Terrorist acts increase following bombing

Padfield

WASHINGTON (AP) — The surge in international terrorism that Reagan administration officials anticipated would follow the U.S. bombing of Libya took shape today with the murders of three kidnap victims in Lebanon, an attempt to put explosives aboard an Israeli airliner in London and fire bombs thrown at a U.S. Marine post in Tunisia.

In neighboring Libya, Col. Moammar Khadafy was reported alive but possibly wounded in the bombing raid on his headquarters Monday night. Administration officials sifting through intelligence reports said there were indications he had left Tripoli, the capital, and had gone into the desert amid reports of fighting within the military.

Three bodies were found in the mountains east of Beirut with a note nearby that said one was a CIA agent and two were British intelligence officers killed in retaliation for the U.S. bombing of Libya, the Moslem Voice of the Nation radio reported from Beirut.

John Rowan, first secrertary of the Irish Embassy in Beirut, has identified the bodies as Britons Alec Collett, a journalist; Philip Padfield, director of Beirut Alrashidin English Language Center and Leigh Douglas, a political science professor at American University of Beirut.

White House deputy press secretary Edward Djerejian said the United States has confirmed that all three victims were British. "As far as we know, there are no Americans found," Djerejian said.

A note found near the bodies claimed the three were a CIA agent and two British intelligence officers, the Moslem Voice of the Nation radio reported from Beirut.

The official of the leftist Progressive Socialist Party, the Druse militia that controls the mountains, could not identify any of the slain men.

Druse sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the three men were shot and their blood-stained bodies were found on a tree-lined highway near Roweisat al-Sofar. Militiamen wrapped the faces of the victims in white bandages as a sign of mourning, and the bodies were taken to a hospital morgue at Bhamdoun, the sources said.

The bodies were expected to be taken to the American University Hospital in Beirut for autopsies.

GNP increases by 3.2 percent through March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy showed a four-fold rebound in growth from January through March, helped out by the best news on inflation in almost two decades, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of the economy's health, grew at a 3.2 percent annual rate from January through March, the best growth rate in a year and more than four times the pace of activity during the last three months of 1985.

In a companion report, the Commerce Department said that corporations' after-tax profits rose 4 percent in the final quarter of 1985. The increase, the best performance since the third quarter of 1983, followed a 3.4 percent profits increase in the third quarter.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "All the recent signs of an economy gathering steam began to be realized this morning" with the news on the GNP.

"Today's good news is made even better when you consider the fact that the rebound in GNP growth was accompanied by decreasing inflation," Speakes said.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said the economy managed the 3.2 percent growth despite a wide number of cross-currents.

He said residential investment and consumer spending combined with the big drop in the trade deficit to push up growth while business capital spending fell sharply due to cutbacks in the purchase of computers, trucks and oil and gas drilling equipment.

"Despite these mixed patterns, prospects are good that we can achieve 4 percent real growth over the four quarters of 1986," Baldrige said, referring to the administration's prediction for growth this year. "Though we still have some sluggish spots in the economy, the fundamentals for stepped-up growth and a long-standing expansion are good."

The upturn in growth was aided by a steep decline in inflation. Prices, as measured by an inflation index tied to the GNP, were rising at an annual rate of just 2.5 percent in the first three months of the year. This was the slowest rate since no increase at all in the second quarter of 1967.

The 2.5 percent rise, as measured by the GNP deflator which covers a changing market basket of goods, was down from an annual rate of change of 3.3 percent in the final three months of 1985.

The slowdown in inflation mirrors other price guages which have showed sharp declines in oil prices this year.

The first quarter GNP growth of 3.2 percent, after adjusting for inflation, was at the fastest pace since a 3.7 percent growth rate in the first three months of 1985.

By the final three months of last year, growth had slumped to a barely perceptible 0.7 percent rate as the country was battered by a soaring trade deficit.

The big improvement in the GNP for the first three months of the year came from a turnaround in trade.

Marilyn Hightower, a volunteer with the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, retrieves a cassette — the equivalent of a book or magazine to those who cannot see.

Volunteers record books for the blind

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Volunteers at the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped gain a whole new perspective when it comes to reading the latest edition of Texas Monthly magazine.

No longer a leisurely perusal on a Sunday afternoon, the on-going task of putting the publication into cassette form for those with visual handicaps, involves many arduous hours of cooperation between the "readers," monitors and proofreaders.

"Have you ever tried to read the Around the State section?" asked Executive Director Dennis Stephens, referring to the minuscule print which lists favorite dining and entertainment spots in Texas. "You can barely see it."

Dealing with small print is just one aspect, however, in an overall effort by the facility, to give blind people access to their favorite reading material. Although most major periodicals and books are available through the Texas State Library, the local center is the sole recorder of every issue of Texas Monthly.

"We also do Sunday school lessons, menus and books requested by our clients," said Stephens, who worked as a volunteer for years before assuming the directorship over a year ago.

Indeed, some books requested by clients don't exactly fit on the best seller's shelf. Copies of every book recorded at the facility line the east wall, mirrored by another wall adorned with Texas Monthly covers. Such publications as "Goat Lore," "Living with your Bronchitis," and "How to get Pregnant," are some of the unusual but desired books requested by clients over the years.

The center is more like a sound studio than a library.

Two sound-proof booths, purchased when the 23-year-old facility upgraded its standards to those of the Library of Congress in 1977, house the volunteer recorders who painstakingly read the books, careful not to mispronounce words or speak excessively in regional dialect.

Not just anyone can read for the library, said Stephens.

"They must be auditioned by the Texas State Library before they can be a reader," he said. "We send a tape of their reading which is then approved or not approved."

Stephens compares a good reader to someone who is photogenic — they either have it or they don't.

Panel: GOP may benefit from gas-price plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Except for those in oil-producing states, Republicans could benefit from a political windfall if the plunge in gasoline prices can be linked to the GOP administration, the House Republican Research Committee says in a memorandum.

Party members in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana "will make do with mixed messages as glad tidings overall are offset by turmoil in certain communities and key industries."

The March 19 memorandum, titled "A GOP Windfall: The Oil Price Plunge and How to Talk About It," offered members tips for telling voters how the oil price decline benefits them and how Reagan is responsible for those benefits.

"I hope the Republican Party doesn't take it on itself to do everything it can to make that a partisan issue," said Republican Rep. Joe Barton, whose East Texas district is coming off an oil boom.

"Because in our state and Louisiana and Oklahoma, it needs to be a non-partisan issue and everybody pull together for the good of our area," he said.

Barton, a freshman whose re-election race is targeted by Democrats, has gone against the Republican congressional tide by favoring an oil import tax.

"I'm on the right side and I don't think it's going to be an issue for me," said Barton.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is pushing for an oil import fee to stabilize prices. His Republican counterpart, Phil Gramm, is opposed to the import fee.

Bullock: Low oil prices will affect property taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Local governments in virtually every part of the state will feel the effects of the oil price decrease when they start to collect property taxes in 1987, according to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Cities, counties and school districts may feel the revenue loss more than state government, Bullock said Wednesday.

Bullock has already warned state officials that oil price fluctuations, with spot market prices dropping from $26 a barrel to $13 a barrel, would cost the state $1.3 billion in projected revenue.

"As big as that impact might seem, it could appear small next year when hundreds of Texas cities, counties, school districts and

Two members of local family die in accidents within week

From Staff Reports

Tragedy has struck a Midland family twice as it has suffered two traffic deaths within one week, the Department of Public Safety reported this morning.

Michael Shane Clark, 15, and his passenger, 15-year-old Michael Ray Meredith, were killed Wednesday night when the motorcycle they were riding struck an 1981 Mack truck, tractor and semi-trailer at State Highway 349 and County Road 140, the DPS reported. The accident occurred at 10 p.m. Wednesday.

The semi-trailer's driver John Richard Searle of Midland was not injured.

Michael Meredith's father, Charles Ray Meredith, 52, was killed last Friday when his 1985 GMC pickup overturned one and a half times, the DPS said.

The Wednesday night accident occurred when Clark, driving an 1981 Yamaha motorcycle southbound on State 349, skidded into the tractor-trailer traveling eastbound on CR 140, the DPS reported. Clark and Meredith were not wearing helmets, a DPS spokesman said.

Verdict expected today in Sprayberry trial

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

ABILENE — A verdict was expected today in the attempted-sexual-assault trial of Midland justice of the peace Charlie Sprayberry.

Sprayberry, 45, did not testify in the trial, which was moved here from Midland after his first trial ended with a hung jury Feb. 20.

He is accused of trying to force his former secretary, Wanda Niblett, to perform oral sex on him while they were riding in his car on April 26, 1984.

After the state rested its case Wednesday, defense attorney John W. Smith asked for a directed verdict of acquittal. Even if Ms. Niblett were telling the truth, he said, Sprayberry had not committed a crime.

"This no offense at all," said Smith. "Indiscretion, maybe...perhaps even indecent exposure. (But) Wanda Niblett's own testimony acquits Charlie Sprayberry of attempted sexual assault."

Ms. Niblett, 36, had testified Tuesday that Sprayberry put his hand behind her neck and tried to force her head into his lap. When she resisted, he let go, she said.

If that's a crime, "Then you need to arrest every 16-year-old boy who grabs his girlfriend by the arm," Smith said. "They're all guilty of attempted sexual assault."

Judge James H. Clack denied Smith's notion, which was made outside the presence of the seven-woman, five-man jury.

The jurors were out of the courtroom almost as much as they were in it Wednesday, as an increasingly testy Clack was forced to referee the often acrimonious debate between Smith and special prosecutor Andy Shuval.

"I am appalled, I am shocked, I am angered," thundered Smith after he noticed that Shuval was cross-examining one defense witness using Smith's own documents as a reference.

The prosecutor had received the documents from Capt. Maurice Cook of the Texas Rangers, who had received them from Sprayberry himself when the defendant went to Austin last month to take a polygraph test.

The jury heard nothing about Sprayberry failing the polygraph test, but Cook did testify that Sprayberry described the April 26, 1984 incident to him.

According to Cook, Sprayberry said Ms. Niblett was a willing participant, but that no oral sex occurred. She fondled him, then he fondled himself, he told Cook.

Did the Reagan administration target Khadafy's house in raids?

By R. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) — If a foreign power bombed the White House while President Reagan or his family were sleeping inside, could the conclusion be any other than that it was trying to kill him?

Did the Reagan administration try to kill Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy in Monday's bombing? His home was heavily damaged and an infant daughter was killed and two small sons injured, according to Libya.

The administration acknowledged Khadafy's home may have been hit because it was near some military barracks that were a target. But it said if Khadafy's family was among the casualties that was unfortunate happenstance.

"We're not trying to assassinate Colonel Khadafy," said Richard Murphy, the assistant secretary of state for Middle East affairs, when the question was raised before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee Wednesday.

"We want to change his behavior," explained Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman.

An Analysis

Nor was an overthrow of the Khadafy government the aim, the officials said.

"We're not trying to pick for the Libyan people the leadership that they ought to have," Murphy said. "That's not going to be our choice."

By presidential executive order, assassinations are off-limits. Attempting to topple a foreign government without first declaring war is a violation of international law under the United Nations charter.

Retaliatory strikes also are a violation of international law, even if they are against a country that is linked to terrorism, as was Libya. But self-defense against another country is not a violation, and Reagan justified the attack on Libya as self-defense, an explanation that has been widely accepted in Congress.

The administration's contempt for Khadafy is well known. Reagan last week called him "this evil man" and the "mad dog of the Middle East." Secretary of State George Shultz, who long had urged a military strike against Libya, has said the aim of American policy is to "put Khadafy back in his box where he belongs."

Although it is officially denied, the belief is widespread that the administration had sought to lure the Libyans into the fight over international waterway rights in the Gulf of Sidra three weeks ago. In a quick escalation, the Gulf of Sidra clash was followed by the April 5 terrorist strike on a West Berlin nightclub — which the administration says was carried out by Libya — and then to Reagan's order for Monday's air strike.

