CLARA PHILLIPS KIDNAPED, SHE SAYS

TAX ON REFINED OIL PRODUCTS IS VOTED IN HOUSE

Two Other Revenue Bills Also Passed By Lower Branch

FLOOD CONTROL IS CUT

$311,000 Trimmed From Reclamation Measure By Bonham Bill

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 30.—The Patman bill levying a gross receipts tax on refined petroleum products together with two other revenue measures and the Bonham-Price bill reducing by $311,000 the reclamation and flood control appropriation, were passed finally by the house late today.

Slight Discussion

Little discussion was had on any of the measures passed. Vote on the Patman bill was 63 to 41. The bill levies a one-half per cent tax. Vote on the Bonham bill was 75 to 23.

Two bills by Baldwin, levying occupation taxes on the theatrical companies, moving picture houses and circuses were passed. The theatrical bill was amended so as to include an occupation tax on motion picture establishments ranging from $5 to $75 according to population of towns. The circus tax is placed at $4 per car per day.

Pope Bill Debated

The Darwin senate bill re-appropriating funds for pink boll weevil control work was passed to third reading.

Considerable time was spent debating the Pope resolution which would request the governor to return the departmental appropriation bill for further consideration on grounds that it makes double allotments for each department. Representative Satterwhite stated there was no need for recalling the bill for the governor intends to send it back with his veto tomorrow.

The resolution was finally postponed.

SENATE PASSES BILL

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 30.—One bill of minor importance was passed by the senate today—the Cable bill prescribing methods for remitting taxes. This is the third to go to final passage in both houses this session, the other two being the per diem and contingent expense bills.

The Culp telephone tax bill was taken up again, but postponed to permit investigation of the tax scale proposed. The educational appropriation bill, with the 10 per cent reduction proposed by the finance committee, came up but was postponed until tomorrow, as was the rural aid bill. Under the rural aid measure, as reported, the appropriations are placed at $1,000,000 a year instead of $2,000,000 as passed during the last session.

The Coffee gross oil production bill was up for a short time, but adjournment was taken before it was voted on.

Members who agreed to vote for 2¼ per cent under the joint program committee's recommendations are not expected to vote for this increase, which probably will defeat the measure.

Senator Rice introduced a bill proposing $60 anual tuition fee from students of the State University, A. & M. college, and Technological college, and $30 for other state schools.

THE WEATHER

West Texas: Thursday and Friday partly cloudy.

Oklahoma: Thursday and Friday partly cloudy; probably scattered thunder showers.

East Texas: Thursday and Friday partly cloudy, probably thunder showers in northeast portion.

THE DAY IN WICHITA FALLS

The storm period seemed to have been broken yesterday and the sun shone all day without a hint of a cloud. The minimum temperature was at 6 a. m. when the thermometer showed 75 degrees, while the hottest point was at 4:30 in the afternoon, when the mercury tipped to 102 degrees. The 102 degree mark is the highest recorded in sevral days.

DYING MAN REVEALS ROMANCE

Leader of Gold Hunt Trailed Love South

Associated Press Dispatch

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 30.—Told that he was dying from a broken neck and fractured spine, received in an automobile accident, "J. W. Devinny" today disclosed that his real name is Michael Dineen, that he was one of the founders of the town of Valdez, Alaska, and a leader in the gold rush in the Yukon in 1898, according to friends summoned to the bedside of the injured man and into his story was woven a romance which culminated in his marriage in Detroit to a southern woman whose picture in a paper which found its way into the gold fields attracted "Devinney" or Dineen to the south after he amassed a fortune in Alaska.

Dineen 63 years old, Mrs. George Waggener and her son, Mark Waggener, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding overturned yesterday near Marion, Ark.

Dineen's story, according to an account made public, began in 1898, when he left Washington as a leader in the dash into the Alaskan gold fields.

He came south 15 years later, but found that the woman whose picture caught his eye had been married. Later she was granted a divorce and went to Detroit where they were married. Soon after the marriage Mrs. Dineen returned to Tennessee and later moved to Ocean Springs, Miss., according to the story credited to Dineen. When Dineen came south again, it is related, he learned that his wife had entered suit for divorce, but later it was withdrawn.

Now, a suit entered by Dineen for settlement of $9,000 in notes on property which Dineen claims he caused to be turned over to Mrs. Dineen is pending in chancery court here.

$103 Contributed First Day to Record News Ice And Milk Fund for Babes

'Pa' and 'Ma' Burdick Will Have Charge of Distribution to Poor

The first day's donations to the Record News milk and ice fund began to come in early yesterday morning following the announcement that the fund was open, with the result that at the close of the day "Pa" and "Ma" Burdick had in their hands $103 with which to purchase milk and ice for the poor this summer. Donations are still coming in and it is thought that yesterday's record will be broken before another day passes.

The fund started by the Record News is for popular subscription to a cash fund which will be used to relieve suffering among those who are not able to supply themselves with milk and ice during the hot summer months. All donations will be acknowledged through the columns of the Record News, and all money turned directly into the hands of "Pa" and "Ma" Burdick, who being daily in touch with the needy and destitute, can place the money where it will do the most good.

None of the money will be given in cash to the poor but will be used solely to supply milk and ice, which will be distributed through the Salvation Army.

Last year several hundred dollars was collected by the Record News and used through the Salvation Army to relieve conditions among those in destitute circumstances.

Those who have subscribed:

Cash	$40.00
C. B. Clement	1.00
Cash	1.00
Mrs. J. D. Brooks	1.00
Cash	60.00

KNIGHTS COLUMBUS REMOVE WREATH TO KU KLUX KLAN

Associated Press Dispatch

BROOKLYN, May 30. — A wreath, bearing the inscription "In memoriam from the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan," was today removed from a war memorial monument by a man said to be a member of the Knights of Columbus delegation in the Memorial day parade.

The ku klux Klan offering had been placed in position some time before daylight, it was said.

"Never in the history of this country have we followed a mask and I defy them to come out in the open," said Surrogate Howell, the principal speaker in an address, following the incident.

MAN MURDERER SHOT LIKE DOG

"Bad Leo" Goes To Death As He Steps Out Of Hiding Place

Associated Press Dispatch

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 30.—Leo Rogers, fugitive man killer, was shot and killed by a posse tonight.

Killing of Rogers came as the climax to one of the most dramatic man hunts this territory has ever experienced.

"Bad Leo" brought down two of his pursuers and wounded another before he himself was dropped by a bullet. He shot Detective Fred Lefebvre shortly after his sensational escape and today sent a bullet through the heart of Sergeant John Urquhart of the provincial police, a member of a party that surprised the gun man in his father's home.

The escaped desperado emerged from the bush about eight miles from Nipishing late this afternoon long enough to be brought down by a bullet from a member of Inspector Storey's party, which with several other groups had been hunting Rogers since his escape from crowded court room with a flourish of a card-board pistol.

Rogers was shot by Inspector Storey as the desperado was washing his hands in a small lake near Nipishing.

Rogers was seen rowing down the lake in a small boat by Allen Johnson, a farmer, who called the constables. It was reported Leo was caught unawares and had no opportunity to answer Inspector Storey's fire.

Wounded, "Bad Leo," fell to the ground and members of the inspector's party, which numbered eleven, were reported to have sent bullet after bullet into the body of the man who had killed two of their comrades.

FIRE AT ORANGE

Associated Press Dispatch

ORANGE, Texas, May 30.—The Lutcher & Moore lumber company, one of the largest lumber manufacturers in Texas, sustained fire loss of $25,000 to $30,000 tonight when the housing covering a batery of four boilers caught fire. The plant will be idle for some time.

Hail Does Damage To Crops South Of Chillicothe

Special Dispatch to Record News

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, May 30.—Doing great damage to crops, and some property damage, a heavy hail storm hit south of Chillicothe late Tuesday evening. It is reported from rural districts that all crops in the district hit by the storm will have to be replanted, having been ruined by the hail.

In several places houses were blown from their foundation blocks by the high wind, but in no case was serious damage reported. However, at Tolbert three calves on the Page farm were killed by the large hailstones.

Outside the hail district, rain fell heavily, being of great benefit to the crops, which were suffering from lack of moisture. While farmers in the Chillicothe district are replanting their cotton for the fifth time, those in the neighboring fields are rejoicing at the rain.

Kiwanis Pledge to Support Effort To Real Peace

Associated Press Dispatch

ATLANTA, Ga., May 30.—Kiwanians were pledged to support any constructive movement toward permanent peace, the observance of Mothers day and to give aid to disabled veterans of the World war, in resolutions adopted late today by the national convention of Kiwanis Clubs International.

The resolution on peace as adopted declared:

"That Kiwanis International hereby pledges its support to any carefully conceived effort or movement toward permanent peace which gives promise of the maximum possibility of success with a minimum probability of militaristic procedure involving the respective governments of the United States and the Dominion of Canada."

BOY IS SOUGHT AFTER MAN DIES

Oklahoman Shot While He Leaves Home Of Student's Cousin

Associated Press Dispatch

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 30.—A coroner's inquest, which was to have been held today in connection with an investigation of the killing Monday night of Angelo C. Cotti, Haleyville, Okla., was ordered postponed pending further developments while the police conducted a search for James Boswell, a high school student.

Ciotti was shot as he was leaving the home here of Mis Nora Grissom, cousin of Boswell, and of whom, the police say, Bcswell was jealous. A revolver, identified as belonging to the youth, was found in the vicinity of the shooting and ballistic experts to be the weapon from which the fatal shots were fired.

Daugherty's Aide And Friend Ends Life With Pistol

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Jesse W. Smith, well known in the inner circle of official Washington as the intimate associate and trusted political lieutenant of Attorney General Daugherty, shot and killed himself today in the hotel apartment occupied by him and the attorney general in common for the past two years.

The dead man left behind no word of explanation, but his friends expressed the belief that it was worry over ill health which led him to end his life. For some time he had suffered from a kidney disorder, and although outwardly he had appeared active and cheerful, he had told his physician he feared there was no cure for him.

Attorney General Daugherty, who had spent last night at the White House, was not told of the tragedy at once because of a fear that the shock might react seriously on his health. When he learned of his friend's death, Mr. Daugherty expressed surprise. His grief was evident.

Mr. Smith played golf yesterday with the attorney general and several other friends. Later he complained of fatigue but gave no other indication of physical distress. After dining in his apartment with Warren F. Martin, special assistant to the attorney general he retired at 9 p. m.

BLIND WIDOW FOUND DEAD AND ROBBED

International News Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 30.—Mrs. Anna Lee, 56 years old, a widow and blind, was found strangled to death and robbed in her home here early today. The body was found by her son, William, 17, on his return from work at a newspaper plant.

The young man found his mother on a bed. Unable to arouse her, he notified a policeman, who summoned an ambulance. At the hospital it was decided she died of natural causes. Later, however, the police found a quarter-inch cord tightly drawn around Mrs. Lee's neck and a bruise on the side of her head. The motive for the slaying, according to the first police theory, was robbery.

SHERIFF WOUNDED IN BOOZE RAID

Associated Press Dispatch

TERRELL, Texas, May 30.—The sheriff of Kaufman county, Virge Rutledge, received a buckshot wound in the left leg late today when he and three deputies attempted to raid a whisky still near Blackjack, about 12 miles southeast of Terrell. Physicians tonight advised they did not consider his condition serious.

Several posses were pursuing the moonshiners tonight.

11-YEAR-OLD BOY DIES.

International News Dispatch

Robert Marcel Huff, 11, died at the home of his father, 1408 Eighth street Monday morning. The body will be buried Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. Rev. J. W. Loving will have charge of the services and interment will be in Rosemont cemetery.

HARDING PRAYS THAT WARS WILL NOT BE LIKELY

President Faces Slopes Of Sleeping Heroes At Arlington

"LET S HAVE NO WAR"

But If It Comes "We Shall Draft Every Resource For It"

(Text of Harding Address on Pg. 2.)

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Standing in Arlington Memorial amphitheater, and facing the wooded slopes where rest thousands of the war dead of the nation, President Harding today uttered a prayer that the United States "do its full part to make war unlikely if not impossible."

"We have already proven that we can have less of armament," the president continued, "and let us strike from the assurance that we shall have none of war."

Should War Come Again.

Scarcely had the applause from those assembled in the great national cemetery for the annual memorial day exercises died away, when the chief executive coupled with his prayer the hope that "should war come to America we will not alone call to service the youth of the land * * * * but we will draft every resource, every activity, all of wealth, and make common cause of the nation's preservation."

Several minutes passed before the applause which greeted this pronouncement allowed Mr. Harding to continue and then he asserted:

"It will be a more grateful nation which consecrates all to a common cause, and there will be more to share the gratitude bestowed. Moreover, there will be a finer conscience in our war commitments and that sublimity of spirit which makes a people invincible."

Mrs. Harding Present.

The prayer and the hope were the high points in the president's address, delivered at exercises which in their impressiveness and spirit had a similarity to ceremonies today in many parts of the land. The president was accompanied to Arlington by Mrs. Harding, who sat in a box to his left during the exercises. Gathered in the marble amphitheater were a scattering of survivors of the civil war, hundreds of veterans of the war with Spain and many more of those who participated in the world war, including their commander-in-chief, General Pershing.

FRANCE PAYS HOMAGE TO AMERICAN DEAD

Associated Press Dispatch

PARIS, May 30.—France today honored the American dead buried on her soil. A battle memorial was dedicated in the American church of the Holy Trinity here in the presence of a distinguished company, including Premier Poincare and Marshal Foch, with the principal address delivered by Ambassador Herrick, who read an appreciative letter from President Harding.

In Surresnes cemetery, impressive ceremonies were held, Marshal Fayolle of France extolling the achievements of the American boys in the great conflict. Ambassador Herrick responded with thanks to France for her spontaneous tributes, and the services closed with the consecration of the cemetery to the memory of the American dead. In the other cemeteries in France, where lie the bodies of American soldier dead, Memorial day exercises also were held.

Ruhr Again Quiet And Industries Re-Open Monday

Associated Press Dispatch

DUESSELDORF, May 30. — The Ruhr valley industries, which were closed down by the strike of nearly 500,000 workers, are expected to be running again next week. Thousands of men resumed work today operating the pumps in the mines and getting the boilers and furnaces ready and the machinery running in the metal works. The bulk of the workers, it is understood, will be ready to resume their labors when the plants are in running order again.

The violent movement of the workers, led by communists, seemed suddenly to have collapsed at the sight of a few imported policemen.

ANOTHER HAMMER WOMAN ON TRIAL

Associated Press Dispatch

HENDERSON, Ky., May 30.—Throughout a full day's session in Henderson circuit court a crowd that taxed the capacity of the courtroom braved the discomfort of heat and crowded seats today to hear the testimony in the trial of Mrs. Lucile Noffsinger—the woman in Henderson's sensational "hammer murder" case. Women were in the majority.

Mrs. Noffsinger is charged with willful murder in connection with the death of her husband, Gus Noffsinger, whose skull was crushed by blows from a miner's hammer at his home here on the eighth of December, last.

Rum Runners Laugh At Federal Sleuth's Weak Attempt To Jail Them

GIRLS FIRED IN BOOZE SCANDAL

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, May 30.—Investigation of an alleged plot to release thousands of gallons of liquor from federal warehouses through bogus withdrawal permits, said by prohibition officials to have been uncovered with the arrest of Attorney John K. Monahan, a former prohibition office employe, already has caused the suspension of six employes, some of them girls, and may reach "higher-ups," according to Assistant District Attorney Joseph J. Merensky.

MOVE TO CLOSE SESSION LOSES

House Postpones Plans Of Joint "Steering" Committee

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 30.—Plans to end the present legislative session this week were shattered this afternoon when the house by a vote of 61 to 30, postponed indefinitely the joint "steering" committee's proposals. Following this action, consideration of the report was held to be out of order in the senate since it had been defeated in the house.

A lenthy explanation of the report was made by Representative Bell of Coryell county who urged its adoption as a means of ending the session this week. Representative Patman of Cass county, spoke against the report, declaring the schools were not assured a minimum per capita allotment of $13 under the proposals. Education of the emergency and rural aid school appropriations was the chief opposition of house members to the recommendations.

As a result of failures of the houses to adopt the report, Governor Neff will send vetoes to the legislature on a majority of the general appropriation bills now before him, committee members said after a conference with the chief executive.

In preparation for the vetoes, the senate finance committee tonight was completing its work of reducing educational appropriations 10 per cent as ordered yesterday. It is expected today's action will prolong the present session to the thirty-day maximum.

Little Old Lady In Black Kneels To Unknown Hero

International News Dispatch

ARLINGTON, Va., May 30.—Though the president of the republic and thousands of his "buddies" paid homage at the tomb of the "unknown soldier" today, a little old lady in black—one of his 300 gold-star mothers—was the first to worship at the shrine.

In the early morn, while gray skies scowled overhead, she came on lonely vigil to bring the nameles one a little gift of posies. Their petals were withered and their stems crushed. But she laid the gift on the broad, white marble of his tomb with all the dignity of a monarch.

While the honor guard stood at attention, the unknown's "mother" dropped to her knees in silent prayer. A minute later she hurried away, sobbing in a torrent of tears.

During the day, the president, American Legion officials, high army officers and patriotic orders laid huge floral wreaths on the grave, but the posies kept their place of honor—for they were the gift of his mother.

