Spring board

How's That? Veterans

Q. I am a veteran and would like to start a small business. How can I obtain a Veterans Administration small business loan?

A. The VA does not have a small business loan program. The Small Business Administration (SBA) has programs to assist veterans in obtaining small business loans. In each SBA field office there is a veterans' affairs officer to assist veterans, according to the Veterans Administration Office of Public Affairs.

Refinery job to produce loud noises

Herald staff report

Residents are being reminded not to be alarmed if they hear a loud noise in the area of the Cosden refinery.

Construction contractors will be cleaning newly-constructed steam lines at the refinery by "blowing" the lines with high-pressure steam. The work will produce a great amount of noise, according to a report released by Power Resources Inc.

The one-time event is necessary for new construction and will not be repeated once completed, the report added.

The report asks residents not to be alarmed at the sound levels "as they are normal in these circumstances." There is no danger to the people or the environment at or near the point of steam discharge, the report noted.

The cleaning process is scheduled to be completed by Saturday.

Senate OKs ban on trade with Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, frustrated by the situation in the Persian Gulf, gave unanimous approval today to a bill that would ban all U.S. trade with Iran.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee approved a similar measure with little debate, and sent it to the full House, which was expected to approve it later today.

Under the Senate legislation, approved 93-0, all U.S. imports from Iran would be banned immediately unless President Reagan certifies that the ban would harm U.S. interests. In that case, the president could delay the effective date of the ban by up to six months.

The Reagan administration, while expressing sympathy with the legislation's intent, has taken no position on the bill. But one administration official questioned its effectiveness.

"It would be more a profound moral statement than an effective cutoff of their exports," said Paul Freedenberg, acting undersecretary of Commerce for export administration. He cited previous U.S. efforts banning Libya's oil exports which he said met with no success.

The House version also gives the president authority to enter into negotiations with other countries to convince them to ban Iranian imports. The ban would last until Iran halts belligerent acts against gulf shipping.

The trade ban would not affect U.S. sales to Iran, which are relatively minor — about $32 million in 1986 — and primarily low-technology manufactured goods. The United States has banned sales of military equipment to Iran.

Even backers of the legislation conceded that the action was largely symbolic and an attempt to bring ing U.S. trade policy into line with new military realities in the gulf.

The legislation was spurred by news that U.S. oil imports from Iran have more than doubled this year as oil companies try to build up stockpiles in anticipation of problems in the gulf, where shipping has been plagued by Iranian attacks.

"It is outrageous to learn that American dollars have been flowing into Iran," said Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.).

Taxpayers group plot rebellion

Herald staff report

DALLAS — A protest leader says irate taxpayers could stage a tax rebellion in Texas despite a recent opinion by Attorney General Jim Mattox that tempered the power of rollback elections.

However, Howard County and Big Spring government officials say they have not heard of any attempts by local taxpayers to organize a protest within the county.

"I haven't heard anything about any attempts to organize a protest here," said Big Spring Finance Manager Tom Ferguson.

Howard County Treasurer, Bonnie Franklin also said she is unaware of any organized efforts to stage a tax rebellion in the county. "Everyone seems to be satisfied," Franklin said.

Meanwhile, taxpayer discontent seems to be brewing elsewhere in the state.

"The anger and frustration of taxpayers everywhere has reached a fever pitch," tax protester C.A. Stubbs of San Antonio said. "The pendulum is about ready to swing in the direction of a total tax rebellion in Texas."

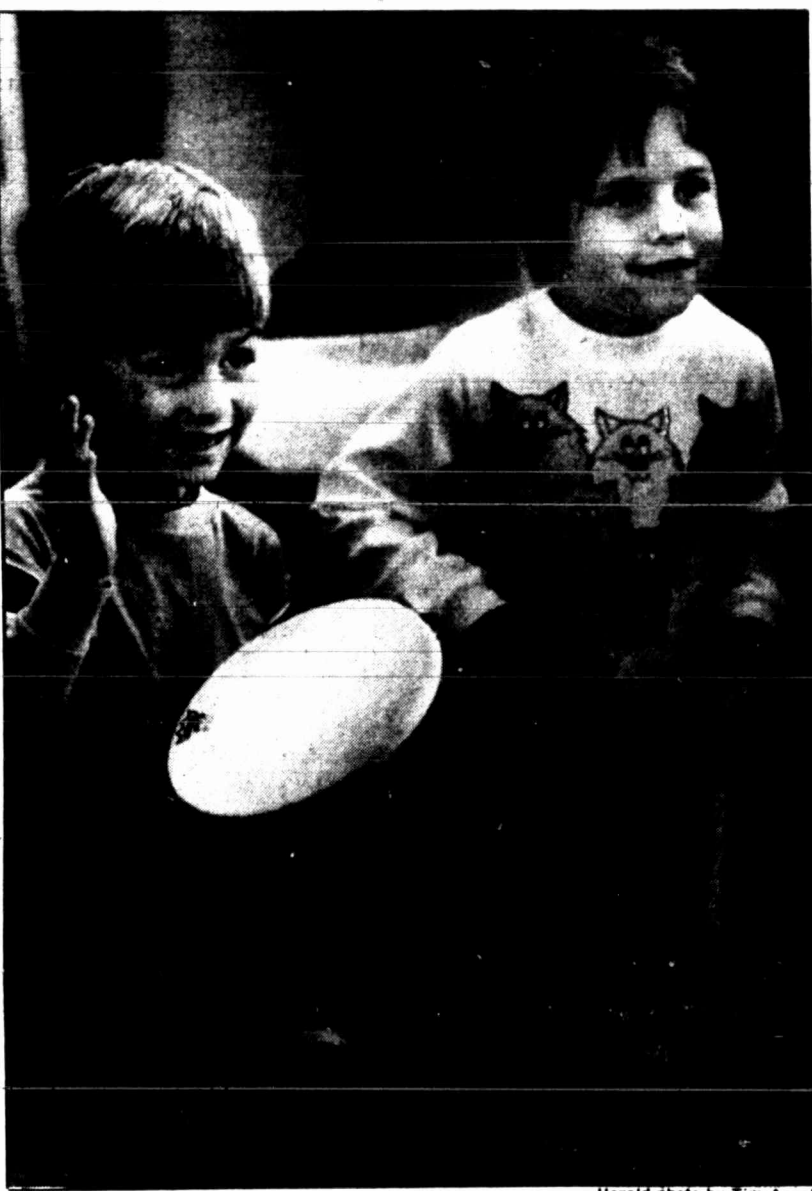

He is president of the newly formed Texas Association of Concerned Taxpayers, which held its first convention in San Antonio two weeks ago. Almost 2,000 people attended.

Officials say irate taxpayers have become even more determined in their efforts in reaction to Mattox' ruling on the constitutionality of such elections. A growing number of taxpayer movements across the state are requesting rollback elections in protest of tax increases.

Mattox, in a legal opinion issued Sept. 25, ruled it was unconstitutional for voters to roll back a county's tax rate.

The opinion does not carry the weight of law and would have to pass a court challenge before it could be enforced. But it was a blow to tax protesters.

County administrators, who face a budget vacuum left by dwindling state and federal funds, were relieved.

Supreme Court OKs parole revocation hearings

AUSTIN (AP) — If the number of criminals requesting parole revocation hearings under a court ruling continues to grow, the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles will have to increase its present staff, a spokesman said.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday that criminals convicted of new crimes are constitutionally guaranteed parole revocation hearings.

The justices, without comment, let stand a Texas Court of Criminal Appeals' ruling that such hearings be required. The parole board on Sept. 1 began offering prisoners with new felony convictions the option of a hearing on their parole revocation, board general counsel Harry Green said Monday.

However, most such prisoners decline the offer, he said.

"We explain to them that irrespective of what (the board does) about their parole, they are going to be serving time on the new sentence," Green said. "It is not going to change their status one iota."

Since the policy was implemented, three of the 250 people who have come back to prison with new felony convictions have asked for hearings, Green said.

If the number of hearings increases greatly, Green said, the board may have to add to its present staff of 20 hearing officers.

If a parole revocation hearing was scheduled in every case, Green said, the board probably would have to double its staff. "That would cost quite a bit of money." Texas prosecutors had argued that the state court ruling's impact on the state's financial resources is immense. They said at least half of the 9,376 parole revocations in Texas in 1986 were done without a hearing after new convictions.

At least 10 other states provide for parole revocations without hearings in cases involving criminals who are convicted of new crimes, the lawyers for Texas told the justices.

Washed out Highway 87 to be rebuilt

Herald staff report

A six-mile stretch of Highway 846 near Knott will be reconstructed, using existing highway department funds and new state allocations, according to a department official.

State Highway and Public Transportation engineer Linda Smith said the highway will be reconstructed from the Martin County line to U.S. Highway 87.

Construction is tentatively scheduled to begin in either June or July, and no target date for completion has been set, department engineer Mike Chetty said.

The highway sustained heavy damage when heavy rains washed out a section of the highway last summer. Temporary supports have been in place since that time to keep the highway open, according to Lynn Passmore, an engineer for the department.

When completed, the stretch of highway will consist of two 12-foot lanes with eight-foot shoulders, Smith said. Funding for the project will come from existing department funds and a $447,000 allocation approved recently, she added.

Local outpatient clinic fights stigma

By KERRY HAGLUND

Staff Writer

The stigma of seeking help at a state mental institution is perhaps the biggest barrier the Big Spring State Hospital Outpatient Clinic faces, Director Leslie Yarbrough said.

The clinic provides medications to quell psychotic symptoms and also provides several types of psychotherapy.

One of the clinic's main purposes, he said, is to provide after-care services for people who are discharged from the state hospital.

"Philosophically, we are going to meet the needs of anyone in the community who has psychological or emotional needs."

But, he added, "There is a lot of stigma attached about going out to the state hospital."

As a result, the clinic spends a significant amount of time making referrals, he said.

