the winds and rain from the storm soon dropped the temperature from the high of 94 into the 60s. Winds were reported up to 40 miles an hour, but no damages were reported.

Storms hit other parts of the Panhandle during the afternoon.

White Deer received about an inch of moisture from the storm system, with small showers reported in Skellytown and Groom.

A severe electrical storm and a 10-minute rain storm struck Panhandle, but the rain was not able to be measured because of high winds blowing the rain.

A light shower fell on Perryton about 5:30 p.m., leaving only a trace. Heavy rain and some hail was reported northeast of Borger, but the city itself reported only sprinkles.

Streets were flooded in Amarillo in a storm that swept over the city about 7 p.m., leaving rainfall amounts ranging from .20 to .60 inch. Several minor vehicle accidents were reported.

Bovina recorded about .10 inch, with traces noted in Fritch, Hereford and Friona.

2ND CHESS MATCH TODAY

Fischer Protests Coverage Of Game By Movie Cameras

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer today was reported threatening to break off his world championship chess match with Boris Spassky unless all movie cameras are removed from the playing hall.

"It's quite serious. He may not play at all," said a member of Fischer's entourage who asked not to be identified.

Fischer was scheduled to meet the world champion from the Soviet Union later today — at 1 p.m. EDT — for the second game of their 24-game match. The American challenger lost the first game Wednesday night.

Fischer staged a 30-minute walkout shortly after the play began Wednesday, complaining that a movie camera 150 feet away was making him nervous. The camera was hardly visible in the dimness outside the lighted players' circle, and it could not be heard by Fischer, but aides said the knowledge of its presence unnerved him.

Chief referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany, who makes the decisions on all contested points in connection with the match, told Fischer during his walkout there was nothing he could do about the camera. Film and television rights for the match have been sold to an American promoter, and Fischer and Spassky are to get a share of the proceeds, estimated at a minimum of $27,500 each.

"It's up to Lothar Schmid whether Bobby plays," one of Fischer's advisers said today.

Contacted at his hotel, Schmid said: "There will be a match tonight. If Fischer doesn't appear, he will take the consequences."

A member of Fischer's camp said the "legal aspects are being studied."

Richard Stein, a lawyer for the promoter who bought the TV and film rights, Chester Fox, said he was up all night with Fischer's second, the Rev. William Lombardy, and Fred Cramer of the U.S. Chess Federation.

Stein said that at one point Fischer walked in on the meeting, listened for a few minutes and then in a few sentences indicated he was adamant about expelling the cameras. Then he went to bed.

In agreement with Lombardy and Cramer, Stein wrote Fischer a letter at 5 o'clock this morning appealing to the challenger to accept the presence of the cameras and go on playing.

"I hope the letter will move him," Stein said.

Schmid said he was prepared to invoke two rules of the match against Fischer.

Rule 17 prohibits in the name of "the highest principles of sportsmanship" that either player "distract or annoy his opponent."

Rule 21 allows the taking of pictures during the match by official photographers as long as the cameras are "neither visible nor audible."

The camera Fischer objected to was officially sanctioned.

With a maximum of 23 more games to be played, Robert Byrne, the second-ranking U.S. grandmaster, said Fischer's loss "isn't necessarily all that significant. Either of these players can come back and win."

A victory yields one point, a draw half a point, and after Wednesday's match Spassky needed 11 more points in the 24-game series to retain his title.

Fischer needs 12 1/2 points to end the 24-year Soviet monopoly.

Jehovah's Witnesses Begin 4-Day Conclave

AMARILLO — The sound of hammers filled the early morning air as volunteer workers put finishing touches to the Civic Center for the opening today of the district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The program officially opens at 1:40 p.m. with a preview of the convention. At 2 p.m., Windell St. Clair of Kansas, chairman of the convention, is scheduled to deliver the opening address.

Highlight of the afternoon session will be an address by R.A. McCarroll.

A program devoted to the individual congregation will be presented tonight. Lyman Pinard, Pampa, will be one of the speakers.

Farmers Expected To Harvest 5% Less Wheat Than A Year Ago

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are expected to harvest five per cent less wheat than a year ago—and based on acres they planted—10 per cent less corn in 1972, according to the Agriculture Department.

In all, farmers planted 308 million acres of crops this year, down three per cent from 1971. Sharp cutbacks for wheat and feed grain were partly offset by increases for soybeans and cotton, crops both in demand for export and domestic use.

Wheat production was estimated at 1.55 billion bushels, down from the record harvest of 1.64 billion last year.

The estimates were included in a report issued Wednesday by the USDA.

There was no field estimate for corn, but officials said the 1972 crop could be 5 billion bushels, based on average conditions and yield trends.

Both wheat and corn are currently in surplus supply, mainly as the result of record outputs last year.

The 1971 corn crop was more than 5.5 billion bushels from 63.8 million acres of corn for harvest.

Soybean plantings, 45.6 million acres, are eight per cent larger and indicate a possible crop of 1.277 billion bushels, nine per cent more than last year, officials said.

Cotton planting totaled 13.8 million acres, up 12 per cent from 1971. There was no production estimate.

Field estimates on 1972 production of corn, soybeans and some other major crops will be available next month.

United Methodist Church Names First Negro Bishop

HOUSTON (AP) — Delegates to the South Central Jurisdictional Conference of the United Methodist Church have elected the first black bishop in the eight-state jurisdiction but two other candidates missed chances to become the first Mexican-American bishops.

The Rev. Dr. Ernest T. Dixon Jr., 50, was elected the jurisdiction's first black bishop Wednesday as the 366-delegate conference named four bishops to replace retiring bishops.

Dixon, a native of San Antonio, is now on assignment in Dayton, Ohio, as an assistant general secretary of the denomination's program council.

Dixon will fill a minority vacancy left by the Rev. Dr. Noah Moore, who will retire at the end of the conference here Friday.

Three other bishops selected during the 10-ballot procedure were: Rev. Don W. Holter, president of St. Paul School of Theology at Kansas City, Mo.; Rev. Dr. Finis A. Crutchfield, pastor of the Boston Avenue Church in Tulsa, Okla., and Rev. Dr. Robert E. Goodrich, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Dallas.

The board made the recommendation in its report on the derailment of a freight carrying liquefied petroleum gas near Crescent City, Ill., in 1970. Sixty-six persons were injured and the entire city evacuated in the fire and subsequent explosions of the propane cars.

More injuries would have resulted if a state police sergeant had not warned the firemen of the potential dangers and begun evacuation of the farming community, the board said.

The injury of the firemen and spectators was due to the lack of appreciation by firemen of the large scope of fire and explosion which would occur in a fire of this type," the Board said.

If the first explosion had occurred before the state police sergeant had warned the firemen and before he had started evacuation of the town, many more could have been injured seriously."

The board recommended the Department of Transportation study means to improve training of firemen on local department "so that they can upgrade their skills in their handling of emergencies created by the increasing transportation of hazardous materials."

Five of the 15 derailed cars of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad freight train loaded with liquefied petroleum exploded.

The blasts hurled debris for 1,600 feet. Twenty-five homes and 16 businesses were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $1.7 million.

Seamus Twomey, chief of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing, told newsmen his forces might consider renewing the cease-fire they ended Sunday after 13 days. But he said the British must guarantee there will be no army raids or arrests, no "harassment" of his men, and complete freedom for the Provisionals to move freely, although in "low profile."

There was no immediate reaction from the British.

The celebration of the Protestant victory on July 12, 1690, at the Battle of the Boyne went off peacefully, with 32,000 troops, militia and police sandwiched between the religious factions to head off violence.

But in advance of the marching, on its periphery and in its wake assassins and bombers were hard at work.