QUIET IN DRESDEN

Associated Press Dispatch

BERLIN, May 30.—Today was one of calm in Dresden, where demonstrations of unemployed had caused disquietude recently except for one minor collision this morning between the police and demonstrating laborers, according to special dispatches to the Berlin newspaper and semi-official Dresden advices. This morning's disturbance is said to have resulted in no casualties. The shops have been reopened and the markets again are functioning.

WITNESSES INVITED IN LOBBY PROBE

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 30.—The house lobby investigation committee today invited persons throughout the state to appear before it and offer testimony of corruption or unlawful actions of lobbyists charged recently by Hull Youngblood, San Antonio. In a statement, the committee announced that it has concluded testimony of those it had hubpoenaed, and asked to appear before it. Recommendations will be reported within a short time it was stated.

"Sink Bootlegger's Craft by Gunfire If You Want to Put End to Smuggling."

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, May 30.—Rum running is going on on the Detroit river and virtually is immune, according to an interview published today by the Chicago Daily News, and obtained by a staff writer from C. L. Porterfield, prohibition director for the tenth district, including Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Under a Toledo date line the writer asserted that Director Porterfield said his forces had only one boat fit for service, that co-operation between municipal, county, state and government officials had been only sporadic and prohibition law violations have seemed to find sympathy from those in authority.

An armed boat and possibly the sinking of a rum craft by gunfire might have some wholesome effect, the director was quoted as saying.

Once the prohibition forces with their only available boat cruised past Ecorse, Mich., the village where smugglers operate on a wholesale scale, according to recent published statements, but the boat broke down amid the derisive laughs of the rum crowd and there was reason to believe that the craft which towed in the disabled "dry" boat was itself a law violating vessel.

Smugglers Entertained

"The Detroit river is not closed, I know, you know, and any sane man who is conversant with the facts knows that it is not," Director Porterfield was quoted as saying. "I contend that the time has come to face the facts and not try to work a confidence game on ourselves and the public.

"We have one boat on the Detroit river today that is fit for service and that would not stand up to protracted action. Three or four days ago I was in Detroit. We cruised down the river past Ecorse. The rum scouts ran around us, waved their hands at us, laughed at us, and from the Ecorse shore line the rum smugglers were lined up as if to view a parade.

Rum Scouts Tow Them In

"Before we finished the trip our ship broke down and one of the boats on the river—I'm reasonably certain that it was one of the rum scouts—towed us to the docks.

"I am convinced that if we had boat crews enough to maintain a two-boat patrol 24 hours a day for a month, there would not be a single shipment put over the river.

"I have stressed this situation in reports to Washington, written, telegraphed and verbal reports, the latter delivered in person.

Co-Operation Needed

"It is my personal belief that an armed boat and perhaps the sinking of some of rum fleet by gun-fire might have a lasting effect for good.

"Another thing that would be effective would be some sort of a working agreement between the Detroit city police, the Wayne county sheriff's office, the Michigan state constabulary and the government forces. Some more or less sporadic attempts at this have been made, not one with lasting results.

"Still another thing is the out and out sympathy toward the wets that prevails in Detroit.

"I agree that the present situation is farcial, but I do not see much hope of betterment of conditions unless there is a wide campaign of publicity to put the real facts before the public, steps taken, if necessary, to re-organize and go after the prohibition violators in an energetic manner."

CROKER APPEAL IN WILL LOSES

DUBLIN, May 30.—The appellate court today dismissed the appeal of Richard Croker Jr., to set aside the will of his late father, the former leader of Tammany Hall in New York City.

The court held that the lower trial court must decide the charge that the elder Croker's marriage to his second wife, Bula Edmondson Croker, was illegal.

Richard Croker Sr., left his estate to his wife. The children of his first marriage then brought suit, claiming that Miss Edmondson had a husband from whom she was never divorced when she married Croker.

WOMAN SLAYER DENIES GETTING OUT OF PRISON

"Tiger Murdress" Declares She Can Prove Assertion To Woolwine

HUSBAND TO RESCUE

He Would Serve Wife's Sentence "If Worst Came To Worst"

Associated Press Dispatch

HOUSTON, Texas, May 30.—"I did not break jail in Los Angeles; I was kidnaped, and I can prove it to the satisfaction of District Attorney Woolwine."

Clara Phillips, Los Angeles "tiger woman," made this statement to newspaper men tonight as the Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited roared its way between Beaumont and Houston. It was evoked by a telegram from Mr. Woolwine, saying Mrs. Phillips had, by breaking jail following her sentence for the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, automoticnlly shut herself off from further appeal.

According to the prisoner's story, Jesse Carsen came to her cell in the Los Angeles jail and sawed the bars. Then, when she objected to fleeing with him, he pointed a revolver at her and told her she had to leave with him, that it was "the only way to right an injustice.'

Armour Phillips, husband of the international fugitive, surprised his relatives by turning up here today. He left by automobile in the afternoon, planning to board the train at Beaumont, but a search by officers failed to locate him in any of the coaches.

"If the worst comes and Clara is not granted a new trial, I am going to ask the authorities to let me serve her sentence, even if it means death," he had written his mother, Mrs. Dan W. Phillips, at Galveston.

"Wonderful Wife"

"Let people criticize us, if they must," the letter continued. "We are doing our duty to Clara, because we feel she is the victim of unfortunate circumstances, and we know that she is innocent. She has always been a wonderful wife, and I am proud that I have been faithful to her during her trouble. I love her all the more because she has been so brave.'

Throughout the two-hour trip from Beaumont to Houston, Mrs. Phillips talked with animation to officers and newspaper men. Only in periods of silence did she give signs of worry, forcing a slight quiver of her lips set with a smile.

Dressed quietly in a blue traveling suit, with a blue motor veil wound turban-fashion about her head, she resembled more a summer tourist than the woman accused of a crime.

The trip by rail from New Orleans was uneventful, with the exception of excitement at all stations along the route, where large crowds gathered with hopes of seeing the famous fugitive. All of these were disappointed except at Houston. When the train arrived here, Mrs. Phillips pressed her face to the car window endeavoring to find her mother-in-law, who came from Galveston with her. Crowds recognized the woman and several hundred persons jammed against the steel side of the sleeping car for a view.

Clara's mother-in-law, brother and step-father met her at the station. Officers refused to let Cara leave her special compartment but her relatives were allowed to step inside and speak with her. The Los Angeles officers permitted only persons sanctioned by the Harris county sheriff in the private room.

Officers say the prisoner would be taken directly to the San Quentin penitentiary. The party will reach Los Angeles Friday night.

SAYS SHE RATHER DIE THAN GO TO PRISON

International News Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 30.—Clara Phillips, the "hammer murderess," was smuggled aboard the Sunset Limited of the Southern Pacific at 11:45 a. m., today. Under heavy guard of detectives and police in automobiles and a patrol wagon, the "tiger woman" was hurried from the parish prison to the Union sta-

Man Tells of Investing $10,000 In Oil Company and Reaping Nothing

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, May 30.—He invested approximately $10,000 in the three promotion companies of the General Lee interests, expecting to receive six for one within 30 days, but for which he received nothing, L. C. Smith, of Williamsport, Pa., testified, in the trial of the Lee interests defendants here today.

Another witness, Fred Bersitsebolt of Millstadt, Ill., also told from the witness stand how he invested $1,100 in the third Lee company, the General Lee Development interest, expecting to receive six for one in 30 days, but for which he received nothing.

Numerous other witnesses put on the stand by the government testified hoy they had invested lesser amounts in the General Lee companies on promises of big dividends, and for which they received nothing.

These witnesses included the Rev. M. H. Clifford of Oshkosh, Wis., who invested $70, Joseph W. Buckley of Chelsea, Mass., who invested $500; S. H. Kickland of Brunswick, Ga., who invested $1,000 and J. J. Mahoney of Barkburnett, Texas, who invested $500.

Through the testimony of the witnesses, David Cahill, United States attorney general, conducting the government's case, pictured the operations of the three deefndants, Charles Scherwin, H. H. Schwarz and "General" Robert A. Lee, in their alleged conspiracy to defraud the public through the United States mails.

RAIN AND HAIL IN WILBARGER

Lightning Strikes Church At Tolbert, But Rain Puts Fire Out

Special Dispatch to Record News

VERNON, May 30.—Rain and hail fell over various parts of Wilbarger county during the past few days, but very little damage has been reported. The damage done by the hail has been overcome by the rain in most localities.

At Tolbert last night lightning struck the Methodist church, and it started to blaze, but the heavy rain put out the fire and little damage was done.

WHEAT HARVESTING STARTS

VERNON, May 30.—Wheat harvesting has started in Wilbarger county this week, and next week harvesting will be in full swing in most sections of the county.

County Farm Agent P. D. Chaney said today it is impossible to ascertain, at this time, what the wheat yield will be, but indications are that there will be a fairly good crop in most sections of the county.

Cotton and corn are reported to be doing nicely in various sections of the county. Some farmers had to replant their cotton, on account of heavy rains that washed up the seed from the first planting.

MILL IS RAZED

VERNON, May 30.—The original Kell mill, erected here more than 30 years ago, which has been succeeded by one of the most modern milling plants in the West, is being torn away to make room for a new warehouse at the present mill. The old mill was the one which first turned out the Belle of Vernon flour, which has made the name of Vernon known in every country of South America, in the West Indies, in Mexico and in many parts of the United States.

GIRLS TO CAMP

VERNON, May 30.—More than 100 Wilbarger county club girls will gather in Allingham park, this city, June 14 and 15, for their annual encampment and school of instruction in various arts. The school will be under the direction of Miss Enis Goodfellow, home demonstration agent.

A regular program will be carried out at the camp, and special instruction will be given in making paper hats, making beads, making flowers and in culling poultry. The girls will be given a swimming party and other entertainment.

BOOSTERS TO MEET

VERNON, June 30 on Thursday night of this week the Vernon boosters who attended the Plainview convention last year and the San Angelo convention this year will meet to organize a King Tut club to boost up a solid trainload of Vernon business men for the Brownwood convention next year. A uniformed band will be taken to the convention.

As one feature of the Chamber of Commerce activity here, chamber of commerce week will be observed, starting next Monday. There will be a banquet Monday night, and during the week there will be various gatherings and programs. Capt. C. S. Nusbaum, well-known community organizer, will be in charge of the program.

SOCRATES A MUTT.

"We're a nation of dumbells, a Chicago professor moans. To back himself up, he points to the intelligence tests conducted in the army during the war, "which show that only 12 percent are of superior or very superior intelligence, while 24 percent are very dull, feeble-minded or on the border line. These tests present an accurate sample of the adult male mind." Rot! These "intelligence tests" are 95 per cent bunc. They are based on a false premise, that alertness (fast thinking) is real intelligence. Socrates, slow thinker, couldn't pass a modern "intelligence test."

DECORATION DAY.

Decoration day has passed, and the graves of the northern and southern soldiers have been duly flower strewn, as is meet and fitting. The valor of the north has been told on a thousand rostrums, and the courage of the south has been related from ten hundred platforms. Battles have been fought again, and redoubts retaken. Much has been said of brotherly love and the bridging of the chasm. The Blue has marched abreast to the common meeting place, and the Gray has marched abreast, and they have met and shaken hands and said the war is over. There can be no such thing as a union of the Blue and the Gray. When you pronounce the words you form the bar that separates them. The Blue is one thing and the Gray is another. There should be no more Blue and no more Gray. If a tribute is to be paid to the heroes on either side whom we wish to keep in remembrance, it should be made by American citizens, not divided by the colors of their garments. There is no need to march by grand armies, by camps or by posts. If there is to be a shaking of hands, let it be done by one citizen of the United States with another. The Gray and Blue are things of the past. In the innermost hearts, in the still quick memories of the south, the Gray will always live, but it shouts live as in a shrine, hallowed and hidden from pomp and display. As citizens of a common country, we of the south offer our hands to citizens of the north in peace and fellowship, but we do not mingle the Gray with the Blue.

Summer School At Graham Will Run Eight Weeks

Special Dispatch to Record News

GRAHAM, May 30.—Announcement has been made by Superintendent H. B. Cogdell that a summer school of eight weeks duration will be held at the high school building, beginning June 4. Classes will be maintained from the fourth grade on up through the eleventh grade.

Guy T. Newton, principal of the high school at the regular session will have charge of the school as Mr Cogdell will be away for the summer. Other teachers are Mr. Stanley H. Peavey, Miss Lillie B. Pate, and Miss Kate Waddell for the regular literary branches and Miss Manette Wilson for the commercial subjects.

Not enough funds are in the school treasury for the financing for the school. For this reason, tuition will be charged, payable in advance and to include the entire eight-weeks session. A charge of $10 is made for grade work, and in the high school division, $12.50 for one subject and $17.50 for two subjects.

Harding Pays Tribute to Dead And Voices Duty of America in Speech At Arlington Memorial Exercises

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 30.—President Harding, speaking at Memorial day exercises at Arlington, where more than 50,000 of the nation's dead forever sleep, declared the United States had proven there could be "less of armament" and should now strive for the assurance that there shall be "less of war."

"We must do the things which rational thinking leads us to believe will tend to render war less likely," the president said. "If we ever have the insanity to make conflict among ourselves, we shall deserve to sacrifice. But that must never be. Searching our own souls, believing in our own good intent, we can see no cloud on the horizon. We are thinking of no war for us anywhere. But there was no cloud for us in 1914—and yet we were drawn into the cataclysm of all wars.

Our Duty to Help Others

"It is not enough to seek assurance for ourselves. I believe it a God-given duty to give of our influence to establish the ways of peace throughout the world. We cannot guarantee, but we can promote the peaceful adjustment of disputes; we can aid in the establishment of the agencies of peace; we can be influential in committing the world to the triumphs of peace and make hateful to humankind the spoils of war."

The president declared there was a world relationship which the United States could not and would not choose to avoid if it followed in the spirit of its founders.

"But there is one thing which we may do among ourselves alone," the president said, "to make our own participation less likely and banish much of war's hatefulness if national honor must call us to arms. . . . In our fuller understanding of today, in that exalted consciousness that every citizen has his duty to perform, and that his means, his honor and his life are his country's in a time of national peril, in the next war, if conflict ever comes again, we will not alone call to service the youth of the land, . . . but we will draft every research, every activity, all of wealth, and make common cause of the nation's preservation."

President Pays Tribute

The president paid tribute to those who fell in all the wars waged by the United States, saying it little mattered in what war an American fell, since "the supreme offering of life on the altar of American patriotism was the same for everyone."

"I spoke a moment ago," he continued," of the deeper gratitude expressed in action. My thought was not of compensations or of pensions or of the government's care for the disabled. These are obligations, and their discharge is a duty. There can be no gratitude of action, which is a still finer and nobler thing.

"There is another gratitude of action which surpasses all expressed in the others, which I hope to be recorded to glorify the last days of the Civil war veterans and to add fullness to the lives of the World war veterans and tranquillize the lives of all America and the world. I devoutly wish the United States to do its full part toward making war unlikely, if not impossible. While I would abhor a pacifist America, I would rejoice to have the United States proven to be unafraid and yet the most peace-loving and the foremost peace-promoting nation in all the world.

"There comes into the lives of each and every one of us some time a picture never to be effaced from memory. Veterans in the service have seen the suffering and sacrifices, and the thrilling heroisms which are never visible except to those engaged in conflict. I have tried to visualize the carnage and conflict and the horrors and suffering of war, softened by the comradry of camp and the less perilous adventures of march and field, but I came to understand how imagination had failed me when I stood at Hoboken pier among 5,000 dead, in their flag-draped coffins, two years ago. Here was death in war's unheeding allotment, corridors of sorrow and sacrifice so far as the eye could see, and grief that no human soul could appraise. Under the spell of the great sorrow which gripped my heart, I said then, and repeat now: 'It must not be again! It must not be again!'

"But the saving is not enough. We must do the things which rational thinking leads us to believe will tend to render war less likely. . . .

"In all the wars of all time, the conscienceousless profiteer has put the black blot of greed upon righteous sacrifice and highly purposed conflict. In our fuller understanding of today, in that exalted consciousness that every citizen has his duty to perform, and that his means, his honor and his life are his country's in a time of national peril, in the next war, if conflict ever comes again, we will not alone call to service the youth of the land—which has in the main fought all our wars, but we will draft every resource, every activity, all of wealth, and make common cause of the nation's preservation. God grant that no conflict will come again, but if it does it shall be without profit to the non-combatant participants, except as they share in the triumphs of the nation.

"It will be a more grateful nation which consecrates all to a common cause, and there will be more to share the gratitude bestowed. More, there will be a finer conscience in our war commitments, and that sublimity of spirit which makes a people invincible."

Commission Man Would Purchase Piggly Wigglys

Harry H. Field.

Harry H. Field, wealthy Chicago commission merchant, has offered to take over the 97 Piggly-Wiggly stores which have been appraised at $1,500,000 following the announcement of Clarence Saunders that they were for sale. Field was formerly a vice-president of the Piggly-Wiggly concern under Saunders.

SECOND FIRE IN THREE DAYS AT LAKE ROAD STORE

Fire again broke out at noon yesterday in the shell of the building formerly occupied by the Wilson Grocery store and the Lake Drive Pharmacy, in the factory district, necessitating the calling of the fire department. Prior to the arrival of a truck from the Central station the flames rose high in the partly demolished structure, which had burned Monday night, but was quickly extinguished.

The store building was burned late Monday, and it is thought that smouldering timbers left from the first fire caused the second blaze. The second fire completely ruined the few articles of salvage left, including a soda fountain which the owners declared could have been used.

