Braniff's back; Midland not in flight plan

From Staff and Wire Reports

GRAPEVINE — Two years after its wings were clipped in bankruptcy court, a streamlined and rejuvenated Braniff Inc. returned to the skies today — a few minutes late — with 30 planes and 2,200 employees.

"Only in America could something like this take place. Only the American economic system allows people a second chance," Braniff president William Slattery said at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport here.

Braniff had been the nation's eighth-largest airline when it collapsed in 1982 under a $1 billion debt. The airline reorganized in bankruptcy court and resumed service at one-third its previous size with significantly lower cost.

"They're not serving Midland," said Tommy Jones, assistant director of aviation — operations and maintenance at Midland Air Terminal. "We talked to their senior vice president and what they said is that they evaluated the market and found it to be a little soft here.... Basically, what they'd be doing is competing with American (Airlines) head-to-head, and American is providing very good service to Midland."

Jones said Midland was placed in phase two of Braniff's plans. "They said they probably would be here sometime in the future, but not initially.... They could serve the city with no problem, but it would take them a while to build up a market. What they're going to try to do is go into markets where they can make a profit right off the bat."

Braniff's first flight, scheduled to depart for New Orleans at 6:50 a.m., pushed off from the gate about 10 minutes late because flight attendants couldn't get reporters off the aircraft, Braniff officials said.

"We have to prove ourselves 152 times today," Slattery said.

Braniff executives staged a ribbon-cutting in the jetway leading to Flight 200. Several hundred people, most of them either employees or passengers, cheered as the boarding announcement for the inaugural flight was made.

Today's departure marked the largest one-day startup in airline history. Braniff will be flying to 19 cities from coast to coast.

On Wednesday, employees checked supplies, tidied planes, tested toilets and even painted fresh stripes on the tarmac at Braniff's terminal, which sat nearly empty for the 21 months the carrier was grounded by financial troubles.

The return to the sky was made possible in large part by an unlikely savior — retired pilot Glenn Shoop.

He's not wealthy enough to pump millions into a failed airline, not an expert in business or bankruptcy, not a lawyer and not even looking for work, but he's now sitting on Braniff's board of directors.

"How could I feel any better? Somebody will probably have to pull me down off cloud nine," Shoop said on the eve of the airline's first flight since 1982.

When Braniff International Corp. appeared to be headed toward liquidation, it was Shoop and his friends who piqued the interest of Hyatt Corp. President Jay Pritzker and his family. Hyatt's $70 million infusion led Braniff out of bankruptcy, and for his efforts, Pritzker named Shoop a director.

It was Shoop and his friends who drafted a business plan for a revived Braniff, calling for 30 planes and 2,200 employees serving 20 cities. Today the airline's route system has 19 stops with 30 Boeing 727-200 aircraft.

"We were so naive that we thought it could be done," said Shoop. "We put together an operating plan ourselves, and oddly enough, that's the plan that's being put into effect."

Jack Murdock, the pilot of Flight 200, lost his 27-year job with Braniff but worked tirelessly with Shoop to resurrect the carrier.

"Everyone said you can't do it. Well, we went ahead and did it anyway," Murdock said.

The future looked bleak for Braniff on May 12, 1982, when the company called home its fleet and shut down, filing for bankruptcy protection the next day with debts of $1 billion. The airline and its 8,000 employees became the first victims of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, which opened the way for more competition and fare wars.

Also contributing to its collapse were over-expansion, rising fuel costs, the recession and the air traffic controllers' strike.

During the reorganization, in which Braniff sold half its planes and obtained union concessions that cut wages by an average 50 percent, dozens of pilots and flight attendants worked as mechanics, technicians and even plumbers to get the fleet out of mothballs.

But while travel agents have reported encouraging business for the newly slimmed airline, the rebirth is not without its problems. Bookings picked up in the last week to a level that Braniff concedes has overloaded its reservations system.

"That's the only thing we didn't anticipate — the dramatic number of reservations calls. We've been swamped," said Tom Lagow, senior vice president for marketing.

Braniff also faces the unfriendly skies of the crowded and competitive Dallas-Fort Worth market, dominated by giant American Airlines.

But Shoop, ever confident, says American will be responding to Braniff. "This is the new way to run an airline — American is going to find that out," he said.

Braniff's route system now has flights from Dallas-Fort Worth to Austin, Texas; Chicago; Denver; Detroit; Houston; Kansas City, Mo.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Los Angeles; Miami; New Orleans; Newark, N.J.; New York; Oklahoma City; Philadelphia; San Antonio, Texas; San Francisco; Tulsa, Okla.; and Washington, D.C.

Far West Texas was on the eastern edge of Wednesday's power outage affecting six western states.

Six-state 'blackout' nips El Paso area

From Wire Reports

Traffic lights went out, movie theaters scrapped showings and restaurants had to serve cheese and crackers by candlelight when a blackout hit parts of six Western states for up to 2½ hours, putting 3 million utility customers in the dark, authorities said.

Officials today were trying to determine what caused a major north-south power transmission line to fail Wednesday night in northern California, darkening parts of California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Texas.

The failure left most of El Paso County's 480,000 residents without power for a short time, officials in Texas say.

Scott Ehret, a spokesman for El Paso Electric Co., said outages in Far West Texas lasted for up to an hour.

He said there was no evidence the El Paso outage was related to blackouts that were occurring in other states about the same time, but said, "If it's not, it's a big coincidence."

Ehret said virtually all of El Paso County, except for downtown and parts of west El Paso, suffered at least a few minutes of power disruption.

The outages stretched from Las Cruces, N.M., about 40 miles north of El Paso, to Fabens, a small town on the Rio Grande, about 20 miles to the southeast, Ehret said.

The 500-kilovolt Pacific Gas & Electric Co. power line went out at 5:43 p.m. PST, affecting a huge, interconnecting power grid. While lights in some cities flickered for just a few minutes, electricity in other places was not restored until 8:05 p.m., officials said.

THFC favors new 75-bed hospital

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — A favorable recommendation for a new 75-bed hospital in Midland was released by a hearing officer with the Texas Health Facilities Commission (THFC) in Austin this week.

The Doctors Hospital of the Permian Basin, a $15.4 million replacement facility for Parkview Hospital, was recommended for approval by Danny Hardesty following a hearing Oct. 11. The final decision is expected to be made by the three-member commission Thursday, according to Carol Daniels, THFC deputy administrator.

As a subsidiary of American Medical Centers, Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., owner of Parkview Hospital, the facility would replace the "underutilized" 60 beds at Parkview Hospital.

Since November 1982 when joined at a THFC hearing for additional beds, a battle was waged between Midland Memorial Hospital and Parkview. MMH's $15 million 77-bed expansion was approved but AMC's request for a $17.5 million 110-bed replacement hospital was denied in March 1982.

All certificate of need applications for services, equipment and expansions exceeding $600,000 must be approved by the THFC.

Originally, Doctors Hospital, which will be constructed on the southeast corner of Preston Drive and Loop 250 on land owned by Gordon Marcum Sr., would house an additional 34 medical/surgical beds and six critical care beds. In addition, obstetrics, discontinued at Parkview in 1978, would be revitalized with 10 beds.

Although AMC's request for a $500,000 conversion of the existing facility into a psychiatric hospital is tied up in a Travis County Court at this time, Parkview Administrator Dick Liley said he will be seeking alternative uses for the building.

Liley, at an out-of-state convention this week, was unavailable for comment. A hospital spokesperson, however, said Liley "is very pleased with the (hearing officer's) recommendation."

Fought by MMH officials, who cited a limited need for additional beds, Parkview submitted an amended application July 1 for a $17 million 100-bed facility. Obstetrics was eliminated from the request, which planned predominantly private rooms with 92 medical/surgical beds and eight intensive and critical care units.

Denied again, the application was scaled down for re-submission. According to Liley, "the previous attempts to replace Parkview and expand its services and beds have been made upon the sincere belief that they were needed and would have been utilized by Midland physicians and their patients."

Trudeau says he's ready to step down

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who rode to power 16 years ago on a wave of "Trudeaumania" and dominated Canadian politics even as his popularity waned, is stepping down.

Trudeau, 64, said Wednesday he will resign as soon as his Liberal Party can choose a new leader, probably in June. The new party leader will become prime minister automatically but will have to call nationwide elections by next February.

Trudeau's resignation had been expected for weeks — mostly because his standing in the polls is so low that political analysts believe he could not win another election. Still, the suddenness of the announcement came as a surprise.

Meeting reporters outside his office, Trudeau said he made his decision during "a great walk in the snow" Tuesday night during Ottawa's heaviest blizzard in years, followed by 1½ hours in the sauna.

"I listened to my heart and saw if there were any signs in my destiny in the sky and there were none; there were just snowflakes," Trudeau said.

Asked why he chose the day for his announcement, the prime minister replied, "Well, because it is a good day, it is the first day of the rest of my life."

Trudeau, a lawyer, essayist and world traveler, won election to Parliament in 1965. He became justice minister in 1967, and was noted for eccentric habits such as wearing sandals and an Ascot tie into the House of Commons.

He was picked as Liberal Party leader in April 1968, taking over as prime minister from Lester B. Pearson. He immediately called an election and won on a surge of "Trudeaumania" assisted by a charismatic campaign style — tossing off witty remarks and kissing dozens of women at each stop.

Trudeau was re-elected in 1972 and 1974, defeated in 1979, then made a stunning return in 1980 after the Progressive Conservative government of Joe Clark stumbled. His tenure as prime minister is longer than that of any other current leader of a major Western nation.

His most lasting legacies are likely to be the enactment of a new constitution in 1982 that broke the last colonial ties with Britain and the establishment of French as an official language of government.

Animal control director denies resignation linked to bobcat

By RICHARD ORR
and HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writers

Former animal control shelter Director Dalton Byerly, who resigned Tuesday, denied today his action had anything to do with allegations he threatened or "was rude" to the owner of a bobcat which animal control personnel picked up earlier Tuesday.

"It had nothing to do with the bobcat," Byerly said this morning. "It was a mutual thing between the city and me. I was here for six years and felt like it was a decision I've been working up to for a long time."

City councilman Tom Sloan, however, said the council was informed at Tuesday's meeting by Assistant City Manager Mike McGregor that Byerly had committed a "serious infraction and would have to be let go."

WEATHER SUMMARY

AP Laserphoto Map

Showers along the Appalachians, changing to snow over New York, dampen the National Weather Service forecast for Friday. Snow flurries for the northern Plains and cold weather for most of the nation also are predicted.

Lion-like March winds to blow in at 15-25 mph

Living up to its reputation, March will probably blow in like a lion, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Although Midland can expect warmer temperatures, Friday's forecast includes gusty southwest winds of 15 to 25 mph.

Tonight is expected to be fair and mild. Lows in the low 40s are forecast along with southwest winds of 5 to 15 mph.

Friday should also be fair and warm with highs in the upper 70s.

Wednesday's high reached 57 — 33 degrees cooler than the record 90 set on that date in 1940. The overnight low of 31 was 17 degrees above the 14-degree mark recorded in 1962.

STATE

Southerly winds moving through Texas from Mexico brought milder readings to the Lone Star State today in the wake of a Canadian air mass that shattered numerous low-temperature marks.

The cold air mass moved into the Southern Mississippi Valley early today after chilling most of Texas Wednesday morning.

The National Weather Service said the mercury had only dipped into the 30s to 50s statewide by 4 a.m. today, compared to 20s and some teens Wednesday morning.

Low temperatures ranged from Brownsville with a mild 58 degrees to Marfa, which fell to a crisp 21.

The aftermath of the dry Canadian front left clear skies across most of the state, with the exception of the lower Rio Grande Valley, which had low Gulf stratus clouds, and North Texas, with a few filaments of high cirrus clouds.

Patchy light rain was expected in South Texas, where skies should be partly cloudy. The weather service said the rest of the state should receive sunny, dry conditions.

Winds were expected to be southerly at 15 to 25 mph statewide, turning westerly over the High Plains and Trans Pecos regions.

The weather service said highs statewide should be in the 60s and 70s.

NATION

Cold and windy conditions lingered over the eastern half of the nation today as snow squalls swept the Great Lakes region from Michigan to New York and freezing temperatures dipped into northern Florida.

Travelers' advisories were posted for areas along the lakes for blowing and drifting snow. Another 6 inches of snow fell Wednesday evening at Niagara and Orleans, N.Y., east of Lake Erie, and accumulations up to a foot were expected by early today.

Gale warnings were posted along the mid-Atlantic coast as winds gusted to 40 mph.

Meanwhile, unseasonably cold temperatures invaded the Southeast. By midnight, temperatures in Florida had dropped into the upper 20s as far south as Tallahassee and into the upper 30s at Orlando.

A freeze warning was issued for the southern third of Georgia.

Scattered showers also moved over the Pacific Northwest.

Today's forecast called for snow showers to reach from the upper Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes into northern New England. Rain showers, with snow at higher elevations, also was expected from the central and north Pacific coast through the northern intermountain region into the northern Rockies.

Resignation not linked to bobcat, official says

Sloan also said McGregor told the council there had been problems with Byerly in the past. But, Sloan added, the council did not inquire as to the nature of the infraction or what the past problems had been.

An 8-month-old bobcat wearing a collar that was cutting into its neck was impounded by animal control officer Lisa Ferguson Tuesday morning, following reports it had been seen near the intersection of Garfield Street and Golf Course Road.

The bobcat's owner, Roy F. Allen of 2412 W. Golf Course Road, told the Reporter-Telegram this morning that an animal control employee had been rude to Allen's wife in public Wednesday over the bobcat and that Byerly had threatened to have Allen prosecuted on cruelty to animal charges.

"We knew the collar was too tight," said Allen, adding that arrangements had been made to have a veterinarian sedate the cat and replace the collar with a new one.

Allen also said that while the bobcat was tame and played with his and the neighbors' children, "you just could not reach down and grab it."

McGregor confirmed that although "there had been problems" with Byerly in the past, the bobcat had nothing to do with his departure.

Asked if he had told the council Tuesday that there had been "a serious infraction" on Byerly's part over the bobcat, he said, "I have no further comment."

The cat was returned to the Allens on Wednesday, with the stipulation that "if it's picked up again, it's gone," said City Manager James Brown, who mandated the cat be returned to its owner.

Allen said when the family acquired the cat last August, they checked with state authorities and were told there was no law against keeping the animal.

Sloan said he went to Allen's home Wednesday. "It's just like a housecat," he said. "It was up on the kitchen table and got down immediately when Mrs. Allen told it to."

Byerly has accepted a position with the Midland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and said it will allow him the opportunity to work on cruelty cases.

THFC favors Parkview's replacement facility plan

Further evaluation of area bed needs and in order to "ensure the replacement of Parkview Hospital in the shortest possible time" prompted the request for the smaller, 75-bed hospital.

MMH trustees and directors voted in a meeting Sept. 30 not to oppose the amended request.

The unanimous motion stated "MMH agrees that it is in the best interest of the community that the Parkview facility be replaced."

"Our information is that it is financially more feasible to construct a 75-bed facility for a replacement than it is to build a 60-bed facility," MMH President Ray Branson said.

Parkview's second application for the additional 40 beds could have cost MMH $546,000 per year if Parkview's occupancy rate was 40 percent, MMH auditors reported last fall. To offset the loss, MMH would have to raise revenues by 2 percent or increase taxes by 20 percent.

According to the Parkview spokesperson Wednesday, Liley said the recommendation for approval makes "the real winners the citizens of Midland."

Snowstorm still hitting Northeast

By The Associated Press

A brutal snowstorm blamed for 56 deaths in 13 states took one last swipe yat the Northeast today, churning ythe icy Great Lakes with squalls ythat forecasters said would easily ysend snow depths in western New yYork to over 3½ feet.

More than 3,000 people were without electricity for the fourth straight yday in central and southwestern Missouri, where a state of emergency remained in effect. National yGuardsmen were delivering ygenerators to dairy farmers, flying residents out of emergencies and helping spot downed power lines.

y In Ohio, where the snow reached 26 inches in Ashtabula and 17 people were known dead, a team from the Federal Emergency Management Agency yplanned to try again today to fly over the northeast corner to view the storm damage. Heavy snow off Lake Erie had forced them back on Wednesday.

Most of the deaths in Ohio were attributed to heart attacks in people who were clearing snow or moving trapped cars.

"We're expecting that number to increase as we keep hearing from all the counties," said Davida Matthews, spokeswoman for the Ohio Disaster Services Agency.

By this morning the storm center that had swirled out of Colorado on Sunday was well over southern Canada.

But 40 mph westerly winds trailed behind it, skimming over the Great Lakes and hurling another 6 to 12 inches of snow at cities on the shores ythis morning. Half a foot of new snow fell by late Wednesday at Niagara County, N.Y., on top of 31.4 inches earlier in the day.

"That's what makes it so unbearable. It's really local, but it's still snow," Steve Corfidi, a forecaster at the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today. "The snow will stop for a while, then the winds become more westerly and you get those squalls."

Cold air attacked Florida for the third day in a row and a hard freeze warning went up in the northern section as this morning's temperature at Tallahassee dropped to 27 degrees. Farmers were urged to keep yclose watch on the blossoming peach crop, but the citrus belt farther south was spared so far.

Miami hit a record low of 50 degrees yfor the date just before midnight yWednesday, breaking a 28-year-old ymark. But forecasters noted ythat the date — Feb. 29 — only ycomes around every four years.

y. State police in hard-hit Illinois said ysome secondary roads remained yclosed by blowing and drifting ysnow, but most major highways ywere cleared of the snow that yreached between 1 and 2 feet.

Illinois boasted at least one storm baby, arriving Tuesday at the Franciscan Convent near Mokena at the height of the storm. Christine Heal was unable to reach a Joliet hospital, so firefighters took her to the convent where Richard Chester Heal was born. His first bed was a foil-lined ycardboard box.

"We were praying all would be well," said Sister Josepha, a convent administrator.

The lake squalls were expected to drop anywhere from 1 to 4 more inches on such places as Cleveland, with 18 inches of snow on the ground, yand Erie, Pa., with 20 inches yalready fallen.

Snowplowing proceeded slowly in such cities as Rochester, N.Y., where 22 inches piled up and ranked the storm as one of the all-time Top 10 on record, the National Weather Service ysaid.

"I'm never, ever going to pay my city taxes again," said Richard Pratt as he stood in the middle of a snow-covered yRochester street.

For Missouri, temperatures in the 30s, 40s and low 50s were expected to help melt the snowpack through the weekend. About 3,000 people were ystill without power this morning in Barry County, and there were hundreds more in the St. Charles and Warren county areas near St. Louis, said a spokesman for the Cuivre yRiver Power Co.

Deaths blamed on the storm since Sunday included one person frozen to death in each of Tennessee, Illinois and Ohio; two children killed by carbon monoxide poisoning in a stalled ycar in New York state; a man ywho slipped and fell on ice in Missouri; yand a West Virginia woman ywho was crushed by a boulder ypried loose by ice.

Heart attacks were blamed for 13 deaths in Ohio, seven in New York, six in Illinois, three in Pennsylvania and one each in Missouri and Indiana.

There were three traffic fatalities each in Michigan, Ohio and New York, two in Illinois, and one each in Oklahoma, Colorado, Missouri, Connecticut, Indiana, Alabama and Pennsylvania.

Texan waives extradition hearing

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Authorities say a Texas man accused of murdering an employee near Valdez in an insurance swindle will not fight extradition to Alaska.

Carlton Roy Wilkes, 40, has been held in Laredo in lieu of $5 million bail since he was indicted in January by an Anchorage grand jury for shooting 36-year-old Richard Quien of Seattle.

O.J. Hale, an investigator with the Laredo district attorney's office, said Wilkes waived his right to fight extradition this week.

Last week, Wilkes pleaded guilty to an unrelated federal charge of making false statements on a passport application, according to the U.S. Attorney's office in Laredo.

Hale said a pre-sentencing report by federal authorities is expected to take several weeks. "Once he's sentenced, we'll send him on his way," Hale said.

Quien's body was found in a remote cabin north of Valdez. He had been recruited by Wilkes to work for what turned out to be a non-existent company.

Iraq claims sinking of Iranian ships

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said today that its air and naval forces sank seven Iranian ships in the northeast corner of the Persian Gulf, and Iran said it advanced deeper into Iraq with a new ground offensive.

