Sales tax return plus 10.6 percent minus add-ons

New items and services now taxable under the state sales tax plan will not show up on returns to Texas cities until next month, but even without the increase it is expected to generate, Snyder's year-to-date sales tax total is still running more than 10 percent above last year's.

In actual dollars, the city has received almost $79,000 more in income through the sales tax during 1984 above what it received in 1983.

Across the state, sales through the end of September indicated a plus 13 percent in returns. The new items and services became taxable effective Oct. 1.

The checks mailed to Texas cities during December by the Comptroller of Public Accounts will reflect these additions.

November checks represent taxes collected on sales made in September and the end of the year's third quarter.

The Snyder return for November equaled $92,309, bringing the [illegible] to $821,567. The net total for 1983 during November was $742,701.

Surrounding cities of larger, smaller and like size to Snyder generally reported plus figures for sales tax. Only Big Spring and Post recorded minus figures.

A sampling of area cities includes:

—Lubbock: a year-to-date return of $11.5 million, compared to $10.6 million last year for a net difference of plus 8.0 percent.

—Abilene: a year-to-date return of $7.5 million, compared to $6.9 million last year for a net difference of plus 9.4 percent.

—Odessa: a year-to-date return of $6.8 million, compared to $6.6 million last year for a net difference of plus 2.3 percent.

—San Angelo: a year-to-date return of $4.6 million, compared to $4.5 million last year for a net difference of plus 2.5 percent.

Ask Us

Q. — What is the difference between the popular vote and the electoral vote and why do we vote if the President is elected by the electoral vote?

A. — As set up by the U.S. Constitution, the president is actually chosen by the Electoral College, but how its members vote is guided by the popular vote. In the December following the presidential election, the duly elected "presidential electors" in each state assemble, usually in the state's capital. In the election, the candidate who wins a plurality (the highest number) of a state's popular votes usually receives all the state's electoral votes. The number of electorial votes each state has is determined by that state's number of senators and representatives in Congress.

Donors may top 800 pints

Local residents will have the opportunity to put the county's yearly blood donor total over the 800 mark Tuesday as the last county-wide blood drive of 1984 is conducted.

It will be from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. Such efforts are jointly sponsored by the local advisory committee for United Blood Services of Lubbock and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The drive will be the sixth for 1984. The five earlier efforts have produced a net blood unit count of 724 pints.

In addition, 210 of these were from first time donors — a number that rates Scurry as the Number 1 county for first time donors from the 22-county area served by United Blood Services of Lubbock.

As in the past, each donor will receive a certificate good for a free Whataburger and every fifth donor will receive a free six-pack of Dr. Pepper, courtesy of the Sweetwater Bottling Company.

Space on outdoor signs to advertise the event have been donated by Westside Phillips 66 Station, Ben Wilson Supply, Shakey's Pizza and Pal-O-Mar Motel, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy, Joe Brown Carpet, Gill's Fried Chicken, The Shack, Whataburger, Snyder Nursery,

Memorial services held nationwide

By The Associated Press

Americans marked Veterans Day by vowing in graveside ceremonies, vigils for peace and with parades "never to forget" the sacrifices of those who served their country in war, and to make sure "it never happens again."

An estimated 25,000 people turned out in steady rain Sunday for Boston's annual Veterans Day parade, a two-hour spectacle through downtown streets and past the Statehouse, involving dozens of veterans' groups and bands.

In Washington, D.C., thousands of veterans gathered at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial to pay homage to their dead colleagues, and veterans' memorials were dedicated in Greenville, S.C., and New Orleans.

About 500 people gathered in the Massachusetts Statehouse Hall of Flags for a ceremony commemorating the signing of the 1918 armistice ending World War I and the 50 Massachusetts soldiers still listed as missing in Vietnam.

The holiday was known as Armistice Day until 1954, when Veterans Day was officially adopted to honor all veterans.

Troops in Nicaragua move to combat alert

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's armed forces were put on a state of combat alert and the civil defense force was activated today in anticipation of military action, the Sandinista government said.

Communiques from the Defense Ministry and the civil defense high command read over nationwide radio said the military moves were being made because of threats of attacks on Nicaragua.

The communiques did not specifically mention the United States, but Nicaraguan government officials have repeatedly said recently that a U.S. invasion was "imminent." The United States has denied the allegation.

Meanwhile, the Soviet freighter that sparked the latest U.S.-Nicaraguan confrontation left port after unloading its cargo, and Sandinista leaders said U.S. suggestions that warplanes had been aboard were fabricated to make Nicaragua appear threatening.

As the freighter Bakuriani sailed from the Pacific port of Corinto on Sunday, sonic booms were heard across Nicaragua for the fourth straight day. The leftist government's Voice of Nicaragua Radio station said the two booms were caused by a U. S. SR-71 high-altitude spy plane.

