Mrs. W. A. Myrick Is Hostess With Luncheon Monday At Hotel Lubbock; Florida Visitor Feted.

As a compliment to Mrs. J. S. Cunningham of Fort Myers, Fla., who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Tupper, Mrs. W. A. Myrick was hostess yesterday with a beautiful luncheon at the Hotel Lubbock. Beautiful roses were decorations on the tables.

Guests were Mrs. G. H. Williams, Mrs. L. G. H. Williams, Mrs. W. F. Schenck, Mrs. W. E. L. P. and Mrs. W. A. Myrick. Mrs. G. H. Williams and Mr. G. H. Williams are leaving tomorrow for an extended tour of the west.

"And, afterwards"—well, the aftermath of a political campaign is plenty stiff for the defeated candidate. For those whose votes didn't put their candidates over the top, it's not so good, either. "Oh, well," says one Lubbock man, philosophically, "I never have many dealings with the governor, anyway."

A crowd gathers around a shop window to watch a painter at work on a landscape scene. With deft, sure touches he makes of a blotches of paint objects which are easily recognized. Hills and trees do not phase him in the least.

Two college girls stop to look at some wedding rings displayed in a jewelry store window. "Gee, those diamonds, wouldn't it be thrilling to wear one?" "Oh, be yourself," said the other one scornfully. "Don't you know you can't trust a husband nowadays?" It's lots safer to stay single. No sir, no wedding to stay single.

An old man sits just inside the door of a house, and offers candy for sale. From the lethargic expression which he wears, one surmises that business is not very thriving. Each day a sandwich a day is a big meal for him.

The Woman's Day

By Alice Sumner

A beauty expert prophesies that there will be no homely women in 50 years. The beauty of woman will be as taken for granted as the green of the grass or the pink of the rose. Which means, automatically, that there will be no such thing as a homely woman, as the thing that comes from seeing the truly beautiful woman. For beauty is in proportion to its rarity. A world of all beautiful women would mean that the ugly woman would be the beauty. For what would it profit a woman to have eyes like purple or brown pansies, hair like spun gold, cheeks like the damask rose, and teeth like pearls, if these attributes were only the taken-for-granted things of woman?

But then, no such disaster will ever come. A world of all beautiful women is as remote as a world with no poverty or sin.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

What kind of stories do you tell your children? Stories of good little bunnies, wicked witches, pirates, or maudlin tales of mistreated orphans? There was a time not so long ago, that psychologists preached the doctrine of mainly-pamper-ism to parents in regard to this business of story telling. The story with the thrill was taboo, particularly if it contained the word "wicked" or death with witches, "dwarfs" or trolls of the forest, and ill-intentioned mind. Now we have learned differently.

Here I shall make one permanent and irrevocable exception to the following paragraphs, and then go on with the story. No child under four should be told an alarming tale or an unhappy one. He should not even be told an exciting one, especially at night.

After four, we shall see. At about this time his imagination begins to run away with him. He imagines that he is everything under the sun from an airplane to a turtle. His little dream world is as real to him as his real world and at this time he begins to feel a real hunger for stories. He is very impressionable. He absorbs little sermons and becomes thoughtful about the difference between good and bad. How can he learn about good overcoming evil unless there is an occasional evil factor in the stories he hears. There must be an obstacle to overcome. There is a world of meaning in the good fairy who overcomes the wicked witch, or the kind fairy who breaks the spell of a wicked dwarf by dividing his last morsel of bread with a beggar.

How can Tom show his courage unless there is a terrible pirate to fight? Or Jack give an example of bravery without his giant?

Now there are stories such as Hansel and Gretel, in which a wicked witch holds Hansel in a cake to fatten him for eating and sending by Gretel pushing the old girl herself into the oven she had prepared. These stories should be burned. Also a story like "Rumpelstiltskin," the dwarf who stole the baby out of the poor queen's bed, and "The Rose Tree," depicting a flower-pot in which a young man's head had been buried. All these and their ilk should be cut out of a mother's repertoire. As for "Red Riding Hood," all the discussion about it has come to naught.

But in telling it, I shouldn't make it silly by changing it. Why tell it at all? Those big eyes and ears and teeth, so incongruous in Granny's cap, still make me shiver. If a child is not too nervous, if he is a natural, normal child, I should mix the story diet and give him a right stiff one occasionally. His imagination must be fed. And if you "sweep off" a pirate or push a giant over a precipice and make "the last of him," with no revolting details, or demolish a witch before she demolishes someone else, with a large fine sweep of your story brush—why that's not good for a child's heart. Let him have a little ginger.