LIONS TOLD OF LAUNDRIES HERE

Cripliver Gives Classification Talk Before Club Wednesday

"There are only two other industries in the city who have a larger payroll than the laundries here," Frank Cripliver, plant superintendent of the City Laundry, told members of the Lions club when he gave a classification talk before that organization Wednesday noon. Mr. Cripliver's remarks conveyed some information that was plainly real news to his listeners.

Railroads Largest.

In explaining his payroll statement further, Mr. Cripliver that the railroads and the mills and elevators of the city were the only ones whose weekly pay accounts exceeded those of the laundries.

The speaker went into considerable detail on various phases of the laundry industry, declaring among other things that modern business enterprises such as hotels, pullman car service and barber shops would be impossible without laundries. He vigorously defended the industry from the accusations of those who poked fun at them.

In concluding, Mr. Cripliver exhibited some of the soaps and reagents used in cleansing clothes and explained the uses of each.

WILDCAT TEST FEELS FOR SAND

Carter Well On Block 53 Encounters Good Looking Formations

Roy I. Carter's well on block 53, a wildcat test a mile and a half from production, is feeling for sand at 1,750 feet. The well has encountered formations much the same as in the producing fields and the drillers believe that they are due to hit the sand.

The well is being watched with interest due to the fact that it is in rank wildcat territory, and in a position that it would open new fields for drilling if completed as a commercial well. It is more than one and a half miles from the Wallace producers, in Wichita county, on the north.

Oil To Be Left In Ground Oklahoma Agreement Says

TULSA, Okla., May 30.—Hundreds of thousands of barrels of crude oil will be left in the ground in Northern Oklahoma for an indefinite period, as the result of a shutdown agreement reached here yesterday by operators of the Burbank and Tonkawa fields.

The agreement provides for the shutdown of 270 wells in the Burbank field at the first casing point; or, in the event drilling on the locations has not as yet started, the work will be postponed indefinitely.

In the Tonkawa field, 49 wells will be shut down.

Every one of the 328 wells affected in the two fields is in proven territory.

Production of crude oil will be restricted by the operators until there is a more favorable ratio between supply and demand, it was said. The prospect of a fall of the price of mid-continent crude as the result of overproduction brought about the meeting of the producers to decide on restrictive measures, it was said. The oil left in the ground is not subject to evaporation, as in the case of storage.

Two Wells On Sand Watched In Archer

Freeman-Hampton Oil company and Staley have two wells on the sand in Archer county that are expected to make good wells. Nos. 7 and 8 on the Staley lease, the tract which has been brought to light through the completion of several big wells, are on a rich sand and will be completed within a few days.

No. 7 is at 1,700 feet and No. 8, the same tract, is at 1,580, and both looking good. They are setting casing and will be completed within a few days with good producers expected.

Freeman-Hampton Sets Line In No. 3 Well

After losing casing seat in their No. 3 well on the Woodson lease in Archer county, the Freeman-Hampton Oil company has set a line in 6¾ casing and hopes to make a well out of the hole that was threatened as a failure.

Casing was set three days ago, but the seat was lost and for a time it looked as though the well would be lost, but after setting a liner and packer, the false seat held and with oil showing in quantities the well has all the appearances of making a producer. It is on a rich sand at 1,752 feet.

Barkley And Meadows Rig Up In Hirschi

Barkley and Meadows are rigging up on wells Nos. 13 and 14 on block 835, in the Hirschi district, and will spud in within the next three days. The wells are on the same lease that has already had several producers of size, and will be drilled to the usual sand.

HIS HEADACHES SOON HEADED OFF

Kentucky Man Who Suffered With Severe Headaches Says He Found Relief By Taking Black-Draught

ENDICOTT, Ky.—Describing the trouble he used to have with headache and how he obtained relief by taking Thedford's Black-Draught, Mr. Jeff Jervis, of this place, says:

"I began having severe headaches. I can't tell just how they would begin, but soon my head felt like it would split open and I would be so sick I felt like I was paralyzed.

"I would have shooting pains in my neck, and if I turned my head I felt like it would crack at my neck. My eyeballs were sore and I would vomit. I would be 'torn to pieces' for a day or two. I would take headache medicine and feel so queer afterwards I'd be scared. I didn't feel right—I felt numb.

"I was telling a neighbor and he said: 'Get some Black-Draught and take a big dose when you feel a headache coming on.' I did it and took a few doses each night. Soon I had these headaches headed off. Now it is very seldom I have one at all. I just keep Black-Draught and use it when I need it. I don't let myself get constipated."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found to relieve many of the symptoms described above, and others, when due to constipation or a torpid liver. It is a purely vegetable remedy, made from carefully selected herbs and roots, contains no dangerous drugs, and acts in a natural way on the system. Try it. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

DOLORES OF FOLLIES WEDS

Kathleen Marie Rose known as "Dolores of the Follies."

PARIS, June 2.—There's no question about it, Senor Ziegfeld's "Follies" is the greatest little matrimonial bureau in this or any other world.

For the "glorified" American girls have demonstrated time and time again that when it comes to leading bachelor and divorced millionaires to the altar they are in a class by themselves—even though in some instances the vows are forgotten before the echo dies away.

The latest in the glorified ones to forsake the nightly glorification for the dollars in million lots is Kathleen Marie Rose better known as "Dolores of the Follies."

Kathleen tripped lightly to the altar here on the arm of Tudor Wilkinson, millionaire aviator and former turfman.

Wilkinson disposed of his stables and came here some time ago to become an art collector.

Now he has become a husband.

The wedding, news of which just recently leaked out, was a very simple affair and the newlyweds are now at home in Wilkinson's palatial residence here.

Neighborly News

THE WEST TEXAS SPIRIT.

West Texas, in area, is larger than many of the original American states combined, larger than any of the most powerful nations of the old world. From Texhoma, say to Del Rio, if the way south were direct, would be a two days' journey by rail. From El Paso to Weatherford would be almost as much.

But West Texas, in spirit, is one and concentred. Few more remarkable demonstrations of the unified purposing of a people which is widely separated have ever been given than that which is being staged at San Angelo this week. The occasion is the annual convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce, ostensibly, but it has become in fact a celebration in which all west Texas participates with the vigor and virility which is characteristic of that section and its people.

Such a foregathering can not do less than to impress the world with the strength and the possibilities of the awake, alert and aggressive western country. West Texas has become great in acomplishment. But it is greater in the possession of a spirit which is indomitable and ambitious, of a vision which looks steadily toward a future of high destiny splendidly fulfilled, and of leaders who challenge their people to conquests as did the conquistadores of old time, but to finer, worthier conquests than were dreamed of by the forerunners.

With such spirit, such vision and such leaders, West Texas is destined to become all that West Texas aspires to be. And many who live outside that virile section know that the aspirations of West Texas are as broad as her prairies.—Dallas Journal.

BERT WRIGHT IS BADLY BURNED

Electrician Injured While Washing Motor With Gasoline

Special Dispatch to Record News

ELECTRA, May 30.—Bert Wright was painfully burned when fumes from gasoline used in washing a motor exploded, at Prince Bros. Service No. 2. He had washed the motor, which is set in a hole, and after waiting for the fumes to evaporate, turned on the current. An electric spark ignited the vapors, and the flames ignited the boy's sleeves and singed his face and chest. It is thought the injuries will not prove serious.

FRED C. BARRON CASHIER

Special Dispatch to Record News

ELECTRA, May 30.—Fred C. Barron, late of Wichita Falls, has been elected cashier of the First National bank, succeeding Reuben R. R. Cook. Mr. Cook resigned to become active vice president of the Security National bank. The new cashier has also taken Mr. Cook's place on the directorate.

Mr. Baron is a native Texan, and is a graduate of Baylor university and Yale. His first banking experience was under Lynn P. Talley, now chairman of the federal reserve board in Dallas. At that time he was cashier of the City National bank of Dallas.

In 1918 Mr. Barron was elected active vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, following the consolidation of banks in Wichita Falls. He has had an active banking experience in this county of 14 years.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FT. WORTH, May 30.—Extremely slow trading developed in the cattle yards Wednesday. The day was observed as a holiday at Chicago and St. Louis. Recipts were estimated at 4,200 head of cattle and 2,000 calves, the calf count including 1,000 calves that were on through billing. Cattle and calf values were steady, as far as the really good kinds were concerned, but common to medium cattle had to be peddled at rates that were weak to lower.

Compared with Tuesday's packer market, hogs were steady to five cents higher, the top being $7.10 to packers and shippers, with bulk sales at $5.50.

Sheep values were about steady, receipts being estimated at 3,750 head. Wethers brought $6.00. Lambs sold at $13.25.

SUGAR AND COTTON

One hundred representatives of the sugar industry appeared before President Harding and asked for a fair deal for the trade. They denounced the charge of price-fixing as false, they said that the market is governed by the law of supply and demand, they submitted eight reasons for the 100 per cent increase in the price of sugar and asked for government backing. If the law of supply and demand governed, why is it, in the face of the smallest carry-over in history and a cotton famine in sight, that the market jumps sideways every other day and then bobs up and down like a jumping jack in the hands of a small boy? All the trade papers admit a cotton shortage and many of the leading newspapers of American and English ownership predict a famine of the raw material.

Los Angeles is one of the coming mail order cities of America. During the last year the mail order houses of that city transacted business valued at $512,000,000. California, some 25 years ago, discovered that it had a climate for sale and Californians sold it. They spent a million dollars in advertising a year to push the cause along. Now Los Angeles has a population of more than a million and is said to be the fastest growing of American cities.

FORD AND HARDING THE LEADERS

A New York newspaper made a canvass of its readers and Henry Ford leads a poll for president. There were 19,744 ballots cast. This is the way they run: Ford 5,547, Harding 4,460, MAddo 1,693, Hiram W. Johnson 1,409, James N. Cox 1,335, Charles E. Hughes 1,147, Governor Al Smith of New York 996, Robert LaFollette 776, Herbert Hoover 754. There are 12,000,000 motor vehicles in the country and of the number there are 6,000,000 flivvers. Henry, their maker, has an agent in every district. This dollar wizard of Michigan continues the mystery man of politics. All the machine leaders are said to be against him. All the national convention handlers are against him. What is going to happen next year.

OBJECT LESSONS

Cisco has launched a $400,000 cotton mill enterprise and citizens of Cisco have taken all the stock. There was a time when Eastland county produced 50,000 bales of cotton a year. Then came a three years' drought and after the drought came oil developments. Now the farmers of Eastland county are going back to cotton and the capitalists of Cisco are building a mill for the manufacturing of cotton goods.

Cotton is the gold crop of the south, and the potential wealth of cotton is extracted from the fleecy staple by those who turn out the finished product and sell the same in the markets of the world.

Texas should have a thousand textile mills. Texas only has 28 but the 28 are dividend makers. If this is to be an era of co-operative marketing of cotton as well as an era of the manufacture of cotton goods under Texas skies, then golden prosperity is coming to the people of the Lone Star state.

There are object lessons everywhere for the doubters. They are found in, in Kentucky, in Wisconsin, in New York, in Tennessee, in the Carolinas, old Virginia, Georgia and Alabama, and poverty is being banished from the states where these object lessons are to be found

Egyptian skulls are said to be the oldest so far found. What has this to do with Dr. William Jennings Bryan's campaign against the gospel of evolution?

Reverend Dr. Henry Vedder, a noted educator of New Jersey, is responsible for the following: "No educated man now living believes in the Bible from cover to cover." Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth believes in the Bible from cover to cover. Wm. Jennings Bryan believes in the Bible from cover to cover. Are these warriors of debate uneducated?

A Chicago newspaper printed a story that smugglers are bringing into this country 100,000 gallons of liquor a day from Canada and the author of the story says there are thousands of places in Chicago where liquor is bought and sold. Another snow bird has broken into print; —that's all.

CAN'T LAY IT TO THE MOVIES —By Albert T. Reid

The BLOOD SHIP

By NORMAN SPRINGER.

THE ACTION UP TO THIS POINT

Captain John Shreve, a commander of sailing ships, tells the story. It is the tale of a voyage, his first as an able seaman in the clipper ship The Golden Bough. Shreve, just come to sea manhood, becomes a lodger at the "Knitting Swede's" one of the lowest sailors' resorts in San Francisco. He notes one lodger of quite, austere manner with a scar on his face. Young Shreve defeats the Swede's runner and wins his girl, but determines to go back to sea. He and the mysterious man, known as Newman, sign for a voyage in The Golden Bough, in spite of the ship's reputation for cruelty. Shreve encounters a wreck named Beasley and Newman sees him. Beasley confesses to Newman his part in many dirty plots against Newman. He speaks of a Mary and an unprincipled man who is master of a ship. Taken aboard the Golden Bough by the Swede, Shreve and Newman learn that there is a lady aboard.

"I Have Come!"

My head ached (my tongue was thick and wood-tasted) when I awoke in full possession of my faculties.

The motion told me the ship was under way.

I saw Mister Lynch, the second mate, standing in the middle starboard foc'sle floor. He was "turning to" the crew with a vengeance. His method was effective, but ungentle. His long arm would dart into a bunk where lay huddled a formless heap of rags. This heap of rags, yanked bodily out of bed, would resolve itself into a limp and drunken man.

Then Mister Lynch would commence to eject life into the sodden lump, working scientifically and dispassionately, and bellowing the while ferocious oaths in the victim's ear.

"Out on deck with you!" he would cry. A sharp clout on either jaw would elicit a profane protest from the patient. Then Lynch would hurl the resurrected one through the door on to the deck. A waspish voice streaming blistering oaths proved that Mister Fitzgibbon was welcoming each. Another voice melodiously penetrating the uproar, proved another man was watching the crew turn in.

I recognized the silky, musical voice of Yankee Swope. Stir them up, Mister! Make them jump! My ship is no hotel!" is what it said.

The second mate's roving eye rested upon my face blinking down at him from the top of the wall.

"Where is that big jasper that came aboard with you?" he demanded of me.

Then I became aware that Newman was gone, though his sea-bag was still lying on the floor.

I shrugged my shoulders helplessly.

Lynch snorted. "Didn't have the guts to face the music, I reckon, and cleared out! Well, if he tried to swim for it I'll bet he's feeding fishes now! Turn to!" he commanded me. "What are you standing about for? Get out on deck before I boot you out!"

I knew my place, and I obeyed with alacrity, as I reached the door his voice held me again for a moment.

"I guess you are a smart lad," says he. "I'll pick you for my watch, if Fitz doesn't get ahead of me. Got your nerve—shipping in this packet! If you know your work and fly about it you'll be all right. Otherwise, God help you!"

The best of ships is a madhouse the first day at sea, but the Golden Bough—God! she was madhouse and purgatory rolled into one! I never before or after saw such a welter of human misery as on that bright morning, such a crowd of sick, suffering, terrified men.

Most of them knew not one rope from another, some of them knew not a word of English, half of them were still drunk, and stumbled and fell as they were driven about, the other half was seasick and all but helpless.

I found myself working shoulder to shoulder with a big, trim-bodied mulatto.

There came an ominous flapping of canvas aloft. "He'll done gib her too much wheel!" said the mulatto to me. "Lawd, help him!"

The black-bearded man who had been lounging over the poop-rail now swung about and damned the helmsman's eye with soft voiced deadly words.

"As a man curses so he is. Now Lynch swore robustious oaths in a hearty voice.

Fitzgibbon's swearing always sounded dirty.

But the curses of Captain Swope! God keep me from ever hearing their like again. They sounded worse than harsh or vile, they sounded inhuman. The words came soft and melodious from his lips, but they were forked with poison and viciousness.

"What's this, Misters?" he sang out. "Going asleep on the job? Rush those dogs—rush them! and send a man aft to the wheel—a sailorman! This damned Dutchman does not know how to steer!"

Lynch reached out and dragged me away from the line on which I was heaving. "Aft with you!" he ordered me. "Take the wheel—lively now!"

It was a little "squarehead" who had the wheel, and undersized, scrawny boy. Captain Swone had followed me aft, and commenced on the luckless youth.

"You didn't watch her, did you? Now I'll show you what happens in my ship when a man goes to sleep on his job!" he purred. purred—aye, that is the word.

Swope drove his clenched fist into the boy's face, smashing him against the cabin skylights. The boy cried out with pain and fear, the blood gushing from his nose, and, placing his hands over his face, he tried to escape by running forward.

Swope, the devil, ran beside him, showering blows upon his unprotected head, and as they reached the break of the poop he knocked the boy down, then he "gave him the boots" while the boy squirmed and pleaded in agonized, broken English for mercy.

Finally the captain leaned over the bruised, insensible form, grasped the clothes and heaved the boy clear of the poop, much as one might heave aside a sack of rubbish. I heard the thud of his body striking the deck below.

* * *

I began to thinking about the Golden Bough's lady. To think of Newman was to think of her. I was sure she had drawn him on board the ship.

I wanted to see this angel that was wedded to a devil.

I heard her voice first, ascending through the skylight. It thrilled me. Not the words—she was but giving a direction to the Chinese steward—but the rich, sweet quality of the voice.

She ascended from the cabin, and stepped out on the deck, and as if moving as far as possible from the harsh voices forward, came aft and stood near the wheel. And at the first glance, I knew that the most glowing description did ill justice to her loveliness.

Her age? Oh, 24, perhaps.

Beautiful? Aye, judged by any standard.