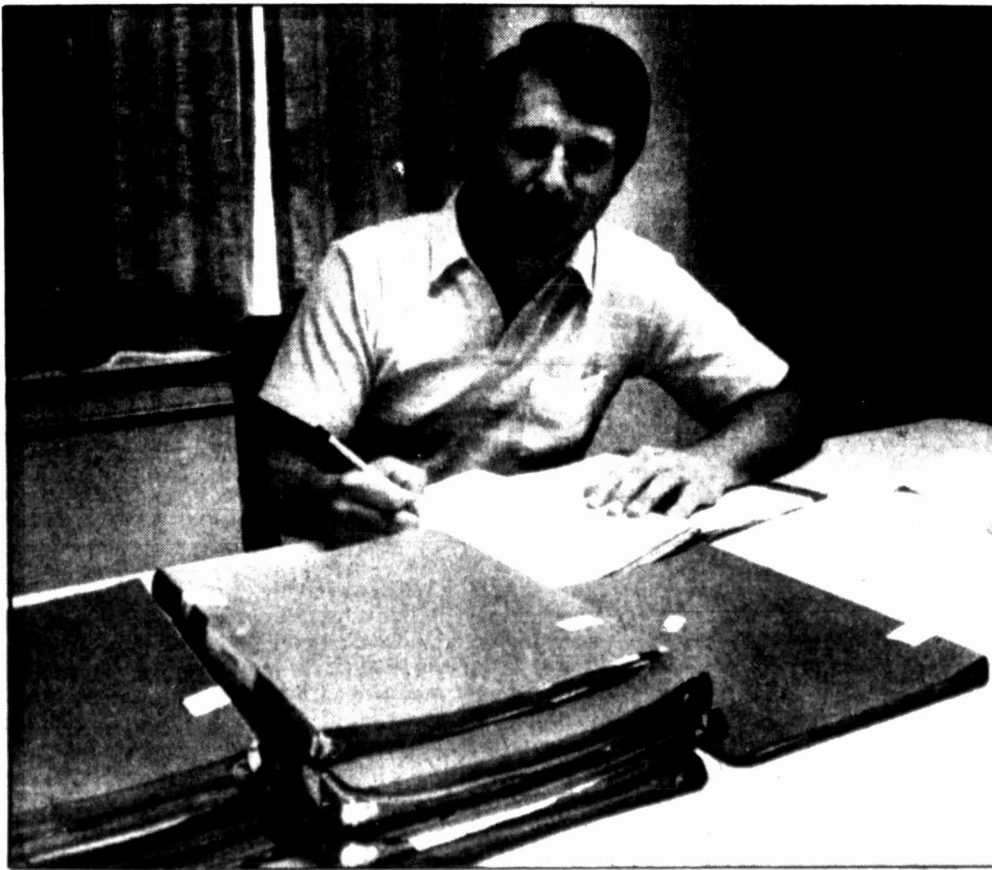

The clinic often refers people seeking help to professionals in the community who aren't associated with the hospital, Yarbrough said.

Some types of counseling, such as domestic and marriage, are not handled by the clinic — and people requesting assistance are referred elsewhere in the community.

Potential suicides are handled frequently.

Clements says more jails, but no tax

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
TENNESSEE COLONY — Gov. Bill Clements on Monday toured the state's newest prison, the Michael Unit, and said Texas would build 19,000 more prison beds by 1990 without a tax increase.

In his first visit to a prison since his election to a second term, Clements sought to rally support for a prison-building program that could cost nearly $1 billion.

The tour came one week after the state began to control admissions with a program in which 150 inmates are admitted to the overcrowded prison system each day and the same number are paroled.

"We will not tolerate lawlessness. Texans are noted for being fair-minded, kind-hearted. But we do draw the line. Break the law, pay the price," Clements said as inmates walked to lunch several dozen yards behind him.

"I stand here today to declare that Texas will do whatever it needs and whatever it takes to build the prisons necessary to have a constitutional system," he said.

The governor conceded he faces a difficult battle with the Legislature.

"I want to emphasize how tough this is going to be to accomplish our purpose," he said. "But it's not a question of money. Not a question of will. Not a question of politics.

It's a question of hands-on getting it done and it's not going to be easy."

Clements said the only problem with the Michael's Unit, "is that we only have of them. We need several more."

The governor said a modular prison design and privately built and operated prisons would provide the state 19,000 additional beds by the end of 1990.

The governor's general counsel, Rider Scott, said the total cost would be about $800 million with the sale of bonds used to pay for the prisons, thus avoiding a tax increase.

One reason the state is forced to build more prisons is a federal court order that mandates that many inmates must be housed by themselves and no more than two inmates can be housed in other cells.

After a one-hour tour of the 2,250-bed prison, Clements stood in a walkway leading to the prison's minimum security wing and said he was confident the Legislature "will provide the funds" for the monumental building program.

He said the $67 million, modular-construction Michael's Unit will be like a "cookie cutter" model prison used to accelerate the rate at which the state can build prisons "so that

Deepest of the deep sea divers is the leatherback turtle. They dive almost three-quarters of a mile, usually to get away from killer whales. Killer whales find turtles tasty, but they have to get off at the bargain basement. Turtles can go all the way down to the furnace floor.

BLOOD PRESSURE

Q. Is it true you can actually reduce your blood pressure by staring into a tankful of tropical fish?

A. It is reported to be true. A nap, a walk or a moment of meditation for those so inclined will do likewise.

Q. What kills the most mountain goats?

A. Avalanches. That's the best guess of the experts. Falls kill a lot of the young ones, too.

Two plead guilty to DWI

Herald staff report

Two men pleaded guilty in County Court to driving while intoxicated and were given fines and probation sentences.

Leslie A. McClelland, 23, Vinton, La., was fined $400 plus court costs, and was sentenced to six months in jail, probation for two years.

Daniel Hilario, 20, 100 N.W. Eighth St., was fined $300 plus court costs, and was sentenced to six months in jail, probation for two years.

Kenneth Wayne Owens, 25, Lampasas, was arrested by deputies on a grand jury indictment charging him with delivery of a controlled substance. He was released on $10,000 bond.

Tommy Gilbert Coates, 31, 600 W. Third St., was arrested on a peace bond warrant. He was released on $5,000 bond.

Florencio Lara Diaz, 38, Lamesa, was transferred to the sheriff's office from the Dawson County Sheriff's Office on a warrant charging bondsman off bond on DWI. He is still in custody.

Jesse Herrera, 42, 1001 E. 14th, was released today after serving time on a DWI judgement.

Eugene Marquez, 29, 705 N. Douglas St., was released Sunday after serving time on a driving while intoxicated judgement.

Police beat

Three burglaries reported

Herald staff report

Three burglaries and an assault were reported to Big Spring police Monday.

Rebecca Valdez, 1602 E. 16th, told police that someone entered her home and stole $15 cash and a gold ring valued at $200.

Kathy Hureta, 200 A S. Goliad, reported the theft of a $100 bill during an apparent burglary at her home.

Bill Brooks, 4 Kiowa Circle, reported that someone entered his home and stole camera equipment, a stereo, jewelry and cash.

Value of the items was listed at $1,480.

A Forsan man was injured when he was assaulted by another man at 802 W. 1-20 late Sunday, according to police reports.

Rusty Newcomb was treated at the Senic Mountain Medical Center for bruised ribs and a fractured skull as the result of the attack, police reports said. Hospital officials refused to release further information about Newcomb's condition.

the children to put to use what we tell them at home," Settles said.

Two fire prevention tips to be stressed during the week, he said, include installation and proper maintenance of smoke alarms and the establishment and practicing of home escape plans.

"Most fires occur at night, often while people are sleeping," Settles said.

He urges families to protect themselves by installing smoke detectors near each sleeping area and to draft and escape route to be memorized by the entire family.

"Draw a floor plan of your entire home. Show all possible exits from each room. Know two ways out of every room, especially bedrooms," Settles stressed.

Proper installation and maintenance of smoke and fire alarms and planning and practicing home fire escape plans can go a long way toward protecting families from home fires, Settles said.

However, the assistant fire chief also urges individuals to learn how to prevent a fire in their home by contacting the Big Spring Fire Department for more safety information.

Deaths

Bessie Harris

Bessie Naomi Harris, 81, 410 Edwards, died Monday, Oct. 5, 1987 at Senic Mountain Medical Center.

Services will be at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel, Wednesday Oct. 7, 1987 at 2 p.m. Burial will follow in Trinity Memorial Park. Officiating will be Royce Clay, minister of 14th and Main St. Church of Christ, assisted by Curtis Kemp of Amarillo.

She was born April 22, 1906, in Wanda, Mo. She was married to Austin M. Harris Oct. 27, 1924 in Dalhart. She has lived in the community since Feb. 1942. She came to Big Spring from Texline.

Survivors include her husband, Austin, and one son, Gerald, of Katy; two brothers, Raymond Pogue of Albuquerque, N.M., and Harvey Pogue, of Clayton, N.M.; one grandchild; and several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers will be Loy Anderson, Laurence Snively, Max Coffee, Russell Christenson, Don Green, and Maberry Willbanks. Honorary pallbearers are John Hale, Carl Coleman, Charlie Shanks, and Kenneth Stephens and Pual Hood.

Clinic

"You can bet we will get involved," he said, estimating that the clinic receives as many as five serious suicide threats every month.

As often as possible, the clinic seeks to provide assistance without requiring hospitalization.

"Hospitalization is not the answer for every mental problem that comes along," Yarbrough said.

Placing people in a sterile environment in the hopes of solving their problems is not necessarily the answer, he said.

Some people seeking assistance are hospitalized, however, he noted, citing serious suicidal tendencies as one example.

Whenever possible, the clinic seeks to keep outpatients functioning in the community.

The clinic has about 300 active cases per month and 50 to 75 one-time visits or calls that are referred to other agencies, Yarbrough said.

Cases are reviewed by a six-member treatment team, which must approve treatment plans for each client.

Patients also must approve of the treatment plan before it is instituted, he said.

The team consists of one physician, one social worker with a master's degree, two doctorate-level psychologists, one bachelor level social worker and one registered nurse.

The clinic also has five clerical workers and three case managers.

Case managers work as patient advocates by helping clients find places to live, seek jobs and adjust to community living, Yarbrough said.

He expects to hire an additional RN in about a month.

Twenty-four hour services are offered through a Crisis Hotline serving an area within the boundaries of El Paso, Lubbock, Abilene and San Angelo.

Professionals trained to respond to crisis situations man the switchboard, he said.