One of the targets when American warplanes bombed Tripoli was the Bab al-Azziziya Barracks in Tripoli, where Khadafy's home is located. Khadafy doesn't always stay there.

Khadafy's family pediatrician, Dr. Mohammed Muafa, told reporters a blast that hit near the house caused Khadafy's 15-month-old adopted daughter, Hana, to suffer a skull fracture and internal injuries which proved fatal. Two sons, 4-year-old Sef and 3-year-old Camis, were hospitalized in serious condition with internal injuries, the doctor said. Khadafy's wife and the rest of his eight children also were at home, and all reportedly suffered from shock.

Carter: U.S. has imposed 'worst punishment' on Khadafy

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter said Wednesday the United States' attack on Libya was a mistake because innocent people were killed, and emphasized the reported death of the daughter of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

"I think we've imposed on Khadafy perhaps the worst punishment he could have received, and that is the death of his 15-month-old baby daughter," Carter said.

"If 17 years ago someone had killed Amy it would have been the worst blow that could be delivered to me," Carter said. "I would have sworn as long as my life existed, I would retaliate."

Doctors in Tripoli at Libya's Childrens Hospital said Khadafy's 15-month-old adopted daughter, Hana, was among the dead in the U.S. air raids late Monday.

Carter suggested Reagan could have handled Khadafy with behind-the-scenes diplomacy, something he claimed he did during his presidency.

Carter stressed that he did not mean to criticize President Reagan and acknowledged that the United States had to act on the increasing incidence of terrorism. But he said he has a "personal aversion" to anything that takes the lives of innocent people.

TERRORISM

Shortly after the bodies were found, witnesses said British television cameraman John McCarthy, 30, was kidnapped along the highway to Beirut airport with his Lebanese driver.

Witnesses said McCarthy and the driver were intercepted by a carload of four gunmen. Two of the gunmen got in their car and drove off with them.

The British government supported the U.S. action punishing Libya for the April 5 bombing of a Berlin nightclub and permitted U.S. Air Force bombers based in Britain to participate in the raid.

In London, a woman trying to board an El Al jetliner was arrested after she was found to be carrying was police said were explosives. Authorities were hunting a male companion of Middle Eastern appearance.

British television networks said the woman arrested was carrying 60 pounds of explosives, but Scotland Yard would not disclose the quantity.

Baggage handler Harry Harrison, who witnessed the arrest, said the woman was of European appearance, in her 30s, and was led away handcuffed. Other witnesses said she was in her 20s, and looked Middle Eastern.

She had been checked through to board El Al's flight 016 to Tel Aviv, a Boeing 747, police said. The flight had arrived earlier from New York.

Press Association, the British news agency, quoted police sources as saying the woman claimed she did not know what was in the bag, and that the man had asked her to carry it to Tel Aviv as a favor.

The news agency said the man flew to Paris.

Press Association also quoted a fire brigade spokesman as saying the woman had been carrying plastic explosives that were not attached to a detonator and could not have been designed to explode automatically during the flight.

And in Tunis, Tunisia, the headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization, two Molotov cocktails were tossed from a passing car at the residence of Marine guards stationed at the U.S. Embassy. No one was injured; a nearby auto was burned.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility in the Tunis attack.

As for the bodies found in Lebanon, the Moslem radio said an anonymous caller claiming to speak for a group calling itself the Arab Revolutionary Cells said, "The executions were in retaliation for the new Nazi policy spearheaded by the international terrorist Reagan and his decision to launch an aggression on our Arab people in Libya."

The statement warned that "the American and British terrorists will be a target of our attacks."

Meanwhile, a congressional source said intelligence reports indicated that foes of Khadafy had returned to Tripoli. Sources in both the administration and Congress, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was known to be friction between the army and Khadafy's headquarters guard.

ABC News, quoting U.S. intelligence sources, said there were reports of mutiny at the Tarkunah army base, south of Tripoli. The network said there were reports that Libyan air strikes were used against Libyan army units.

However, the network said there was no indication any particular group had moved to seize power.

At the same time, government sources said the Reagan administration had received intelligence indicating Khadafy had fled his Tripoli headquarters and was probably "someplace in the middle of the desert."

"He has several times before gone into the desert when things got tight in Tripoli," the official, who declined use of his name, said. "He recharges his batteries in the desert."

Intelligence information reaching the government also reportedly indicated Khadafy may have been wounded in this week's raid. There was no information on the nature of the wound, if any, or on his location in the desert.

Khadafy appeared on Libyan television Wednesday night, condemning the United States for its attack and telling Americans, "We will not kill your children."

The Libyan leader's adopted baby daughter was reported killed in the raid. There had been speculation, because Khadafy had not appeared publicly since the attack that he might have been killed or left the country.

It was unclear where the broadcast originated.

Administration officials from President Reagan down, bridling at Soviet condemnation of the U.S. attack, say the Soviet Union refused to help fight the terrorism that forced the United States to take to "the field of battle" as a last resort.

The Soviets protested Monday's attack on Libya by calling off a May meeting between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze designed to pave the way for a superpower summit this year.

German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Gentscher, at a White House meeting Wednesday, asked Reagan about the Soviet decision.

"The president said...the Soviet decision seemed to him out of line with their protestations about combatting terrorism," said a senior administration official who attended the meeting and discussed it on condition he not be named.

Reagan, speaking at a ceremony in which he proclaimed May 1 as Law Day, said, "Sometimes, as we saw recently, the fight to preserve freedom and the rule of law must be carried to the field of battle."

In a letter to congressional leaders, he said the bombing raid was within the right of self-defense under the United Nations charter. He said the letter met the requirements of the War Powers Act, which says the president must notify Congress when troops are sent into combat.

"Should Libyan-sponsored terrorist attacks against United States citizens not cease, we will take appropriate measures necessary to protect United States citizens in the exercise of our right of self-defense," Reagan added.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Tribune reported in today's editions that the choice of targets in the Libya bombing was made partly with an eye to sparking a possible coup against Khadafy.

Citing unidentified intelligence sources in Washington, the newspaper said the targets, including Khadafy's personal headquarters, were carefully selected in order to strengthen the hand of disaffected elements in the Libyan military.

The Tribune also said its sources described the air strike as being only one of a year-long series of U.S.-supported attempts to topple Khadafy.

The report said U.S. intelligence has been in touch with Libyan dissident groups through Egyptian contacts, and has attempted to determine the relative loyalty to Khadafy of various elements of the Libyan military.

TAXES

other local governments face the possibility of dramatic reductions in their local tax bases because lower oil prices have cut the taxable value of oil and natural gas deposits," the report said.

The report said if oil is selling for $17 per barrel or less on January 1987, the taxable value of the state's oil and natural gas reserves could drop by between 30 and 50 percent of their current value.

"A 50 percent drop from the 1984 value levels would cut the tax base of local governments by as much as $43 billion," Bullock's office said.

That scenario could leave local governments with the choice of cutting their spending to match the revenue losses or raising taxes — or both.

"The drop will, in one stroke, wipe out a major portion of the tax base — and the ability to raise taxes — of many local governments," Bullock's report said.

The comptroller said the effect of the rapid decline and oil and gas prices will not hit local governments immediately because the property values used to finance their operations for 1986-87 were set on Jan. 1 of this year, before the major price declines.

The lower propety tax values will show up on tax rolls developed after Jan. 1, 1987. These values will be used to collect taxes in the fall of 1987 and early 1988 to finance local government operations until May 1988.

Bullock's report gave an example of how many local government might be affected.

"At least 230 of Texas' 254 county governments and as many as 851 of the 1,069 tax collecting school districts included oil and gas deposits on their tax rolls in 1984," the report said.

According to Bullock, "the greatest blow is expected to fall on areas of North Central Texas which lie along a line roughly 100 miles on either side of the city of Abilene running north to the Red River and west along the Oklahoma border from about Wichita Falls to the base of the Panhandle."

Another area to suffer is that around San Antonio and northeast to Giddings, where there are large numbers of "stripper" wells, which produce a few barrels each a day, Bullock said. The price drop could force many of those operators to stop production entirely, Bullock said.

OIL

Gramm favors measures to support the banking industry and tax incentives for oil producers instead, an approach also endorsed by other GOP members of the Texas delegation.

Barton said Rep. Tony Coehlo, D-Calif., who gave copies of the memorandum to Democratic members of Congress, was trying to paint the Republicans as opponents of producing states and Democrats as "their big friends."

"That's just a bunch of hogwash," Barton said.

Coehlo is head of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

In the memorandum, the research committee said Republicans should make sure their constituents link lower prices to Reagan.

Thanks to the decline in gasoline prices, "the annual (average) household budget is $400 stronger than it was pre-Reagan," the memorandum said.

"If Republican members do not stress these points, Democrats will palm off OPEC's collapse as — to use the phrase (Democratic economist) Walter Heller tried in the Wall Street Journal — the luck of the Irish," the memorandum said.

"What themes can help constituents to link their savings to our policy?" the memorandum asked, then gave some suggestions, including "free markets earn their keep," "it's another tax cut," and "the expansion gets a second wind."

"Broadly defined," the memorandum said, "the Carter-Democratic approach of red tape, price controls and weak foreign policy led to gas lines, price hikes and economic stagnation. The Reagan Era has, in every way, produced the opposite. It is fair to invite people to compare."

GNP

The trade deficit, which was deteriorating at an annual rate of $21 billion in the final three months of the year, was showing an improvement at an annual rate of $14.8 billion from January through March.

In addition to the help from trade, other positive factors for GNP growth in the first quarter were consumer spending and residential construction.

The GNP report said that personal consumption spending was rising at an annual rate of $24 billion in the first quarter, compared to a tiny $800 million rate of increase in the final three months of the year.

The pickup in spending was concentrated in purchases of non-durable goods. Purchases of durable goods, including cars, fell.

Residential construction, one of the few bright spots of the economy so far this year, was increasing at an annual rate of 9.7 percent in the first three months. By contrast, business investment spending was falling by a sharp 13.6 percent annual rate. Analysts said this reflected in part the cutback in spending on exploration activity by domestic oil companies in the face of the sharp declines in prices.

The 3.2 percent annual rate of growth for the first three months of the year was faster than the 2.2 percent growth turned in for all of 1985. However, it was still below the 4 percent growth rate being predicted for 1986 by the Reagan administration.

The administration, and many private economists, believe that growth will continue to strengthen throughout the year as the economy responds favorably to falling oil prices and steep declines in interest rates.

Still, the economy is expected to be held back this year by a huge trade deficit. The big plus in growth contributed by trade in the first quarter simply meant that the deficit stopped deteriorating and began to show some improvement. However, the trade deficit was still running at a huge annual rate of $126 billion, down from an annual rate of $140.8 billion in the fourth quarter.

The various changes left the total GNP at $3.62 trillion in the first quarter after adjusting for inflation. Before these adjustments, the GNP was expanding at an annual rate of 5.8 percent in the first three months of the year compared to a 4.3 percent growth rate in the final quarter of 1985.

TAPES

"Singers make particularly good readers," he added.

Once they are approved, the neophytes are started out reading short articles from Texas Monthly before graduating to longer texts.

His group of volunteers is both dependable and large.

"The average volunteer puts in about 50 hours a year," he said, adding that some have contributed up to 829 hours. "It just takes an army of volunteers."

Once the reader is in the booth, however, they are under the careful scrutiny of even more volunteers — monitors who make sure the text is being read correctly and proofreaders who go over the finished tape to check for mistakes the monitor missed.

The library has 35 volunteers currently, but Stephens stated he never has to recruit.

"It seems like the volunteers here just bring in more volunteers," he said. "We rarely have to go out and recruit."

The readers themselves, take their job seriously.

"Some of them go home and practice by reading to the dog," he joked. "And we have extensive dictionaries to aid them."

