OIL TEST NEAR HERE ANNOUNCED

"Ma" Grants Full Pardon To Dallas Attorney

CRAWFORD GETS FREEDOM FROM FIVE YEAR TERM

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT SAYS PARDON ASKED BY DALLAS MEN

(By the Associated Press) AUSTIN, Nov. 18.—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today granted a full pardon to William Lester Crawford of Dallas, who was under sentence of five years from Dallas county for manslaughter in connection with the killing of Paul O'Day.

Crawford and O'Day were prominent young attorneys, and the killing and trial attracted wide notice. Recently the court of criminal appeals affirmed Crawford's sentence and yesterday his attorney, Bob Allen, told the court his client had withdrawn his motion for rehearing.

O'Day was killed in September, 1924, the slaying resulting from a brief drawn by O'Day, who was representing parties seeking to break the will of Crawford's father.

The governor in giving reason for granting the pardon said that "O'Day used the testimony of an irresponsible negro as a basis upon which he made the charge in a printed brief which he, the deceased, knew would be published in the public records of the courts as well as in the newspapers that the mother of the defendant, Lester Crawford, was lacking in virtue before her marriage to the defendant's father, and the charge in said brief went farther and in effect stated that defendant's mother had lived in adultery for a period of time before her marriage to the defendant's father.

Draws Inference

"When men make charges of this kind, here in the south, they mean that they are ready to kill or to be killed, and no one is surprised when that results, follows.

"Lester Crawford is the worthy son of a fighting confederate colonel. His mother is a southern lady to the manner born. If there was a wrongful act in killing O'Day, the deceased invited it and started the trouble.

"When men are denied the right to defend the virtue of mothers, this government will fall. O'Day, the deceased, not only printed and published the slander but he reiterated the charge to Crawford just a moment before Crawford shot him."

Many Recommend Pardon

"Pardon is also recommended and urged not only by the jury who tried the case but also by Judge Felix D. Robertson, judge of the criminal district court of Dallas county and by Honorable Allen Seale, sheriff-elect of Dallas county, and also hundreds of prominent and good citizens of Dallas county, including Honorable J. D. Adams, national Democratic committeeman from Texas, Bishop Lynch of the Dallas diocese, F. W. Florence, vice president of the Republic National bank, Honorable Marcell Buckner, vice president and general manager of the Union Terminal company, Judge A. H. Corrigan of Wichita Falls, Honorable Frank Harmon, prominent lawyer of Dallas, Honorable Alvin Owsley, formerly national commander of the American Legion, and neighbors and life long friends.

Leaders Agree Upon Tax Refund Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—A tax program contemplating a permanent reduction of $225,000,000 was agreed upon today by Senator Simmons of North Carolina and Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democratic members of the congressional committee handling tax legislation.

The plan would lower the corporation income tax from 12 1/2 to 11 per cent, or less, and would repeal the excise taxes.

Senator Simmons held that the total reduction might safely be increased to $400,000,000 and suggested that the tobacco tax be slightly modified and sur taxes lowered on incomes between $20,000 and $20,000.

BOLES RANCH TO BE SCENE OF NEW DEEP TEST WITH TULSA CAPITALISTS AIDING IN PROJECT

MUCH OF RIG ALREADY COMPLETED WITH SHIPMENTS OF OTHER EQUIPMENT TO LEAVE TULSA IN NEXT FEW DAYS; 3,000 FOOT WELL CONTRACTED

With all preliminary arrangements completed and a standard rig completed, Lubbock county's first oil and gas test well located on the George Boles ranch 5 miles southeast of the city, was announced today. The Center oil company, of Tulsa, will drill the well, which is being backed by a number of Lubbock men.

Mike Sharp of Tulsa, veteran drilling contractor and an official of the Center oil company, who has been in the city closing up the contracts, leaves today for the petroleum metropolis where he will superintend the loading out of the boiler, engine and tools, he said. As soon as he attends to that work he will immediately return to Lubbock and will personally superintend the operations at the well, bringing with him from Tulsa, his own crew of workers.

Lubbock Men Interested

Principal backers of the well include George Boles, pioneer ranchman; R. G. Shelton, manager of the Whaley Lumber company's yard here; Roscoe Wilson, attorney; Sam C. Arnett, banker all of Lubbock; J. S. Edwards, retired Slaton banker, and R. W. Talbot, Tulsa, president of the Center oil company. A number of other smaller stockholders are also interested and approximately 12,500 acres of land in the vicinity of the test have been leased.

A standard rig, of the Wetzberger-Turnbuckle type, patented by D. D. Wetzberger of Tulsa, was completed Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, in compliance with the contract. Rig builders labored until theerrick was hoisted aboard, bunk houses and waiting in the derrick, it was announced.

Exact Location Given

The exact location of the test, which will be drilled to a depth of at least 3,000 feet unless oil or gas is found in commercial quantities before that depth is reached, was given out by Roscoe Wilson today as the NW half of the SW quarter of section 21, block 8, which is slightly more than five miles from the Lubbock county courthouse.

R. W. Talbot, president of the oil company, is an old friend and business associate of R. G. Shelton of Lubbock, and the latter told the Journal today that in his opinion Mr. Talbot was one of the best posted oil men operating in the Midcontinent field. He and Mr. Sharp were given the contract on the Boles test after a number of other men had made application for it, it was stated.

"The eyes of Tulsa, the oil metropolis of the world, are being turned on West Texas and the South Plains in particular," Mr. Sharp said today prior to leaving for that city. A number of oil men from Tulsa have visited this section in recent weeks and further developments are believed forthcoming for this territory as a result.

"Bootleg Queen" Is Captured In Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 18. (AP)—A trail that started more than a year ago in California penetrated into Cuba, and northward into the Bahamas ended abruptly here today when Ruth Adelle Smith, 23, alias Patricia Henderson, alleged "bootleg queen" of the Pacific, was captured in a downtown hotel by Kenneth Weston, internal revenue special agent.

She was arraigned before United States Commissioner Spitzer and held in $5,000 bond as a fugitive from justice. She was said to have been indicted in San Francisco charged specifically with the attempt to smuggle $300 cases of liquor from Havana to San Francisco, which resulted in the sinking of the vessel Guilla.

NICARAGUA CALL FOR AID BRINGS OUT SITUATION

RELATIONS ALREADY AT BREAKING POINT NOW OF MUCH CONCERN

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Boishevik activities emanating from Mexico, which have become increasingly apparent in the tangled political affairs of Central American countries lying between the United States and the Panama canal are causing deep concern in Washington.

This situation intensifying the already strained relations between the American and Mexican governments, has been brought more pointedly into the open than it has been allowed to appear heretofore through the appeal to the United States by the new president of Nicaragua, Adolfo Diaz, for intervention to restore peace in that country.

Must Be Studied

Diaz' appeal, following immediately upon formal recognition of his government yesterday by the United States, has not yet reached the state department, and any decision upon a matter of course wait until it has been studied.

In a statement explaining the action of the American government in recognizing Diaz, however, Secretary Kellogg expressed the hope that the new president's offer of general amnesty and cabinet posts to his liberal opponents, would be accepted and would end the revolutionary condition "which has invited interference from outside sources, a state of affairs which must cause concern to every friend of stability in Central America."

Based on Correct Data

The warning thus expressed was clearly based on official information of filibustering expeditions out of Mexican ports to aid revolutionary forces in Nicaragua and Guatemala, and Diaz' request at least makes possible the employment of American naval vessels to prevent the landing of such arms and ammunition in this country.

Five gun-ammunition vessels have left Mexican ports for Nicaragua and Guatemala waters, to the Washington government's knowledge, under circumstances which indicate Mexican official connivance and foreshadow in the opinion of responsible American officials, similar attempts to promote political disorder in other Central American countries.

Relations Strained

For nearly two weeks it has been evident that Mexican-American relations have taken on a more serious aspect than previously in the Washington view, and it is now apparent that the long pending oil and land law issues and claim controversies have been overshadowed by the Mexican interference in the political affairs of other Central American nations. Presumably the chief purpose of this interference is the fostering of radical propaganda and bolshevik philosophy.

The conflict between the theories of government prevailing at present in the United States and Mexico has been observed here with concern for some time, since it has been found impossible thus far to devise a point of contact which would serve to bring the two together sufficiently to permit the development of understandings and agreements.

WIND WRECKS RIG AT LITTLEFIELD

(Special to the Journal) LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 18.—A bonning windstorm, which swept down upon this section from the "wide open spaces" of the Texas Panhandle, Yellowstone Land company's test well 12 miles southwest of here, and also blew down the old windmill tower at the Yellowstone ranch headquarters, thought to be the highest windmill in the United States.