Two soldiers were killed and 11 wounded in firefights with IRA guerrillas. The troops, whose death list since 1969 rose to 91, claimed to have wounded or killed at least five of their assailants.

The first to die Wednesday was a Protestant 16-year-old, gunned down as he walked through a park in the town of Portadown.

State Health Dept. Eyes Swimming Pool Sanitation

Ask the first 100 people you meet what their favorite sport is and chances are good that at least 70 will say swimming. Even golf and fishing have taken back seats as sport choices, a recent nationwide survey shows.

Thousands of new pools will be constructed this year throughout the nation. In Texas at this moment well over 50,000 pools are attracting swimmers like bees to a flower.

This is all to the good, because swimming lends itself to social adjustment. It teaches coordination and builds stamina and character. A child who overcomes fear of water has learned courage.

But there are also elements of risk. This accelerated interest in swimming creates hazards to life and limb, and dangers of disease transmission. That's why the State Health Department conducts courses to teach pool operators the various skills of their jobs.

"Short schools" for pool operators are concentrated during the months of spring and early summer, the intention being to enroll as many operators as possible before hot weather and overflow crowds make it hard for them to get away from their work.

Co-sponsored by the Texas Beach and Pool Association, courses consist of six hours of intensive technical and practical instruction. It covers such things as how to disinfect the water, and how to control water acidity. Water acidity, incidentally, is the factor which causes swimmers' eyes to burn, rather than chlorine as is popularly supposed.

The course also covers pool safety, bathhouse sanitation, and the various filtering systems used by modern pools.

How important are swimming pools as links in the chain of disease transmission? Eye, ear, nose and throat, skin and intestinal infections are among the most common conditions spread in swimming pools. Typhoid fever and diarrheal diseases have been traced to neighborhood pools.

Most prevalent, however, is ringworm of the feet, commonly called "athlete's foot." It is not contracted in pool water, but by walking on wet walks and floors on which the spores of the infection flourish.

In well equipped pools there is little chance of contracting any of these conditions. That's the reason for the Department's emphasis on swimming pool sanitation.

Swimmers, too, have a responsibility toward pool cleanliness. Like most public places, a pool quickly assumes the character of its least desirable patron.

But when state and local health authorities, pool operators, and pool patrons join hands to make swimming what it should be—wholesome, safe, and fun—the results can be highly beneficial. That kind of cooperation is now going on throughout Texas.

Before this year is over, State Health Department instructors will have provided personalized instruction to some 1,300 operators of public and semi-public pools. Moreover, the Department will welcome owners of private pools to the instruction if they want to take part, but most of the emphasis will—understandably—be on pools which serve the public.

Towns and cities in which programs have been conducted so far this year include Odessa, El Paso, Lubbock, Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Bay City, Longview, La Marque, Houston, Commerce, Fort Worth, Beaumont, Richardson, Irving, Dallas, Edinburg, and Corpus Christi.

Answers to Employment Questions by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson

Unemployed Vet Seeks Job Training Aid

J. W. of Louisville, Ky., writes: I am 43 years of age and a Korean war veteran. I lost my job due to my age and automation four years ago. Where can I go to find out about job training?

Dear J. W.: First, I suggest you pay a visit to your state employment office whose staff provides job counseling and is qualified to assist in finding employment. Inquire about the availability of Manpower Development Training Act classes and your qualifications to attend one of these classes. Also, be sure to contact the veteran's employment representative at the office. He has information regarding benefits and services available to veterans. In addition, contact the nearest vocational rehabilitation office to inquire if you are eligible to participate in its retraining programs. It would also be beneficial to visit your area Economic Opportunity Council to inquire if you are eligible to participate in its retraining programs.

T. S., Pocasset, Mass., asks: If men and women do the same work, but the men occasionally perform extra physical work, such as lifting boxes, does this justify more pay for them?

Dear T. S.: Absolutely not. This position was upheld in a recent court decision involving male and female employees doing essentially equal work in a glass factory. The men in this case occasionally lifted heavier materials and were paid more. The court ruled the effort was equal and required the company to make the pay equal, too.

F. M. of Bayside, N.Y.,

writes: I am writing for my women's auxiliary group which deals with various problems confronting women. Is there any agency I can contact that can help us deal with women's problems?

Dear F. W.: I suggest that you contact the Women's Bureau, Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210. The bureau provides information, advice and technical assistance to individuals, organizations and public and private agencies that are interested in improving the economic and social status of women and girls.

The bureau seeks to stimulate interest in activities designed to enhance opportunities of women. This is done through conferences, consultations and a wide range of informational services. These devices are used to focus attention on solving problems confronting women in the areas of day care; job training; employment counseling and guidance; low-skilled, low-paid occupations, such as household employment.

HARRIS BRINSON

Pampan To Be OBA Marching Band Clinician

Harris Brinson, director of bands at Pampa High School, will serve as marching band clinician for the Oklahoma Bandmasters Association Convention to be conducted in Tulsa on July 19 and 20.

Directors from all parts of Oklahoma will be in attendance and will hear Brinson discuss the many different styles of the marching band and especially the style that has made the "Pride of Pampa" one of the outstanding marching units in the United States.

Brinson conducted a week-long marching workshop at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. last summer for directors from all over the United States. Prior to this he has conducted similar workshops in Kansas and Nebraska.

The boy next door can't be ignored

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We love the house we moved into last spring, but there is a problem with the boy next door. He is almost 16, and I have seen him looking into our windows with binoculars during the day time as well as at night. He also used to stare at me when I was sunbathing on our deck over our porch.

I thought perhaps it was just a young boy's normal curiosity, so I made certain the shades were drawn while I was dressing, and I never went around the house half-clothed.

It gave me a rather uncomfortable feeling to wonder if I were being watched, but I didn't really become upset until last week when I received an obscene letter from this boy. He wasn't even ashamed to sign his name.

Should I speak to him? Or should I go directly to his parents? Or should I just keep my shades drawn and my doors bolted and pretend that nothing has happened?

ABBY:

DEAR ANNOYED: Go directly to his parents and tell them what you have told me. The boy appears to be disturbed, and needs to be psychiatrically examined. For his sake, and the sake of his family and society, please follow my suggestion at once.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the employer who made it a policy never to hire a teen-ager whose parents lined up the job reminded me of my own experience.

My father was well-connected in our town, so he would get me a summer job every year from the time I was 15. (I later learned that my father even paid my salary, which was a terrible blow to my ego.)

I was an average student, but my father used his influence to get me into his college which was way over my head. It took me five years to graduate, but it made my father very happy.

After graduation my father continued to run interference for me, and to make a long story short, in his well-intentioned efforts to help me, he all but destroyed my self-confidence.

Abby, please tell parents that unless kids are allowed to try their wings, they'll never learn to fly on their own.

STILL LEARNING AT 35

DEAR STILL: You did it very well. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Your idealistic philosophy of "sharing and caring" is beautiful in theory, but it doesn't work. I learned that 15 years ago.

We took our young family to a public park, hoping to enjoy an outdoor picnic supper. We were all set to have a lovely time when a family of loud, crude characters moved in next to us and started to get friendly. They had a bunch of dirty looking children and a couple of mangy dogs sniffing everybody and everything in sight.

This unattractive carload of people soon took over the whole area. We had no privacy, and could hardly wait to pack up and head for home.

When we arrived home, we discovered several things were missing from our car. Then I remembered that a couple of the children had engaged us in conversation in order to distract us while some of the others were looting our car.

That cured us! Sorry, Abby, I am not interested in "sharing and caring," and chumming up to loudmouthed characters, thieves, juvenile delinquents, and dogs that urinate on my picnic basket. "JUST ME" IN N. Y.

