Harding's Program—"Broke" Germany—Senator La Follette—How About Woman?

PRESIDENT HARDING HAS A program. He has asked the operators to re-open their mines. He has asked the miners to return to work. If the miners refuse then the owners of the mines will employ strike breakers or non-union labor. Should the strikers interfere with the work of the strike breakers, twenty-eight governors are expected to see to it that protection shall be given the mine owners and the men who have taken the jobs of the strikers. Twenty-eight governors are asked to use the national guard as patrols to maintain order and to protect the strike breakers to the limit. If the national guardsmen of twenty-eight states are not sufficient to afford the protection demanded or desired, then the United States regulars are to be called from the forts or the barracks wherever they are stationed at present to assist the national guardsmen in affording protection to the men who are digging coal. This is the program when the president's message is read between the lines. President Harding insists that a man has a right to strike and that government has no power to force a man to work against his will. He also insists that when a worker deserts his post there is a vacancy and that vacancy may be filled by hiring the first man who may apply for a job and who is willing to work. If the man who quit interferes in any way with the man who has taken his place, then it is the duty of the government to step in, with loaded rifle and fixed bayonet and protect the worker. This world owes no man a living. He must hustle for it. Unless the railroad and the coal strikes are settled, there may be some lively hustling in this country before the coming of the winter season.

GERMANY MAY BE FACING bankruptcy but the Germans are not. A leading New York banker who keeps in close touch with the raw cotton market is responsible for the statement that the Germans had taken certain precautions so far as their raw materials were concerned and had plenty of money on deposit in American banks to pay for all the cotton they would care to use this season. Germans will be among the early buyers. Japanese traders will be among the early traders. Neither the German nor the Jap is a noise maker. He watches the market. He knows the value of raw cotton. He knows that there is a very small carry-over. He knows that the world crop this year will be a small crop. German manufacturers of cotton goods know that there is going to be world demand for these goods. Never worry about the Germans. Their military power and prowess was broken forever. Their economic power was not destroyed.

SENATOR ROBERT M. LaFOLLette of Wisconsin opened his campaign for renomination with a terrific indictment of the Harding administration and LaFollette is a republican. He attacked predatory wealth, asserting it had reached undreamed proportions and that it dominated the disarmament congress and likewise the tariff and other important republican legislation. He charged that the railroads have taken one billion five hundred million dollars from the public treasury but the burden of excessive rates has not been lifted; that labor is idle now as never before; that masters of coal, iron, steel, cotton and woolen mills, the grain trust and meat trust and other great financial interests have accumulated more wealth than they ever dreamed of possessing; that the Tea-pot dome in Wyoming, an oil reservoir of national importance had been removed from legislative protection and given to the Standard Oil company; that the four-power treaty was un-American; that the disarmament conference was designed to protect financial interests and not lives. Senator LaFollette is for a soldier bonus. He advocates an excessive profits tax for raising money to pay the bonus, and he told the republicans of Wisconsin that the greatest achievement of the republican administration in revenue legislation has been the repeal of the excess profits tax on corporations which he estimated save corporations and trusts four hundred and fifty million dollars annually. He said he had killed a joker in this law that would have enabled the wealthy of America to escape

CANDIDATES GLAD SENATE RACE IS OVER

Klan May Throw Its Support to Henry

(By H. N. F.)

DALLAS, July 21.—All campaign headquarters are deserted, all the candidates are in the hands of their friends on the morrow, all the campaign managers are glad of it, all the forecasters have shot their wad and now it is up to the democratic voters of the commonwealth.

Judge Ervin Clark of Waco, fired a bomb at Grand Wizard H. E. Evans of Atlanta in the closing hours of the campaign. He exploded the bomb when he handed in his resignation as grand titan and grand legal counselor. Dr. H. E. Evans, who is now of the higher ups in the city of Atlanta is a former citizen of Dallas. He was an unknown dentist until he became a high officer of the invisible empire at a salary of $10,000 a year. Now Clark says that Evans is the political dictator for Texas of the klansmen and that he works through Z. E. Marvin of this city, who is charged with having pushed Sterling P. Strong out of the race first and then having failed in his attempt to throw Robert Lee Henry into the discard.

There are prominent klansmen here who say that the klansmen of Fort Worth or a majority of their number have decided to cast their primary ballot for Henry for United States senator and one newspaper here has made an estimate of the vote that Henry is certain to receive. He is given 68,000 and should this pro-

By Associated Press.

Rail Strike Peace Centered In Capital

Chairman Hooper of the labor board was called to Washington to confer with President Harding on the shopmen's strike.

B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts, sent a telegram to R. A. Henning, St. Paul union chairman, asserting that only a national settlement will be considered.

The Pennsylvania road announced that it would continue its agreements with its men despite a decision of the federal court of appeals against it.

Samuel Gompers says that a conference between the employers and the strikers was the one thing essential to settlement.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Chairman Ben W. Hooper of the railroad labor board was on his way to Washington tonight for a conference with President Harding which administration officials hoped would be the basis for peace negotiations in the national railway shopmen's strike.

The third week of the walkout ended tonight, with rail executives and union heads firm in their respective positions, was described here as "antipodal" with the newest peace activities centered at Washington. Attorney General Daugherty held conference at which the possibility of legal action in both the rail and coal strikes was discussed, although it was said no immediate proceedings were contemplated.

While the administration was using its influence to bring peace additional carriers today followed the lead of the Baltimore & Ohio road and announced that separate peace agreements with their men would be sought.

While B. M. Jewell, head of the shop crafts employes, previously stated that any agreement must be on a national basis, he has not commented on recent moves of the carriers for separate negotiations. He indicated definitely tonight, however, that separate agreements could not be considered when he wired A. A. Henning of St. Paul, general chairman, denying statements that Le

WHITE'S DEFY STILL HOLDS

Emporia Editor Says "Come On"

By Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 21.—Judge J. A. McDermott of the Kansas industrial court, left on an afternoon train for Emporia to investigate the William Allen White case. From the governor's office it was announced that there was no change in the state's plans to arrest the Emporia editor for his alleged violation of the industrial court act in posting placards encouraging the striking railroad shopmen. The only reason for the postponement of action, it was said was to determine upon a plan of campaign.

Complaint Ready

It was understood that Judge McDermott had a complaint against White with him and that his instructions were that if White took down the offending sign, no attempt should be made to arrest him, but that if he did not, McDermott was to file the information with Roland Boynton, county attorney.

Late Information from Emporia was to the effect that the yellow card which caused the break between White and Allen still is in position, but that White has not changed the "50 per cent sympathy" for the railroad men. Yesterday the sign was 49 to 50 per cent.

From Emporia came the word that

Suit Dismissal Formally Entered

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Dismissal of the Pennsylvania railroad's injunction against the federal railroad labor board and reversal of the district court's decree was formally entered today in the United States circuit court of appeals with the filing of the court's opinion in the case.

The court declared that in rendering decisions to which the Pennsylvania objected the board did not transcend its power under the transportation act.

Labor Not to Support La Follette

By Associated Press.

OSHKOSH, Wis., July 21.—Endorsements by the Wisconsin state federation of labor will probably not be given the candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette for renomination at the republican primaries, as a result of withdrawal today of the resolution expressing support of organized labor to him.

FIRE SWEEPS MANY HOMES

Ft. Worth Suburb Is Hard Hit

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, July 21.—Damage estimated at between $75,000 and $80,000 was caused here tonight when eleven residences in Hi-Mount, Arlington Heights, a suburb, were destroyed by fire. A general alarm was turned in and all apparatus from Fort Worth responded.

Lack of water and the intense heat hampered the firemen and an entire block was swept away before the fire was brought under control nearly two hours after it started.

The fire started shortly before 6 o'clock in the residence of W. G. Wiggins. Its cause is unknown. The building, a two-story structure was rapidly burned and the flames, fanned by a wind of twenty miles an hour velocity spread to joining buildings.

As the flames spread in area, occupants of the houses which lay in their path began moving out their furniture, taking with them rugs, pictures and in some cases the electric light fixtures. In one instance the furniture which had been removed from one residence and piled across the street, caught fire from the extreme heat. Telephone cables and electric light wires fell to the ground when the poles on which they were suspended burned. One youth was burned when he stepped on an electric light wire had fallen.

Read This and Save Your Vote

When you vote today, don't forget to, scratch Jimnie Maxwell's name and the name of the late Judge A. L. Brubaker from your ballot, otherwise it will be discarded and counted as no vote.

That was the announcement made last night by county candidates following the public speaking held on the Moore and Richolt lot. It was pointed out at that time that time that the names of both men naturally appear on the printed ballot, and that unless their names are scratched from the list and a vote recorded at the same time for some other name appearing in the same column, that that ballot will become illegal, despite the fact that Mr. Maxwell has withdrawn from the race and that Judge Brubaker's sudden death Friday necessarily withdraws his name.

It was indicated last night that the judges of the various ballot boxes will probably give information to this effect, however, attention was called to the fact that some voter might choose to cast a ballot for some other person in the race for sheriff or county judge, and inadvertantly leave the names of Maxwell and Brubaker on the ballot.

FULL STRIKE REPORT READY FOR HARDING

Hooper Goes to Washington for Conference

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—President Harding, determined to obtain a first hand view of the railroad strike situation, today called Chairman Hooper of the railroad labor board here from Chicago, for a personal interview tomorrow. The president, prior to summoning the labor board head, received Chairman Cummins and Senators Kellogg and Watson of the senate interstate commerce committee, who reported on their conference last night with eastern railroad executives and later the whole question was taken up for discussion in a prolonged cabinet session.

The president was represented as desirous of hearing from Hooper on account of the positions taken by the leaders of the striking shopmen, the rail executives and the board itself, during the negotiations aimed at a strike settlement, but which have been broken off. Some conflicting reports in the matter have been received at the White House, especially since last night's conference.

Legal Sharks Active

Meanwhile, Attorney General Daugherty conferred at the capitol first with Senator Borah, chairman of the senate labor committee, and then with Mr. Cummins, the discussions involving the possibility of legal action in both the railroad and the coal strikes, although the attorney general stated afterward that no immediate legal proceedings were contemplated.

"I haven't any doubt," the attorney general said later, "that the government has as much power and authority to protect men who are engaged in the production of coal which is indispensable to transportation, as it has to protect the men engaged in transportation, mails and interstate commerce. The government has full power and authority to see that the production, incident to transportation is not interfered with.

Bail Granted Two

By Associated Press.

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, July 21.—District Judge L. D. Guinn late today granted bail to Jess Rambin in the sum of $7,500 and Alfred Simpson $5,000 bail, at the conclusion of a habeas corpus hearing which lasted two days. Rambin and Simpson were arrested following the finding of the body of Dr. A. L. Parrish. Parrish's body was sunk in a lake near Garrison and was recovered about three weeks after he disappeared on May 25. The case will be tried in the September term of the district court.

Plans Made To Conserve All Supplies

Hoover and Operators Ready for Conference To Decide On Distribution System; Federal Government Standing Pat at Present; No Possibility of Beaking Deadlock Apparent.

The government apparently was prepared to "stand pat" for 10 days or two weeks to ascertain whether sufficient coal will be mined under guarantee of federal protection to assure fuel requirements of essential industries.

Secretary Hoover called a meeting of representatives of coal producing districts to discuss a proposed rationing plan.

Troops were moving into southwestern Pennsylvania to prevent disorder when bituminous mines are reopened.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The government is prepared to "stand pat" for a period of 10 days or two weeks in its attitude toward the coal strike, it was indicated today in order to ascertain whether sufficient production will be obtained through the reopening of bituminous mines under guarantee of federal protection to assure the fuel requirements of essential industries.

In the meantime, plans for distribution of the curtailed supply of coal are to be pushed, it was said.

Secretary Hoover announced tonight he had called a meeting here next Monday of representatives of producing districts in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, and Virginia to discuss the proposed "rationing" plan and to formulate a policy designed to restrain profiteering.

While all three parties to the recent conferences in Washington—the government, operators and union—seemed satisfied that the situation is hopelessly deadlocked. A new move for restoration of peace in teh coal fields was seen in the resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator King, democrat, Utah, who proposed creation of a commission of five to investigate both sides of the controversy and report its findings.

Emergency Measures

There were strong indications in administration circles tonight that the government expected to rely on the distribution of coal being produced in the non-union fields to supply the railroads and necessary consumers during the emergency.

Reports at today's cabinet meeting on results to date of the president's appeal for opening of mines in strike territory, did not indicate substantial new production, but more time was said to be needed for a test of its success. Non-union production was found to be running far below the levels of April, May and June, in spite of price incentives for greater production and this was charged up directly to the effectiveness of the railroad strike in the mining territory concerned.