Her words showed she knew me as one of the men who had shipped in the vessel of my own will. "Why—you are only a boy!" she said in a surprised voice. "Why did you do it? Listen!—do not give offense; whatever they do, show no resentment. Oh, they are hard—forget your pride and be willing!"

The captain observed her and drew near.

"Ah, madam, commencing your good work so soon?" he remarked, in a sneering voice. "Well, from all signs for'ard, you had better overhaul your medicine chest. You will have a patient or two to snivel over to-morrow morning."

The lady shuddered ever so slightly at Swope's words, and he features contracted, as though with pain.

When the watch choosing began, Lynch promptly chose me.

"You!" said Fitzgobbon, indicating a red-shirted man.

The red-shirted man appealed to Swope. "Captain, may I speak to you now?" he asked, in an excited voice.

"Eh, what's this?" exclaimed Swope.

"Captain—a terrible mistake—foully mistreated, all of these men foully mistreated by your officers—tried to see you and was beaten."

"How terrible!" said Swope.

"But, Captain—good heavens, you do not understand!" cried the man. "I am a clergyman—a minister of the gospel! I am the Rev. Richard Deaken of the Bethel Mission of San Francisco!"

The Reverend Richard Deaken! I saw a light. I had heard of the Reverend Deaken! The labors of this particular sky-pilot were, it appeared, particularly offensive to crimpdom. He threatened to throw a brickbat of exposure into the camp.

Swope laughed loudly. "Ho,ho, ho! D'ye hear that, Misters? The Swede has given us a sky-pilot—a damned Holy Joe! a Holy Joe on the Golden Bough! Ho, ho, ho!"

"But, Captain" — commenced the parson.

"Shut up!" snapped Swope. "Now listen here, my man! You may be a Holy Joe ashore, but I find you aboard my vessel, signed on my articles as 'Montgomery Malvaney, A' B.' Yet you tell me yourself you are no sailor. Well, you'll be a sailor before this passage ends, or I'm not Angus Swope!"

"Madam—can you not make him understand"—

The lady spoke a soft, quick sentence. "No, no—do not protest, do as they say!"

"All right, Mister Lynch muster them," said Swope. And (addressing us generally,) if you don't recognize your names, answer anyway—or we'll hantize you anew!"

"Answer to your names!" boomed Lynch's great voice. "A. Newman!"

"Here!" was the instant and loud response.

As one man, we swung our heads, and looked forward. Sauntering aft, and just passing the main hatch, was the man with the scar. He came abreast of us, and paused there in the empty center of the deck.

It was the lady that broke the silence the man's dramatic arrival had placed upon all hands. She broke it with a kind of strangled gasp. "Roy—it is Roy— oh God!" she said.

But it was the manner of Captain Swope that demanded our attention. He was seeing a ghost, too, an evil ghost.

"Where have you come from?" he said in a strained voice.

Newman's clothes and face were smutted with the grime from the peak; but his air was debonair. He answered Captain Swope airly.

"Why—I came just now from your forepeak—a most filthy, unpleasant hole, Angus! And less recently, I come from my grave, from that shameful grave of stripes and bars to which your lying words sent me, Angus! I've come to pay you a visit, to sail with you. Why, I'm on your articles—I am 'A. Newman' An apt name, a true name—eh, Angus? Come now, are you not glad to see me?"

And Swope! The man became craven before Newman's upturned gaze. He was palsied with fear, stark fear!

I saw the sweat beads glistening on his brow. He lifted a shaking hand and wiped them off. And then he suddenly turned and strode aft. "Below, the watch."

In the quiet that was over us, we heard his footsteps as he walked aft. They were uncertain, like the footsteps of a drunken man.

Newman turned his gaze upon the lady.

"I have come, Mary," said he.

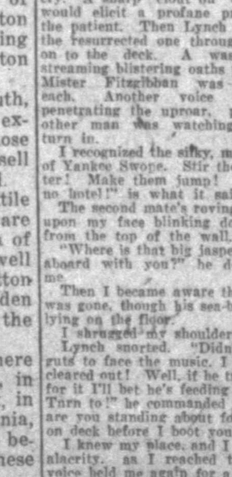

She did not reply with words.

For what seemed like a long time the man and the woman stood silent, regarding each other. Suddenly she turned and flitted aft. We listened to her light footsteps descending to the cabin

Youthful Farmer Is Youngest Grad Of Quaker School

Orian Landreth.

Orian Landreth, who is to graduate from Friends university, Wichita, Kan., this spring, will be the youngest person ever to receive a diploma from the Quaker school. Landreth is 18. He entered the university four years ago after graduating from Macksville, Kan., high school with honors. Next year Mr. Landreth, or "Toad," as he is known at the school will enter Northwestern university for a six-year medical course. He has made his own way through Friends by farming in the summer months, and plans to work his way through Northwestern. Landreth is one of the star athletes at the Quaker school, having won his "Q" for the past two years. He won a place on the all state football team last year.

BIG BUSINESS IN SNAKES

Rattlers at from 50 cents upward may be selected from a stock of 10,000 snakes at the King Snake farm, Brownsville, Texas. The department of agriculture, which is making up a list of snake dealers and market quotations, learns this. It ma surprise you to know that snakes are an article of commerce and that more than 20,000 were sold from the King farm last year. King is a jobber rather than a breeder of snakes. His chief supply comes from Mexico and he makes shipments to all parts of the world. Recently he shipped 20 snakes to London. He also supplies large amounts of venom to scientific institutions in many lands, for which he charges nothing. His best customers are circuses, zoos and traveling shows. No matter what you have for sale, somebody wants it, if you can find that somebody. That is why advertising was invented.

SOON ENOUGH

If the man who bewails how long it is until spring will put a 30-day note in the bank he will find it won't be as long as it seems.—Aurora Advertiser.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

MODERNIZED

(The Sioux Indians have brought suit against the United States government to recover millions of dollars worth of land.)

No longer the war cry resounds on the trail,
No longer must settlers beware
Lest the redskin appear, with a hideous sneer,
And divest him of all of his hair.
No more to the bow and the feathered-tipped shaft
Does hte bloodthirsty savage resort;
No longer he fights to the death for his rights,
But wages his battles in courts.

His visage no more is adorned wtih bright hues
When Lo is engaged upon strife,
He substitutes paints with "amended complaints,"
And pleas for the long gleaming knife.
When grievances fester and burn in his breast
His lawyer gives voice to his fury,
And instead of red blood and the war club's dull thud,
The verdict is left to a jury.

Time was, when a redskin, deprived of his land
By the whiet man, would rise in his wrath
And his blood-curdling yells filled the hills and the dells
Tiss his foe was swept clean from his path.
No prating attorneys the chieftain retained—
His method of bringing a suit
Was to climb on his steed with all possible speed
And butcher and pillage and shoot.

But the old fashioned way, though it suited him best,
Didn't get our red friend anywhere.
Mile by mile, day by day, he was forced to give way
Till his soul was consumed with despair.
So he borrowed a leaf from the pale-face's book,
And now, when he nurses a grudge,
His gun and his pride are both laid to one side,
And his troubles he tells to a judge!

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

CROOKED DETOURS

One could with perfect truth say to young men:

The stright way is not always the successful way.

Men have gotten in high places by dishonesty.

Men have gained wealth by taking crooked detours.

Every rascal does not get into jail.

Some very highly respected and very wealthy citizens have broken most of the ten commandments, and some of the laws of the land.

But one could say with just as much truth:

Many automobiles get to their destruction quicker by taking crooked detours.

The road over the mountain, if one can get through it, is shorter than the road around the mountain.

If one is willing to risk a valuable car, to spend a few hours in peril of his life, and to end the journey spent with exhaustion, he may clip ten or fifteen minutes from the time of the journey.

But the crooked detour over the mountain is very likely to leave the car a tumbled wreck at the bottom of a precipice.

And the crooked detour through life is just as likely to leave the man who makes it a tumbled wreck in a cell in a penitentiary.

The straight way may take a little longer, but it is safe and sure.

The traveler knows that it will take him where he wants to go.

He knows little about the crooked way, save what he can learn by the excess of cars that enter it over those that leave it. But that ought to be enough.

There are plenty of roads to be found on the map that have been made by men since the world began.

Not all of them are straight and smooth. Some are hard and rough, with abundance of hills, and curves that require care and caution to get safely around.

But these are known roads. Their destination is on the map that we call experience, and their surface is always sound enough to support the traveler.

The detours, too, are abundant. One finds them every few miles along the way, and they all look inviting.

Many of them promise short cuts to fortune if taken, and too often we find men who have taken them and made short cuts to fortune.

But fortune obtained at that price is not worth having. Moreover, for one traveller of a crooked road who succeeds there are a thousand who are wrecked. Keep off the crooked detours.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

Today brings conflicting emotions and it would therefore be safer for you to follow the even tenure of your way. There is some tendency toward fraud, deception and misunderstanding.

A child born today will be affectionate and sensitive and rather difficult to understand, being much more spiritual than earthly.

If today is your birthday, your character should be rich in natural talents but not necessarily as fortunate in the degree of will power it possesses.

Indeed with you it will always be a question of being willing to do a given thing rather than a problem of choosing what to do, for you might choose any one of a number of different vocations because circumstances might lead you to develop any one of your numerous talents. However, the choice will not matter to you as much as the determination which you must learn in order to bring all your forces into play. Like most versatile people you have the unfortunate shortcomings of superficialty. You know a little about so many things that you find it difficult to know much about any one thing.

Combined with lofty ideals you have a sweet sympathetic nature and one that is ever ready an eager to nurse the sick, help the unfortunate, and comfort the sorrowful. You have a great capacity for skill in the sciences, and a broadminded expression of the wealth of your knowledge. If you followed this inclination and spoiled yourself long enough to it, you would make a great physician for either the soul or the body.

You will find your own personality one that seems to be drawn by two conflicting powers, in fact you have almost a dual personality. Some days you are silent reserved and profoundly emotional, but at other times vigorous, dominant and assertive. You are fated to puzzle both yourself and associates right through life, unless you learn to study your own motives and emotions with more frankness than you are accustomed to now. There is an old proverb you would do well to remember and keep forever in your conscious mind:

"Know yourself and thou shalt know others."

Both men and women of this date are home loving and affectionate and develop most rapidly under the institution of marriage, that is, if they select partners with a sympathetic understanding.

SLEEPING VETS HONORED HERE

Survivors Of Three Wars Pay Tribute To Those Called By Death

Veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World wars met together yesterday at the three local cemeteries to honor the dead of the nations conflicts who sleep in Wichita Falls. The blue mingled with the gray and khaki as the uniformed veterans stood with bared heads at the graves of their comrades.

"Pa" Burdick, Salvation Army veteran of the last war, spoke glowingly of the battles in France and in the several wars in which the heroes died. His address was filled with the flush of one who has seen action, he having served for many months in France.

The many veterans carried flowers with which to decorate the graves of the dead soldiers, with floral offerings given by local people. The Wichita Falls Floral company sent a deluge of roses and cut flowers. The Model Laundry distributed a crate of cape jasmines and Mrs. Leslie Humphries, Mrs. J. L. Jackson, Mrs. S. W. Walker and Mrs. P. E. Kerr sent cut flowers. The Cornelie Bennoit society sent many beautiful wreaths made by the members.

"Ma" Burdick, nationally known veteran Salvation Army worker, offered a prayer for the dead at their graves, with more than 30 world war veterans and many veterans of other conflicts standing silent.

Reverend Simpson unveiled the monument to A. G. Hawkins with an impressive address, telling the history of the life of the dead hero.

L. L. DIXON ELECTED BY AUTOMOTIVE MEN TO VICE PRESIDENCY

Associated Press Dispatch

CORPUS CHRISTI, May 30.—The Texas Automotive association ended their two days convention here last night by electing John E. Morris of Dallas as the next president. W. W. Williamson, San Antonio, was re-elected first vice president and general maanger. Kenneth Cox of San Angelo was elected second vice president and L. L. Dixon, of Wichita Falls, third vice president. A banquet at the Nueces hotel concluded the convention.

Features of today's session were talks by A. R. Mugge of Chicago and A. R. Kroh of Akron, Ohio. Mugge's address concerned the marketing of automotive equipment, while Kroh discussed various phases of the automobile industry. He said the individual dealers must solve the used car problem, adding that unless they did the bankers in all probability would solve it for them.

Fort Worth was given the 1924 convention.

100 Fighting Fire

Associated Press Dispatch

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., May 30. Flames in the Penasco canyon forest, 20 miles north of here, are abating. Approximately 100 men are fighting the fire. More than 2,000 acres of timber have been destroyed, it is estimated. Forest Supervisor O. Fred Arthur said he did not look for further damage, although the fire was still dangerous.

RING LARDNER

I lately attended a dinner at which Ring Lardner was also a guest. There were a good many notables present, and I was quiet, that I might the better observe them. Someone complained because I said little and I replied:

"I have a good deal to say, but Ring Lardner has talked so incessantly that I have had opportunity to say little."

It was a joke, Mr. Lardner said nothing at all. His quietness is remarked by everyone who meets him. He does not seem ill-humored but prefers to say little. He is a rollicking sort of fellow in his writing, but personally he is a sphinx. I have been with him a good deal lately, and all I heard him say was that a man he used to work for, and who didn't treat him very well, is now so reduced that he is printing a magazine for negroes. One day he handed me a dollar bill and said: "Mark me up five years more," but beyond these two utterances I have no knowledge of his conversational power.

I have long admired Mr. Lardner. His smashes at shams in his humorous writing are very effective; and I admire him still more because of his quietness when in "company." All the rest of us talk too much. One man who was a guest at the Ring Lardner dinner referred to came to me next morning and said: "I made a fool of myself last night; I talked too much." And he did.

One of the best things anyone can do is admit his faults candidly and if possible, improve on them. One of the worst faults of almost everyone is a stream of foolish talk. I am blushing this moment, thinking how guilty I am every day.—E. W. Howe in E. W. Howe's Monthly.

SUGAR AND COTTON

One hundred representatives of the sugar industry appeared before President Harding and asked for a fair deal for the trade. They denounced the charge of price-fixing as false, they said that the market is governed by the law of supply and demand, they submitted eight reasons for the 100 per cent increase in the price of sugar and asked for government backing. If the law of supply and demand governed, why is it, in the face of the smallest carry-over in history and a cotton famine in sight, that the market jumps sideways every other day and then bobs up and down like a jumping jack in the hands of a small boy? All the trade papers admit a cotton shortage and many of the leading newspapers of American and English ownership predict a famine of the raw material.

Los Angeles is one of the coming mail order cities of America. During the last year the mail order houses of that city transacted business valued at $512,000,000. California, some 25 years ago, discovered that it had a climate for sale and Californians sold it. They spent a million dollars in advertising a year to push the cause along. Now Los Angeles has a population of more than a million and is said to be the fastest growing of American cities.

FORD AND HARDING THE LEADERS

A New York newspaper made a canvass of its readers and Henry Ford leads a poll for president. There were 19,744 ballots cast. This is the way they run: Ford 5,547, Harding 4,460, MAddo 1,693, Hiram W. Johnson 1,409, James N. Cox 1,335, Charles E. Hughes 1,147, Governor Al Smith of New York 996, Robert LaFollette 776, Herbert Hoover 754. There are 12,000,000 motor vehicles in the country and of the number there are 6,000,000 flivvers. Henry, their maker, has an agent in every district. This dollar wizard of Michigan continues the mystery man of politics. All the machine leaders are said to be against him. All the national convention handlers are against him. What is going to happen next year.

OBJECT LESSONS

Cisco has launched a $400,000 cotton mill enterprise and citizens of Cisco have taken all the stock. There was a time when Eastland county produced 50,000 bales of cotton a year. Then came a three years' drought and after the drought came oil developments. Now the farmers of Eastland county are going back to cotton and the capitalists of Cisco are building a mill for the manufacturing of cotton goods.

Cotton is the gold crop of the south, and the potential wealth of cotton is extracted from the fleecy staple by those who turn out the finished product and sell the same in the markets of the world.

Texas should have a thousand textile mills. Texas only has 28 but the 28 are dividend makers. If this is to be an era of co-operative marketing of cotton as well as an era of the manufacture of cotton goods under Texas skies, then golden prosperity is coming to the people of the Lone Star state.

There are object lessons everywhere for the doubters. They are found in, in Kentucky, in Wisconsin, in New York, in Tennssee, in the Carolinas, old Virginia, Georgia and Alabama, and poverty is being banished from the states where these object lessons are to be found

The BLOOD SHIP

By NORMAN SPRINGER.

THE ACTION UP TO THIS POINT

Captain John Shreve, a commander of sailing ships, tells the story. It is the tale of a voyage, his first as an able seaman in the clipper ship The Golden Bough. Shreve, just come to sea manhood, becomes a lodger at the "Knitting Swede's" one of the lowest sailors' resorts in San Francisco. He notes one lodger of quite, austere manner with a scar on his face. Young Shreve defeats the Swede's runner and wins his girl, but determines to go back to sea. He and the mysterious man, known as Newman, sign for a voyage in The Golden Bough, in spite of the ship's reputation for cruelty. Shreve encounters a wreck named Beasley and Newman sees him. Beasley confesses to Newman his part in many dirty plots against Newman. He speaks of a Mary and an unprincipled man who is master of a ship. Taken aboard the Golden Bough by the Swede, Shreve and Newman learn that there is a lady aboard.

"I Have Come!"

My head ached (my tongue was thick and wood-tasted) when I awoke in full possession of my faculties.

The motion told me the ship was under way.