DEAR ABBY: Pardon me while I laugh at the foolish 47-year-old woman who refused to be called "Grandma." I married a widower with three lovely children 10 years ago. Today I am probably the proudest Grandma in the world, and I am only 29! GRANDMA (STEP OR OTHERWISE)

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69706, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

The Hairbrush Bristles With History

Historic background on the familiar hairbrush has turned up in the archives of Caswell-Massey, the oldest apothecary in the United States. Fritz Scheff (left), famous star of the late 1800s, cost a young salesclerk at the apothecary shop a pretty penny. The wind blew her skirts, revealing a bit of ankle. He promptly dropped an armful of the brushes on some fragile crystal bottles and his salary was docked until the breakage was paid for. Ade Rehan (center), a brilliant comedienne of the era, received a gift of a white boar bristle brush from a famous actor with "I LOVE YOU" spelled out in black bristles. Today, a pneumatic rubber pad brush with natural bristles (right) and a cherrywood-back to provide professional hair care.

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The bristle hairbrush once served a dual purpose. It gave the hair a shining, luxurious look and it added a rosy blush when applied by parents to the plump posterior of petulant progeny.

But today, with the school psychiatrist or just plain permissiveness in many cases replacing hairbrush discipline, all that's left for the bristle brush to do is style and vitalize the hair.

Bristle brushes are costlier than synthetic brushes. After all, bristle comes from a wild boar and nylon from a test tube. But bristle lasts a long time to begin with and since grime and dirt adhere to its uneven surfaces it helps keep the scalp clean and the hair shiny. The brush gets dirty but the hair becomes cleaner. And there are bristle brushes in many shapes for the new short hairdos that one brushes with the twist of the wrist as well as the long, handled type for long strokes on long hairdos.

Kent of London (brush-makers to royalty) has perhaps one of the most romantic, nostalgic and historical backgrounds of any firm. Its wide range of accomplishments includes brushes made from Lord Nelson's flagship, H.M.S. Victory, the wood of Waterloo Bridge, wooden-handled toothbrushes made for Indian troops, brushes for cleaning the fuselage of World War I planes and barrels of anti-tank guns. America discovered Kent brushes over 100 years ago when they were introduced at Caswell-Massey, the oldest apothecary in the United States, originally located in Newport, R.I. The New York shop was opened on Fifth Avenue and 25th Street prior to the Civil War.

Recently uncovered in the old apothecary's archives are amusing and fascinating anecdotes to give us some insight into the brush firm's wonderfully nostalgic beginnings in America.

Ade Rehan was one of the most brilliant comedienne the American stage ever produced. She gained fame for her outstanding performance in the "Taming of the Shrew," as well as her long list of suitors and admirers.

she ordered Glub style brushes—each hand-engraved for identification purposes—right and left.

Ann Nichols, the playwright who wrote and produced "Abe's Irish Rose," was a frequent visitor to Cas-

The long look will continue happily and elegantly through summer. Here's a gay, multicolored long (left) that is perfect for a summer afternoon or evening. The casual sporty look is center stage for summer, too. The flattering ensemble of separates (right) has a V-neck cardigan jacket, combined with a striped, ribbed, short-sleeved mock turtle sweater. It perfectly tops off a solid-colored culotte with white piping. These fashions are in Trevira polyester and designed by Miriam Klein for James Kenrob.

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY—The Pet Peeves in the column are surely read by the manufacturers as there was a Peeve about toilet paper being so hard to get started unrolling and now the brand I use is much easier to "get going." This had long been a Pet Peeve of mine even though I had not sent it in.

I have multiple sclerosis and have learned many "helps" by trial and error and hope they may help others. My hands have become too weak to type with my fingers so I hold a pencil and hit the keys with the eraser.

Ball-point pens were difficult for me to hold upright for writing but I found that using a clipboard and tipping it upwards makes writing easier.

I had the handle of a plastic pancake turner (almost-up to the board part) screwed to a broom handle and use this to pick up lots of dropped items. Be sure to leave part of the handle on so it can be used to put things on high shelves. The other end of the broom handle has a magnet attached to pick up dropped lids and such.

I have a tiny scoop with a handle for picking up money and small things. To pick up a pencil, press down on the point to raise the eraser enough to get hold of that end.

If you have one good hand and one paralyzed one, wet and soap your washcloth, put on the side of the lavatory and take the good hand to rub the paralyzed one over the washcloth.

—MRS. F.A.B.

POLLY'S PROBLEM
DEAR POLLY—Our house was "egged" recently and before we could clean the bricks the eggs had jelled and now seem almost impossible to remove. We have tried ammonia but with no luck. Does anyone have any other suggestions? —MRS. J.S.S.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with a well-known brand of paper towels that have colored borders. They look pretty hanging on the holder but are not colorfast. They run and smear the sink or counter top or whatever is being wiped with them so they look worse than before the wiping. Is it that these towels are not supposed to be used with water or to wipe up spills when that is what I buy them for?

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JULY 14
Your birthday today: Despite some inconvenience, it appears you are determined to make the most of what you have available. Where emotional ties are involved, relationships intensify and are subject to vivid moments. Today's natives are fond of adventure, individual extremes in striving to achieve them.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Courtesy again proves intangible. Avoid unthinking emotional rejection. Obstacles are temporary if taken as such and worked around.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Stop to think, see if your feelings are reciprocated. Much of your stress is unnecessary, beyond the real extent of provocative stimulus.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: If it happened yesterday, forget it. Pick up with what you have now and go on the be. You know how. Strife is avoidable.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Self-reliance is your path to success today. Concentrate on finishing what you started, with or without direct cooperation.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your money is hard to hold onto, with little gained from its use. Associates, family may be overly sensitive. You can help achieve harmony.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Remember that those who disagree have a different understanding; try for better communication. The deal you make today will be permanent.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Pay immediate attention to whatever bothers you, get advice. Distant events provide news, possibly incomplete.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Be free with your advice where it is asked, but wary about lending resources. Major purchases should wait; conditions are changing.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Insist on going ahead with constructive action. Yesterday's planning shows flaws in proportion to your distraction, can be corrected.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: For once your natural tendency to organize everything brings some inconvenience. Let continuing matters go on over to another time.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Line up your facts and figures, review your situation, adopt new budgets. Any momentary surplus should go to savings.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Go along with others' ideas, at least long enough to see where they lead. Then you can charm those who count into adjustments.

As we watch all the investigations being done in the Land of Women these days, it's easy to understand how the members of a primitive tribe feel when the anthropologists come to visit.

Women sit watchfully in their native habitat while the scientists and reporters, mostly all the tourist type, wander about, recording the language, snapping a picture or two as we go about our daily life.

We don't mind the visitation of the curious. Hopefully some of the intruders "bring good medicine, cure sickness," as old movie scripts say.

They attempt recording the inner thoughts, charting vital statistics while murmuring among themselves over our strange methods of survival.

These tourists are more than welcome to observe in the end (as happens in National Geographic stories) perhaps they will even join traditional women in a drink or two at the neighborhood gathering place.

Full menus of life styles are offered to men here. But only women are allowed at the bar, where they are offered three traditional thirst quenchers.

The first and most popular is the Housewife Hi-ball. Served up in a tall glass, garnished by a sprig of Thyme, this elixir is mixed from floor wax, homemade mayonnaise, plaster of paris and grass seed, then stirred with a knitting needle.

The Motherhood Malt is a fizzy pink swirl of a drink with a chopped candied ginger makes an interesting addition to mashed sweet potatoes. Rinse the ginger pieces in hot water to make chopping easy.

Oswald: "One of the main characteristics of a good bridge player is that he never gives up. He doesn't get all good results but when he gets a bad result he will always have given the hand the old college try."