CAMPAIGN IS WOUND UP HERE

Candidates Speak in Own Behalf

Gathered on the Moore and Richolt lot, speaking from an old concrete base, an occasion which might have done credit to the old-fashioned barbecue picnic and "candidating" was held last night at 8 o'clock when the various candidates for office in Wichita county wound up their campaign before about 400 people.

The speakers were introduced by Frank Johnson, who was in charge of the final canvass of Wichita county.

With the exception of a few men whose names appear on the ticket, practically every candidate in the county appeared and made clear his claims to office.

Mr. Johnson had laid down some iron-clad rules prior to the meeting, holding all but the candidates for legislature to five-minute talks; legislative candidates, however, were permitted to speak 15 minutes. No one was permitted to speak in behalf of the candidates who did not appear.

Practically All Speak.

The speaking was opened by candidates for justice of the peace, precint 1, places 1 and 2, and was closed by J. D. Parnell, candidate for legislature, place No. 2. Included among those who spoke were the following:

"Red" Gibbs, "Dad" Arrington, O. D. Beauchamp, candidates for justice of the peace; Frank Morgan, Pat Windham, W. J. Bryan, candidates for constable; M. L. Tittle and Guy Raley, candidates for tax collector; Miss Elisabeth Hall, Mrs. R. L. Miller, L. A. Fox and J. A. Thompson, candidates for county clerk; Jim Glenn, Fred Smith and Pat Murphy, candidates for sheriff; J. W. Meadors and A. F. Kerr, candidates for district clerk; F. G. Swanson, D. H. Gipson, John Simmons and J. D. Parnell, candidates for legislature.

During the speaking, Mr. Johnson took occasion to call attention to the death of Mr. Brubaker, and announced that his opponents in the race for county judge, B. D. Sartin and Judge J. P. Jones, would refrain from speaking. Mr. Johnson also called attention to the race for senator from this district and praised the work of Mr. Bledsoe, who is asking for re-election.

Rangers Visit Corpus Christi

By Associated Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, July 21.—Capt. W. L. Wright and Dan Gilliland of the state ranger force, were registered at a local hotel here late tonight and reservations made for others expected in later, it was said. It was understood that the rangers had been requested by local citizens in fear of election trouble tomorrow, but officers declare that there is no impending trouble and that they would be in a position to take care of any situation that might arise.

West Texas Industry Seriously Threatened

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, July 21.—A telegraphic referendum to its directorial board was being taken Friday by the West Texas chamber of commerce following urgent requests from various members of the organization that some action be taken to combat threatened demoralization of industrial conditions due to the rail strike. The referendum calls for a vote on a resolution requesting that action be taken by federal and state authorities and calling on Governor Neff to guarantee protection of life and property to all persons desiring to work during the present strike.

Indications at a late hour Friday night were that an overwhelming majority of the chamber directors would favor such action being taken.

The situation in many parts of west Texas is already reported as being serious because of hampered railroad facilities. Paralyzed traffic has caused a curtailment of factory production, with consequent loss to manufacturers, and in some instances the laying off of workmen has been necessary.

One local brick plant is on the verge of a complete shutdown, a low coal supply and inability to move either raw material or finished products being assigned as the cause. Twenty-four men will be thrown out of employment next week unless immediate relief is obtained, according to managers of the concern.

Death of Destitute Watchman Starts New York Rumor Mill

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Efforts of police and consular authorities to identify as a member of the Noble British Fitzroy family the old night watchman known as "Edward Eustace" who died in squalor in Brooklyn early this week, produced two startling results.

Robert I. Kenworthy, grand secretary of the Masonic grand lodge of New York, who was intimately acquainted with the late Earl of Euston, visited the morgue where the body lay. He took one look and said:

"It's the Earl of Euston."

But the morgue attendant told him the body had been positively identified by Mrs. Amanda Doughty of Red Bank, N. J., a short time before, as that of "Edward Eustace" who was born in Albany, the son of Edward Eustace and Jane Dayton Eustace Britishers, whom Mrs. Doughty declared had been employed before they came to America on the estate of the late Duke of Grafton, the father of the late early of Euston.

This, and the fact that cable dispatches from London said the late earl had been buried there in 1912, caused Mr. Kenworthy to withdraw his statement, but he declared the dead man "bore a most astonishing resemblance to the late earl."

DIRECTORS VOTE FAIR PREMIUMS

Will Give $7,500 in Prizes

Premiums approximating $7,500 were voted on by the directors of the Texas-Oklahoma fair Friday night to be given at the fair September 30, to October 4, inclusive. There will be prizes in art, livestock, agriculture, poultry, dogs, school work, fancy work, automobiles, babies, machinery, petroleum products and scores of other things. The complete premium list is to be made up and published in a few days.

According to reports made at the directors' meeting Friday night enough exhibits already have been obtained to fill more than eight of the large hangars at Call field. The various committee chairmen reported splendid progress. The dog show is to be held under the auspices of the American Kennel club. The various live stock associations are co-operating in bringing live stock exhibits here and the same is true of the swine department and the sheep and goats. There will be a splendid art exhibit, a big automobile show and so many other things to see that it will take two or three days for one person to take in the entire fair and see it all, it is said.

President George D. Keith made his report of the progress and showed that in every department the work is up to date or ahead of schedule with the heartiest co-operation in all departments.

Matters of finance were reported on at the meeting and the financial report showed that there is in the bank approximately $25,000 in money and notes for the association with more money coming in each day. Various routine matters were discussed and details of building arrangements were gone into.

No additional troops were called out today although soldiers were still on duty in a half dozen states. A few workers were beaten by strike sympathizers at widely scattered points but no serious disorders were reported.

E. J. Manion, head of the railroad telegraphers union, offered first substantial support to the strikers when he issued an appeal to his men to donate one day's pay to the striking shopmen and miners.

Many additional trains were annulled. Short run trains out of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, two Great Northern trains between Grandforks and Devils Lake, N. D., and two between Grandforks and Fargo were annulled. Wabash train service into Hannibal, Mo., will be discontinued tomorrow(it was reported.

USE PLANES IN FORESTRY SERVICE

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU, T. H., July 22.—Army airplanes have been pressed into service here to assist the territorial department of forestry in the reforestation of certain inaccessible districts in the mountainous country back of the United States military reservation at Schofield Barracks.

The mountain districts which are being reforested are so precipitous that the foresters have been unable to get in to do their work. An appeal made to the head of the air service forces on Oahu resulted in the loan of several planes, which in favorable weather fly over the steep gorges, while tree seeds are dropped by members of the forestry staff, who are taken along as passengers.

phecy or prediction come true there may be a surprise in store for the Dallas politician who is said to carry more weight today over in Georgia, than any political klansman in Texas.

Mayfield Confident

And the campaign closed without excitement, without red fire, without riots, without fist fights and without a gambling dollar on the head of the barrel.

Mayfield's relatives and his managers say that they have placed their man ahead of Thomas. Mayfield's brother says that Culberson will be in the run off. They say that Mayfield has never been beaten as a candidate for public office and they hope that he will be able to put the finishing touches on the career of Culberson in the August finals. These Mayfield prognosticators generally award Ferguson third place. Ferguson may get third place but most of the dopesters continue to stick to their forecast that Culberson and Mayfield and Thomas are the leaders with Thomas doing his best to nose in ahead of Mayfield.

There are politicians here who have handled state campaigns in other years who predict a total vote of 800,000. There are others who predict a total vote of 600,000. They say there has been very little interest manifested in the country, that there are thousands of democratic voters who are apathetic and that the women voters have shown no disposition in this campaign to rush madly to the polling places on election day. All the saloons are gone; all the public gambling houses are gone. All the city reservations have been abolished. Women voters know that these are not coming back. They know that the eighteenth amendment is here to stay. Now just why should they get excited? Ferguson has drawn the largest audiences in this campaign. Joseph Weldon Bailey drew the greatest crowds two years ago. Pat Neff snowed Bailey under on election day. Ferguson is the best entertainer in the bunch. He isn't a poseur or a political hypocrite and the people dearly love to be amused.

GLORIA SWANSON HAS A mother. Gloria's mother married Matthew T. Burns. Matthew was a shoe merchant who had been successful. Matthew died, but before death came he willed the bulk of his $100,000 estate to his widow. Matthew had relatives. They filed a contest. They alleged that Gloria had vamped the shoe dealer into marrying her mother and then vamped him into making a will giving her mother all his property. All this happened in the city of Los Angeles, where sensations come to the surface daily. So the case came to trial and the judge vindicated Gloria. He said that there was no evidence that she had vamped or revamped the step-father who had willed his estate to the mother of the movie actress. This was first blood for Gloria and her mother, but they did not fare so well when the sanity of Matthew was passed on to the jury. These 12 good and true men declared by their verdict that Matthew was mentally incompetent when he made the will and their verdict was a slight knockout for the claims of the mother of Gloria. WHITE'S—

White, lifelong friend of Governor Allen, was disappointed at the delay in the proposed arrest. In an article in tonight's issue of the Emporia Gazette, White says:

"All day the editor of the Gazette has been sitting up, dressed for the execution. Occasionally a box of flowers would come in. He got his last communication from Henry Gannse, his attorney, and sat singing pious hymns, waiting for the procession to start. He had a dying statement written and put in type and was in a beatific frome of mind, when the notice came that a reprieve had been granted until sundown. The notice that Judge McDermott was coming to Emporia, under a flag of truce, sent the Gazette man into his bomb proof, with his gas mask on and his tin hat over his eyes."

OIL DEVELOPERS CIVILIZE WEST

(By International News Service.)

RIVERTON, Wyo., July 22.—The "Pilot Butte country," made famous through the exploits of "Bill" Carlisle, noted train bandit, who, escaping from the Rawlins state penitentiary in the all of 1919, terrorized passengers on transcontinental trains as they passed through the section of the country, is at last to be touched by advancing civilization.

Oil promoters are completing preparations for the drilling of test wells in the Pilot Butte oil structure, and successful operations will bring commercial interests that will invade this picturesque frontier country.

VERNON AFTER LEE HIGHWAY

Road Directors Meet Friday

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, July 21.—The the Transcontinental Lee highway, the building of a bridge over Red river near Frederick, Okla., and the matter of road maintenance featured a mass meeting of citizens held here tonight in honor or Dr. H. M. Johnson, director general of the Lee Highway association, and United States Senator Lee of New Mexico. The gathering of townspeople took place in the chamber of commerce rooms.

The bringing of Dr. Johnson to this city crowned the efforts of the Vernon delegates to the convention in Lawton, Okla., Thursday and Friday and is considered as an exceedingly favorable indication that the establishment of the Lee highway from Lawton, through Vernon, thence to Crowell and on to Roswell, New Mexico, may take place.

Another proposed route would take the pike to Hollis, Oklahoma to Childress and from there to Roswell. It is understood that Dr. Johnson is favorably impressed with the Vernon proposition because the Lee highway will thereby connect with the well known Three F highway at Crowell and thus receive the added benefit of state and federal aid. The director general accompanied by a local delegation will leave Saturday for Roswell on an inspection tour.

Thomas Wants Klan Clear of Politics

Special to The Record News.

GREENVILLE, Texas, July 21.—Cullen F. Thomas, candidate for the United States senate in speaking to a Greenville audience yesterday, discussed along with the planks of his platform the late developments as disclosed by the press of the klan situation. He boldly and vigorously contended that the klan, as well as any other fraternal organization should not become a political machine.

"From published correspondence among officials of the klan it is now known of all men that leaders of the klan are seeking to swing the klan voters a bloc vote to a member of the klan," said Mr. Thomas.

"I hold in my hand a published letter from Sterling P. Strong to Rev. A. C. Parker, dated June 5, 1922, in which, speaking of the liquor interests he used this remarkable sentence:

"They are trying to dominate everything political and are using their utmost endeavor to dominate the ku klux klan."

MAYFIELD CAMPAIGN ENDS IN SAN ANTONIO

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, July 21.—Concluding his campaign, Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for senator, presented his platform to a large audience last night at the Methodist tabernacle here.

Mr. Mayfield devoted at least half of his address to an argument in favor of the restoration of former rate-making powers to the state commissions, in order that they might be in position to relieve the pressure of high rail rates upon the traffic of the nation. He proposed to repeal the Esch-Cummins transportation act, and to pass legislation to define state and intrastate traffic, and to limit the powers of the interstate commerce commission so that that body cannot destroy the rate-making powers of the state commissions as it did in the Shreveport rate case.