Last week, U. S. intelligence sources said the Bakuriani might have been delivering MIG fighter planes to Nicaragua, but Sandinista officials denied these reports and U. S. officials have subsequently indicated they doubt warplanes were on board.

The exact nature of the cargo remained unknown, but a source in Managua, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the Bakuriani brought two Soviet Mi8 combat helicopters and one Mi24 transport helicopter.

Nicaraguan Interior Minister Tomas Borge, in a speech Sunday, said the Reagan administration is using "propoganda that is sophisticated and without impunity to make Nicaragua look like a threat to the internal security of the United States"

Speaking in Matagalpa about 9 miles north of Managua Borge said the threat of U. S. invasion "is increasing"

He said that if Nicaragua is invaded, "we feel we have the right and the duty to punish the aggressors in whatever part of the world," He did not elaborate.

Managua's Roman Catholic archbishop, Miguel Obando y Bravo, a frequent critic of the Sandinistas, said in a homily, "There can be no peace while those who govern us talk of the desire for peace while talking of violence at the time."

A U. S. State Department spokesman, John Hughes, accompanying Secretary of State George P. Shultz to a meeting of the Organization of American States in Brasilia, Brazil, said Sunday that talk of a U. S. invasion was "absolute nonsense."

Hughes also said that whoever told reporters that the Bakuriani was under surveillence "should be prosecuted."

Last week, U. S. intelligence officials leaked to the news media that the ship was being monitored and that the United States would not rule out a strike to prevent Migs from being delivered.

U. S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that there was "no confirmation" that there had been Migs aboard the Bakuriani.

A second Soviet vessel, the fishing trawler Ekliptika, arrived in Corinto at midday Saturday and left sometime that night, according to Bernardo Lang, an official with the Vassalli Shipping Co. in that port, which is about 105 miles northwest of the capital.

15-year-old juvenile faces felony charges

A 15-year-old juvenile male was being held in Scurry County Jail Monday morning facing three felony charges stemming from a series of incidents here Sunday afternoon.

Residents living in the 300 Block of 34th St. called police around 5 p.m. Sunday when they first noticed the youth going around the neighborhood.

City police began looking for the suspect after the call and took the youth into custody around 6 p.m. at the Kingswood Estates Apartments in the 100 Block of 37th St.

Officers say he is charged with entering a residence on 34th St. and taking car keys and a car. He is alleged to have driven the vehicle around town for a short time before returning it and apparently walking to the apartment complex.

Charges of burglary of a residence and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle were lodged against him in connection with those incidents.

A resident of the Kingswood Apartments later called police around 10 p.m. and reported the burglary of a car parked there.

The youth has now also been charged with one count of burglary of a vehicle in connection with that incident.

Investigators said Monday they were told the youth was "running away from home" at the time of his arrest.

Ask doctor about glucose results

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Four months ago I had a five-hour glucose tolerance test for hypoglycemia. I got very sick during these tests. I had the same symptoms while having the test that sent me to the doctor to start with.

Is this something I will always have? Also, the doctor didn't give me a special diet to follow. I've heard I'm supposed to eat high-protein, low-carbohydrate foods. Could you send me a diet or suggest foods I can have?

DEAR READER — Your letter doesn't say whether you actually were diagnosed as having hypoglycemia or not. The important point is what your blood glucose level was at the time you had the symptoms during your test. You should certainly clarify with your doctor what the diagnosis really is.

The diet for hypoglycemia is very similar to the diet for diabetes. In both instances, one wants to avoid causing a sharp rise in the blood glucose level. In the diabetic, that is because there is not enough insulin to handle it. In the patient with reactive hypoglycemia, it is because the peak glucose level will trigger the release of excess insulin, causing reactive hypoglycemia.

That means you should eat proteins and fats, such as those found in meat. However, it does not mean that you can't eat carbohydrates. You can still eat complex carbohydrates, which are found in vegetables, cereals and fruit. Studies have shown that eating a raw apple will not increase your blood glucose level. Why? Because of the bulk of the raw apple. It is digested slowly, preventing a sharp rise in blood glucose.

You particularly need to avoid sweet liquids, since these leave the stomach rapidly, which results in rapid absorption and a sharp rise in blood glucose. You should also avoid coffee, tea, colas, alcohol and cigarettes.

You'll get the information you need from The Health Letter 18-8, Hypoglycemia: The Low Blood Sugar Problem, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551 Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Many people have recurring cold sores which seem to break out during stress. Is the cold-sore herpes virus related to the herpes virus that causes genital outbreaks? Could genital herpes be a result of the increase in oral sex, particularly among the younger generation? Have changes in sexual habits caused an increase in various infections related to the germ-laden mouth and the germ-laden waste tracts?