The state hospital outpatient clinic covers a four-county area that consists of Howard, Martin, Glasscock and Borden counties.

Because of the traveling involved for some clients, the clinic is flexible in meeting each individual's needs, Yarbrough said.

Office hours are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. But nighttime and weekend hours can be provided, he said.

The clinic strives to counsel its clients to living independently, within a community environment, he said.

Today's high stress environment, poor economy and strong competition in the work place have caused people to have more difficulty dealing with every day problems, Yarbrough said.

"We want to prevent problems from getting so severe that they need to be hospitalized.

Nurse cuts tip of baby's thumb

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A nurse snipping tape that held an intravenous needle in a newborn baby's hand accidentally cut off the tip of the infant's thumb, officials and relatives say.

Jessica Michaelle Eason was only 15 hours old when the top of her right thumb, almost down to the knuckle, was cut off Monday at Bayfront Medical Center, relatives said.

Dr. Osama Suliman, a St. Petersburg plastic surgeon, sewed the thumb back together in a 45-minute operation. But he predicted Monday that the chances of success for the replant were only 10 to 15 percent. It will be two or three days before the outcome is known, he said.

Stitching together the tiny blood vessels in the thumb was impossible, Suliman said.

"The only way it will heal is if the blood vessels grow back," he said.

Iran ban

ing into the Iranian war machine" which has been laying mines that threaten the lives of U.S. servicemen, said Rep. Mel Levine, D-Calif., the bill's sponsor.

In all of 1986, imports of Iranian oil were valued at $498 million, according to the Commerce Department. The import total through the first seven months of this year already has hit $819 million.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., raised the possibility that an oil embargo could damage efforts by an international tribunal in The Hague to settle some $20 billion to $30 billion in outstanding claims between the two countries.

The claims stem from the 1979 takeover of Iran by Islamic fundamentalists and the confiscation of plants and facilities owned by U.S. companies in Iran, which used to be a major U.S. trading partner.

Freedenberg said he could not predict how an oil import ban would affect such claims, but said that was being weighed by the administration as it attempts to take a position on the proposed ban.

Hamilton also said an oil import ban against Iran that is not also directed at Iraq could damage international perceptions of U.S. neutrality toward the two combatants in the gulf war.

The Senate had passed similar legislation last week as part of a massive defense bill, but backers decided to separate the issue from that bill because of the likelihood that the package will be vetoed by Reagan for unrelated reasons.

One arrested in scheme to sell INS documents

SEATTLE (AP) — A woman has been charged with falsifying documents needed by undocumented workers to obtain citizenship, and authorities said they expected further arrests against "immigration consultants" in Eastern Washington.

Dolores Garcia of Yakima, also known as Dolores Garcia-Gaviglio and believed to be in her 30s, was arrested without incident late Monday at Legal and Medical Bilingual Services, her business in Coviche, said Kent Lundgren of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Yakima.

Lundgren said agents in Spokane were also working on another complaint.

The arrest of Ms. Garcia followed a six-week investigation of the woman, who has lived in Yakima "quite some time," Lundgren said. "She's quite well-known in the local Hispanic community."

She was charged with two counts of "creating and supplying false and fictitious documents to aliens applying for legalization" as U.S. citizens, he said.

"This arrest represents the beginning of an extensive look into the fraudulent practices of a number of 'immigration consultants' and similar types in Eastern Washington," said a statement issued by Russell D. Manchester, officer in charge of the INS in Spokane. "There will certainly be more arrests in the future."

Both the Yakima and Spokane cases are against U.S. citizens who represented themselves as being able to help illegal aliens obtain citizenship and charged fees for their services, said Richard Smith, the agency's district director in Seattle.

we're not going to waste a lot of time going to architects and having new ideas."

Clements told reporters and prison officials who toured the facility with him that he was impressed with the decentralized design that allows showers, recreation and work areas to be located next to the cell blocks. The design minimizes the number of inmates who must be moved for various activities, thus reducing contact among inmates and violence.

Prison guard Mike Mitchell called the new prison "an elite unit. There's a less chance of getting hurt as in other units. That goes for them and for the bosses."

Clements entered an empty 80-square-foot cell normally occupied by two minimum security convicts. The governor looked at the two bunks, sink and toilet and desk but refused to say if he thought the cells were too nice for convicts.

"I would not comment about that at all," he said. "We have to do first of all what the court says, then we have to do what's right fundamentally. What we're really working to is criteria established by federal courts. There's no way we can argue with those at this point. We have to conform to those specifications."

Gov. Bill Clements looks over the control room of one of the "pods" at the new Michael Prison near Tennessee Colony during a tour of the facility Monday. Looking over the governor's shoulder is warden Jack Garner.

Churches boost fund

AUSTIN — Boosted by mammoth collections from churches, opponents of pari-mutuel wagering reported an early lead Monday over supporters of legalized gambling in the struggle to raise funds for promoting their positions on Nov. 3 statewide referendum.

Texans Who Care, a Dallas based coalition opposing the pari-mutuel gambling, reported to the secretary of state's office that it had raised $196,000 since July 1, mostly from Baptist and Methodist churches and churchgoers.

The pro-gambling forces organized as the Texans for Economic Development, filed reports showing it was behind in the money-raising stakes with $136,000 in donations collected over the same time period.

Both groups consider monetary contributions to be a crucial element in their campaign to defeat or pass the proposed constitutional amendment to legalize gambling at horse and dog tracks in Texas.

7-Eleven to sell apples

YAKIMA, Wash. — Washington apples will be available in a major new market later this month, as the 7,500-unit 7-Eleven convenience store chain has agreed to sell the state's largest cash crop, said the Washington Apple Commission.

Commission spokesman Chuck St. John said Monday an agreement was reached between the commission and Dallas-based Southland Corp.

"It's safe to say that hundreds of thousands of boxes of additional apples will be sold" because of the agreement, said St. John.

He said the commission would spend $50,000 to $60,000 on two-tiered wooden display racks, each holding 22 wrapped apples, for 7-Eleven stores.

Civil rights rules given

WASHINGTON — With reports mounting of unjust firings and discrimination against Hispanics and foreigners as a result of the immigration reform law, the Justice Department today will issue rules governing an office created last November to investigate such complaints.

Civil rights advocates, Hispanic groups and a congressman criticized the delay in formally establishing the special counsel's office as evidence of the Reagan administration's disinterest in protecting the rights of minorities, and attacked the regulations as virtually unenforceable and contrary to the intent of Congress.

Black leaders back project

AUSTIN — Black leaders, who are working to pass a state bond package called Build Texas, say black Texans should be an integral part of the economic development project.

"If we build Texas, we want to be the bricks," Dr. Marion Ford, a Houston perodontist and head of the finance committee for Black Texans for Economic Development, said Monday.

"We are very concerned about just being left with the minimum-wage jobs and nothing else ... We do not plan to come away with an empty hand," Sen. Eddie Bernice Johnson, a Dallas Democrat who organized the black coalition, said.

Former MHMR patient sues state institution

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman who spent more than half a century in state mental institutions goes before a judge today to ask a judge to force the state to hold judicial hearings for people who are involuntarily committed.

Opal Petty, 69, filed a class-action lawsuit in a Travis County district court Monday claiming she spent 51 years in mental institutions but was never allowed a judicial hearing.

The suit names the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and several department officials as defendants. She is represented by Advocacy Inc. and the Texas Civil Liberties Union, the Austin American Statesman reported today.

The lawsuit alleges hundreds of people are involuntarily committed to state institutions, but are never given a judicial hearing to determine whether their confinement is necessary.

Ms. Petty was committed to Austin State Hospital for 37 years.

She was transferred to San Angelo State School for the mentally retarded, where she lived for 14 years.

Ms. Petty is not mentally ill and is only borderline retarded, the American Statesman reported, citing records the newspaper reviewed last year.

Don't hold off crime reforms

Most criminologists agree that the certainty of punishment, rather than its severity, is the most effective deterrent to criminals. Therefore, sentencing reform was an integral part of the Comprehensive Crime Control Act passed by Congress three years ago.

So why are some lawmakers shrinking from the very mechanism that could ensure that persons who commit federal crimes serve the time they have coming to them?

Last April, the federal commission that Congress created to eliminate wide disparities in sentencing submitted guidelines that, if approved, will make punishment more uniform and more certain.

The guidelines are supposed to take effect Nov. 1, assuming Congress does not invalidate them with yet another statute.

Under the proposed formula, federal sentences would be based upon the seriousness of the crime and the dangerousness of the criminal. Each crime would be assigned a numerical rating that, in turn, would specify the appropriate sentence.

Federal judges could depart from the guidelines for any "aggravating or mitigating" circumstances, so long as they give their reasons in writing. Such a departure would be grounds for appeal by either prosecutor or defendant.

In addition, paroles would be phased out over five years, and time off for good behavior would be limited.

Under this truth-in-sentencing, for example, a felon sentenced to 14 years actually would serve the lion's share of his prison term. That would be a welcome change from the present system, whereby criminals are routinely paroled before serving half of their sentences.

Of those granted early release, nearly 50 percent commit new crimes or violate the conditions of their parole.

Which brings us back to the backpedalers on Capitol Hill. They are being pressured by a coalition of federal judges, defense lawyers and assorted civil libertarians who contend that sentencing guidelines would restrict judicial discretion and would overwhelm the crowded federal-prison system.

Responding to such pressure, the commission has suggested that Congress delay the implementation of the new guidelines until August 1988 to allow additional time to study the matter.

What goes on here? The commission spent 18 months in public hearings and study before submitting the sentencing guidelines to Congress. Further delay would only undermine the intent of the 1984 law, which is to ensure that criminals serve their allotted time behind bars.

It should be recalled that the Comprehensive Crime Control Act sailed through Congress because of a bipartisan coalition that included Sens. Strom Thurmond and Ted Kennedy. The moral imperative that prompted its passage then is no less pressing today.

The federal-sentencing guidelines should be implemented on Nov. 1, as scheduled.

Parisian memories tug at heart of columnist

By ART BUCHWALD
PARIS — They are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the International Herald Tribune in Paris this week and I'm here for the party.

I'm proud to say that I have been continuously associated with the "Trib" for 38 years. Fourteen of them were spent in Paris and were the happiest years of my life, except for the first three, when I lived there as a bachelor.