WASHINGTON IS CONFIDENT CULBERSON WILL WIN AGAIN

Texans at Capital Predict Culberson Will Face Mayfield In August Run-Off.

By B. N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas had no last minute statement to make today as the time drew near for the formal closing of the campaign in the Lone Star state. The senior Texas senator was at his office early and spent a large part of the day in reading telegrams from Texas. He was in excellent spirits and felt confident of the result.

Culberson expressed gratitude for the work done in his behalf, but made no formal statement. The Culberson office force spent the day in reading letters and telegrams from friends of the senator in Texas. All expressed confidence that Senator Culberson would lead in the first primary. Many of them made no mention of who the other run off candidate might be, Some, however, said Mayfield was likely to be the other man. Still others picked Thomas.

Predicts Big Majority

Congressman Claude B. Hudspeth, at El Paso, said Culberson would carry the sixteenth congressional district by 20,000 over the next man, whom he did not specify. Joe Miller of Corpus Christi, said that Culberson would sweep southwest Texas.

The Culberson forces believed that of the big counties, Culberson would carry Harris, Bexar, Dallas, El Paso and Jefferson surely, and would run no worse than second in most of the other big counties. They said that reports were that Culberson had strength in every part of the state.

Meanwhile other Texans in Washington are intently interested in the senatorial race and passed today figuring the potentialities of the race.

Twenty-One "Big" Counties

It was pointed out here today that 21 counties will cast more than one-third of the total Texas primary vote, while two-thirds of it would be scattered among the other 234 counties. The 21 big counties are Bell, Bexar, Collin, Eastland, El Paso, Ellis, Fannin, Galveston, Grayson, Harris, Hill, Hunt, Jefferson, Kaufman, Lamar, McLennan, Navarro, Smith, Tarrant, Travis and Wichita. It was generally believed here that the outcome would be pretty well certain when these 21 big counties reported.

The opinion here among Texans, based on letters from home, and conversations with Texans recently here was that Culberson would lead the first primary. One Texas statistician made an estimate as a consensus of opinions. He gave Culberson 21½ out of every 60 votes cast; Mayfield 16½ out of every 80; Thomas 14 out of every 80; Ousley 12½ out of every 80; Ferguson 8½ out of every 80 and Henry 5 out of every 80.

FINAL RALLIES END CAMPAIGN

Interest Centers In Senate Race

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, July 21.—Final political rallies were held over the state tonight in connection with the first democratic primary election tomorrow when Texas voters, indications tonight were, will go to the polls in heavy numbers under ideal weather conditions. Most of the candidates did not participate in tonight's rallies but were on their way to their respective homes to cast their votes tomorrow.

Interest centers in the outcome of the race for United States senator, it being six years since Texas voters have balloted to name a member of the national senate. A senator is to be elected this year during a national republican administration, whereas in 1916 and 1918, the vote on United States senator from Texas was during the days of national democratic control, it was pointed out.

The Candidates.

Culberson, former governor; James E. Ferguson, also a former governor, R. L. Henry, Earle B. Mayfield, Clarence Ousley, and Cullen F. Thomas are the six candidates for the office of the United States senator from Texas to be voted on tomorrow.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene, in the Seventeenth district has four opponents, F. B. Dibrell, Jr., Oscar Calloway, Ernest G. Albright and N. S. Holland.

Voters are confronted with a larger number of names on the ballot this year than was the case in 1920. There are nine contested races on the state ticket against seven in 1920, and eleven contested congressional races against six in 1920.

Many Will Attend Guthrie Fish Fry

An old-fashioned fish fry which will be visited by a number of city officials will be held on the Ed Guthrie farm at the mouth of the Wichita river, according to announcements made public yesterday.

The affair, an annual event on the Guthrie place, will attract approximately 50 of the farmer's close friends to his grounds, where fish brought up from the Wichita and Red river will be fried "in the old-fashioned way," and served to the crowd.

GAMBLING DEVICES ARE BARRED AT FAIR

There will be no gambling devices allowed at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. This matter was decided upon by the directors of the association in their meeting Friday night.

The directors discussed the wheels of fortune and various other devices of chance. In the end it was decided that while legitimate games of skill such as throwing baseballs at dolls and the like will be permitted, that none of the gambling wheels will be allowed.

Bentley, candidate for state superintendent of public instruction who closed his campaign Friday night. Mr. Bentley asserted that he had made 142 speeches throughout Texas in belief of his campaign and that in that time he had not mentioned the name of either opponent.

NEW ROAD WILL HELP WICHITA

Opens Rich Trade Area for City

Articles of incorporation were filed in Oklahoma City Friday by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad company for a new line from Altus to Oklahoma City, according to information given out by F. W. Grace, superintendent of the Wichita Falls & Northwestern. Contract work is to be let on the new road at an early date, it is said, and construction will be rushed as rapidly as possible.

Wichita Falls will get new trade territory and a direct route to Oklahoma City by way of Altus when the new line is completed. It will also leave an open line into Kansas as the Katy has a dreect ine from Parsons to Oklahoma City.

With the building of the line from Altus to Oklahoma City and the building of the Byers-Waurika railroad, a great area of trade territory not heretofore in the domain of Wichita Falls will be opened up to this city, it is said. The territory to be opened up by both roads is rich in many products and is expected to add greatly to the development of this city as the territory itself develops.

He will ask that the local organiastion work in connection with Oklahoma City to have the motor car from Lawton to Grandfield on the Rock Island, come on down to Wichita Falls. NEFF NOT A KLANSMAN!

Ku Klux Honored Selves More Than They Did Governor, When They Picked Him to Head Their Ticket; Rantings of Invisible Local Committee Over Invisible Empire Furnishes Real Humor of Campaign Here.

Two Million Dollars Saved Under Neff's Rule

It is now evident that Governor Neff will receive the largest majority today that any governor with opposition ever received in Texas. The most that Rogers and Warner can hope to do is to weaken the Governor's influence in a few sections of Texas.

Governor Neff has made good in carrying out his policy of rigid economy and strict enforcement of the law. He has held the State tax rate down to 62 cents on the hundred dollars for all purposes, whereas, it would have been $1.05 if he had approved all the appropriations made by the Legislature and recommended by the Board of Control, which would have been 30 cents higher than permitted by the State Constitution. More money has gone to the public schools than ever before in the history of Texas, as approximately 51 cents of this 62 cents has gone to the public schools. The State government under Neff has cost two million dollars less than under Hobby.

The Legislature cut down the appropriation for law enforcement away below what it was under prior administrations, and cut the number of Rangers from 100 to 50, and required that 40 of these be kept on the Mexican border, leaving only ten rangers for use in all other parts of the State. Yet, Governor Neff's law enforcement campaign has borne fruit beyond his expectations. According to Chief Justice Morrow of the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas, convictions for crime in Texas for the past 12 months has increased 50 per cent. Since Pat Neff has been Governor he has granted a little more than one hundred pardons, against an average of about one thousand per year for the last five years under his predecessors.

On Sunday morning, March 26, of this year, practically every daily paper in Texas carried the statement of Governor Neff on the Ku Klux Klan issue. In that interview with the Dallas News correspondent, he stated positively that he was not a member of the Klan, had never been invited to join, and did not intend to become a member whether he was elected Governor or not, and that, "There is no occasion for any kind of masked organizations in this country in connection with the enforcement of law. All our laws should be enforced through the properly organized channels of the courts." This interview was published in both of our local papers, and yet a certain person or persons signing himself or themselves as "COMMITTEE" have recently spread in a local paper in flaming language the statement that Governor Neff has not "come out" on the Ku Klux Klan or the Invisible Empire, but that he is under their domination. It is not known locally who this "INVISIBLE COMMITTEE" is, since no member of it cares to publish his name.

This is surely an amusing campaign. Just think of it. An INVISIBLE COMMITTEE fighting an INVISIBLE EMPIRE because of the latter's INVISIBILITY.

Doubtless Governor Neff, had nothing to do with the endorsement of him and his administration by the Klan. But they conferred a great honor on themselves when they did it, though it may have cost Governor Neff some votes. Every intelligent man who knows Governor Neff knows that he takes no orders from any living man, but that he is Governor, and Governor of all the people all the time, whether they be Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile. Governor Neff has appointed as his Cabinet Members, heads of departments, and other assistants, Methodists, Presbyterians, Christians, Baptists and Catholics, Prohibitionsists and Anti-Prohibitionists. One of the best appointments he has ever made was a life long anti and a staunch supporter of Senator Bailey.

This summer Governor Neff delivered Commencement Addresses to Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and Catholic schools. And why not? He is Governor of all, and is too big and broad and tolerant to allow narrow partisanship or petty sectarianism to control him.

Every voter should go to the polls today and vote his individual judgment and not his prejudice. Any voter who permitted the Klan issue to control him in selecting the officers to administer our Government the next two years is doing both himself and his Government an injustice, and he will likely be ashamed of such a vote in the years to come. He should vote for the best man for the office according to his best judgment, whether the candidate be a Klansman or an Anti-Klansman, or whether he be either. Let us be real men and women in conducting the affairs of the greatest government on earth and not mere children.

KEEPING THE FAITH

ALL the senatorial candidates are coming down the home stretch. All the gubernatorial candidates are coming down the home stretch. All the minor candidates are coming down the home stretch. Many shall be called and few chosen. That is, many are in the running but only a few shall be elected to office. There aren't official jobs enough to supply the wants of the hungry horde who aspire to official place. Texas is overwhelmingly democratic in the majorities that it returns for the official candidates of the democratic party. For this reason a nomination is equivalent to an election.

It is boldly proclaimed by all that the people are the masters. They hire or elect their servants. These servants are popularly supposed to attend to the governmental affairs of the people and to give the people an economical, progressive and efficient government. If the people are the masters they should see to it that only the qualified should be named to serve them. Qualification or fitness for the office should be the force that appeals to the voters on primary election day. This is a democracy and the fundamentals of democracy should be uppermost in the mind of the voter at all time. Government was instituted to protect the weak, to make life sacred, to protect property rights and to give every man his just dues.

In this land of ours the constitutional rights of man should never be overlooked. He is guaranteed civil and religious liberty; he is guaranteed a trial by jury if charged with an offense against the law; he is guaranteed protection of life and protection of property; he is guaranteed free speech and not license of speech; he is guaranteed a free press but not a gutter press; he is guaranteed a free ballot and an honest count; he is guaranteed equal rights but not special privileges. These are his inalienable as well as his constitutional rights.

There is no established church in America and the Lord be praised for it. There should be no union of church and state in America, for wherever there has been a union of church and state the state suffered and the liberty of the individual was minimized. There should be an enforcement of the written law at all times by the properly constituted enforcement officials of the law. There should be no control of the constabulary, the military or the courts of justice by those who believe in mobocracy or the jungle law of vengeance.

For one hundred and forty-seven years the constitution of the fathers has been uppermost in this republic and the bill of rights has been a magna charta of popular liberty. For one hundred and forty-seven years the safe and the sane men of America, the thoughtful and the justice loving men of America have maintained the faith of the fathers and held to the constitution and laws of the fathers in directing the affairs of this nation. The ballot is the thing. There all issues should be settled. There should be no higher law for capital or for labor than the law of the land. There can be but one government in commonwealth or country and that the government established by the fathers of the American republic and the fathers of Texas in the long ago.

There can be no government within a government. Either the constitutional government must be maintained by those who love law and order or a government that stands for disorder and disruption shall take its place. It goes without saying that the immortals of the revolution gave the people who came after them one country, one flag, one constitution, one heritage and one destiny. They decreed that this should be a land of law and liberty and not a land of law and license. They decreed that all men should worship God according to the dictates of an honest conscience. They decreed that the press should ever be free. They decreed that the mace of law and not the bludgeon of brute force should be the emblem of authority and justice. They decreed that life should be held sacred. They decreed that the most humble and the most friendless haled into court should be given a fair trial by a jury of his peers. They decreed that there should be one law for all and that the written law of the land. They decreed that there should be a government of and for and by the people and not a government of and for and by kabals or conspiracies or wheels working within wheels launched by designing men to gain control of the machinery of justice or legislation for selfish or sinister ends.

There is no constitution like the American constitution. Thomas Jefferson penned it. He was its author as he was the author of the statute of religious liberty which he wrote into the laws of old Virginia. Thomas Jefferson was the wisest statesman that ever won a niche in the American hall of fame. He stood for popular rights, an untrammeled ballot for all freemen, for civil and religious liberty, for the freedom of the press, for popular education for all the children of all the people. He had as little use for mental slavery as he had for chattel slavery. He believed in a God who was loving and merciful at all times and that superstition and fanaticism were the handmaids of the illiterate and unwise.