Baghdad Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said the sinking of the seven Iranian "naval targets" vessels was part of the Iraqi blockade of Iranian ports which was declared Monday, the same day Iraq reported attacking the Iranian oil terminal of Kharg Island.

The radio announcement did not say what sort of vessels were attacked today, but said they were sailing north toward the port of Bandar Khomeini.

Iran issued no statement on the Iraqi claims, although on Wednesday it had criticized the presence in the gulf of U.S. warships, which are intended to prevent Iran from trying to blockade the critical oil route through the Strait of Hormuz.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported today that advancing Iranian troops seized a strategic bridge in the Talayqadim-Nashwa area east of Iraqi oil port of Basra during fighting overnight.

By midmorning, the Iranians were erecting a prefabricated bridge over a 50-yard-wide canal south of Tanaya, IRNA said.

Earlier today, an Iraqi military spokesman speaking over Baghdad Radio said Iran attacked Wednesday night east of of Basra and established footholds along the front line of Iraqi defenses.

The spokesman said members of Iraq's 3rd Army Corps, assigned to protect the city, were besieging the attackers.

Both sides claimed they had inflicted heavy casualties on their foes. Iraq reported shooting down two Iranian jets. Iran said it downed one Iraqi plane.

Few of the conflicting claims can be verified because foreign journalists are allowed only intermittent glimpses of areas near the battlefront.

Iraq said on Monday that 30,000 Iranian troops had been killed in a three-day battle. On Wednesday, Iraq said 5,462 more had been killed on Tuesday.

Iran claimed Wednesday that it had beaten back an Iraqi effort to recapture Majnoon Island, 90 miles north of Basra in the marshes of southern Iraq.

An Iraqi commander told The Associated Press that Iran held the island, but he said he believed Iran's military supply line had been cut off. Iraqi communiques made no mention of fighting near Majnoon.

Iran also said it had shelled Basra, Iraq's second-largest city, and four small border towns, killing seven Iraqi civilians. Iraq said its helicopter gunships destroyed 50 Iranian boats in rivers and marshes near the southern border.

Iraq on Wednesday allowed several foreign reporters to visit the village of Baida, in the marshes 60 miles north of Basra which had been the scene of a fierce three-day battle.

Emergency supplies, capacity 'insurance' against oil threat

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Large emergency supplies of oil and spare production capacity should keep the world calm in the face of Iran's threatened cutoff of oil shipments from the Persian Gulf, government and corporate officials say.

Iran has threatened to halt shipping out of the gulf if Iraq, its enemy in a 42-month war, interferes with its oil exports.

If that happens, the potential for an upset of oil supplies "is pretty high," Energy Secretary Donald P. Hodel said Wednesday. "But for many different levels of interruption, we and our allies are in pretty good shape."

The optimism is tempered by concern over the escalation of the war between Iran and Iraq in and near the Persian Gulf. More than 8 million barrels of oil flow through the Persian Gulf daily, supplying half of Japan's and a third of Western Europe's oil needs.

Tanker traffic heading for Saudi Arabia, Kuwait or other oil-producing nations on the western and southern sides of the gulf easily could be imperiled, the experts said.

And panic buying could send oil prices skyrocketing, they said.

Iraq claimed Monday that it had bombed Kharg Island, Iran's main oil export terminal, on the eastern side of the gulf. Although no damage was confirmed, the report sent a brief spasm of concern through the oil markets because of the Iranian threat to block the gulf.

"There's no reason to panic," an unidentified official of a major U.S. oil company told the Los Angeles Times on Wednesday. "The world is in much better shape to cope with an interruption than in 1979."

Oil-producing nations outside the gulf region could increase their output by an additional 3.5 million barrels daily, said the official, who was not identified.

Man buried in 'Cadillac' coffin

CHICAGO (AP) — A man who was buried in a coffin built to look like his beloved Cadillac Seville, drawing 5,000 people to the funeral home, was "very car-conscious" and had requested the special arrangements before his his death, a funeral director said.

The coffin bearing Willie M. Stokes Jr., who was buried Wednesday, had flashing head and tail lights, a steering wheel, a chrome grille and the Cadillac insignia. The coffin also carried the word "WIMP," the name Stokes displayed on his vanity license plates.

"We took the casket to a body and fender factory in Indianapolis to get the authentic Cadillac grille and trunk design," said Spencer Leak, vice president of the A.R. Leak Funeral Home. "The idea was to make it as close to a Seville as possible."

Up to 5,000 friends and curiosity-seekers filed by Stokes' unique coffin Tuesday and Wednesday at the South Side funeral home.

Stokes, 26, was shot to death Friday by three men in the parking lot of the South Side motel where he lived, police said.

A police officer who refused to give his name said the killing may have been tied to a drug transaction.

Stokes had made the request for the special coffin in the event that he died, Leak said.

His family was pleased with the result, Leak added. "This is what they wanted."

As Stokes lay in state Tuesday evening, he wore a fedora, red-velvet suit and a number of diamond rings and clutched a handful of money. Leak said the diamonds and money were removed before burial.

Leak said Stokes, who drove a Seville, was "very car-conscious."

Hart's victory could mean four-man race in South

ATLANTA (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart's victory in New Hampshire may have turned three crucial Southern primaries into free-for-alls, but he has less than two weeks to capitalize on his new status and scramble to the top.

The Colorado senator, fresh from a stunning upset over former Vice President Walter Mondale in New Hampshire's Democratic presidential primary, will be put to a stiff test on March 13 when Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts, five other states, American Samoa and Democrats Abroad hold primaries or caucuses to pick 511 delegates.

Hours after winning in New Hampshire, Hart vowed to "win others in the South ... and elsewhere."

But Hart is handicapped in the South.

Few prominent Southerners have endorsed him and he has little organization in Georgia and Alabama. Things may be even worse in Florida, where he has convention delegates running for less than half the available slots.

"He's put very little effort into the state," said Kathy Kossman, executive director of the Florida Democratic Party. "But I assume he's going to have some momentum ... there is obviously some excitement being generated."

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, who finished third in New Hampshire, pronounced the race open again. And the Rev. Jesse Jackson, trying to build on a No. 4 finish, challenged Hart to come to Dixie and fight.

"He can't stay in New Hampshire," Jackson said. "He has to come to Super Tuesday. He's not organized down here."

Hart's New Hampshire victory not only alters the race in the South, it turns the Massachusetts primary "from a ho-hum election into a high stakes election," Massachusetts party chairman Chester Atkins said.

Linda Hartke, executive director of the Democratic State Committee, called Massachusetts the "real testing ground."

McGovern said Wednesday he would drop out of the race unless he came in first or second in Massachusetts, the only state he carried in 1972 when he was the Democratic nominee.

In addition to Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Democrats Abroad will have primaries on Super Tuesday. Hawaii, Nevada, Washington and American Samoa will hold caucuses.

Hart, Mondale agree on issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart, who rode to his New Hampshire primary victory on a promise of "new ideas," differs with Walter Mondale on trade and aid to education but agrees with him on many issues of the presidential campaign.

Hart's emergence as a major contender for the Democratic presidential nomination has focused new attention on the Colorado senator, and on Hart's claim that he and the former vice president offer "a contest between the party's future and its past."

Hart's Senate record shows that he shares many of their views while differing with others.

For example, Hart, Mondale and Sen. John Glenn of Ohio all oppose the MX missile. Hart and Mondale also oppose the B-1 bomber, another key element of the Reagan administration military strategy, but Glenn voted against cutting off funds for it.

All three leading candidates criticized the sending of U.S. Marines to Beirut, although Hart says he did so before Mondale got around to it.

All support a mutual freeze of U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals, although Hart and Glenn have raised questions about whether such an agreement could be verified.

One area that Hart has emphasized more than any of the other candidates is military reform. As a member of the Armed Services Committee, he has tried to convince the Navy to shift from huge, multibillion dollar aircraft carriers to smaller ships equipped with vertical take-off jets. He also wants a shift in conventional land and air warfare policy toward "maneuver warfare" designed to cripple an enemy's coordination instead of merely targeting specific tanks and planes.

On the domestic front, all favor busing if necessary to achieve racial balance in public schools. Like all of the Democratic hopefuls except former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, they oppose proposals to restrict the availability of abortions.

Hart opposes labor-backed legislation to protect American automobile manufacturers by requiring foreign competitors to use specified percentages of American-made parts in autos sold in the United States. Most if not all of the candidates favor federal aid to education, but Hart says he advocates less aid than Mondale does and wants it more narrowly focused to fill specific needs.

THE BETTER HALF

"I was just remembering the good old days . . . when your mind was broad and your waist was narrow!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, March 2, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: American statesman Gen. Sam Houston was born on this date, as were two modern Popes, Leo XIII and Pius XII. Also sharing your birthday: journalist-author Tom Wolfe, singer Jay Osmond, golf's Pam Barnett, actress Jennifer Jones and producer Desi Arnaz. Refuse to be rushed in the months ahead. Success depends on making careful choices. A promise can be changed, but not at the last minute. Romance looks most glorious in June and October. Take a trip in December. Organization is the key to getting what you want. End the uncertainty that others may feel. Prove that you believe in teamwork.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Romance takes on deeper significance when you and partner get to know each other better. Look forward to a wonderful weekend! Tie up loose ends at work before leaving today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pay bills promptly and be careful not to make too many purchases on credit. A surprising revelation about a so-called friend could leave you angry. Ask mate's advice.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pursue a job opportunity that is right up your alley. Your persistence will pay off. Slow romance until you are both sure it is what you really want. Family influence is strong.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You need to reconcile opposing forces at place of work before trying to continue with a faltering project. Handle the situation with both diplomacy and dispatch. Let romance develop naturally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A lunch with an old school chum proves very revealing.

You decide to try a new field of work. Do not let petty quarrels drain your energy. Family ties grow stronger.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial help is available from an unexpected source. Be sure there are not too many strings attached to a loan. The odds favor a new business venture. Postpone signing papers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A family conference will eliminate any confusion over a revised budget. Fill up your spare time with a hobby. Be more patient with a child or relative who feels under the weather.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A weekend job could be the best answer to a temporary cash shortage. Welcome suggestions from mate and family members. A phone call brings wonderful news from absent friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec. 21): A recycled idea could turn into a bonanza. Keep a tight rein on spending. Someone prominent is impressed with your conservative approach. Business entertaining proves worth the expense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day for contacting agents and publishers. Make the most of your talents. Those in show business could get lucky. A friend or relative bestows an unexpected gift on you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A loved one could be highly emotional due to a misunderstanding. Use logic when dealing with mate or partner. Renew contracts; sign agreements. A former flame re-enters the picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You cannot afford to put your trust in strangers. Avoid anyone who tries to use you. A family gathering brightens your evening. Try to be more original in your work.

'Green Acres' may be revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the theme song goes, "Green Acres is the place to be. Farm livin' is the life for me." But earlier this month, Washington was the place to be for "Green Acres" fanatics, who, along with star Eddie Albert, were hoping the show would come to life again.

Canceled 13 years ago after chronicling Hooterville and its unlikely rural population for six seasons, "Green Acres" has been enjoying a resurgence of late, taking on cult status among those who say its vision of bygone days was ahead of its time.

The latest evidence of that revival came when two recent showings of "Green Acres" episodes sold out the American Film Institute theater here. The screenings were part of a retrospective on Albert's movie career.

"I had no right to be surprised, but I was," said Albert, who starred as Oliver Wendell Douglas, the stuffed-shirt lawyer who gave up his practice in New York to get his hands dirty in rural America.

"I've been running into (the revived interest) at some of the universities and other places I've spoken at recently."

"I've only had casual conservations with producers," he said. "Nothing has transpired yet. They were very surprised at the interest, as I was."

If the series ever comes back, it would join new versions of old shows, in syndication, such as "This Is Your Life" and "Divorce Court" and repeats of old episodes of "The Cisco Kid," which was shot in color but seen in black and white in the 1950s. Now, it's back in color.

"Green Acres," in an inspired bit of casting, teamed Albert — a veteran of more than 40 years on the stage and screen — with Eva Gabor, who played his glamorous wife, Lisa. The couple lived in a ramshackle farmhouse amid an American landscape populated by people whose ties to reality were tenuous.

"Eddie projects regular guy, and whatever else you say about Eva Gabor, she's a little irregular," said Mike Clark, program director at the AFI.

"I tested with about 20 actresses, and she was far and away unique and the most bizarre for that role," said Albert.

Applause greeted the first appearance by each character at the AFI screenings, and the audiences sang along boisterously with the theme song.

The other characters included Mr. Haney (Pat Buttram), a small-time huckster; Hank Kimball (Alvy Moore), the forgetful county agent; Ralph Monroe (Mary Grace Canfield), the woman painter; Eb Dawson (Tom Lester), the farmhand who studied at a correspondence school that has a football team and, most notorious of all, Arnold Ziffel, a pig.

From the moment he got out of bed, Trump Coup Tommy knew it was going to be his day. The bridge club had hardly opened its doors when Tommy arrived, and he was soon in a game. On the very first deal of the day he picked up the above hand, sitting South.

After his partner opened the bidding, Tommy might have inquired for aces directly. Instead, he made a jump shift in his suit, then used Blackwood and settled in the grand slam when he learned that his partner held all the missing aces.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and Tommy could count 14 tricks — if trumps broke 3-2. If trumps were 4-1 and West held the length, there was nothing Tommy could do about it. But if East held four trumps, Tommy saw a way to make his slam.

He sacrificed his first king at trick one, when he rose with dummy's ace of spades so that he could ruff a spade in hand. Next he cashed two top trumps, and he smiled with pleasure when West showed out on the second round. Tommy was in his element — he had a hand to play where he needed a trump coup to fulfill his contract. Gone was the bungler; in his place was the master of technique.

Tommy needed four entries to shorten his trumps to East's length and then pick up the trumps. So Tommy finessed the diamond queen, ruffed another spade and crossed to the ace of diamonds for another spade ruff. Then he led to the queen of clubs and ruffed a diamond. Tommy and East were both down to two trumps and a club.

The second king met its gruesome fate when Tommy overtook the king of clubs with the ace. He could lead any card from the table. He was poised with the Q-10 of trumps over East's J-9, and no matter what the defender did, Tommy had to take the last two tricks to bring home his grand slam.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. It's down on farm

How long would we remain free in a daily, desperate, overpopulated scramble for bread?

— David Brinkley

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower signalled a desperate situation in the farming community the other day when he told the House Agriculture Committee that farm legislation is needed now or hundreds of thousands of farmers will go bankrupt.

"This is the most important piece of farm legislation to be written in half a century," Hightower told the committee. "For tens of thousands of farmers, maybe hundreds of thousands, this is their last shot at it. They're going to go bankrupt....The farm system itself is on the brink of broke."

Those are sobering words. But, from all indications they're an honest assessment of the farming crisis — one that will touch every American life and millions of other lives overseas.

The farm picture in this country has been undergoing massive change for decades, change that virtually has eliminated the traditional "family farm" by removing it as an employment option for thousands of Americans.

Oh, yes. It's true that American farmers have continued to provide for the food needs of all Americans and millions of others around the globe. That's a tribute to farming ingenuity, but the question is: How long can it continue?

That's a good question, what with the world population booming. Can corporate farming fill the void left if the family farm disappears from the American scene?

There are no ready or philosophically palatable answers to that question, but corporate farms have been able to survive due to tax, transportation and marketing advantages. We believe most American farmers do not relish more government help because they know that means more government control of the farming industry. But we also know most of them realize they must have that help in the form of price supports if they are to survive the current situation.

One solution to the dilemma facing small farms is an expanded market — aggressive development of overseas commodity sales. But that takes time and that's something American farmers are running out of rapidly.

Right now the mandate is to keep American farming alive and providing food for millions of people. Hightower has again called attention to a serious problem only Congress can address.

It should do that with a new farm policy that will give farmers the breath of life they need in price supports and follow with development of overseas markets.

Jackson a thriller

Michael Jackson proved once and for all Tuesday evening that he is indeed a "thriller." The 25-year-old entertainer walked away with eight Grammy awards.

Even those Americans whose musical taste prevents them from embracing what is commonly known as the "Michael Jackson phenomenon" surely recognize that here is an entertainer whose attraction is so wide that it touches countless lives. His recent "Thriller" album already has sold 25 million copies — more than any other album. He was nominated for 12 Emmys this year.

He is fantastically popular, particularly among younger people. And that popularity gives him the potential for remarkable influence.

That has been the case with musicians in years past — the Beatles, Elvis Presley and others. The impact of the influence professional musicians have on society isn't always favorable, of course.

Jackson says his work on the movie score for "E.T." was the most rewarding for him. He appears interested in young people.

With the power he obviously wields, we hope Michael Jackson will use his music to influence his millions of fans in a positive manner. If he does, Jackson will definitely rate as a "thriller" with us.

Another View:

Demeaning honor

Walter F. Mondale, the leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, has charged recently that President Reagan is so forgetful that he is providing leadership by amnesia. We disagree. The charge is inappropriate; it is altogether too kind.

As evidenced in his selection of Whittaker Chambers to receive the Medal of Freedom, the highest honor the nation can bestow on a civilian, Mr. Reagan has a strong sense of history, but one so distorted and selective as to make amnesia preferable.

Someone should remind the president that during his life, Chambers was by no means the embodiment of all that is good in America. He was an admitted perjurer, the author of a play that ridiculed Christianity, a member of the Communist Party for a dozen years, a confessed spy and conspirator. The story of his public breast-beating before the House Un-American Activities Committee is one of the more sordid chapters in the history of texts of the nation.

From a distance of nearly 40 years, some of the moments now appear to have a grim humor or air of absurdity about them: the melodramatic moment of discovery of microfilmed materials in Chambers' pumpkin patch; the central role played by the prothonotary warbler, whose sighting by Alger Hiss — and Chambers' subsequent recollection of it — did as much to seal the spy case against Hiss that Chambers initiated.

By adding Chambers' name to this honor roll, Mr. Reagan has sharply slapped the face of every deserving recipient. He has demeaned the medal and insulted the nation. If only the president would forget the past.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Thai 'help' hurting boat people

WASHINGTON — The plight of the Indochinese boat people — desperate refugees trying to flee their communist-ruled homelands — has gone from bad to worse. Their fate should be of particular concern to the United States: Many are forgotten employees and friends whom the U.S. forces left behind in South Vietnam.

Jack Anderson

To escape tyranny, many have set out in frail boats across the sea. Some have been caught by patrol boats and hauled back to work camps. Others have been lost in storms at sea.

But the greatest menace of all are the pirates who ply the Gulf of Siam. They are cruel cutthroats who overtake the flimsy boats and assault the helpless refugees, raping and abducting the women, murdering on whim and stealing everything of value. Even gold fillings have been ripped out of the refugees' mouths.

The odds of getting safely to a haven in a neighboring country have always been slim. Now they're slimmer. Here's why:

The United States has given the government of Thailand millions of dollars to patrol the refugee routes with armed vessels and to punish any pirates they catch. But I now have evidence that on several occasions recently, the Thais have used their American-financed patrol boats not to rescue the boat people but to put them in double jeopardy.

The Thais have been rounding up refugees who made it safely to their shores, forcing them back into boats and towing them out to sea. Then they are cast adrift, once more at the mercy of the merciless corsairs.

Thai officials deny this. But State Department cables from our embassy in Bangkok give irrefutable, incriminating details of several incidents.

"There is a long history of push-offs from these areas, but the latest ones are of particular concern because each resulted in the loss of lives and each was committed by elements of the Thai Marine Police or Navy," states one of the cables seen by my associate Donald Goldberg.

One of the tragedies occurred last Dec. 3, when a boatload of 29 ethnic Chinese from Cambodia landed in Thailand. After two days' detention by local authorities, the refugees were put aboard a small craft and towed out to sea by a Royal Thai navy patrol boat.

The motor on the refugees' small boat conked out soon after the patrol boat left. The refugees drifted helplessly for 14 days. "During this two-week period, they twice were attacked by pirates, who abducted six women," one cable stated. "In addition, two small children aboard the refugee boat died of exposure and dehydration."

Finally, the 21 survivors landed once more on a Thai beach. One of the abducted women also made it to safety, put ashore by the pirates. She told refugee officials that she believed at least two of the other women were dead.