Advices from the ranch authorities are to the effect that the windmill, for years a landmark, will not be replaced but that a gasoline engine will be erected over the well in its stead. The derrick, however, is being reconstructed at the present time while drilling operations on the 3,500 test are being temporarily suspended.

RULING GIVEN ON GUARANTY FUND

AUSTIN, Nov. 18. (AP)—The guaranty fund, upon liquidation of a failed bank, has a preferential claim on 75 per cent of the bank's contributions held by the bank as a demand deposit, Attorney General Dan Moody ruled in an opinion today to Charles O. Austin, state banking commissioner.

The banking board is entitled to offset a failing bank's proportional interest in the guaranty fund against the amount of contributions through the fund. The bank's interest existing only as to the excess, if any, the ruling held.

The item denominated "interest in the depositor guaranty fund" as an asset of guaranty fund banks to the extent of its true value which, because of depletion of the guaranty fund is a more potential value subject to be written off at any time, according to the rule.

Littleton Baby Is Run Down By Auto

Mary Jane, 4 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Littleton, 2901 Ninth street, was run over and dangerously injured today about one o'clock at Avenue O and Main street by a car driven by L. M. Brooks. According to information received, Mrs. Littleton and the little girl had just alighted from Mr. Brooks' car and Mr. Brooks started to move on down the street, thinking the child had stepped to the rear of the car. It was picked up and carried to a local sanitarium where it is receiving medical treatment.

Two Too Many

NEW YORK.—No more husbands for Dorothy Martin Hillman Carley. She says she can't stay put in matrimony, and the stage, her first love, will now be her only one. She left it twice, first to wed Edgar Hillman, jr., of Chicago and then, after a divorce, Harry Grey Carley of Boston.

Kiwanis Club Holds Meeting Here Today

With Dr. Fred Standefer in charge of the program members of Lubbock's Kiwanis club gathered in regular weekly luncheon meeting today at noon at Hotel Lubbock. Miss Cornelia McAfee, director of dramatics at Lubbock high school, gave two comic readings which were very well received. Professor Harry LeMaire, and his saxophone trio, also entertained the clubmen.

Rev. Luther G. Williams, pastor of the Episcopal church here, gave an address on "Kiwanis and What It Means," which was greeted with a reverberating round of applause. He treated his subject from an entirely original angle, presenting philosophical and entertaining sides of the organization. Two committees were appointed to nominate officers and directors for the ensuing year, election of which will be held in two weeks. Chairman of the committees were Stanley C. Wilson and W. C. Rylander.

Farmers To Meet On Cotton Situation

WACO, Texas, Nov. 18. (AP)—Bankers of five counties have called mass meetings to be held within the next few days in favor of proposed legislation to reduce cotton acreage, it was announced today by the cotton control association. The counties are Milam, Falls, McLennan, Bosque, Coryell, Limestone.

Howard Waters Hurt By Bakery Machine

Howard Waters, 18, son of Mrs. M. E. Waters, 1464 Avenue K, received a badly crushed hand in the bread molding machine at Martin's Bakery by getting his hand caught between two steel rollers today. He was taken to a local sanitarium where the injured hand was dressed. He will be able to return to his home tonight.

TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 18. (AP)—C. L. Reynolds, 33, prominent Temple druggist for many years, was found shot to death with a revolver bullet through his temple at his home early today. He had been in ill health for some months. Mr. Reynolds came here from Eastrop. He is survived by his widow and two sons.

Cold Wave Coming Brr-rr-rr!

Better fill that auto radiator up with anti-freeze solution! A cold wave is likely to strike the South Plains tonight or tomorrow, weather reports indicate and Lubbock car owners who forget that winter is at hand had better prepare for it. Last night the temperature sank as low as 20 degrees above zero, twelve degrees below the freezing point, and the mercury is likely to drop lower than that in the next few hours. Fore-warned is fore-armed!

Wager Too Strong

HAVANA.—Paul Rountree, who goes to Harvard, must welch a bit on a bet which those Princeton footballers made him lose. He agreed, if Princeton should win, to come to Cuba as a stowaway and return with a bottle of rum. He came, but insuperable difficulties have developed about the rest of the wager.

"Baking" as her subject for the day.

"An Economical Fruit Cake," which was Mrs. Chitwood's first subject, was of prime interest to her hearers, in view of the approaching holiday season.

Many Stay Overtime

The popularity of the school was indicated Wednesday afternoon when several hundred women stayed almost an hour overtime listening to Mrs. Chitwood in her salad demonstration, with less than a dozen leaving the room when she announced that the time was up but that she had more salads to demonstrate if the women cared to remain.

Her lecture tomorrow afternoon, the last day of the school, will be upon meats. She has asked, also, that those in attendance bring a tart apple and a sharp pointed paring knife as she is going to give a lesson on making apple-roses that she used Wednesday afternoon in making an attractive and beautiful salad.

Front Seats Rushed

A rush on front seats is being made each afternoon long before opening time as the popularity of the school grows and more women are in attendance each day, eager to hear this food expert and to ask questions of her about their cooking problems.

Mrs. Chitwood demonstrated the making of more than two dozen salads Wednesday afternoon and gave recipes for many more. Some of the salads were familiar ones decorated in new ways and prepared differently. This expert is stressing the decoration of foods throughout, saying repeatedly that foods are more palatable when they are prepared attractively.

"It is not what you spend for foods but how they are prepared," she said Wednesday afternoon.

Demonstrates Salads

She demonstrated the making of some attractive Christmas salads yesterday, with decorations in red and green. Some of the salads she made were for the woman of leisure, others were for the woman of wealth and many others were for ordinary housewife. She explained the use of the body of various salads that were rich in minerals, fats, carbohydrates, proteins or other substances necessary for the growth of the body.

With the salads she showed numerous ways of decorating them, making some salads in a number of attractive ways with the same ingredients. She explained which ones were adaptable to various color schemes. Interest was so keen in her work that many of her connections were greeted with bursts of

County Movement Launched To Improve Quality Of Dairy Cattle

Carrying out the diversification idea which has so permeated West Texas in the past several months, a movement was launched today for the purpose of improving the quality of dairy stock of the county, as a result of a meeting of Lubbock farmers and business men held in the office of county farm agent B. P. Eaton this morning. Circles will be created over the county of about five farmers each and high producing bulls will be placed in their herds and at intervals of two years, the animals will be changed to other herds of the circle. The animals will be obtained from Ohio and will all be from dams who produce as high as 700 pounds of butter fat per year. Definite blood lines in the herds over the county. John T. Eagan, district agent was at the meeting and thoroughly explained the circles to the farmers. The plan will be put into use in the county in the near future and all farmers who are interested should see Eaton about the particulars.

PROUT NAMED PRESIDENT OF OLYMPIC BODY

OPPOSITION WITHDRAWS FROM ASSOCIATION AND COMMITTEES

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Securing a sweeping victory in a sharp conflict for control of the American Olympic organization, the forces led by the Amateur Athletic Union last night elected William C. Prout of Boston to the presidency of the American Olympic association as well as the committee in charge of this country's participation in the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam.

The election of Mr. Prout and other officers supported by the A. A. U., was followed by the dramatic withdrawal of opposition leaders from active connection either with the Olympic association or the Olympic committee now taking over active control.

Pierce Led Attack
Principal among these leaders were Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National College A. A. U., Colonel Henry Breckinridge, president of the National Amateur Athletic Federation.

Both Brigadier General Pierce and Colonel Breckinridge had been members of the executive committee of the Olympic association but they immediately resigned the offices tendered them. They were joined by Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the western conference, who also withdrew from the executive committee, and J. Brooks Parker of Philadelphia, who had been put on the finance committee.

In deciding the main issues, the A. A. U. was supported by the intercollegiate A. A. U., the United States Lawn Tennis Association, the Amateur Fencers League, the National Football Association, and the National Revolver Association, among other groups.

Army and Navy in Opposition
The opposing forces, led by the N. C. A. A. and N. A. A. F., were supported by Army and Navy representatives, the Y. M. C. A., and western intercollegiate conference. In spite of the action of their delegates in withdrawing from all offices it was supposed they would not sever all connection with the American Olympic Association.

Other officers of the newly formed Olympic committee, to which full authority is delegated by the association, include Vice Presidents: First, Henry G. Lapham, Boston; second, William F. Humphrey, San Francisco; third, Robert S. Weaver, Los Angeles; fourth, Judge Rufus E. Foster, New Orleans; fifth, Sheldon Clark, Chicago; Secretary, Frederick W. Rubin, New York; Treasurer, Julius H. Barnes, Minneapolis.