Men who call themselves democrats should walk in the footsteps of Jefferson. They should accept the teachings of Jefferson. They should take home to themselves his precepts and his example. He was a democrat who believed in justice for all, freedom of the mind for all, freedom at the ballot box for all, education for all, equal laws for all, equal privileges for all and the fundamentals of that democracy which have made this republic the greatest among the nations of the earth.

When the democrats of Texas, the democratic men and women of Texas, go to the polls Saturday, July 22, to cast their primary ballots, they should remember this founder of the democratic party, who was an aristocrat to the core and yet the most distinguished democrat that ever trod American soil. He believed in the democracy of the brain and the aristocracy of the soul.

Pioneers of Texas who made this commonwealth were followers of Jefferson. They walked in his footsteps. They became immortals. Their descendents who are in the land of the living today should cling to the faith of their fathers and keep their country prosperous and free.

WHEN IS A CONTRACT?

PRESIDENT HARDING'S telegram in connection with the coal strike to 28 governors contains a paragraph that must have cut to the quick some of the coal barons of America. These are the words of the president of the United States:

"Let it not be forgotten that the strike was caused by the wanton disregard of their contract by the mine owners. They treated their pledge to the miners as a scrap of paper. They refused to confer with the miners. They sought to treat the miners as serfs and the miners refused to accept such treatment. They ceased mining coal. It is important to the country that coal be mined. It is even more important that a half million miners be treated with justice. The nation cannot put anything ahead of justice. It cannot put politics or the profits of a small group of mine owners ahead of justice to the miners. It cannot even put the need for coal ahead of justice. Coal can be had in ample quantities the moment justice is done."

Unless the miners return to work who is going to dig the coal? Soldiers of the regular army are not coal diggers. National guardsmen are not coal diggers. Mine owners and their clerks are not coal diggers. There are 650,000 miners on strike, "to better their conditions and to prevent their standard of living from being reduced." Their president, John L. Lewis, says they will not return to work until justice is done them. President Harding says, "The strike was caused by the wanton disregard of their contract by the mine owners." When is a contract a contract?

Back in 1890, nearly all boys wished to be pirates; but they seem reasonably content as mere hold-up men.

As the world looks back at it now, the advocates of peace at any price don't seem so idiotic, after all.

If a man is too darned stubborn to agree with anybody, he soon begins to admit that he is an intellectual.

Rents wouldn't seem so unreasonable if landlords would be content to charge us for the time we remain at home.

About the easiest way to develop light without heat would be to develop the shining possibilities of a bald head.

However, the two million people in America who can't speak English never need an interpreter when money talks.

Rippling Rhymes

THE GENTLE SEX.

If you want a tale that's gory, let a woman write the same; to compound a thrilling story I'd appoint some gentle dame. Man at times seems rather sparing, daubing in the scarlet tones, but a woman, greatly daring, fills her narrative with bones. When her inspiration's wrapped her she has blood and bones to spare, with a corpse in every chapter, and an inquest here and there. Woman writes detective stories by the bushel, in these times, and we can't deny the glories of her plots and sleuths and crimes. And the readers murmurs sadly, "What a dragon she must be, she who writes so blithely, gladly, of red carnage in a sea!" Then some day the reader sees her, and he cries aloud, "Gadzooks!" And a most astonished geezer is that reader of her books. For she's quiet and retiring, she is of a queenly grace; and if bloodshed she's desiring, there's no symptom in her face. Nearly all this season's thrillers are by female authors writ; through their pages wild-eyed killers like the movie phantoms flit. And the gentle authors render all fury in their books; in their private lives they're tender, drinking tea in quiet nooks.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS

By GEORGE BINGHAM

Extensive and elaborate preparations are being perfected for the amateur play at the Wild Onion school house two weeks from tonight. In the fourth set there is to be a big rain storm and Raz Barlow, who has that end of the program in charge, has borrowed the bass drum from the Tickyille Band, with which to make it thunder. All he lacks now is to get somebody to stand on a tall ladder back behind the scenes and throw a big bucket of water down on the actors when he clears his throat right loud.

Yam Sims hasn't got much time to talk to anybody this week, as he is busy building a garage for his mule.

The Once Over

SKEETERS AND THE WASHINGTON SAND FLEA MENACE

Reports from various parts of the country indicate this is the worst summer in years for pests. The District of Columbia broadcasts the news that it is besieged by sand fleas. New York and vicinity shriek that the mosquitoes are longer and louder and lunchier than at any time since one carried off Charlie Ross many years ago. Park foresters in many parts of the land complain of a destructive caterpillar army. Early returns from the housefly census indicate he is holding his own.

The District of Columbia sand-flea invasion is the most alarming. Washington, according to despatches, is overrun with them. Senators may be seen whirling frenziedly about the capital lawns on all fours, now and then stopping to scratch behind the right ear with the left foot.

Representatives are to be observed feverishly shimmying from resolution to resolution. Adjournments for scratching are in order at all times.

All congress is itching for a fight and fighting for an itch. Even the president's cabinet is flea-bitten. The flea invasion, in fact, has given an answer to the question, What's got into the cabinet?

A prominent floor leader is said to have more fleas than Laddie, the white house Airedale. Laddie, when informed of this claim, demanded a recount.

President Harding has not been immune, advices say. A flea is no respecter of persons. A president tastes no worse than anybody else.

The chief executive is compelled, it is said, to spend much of his time rubbing his back against the trees on the white house lawn. It's rather futile. More damage is being done to the trees and to the president than to the fleas.

All of which is seriously interfering with the business of good government. The administration has its hands full of problems. But they're also full of fleas. Only one thing at a time can be attended to successfully, and there is something about the fleas that gives them the first call.

Shifting from fleas to mosquitoes (though it is not compulsory), the claim is made that the skeeters are so large in New York and vicinity that it is hard to tell them from snapping turtles. In Brooklyn the other night a man saw one in front of his house. He tried to get in and drive off, mistaking it for one of the new cars being turned out by a Ford rival.

Seven children and two adaults disappeared on Manhattan island a few days ago. They were later found unconscious in the bedrooms of summer roomers at various Long Island shore resorts where the mosquitoes had dropped them after discovering new prospects.

Screens are no protection this year. The 1922 crop of skeeters have taken a course in army training camps in wire cutting. No metal can stop them.

The caterpillar pest is not so alarming. They are feeding only on trees and vegetation. But you can't tell at what moment they may go on a meat diet.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

But their haste spoiled their marksmanship. The bullets zinged and zipped against the rocky little fortress they nicked Billy's shirt and trousers and hat, and all the while he stood there pumping lead into his assailants—not hysterically; but with the cool deliberation of a butcher slaughtering beeves.

One by one the Pimans dropped until but a single Indian rushed frantically upon the white man, and then the last of the assailants lunged forward across the breastwork with a bullet from Billy's carbine through his forehead.

Eddie Shorter had raised himself painfully upon an elbow that he might witness the battle, and when it was over he sank back, the blood welling from between his set teeth.

Billy turned to look at him when the last of the Pimans was disposed of, and seeing his condition kneeled beside him and took his head in the hollow of an arm.

"You orter lie still," he cautioned the Kansan. "Tain't good for you to move around much."

"It was worth it," whispered Eddie. "Say, but that was some scrap. You got your nerve standin' up there against the bunch of 'em; but if you hadn't they'd have rushed us, and some of 'em would a-got in."

"Bunny the boys don't come," said Billy.

"Yes" replied Eddie, with a sigh; "it's milkin' time now, an' I figured on goin' to Shawnee this evenin'. Them's nice cookies, maw. I——"

Billy Byrne was bending low to catch his feebie words, and when the voice trailed out into nothingness he lowered the tousled red head to the hard earth and turned away.

Could it be that the thing which glistened on the eyelid of the toughest guy on the West Side was a tear?

The afternoon waned and night came, but it brought to Billy Byrne neither renewed attack nor succor. The bullet which had dropped him momentarily had but creased his forehead. Aside from the fact that he was blood covered from the wound it had inconvenienced him in no way, and now that darkness had fallen he commenced to plan upon leaving the shelter.

First he transferred Eddie's ammunition to his own person, and such valuables and trinkets as he thought "maw" might be glad to have, then he removed the breechblock from Eddie's carbine and stuck it in his pocket that the weapon might be valueless to the Indians when they found it.

"Sorry I can't bury you old man," was Billy's parting comment, as he climbed over the breastwork and melted into the night.

Billy Byrne moved cautiously through the darkness and he moved not in the direction of escape and safety but directly up the canyon in the way that the village of the Pimans lay.

Soon he heard the sound of voices, and shortly after saw the light of cook fires playing upon bronzed faces and upon the fronts of low huts. Some women were moaning and wailing. Billy guessed that they mourned for those whom his bullets had found earlier in the day. In the darkness of the night, far up among the rough, forbidding mountains it was all very weird and uncanny.

Billy crept closer to the village. Shelter was abundant. He saw no sign of sentry and wondered why they should be so lax in the face of almost certain attack. Then it occurred to him that possibly the firing he and Eddie had heard earlier in the day far down among the foothills might have meant the extermination of the Americans from El Orobo.

"Well, I'll be next then," mused Billy, and wormed closer to the huts. His eyes were on the alert every instant, as were his ears; but no sign of that which he sought rewarded his keenest observation.

Until midnight he lay in concealment and all that time the mourners continued their dismal wailing. Then, one by one, they entered their huts, and silence reigned within the village.

Billy crept closer. He eyed each hut with longing, wondering gaze. Which could it be? How could he determine? One seemed little more promising than the others. He had noted those to which Indians had retired. There were three into which he had seen none go. These, then, should be the first to undergo his scrutiny.

The night was dark. The moon had not yet risen. Only a few dying fires cast a wavering and uncertain light upon the scene. Through the shadows Billy Byrne crept closer and closer. At last he lay close beside one of the huts which was to be the first to claim his attention.

For several moments he lay listening intently for any sound which might come from within; but there was none. He crawled to the doorway and peered within. Utter darkness shrouded and hid the interior.

Billy rose and walked boldly inside. If he could see no one within, then no one could see him once he was inside the door. Therefore, so reasoned Billy Byrne, he would have as good a chance as the occupants of the hut, should they prove to be enemies.

He crossed the floor carefully, stopping often to listen. At last he heard a rustling sound just ahead of him. His fingers tightened upon the revolver he carried in his right hand, be the barrel, club like. Billy had no intention of making any more noise than necessary.

Again he heard a sound from the same direction. It was not at all unlike the frightened gasp of a woman. Billy emitted a low growl, in fair imitation of a prowling dog that has been disturbed.

Again the gasp and a low "Go away!" in liquid feminine tones—and in English!

Billy uttered a low, "S-s-sh!" and inched closer. Extending his hands they presently came in contact with a human body which sprang from him with another smothered cry.

"Barbara!" whispered Billy, bending closer.

"Who are you?" asked a low voice.

"Bill—" he replied. "Are you alone in here?"

"No, an old woman guards me," replied the girl, and at the same time they both heard a movement close at hand, and something emerged from them to be silhouetted for an instant against the path of lesser darkness which marked the location of the doorway.

"There she goes!" cried Barbara. "She heard you and she has gone for help."

"Then come," said Billy, seizing the the girl's arm and dragging her to her feet; but they had scarce crossed half the distance to the doorway when the cries of the old woman without warned them that the camp was being aroused.

Billy thrust a revolver into Barbara's hand. "We gotta make a fight of it, little girl," he said. "But you'd better die than be here alone."

As they emerged from the hut they saw warriors running from every doorway. The old woman stood screaming in Piman at the top of her lungs. Billy, keeping Barbara in front of him that he might shield her body with his own, turned directly out of the village. He did not fire at first hoping that they might elude detection and thus not draw the fire of the Indians upon them; but he was doomed to disappointment, and they had taken scarcely a dozen steps when a rifle spoke above the noise of human voices and a bullet whimzed past them.

Then Billy replied, and Barbara, too, from just behind his shoulder. Together they backed away toward the shadow of the trees beyond the village and as they went they poured shot after shot into the village.

The Indians, but just awakened and still half stupid from sleep, did not know but that they were attacked by a vastly superior force, and this fear held them in check for several minutes—long enough for Billy and Barbara to reach the summit of the bluff from which Billy and Eddie had first been fired upon.

Here they were hidden from the view of the Indians, and Billy broke at once into a run, half carrying the girl with a strong arm about her waist.