Jim: "Today's hand is a good illustration. South was a great player. The game was match point duplicate and after East made the takeout double of North's two-spade bid, South wanted to find some way to get to play in four spades. He decided the best approach would be to pass."

Oswald: "South's strategy worked too well. Not only did he get to play in four spades, but he found himself doubled. He also saw very little play for his contract, but he worked it out with help from his opponents."

Jim: "He won the heart lead, entered dummy with a trump and led a club. East cashed two clubs and got out with a heart. South won; went over to dummy with a trump and led a low diamond. East did the best he could and played low; but South went up with his king and led a second diamond. West was in with the queen and had to give South a ruff and discard—his contract."

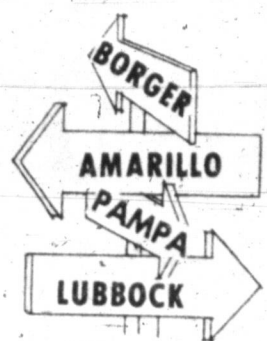

Oswald: "South was lucky to find West with exactly queen and one diamond. He was even luckier when West failed to drop his queen under South's king in which

A HEAD IN THE HOLE—Sometimes when a ballplayer has to sit in the dugout, he (or she) may get a little anxious to get back into the action of the game. Jeanette Ketchum, 12, playing with the Burples girls softball team, peeps through a hole in the dugout fence at Optimist Park while watching the action during a recent game. Jeanette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ketchum, 608 N. Wells.

Aerobatic Flying Team To Compete In France

Editor's Note: Once again those daring men in their flying machines—now middle-aged—will be flying "over there" but this trip to France will be for global honor in the olympics of flying.

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer
OAK GROVE, Tex. (AP)—A Pitts Special looks a little like something you put a dime in and let the kids pretend they're the Red Baron.

But don't let a Pitts pilot hear you say that. The Pitts Special is awfully special this year to the American aerobatics team as they prepare for the seventh world championships to be held July 18-31 at Salon-de-Provence, France.

In the few remaining days ahead, they'll be doing more wiggles and turns in the air than a fan dancer in a hall storm.

"The tension, and the discipline are getting sharp," observed Jim Hill, manager of the Oak Grove airport where the U.S. team is based. Deep into their rigid training program are Charlie Hilliard, Fort Worth, president of the Aerobatics Club of America; Gene Soucy, Wichita, Kan.; Art Scholl, Riverside, Calif.; Tom Poberezny, Hales Corner, Wis.; and as the team's only distaff member, Mary Gaffney, Miami, Fla., holder of numerous awards.

Hilliard has been air-stunting for 15 years and is now only 34 years old.

"Experience is invaluable," he says. "It's taken me years to acquire the proper confidence to learn how I should feel up there to do my best."

Hilliard, however, doesn't allow his experience to overshadow the constant need for training. Since the teams are held every two years, there is plenty of time to iron out previous mistakes and hone up on new techniques.

Local Youths Join WTSU Music Camp

CANYON—Twelve students from Pampa are among the 1100 junior and senior high school students enrolled for the 20th annual West Texas Instrumental Music Camp, to be held July 16-28 on the West Texas State University campus. They are Roy Anderson, Mark E. Dement, Rhonda Dennis, Vincent DiCosimo, Debbie Heinritz, Dona Henley, Jo Ann James, Teresa Johnson, Patsy Kelley, Brenda Lee, Carolyn Lindsey and Greg Williams.

The camp, with a faculty staff of over 40 members, features activities in band, orchestra and ensembles, as well as classes in music appreciation, theory, drum majoring and twirling.

The World's 'Most' And The 'Highest'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Irish eat the most. Americans brew the most beer. Swedes live the longest. People in Liberia get married the most. And the Russians are threatening to catch up in several categories, according to the U.N. Statistical Yearbook.

It says 38 Liberians out of every 1,000 say "I do" annually in the West African nation founded by freed American slaves. The U.S. Virgin Islands have the second highest marriage rate reported, 19.3 weddings for every 1,000 people. The Gilbert and Ellice Islands, a British colony in the South Pacific, reported the highest divorce rate, five for each 1,000 people. That, however, is based on 20-year-old figures while the Liberia figure is for 1969 and the Virgin Islands for 1970.

The 836-page yearbook is filled with statistics on worldwide and regional economic and social trends. It is prepared annually by the U.N. Statistical Office with the help of statisticians of more than 150 countries and territories and the U.N. specialized agencies.

Figures for the United States show 10.7 marriages and 3.5 divorces a year for 1,000 people. The figure for the Soviet Union is 9.7 marriages; 2.6 divorces.

African nations were found to have the highest birth and infant death rates—led by a birth rate of 52.3 per 1,000 people in Swaziland and a death rate in Zambia of 259 for every 1,000 live births. Several other countries in Africa and Asia reported infant death rates ranging between 10 and 20 per cent.

The yearbook shows the lowest infant mortality rate to be 11.7 deaths for 1,000 live births in Sweden, based on 1969 figures. Swedes also had the longest life expectancy at birth, 76 years for women and 72 for men. The shortest life expectancy at birth is 35 for women born in Chad and 25 for men born in Gabon.

The United States in 1970 showed an infant mortality rate of nearly 20 deaths for 1,000 births. The life expectancy for Americans born in 1968 was 66.6 years for men and 74 for women.

Among other findings:

—The United States produced more steel, books, cigarettes and beer than any other nation and had nearly half of all automobiles in 1970. It turned out 120 million metric tons of steel, 562 billion cigarettes, 158 million hectoliters of beer and nearly 80,000 book titles. Americans owned 89 million of the world's 192.6 million automobiles.

—The Soviet Union was second in steel, book and cigarette production, but a distant fourth behind West Germany and Britain in beer production.

—People in Ireland average 3,450 calories a day. The Indonesians ate the least—an average of 1,750 calories. Americans consumed 3,290.

China has submitted some facts to the United Nations since joining the organization last year, but none of this was in time for the yearbook.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Lonnie illustrates a child tragedy. He has been socially wounded by his daddy! But the latter is not an intentionally cruel, sadistic parent. He has simply violated one of the Ten Commandments: Dads, take the new perspective outlined below!

CASE U-534: Lonnie S., aged 11, is a forlorn youngster.

"Dr. Crane," he said as he watched a sandlot baseball game, "I never get to play."

"For the kids call me 'Butterfingers' because I can't catch the ball very well."

"And I strike out at the plate, too."

"When the two captains choose sides, they almost always skip me, even for little kids only 9 years old."

"But if my daddy would practice with me, maybe I could get on a team!"

CHILD TRAGEDIES

When we read about auto crashes that kill or maim youngsters, we consider such cases to be severe tragedies.

But psychological tragedies also occur thousands of times every day in our supposedly civilized America.

Lonnie is one of them!