Each year the story diet can be strengthened. A child loves to hear the same story over and over when he is little. Later he will beg, "Tell me another." And if you can beg, borrow or steal stories, tell him all he can hold. It is good for him.

But I should not feed him pap. If he is too nervous to hear real stories, don't tell him any until he is older.

STOP, START and STEER BETTER!

JUST four small points of contact—four areas of only a few square inches each where tires and pavement meet—how all-important they are to the safety and comfort of driver and riders alike.

Did you ever think that you cannot stop, start or steer your car without perfect contact of tires and pavement? Portland Cement concrete pavement affords the best surface for rubber tire contact.

Your city needs more concrete streets.

Sectional Meets Of Lubbock Farm Bureau Are Fixed

First of Sessions To Talk
Over New Marketing Contract
Will Be Conducted At Levelland.

Sectional meetings of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association have been called for the next 10 days in the Lubbock area, and according to N. H. Payne, field representative of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, the topic for discussion is to be changed in the present standard cotton marketing contract.

The first of these meetings will be held at Levelland on August 4. Others which are to follow are: Rockville, August 7; Meadow and Brownfield, August 8; Idalou, August 9; Station, August 10 and Lubbock, August 11.

"The purpose of these meetings," Mr. Payne said today, "is to hear details of the new marketing contract of the cotton cooperative marketing association, which provides for removal of the 100,000 and withdrawal privileges, as well as a number of minor changes in the present standard marketing agreement, which it is believed will be attractive to members, non-members and business interests generally, resulting in a substantial membership increase and deliveries to cotton cooperative marketing channels." Mr. Payne and R. E. Overstreet, state director for this district, are leaving tomorrow for Dallas, where they will make a study of the new agreement preparatory to presenting it to the farmers over the section.

Coolidge Speaks At Memorial For Civil War Leader

President Pays Faith To Minnesota Hero, Then
Tells of the Great New South.

(The Associated Press)
SUPERIOR, Wis., July 30.—After a day's trip from St. Paul, President Coolidge came to this city to dedicate a monument to Col. William Colville, Civil War hero. President Coolidge was back in Cedar Island today with Secretary of Agriculture J. H. Wallace.

Mr. Coolidge boarded the President's train at 10:30 a. m. Sunday on the return from Cannon Falls, Minn., where the president delivered a short dedicatory address and where Mrs. Coolidge unveiled the monument to the man who led the first Minnesota infantry in the battle of Gettysburg.

Sunday's trip was long and hot and President Coolidge was expected to take things easy today. Standing on a high mound in the Cannon Falls cemetery, President Coolidge read to 20,000 people assembled his prepared speech in which he told of the heroic stand of Col. Colville and his men in the battle of Gettysburg when 262 went into the battle and only 47 remained in action after the encounter.

After praising this heroism as a "supreme sacrifice for the integrity of the Union" and saying that the charge of the First Minnesota infantry "probably saved the Union army from defeat," the president told of the "New South" and the awakened spirit of co-operation between sections of the country.

"The day of sectionalism is past," he said, "we are a united nation."

BANDITS GET $25,000

Raid Canadian Bank, Then
Head to U. S.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 30 (AP). Five men, believed to be the robbers who held up and robbed two bank messengers of $25,000 here today, entered the United States late today and headed south through Landon, N. D., after firing on a border patrol inspector's automobile, a message from Grand Juries, N. D., tonight announced.

The robbers, driving a large automobile equipped with machine guns, first shot their way past a border patrol officer at Maida, N. D. As they drove through Landon, they encountered Inspector William Henneberry, senior patrol inspector of the United States border patrol unit in North Dakota. The robbers immediately opened fire on the inspector's car, riddling it with bullets. Henneberry, who escaped injury, returned the fire, but the robbers escaped and continued south toward Lakota, N. D., trace of them being lost.

FIRE DAMAGES AUTO

Fire destroyed the top of a small car at about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. An alarm was turned in by the fire department and one of the trucks answered the call to 8th street and Avenue J. The damage was said to have been slight.

Moody Squashes "Fergusonism"
In the race for the gubernatorial nomination, which included candidates who joined Senator Love in assailing Gov. Smith and denying his support, there was an added complication for Dan Moody, the 35 year old chief executive, but he came through with a clean cut majority over a four cornered field. It was what he called the effort of James E. Ferguson, former governor and husband of "Ma" Ferguson, also a former governor, to re-enter the capital via the back door through support of J. J. Wardlaw of Fort Worth.