Stephens is proud of one aspect of the library.

"Our clients don't necessarily have to come here in person," he said. "We can deliver the tape to them or they can order it directly from the Texas State Library, but many of them choose to come by here simply because they like the atmosphere and the people."

Retaliatory action sought

On April 8, 1980, the United States attempted to isolate Iran internationally by appealing to its allies to join in retaliatory action against that country.

Museum false ceiling collapses

From Staff Reports

A false ceiling collapsed early this morning at the Museum of the Southwest causing extensive damage to a gift shop but no injuries, a museum spokeswoman reported.

Acting director Sue Devine said two women were in the gift shop when the plaster and insulation broke loose in the gift shop about 9:30 a.m. The women, administrative secretary Barbara Horn and Helen Bellows, a museum volunteer, were not injured.

Ms. Devine said county adjusters were continuing their investigation into the cause of the accident. It is believed that the weight of the plaster and insulation may have caused the collapse. A damage estimate has not been determined.

None of the Museum's exhibits were on display in the gift shop at the time of the collapse, according to Ms. Devine.

SPRAYBERRY

Several defense witnesses testified that Ms. Niblett seemed to be friendly with Sprayberry after she left the justice court, contradicting her testimony that he was harrassing her by telephone.

"I was under the impression that they were on good terms," testified Wayne Pinkerton, for whom Ms. Niblett worked briefly after leaving the justice court in August, 1984.

Pinkerton said he overheard a telephone conversation with Sprayberry in which Ms. Niblett, who is black, referred to herself as his "chocolate friend."

Smith rested his case without calling Sprayberry's ex-wife, Lavon Stevens, or her husband, Midland Sheriff's Deputy Jim Stevens, both of whom he had subpoenaed.

In his closing arguments during Sprayberry's first trial, Smith had suggested the investigation had been initiated by Ms. Stevens to hurt her ex-husband.

Interviewed outside the courtroom, Ms. Stevens denied the allegation.

"Someone called me and told me that Wanda had been sexually harrassed by Charlie. I called Wanda," who said Sprayberry was making obscene phone calls to her, Ms. Stevens said.

"I asked her why she didn't do something about it, and she said, 'Who would believe a black against a white judge?' "

Former Sheriff's Sgt. Monnie Weddel told the Reporter-Telegram the investigation was initiated by complaints about Sprayberry from justice court employees, not from Ms. Stevens.

"It was kind of a chain of events" which led investigators to Ms. Niblett," he said.

Attempted sexual assault is a third-degree felony with a penalty range of two to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $5,000. Sprayberry is also charged with false inprisonment, a misdemeanor.

The Midland magistrate is eligible for probation if convicted. He has elected to have Clack set punishment if the trial reaches that phase.

Clack, an Andrews district judge, is hearing the case for Midland's 238th District Judge Vann Culp. Shuval, an Austin attorney, is prosecuting the case in place of Midland District Attorney Al Schorre.

State Department blasts Soviets for canceling summit-planning talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, stung by cancellation of summit planning talks, lashed out at the Soviet Union for a lack of progress in easing superpower tensions and bitterly condemned the Kremlin for failing to avert the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub.

"They have wasted six months since the summit," the State Department said in a sharply worded statement Wednesday that blamed Moscow for not maintaining the momentum begun at President Reagan's meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last November.

In a separate but related blast, the department said the Soviets had been warned Libyans were planning an assault in the German city and could have stopped them from carrying it out.

It virtually blamed Moscow for the April 5 discotheque bombing in which an American soldier and a Turkish woman were killed and hundreds wounded. Reagan, saying there was irrefutable evidence linking Libya to the attack, had U.S. warplanes bomb Tripoli and Benghazi on Monday in "self-defense" against terrorism.

"We urged the Soviets and East Germans to restrain the Libyans," the State Department said. "Had they done so, this entire cycle of events would have been avoided."

The department said the Soviets were advised March 27, in Washington and in Berlin, that there was evidence indicating Libyans in East Germany planned actions against U.S. "interests and citizens" in the German city.

The statement said the United States had kept Moscow informed of its concerns at every stage leading up to Monday's bombing of Libya and "requested their assistance."

The department criticized the Soviets for supplying Libya with anti-aircraft missiles and said the United States had warned Moscow the missiles "might encourage (Col. Moammar) Khadafy to take risks which would force us to respond. This, in fact, turned out to be the case."

NATION IN BRIEF

Woman can refuse feeding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 28-year-old quadriplegic who tried two years ago to starve herself to death is happy and "will eat all she can" after a hospital obeys an appeals court order to stop force-feeding her, her attorney says.

In a unanimous opinion Wednesday, Associate Justice Edwin F. Beach of the 2nd District Court of Appeal agreed that Elizabeth Bouvia has the right to refuse medical treatment — even if it is life-sustaining.

"She has a right to refuse the increased dehumanizing aspects of her condition created by the insertion of a permanent tube through her nose and into her stomach," Beach wrote.

The decision "made it snappily clear that a patient gets to make decisions about hospital care — and not just to decide what's for dinner," said Ms. Bouvia's attorney, Richard S. Scott.

Space semifinalists named

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former CBS News anchor Walter Cronkite is among 100 journalists hoping to be the first to report directly from space who have been named as semifinalists in their bids for a space shuttle flight.

"I am pleased I have made it through the first round, and look forward even more to the fact I will have this opportunity to compete further for this privileged assignment," Cronkite, now a special correspondent for the network, said Wednesday.

Other semifinalists include Associated Press aerospace writer Paul Recer and New York Times science reporter John Noble Wilford, who won a Pulitzer Prize for his space and science reporting in 1984.

The 100 journalists were selected from a group of 1,703 applicants, which included reporters, editors, columnists, news directors, anchors and a photographer.

Group joins CBS boycott

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson told CBS stockholders Wednesday his Rainbow Coalition was joining a boycott of the network and CBS-owned television stations to force the company to hire more blacks as executives and weekday news anchors.

House Republicans vote to block present Contra aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, who in a surprise move voted to block President Reagan's proposed $100 million in assistance for the Nicaraguan rebels, expressed confidence they can revive the package later.

Democrats, however, predict the GOP lawmakers will lose the tactical gamble they have taken, and say they will likely approve a different version of the aid containing restrictions the president opposes.

In a surprise move, Republicans joined Democrats Wednesday in approving an amendment that basically eliminated all $100 million President Reagan wants for the Contras fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Republican tactic prevented the House from voting on a proposal by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., which would have granted Reagan his $100 million package, but delayed spending $75 million of it for at least three months while peace talks were tried to end the Central American struggle.

Instead, by a 361-66 vote, the House passed an amendment by Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., which would replace Reagan's program with a package of $27 million in aid to Central American refugees and $2 million in help to the so-called Contadora Latin nations trying to mediate a peaceful solution.

On the vote, 184 Democrats were joined by 177 Republicans. Only one Republican, Rep. Willis Gradison of Ohio, voted to keep the Reagan plan alive.

The parliamentary maneuvering came because Democrats hold a 252-182 edge in the chamber, with one seat vacant.

Last month, after the House voted 222-210 against Reagan's package, House Democratic leaders promised to bring it up again this month but to attach it to an unrelated bill making $1.7 billion in various appropriations. The Republican-controlled Senate later narrowly approved a modified Contra package.

But Reagan has threatened to veto the spending bill if it passes and he complained Wednesday that Republicans were being denied a vote on a free-standing Contra package because of "a back-door parliamentary maneuver."

Republicans will now have to round up signatures on a petition to try to force to the floor their version of the Reagan package.

The GOP will need 218 signatures, meaning it will have to hold all its own members and pick up at least 36 Democrats. Under House rules, the earliest the measure could come to the floor would be May 12.

Some Contras involved in drug smuggling, report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some individual Nicaraguan Contras may have engaged in activity with drug traffickers, but there is no evidence that leaders of the rebels were involved, the Reagan administration says.

A three-page report from the administration said Wednesday that the Contra connections to the drug traffickers occurred in 1984 and 1985, when the rebels were "particularly hard pressed for financial support" because they were not receiving U.S. aid.

The report is the White House's most detailed response to allegations of rebel involvement in drug trafficking.

The Associated Press first reported those alleged ties last December in an article that quoted U.S. investigators, Contra backers and a Costa Rican indictment on the involvement of several rebel groups in cocaine trafficking from bases in northern Costa Rica.

The drug allegations have clearly hurt Reagan's efforts to win more aid to the rebels, partly because the president has repeatedly denounced Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government for its alleged role in drug trafficking.

State Department urging U.S. citizens to leave Sudan

WORLD

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Thousands of people burned American flags and shouted slogans to protest the U.S. bombing raid on Libya, and U.S. officials said Americans were being urged to leave the country due to the "life-threatening" presence of terrorists.

An American Embassy employee who was shot in the head in Khartoum late Tuesday underwent brain surgery in Saudi Arabia on Wednesday. He was reported to be critical but stable condition with his right side paralyzed.

Plans to withdraw U.S. citizens from Sudan went into effect. A State Department official in Washington, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Americans and their dependents would take regular flights out of the country, and that no military evacuation would be involved.

Khartoum police said about 15,000 demonstrators took to the streets Wednesday to protest the U.S. air raids on Libya, burning two American flags and shouting "Down, Down U.S.A.!" The Sudanese government also condemned the raids.

Riot police carrying automatic rifles kept demonstrators away from the embassy complex and the residence of U.S. Ambassador Hume Horan. They were posted there soon after the U.S. raids.

Khartoum police said men in a white Toyota sedan fired five shots into the U.S. Embassy official's car as he drove on a residential street near the Libyan People's Bureau, or embassy, and that one slug lodged in his brain.

A colleague at the Khartoum embassy identified the man as William Calkins.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, asked about the shooting during a satellite news conference with reporters in Europe, said he did not know whether Libya was behind the attack.

On Wednesday, the State Department in Washington issued an advisory saying that "due to the presence in Khartoum of terrorists posing life-threatening dangers to U.S. citizens, Americans should not travel to the Sudanese capital of Khartoum."

The State Department official in Washington said the Reagan administration was concerned by the shooting and a reported influx of Libyans across the Libyan-Sudanese border.

U.S. officials, citing security reasons, were not willing to say when Americans would start to leave the country. There are about 300 American officials and dependents in Sudan, plus about 3,000 other Americans employed by private companies and relief agencies, U.S. sources said.

Because of fears of trouble in a city hit by anti-American demonstrations, employees and their familes were told not to go out unless absolutely necessary. The U.S. Embassy in Khartoum was closed Wednesday after being brought to a state of alert following the U.S. strike at Libya.

The attack late Tuesday was the first attempt on the life of an American official in the Sudan since U.S. ambassador Cleo Noel and an aide were slain by gunmen in 1973.

Gen. Ibrahim Ahmed Abdul-Karim, police chief of Khartoum, said a U.S. Air Force jet flew the victim to Jidda, on Saudi Arabia's Red Sea coast, for surgery at the King Fahd military hospital.

One hospital source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said: "The bullet pierced the brain and exposed part of it, leaving his right side paralyzed."

Sudan was Libya's enemy under President Gaafar Nimeiri but has drawn closer to Libya since the military overthrew Nimeiri last April.

The Cabinet denounced the U.S. raids at its regular meeting Wednesday. The official news agency, Suna, said Amin Mekki Medani, acting foreign minister, announced that Sudan's ambassador to Washington was being recalled for consultations.

The government of Premier El-Gazouly Dafaallah administers the country for the ruling military council, which is to hand over power to a new civilian government April 26 after 17 years of military rule under Nimeiri and Gen. Abdul-Rahman Swareddahab, who deposed him.

According to the news agency, Swareddahab pledged his support to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy in a telephone conversation Tuesday.

Gunmen with rocket-propelled grenades hit the abandoned residence of the British ambassador in Moselm West Beirut today.