The refugees described the boat that towed them out to sea as a 30-meter armed patrol craft with the number "93." A cable to Washington said, "The embassy has confirmed that the (Royal Thai Navy) has a 36-meter patrol craft designated T-93, and that it probably would have been operating (in the area) at the time of the incident."

A second incident involved 72 Vietnamese whose boat landed in Thailand on Jan. 4. The refugees were held for six days at a temple near the Malaysian border.

On Jan. 11, the refugees were divided into two groups. One was put aboard a small boat and towed out to sea by a Thai Marine Police patrol craft. All 33 persons made it safely to Malaysia. A cable tells what happened to the second boat:

"It is not yet clear exactly why, but the second refugee boat capsized and 23 persons aboard drowned. Refugee sources initially indicated that the tow rope snapped and that the Thai fishing boat (towing it) then came about and rammed the smaller refugee boat. Subsequent refugee accounts reported that the refugee boat came apart while being towed at speed.

"The 16 survivors of the second boat who swam ashore were again apprehended by police. The police provided food and dry clothing, and then placed them in another small boat that was towed to sea by Marine Police Patrol craft."

TIPPING THE TROUGH: Nearly 10 years after he resigned in disgrace, former President Richard Nixon continues to create controversy. Last year, his excessive demands for office expenses almost led Congress to cut off all funding for ex-presidents' offices and staffs. The costly perk — now totaling more than $1 million a year for the three beneficiaries — was saved by the Senate.

Nixon's demands continue to be the highest of any former president: an estimated $387,200 for 1985. "Nixon has really gotten under everyone's skin with his total disregard for the taxpayers," said one congressional insider.

Rep. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., introduced last year's attempt to end the funding of office expenses, arguing that all recent ex-presidents have wound up making fortunes and could well afford their own office costs.

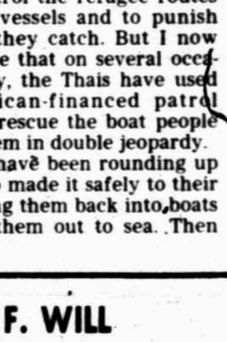
GEORGE F. WILL

State needs whiff of grapeshot!

WASHINGTON — Like the Connecticut River by which it sits, Hartford usually is placid. Where else would a great poet (Wallace Stevens) — poets are supposed to be bohemian and tumultuous — work in an insurance company? Hartford is capital of the insurance industry, which is based on the predictableness of life.



George F. Will

But it is becoming predictable, that Hartford will periodically become a seat of sedition. In fact, Connecticut is becoming the moral equivalent of South Carolina, about which someone (a South Carolinian) once said: It is too small to be a nation and too large to be a lunatic asylum.

These may seem harsh words, until I acquaint you with Connecticut's latest assault on civil order. It grieves me to write the words, inasmuch as I acquired two educations (a college education and a wife) in the state. But I am stirred (you probably can tell) by Connecticut's most recent attempt to destroy the Constitution, an attempt rebuffed with exemplary concision by an unanimous Supreme Court in a one-sentence ruling. The sentence was not, but should have been: "You can't be serious!"

In 1983, a federal law went into effect requiring states to permit twin-trailer trucks on federally financed highways. Connecticut, which wins the John C. Calhoun Trophy for Constitutional Bloody-mindedness, banned the trucks anyway, as it had done for years. Connecticut said the trucks are a safety hazard. That may be true, but I do not want to hear any nonsense about the merits of the law. The merits are beside the points, which is: We settled this at Appomattox.

Actually, we settled it June 21, 1788, when New Hampshire became the 90th state to ratify the Constitution, and the whole thing went into effect, including the clause that gives Congress the power to regulate interstate commerce. Indeed, one reason we have the Constitution is that the Articles of Confederation were intolerably permissive regarding the right of states to interfere with commerce.

Certain hard-shell conservatives and unreconstructed Confederates consider the Commerce Clause the worse mistake since Adam ate the apple, because the clause has been the basis of so much of the expansion of federal power. But if Alexander Hamilton was not a conservative, then who was, or is or wants to be? And without the Commerce Clause, today's strong, unified commercial nation, which was anticipated by the author of the 1791 "Report on Manufactures," would be impossible.

Connecticut says the federal law about twin-trailer trucks infringes the state's "vital power" to protect its citizens' safety. But allow that kind of resistance and, quicker than you can say "Jefferson Davis," the nation will be on the path to dismemberment. We who hail from central Illinois — Lincoln country — have keen noses when it comes to sniffing secession. Connecticut's mischief is a kin to the heresy of nullification. The nullification heretics — Jefferson and Madison, authors of the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions — were distinguished. But the Union could not long have survived their notion that states could declare null and void federal laws that state legislatures considered unconstitutional.

And then there is the little matter of Article VI of the Constitution, which says that the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof shall be the supreme law of the land, whether or not Connecticut is content. Okay, the Supremacy Clause does not contain those last six words, but it should. The ink was barely dry on the Constitution when Connecticut became the headquarters of a monstrous conspiracy, the Hartford Convention of 1814.

Well, maybe not quite monstrous, and it was about as conspiratorial as a calliope. The War of 1812 was interfering with Yankee commerce — and New Englanders, ever testy (remember Shay's Rebellion?), thought Virginia owned the White House. So there was loose talk about seceding and making a separate peace with Britain. The war ended, but not before the convention had discredited the Federalist Party's patriotism.

Some things never change: Conservatives are their own worst enemies. At the Hartford Convention, the Hamiltonian faction in American politics weakened itself, and the Convention strengthened the dangerous practice of asserting states' rights in connection with regional grievances.

A pattern is clear: Every 170 years, Connecticut needs to be suppressed. So when the battleship New Jersey is finished making the rubble bounce around Beirut, it should show the flag off the coast of Connecticut, a state that needs a whiff of grapeshot, or at least a reminder of federal supremacy.

ART BUCHWALD

Wrestling Reagan you can't win!

My Uncle Phil called me from Fort Lauderdale.

"You know anyone at the White House?" he asked me.

"Well, yes and no. I know people there, but we've never munched any jellybeans together, if you get what I mean. Why do you ask?"

Art Buchwald

"I want to arm wrestle President Reagan."

"Are you crazy, Uncle Phil? You can't arm wrestle the president of the United States."

"I not only can, I can take him — two out of three."

"Hold it, what are you talking about?"

"Didn't you see the picture in the paper? They showed this heavy guy named Dan Lurie, who edits a magazine called 'Muscular Training.' He was in the Oval Office of the White House and they said he got there to present Reagan with a plaque as 'The best physically fit president of all time.' So according to the papers, Lurie, who is 61 years old, challenges Ronnie to an arm wrestling match and the president wins hands down."

"It seems to me I did see the picture, Uncle Phil. But what has that got to do with you wanting to arm wrestle the president?"

"I'm 75, and I'm sure I can beat him. I studied Reagan's grip in the photograph. His fingers were too widespread."

"Uncle Phil, I believe I ought to explain to you how the White House operates. They get thousands of requests from people who want to give the president plaques. When the one from 'Muscular Training Magazine' came in they were going to dump the letter in the wastebasket, when a Reagan political manager said, 'Wait. If the president gets an award as the best physically fit president of all time, this will take care of the age gap once and for all.'"

Uncle Phil didn't seem to be listening. "I haven't lost a match since I moved to Florida. You know Sam Braunberger in apartment 2-C in my condo?"

"I don't believe we've met."

"He's a kid — 70 years old — and built like a brick wall. He has arms like the smokestacks at Three Mile Island. Last week I had him screaming and gasping for air on the gin rummy table in 12 seconds."

"Uncle Phil, you have to hear what I'm saying. So they let Lurie into the White House to give the president a plaque. The White House photographer is there for the picture. Then someone jokingly says, 'Do something physical,' and Lurie, who is no dummy, says, 'How about arm wrestling?' The Secret Service starts moving in on Lurie when the political manager says, 'Wait, it's a great idea, and the best photo opportunity we've had all month.' One of the president's aides says 'Stop. Suppose the president loses?' And the political manager says, 'Then we'll shred the picture.'"

Uncle Phil started taking in something of what I was saying. "So you don't think the Oval Office arm wrestling match was on the up and up?"

"I can't say that because I wasn't there," I told him. "Maybe the president won fair and square — after all, he does chop wood and clear brush on his ranch — but then again, maybe Lurie didn't push as hard as he could have. But look at it from his point of view. If Lurie wins the match, no one is going to know him and his magazine. If he loses it, he'll be on the front page of every newspaper in the free world."

"I never heard of a guy throwing an arm wrestling match in my life."

"You never saw an arm wrestling match where four Secret Service guys were standing around one of the participants."

"You're trying to tell me you can't arrange a match for me with the president?"

"The people running Mr. Reagan's campaign have proved their point. I don't think the president will be arm wrestling anybody else in the near future."

"So what do I tell the people in the condo?"

"Tell them it wouldn't have been worth your trip to Washington because even if by some wild chance the president agreed to arm wrestle with you, and you won, no one would ever know."

State radio: Gemayel, Assad to cancel pact

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel remained in Damascus today to confer again with Syrian President Hafez Assad, but Lebanon's state radio said the two leaders already had agreed on a process to cancel the troop withdrawal pact between Lebanon and Israel.

Assad, who has supported Druse and Moslem rebels in their fight against Gemayel, led a red-carpet welcome for the Lebanese president Wednesday at Damascuse airport. The men met twice during the afternon but neither side issued a statement on the talks, which could determine the future of Lebanon's government.

Lebanese state radio and Beirut newspapers did not spell out details of the reported process for scrapping the troop withdrawal pact, as Syria has demanded. But the reports today said the Gemayel-Assad accord was a prelude to a new ceasefire in Lebanon's civil war, fresh reconciliation talks between Moslem and Christian factions and formation of a national coalition cabinet.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, vetoed a U.N. Security Council resolution which would have replaced the multinational force in Lebanon with U.N. peacekeeping troops, and U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger visited Marines on ships off the Beirut coast.

In Beirut, a car bomb exploded Wednesday evening outside a 12-story apartment building near the state television station in the Moslem sector. Police said three civilians were killed and 34 were hospitalized with injuries.

Police said today that six more people were killed and 30 wounded in fighting during the night between the army and anti-government militiamen. Fires were reported throughout the city and a small bomb went off at International College.

Syria has some 30,000 troops in Lebanon and is supporting the Druse and Shiite Moslem insurgents who have driven Gemayel's army out of west Beirut.

Eleven die in train wreck

BERLIN (AP) — An express train traveling from East Berlin to West Germany collided with another passenger train in thick fog, killing 11 people and injuring 46 others, the official East Berlin news agency said today.

ADN said the express train from East Berlin to the West German city of Saarbruecken ploughed into a regional passenger train Wednesday near the central German town of Halle, 12 miles northwest of Leipzig.

Rescuers worked through the night to recover most of the dead from a derailed coach which was wedged into the express train's locomotive, the report said.

The 40 of the injured persons were treated at the scene of the accident, the report said. Six of the injured were hospitalized.

"For yet unknown reasons, the engineer aboard D-354 had overlooked a stop sign in thick fog," ADN said.

Soviets expand 'economic zone'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today established an expanded "marine economic zone" giving it sole right to exploit the resources of the seabed and waters for 200 miles off its shores.

The United States took similar action last March 10.

The official news agency Tass announced Wednesday that violators of the decree, effective today, would be prosecuted.

Hawaii senator sees U.S. heading toward 'abyss' in Central America

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Senate Democrat, claiming that U.S. policy in Central America has "debased" the nation, says Congress should halt aid to the Salvadoran government unless it curbs corruption and meets "minimum standards of respect for human rights."

"I fear that America is stumbling blindly toward the abyss," said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, a senior member of the Senate intelligence and appropriations committee.

In a Senate floor speech, he added that unless current policy is changed, "the tragedy which awaits us ... is that forces of our democracy will be employed in the service of tyranny and repression."

In a 14-page report accompanying the speech, Inouye urged Congress to appropriate aid for El Salvador in six-month intervals, with aid being released only if Congress votes that the Salvadoran government is trying to dismantle death squads believed tied to the military.

The administration has opposed granting Congress review over El Salvador's human rights performance, arguing that responsibility properly rests with the executive branch.

Reagan is seeking $178 million more in military aid this year to the Salvadoran military, which is fighting a war with leftist rebels. Congress already has provided $64.8 million.

Inouye's call for direct congressional control over release of funds and his sharp criticism of U.S. policy is considered significant because he is regarded as a moderate on foreign affairs. He once chaired the Senate Intelligence Committee and served as a senior counselor to Reagan's National Bipartisan Commission on Central America, chaired by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Besides questioning U.S. aid to the Salvadoran army, Inouye challenged the administration's proposed military aid to Guatemala's rightist government and continuing U.S. military maneuvers in nearby Honduras.

Inouye also argued that the corruption undermines military morale because troops and junior officers in the field have little reason to fight so that the high command and other wealthy Salvadorans can continue to enrich themselves.

Riots' death toll reaches 137

LONDON (AP) — At least 137 people were killed and 58 wounded in religious riots earlier this week in northeast Nigeria, Lagos Radio reported today.

The radio, monitored in London, said officials reported that troops and police arrested 713 people during violence Monday triggered by the outlawed Maitatsine Moslem sect in Jimeta, near the Cameroon border.

The Nigerian News Agency reported two days ago that at least three policemen were killed in street fighting in Yola, the state capital near Jimeta 500 miles northeast of Lagos.

The radio did not indicate how many of the dead were Maitatsine followers or policemen.

The violence flared when followers of Alhaji Marwa Maitatsine, a self-proclaimed prophet killed with some 4,000 others in religious riots in 1980, began attacking other people in Jimeta.

The radio reported that the military regime of Maj. Gen. Mohammadu Buhari said Wednesday it will send relief aid to the stricken towns. The Nigerian News Agency said Monday that Jimeta's main market area was razed in the fighting.

Buhari visited Yola on Wednesday, the radio said, and ordered security forces to monitor "religious fanatics to prevent any future outbreak" of violence.

Midland High swimmer Andrew Jordan ...seeking Region I riches

MHS' Jordan wants to win

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

When Andrew Jordan says he doesn't like to lose, believe it. Take it to the bank, quote the man, mark it on the calendar.

"You've got to want to win," says Jordan, Midland High's best bet to be in Austin at the state swim meet March 16-17. "If you don't have the desire and don't want to work for it in practice, you won't win."

Winning is something that the MHS junior is used to. In the freestyle, Jordan has known nothing other than success. He owns the school mark in the 50 and 100 free, is District 4-5A's reigning champ in the same events, and is also an odds-on favorite to win again Friday and Saturday at the Region I meet in Monahans.

AT 6-5, Jordan is an imposing swimmer, and the flaxen-haired MHS ace has a dynamic, positive outlook just as imposing. "My size helps, definitely. I get better distance, better turns and starts. I can pull more water.

"It must be my fins for feet."

Being positive and in tune mentally is important, and Jordan strives for it. Swimming comes first. Jordan's use of one word perhaps indicates his mental frame. "Definitely," he says, to be certain of agreement. Things aren't just yes. Things are "Definitely, yes." Jordan leaves no doubt, no room for speculation.

"He is very tough mentally, and he doesn't like to get beat," said Midland High swim coach Jesse Marsh. "For us to have a chance at regionals he's got to win." Jordan, entered in the freestyle events, will also likely contribute on either the 400 free relays or the 200 medley relay.

"I'm looking forward to it," said Jordan. "Last year at the regionals I got beat. I want to go there and win, definitely. I should be able to beat most of them there."

Running hard against Jordan will be familiar foes, Billy Ledbetter of San Angelo and Paul Priestner of Abilene Cooper. The threesome are the best freestylers in West Texas, undoubtedly owing something to the fact they face each other so often. Priestner and Ledbetter can't win, even if they win. Jordan still has next year.

WITH HIS size, strength and attitude, Jordan seems an ideal candidate for football or basketball. Yet, Jordan has never possessed more than a passing, recreational interest in either sport. "When I got here (after having grown up in El Paso and New Mexico) everybody wanted to know what position I played in football. It was kind of a shock when I told them I swim. Nobody knows much about swimming. In the seventh grade a coach came up to me and said I could play quarterback," he laughed. "I was a foot taller than everybody, it kind of confused me. I told him to talk to my mother, and she straightened him out. I never wanted to play football or basketball." Jordan's father coached swimmers for a living, so his interest in swimming came easily.

"I don't know of any football players that could make it through a workout of ours. In swimming you have to use everything. You can't just use one muscle group. After a workout, you're sore, and sore all over. It's like being dragged uphill by a truck down a dirt road."

In addition, during the off-season, Marsh's swimmers were logging between 3-5 miles of daily running.

To Jordan, there is no substitute for maximum effort. In an individual rather than a team sport, Jordan controls his fate from start to finish.

"Definitely, I like the individuality. When you work for it, it'll show up. I never liked the push in football - where it's win, win, win. If I lose, it's because somebody beat me. If they beat me, they beat me. I'll just work harder at getting back."

HIS COMPETITIVE spirit runs deep. "A lot of it is mental. You can get the workouts behind you, you can be swimming good, then one thing can blow the whole race. You've got to want to win. It won't do you any good to do all that if you don't want to be competitive. I like being competitive. It's not a blow-off. If you don't care about winning, you're not going to win."

As far as Marsh is concerned, the sky is the limit for Jordan. "He's getting stronger every day. By the time he's through with his senior year he ought to really be something."

Jordan is already really something. It's pretty much a given that by Sunday, he'll also be someone bound for the state meet.

"Definitely."

Region I swim meet moves to Monahans

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

A winter storm that swept through the Panhandle last weekend is making its presence felt in Midland this weekend.

The Region I state high school swim meet was supposed to be held on the Texas Tech campus in Lubbock, but the storm's high winds blew the lid off of Tech's Aquatic Center.

As a result, District 4-5A swim champion Midland High and the other principals involved - El Paso Eastwood, El Paso Coronado, and Amarillo High - are getting together Friday in Monahans instead of in Lubbock.

"They've only got six lanes at Monahans," said MHS coach Jesse Marsh. "It'll make the prelims long. We went to Lubbock around Christmas to get used to the Tech pool. We haven't been to Monahans in three years."

Chaps travel, await playoff

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

ODESSA — Midland College returns home Saturday night, but first the Chaps must play Odessa College here tonight to see if they return home Monday...providing they win Saturday.

If that's confusing, it succinctly describes the finish of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

About the only thing for sure is that Howard College is the champion and Odessa College is the runner up. Both, if nothing changes, will draw automatic berths to the eight-team Region V tournament in which the WJCAC and Northern Conference supply four teams each.

THE OTHER two WJCAC entries are decided by a pre-regional tournament amongst the eight "also-rans" on Saturday and Monday.

The tournament lineup will send No. 3 vs. No. 10, No. 4 vs. No. 9, No. 5 vs. No. 8, and No. 6 vs. No. 7 Saturday. The team with the highest standing earns the right to host the tournament game.

That's why tonight's game against OC carries such significance.

"We don't know who we'll be playing Saturday, but we will be playing someone, somewhere," says Coach Jerry Stone. "We'd like to go into that game with a victory over Odessa."

Odessa, 18-10 for the season and 12-5 in WJCAC, oddly enough, has suffered two losses to Midland. The first was an overtime defeat, 94-91, in the Chaparral Classic. The other came, 72-69, in league play. Both games were at Midland. OC, coming off a 69-73 loss to Howard at Big Spring Monday, needs tonight's game to prevent anyone from sharing second in the final WJCAC standings.

MIDLAND COLLEGE defeated Frank Phillips, 80-73, Monday to make it a 20-win season, 20-10, and a 10-7 WJCAC record. That's good enough to keep MC in the hunt for a top-five finish in the standings.

Tipoff is 8 p.m. in the new Odessa Physical Education complex.

The Saturday and Monday playoff games are forerunners of a busy week at the Chap Center, which will host both the Men's and Women's Region V tournaments.

The women begin with games at 2, 4, 6 and 8 p.m. Tuesday with semifinals 7 and 9 p.m. Wednesday.

The women's final will be 7 p.m. Thursday with four men's games scheduled at noon, 2, 4 and 9 p.m.

Men's semifinals are at 7 and 9 p.m. Friday and the title game is 7 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets are on sale for both regional tournaments at the Chaparral Center box office and are $20 for a reserved seat for all 14 games.