"If we can reach the foothills," he said, "I think we can dodge 'em, an' by going all night we may reach the river and Ed Orobo by morning. It's a long hike, Barbara, but we gotta make it—we gotta, for if daynight finds us in the Piman country we won't never make it. Anyway," he concluded optimistically, "it's all down hill."

"We'll make it, Billy," she replied, "if we can get past the sentry."

"What sentry?" asked Billy. "I didn't see no sentry when I come in."

"They keep a sentry way down the trail all night," replied the girl. "In the daytime he is nearer the village—on the top of this bluff, for from here he can see the whole valley; but at night they station him farther away in a narrow part of the trail."

"It's a mighty good thing you tipped me off," said Billy; "for I'd a-run right into him. I thought they was all behind us now."

After that they went more cautiously, and when they reached the part of the trail where the senry might be expected to be found, Barbara warned Billy of the fact. Like two thieves they crept along in the shadow of the canyon wall. Inwardly Billy cursed the darkness of the night which hid from view everything more than a few paces from them; yet it may have been this very darkness which saved them, since it hid them as effectually from an enemy as it hid the enemy from them. They had reached the point where Barbara was positive the sentry should be, but the girl was clinging tightly to Billy's left arm. He could feel the pressure of her fingers as they sunk into his muscles, sending little tremors and thrills through his giant frame. Even in the face of death Billy Byrne could sense the ecstasies of personal contact with this girl—the only woman he ever had loved or ever would.

And then a black shadow loomed before them, and a rifle flashed in their faces without a word or a sign of warning.

CHAPTER XVII

"You Are My Girl"

Mr. Anthony Harding was pacing back and forth the length of the veranda of the ranchhouse at El Orobo waiting for some word of hope from those who had ridden out in search of his daughter, Barbara. Each swirling dust devil that eddied across the dry flat on either side of the river roused hopes within his breast that it might have been spurned into activity by the hoofs of a pony bearing a messenger of good tidings; but always his hopes were dashed for no horseman emerged from the heat haze of the distance where the little dust devils raced playfully among the cacti and the greasewood.

But as last, in the northwest, a horseman, unheralded by gyrating dust column, came into sight. Mr. Harding shook his head sorrowfully. It had not been from this direction that he had expected word of Barbara, yet he kept his eyes fastened upon the rider until the latter reined in at the ranchyard and loped a tired and sweating pony to the foot of the veranda steps. Then Mr. Harding saw who the newcomer was.

"Bridge!" he exclaimed. "What brings you back here? Don't you know that you endanger us as well as yourself by being seen here? General Villa will think that we have been harboring you."

Bridge swung from the saddle and run up onto the veranda. He paid not the slightest attention to Anthony Harding's protest.

Jackie's Parents Riled at Gossip

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Jack Coogan and Lillian Coogan, parents of Jackie Coogan, child motion picture actor, today petitioned the superior court here to appoint Mrs. Coogan legal guardian of Jackie. The petitioners recited that they were conserving Jackie's earnings for him, although the law gives the parents control of the earnings of a minor and that they wished to put the trust under the direction of the court.

The father said the petition was filed because he and Mrs. Coogan wished to quiet gossip that they were taking Jackie's earnings for their own benefit.

Prune Moonshine

One pound of small prunes, one pint of water, one-half cup heavy whipping cream, sugar to taste.

Simmer the prunes until tender, after washing and soaking them, permitting the water to evaporate almost entirely during the cooking process. Then press the prunes through a coarse sieve and sweeten the pulp to taste. Chill while whipping the cream to a stiff froth, then add the prune pulp, folding it in carefully in order not to disturb the cream. Serve in tall glasses, topping each with a candied cherry.

Famous Film Stars' Favorite Coiffures

Leatrice Joy

This Paramount picture actress finds a high coiffure most becoming to her features. She has long jet black hair which is easily dressed in the style shown above. Miss Joy's hair has just enough of a natural long wave so that no marceling is necessary. The hair is brought down fairly low on the neck. This hairdress while extremely simple is quite effective for one whose beauty is like that of the cinema actress.

Red and Blue Silk and Bead Embroidery Trim This Blouse

An exceptionally smart sports blouse is shown in the sketch. The fabric is white crepe de chine, and the blouse is trimmed with embroidery done in bright blue silk floss and bright red beads. The tie which holds the collar is of ribbon combining the two colors. A white crepe de chine separate skirt worn with the blouse helps to make a practical and charming costume. The low shoulder line featured on this blouse is a favorite of the season, and it is one that is very becoming to a slender figure.

The sports or tailored blouse is unquestionably the summer favorite. Usually hip length is the length preferred, although some a trifle more than hip length are shown, the one sketched being in this class.

Among the very new dressy blouses recently seen one gorgeously embroidered in Chinese designs was notable. The motifs were rather large and done in vivid clors on a white crepe de chine background, the blouse being of this material.

Middies are holding their own in the line-up of sports blouses. Regulation middy styles are used for garments made of such materials as checked or striped tub silks, plain and dyed poncee, and even checked ginghams and tissues, plain color fabric in contrasting color usually supplying a trimming touch. A blue and white checked middy seen recently was trimmed with narrow bands of plain white and plain blue, and a blue Windsor tie finished the collar.

A white voile blouse, made middy style but worn tucked in under the skirt, was finished with hemstitched collar and cuffs of blue linen, and a natural poncee model found green satin bands and tie an attractive finish.

AN INDIGNATION MEETING IN THE OLD ORCHARD

Jenny Wren was upset. No doubt about it. Jenny Wren was upset. You had only to look at her to know that. Her tail, which she usually carrier in the most pert and saucy way imaginable, actually drooped. She had done what she had set out to do. She found out who the stranger in the Old Orchard was, but she had been treated so rudely and she had been told such astonishing things by the stranger that her usual high spirits were quite crushed.

"I never felt so small in all my life!" said she as the other feathered folk of the Old Orchard crowded around her after the call on the stranger.

"Then you must have felt mighty small," chuckled Goldie the Oriole. You know, Jenny Wren really is a very little bird.

Jenny's eyes snapped and she turned her back squarely on Goldie. "He actually told me that he liked my house very much and if the doorway was a little larger he would take it himself. Now, what do you think of that?"

No one knew what to think. Never since any one could remember had they heard of such a thing. "Do you mean to say that he had the nerve to say that he would have turned you out of your own home if the doorway was larger?" asked Chippy the Sparrow.

Jenny nodded and her eyes snapped with anger. "Yes," she replied. "More than that, he said that there are several houses that he likes the looks of and when he makes up his mind which will suit him best he is going to move in and if there is any one living there they will have to move out."

Every one gave a little gasp of astonishment and for a few minutes no one could find a word to say. It was hard to believe that any one could even think of such a thing, to say nothing of boldly saying that they meant to do it.

"I—I never heard of such a thing in all my life!" declared Chippy. "Did he say who he is?"

Jenny Wren's eyes sparkled mischievously. "Yes," she replied. "He said that he is a relative of yours."

"No such thing!" declared Chippy, hopping up and down with indignation. "No relatives of mine ever talked that way!"

"That's what he said," persisted Jenny Wren. "He said that he belonged to the Sparrow family, that his name is Bully, that he has come out from the city to enjoy country life and that his ancestors, by which, I suppose, he means his great-great-ever-so-great-grandparents, had come from a place called England. Now you know all that I was able to find out. You must feel proud of your relative, Chippy."

"Didn't I say that he looks like a foreigner?" broke in Welcome Robin, while poor, little Chippy hung his head. "I knew the minute I looked at him that he doesn't belong here, but comes from a distant country."

"But he doesn't come from a distant country," said gentle Winsome Bluebird. "It was his ancestors who came from England."

"It's all the same," insisted Welcome Robin. "He doesn't belong here and the sooner we can get rid of him the better. Never in all my life did I ever meet anybody so bold and impudent. If he had been reasonably polite I wouldn't say a word, but it looks to me as if he would make a lot of trouble in the Old Orchard. We ought to do something about it."

Then everybody began to talk at once and their voices were sharp and indignant they tried to decide what should be done. Bully the English Sparrow heard them as he went about trying to decide which house would suit him best, but he didn't seem to be at all troubled by what he heard. In fact, he chuckled as he listened.

Vic Keene Out-Duels Snipe Conley in 16 Inning Battle

LONGEST GAME OF PRESENT SEASON GOES TO SPUDDERS AFTER SPECTACULAR PLAY

Weiss Outstanding Star of Contest With Great Game; Bescher Counts Winning Run On Adams' Infield Out; Each Run Scored Originated With Free Pass; Only 1 Error.

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, July 21.—Keene came up winner over Conley today in the greatest pitching duel ever staged in Dallas when the Spudders copped the final game of the series 2-1 after 16 innings of perfect baseball.

Both pitchers went the entire route and yielded up nine hits each for the entire go. Passes started the career of each runner which scored, but both hurlers were in great shape, pitching superb ball in the pinches. The game was the longest of the present season.

Weiss, Spudder center fielder, scintillated many times with catches which robbed Dallas hitters of extra base hits repeatedly. Time after time he raced to the boards on either side of th. field to snare smashed drives which threatened to spoil Keene's game.

Summa came in for his share of the outfield glory, climaxed with a double play which caught Donohue off first after a beautiful catch of a drive by Lovelace.

The fielding by both teams was of a class seldom seen in the league. Only one error was charged for the entire game, that when Massey singled to left in the sixth and Bescher fumbled the ball long enough to allow the runner to reach second.

White, Massey, Tanner, Galloway and Beck handled many chances both on hit and thrown balls, but the machine-like precision with which plays were completed brought many rounds of cheers to both teams.

Although Keene allowed two more passes than did Conley, the Spudders drove hits for more bases than did Dallas. Weiss, Bescher and Massey doubled and Adams had the long knock of the day with a triple in the fourth.

Each team had many runners left aboard as the hurlers proved invincible in pinches.

The usual abundance of pinch hitters were absent from the line-ups and only once was a hitter sent in. Spencer batted for Lingle in the eighth.

The Spudders drew first blood with a run in the sixth. After Tanner had flied out to Lovelace, Adams walked and came home on a slashing double to left by Weiss after Summa had flied out to right.

The Giants' run came in the eighth when Stow led off with a walk. Spencer went in to hit for Lingle and sacrificed Stow to second. Conley lined a drive to deep center and Stow took third after Weiss made a wonderful catch. It was one of the greatest catches of the season and robbed Conley of a three-base hit. Massey walked and Stow scored on a double steal when Bischoff attempted to catch the runner going to second.

Each club threatened to score several times thereafter, but fast fielding or perfect pitching cut rallies short.

As darkness began to cover the field Bescher walked for a starter in the 16th. Tanner singled to left and Bescher went to third. Adams hit to Stow who saw there was no chance to get Bescher and forced Tanner at second. Summa dumped one down toward first and Adams went to second. Weiss flied to Shields. Beck came through with a single to right, but Donohue threw perfectly to the plate and caught Adams on a close play.

The Giants barely threatened in the last half, when after two were out, Donohue singled to left, but went out a moment later on an attempted steal.

COURT AFFIRMS SINCLAIR VERDICT

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The appellate division of the supreme court today unanimously affirmed the verdict for $100,000 in favor of Harry F. Sinclair, promoter of the Rancocas stables, against James S. Johnson, owner of the Quincy stables in the Playfellow case.

Johnson sold Sinclair the race horse, a full brother of Man o' War, through Samuel Hildreth, Sinclair's trainer. Sinclair alleged that Johnson guaranteed the horse as free from all defects, but a few days after the horse was delivered it ran poorly and showed distress.

LEADERS HERE

Pat Newnam's Sand Crabs are due in this afternoon for a short engagement in Athletic Park.

Walter Sahm's Spudders are home again after splitting a series with the Giants in Dallas, closing with the thrilling contest yesterday.

The Crabs lead the loop today by a full game.

The Spudders covet that position. They were largely instrumental in getting the Cats out of there. They'll likely take a fall out of the Crabs.

Fast Play Features First Round Matches in Tournament

FRIDAY GAMES OFFER MANY THRILLERS

Finals in Doubles to Be Played Sunday Afternoon

By DON WELDON.

Seven contests were played in the Record News annual tennis tournament Friday, making a record of every game being played without a forfeit by any player of team. The matches are going off with clock-like regularity and the players are anxious to play every game. The play so far has revealed several unusual players who will make the fight for the cup interesting for their opponents. Probably the biggest surprise was sprung by Formeigle who started the contest with the style and pep of a professional and has kept the pace up in every game entered. He will be a real contender for the championship.