Ex-residence of British ambassador attacked

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen in a speeding car fired a fusillade of rocket-propelled grenades at the former residence of the British ambassador in Moslem west Beirut today, damaging the mansion.

Police said there were no casualties among the 12 Lebanese servants and gardeners at the British-owned building in the Batrakieh neighborhood. The British Embassy residence was moved Christian east Beirut last year.

The Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio station said it received a claim from an anonymous telephone caller that the building was rocketed by a pro-Libyan guerrilla unit, the Omar Mukhtar Squads.

Several Palestinian and leftist Lebanese groups have vowed strikes at British and American targets in retaliation for Tuesday's U.S. bombing raids on Libya. British-based U.S. fighter-bombers participated in the attack.

Police said gunmen in a black Mercedes fired at least seven armor-piercing rockets as they sped along a street facing the mansion. They covered their escape with a hail of submachine gun fire.

Three projectiles exploded on the top floor of the three-story white-stoned mansion. A hole and broken glass were seen near a blown-off window frame on the third floor.

Cypress trees in the gardens surrounding the residence caught fire, but firemen quickly put out the flames.

Students in nearby schools were hurriedly evacuated.

The residence was abandoned last year by the then ambassador, Sir David Miers, amid a rash of abductions of foreigners in the capital's Moslem sector.

Britain and several other Western countries moved their embassies to east Beirut to flee the lawlessness in militia-ruled west Beirut.

Police around the mansion refused to allow reporters to go inside to inspect the damage and speak to Lebanese guards and servants.

The current ambassador, John Gray, was not available for comment at the east Beirut embassy.

The anonymous telephone caller was quoted as saying he would issue a statement later giving "all the details of this operation." Omar Mukhtar was a legendary nationalist Libyan leader who fought against Italy's colonial regime in the 1920s.

The group has claimed two previous attacks recently, on a British Airlines office and the former U.S. consulate in west Beirut.

It said those attacks were to avenge the U.S.-Libyan confrontation in the Gulf of Sidra last month.

East German president: Another summit needed

BERLIN (AP) — President Erich Honecker of communist East Germany today said the U.S. attack on Libya threatened to ignite a new world war and that another superpower summit is needed to stop the arms race.

In a speech opening the 11th East German Communist Party Congress, Honecker said the "barbaric bombardment of peaceful Libyan cities ...carries an uncontrollable escalation of international tensions."

"Not only the Arab world, but all mankind is appealing to the U.S. administration to come to its senses," said Honecker. "All the more so because imprudent actions could lead to a catastrophe that would pull all humanity into the inferno of a new world conflict, from which there would be no return."

Western diplomatic sources in East Berlin have said they expect a barrage of anti-U.S. rhetoric at the congress.

An estimated 100 people died in Tuesday's bombing raid on Libya, which the United States staged in retaliation for Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's alleged involvement in international terrorism.

Because of the raids, the Kremlin called off a meeting in Washington next month to discuss planning for the next superpower summit.

Honecker today said a Soviet-U.S. summit is necessary for world peace and called for a ban on nuclear tests, a Kremlin proposal which the Reagan administration has opposed.

"The first step in ridding the world of nuclear weapons must be to stop incessantly testing new ones," said Honecker.

He added, "As has been proposed, this chance should be seized by arranging a meeting between Gorbachev and (President) Reagan. This would be a step in the right direction."

He also supported proposals for an international Middle East peace congress that would include the Palestine Liberation Organization. Israel refuses to deal with the PLO, which does not recognize the Jewish state's right to exist.

Just a 'fuzzball'

There's an old saying that asserts anticipation of just about any event usually exceeds the reality. We've found that to be true, but and the result more often than not is disappointment.

Take Halley's Comet. We were expecting a Stradivarius and got a ukulele. Instead of a three-ring circus, we got a calliope that went flat. We were looking for a Rembrandt and got a pawn-shop painting. The anticipated cannon roar of the 1812 Overture misfired.

Halley's comet — that once-in-a-lifetime event, that flashy visitor from space that comes our way every 76 years — fizzled! The space spectacular that created mass hysteria when it streaked by in 1910 — its last visit — created mass disappointment in 1986.

Oh, for astronomers, it undoubtedly was a success. But for those common folk who bought binoculars or telescopes and traveled to special viewing points to see the space traveler, it was like: "Hey, I want my money back." Nowadays they're flooding the garage sale market with slightly-used telescopes and packing away their dreams of a lifetime memory.

What happened is that the comet faded and lost most of its tail. The brightness was gone, and all those folks who made nightly forays in hopes of seeing this spectacular "shooting star" only lost a lot of sleep and saw little else of consequence.

Don't feel too badly if you missed it. There was the lady who traveled to the heights of the Inca ruins near Cuzco, Peru — considered a prime vantage point. When the moment came, she wailed: "That's it? That's all there is? I came 4,000 miles to see this crummy little fuzzball?"

Oh well, we all can tell our kids that we were around when Halley's Comet disappointed the world!

A growth industry

The final report of the President's Commission on Organized Crime is a shocker. It dissects a top U.S. growth industry that could turn a $75 billion profit this year.

The report describes organized crime as a $106 billion-a-year business that robs the United States of 414,000 jobs, $6.5 billion in lost taxes, and costs every American $77.20.

Although the 24 La Cosa Nostra families that constitute the Mafia leadership remain the best-known and most-powerful organized crime groups, the commission report warns of growing criminal activity by motorcycle gangs, Asian crime rings, and other ethnic gangs. Several of these groups are active in California.

The bulk of organized crime's illegal earnings come from drugs, illegal gambling, loansharking, and prostitution, but the Mafia also has made inroads into almost every major U.S. industry. These gains have come despite the passage of tougher anti-racketeering laws and increased federal prosecutions of organized crime figures during recent years. A major concern in Texas has been the proliferation of drug trafficking — illegal drugs being flown in to isolated locations in West Texas where the drug haulers can land and unload.

Another real problem addressed by the report deals with mob-connected attorneys. State bar associations and law enforcement agencies are urged to crack down on unethical members of the bar who cooperate with criminals. Moreover, states are urged to combat organized crime through greater use of undercover tactics, electronic surveillance, and grand jury investigations.

One area the commission failed to address is the significant contribution ordinary citizens can make toward better law enforcement. Many otherwise law-abiding Americans support organized crime by buying illicit drugs or placing illegal bets with their neighborhood bookies. Nationwide, this amounts to substantial revenues for the illegal economy.

Law enforcement can't bring down organized crime by itself. There must be active support from an aroused citizenry.

Another View: Justice for a terrorist

The smoke in Tripoli has barely cleared, yet on the basis of early information even the most scrupulous citizen can only approve and applaud the American attacks on Libya. It's emotionally satisfying to say that Colonel Khadafy deserves whatever he gets; the Reagan administration has now proved he richly deserves what he got.

If there were such a thing as due process in the court of world opinion, the United States has observed it, prosecuting and punishing him carefully, proportionately — and justly.

First came the crime, the bombing that shattered a West Berlin disco on April 5, killing two, including an American sergeant, and injuring 230. As is now clear, Khadafy's initial response — professing horror at attacks on innocent civilians — gives crocodile tears a bad name.

Then came the evidence, now laid out clearly to the public. When the White House puts direct responsibility on him for the deaths and injuries, it can cite intercepted reports from his agents in East Berlin informing him the day before of the planned bombing.

Then came the jury, the European governments to which the United States went out of its way to send emissaries to share evidence and urge concerted action against the Libyan leader. Those governments responded with varying degrees of courage and anger, but none can complain of a failure of consultation.

Only then did the administration pass its sentence, and it seems measured and deliberate: attacks on military targets and terrorist centers. "Self-defense is not only our right but our duty," as President Reagan observed in his remarks to the nation last (Monday) night.

Even if some neutral targets were struck and some civilians killed in the early-morning raids, the United States evidently tried to avoid innocent casualties. There is no way to say as much for Khadafy and his terrorists, whose purpose is to kill civilians.

Attacks against a foreign country cannot help but stir moral feelings of uncertainty and practical fears of unknown cyclones. So far in this case, however, for Americans, those fears can yield to the sober satisfaction of seeing justice done.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, April 17, the 107th day of 1986. There are 258 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty-five years ago, on April 17, 1961, about 1,500 CIA-trained Cuban exiles launched the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in an attempt to overthrow the government of Fidel Castro. The invasion failed, and the survivors were captured.

On this date:

In 1492, a contract was signed between Christopher Columbus and Spain to seek a westward ocean passage to Asia.

In 1521, Martin Luther went before the Diet of Worms to face charges stemming from his religious writings.

In 1790, Benjamin Franklin died in Philadelphia at the age of 84.

In 1861, the Virginia State Convention voted to secede from the Union.

In 1941, Yugoslavia surrendered to Germany in World War II.

GEORGE F. WILL

Libyan air strike affirmed U.S. resolve

WASHINGTON — In the use of military force, democracies often sacrifice efficiency to purchase legitimacy. It seems especially imperative for post-Vietnam America to be seen to exhaust, redundantly, the economic and diplomatic "alternatives" which actually are nothing of the sort.

George F. Will

In 63 months in office, Ronald Reagan, who came to office with an unearned reputation for recklessness, has disproved the suspicion that he is eager to use U.S military assets. The use of them against Libya marks another stage in the slow emancipation of the United States from several servitudes. One involves the "lessons" of Vietnam. Another involves misplaced multilateralism.

The "lessons" of Vietnam, according to people who most insistently invoke them, are self-evident and unanimous in raising doubts about the morality and utility of military force. However, the Reagan administration has many members who believe that one lesson of Vietnam is that violence is not necessarily economized by delaying it or administering it in minute doses.

In Vietnam, violence was unnecessarily protracted and futile because it was administered in accordance with theories that were too clever by half. Finely calibrated escalations and pauses were supposed to manipulate and educate the enemy. But the enemy correctly read the cleverness as irresolution.

Today the wrong question is: Did the raid "teach Khadafy a lesson?" Gracious. Americans have an agreeable belief in public education, but there should be limits. Americans desire a foreign policy that is didactic or therapeutic, instructing or curing difficult regimes. However, Reagan has wisely applied to the raid the rhetoric of preemptive deflation, warning that it was not supposed to solve, at a stroke, the problem of Libyan terrorism. His most important words were these seven: "If necessary, we shall do it again."

Khadafy's terrorism has been a success, so far. It has been giving him what he seeks from it: pleasure and prominence. Ideally, repeated U.S. military actions should put him in the position of the pitcher who stood on the mound 60 feet, six inches from the plate and threw the pitch that became Willie Mays' first home run. The pitcher said: "For the first 60 feet it was a hell of a pitch." Khadafy may still be ahead, but the United States has just begun to swing at him.

Or so one must hope. He is the problem and he probably can not be tamed or deterred. He must be removed.

Libya is less a political than a geological phenomenon: It is a military caste floating on a sea of oil. Devalue the latter and you can destabilize the former. The targets hit by U.S. bombers were appropriate but inadequate: Most of their value as targets was symbolic. Military assets such as barracks and training bases can be easily replaced. Better targets would have been the installations essential to the oil exports that finance the contentment of Khadafy's officers.

A sword once drawn is not easily sheathed, so it is well to wonder whether the world would not be better off if, in 1982, Israel had been encouraged to sweep through Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, a source of Syrian terrorism. Among sources of terrorism, Syria is worse than Libya. However, the slow, stately minuet of diplomacy that preceded the long-delayed response to Libyan terrorism has at least helped with two "So what?" questions.

It is said that an attack against Khadafy guarantees him rhetorical support from Arab nations and reveals that the United States can not bring along its allies. To both facts the right response is a question: So what?

An ancillary benefit of the raid is a demonstration — redundant, one would have thought — that, as a political force, the "Arab world" is a figment of the imaginations of people eager to find reasons for the United States not to respond to terrorism. And the primary benefit of the raid was the demonstration that the United States will not forever use multilateralism as a cover for inaction.