I went to Paris, as a student in late 1948 and lucked out by getting a job on the Tribune in early 1949.

The position was restaurant and nightclub critic and the pay was $25 a week.

I had impeccable credentials for reviewing French restaurants. Previous to Paris I had dined for three years in U.S. Marine Corps mess halls. Then for three more I ate in the school cafeteria at the University of Southern California, and finally, in Paris I took my meals in Montparnasse at a Polish cooperative called the Hotel des Etats Unis.

Writing about food in Paris was no problem. But wines were a little trickier. So I did what almost every American in France was doing at the time — I faked it.

I was told by friends that if the wine bottle had a neck it was a Burgundy, and if it had shoulders it was a Bordeaux. When it came to distinguishing reds from whites it was every man for himself.

To make the gourmet job less boring I took along an Irish American lady from Warren, Pa., who offered to tell me which dishes were hot and which were cold.

The key to the good life in Paris was writing about restaurants. If someone wanted to eat well, he had to come to me.

One time the late Aga Khan called and asked if I could recommend a good restaurant. I said I would go one better and take him there. We had a great lunch and when the check came there was no move on the Aga's part to pick it up, so I took it.

When I handed in my expenses, the feisty managing editor, Eric Hawkins, said, "How dare you take the Aga Khan to lunch?" "I had to," I protested. "I still have relatives in Pakistan."

You cannot return to Paris after having lived there for 14 years without getting teary-eyed. To celebrate the anniversary of the Trib I want to go back to all the fleshpots and low life I knew when I was a boy columnist.

The trouble is there's this Irish American lady from Warren, Pa., who keeps insisting since she was the only one who would eat with me in Paris 38 years ago, she has a right to tag along.

Memorial draws respect for veterans

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Thank you Michael — for bringing the Moving Wall to Big Spring.

It was a courageous act — one that has cleansed souls and healed wounds.

I'm grateful to Michael Letton for knowing the Wall's power — and for sharing it with the thousands of us who didn't.

He knew its magnetic strength. And, as a Vietnam veteran, he understands the pain, sorrow and grief that black expanse provokes.

But he also knows its healing powers. I visited the Wall site several times, and each time the Wall evoked different emotions.

I was there the night before it was assembled, the day it was assembled, during opening ceremonies and late at night.

I chatted with Michael about the Wall as we drove to the site one week ago — he freely shared his belief that the 70 black plexiglass panels he brought to Big Spring would change peoples' lives forever.

I didn't fully comprehend. Once at the site, I witnessed Michael comfort a Big Spring Vietnam veteran volunteer who cried at the mere thought of assembling the Wall — knowing the emotions it would provoke.

The war memories came flooding back. "We were called 'baby killers,'" Michael, they spit in our faces," the man said, recalling his return home.

He spoke of his family — and its failure to accept how he had changed. Family members wondered what happened to the happy, well-adjusted son they had known. He recalled returning to a family he didn't know — and who didn't know him.

"We were just boys when we left, but we grew up over there — without realizing it," Michael said, hugging him.

As Michael gently spoke of veterans who were emotionally cleansed by the Wall, of the outpouring of love from the communities where the Wall was displayed, and of many other heart-warming experiences during his travels, I began to get some inkling of the immense potential the Wall contained.

The emotional level changed somewhat during the actual assembly of the Wall the next day.

A subtle undercurrent of excitement could be felt, but volunteers worked in a business-like fashion — "We need another washer here, we need to prop it up here, lean back ..."

The next day, hundreds of people thronged to the sight for the opening ceremony. As the heat beat down, the silent crowd listened solemnly — then slowly approached the Wall, laying wreaths, hugging, reading names silently.

A late night visit to the Wall brought me through a full range of emotions.

I stuck to the shadows in the distance and watched the dozen or so visitors at the Wall.

As I leaned against the platform stage, sobs shook me. My shoulders were shaking as I cried silently.

I stared at the blurry black and white span of names and wondered why I was crying when I didn't know a single person on that Wall.

A man in a military suit approached and asked if I was OK.

I nodded my head, but couldn't speak.

"My name's Phil, I'm a Vietnam vet," he said.

We held each other tight for several minutes.

When the sobs had subsided, I asked, "Did you cry when you first saw it?"

"Yes, and I still cry," he answered.

We sat down, and as I wiped tears, we talked.

After leaving the Wall that night, I went to visit a Vietnam veteran who I had planned to accompany to the Wall.

I learned he had gone alone, as I had.

As I think back, still wondering why the Wall moved me as it did, I think I was crying more for the veterans who returned home rather than for those on the Wall.

Those on the Wall have peace, but thousands, camouflaged in society are struggling to cope — the memories still haunting, the tears falling silently.

Farewell Michael.

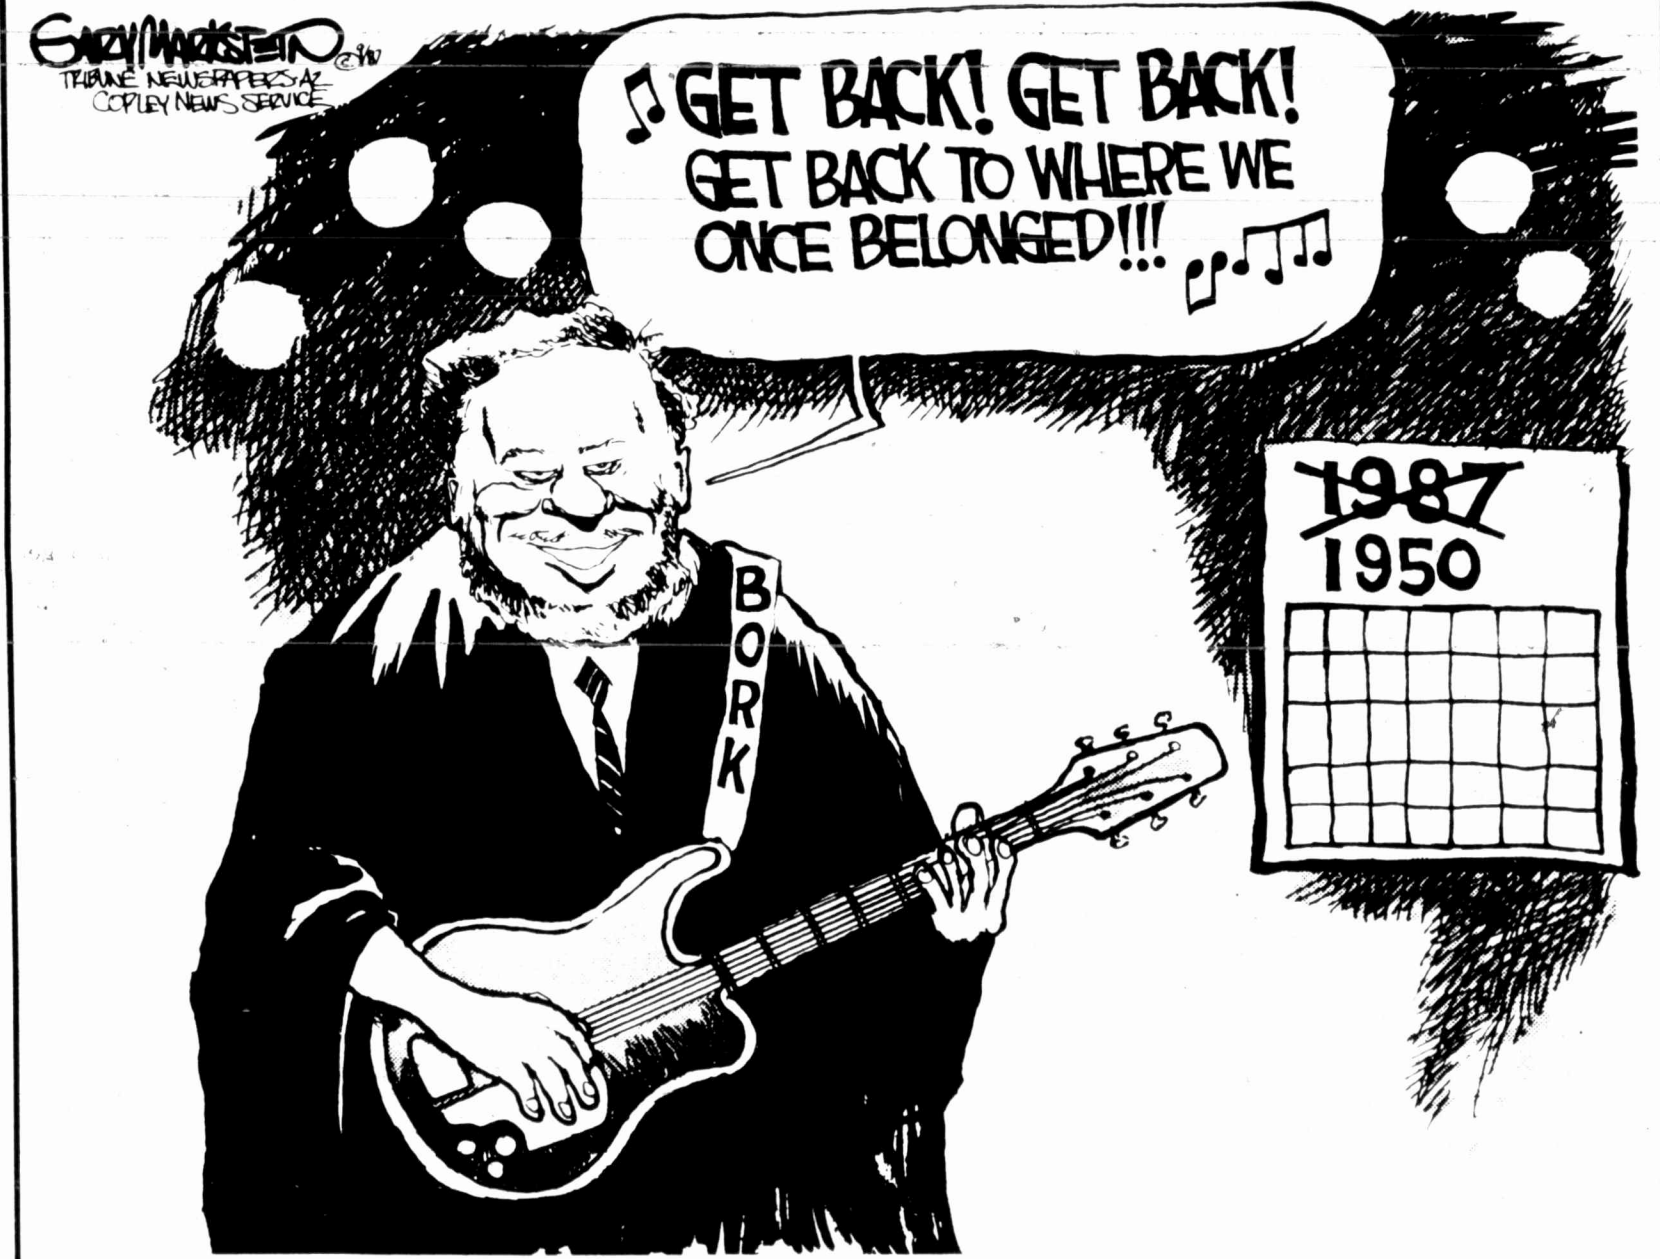

And thank you Big Spring Vietnam veterans for opening your hearts and sharing some very personal memories of your war experiences.