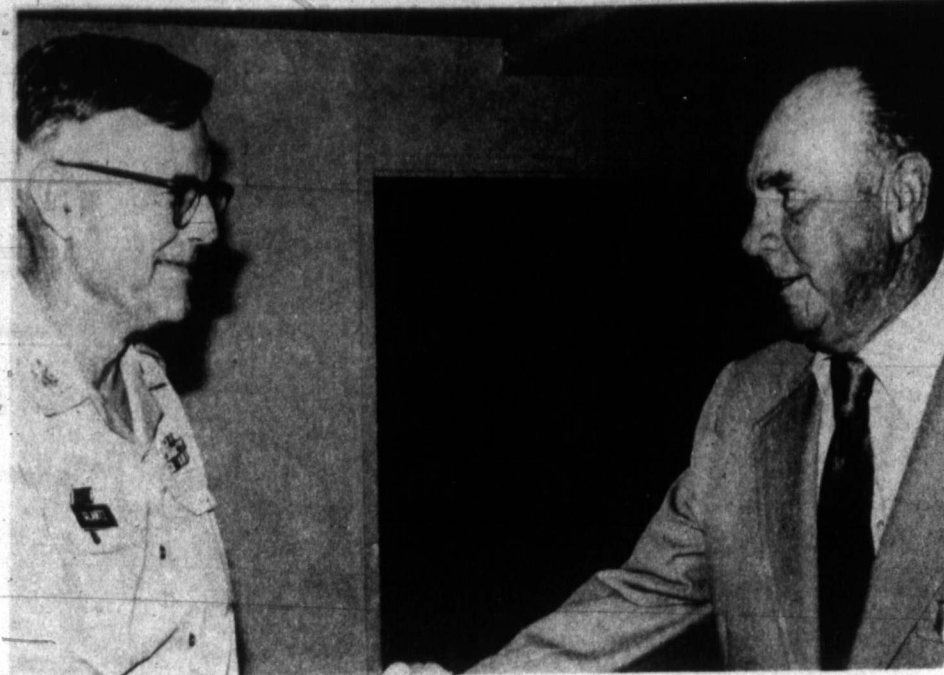

And it isn't because his father is a cruel, sadistic parent. No, indeed!

He simply is so devoted to his adult goal of making a pile of dough and retiring by the age of 40, that he fails to see Lonnie's heartache.

His daddy grew up on the wrong side of the tracks, where money was scarce and poverty haunted his home.

So he has been "brainwashed" with an abnormal worship of $$$$$.

He plans to take plenty of time off when he gets rich, for then he thinks he can play with Lonnie.

AWARDED MEDAL—George W. Scott, right, of Pampa, was recently awarded the Selective Service Bronze Medal and a 20-year certificate of appreciation for his service to the Selective Service system. Col. Melvin Glantz, left, Texas State Director of the Selective Service, presented the awards to Scott in the Herring Plaza federal office building in Amarillo. Scott has retired from the membership of Local Board No. 52 in Pampa.

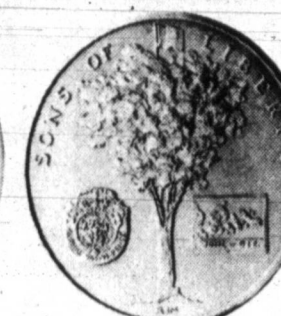

Symbols Mark First Bicentennial Medallion

The numismatic industry got its first look this week at details of the nation's first official Bicentennial medallion. And through the courtesy of Coin World editors, the above photographs of the originals are the first released to the news media.

These official galvanoplastic photographs made at Philadelphia are the cooperative effort of the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission and the Bureau of the Mint.

Mint Director Mary Brooks and Mrs. Elvira Clain-Stefanelli, curator, division of numismatics of the Smithsonian Institution, worked closely with the designer, Ralph Menconi, "Sculptor of Presidents," in developing the "Father of Our Country" obverse and "Sons of Liberty" reverse.

Prepared for striking under the direction of Chief Mint Engraver Frank Gasparro, the medal has a right-side profile of the famous the tree trunk is a reproduction of the actual stamp used by the British in the despised Stamp Act that triggered the Revolution.

To the right of the trunk is an illustration of Benjamin Franklin's "Join or Die" sketch with abbreviations of the patriotic colonies alongside each segment of the writhing snake. This "cartoon" first appeared in a 1754 issue of the Pennsylvania Gazette and was later used by Paul Revere as the masthead of his patriotic newspaper, the "Massachusetts Spy."

The massive elm Liberty Tree, which was located on Hanover Square (corner of Washington and Essex) in Boston, was the meeting place of the Sons of Liberty in 1765. A pole fastened to the trunk protruded through the upper branches and displayed a red flag when there was to be a meeting of members of the revolutionary movement. The ground under the tree was symbolically referred to as "Liberty Hall," and it was here the Boston Tea Party of Dec. 6, 1773, was planned.

The 1972 American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission medal legislation, passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon in February, requires medal design to commemorate historical events of great importance.

Components in the design of this first in a Bicentennial series strongly portray events that precipitated the Revolution. The Houdon-Duvivier likeness is the only portrait for a medal honoring the first president ever ordered by Congress.

The bust was modeled after the one made by Jean Houdon in 1785.

Serving with Mrs. Clain-Stefanelli and Ralph Menconi on the ARBC coins-medals panel committee for the final stages of the development stages of the medal were Mrs. Margo Russell, Coin World editor; Roy C. Cahoon, Deputy Director of Public Service, Bureau of the Mint; Dr. Lynn Carroll, Mrs. Ann Hawkes Hatton, Richard McCormick, Paul Smith and James Biddle.

How and when these medallions will be made available to the public will be announced later.

British Open Lead To Unknown Peter Tupling

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus went into today's second round of the British Open Golf Championship in an unusual spot. He wasn't leading.

"But I'm happy," said the 32-year-old American star who needs the British title for the third leg of an unprecedented professional golf Grand Slam.

Nicklaus shot a one-under-par 70 in Wednesday's first round over the 6,892-yard Muirfield course.

He was little known behind the leader, two strokes behind pro Peter Tupling, and one behind Britain's Tony Jacklin. Nicklaus, overwhelming favorite to win his third British crown, shared third place with two other American players, Frank Beard and Dave Marr, and two Britons, Peter Townsend and Craig DeFoy.

"My mood and attitude are fine after that first round where I didn't play too well but still managed a fair score," Nicklaus said.

"I'm relaxed."

In all major tournaments over recent months Nicklaus either has led, or shared first in the Masters and then in the U.S. Open, the first two titles he already has won on the road to the Grand Slam. The British Open and the American PGA next month would complete his greatest ambition.

"I know I can play better than I did in the opening round here," Jack said.

"My swing isn't far off what it should be. It's a matter of timing. Maybe I'll do a little more practice."

Defending champion Lee Trevino was one stroke behind Nicklaus with a par 71, along with South Africa's Gary Player, bidding for his third British Open crown.

Doug Sanders, runner-up to Nicklaus in the championship at Muirfield, in 1966 and St. Andrews in 1970, also fashioned a 71.

"My chances are pretty cotton pickin' good," said Sanders. "I always enjoy coming to Scotland because I can relax here, slow down the pace a bit."

"Back home, everyone seems to be rushing everywhere. If I could afford it I'd get out of this rat race."

Nicklaus was among the late starters in the first round but he was scheduled for an early start today.

JAMES KAUFFMAN—Another new addition to Pampa High's football staff, coach Kauffman, will participate in tonight's Pampa Booster Club benefit game. The game pits members of the American Legion team against Pampa's coaches, headed by head football coach Buddy Williams. Coach Kauffman comes to Pampa from Amarillo Tascosa and will coach the defensive ends and linebackers. A graduate of West Texas State, he and his wife Ruth Ann have three children, a son Britt, 15; a daughter Kim, 13 and son Randy, 12. The game gets underway at 8:00 at Optimist Park. All supporters of Pampa athletic teams are urged to come out for an evening of enjoyment. Tickets are $1 for adults and 25 cents for children.

Ghetto Kids Learning Staid Sport Of Tennis

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis whites are turning black.

The game traditionally reserved for the white-clad, white-skinned country club set—with Althea Gibson and Arthur Ashe the token exceptions—is spreading to the ghettos.

Kids—black, white, Puerto Rican—are learning the staid old sport, not through endless theory but through instant competition.

"Get down on it, man. Keep that arm parallel to the ground. Keep that wrist up."

"Remember it's accuracy, not speed, that counts."