It is hard to feel dismay about the fact that the U.S. raid caused collateral damage to the French Embassy in Tripoli. France is, with Italy, especially conspicuous among the U.S. allies that practice appeasement of terrorists in order to deflect violence toward Americans.

This week France complicated U.S. self-defense by refusing to allow U.S. aircraft to fly over France. In the 1980s, the Fifth Republic is free to behave as badly as the Third Republic did in the 1930s because the United States is unlike France. It is unlike France not only in scale, but also in kind, for which France should be thankful.

FDIC officer helps diminish public's fear

WASHINGTON — For all the barbs we aim at federal bureaucrats, we'd be the first to acknowledge that most government officials are conscientious public servants who earn their pay. And some of them occupy positions of enormous stress, try to cope with situations that are beyond human control — and do it without public recognition or private reward.

Jack Anderson

One such dedicated government official is Alan Whitney, head of press relations at one of the least known but most important federal agencies, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. In fact, when he first took the job seven years ago, there was little reason to suspect that the FDIC would be anything but the quiet little bureaucratic backwater it had always been — an oasis of somnolent serenity in the swirling desert of Washington's frenetic federal agencies.

With an abruptness that jolted the quill pens out of their inkstands, the FDIC in 1982 suddenly became a center of feverish activity. Banks were collapsing at a rate reminiscent of the Great Depression, and the FDIC received more scrutiny from press and public than it had had during its first half-century of existence.

As the principal buffer between the public and the brass that makes the agency's decisions in closely guarded secrecy, Whitney has found himself at times catching flak from both directions. The public wants to know why it's not being told more about a situation that affects its savings and the economic life of its community; mossbacks in the banking community and even within the banking agencies firmly believe that successful public relations is keeping one's affairs out of the public prints entirely.

To his credit, Whitney came down on the side of the public, choosing to open a dialogue with the communities that were hit by bank failures. He has logged thousands of miles in the past two years, explaining to stunned — and sometimes resentful — citizens and media the FDIC's role following the collapse of a bank.

Probably his toughest chore has been to explain loan foreclosures, which some people seem to think should stop when a bank fails — even though bad loans may have been the cause of the collapse.

In one Nebraska town, for example, an activist priest demanded that the FDIC forgive at least half of all the bad loans owed by local farmers to a bank that had just failed. He implied it was the agency's Christian responsibility.

When Whitney explained that the FDIC has a legal responsibility to collect on a failed bank's loans in an effort to help compensate for the guaranteed deposits the agency made good, the priest told the community: "The FDIC doesn't care if you live or die." After weeks of tension, the FDIC office in the town burned down; local authorities called it arson. The priest then accused the FDIC of torching its own office to get sympathy.

"You're up to your hip boots in alligators, trying to figure out how you're going to work your way through a particular crisis, and Alan always has a level head about him," one agency official said.

Last June, for example, Whitney and FDIC employees confronted an angry throng of Chinese-American depositors, few of whom spoke English, after the failure of the Golden Pacific National Bank in New York City. Rumors of fraud incited the crowd to a frenzy; the FDIC group was barely able to keep the people from forcing their way into the bank. Men and women were screaming and weeping.

Whitney defused the explosive situation by venturing into the hysterical crowd and singling out half a dozen relatively calm depositors, whom he invited into the bank. He explained to the delegation what was going on; they went out and explained it to the rest, and the crowd dispersed.

MINI-EDITORIAL: We're not exactly enamored of our blow-dried rivals on the television news shows, but we're deeply disturbed about a White House plan to bypass the networks and feed unedited speeches, briefings, Rose Garden ceremonies and other White House media events directly to local TV stations. The idea, which is the brainchild of the resident White House press kicker, communications chief Patrick Buchanan, seems to us one more step down the slippery road to Goebbels-like force-feeding of propaganda to the public. For all their faults, we trust the news judgment of TV broadcasters more than that of official government flacks.

Stranger at the bar was leader of the PAC!

It was Happy Hour at the OK Corral Saloon on Capitol Hill. The place was jammed with its usual 5 o'clock crowd when the tall lobbyist with the white hat strode to the bar and said, "Drinks on the house for everybody."

Art Buchwald

We filled up and then turned to the stranger. "And what victory might we be toasting?" someone asked.

"Congress just said goodbye to the 1968 Gun Control Act. I'm with the National Hair-Trigger Association, and this is a great day for my people."

"I didn't know the hair-trigger manufacturers had their own lobby."

"Ah yes. We've always had a strong interest in a weak gun law. The easier it is to buy guns the more hair-triggers we're going to sell. I was given a million dollars to make sure the people's representatives would vote the American way. Fill up, everybody. This is the last of my money."

He started to sing, "A gun for me and a gun for you. And a gun to shoot your neighbor, too."

All of us have seen lobbyists celebrate when they got a bill through, but it was nothing compared to this.

"How come the police departments were against you people weakening the gun bill?" Tom the bartender asked.

The stranger said, "Cops don't know anything about guns. All they run up against are the criminal elements who use weapons to commit crimes. They never see the law-abiding people who buy their handguns to hunt and fish."

"Fish?"

"Don't tell me you never shot a fish with a .38? The important thing to remember is that under the old law you couldn't even bring a gun from one state to another. Dealers were responsible for keeping records of who bought handguns and ammunition. Do you know what this meant for thousands of gun shop owners?"

"What?"

"It meant PAPERWORK. These good merchants used to have to stay up all night long trying to remember who bought a gun and who bought ammunition. We got all that red tape eliminated and from here on out you're going to see a boom in the sale of every type of firearm. Drink up, friends, the Constitution is alive and well in the hair-trigger lobby."

"How did you get Congress to knuckle under to a weak gun control law?"

The stranger winked. "Let's say we just sent the legislators a message. If they didn't vote to reform the 1968 act we would send our people into their districts and riddle them with innuendos. On the other hand, if they promised to be good boys and support us we would make a donation to their favorite political charity. One more for the road, men. Then I must make the rounds of the halls of Congress to drop some goodies on those who backed our bill, and mark a red X on the doors of those who lost their nerve."

The man plunked $1,000 on the bar. I raised my glass. "To good sport," I said.

We drank.

Someone shouted, "Death to all gun laws."

The stranger wasn't drinking. He said, "We can't have that. The threat of stronger gun control bills keeps the National Hair-Trigger Association alive. Our members would refuse to provide us with money if they thought the battle was all over."

"And how do you keep the threat going?" I asked.

"By putting out the word to our members that the law enforcement people are mad as hell at us and aren't going to take it anymore."

The man exited through the swinging doors.

"Who was that stranger who was just here?" someone asked.

"That was no stranger," the bartender replied. "That was the leader of the PAC."

Cuba marks Bay of Pigs anniversary

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba observes the 25th anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion today, but the government media is giving that historical turning point equal billing with criticism of the U.S. air raid on Libya.

The Communist Party newspaper Granma carried more than 40 stories from dozens of countries Wednesday highlighting the adverse international reaction to the attack on Libya.

The media concentration on Libya fits nicely with Cuba's long-held view of the United States as a ruthless, expansionist power.

But while the limelight this week turned toward Libya, the Bay of Pigs anniversary of April 17, 1961 is not being ignored.

Wednesday night, a photo exhibit portraying the events surrounding the 65-hour battle at the Bay of Pigs, or Bahia de Gochinos, was inaugurated by Education Minister Jorge Fernandez, who as chief of operations at the time has emerged as one of the heroes in the defeat of the CIA-sponsored attack.

The exhibit hails the event as the "first great military defeat of Yankee imperialism in the Americas."

The defeat of a ragtag band of about 1,400 Cuban exiles assembled, trained, supplied and directed by the United States is considered one of Cuba's brightest moments.

What President John F. Kennedy had thought would be a quick invasion of Cuba by Cuban exiles, helped surreptitously by Americans, to overthrow Fidel Castro instead became one of the embarrassments of his administration.

The invasion failed miserably, primarily because the Americans failed to back up the languishing exiles when their supplies ran short and the Cubans began advancing on the small band of invaders in the Zapata Swamp of southwestern Cuba.

A flotilla of U.S. warships was steaming toward Cuba, but unknown to the Cuban invaders, the Navy had orders not to get closer than 25 miles off Cuba.

The doomed brigade, aided by a small cast of American pilots, had no way of knowing when they landed at Playa Larga and Playa Giron that within three days their takeover attempt would be easily quashed.

Castro's air force sank two of the brigade's ships carrying badly needed ammunition and communications equipment and shot down five B-26 bombers. His troops, backed by about 50 Soviet-built tanks, killed 114 men of the brigade and captured 1,189 others.

Four American pilots also died, while the Cubans say they lost 161 men.

The invaders languished in Cuban prisons for 22 months until the Kennedy administration ransomed them for $53 million worth of food and medicine.

Memories of the invasion were refueled by the events this week in Libya.

On Tuesday, thousands of demonstrators gathered at the University of Havana to condemn what the newspaper called "the brutal military aggression against the people of Libya."

The protesters carried signs saying "Reagan Terrorist," "Long Live The Libyan Revolution" and "We Condemn Yankee Aggression Against Libya."

A front-page editorial accused President Reagan of engaging in the "grossest form of state-sponsored terrorism."

Board rules out terrorism in Gander crash which killed U.S. servicemen

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian Aviation Safety Board has ruled out terrorism in December's crash of an U.S. military charter and is looking more closely at icing on the wings as a possible cause, the panel's head said.

"There are many pieces of the puzzle in place now — some pieces missing," Chairman Bernard Deschenes told reporters Wednesday after seven days of public hearings came to an end.

Deschenes said it was important to note that the intensive investigation found no evidence that an explosion — whether terrorist or accidental — caused the Dec. 12 crash of the Arrow Air DC-8.

There were eight crew members and 248 U.S. soldiers on the plane, which crashed just after takeoff from a refueling stop in Gander, Newfoundland. All aboard were killed.

The safety board could take another 12 months before issuing its final report, which is likely to identify a series of likely contributing causes, Deschenes said.

Among the possibilities, besides icing, are pilot error, engine malfunction and structural failure.

One of the final witnesses on Wednesday was a DC-8 expert who said ice on the wings is the only reasonable explanation for the crash.

Ralph Brumby, who works for McDonnell Douglas Corp., the plane's manufacturer, said any contamination on a wing's forward edge greatly decreases lift and increases drag.

"A very small amount of roughness, as little as medium-coarse sandpaper, will increase the stall speed by as much as 20 to 30 percent," he said.

Freezing drizzle was falling when the plane bringing U.S. servicemen home from the Middle East landed in Gander, but no witnesses saw ice on the DC-8's wings.

Brumby said he and other McDonnell Douglas specialists looked into many other suggested causes for the crash.

"I haven't found (another) reasonable explanation that will develop the flight path" actually recorded in the plane that crashed, Brumby said.

The flight data recorder recovered from the Arrow Air wreckage showed a takeoff remarkably similar to other occasions in which ice or snow on the wings were blamed for crashes on takeoff, he said.

The plane apparently reached an adequate takeoff speed, but had trouble lifting off and stalled at a speed of about 160 knots, Brumby said.

Under the conditions that morning, the normal stall speed for the plane would be 138 knots, he said.

The important factor in determining ice's effects is the roughness created on the plane's leading edge, not the weight of the ice, Brumby said.

"The kind of roughness that we think would cause this kind of stall is four-hundredths of an inch," he said.

The plane began its flight in Cairo, Egypt, with fuel stops in Cologne, West Germany, and Gander on the way to Fort Campbell, Ky., where the troops from the 101st Airborne Division were based.

After takeoff from Gander, the plane banked to the right and veered in that direction, losing altitude until it smashed into a rocky hillside at the side of Gander Lake.

STATE

Moist air spread northward from the Gulf of Mexico today, triggering scattered thunderstorms and a low cloud cover over much of the state.