I saw Mister Lynch, the second mate, standing in the middle starboard fo'c'sle floor. He was "turning to" the crew with a vengeance. His method was effective, but ungentle. His long arm would dart into a bunk where lay huddled a formless heap of rags. This heap of rags, yanked bodily out of bed, would resolve itself into a limp and drunken man.

Then Mister Lynch would commence to eject life into the sodden lump, working scientifically and dispassionately, and bellowing the while ferocious oaths in the victim's ear.

"Out on deck with you!" he would cry. A sharp clout on either jaw would elicit a profane protest from the patient. Then Lynch would hurl the resurrected one through the door on to the deck. A waspish voice streaming blistering oaths proved that Mister Fitzgibbon was welcoming each. Another voice melodiously penetrating the uproar, proved another man was watching the crew turn in.

I recognized the silky, musical voice of Yankee Swope. Stir them up, Mister! Make them jump! My ship is no hotel!" is what it said.

The second mate's roving eye rested upon my face blinking down at him from the top of the wall.

"Where is that big jasper that came aboard with you?" he demanded of me.

Then I became aware that Newman was gone, though his sea-bag was still lying on the floor.

I shrugged my shoulders helplessly.

Lynch snorted. "Didn't have the guts to face the music, I reckon, and cleared out! Well, if he tried to swim for it I'll bet he's feeding fishes now! Turn to!" he commanded me. "What are you standing about for? Get out on deck before I boot you out!"

I knew my place, and I obeyed with alacrity, as I reached the door his voice held me again for a moment.

"I guess you are a smart lad," says he. I'll pick you for my watch, if Fitz doesn't get ahead of me. Got your nerve—shipping in this packet! If you know your work and fly about it you'll be all right. Otherwise, God help you!"

The best of ships is a madhouse the first day at sea, but the 'Golden Bough—God! she was madhouse and purgatory rolled into one! I never before or after saw such a welter of human misery as on that bright morning, such a crowd of sick, suffering, terrified men.

Most of them knew not one rope from another, some of them knew not a word of English, half of them were still drunk, and stumbled and fell as they were driven about, the other half was seasick and all but helpless.

I found myself working shoulder to shoulder with a big, trim-bodied mulatto.

There came an ominous flapping of canvas aloft. "He's give her too much wheel!" said the mulatto to me. "Lawd help him!"

The black-bearded man who had been lounging over the poop-rail now swung about and damned the helmsman's eye with soft voiced deadly words.

As a man curses so he is. Now Lynch swore robustious oaths in a hearty voice.

Fitzgibbon's swearing always sounded dirty.

But the curses of Captain Swope! God keep me from ever hearing their like again. They sounded worse than harsh or vile, they sounded inhuman. The words came soft and melodious from his lips, but they were forked with poison and viciousness.

"What's this, Misters?" he sang out. "Going asleep on the job? Rush those dogs—rush them! and send a man aft to the wheel—a sailorman! This damend Dutchman does not know how to steer!"

Lynch reached out and dragged me away from the line on which I was heaving. "Aft with you!" he ordered me. "Take the wheel—lively now!"

It was a little "squarehead" who had the wheel, and undersized, scrawny boy. Captain Swone had followed me aft, and commenced on the luckless youth.

"You didn't watch her, did you? Now I'll show you what happens in my ship when a man goes to sleep on his job!" he purred, purred—aye, that is the word.

Swope drove his clenched fist into the boy's face, smashing him against the cabin skylights. The boy cried out with pain and fear, the blood gushing from his nose, and, placing his hands over his face, he tried to escape by running forward.

Swope, the devil, ran beside him, showering blows upon his unprotected head, and as they reached the break of the poop he knocked the boy down, then he "gave him the boots" while the boy squirmed and pleaded in agonized, broken English for mercy.

Finally the captain leaned over the bruised, insensible form, grasped the clothes and heaved the boy clear of the poop, much as one might heave aside a sack of rubbish. I heard the thud of his body striking the deck below.

* * *

I began to thinking about the Golden Bough's lady. To think of Newman was to think of her. I was sure she had drawn him on board the ship.

I wanted to see this angel that was wedded to a devil.

I heard her voice first, ascending through the skylight. It thrilled me. Not the words—she was but giving a direction to the Chinese steward—but the rich, sweet quality of the voice.

She ascended from the cabin, and stepped out on the deck, and as if moving as far as possible from the harsh voices forward, came aft and stood near the wheel. And at the first glance, I knew that the most glowing description did ill justice to her loveliness.

Her age? Oh, 24, perhaps.

Beautiful? Are judged by any standard.

Her words showed she knew me as one of the men who had shipped in the vessel of my own will. "Why—you are only a boy!" she said in a surprised voice. "Why did you do it? Listen!—do not give offense; whatever they do, show no resentment. Oh, they are hard—forget your pride and be willing!"

The captain observed her and drew near.

"Ah, madam, commencing your good work so soon?" he remarked, in a sneering voice. "Well, from all signs for'ard, you had better overhaul your medicine chest. You will have a patient or two to snivel over to-morrow morning."

The lady shuddered ever so slightly at Swope's words, and he features contracted, as though with pain.

When the watch choosing began, Lynch promptly chose me.

"You!" said Fitzgobbon, indicating a red-shirted man.

The red-shirted man appealed to Swope, "Captain, may I speak to you now?" he asked, in an excited voice.

"Eh, what's this?" exclaimed Swope.

"Captain—a terrible mistake — foully mistereated, all of these men foully mistreated by your officers—tried to see you and was beaten."

"How terrible!" said Swope.

"But, Captain—good heavens, you do not understand!" cried the man. "I am a clergyman—a minister of the gospel! I am the Rev. Richard Deaken of the Bethel Mission of San Francisco!"

The Reverend Richard Deaken! I saw a light. I had heard of the Reverend Deaken! The labors of this particular sky-pilot were, it appeared, particuladly offensive to crimpdom. He threatened to throw a brickbat of exposure into the camp.

Swope laughed loudly. "Ho,ho, ho! D'ye hear that, Misters? The Swede has given us a sky-pilot—a damned Holy Joe! a Holy Joe on the Golden Bough! Ho, ho, ho!"

"But, Captain" — commenced the parson.

"Shut up!" snapped Swope. "Now listen here, my man! You may be a Holy Joe ashore, but I find you aboard my vessel, signed on my articles as 'Montgomery Mulvaney, A' B.' Yet you tell me yourself you are no sailor. Well, you'll be a sailor before this passage ends, or I'm not Angus Swope!"

"Madam—can you not make him understand!"—

The lady spoke a soft, quick sentence. "No, no—do not protest, do as they say!"

"All right, Mister Lynch, muster them," said Swope. And (addressing us generally,) if you don't recognize your names, answer anyway—or we'll baptize you anew!"

"Answer to your names!" boomed Lynch's great voice. "A. Newman!"

"Here!" was the instant and loud response.

As one man, we swung our heads, and looked forward. Sauntering aft, and just passing the main hatch, was the man with the scar. He came abreast of us, and paused there in the empty center of the deck.

It was the lady that broke the silence the man's dramatic arrival had placed upon all hands. She broke it with a kind of strangled gasp. "Roy—it is Roy— oh God!" she said.

But it was the manner of Captain Swope that demanded our attention. He was seeing a ghost, too, an evil ghost.

"Where have you come from?" he said in a strained voice.

Newman's clothes and face were smutted with the grime from the peak; but his air was debonair. He answered Captain Swope airly.

"Why—I came just now from your forepeak—a most filthy, unpleasant hole, Angus! And less recently, I come from my grave, from that shameful grave of stripes and bars to which your lying words sent me, Angus! I've come to pay you a visit, to sail with you. Why, I'm on your articles—I am 'A. Newman' An apt name, a true name—eh, Angus? Come now, are you not glad to see me?"

And Swope! The man became craven before Newman's upturned gaze. He was paised with fear, stark fear!

I saw the sweat beads glistening on his brow. He lifted a shaking hand and wiped them off. And then he suddenly turned and strode aft. "Below, the watch."

In the quiet that was over us, we heard his footsteps as he walked aft. They were uncertain, like the footsteps of a drunken man.

Newman turned his gaze upon the lady.

"I have come, Mary," said he.

She did not reply with words.

For what seemed like a long time the man and the woman stood silent, regarding each other. Suddenly she turned and flitted aft. We listened to her light footsteps descending to the cabin

Youthful Farmer Is Youngest Grad Of Quaker School

Orian Landreth.

Orian Landreth, who is to graduate from Friends university, Wichita, Kan., this spring, will be the youngest person ever to receive a diploma from the Quaker school. Landreth is 18. He entered the university four years ago after graduating from Macksville, Kans. high school with honors. Next year Mr. Landreth, or "Toad," as he is known at the school will enter Northwestern university for a six year medical course. He has made his own way through Friends by farming in the summer months, and plans to work his way through Northwestern. Landreth is one of the star athletes at the Quaker school, having won his "Q" for the past two years. He won a place on the all state football team last year.

BIG BUSINESS IN SNAKES

Rattlers at from 50 cents upward may be selected from a stock of 10,000 snakes at the King Snake farm, Brownsville, Texas. The department of agriculture, which is making up a list of snake dealers and market quotations, learns this. It ma surprise you to know that snakes are an article of commerce and that more than 20,000 were sold from the King farm last year. King is a jobber rather than a breeder of snakes. His chief supply comes from Mexico and he makes shipments to all parts of the world. Recently he shipped 20 snakes to London. He also supplies large amounts of venom to scientific institutions in many lands, for which he charges nothing. His best customers are circuses, zoos and traveling shows. No matter what you have for sale, somebody wants it, if you can find that somebody. That is why adyertising was invented.

SOON ENOUGH.

If the man who bewails how long it is until spring will put a 30-day note in the bank he will find it won't be as long as it seems.—Aurora Advertiser.

More Truth Than Poetry

—By James J. Montague—

MODERNIZED

(The Sioux Indians have brought suit against the United States government to recover millions of dollars worth of land.)

No longer the war-cry resounds on the trail,
No longer must settlers beware
Lest the redskin appear, with a hideous sneer,
And divest him of all of his hair.
No more to the bow and the feathered-tipped shaft
Does lte bloodthirsty savage resort;
No longer he fights to the death for his rights,
But wages his battles in courts.

His visage no more is adorned wtih bright hues
When Lo is engaged upon strife,
He substitutes paints with "amended complaints,"
And pleas for the long gleaming knife.
When grievances fester and burn in his breast
His lawyer gives voice to his fury,
And instead of red blood and the war club's dull thud,
The verdict is left to a jury.

Time was, when a redskin, deprived of his land
By the whiet man, would rise in his wrath
And his blood-curdling yells filled the hills and the dells
Tiss his foe was swept clean from his path.
No prating attorneys the chieftain retained—
His method of bringing a suit
Was to climb on his steed with all possible speed
And butcher and pillage and shoot.

But the old fashioned way, though it suited him best,
Didn't get our red friend anywhere.
Mile by mile, day by day, he was forced to give way
Till his soul was consumed with despair.
So he borrowed a leaf from the pale-face's book,
And now, when he nurses a grudge,
His gun and his pride are both laid to one side,
And his troubles he tells to a judge!

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

CROOKED DETOURS

One couid with perfect truth say to young men:

The stright way is not always the successful way.

Men have gotten in high places by dishonesty.

Men have gained wealth by taking crooked detours.

Every rascal does not get into jail.

Some very highly respected and very wealthy citizens have broken most of the ten commandments, and some of the laws of the land.

But one could say with just as much truth:

Many automobiles get to their destruction quicker by taking crooked detours.

The road over the mountain, if one can get through it, is shorter than the road around the mountain.

If one is willing to risk a valuable car, to spend a few hours in peril of his life, and to end the journey spent with exhaustion, he may clip ten or fifteen minutes from the time of the journey.

But the crooked detour over the mountain is very likely to leave the car a tumbled wreck at the bottom of a precipice.

And the crooked detour through life is just as likely to leave the man who makes it a tumbled wreck in a cell in a penitentiary.

The straight way may take a little longer, but it is safe and sure.

The traveler knows that it will take him where he wants to go.

He knows little about the crooked way, save what he can learn by the excess of cars that enter it over those that leave it. But that ought to be enough.

There are plenty of roads to be found on the map that have been made by men since the world began.

Not all of them are straight and smooth. Some are hard and rough, with abundance of hills, and curves that require care and caution to get safely around.

But these are known roads. Their destination is on the map that we call experience, and their surface is always sound enough to support the traveler.

The detours, too, are abundant. One finds them every few miles along the way, and they all look inviting.

Many of them promise short cuts to fortune if taken, and too often we find men who have taken them and made short cuts to fortune.

But fortune obtained at that price is not worth having. Moreover, for one traveller of a crooked road who succeeds there are a thousand who are wrecked. Keep off the crooked detours.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

Today brings conflicting emotions and it would therefore be safer for you to follow the even tenure of your way. There is some tendency toward fraud, deception and misunderstanding.

A child born today will be affectionate and sensitive and rather difficult to understand, being much more spiritual than earthly.

If today is your birthday, your character should be rich in natural talents but not necessarily as fortunate in the degree of will power it possesses.

Indeed with you it will always be a question of being willing to do a given thing rather than a problem of choosing what to do, for you might choose any one of a number of different vocations because circumstances might lead you to develop any one of your numerous talents. However, the choice will not matter to you as much as the determination which you must learn in order to bring all your forces into play. Like most versatile people you have the unfortunate shortcomings of superficialty. You know a little about so many things that you find it difficult to know much about any one thing.

Combined with lofty ideals you have a sweet sympathetic nature and one that is ever ready an eager to nurse the sick, help the unfortunate, and comfort the sorrowful. You have a great capacity for skill in the sciences, and a broadminded expression of the wealth of your knowledge. If you followed this inclination and spoiled yourself long enough to it, you would make a great physician for either the soul or the body.

You will find your own personality one that seems to be drawn by two conflicting powers, in fact you have almost a dual personality. Some days you are silent reserved and profoundly emotional, but at other times vigorous, dominant and assertive. You are fated to puzzle both yourself and associates right through life, unless you learn to study your own motives and emotions with more frankness than you are accustomed to now. There is an old proverb you would do well to remember and keep forever in your conscious mind:

"Know yourself and thou shalt know others."

Both men and women of this date are home loving and affectionate and develop most rapidly under the institution of marriage, that is, if they select partners with a sympathetic understanding.

SLEEPING VETS HONORED HERE

Survivors Of Three Wars Pay Tribute To Those Called By Death

Veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American, and World wars met together yesterday at the three local cemeteries to honor the dead of the nations conflicts who sleep in Wichita Falls. The blue mingled with the gray and khaki as the uniformed veterans stood with bared heads at the graves of their comrades.

"Pa" Burdick, Salvation Army veteran of the last war, spoke glowingly of the battles in France and in the several wars in which the heroes died. His address was filled with the flash of one who has seen action, he having served for many months in France.

The many veterans carried flowers with which to decorate the graves of the dead soldiers, with floral offerings given by local people. The Wichita Falls Floral company sent a deluge of roses and cut flowers. The Model Laundry distributed a crate of cape jasmines and Mrs. Leslie Humphries, Mrs. J. L. Jackson, Mrs. S. W. Walker and Mrs. P. E. Kerr sent cut flowers. The Cornelie Bennoit society sent many beautiful wreaths made by the members.

"Ma" Burdick, nationally known veteran Salvation Army worker, offered a prayer for the dead at their graves, with more than 30 world war veterans and many veterans of other conflicts standing silent.

Reverend Simpson unveiled the monument to A. G. Hawkins with an impressive address, telling the history of the life of the dead hero.

L. L. DIXON ELECTED BY AUTOMOTIVE MEN TO VICE PRESIDENCY

Associated Press Dispatch

CORPUS CHRISTI, May 30.—The Texas Automotive association ended their two days convention here last night by electing John E. Morris of Dallas as the next president. W. W. Williamson, San Antonio, was re-elected first vice president and general maanger. Kenneth Cox of San Angelo was elected second vice president and L. L. Dixon, of Wichita Falls, third vice president. A banquet at the Nueces hotel concluded the convention.

Features of today's session were talks by A. R. Mugge of Chicago and A. R. Kroh of Akron, Ohio. Mugge's address concerned the marketing of automotive equipment, while Kroh discussed various phases of the automobile industry. He said the individual dealers must solve the used car problem, adding that unless they did the bankers in all probability would solve it for them.

Fort Worth was given the 1924 convention.

100 Fighting Fire

Associated Press Dispatch

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., May 30. Flames in the Penasco canyon forest, 20 miles north of here, are abating. Approximately 100 men are fighting the fire. More than 2,000 acres of timber have been destroyed, it is estimated. Forest Supervisor O. Fred Arthur said he did not look for further damage, although the fire was still dangerous.

RING LARDNER

I lately attended a dinner at which Ring Lardner was also a guest. There were a good many notables present, and I was quiet, that I might the better observe them. Someone complained because I said little and I replied:

"I have a good deal to say, but Ring Lardner has talked so incessantly that I have had opportunity to say little."

It was a joke. Mr. Lardner said nothing at all. His quietness is remarked by everyone who meets him. He does not seem ill-humored but prefers to say little. He is a rollicking sort of fellow in his writing, but personally he is a sphinx. I have been with him a good deal lately, and all I heard him say was that a man he used to work for, and who didn't treat him very well, is now so reduced that he is printing a magazine for negroes. One day he handed me a dollar bill, and said: "Mark me up five years more," but beyond these two utterances I have no knowledge of his conversational power.