In addition to these officers, the executive committee includes: Murray Hulbert, New York; Joseph B. Maccaise, Boston; Julian S. Myrick, New York; J. R. Manning, New York; Dr. J. H. McCurdy, Springfield, Mass.; Charles L. Orstein, Baltimore; and George J. Fisher, New York.

Tyrus Cobb Retires A Millionaire

Tyrus Cobb passes from the majors with the reputation of being baseball's first millionaire player. Valuable stock tips from hero worshipers enabled him to double his diamond savings, which reached a trifle more than the half-million mark.

By NEA Service

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—Ty Cobb, during his 21 years in the American League, has broken a few financial records, aside from the countless playing feats that are to his credit.

The Georgia Peach is baseball's first millionaire player. That is a fairly conservative statement.

Cobb hasn't amassed the end million from baseball's compensation alone; he has been mighty fortunate in his investments.

Innumerable tips from wealthy hero worshipers have enabled Cobb to parlay his baseball dividends in such a way that he has practically doubled them.

In round figures Cobb has made $500,000 out of baseball. Starting with a salary of $1500 in his first year, he so capitalized his prestige and ability that he drew down $50,000 as player-manager of the Detroit club last season.

That sum was not salary alone. It included a share in the profits of the club. It is said that Tris Speaker and Cobb are the only two managers, aside from John McGraw, who have ever been given a contract cutting them in on the profits.

It is estimated that Cobb's salary for 15 years as a player averaged about $15,000 per year, making a total of $225,000.

When he became manager, not only was his salary as a player substantially increased but he received a big sum for shouldering the managerial responsibilities, plus a cut in the profits.

Despite the fact that Cobb never won a pennant during his six-year regime, his club always was thriving and the fans were always hoping. The Tigers did a big business.

As player-manager Cobb has averaged $35,000 per year for six seasons, a total of $210,000.

The greatest player of all time, his fame has been such that his name has been in constant demand for advertising purposes. It is a low figure to say that he has earned $75,000 in that manner.

The sum of $225,000 earned in 16 years as player, the $210,000 for his services as player-manager and $70,000 through the medium of using his name for advertising, brings Cobb's baseball earnings to $505,000.

A tip on General Motors which Cobb played last year brought him a profit of $150,000. He has put over several big coups in the cotton market and is one of the big stockholders in the Coca Cola Company.

Nick Altrock says if he had only what Cobb has over a million dollars he would consider himself a wealthy man. Nick may be a clown, but not a figure.

Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Randolph College of Cisco, a club that desired a post-season game with the Matadors, lost to the T. C. U. Frogs by a score of 17 to 15. Several former members of the 1925 Tech crew are with the Cisco college this year.

The Yellow Jackets are here—but with their second string. Of the line-up that started against the Austin College Kangaroos only two are here: Cook and Zaratontis. And according to Coach J. B. Chaney Cook will not start the game this afternoon.

Injuries are the claims being put up by the members of the Jacket crew that are here—some of them are—but it is understood that a great portion of them attended the Simmons-Denton game in Abilene yesterday.

Coach Amis was not with the crew last evening; he was also scouting the game in Abilene.

Going to Amarillo? Let's all go to Amarillo and show those Sandies up—they have been doped to win by their Superintendent and it is said that he never loses a prediction. If you are going send in your $3.20 to E. J. Lowery at the high school or to the Avalanche-Journal.

Something like 100 followers of the Westerners have made reservations for Amarillo trip and there is something like 25 more tickets to be sold yet. Go to Amarillo.

Tomorrow Littlefield will be the scene of a Class B title game. Littlefield Wildcats will meet the Floydada Whirlwinds for the championship of the north region of the South Plains conference. A great crowd of Floydada fans are expected in Littlefield for the contest.

The winner of the game is entitled to meet the Slaton Tigers for the championship of the South Plains.

Von Tunceln states that he will have his best in for the Amarillo game and can say that there will be no alibis with the game win or lose. One can truthfully say that the work of the high school mentors has brought out a winning combination.

Von and Frank have got one of the scrappiest clubs in the Panhandle and certainly deserve every victory they have won.

The A. C. C. Wildcats are meeting 'Big Ox' gang of Butts in Abilene today. Here is a good place to get a good estimate as to how the Tech-Buff game will come out on Thanksgiving.

TECH FAVORED TO WIN JACKET TILT

The Howard Payne Yellow Jackets here with a crippled crew and with a stack of ineligible breaking into their forces the Matadors are the favorites for this afternoon's contest. The only defeat the Tech eleven suffered last season was at the hands of the Jackets.

Coach Amis mentor of the Howard Payne crew, is not with the Jackets as he attended the Simmons clash yesterday at Abilene and was unable to get to Lubbock. His assistant, Coach J. B. Chaney, is with the crew however and states that even though handicapped with crippled the Jackets will present a battle and series of plays for the Matadors to handle.

The Line-Up
The probable line-up of the two teams for this afternoon will be: Howard Payne—Price, center; Johnson

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR AMARILLO NOT YET FILLED

EXPECT BIG DELEGATION TO BE ON SIDELINES NEXT SATURDAY

It looks like there will be in Amarillo a great Lubbock delegation on Saturday. Lubbock is ordering a special train to carry the Westerners to the North Plains city where the high school eleven will battle with the Sandies for the right to contend with Wichita Falls for the Panhandle title. E. J. Lowery, who is in charge of the ticket sales states that he is of the opinion that all the guarantee will be gotten up before night.

Band And Pep Squad
The Westerner band and pep squad are making preparations for a big show in Amarillo on Saturday. The train will arrive in Amarillo shortly before noon and the band together with the band will likely parade the streets of Amarillo.

Von Tunceln's crew of Westerners are making final preparations for the game Saturday this afternoon. The club will leave Lubbock Saturday morning and will arrive in Amarillo in time to take a short practice at the field before the game will be played. "I think by doing this it will tend to drive away any unfamiliarity of the grounds, which is usually shown by a club with its first time on a visiting ground," the coach stated. "Then, too we will not be bothered with an interruption of sleep or be bothered with a trip prior to the game."

Not Over-Confident
All over-confidence has been driven from the Westerners by the matadors and the boys are expecting their hardest contest. "We have never had over-confidence in our last three games; but since we successfully defeated the Bulldogs on two occasions and the Bulldogs came back to defeat the Sandies, there is just naturally a tinge of feeling among the boys of over-confidence," Von said.

Real fight, hard work, and plenty of head work is what the coaches have instructed the boys to use against the Sandies. Also take and learn to take the breaks of a game—for they are likely to come at a most crucial period.

and Carle, guards; Etheridge and Brown, tackles; Caskey and Hatcher, ends; Murray, quarter; McAttee, full; Cottle and Zaratontis, halves; Carpenter and Aldridge, tackles; Smith and Reed, guards; Callaway and Corbett, center; Woodridge, quarter; Stevens and Walker, halves, and Hill, full.

TUNNEY TO FIGHT UNDER FUGAZY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The fact that Gene Tunney has no written contract to fight for Tex Rickard is regarded in boxing circles as an indication that he probably will defend his newly won heavyweight crown next summer in a battle promoted by Humbert Fugazy.

The lack of a written agreement between Tunney and Rickard has just been disclosed. Tunney, in a conference with Fugazy, expressed his willingness to fight for that promoter if satisfactory terms could be arranged. Rickard admitted he had no more than a verbal agreement with Tunney under which the champion was to meet the winner of an elimination series this winter among leading contenders.

Fugazy will discuss the matter further with Tunney next Tuesday, and the champion will explain his reasons for splitting with Rickard. Fugazy said. Tunney is reported dissatisfied with the financial returns of his fight with Dempsey in Philadelphia when he received $204,000. The original agreement called for Tunney to receive a flat guarantee of 15 per cent of the gate receipts, which would have amounted to $309,000, but a new arrangement was made shortly before the fight.

Canyon Scout Here For Today's Game

Coach "Bulldog" Jones, assistant to "Big Ox" Eckhardt is here to scout the Tech-Howard Payne game. This is the third time that Coach Jones has been sent to scout a Tech game. He scouted the T. C. U. game in Ft. Worth, the A. C. C. game last Thursday, and today's game with the Jackets.

WASN'T HOT ENOUGH.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 18 (AP)—The San Antonio Bears tell a good one of their team, Kal Segrist, infielder, which occurred last summer when the Bears were playing at Wichita Falls.