Playing at Thirteenth street Friday, Silberman took Kadane into camp with two sets, 6-2, 6-2. Silberman was in rare form while Kadane seemingly had an off day, playing fair tennis in the receiving games but failing completely on his serves.

Another 6-2, 6-2, set showed Angle the winner over Denney. The play was marked by no unusual showing but was snappy and well played as a whole.

Bebb Shows Form

A tennis match of unusual interest was staged when Bebb defeated Rogers, 6-3, 6-2. Both players have made good records in previous contests and the outcome was a matter of discussion at the courts until it was seen that Rogers was not up to his usual game. Bebb however was playing perfect tennis and deserved his win.

Playing on the courts at the Lone Star Refinery, Enlow beat Gordon 6-2, 6-3. They reported the courts in the best of conditions and commented on the treatment accorded them by the owners.

At the courts at the park, Parks took two sets from Beck, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1. The contest was hard fought especially in the first set. In the latter matches Beck showed up and allowed his pponent to take the last with little opposition.

In a thriller, Hamilton took the match from Tinker, 6-3, 9-7. The match lasted over two hours with both men playing crack games. Nearly every game went to duece points and every point was won only by hard sure tennis.

Tinker staged a comeback in the second set when Hamilton had him down, 8-2, and took six out of seven games, winning the set.

Hines playing in the second preliminaries, took two sets from Cohen, 7-5, 8-6. Cohen sprung a surprise when he put up such a good fight against a man rated as one of the best in the meet.

In doubles Ford and Evans took sets from Waghorn and Tatum, 6-2, 6-1.

Doubles Close Sunday

The doubles matches will end Sunday afternoon when the finals are played at the thirteenth street courts. All semi-final games will played Saturday and Sunday morning.

The schedule for today's singles: Parks and Angle, park; Waghorn and Ellis, Thirteenth street, at 4:30. All games not listed differently will be played at 3:30.

Doubles: Akin and Angle vs. Ferguson and Sheldon, Thirteenth street; Bebb and Ellis vs. Myers and Formeigle, Thirteenth street.

Sunday morning the winners of the first match will meet Ford and Evans and the winers of this match will meet the winners of the second in the final.

Most Players Find Smash and Lob Strokes Effective After Mastered

By "DON" WELDON.

The smash stroke is very difficult but when well played is one of the most effective. There are two faults common to inexperienced player. Some are too anxious to smash the ball and make an ace at once whether in position or not, and invariably play the ball into the net or out of the court; others are timid in their strokes and simply tap the ball back and are, of course, playing a defensive and losing game.

All short low lobs should be played hard to either side of the court, well to the rear of the service line. It is well to play high lobs that land deep in the court back with medium force and near the base line. Never take a long swing but meet the ball squarely with a short stroke and the return will be more accurate. In doubles a shot hard in the center of the court is generally good for a point against amateur players. Many racket men allow high straight lobs to bound in the air and hit the ball as a serve at the top of the bound.

In playing a man who volleys, a high lob will drive him to the rear of the court. From this position his volley will be ineffective to say the least. When your opponent is playing at the net low lob will serve to keep him busy chasing the ball and will be very hard to return. A style of lob that is most effective is the high ball that strikes the ground almost perpendicularly and bounces straight up. Paul Hines uses this stroke very successfully on the local courts in recovering from a dash into the sidelines or the rear of the court. It gives him time to regain position and at the same time gives the opposing player a run to the back line after the ball.

Try to lob with the ball to the right as the stroke will be more sure. The left side of a right handed player is his weak side and a ball lobbed to this side will be more effective than one on the right. There is no harder stroke in tennis than the backhand return of a high lob well placed. Always lob to the windward side of the court or if there is no wind, choose the backhand corner.

The value o the lob lies in the fact that it is played back to the baseline and forces the player to rush to the back of the court to return it. If it is played to the front of the court the point is as good as lost with a player of any ability across the net, for this is one of the easiest strokes of the game.

Rule 6: Before comencing to serve the player shall stand with both feet behind, i. e., farther from the net than the base line, and within the limits of the center mark and sideline. From the time of taking such stand and until the racket strikes the ball, both feet shall remain behind the base line, and at least one foot shall remain continuously on the ground.

Case 6: In doubles the server claims the right to stand at the corner of the court as marked by th the doubles sideline. Is the foregoing correct or is it necessary that the server stand within the limits of the center mark and side line?

Decision: The server has the right to stand anywhere between the center mark and the doubles side line.

MOTHER SUES FOR CHILDREN

Adoption Claimed by Foster Parents

Pearl Berge, et al, instituted suit in the 89th district court Friday afternoon against George Welty et ux for the possession of two children which Welty and his wife claim they have adopted.

The habeas corpus procedure is being held before Judge P. A. Martin and Judge H. R. Wilson.

Welty claims that he and his wife took charge of the children when Mrs. Berge became a widow. She wanted the Welty family, according to the defense testimony, to have possession of the children and raise them.

Recently Mrs. Berge was married a second time and then demanded the children.

A touch of humor entered the case Friday when Judge Bonner, representing the plaintiff in the case, asked a character witness to relate the kind of food served for breakfast in the Welty home near Burkburnett five years ago.

No Special Guards Arrive in Wichita

Although it was reported Thursday night that United States District Attorney Henry Zweifel had issued instructions for a number of United States deputy marshals to be dispatched to Wichita Falls to help guard railroad property, none of the men had arrived here late yesterday.

Dispatches from Fort Worth related that a part of 25 special officers would be sent here.

Neither police, city or local railroad officials Friday had received any information relative to the additional guardsmen, they said.

STOLEN CAR FOUND DURING RENOVATION

He was ujst painting the car when Jack Miller interferred,

But Miller had the goods on the car, so he says. And he took it in his custody and is holding it for further instructions.

The car, a Ford, was stolen at Big Springs, Texas, according to the detective. When it was located Friday afternoon, it was being renovated in a garage located in the Sibley Taylor addition.

One man, who claims to have paid $150 for the vehicle to an unknown person at Burkburnett, is being held.

To the Democratic Voters of Wichita County, Texas

To those of whom I have not had the privilege of a personal interview, I submit the following statement:

I have lived in Wichita county, Texas, nine years, five years of which time has been spent by me as a peace officer of your county. For three and one-half years I was Deputy Sheriff under G. A. Hawkins, working directly under Leslie Humphrey, district attorney. He knows my record as such officer, and I submit herewith a letter from him which speaks for itself. For a while I worked as Special Agent of the United States government, and I refer you to anyone connected with the United States department of justice at that time for the character of work I rendered. I have been connected with the police department of Wichita Falls for more than eighteen months, and my record as such officer is open to all. I stand now and have always stood for an equal and unbiased enforcement of the criminal laws.

No organization, institution or person has fathered my candidacy in this race and no one has contributed any money to my campaign expense, and, if elected, I will be under no personal or pecuniary obligations to any sect, organization, institution or individual, and will endeavor to enforce the law alike to all.

All civil process will have my careful and prompt attention.

I ask your support upon my past record as a citizen and as a peace officer.

Yours very truly,
J. R. GLENN.

To the Citizens of Wichita County, Texas

For nearly four years while I was District Attorney of Wichita county, Texas, J. R. Glenn, as a Deputy Sheriff of this county, worked with me in the enforcement of the criminal laws. I know his record, in my judgment, better than any individual in Wichita county, and the character of work which he rendered.

He is an honest, faithful, diligent and fearless officer. He will enforce the law without fear or favor alike to all, and I unqualifiedly indorse his candidacy, as Sheriff of Wichita county, Texas.

Yours very truly,
LESLIE HUMPHREY

Staley's Well In Texhoma Pool Produces Two Hundred Barrels

WELL IN SAND AT 1,600 FEET

Texas Well Also Gets Sand

J. I. Staley's No. 5 Coffman, west side of the Texhoma pool in Archer county, was reported producing at the rate of 200 barrels Friday.

The well is swabbing and flowing, and is in the sand at approximately 1,600 feet.

The Texas company's No. 2 Chance got the oil sand on Friday and is preparing to complete. The No. 3 on the lease is drilling at 50 feet and Nos. 4 and 5 are locations.

New Test to Be Made in Baylor

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, July 21. — The oil business is not over for Baylor county. There are those who are convinced from geological formations that oil underlies a part of this county, and they are not willing to forego this belief until a more thorough test is made.

Accordingly, a company composed of H. F. Wright and others has leased 5,000 acres out of the old Webb land, in the northeast part of the county, this land now being owned by J. H. Turbeville of Archer county. A contract has been entered into and the well is to be started by Oct 1.

The location is on Section 113, and this is about two miles south of Mabelle. The test calls for 2,500 feet, though if oil is not found at that depth the drillers may go farther, if the formations seem to justify.

There are many oil leases still being held in this county. The beginning of this well will revive activity in the oil game and might result in the sinking of still other tests.

Lone Star to Build 25-Mile Pipe Line

A 25-mile 12-inch gas pipe line is to be constructed from Dixie Junction, Okla., to the Robertson field to augment the gas supply for cities and towns on the Lone Star system.

The line will cost approximately $200,000. It will parallel the present Fox field line and will connect with gas wells in the Garvin county field. This will give a greater pipe line capacity from both Fox district and Garvin county for use all over the system.

Material for the line is being gathered from Lone Star's store houses. Forty-five cars will be required to transport it. Freight alone will amount to $35,000. The construction of the line will be begun August 1, and will be completed within five weeks.

DALLAS, July 21.—The Magnolia Petroleum company today announced a reduction of 25 cents a barrel on Mexia crude at the wells. This makes the price $1.25 a barrel. The new price is effective immediately.

GAS WELL IS FLOWING 400

New Well Is Offset to Deep Producer

The Texas company's No. 224 Waggoner is producing at the rate of 400 barrels, in the 1,900-foot sand.

This new well, an offset to a deep producer on the Harvey-Callum Rio Bravo lease, was drilled in Thursday.

No. 223, same lease, and in the same west pool, is a 200-barrel well, also in thme 1,900-foot sand.

Striking Rail Men Attend Fish Fry

The fry was also visited by several of the city officials, including members of the police department, who found time from their busy hunt for crooks to eat a little fish.

ROAD MATERIAL ARRIVES HERE

Will Rush Work on Burk Highway

With the arrival of 21 cars of material for road work, it was announced at the headquarters of the Potts-Prentice Construction company Friday afternoon that sufficient material is now on the grounds near Burkburnett to insure several days' activity in laying concrete.

Three days ago, eight cars of material arrived, however, this was insufficient to run through even a week.

The material which arrived yesterday, consists of five cars of sand, the other cars being rock.

Delay in th eshipment of material to the grounds at Burkburnett, where a large mixer is pouring out concrete for the Burkburnett road, is caused as a result of the strike, according to the construction chiefs.

A large number of cars of material, it is understood, are en route to Burkburnett and to Wichita Falls, but are delayed in transit.

ONE MILE UNPAVED ON BURK HIGHWAY

The mixer which has been working west of Burkburnett has been moved to the head of the Burk bridge, it was reported Friday afternoon.

UNITED
1c to $1.00 Stores Co.

That our former employes, those now entering our service, our own officials and the general public may thoroughly understand our position, the undersigned makes the following announcement:

Chairman Ben W. Hooper of the United States Railroad Labor Board July 1, 1922, issued the following statement:

"Regardless of any question of the right of the men to strike, the men who take the strikers' places are merely accepting the wages and working conditions prescribed by a government tribunal and are performing a public service. They are not accepting the wages and working conditions which an employer is trying to impose. For this reason public sentiment and full government power will protect the men who remain in their positions and new men who may come in."

Since that time the labor board has declared the rules and working conditions the mechanical forces were working under before the strike are in full force and effect now. These rules and conditions cannot be changed except by an agreement between our employes and the M., K. & T. management, or in event of disagreement either party or both may refer the disagreement to the United States Railroad Labor Board for decision. As our former employes quit our service of their own accord they ceased to be employes of this company. The public and those remaining loyally in our service, and those who are daily entering our employ, may rest assured that the management of these lines will use all processes at its command to keep faith with them and unqualifiedly pledge itself to make no settlement of the strike which in any manner will deprive them of their rights or jobs which they have gained in accordance with our shop crafts agreement and the declaration of the labor board.

The only way any of our former employes may enter our service is as a new employe and the opportunity to even thus enter the service is growing less day by day, owing to the fact that our forces are rapidly increasing.

The public will bear in mind the strike is against a decision of the United States Labor Board, an agency of the government, and not against the railroad company. The strike, therefore, is question of obedience to law and order. There is but one answer to such a question. "We are a law-abiding people, the orderly processes of law shall prevail." The management of this system has religiously kept faith with its employes in its spoken and written word, and it always shall do so.