A high pressure system that dominated Texas weather the past coupld of days was making an eastward exit from the state as a strong area of low pressure developed over West Texas.

Southeast winds of 10 to 20 mph flowed across the western two-thirds of the state today, while a light wind breezed East Texas and the upper coastal waters.

Overnight temperatures were in the 50s over the eastern third of Texas. Elsewhere, readings were mostly in the 60s, with a few temperatures in the 70s reported in the lower Rio Grande Valley. The extremes overnight ranged from 45 at Marfa to 72 at Brownsville, McAllen and Kingsville.

Some blowing dust was expected in the Panhandle and South Plains this afternoon.

NATION

Snow was scattered across the central and southern Appalachians today and rain dotted the nation from New England to northern California.

Snow-prompted travelers' advisories were posted in the mountains of western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and North Carolina.

Heavy rain prompted flood watches in southeastern New York and northern New Jersey.

Rain stretched from southern New England and New York into Virginia, the Ohio Valley and across the lower Great Lakes region.

In the West, southwestern Utah had snowshowers and rain was scattered across central Kansas, northwest Oklahoma and from southwestern Oregon into northern California.

Today's forecast called for rain from Pennsylvania and New Jersey across the Virginias into North Carolina; rain widely scattered over the central Plains and Colorado, changing to snow over the Rockies; and rain scattered along the northern Pacific Coast.

Dollar drops

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar, depressed by expectations of a drop in the American discount rate, fell against all major European currencies in early trading today and plunged against the Japanese yen. Gold prices eased.

Bullion dealers said they expected gold prices to decline further through the day, following a weaker dollar partly because of expectations of an easing in the crisis between Libya and the United States.

"The dollar is weaker than it has been for a long time," said one London dealer. "In addition, people think it looks like there'll be some sort of conciliatory action over Libya, and they'll be playing gold down."

Other dollar rates at mid-morning, compared with late Wednesday:

—2.2410 West German marks, down from 2.2550.

—1.8702 Swiss francs, down from 1.8877.

—7.1275 French francs, down from 7.1850.

—2.5400 Dutch guilders, down from 2.5465.

—1,539.50 Italian lire, down from 1,548.50.

—1.3895 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3875.

In London, the dollar also eased against the British pound, which was quoted at $1.5040, more expensive than $1.5022 late Wednesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $339.20 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $340. At mid-morning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $339.30.

In Zurich, the bid price was $338 compared with $338.50 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell $1.94 to close at a bid $339.37.

In New York on Wednesday, gold fell $1.75 to $339.25 bid.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.40 a troy ounce, up from late Wednesday's $5.35.

OPEC still seeking way to stabilize oil prices

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC oil ministers today failed to agree on a strategy for stabilizing oil prices during a third day of talks, the cartel's spokesman said. Nigeria's oil minister indicated the cartel was far from agreement.

However, cartel spokesman James Audu said progress had been made in a three-hour morning session and that ministers from the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would resume their deliberations Friday.

Audu said OPEC technical advisers would meet later today to come up with recommendations on a pricing and production policy.

Balkacem Nabi, Algeria's oil minister, told reporters some cartel members are not ready to cut production as a means of ending the oil price slump.

Asked to identify the central point of contention in the closed-door talks, he replied, "Price war or no price war."

He was referring to the assertion by several OPEC nations, including his own, that Saudi Arabia was striving to drive oil prices even lower in a bid to force non-OPEC oil producers to cut their production.

Without an accord this week, oil prices would be expected to continue at current levels, or possibly fall further, analysts say. Prices in the world market have slumped to the current levels ranging between $11 and $13 a barrel from about $31 last December.

Algeria, Iran and Libya have been pressing for large and immediate cuts in OPEC production, but they have been unable to persuade many of their partners to go along with this strategy.

Nigeria's oil minister, Rilwanu Kukman, told reporters the cartel was starting from scratch in trying to lay the foundations for an agreement on new production controls aimed at drying up the oil glut. He said the cartel's technical advisers were given no limits within which to recommend production levels for the member nations.

"They have a free hand," he said.

OPEC's first two days of deliberations were nearly paralyzed by uncertainty over the fate of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy following Tuesday's U.S. air strike at targets in his North African nation. But Khadafy's television appearance Wednesday night dispelled doubts about his survival.

OPEC suspended its conference Wednesday after a two-hour morning session.

OPEC gave no official reason for interrupting the conference, but the stalemate in Geneva helped push oil prices sharply lower. On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for May delivery of the main U.S. crude fell $1.27, to $11.43 a barrel, on Wednesday.

It appeared unlikely the OPEC ministers could bridge the gaps in opinion on how to counteract the drastic drop in oil prices this year.

With crude oil selling for $12 to $15 a barrel, prices are barely one-half the level at the start of the year.

The decline has raised hopes for faster economic growth and lower inflation in the industrialized nations but has worsened the financial problems of heavily indebted oil exporters such as Mexico and Venezuela.

Nabi, the oil minister of Algeria, told reporters on Wednesday he was not optimistic about the prospects for reaching agreement this week.

A nine-day OPEC strategy session last month collapsed, with most OPEC members saying they could not afford to reduce sales, even if it might boost prices.

Some industry analysts shared Nabi's outlook that an accord was unlikely.

"We could see this one breaking up again," said Stephen Turner, an oil analyst at the investment firm of Wood, Mackenzie and Co. in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Saudi Arabia contends any OPEC production cuts would be ineffective unless they were accompanied by cuts from independent producers such as Britain and Mexico.

Dow Jones soars to new high

By JOHN CRUDELE
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Wall Street recorded one of its biggest gains ever Wednesday, as investors concluded that the Libyan crisis did not threaten the American economy.

The mood turned buoyant when oil prices dropped sharply as OPEC countries, whose ministers are meeting in Geneva, appeared unable to limit production.

The oil weapon that Libya would like to use against the U.S. has little force because of the huge oversupply of petroleum. That glut has given a powerful boost to the stock market rally because it has slashed oil costs and dampened inflation.

"The feeling on Wall Street today was that if our bombing of Libya didn't take down the market, then nothing will," said Jon Groveman, head of equity trading at Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average, which has been moving higher since the bombing of Libya on Monday but in a tentative manner, broke out Wednesday, rising 38.32 points to at an all-time high of 1847.97.

It was the fifth biggest single day gain, and enabled the Dow Industrials to climb above its previous best closing level of 1821.72 set last March 27.

Traders, dismissing the Libyan tensions, concentrated instead on lower interest rates and oil prices, along with an odd combination of a weak economy and surprisingly strong corporate profits. Signs of a weak economy can be positive for Wall Street, which hopes for still lower lending rates.

Stock traders said that much of the buying power at the start of trading Wednesday came from overseas, where investors apparently view the United States' stance against Libya as a sign of stability.

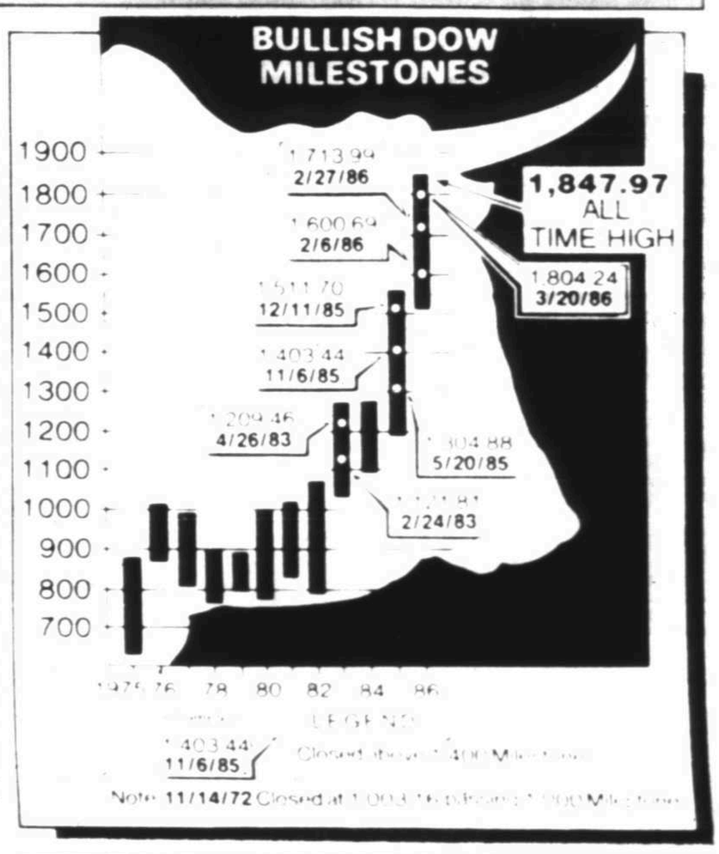
"There was a great deal of buying coming from Europe," said Larry Wachtel, market analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. But the key factor Wednesday, said Wachtel, was the market's return to basics like interest rates and oil prices. "You took a three-day pause because of Libya, and then you reverted back to fundamentals," he said.

Helping the Dow along was a strong performance by AT&T, which rose 2⅛ to 24½ on consolidated volume of more than 14 million shares, making it the session's busiest stock by far. The telecommunications company reported a 49.7 percent increase in first quarter profits to 47 cents a share. According to the Institutional Brokers Estimate System, some analysts were estimating AT&T's profits at as low as 28 cents a share. Nobody, the service said, was estimating higher than 40 cents a share.

But it was weakness in the economy that probably had the most impact on the financial markets. Before the start of trading Wednesday the government reported that housing starts fell 2.4 percent in March, and factories were operating at only 79.4 percent of capacity.

The government is scheduled to report the nation's gross national product for the first quarter Thursday, and market analysts say it could be more evidence of a weak economy that is in need of stimulation from the Federal Reserve Board. Fed action is expected to come in the form of a concerted effort with other nations to bring interest rates down further. Just Wednesday, France said that a cut in interest rates it made this week is the first step in an internationally-coordinated round of interest rate reductions.

Worries about rising inflation, which usually accompany a drop in interest rates, are reduced, economists say, because of a continued decline in the price of oil.



Expert says futures market can be used as hedge against fluctuations

By ALLEN HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

West Texas oil producers have the opportunity to use the crude oil futures market as a "true hedge against fluctuations in the marketplace." J.M. (Mike) Muckleroy, president of UPG Falco, the crude oil purchasing arm of Houston-based Enron Corp. (formerly HNG/InterNorth), explained his company's mercantile-related pricing structure to members of the Midland chapter of the Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientists.

Muckleroy says that prices related to the commodity trading price of crude oil on the New York Mercantile Exchange (NYMEX) offer an "insurance, not a get-rich-quick" position for producers in a volatile market. UPG Falco offers three contract options for producers interested in alternatives to posted prices.

On contracts covering a minimum of six months and at least 500 barrels of daily production, the company offers contract prices based on either:

- a 50-50 average of posted prices and NYMEX mercantile prices;
- a 100% mercantile price; or,
- contracted future sales at mercantile futures prices on the date of contract.

Over the past six months the resulting merc-related prices per barrel have ranged from 1¢/bbl less in September 1985 to $10.55/bbl more in February than the posted prices for West Texas Intermediate crude.

J.M. Muckleroy

Muckleroy says that the merc-related pricing structure was begun in response to the growing influence of commodity trading on dictating crude oil price performance in the shortterm. The company offers its technical support and experience with the futures market to crude oil sellers who "want to take advantage of the new opportunities provided by futures market."

When it was organized in March, 1982, the NYMEX and its minuscule trading volume were virtually overlooked; however, in the interim, daily trading volume has grown so much and so quickly that trades on the exchange now routinely account for a volume equal to half or more of all barrels physically transported in the free world, Muckleroy stated.

By "paying attention to sophisticated traders" and their opinions of future movements in oil prices–and keeping in mind that they have been wrong before–Muckleroy says an operator can better evaluate the true future economic value of a prospect and its potential reserves.