Moody rolled up a majority of more than 120,000 on the face of unofficial returns from 249 of Texas' 253 counties. 74 of them complete, as compiled by the Texas election bureau, William E. Hawkins and Mrs. Edith Wilkins, whose names were left off the ballot in several counties along with that of Senator Love. He refused to support Gov. Smith, polled 77,094 and 15,141 votes respectively, out of a total tabulation of 698,772. Gov. Moody had 364,571 and Wardlaw 302,563.

Senatorial Run-off Loans
Senator Earle B. Mayfield found an insurmountable obstacle in the opposition of two of Texas' veteran congressmen and a former commander of the American Legion, and was forced into a run-off primary next month for a further battle for his seat at Washington. Mayfield gained his place in the United States Senate only after one of the bitterest fights Texas ever saw. This one lacked the outspoken bitterness of the last contest, but was none of the less strenuously fought.

The senator's run off opponent will be Tom Connally, representative from the 11th district. Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of the 17th district today conceded his own defeat and issued a statement asserting he would throw his support to Connally. On the other hand, Jeff McLemore, admitting defeat, praised Senator Mayfield and promised him his support. McLemore's vote was the smallest tabulated for any state office.

vited the police to take them. One woman thrashed about with an umbrella while six officers were placing her in a truck. The arrested pickets waved their hands, sang their solidarity songs, and otherwise were very noisy as the truck rolled toward the police station.

At the Milburn mill in the south end earlier in the evening, police descended on a line of 150 pickets, and arrested about 75 in the first descent, including August C. G. Pinto, who now has been arrested eleven times. Another picket line, formed by Andrew Link, the police made another descent and arrested Link and 57 others.

the slaying how to use it. Thought slaying necessary. Other persons not named are also declared to have worked Toral's mind by suggestion into a religious frenzy that made him believe that the killing was necessary.

The youthful assassin in a confession to newspaper men today asserted that no one else was responsible and particularly absolved Luis Morones and other labor leaders from the least blame. "Toral's relatives say that while he was a Catholic he was not a fanatic or extremist and other persons must have influenced him to kill General Obregon," said the formal statement issued by Chief of Police Rios Zertuche.

Seek To Place Responsibility

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30 (AP). In an effort to fix responsibility for injuries to the more than 40 people when the south bound Cascade limited of the Southern Pacific plowed into the rear of a special train yesterday, officials of the Southern Pacific, state railroad commission and the interstate commerce commission began separate investigations today.

Sixteen of the passengers still were in Woodland, and Arrubek hospital today. All of them were expected to recover but some were seriously injured.

Son Thought Father Dead
Last Seven Years

DENVER, July 30 (AP).—James H. Lawrence and his son, A. W. Lawrence, were reunited at a hospital here today after seven years during which the elder Lawrence's family believed him dead. He disappeared from Kansas City, where he had gone from Edinburgh, Texas, his home, on a business trip.

Lawrence "came to" in a hospital several days ago and gave the name J. H. Lee. Hospital authorities immediately notified his wife, Mrs. Martha T. Lawrence, and the son started for Denver. A. W. Lawrence said that he probably would take his father home as soon as his health permits.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 by NLA Syndicate

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD married ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. They spend an ideal honeymoon and the only shadow on the bride's happiness is Lila's persistence in broadcasting to their friends that she was Rod's first love.

A splendid position in New York is offered Rod by TOM FRASER and he accepts. Anxious to make a good impression, they go to an expensive hotel until they can find an apartment. This seems to antagonize MOLLY FRASER, who urges Bertie Lou to buy more than she can afford. Rod wins money from Tom at poker and, feeling under obligation to them, recklessly invites the crowd to a night club. Bertie Lou scolds him for the extravagance and they quarrel. However, this trouble is forgotten in the rush of moving into their new apartment.

Lila surprises them by marrying a rich man, LORIE, whom she had met at their night club party. She asks Bertie Lou to forgive her past unkindness and be friends, with so much sincerity that she cannot be denied. But keeping up appearances with people who have as much money to spend as the Frasers and the Lories is a severe strain on Rod and Bertie Lou. Rod becomes discouraged and Lila grasps her chance to offer sympathy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

"There couldn't be any place for my thoughts in your head," Rod replied quizzically and hardly with a smile. The smile came readily enough. She caught the hint that sounded in his words and voice—the hint that she lacked the power of understanding. The smile crept up to her eyes, an inscrutable smile. "You don't want a drink, do you?" she asked, in a negative-inviting tone.