The temperature that day was 103 degrees and a doubleheader was being played. San Antonio won the first.

In the night-cap, the Bears trailed until the first half of the seventh inning when they scored three runs and took the lead by a 3 to 1 score. With only a half inning to play, Segrist announced he wanted to warm up before taking the field, and tried to get some one to help him out.

The Bears "kidded" Segrist the rest of the season for not being warmed up after playing 15 innings with the mercury above the century mark.

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The cotton market showed renewed steadiness early today on continued buying promoted by talk of unfavorable weather for picking and spinning in the south, steady Liverpool cables, encouraging reports from the cotton goods trade at Lancashire and reiterated claims of steadiness in the southern spot markets.

There was some southern hedge selling, but it seemed to be offset by trade buying, and first prices were 4 to 5 points higher. January selling up to 12.81 or 3 points above yesterday's close and into new high ground for the present movement. Realizing checked the advance at this figure but was absorbed on set backs of five or six points, active months holding about 30 to 40 points net higher at the end of the first hour.

The market was a shade easier after the early demand had been supplied, prices working off to 12.68 for January, under realizing. New Orleans and local selling. Prices were within a point or two of the lowest at midday, active months showing net declines of 2 to 4 points.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady with first trades showing no change to one point up. Prices improved after the opening call on trade buying and December traded to 12.75, January to 12.80 and March to 12.82 or 3 to 4 points above yesterday's close. The market then became quiet. Contrary sentiment is held in check by fears of liquidation of December in advance of the first notice day and the approach of another government report.

The market turned easy later in the morning on a private estimate of a crop of 27,575,000 bales and estimated shipments to November 17 of 12,500,000 bales, an increase for the last period over last year of practically one million bales. This induced selling and December traded down to 12.61, January to 12.67 and March to 12.80. At the decline selling appeared to have been absorbed and the market typed steady around noon.

CHICAGO TRADING

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Rains in Argentina and higher quotations at Liverpool led to higher prices for wheat today during early dealings here. Besides, there was evidence of betterment of export demand for wheat from North America. Opening 5-8 to 15-16c up. Chicago wheat values reacted somewhat, and then hardened again.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Stock prices fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits at the opening of today's market. Pullman dropped 1 1/2 points on the first sale, but most of the other recessions were fractional.

U. S. Steel common opened unchanged at 147 1/2 and then yielded slightly. General Motors and Baldwin opened fractionally higher. Prices steadied soon after the opening. U. S. Steel common, which slipped to 146 1/2 in the first few minutes of trading, quickly rallied to 147 3/8.

One block of 6,000 shares changing hands at 147 1/8. New peak prices for the year were established by Consolidated Gas, Liggett and Myers R and Liquid Carbonic. Trading appeared under the domination of professional traders, with the struggle for control of the price movement temporarily, at least, in the favor of those working for higher prices.

The prospect of a further easing of money rates stimulated pool activity in a number of specialties. Bullish sentiment also was created by the optimistic business forecasts by leading railroad executives attending the session of the American Railway association in this city. Heavy trading took place in the "rights" to subscribe to additional common stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

One block of 5,000 changing hands at 23 1/8. American Ice rallied 3 points on rumors of "melon-cutting" before the end of the year and crushed. Woolworth and South Porto Rican Sugar advanced 2 or more points. Foreign exchanges opened irregular, demand sterling yielding slightly to 44 1/4, while French francs rallied 2 points to 13 1/4 cents.

Sledding Of Cotton Only Solution To Gathering Of Crop, County Farm Agent D. F. Eaton Says After Probe

Taking into consideration the shortage of labor and the expense of snapping cotton as compared with the low price being offered for all grades, D. F. Eaton, Lubbock county farm agent, stated yesterday, after an investigation which covered all parts of the county had sledded cotton shows very little lower grade than the snapped staple. "Sledded cotton is the only practical solution for gathering the crop," he announced.

After examining snapped and sledded cotton after, it is ginned Mr. Eaton finds that there is very little difference in the refined product but points out that sledding, which is being widely practiced in this county, removed from the fields a large amount of vegetable matter which should go back into the soil. The loss of this vegetation is negligible now Mr. Eaton says, but may be felt in future years.

The cotton hurt, particularly, has been found to contain valuable vegetable chemicals, and should be left in the fields if possible, he says. With many of the county's farmers sledding between four and five bales per day the gins are "upped under" the agent declares. Many of them ran full tilt last Sunday, in an effort to catch up with the many sin yards the sledded cotton is being piled up to await its turn for refining. In spite of the recent high winds, which blew much cotton away, the county's crop will not miss 60,000 bales by any appreciable amount, Mr. Eaton says.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

ERIC WATERS, rebellious senior, and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, are rivals for the favor of JUDITH MARTIN, young university teacher. DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN disapproves of Judith's radical friends and accuses Eric of dealing with 'KITTY' SHEA, town bootlegger, in poison liquor. Judith defends him. MYRA ALDRICH is fond of Judith, but jealous of Eric's attentions to her. Judith learns of a secret love affair of Dean Brown's wife and befriends her, believing the dean quite heartless. 'KITTY' Shea tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, and also threatens to expose the fact that Judith and Eric dined at a roadhouse the night it was raided. Eric promises Judith to 'shut Shea up.' When Judith is staying in Myra's sorority house alone for the Christmas holidays, Shea tries to force an entrance and she frightens him away by shooting in the air. Eric returns unexpectedly on Christmas day from his home town, with a bruised eye. When Judith is talking with EVE GERHART, a widow, at Eric's fraternity house, one evening after the January term opens, Myra sends word that there is a letter for Judith from Dean Brown, at the boarding house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"For me?" asked Judith, frowning. "Yes," said Eric. "Myra thought you might want to come home and read it." Eve was smiling meaningly at Judith. "Well," she said, "excuse me, I'm going after a roasted chestnut." Judith turned to Eric. "What does that mean?" He shook his head. "No telling. Why worry? After dinner I'll walk over with you." Judith tossed her head. "All right." The note was from the dean's secretary. It requested Judith's presence in his office the following day. Eric read it over her shoulder. When he had finished, he read it again. "When did you last see Shea, Judith?" Judith started. "Why do you ask that?" "Because I believe the dean means to question you about him. You remember that Shea once called you by your first name in front of Dean and Mrs. Brown?" Judith nodded. "Well," said Eric, "they can't find Shea. I was called in myself yesterday and questioned as to his whereabouts. Of course they won't find him. Shea has too many pipelines around town, not to know that they're after him. He'll just lie low in Middleburg till this blows over."

From his vantage point, behind the massive desk in his sanctum, Dean Brown fixed Judith with a solemn gaze as she entered. His pudgy hands were outspread on the top of the desk, like starfish caught too far inland when the tide went out. "Please be seated, Miss Martin." When she had taken the chair of inquisition, facing him, he took off his glasses and laid them on the desk. "I hope, Miss Martin, that any feeling of hostility which you may have held toward me has by this time disappeared. I trust you realize that we are both in duty bound to work only for the good of the university and the immortal souls entrusted to our guidance."

Judith smiled, and the dean's brows drew together. "I was only thinking that I was employed to teach people Latin, not about right and wrong," she said. The dean ignored the implication. "In the great reform which we are inaugurating in the university, one first step is to stamp out the liquor evil. That is where I hope you can help us."

Judith stood up. "You are insulting," she said. "I have no connection with liquor. I neither buy, sell nor drink it. She made a movement toward the door, but the dean raised his hand. "Pray do not be hasty," he said. "I only meant that you might be able to give me some information about this man Shea, who is the source of the liquor drunk here. We have a warrant for his arrest."

Judith turned toward him. "I do not know anything about Shea, Dean Brown. I met him casually once at a picnic, but there the acquaintance ended."

"Hm-m," mused the dean. "He began to call you Judith rather early, didn't he?" "He called me that deliberately, to embarrass me," flashed Judith. "If this is all, I think I will go."

"Just a moment," said the dean. "I am convinced that young Waters knows where Shea is hiding. You—have some influence with Waters. I shall expect you to get information of Shea's whereabouts for us before night. Waters' standing as a student, and yours as a teacher, depend on it."

Judith looked at him in extreme disgust and walked out of the room. Dr. Dorn was standing in the outer room. At sight of Judith's flushed face and angry eyes, he followed her out into the corridor. "Is anything wrong, Miss Martin?" "Yes," snapped Judith. "Everything's wrong. I just prevented myself from calling your excellent dean a cad to his face. And now I'm kicking myself for preventing me."