DEAR READER — That is an enlightened question. There is a difference in herpes simplex I, which causes oral herpes or cold sores, and herpes simplex II, now called genital herpes. At one time it was said that herpes simplex I was the above-the-belt virus and herpes virus II below the belt. Antibodies to oral herpes develop in early childhood and antibodies to genital herpes develop after puberty. However, you can get oral herpes in the genital area, and vice versa.

Beyond that your question has much wider implications. Oral-genital contact permits transmission of many gastrointestinal diseases. It is like the long-known fecal-oral route that transmits some forms of food poisoning. Many social practices are not the best from a health standpoint. These include shaking hands and transferring germs that way, kissing, and you can escalate from there.

Bishops deplore poverty scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's Catholic bishops, claiming the nation's economy as a religious issue, are pressing for official policy changes to deal with the "moral and social scandal" of poverty and unemployment in the world's richest country.

Their 112-page economic pastoral letter, released Sunday, raises many of the "fairness issues" Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale used in his efforts to portray President Reagan's administration as favoring the rich over the poor.

But the bishops mention no party or person, asserting in the first draft of the letter that the existence of 8 million jobless Americans as well as huge income gaps between rich and poor are unacceptable on simple moral grounds.

"The policy must be changed so the poor, in particular, can be taken care of, regardless of party," Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee, the head of the drafting committee, said in a news briefing Sunday.

The draft letter will be discussed this week by the more than 300 U.S. cardinals, archbishops and bishops at the annual meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. Substantial revisions are possible before the final version is approved next November.

It marks the second time in two years that the bishops have taken on a controversial national issue, following their 1983 approval of a letter condemning nuclear war and criticizing administration policy on nuclear weapons — over the strong objection of White House officials.

The administration has yet to address the new letter, the text of which had been kept secret until after the election. The secrecy, Weakland said, was to keep it from becoming "a political football" during the campaign.

Some highlights:

— The bishops assert that "the fact that more than 15 percent of our nation's population live below the official poverty level is a social and moral scandal that cannot be ignored."

— The letter says even a goal of 6 percent unemployment is too high and calls for government job programs, even for people with few or no saleable skills. "The most urgent priority for U.S. domestic economic policy is the creation of jobs with adequate pay and decent working conditions," the letter says.

— It also declares that hunger persists in the United States and "far too many people are homeless" — contentions some administration officials have questioned.

— The bishops call for lowering taxes on the poor, preferably to zero, and for increases rather than cuts in welfare payments.

Dear Abby

Familiarity May Tempt Kids To Share More Than Bedroom

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently answered a reader's query regarding a brother and sister sleeping in the same room at the ages of 14 and 11 by saying, "My experts say children of the opposite sex require their privacy after age 10."

Granted, I am not an expert, but I do have a daughter, 16, and a son, 15, who have been sharing a bedroom since they were born, and I think this has been good for them.

One of the greatest joys I have received from sleeping in the same room with my husband is the joy of sharing in the peacefulness of a darkened room, experiences, thoughts and feelings that have occurred during the day.

Many evenings, my husband and I have stood in the hallway and heard the children talking about their friends, teachers, relatives, even us; sharing ideas and discussing problems.

When children share a bedroom, they learn to cooperate, share and compromise.

As a final note, I do not feel there is any difference in having a brother and sister share a bedroom as opposed to two brothers or two sisters.

Thanks for allowing me to state my dissenting opinion.

I would appreciate knowing what you think about my ideas. Just call me ...

MOTHER OF TWO

DEAR MOTHER OF TWO: There is a big difference between a husband and wife sharing a bedroom and two teen-age children of the opposite sex sharing one.

It's obvious that you are ignoring (or denying) the power of natural and very strong sexual urges in that period in the life of a normal teen-age boy and girl.

To subject them to the nightly stress of such close private physical proximity is not only unfair to them, but also presents a greater risk of subjecting them to a potentially traumatic and incestuous experience.

My psychiatric consultants tell me that brother and sister incest is probably the most common form of incest and the least frequently reported; and it is most likely to occur when brothers and sisters share sleeping quarters.

All the positive aspects—the beauty of sharing ideas, discussing problems, and learning to cooperate and compromise—are quite irrelevant. Brothers and sisters can learn these things without sharing sleeping quarters.

The husband-wife relationship is vastly different from the brother-sister relationship, and to compare one with the other is sure to create serious confusion in the minds of the children.

DEAR ABBY: This is a rather touchy problem we aren't quite sure how to handle. Every Christmas my husband and I have been getting six bottles of white wine and six bottles of red wine from a big company we do business with.

Although my husband and I don't drink alcoholic beverages, we have always acknowledged the gift with thanks. Most of our friends drink wine, so we serve it to them. Our guests who appreciate fine wine have told us that this wine is far from cheap.

Abby, for the amount of money spent on the wine, we would rather have a Christmas gift we could enjoy personally. Is there some tactful way to make that suggestion?