You have my respect forever.

Around the rim

A full range of emotions.

I stuck to the shadows in the distance and watched the dozen or so visitors at the Wall.

Bork's antitrust views may raise prices

By JACK ANDERSON
and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Most of the senators who grilled Judge Robert Bork at the Judiciary Committee hearings tried to nail down the Supreme Court nominee's views on civil rights and individual liberties.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, also concentrated on an issue that concerns every American, the majority as well as minorities and women: Bork's discontent with the antitrust laws.

At least before the hearings, Bork had opposed government interference with business. He championed the right of manufacturers to dictate the retail prices of their products. For 75 years the courts have held that this practice, called "vertical price fixing," violates the antitrust laws.

During the hearings, Bork backed away somewhat from this essentially 19th-century version of laissez-faire economics. His theories in support of vertical price fixing, he told Metzenbaum, may well be proved wrong by changing economic conditions.

Bork may have known that Metzenbaum held hearings earlier in the summer on vertical price fixing. An investigation by the senator's staff concluded that a world in which manufacturers were allowed to set the retail prices of their goods — effectively shutting down discount stores — would be a more expensive place to live.

The senator has introduced legislation that would specifically prohibit such price fixing, thus removing the issue from court interpretation.

Bork's pre-hearing views on vertical price fixing were put forth in his 1978 book, "The Antitrust Paradox," in which he wrote: "It should be completely lawful for a manufacturer to fix retail prices."

Bork explained the theoretical underpinning of his view to Metzenbaum this way:

Price fixing among competing manufacturers will always be wrong. But if an individual manufacturer were permitted to dictate that all retailers handling its products charge the same price, retailers could still compete — in the services they provide to their customers.

But, asked Metzenbaum, what kinds of services could be provided to, say, the buyers of children's clothing or toys? Bork conceded that there were few.

Metzenbaum believes it's the no-discount prices of everyday items that would hit consumers the hardest if vertical price fixing were allowed. His staff conducted a study in four Ohio cities, and determined that, on average, discount store customers paid between 18 and 30 percent less for their purchases.

The staff study estimated that in a year, the average American family can save $435.31 on clothes, $57.83 on electronic equipment and $41.87 on toys by shopping in discount stores.

Bork's belief in the benign effect of vertical price fixing appears to be shared by the Justice Department. In a letter to Metzenbaum's antitrust subcommittee, the department threatened to ask President Reagan to veto the senator's bill if it passed Congress.

The threat was delivered by the new head of the antitrust division, Charles F. Rule. Like Bork, he is a graduate of the University of Chicago and the school of thought that believes the government should use the antitrust laws only to enhance "corporate efficiency."

In other words, consumers will be assured of fair prices if only Big Business is left to operate unfettered by the government.

The Reagan Justice Department has repeatedly tried to persuade the courts not to take action against manufacturers who try to fix retail prices. In 1984, Congress finally ordered the department to stop trying to reverse the longstanding ban on vertical price fixing.

DANGEROUS ENVIRONMENT — Two divisions of the Environmental Protection Agency have expressed reluctance to move into offices with concrete ceilings that contain asbestos. But EPA safety officials say the ceilings conform to the agency's regulations.

Some of the employees have already moved into the new offices, in Waterside Mall in southwest Washington, D.C., and others are scheduled to move in the next few weeks.

A June 22 memorandum reviewed by our reporter Jennifer Smith listed the workers' concerns that 1) the ceilings in some areas of the new offices have been coated with "friable asbestos"; 2) asbestos fibers may be released into the air through "deterioration and physical disturbances" like some already observed; and 3) there is documented evidence that even very low exposures to asbestos fibers can be a health hazard.

Asbestos is a proven carcinogen but is used in concrete ceilings for added strength. When fibers break loose and are inhaled, they remain in the lungs and can eventually cause cancer.

Sheldon Rabinovitz, manager of health and safety in EPA's office of administration, said the employees were justified in being concerned when asked to move into an asbestos area, but he said inspections of the ceilings indicated that they met EPA safety standards, so there is no reason to worry.

As for "observed visible signs of deterioration" such as water and physical damage" noted in the memorandum, Rabinovitz said inspection revealed no separation of asbestos from the concrete, while nicks in the ceilings have been coated or sealed by an asbestos contractor.

Rabinovitz said the ceilings will be inspected every three months to make sure they are safe. He said a maintenance plan has been devised that will include a computer analysis of any work order for the offices to determine its safety, and will assure that no construction is done without adequate safety measures.

Sole survivor arrested

MARSHFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A boy who police initially said fatally shot six relatives in a rampage in which he died wasn't capable of murder, acquaintances said after his uncle, the spree's sole survivor, was arrested in the slayings.

"I never believed that child could have done something like that," said Judy Carr of rural Elkland, whose two sons were friends of 14-year-old Kirk Buckner. "He's been in my house and eaten with us, and I wouldn't believe it."

James E. Schnick, a 36-year-old Elkland farmer, was arrested and charged Monday in the Sept. 25 shooting deaths after a day of interrogation at state Highway Patrol headquarters in Springfield, authorities said. He had been scheduled to take a lie detector test but suddenly refused, investigators said.

"I don't think the town is tremendously surprised," said Jo Walker, wife of high school Principal Bill Walker.

Reagan stays with Bork

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, defiant in the face of worsening prospects for his Supreme Court nominee, Robert H. Bork, intends to fight vote-by-vote for his confirmation, White House aides say.

Reagan scheduled new arm-twisting sessions today with uncommitted senators as the Senate Judiciary Committee planned a vote on the controversial jurist's nomination.

Despite a new wave of announcements Monday from senators who said they had decided to oppose Bork, Reagan used a Rose Garden ceremony to express staunch support for his nominee.

He said it would be "over my dead body" before Bork was denied a vote in the full Senate.

Yet Reagan's aides acknowledged that the situation looked troublesome.

"It's getting tougher," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater admitted. "It's an uphill fight."

Tom Korologos, the administration lobbyist working on Bork's behalf, said, "It doesn't look good, but we're still in there slugging."

Tutor chides newsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighth-grade history teacher John Vassak says it always bothered him when he saw reporters badgering President Reagan with questions at the end of televised news conferences.

On Monday, the North Salem, N.Y., teacher got a chance to speak his mind to reporters shouting questions to Reagan at the end of a Rose Garden ceremony — and he did.

"You're taking away from the joy of the whole occasion for us," Vassak told television journalists who called out questions about Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork as Reagan walked to the Oval Office after addressing educators from 271 award-winning schools.

Several others joined Vassak in decrying the journalists' decorum, while the reporters in turn treated them to an impromptu lecture on their First Amendment rights.

Earthquake

Shocks cause nightmares for children

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The powerful earthquakes that rumbled through the area have left children clinging to their parents and teddy bears, worrying about death and waking up from nightmares screaming for the shaking to stop.

The youngsters who seem most afraid are those whose parents are the most shaken psychologically by the temblors, doctors said Monday.

"The mothers who are very fearful have the very fearful children," said Dr. Rodney Richard, a Pasadena pediatrician. "It seems as if you have emotional contagion, and they're getting emotional cues from their parents. I'm giving out a few mild tranquilizers to mothers."

To ease the fears of some youngsters, about 100 third-graders at an elementary school in Whittier, near the epicenter of Thursday's quake, experienced a simulated 6.5-magnitude quake inside the Yogi Berra Quake-Shakey Schoolhouse, an enclosed flatbed truck with hydraulic "shakers."

"Education helps students not to fear an earthquake and to prepare for it," said Maxine Mackey, an analyst for the Los Angeles County Board of Education, which sponsors the project.

Richard said that since Thursday's temblor measuring 6.1 on the Richter scale and the more than two dozen sizable aftershocks, he has seen many children suffering anxiety, headaches and loss of appetite.

"This probably has traumatized as many children, if not more children, than it has adults," said Dr. Jerome Oziel, a University of Southern California psychiatrist.

Oziel said he received calls from parents — whose children "were unable to sleep at all, slept with teddy bears, or wouldn't sleep unless they could come into their parents' bed or could use a blanket they hadn't used for years."

"We've noticed a tremendous response from children, namely fear and anxiety manifested by trouble sleeping at night, lots of trouble separating from mom and dad, excessive fear of getting hurt," said Dr. Thomas Hicklin, psychiatrist and chief of the children's ward at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center. "We have noticed some crying, stomachaches and difficulty in returning to school."

One Los Angeles parent, Angel Calderon, said nightmares have awakened his two daughters every night since the first quake hit.

"They scream to make it stop," said the 30-year-old unemployed laborer.

"A lot of children are feeling scared," said Gail Shaeffer, assis-

Noel Valdez, 2, sleeps in a downtown shelter at Bellmont High School in Los Angeles Monday. Dr. Jerome Oziel, a University of Southern California psychiatrist, says the quake has probably traumatized many children.

tant director of Monterey Park's Meher Montessori School. "They are very weary of any kind of movement or vibration. The fear that it's going to happen again is one of the greatest fears."