I have long admired Mr. Lardner. His smashes at shams in his humorous writing are very effective: and I admire him still more because of his quietness when in "company." All the rest of us talk too much. One man who was a guest at the Ring Lardner dinner referred to came to me next morning and said: "I made a fool of myself last night; I talked too much." And he did.

One of the best things anyone can do is admit his faults candidly and if possible, improve on them. One of the worst faults of almost everyone is a stream of foolish talk. I am blushing this moment, thinking how guilty I am every day.—E. W. Howe in E. W. Howe's Monthly.

SCHOOL CUT IS OPPOSED

Lynch Davidson Takes Issue With Plan Of Lieutenant Governor

Special Dispatch to Record News

AUSTIN, May 30.—Former Lieut. Gov. Lynch Davidson of Houston, here Tuesday, declared in a prepared statement, his opposition to the proposal of Lieut. Gov. T. W. Davidson of Marshall, for reduction of a million and a half dollars in school aid for the next two years.

"It is not necessary to cut these appropriations," Lynch Davidson declared.

Mr. Davidson's statement follows:

"It is of prime importance to every citizen of Texas and to the safety of government that the school system be neither crimped nor scrimped in its financial needs.

"I emphatically disagree with the published statement of the present lieutenant governor in which he advocated a reduction of a half million dollars in rural aid and a million dollars from the emergency school appropriation. These appropriations can be left for the benefit of the schools without imposing additional tax burdens upon already overburdened taxpayers.

"Instead of criticising the legislature for taking its time and deliberating upon the grave responsibilities of taxing the people beyond endurance, I commend them, and each member of the house and senate, for not permitting themselves to be stampeded by anybody into either hastily passing ill-considered, unequal and unjust tax bills, or of crippling the great public school system of the state.

"A tax, uniform throughout the state, based upon the annual turnover of money, would provide the state's needs without chopping off the school children. It would allow the repeal of all special tax measures, that seek to chase every seemingly prosperous group or enterprise from the state.

"Such measure, exempting the amount of ad valorem taxes paid would take further burden off the farmer and small home owner, and instead of sporadic, unequal and heavy tax upon a single line of industry, would make the tax absolutely uniform upon the money, or wealth of the state.

"Such a measure would be unnecessary now, had simple business methods been applied to the state heretofore. There is no excuse or reason for the state's present financial condition. The losses of the penitiary system, plus loss of its potential earning capacity, during the last four years, would have nearly supplied the state's present deficit.

"Elect men with minds untrained in economic affairs to offices whose function it is to provide ways and means of solving financial and economic problems and just so long will such problems be unsolved. Simple business methods, applied to the penitentiary system four years ago would have transformed its near million dollar annual loss into a million dollars annual gain. In that item alone, the state would have earned almost enough to iron out its present difficulties, and there would be no cry now from anyone that the school children be deprived of a million and a half dollars, so much needed, to be squandered in worse than useless economic waste.

"Political announcements are untimely and premature, and I am, therefore, making none."

WOMAN

tion. She was taken through the baggage room and into the observation car "Seoro," of the Southern Pacific California train.

The "tiger woman" is being returned to California to serve from 10 years to life in the San Quentin penitentiary.

A large crowd of curious waited impatiently in front of the station not knowing she already was aboard the train.

The limited left New Orleans 12:10 p. m. with the "tiger woman" a prisoner in a Pullman compartment. She will be kept under constant surveillance day and night until the party reaches Los Angeles Friday night. The tiger woman was disheartened for the first time since her capture in Honduras, as the limited began its long western trip. She had been told of the California court's denial of her last appeal for a new trial. As the train wheels began rolling, she paced her narrow compartment with all the characteristics of a "tiger woman."

"I would rather die than go to San Quentin," she said. "I won't go, I won't go," her voice broke with hysteria.

A crowd which watched her board the train, surrounded by police was rather friendly. A group of New Orleans women shouted words of encouragement and a belief in her innocence.

"Thank you for believing me innocent. I am innocent. The public will believe it soon, too," was her reply.

Her final message before the train pulled out was given to International News Service.

"I do not care where they take me or what they do to me, I will fight, I will have a trial when I reach Los Angeles. I do not know what the first move will be, but I will be the first to make an effort to establish my innocence."

Rural Carriers Meet

ST. JOE, Texas, May 30.—Discussions of the best methods to pursue in seeking to obtain small government allowances for the upkeep of horses and automobiles used in their work was the principal business discussed at a meeting of the Montague County Rural Mail Carriers association, held here Wednesday. This factor consumed considerable discussion during the meeting. All expense of these items are now borne by the mail carriers themselves.

ART MODEL SECOND VENUS

Miss EllenKamerly.

NEW YORK, June 2.—(Special)—Like the well known and trusty street car there is always room for one more in the list of professional, prize and perfect beauties.

Miss Ellen Kamerly is the latest to join the ranks of the modern "Veni" —or what ever the plural of Venus may be. She's a native of Northport, somewhere in New York state. She's 20 and an art model and the "only living Greek," meaning by that another Venus, the only possessor of the perfect profile of the pure ancient Greek type.

Hers are blue eyes, light hair and a "perfect" pink and white complexion whose tints are derived from other sources than drug stores and cosmetic counters.

An then to top it all off she has passed through the ordeal of the Hammond test with flying colors and a perfect mark.

Her neck and shoulders are said to be just a little more than perfect if such a thing is possible.

Miss Kamerly has posed for such prominent artists and illustrators as Haskel, Coffin, Harrison Fisher, Tennyson Cole, A. Palumbo, Emil Fuchs, W. T. Benda and Homer Cohant.

Any other candidates for Miss Kamerly's honors?

Remember the street car—there's always room for one more.

Justice Clarke Sees Shadows Of Another Conflict

Associated Press Dispatch

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 30.—Organize the world for peace, was the appeal of Former Justice John H. Clarke of the United States supreme court, in a Memorial Day address today before the American Legion.

Another world war confronts the people, according to the utterances of military leaders and others, who estimate that it may come in three years or ten years, but that it is inevitable, the former justice said.

"Thus," said the speaker, "it is the truth of history and the lesson of yesterday, that the battles of the world are fought by boys sent to premature graves by ambitious, proud old men without a chance to serve mankind or to taste the joys of life. Yes, war is the game of old men in which the stakes are the lives of the youth of the world."

GAMBLING ON HORSES ONLY FORM LEGAL IN JUAREZ NEWEST LAWS

Associated Press Dispatch

EL PASO, Texas, May 30.—Betting on horse races and the sale of lottery tickets will be the only forms of gambling permitted in Juarez, according to an announcement today by J. M. Davilla, chief of the Mexican immigration service there. The announcement was called forth by reports that gambling, under a concession granted by the Chihuahua state government, would open Friday. Saturday night, when gambling started in Juarez, Captain Davilla closed the international bridges to traffic and kept them closed until the gamblers ceased operations. A similar order is promised for Friday if gambling resumes. The race track gambling concession is operated by Americans.

"SOULS FOR SALE" GIVES INSIDE[illegible] MOVIES—

In "Souls For Sale" Rupert Hughes has given the movie-going public a real slant at the inside of studio life. His under[illegible] was colossal but he has more than fulfilled his mission. "Major" [illegible] as he is affectionately known around the studio lot is one of the [illegible] novelists of the country, and his life in the dramatic world fits him [illegible]ally to stage and direct his great novel of screen life.

There is nothing superficial or incredible to the [illegible]s Rupert Hughes portrays it, his attitude toward life, and toward his [illegible]sters, his desire to make us both love and understand them makes us [illegible] that film-folk are real, just like us.

You almost feel that you've personally met the [illegible] of famous stars in the cast and the next time you see one of them [illegible]ig picture, you'll remember "Souls For Sale." Major Hughes has been [illegible] in selecting his cast to let these stars play characterizations that [illegible]cularly suited to their especial type—so we see them as they really [illegible]

"Souls for Sale" plays the rest of the week at the [illegible]and.

NORMA GOOD AS EVER IN "WITH[illegible]HE LAW"—

Lovers of Normal Talmadge will not miss seeing [illegible]r new pictures "Within the Law," in the role of Mary Turner, made [illegible]s by Jane Cowl on the stage. The picture is one of the best Norm[illegible]adge has ever played and ranks far above "The Voice from the M[illegible]" The scenario, written by Frances Marion adheres strictly to the p[illegible] those who are familiar with the story will be delighted with Di[illegible]Lloyd's splendid production of it. Insurance Men Making Survey of Crop Conditions From Air, Declaring It Is Quicker and Safer Than Ground

A dozen holders of life insurance policies issued by the United Fidelity Life Insurance company of Dallas enjoyed free airplane rides yesterday afternoon as guests of the company. The plane visited both Wichita Falls and Iowa Park in the afternoon, carrying several policyholders at both cities.

The big Curtiss ship landed at Call field at noon yesterday, and at 3:30 the first passenger, Miss Helen Potts, the youngest of the flight fans who took rides, was strapped in the seat of the plane. She smiled as the roar of the motor made speech impossible, and waved her hand at the crowd as the plane rose gracefully in the air.

"I wish I could stay up all afternoon," she said when she again set foot on earth, after a ride over the city. "It is the greatest fun!"

After carrying a few passengers here, the plane, which was scheduled to fly at Iowa Park, was flown to that city by Captain Epperson, the pilot. He dropped a note, telling them that he would return, and again came to Wichita Falls, where he carried other passengers, returning to Iowa Park, where several passengers awaited him.

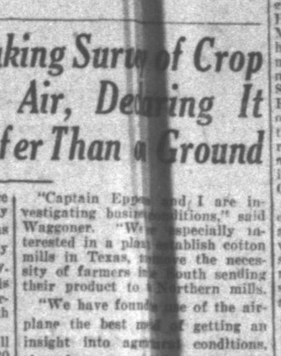

The plane flown by Captain Epperson is a big Curtiss of the army type. The pilot was accompanied here by D. Easly Waggoner, vice president of the company, who is on an extended tour through the state. He is conducting investigations of crops and business conditions, and is using the plane as the best means of transportation, with the flights for the policyholders as a feature of the trip.

"Captain Epp[illegible]nd I are investigating busin[illegible]nditions," said Waggoner. "We [illegible]specially interested in a plan to establish cotton mills in Texas, to [illegible]ve the necessity of farmers in [illegible]outh sending their product to [illegible]Northern mills.

"We have found [illegible]e of the airplane the best me[illegible] of getting an insight into agricul[illegible] conditions, since from a gre[illegible]ht we are able to judge the crop[illegible]d and the amount of land [illegible] cultivation much better than [illegible] the ground. Gipson Gives Facts to Show Why Special Tax Measures Have Easy Sailing Through Legislature

AUSTIN, May 30.—"The average man is inherently honest, and when he becomes unduly warped it is nearly always prompted by either ambition or prejudice or lack of information. In like manner this applies to the legislative action of the house of representatives of the Thirty-eighth legislature," Representative E. H. Gipson of Wichita said tonight.

"Membership of the house of representatives consists of 150 members, 81 of whom were elected and represent counties which are not self-sustaining, that is, receive more money back from the state than they pay in. This leaves 69 members who represent self-sustaining districts, and by reason thereof, represent that portion of the state which supports the state government, and makes up the deficiency in the school fund of the remaining 99 counties.

"During the regular session and special session of the thirty-eighth legislature three important committees have been appointed on order of the house: the committee on revenue and taxation; the committee on appropriations; and the steering committee.

"The committee on revenue and taxation consists of 21 members, 10 of whom were elected from the counties not self-sustaining, and but six members representing legislative districts which pay into the state treasury more than they receive back, as much as $20,000.

"The committee on appropriations consists of 21 members—13 of whom represent districts not self-sustaining, and with but four members representing district which pay into the state treasury more than $20,000 in excess of the amount received back. Eleven members of the appropriation committee represent districts in which state institutions supported by legislative appropriations are located.

The steering committee, appointed to act in conjunction with a like committee appointed by the senate, consists of five members, three of whom represent districts not self-sustaining, and two members from districts which pay more taxes into the state treasury than they receive back. It is also interesting to note that the nine largest counties of the state—Dallas, Harris, Tarrant, El Paso, Wichita, McLenna, Galveston and Jefferson, having a combined membership of 33 members, are represented on the committee on revenue and taxation by Sturgeon of San Antonio, Stephens of El Paso, and Merriman of Beaumont; on the committee on appropriations they are represented by Potter of Tarrant county, and Quaid of El Paso, and on the steering committee, these industrial centers are represented by Quaid of El Paso.

"It is conceded that the members of these committees without exception, are men of the highest type, imbued with the patriotic desire to serve their state, and that they were selected by reason of the fact that they were outstanding characters in the legislature and throughout the state. I have the highest regard for these gentlemen, individually and collectively, and it is not my purpose to reflect either on them or their motives, but instead desire to call attention to the fact that the industrial centers have small representation on all of the important committees and that a substantial majority of the house represent districts which are not self-sustaining. The other portions of the state has 69 representatives on the floor of the house.

"When the foregoing facts are considered it is not hard to understand why a measure levying special taxes against the industries of the state have easy sailing in the committees and in the house. They never fail."

Andy Johnson's Weather-Beaten Tailor Shop Saved

Associated Press Dispatch

GREENVILLE, Tenn., May 30.—Beneath sunny skies thousands assembled here today for the dedication for the handsome brick building erected by the state of Tennessee for preservation of the weather-beaten little tailor shop of Andrew Johnson, 17th president of the United States.

Counter part of Abraham Lincoln's cabin, the tailor shop is expected to be another shrine of American patriots, anybolic of the opportunity of every boy to attain the highest honor which this country can bestow upon him, despite poverty.

Miss Margaret Johnson Patterson great granddaughter of Andrew Johnson, formally presented the tailor shop to the state of Tennessee. Governor Austin Peay accepted it, and presented the shop to the Mothers' club, legal custodians.

Interesting Wedding Event of Wednesday At Baptist Church

A wedding of interest to a large group of friends took place at the First Baptist church Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, when Miss Ethel Raney, daughter of Mrs. J. M. Raney, became the bride of Lester A. Randolph of Pittsburgh, Pa., Dr. O. L. Powers, the pastor officiating.

The spacious church auditorium was attractively decorated for the occasion in pink and white gladioli and roses and ferns, and preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff and Miss Vivian Railey played for a piano and violin duet, Cadman's "At Dawning." Mrs. Jerry Schaefer sang for the pre-naptnal solo, "O Promise Me," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. P. R. Collard, who also played the Mendelssohn's wedding music for the processional and played softly during the reading of the ceremony.

The bride, who was lovely in an afternoon gown of midnight blue flat crepe, with hat and gloves of beige and shower bouquet of brides roses was attended by her sister, Mrs. R. H. Hudgins of Tampico, N. M.

Mr. Hudgins was the bridegroom's only attendant.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Randolph left for the East and will visit in Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., Bryson City, N. C., and Ashville, N. C., Washington D. C., and other points before going to the home at Pittsburgh, where the groom is connected with the Oil Well Supply company.

The bride is one of Wichita Fall's most popular and attractive girls, and her many friends regret that her marriage has taken her to another city to make her home. She is the youngest daughter of Mrs. J. M. Raney.

ATTRACTIVE AFFAIR FOR MRS. SMITH

One of the most attractive parties of the spring season was given at the Municipal club Tuesday, when Mrs. W. J. Morgareidge and Mrs. S. R. Lawing entertained with a bridge luncheon complimenting Mrs. Ada Pace Smith, who leaves soon for California.

The ballroom of the clubhouse was decorated and made homelike with rugs and masses of cut flowers, ferns and potted plants, from among which colorful Japanese lanterns and balloons in all colors bursted forth, the effect produced being unusually beautiful.

A three-course luncheon was served at 1 o'clock, and besides the guest of honor, covers were laid for Mesdames Will Rinehart, Disiere Jones, Davis, Datson, Hoffman, Worthington, Rugeley, Kellogg, Allen, Dobie, Gray, Hunter, Green, Van Vleck, Shaw, and Misses Ethel Chamberlain and Leslie Davis.

After the menu, bridge was enjoyed, Miss Ethel Chamberlain receiving the high score favor, a door knocker, Mrs. Smith was presented with an exquisite hand-painted perfume bottle, and score pencils in the form of American beauty roses were given the guests as cut prizes at the close of the game.

Punch was served during the afternoon.

QUT LINES IN MODERN GOWNS

The June bride most modern and omit the veil, continue her career after she uses her own name instead of her husband's, but if a wedding her gown and those of her attendants will smack of the days when the groom became master after the ceremony. The tight-fitting bodices, lace filled skirts nearly of hoopskirt and other old fashioned ideas are revived this year for the gown and frocks of the honor and bridesmaids. Her group of gowns showing styles which are favored now for the little flower girls and bearers.

The bride's gown which is covered up by her huge bouquet and veil is of silver lace made on long straight lines after the empire style, a rather bold departure from the prevailing modes but quite effective for a bridal gown.

Hydrangea chiffon makes the gowns of the left and right, the blue hydrangea shade which is unusual and quite a pleasant change from the pinks and the pastel shades. The gown at the right is made with a tight bodice and a ruffled skirt. Each ruffle is edged with a darker tone of the same color and a little square collar of the darker chiffon is edged with lace. There are no sleeves in the frock and the only trimming is a garland of hydrangea blossoms at the waistline.