Baseball finds Kuhn replacement

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's 15-month search for a new commissioner apparently will end Saturday when Peter V. Ueberroth, head of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, will be named to succeed Bowie Kuhn.

According to published reports, later confirmed by two sources close to baseball, Ueberroth was selected by a search committee to replace Kuhn, whose 15-year term expired today.

ANOTHER SOURCE told The Associated Press that all 26 club owners had been called secretly to meet on Saturday in Tampa, Fla., at which time the committee, headed by Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, will "name their man."

The New York Times said owners agreed last summer to accept the decision of Selig's committee, so the election of Ueberroth was viewed as a formality. And, the Philadelphia Inquirer reported that baseball's Executive Council approved Ueberroth's selection last Thursday at a secret meeting in New York.

The naming of Ueberroth will end a political battle within baseball's ownership that began at a secret meeting in December, 1981 in Florida, where nine owners signed a letter urging Kuhn to resign.

Kuhn's ouster was accomplished on Nov. 1, 1982 in Chicago when, opposed by five National League owners, the commissioner failed to gain re-election to a third seven-year term. The five NL dissenters were New York, Houston, St. Louis, Atlanta and Cincinnati.

In December, 1982, Selig's committee was empanelled to find a new commissioner, and, despite continued backing from a solid corps of supporters, Kuhn withdrew his name from further consideration last August in Boston. His term, which originally expired on Aug. 15, 1983, was subsequently extended twice, the final time to March 1.

SELIG COULD not be reached for comment and did not return telephone calls Thursday evening. But a source close to the hunt said the tide apparently turned in Ueberroth's favor when he received the backing of Kuhn supporter Peter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"That carried a lot of weight with the pro-Kuhn group," the source said. "Obviously, he (Ueberroth) has had the support of the search committee."

Reached aboard the Queen Mary at Long Beach, Calif., Ueberroth would neither confirm nor deny his imminent election. Ueberroth was there to address The Associated Press Executive Council on the Summer Olympics.

"There have been conversations," he said. "But nothing has been decided. That's it. I'm not being cute. That's where it stands."

According to two sources, Ueberroth will fulfill his obligation to the Los Angeles Olympics while Sandy Hadden, secretary-treasurer and general counsel to baseball, serves as interim commissioner. Hadden, Kuhn's chief aide since 1970 after five years as American League attorney, had "no comment" on the report.

"It's my understanding that that information is on target," a source said, "and it's also my understanding that he (Ueberroth) will honor his commitment to the Olympic people."

Ueberroth, 46, gained prominence by building his travel agency, First Travel Corp., from one employee in 1963 to the second-largest such business in North America before his Olympic appointment on April 1, 1979. First Travel now has 200 offices with 1,500 employees.

Born in Chicago, Ueberroth has lived in Los Angeles since 1961. He was graduated from San Jose State in 1959. He went through college on a water polo scholarship.

Dunbar Region I favorite

Fort Worth Dunbar's awesome Panthers, 36-0 on the season and No. 1 ranked in the state, heads a four-team field that will converge on Midland's Chaparral Center Friday and Saturday for the Region I Class 5A basketball playoff tournament.

Dunbar, who will be making its fourth straight appearance in Midland's Region I meet, is the big favorite to win its second tournament title over that span.

This may be the best Dunbar team in the four years that the Panthers have come to Midland.

Dunbar will face El Paso Riverside, 26-5, in Friday's 9 p.m. semifinal contest while El Paso Jefferson, 29-3, will square off against Fort Worth Southwest, 26-10, in the 7 p.m. kickoff contest.

Tickets for the Region I tournament will be $4 for adults and $2 for students for each game. Chaparral Center will be cleared following the Southwest-Jefferson matchup and tickets must be purchased again for the Dunbar-Riverside contest.

The same prices are set for Saturday's 3 p.m. finals. Friday's two winners will meet Saturday in the finals. Saturday's winner will advance to the Final Four tournament in Austin next weekend.

Dunbar won the first Region I tournament to be played in Midland in 1981. Pampa won the title in 1982 as Dunbar fell in a first round game to El Paso High. Dunbar again gained the finals last year, but lost to Fort Worth Paschal by one point on a shot at the buzzer.

District baseball teams meet early

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The eight District 4-5A baseball teams will rendezvous in Odessa this weekend to give each other a sneak preview of what may be in store for the league when 4-5A play gets under way in two weeks.

Another reason for the gathering — known as the Pre-District Baseball Tournament — is to give each of the teams a chance at some playing time.

Midland Lee has only Pre-District, a double header with Lubbock Monterey and the Midland Tournament of Champions to prepare for the league's March 13 opener against Odessa High. The Rebs will take on Abilene Cooper in the Pre-District Tournament at 1 p.m. Friday at Permian High Field.

Midland High has the same tournament schedule but only a single game with Lubbock Coronado between the two weekend dates. The Bulldogs' will begin district play against Odessa Permian and will open the tournament against San Angelo Friday at 10:30 a.m. at Odessa High field.

IN OTHER tournament games, Odessa High takes on Abilene High at 1 p.m. at Odessa High Field while Permian plays Big Spring at Permian at 10:30 a.m.

Each team is guaranteed three games and it's valubale experience in such a short pre-season schedule.

"I'm going to get a look at everybody to see who can play and I like to see them early so we can make some adjustments when it's time for us to play them," said MHS coach Tim Whalen.

On the other side of town, Lee coach Ernie Johnson likes the experience gained, saying, "The games we get in are what we're after. This gives us two tournaments to play. I don't think a lot of what they do in the tournament will have anything to do with what will happen in district."

SIGHT UNSEEN, if that can be said about a team that only lost one starter off last year's team, Abilene Cooper looks like the team to beat in both the pre-district tournament and the regular season schedule. At least both Midland coaches think so.

"Right now, I'd say Cooper and then Odessa High," said Johnson when asked to pick a favorite. "Cooper and Odessa High have the people back. After that it's going to be a dog fight. Cooper has everybody back except one pitcher and they played together all summer in American Legion ball."

"Cooper, Lee and Odessa at the top and everybody else will have to beat those three," said Whalen. "Cooper's got a bunch of returning players and Lee's got some quality kids, good hitting and excellent coaching. Odessa has seven starters back."

Looking back at last year's All-District team, it's easy to see why Cooper and Odessa High are pre-season favorites. The Cougars have three first team selections, two second team and on honorable mention player coming back.

Two of the first teamers cover two-thirds of the Cooper outfield, Clay Clements and Kent Strain. The third, Nathan Jones, was the top pick at second base. Second teamer Greg Badgett also helps out the infield at shortstop and Joby Hill and Terry Suggs give the Cougars good pitching depth.

ODESSA HIGH doesn't have any returning first team selections this year, but they do have three infielders to work around. Catcher Leroy Rodriquez and first baseman Freddy Alvarado are returning second team picks while Boyd Cowan was honorable mention shortstop.

Six other All-District players made last year's list as undersclassmen and of those, five will be playing. Lee pitcher Craig Ray, first team selection, moved to Tyler costing the Rebels some badly needed mound experience. Outfielder Steve Woodlee is the only other Rebel on the list.

The rest of the players are: Jim Osborne, pitcher, San Angelo; Tommy Tyler, third base, and Ronnie Lovera, shortstop, Permian; and Jay Gravens, outfielder, Abilene High.

Knicks turn into giant wreckers

By The Associated Press

The New York Knicks, whose 35-24 record is tied for the fifth-best in the National Basketball Association, continue to look impressive against the three top teams in the league.

The Knicks beat Boston 102-98 Wednesday night to improve their record against the Celtics, Philadelphia and Los Angeles to 7-3.

Bernard King hit 13 of 19 shots and scored 35 points for New York, which also got a clutch rebound basket from guard Ray Williams to go ahead for good in the final minute.

Boston, 43-15 this season, is now 1-3 against the Knicks.

"The Knicks take away our fast break and make us shoot from the outside and tonight we didn't do that very well," said Robert Parish, Boston's all-star center who was held to 12 points. "They get good help from their guards in doubling inside. Their press also makes you eat up a lot of time on the clock."

"We have success against the Celtics because our personnel matches up well," said Knicks center Bill Cartwright, who had 17 points for New York despite a sore shoulder.If anything, I would have at least got a shot at the basket and, if I missed, we'd have a chance for an offensive rebound."

Boston led 98-97 before Williams picked up a loose ball in the lane after a New York miss and sank a short jumper to give the Knicks a lead they never lost.

"You think about four or five things in that short span (after getting a rebound) and I did that," Williams said. "I thought about backing out and doing other things but I decided to just go up with it. If anything, I would have at least got a shot at the basket and, if I missed, we'd have a chance for an offensive rebound."

Sonics 127, Mavericks 124

Dallas lost a chance to make up ground on Utah when Reggie King hit a turnaround jumper and Jack Sikma added two free throws in the final seconds of the second overtime for visiting Seattle.

David Thompson had a season-high 32 points for the SuperSonics, while Mark Aguirre had 39 in a losing cause for Dallas.

76ers 103, Jazz 97

Andrew Toney scored 29 points as Philadelphia snapped a four-game losing streak by winning at Utah.

The Jazz, who got 32 points from NBA scoring leader Adrian Dantley, now have lost four in a row, but still lead the Midwest Division by two games over Dallas. Two consecutive jump shots by Maurice Cheeks helped the 76ers take the lead for good midway through the fourth period.

Nets 102, Lakers 92

At East Rutherford, New Jersey won its fourth straight as Darwin Cook scored all of his 21 points in the second and fourth periods.

Cook had 12 points in the first eight minutes of the second quarter as the Nets outscored the Lakers 26-11 to pull ahead 46-37. Los Angeles, which turned the ball over 33 times, never got closer than two points thereafter.

Bucks 112, Bulls 83

Milwaukee stayedone-half game ahead of Detroit in the Central Division as Junior Bridgeman scored 25 points and Marques Johnson 22 against visiting Chicago.

Pistons 137, Bullets 106

At Pontiac, Mich., Detroit kept pace with the Bucks as Isiah Thomas scored 25 of his 27 points in the first half and John Long added 23 in the victory over Washington.

Clippers 102, Suns 95

Norm Nixon scored 25 points as San Diego defeated visiting Phoenix despite being outscored 32-19 in the third period.

Local swimmers eye state berth

Texas Tech officials are still running the meet despite the move southward. Midland High, coming off a district meet that produced strong Bulldog times, is a darkhorse that seems to get up for big meets. There is only one meet bigger than this one. To get to the state meet March 16-17 in Austin, MHS has to survive the tough Region I field, plus known qualifiers from 4-5A enemies.

Says Marsh, "It could be a very exciting meet."

Individually, MHS needs another heroic effort from its second-liners, who came into their own at the district meet here two weeks ago. John Brenner, Paul Harris, and Ricky Perkins distinguished themselves at district, and while Marsh doesn't expect them to win, they could score. Team-wise, every point should be vital. Marsh figures the team totals will be decided by only a few points.

"The team championship will be very, very close," said the coach. "Mike Seay, Andrew Jordan and David Hartman have to have super meets." Those three represent 4-5A's champions in the 200 individual medley (Hartman), the 100 butterfly (Seay) and the 50 and 100 freestyle (Jordan). Brenner was a surprise district champ in the 100 back stroke.

"He's a tough kid mentally," Marsh said of Brenner. "He's got a chance." Only the top two places in each event, along with four state-wide wild card selections move on to the state meet at the University of Texas.

The Bulldogs have a better than average chance at sending at least one and possibly two divers to state. Doc White and Brian Ameel are MHS' diving qualifiers, and the man who could interrupt a trip to Austin is Midland Lee's Keith Cox.

Other Lee state hopefuls will be Caroline Reed, the district champion in the 200 freestyle, and Jana Houseman, district champion in the 200 freestyle.

Regional Qualifiers

LEE

Boys - 200 medley relay, Chris White, Keith Cox, 400 free relay.

Girls - 200 medley relay, Jana Houseman (district champ, 200 free), Caroline Reed (district champ, 200 I.M.), Kelly Simmons, 400 free relay.

By The Associated Press

College football apparently has nowhere to turn in the wake of a federal court decision that could clear the way for professional leagues to sign players who still have elgibility remaining.

But the feeling seemed to be that football, like college basketball, will survive its latest setback. And unscrupulous agents, rather than the United States Football League, emerged as the college game's major nemesis.

The decision that everyone expected finally came Wednesday when U.S. District Judge Laughlin Waters ruled in Los Angeles that the USFL's rule barring its teams from signing underclassmen constituted a group boycott in violation of the antitrust laws.

"I DON'T expect college football to suffer as a result of this," said Eugene P. O'Connor, attorney for the American Football Coaches Association, which met with USFL officials last year to resolve the problem following the New Jersey Generals' early signing of Georgia junior Herschel Walker.

Waters ruled in a suit brought by Bob Boris, a former punter for the University of Arizona who now plays for the USFL's Oklahoma Outlaws. Boris was prohibited from signing with a USFL team last year because he had college elgibility remaining even though he dropped out of school (Boris would have finished his fourth year this spring had he stayed in college).

At the same time, Waters rejected Boris' claim that the USFL's territorial draft also was a per se violation of the antitrust laws.

Boris filed suit after the USFL waived its rule for Walker. At the time, USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons said the threat of a lawsuit led to the exception for Walker.

Last November, the USFL granted Boris an exception. He then signed with the Los Angeles Express, was cut and signed with Oklahoma.

"We're really nothing more than spectators," O'Connor said. "The coaches' association will abide by the decision of the courts, but each coach has to make his own decision (whether to bar pro scouts from the campus). The next level is going to be the appellate level. We have no case at all. But basketball has survived (the National Basketball Association's hardship rule permitting the signing of underclassmen) and has been more successful than ever."

Wiles Hallock, chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Professional Sports Liaison Committee, said he didn't think the effect of the court decision would be "as great as some of our people think it is. It didn't kill basketball and it won't kill football."

After handing down his decision, Waters urged the USFL to appeal, saying the eligibility rule "involves a controlling question of law as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion."

Breakers want Dupree, but...

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Coach Dick Coury of the New Orleans Breakers says he'd like to sign running back Marcus Dupree, but won't trade any players to obtain Dupree's rights held from the New Jersey Generals.

"We will not give up a player of players for his rights," Coury told his United States Football League team before Wednesday's practice. "That's something I won't do."

The Generals own territorial rights to Dupree because he played at Oklahoma before dropping out midway through last season.

In exchange for Dupree's rights, Generals President Jay Seltzer wants players from the Breakers' active roster, plus draft choices, said Breakers President Randy Vataha.

Both Vataha and club owner Joseph Canizaro backed Coury's stand.

"That's a football decision and that's Dick's decision," Canizaro said Wednesday.

"No players," Vataha said. "We told the Generals that."

"We'll talk about anything but players," he said.

"Marcus Dupree is an excellent football player and we'd like to have him, but we have a team here and I'm not going to disrupt the harmony we have," Coury said.

Dupree and Breakers owner Joe Canizaro reached agreement on terms last week. Canizaro is offering a contract estimated as high as $5 million for five years and as low as $1.2 million — plus incentives that could send it much higher — for three years.

One obstacle to Dupree's signing apparently fell Wednesday when a federal judge in California ruled that the USFL's ban on signing underclassmen is a violation of antitrust laws.

Cougs rip Bears, turn to Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Although the University of Houston has wrapped up the Southwest Conference basketball championship, Cougars coach Guy Lewis said it's important his No. 2-ranked team finish its business with a victory Sunday at Arkansas.

"I've never gotten anything good out of a loss. I'll feel much better going into the tournament if we can win up there Sunday. It's going to be rough," Lewis said after Houston's 80-65 victory over last-place Baylor Wednesday night.

The win was the 39th straight in conference play for Houston, 26-3, and Lewis would like to make it 40. But the Razorbacks are unbeaten in 14 games at home this season.

"You know, we didn't exactly run Arkansas out of the stadium down here," he said, referring to the Cougars' come-from-behind 64-61 triumph last Sunday before a national television audience. "Arkansas is so quick, a lot quicker than we are."

Houston is 15-0 in SWC play, while Arkansas improved to 13-2 with a 79-54 victory over Rice Wednesday night. In the other SWC game played, Southern Methodist embarrassed Texas 103-72. Texas Tech is at Texas A&M tonight.

Arkansas' victory avenged a 65-62 loss to Rice in Houston earlier in the season — the Razorbacks' only other loss in SWC play. For the year, 12th-ranked Arkansas is 23-5.

Alvin Robertson went on a slam dunk binge to lead Arkansas. Robertson had three dunks within 2½ minutes midway through the second half, with the final coming on a missed free throw by teammate Leroy Sutton. Robertson finished 12-15 from the free throw line and led his team with 26 points.

SWC Roundup

"We haven't had many blowouts. We may not win the championship, but if we win Sunday, we'll be able to say we beat the No. 1, 2 and 6 teams in the country," Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said, referring to North Carolina, Houston and Oklahoma.

"Alvin Robertson really put on a show. His dunk on the missed free throw was one of the most spectacular I've seen in college basketball," Sutton said.

SMU clinched at least a tie for third place with its victory over Texas. The Mustangs, despite a 23-6 record, aren't in the nation's top 20, but Texas coach Bob Weltlich said they should be.

"I don't understand how they can't be ranked. Somebody's out there is asleep. Those guys are good," Weltlich said.

SMU had a 51-29 halftime lead.

"When you look up there and there's 51 points at the half, and I mean, what are we averaging, 60? Okay, you're looking at holding them to an eight-point second half to be realistically in it," Weltlich said.

SMU's last starter left 6½ minutes deep in the second half, with the Mustangs leading 73-38.

A victory by Texas A&M over Texas Tech tonight would clinch third place for SMU. Should Tech win, the Red Raiders could tie SMU for third by beating the Ponies in the regular season finale for both clubs Saturday night in Lubbock.

Third place in the SWC is good for a bye into the post-season tournament.

Virginia finds life without Sampson

By The Associated Press

It appears the Virginia basketball team finally is making the transition to life without Ralph.

Stumbling early this season after the graduation of 7-foot-4 All-American Ralph Sampson, the Cavaliers have won three straight Atlantic Coast Conference games, their latest a 65-61 upset of 17th-ranked Wake Forest on Wednesday night.

The Cavaliers are now 17-9 overall and one game under .500 in the ACC with the same record as Wake Forest, 6-7. The Demon Deacons are 19-7 overall but only 1-6 in ACC road games.

Wednesday night's victory came despite the loss midway through the first half of starting guard Othell Wilson, who sprained his ankle. Senior guard Rick Carlisle scored 18 points in his stead as Virginia led nearly all the way.

"It was an emotional game for us, especially after losing Othell," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said. "But I thought Rick Carlisle and Ricky Stokes (reserve guard) did a great job of controlling the game and controlling the tempo."

Kenny Green led Wake Forest with 19 points.

Deacons Coach Carl Tacy said that with Wilson out, he thought his club "would be able to put a little more pressure on their backcourt, but they interchanged their guards and did a good job of covering that area in his absence. We probably didn't take advantage of it enough."

Other ranked teams were more successful. Top-rated North Carolina beat Georgia Tech 69-56, No. 2 Houston defeated Baylor 80-65, fourth-ranked Georgetown defeated Pittsburgh 71-52, Indiana upset No. 11 Purdue 78-59, No. 12 Arkansas beat Rice 79-54, Clemson surprised No. 15 Duke 77-76, 16th-ranked Syracuse edged Canisius 68-64 and No. 19 Maryland beat North Carolina State 63-50.

College Scene

Top Ten

North Carolina, led by Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins, turned a three-point lead midway through the second half into a 23-point bulge late in the game to beat Georgia Tech in the ACC. Jordan scored eight of his 20 points in a 21-4 spurt, and his three-point play with 3:29 left put the Tar Heels up 64-41.

North Carolina now is 25-1, 13-0 in conference.

Georgetown clinched at least a tie in the Big East Conference by beating Pitt. The Hoyas, 25-3 and 13-2 in the conference, got 17 points from Patrick Ewing and 16 from David Wingate. Georgetown led 37-22 at halftime. Pitt scored the first eight points of the second half, but Georgetown put the game away with a 10-2 spurt ignited by Michael Jackson's 20-foot jumper.

Second Ten

Adrian Branch scored 18 points, 12 in the second half as Maryland held off North Carolina State. Maryland, 19-7 and 8-5 in the ACC, led 38-29 early in the second half before State scored six straight points to pull within three. Branch then ignited a seven-point run with a three-point play that put Maryland ahead 45-35.