Rod shook his head. "Come in here, then," she said and turned toward the drawing room door. Her hand still on his arm. She had left the door open but now she closed it behind them. There was a friendly fire and an incredibly comfortable looking sofa before it. Lila led Rod over to it and pushed him down upon the cream and gold satin cushions. "Here," she offered cigarette in an ivory box.

A golden lamp revealed that Rod's hand shook slightly when he held a lighted taper to the tobacco. "Losing sleep," Lila commented aloud. "Up too much," Rod acknowledged. "And no sleep when you go to bed," Lila went on. "What are you worrying about, Rod?"

"I'm not worrying." "Do you really think that we'll make a person free of all worry?" she asked suddenly. Rod turned his head to look at her. She had spoken with a touch of depression in her voice. "Even a golden crown must carry a few thorns," she went on as he did not speak. "It is not impossible for me to understand your troubles, Rod. If they are concerned with money, my memory is not—short," she added with a significant pause. "Perhaps there are many places in my mind that once were filled with the same thoughts that you were glooming over out there in the hall."

"Well, you found a way out of your troubles," Rod said bawlingly, "assuming that they were the same as mine." "You mean my marriage?" Lila returned quietly. "And you're right, Rod. Abroadness couldn't have done more for me." "Who's he?" They both laughed. "But if you really don't know," Lila explained, "it's a magic word. And it can help you, too."

"To that?" "I suppose you captured it in a dictionary or a crossword puzzle and dragged it to the altar with you to do its stuff. But you see I'm already wed. Old Ab couldn't do a thing for me."

somewhere. I could understand how you'd feel about it if you were still in love with me. But you say you're not. And you know that the lack of money is turning you into a joyless old fogy and yet you won't accept your chance to give Bertie Lou the things all women want."

"It's a shame the way the poor kid slaves in that apartment. Just for your pride. If you love her so much I should think you'd be glad to sacrifice a little of it—though I can't see how you'd have to do that just by taking a position with Cy—to make her really happy."

An influx of guests interrupted their conversation. Lila left Rod to take up her duties as hostess. Bertie Lou came in and joined her husband where he stood by the chair.

"What's this?" she said, taking up the half empty glass of milk. "Nerve tonic," Rod told her. "See how about going home? I'm dead for sleep."

"All right, I'm tired too," Bertie Lou agreed. Rod told her nothing that night of Lila's talk with him. He was swayed by it, tempted. After all, if he earned the salary, he was a while at figures... what had his old puppy love for Lila to do with it? Bertie Lou was the one person to be considered now. And Lila was a brick to want to help him. What a surprise she'd turned out to be all around. A regular fellow.

She'd have been still more of a surprise if he could have seen her at that moment.

California Trips To Study Farming Methods Planned

Party Limited To 25 And Nominal Cost To Prevail West Texas C. C. Leaders Say Of Project

STAMFORD, July 30.—The first of a series of California trips to be made at a nominal cost under auspices of the agricultural department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of studying poultry, dairying, and irrigation methods in the Golden State, has been announced by Exhibition-Agricultural Manager B. M. Whitaker.

The party will be limited to twenty-five members and will start within one week of the time that number is signed up, or as soon as a bus can be chartered for transportation. From fourteen to seventeen days will be consumed by the excursion.

In addition to inspecting farming methods around Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Petaluma, a number of interesting side trips are arranged for, such as to San Joaquin Sacramento Irrigated Valleys, Burbank Orchards, sight-seeing tours, and other big features. The entire transportation cost, including side trips, will be but $50. With meals at a special price of fifty cents and with hotel accommodations for the farmers at a dollar per person, the average cost of the whole journey is estimated at from $90 to $100 for each.

Mr. Whitaker observes that the trip will be of inestimable value to the farmer interested in poultry.

For Summer Headaches

Hot weather is a strain on the nervous system, often causing headache, restlessness and fatigue. To overcome these troubles nothing is so quickly and delightfully effective as Capudine. It gently soothes the tired, tense nerves. Being liquid, Capudine acts much quicker than tablets and powders. At all drug stores; 30c. and 60c. sizes. (adv) dairying, and irrigation, or in general improvement of his farming methods. Close study will be made of Californian methods of feeding, housing, and care of poultry, as well as marketing, of highly successful dairying carried on in an intensive manner even where there is no pasturing or raising of own feed, and of money making crops raised on from two to five acres through concentrated farming that cannot be understood until seen first hand.

Why walk weary miles hunting an apartment? Phone an ad describing what you want. Phone 13 or 14.

Methods Are Studied

Californian methods in all lines of agricultural development were studied by Exhibition-Agricultural Manager Whitaker last summer when he went to that state on an excursion instigated by J. A. Kemp of Wichita Falls.