"They are crying, clinging to parents, and some refuse to sleep in their own beds," she said.

Pappas urged parents to tell their children "there probably will be more aftershocks, but they will diminish. You have to acknowledge this is a scary thing, not just for kids but for adults."

Dr. Luis Lopez, a Montebello pediatrician, said his patients "want to have their parents always within their sight or in contact with them. Some younger kids have more crying spells, more crankiness. The kids are complaining of headaches."

Hicklin urged parents to "talk to their children, and in a kind and loving way find out what their concerns are, reassure them when reassurance is possible, and develop a plan for the family in case of further earthquakes."

Parents should review emergency plans with youngsters and have the kids help get supplies in a box, which is reassuring them something is being done, he added.

Unfortunately, parents can't assure children more aftershocks won't occur, so youngsters are becoming increasingly anxious, said Margie Pappas, a social worker at El Camino Mental Health Center in Cerritos.

Mexican official resigns

MEXICO CITY — Carlos Salinas de Gortari, destined to be Mexico's next president, has taken the first step to becoming a full-time candidate by resigning his government post of budget secretary.

In keeping with tradition, Salinas de Gortari handed his resignation Monday night to President Miguel de la Madrid, a day after being named by the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, as its presidential candidate.

The government news agency Notimex reported Salinas de Gortari gave his resignation from de la Madrid's Cabinet during a private meeting with the president.

The Mexican Constitution requires presidential candidates to not hold any high federal office for six months prior to election day. However, it is customary for candidates to resign within days after getting the nod from the PRI.

Fourteen die in protest

LHASA, Tibet (AP) — Chinese police arrested about 100 demonstrators who chanted and waved fists in a march to the Tibetan regional government office today, five days after a pro-independence protest left at least 14 dead.

About 2,000 people stood by as dozens of police and soldiers armed with AK-47 automatic rifles and automatic pistols rushed to the office compound and herded the marchers into trucks.

The marchers came from the direction of the Drepung monastery and were believed to have been Buddhist monks, but they wore civilian clothes rather than the saffron robes usually worn by monks.

There have been reports that monks also planned to demonstrate on Wednesday, the 37th anniversary of the Chinese occupation of Tibet, a remote region in the Himalayas with 2 million people.

Duarte reaches pact

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte and leftist rebels ended a two-day meeting today with an agreement to form a commission to seek a cease-fire in the 8-year-old civil war.

Both sides had predicted that the talks would not resolve the major political and ideological differences separating them, and a joint communique announcing the commission appeared to bear out their forecasts.

In statements issued after the negotiations, rebel leaders raised doubt that the commission could bring about a cease-fire because of the differences.

But Duarte said that if the commission fails, he will "assume a historic challenge" and ask his armed forces to declare a unilateral cease-fire.

The communique was read to reporters by Monsignor Arturo Rivera Damas, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of San Salvador, at the end of a marathon 15-hour negotiating session that began Monday morning.

The talks, which began Sunday afternoon, marked the first time in three years the two sides had met officially.

EPA announces new pollution standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency on Monday announced new water pollution standards that it said could force the closure of up to 61 plants in the organic chemical, plastic and synthetic-fiber industries.

Lawrence J. Jensen, EPA assistant administrator, said the new regulations could halt the annual discharge of 23.6 million pounds of toxic pollutants and 108 million pounds of so-called conventional pollutants.

"The new regulation, which sets discharge limits on 66 pollutants, is one of the most ambitious and important water pollution-control regulations ever issued by EPA," Jensen said in a statement.

The EPA said annual costs to comply with the new rules would be about $500 million.

"As many as 61 plants could close, affecting two percent (3,389 people) of the employment in the industry," the EPA said in its announcement. "Profit or sales effects could also occur at an additional 82 plants."

The rules also set new standards for pollutants discharged into publicly owned sewage-treatment systems.

The Mini Page Teacher's Guide

For use by teachers and parents at home and at school.

For use with issue: The World Series

Main idea: This issue is about the World Series. The following is a list of activities to be used with this issue. They are listed in order of difficulty, with the easier, pre-reader assignments listed first. Ask the children to do the following:

1. Talk about baseball and the World Series. Will you watch the games on TV? Which team would you like to win? Why? Have you ever been to a major league baseball game? If so, what is it like to be in the crowd? Which team logo do you like the best?
2. Who is your favorite sports star? What sport does he or she play? If you were to interview this person, what questions would you ask?
3. Design a plaque to be presented to the World Series champions. What do the winners receive?
4. Look on the map in this issue and find the city with a major league baseball team closest to where you live.
5. Which teams are going to the World Series? Find their cities on the map.
6. Answer the following questions:
  - a. Which team has won the most World Series titles?
  - b. How many teams have never won the World Series?
  - c. Which cities have two major league teams?

Crossroads Chalk Talk

For the second straight week, Crossroads Country teams faced a roadblock last Friday.

Two weeks ago area teams won only two games. They topped that by one last week, by winning three. Translation: The Crossroads suffered a losing Friday, dropping six games.

The Forsan Buffaloes continued their winning ways, using an aerial attack to thrash Iraan 43-9.

The Colorado City Wolves got back on the winning track after a two-game dry spell by downing fellow area team Coahoma, 25-10. In another district clash and area matchup, the Sands Mustangs soundly whipped the Borden County Coyotes 62-14.

Other area teams falling to defeat were: Garden City, a 30-14 loser to Menard; Grady, losing a 58-20 decision to undefeated Midland Christian; and Stanton, being held scoreless in a 14-0 battle that went to the Crane Golden Cranes.

The Klondike Cougars missed four two-point conversion kicks and dropped a 25-24 heartbreaker to Wellman.

Here is what area coaches had to say about last Friday's games and this Friday's opponents.

Joe Bond, Borden County, on his team's loss to Sands and this week's game versus Loop. — "We really didn't play very well and Sands played a good game. We did miss Shannon (Shannon Bond, B-County's leading rusher out with a foot injury) and we don't know when he'll be back. But the foot is getting better. "We didn't have any offense, we really never did move the ball, we had only 76 yards total offense.

JOE BOND

"We scrimmaged Loop earlier this year and outscored them 3-1. They have a 6-3, 195-pound running back, David Davis, and he does a good job of blocking and running. I think they are an improved ballclub now."

Mike Mathis, Grady, on his team's loss to Midland Christian, and this week's league encounter against Dawson. — "Our kids just didn't show up. We didn't play much offensively or defensively. Midland Christian really didn't play that well. If they had, they would have beaten us badly.

"We have a chance to win against Dawson. They are a lot like us; they're small, inexperienced, and run the spread. It will be interesting to see if the kids will bounce back and get ready to play. It's homecoming and that's extra incentive to win."

Sid McCowan, Sands, on his team's domination of Borden County, and this week's battle against Wellman, considered by some as the district favorite. — "We were really worried about getting them in the right frame of mind. The boys had good mental preparation and it worked out. We approached the game about the same way we did our first one. We played better in this one. We have our squad healthy and that makes a difference.

"Wellman is the defending district champion and they are an excellent ballclub. They're quick, strong, and they execute well. We have to be consistent on offense and defense. We must be able to make the big offensive play, and not give it up on defense."

Dale Ruth, Stanton, on his team's third consecutive loss to Crane, and this week's district opener against Eldorado. "We had Steve Scurlock and Robert Jones, both of our starting halfbacks out with injuries. I wanted to hold them out so they could get ready for district.

"We didn't get much running, but we wanted to work on our passing attack, and we accomplished what we wanted even though we didn't win. We've got three good receivers that we need to get the ball to.

"Eldorado has a good, pro-set passing attack where they spread everybody out. They have a sophomore quarterback (Bradley Bass) who can throw the ball. So far we've fumbled 24 times this year and lost 14. We can't do that against Eldorado."

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on his team's win over interstate rival Coahoma, and this week's game against Brady. — "It was a game of field position. They beat us in the stats, but we had to drive the ball from 40 and 50 yards out, and they had to drive the ball from 70-80 yards. The kids played pretty well. We were on an emotional down after Ballinger the week before, and Coahoma got after us. We took over in the second half and I think our size and only playing one way had a lot to do with that.

"Brady is a veteran team, with lots of fast backs. They've been plagued by turnovers lately, though. They had seven last week against Wylie. They have lots of talent. We must execute on offense and not let their backs break the big play."

Steve Park, Coahoma, on his team's loss to C-City, and going after their first district win against Clyde. — "The six turnovers hurt us quite a bit. Then the momentum shifted late in the third quarter, and our kids never overcame it. We've really played good enough to win the last two games. We must concentrate on playing four quarters. We've lost the last two games because we haven't played all four quarters.

"Clyde is big and they run the wishbone. They come out at you and try to control the football. We'll have to play well offensively and defensively."

Jan East, Forsan, on his team's seemingly easy victory over Iraan, and this week's league opener against Ozona. — "We're getting better every week. The defense is starting to play well. The offense has been playing pretty good all year. It broke their (Iraan) back in the first quarter when they controlled the ball and had two times to get it in and couldn't. We ran only seven offensive plays in the first quarter.

JAN EAST

"We got the wind in the second and fourth quarters and threw the ball. We scored 14 points in the second quarter and 22 points in the fourth quarter.

"Ozona is young and they're trying to build for next year. They try to throw the ball some."

Sam Scott, Garden City, on his team's loss to Menard and this week's game against Eden. — "Menard is the best team we've played so far this year. Our kids didn't play that bad, we just got outclassed. Offensively we executed as well as we have all year. Penalties hurt us and we dropped some passes.

"Eden has the best football team in the district. They are big and physical. Their line averages 230 and their backs average around 200. We'll throw something at them they haven't seen. We can't line up physically with them."

Tom Ham, Klondike, on four missed conversion kicks in a one point loss to Wellman, and this week's homecoming and non-district bout against tough Midland Christian. — "I didn't realize it until after the film, but they had a bad spot from the kicking position for the extra point. We scored all our touchdowns on the south end of the field. We have a drop kicker, the ball bounced badly off the rough spot. He usually makes 80 percent of his kicks.

"Midland Christian runs the spread like Sands, who is our next district opponent. That will help us prepare for Sands. I'm glad this isn't a district game because it's hard for the kids to concentrate with everything else going on."