NON-DRINKERS

DEAR NON-DRINKERS: No. Thank the company graciously and serve the wine to your guests.

One teen-ager is killed in 'cops, robbers' game

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager playing "cops and robbers" was fatally shot by a friend who did not know an antique shotgun was loaded, police said.

Sean Kellam, 14, died Saturday night when he was shot between the eyes with a .45-caliber bullet that was accidentally fired from an antique 410-gauge shotgun, police said.

Homicide detective Robert Urban said Kellam's 15-year-old friend was not taken into custody and no charges were filed because the shooting was accidental.

Police reported Kellam was lying on the top bunk in his friend's bedroom and was shooting a plastic "laser gun."

The 15-year-old friend turned and pulled the trigger of an antique .410-gauge shotgun he had been storing in his closet, Urban said.

"He did not know there was a bullet in the chamber," Urban said. "He was just playing and shooting back."

The casing of a spent .45-caliber bullet was found lodged in the shotgun's barrel, he added.

The 15-year-old, who owns several other guns, told police he remembered being given a .45-caliber handgun cartridge two years ago.

Webster defines Mother as "a female parent;
having given birth to a child."
His Mother must not have been like mine, for that definition is far too mild.
My Mother has been married to the same man forty-one years.
They raised two sons and two daughters, with tons of laughter, love and tears.
I remember when I was just a child, she spent hours on the floor--
Cutting out paper dolls, playing jacks, teaching

But it's not just her family whose lives
she has touched.
There are numerous friends, who for hundreds of reasons, love her very much.
She thinks of and does for others first,
putting her needs at the end.
What a blessing I've received, having her

I have learned she has a strength and courage

God knew He had to create her special, if she was to pass His test.
I chose this way to express to her my deepest

Don't give up the lead

By James Jacoby

Making your contract by a crossruff is easy enough, but you must be careful not to be overruffed at the wrong time.

In the bidding methods used by North-South, the jump raise to three spades was only a strong invitation. South was happy to accept with controls in every suit. Declarer won the opening lead with the ace of clubs, played to the ace of hearts and trumped a heart low. Next he played the diamond ace and trumped a diamond in dummy with the spade three. Another heart was played, trumped by declarer's nine and overtrumped by West's 10. The play of a spade now by West limited South to nine tricks.

What should declarer have done? It is true that 11 tricks can be taken if the spade nine can be used to trump the third heart and the spade eight in dummy is used to trump the third diamond. However, making the contract requires only 10 tricks. After scoring low trump tricks in each hand by ruffing the second round of both hearts and diamonds, the declarer can assure himself of the contract by crossruffing with high spades thereafter. Eventually West will be able to win a trick with his spade 10, but not in time to lead another spade and set the contract.

Cowboys slip past St. Louis Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) - As with his Dallas Cowboys teammates, persistent effort found a way of producing an unexpected reward for All-Pro defensive back Everson Walls.

"I didn't see the flag until the play was over," said Walls of a penalty ruled his way Sunday in 24-17 victory by Dallas over t St. Louis Cardinals. "I was tick off from the fact that he beat r on the play for a touchdown."

Roy Green, against whom fensive pass interference w called, admitted surprise in addition to dismay.

"I think defensive pass interference would have been justified," said the speedy St. Louis receiver. "Evidently he tried to put an arm up or something. I ran right by it. It didn't even slow me down."

Unfortunately for the Cards, the touchdown denied Green on a 39-yard play merely fit a pattern maintained most of the National Football League contest.

Michael Downs of the Cowboys blocked a 49-yard field-goal attempt by Neil O'Donoghue of St. Louis in the opening quarter, setting up Ron Springs' touchdown dive of 1 yard. By the half, Dallas was in front 17-7 after Mike Hegman had curled around an Ottis Anderson fumble.

On May 17, 1939, Columbia University hosted Princeton University in a unique baseball game at Baker Field in New York City. What made it different was a single camera percariously perched on a wooden stand overlooking the field. The camera was owned by NBC, and the game was the first sporting event ever televised.

First rejection problems emerge

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Baby Fae is improving after briefly trying to reject the baboon heart she has had longer than her own, but doctors say they are seeking a human heart in case the month-old infant needs a second transplant.

"We have diagnosed an episode of rejection and have already started treating her, and she is showing a good response to treatment," said Dr. Robin Doroshow. She said the baby's condition was "not at all" critical.

"Baby Fae continues to do well clinically, feeding well, behaving normally and showing normal heart functions," said Loma Linda University Medical Center spokeswoman Jayne McGill in a statement.

"As of this morning, Baby Fae showed no new signs of rejection. She shows no signs of infection and antibiotics have been discontinued," she said.

The 5-pound baby, whose identity has been kept secret at her parents' request, was in serious but stable condition Sunday, as she has been since the week after her Oct. 26 surgery, said Ms. McGill.