"Good movement, sweetheart. Gotta get you a pair of sneakers and you'll be that much better."

Eric Werner's booming commands and the kids' shouts of delight bounced off the Central Park tennis courts, where usually the subtle "thump" of a ball off a racket is the only sound.

Werner, a part-time actor who is director of the New York Junior Tennis League, squatted on the court in front of the net. He scattered balls left and right along the ground and encouraged the kids in sneakers and dingy dungarees, sandals and colorful play suits, to scurry and return them with the palm of the hand.

Quick to follow was that alien instrument—the racket.

Most kids thought it would weigh a ton and that they would have to give it a real wallop to get the ball across the net.

"I thought it was like one of those bats that you have to choke up on," said Raymond Girado, a tousled 12-year-old who wants to play for the Los Angeles Lakers basketball team when he grows up.

Girado had arrived that morning at an east side community center with every intention of going swimming. But a little arm-twisting by his director brought him to the tennis courts.

He left with a racket he had won by beating five other youngsters.

The New York JTL is part of the National JTL established in 1969 by Sheridan G. Snyder, an establishment man from Darien, Conn. His organization has spread to major cities across the country and culminates each year with a national championship. This year in Washington.

At first he had Ashe and Charlie Pasarell teach the kids the game. But they taught theory and lost the kids. Now Ashe is a vice president of the NJTL and an avid booster. The teachers are people such as Werner, who knows more about street kids than tennis.

"One of my pride and joys is that these kids feel they can beat me," he said. "That's one of the things that makes us work on the same level."

Werner never had played tennis until four years ago when a kid at the park bet him $5 he could beat him.

Oilers Open Camp

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — New Houston Oilers head coach Bill Peterson greeted the first wave of players at Schreiner Institute today—55 rookies and veterans.

Peterson and his mostly new staff came ahead Monday to prepare for rookies' arrival. There will be physicals today and two-a-day practice sessions start Friday.

The top rookie, defensive end Greg Sampson, Houston's No. 1 draft choice, will be missing. He's working out with the College All-Stars who will play the world champion Dallas Cowboys.

Sampson, who played on Stanford's 1971 and 1972 Rose Bowl championship teams, will get a good look at the world champions. He'll report to the Oilers' camp just in time to get in a few workouts before Houston's pre-season opener Aug. 5

By fluke, Werner won. "I had to accept the $5 because otherwise I would have insulted him," Werner recalled. "But from that day on that $5 was up for grabs to any kid who could beat me. So I had to learn to play tennis. Otherwise I'd go broke."

New York alone has 26 sites for NJTL competition and nationwide there are more than 140 organized teams.

Just like a pickup game of basketball, baseball or stick ball, no one is left out. All kids get rackets, balls and shirts and begin competition in the local challenge rounds, usually in groups of 20 competing for 12 spots.

But the shirts aren't always the traditional white. The array of hues depends upon the number of teams competing. The skintones and attitudes are just as varied.

"I'm not the best, but I'm not the worst, either," said Peter Ruvalo, a 15-year-old from Brooklyn, who started in the program three years ago now helps teach tennis as well as play.

"It's easy," said Girado, "but I'll have to practice more."

"I don't really like it that much," said Jamie Frieland, 7, of Manhattan.

Great Moments In Golf

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

He had the tournament won, but the record was still there to be broken.

And the shot that Jack Nicklaus remembers most is the one he set it up for him to break Ben Hogan's U.S. Open record with a 275 total in 1967.

"It was on the 72nd hole of the Open at Baltusrol," he said.

"I had a three-shot lead at the time. Arnold (Palmer) was second but he was out of it."

"I could make six on the hole and still win. But I needed to make four to break Hogan's record."

"The shot that did it was a

Ben Considers Pro Golf But Decides Against It

DALLAS (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, the blond terror of American amateur golf, said he changed his mind about turning professional this summer because "I'm not that good, yet."

The University of Texas star, who is favored to capture the 69th Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament being played at Brook Hollow Country Club, said "I can make some money on the tour, sure, but I don't want to go out there with a half-confident attitude."

Crenshaw, the NCAA co-champion, said "My iron play is not near enough the way it should be. I hit some good ones, but then I hit a bad one and find myself having to strain to two putt."

He said teammate Tom Kite of the national champion Longhorns tried to talk him into turning professional.

"Tom turned professional last week and he wanted me to come on out," Crenshaw said. "Well, each person to his own personal goals. I just don't feel I'm ready."

Crenshaw birdied the last three holes Wednesday to down Terry O'Toole of Oklahoma City 5 and 3 in a first round match. Crenshaw met Gary Frankensfield of Fort Worth today.

"I hit some bad irons," Crenshaw said. "You've got to watch yourself mentally in match play. I was playing the man instead of the golf course. You've got to concentrate or your play will get sloppy."

The biggest shocker Wednesday was the unseating of four-times champion Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City. Coe was tumbled 2 and 1 by Harold Gardner of Lawton, Okla.

Wally Payne of Fort Worth shot a three-under-par 68 to stun medalist Mike Houpe of Austin 1-up.

Another well respected player to fall was Danny Edwards, the North-South and Southeast champion from Stillwater, Okla., who lost 2 and 1 to Gary Koch of Temple Terrace, Fla.

Three members of the national champion Texas team were sidelined.

Steve Benson of Lake Forest, Ill., whipped Johnny Dill of Houston 3 and 2. Bruce Hollowell of Springfield, Mo., tripped Tony Pfaff of Austin 4 and 2; and Don Bliss of St. Louis dropped Brent Buckman of Parkville, Mo., 4 and 3.

Contestants will play 18 holes today, 36 holes Friday, an 18-hole semifinal Saturday and a 36-hole final between the two survivors Sunday.

Canyon Wins Pampa Loses

In last night's rain-delayed make-up games in the District One Babe Ruth 13-year-old tournament Canyon beat Dumas National and Top-O-Texas Blue blasted Pampa Blue Team.

Canyon got by Dumas 8-4 in the first game of the evening which was delayed approximately one hour because of last night's sudden downpour. Walling got the win.

Top-O-Texas scored 24 runs to beat Pampa Blue in the nightcap which was not completed until midnight. Pampa was able to get only six runs in the game. Wade Robertson was the winning pitcher and Tony Brown took the loss.

Top-O-Texas got nine runs in the first inning and 11 more in the third to run away with the game.

Contempt Of Public

The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution denies authority to the courts to compel any person, in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.

Judged by a recent case, the Orange County judiciary has discovered a way to circumvent that curb on state power.

The circumvention is a court-ordered psychiatric examination of the defendant with invocation of the judge's contempt power in case the defendant does not submit without qualification.

A sample of the tactic was acted out in Orange County Central Municipal Court this past week.

A Santa Ana resident earlier had sought to provoke a constitutional test of the compulsory school law. His method was to stay with his own child in a classroom, to be arrested and prosecuted, then to appeal. After Steps 1 and 2 were accomplished, and while the prosecution was yet pending, Judge John Teal—a Reagan appointee—ordered a psychiatric examination. The interview was to be made by a county-salaried doctor who does that kind of work for the courts as a sideline. The purpose of the examination, the judge told a newsman, was to find out whether the defendant was capable of assisting in his own defense.

Obviously a psychiatric examination while his case was still pending posed a particular difficulty for the defendant. If he complied, he would be giving information to a county official, and there was at least a reasonable probability that such information would find its way into the hands of another county official, the prosecutor. Upon the other hand, if the defendant refused to submit to the examination, he would violate a court order. The response of the defendant was to attempt to comply with the court order on condition that the psychiatric information be kept in his sole possession. Judge Teal was not satisfied with that and without a contempt hearing, sentenced the man to five days in jail for contempt of court.