Indiana moved within a half-game of Big Ten Conference leading Purdue.

Anthony Jenkins scored 20 points to lead Clemson over Duke.

Feds fire Ray Jauch

From Wire Reports

Football — Four days before their home opener, the United States Football League's Washington Federals today fired Coach Ray Jauch and announced that offensive coordinator Dick Bielski would serve as his replacement. The Federals, who finished with a league-worst 4-14 mark in 1983, failed to win in the preseason and were blasted 53-14 by the Jacksonville Bulls, a USFL expansion team, in last Sunday's season opener.

The first-year Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League say they have a sellout for their March 11 opener at Three Rivers Stadium. The Maulers' opponents are the Birmingham Stallions and former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Cliff Stoudt. "I wish I could tell you they're all Maulers fans, but I can't," said Tim Pearson, Maulers director of marketing. "You wouldn't believe how many people requested seats on the visiting side of the field so they can boo Stoudt," Pearson said. The opening day sellout is a first for the USFL.

Baseball — "I feel like a golfer who just hit a 5-iron to within 3 inches of the hole," a beaming Joe Sambito of the Houston Astros said. Moments earlier, Sambito had completed his first competitive pitching assignment in almost two years. He had opposed six batters Tuesday. He had retired six batters. Sambito is trying to overcome an elbow injury that required three operations and rendered him inactive since April 1982. Sambito has appeared in 321 Astro games and has a 33-32 won-lost record and 72 saves, along with a 2.36 ERA.

Third baseman Graig Nettles, who signed a two-year, $1.8 million contract with the New York Yankees last October, told the team Wednesday he wants to be traded after learning that Manager Yogi Berra plans to platoon him with newly acquired Toby Harrah. "I don't like it," the 39-year-old, left-handed hitting Nettles said. "I told him so. I told them if they can make the right deal, make it."

John Stuper's sore right shoulder has not responded to treatment and the St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher is being sent back home for further diagnosis, the club said Wednesday. Stuper will be examined Friday by Dr. Stan London, team physician, then return to camp that night. The problem appears to be an inflammation.

Basketball — Due to the participation of an ineligible player, the Western New Mexico basketball team must forfeit five of its victories, but will be allowed to participate in post-season play, the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference announced today. The five forfeits cost the Mustangs second place in the league standings and a home berth in the upcoming District Seven NAIA playoffs, which start Friday. The player in question, Broderick Sauldsberry, joined the Mustangs on Jan. 18 and started to play immediately.

Colts have new home?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Baltimore Colts' owner Robert Irsay has reached an agreement with the city to move his National Football League team here, according to a published report.

The Baltimore Sun today quoted two unidentified sources as saying the move is all set.

The key to the deal was a $15-million loan at 8-percent interest for Irsay, according to the report. The loan would replace Irsay's current loan, which expires this year. He acquired it at 8-percent interest when he purchased the club in 1972.

An agreement is being drawn up in negotiations between Michael Chernoff, the Colts' general counsel, and David Frick, former deputy mayor who is negotiating for Indianapolis, the newspaper reported.

Earlier Wednesday, Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut said he would not make a giveaway offer to attract the Colts. The mayor's sentiment was shared by the chairman of the board that runs a nearly completed, 61,000-seat domed stadium in downtown Indianapolis.

Published reports have appeared saying the city would offer rent-free use of the dome and a low-interest loan to convince Irsay to move.

But Hudnut was quoted in the Indianapolis News as saying any deal would also have to be credible with taxpayers. And the mayor would not comment on specifics.

"Obviously," he said, "we'd like to make a deal, but we'd like to make a deal that's prudent. We're trying our best to protect the citizens of Marion County, the taxpayers."

P.E. MacAllister, president of the Capital Improvement Board, a city corporation which built and manages the $81-million stadium, disputed reports of the terms of the city's offer to Irsay.

"My understanding is the business of free rent is fallacious. It's not true," McAllister said.

He also said the city should sign the Colts to a long-term lease in the dome, rather than a lease that is renewed annually. He said the Colts' lease in Baltimore has an annual renewal.

"We've got to see a profit in this deal," MacAllister said.

Oliver wants Baker to join Giants

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Al Oliver, arriving in the San Francisco Giants' camp to begin workouts with his new team, says he hopes to persuade Dusty Baker to join him.

Oliver talked with the free-agent by telephone and says the former Los Angeles slugger probably won't sign with anyone until he resolves his dispute with the Los Angeles Dodgers over the final two years of his contract.

And that could take another month or so, Oliver says Baker told him.

"If it's possible to talk Dusty into coming here, I will — if the Giants want him," Oliver said Wednesday, two days after he was traded for right-handed pitcher Fred Breining, who went to the Montreal Expos.

"The first thing I said to him (Baker) was 'Let's go to San Francisco.' He said he wasn't reporting anywhere until it's settled," Oliver said, referring to Baker's contract problem. "But he seemed enthusiastic. Dusty is always psyched because he's an upbeat person. He just doesn't feel Los Angeles is justified to knock two years off his salary."

Manager Frank Robinson was eager to have Baker's power in his lineup. But when Baker failed even to answer the Giants' calls, Robinson said he was angry about the snub.

Airline smoking regulations may expire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board is about to tighten its restrictions on smoking aboard jetliners, but unless Congress intervenes, those rules as well as others currently on the books will expire at the end of the year.

The board, in a final salvo before it goes out of business at the end of the year, plans to issue tougher smoking rules within a month, possibly banning smoking aboard flights of less than two hours as well as imposing new restrictions on other flights.

But as the CAB is approaching its final months of operation, the decade-long battle over whether travelers should be allowed to smoke at 30,000 feet may be far from over.

The catch, CAB officials as well as others familiar with the issue acknowledge, is that no provision has been made by law to transfer authority over the smoking regulations to another government agency.

The 1978 Airline Deregulation Act, which closes the CAB and shifts many of its remaining responsibilities to other parts of the government, makes no reference to continuing such regulations as those that govern smoking aboard aircraft, officials acknowledge.

"If no legislation is passed (the) smoking rules that are now well in place could go out the window and there would be chaos on how those would be re-established," CAB Chairman Dan McKinnon said Wednesday in an interview.

And while legislation that would assure continuation of the smoking rules — as well as a variety of consumer protection regulations — has been introduced in the House, its passage is far from a certainty, congressional sources say.

The legislation, sponsored by Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., chairman of the House aviation subcommittee, has the Reagan administration lined up against it and is sure to get strong opposition from the tobacco interests as well.

A plan outlined by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole for shutting down the CAB calls for federal smoking regulations to be eliminated, arguing that the issue can be handled outside the government.

"We're confident the marketpalce can do an adequate job with regards to regulating smoking" on airliners, Mrs. Dole told Mineta's subcommittee Wednesday. "I'm confident that preferences for smokers and nonsmokers will be respected."

But John Banzhaf, executive director of a Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), which for years has campaigned for stronger anti-smoking regulations aboard airliners, predicted a battle on Capitol Hill over the smoking issue in the months to come.

"Although we anticipate a fight from the tobacco industry, we hope the public pressure will eventually persuade Congress that we cannot leave the question of airline smoking regulations to the whim of the airlines," Banzhaf said in an interview.

Whether the airlines join the Capitol Hill fracas may depend on what the CAB does over the next few weeks.

One industry source, asking not to be identified by name, said the carriers generally are not opposed to a continuation of the current federal rule that requires a separate section of seats for non-smokers aboard the planes.

But if the CAB goes any further, such as imposing a ban on smoking on short flights as many industry insiders expect it to do, the airlines may join the tobacco interests and try to scuttle the rules altogether.

Referring to the CAB proposal to ban smoking on flights of less than two hours, one airline representative said, "It's something the airlines can agree on. They don't like it."

TradeShow attracts over 1,500

More than 1,500 people are expected to view displays and demonstrations of 45 Midland businesses as TradeShow Midland 84 comes to a close today at 7 p.m., according to show manager Mark Kimball.

The two-day exhibition was sponsored by the Small Business Council of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. Amy Stewart, SBC chairman, said the purpose of the show was to inform and educate area businesses about products and services available locally.

Companies participating in the event included Computer Technology Associates which featured a hands-on demonstration of Apple's new Macintosh computer. In addition, Graphic Business Systems displayed its new Kroy lettering system connected to the VPS keyboard converter. Using the VPS converter, "any standard Kroy system can operate five-times faster and can retain information in its memory system," said John Knight, company president.

Trobaco Industries, which specializes in security systems for the home or office, demonstrated its new Gemlink video microwave security system which has a range of up to 3½ miles, according to Jim Mills, Trobaco's Midland manager.

Perhaps the largest and most expensive display was All American Travel's. In addition to its inside display, the firm also brought along its new travel bus which is based in Midland and is available for charter across the country.

Brux Austin, editor of Texas Business, was in Midland, Wednesday to address the Leadership Midland seminar, a forum designed to attract interesting, informative and well-known speakers. Texas Business is one of the leading business magazines in the nation, and outsells all other business magazines in Texas. Austin spoke to the seminar at the Energy Club.

First time jobless goes higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — First-time applications for unemployment compensation insurance benefits rose by 11,000 in the week ended Feb. 18, the Labor Department reported today.

The Employment and Training Administration said approximately 355,000 jobless Americans visited state employment offices seeking regular 26-week benefits. That was up from 344,000 in the week ended Feb. 11, according to figures adjusted for such seasonal factors as weather and scheduled plant shutdowns.

The agency said roughly 2,570,000 people were drawing regular state-paid unemployment compensation insurance benefits in the week ended Feb. 11, down 43,000 from the previous week's adjusted total of 2,613,000.

The insured unemployment rate — the proportion of the U.S. labor force which is actually getting government payments — fell from 3.1 percent to 3 percent in mid-February.

The overall civilian rate, which measures the proportion of the labor force officially categorized as unemployed, stood at 8 percent in January.

The states with the highest insured unemployment rates in the week ended Feb. 11, according to raw, unadjusted statistics, were: Alaska, 9.0 percent; West Virginia, 6.6; Washington state, 5.7; Idaho and Montana, 5.6; North Dakota and Pennsylvania, 5.4; Maine, 5.3; Oregon, 5.2, and Wisconsin, 5.1.

Democrats ready for southern battles

By EVANS WITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fight for the Democratic presidential nomination shifts to the South, where Walter Mondale and Sen. John Glenn have been battling quietly for months and the Rev. Jesse Jackson has his best chance so far at delegates.

Gary Hart, the Colorado senator who in New Hampshire Tuesday dashed Mondale's claim as the all-but-certain-nominee, will have to move quickly to get started in states he's largely ignored.

The former vice president, stunned in the nation's first primary, is vowing tough fights in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Maine, Vermont and elsewhere as he strives to regain the front-runner's title.

"I am ready to contest every primary," Mondale said in defeat. "I'm going to go wherever there's a voter."

An Analysis

Mondale's respected campaign organization and his union allies — embarrassed by the defeat — are the keys to future victories for the former vice president.

Hart, handicapped in some states by a lack of organization and enough delegate candidates, is looking to turn his victory into a flood of money and campaign help to match Mondale's head start in other states.

The New Hampshire results mean at least one of the combatants has withdrawn from the fracas before the next caucus. Sen. Alan Cranston of California tossed in the towel Wednesday.

For the rest of field, the cry was "On to March 13," the first Super Tuesday of the campaign with five primaries and six caucuses.

Glenn, Jackson and South Carolina Sen. Ernest F. Hollings looked to the southern primaries that day for a win over Hart, Mondale or both. Former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern is looking at the Masschusetts primary for a boost.

But Tuesday belonged to Hart, taking nearly 41 percent of the vote to Mondale's 29 percent, proving once again that New Hampshire voters like to do the unexpected.

Even before the applause has been stilled, Hart has to face Mondale in three contests.

Maine's caucuses on Sunday are attracting more attention. Mondale swept a straw poll in the state last fall and was favored to do so in the real vote this week. But the Granite State vote could well sway the results of its neighbor.

Next Tuesday, Vermont has a beauty contest primary that is meaningless in delegates, but Mondale and Hart may try to give it symbolic significance. Only Askew and Jackson are also on the ballot there.

Sunday, March 10, Wyoming holds its precinct caucuses. Hart aides have said for months, half-jokingly, that the Colorado senator would clean up in his neighboring state, which has but 15 convention delegates. Mondale and Glenn also have been working there.

Then comes March 13, when 11 events will test every candidate and every campaign with 511 delegates at stake — nearly one of every eight who will be at the San Francisco convention.

Hart is at a disadvantage in some states, since Mondale and Glenn have been working hard to win in the South and elsewhere for years.

His disadvantage shows up in a shortage of his candidates qualified for delegate slots. Mondale and Glenn have full slates in Alabama, while Hart has none in one district and is short in the rest.

Growing Third World debt worries bankers

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

The shadow that Third World debt casts over the international economy is ballooning ever larger — $44 billion larger in the past year alone. With each billion, world financial leaders grow ever more nervous.

Lower interest rates, a key to defusing the "debt bomb," have not materialized. The worldwide economic rebound — another essential — has been more flat than flashy. And from Nigeria to Brazil to the Philippines, the big debtor nations are finding the repayment regimen, marked by unemployment and high prices, more and more burdensome.

After seizing power in Nigeria, Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari declared last month that he would not "mortgage our economy to any country or anyone else."

It was the kind of tough stance increasingly favored by the Third World debtors, locked in painful negotiations with international institutions and banks of the United States, Western Europe and Japan over stretching out repayment schedules.

At a crisis summit last month in Quito, Ecuador, the leaders of Latin American nations, the world's biggest debtors, once again rejected the notion of forming a "debtors' cartel" that would dictate terms for repaying the rich "north" — possibly including a freeze on repayments.

They called on their creditors to "be more flexible and realistic" in negotiations. Otherwise, they said, Latin America could never make good on its debts.

The roots of the debt dilemma go back at least a decade.

In the inflationary 1970s, developing countries became desperate for big loans to pay for oil and other increasingly expensive imports. It was easy money — the banks of New York, London and other Western capitals had billions in deposits of surplus "petrodollars" from the oil-producing countries.

In the late 1970s, however, the United States and other Western governments tightened up money supplies in order to fight inflation. This drove some big industrial economies into recession, and pushed up world interest rates.

It was a one-two punch for the Third World.

Recession meant industrial nations were buying less Third World sugar, cotton, copper and other commodities, and at lower prices. Less Third World income meant less for repaying loans. At the same time, higher interest rates kicked foreign debt out of control, since many loans were "adjustable," their premiums ratcheting upward with world rates.

By the end of 1982, developing nations and the Soviet bloc owed Western banks and governments $766 billion, the World Bank reports.

Beginning with Mexico, two dozen countries had to sit down with Western bankers, government representatives and the International Monetary Fund, the Western-dominated lender of last resort, to try to work out new emergency loans and "rescheduling" of old loans to stretch out repayments.

Despite these efforts, arrears still stack up, and the underdeveloped world's foreign debt load has swollen to $810 billion, the World Bank reports.

To qualify for IMF emergency lending, the Third World governments must cut wages, increase prices and reduce government spending — so that the dollars they earn through exports are spent less on themselves at home, and more on repaying loans.

These austerities have thrown hundreds of thousands of people out of work in developing countries. In Brazil, which has $96.5 billion in foreign loans, making it the Third World's biggest debtor, business and labor both estimate unemployment at 15 percent or more, not counting "underemployment," those working irregularly.

The impact is felt in the industrial countries as well — and not just in tense bank boardrooms. Since Latin America is buying less from abroad, U.S. exports to that region have declined sharply. The result: More than 300,000 U.S. jobs have been lost, according to a special study commission of the Americas Society, a U.S. business-sponsored group.

Cholesterol levels don't affect cancer development

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know you have written a lot about the effect of cholesterol on health, but I don't remember reading anything that dealt specifically with the relationship of cholesterol to cancer. Does this mean that there is no such relationship? — Lena, Norfolk, Va.

Dear Lena: Serum cholesterol levels do not appear to influence the development of cancer.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know that the bland milk-or-cream diet that doctors used to recommend for ulcers is not used any more, but I don't understand why. What do doctors know now that they did not know a few years ago? — Les, Detroit

Dear Les: Dr. John T. Garbutt, of the Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C., points out that milk or cream may make an ulcer stop hurting temporarily. Since it is a food, however, it makes the stomach secrete more acid.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know that it is your philosophy that a person who has a nutritionally well-balanced diet does not need vitamin supplementation. However, my mother was recently told to take a vitamin D supplement. She is 88 years of age. Would you agree with the recommendation that she take the vitamin D supplement? — Mrs. S.L., Milwaukee, Wisc.

Dear Mrs. L.: I cannot agree or disagree with the recommendation since I do not know your mother. Neither have I ever said that vitamin supplements should never be used; in fact, I occasionally prescribe them for my own patients. What I have said is that these supplements should be prescribed for specific reasons and should be taken under medical supervision.

Vitamin D deficiency may occur among some elderly individuals who do not get much exposure to sunlight and who do not consume adequate amounts of such foods as milk and milk products, which are rich in vitamin D. The problem is even more acute among elderly people who are housebound. I assume that considerations such as these prompted her physician's recommendation that your mother take a vitamin supplement.

'Enterprise' talks turkey about chicken entrepreneur

ENTERTAINMENT

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Enterprise," public television's weekly series on business and how it works, was there when Frank Perdue launched his promotional campaign for the chicken frankfurter.

Tonight's half-hour segment seems at times an inspired, though perhaps extended, commercial for man and product.

No one in "Perfectly Frank" has anything really critical to say about Perdue or the way he runs his $450 million-a-year business. And no wonder: the man is worth $100 million and, "Enterprise" says, "he made it all selling chickens."

Promotional or not, "Enterprise" has a point. If you live in the Northeast, you'll recognize Perdue from his TV ads: the balding fellow with the high-pitched, whiny delivery.

In fact, Perdue's distinctive appearance is so important that his ad agency found a lookalike youngster to appear alongside the man himself in television commercials for Frank's Franks. (The kid's resemblance to Perdue is exaggerated by makeup.)

The promotional effort for Perdue's chicken began in 1971, a decade before the frank was introduced, and the result is a fascinating story in the annals of advertising.

"We were looking for something that would make whatever they (the competition) did not as important, or as good as ours," said Sam Scali of Scali McCabe Sloves Inc., the agency hired to develop an image for Perdue, Inc., "because they couldn't copy Frank Perdue."

That consideration might have impressed Perdue, but there is more to it than that.

"I do think there's some aid to the consumer by the owner of a company doing the ad, because he has the power to see that the product is as good as he says," Perdue said. "And I think he's foolish if he doesn't see to it, when he's the guy up there being made ridiculous by his people."

The approach appears to have worked. Now, "Enterprise" says, "Perdue is so popular, it's sometimes hard to tell what's being sold here."

"Enterprise" visits Perdue's chicken-processing operation in rural Maryland. Perdue maintains a million hens and 100,000 roosters as breeding stock, "just to keep the chickens coming."

The 250,000 chicks hatched each day are sorted by sex, debeaked and inoculated, and shipped off to contract farmers who raise the birds for Perdue. They're fed a diet that contains marigold petals to turn their skin a bright yellow.

Meanwhile, back at the Perdue plant, 35,000 mature chickens are killed and plucked each hour, then examined for quality and cut into pieces for sale.

Until 1980, Perdue sold scraps to farmers for feed — at 10 cents a pound. Then someone, maybe Perdue himself, suggested using the odd pieces of chicken for making frankfurters.

"The food business," Perdue said, "is a very tough business to survive, so you've got to explore every facet to make a profit."

Perdue, ever attentive to detail, follows the chicken frank from plant to supermarket. "I guess it would be unrealistic," he said, surveying a deli case containing a single row of Frank's Franks, "to say we want all the space. That's the way you should think, though."

Perdue's chicken frank, "Enterprise" concludes, looks like a success; four-fifths of the shoppers surveyed say they have heard of it. Indeed, one supermarket executive declares he's never seen a chicken frank sell as well as Perdue's.

"Is this a triumph for the product, or the image of Frank Perdue?" "Enterprise" asks. "Or are they inseparable?

"In the public mind, Perdue is special, and so are his franks and chickens. They become the quintessential brand-name products, easily recognized and differentiated from all others...just like Frank Perdue."