Dr. Dorn's eyes widened. "What is the matter?" Judith turned on him. "Dean Brown just asked me under penalty of dismissal, to act as stool pigeon in his wretched little vice campaign. And I turned and walked out of his office."

Dr. Dorn looked distressed. "Judith, please try to calm yourself. Someone might hear you." He looked around apprehensively. Judith struck her hands together smartly. "What if someone does?" she cried. "Am I to live under a pall all my life, because I chose this sorry job of teaching?"

The professor looked baffled. Judith turned to him. "You don't believe that I know where Shea is, do you?" He shook his head, as if horror-struck. "Of course not. But the dean will never believe you are innocent so long as you cleave to that young bolshevik, Waters."

The color deepened in Judith's face. "It's no one's business whom I cleave to, so long as I conduct myself as I should. I KNOW Eric hasn't the information they want. I also know that he has never bootlegged. And I CAN'T desert him now. Why, he believes in me!"

Dr. Dorn took her hand timidly. "There are others who believe in you, too, Judith, and who suffer when you imperil that belief."

Judith's eyes looked into his and fled from them. She pulled her hand away. "If you'd only let me alone, all of you!" she exclaimed. "There's nothing you can do. We don't think in the same language, Dr. Dorn."

He drew back, sadly. "I'm afraid we don't. But I'm sorry. I wish I could help you."

Judith's eyes were filling with tears. Turning abruptly, she walked away from him down the hall. On the porch of the building Myra and Will Wetherel were waiting for her.

Wetherel was wearing the memorable green riding suit. "You see us just returning from play rehearsal, Jude," he apologized. "I always wear these breeches for the 'Blood and Sand' rehearsals. They make it so much easier to wallow around on the floor in the scene where I make the passionate love to Doña Sol."

Judith laughed in spite of her troubles. Don't let them make you self-conscious about your breeches, Will. Thank God, there are a few people left who live as their own judgment dictates. Don't ever apologize for anything again. Let's be done with apologies!"

Myra was looking at her curiously. "You sound a little bit insane, Judith, like Hamlet in the 'Get thee to a nunnery' speech. What's happened to you?" Judith only smiled. "I'm just learning what school-teaching means, that's all. And I think a school-teacher might envy a galley slave."

Wetherel looked at her. "You and Eric are both a little crazy these days," he said. "He's been nutty ever since he came back on Christmas day, with that ugly bruise on his head."

Myra's mouth opened. "Christmas day? Did Eric come back then?" "Sure thing," replied Wetherel. Myra turned to Judith. "You didn't tell me, and he didn't tell me." She was silent a moment. "And you used my sorority house to entertain him in? Traitor!" Judith was very white. "Listen, Myra," she said. "You'd better walk away quite fast now. I've had about all I can stand today. And I'm just a little afraid I might slap you."

Arguments Open In Lowrance Bigamy Trial And Jury Is Expected To Get Case For Deliberation This Afternoon

After describing his meeting with Leahy in Laredo and his employment by the defendant, he told of a trip which he said he and Leahy made from Mathis out the Old Spanish Trail to the spot where Ramsey's body was found. Leahy, he said, had brought shovels, sacks and a bottle of water, and started to dig as soon as they had unloaded the equipment.

"I am going to bury a ----," he quoted Leahy as saying. As the dirt was taken from the hole it was placed in sacks and hidden in the brush, he testified.

Court recessed for noon before Martinez had reached the night of the murder and the portion of his testimony which is expected to be the most sensational.

He concluded his morning's testimony with a description of several rides which he said he took by Ramsey's house with Leahy on which the latter called the house to his attention, saying that a good doctor lived there.

Mrs. Ramsey testified that Martinez came to her home in Mathis at 6:50 p. m. May 26, and said to Dr. Ramsey, "I want you to go to my brother's case; appendicitis."

However, according to the witness, Martinez did not want to go immediately to drive the doctor's car when asked to do so by Ramsey.

After the doctor had agreed to go on the call, Martinez left the house, saying that he would be back after meeting some people in town. He returned two hours later and the doctor and Martinez left at 9 p. m., she said.

Dr. Harris Testifies

Dr. W. H. Harris of Littlefield, was then called to the stand and he testified that he knew Lowrance and that on a number of occasions had visited upon him in his official capacity. He treated Lowrance for indigestion and not for mental disorders. There was, no visible signs of mental troubles, he claimed.

The doctor was called to the stand on another occasion at the request of a juror who asked if the second or third or subsequent strokes of paralysis would not likely be more severe than the first. The answer was that in all probability they would, though this is not the case invariably.

Tells of X-Ray Examination

Dr. J. H. Shaw of the Lubbock Sanitarium stated that he had given Lowrance an X-ray examination early today and that he found no traces of a blood clot—that he had none at this time, and that if he had ever had one it did not show in the X-ray picture. A large clot, even many months ago, would have left a visible scar, he thought. A blood clot would mean paralysis, he said.

The defendant was then placed on the stand and he stated that no officer had ever "pushed" him on alimony payments. He stated that he had never paid alimony, but that he deposited money in an Oklahoma bank in his son's name, subject to the check of his mother, the late wife. He further stated that he had more than supported the child, and that his mother had since been married and is now living with a second husband. This wedding took place some two years ago.

Lowrance Tells of Illness

Lowrance stated that he had been sick for some two weeks when he was arrested in Littlefield by Deputy Sheriff Verne Ford—that he was sick when brought to Lubbock and that he was placed in a hospital and not the jail when he was brought here. He stated that he also spent 42 days in Muskogee, Oklahoma, hospital, and was later that July operated upon for appendicitis.

After his marriage to Mrs. Lillie Frances Cox of Littlefield he stated that they visited in Hill county and other East Texas cities.

Negro Hanged After Two Of Family Slain

SANTIAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Jose Quivada, Castillo, negro murderer, was hanged in the prison here early today. He was condemned for the murder of his daughter, whom he killed after escaping from prison where he was serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife.

TO VISIT SICK

AUSTIN, Nov. 18 (AP)—A sick visiting committee has been formed in the University of Texas Y. M. C. A., under the direction of J. F. L. Blasingame of Hempstead, a member of the cabinet. All hospitals of Austin are visited daily by various members of the committee in an effort to cheer those persons confined there by illness, and particularly University of Texas students who may be ill.

Snowfall Is Record

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Snow laden clouds, roiled the central west today and moved eastward before gusty winds that brought record breaking November snowfall out of the north-west.

Corn belt temperatures went down to turn rain into snow, and flurries became small blizzards before winds which approached gale velocities in some localities.

Warnings were displayed on all the Great Lakes except Ontario as the storm center swept today into Illinois from the southwest, where it took snow and freezing temperatures. The mercury hung around 26 degrees in parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The passing of the wave left St. Louis with more than five inches of snow. There were falls of as much as six inches in Illinois and weather bureaus throughout the region measured snow depths unprecedented for the month.

There were three deaths in Chicago indirectly attributed to the storm.

Ballot Fails To Change Miner Row

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—It was reported today that voting on the memorandum of the government for a settlement of the coal strike has resulted in a rejection of the terms, due chiefly to Jimmings' fanatical and violent threats in Scotland and South Wales, and partly to the fact that local miners' councils prevented miners who have resumed work from voting.

LEAHY TRIAL

chauffeur shortly before the murder, testified that he had asked Leahy several times what he was digging the hole for.

"Never mind," Martinez quoted Leahy as replying, "you'll find out soon enough."

Motion Overruled

At the opening of court the defense asked for an order which would force the state to turn statements made by E. M. Duboz and Roberto Martinez over to the defense, but the court overruled the motion. Martinez is under indictment for the murder of Ramsey. It was announced that the state would call seventy witnesses to the stand and the defense 27.

Martinez testimony came after Leahy had pleaded not guilty and Mrs. Ramsey had described the details of the last night of Ramsey's life.

"Gentlemen," Leahy said dramatically when arraigned, "I deny every charge in that indictment and plead not guilty."

Bob Hathaway's stenographer leaved her voice and betrayed herself by glancing apprehensively toward the door marked "Mr. Robert Hathaway, Private." "No, he isn't in. Would you like to leave a message?"

"I'll wait—" Faith began, but was remaining seated, her gloved hands folded primly in her lap, her brown eyes friendly and guileless.

"Oh, I don't think he'll be back until the middle of the afternoon," the girl said hurriedly, but still in a muted voice. "He's got a luncheon appointment with his uncle, Mr. Chaney, and then he's going out to Eastfield, I believe."