On the third day of the contempt sentence, the defendant was examined by a county psychiatrist and committed to a mental ward for 72 hours.

On the fourth day of the sentence, the judge dismissed the original charges in the general "interest of justice" on grounds that nothing further could be gained by prosecution since the man already was in custody.

Here is an instance in which an accused person in a criminal case was deprived of his liberty without trial or hearing because he refused to be a witness against himself. After that, when he was no longer accused—that is, when the original case had been dismissed by the same judge who ordered the contempt sentence—confinement was prolonged by means of a doctor's statement that could not have been made except for the first confinement. This is justice as manufactured in Orange County by the Orange County judiciary. It amounts to jail without trial, without jury, without hearing. Such fast and losing playing with human liberty is nothing else but "contempt of public." The court is saying to all the people of Orange County, "You have no liberty; test us and find out."

Gas Tax On Tax

For every dollar you spend on gasoline, you do not get a dollar's worth of gasoline.

If you ever did, it was so long ago, no one is expected to remember it.

Until July 1, with each gallon of gasoline you paid for, you paid 11 cents in taxes, seven cents to the state and four to the federal government.

Now, that dollar you spend for less than a dollar's worth of gasoline will cost you $1.05 because you must pay a sales tax on the transaction. Usually, you paid a sales tax on the price you paid for the commodity. In this new wrinkle, you pay a tax on a tax.

When you buy 10 gallons of gasoline at 36 cents per gallon, you actually pay $2.50 for the gasoline and $1.10 in taxes. Then add 18 cents for the new sales tax. So your $2.50 worth of gasoline will cost you $3.78.

When the legislature of California passed that little bill back in November, Orange County's representatives voted as follows: Sen. James Whetmore voted "No." Sen. Dennis Carpenter did not vote. Assemblyman Kenneth Cory voted "Yes." Assemblyman Robert Burke voted "No." Robert Badham and John Briggs did not vote.

Fischer And Checkmate On Himself

By RALPH NOVAK

We have seen in recent days the creation of something new in chess, the Fischer gambit.

This is where you threaten to hold your breath until you turn blue and/or pick up your chess board and go home unless you can have your own way.

A true inspiration to the youth of America, Bobby Fischer has shown us that these tactics work in this greed-smudged real world.

Fischer's performance, the prelude to the world chess championship match in Iceland, should not have surprised us. He has, after all, never said he was sensitive, poised, considerate, modest, generous, admirable or intelligent. He has said only (though many, many times) that he is the best chess player around, in Brooklyn, the United States, the world and, presumably, the universe. Let us assume he is right.

The next question is, so what? Fischer seems to be operating under the belief that because we pay our athletes and entertainers outrageously large sums of money, we should do the same for chess players.

From his point of view this is reasonable, of course.

But from everybody else's it is super-arrogant nonsense. That we are foolish enough to sanction paying Tom Seaver $125,000 a year to throw baseballs is no justification for our being foolish enough to sanction paying Bobby Fischer $200,000 for shoving a bunch of toys around for a month.

For one thing, there is the two-wrongs-don't-make-a-right theory. For another, there is the fact that chess is not, either historically or intrinsically, an interesting spectator sport. Such vicarious enjoyment as chess games provide comes from leisurely study of the move-by-move account, not from watching Fischer knit his brow in thought or lick his chops in fiendish anticipation of crushing an opponent's ego.

Maybe at some future time there will be enough fans around to support chess in the fashion to which Fischer would like to be accustomed. But right now there are not. And no exploiting capitalist is getting rich on Fischer's talent.

This makes it doubly unfortunate that London investment banker James D. Slater saw fit to add $125,000 to the world championship purse. For Fischer's threats to quit the match bordered on extortion and his bluff should have been called. This would have been painful for Iceland—whose costly preparations for the match Fischer held hostage. But it would have put Fischer, a fatuous, graceless man, in his proper place, that of someone who happens to be a genius at a trivial pastime.

Now, though, we have the confrontation. Fischer has at times tried to make his match with defending world champion Boris Spassky a Cold War kind of crusade, good old American versus godless Russian Communist. But he was not so dedicated to the crusade that he was willing to wage it for a mere $100,000. He was not so proud that he would not apologize to the Russians to save the match and his money. And he was not smart enough to realize that if he had just quietly won the championship, he would have earned the respect and, probably, the financial rewards he demanded so prematurely.

Quick Quiz

Q—How many eggs does an alligator lay at a time?

A—Alligators grow to 19 feet, live about 50 years and lay as many as 80 eggs at a time.

Q—What was the Holy Grail, long sought by knights of the Middle Ages?

A—The cup or chalice which Christ used for drinking at the Last Supper.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Oppose McGovern Like Goldwater

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—It means little to characterize the front-running Democrat, Sen. George McGovern, as the "Goldwater of the left." But a comparison of their campaign situations does offer some instructive insights.

In 1964, Sen. Barry Goldwater won the Republican presidential nomination because a substantial proportion of the GOP leadership wanted him.

His support included a crucial party element, Taft-style conservatives who truly belonged in the center. Though these forces deplored what they saw as excesses of zeal among Goldwater's far rightwing backers, they were weary of moderate candidates. These they saw as "me-too" imitators of the Democrats.

There was, of course, much opposition to Goldwater from the moderate or progressive wing of his party. The key figures were governors like Nelson Rockefeller of New York, William Scranton of Pennsylvania, George Romney of Michigan, Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

Just one trouble. They could never get together, and no one of them could ever muster impressive support. They had glamor and high visibility, but it was misleading. It never translated into votes and delegates to stop Goldwater.

Meantime, Goldwater, aided by cadres of dedicated young activists who put together a superb organization, piled up an enormous delegate lead in the non-primary states. His late-hour primary victory over Rockefeller in California really was his only good one, yet in the circumstances it was all he needed.

Set McGovern's effort beside all this. He, too, has those dedicated cadres, who in fact are more numerous and more skillful by far than those laboring for Goldwater in 1964.

Beyond that parallel, however, differences begin to appear. Helped by a multiplicity of candidates who divided the vote, McGovern won 10 primaries against Goldwater's unimpressive handful. Together with the delegate harvests produced by the cadres in the non-primary states, McGovern's victories gave him the nomination.

Yet the successes cannot conceal some glaring gaps. Unlike Goldwater, McGovern has not won to his side large elements of his party's establishment. Far from being ready to try something new, as were the Taft conservatives in 1964, the standard Democratic leaders for the most part are bitterly opposed to McGovern.

While the moderates were saying in 1964 that Goldwater was a loser, his conservative backers were not convinced. Their counterparts in the Democratic center today loudly proclaim that McGovern is a loser—"too radical," too thinly based for all his victories and his delegates.

The votes cast in 1972 gives their argument support. Generally speaking, the crowded Democratic presidential field that helped McGovern get on top in some primaries also assured that his voting percentage would be just a modest part of the whole. And he won some light-vote primaries almost by default.

Again, though the Republicans have nothing comparable to labor's muscle and money for campaigning, it is not insignificant that the potent labor Democrats are not with McGovern in force.

McGovern's men think the swarms of young activists who got him this far can get him past President Nixon, too. Maybe. But Goldwater's activists found winning an election much harder than getting the nomination against an unorganized opposition.

McGovern may find it the same. He may need more than lip service from labor's troops.

H. L. Hunt Writes

AGAIN, SCHOOL BUSING

The will of the majority, it seems, continues to be ignored. The administration in Washington has professed sympathy and promised to set in concert with that will on the issue of school busing. Candidates in state primaries who were on record against school busing for the sake of racial balance scored top-sided majorities. Referendum votes elsewhere showed the majority of the electorate against busing.