The costume at the left is similar as to general lines but instead of a ruffled skirt the skirt is gathered and trimmed with lace set in large diamond designs. The bodice is trimmed with two deep points of lace put on in bertha effect and reaching to the waistline. Here again hydrangea blossoms are used at the waistline as trimming. They are clustered at each side and streamers of ribbon fall from them to the hem.

The frocks of the flower girls are made of white chiffon, lace or silk net and are simply trimmed in lace or petals made of white silk.

LOVELY DINNER FOR WEDDING PARTY

Complimenting Miss Myrtle Bowman and Murrell Hooper, whose wedding will be an event of Sunday evening, the Epworth league of the First Methodist Church, South, entertained at dinner Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Kemp hotel.

The long table, arranged banquet fashion, was centered with an archway covered with pink roses with gates ajar, under which stood a miniature bride and groom. Baskets of flowers, tied with maline bows of gold and white, the league colors, added further to the loveliness of the setting.

The place cards were hand-painted kewpies tied in the gold and white. Bowman, bride-elect; Murrell Hooper.

The wedding party, including Miss Miss Ethel May Winkleman of Rogers, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cole and son, W. C. Cole, Jr.; Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Bowman of Neosho, Mo.; and Mrs. T. A. Winkleman, were seated facing the centerpiece.

J. D. Pinkston acted as toastmaster for the occasion and Harry Kinkead opened the program with a toast on "Man, How a Woman's Charm Affects him." Mrs. L. C. Foster toasted "Woman;" Roy Carter toasted the bride, and impromptu toasts were given by Ida Baggett, J. W. Thorne, R. W. H. McCullouch, Carl Hare, Mrs. Carl Hare, Bonnie Rhodes, Roy E. Your Heart and Home Problems Solved By Elizabeth Thompsun

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl, 20 years old, and have been going steady with a boy for two years. He always says he loves me and that I am so different from other girls. All of a sudden he disappeared for two months. Then he came back and said he did not know what got into his head. After that it seemed to me he did not care for me as he did before.

We both belong to the same religion only he goes twice as much as I do. I have only time to go once a week, but he keeps saying I don't try hard enough to go. That hurts me very much.

When I started to go with him I had a home and he used to come to see me at home. But for the last two months we have broken up housekeeping and I am working in a private home where not even girl friends can come to see me, much less boys. He asked me if he could come to the house and I told him he couldn't and explained how it was. He has seemed to feel worse toward me since.

I have a girl friend who tells me I do not show my love and that would keep him. Do you think this is so? Would you advise me to keep going with him?

This girl friend takes girls and boys to the house where she works, but never has been able to take the boy she goes with steady to her own home. He says that any little fuss they would have the family would know about. I am sure he loves her very much. Why do you think he does not want to go to her home?

ANXIOUS BROWN EYES.

I would not advise you to show your boy friend how much you love him. He does not deserve to know unless he asks you to marry him. Let him go if he wants to. It seems to me his interest in you is wavering, and the harder you try to hold him, the less he will like you. As soon as a friend becomes difficult to get along with it is just as well to let him go.

I can't imagine why the young man will not to the home of your girl friend. His excuse seems to me flat, because it would not be necessary for him to quarrel openly even if his nature demanded a quarrel. Perhaps he thinks his character would not stand the test of the critical eyes of the girl's parents.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: We are two girls 15 and 21. Will you please tell us how to get rid of dandruff? Our hair is very short and thin and we think it is due to dandruff.

Will you please tell us how to make our hands fat and white?

TEACHER AND PUPIL.

Vaseline is one of the best hair growers, and will get rid of the dandruff. It depends on the dryness of the scalp how often the vaseline should be applied. Once or twice a week, however, should be often enough. Make a part straight from the front to the back of the head and rub the vaseline in thoroughly. Be careful not to let it get on the hair itself. When you have finished that part of the scalp make another part and continue thus until you have massaged the whole head.

To whiten and soften your hands have your druggist prepare the following lotion: Glycerin, one ounce; bay rum, two ounces, carbolic acid 20 drops.

Apply the lotion after washing the hands and rub it well into the skin. At night wash the hands thoroughly with warm water and soap, rinsing well, and then apply the lotion. It is beneficial to wear a pair of old kid gloves to bed. Your hands may not fatten to any great extent, but they will become far more beautiful.

BAD RAISING.

Some time ago a western town-raised young man went east and got a job paying $175 a month, which is not a bad achievement. Yet not a month goes by but he writes his granddad in the old home town for money. And all the grandfather has to live on is his civil war pension check. Doubtless you think harsh things about that young man. The chances are that it is granddad's bringing up that has made him so selfish.

Child-birth
Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!
When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. He was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse, and they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

Spudders Divide Double Bill With Exporters

LOCALS CHALK UP 17 RUNS IN FIRST GAME ONLY TO BE SHUT OUT IN THE SECOND EPISODE

Bischoff Gets Four Hits in Five Trips to the Plate, One Home Run, Two Doubles and a Single. Locals Only Get Three Hits in Second Bill.

By "COMP"

The Spudders slugged their way through the first game with the Beaumont Exporters yesterday, winning by the score of 17 to 2, only to be shut out in the second bill by the score of 8 to 0. The Salmite boys garnered 16 hits off Jacobus in the first game, but were held to three scratch hits by Bradshaw in the second. It was the first time the Spudders had the experience of being shut out since the season opened.

The locals hit Jacobus hard, but were unable to solve Bradshaw's delivery in the second, while the visitors were unable to make much headway against Wheeler. They hit Carlson at times when hits meant runs. The locals' only clean hit in the second game came in the seventh inning, when Kitchens doubled to right.

In the first bill the Spudders opened up in the second stanza. Cotter walked, stealing second. Grigsby bunted and both runners were safe when Berger singled to left and went all the way to third on DeMaggio's error, scoring Cotter and Grigsby. Bischoff singled to left, scuring Berger.

The Exporters tightened up in the third inning, and no runs were chalked up on either side. The visitors were held in the following stanza, but locals were not content with a two-run lead, and between slugging everything Jacobus had to offer and an error donated by Turgeon, two more Spudders circled the bases and the annihilation was on.

A little bit of everything known to baseball took part in the five remaining innings of the contest. The Exporters were only able to bring in two runs during the game, and errors on the part of visiting players materially aided the Spudders in their overwhelming victory.

Bischoff, as usual, garnered more than his share of hits, getting a home run, two doubles and a single in the five times he was at bat. Tanner and Cotter came in for their share of the honors, each getting a double. Wheeler, besides being able to hold the Exporters, was not content with just pitching a winning game, but in the sixth inning knocked the horsehide to deep right and scored on Coombs' single past third.

The visitors attempted to start a little fireworks in the sixth, but were forced to be contented with a single tally when Jacobus struck out with a man on third.

The locals turned their heavy artillery loose in the last half of this stanza. They hit everything Jacobus had, and knocked the pill to every part of the field. Six Spudders made complete trips around the field in this period, and everyone counting as an earned run.

During the last half of the eighth, the Spudders made a paltry three runs. Of course, it was nothing to talk about, as it was just a repetition of what had gone before.

A different story must be told of the second bill. In this one the Salmite boys did very little but try. Dame Fortune evidently decided that they had had their share of the spoils in the first game and beamed with all her might on the visitors.

Bradshaw's delivery was unfathomable to local batsmen, and although only three Spudders struck out, they were unable to do anything but fly out. Three hits were all that Salm's men were able to squeeze in, and these were so widely scattered that they failed to bring even one man across the home plate.

Carlson, on the other hand, was hit hard and although the veteran Pirate twirler struck out seven Exporters, the visitors lunched their hits and were able to chalk up eight tallies in the seven-inning game.

The third, fourth and fifth innings spelled disaster for the Spudders, three, two and three tallies being consecutively marked up for the visitors.

Bradshaw pitched a wonderful game, the best of the Spudders repeatedly going down before his superb pitching.

Clarence Jonnard, the new catcher acquired by the local team, reported to Manager Walt Salm during the second game. He was in civilian clothes, and few of the fans recognized the former Pirate.

GIBBONS LOOKS OVER BATTLE GROUND

Associated Press Dispatch

SHELBY Mont., May 30.—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, challenger for the heavyweight championship of the world here July 4, looked over the arena grounds last evening, made arrangements for his training quarters and left for St. Paul last night, to bring his family to Shelby. He will return here Saturday and then will depart for a three-day exhibition at Calgary, Lethbridge and Regina, in Canada, and expects to be back to start training here June 9.

The tickets for the big fight arrived here today and will be distributed at once, reservations having been marked down for $300,000 worth of seats.

MAD HATTER WINS

1923 Seems To Be Veterans' Year

Dick Rudolph, in his world's series days, right, and as he looks this year, nobby pants and all.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Who said this was the age of youth, vigor, speed and what not? This is the age of oldtimers—has beens and decrepit individuals, if one would let the sport world decide.

Consider the fight world first. Just when Luis Firpo, Argentine boy; Floyd Johnson and some others, virtual newcomers, are about ready to hog the heavyweight limelight, Jess Willard, 41 years old and out of the ring for four years, puts them all in the shade. He knocks out the tough, youthful, energetic Floyd Johnson in 11 rounds. He is the most talked of fighter in the game right now.

Consider baseball. By virtue of their spectacular showing in the majors or minors last year a flock of young kids were destined to share the glory on the big league diamonds this year. Herman Pillette, Ted Lyngkenship, Walter Lutzke, Homer Ezzel and a flock of others were due to shine. But who has drawn the big headlines? Grover Clevgnd Alexander, Walter Johnson, Cy Williams and other vets.

BERNSTEIN BEATS DUNDEE FOR TITLE

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 30.—Jack Bernstein, of Yonkers, won the junior lightweight championship tonight from Johnny Dundee, of New York, titleholder, receiving the judges' decision after their fifteen-round bout at the Velodrome.

Bernstein won the title in an uphill fight.

In the earlier rounds, Dundee took a wide lead and in the third put the Yonkers battle to the canvas for the count of nine. Bernstein weathered the round and came back fresh in the fourth.

When the tenth session arrived, Dundee was tired. Bernstein began to take the lead and outfought the champion for the remainder of the bout. It was a close fight, but the judges agreed that Bernstein had the advantage through his whirlwind finish.

Weights were: Dundee, 123½; Bernstein 128.

Around the Texas League Loop

WITH "DOC"

Far be it from us to offer the lowly Gassers any sympathy. They have enough trouble trying to win ball games as it is, and probably wouldn't appreciate it anyway. There are, however, certain things that we are allowed to comment on. One of these is the release by Shreveport of Slim Slappey, one of their best pitchers, to the Beaumont Exporters. To those watching the struggle for top place in the Texas league between seven of the teams and the stalwart guarding of the cellar door by the Gassers, we just wonder how in San Hill that club can cast off one of their star twirlers. It looks to us like Shreveport needs all the players they can get.

SPECULATING

Ex-Pirates sure lead to Spudder fans, since Harold Jonnard is down with the locals. Now Manager Walt Salm has come across with another pleasant surprise by announcing the acquisition of Clarence Jonnard from the Pirates. Jonnard's fame has spread before him, and everyone is speculating as to just what is going to happen to the other fellows with Carlson on the mound and Jonnard behind the bat.

Concurrent with the announcement of Jonnard's capture, it also appeared on the horizon in the way of an announcement by Manager Salm that one of the Spudder outfielders would have to be released. This makes some of the joy out of the Jonnard business.

THE LAST LAUGH

The Cats have been having it all their own way lately, and are feeling pretty chesty over the way they have been knocking the heads about the lot. I reckon we'd be just about the same if we were in their shoes. The only thing we don't agree with them in, is this: They have made the assertion that they are going to keep right on holding the top rung of the ladder. That is a broad statement to make at this time of the season, and there is an old saying which runs true in many cases, that they have overlooked, "He who laughs last laughs best." They are having their laugh now, but the season isn't over.

INDIANAPOLIS, May mmy Milton of St. Paul, achieved the ambition o rilliant racing career today when for the second e won the 500-mile automobile race over the In lis motor speedway, repeating his victory of 1921 a crowd of 150,000 spectators. It was the gre rong that ever witnessed a sporting event in A.

Milton's time for the 500 miles was 5:28:06.27, giving him an average speed of 91.4 miles an hour, as compared with the record-breaking speed of 94.48 made a year ago.

Harry Hartz of Los Angeles, who finished second in the 1922 race, thundered across the finishing line five miles behind Milton, while Jimmy Murphy, winner of the 1922 race, was third, about 13 miles behind Hartz. Hartz's time was 5:33:05.90 for an average of 90.06 miles an hour. Murphy finished in 5:40:36.04 for an average speed of 88.08 miles an hour.

Curing Your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

By JIM BARNES.

Dear Mr. Barnes:

I have two mashies, one light and one heavy and play with my right hand over the left on the shaft. With the heavy mashies, following your advice to swing the club back only a short distance, I am able to get good distance and direction. With the light mashie, when playing up to the green from about 130 yards, the ball is apt to land 20 yards to the left. Would you say that I had better get a new club or go on using the present one, aiming well to the right of the pin?—R. P.

ANSWER.

My recommendation would be to use the heavier club for such distances. What you are doing in using the light club at such ranges is to force the club above its limits. This is dangerous practice. You will rarely see a good professional or the leading amateurs push a club for the last yard it is worth. For when they do, they are put to exerting themselves too strenuously, and cannot hope to keep control as to direction.

Your trouble in playing to the left is due to the fact that you are trying to apply extra force and that the right hand is coming into the stroke too strongly. Instead of doing this use the heavier club, or at least one that will give you more distance than the light club, and don't try to swing so hard.

It is a bad idea to get the impression that you ought to get such and such distance with this club or that. The soundest advice along this line is to use the club that will get you there with the least effort and permit of control over the stroke. Under-clubbing is a very common fault among high handicap players, and the quicker a player gets away from the idea of applying a club up to the very maximum of his game with it, the quicker is he going to improve.

I would strongly advise against purposely playing far to the right of the pin. Following the suggestions given above and play for the pin.

BEST PITCHER IN LEAGUE

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

The best pitcher in the American league today.

That is Ed Rommel.

I can see the line forming on the left to dispute that assertion. But I can't see many logical arguments against it.

This elongated drink of water who pitched 27 victories for a team of unorganized youngsters and a couple of vets last year is on his way to a better record this year. Barring injuries, he will win over 30 games.

Has a pitching style that makes him one of the most interesting hurlers in the league. It's a sort of easy-going almost careless style. With men on bases and the batter in the hole, Rommel shows no more concern when he lets go that final ball than he does when the sacks are empty and he has the game well in hand.

The fan who sees him for the first time sees in that easy style almost too much carelessness. But the box scores never show it.

Rommel's chief asset is a mystery ball. For two or three seasons writers called it a knuckle ball. But a close scrutiny of Rommel's grip on the ball refutes this idea. If anything it is more of a finger nail ball. Whatever the grip may be called Rommel holds the ball in such a way that he gets a twist on it which makes it perform more weirdly than the shine ball or the knuckle ball that Eddie Cicotte hurled before he tried to pay off the mortage on the old farm. It is unruly only to the batter, however. Rommel has it completely subjugated.

Added to this favorite shoot Rommel has a beautiful change of pace, a good curve and plenty of speed.

He has, too, the proper temperment for a pitcher. Nothing ruffles him. I have seen him boot a sacrifice with men on second and third. Realizing that his boot cost him a chance to nail any one of the runners Rommel calmly picked up the ball, returned to the box and prepared to pitch. There was no consultation of infielders to calm him down nor was there any parley with young Perkins, his backstop. To Rommel the matter was a closed accident. The next man hit a weak bounder, swinging lamely at a slow ball.

Not only is Rommel a star today, but he has the qualifications that a big league hurler needs to remain in the fast company year after year. Barring accidents, he will be swinging that long arm leisurely in the box for Connie Mack for some years.

COIN TOSSED TO PICK SLAYER OF ANSE HATFIELD

Associated Press Dispatch

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 29. A coin was tossed to determine who would kill Anse Hatfield, Matewan hotel proprietor and prominent figure in the Matewan disorders in 1920, according to testimony today in the federal court injunction hearing against the United Mines Workers.

The story of the "Hatfield death gamble" which came shortly before the plaintiff coal operators concluded the introduction of their testimony, was told today by Ike Brewster in describing the Matewan "street battle" when Albert Felts and six other Baldwin-Felts detectives were killed after they had evicted striking miners from the company houses.

After Hatfield had testified before a grand jury investigating the Matewan shooting a number of men met to discuss reprisal measures, Brewster declared, and finally determined who would killed Hatfield by tossing a coin.

Hatfield was shot to death at night while sitting in front of his hotel.

GIBBONS TELLS HOW HE TRAI... FOR GO WITH CHAMPION JACK

Aspirant Not Worried Over Dempsey's Famous Rabbit Punch

By DEAN SNYDER

SHELBY, Mont., May 28.—Tommy Gibbons is the most talked of man in the world at this minute.

But Tom doesn't do much talking himself.

For two years he has pushed ahead—pointing toward Dempsey.

"I can't train any different for Dempsey than I have done for all the rest of my fights," says Gibbons.

"Every fighter tapers off for a match in his own individual way.

"The real change in my fighting life started two years ago when I began hitting for knockouts.

"Up to that time I thought boxing was the thing.

"But just boxing clever won't get you any place in the heavyweight class.

"You've got to put them on the floor to make the people like you.

"I have been accused of fighting setups. Anybody you can lick is a setup. Some of the so-calld trial horses wouldn't go in the ring with me.