"I'll wait—" Faith began, but was interrupted by the opening of the door into Bob's private office. "Hello Bob!" she rose, smiling serenely for the benefit of the scarlet faced stenographer, who had backed up to her desk, and was imploring Faith, with agonized eyes, not to tell on her.

"I thought I heard your voice, Faith!" Bob's blue eyes sparkled with joyous welcome. "How awfully kind of you to stop-by. I've wanted you to see my dump. But let's go to lunch now. It's nearly twelve, and I'm always hungry."

Faith glanced at the frightened stenographer and decided that it would be better to confront Bob with the whole wretched story when she could not be overheard by the obviously guilty girl, who would certainly not scruple to listen at the keyhole.

"All right, Bob," Faith nodded. "A quiet place, where we can talk."

"If anyone calls, I'll be back in about an hour, Miss Gonzales, he threw over his shoulder at the girl who had finally seated herself at her desk, with her profile turned toward Faith and Bob.

"Rather an unusual name of this girl's—Gonzales, isn't it?" Faith asked as they waited for an elevator.

"Yes, rather," Bob answered, his eyes still beaming upon her with fondness and joy. "Father is a Mexican, I believe, and her mother an American. She's a crackerjack stenographer, which is all I'm interested in. How have you been, anyway? Lord, it's good to see you, dear!"

"Where did you get Miss Gonzales?" Faith persisted, so that he looked at her curiously.

"She used to work for Uncle Ralph and Mr. Neff," Bob answered, surprised. "He let her go for some slight offense, and I felt sorry for the girl and gave her a chance. But why all the hectic interest in my stenographer? She's a good one, I admit, but let's talk about you. You look stunning in those clothes. Now, aren't they? I've never seen you in black before. Makes you look like a woman of the world, but I like it."

The stepping of the elevator spared Faith the necessity of answering, other than her warm blush of pleasure. But she was stealing her heart against his gay happiness in having her with him.

"Let's eat at the Atlantic club—just around the corner. We can find a quiet corner there. It's early and there won't be a crowd."

In spite of her mixed feelings of suspicion and hurt at his long neglect of her, it gave her a warm, glowing sense of pleasure to see with what genial comradery he was greeted by lounging members of the Athletic club as he escorted her through the reception rooms and library on their way to the dining room. Every man's eye brightened as he passed, and she was not conceited enough to believe that her own distinguished smartness, in her new black coat and hat, had anything to do with their eagerness to greet Bob Hathaway. She thought, tenderly, that these "business" men looked at him as if they loved him.

He led her to a dim corner of the big, somber dining room, rich with dark panelling, heavy, upholstered, high backed dining chairs, and with enormous oil paintings carefully spaced between the thick, wine-red silk draperies of the broad, deep windows. She had never before been in such an atmosphere and she relaxed a little, breathing a deep sigh of content as Bob studied the menu.

After he had ordered for both of them, he looked at her with smiling, direct inquiry. "Well, spill it, Faith, dear. There's something on your mind. Cherry in trouble again, I suppose? I'd like to flatter myself that you simply wanted to see me, but I know my Faith too well for that."

He reached across the table and touched her cold fingers, toying with the long stemmed water goblet, with the long tenderness in that fleeting touch, and Faith felt the blood rush to her cheeks.

"I—I have something to tell you," she faltered, reaching into her lap for her handbag. "But first, I want to show you something."

He watched her with suddenly serious but singularly clear and guileless blue eyes as she drew from the bag the four anonymous letters which Cherry had received—letters which Faith had found under Cherry's mattress and had taken without her sister's knowledge—the envelope of the business letter which had come to her father on the same day as the fourth of the anonymous letters, and finally, the sheet of paper, the envelope and the piece of used carbon paper which she had fished from the desk of the shoe-eyed Miss Gonzales.

"Do you know anything about these letters, Bob?" she asked quietly but her voice was a little unsteady. She had drawn the blackmailing letters from their envelopes and now laid them, opened, in a little stack, upon his plate.

"Why—what in the world?" he asked blankly. "Of course I don't—never saw them before—why, good God, Faith, this is blackmail!"

Faith watched him intently as he read hastily through the sheaf of four letters, muttering exclamations of incredulity, anger and astonishment as he did so. Before he had finished—indeed, from the first minute of her inquisition of him, she was utterly convinced that he was as innocent of blackmail or of intent to harm Cherry as she was.

"What in the world made you think I knew anything about this dastardly attack on the poor kid?" he demanded as he laid the letters to one side of his plate and rubbed his fingers vigorously with his napkin, as if to remove pollution. There was so much disgust and hurt surprise in his voice and eyes that Faith could have wept over him. But her heart was singing with joy. It hadn't been Bob! She had really known all the time that he couldn't have done such a thing, but now—now—oh, the dear! But she braced herself to explain.

"They were written in your office, Bob, by your stenographer," she told him very quietly.

"Good Lord! Are you crazy, Faith? Lola Gonzales! You don't know what you're saying!"

Before she could reply the waiter interrupted by appearing with the melon.

Butterfly Salads Quite Stylish Thing

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Butterfly salad is quite the stylish thing now on Mayfair tables. It is served sometimes at tea, sometimes at dinner. Here is the way it is made.

Cut a slice of pineapple in half and place the curved edges opposite each other with a date between them for the "body" of the butterfly. Thin strips of lettuce make up the antennae. Sliced, stuffed olives are placed on the "wings" with bits of pistachio nuts and maraschino cherries. Drops of yellow salad dressing are placed between the olives on the wings.

Refuge Places

LONDON.—The British war office is taking precautions against air raids in the next war. Cellars and subways are being studied as possibilities for places of refuge.

TOMORROW: Bob and Faith join forces to solve the blackmail plot against Cherry.

Discrimination In Teachers Is Rapped

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18 (AP).—Attacking any discrimination against married women school teachers, H. T. Ellis, executive secretary of the Texas State Teachers' association, today told the Texas congress of mothers and parent-teachers associations in convention here that state schools can be improved 100 per cent by making the teaching profession "comfortable" and attractive enough to hold the most competent of its personnel.

Hotel Man Says: "Take Tanlac"

After Surprising Recovery From Nervous Indigestion and Ailments Causes Eye-Open-Down Condition, Mr. Dresser Heartily Recommends Tanlac to Everyone.

Ed. Dresser, popular hotel proprietor, oil man and realtor, of 601 South 7th Street, Corsicana, Texas, knows what it means to lose health and energy, and how good it is to regain those priceless boons.

"Long hours incidental to hotel work resulted some years ago in a nervous strain," he writes. "I was all played out. I started taking Tanlac. It invigorated me, regulated my bowels, restored my energy."

"I have taken Tanlac ever since as a general tonic whenever I thought I was in need of something—two or three bottles especially in the Spring. I have lots of energy for my business and can recommend Tanlac as a splendid tonic for business men."

Tanlac is Nature's remedy, made from roots, bark and herbs. Tanlac helps build up strength, vanquish pain, tone up sluggish livers. Take the advice of men like Mr. Dresser, and ask your druggist for Tanlac—today!

PRINCE ALBERT makes the grandest home-rolled cigarette that ever took form in your fingers. That isn't a mere claim. It's a statement of fact, backed up every few minutes by happy roll-your-owners everywhere! It's the tobacco, Men—that's the reason.

For P. A. is tobacco that is tobacco . . . the finest that ever lifted its head to the sun. First of all, it's crimp-cut and ideal for rolling. Doesn't take wings of the first little breeze. It saves time, temper, and tobacco. It burns better, too, for the same reason.

But that taste! That's the big thing after all. A cigarette made with P. A. is cool as a tree-top breeze. It is sweet as a melon, ripe and cold. It is fragrant as flowers that beckon the honey-bees. You'll roll 'em and smoke 'em morning to midnight, and enjoy every one.

If you sometimes smoke a pipe (or would like to), try Prince Albert this way too. Pipe-smokers who thought they were all set on a smoke-program have tried Prince Albert and found it a revelation. Buy some P. A. today. Try this wonderful tobacco both ways.

P. A. is sold everywhere. And always with every bit of bite and punch reserved by the Prince Albert process.

SUCCESS IS LOOMING

The Journal has it upon reliable authority that a West Texas bill will be placed on the Texas highway commission. Men close to Governor-elect Dan Moody say the coming executive order will move and that it now looks as a decided probability. The Journal began the fight for a West Texas on the commission. The campaign was launched through news stories and editorials in the Journal and through letters to Mr. Moody and others prominent in Texas. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce greeted the Journal's plan with enthusiasm and began immediately to work hand in hand with this publication. In two important meetings of the directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce resolutions have been passed favoring a West Texas on the commission. Now it seems certain that the campaign will end a success other papers some of them large ones, are "climbing on the band-wagon" ready to share in the credit. This fact however, is immaterial to the Journal. Dan Moody knows where the campaign began—so does the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Thousands of loyal West Texans know it also and the Journal realizes it. What this newspaper wants is not glory—it wants action along all lines so benefit West Texas.