Muckleroy called the mercantile pricing scheme "an alternative economic tool for producers to better defend against erosion of market share."

While acknowledging that there is still room for the crude prices to go lower so long as a 2.5-3 billion barrel per day surplus of oil exists, he said Enron forecasts oil prices will firm up in the next 90-120 days, with a degree of price stability in the $20/bbl range by year-end.

AT&T reports increase in first quarter income

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Charles L. Brown

SAN FRANCISCO — American Telephone & Telegraph Wednesday reported a 50 percent increase in first-quarter net income — to $530 million from $354 million a year ago — but $100 million of the gain came from a change in accounting for pension expenses.

On a per share basis, net income climbed to 47 cents from 31 cents a year earlier. The accounting change contributed 9 cents a share to this year's first-quarter net income.

Excluding the accounting change, AT&T's net would have been up 21 percent.

The increase reflected tight cost controls, strong sales to the telephone industry and "strong growth in both our domestic and international long-distance business," Chairman Charles L. Brown said here at the 101st annual shareholders meeting. "These achievements were offset, however, by continued sluggishness in the market for computers, electronic components and office communications equipment."

Operating revenue for the quarter ended March 31 climbed 5 percent to $8.75 billion from $8.31 billion a year ago. But the gain in overall revenue masked a 5 percent drop in product sales and a 16 percent decline in rental revenue. Only revenue from the sale of services climbed, gaining 22 percent.

Wall Street reacted enthusiastically to the profit report. AT&T was the New York Stock Exchange's most actively traded stock Wednesday, closing at $24.37 1-2, up $2, as 14.3 million shares changed hands.

Nonetheless, Brown told a press conference that he "still isn't quite satisfied" with AT&T's 12 percent return on equity. The goal is to achieve a 20percent return, he said, but he conceded that he doesn't know when — or even if — that goal will be achieved.

Service Merchandise opens

By ALLEN HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

The largest 'catalog store' retail chain in the country opened its 290th outlet at Midland Plaza in northwest Midland this morning. Service Merchandise Co., Inc. (SMC), based in Nashville, unveiled its newest store as City Council member Oralia Corrales cut the ribbon to open the 50,000 sq. ft. facility to the shopping public.

Bob Angel, who moves from one of the company's three Denver stores to manage Midland operations, noted that virtually all of the 125 job openings created by the new store were filled with local personnel.

Once inside, customers are greeted with displays of a single sample of most pieces of merchandise offered for sale. 'Silent Sam', a user-friendly computer terminal, guides the shopper through placing an order, indicates if the desired item is in stock and totals the cost of purchases. Shoppers have the option of manually filling out their order form as well.

Other retail innovations offered by the company include 'phone ahead' and 24-hour merchandise hold for pick-up services. Brand name products are available in a variety of departments, including home electronics, giftware and jewelry, toys, sporting goods, luggage, cameras, small appliances and seasonal goods.

The new Midland store will be supplied by SMC's recently acquired distribution center in the Dallas suburb of Garland. During 1985 the company purchased the H.J. Wilson Co., Inc. and Ellman's Inc., compatible catalog retail outlets across the South and Southwest, adding 87 stores to the company's roster which covers 36 states.

In addition to the acquisitions, SMC opened 18 new store locations during the year. Also, the company operates 27 Mr. HOW retail do-it-yourself home improvement warehouses and 11 Computer Shoppe personal computer outlets, primarily in the Southeast, and two Zimm's fine jewelry stores and a Lingerie Store in the Nashville area.

The ribbon cutting launched a four-day grand opening celebration, which will include several prize drawings with a grand prize of a one-carat diamond solitaire ring to be given away next Saturday, April 26. Product demonstrations, complimentary popcorn and soft drinks, and entertainment by costumed Gummi Bear characters will accompany the grand opening festivities.

Amoco chooses Kellogg for EOR project

HOUSTON (SWN) Amoco Production Co. has awarded a lump sum, turnkey contract to The M.W. Kellogg Company for engineering, procurement and construction of Amoco's Wasson carbon dioxide enhanced oil recovery (EOR) facility in Yoakum County, Texas. The EOR facility will recover and permit reuse of carbon dioxide for miscible flooding, the use of inert gas to force hard-to-recover crude to the wellhead.

Engineering and procurement activities have begun at Kellogg's world headquarters in Houston. Field construction will begin during the third quarter of this year, with the tertiary recovery unit due onstream in 1987.

Donald C. Vaughn, president of M.W. Kellogg, hailed the Amoco project as one which "indicates Amoco's faith in the economy and its astute management of its oil reserves and financial resources." The move to enhanced oil recovery at this time also reflects "a farsightedness that marks successful, aggressive companies. With marginal and stripper wells being capped because of the downturn in prices, Amoco will be able to enhance domestic supply by recovering additional crude by use of this method," Vaughn said.

Pauley Petroleum announces financial results

LOS ANGELES (SWN) Pauley Petroleum Inc. reported net income of $1,475,000, or 51 cents per share, for the six months ended Feb. 28, 1986, compared with a loss of $1,603,000, or 55 cents, for the first half of the prior fiscal year.

In the second quarter of fiscal 1986, the company recorded a net loss of $1,608,000, or 56 cents, compared with a loss of $1,560,000, or 54 cents, for the like period last year.

William R. Pagen, chairman and president, said the primary factor contributing to the second quarter loss was a write-down of $1,125,000 to reflect the reduction in market value of the inventory of crude oil and refined products held by the company's refinery.

ENSERCH declares quarterly dividend

DALLAS (SWN) ENSERCH Corp.'s board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents per share of common stock payable June 2, 1986, to shareholders of record May 16, 1986. In addition, the board voted a quarterly distribution of one unit of Enserch Exploration Partners, Ltd., for every 100 shares of ENSERCH common stock owned as of May 16, 1986, payable July 2, 1986.

Oil skid causes Mid-America to boost reserves

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) Banks of Mid-America, Inc. announced that it would strengthen significantly its reserve for possible loan losses to 3.11 percent of total loans, due to the unprecedented decline in world oil prices during the first quarter. As a result, a net loss for the first quarter of 1986 of approximately $5.9 million was recorded. After preferred dividends and on a fully diluted basis, the net loss per common share was 93 cents.

This loss compares with net income of $4.2 million during the first quarter of 1985, or 28 cents per share (on a fully diluted basis), which included extraordinary income of $297,000.

Enron subsidiary requests system expansion

HOUSTON — Florida Gas Transmission Co. has filed a request with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission seeking approval to increase permanently the capacity of its system by 100 million cubic feet of natural gas per day.

The proposed expansion, expected to cost $28.4 million, would involve the installation of approximately 51 miles of pipe to close gaps in the existing parallel looped system from Louisiana to central Florida and the modification to piping at existing compressor stations.

Nation's oil firms not expected to reflect price fall this quarter

By DONALD WOUTAT
Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

The financial news due from the oil patch in the next few weeks when the industry reports its first-quarter results probably will be better than the recent collapse of prices would suggest, analysts say. Earnings at some companies could exceed year-ago results.

Because most oil prices fell more gradually than the price categories reported in news accounts during the January-March period, the brunt of the decline isn't expected to be felt until the current quarter — which some analysts now believe will be the bottom for the oil industry.

But the first-quarter financial results for individual firms will vary wildly, and there are prospects for large inventory write-downs and other unusual charges against earnings that have made many investment analysts loathe to predict company-by-company profits.

"Nobody wants to pin themselves down," said oil analyst Thomas Lewis of Duff & Phelps in Chicago. Added Thomas Petrie, Denver-based oil analyst for First Boston, "The first quarter's going to be very hard to sort out."

The earnings will be the first reported since prices of crude oil, which had eased down from $35 to $31 per barrel between 1981 and late 1985, began a free-fall in mid-January that appears to have stabilized for the moment at about $13 for a 42-gallon barrel.

The dramatic decline has forced large oil producers to slash exploration and trim other spending. It has also threatened the survival of many independent producers and oil-service companies and led to the shutdown of tens of thousands of suddenly unprofitable oil wells in the United States.

First City posts $232.4 million loss

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorporation posted a $232.4 million loss for the first quarter of 1986, but officials blamed the huge deficit on money set aside for possible future loans losses, the company announced Wednesday.

In response to continued uncertainty in the energy industry, $275 million was added in the first quarter to the reserve for possible loan losses, First City announced Wednesday.

First City Senior Chairman J.A. Elkins Jr. said the result was a loss for the first quarter of $232.4 million. Primary capital at the end of the quarter was "a strong $1.2 billion," he said.

"Our cautious approach to all the uncertainty puts our reserve ratio far above that of the banking industry in general," Elkins said.

The company last posted a deficit in the 1983 fourth quarter, when it reported a $13.9 million loss, said John Jamison, First City spokesman.

The provision exceeded net charge-offs of $58.1 million in the quarter. That figure is an increase from $40.4 million reported in the 1985 first quarter, but is down 47 percent from the $109.5 million posted in the 1985 fourth quarter.

"Crude oil spot prices have gone from $32 in November to $22 in January to $10 in March to $13 today," Elkins said in a statement released Wednesday. "This volatility does not allow our customers to be confident in planning future projects. Therefore, we do not foresee a significant pickup in activity in our markets and must view 1986 with caution."

The allowance for loan losses at quarter-end totaled $377.7 million, or 3.48 percent of total loans, versus $220.6 million a year earlier.

Non-performing assets at quarter-end amounted to $648.6 million, or 5.91 percent of total loans and other real estate and collateral acquired, compared to $514.3 million, or 4.37 percent at March 31, 1985.

Price of Mexican oil falls $3.20 in March

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos said the price of its oil to foreign clients tumbled $3.20 in March to an average of $11.25 a barrel.

Pemex said in a statement late Wednesday that the average price of its light Isthmus crude was $11.99 a barrel last month, and its heavy Mayan type was quoted at an average of $10.14 a barrel.

The company sold an average of 1.06 million barrels a day, well under its export target of 1.5 million barrels. But it said sales so far in April have rebounded somewhat, averaging 1.2 million barrels a day.

Mexico, the world's fourth largest oil producer, has been hard hit by the collapse in oil prices in the international market. It depends on crude sales to foreigners — U.S. companies are the leading purchasers — to bring in about 70 percent of its foreign earnings. The money is used to stay current on its foreign debt of $96.4 billion.

CATCHING-PROVIDING A TARGET

Your glove, once you have given the sign to the pitcher, becomes the pitcher's target. Be careful to keep it up with the pocket toward the pitcher so he can get a good shot at it. If your feet are spread to give you good balance and the knees are flexed, your glove, held up before your body, provides a good big target with a bull's eye.
You must bear in mind always that your number-one job as you receive a pitch is to keep it from going through. So if the ball is well off target, you do not just stick out the glove on one side or the other. You slide your whole body over to get it in front of the pitch.

Lee puts foot forward as girls 4-5A challenger

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Until the Tall City Relays Saturday, Odessa Permian and Abilene High looked to be the teams to beat this Saturday at Memorial Stadium in the girls portion of the District 4-5A track meet.

However, Midland Lee added its name to the championship hunt with a Tall City title, beating Permian and sending warning signals to the absent AHS girls.

Lee doesn't have a lot of depth and is woefully weak in the distance events, but the Rebels have a lot of quality while hoping to land as many as six or seven Region I berths.

Midland High's girls don't appear to have the firepower to land a team title, but the Lady Bulldogs are hoping to land as many as five Region I berths.

The 4-5A meet, which has divisions for both girls and boys, begins at noon Saturday with running preliminaries and field event finals at Memorial Stadium and the running finals will be held at 7:30 p.m. with a charge of $2 for adults and $1 for students. The 3200 running final will be held at the close of the running preliminaries Saturday afternoon.

The top two finishers in each event will live to run again in 1986, earning the prestigious Region I in two weeks at the Texas Tech oval in Lubbock.