British actor rejects fame, fortune

LOS ANGELES (AP) — British actor Terence Stamp seemed destined for stardom and fortune in 1960, but it came too fast and at too young an age. He simply stepped away.

Stamp starred in "Billy Budd" in 1960 and made other films. Filmmakers sought out his services. Then he dropped out.

"Remember, I was just a kid when I got that first break," he said in a recent interview. "One minute I was unknown, and the next minute I was being acclaimed. It was hard to handle."

He said everyone has a fantasy about what fame will bring. "I found out early that it wasn't true. And once I'd realized that more fame and more money wouldn't bring more satisfaction, I decided to find out what would," he said.

MMH rates high in organ retrievals

Modern medicine increases transplants

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

As the director of Midland Memorial Hospital's critical care unit, neurosurgeon Dr. William McGavran often faces an unpleasant task.

He approaches family members of a dead trauma patient and asks them to donate their loved one's organs.

"If there is some good or any good that can come from a major accident, perhaps the family should think of that," McGavran said. "It's a very grievous time for them, but I think they can derive some solace from the donor."

MMH, where organs have been retrieved for transplants for the past four or five years, ranks high in the state in numbers of donor organ retrievals, McGavran said during a news conference at MMH Wednesday.

"We're in a high trauma area," he said, citing Interstate 20, a young community active in sports and extra-curricular activities and the popularity of motorcycles. "Unfortunately, where we get the most donors are from trauma patients."

The organs, usually kidneys, should be in good health and have not lost their function before the transplant. Because of modern medical technology, the time frame in which a physician has to retrieve an organ, send it by jet via the Southwest Organ Bank, Inc., in Dallas, and have it transplanted into the recipient has increased.

"With 20th century medicine, we can keep the organ going indefinitely," he said, citing instances in which an organ was taken while the legally brain-dead person still had a heart beat and blood pressure.

A person can be declared legally dead when heart and lung function cease, or, according to the Texas Death Law, enacted in 1977, when the patient is being maintained on life support systems although he is irreversibly brain dead, McGavran said.

Usually the organ must be transplanted within four hours. MMH, however, recently "set a little bit of medical history," when a heart retrieved was flown out by private jet to a recipient on the east coast. Besides being the longest distance for a donor heart to travel, the organ also was out of the donor for about four hours, he said.

"We were stretching it but it worked beautifully," according to McGavran.

Most organs are sent to recipients in Texas and surrounding states. However, one kidney taken from a MMH patient was sent out of the continental U.S., he said.

Because of the expense, pre- and post-operative care and the team procedure, no plans have been established at MMH to begin transplants. McGavran said places such as the University of Pittsburgh, Houston and Dallas, also have the most recipients as residents as well as already-established funding.

With 40,000 patients in the country waiting for kidney transplants, those organs are among the most retrieved and transplanted. At MMH last year, a dozen kidneys, two hearts, a heart and lung and two livers were retrieved, he said.

Dr. William McGavran

With the discovery of Cyclosporin-A, McGavran said the success rate of renal, or kidney, transplants is approaching 90 percent.

According to McGavran, 70,000 people are now on kidney dialysis machines. Because many must be on the machines for several hours each day, treatments can cost millions of dollars over the span of a lifetime. While a renal transplant can cost $30,000-$50,000, the cost is minimal compared to dialysis for some.

"I think in the near, forseeable future, probably every organ in the body may be transplanted," he said. He added he does not believe brain or central nervous system transplants will be conducted, although peripheral nerve transplants are being performed at present. Cornea transplants have been conducted for years, but the liver, lungs and pancreas remain the three most difficult organs to transplant, he said.

When a physician has declared a patient legally dead and the victim is a potential donor, McGavran immediately contacts the Southwest Organ Bank on a toll free number to give them information such as age, weight, blood type and organs to be retrieved. The bank then matches the victim with a needy recipient.

For those wishing to donate their organs, McGavran suggested letting family members know of their wishes. Signing the back of a driver's license or a will made by a healthy individual are useless if the family objects.

It is important to remember the good that comes from an organ donor when dealing with the family, McGavran said.

"Every physician has to thrash this through at sometime in his career if he decides he is going to be active in this type of medicine," McGavran said. "I had to reconcile to myself that my training and 20th century medicine were not going to do everything for this patient.

"Most families are looking for something to hold on to psychologically," he said. "This gives them a sense of peace and a sense of security. It fills a void."

Plays focus on female relationships

A Review

By GEORGIA TEMPLE

"John, you want to take the presets out, then the houselights," director Michael Spicer tells technical director John Michael Warburton who is standing on Theatre II's catwalk. Then he turns to Cynthia Coward, who plays Jewel in Jack Heifner's two one-act plays "Patio and Porch." "What you'll do in that darkness is cross out to here," Spicer explains to her as he walks off the area from behind the seats to the stage, maneuvering past the obstacles in the walkway.

Looking across to Dee Estes (Pearl) who is holding a red-bottomed Snoopy stuffed animal in her hand, he asks, "Is he dry?" Testing the stained area, she responds with an affirmative answer.

The stage is cleared, the lights go out and dress rehearsal for "Patio" begins.

Jewel successfully finds her way to the stage minus the glow tape that will show her the way tonight when the production opens. Carrying four oriental lamps, she steps up on a chair and begins hanging the lamps in the air. A voice, Pearl's, calls to her from off stage. Jewel responds: "I'm on top of this chair with your oriental lamps. I can't come look, you've got me doing this."

Pearl comes on stage bemoaning the inability of her refrigerator to create ice, while she checks the weiners cooking on the charcoal grill. Shaking her head she says, "We're going to have cold weiners and hot limeade." But the final blow, the situation which throws Pearl into a perfectionist's fit is the discovery that the red candles have ruined Snoopy's bottom. After all, he is the center of her centerpiece, and the theme around which she has planned her party decorations.

Organization hunts for missing persons

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

She was a teen-ager from a divorced home. Her mother lived in California, her father...well, she didn't really know. She'd heard he was in the Dallas area — and that's just what had brought her to the Salvation Army's missing-persons service in Dallas.

The missing persons officer for Texas soon had located her father's address — but a problem still remained. Did he really care to see her?

He did — and a father and daughter were happily reunited.

It's a story repeated often, with minor variations, throughout the world, as the Salvation Army provides a necessary helping hand.

Has there been a death or illness in the family or a sudden memory of love, prompting you as well to search for those long-lost relatives?

If so — and if your own hunt has failed to turn them up — you might consider taking advantage of the missing persons service. As long as certain criteria are met, this charitable organization which long has been involved in social welfare will assist.

"The Salvation Army has a missing persons network that operates through the United States and Canada and throughout Europe," noted Major Jack Camp of the local Salvation Army.

Eighty-six countries in all are included in the service, which has been in existence 99 years.

The Salvation Army is divided into four U.S. geographic regions, with the headquarters for Texas being in Atlanta. It is to that office which West Texans must apply for aid in seeking a missing person.

According to Dorothy Hicks, supervisor of missing persons for the region, in order to have the Salvation Army look for a person the following criteria must be met:

— The missing person must be a relative at least 18 years of age.

— No persons are sought who are solicited for theft collection, child support or alimony.

— The search must not be for genealogical purposes.

— The missing person must not be an adopted child's natural parents, or a parent's natural child which he or she had put up for adoption.

— It must not be primarily for purposes of settling an estate, though such a settlement may occur should the person be found.

— Only one request for a missing person may be made at a time.

"Another reason we have to turn cases down is that actually a lot of the missing people don't want to be found, for reasons known only to them," said Mrs. Hicks. "They left and don't want to be in touch with their families. We respect the wishes of missing persons in every instance."

She noted that "we have more missing brothers than any other family members" with the inquiries usually coming from siblings. A lot of missing sons are solicited as well.

A person must contact the Atlanta office and obtain an inquiry form before a search can be conducted.

"We cannot make a search," said Mrs. Hicks, "without the following information":

— Date of birth.
— Place of birth.
— Father's full name.
— Mother's maiden name.

"The form has many other questions," said Mrs. Hicks, "but even if they are answered, if they did not answer those four questions, we still cannot make the search."

Additional space is allowed for such items as physical description, social security number, military record, and signature granting the Salvation Army the right to undertake the search.

A $5 registration fee is required, while an additional working fund of $10-12 also is required to cover the costs of fees from agencies through which the missing persons service works.

"When the form has been completed," said Mrs. Hicks, "we go over it, checking the information given, and this basically determines what we can do. We check the last known address and areas where the persons was last known to be. Wherever we have a Salvation Army officer, we have a contact and we don't have to get a private detective. We just give the information to the officer to check out for us. We try to use our own personnel whenever possible."

The Salvation Army also must observe the Federal Privacy Act, which states that information cannot be given out on an individual without that person's written permission.

"We have to assure a lot of the individuals and agencies we contact that we will not divulge the source from which our information came," said the supervisor. "Everything in our file is strictly confidential."

Mrs. Hicks said the Salvation Army continues the search "as long as we've got a lead."

City Council will meet to review budget

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Citing it as a "sign of the times," Mayor G. Thane Akins said the Midland City Council will meet at 8:30 a.m. Friday to review the first four months of this fiscal year's budget.

The meeting will be held in City Hall's Conference Room.

Because of the city's economic uncertainty, Akins said the council moved up the budget review from six months to four. "We want to make sure if we're still on track," said Akins. "If not, we'll have to make adjustments."

The council won't be studying each department's budget performance, but rather trends. "We're looking into projections of revenue and remaining expenses we're aware of. We would rather cut now than wait. We don't want to get caught later."

Last year, the council discovered in February that sales tax revenues were at least $1 million below what had been estimated. By March it had fallen $3 million below the mark and the council cut $1.8 million. Those cuts included eliminating $800,000 for street repairs.

But sales tax revenues have inched up slightly in the past few months. Rebate checks received in November, December and January were up from the previous year. February's check, however, fell slightly below last year's figures.

If the trend reflects the city is seeing a surplus in revenues, Akins said the council will consider where to put the money — employee salary

This American bald eagle, which underwent surgery for a gunshot wound to the leg earlier this month, died Monday at the Phoenix Rehabilitation Center in Arlington.

Bald eagle found shot dies suddenly

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

An American bald eagle found shot on a ranch near Leakey earlier this month is dead.

"It died suddenly Monday night," said Dr. George Stewart, director of the Phoenix Rehabilitation Center in Arlington. "We thought we had saved its life and felt real good about its status."

An autopsy disclosed the bird died of blood or fat clots that lodged in a lung. The clots could have developed either from its injuries or the Feb. 18 surgery to save its life, according to Stewart.

The eagle was brought to Midland bird rehabilitator Midge Erskine on Feb. 12 and was flown to Arlington the next day. It had been shot in the left leg with a large caliber gun, "probably a 30-30," said Stewart. "But we can't be sure."

The bullet traveled up the leg and "did a lot of tissue damage" before exiting the body, he added. "It was a healthy, reproductive member of the eagle family. It was handsome and very strong. We're very, very crushed by this."

Rewards in excess of $1,000 are being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for shooting the eagle, which is the national bird of America.

Anyone with information about the shooting of the eagle — or any other endangered species — is asked to call Mrs. Erskine at 694-8001.

Customer affronted by repairman's lack of manners

Dorothy Brennan got a $25 bill the other day. She was not amused.

Neither was the person who billed her.

A couple of brick-like floor tiles had come loose in her kitchen. So she called the company which had installed the tile for almost $1,500 three years earlier to repair the tiles.

The "patch work" was done. But what really irked her was the job description on the bill: "Patch floor — labor & material. Feeding dog(s) is in on here too."

"I certainly didn't think I was imposing on the young man," Mrs. Brennan, a 68-year-old widow, said of the repairman.

Due to a series of ailments, including glaucoma, phlebitis and allergies, she's not able to get around too well.

"It's hard to get around on one of those jolly things," she said of her aluminium walker.

She relies on friends to help her. "I'm sort of at the mercy of people who come by," she said. "People have gone out of their way to be kind."

Mrs. Brennan, a retired secretary-paralegal for a Midland law firm, suffered further affront when the repairman's manners were less than what she considered the Southern ideal.

"People's manners have gone," she said. "He didn't remove his hat the entire time he was here. He didn't say two words" in the 20 or so minutes he was at her house and was not sociable.

Upset about the bill, she telephoned the company which had installed and patched the tile.

"He was rude," Mrs. Brennan said of the company's general manager. "I asked him how much it cost to feed the dogs; it took precisely three minutes," she said. "And I cried, and I never cry."

She said the manager told her he was going "to put a mechanic's lien against my house" if she didn't pay the bill. "I got so mad," Mrs. Brennan said, "I started crying. He didn't know I was crying; I wouldn't give him that satisfaction."

The manager thought she was a bit unreasonable.

"She had him feed her dogs," he said.

"Of course," he recalled, "we kind of got smart with one another."

The manager said the tile should not have come loose in three years, offered to withdraw the bill and said he told Mrs. Brennan, "I owe you an apology, really."

Mrs. Brennan, however, insisted on paying the bill and did.

The manager accepted the money via a cashier's check.

"Someone has got to pay the rent here," he said. "If he (the repairman) just went out to feed the dogs — forget about the patch job — it would cost $25. I'm sorry it happened there."

Mrs. Brennan, a tall (5-foot-10½) woman who was groomed in the Southern tradition, suggested that the scenario was foreign to her. She's a former member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Society of Descendants of the Mayflower and was in the Chi Omega sorority at The University of Texas.

"In the Charleston tradition," she said her mother had exhorted, "a lady's name is never in the paper except when she is born, when she marries and when she dies. My mother was Victorian. It was in the tradition of the Old South that we grew up in (in San Antonio)."

Even so, Mrs. Brennan was willing to make an exception to her mother's advice.

"He (the repairman) could have said, 'No, I don't want to (feed the dogs) easily enough." She said that "that nasty note" on her bill was "almost incredible to me."

Plays focus on female relationships

We soon learn that we are privy to the party preparations taking place on the patio of Pearl's home. It isn't until close to the end of the play that we know what the relationship is between Pearl and Jewel and the intent of the party, but in the meantime we catch a slice of their lives, one which tells us much about their characters.

Jewel is a career woman, a hairdresser, who perceives her talent as being of the caliber that she can walk into any saloon in country — she mentions Neiman Marcus and Vidal Sassoon — and they will jump to hire her.

Pearl isn't concerned about such matters. She is the consummate house cleaner, Better Homes and Gardens advocate, who waits outside her bathroom with cleaner in hand ready to go into action the moment the room is vacated.

Neither is satisfied with the way life has turned out, but both have developed their own reality.

"Heifner seems to have an affinity for writing about relationships between females, and especially between Texas females," Spicer says during the set change for "Porch." Heifner is the author of another play which deals with the hopes and disappointments of women — "Vanities."

The lights dim again in Theatre II.

At the same time we see an old woman in a wheelchair, we hear the familiar sound of the ice cream truck cruising through the neighborhood.

"Hurry! Throw something on and run and get me an ice cream," Dottie (Adrian Meekins) hollers off stage to her daughter.

Disappointment replaces the glow on Dottie's face as the sound fades away. When Lucille (Ann Currie) joins her on the porch, she lets her know she's too late.

"It's too late" weaves through this tale of two women who have long ago quit listening to one another, who no longer know or care what the other feels. Dottie sits on her porch watching the world go by, all the time carrying on a constant barrage of trivia about herself and the people she has known — including the fact that there's not much to see on a hot summer day. At the same time, Lucille hides behind a newspaper as her life slowly leaks away.

Although the action takes place on one hot summer day, we know this is the way their lives melt day into day, everyday.

Heifner has a strong ear for Texas dialogue and the conversations in these two plays sound as if they could be happening in any Texas town. All actresses have identified their roles and do a believable job of recreating them. All are students at Midland College and with the exception of Miss Currie, tonight's 7:30 p.m. opening of "Patio and Porch" marks a stage debut for each.

This is MC's drama department's second year to stage a spring production. The drama program at Midland College was rewritten two years ago and Spicer, who is the educational theater director for Midland Community Theatre, was put in charge of MC's drama classes.

"Patio and Porch" will be showing in Theatre II through Saturday. Tickets for the general public are $4 tonight and $5 for Friday and Saturday's 8:30 p.m. showings. MCT members will be admitted at half price, and students at MC will be admitted free.

Although "Patio and Porch" deal with life's disappointments, both are comedies which contain pathos colored humor.

Church leaders fear further arrests

Lutheran leader investigates arrests

McALLEN (AP) — Lutheran leaders fear that the arrests of three Americans and three Salvadorans in South Texas could lead to more arrests of Americans involved in the underground railroad and endanger the lives of Lutheran Church members in El Salvador.

An investigator for the church, who asked not to be named, has been in the Valley since Monday piecing together the circumstances surrounding the arrests of Dallas Times-Herald reporter Jack Fischer, nun Dianne Muehlenkamp, social worker Stacey Lynn Merkt and three Salvadorans, Mauricio Valle, Brenda Sanchez-Galan and her 18-month-old child.

The six were arrested at dawn on Feb. 17 on a rural road near Rio Grande City.

U.S. Magistrate Susan Rees Williams will decide Friday whether or not to dismiss charges against Ms. Merkt and Fischer, who, along with Miss Muehlenkamp, are accused of transporting illegal aliens. The preliminary hearing was conducted Feb. 24.

Ms. Merkt and Miss Muehlenkamp were part of an "underground railroad" which helps resettle Central American refugees fleeing their war-torn homelands, refugee assistance workers said.

Fischer said he was working on a story when he was arrested.

Church officials this week have been meeting in New York, Minneapolis and Texas, preparing a national church "strategy statement" that will outline proposed actions in assisting the defendants. The statement is expected to be released sometime this week.

Ms. Sanchez was a nurse and Valle was a driver in a refugee camp run by the Resurrection Lutheran Church in San Salvador, church officials said. The refugee camp, funded largely by Lutheran congregations in Norway, provides assistance to about 600 people, most of whom have fled guerrilla-controlled regions.

AP Laserphoto

Stacey Lynn Merkt enters the federal courthouse in McAllen with her attorney, Daniel Sheehan, and Father Wally J. Kasuboski, an investigator into the illegal transportation of aliens.

"For that reason, the government is suspicious of the Lutheran Church, which is really quite small in El Salvador," said Charles Lutz, director of the office of church and society of the American Lutheran Church in Minneapolis.

Lutz said that in the refugee camp in El Salvador, Lutheran Pastor Medardo Gomez and doctor Angel Ibarra were arrested by the Salvadoran government last spring. Gomez was released, but Ibarra was held for seven months and released after promising to leave the country, Lutz said.

After Ibarra's release in November, government forces arrested six more members of the Lutheran Church. Four people are still being detained, Lutz said.

In the United States, Lutheran Church officials are trying to determine if Ms. Sanchez and Valle were caught in a routine border patrol check or if they were being watched by American and Salvadoran authorities.

"Or it could be they happened to be caught because they were with three Americans who were being watched," Lutz said.

Fischer, who was working on a story about a refugee halfway house in San Benito, said workers told him they "suspected they'd get busted in not too long."

The Valley's refugee aid organizations provide shelter, food, clothing and transportation to Central Americans who the U.S. government contends are economic, not political, refugees.

Church officials are quick to point out, however, that the five Lutheran denominations in the U.S. have no official policy of providing sanctuary to aliens. However, many Lutheran congregations have joined with Catholics, Mennonites and Quakers in providing refugee assistance.

Valle's and Ms. Sanchez's illegal-entry arraignment, normally a speedy procedure, took about five hours Feb. 22. Refugee workers said the stumbling block was finding someone to whom Ms. Williams could release the Salvadorans.

Ms. Sanchez and her child were released to a Methodist minister and Valle to his attorney, James Rausch.

A memo sent Feb. 23 from the American Lutheran Church headquarters to bishops throughout the country informed them of details of the Salvadoran's case.

"The U.S. Magistrate in the case will not release the Salvadorans on bond to anyone connected with Catholic or Lutheran churches in the area. Further, the Lutherans have been told that any further contact with the Salvadorans in this case would implicate them as well," the memo stated.

"That's guilt by association," said Lutz. "It seems a little strange in this society to judge a whole group that way."

Church officials said this case is the first time the government has threatened to prosecute religious workers who assist aliens.