"Dempsey has always been my ideal of a fighting man.

"The champion can sock. He can use his head in the ring. He can make his feet dance in the ring. And personally Dempsey is one of the most likeable fellows I ever met.

"I'm just contender now. After July fourth I may be something else.

"It isn't the money I'll get if I win—or the loser's end if I should fail—that I'm fighting for. It's the title.

"My part of the contract calls for no money until Dempsey gets his $300,000 bit.

"This theatrical tour will tune me up for the grind ahead. It may get me a litle cash to pay training costs. "I'll work with big fellows and little ones in my camp.

"Three weeks hard work is all I'll take. There is always a chance of getting stale. I know my limits.

"Helen, my wife, and the three babies will be with me. She thinks she ought to be near me when we have so much at stake.

"She says I spend all my time writing to her and the children when we are separated. I'll admit I am always thinking about her and the youngsters.

"I don't know how I'll fight Dempsey, yet. 'I can box him. I can fight him. I can mix them up. But I'm going in there to beat him decisively. You have to do that to win from a champion.

"I'm going into the ring with one feeling—Dempsey isn't a superman. If I thought he was I wouldn't have made the match.

"Some of the betting, I understand, is on the round Dempsey will knock me out.

"These people are going to be surprised.

"I have never been knocked out in my life. It won't happen in the Shelby ring.

"I have made a study of nerve centers. Surgeons at Minnesota university showed me through the clinic.

"Knocking a man out is like pressing buttons. When you press the right button or combination the lights go out.

"Dempsey's famed rabbit punch doesn't worry me a bit. It isn't a fair blow but he will never get far enough behind me to lay one in there.

"I feel I could have whipped Carpentier just as easily as Dempsey did it. That was the only time I ever saw him fight."

The champion has seen Gibbons in action once. That was the Greb fight at the Garden.

But he didn't see the real Tommy Gibbons that night. Just 13 days before Tommy was flat on his back with a flu kayo. It took away his strength, his cleverness—his real fighting self.

The Shelby ring will be a checkerboard July 4 and Tommy Gibbons will know every move on it.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

POSITION OF CLUB AT INSTANT OF IMPACT

In order to get the ball into the air, is it necessary for the player to fly and put a lift into the swing, or will the club head take care of this?

Answered by BOB MacDONALD

veteran tournament player, winner of the Metropolitan open championship, 1921, and the Texas open championship, 1922. Famous the world over for his long distance driving.

Hit the ball squarely, and do not try to lift it. The club head will take care of the lift. A player who tries to lift the ball usually does nothing but roll it. In order to avoid the two incorrect strokes shown above, the ball should be directly in front of the player. At the instant of impact, the weight is almost entirely on the left leg, the right foot pointed out at an angle of 45 degrees, the shoulders in line with the position of the feet, and the eyes on the ball.

FANNING BEE

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The laurels
Of the Delahantys
And the O'Neills as being the prize baseball families
Are threatened now by the Ogden boys.

Comes word that the St. Louis Cardinal ivory hunters have been looking over one Tim Ogden, now starring in the box for the Swarthmore college team. And Tim is no less than a brother of Johnny and Warren, both of whom stepped from the college ranks to the limelight.

Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, grabbed off the elder, Johnny, while that bird was patching for the rah, rah team. His brother, Warren, took his place with the Swarthmore nine until Connie Mack grabbed him off last year. Warren now looms as one of the several coming pitching stars Mack is developing.

When Warren left the college team flat the coaches simply called in brother Tim. His work was so brilliant that the big league head hunters were after him before the present season was far advanced.

Are there any more at home like Johnny, Warren and Tim?

SPEAKING OF DIVORCES.

The English are alarmed because they have 3,464 suits for divorce filed in one year. Shucks! Here in America we have that many divorces every 11 days, and our population is less than three times as many as England's. Every time there are nine marriages in our country there's one divorce—about a million marriages and over 112,000 divorces a year.

WHY HE WANTS TO WIN

Tommy Gibbons, Mrs. Gibbons and their three-year-old son, Jackie.

There are many reasons why any fighter cherishes a desire to win a title. Here are the two main reasons why Tom Gibbons wants to beat Jack Dempsey when they meet July 4 at Shelby, Mont., and carry the heavyweight crown from the ring. Said reasons are Mrs. Gibbons and the pride of the Gibbons family, Jackie, aged threee.

TOO LATE TO PLANT COTTON IN GEORGIA AFTER HEAVY RAINS

Associated Press Dispatch.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 30. —Long continued rains in Georgia and Alabama have prevented the planting of cotton until so late in the season that the farmers declare it is useles to plant that crop. Movements are under way in some 20 counties in Georgia and Alabama, especially in the northern portions of those states, to plant a late Irish potato crop to take the place of cotton. They are figuring on $1 a bushel for potatoes, and a yield of 100 bushels to the acre. In most of these counties they claim that less than one-third of a crop of cotton can be grown this year.

Cull Your Flock With Care Says Poultry Expert

By AL OLSTON
Poultry Extension Department, Maricle Coal and Feed Company
Culling poultry for vigor and vitality should be continuous throughout the year. In fact any time an unprofitable bird is found she should be culled out. In addition, the entire flock should be culled systematically once each year.
In looking over and culling birds throughout this section, I have noticed a very important things. I have culled out as high as 75 per cent of certain people's birds. When you cull as large per cent or more than one, it surely does show up very poorly for the ability of one as a poultry raiser.
I find a great number of people raising birds who really do not know the least about the parent stock of the bird. This is very important, in fact, is the basis of the production of poultry. Unless you are raising birds from a proven tested record fowl, you will not have much success in culling. Then, again, how can we give our birds a fair chance at the culling time if we have not provided properly for them to be good layers?
The best layer with improper care will very soon be culled out an unprofitable bird. If you really want to give your birds a fair chance before the culling, stop feeding them haphazardly. Be doubly sure that you are giving them a true balanced ration each. Do not think because your birds are doing fairly well now on a mixture that everything is satisfactory.
Keep an accurate daily record of how these birds have done through the winter months. Most anyone can raise chickens with rather good success through the warm days, but what usually after is not to see a lull in egg production as soon as November sets in, or at a continuation of a fair egg production through the three cold months also. Therefore, it behooves us to see that we have given the birds a fair chance to be good stuff if it's in them making, at culling time. Get rid of them from the poor constituted poultry, the loose habit.
Remember when you do cull, cull with a view to build only for a paying flock of birds. Let's get rid of the bird that a hen laying 125 to 150 eggs per year on a three-stretch is not good enough for you. If you have a flock of birds that are under the 200 egg-laying strain, get rid of them and build your flock up to a paying basis. Remember always to have all facts on the present stock before you cull.
Also remember some of the following points:
Laxity: Any bird that remains in the roost late in the mornings and roosts soon in the evenings, a crow beak, sunken scaly comb, and a listless appearance shows lack of vitality and should be culled. Cull all early molters. A high producing hen is, as a rule, have a broad back, a deep body, well shaped ribs and full breast.
The pelvic bones shoulde be straight and apart, ranging in thickness from five-sixteenth to three-fifths of an inch including the skin and gristle. The thin and crooked pelvic bones indicate poor layers. The vent, the legs and beak should be of a pallish color as the bright yellow indicates a poor layer.
If your hens have gone to roost for a rather heavy feed that night, make a careful note of all your birds. Follow their point and I am sure you will have a fair success in culling. Remember this applies to the mererain breeds on a

COLONIZATION IS DISCUSSED

Plans For Settling Water Districts Are Being Worked Out

Meetings will be held every Wednesday by the colonization committee of the chamber of commerce until some effective plan is devised for properly colonizing the irrigation districts, it was decided yesterday following the first session of the colonization committee.

Plans Advanced.

Several plans were advanced as to the best manner in which the districts could be cultivated properly, it being the concensus of opinion of those present that a practical demonstration of irrigation possibilities would be necessary before the lands were placed on the market. In this connection Reece S. Allen told the committeemen that the Rio Grande valley irrigation projects had been failures for years because no systematic effort had been made to do things correctly.

Speculation Undesirable.

It was also given as the committee's opinion that some means whereby the land owners could unite in a plan to provide settlers with farms on easy payment terms was necessary.

Speculation in irrigable tracts should also be curbed, the committee believed.

Further plans for the colonization of the valley are to be worked out as time goes on.

Lions Take Rap At Dr. Parnell Losing His Car

A subtle slam at Dr. L. D. Parnell and two delightful readings by Miss Pearl Smith furnished the entertainment features of the weekly Lions club session at the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday noon. Miss Smith, who is an accomplished reader and who has appeared before the Lions before, gave an impressive interpretation of feminine fanoette's first visit to a ball game. She responded to an encore with a humorous poem.

Dr. Parnell came in for some panning because of the fact that his automobile was recently stolen from under his very eyes. Rev. Lambreth Hancock, in giving an account of the affair, dropped some hints that perhaps the "theft" has not affected the doctor as greatly as he had let on. To which the loser admitted that he had merely arranged it to simplify delivery of drugs to some of his customers.

It was announced at the meeting that the district Lion president would be a guest of the club in August on a tour of all clubs of the state.

Volunteers Hold All Day Picnic At Park

An all-day picnic at city park west of the city was enjoyed Wednesday by the Volunteers of America. A total of 104 persons were on hand for the various games and amusements provided and to aid in disposing of the basket lunch served at noon.

The events were in charge of Captain Baird, who has organized the Volunteers Sunday school here.

All the sleepers were transported from the meeting hall, 705½ Ohio avenue, to the park as guests of the Hearne Auto Rent service.

Verdict For Plaintiff Ordered By Wilson

An instructed verdict for the plaintiffs was ordered Wednesday afternoon by Special Judge H. R. Wilson of the Eighty-ninth district court in the case of Sanger Brothers vs. Nix, et al. The suit was one on a note of $5,000 alleged to have been owed the plaintiff by the defendants.

A jury was called for and selected in the case but after preliminary evidence had been presented Judge Wilson ordered that a verdict be found for the plaintiff.

Airplane sale. Call Field, 10 a. m. today.

T. E. Smith of Henrietta, was in the city yesterday.

J. A. Josephson of St. Louis, was in the city yesterday on business.

Miss Eva Lynn Weems, of Dallas, is the guest of Mrs. J. M. Bonner this week.

Mrs. May Wade Nevinne, court reporter of the county court at law, is in Quanah for a few days.

Mrs. L. O. Nelson will leave today for Ruston, La., for a few weeks visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Waggoner and daughter, Lucille, and Mrs. H. L. Hunter, have returned from Ardmore, Okla.

Another sure sign of summer: The tar began oozing out of the streets yesterday.

F. H. Wigand, traveling freight agent of the L. and M. railroad, of Dallas, was in Wichita Falls yesterday afternoon.

W. R. Kinney, of Dallas, traveling freight agent for the B. and O. lines, is in the city on business.

Sid King, traveling freight agent for the Wabash railroad, with headquarters in Dallas, is in Wichita Falls on business.

George Barlow of Dallas, who has been a visitor in Wichita Falls for several days, returned yesterday to his home.

Mrs. W. A. Carrigan of Mineral Wells, arrived in the city yesterday to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. J. V. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Torian of Lafayette, La., are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. P. Jackson of this city. They will remain in Wichita Falls for several weeks.

Paving operations are still going on out at Lucile street, the city engineer's office reports, with prospects of this stretch being finished in a short time.

Another mild day so far as arrests were concerned was reported Wednesday from the police station. Three made up the day's total.

New awnings are going up around the Hallom and Grisely jewelry store corner at Eighth and Indiana. The old ones were getting worn out.

Considering the dullness in other offices, the marriage license bureau did a commendable day's work yesterday. Three were given out.

I. H. Tabor of Fort Worth, traveling freight agent for the I. and G. N. railroad, was here Wednesday in the interest of the road.

R. W. Johnson and M. E. Skeen, of the local oil fraternity, left yesterday for an extended business trip through Oklahoma and Nebraska, where they will make surveys of oil fields.

The Record News presentation of the new traffic laws drawn by Chief of Police Hodgins met considerable favor with the public. A number of motorists called at the city hall to "talk it over" with the chief.

Several matters relating to the work of the organization was taken up Wednesday at a meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms of the Wichita County Rural Mail Carriers association. A full attendance of the members was present for the session.

H. N. Roberts, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad, returned yesterday from a three-day trip to Breckenridge and other points on the road, where he made inspection of the line.

The building at the corner of Eighth and Indiana streets, owned by C. W. Snyder and occupied by the Haltom-Friedly jewelry store and the Marion hotel, is being equiped with new awnings over the windows.

That must have been a high-powered meeting Pete Rogers and W. E. McBroom had in the city clerk's office Wednesday. It is reported on good authority that they settled the city auditorium question, the traffic rumpus and the paving issue.

Fifteen drivers of the Wichita Ice company were yesterday treated to the ball game by the "boss," according to H. A. Williams, one of the drivers, who called Old Home Town last night. "We just want to show our appreciation to the boss," Williams said.

Judge P. A. Martin returned Wednesday night from Fort Worth where he has been attending graduation exercises of his daughter for the past three days. Judge M. R. Wilson of the Thirtieth district court has been occupying Judge Martin's bench in the Eighty-ninth.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bowman and son, Verdon, of Sondia, Mo., arrived Tuesday afternoon for an extended visit with their daughters, Mrs. W. C. Cole and Miss Myrtle Bowman, 1208 11th street. They were accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Wendleman and daughter, Ethel Mae, of Rogers, Ark., who are here to attend the wedding of Miss Bowman and Mr. Hooper, which will take place at 6:45 Sunday evening at the First M. E. church, south. Miss Ethel Mae will be one of the flower girls.

There were some real Troubadors out the other evening. Contrary to romantic convention, they were Juliets! There were violins, girls voices singing, and stringed instruments strumming softly. They roped silently up in the drive under Town Stuff's window and sang sweet old songs rich in harmony—love songs, college songs, Spanish serenades and then rollicked off into "Carolina in the Morning." When T. Stuff started down the steps to meet his fair serenaders, they hurriedly backed out and drove away laughing into the night, singing "Toot Toot Tootsie, Good-Bye." And T. Stuff isn't the only one they visited.

POLICE HUNTING ESCAPED MAN

Prisoner Arrested On Theft Charge Flees From Ogle

Police are still searching for a man who escaped Wednesday morning from W. A. Ogle, local policeman, as the latter was conducting the prisoner to the city hall. The man broke away and made good his escape despite the fact that Ogle fired at him as he ran up a stairway of an Ohio avenue rooming house.

The fellow had been arrested on a charge of theft and was being marched up Ohio avenue when the escape took place. At the Dallas rooms stairway, he twisted loose from the patrolman, ran up the stairs and then leaped to the ground from a window, disappearing in the maze of railroad tracks at the rear of the rooms.

A search was conducted throughout the day but no trace of the man could be found.

Rogers Takes Under Advisement Suit

Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law has taken under advisement a complicated suit brought up for trial Wednesday morning in which four different persons are claiming some money now held in an Electra bank. Engleking and Dotson, attorneys, the First State bank of Electra and a third individual all are seeking a share of the total, about $843. The plaintiff in the suit, styled Marchland, Schlaffke and Kelly vs. J. W. and J. G. Vincent, are the fourth.

Equalization Board To Finish Work Soon

Completion of its work by the latter part of next week at the most is promised by the city board of equalization which has now been at work equalizing taxes for the past two weeks. Members of the board stated Wednesday that they had made sufficient progress to justify the belief that the work would be finished speedily.

The board has not made public as yet any statements as to how tax values are being made, although it was announced that the intention was to hold them as near as possible to the levels of last year.

BOND SALE IS OFFERED TO CITY

An offer to resell to the city about $10,000 worth of the street and waterworks bonds to mature November 1, 1950 has been made. (The bonds, which bear 6 per cent, were available at $1,033.20 on each $1,000, the announcement said.

City officials wired back an offer to accept the amount at par plus accrued interest but no answer has been received as yet to this communication.

CONVICTION OF HOLCOMB STAYS

Court of Criminal Appeals Affirms Sentence To Electra Man

Announcement was received here Wednesday that the conviction of Mutt Holcomb, charged with unlawful assembly in connection with the race riots at Electra last summer, has been affirmed by the court of criminal appeals. He had been fined $500.

It was alleged that Holcomb had been one of those directing a mob which formed at the Electra jail and which later burned a number of negro business buildings.

PAVING ESTIMATE FOR BRICK IS MADE

After considering for many months the proposed plan to remove the wooden pavement in the down town streets, and replace it with other pavement, the city council has made an estimate of $440 per 50-foot lot for the repaving.

The plan of the council is that the streets be paved with virified brick, since the concrete base that is already in place will enable the work to be done more cheaply than with other materials. It is announced that work will start as soon as a sufficient number of property owners have agreed to the plan.

Benninger Is Made Assistant Manager At Saul's After 5 Years

John A. Benninger, who has been made assistant manager of Saul's Store, managed by Saul Lebenson, has had an unusual career since he first became connected with the company. His advancement has been rapid, and, according to Lebenson, is entirely to the initiative of the man himself.

According to the manager of the store Benninger became connected with the store five years ago, doing odd jobs and working all day for $2 a day. At that time he was a green country boy without knowledge of the mercantile business. His employer believes his advancement due to his willingness to learn, his faith in his employer and his regard for duty without the counting of hours.

"I was impressed with his qualities," said Lebenson. "What Mr. Benninger has done any young man can do."