BACK THE WESTERNERS

Lubbock high school's good football team invades Amarillo Friday and Saturday of this week. A district championship is at stake. Not in recent years have the Westerners been successful in defeating the Golden Stamen of the North Panhandle but they have a wonderful chance to turn the trick this year. Efforts are being made to take a special train to Amarillo Friday returning to Lubbock Saturday night. The fare, round trip, is considerably less than four dollars. Lubbock has supported Texas Tech wonderfully but it has all but forgotten its high school. Here is an opportunity to let the home boys and girls know that Lubbock is behind them just as it is behind the Mustangs. Plan now to make that trip—do so on the sidelines Saturday—and to watch a great Lubbock eleven start a whirlwind drive which will make a North Panhandle Sandstorm appear as but a gentle spring zephyr. Back the Westerners!

HONOR TO WALTER CAMP

We are in an age which glorifies physical perfection. In line with this demand of the age is the recent honor given the late Walter Camp, football coach, father of the all-American team idea, and author of "The Daily Dozen" exercises, which probably have kept thousands of persons from early graves. Harvard was playing Dartmouth in the Harvard stadium. The first half was over. A bugler took his stand on the parapet of the horseshoe end of the stadium. He blew taps, silhouetted there against the sky. Fifty-three thousand persons stood at attention, silent and grave. When the last clear notes of the bugle had died, the flag which had been at half mast was raised, and the two college bands played "America" with the crowd sang. Thus does America glorify her prophets of health and health giving sport, and rightly so!

Old Masters

Happy the man whose wish and care A few paternal acres bound, Content to breath his native air In his own ground. Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread, Whose flocks supply him with attire; Whose trees in summer yield him shade, In winter fire. Blest who can unconcern'dly find Hours, days and year slide soft away, In health of body, peace of mind, Quiet by day, Sound sleep by night; study and ease Together mix'd, sweet recreation, And innocence, which most does please, With meditation. Thus let me live, unseem unknown; Thus unamented let me die; Steal from the world, and not a woe Tell where I lie. —A. Pope: Solitude.

SEE-SAVING AND BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Random notes from a ramble about Manhattan. Electrifying on the East Side... Here's one slice of the world that still takes its politics with gulps of red fire and plenty of old-fashioned hokum... It makes little difference to the East Side in the long run who gets elected... No they may as well have a good time. Al Smith arrives wearing a felt hat crushed over one eye... Half an hour ago he wore a "topper." But the East Side might not take kindly to that... A politician must think of his clothes when he campaigns among the "peepul"... Only the district boss may wear a silk hat... The poor folk like that... They want their personal representative to look swell to wear a sweet suit and a silk hat... But a "higher-up" must come in their garb... Don't ask me why... Again on the East Side... An airplane soaring low over the tips of tenements dropping imitation dollar bills that have some sort of alleged value in a certain store... A couple of hundred youngsters wiping the street with each other's faces trying to catch these paper slips that will prove of no value to them... I had never before seen an airplane from a crowded ghetto thoroughfare... Somehow it seemed incongruous... Smash carts carrying on their primitive barter, old men in skull caps, long gray beards of the patriarchs... They don't rhyme with airplanes, somehow... Yet here they all are in the same world... in the same city... In the same street... I fell the same way whenever I see a push cart stumbling its way below a skyscraper... Four o'clock in the morning on the by-paths of Manhattan... Funny, it never occurs to a Broadwayite that there had music and gaiety may go on sidewalks throughout the night... From a Sixth Avenue Greek coffee house comes a primitive dance tune, to the rhythmic accompaniment of a tambourine... The tune is played over and over again in pleasant monotony... Through the window the faint sound of feet thudding on a floor two stories above... It is this way most every night... And on Saturdays until daylight... The little sandwich shops of the side streets are quite alive... The crowds are poorly dressed... Why are they about at this hour... And along East Avenue loungers lean over the railings, black silhouettes watching the workers in the caverns below although the wind is barred with ice and penetrant dampness... Surely Manhattan contains within its lean bowels a great city of nightbirds. Out of the night there comes into a little ham and egg rooster a whoa hat is festooned with toy chickens and whose arm is heavy with wooden snakes, rubber roosters and other toys... He staggers slightly... A hang-over from the Broadway theater trade... How few children one sees at night, except on the East Side, where the streets are flooded with them, winter and summer... Only a few newsboys and the youngsters who pick up dimes for their dances... Even these pass at this season... It is a bit cold. Dawn comes in lazy strides... It yawns and stretches as though the night had been restless... The tambores... There comes an hour in which the city seems ready to sleep... A sleep disturbed only by the snooring of taxicab horns... Yes, there is an hour in which Manhattan sleeps. GILBERT SWAN.

Journal Jobs

If you do not love anybody, do not expect anybody to love you. Such things do not happen in this world. A person without imagination is a person without sympathy or soul. How often it happens that our anticipated calamities prove to be our greatest blessings. The defeated candidate if he only knew it, is the lucky fellow. The only real pleasures are those that satisfy real needs. The rest is tawdry. There is one class of men that is always to be feared more than anything else—the habitually stupid. No one is worthy to be trusted who has not a strong sense of his own worthiness.

A THOUGHT

Judge not according to the appearance. Humors judgment is finite, and it ought always to be charitable.—William Witter. Washington dispatch says scofflaws are smuggling liquor out of Canada in the carcasses of hogs. What you might, if you felt so inclined, called pickled pork.—Kansas Telegram.

WASHINGTON LETTER

HERE'S U. S. PLAN TO MAKE AVIATION PAY By NEA Service WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Can commercial aviation be made to pay without a subsidy? "Yes," answers the office of Assistant Secretary of Commerce MacCracken, department aeronautics expert. "It can be made to pay if it can get enough business." Why hasn't it enough now? People are afraid of it. Not all are afraid, but so many are that it hasn't yet developed an adequate volume of traffic to put it on a paying basis. The problem is to build up public confidence, as MacCracken's office sees it—and then to keep it built up. People must be sold on the idea that flying is safe and it actually must be safe. Plane crashes may be no more numerous than railroad accidents, but they are far more spectacular and get a great deal more advertising than any but the very worst railroad accidents. A couple of persons can be killed in a train wreck and nobody thinks much about it, but let them die in an airplane smashup and the wires will hum. One plane crash will undo the missionary work of months in aviation's interest. Possibly aviation's average record was better during those months than surface travel's, but the public won't believe it. The safety of commercial aviation must be the real thing. That's the MacCracken solution. Absolutely sound machines, highly skilled pilots, careful flying, good landing and taking-off signs, and plenty of day and night sign posts, to keep pilots from straying from charted courses, will do the business, MacCracken promises. He plans just these things, under government supervision. Planes will be inspected with a microscope and none will be permitted in the air without the government's stamp of approval, as strong and in good working order. No pilot will be licensed without the most rigid examination as to his qualifications as an aviator and perfect physical fitness. His machine will be conspicuously labeled, so that it and he can be readily identified and explanations called for by the authorities, in the event of the slightest carelessness or mismanagement in the plane's handling. The government's fields will be the last word in the perfection of their arrangements for ascent and descent. No pilot on a regular aviation route will be out of range of a signal tower by day, or of a beacon by night. No divergence from courses will be permitted. Traffic rules will be strict, to prevent collisions. The comfort of passengers will be insisted on. Pilots will be held strictly to account for maintenance of schedules as railroad engineers. Such is the MacCracken idea of efficient government supervision of commercial aviation. He thinks it will win public confidence, and that as soon as it does it will be a paying proposition.