From the enthusiastic reception given his report of the trial by thousands of farmers over West Texas, Mr. Whitaker conceived the idea of a low cost trip arranged to give such men a first hand observation of agricultural activities.

one vast cattleland, with little settlements scattered here and there. And when some of us are complaining and bemoaning that our city does not have, we forget that 20 years ago only one lone ranch house stood upon the site of the present city).

Fifty years ago a caravan of ox carts and covered wagons crept out from Fort Griffin and headed for the great plains of Texas. These were wagon men and settlers of the old west, pioneers of the West. They saw the great possibilities of a new country and who are the first to set foot upon its soil. Two years of steady work, of hardships and privations, and a sturdy stone house was erected, built from the stone beneath its own natural surroundings.

Today that house still stands, one of the greatest pieces of masonry ever erected on the South Plains of Texas, although its builders have long since passed beyond. Uncle Hank Smith saw and considered the great possibilities of the new land and today a city of 100,000 has been developed in the world.

Twenty years ago another group

A Cow Town.

At first it was only a cow town but it started off with a boom: Emma was the country-seat then; but with the coming of the cattle the business situation began to change. Tractor pumps, mule wagon horses, all were busy and the cows and wild steers grazing contentedly on the quiet prairie were greatly disturbed one morning to see lumbering across the prairie, houses on wheels, stores, barns and belongings. Overnight the spring of the cowman's house was removed or built on the site of the new city. But it was not a city of tents and shacks as is the usual overnight town, but one of substantial homes and business houses, for the town was just moved, not begun. It was a city of homes, and not only a few days before the cattle and wild antelope had grazed contentedly. Business houses showed around the square as usual by one they were moved-on or erected. The old Crosgrove Supply store was erected where the court house now stands, a liver stock spring up

There are many American citizens who have been seriously disturbed during recent years by the apparent attitude of our government toward the maintenance of world peace. We have apparently been inclined to stand aloof and to allow the other nations of the earth to work out the problem of substituting law for force and of the settlement of international difficulties through friendly negotiations rather than by an appeal to arms, without our counsel or aid. We declined to join the League of Nations and, still later, to become a party to the World Court, without imposing conditions which our sister nations felt that they could not accept without sacrificing their self-respect. It seems, however, that recently there has been an awakening among our national leaders that is most encouraging. The signs of this awakening are seen in our new attitude toward Mexico and in the reply of Secretary Kellogg to Minister Briand's proposal for a treaty between the United States and France, embodying a hard-and-fast agreement between these two nations that they will never, in any case, resort to war as a means of settling any difficulties that may arise between them.

Secretary Kellogg not only agreed to the French suggestion, but proposed that the treaty, instead of being simply bilateral, should be multilateral—that is, that it should include all the great world powers. In making this counter proposal he used the following significant language:

"From the standpoint of humanity and civilization, all war is an assault upon the stability of human society and should be suppressed in the common interest. The government of the United States desires to see the institution of war abolished and stands ready to conclude with the French, British, Italian, German and Japanese governments a single multilateral treaty open to subsequent adherence by any and all other governments, binding the parties thereto not to resort to war with one another." After some delay, the French government has accepted this proposal with certain modifying conditions. Just what these conditions amount to we are not in a position to state. Negotiations, however, are still pending at the time of this writing and it is our earnest hope that they may be brought to a successful issue. Meanwhile, it is exceedingly gratifying to patriotic Americans that our government, through its Secretary of State, has at last put itself on record as favoring active cooperation with other world powers in abolishing war. This action is in accord with our historic record. From the beginning of its independent existence America has stood for peace and international friendship.

TEXAS IS ONE AND UNDIVIDED

A stranger in Texas recently remarked "Since I have been in Texas I have heard much about West Texas, East Texas, South Texas, and North Texas, but I have never heard anything about Middle Texas."

South Texas and Central Texas. Yes, we have also heard of North Texas. Now history has told me that when Texas was admitted into the Union of States, it reserved the right to divide itself up into five state by vote of the people, and was given an impression that such had been done without my having heard of it. You know we have a North and a South Dakota, both states, and we have a Virginia and a West Virginia, and when we hear you people speaking of different sections of your state in the same terms, it is easy to imagine a political division such as suggested."