Nashville, Tenn., school children will be bused across the city regardless of the expressed wishes of the people. The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled for busing and the decision involves 48,000 children. The decision means they will not be able to attend school in their own neighborhoods. They will be exposed to the dangers of traffic accidents on the trips to and from school. They will find themselves in strange circumstances. They will not be getting better educations. They actually will not be helping race relations but they will be satisfying the mandate of the court.

Some liberal candidates for high office are complaining that office-holders have not been responsive to the needs of the people. At the same time they are espousing the cause of school busing. These candidates ought to read the public opinion polls to find out how the majority of the people actually feel about the issue of busing. The circuit courts ought to read again the Supreme Court decisions on school integration. These lower courts of appeals would find that mandatory school busing for the sake of racial balance was not the intent of the Supreme Court. Meanwhile, the people ought to make their voices heard even in stronger tones.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Hernia Needs Repairing Again

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a hernia problem. Actually I had a double operation in 1945. One side held but the other didn't. I was operated on again in 1962 and it didn't hold either. In fact the stitches let go shortly after I was out of the hospital. The doctor told me I was allergic to catgut so I decided to leave the hernia as it was and just wear a belt. In 1967 I had a prostate operation and I was found to be a borderline diabetic. The doctor told me to watch my diet, but since I was a hard worker I didn't bother much and as a result I had a heart attack in 1969. Now I have no choice but to watch my diet.

After the heart attack I was told that I should have the hernia repaired, but to wait one year. I have let it go but I'm now at retirement age. I would like to have this hernia operated on since I'm tired of wearing a belt and just can't see myself walking around the rest of my life with this sac hanging down, plus the fact that it does hurt at times. On the other hand, I am afraid. If I do have the operation, is there any way to have it reinforced so it would hold? Is there any danger because of my heart condition? How do I go about finding a specialist in this field? The medical bureau is not of much help.

Dear Reader—Unless a complete medical examination proves that you have some underlying serious medical problem, I am all for you having your hernia repaired. The truth is that they can cause trouble, and the older you get the more difficult it will be for you to have surgery. So you're really not gaining much at this point. Since you've had surgery before, you already know that the operation really isn't that difficult. It's really minor surgery (at least for everyone except the patient). The real problem is being sure that you do get a successful repair, and you've already had some difficulties along those lines.

Many people who have had heart attacks and have had a reasonable recovery have actually undergone a major surgery without any real difficulty. Of course, your surgeon would like to know about your attack because it may have some influence on what type of anesthetic he might choose. Your best way to find a competent surgeon who performs these types of operations is to ask your family doctor to refer you to the nearest university medical center. This would insure you that your operation would be at least supervised by top-notch specialists in the field. I would think that your family doctor could arrange this referral for you.

Do you have questions about impotence? If so, you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's booklet in which he answers your questions about this subject. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Impotence" booklet.

GLOBAL VIEW

Pyongyang Wants West Safety Tie

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—North Korea's Kim Il Sung is caught in a bind between Russia and China. And suffering severe economic problems.

For years he has kept his country free of complete domination by Moscow and Peking only by the most nimble of dancing acts. He has shifted first to the one, then the other.

By this play back and forth he has extracted arms and economic aid, at one time from Moscow, at another from Peking—and sometimes from both at once.

Up to now he has been aided by the rivalry between these two countries and by his own adroitness.

There is new evidence that the pressures have now become too great. Like Mao Tse-tung in his fear of Russia, North Korea's Kim needs a connection with the West to balance against the two Communist giants.

He needs economic accommodation to lessen his dependence on Russia and China for aid—an aid which is uncertain and tied heavily with strings.

He requires some sort of military accommodation with South Korea to cut back on his defense burden, which is overloading his economy and making him too dependent on Moscow and Peking.

Kim, for all his communism, has a deadly fear of domination by either Russia or China, even though he reportedly holds, or once held, Russian citizenship.

Curiously enough, it is understood from contacts in Tokyo and Hong Kong that both Moscow and Peking, for reasons of their own, have also been urging Kim to make these accommodations. Russia's hope, these reports say, is that these Western contacts will weaken North Korea's relations with Peking. Peking, presumably, has the same hope in reverse.

In any event, other Tokyo contacts report the eagerness with which Pyongyang has been seeking economic deals with Japan and South Korea, and putting out feelers toward economic accommodations with the West in a variety of areas. The thinking is that North Korea would like western technical and monetary aid and closer contacts generally for the economic and fear of Sino-Soviet imperialism reasons noted above.

Officials in the Nixon administration say it is not necessary to put trust in Kim Il Sung to see the opportunities this opening to the West offers.

It is precisely the same type situation that prompted Yugoslavia almost two decades ago to ask for help.

Now, some 20-odd years and well over a billion dollars in aid and political backing later, some of the most ardent anti-Communists in this government believe the experiment and investment were worth every dollar in halting Russian expansion in Western Europe, even though Tito remains as determined a Communist as ever. (His defense setup is directed against the Soviet Union to insure against a Czechoslovakian-type takeover.)

*The theory is that every move toward independence by a Communist nation, however small, is insurance against a Communist front that could endanger the United States and its allies and other nations large and small around the world.

Though North Korea may not be a major factor in world affairs, it is hoped here that it could set an example for other countries—encouraging them to resist Communist pressures.

And who knows, perhaps even North Vietnam would find a lesson in the Korean example. Hanoi has the same problems—a shaky economy, a haunting fear of Russia and China, a war that increases her dependence on these two powerful giants. But don't count on Hanoi following Pyongyang's lead.

Just Who Is Getting It?

Congresswoman Martha W. Griffiths (D-Michigan) said last week that she felt it important to try to find out who is getting the $85 billion a year being paid out in welfare and related programs, and who will get the $85 billion scheduled for next year. The Congresswoman questioned Elmer Staats, Controller General of the United States, and John G. Veneman, Undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "Is it possible to administer this (welfare) program well?" Congresswoman Griffiths asked the two gentlemen. Staats said the answer was negative. Veneman replied at length: "What it all boils down to is this: Under existing law, we can make rules, plead for compliance, document the chaos and pay bills—that's it. When you get right down to it, we are on a kamikaze mission."

Representative Griffiths learned that there is no cross-checking between the 1,152 autonomous welfare units in this country. Families often receive aid from five or more programs and cash assistance, food stamps, Medicaid, low-cost public housing and school lunches—and there is no way to determine duplications of welfare handouts. At the end of the questions, Congresswoman Griffiths had learned little. "I think it's incredible," she insisted, "that we don't really know who's getting the $85 billion!"

NOTICE AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING
The Texas Highway Department is planning the improvement of State Highway 70 in Roberts County from 1.6 miles north of the Gray County line to Chicken Creek, a distance of approximately 12 miles. The proposed highway project will pass through no towns.

The proposed improvement will consist of returfing, widening, and upgrading the present facility. The proposed facility will consist of two 12' traffic lanes, an additional 12' climbing lane in warranted areas, and two 8' shoulders. There will be no control of access features. The right of way width varies as a minimum from the present right of way width of 120' to 160' right and left of center line to a maximum of 120' left and 120' right of the center line. There will be no realignments on the project. Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and geometric design, environmental studies and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office, P.O. Box 1138, Pampa, Texas 79603, located on U.S. Highway 40 just east of Pampa, also, the drawings showing the proposed geometric design have been placed on file with Roberts County.

Information about the State's Relocation Assistance Program, the benefits and services for displaced persons, the relocation assistance office, as well as information about the tentative schedules for acquisition of right of way and construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office.

Any interested citizen may request a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effects of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office on or before Thursday, July 27, 1972.

In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be published about the date and location of the hearing.