Mayfield's Prohibition Record and Qualifications Vouched for By Prominent Wichita Falls Minister

TO THE VOTERS OF WICHITA COUNTY:

Under date line of June 26th Mrs. C. R. Porter, corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U. of Texas, issued a letter on her official stationery, presumably without official action, in which she questions the prohibition record of Hon. Earle B. Mayfield, candiate for the United States senate. This letter was answered in a circular sent out over the signature of Rev. Ed. R. Barcus, pastor of the First Methodist church of Austin of which church Hon. Earle B. Mayfield is a member. Rev. Barcus certifies that he has examined the records and that this statement is correct. This matter would have been allowed to rest here except for the fact that Hon. T. L. McCullough of Dallas, himself a prominent layman in the Methodist church, undertook in a speech in this city on Wednesday night to interpret and explain the record of Mr. Mayfield in which he did him a great injustice.

His explanation was that the record, as sent out from the Mayfield headquarters, is correct but that the advocates of the open saloon in most instances voted for the same measures at the same time. From this he drew the argument that Mr. Mayfield was in sympathy with the liquor interests, and, therefore, could not be trusted in the United States senate to represent the people of Texas while such interests are now actively engaged in trying to modify the Volstead act.

It is not fair to draw such inference as Mr. Mayfield was not responsible for the votes of others but was responsible only for the record he made, which all must agree, was good.

As a further denial of Mrs. Porter's letter I call your attention to the fact that on July 7th Bishop H. A. Boaz addressed a letter to her in which he expressed surprise that his friend, whom he had known intimately for thirty years, should be called by her to defend against an accusation of that character. On the same date, I believe, Rev. V. A. Godbey, D. D., formerly pastor and presiding elder for nine years of Mr. Mayfield's church also objected to Mrs. Porter's letter and vouches for the prohibition record and fine christian character of Earle B. Mayfield whom he has known for twenty years.

The Methodist church elected Mr. Mayfield to represent the West Texas conference in the general conference in 1918. Those who know the position of the Methodist church on prohibition will not believe for a moment that it would have sent a man whose record was off color on that question to represent it in its great law making body.

Be not deceived, a vote for Earle B. Mayfield is a vote for a high toned, christian gentleman, thoroughly capable of representing the great State of Texas in the halls of the United States senate, and who will stand shoulder to shoulder with the Hon. Morris Sheppard on all moral issues.

Let not impassioned appeals to prejudice persuade you to fail a friend or forsake a righteous cause just when victory seems certain. Vote for Mayfield today and rejoice at his election later.

(Signed) J. H. GROSECLOSE.

We need an upright high-toned, christian man qualified for the office he seeks—

Tea is gathered from the plant four times a year.

Fifteen Minutes of Radio a Day

By EDWARD N. DAVIS

(Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government)

Lesson No. 29.

Receiving Circuits

All ideas can be conveyed through the use of language and as there are many languages, an understanding of one or more enables a person to grasp ideas as they are rendered. Pictures and drawings have been used for ages to convey ideas and their use constitutes one of the most simple and impressive of all languages. Through pictures the artist, draftsman, or layman can depict scenes, houses, machinery and even the connection of electrical apparatus better than would ever be possible by words alone.

In radio, certain definite drawings or "symbols" have become conventional through usage, to indicate various parts of appartus. By use of these symbols apparatus may be assembled on paper and with connecting lines to represent wires, the proper relation of each piece of appartus to others may be shown.

The following assembly shows a number of the most commonly used symbols and their interpretation.

Key to Symbols

1—A coil of wire with a sliding or adustable contact.

2—A coil of wire having taps or connections brought out to a switch or selector.

3—A variometer. Two coils of wire connected together and arranged so that their relative position may be varied.

4—A transformer (receiving.) Two coils of wire, not electrically connected, but arranged so that they may be moved relatively closes together or further apart. (Indicate by the arrow.)

5—A condenser. Two or more metal plates with a dielectric (insulation) between and assumed to have small capacity.

5 (a) A variable condenser.

6—Condensers connected in series.

7—Condensers connected in series, plus (x) indicating positive terminal and minus (-) indicating negative terminal.

9—A variable resistance.

10—A detector. A mineral or compounded crystalline substance provided with adjustable contact point.

11—Head telephone receivers. In radio usually wound to 2000 ohms per head set.

12—The thermionic tube complete comprising filament, grid and plate. In actual construction the grid is located between the filament and plate, however, for the purpose of symetry, except when explaining its theory of operation, it is usually drawn as shown.

From a study of the above assembly it is readily seen that the interpretations of the symboyls is practically self-evident and by their proper selection and connection, both simple and intricate radio telephone and telegraph receiving circuits can be represented. To illustate the use of this assembly, the following diagrams show connections for some very simple but effective circuits for the reception of radio signals.

In addition to understanding these symbols and the parts of radio apparatus which they represent, the student will acquire, by carefully reading these articles, a clear knowledge of the functions of each piece of apparatus and its relation to the circuits with which it is associated.

"WHERE ARE DEAD?" TO BE PASTOR'S TEXT

Dr. Groseclose, pastor Floral Heights Methodist church, will speak on the theme "Where are the Dead?" at his evening service tomorrow.

He said in making the announcement: "I will endeavor to answer certain questions which are constantly being raised by the propagandists of sects that visit our city from time to time. I will show exactly what the plain word of the bible has to say about it. The question of the intermediate state, the recognition of our loved ones beyond the grave, and the nearness of the spirits of the departed to us here will be considered. The public is invited."

At the beginning of the service the pupils of our daily vacation bible school will give some exercises showing the work they have been doing during the past six weeks. They will present their Cantata, "A Dream in Fairyland" on Tuesday evening.

Sugar Price Advances Because of Shortage

VISIBLE SUPPLY IS DECREASING

Wichita Merchants Affected

Sugar soared skyward on the local wholesale market Friday, registering an increase of 20 points or 20 cents on the 100 pounds. This increase followed a recent 10 point gain, placing it at $7.85 to $7.95 per 100 pounds, to the retailer.

Those local dealers who have a supply on hand can keep the price steady but those having to buy will be forced to increase or lose. In cases where merchants make sugar their lead and sell even at a loss there probably will be no change at the present time.

According to wholesalers the government estimate on the visible supply of sugar is away off. The shortage now is caused to a great extent by the preserving season being on in fruits. Orders are dragging and in some cases delieveries are reported unsatisfactory. Europe is reported to be using more and more American sugar which fact makes the supply that much less. The price has been rising steadily for several weeks. Wholesalers report that by September the visible supply of sugar will be mighty low and additional increases in prices are looked for.

PADUCAH GETS NEW COMPRESS

Will Be Completed This Fall

Special to The Record News.

Paducah, July 21.—Work was begun last week by the Texas Warehouse & Compress company on the construction of a new cotton compress for Paducah. It is a large up-to-date plant, covering an area of ten acres. All of the material is on the ground and work is being rushed to complete the plant as quickly as possible.

Cotton prospects for Cottle county are very encouraging. At present, it is roughly estimated that there shall be at least 35 or 40 thousand bales produced this year.

BARBECUE HELD AT HACKBERRY SPRINGS

PADUCAH, July 21. Work was beberry Grove, 20 miles southeast of here, on Wednesday and Thursday a two days festival that more all the old ear-marks of the days of 49, was staged. A barbecued dinner of west Texas beef, accompanied by well filled baskets that were brought from far and near, made manifest the old western spirit of hospitality.

Music that wafted out "Turkey in the Straw" and "Arkansaw Traveler," intermingled with the jingling of spurs greeted the ears of the spectators. Cowboys showed their skill in the various contests of bull dogging, horse racing, steer roping and crone riding.

NEW YORK BONDS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Liberty issues again featured the bond market today.

The second 4c made a new top at $100.70 and new maximum were established by the first 4 1-4s at $101.30, the second 4 1-4s at $100.98, the third 4 1-4s at $1.01 and the fourth 4 1-4s at $100.54.

International loans were only slightly changed. The trend, however, was upward for United Kingdom 5 1-2s of 1922 and 1929. Japanese first 41-2s and second 4s and several French municipals especially Soissons 6s, Framerican Industrials 7 1-2s also were strong. Latin-Americans, however, showed no marked tendency.

Changes among domestic rails, industrials and utilities were veriable but final prices showed a preponderance of nominal gains. Wabash first 5s were substantially better at par and severa of the secondary mortgages of southern roads strengthened by the better tone of these issues in the stock list. Total sales, par value aggregated $15,102,000. An offering of $3,500,000 first mortgage 6 1-2 per cent bonds of the Durant Motor company constituted the only new underwriting.

LIVESTOCK

NEW YORK COTTON.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—With practically no change in weather conditions, the cotton market today nevertheless continued its downward course. Near months dropped below the 22c level, October declining to 21.92 and December to 21.89, a net loss of 44 to 46 points while January 21.94, was 46 points net lower. This was accounted for by heavy selling of the near positions by traders who at the same time were buying the late deliveries. The market closed barely steady and almost at bottom with prices 39 to 46 points l wer. The market opened steady at a net decline of 6 to 10 points following weakness in the Liverpool market. Persistent selling of the near positions began early, continued through the entire session. Although high temperatures prevailed over the greater part of Texas, they failed to check the pressure as sellers claimed that it was too early yet for the crop to be damaged by hot weather in Texas and that with good rains at any time in the next week the crop in that state might easily show grea improvement. Exports today, 19,814, making 5,989,937 so far this season. Port receipts 5,229. United States port stocks 527,131.

HOT WEATHER RULES MARKET

Price Reactions Are Irregular

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Realizing sales, such as usually accompany week-end operations at this period of the year, and pressure from shorts, inspired largely by more menacing developments in the coal and railroad strike caused an irregular reaction of prices in today's stock market.

Early quotations were mainly towards higher levels, but later it became evident that the weight of offerings was in excess of buying power, save for a few of the more representative share.

The latter were chiefly represented by Atlantic Coast line and Louisville and Nashville, properties more or less under identical ownership, in which gains of substantial proportions were recorded.

Cuts Predicted

Predictions of further cuts in crude oils were followed by a series of raids against that group. Mexican Petroleum reacted over six points from its top and closed at a loss of 2 points, domestic oils also being irregularly impaired.

Steels and equipments were subcetjed to greater pressure later, when Pittsburgh reported a shutdown at several of the big mills because of fuel shortage and the eastern railway executives issued a "standpat" statement.

Motors Down

Motors were hammered down in the last hour, heavy selling then centered in Studebaker, a net loss of 3¼ points and reactions of 1 to 2 points in related stocks. Crucible also sustaining a 2 1-2 point loss Sales amounted to 685,000 shares All of the day's call money loans and renewals into next week were at 4 per cent. Lenders reported a small inquiry for time funds but 30 to 90 day accommodations continued to be offered at 3 3-4 per cent.

Firm ness again prevailed in foreign exchanges, sterling rising to within a fraction of its best quotation of the week, with additional recoveries in French, Italian and Belgian bills. German marks and most of the neutrals excepting Switzerland and Sweden, were nominal losses that were recorded

SALE STREAK HITS WHEAT

Bullish Effect More Than Offset

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Sudden heavy selling in the December delivery of wheat here, and which was supposed to be on foreign account, more than offset in the wheat market today the bullish effect of big export business and of tensions regarding the strike situation. The close was unsettled, 2 cents net lower to 1¾c advance with September 1.10⅝ to 1.10¾ and December 1.10¾ to 1.12. Corn finished a shade to ⅜c down, oats off to 1¼ to 1⅝, and quotations varying from 2½ cents to a rise of 17 cents.

Export buying of corn estimated at 1,000,000 bushels gave transient strength to the corn market, but only while wheat prices were on the upgrade. Dealings in oats were small.

Provisions were governed chiefly by the action of hog values.

BIG STRIKES CAUSE UNREST

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 21. — Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Industry is more irregular with the railway strike and the need of manufacturing interests for fuel is weekly becoming more pressing as a result of the coal tie-up. The refusal of the coal miners unions to accept arbitration has been a big disappointment to the country and this feeling has been accentuated by knowledge of the fact that the railway shopmen's strike has been so conducted by delaying both loaded and empty cars in transit, as to deprive essential industry of badly needed fuel. Coal trade authorities report something like a scramble for fuel, with accompanying feverish price bidding for supplies which has proved too big a burden for some of the less favorably situated consumers. The steel and iron trades have been hardest hit, especially in the neighborhood of the most strongly unionized mines.