Championship series will pit SF pitching vs. Cards' speed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pitching and power always have dominated baseball's postseason competition. By those standards, the San Francisco Giants should rout the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League playoffs.

The Giants, bolstered by some big trades, led the major leagues in earned run average and hit twice as many homers as St. Louis. Since the start of divisional play in 1969, the club that hit more home runs during the regular season has won 26 of 36 playoff series.

The Cardinals, meanwhile, are missing their only slugger, Jack

Channel 13

7:15 p.m.

Clark's right ankle is hurting and he will be limited to pinch hitting for another week, if the series goes that long.

St. Louis will rely on its speed to overcome a loss of power. The Cardinals stole 248 bases, most in the majors and nearly double San Francisco's total. The Giants' stolen-base rate of 57 percent was the worst in baseball, but their catchers threw out more runners than any team.

These teams went different directions in the second half of the season.

The Giants finished 37-17 to win their first division championship since 1971. They began that surge with a four-game sweep in late July against the Cardinals.

St. Louis ended the season 34-35, although strong pitching in the final week helped hold off the World Series champion New York Mets and win the NL East for the third time in six years.

The Giants won seven of 12 games against St. Louis this season. They split the six games at Busch Stadium, where the best-of-seven series starts Tuesday night. Overall, the Giants have statistics on their side; the Cardinals have lots of October experience.

The position-by-position matchups:

First Base
Will Clark, Giants. Batted .308 with 35

home runs and 91 RBI in his second full season. A good fielder. Drove in nine runs in nine games against St. Louis this year.

Jack Clark, Cardinals. Hit 35 home runs with 106 RBI. Walked 19 times in 54 plate appearances against the Giants, who traded him to St. Louis in 1985. Dan Driessen, who batted .233 after being recalled from the minors Aug. 31, and Jim Lindeman will play in place of Clark.

Minus Jack Clark, a big advantage for San Francisco.

Second Base
Robby Thompson, Giants. Hit .463 with two out and runners in scoring position. Went 6-for-13 against the Cardinals.

Tom Herr, Cardinals. Steady fielder with a .263 average. Only hit .156 against San Francisco.

Thompson has the better numbers, but experience gives Herr an edge.

Shortstop
Jose Uribe, Giants. Batted .345 against the Cardinals and his strong arm could cut down typical St. Louis infield hits. Has grounded into three double plays in 794 career at-bats. Was one of four players the Giants got for Jack Clark.

Ozzie Smith, Cardinals. Added a .300 average for the first time to his unmatched fielding ability. Committed only 10 errors, matching his lowest total ever. Did not hit a homer, but had 75 RBI. Stole 43 bases and was successful on all five attempts against the Giants.

A sizable edge to the Wizard of Oz.

Third Base
Kevin Mitchell, Giants. Hit 13 of his 22 homers after being acquired from San Diego July 4. Batted .377 with runners in scoring position for San Francisco. Can be erratic in the field.

Terry Pendleton, Cardinals. Hit .335 right-handed and .259 left-handed. Batted .307 on the road and his tying home run with two out in the ninth inning at New York Sept. 11 may have been the Cardinals' biggest hit of the season. Second on the team with only 12 home runs.

Both capable of making big plays. Call it even.

Left Field
Jeffrey Leonard, Giants. Hit 19 home runs and found his stroke in the second half after missing a month with hamstring problems. Hit .340 against St. Louis. Went hitless in two straight starts only five times all season. An average fielder.

Vince Coleman, Cardinals. Led majors with 109 stolen bases, but was only three of eight against San Francisco. Batted .290, with a .343 average against the Giants. Threw out 16 runners.

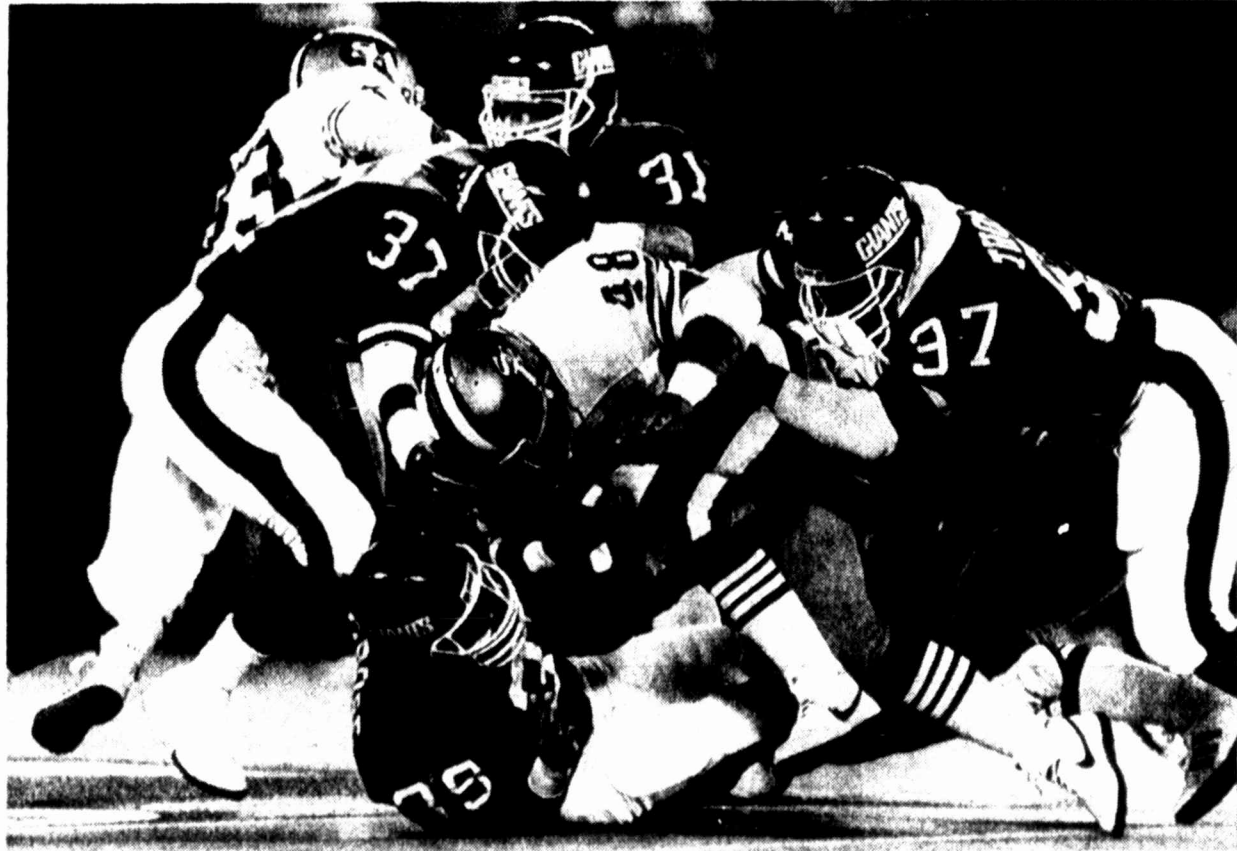

The Giants can win if Leonard does not play well. Already minus Clark, the Cardinals need Coleman to get on base and chase down balls. They do different things and their skills might balance out.

Center Field
Chili Davis, Giants. Hit 24 home runs with 76 RBI, although prone to inconsistency. Had four homers and 10 RBI in 50 at-bats against St. Louis. Eddie Milner, 0-for-13 against Cardinals this year, is better defensive fielder, especially on artificial turf of Busch Stadium.

Wille McGee, Cardinals. Drove in 105 runs and covers tremendous ground in the field. A switch-hitter, but a recent wrist injury is hurting his right-handed swing. Was St. Louis' most productive player against San Francisco, batting .365 with 11 RBI.

If healthy, McGee is better than Davis.

Right Field
Candy Maldonado, Giants. Hit .292 with 20 home runs and 85 RBI. Missed 37 games with a broken finger and had eight homers and 37 RBI in 46 games since his return. Hit .412 against St. Louis.

San Francisco 49ers Mike Varajon (48) is stopped by New York Giants defenders Pat Morrison (37), Dan DeRose (39) and Warren Thompson (97) during first half action last night in East Rutherford, N.J.

N.Y. Giants still winless

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants failed to show up again in every sense of the word, and that just made things easy for a talented San Francisco 49ers replacement team.

The striking Giants players missed their first on-field game of the season and their replacements were no match for a more experienced San Francisco team on Monday night as the 49ers defeated the winless Super Bowl champions 41-21 in a nationally televised game that proved to be a mismatch.

The 49ers came into the game with a replacement roster featuring 17 players with past NFL experience compared to just four for the Giants. In the end, the experience paid off.

San Francisco dominated every aspect of the game played before a crowd of 16,471, the smallest to see a regular-season Giants game at Giants Stadium and their first non-sellout in 87 games since the stadium opened in 1976.

The 49ers outgained New York 433 to 231 in total yardage, held the ball twice as long, forced four turnovers, blocked a punt for a touchdown and recovered an onside kick to set up one of two field goals by Jeff Brockhaus.

The Giants actually played good football for 29 minutes and held a 7-3 lead courtesy of a spectacular 46-yard touchdown pass from Jim Crocicchia to Lewis Bennett, a semipro wide receiver who had been playing with the Connecticut Yankees.

The Giants were even threatening to stretch their lead when things went sour. New York had the ball at the San Francisco 36 when Crocicchia fumbled a snap from center.

Six plays and 62 yards later, Del Rodgers dived over from the 2-yard line to give the 49ers a 10-7 lead with 50 seconds to go in the half.

Twenty-eight seconds after that the lead grew to 10 points as Matt Courtney blocked a Dana Moore punt and Mike Wells picked up the ball at the 1 and scored. That it 17-7 and the Giants were never in the game again as San Francisco raised its record to 2-1.

Walsh even lightened things up in the second half by sending out reserve quarterback Mark Stevens to run a wishbone offense.

The formation drew laughs from Giants Coach Bill Parcells, who motioned across the field to Walsh, who joined in the laughter.