The stranger, of course, knew that Texas had not been cut up into five separate states, for that would have created litical sensation, but he is right in assuming that as a people we are becoming prejudiced sectionally. And we are not very accurate in our designation. It was not long ago that the city of Waco was making a strong bid for a meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Waco is more than 200 miles east of the central part of the state. Because of early designation, it is said that Waco is in Central Texas, but as a matter of fact it is in East Texas. Fort Worth is said to be a West Texas city, but Fort Worth is almost due north of the city of Waco. It is about 200 miles from Fort Worth to the eastern boundary line of the state and over 400 miles from the western line. So if both Fort Worth and Waco are in West Texas and the line is pushed eastward a little every year, there won't be any East Texas after awhile. Farm and Ranch suggests that the East Texas Chamber of Commerce make a survey and drive its stakes before they are crowded off the map.

Geographically speaking, the west begins at the 100th meridian which forms the eastern line of the Panhandle, but in the minds of the people of the state West Texas begins 200 miles east of this line. As a matter of opinion, nearly all of Texas is West Texas.

the plow will be fully developed within the next few years. The valuable acre will be cultivated. But in the opinion of the experts, the cotton acreage will be no greater than it is today. Raising poultry and hog raising will increase 100 per cent during the next two years and eventually will be one of the leading industries of the South Plains. The development of irrigation will place the South Plains of Texas among the leading tracts of the world. In the future there will be many changes that the experts of this section termed "civilization as we know it." Moving Westward as George Washington said, the underdevelopment of the South Plains resources of Lynn county will be the heart of the big play.

Bureau of Entomology, that of the government which exclusively with insect pests just issued a report on how to eliminate fleas from the premises. They breed in greatest numbers in soil or in dust containing vegetable and animal matter. Moisture must be present, but the breeding place is usually one protected from the rain, weather and sun. The usual breeding places are under buildings and porches. For this reason, it is suggested by F. Bishop that chickens and animals be kept if possible from going into such places by appropriate fencing and creening.

area in which fleas breed be protected, and the fleas destroyed by spraying with cresol oil. The ground in which the mature fleas develop is to be covered with salt and thoroughly down.

When fleas get into the house, they are probably brought there by pet animals, hence the fleas must be removed from the pet animals and the animals temporarily barred from the premises.

The application of gasoline to the floors after the rugs have been moved, and thorough scrubbing with soap and water will get rid of the fleas.

lice fleas can be removed from animals by washing with a kerosene solution or with a coal oil solution. The bureau points out that the skin of cats is more sensitive than that of dogs and that treatments for cats must be weaker than that for dogs.

The chief disease carried by fleas is the plague. Fortunately the plague has been eliminated from the United States so that flea bites are not so dangerous, but nevertheless extremely uncomfortable.

There are hundreds of varieties of fleas bothering men and animals—the human flea, dog flea, rat flea, chicken flea, and physicians usually prescribe cal solutions of menthol or eucalyptus mixed with some appropriate lotion.

Dr. Bishop points out that the greatest distance a flea can jump horizontally is about 13 inches and about half this distance vertically. Hence it is possible to prevent them from gaining access to the animal by placing sticky fly paper strips wide on the floor around the bed.

It is better, however, to avoid the necessity for this measure by getting rid of the fleas in their breeding places.

and is now worn all over the world. The Government has established a Stock Department in each of their many stores.

How long socks have been in use in the world is not definitely known, but it is an established fact that Columbus wore socks on his famous first voyage to America. It is almost definitely known that Columbus wore socks on his famous first voyage to America. It is almost definitely known that Columbus wore socks on his famous first voyage to America.

value of socks to humanity very often they prove to be a protection against the elements, a protection to shoes. No doubt Jones, our Policeman, wears out several pairs of socks a month, but just think of the shoes he saves. Some feet would be awful hard on shoes if he had socks. Then think of the laborer who has to wear socks are forced to carry. Indeed, they are the burden-bearers of the race. Think if you will, of the tremendous burdens borne, by the socks worn by Ex-President Taft, and Smith, our butcher. Sometimes we are asked to wear socks in the military conditions under which, and in which, some socks are forced to labor. Think of the multitude of crusty earnings and obnoxious odors of socks to humanity. Very many cotton socks people wear the higher the price our farmers receive for their cotton, but if even lady starts to wearing cotton socks the profitters will make "socks" for us—many of them will be woolen socks—they make me feel sheepish. Neither do I like to wear silk socks, because they are too hard to get on an off without slipping. The best kind of sock I ever heard of was an admission sock. When you put it on, you are so comfortable full of odor all you have to do to throw them in a fire for a few minutes, then take them out, it's fresh, clean and warm. I imagine socks made out of rubber would be fine for a lady with rheumatism, they would rub her (rubber) socks

Perhaps you will say that stockings have been worn in the past. But you are wrong. Stockings are just a freakish kind of sock anyway. Stocking came into general use a long time before socks did. Some stockings are long, (a few) others are shorter. Some are so long they have to be pulled over the head. Some are pulled up, but when you go to buy a pair of them you always have to "roll" up the cash. Stockings are artistic and that is the reason all men like to look at them. They are more artistic on women than on men, in fact, they are not at all attractive on women, but when worn by men. Men criticize women for wearing short stockings, but men ceased to wear long stockings a century before women did. Hoped.