BARB'S

Goods bought on time sometimes are paid for late. Forbidding college students to use automobiles reminds us that words like "verboten" do occasionally bounce back, no matter how hard they have been stepped on. Retail merchants say men shoppers are better sports than women, according to a magazine article. Probably that's because they're not professional. Headlines you never see: WALL STREET BROKER HELD FOR RED SNEECH. President and Mrs. Coolidge went clear to Northampton to vote. The party must be worse off than we supposed. Cy Sobb, who is hunting in the Rockies, resigned as Detroit manager. Maybe the young man missed a shot. Famous last lines: "Be sure to burn this letter as soon as you've read it." (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.) Breaking It Gently "Miss Ponder, said the boss, "you are a very handsome woman." "Oh!" said the typist, blushing. "You dress neatly and you have a well-modulated voice. Your department is also above reproach." "You shouldn't pay me so many compliments." "Oh, that's all right," said the boss "I merely wanted to put you in a cheerful frame of mind before taking up the matter of punctuation and spelling."—Capper's Weekly.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

THIS TELLS WHERE GRASSHOPPER GOES IN WINTER. Some she gives to understand that try as they may, they cannot live beyond the warm season; and those she bids slig, but charges them that, ere the summer is gone, they must make sure their offspring will next year carry on the race. To this latter class belong the grasshoppers. A few may survive the winter in the adult state, and sometimes the young hatch in the autumn and hibernates beneath the grass roots, emerge in spring as short-legged, backward creatures rather unlike their parents. Most of the old ones, however, die after depositing their eggs, and leave the coming year to the care of the young. The grasshopper might have retorted by telling the ant that he did not have to provide for the winter.

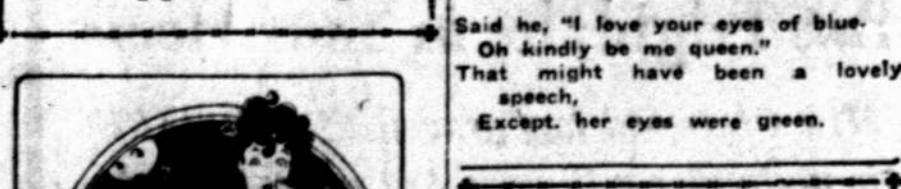

Helpful Health Hints

CHILD OF GENIUS TYPE MAY BE ECCENTRIC BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN. The brilliant boy who at 9 or 10 years of age has reached the high school is hardly adapted to contact with girls at a high school dance, or to play on the high school football team. Nevertheless, he is brought into contact with activities of this type to which he is utterly unadapted. The brilliant child also is likely to be excessively cuddled both at home and in school; in other words, to become a pet. He therefore resents attention to others, and responds to crossing of his will by tantrums, disobedience, and imperinence. Punishment merely tends to accentuate the difficulty of the response. Recourse to Reading The child who spends practically all of his time in reading may be exceptionally brilliant and may read because of some physical inferiority that he feels excessively, or to protect himself from inability to play with other children. A child who learns rapidly and spends only a half-hour in study of material that may require two hours for some other child soon learns to bluff in class and to study even less than he should to keep at the top of the work. The extra time is not properly accounted for and may be spent in truancy or in undesirable activities. The parents whose offspring is a genius are perhaps to be congratulated on his intellectual achievements, but they have before them problems of behavior and control demanding special study and insight and for which unfortunately but few parents are especially suited.

With Our Contemporaries

SCHOOL KIDS AND AUTOS It is this very wholesome belief of parents that, if necessary, they themselves can live with "horse and buggy days" necessities, but that their children must have "motor age" luxuries, which keeps hundreds of parents in the rut, does no good to their children, and makes wholesale trouble for our educators.—Ardmore Ardmoreite. GAS, THE EFFICIENT FUEL. Fuel experts of the United States, England, France and Germany will meet at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, November 15-19, to discuss the most efficient and desirable uses of bituminous coal. Production of gas from soft coal, the use and advantages of gas as a smokeless fuel, and the economic importance of gas plant by-products, are among the main subjects listed for the conference. Engineers and public health authorities advocate the use of gas instead of raw coal as being more efficient, economical and healthful.

Campus Rebels Continued From Page Five Wetherly shot a frightened glance at Judith's desperate face, and, seizing Myra by the arm, walked her rapidly away. Judith went down into the sunken garden by the sundial and sat on a stone bench. In fifteen minutes the two o'clock bell rang, and she picked up the Horace textbook that lay beside her and started wearily for the building again. Most of the class had assembled when she entered the room, but she saw that Eric had not come in. A little group by the window turned and eyed her, then put heads together again. She could hear a whispered word here and there. Soon, she began to listen with desperate eagerness. "All smashed up—dead some time," she heard the spectacled boy say to the shuddering Misses Kenney. "Car full of empty jugs and bottles—letters." (To Be Continued)

Shea is dead, and Judith can't help wondering about Eric's bruised eye and his talk of making Shea shut up.

Grain Exchange Has Way To Stop Feeding Of Pigeon CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—When it comes down to a question of pigeons, Chicago is right in the same class with Venice. Oddly enough, too, the best place to see Chicago flocks of pigeons whirling between the sky scrapers or feasting along the sidewalk is at the Rialto, the covered bridge that in regulation Venice style connects the board of trade with tall office suites to the south. Known as the Rialto long before the parish theater district further north had appropriated an identical Venetian title, the bridge in the rear of the board of trade looks down on the favorite Chicago parade ground of the pigeons. Grain handlers, especially corn, are the attraction for the flocks which fascinate passers-by, especially visitors to Chicago, and which show the same absence of timidity characteristic of the celebrated pigeons of St. Mark's square in Venice.

Guidelines new office boys in Chicago broke-up offices who become over-enthusiastic about feeding the pigeons, are never reproved. The traditional remedy is to send such youths hurrying to other grain offices and bearing an urgent request for "corn to feed the eagles." Each office refers the luckless searcher to another place. Eventually, the fact is disclosed that the eagles in question have no relation whatever to birds of trade pigeons but are the huge bronze eagles on the postoffice dome—a block away—birds that have no appetite for corn or for any other grain which is dealt in on "change in Chicago.

river, burial ground for western Indians for uncounted generations and particularly sacred to the Yankimas, has been set aside by the government as a Red Man's City of the dead. Since the days when thousands of Indians from western plains and mountains made annual pilgrimages to the fishing grounds of The Dalles and the "tum-water" of the Columbia, bringing their dead with them, the island has been a holy ground for the aborigines. Formerly it was covered with large "dead houses" built of cedar, on the shelves of which reposed the stiffened bodies of the red men. Since-wrapped bows and stone-tipped arrows were deposited with some of the older remains, and more modern weapons with some of the more recent.

13 PIRATES DIE IN FIGHT WITH ENGLISH BOAT

12 SHOT DOWN, ONE MAN DROWNS, AND NINE OTHERS CAPTURED

By the Associated Press. HONGKONG, Nov. 18.—Thirteen pirates were killed and one captured in a desperate battle on the decks of the British steamer "Sunbeam" and a subsequent party of the crewing business was made in Hongkong, it was learned here today, when the ship, badly damaged by the and having crossed marks of the encounter, was towed into port under guard.

As the captured pirates were taken to jail, others of the ship took the work of the night.

Pirates Rush Ship. When the "Sunbeam" was attacked, she Monday afternoon, a party of pirates rushed the ship, attacking the officers at the point of resistance and taking control of the vessel.

The pirates were seen to be firing a heavy machine gun on the bridge, which was the only place where the officers and crew were seen to be gathered.

When the ship was hit, the pirates fired two heavy machine guns, and the officers and crew were seen to be firing back.

The pirates then rushed to the deck, and the officers and crew were seen to be firing back.

When President Machado was informed of the Uruguayan note he accepted it as ending the incident. As a Cuban and a Latin-American, said the president, "I am glad."

URUGUAY APOLOGY IS ACCEPTED

HAVANA, Nov. 18 (AP)—Cuba has accepted an apology from Uruguay, and the strained relations between the two countries, culminating in the severance of diplomatic relations by Cuba with the south American republic have been composed.

Cuba's minister to Uruguay, Ricardo Garcia Y Fernandez, already had left Montevideo by orders from his government and was bound for Buenos Aires when shortly before midnight Pedro Erasmo Calloeda, the Uruguayan minister here, handed a letter of apology to Sub-Secretary of State Campa for a statement of Alfredo Guani, Uruguayan delegate at the League of Nations, that Cuba's sovereignty was restricted by virtue of the permanent treaty between Cuba and the United States.

When President Machado was informed of the Uruguayan note he accepted it as ending the incident. As a Cuban and a Latin-American, said the president, "I am glad."

Immediately after the note was accepted Dr. Campa announced that Senor Garcia would be ordered to return to his post in Montevideo.

PERMIT CHARLESTON

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The recent ban on the hoof shaking modification of St. Vitus dance, the Charleston, until recently barred from most of the leading London hotels and restaurants has been lifted. Hotel managers now claim that a modification of the dance, adopted in London, has made of it a graceful, smooth dance. In place of the sudden lurches and fidgety jumps that marked the old Charleston.

Nearly half the radio sets in the world are in the United States.