The joke was on the Giants though. The wishbone worked as Stevens tossed a 39-yard touchdown pass to former NFL veteran Carl Monroe and later ran for a 9-yard score on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Besides, the Crocicchia-to-Bennett touchdown, the Giants also got two touchdown passes from backup Michael Busch. He hit Reggie McGowan on a 63-yard scoring play with nine minutes to play in the game and a 7-yard toss to Edwin Lovelady with 2:20 to go.

Bulldogs win over Bears

In Division I Little Football League action Saturday, the Coahoma Bulldogs defeated the Big Spring Bears 14-6. Chris Arguello scored both TD's for the Bulldogs. Bryan Ruiz made a two-point conversion score. Jim Coker and Ro Cervantes recovered fumbles for the Bulldogs.

Cowboys nix free agency

IRVING (AP) — The striking Dallas Cowboys have voted overwhelmingly to drop free agency as an issue in negotiations between the NFL players union and team owners.

In a 20-9 vote, striking Cowboys instructed player representative Doug Cosbie to tell Gene Upshaw, National Football League Players Association executive director, to "get off" free agency, a player who asked not be identified, said.

"Players want to see some movement in the negotiations, at least some talking," center Tom Rafferty said.

Tony Dorsett, one of six Cowboy veterans who have crossed the players union picket line to play for the Dallas substitute team, attended a meeting Monday at which the free agency vote was taken.

"The players understand," said Dorsett, who rejoined the team to protect his annuity last week. "There was no animosity."

Cosbie later flew to Chicago to meet with other player representatives and the union's executive committee. He said the striking Cowboys would meet today to discuss any new developments.

DALLAS (AP) — For years, some Oklahoma University football players netted as much as $4,000 per season from complimentary tickets that were issued to them and then sold to boosters at inflated prices, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

In a copyright story, the News also said a bank that was headed at the time by former OU president George Lynn Cross and prominent OU booster Jack E. Black gave preferential consideration to selected members of the OU squad.

The newspaper said it interviewed 22 varsity football players who have left school since 1980, and that eight said they either directly benefited from the ticket sales or were aware they existed.

Four of the players confirmed that American Exchange Bank of Norman, Okla., financed new cars without customary credit checks or co-signers, a standard requirement for minors who borrow money, the News reported.

Loan payments were scheduled as once-per-year "balloon notes," to coincide with the sales of the players' complimentary tickets, the former players said.

Black, president of American Exchange Bank before it was liquidated and sold by federal officials earlier this year, denied that student athletes were given preferential treatment.

"We did not favor the athletic people," he told The Associated Press today. "We were not asked to favor them, to my knowledge."

Black said the bank catered to students and made a lot of single-pay loans to students, with payments due in the fall after students had worked in the summer.

He said the bank made loans to students on the perceived ability to get jobs and repay, with business students getting preference.

Cross said from his home today that he is "not able to evaluate the point about athletes getting loans and repaying them in one lump sum."

"It could well have been," he said. "I was really too old to be chairman of the board at that time. I could not keep on top of things at that time."

Cross retired from the bank two years ago at age 80.

The World Series

Play Ball!

Professional baseball teams are made up of top players who play for money.
 The 26 major pro baseball teams are divided into two leagues. The American League has 14 teams. The National League has 12 teams.
 During the baseball season that begins in April, each team plays 162 games. The teams play other teams from their league only.
 Each year the winner of the American League pennant, or title, plays the winner of the National League pennant.
 This best-of-seven series is called the World Series. The first team to win four games becomes the world champion.
 Last year, the New York Mets beat the Boston Red Sox.
 Soon we will know who this year's champ will be.

Rings and Money

Each member of the team that wins the Series gets a special ring. Each also receives a lot of money. Exactly how much is decided by the amount made on the games. Last year, each New York Met got $86,254.
 The losers get money, too. Last year, each member of the Boston Red Sox got $74,985.

The MVP

The Most Valuable Player for last year's World Series was the New York Mets' Ray Knight. (He's now with the Baltimore Orioles.)
 He had nine hits during the Series. He also hit the game-winning home run in the last game of the Series.
 As the MVP, he was given a new car. He chose a van, which he gave to a handicapped group in Ohio.

Baseball Hall of Fame

The Baseball Hall of Fame is in Cooperstown, N.Y.

To be elected to the Hall of Fame, players usually have to have played major league ball for 10 years and have been retired for five.

The members are selected by the Baseball Writers Association and a Hall of Fame Committee on Veterans and Negro League players.

Lou Gehrig played from 1923 to 1939. Many consider him to be the most consistent player of all time. He played in 2,130 consecutive games.

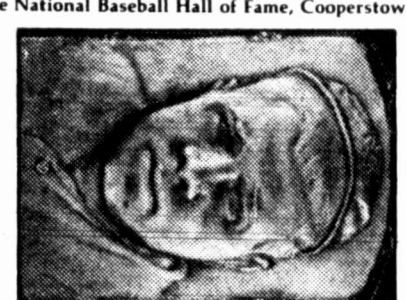

Joe DiMaggio played from 1936 to 1951. He is known as one of the greatest center fielders of all time. He played in 10 World Series.

Ted Williams played from 1939 to 1960. He is known as one of the game's greatest hitters. He had a lifetime batting average of .344.

Babe Ruth played from 1915 to 1935. He is the best known and most popular player in baseball history. One year he hit 60 home runs.

Walter Johnson played from 1907 to 1927. Many people consider him the fastest pitcher in baseball history. He recorded more than 20 wins in 12 different seasons.

Ty Cobb played from 1905 to 1928. He is considered one of the greatest hitters and base runners in history.

Stan "The Man" Musial played from 1941 to 1963. He set many league records. He hit 30 home runs during six different seasons.

Jackie Robinson played from 1947 to 1956. He was one of the most exciting players in baseball history. He was the first black in big-league baseball.

Roberto Clemente played from 1955 to 1972. He was known as a super right fielder. He was also a great hitter, with more than 3,000 hits in his career.

BB's MAGIC TRICK

Glass Switch-a-Roo Trick

You'll need: • water • six glasses

First fill three glasses and arrange as indicated below. Then say: "By moving just one glass, I can rearrange these glasses so that every other one has water in it."

- What to do:
1. Pick up glass No. 3 and pour it into glass No. 6.
  2. The same trick will work with glasses arranged this way. (Pour glass No. 2 into glass No. 5.)

Alums difficult to locate

DEAR ABBY: I do volunteer work with an alumni association at a large state university. We have a difficult time trying to locate our alums who move or change their names through marriage.

People with common names may not realize how many William Johnsons or Susan Smiths we have. A serious complication is women who give us no clue as to who they are. Who is "Mrs. K. Jones"? How much clearer it would be if she signed her name "Mrs. Karen (Adams) Jones."

We do not always want money. We would like to notify alums of reunions, travel opportunities, lectures, art exhibits, etc. Abby, please suggest that grads write to their alma maters to let former classmates know where they are and what they're doing. We really care.

LOIS HAUGERUD,
ALUMNI VOLUNTEER,
RICHFIELD, MINN.

P.S. It would be nice to include a donation to the college scholarship fund, too. The cost of education continues to climb, and public and corporate support is dropping off seriously.

DEAR LOIS: Your "P.S." may be the reason so many "alums" are hard to find. But I agree, alums should contact their alma maters in order to be notified of class reunions. And those who are well-heeled enough to send a few bucks to good old "Podunk U" for the scholarship fund should do so — and willingly.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I have been arguing about this for some time now, and I need your opinion so we can finally settle the matter.

Every time Mother stays in a motel, she looks around the bathroom for an extra roll of toilet paper, and when she finds it, she takes it home! She claims that the price of the room is so high, she is entitled to it. I personally think it is degrading. Honestly, Abby, my mother is not so hard up she has to steal toilet paper.

Am I right to assume that the toilet paper in hotel and motel rooms is there for the use of the guests during their stay — not to take home?

MRS. WIPPLE

DEAR MRS. WIPPLE: Yes, but most motel and hotel managers would gladly settle for disappearing toilet paper. Guests have been known to steal pictures, lamps, carpets, draperies, pillows, bedspreads, furniture and anything else that isn't nailed down. Some even try to steal away without paying for the room.

DEAR ABBY: I've been friends with "Violet" for a long time. We work together. I was thrilled when she asked me to be a bridesmaid. I helped her select the bridesmaids' dresses and also helped her plan her wedding. When I received my invitation, I learned that I was expected to come without my fiancé. I thought it was an oversight because Violet knows I have a fiancé, so I mentioned it. She said she was sorry but nobody could invite an escort because she couldn't afford to have extra people. It's to be a catered affair. I tried to explain that I really wanted my fiancé to be there. I even offered to pay for his dinner in advance. She said no.

I told her if she couldn't let my fiancé come, I couldn't be in her wedding party. Well, I dropped out, and now we aren't friends anymore.

Was I wrong, or was she? Can you figure out why she refused to have my fiancé at her wedding? I sure can't.

FEELS TERRIBLE,
STATEN ISLAND

DEAR FEELS TERRIBLE: She was wrong. It's possible that she couldn't afford the extra dinner, but since you offered to pay for it and she refused, I would conclude that she didn't want your fiancé at her wedding.

(For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Names in the news

Bangor, Maine to watch Letterman

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — When comedian David Letterman began poking fun at this northern Maine city for not watching his irreverent late-night talk show, Bangor residents decided they wouldn't lose any sleep over it.

Well, maybe one night's sleep. Bangor folk are threatening to stay up late en masse to watch "Late Night With David Letterman," which airs at 12:30 a.m. EDT from New York.

"We're trying to ... come up with possible ideas on how we may be able to get the entire greater Bangor area ... to stay up for one night," Margo Cobb, general manager at WLWZ-TV, said Thursday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grammy-award winning singer Kim Carnes says she wants to leave Los Angeles and come to Nashville to record her next album.

"I can't do another album here. I've tried and finally stopped," Ms. Carnes said in an interview from her Los Angeles home this week.

The singer, who wrote the Ronnie Milsap-Kenny Rogers duet "Make No Mistake She's Mine" now at the top of the country charts, is best known for such rock hits as "Bette Davis Eyes," which won the 1981 Grammy award for record of the year, "Crazy In the Night" and "More Love."

DAVID LETTERMAN

"The only way I get a thrill out of recording is to record live as opposed to running everything through a computer."

KIM CARNES

She said she plans to come to Nashville sometime next month.