THE LIFE OF A LEAN MAN

Intobuck, Texas

I am going to tell you how tall I am
For, of course, you could not guess it.
Six feet two inches is correct;
It's true, I must confess it.
One hundred twenty pounds I weigh.
That fact I can't refute.
My legs are long, my arms are, too.
But yet folks say I'm "cute."

And faces made behind me.
It's "Glim, old oss, how do you d
Or is "Hello, Schabed."
Unless, perchance, they must brief,
And then it's just plain "Rod."
"Highrocket," too, I often call
By people whom I meet;
And "Here comes Mutt," the k dies about.

And often make me regret
That I did not make a much shorter man.
And fatter, too, you bet.
But I had nothing to do with the way
I'm built.
So why should I worry about it?
And I never would think of my lengthy shape.
If folks would cease to snout it.
But it makes no difference where I go.
The fellows are sure to remind me
With puns and jokes and epithets,
"Bones," "Gusset," and "maum Keene," "High" and "Long-legs" too—
Where do they get so many?
Forever I hear the same old jokes
About fellows who are laid out
Or lean and lank and skinny,
But by heart I know them all.
Yet each time I hear the word told,
I've got to force a grin.
Or else they say I'm kinder—
About being tall and thin,

DAILY MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, July 30. (AP)—After selling off early today in response to relatively easy cables and talk of bearish private conditions figures, the cotton market recovered part of its losses on covering. December which had declined to 20.31 under the early pressure, or 35 points below Saturday's closing quotations, advanced to 20.55 and closed at 20.45, the general market closing steady at net declines of 16 to 18 points.

The market opened steady at declines of 23 to 33 points, and after a little irregularity, sold 35 to 37 points below Saturday's closing quotations under liquidation and scattered selling. A favorable view of over-Sunday weather conditions and expectation of favorable private end-month condition and crop reports, were factors mentioned on the break which carried prices off to 20.50 for October and 20.23 for January during the forenoon.

Offerings tapered off at these figures, however, and failure of a private report placing the condition of the crop at 99.6 compared with 99.7 last month to stimulate more aggressive offerings, appeared to bring in covering or rebuying by recent seller. This soon steadied the market. There was some buying later on detailed weather reports, showing rather more rains than considered desirable at western best points.

CHICAGO GRAIN.
CHICAGO, July 30. (AP)—All grain underwent a decided setback in price today, largely as a result of big receipts of wheat and also of corn visible supply an increase of supply showed nearly 9,000,000 bushels increase for the week, and the corn visible supply a net increase of 1,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 12 to 1 3/4c net lower, with corn 2-4c to 2 1/2-3c off, oats 1c to 1-2c down, and provisions varying from a shade decline to 30c advance.

Provisions for the most part held about steady.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
CHICAGO, July 30. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Cattle 17,000; calves 3,000. Steers and yearling trade steady to 25 lower; top yearlings 16.75, heaves 16.25; wide price spreads developing between grassers and strict fed grain fed steers. Slaughter class, steers, good and choice 13.00-15.00 lb. 14.00 to 16.25; 1100-1300 lb. 14.00 to 16.00; 950-1100 lb. 14.00 to 16.75; common and medium 850 lb. up 8.75 to 14.00; fed yearlings, good and choice 7.50-9.50 lb. 14.00 to 16.75; heifers, good and choice 8.50 lb. down 14.00 to 16.75; common and medium 7.25 to 9.10; low cutter 6.00 to 7.25; bulls, good and choice (beef) 9.40 to 10.75; cutter to medium 7.25 to 9.40; vealers (milk fed) good and choice 14.00 to 16.00; medium 12.00 to 14.00; cull and common 8.00 to 12.00; stockers and feeders, good and choice 11.75 to 13.50; common and medium 9.50 to 11.75.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, July 30. (AP)—Decline of practically $2 a bale met short covering and trade buying in the cotton market today and before the demand was supplied prices had recovered about half the early loss. In the final trading, however, a renewal of realizing carried values off 11 to 12 points from the top and the market closed steady at a net decline of 23 to 25 points.