"Aside from strikes, the outlook is generally favorable, especially as western crops have held all of their recent promise.

"Weekly bank clearings $7,061,177,000."

COTTON TAKES SMALL LOSES

Good Weather Has Influence

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—Prices were at a decline throughout the session in cotton today, the market being adversely affected by reports concerning the coal strike and by fairly favorable crop accounts from many sections of the belt. Weather conditions were considered more favorable and increased the effect of crop accounts. The opening was at small declines which were gradually widened during the day, the market closing at the bottom at net losses of 10 to 31 points. The most active months closed 38 to 41 points down with October at 21.45.

After the first decline of nearly a dollar a bale the tone became steadier on hot weather reports from Texas, where out of 33 weather stations reporting, 19 noted maximum temprratures for yesterday of from 100 to 108 degrees.

Cotton closed steady at net loss of 30 to 41 points.

KANRED WHEAT YIELDS BETTER

Outclasses All Other Grades—Oates

Quoting figures to substantiate his argument, M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the Fort Worth & Denver City Railway company, asserted Saturday that Kanred wheat is outyielding all other varieties grown in the Panhandle area.

The figures, according to Mr. Oates are better talking points for Kanred wheat than "any discussion might be."

Mr. Oates, traveling over his territory, discovered that at Chillicothe, on the J. M. Wall farm, 80 acres of Kanred wheat yielded 33½ bushels per acre, testing 61 pounds. Speaking of the Wall production, Mr. Oates says "he had 65 acres of Turkey Red wheat growing adjacent to the Kanred, all of which was prepared in the same way and at the same time, but which made only 23 1-3 bushels to the acre, testing 60 pounds."

Highest Everywhere.

Investigating the conditions prevalent on the S. Z. Bailey plantation near Chillicothe, Mr. Oates asserts, 60 acres of Kanred yielding 27 bushels to the acre testing 45 pounds.

"His 55 acres of Miracle wheat," Mr. Oates said of this plantation, "yielded 17 bushels, testing 12 pounds. Mr. Bailey told m that he had 15 acres of Kanred and Miracle mixed, this making 20 bushels and 11 pounds."

The only condition on the Bailey farm which differed from others where Mr. Oates made investigations, he said, was that Bailey sowed three pecks of Miracle per acre in comparison with 2½ pecks of Kanred, thus showing the heavy stooling characteristics of Kanred.

"Preparation and seeding on both the Bailey and Creager places," Mr. Oates continued, "was the same and the quality of land was the same."

Mr. Oates expressed the opinion that this is the most opportune time for growers to be locating their next wheat crop sown.

Judges May Get Vacation Today

With the starting of balloting today the judges of the 30th, 73th and 89th district courts will probably be afforded a day's vacation.

All jurymen retained for the week in the 30th district court were dismissed yesterday afternoon, there being no more criminal cases to be tried in the court at the present time.

Judges will be at the courthouse today, however, to answer any emergencies that might arise.

POLICE SEEK BAND OF AUTO THIEVES HERE

Belief that a band of automobile thieves working in this city have a strong rendezvous, and keep closely in hiding, was expressed yesterday when it was reported to the local police that a Ford touring car belonging to W. L. McDonald, of 1300 Seventeenth street, had been stripped of its accessories.

Casing, rims, inner tubes, lights and several other things were reported as having been taken from the automobile.

$40,000 CITY HALL FOR BRECKENRIDGE

Breckenridge is going to have a $40,000 city hall. Telegraphic information to this effect was received in Wichita Falls Friday when Secretary Ray Leach of the Breckenridge chamber of commerce wired the chamber of commerce here requesting that local architects be invited to submit plans for the building. The telegram said that details would be furnished on application.

When the fact that Breckenridge is to have a $40,000 city hall became known here, a local business man remarked that Wichita Falls needs a new city hall and that a movement should be started to get one built.

PASSENGER TRAIN SEARCHED NEAR HERE

Reports reached here Friday afternoon from Henrietta, Texas, to the effect that when a passenger train passed through there Thursday night, it was entered by several men dressed in overalls and jumpers, who apparently were searching for some one.

The men dressed in the attire of workingmen had emerged from a number of automobiles parked near the depot, and were believed by Henrietta people to be members of the striking forces who walked out recently.

When the conductor of the train had been interviewed by the strikers, according to the information received here, the men returned to their vehicles and drove away in the direction of Wichita Falls.

DEMOLAY HONOR GIVEN KADANE

Retiring Councellor Presented Jewel

At a called meeting of the Order of Demolay at the Masonic temple Friday night, Edward Kadane, retiring master counsellor was honored by his brother members who presented him with the jewel of the past master counsellor. Kadane was elected to the leading office of the lodge at its installation and held two terms during the first months of the order's life in Wichita Falls.

In presenting the jewel, William McClure, master counsellor, told of the faithful work done by the honoree and spoke of the fact that he had led the lodge through its first struggles and established it as an independent order with a membership of 150.

Kadane responded with a very appropriate address, thanking the members for the honor and expressing his appreciation of the splendid co-operation of the degree team and other members of the lodge. He spoke of his tour over the state, where he visited several chapters and found the work progressing rapidly. However, he declared that Hope chapter was outdone by none.

Camp Fires to Put On Demonstration

Unusual services have been planned to be held on the lawn of the First Methodist church, south, Sunday night, according to an announcement made Friday. Camp fire girls will take part in the interesting service. The announcement from the church follows:

"As a prelude to the regular service and beginning at 8:15 next Sunday night, the camp fire girls of the church will put on a practical demonstration of their work. About 30 of the choicest young girls of our church with their guardians, recently spent 10 days at the boy scout camp at Cache, Okla. Some of the scenes of the camp life will be put on in a very realistic manner.

"Rev. J. D. Pinkston, the assistant pastor, will preach in the morning on 'The Supreme Gift to Jesus' and at night on "Behold the Christ." Mr. Pinkston is one of the brightest young preachers in the conference, having stood at the head of the class for the last three years in the regular course offered to the young preachers by the conference. It was unanimously voted by the board of stewards to have Mr. Pinkston fill the pulpit during the whole of Dr. Knickerbocker's six weeks' absence, and he will do so most acceptably.

"Don't forget that the great, live Sunday school meets at 9:30 and that all the night services are now held on the lawn right next to the church and that very special programs are being planned for each Sunday night."

Vacation Bible School Closes

The Floral Heights Methodist church has been the first Wichita congregation to hold a daily vacation bible school. Dr. Groseclose secured the services early in may of Miss Opal Bailey, a teacher of experience, for this work. She has been assisted by Mrs. Dr. Rhodes. The enrollment was limited to 40 and has been full during the entire six weeks. Today marks the close of the class work. The school has been in session three hours each day.

The progress made is remarkable. The pupils have had 90 hours of work which is more than three times what the average Protestant child gets in a year in the regular work of the Sunday school. The pupils will give some drills in connection with the Sunday evening service next Sunday and on next Tuesday night will present a Cantata, "A Dream in Fairyland," to the public.

PAULE IN STATEMENT TO COUNTY VOTERS

In a statement last night, M. M. Paule, candidate for county surveyor, declared that while he was not seeking to launch an eleventh hour attack on his opponent, he does want the people to know that in the past the county surveyor's office has been neglected.

Consequently, he says, a number of law suits regarding property, survey and lease boundary lines have arisen. This is unnecessary expense to the taxpayers, he contends and could be avoided by a proper and careful surveyor.

"If elected I pledge to fulfill my duties faithfully and save the tax payers of this county unnecessary expense," Paule states. "I have been regularly employed in this county as surveyor and civil engineer for a number of years anw know this county well."

ARTH'R H. KING FOR STATE SENATE

Promises you faithful service from a business man's viewpoint. Opposes any raise of state taxes on the farm, ranch, store or oil industry—the success and development of these things will bring prosperity to all the people of West Texas. As Wichita Falls has started one of the greatest irrigation projects in the world the state should locate near there an agricultural experiment station.—Political adv

BE BRIEF AND COURTEOUS

(Names of Writers Must Accompany All Letters, Although It Is Not Always Necessary That They Be Printed With Their Articles)

MAYFIELD AND FARM LOANS

To The Record News:

The platform of one of the candidates for the United States senate, Hon. Earl B. Mayfield, contains this plank:

"I favor the submission of a constitutional amendment that will prohibit the issuance of tax free securities."

This statement by a prominent candidate for the United States senate should challenge the serious and thoughtful consideration of our citizenship, especially the farmers of this state, for the reason that the adoption of such an amendment would completely and effectually destroy the federal farm loan system, the greatest agency that has ever been devised by our government in the interest of agriculture. It is only through a tax exempt bond that the federal farm loan banks are enabled to furnish cheap money for agricultutral development.

If Mr. Mayfield should succeed in getting the amendment adopted that he favors in his platform, every bank operating under the federal farm loan act would be compelled to close its doors, and the day of cheap money to our farmers would be at an end. The federal land banks have but a small original capital and obtain the funds they lend to the farmers through the issuance of bonds bearing 4 1-2 to 5 per cent interest, solely because such bonds are tax free. If this exemption from taxation were removed such banks could not sell in the markets a bond bearing a lower rate than 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 and they would therefore be forced to lend to the farmer at a rate of from 7 1-2 to 8 per cent, instead of the 5 1-2 rate now in effect.

I assisted in organizing the Federal Land Bank of Houston and served as its general counsel for three years, during which time I had occasion to give considerable investigation and thought to the rural credit systems. Our federad farm loan system was patterned after European systems, such banks having been in operation in Europe for more than a century. It has been demonstrated through experience with the banks in Europe that such systems cannot operate without the privilege of a tax free bond. Not only has this been demonstrated in foreign countries, but it was thoroughly demonstrated since our banks were organized on account of a suit brought by some of the large mortgage companies which attacked the constitutionality of the tax exemption accorded federal farm loan bonds. As a result of this suit the farm loan banks were compelled to suspend operations, purchasers refusing to buy the 5 per cent farm loan bonds if the tax free feature was even in jeopardy. During the suspension of the operations of the federal farm loan banks the farmers of this state paid a high rate of interest upon farm loans, but as soon as the case was decided by the supreme court of the United States, upholding the tax free feature of these bonds, the federal farm loan banks immediately resumed operations and as a result the farmers of this state are paying a much lower rate of interest on their farm loans.

The federal loan banks of this state have loaned more than $60,000,000.00 to our farmers at the low rate of interest of 5 1-2 per cent on 33 years time, and have thereby performed a real service to the farmers who had formerly been paying the large mortgage companies a high rate of interest, and if Mr. Mayfield's platform should be carried out our farmers would again be subject to the mercies of private money lenders.

It will be recalled that shortly after the establishment of the federal land banks the large mortgage companies of the United States carried on a vigorous campaign in an effort to strike down the exemption granted to federal farm loan bonds but they were not able to get congress to pass the necessary legislation. It seems that Mr. Mayfield has now taken up the same fight, and after the supreme court of the United States has held that the tax free feature of the federal farm loan bonds does not violate the constitution of the United States, he proposes to meet this decision by a constitutional amendment, which would as effectually destroy the federal farm loan banks as if the federal farm loan act had been repealed.

The only other securities that are now free from federal taxation are those issued by counties and cities for various public improvements, and districts, such as road, schoolhouse, levee, drainage and irrigation districts. Mr. Mayfield's policy would remove the tax exemption that is now given to these securities, and the result would be that such bonds would have to bear a rate of interest of at least 9 per cent in order to sell in the bond market, and the taxpayers of our counties, cities, school, road levee, drainage and irrigation district would have to pay a largely increased amount of taxes to meet such high interest rates.

Cities and other political sub-divisions that can now sell a 6 per cent bond because of its freedom from federal taxes would be selling at 8 per cent, and as such bonds usually run from 20 to 40 years, the taxpayers of such sub-divisions would be required to pay 2 per cent more interest per year, or an aggregate of from 40 to 80 per cent of the amount of the bonds during the life thereof. This would levy a heavy tax upon the progress of our counties and cities, and retard their development, as well as interfering with the reclamation of overflow lands, the building of new school houses, the construction of good roads and various other improvements of vital interest to the welfare of our people.

I do not believe that any considerable proportion of our citizenship, upon mature reflection will agree with the portion of Mr. Mayfield's platform that prohibits the issuance of tax free securities when the only securities that are now exempt from federal taxation are those issued for the purpose of encouraging agricultural development, providing essential improvements for our cities and towns, the construction of better schoolhouses, the building of good roads, the reclamation of overflow lands and for such other purposes as generally promote the welfare of our people.

Respectfully,
C. A. LEDDY.