"This could be a messy case in a lot of ways," said Philip Anderson of the American Lutheran Church's division of world mission and interchurch cooperation. "It has implications for the church in Salvador and implications of the church versus the government in this country.

"This case may not be one that any of us want to pursue," he said.

Anderson said Lutheran representatives have contacted Bishop John J. Fitzpatrick of the Catholic Diocese in Brownsville and others in preparing the statement.

increases or street repairs. "There's any number of ways we can spend the money. That would be the problem I would like to have — deciding where to spend the extra."

Midland's economy, though, could bounce back quicker if oil imported from the Middle East is disrupted with a war between Iran and Iraq, which has been threatened in recent days. "It would have a tremendous impact on the Permian Basin," said the mayor. "It's a supply and demand situation.

"That's part of our problem — the softness of the oil prices and the uncertainty as to whether the price will drift lower. Anything that firms it up will help."

Akins said the Permian Basin's oil boom that reached a high in 1981 started building back in 1973 with the formation of the Arab oil cartel and the oil embargo.

"For the staff, I know it was hard dealing with the boom. But I'd rather have the boom than the bust," he said.

Panel has 30 days to find waste disposal site

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has given a 30-member special group the task of finding a safe, land-based means of treating and disposing of hazardous waste.

Gov. White

The creation of the Task Force on Hazardous Waste Management was announced Wednesday at a news conference.

"I am hopeful that a dialogue between all interests in the hazardous waste debate will produce new efforts to find safe, land-based technologies for recycling, treating and disposing of hazardous wastes," White said.

Max Sherman, dean of the LBJ School of Public Affairs and a former state senator, was named chairman.

White said the group would include representatives from large chemical and electronics companies, environmental groups and hazardous waste disposal firms as well as members of the banking, engineering, public health and legal professions.

White directed the task force to focus on four major areas.

— Siting of waste handling, storage and disposal facilities.

— Financial responsibility for hazardous waste during and after disposal.

— Feasible waste stream reductions and dispposal and recycling options.

— Enforcement of regulations governing the management of hazardous waste.

Sherman said the group probably will be divided into four subcommittees or work groups.

Those appointed included Damon L. Engle, Dickinson; Dr. Carmault Jackson Jr., San Antonio; Frank McBee, Austin; C.H. "Chuck" Rivers, Deer Park; Karen Shewbart, Freeport; Richard D. Stewart, La Porte; Bruce F. McCall, San Antonio; Homer C. Wilson, Dallas; Dr. Rusty Raines, Cleburne; Howard Saxton, Dallas; Diane Sheridan, Seabrook; Dr. Ivan George Smith, Houston; Fred Hartman, Baytown; Joe Teller, Houston; Jerry D. Neel, Friendswood; Dr. Peter Bowman, Galveston; Moises V. Vela, Brownsville; Donald M. Carlton, Austin; John T. Lurcott, Houston; Ken Kramer, Austin; Charles Seay, Baytown; Frank Baker, Houston; John Mobley, Austin; Dr. Charles Woodruff Jr., Austin; R. Kinnan Goleman, Austin; Charles Johnson, Alexandria, Va.; Sandra Pickett, Liberty and Louis A. Beecherl Jr., Dallas.

Organization hunts missing persons

If all else fails, the service's final step will be to place an ad in the missing persons column of the Salvation Army's War Cry publication.

Should the search result in discovery that the missing person is dead, "we go the extra mile and before notifying the inquirer, we get a death certificate," said Mrs. Hicks. "And if it's an elderly parent and if they tell us they live alone, if we can possibly arrange it, we have one of our officers take the death certificate to the inquirer and be there when they get the news."

The longest search that proved fruitful, she noted, was one of three years.

The supervisor said the last time the Salvation Army did a percentage study of the service's success rate, it was "right around 50 percent."

With recent publicity in "Dear Abby" regarding the missing persons service, the Salvation Army may be under a strain to meet demands for a while.

"We had around 500 requests last year, and we don't have the resources to enlarge our staff or space," noted Mrs. Hicks. "It's very important we tell everybody that we handle requests in the order received."

Inquiries regarding the service may be made by contacting Missing Persons Department, Salvation Army, 1424 Northeast Expressway, Atlanta, Ga. 30329. The telephone number is 404-321-7870.

Water in danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study conducted for the federal government shows that Fort Worth's water supply is in danger of contamination by hazardous wastes from Carswell Air Force Base.

The U.S. Air Force report, a copy of which was obtained by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, showed consultants hired by the armed service branch found "no direct evidence" of contaminants seeping outside the base.

Placing in the tournament were LeMaster, first in humorous interpretation; Katie Wolcott, second in Lincoln-Douglas debate; Gail Gonzales, third in girls' extemporaneous speaking; Ms. Cooper, finalist in girls' extemporaneous speaking, Ms. Hill, third in original oratory; Katie Wocott, finalist in original oratory; and Monaghan, third in extemporaneous speaking.

High school in Venus burns down

VENUS (AP) — Venus High School has been leveled by a fire that broke out Wednesday shortly after classes were dismissed for the day.

School officials said the blaze apparently startedin a storage room adjacent to the school gymnasium.

Girls attending a cheerleading clinic in the gym escaped without injury, principal Charles McGehee said. One firefighter was treated for smoke inhalation and another for a cut hand.

Firefighters from at least 11 nearby communities helped fight the blaze.

There were indications the fire in the 42-year-old building was deliberately set, WFAA-TV of Dallas said, quoting Superintendent Grady Vaughan.

The fire destroyed nine classrooms, the gymnasium, the library and the principal's office, McGehee said. The school is left with only three classrooms in an adjacent building erected three years ago and 16 classrooms in temporary buildings moved onto the campus last summer.

The facilities accommodated a student population of 585 in grades kindergarten through high school.

Woman says police beat grandson

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman says one of several police officers allegedly beating her grandson in her front yard had a ready answer for her when she begged him to stop.

"Lady, he ran from us, and we don't like it," Beulah Shepard reported the officer told her.

Mrs. Shepard, a 62-year-old aide to Harris County Commissioner E.A. "Squatty" Lyons, told Houston city council members Wednesday she opened her front door about 2 a.m. Saturday to find five officers "beating the living daylights" out of her grandson.

The men were joined by as many as six more squad cars of officers who continued to pound 25-year-old Charles Dwayne Hamilton with fists and flashlights, Mrs. Shepard said.

A Houston Police Department spokesman said Wednesday that the internal affairs division is investigating the incident, but he declined further comment.

A police report filed by three officers indicates that one officer attempted to stop Hamilton's car for an unspecified reason but he sped away. A high-speed chase led to Mrs. Shepard's home.

The report said Hamilton began fighting and kicking at them when they attempted to take him into custody in Mrs. Shepard's front yard.

Municipal court records show that Hamilton was charged Saturday with three counts of simple assault on police officers, a misdemeanor, and agreed to pay about $600 in fines for five traffic offenses, three of which occurred while officers were pursuing him in the incident that led to the alleged beating.

Annual Pancake Jamboree to be held March 10

The 28th annual Pancake Jamboree yof Midland Downtown Lions Club will be held Saturday, March 10 from 7 a.m.-8 p.m. in Dellwood Shopping Center mall.

Live entertainment will be presented continuously.

Preparations have been made to feed 10,000 persons, said general chairman Bill Malone, who noted that 8,000 persons feasted on pancakes and sausage last year.

Advance tickets at $2.50 each are being sold by club members, with $16,000 in tickets sold thus far. Tickets also will be available at the mall entrance on Saturday.

Proceeds will go toward funding club projects and activities, including sight conservation, work with the deaf, health services, Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children, senior citizens services, youth welfare, drug abuse, charitable programs, leadership development, educational services and community activities.

The event chores are being handled by Lions Club members and the women's auxiliary, the Lion Tamers.

Two members named to Airport Zoning Board

From Staff Reports

U.S. Air Force Gen. (ret.) Edwin White and Midland oil operator-investor Bill Simmons have been appointed by the Midland County Commissioners' Court to serve on the city of Midland-Midland County Airport Zoning Board.

The board is to be made up of five members, including two representatives of the city, two representatives of the county and the fifth to be appointed by the board itself, according to Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins.

"The area around Midland Regional Airport most certainly has a need in the present and future for regulation of land development," Akins wrote in a letter to Midland County Judge Bill Ahders.

The mayor indicated that those land-use regulations are to "protect the integrity of the airport" and to "preserve the quality of life around the airport." Those regulations comply with the Texas Airport Zoning Act.

Irving firefighter first in 30 years to die on duty

DALLAS (AP) — The Irving Fire Department has lost a firefighter in the line of duty for the first time in 30 years.

James Presnall, 31, died Tuesday of injuries he suffered Monday morning while fighting a fire at an apartment complex. He suffered second- and third-degree burns over 65 percent of his body when a roof of an apartment collapsed on him.

'How sweet it is' concept ruined in new chocolate

By LINDA ANDERSON

I have been a fan of actor Judd Hirsch for years. But since his television show "Taxi" has been cancelled and he is making chocolate milk mix commercials, I'm not sure I believe what he says.

I tested one of the products he is advertises — Sugar Free Swiss Miss Chocolate Milk Maker — to see if he really knows what he is talking about.

Sugar Free Swiss Miss Chocolate Milk Maker is advertised as being better than Nestle's Quik because it is sweetened with NutraSweet (an artificial sweetener) instead of sugar. Judd says it "makes incredibly good chocolate milk." Well...

We compared Nestle's Quik and the Swiss Miss product for taste, price and advertising accuracy. Both products were taste-tested by adults, teenagers and one child. These are the results:

— Sugar Free Swiss Miss Chocolate Milk Maker makes the same amount of chocolate milk using less chocolate powder, just like the commercials said, because it is sweetened with NutraSweet instead of sugar. NutraSweet is much more concentrated than sugar.

— Because it contains no sugar, Swiss Miss has fewer calories than Quik.

— A 5.5 oz. can of the Swiss Miss makes three times the chocolate milk as an 8 oz. can of Quik — and costs about three times as much, too. (At a local supermarket the can of Quik cost 99-cents and the can of the Swiss Miss product cost $2.91. Prices at other locations may vary.) So glass per glass, both products cost about the same.

— Quik can be used either hot or cold. So can the Swiss Miss, although the process for making hot cocoa with the Swiss Miss is more complicated and it is not advised that the hot drink be carried in a thermal container because "the product may lose its sweetness if stored in hot liquid form," according to directions on the package. (And maybe also because Swiss Miss manufactures a sugar free hot cocoa maker, too?)

The majority of the taste testers prefered Quik. One teenager took a swallow of the Swiss Miss and poured the remainder out. (She said the Swiss Miss was "too sweet." She still refuses to have anything to do with it.) The other teenager said the two products in milk tasted the same, but in powder form the Quik was her favorite. (She said she didn't like chocolate milk, anyway.)

The 3-year-old tester said she liked both products, but didn't drink much of the Swiss Miss chocolate milk during her taste test — she usually chugs the Quik chocolate milk whenever she gets the chance. I guess actions speak louder than words.

The adult testers were evenly divided on their opinions. The adult female prefered Quik over Swiss Miss. (I don't like chocolate milk very much either, but my choice was surprising because I am very calorie-conscious. When the sugar was taken out of the Swiss Miss so were most of the calories. I still think Quik is better.) The adult male loves Swiss Miss, asks for it at every opportunity and would drink it by the gallon if he could.

Maybe people who are watching their weight and their sugar intake would enjoy the Sugar Free Swiss Miss Chocolate Milk Maker more than most of us did. Or maybe chocolate milk fans who are weight-conscious would appreciate the advantages of this lower-calorie product.

We prefer Quik.

CURIOUS SHOPPER

Manufacturer labels' glue poses sticky problem

By SONJA HEINZE

I bought several Rubbermaid plastic containers, the kind used to store things in the refrigerator. When I got home I worked for an hour trying to get the company's label off. I soaked it in boiling water, scraped it, etc. Finally I got all the paper off but the glue is still on it. Wild scrubbing with hot water and detergent won't budge the glue. When I pick the container up it even sticks to my fingers! It also looks unsightly. How can I get it off, and why do they use such junk to attach labels?

M. Murphy, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Jane Heinbuch of the Rubbermaid Home Products Division says that her company is just as upset as you are when they receive a report such as yours, as they try to make sure these adhesives are easy to remove.

Ms. Heinbuch suggests removing their labels, or even the store's price stickers, with a little cooking oil. "Just rub the oil into the label," she advises. "It will soften the label and the adhesive to a point where you can lift off the label and wipe away any remaining adhesive."

Any readers with other suggestions, please let us know.

I bought two dozen eggs, one labeled jumbo size, and the other labeled large size. My husband likes only one egg for breakfast, but it has to be large; I like two, so they can be smaller.

The problem is, unless I read the label on the box I can't tell the difference in the eggs. They all look about the same size. But since I paid more for the jumbo size, I think I should be able to tell the difference by sight. How are these sizes determined, anyway?

Kay Englehardt, the test kitchen supervisor at the American Egg Board, agrees that it is sometimes difficult to distinguish differences in sizes that are close to each other, such as the large and the extra large, but usually not too much difficulty when the sizes are further apart, such as the large and jumbo.

The sizes are classified according to weight, expressed in ounces per dozen. The jumbo eggs weigh 30 ounces per dozen; the extra large, 27 ounces per dozen; the large, 24 ounces; medium, 21 ounces; small, 18 ounces; and peewee eggs weigh 15 ounces per dozen.

Is it harmful to use cooking kettles with copper bottoms, such as manufactured by Revere, when such cooking kettles show pitting on the bottom of the inside? My kettles are about 35 years old and still look beautiful otherwise, but I just noticed the inside pitting and wondered if I should discontinue using them for cooking purposes.

"There is no reason at all to discontinue using cookware that shows pitting," says Richard C. Owens, the advertising manager of Revere Ware. "Pitting occurs only when salt is used in cooking (especially when used for popping popcorn). The stainless steel is thick enough that pitting would almost never penetrate completely through the bottom. Your reader can expect to use her cookware another 35 years."

For health reasons I buy natural peanut butter. With this type of peanut butter, all the oil rises to the top as it sits on the shelf. When you want to use it, you have to mix it up first.

Frankly, I'm getting fed up with this. It's a messy job making sandwiches with the oil running all over. How about selling some jars with a churning device on top that you could buy once and re-use on other jars? One could insert it in the peanut butter jar, screw the top closed and churn.

"The reader requesting some sort of churning device to mix the oil back into peanut butter must have 'read our minds,'" admits Robert Brownell, director of marketing of Laura Scudder's snack food division. "We agree this is an excellent idea and have evaluated several alternatives over the years."

Brownell says his company is working on this idea and hopes to have a breakthrough in the foreseeable future. In the meantime, advises Brownell, "the best-available solution is to use a long, slim, rigid stirrer such as the handle of a stainless steel iced tea spoon or even an ice pick. This cuts easily through the peanut butter and allows the oil to mix in more quickly with a minimum of mess. The real secret, of course, is to refrigerate it once it's mixed and it won't separate again."

Chicken dressed in spicy coat

3¼-pound chicken, cut up
3 tablespoons butter, soft
1 onion, grated (pulp and juice)
1 clove garlic, crushed
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cardamom
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon turmeric

Wash and dry chicken. With a spoon, beat butter, onion and spices. Spread half of mixture on under side of chicken pieces. Arrange seasoned side up in a pan; broil 20 mins. Turn; spread remaining mixture and continue broiling, basting, until skin is crisp and brown — 15-20 mins. —(AP)

Punt prevents bottle explosion

GUERNEVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A punt, the indentation in a champagne bottle, increases the total surface area of the glass inside the bottle. The bubbles create enough pressure to break an ordinary bottle, according to Gary Heck, president of Korbel Champagne Cellars.

Autry 'dreads' execution, hopes life will be spared

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Death Row inmate James David Autry, who lay strapped to a gurney with needles in his arms for 90 minutes last October, says he still hopes his life will be spared so he doesn't have to go through the ordeal again.

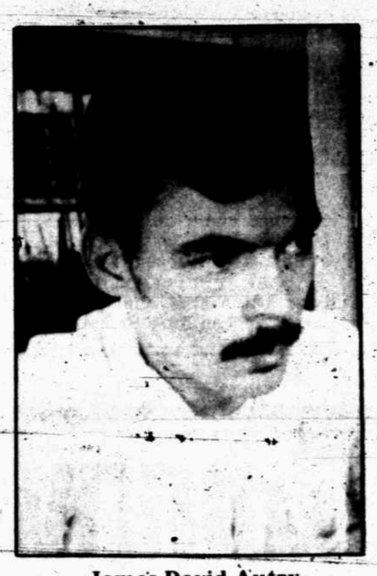
"I haven't given up. I still believe I have a chance," said Autry who has been ordered put to death by lethal injection before sunrise March 14.

The 29-year-old inmate was sentenced to death for the April 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

He was strapped to a gurney with intravenous needles in both arms when U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White granted a reprieve less than 30 minutes before Autry was to be executed at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 5.

Facing that prospect again, Autry on Wednesday described his feelings. "It's more of a dread this time. It was all fear last time," he said.

The March 14 execution date is the fourth one given Autry. He was granted stays from the three previous dates.



James David Autry

Autry, nicknamed "Cowboy" by fellow inmates, is the first of four Texas death row inmates scheduled to die within an 18-day period in March.

Autry's attorney, Stefan Presser, wants the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to block the execution, claiming it would be cruel and unusual punishment to make the inmate endure the agony again.

An attorney for the Autry's mother, Shirley Stucker of Florence, Colo., is asking the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to recommend that Texas Gov. Mark White commute the sentence to life in prison.

Autry said he has written a letter to the parole board.

"I told them I want to live. I love my family very much and they love me. We've become closer in the past year. I don't want to be taken from them," he said.

His narrow brush with execution, Autry said, has affected his feeling toward life and toward the death sentence.

"That just made me want to live that much more. And it made me think that the public doesn't really know what executions are," Autry said.

If this execution is to be carried out, Autry said he wants it to be televised.

"If you read about it in the newspaper, it really doesn't sink in," he said. "The polls show that the majority of the people favor the death penalty. If they want the death penalty, they should not be opposed to watching it."

The Texas Board of Corrections said it will consider whether to allow cameras into the death chamber on March 12, less than 48 hours before Autry is to be killed.

But Autry said he doubts that the execution will be televised.

"I don't believe they will allow the cameras in there. They don't want people to know what really happens in there. They can do what they want to if there are no cameras," he said.

Autry appeared calm and relaxed during an interview at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections, but he admitted that he was nervous.

"I believed in God before all this happened, but now it's even stronger. It helps keep me calm and helps keep me hoping," Autry said.

Autry said he believes his case has been hurt largely by the prosecutors' claim that he killed store clerk Shirley Drouet rather than pay for a six-pack of beer. He said that the prosecutors have never been able to prove their claim.

Autry maintains he never fired the shots that killed Mrs. Drouet and a former Catholic priest, and which permanently crippled a Greek sailor. But he said he is sorry that it happened.

"Everyone says it's bad to say you're sorry because it makes it look like you are guilty," he said. "I'm innocent, but I'm still sorry it happened. I'm sorry to see anybody get killed."

Autry said he became depressed when he heard about the Louisiana execution Tuesday night of Johnny Davis Taylor Jr., and he predicted there will be more executions this year.

"A lot of people think that the people on Death Row are there because they deserve to be. That's not always true. There are some who are here because of the political ambitions of a district attorney," he said. "A lot of people think death row people are all blood thirsty and that's not so."

Black leaders disagree with nationwide study

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Black leaders in San Antonio have labeled as "totally off base" a nationwide study indicating that the city's black population has forged great economic progress in the past decade.

"All you have to do is ride around town and look," said T.C. Calvert, senior planner for the Eastside San Antonio Development Council. "Even a third-grader knows better than that."

The nationwide study, released by the Urban Institute, said San Antonio recorded the second-highest increase in average income among blacks in major metropolitan areas during the 1970s.

Only Houston's blacks made better economic strides during the last decade, with their average income going up about 165 percent, according to the study's author, Thomas Muller of Los Angeles.

The average income among blacks in San Antonio rose 144 percent during the 1970s, from $6,500 a year in 1969 to $16,000 in 1979, he said.

Nationally, income among blacks increased an average of 134 percent, Muller said. The average overall income nationwide was up 110 percent, he said.