October contracts after declining to 19.85 rallied to 20.20, or 25 points up. The subsequent reactions carried the delivery down to 20.08 where it closed.

The market opened easy in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables than, due. Prices continued to decline after the start under liquidation by recent buyers and ring traders selling in an effort to force a reaction. Before the selling had subsided October had traded off to 19.95, December 19.90 and January 19.84 or 36 to 41 points below Saturday's close.

A comparatively dry weather map and the issuance of two private crop reports which were construed as bearish probably aided the ease.

NEW YORK STOCKS
NEW YORK, July 30. (AP)—Marking up of the call money rate from 5 1/2 to 5 percent accompanied by the calling of more than $30,000,000 in loans, today checked the recovery in stock prices which had been under way for more than a week. The reaction set in after a brisk opening rally in which a number of issues ranging from fractions to nearly 4 points.

The stiffening in call money was incidental to the heavy monthly demands for funds. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Bond prices continued to drift lower, although there were numerous exceptions to the general trend.

Wall Street generally looks for the future course of the market to be determined principally by two factors, credit and business. The credit outlook is uncertain as evident by the divergent opinions regarding the trend of money rates. Business prospects generally are considered favorable, although the expected improvement varies with the different industries. With the exception of the Peerless Motor Car company which reported a net loss of nearly $600,000 in the first half of the year, most of the semi-annual statements making their appearance during the day were favorable.

on the site of the present Highway garage. Land offices, a post office, pool parlor, a drug store and numerous other enterprises soon got under way.

Farming Begins. But as each year passed and the town grew by leaps and bounds, signs of even greater progress began to take place. Slowly the great ranches were broken up and divided, and farms begun to dot the prairie, as the farmers from the middle western and northern states began to hear of this fairy land to the west. And slowly, one by one, these old buildings, having served their day in the era of organization and development, have given way to modern brick structures, until today, with the tearing down of the old Frain Drug store building not one of the original buildings remain upon the square.

Destructive Fire.
The town at first was built along North Berkshire street, on the site of the C. B. Livestock Land office and the Emma Hardware company. Only a short time after the organization of the town this section was destroyed by fire and a large number of the wooden structures moved here from Emma were destroyed in the blaze. With this the business section of the city moved southward around the square as we now find it today. Then came the court house and two more of the original buildings were forced to move. These were the Crosbyton

Supply store and the old livery stable. The former may be seen today attached to the rear of the Fullingim hotel, and serving as a kitchen and cook's quarters. The old livery stable still exists with alterations and improvements just to the south of the square on Third street. These two buildings are the only ones that remain of those that were built in the first year of the city's history. (Continued Wednesday.)

Read Excerpts From Dispatch In The Sunday Fort Worth Star Telegram

¶ The wells which may be considered commercial producers and on which completion is being held up for various reasons, are the Midwest Refining Co. No. 1 State, in the Northeast corner of section 9-19a-38E. The well has been swabbing at the rate of 200 barrels daily. There is now about 1,500 barrels in storage on the lease which the lease produced. This well is being given a thorough swabbing test, after which it will be placed on production.

¶ The leasing activity of the California Company has of late been more or less confined in Lea county, the Southeastern part of the State. This company already has some valuable holdings in this county but it is known to have paid as much as $50 per acre for recent purchases. ¶ The other well which encountered commercial production is that of the Empire Gas and Fuel wildcat, in the Northeast corner of the northwest quarter of 6-31S-35E. After making preparations for taking care of the oil the well was swabbed and made 125 barrels in four hours.

¶ Just prior to the time that the Empire Wildcat began showing oil the Endura oil company announced it was throwing all its acreage on the market. It sold approximately 35 tracts of its land which brought from $50 to $60 per acre. Thirteen of these tracts were bought by the Empire Gas and Fuel Co., one purchased by the Simms Oil Co., three by the Pueblo Oil Co., six by the Roxana Pet. Corp., Gypay Oil Co., and a lease broker at Roswell. It is said after the Empire filled with oil and began to make heads that the Endura Oil Co., pulled its acreage off the market and was offered much higher prices for some of its choice tracts.

Did you realize that the lands I offer for sale in Gaines and Yoakum counties are just east of the above activity? Did you realize that you can now buy title with half all mineral rights for $11 to $21 per acre? Did you realize these lands are worth the money asked for agricultural purposes only? Terms are: $2.50 acre cash, balance 7 annual payments, 6 percent interest! What are you going to do about it?