The study, based on census and national labor statistics, was commissioned to determine if the steady stream of illegal Mexican aliens into the United States has affected the availability of jobs to other minorities, Muller said.

The results indicated that most Mexican immigrants take low-paying jobs that require little English language skill, and do not compete with most other workers seeking employment, he said.

But Calvert and other black leaders in San Antonio disputed that finding.

"Mexican aliens are cutting into black employment a lot," Calvert said. "I know — I'm on the streets every day. You walk into any hotel or onto any construction site and you're not going to see very many black faces."

Only about 3 percent of the blacks who hold professional jobs have benefited from the economic gains reflected in the study, Calvert said.

"There are single heads of households who are barely making it," he said. "We have a long way to go."

Charles Hudspeth, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the study "is badly mistaken."

"I cannot possibly agree with that report," Hudspeth said. "I do not have the statistics, but I do not believe the average income of blacks (in San Antonio) is $16,000. I think it is much lower than that."

The Rev. R.A. Callies, director of the Youth Leadership Conference for Community Progress, said Mexican aliens often work for less than the minimum wage.

Court candidates differ on ethics code

AUSTIN (AP) — Opponents in a Texas Supreme Court race differ over that court's decision that says employers can be held legally responsible for employees — such as drunken drivers — who endanger the public.

Shelby Sharpe of Fort Worth, a challenger in the Democratic primary, says the court's November decision has "discriminatory" implications.

Justice C.L. Ray, who is defending his high court seat this year, said Wednesday he has nothing to say about the decision. Ray said Sharpe also should curtail his comments on the case.

"I certainly hope that this is not a case where a candidate for judicial office is so anxious to be elected that he commits himself to any particular judicial philosophy or decision in advance of having particular cases, and the facts of those cases, presented to him," Ray said at a Capitol news conference.

Ray, seeking a second term on the high court, charged that Sharpe is violating a judicial ethics code that bars judges and judicial candidates from discussing specific cases. Ray, Sharpe and Texas Ward of El Paso are the Democratic candidates for the seat.

The Ray vote that Sharpe questions came in a November 1983 decision ordering a trial of a lawsuit filed by the husbands of two women killed in a 1978 wreck in Carrollton. Larry and Clifford Clark sued Otis Engineering Corp., which sent employee Robert Matheson home because he was drunk.

Matheson and the two women died in a wreck that day.

Ray joined the majority in a 5-4 decision that said jurors should decide if Otis should be held responsible. A motion for rehearing has been filed, meaning the Supreme Court will again look at the case.

The decision has been challenged by the Texas Association of Business, the Texas Restaurant Association and the Texas Package Stores Association.

Sharpe, in a statement released by his campaign office, said Ray was wrong about the ethics code rules on discussing cases.

"This is the most amazing statement of all," he said of Ray's charge. "It is obviously the right and obligation of a candidate for judicial office to comment on the issues relevant to the office."

"The future implications of the Otis Engineering case are profound for the quality of life for all Texans," said Sharpe. "Perhaps Judge Ray does not want Texans to review these implications and their discriminatory effects against some employees when in the hands of unscrupulous employers."

The challenger added, "Perhaps Judge Ray would prefer to see all comment from me and elsewhere on this case stifled so as to avoid embarrassment to himself."

'Candy Man' scheduled to die March 31

HOUSTON (AP) — Within minutes of being sentenced to a March 31 execution, Ronald Clark O'Bryan was on the telephone asking his father to make funeral arrangements.

Ronald O'Bryan

O'Bryan, 38-year-old Deer Park man who was convicted of murdering his own son in 1974 with poisoned Halloween candy, was ordered to die "before sunrise" on March 31 by state District Court Judge Michael T. McSpadden. The judge set the date in a Wednesday hearing that lasted only two minutes.

The condemned man immediately asked McSpadden if he could telephone his father to make funeral arrangements. The judge let him use the courtroom phone.

O'Bryan leaned against a wall and dialed.

"Pop, this is Ron," he said. "I'm at the courthouse. They brought me up this morning and I've got to go back right away."

He talked quietly and then was heard to say, "Be sure to take someone with you."

McSpadden said later that O'Bryan was calling to arrange for his own funeral services.

O'Bryan, nicknamed "the Candy Man" by other death row inmates, replied "No" when McSpadden asked if he wanted to comment before the sentence was announced. The judge then ordered him to be fatally injected with a chemical in the prison death house in Huntsville, Texas.

McSpadden said he could tell by O'Bryan's expression that the convicted man was taking the execution date seriously.

The judge said some men smile when they get a death sentence because they don't really believe it will be carried out, but he said there were no smiles Wednesday from O'Bryan.

"He knows there a real probability it will be carried out," said McSpadden.

O'Bryan, clad in a blue shirt, dark blue slacks with no belt and jogging shoes, arrived from his death row cell just minutes before the hearing and was taken from the courthouse immediately after his phone call and returned to death row.

Attorney Will Gray stood with O'Bryan and made no comment in the courtroom. Later, he told a reporter, "We haven't given up yet", but he declined to say what the defense plans were.

O'Bryan has received three earlier execution dates, but each was stayed by appeals courts. The U.S. Supreme Court in January refused to hear another appeal of the case, thus vacating an earlier stay and making possible a new execution date.

O'Bryan was convicted of giving his 8-year-old son, Timothy, Halloween candy that had been laced with cyanide. The boy died within a short time.

Prosecutors claimed in O'Bryan's 1975 trial that he murdered the boy to collect on $30,000 in insurance because he was then deeply in debt and was earning only $150 a week as an optician.

O'Bryan, however, claims the poisoned candy was given him during a trick-or-treat outing with his two children and those of a friend. He said the candy, a confection packaged in plastic staws, was handed to him by a shawdowy figure at a house in Pasadena. O'Bryan then distributed the candy to his son and daughter, Elizabeth, 6, and to three other children. Only Timothy ate the candy. The boy immediately went into convulsions and was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital.

Following an intensive investigation, Pasadena police charged O'Bryan.

White talks acting TDC director out of retiring

AUSTIN (AP) — Dan McKaskle will remain for the time being as acting director of the Texas Department of Corrections.

That wouldn't have been news, except that McKaskle announced his retirement on Wednesday.

After a three-hour, private meeting with Gov. Mark White, McKaskle said he had changed his mind about leaving the TDC, but he was vague about whether he wants to be named permanent director of Texas' huge prison system.

"I reconsidered after talking to the governor and the board" of corrections, McKaskle said after the session in White's office.

White and McKaskle, who was placed in charge of the prison system when W.J. Estelle resigned after 11 years as director, said the change of heart came after the board promised to give McKaskle more help in Huntsville.

"We just talked about some different adjustments in operations," McKaskle said. "I'm not at liberty to talk about those. We talked about some personnel, just in different areas of the department."

After reversing his statement about retiring, McKaskle offered a confusing assessment of whether he wants to be named permanent director.

"Well, I'm reconsidering my position. I'm not undecided. We had a long talk...There's just a lot of things to try to digest in a short period of time," he told reporters.

During a break in the meeting, White told reporters, "Red McKaskle is going to stay on and will be continuing as the acting director for an indeterminate period of time in the future. I'm very pleased at that, to put aside any rumors to the contrary."

But McKaskle's retirement decision was not a rumor. It came in a statement he issued through TDC's press office in Huntsville.

Prison spokesman Rick Hartley said that McKaskle told Board of Corrections Chairman Robert Gunn of Wichita Falls that he planned to retire but "did not agree to a specific date of separation."

"McKaskle said he hopes to complete his work within 60 to 90 days," Hartley said.

"This has been one of the most difficult decisions I have ever made," McKaskle said in the prepared statement announcing his retirement. "I feel that now is the time for me to retire. I am studying several possibilities regarding future employment."

White said he was sympathetic to McKaskle's retirement impulse.

"Anybody given all the responsibilities laid on his shoulders over the past couple of months would feel a little bit lonely from time to time," said White. "They're in there now, making sure he has the additional personnel he needs to do the job that he wants to do."

Lucas charged in Washington

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — Benton County Prosecutor Curt Ludwig has filed a first-degree murder charge against convicted Texas murderer Henry Lucas.

The charge, filed Wednesday, alleges that Lucas killed 18-year-old Lisa Martini of Kennewick on Nov. 1, 1978. She had been stabbed numerous times and almost decapitated. Her body was found in her apartment by her boyfriend.

Lucas is currently being held in Georgetown, Texas, on a murder charge. He claims to have killed about 100 women in numerous states.

Ludwig said information Lucas gave in describing one of his claimed killings matched details in Ms. Martini's case. He said Lucas won't begin to answer charges in other states until Texas authorities complete proceedings against him.

Ludwig said he "will be anxious to try Lucas whenever we get the chance."

Spokane authorities have also said they believe Lucas may be linked to the unsolved murder of a 16-year-old girl in October 1978.

Helms: School prayer advocates can cut off expected filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms says he believes advocates of school prayer can cut off an expected Senate filibuster against the proposed constitutional amendment, but stops short of predicting passage of the measure.

"It's not a lead pipe cinch," the North Carolina Republican told reporters Wednesday as a group of House Republicans conducted a forum in an attempt to free the amendment from a House subcommittee.

The measure is a given better chance in the Senate than in the House, where most of the Democratic leadership opposes it. Debate is scheduled to begin Monday in the Senate, and opponents say they plan to talk against it for a number of days.

Helms, who supports an amendment, said he thought a filibuster would tie it up in the Senate for about 10 days, but that Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee would be able to muster the three-fifths vote necessary to proceed.

However, Helms said, passage "depends on how well the advocates have done in terms of contacting senators." It requires a two-thirds vote in both chambers before an amendment can be submitted to the states for ratification.

A parade of sports and entertainment figures spoke in favor of an amendment Wednesday at a forum of the Republican Study Committee. The GOP panel hopes, by focusing public attention on the amendment, to force it out of the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on constitutional rights.

"A common sense analysis and a moral conviction tell me the results of the Supreme Court's decision is wrong," Washington Redskins football coach Joe Gibbs said. "We must have the fortitude to stand up for what is right. We do not want to tamper with the Constitution, but this amendment has been made necessary by the court's decision."

Gibbs' arch rival, Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, joined him in calling for passage of an amendment, declaring, "We must put prayer back in the public schools." He added, "My major concern is the atmosphere in which our kids are being raised."

Television figure Demond Wilson, star of "Sanford and Son", told the forum, "We believe that bringing God back into the classrooms will help in putting an end to the stabbing, rapes, drugs, alcohol and other serious problems in the schools."

Proponents of the amendment in the House plan an all-night session Monday to urge its passage.

School bans moment of silence

HICKSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — The Hicksville school board voted early Thursday to throw out its mandatory moment of silence that has been observed daily for 22 years in elementary and junior high schools.

The 4-3 vote followed a three-hour, heated debate about prayer in the schools, attended by over 200 residents at the Hicksville High School.

A state law, which supersedes local regulations, provides that "in each public school classroom the teacher in charge may, or if so authorized or directed by the Board of Education, ... shall, at the opening of school... conduct a brief period of silent meditation."

The board voted to place a referendum of the ballot on June 13 asking residents if the state law should be written into school policy.

The vote came despite pleas from speaker after speaker at the meeting who encouraged Board of Education President Jay Schwartz and the other board members to continue the observance of the moment of silence following the pledge of allegiance.

"'In God We Trust,' that is our country's motto," said speaker William Henne. "I urge you to keep the moment of silence. It is the greatest denial of freedom to think if you discontinue it."

Harry Smith, a teacher in the district, supported the practice, and encouraged the board to "probe deeper" in deciding what to do.

"Does God stay in Hicksville or does God go?" he asked.

Rapist lunges for prosecutor

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — It was not the civics lesson their teacher intended: 28 high school seniors were watching a sentencing in Circuit Court when a man convicted of rape lunged over a table and attacked a prosecutor.

The man's brother and parents then joined the fight, along with three deputies, an FBI agent and a police sergeant. A frightened probation worker hid in the jury box and the court reporter took cover behind the witness stand.

The rape victim, who had been seated in the front row of the spectator section, fled and hid in a bathroom in an adjacent building, according to an account today in the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

The commotion Wednesday, in which there were no serious injuries, began when Michael S. Smith, 28, convicted three times of assaults involving rape, sodomy and abduction, lost his last chance for parole when sentenced by Judge Austin E. Owen.

Smith leapt over a table and knocked Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Kenneth A. Phillips to the floor. While being subdued, Smith yelled he was going to kill the prosecutor "if it's the last thing I do."

Smith's brother, who was later charged with possessing a concealed knife, and parents ran up from the rear of the courtroom and jumped into the middle of the struggle. It was unclear whether they were trying to calm Smith or help him.

In the middle of the confusion, a shout was heard: "Get the students out!" The students from Kellam High School were ushered out hurriedly.

Even after Smith was brought under control, his mother Caroline, who had lost her shoes and dropped to her knees amid the confusion, continued to scream at the prosecutor, "You don't care!"

Smith first calmly called out to his mother, "Mom, just settle down!" But suddenly his voice changed in tone, and he began to shout his own threats at Phillips.

Smith's father, Ralph O. Smith, his hand cupped over his wife's mouth, yelled sharply to his son, "Michael, you're going to have to stand before the Lord!"

The students appeared shaken and some were crying when Judge Kenneth N. Whitehurst Jr. came upon them in a courtyard as they were leaving Owen's courtroom, Whitehurst later said.

O'Neill planning to call it quits

BOSTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., 71, plans to run for one more two-year term, but would consider serving as ambassador to Ireland or as a cabinet secretary in a Democratic administration, according to published reports.

After serving another two-year term, "I will probably hang it up," he told The Boston Globe in an interview in Thursday's newspaper.

The Democratic leader said he believed House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, should succeed him because he might be "more in tune with the Democratic members of the House than I am."

An early supporter of the presidential candidacy of former Vice President Walter Mondale, O'Neill said he wasn't sure what he would do if Mondale was elected president.

He said he might be available for a presidential appointment "in a Mondale cabinet or possibly as ambassador to Ireland."

The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive formalities, and in case of ambiguity or lack of clearness in stating proposal prices, to adopt such interpretations as may be most advantageous to the Owner. No bid may be withdrawn until the expiration of forty-five (45) days from the date bids are opened.
NOTICES FOR ALL AIP CONTRACTS
A. Policy. It is the policy of the Department of Transportation (DOT) that minority business enterprises as defined in 49 CFR Part 23 shall have the maximum opportunity to participate in the performance of contracts financed in whole or in part with Federal funds.
B. MBE PROGRAM. All bidders assure they will make sufficient reasonable efforts to meet the Minority Business Enterprise goals as established for this prime contract. The MBE goal for minorities is five percent and the goal for women in two percent of the dollar value of this contract.
After opening of bids, the apparent successful bidder will be required to submit the names and addresses of MBE firms that will participate in the contract, along with a description of the work and dollar amount for each firm. If the responses do not clearly show MBE participation will meet the goals above, the apparent successful bidder must clearly demonstrate to the satisfaction of the airport sponsor, that a good faith effort has in fact been made and that meeting said goals is not reasonably possible. If any apparent low bidder cannot do so, the contract may, at the option of the airport sponsor, be awarded to the next low bidder able to meet these requirements.
C. Required Notices for Contracts Over $10,000. The regulations and orders of the Secretary of Labor, OFCC, and FAR 152.61 require the following notices:
1. The proposed contract is under and subject to Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and to the Equal Opportunity clause; and
2. The Bidder must supply all the information required by the bid or proposal form.
3. The successful bidder will be required to submit a Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities prior to award of the contract, and to notify prospective subcontractors of the requirement, for such a Certification where the subcontract exceeds $10,000. Samples of the Certification and Notice to Subcontractors appear in the specifications.
4. Women will be afforded equal opportunity in all areas of employment. However, the employment of women shall not diminish the standards or requirements for the employment of minorities.
Notice of Requirement for Affirmative Action to Ensure Equal Employmnet Opportunity (Executive Order 11246 as amended)
a. The Bidder's attention is called to the "Equal Opportunity Clause" and the "Standard Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Construction Contract Specifications" set forth herein.
b. The goals and timetables for minority and female participation, expressed in percentage terms for the contractor's aggregate work force in each trade on all construction work in the covered area, are as follows:
Goals for female participation in each trade 6.9%
these goals are applicable to all the contractor's construction work (whether or not it is Federal or federally assisted) performed in the covered area.
The Contractor's compliance with the executive order and the regulations in 41 CFR Part 60-4 shall be based on its implementation of the Equal Opportunity clause, specific affirmative action obligations required by the specifications set forth in 41 CFR Part 60-4.3(a), and its efforts to meet the goals established for the geographical area where the contact resulting from this solicitation is to be performed.
The hours of minority and female employment and training must be substantially uniform throughout the length of the contract, and in each trade, and the women evenly on each of its projects. The transfer of minority or female employees or trainees from contractor to contractor or from project to project, for the sole purpose of meeting the contractor's goals, shall be a violation of the contract, the executive order, and the regulations in 41 CFR Part 60-4. Compliance with the goals will be measured against the total work hours performed.
c. The contractor shall provide written notification to the Director, OFCCP, within 10 working days of award of any construction subcontract in excess of $10,000 at any tier for construction work under the contract resulting from this solicitation. The notification shall list the name, address, and telephone number of the subcontractor; employee identification number; estimated dollar amount of the subcontract; estimated starting and completion dates of the subcontract; and the geographical area in which the contract is to be performed.
d. As used in this notice and in the contract resulting from this solicitation, the "covered area" is nationwide.
D. Contracts is Excess of $10,000. For contracts of $50,000 or more a contractor having 50 or more employees, and his subcontractors having 50 or more employees, and who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more, will be required to maintain an affirmative action program within 120 days of the commencement of the contract.
E. Additional Notices of $1 Million Contracts. For each contract which may result in a bid or $1 million ormore, the following notices shall also apply:
1. Pregward Equal Opportunity Compliance Reviews. Where the bid of the apparent low responsible bidder is in the amount of $1 milion or more, the bidder and his known all-tier subcontractors which will be awarded subcontracts of $1 million or more will be subject to full, on-site, preawarded equal opportunity compliance reviews before the award of the contract for the purpose of determining whether the bidder and his subcontractors are able to comply with the provisions of the equal opportunity clause.
2. Compliance Reports. Within 30 days after award of this contract, the contractor shall file a compliance report (standard Form 100) if:
a. The contractor has not submited a complete compliance report within 12 months preceding the date of award, and
b. The contractor is within the definition of "employer" in paragraphs 2e(3) of the instructions included in Standard Form 100.
The contractor shall require the subcontractor on all-tier subcontracts, irrespective of dollar amount, to file Standard Form 100 within 30 days after award of the subcontract if the above two conditions apply. Standard Form 100 will be furnished uponrequest.

LEGAL NOTICES

The Permian Basin Service Delivery Area (Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler Counties) has received through the Job Training Partnership Act a 1984 program year (July 1, 1984-June 30, 1985) allocation of $1,562,903 and a 1985 program year (July 1, 1985-June 30, 1986) planning allocation of $1,406,613. The purpose of these funds is to establish programs to prepare youth and unskilled adults for entry into the labor force and to afford job training to those economically disadvantaged individuals and other individuals facing serious barriers to employment, who are in special need of such training to obtain productive employment.
Requests for draft copies of the Permian Basin Service Delivery Area's Employment & Training Plan and any comments should be made to the Permian Basin Private Industry Council, c/o Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, P.O. Box 6391 ATS, Midland, TX 79711. Comments will be accepted for consideration through March 20, 1984.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD WANT AD
1. IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, it's better to start your advertisement with the location.
2. BE CLEAR. Readers react more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. One of the most important considerations of any advertisement is to include the price.
3. MAKE IT EASY for the reader prospect to reach you. ALWAYS INSERT your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time to have prospects contact you.
4. THE GREATEST READER RESPONSE can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe. The thrifty 15 day plan is best and costs less per insertion. There are also special monthly rates for those who want to keep their name and offers before the public each and every day. Cancel when you get results, the charge will be the rate earned at the time of cancellation.
5. PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good classified ad.
6. CLASSIFIED READERS ARE already interested in buying used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are in the market to buy. Give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.
7. WANT ADS THAT FAIL do so not through any lack of readership, but because they are often quickly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.
8. TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in The Midland Reporter-Telegram, where you reach the active Classified market.