Barring the unexpected, which is always expected in the 4-5A meet, here is a look of how Saturday should turn out.

Shot Put: Permian's Julie Blavier is the favorite with a season best of 38-0, but Midland High's Chandra Govan defeated her last week. Both should earn Region I advancement, however. The record isn't in jeopardy.

High Jump: No one figures to defeat Odessa High's Risa King, who has a season best 5-5, but the battle for second includes a list of Amy Cumings, Midland High; Terri Washington, San Angelo; Kristie Davis, Lee; and Roz Eaden, Lee. The record is 5-6.

Long Jump: Lee's Eaden the favorite with Abilene High's Gwen Jackson a close second. The darkhorse: Permian's Charlotte Collins. No record in sight here.

Triple Jump: Ditto, but with more competition from Lee's Davis, San Angelo's Diane Franklin, San Angelo's Monica Davis, MHS' Cumings and Lee's Melissa Hart. No record here either.

Discus: An Odessa sweep is expected with OHS' Connie Kruse and Permian's Blavier. Slight chance at record of 130-0.

3200: Abilene High's Kim Griffin is in a class of her own at 11:54.55, but still far off the record of 11:09.36. Midland High's Cumings is the next best, but she isn't entering this event, leaving a wide open field for second. The best of the rest may be Susan Garza of Big Spring and Lisa Arrozola of Abilene High.

400 Relay: Permian, Lee and Odessa High. Take your pick with a 48.47 record possible.

800: Permian's Sandy Houston returns to take a shot at her own record of 2:23.10 while Permian's Kelli Burrows threatens for a 1-2 sweep if San Angelo's Bonnie Campbell can be avoided.

100 Hurdles: Lee threatens with a 1-2 sweep in defending champ Tami Woodberry and Piette Mayfield. A run at the 14.59 record is possible.

100: Lee's Tangi Carter is defending champion, but has her hands full with Odessa High's Kassandra McDaniel. Both should advance, however, without a record.

800 Relay: Permian was the favorite until last week when Midland High (Faye Daughtery, Cumings, Sebrenia Finch and Ethel Edwards) posted a 1:44.4 to near the district record. Lee could challenge too.

400: MHS' Ethel Edwards has the best time, but will stay with two relays and the 200 while Permian's Elaine Gamble benefits. Permian's Burrows, San Angelo's Davis and Cooper's Pam Davis lurk in the wings for second.

200: MHS' Edwards should wipe out the 24.70 record on the way to her second straight road to state. In her dust is a race between Lee's Carrie Roach, Permian's Laurie White, OHS' McDaniel and AHS' Jackson.

1600: AHS' Griffin untested, but short of record while San Angelo's Campbell advances. Darkhorses: AHS' Beverly Pyle and San Angelo's Freda Lackey.

1600 Relay: Midland High (Daugherty, Cumings, Abby Green and Edwards) need just over a second improvement to break the record of 3:59.92. Permian looks like second while Lee has fingers crossed.

MC pointing past WJCAC tournament

From Staff Reports

Although the Western Junior College Athletic Conference tennis tournament won't begin until Friday in Roswell, N.M., the No. 1 ranked Midland College women's team is feeling no pressure.

That's because the Chaparrals, undefeated in WJCAC play at 4-0 and 22-1 on the season, have already clinched their team and individual berths in the Region V tournament in Odessa April 25-26. In fact, as the host team for the NJCAA national tournament May 18-24, the MC women earn automatic bids to the nationals.

The Chaparral men, while not far enough ahead to run and hide this weekend, are virtual shoo-ins to advance to the Region V tournament as a team by virtue of their 6-0 conference record. MC is 18-3 overall and ranked No. 3 in the country. Their only losses have come to Division I schools New Mexico State, which they later beat, Southwest Texas State and top ranked Flórida Junior College.

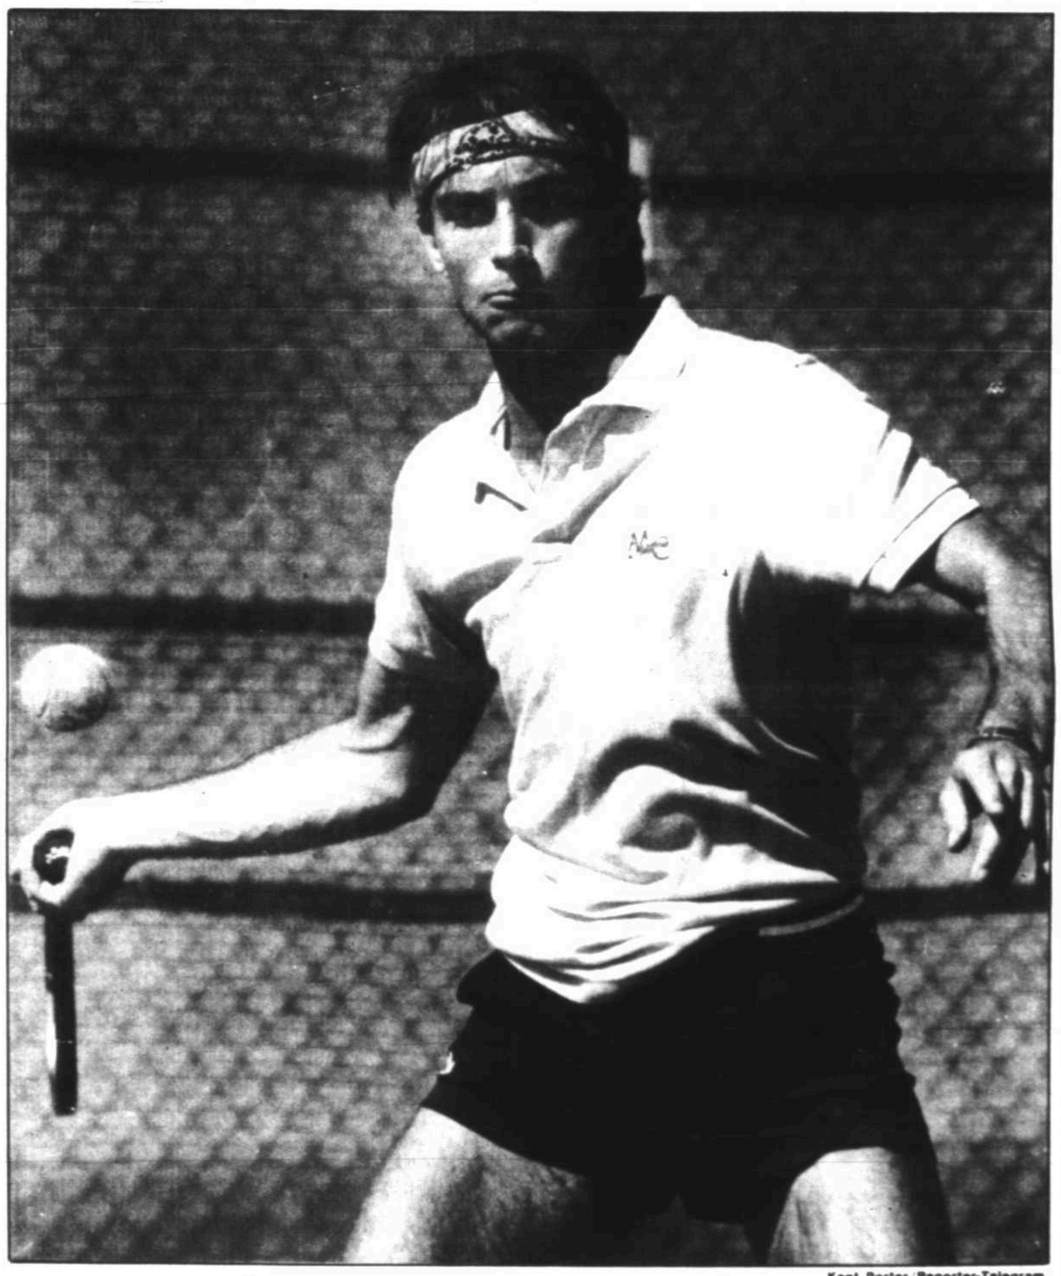
MC leads the men's standings with 40 points to South Plains College's 31.

But don't think either Midland College team will rest on its laurels this weekend, coach Joe Williams will see to that.

"Our guys can't afford a letdown, too much going for them. The girls could be prime for one, but our recent loss to Texas Tech made us realize we can be beaten if we don't pull together," Williams said "We haven't lost any conference matches as a team. I don't look for us to drop from either of those situations in conference meet.

For the MC women, Moniek Margaroli will play beller will move into the No. 1 singles spot, she is 3-0, 28-3 on the season; Helene Lebeller (3-0, 24-2) will play at No. 2; Sarah Swan (3-0, 21-6), Helen Schildknecht (3-0, 20-2), Charissa Pruim (4-0, 13-5) and Natasha Koprivica (4-0, 15-2) will play in the three through six singles spots.

The men have Jean Roussel (5-1, 18-10) at the top spot, Eric Lingg (6-0, 24-5) playing No. 2, Jos Warmoes (5-1, 20-1), Emil Bijleveld (4-1, 14-3), Herve Rousseau (3-0, 16-3) and Richard Turner (4-2, 13-8) filling out the lineup.



Kent Porter/Reporter-Telegram

Midland College's Jean Roussel leads the No. 3 ranked Chaparral men's team into WJCAC play this weekend. Both the men and the top-ranked women are favored to advance to the Region V tournament.

Angels blank Gators; grab share of lead

From Staff Reports

BEAUMONT—Midland's Doug Banning upped his string of shutout innings to 15 on the young season as the righthander scattered five hits as the Angels blanked Beaumont 8-0 Wednesday to even this five game Texas League series at two games apiece.

Banning, who combined with reliever Dwayne Buice on a shutout April 11, walked three and struck out three in going the distance while moving to 2-0 with the win.

Midland scored all it needed in the first inning as James Randall, Billie Merrifield picked up runs scoring hits, and Kevin King brought one run home with a fielder's choice and Glen Walker notched a sacrifice fly.

Merrifield, who has now hit in all nine Midland games this season — 32 straight going back to last season — plated another run with his second double in the third inning.

Midland's 5-4 season mark ties the Angels with El Paso, a 15-5 loser to San Antonio Wednesday, for first place in the Eastern Division. Midland and Beaumont will play the rubber game of the series tonight at 7 p.m. (KUFO-FM radio).

4-5A netters hit courts

From Staff Reports

District 4-5A tennis action will conclude in the Tall City this weekend with action beginning at 9 a.m. Friday on the Midland Lee Tennis Courts.

Both Lee and Midland High are hoping to place several players in regional competition with strong showings Friday and Saturday. MHS' top girls doubles combination of Laura Legg and Jill Bramlett may be the best bet for a local first place, but they are not alone.

Lee's boys doubles team of Jeff Probandt and Lance Wood will make a strong run for a Region I berth, as will Jimmy Walker in singles.

No team title is determined in spring play, but Odessa Permian, Abilene High, Abilene Cooper and San Angelo all have individuals and doubles teams that will present strong challenges for Lee and MHS.

"Things are a real toss-up this year, no one is heads-and-tails above the rest," Lee coach Bobby Connell said. "Though in girls singles, Catherine Wilson of Abilene High should win it if she's healthy. In boys singles, any one of four kids could win it if he's playing well."

Action will begin on Lee's courts with girls singles at 9 a.m. Friday with boys' singles play beginning at 10:15. Girls doubles will commence at 11:30 with the boys slated for a 12:45 start. Friday's second round of singles opens at 2 p.m., with 2nd and 3rd round doubles action scheduled for 3:15.

On Saturday at 8:30 a.m., boys and girls semifinal singles and doubles action kicks off with the finals set for 11 a.m.

This weekend's first and second place winners will go to Lubbock for Regionals at the end of April.

Spurs, Rockets itching to get Lakers

Associated Press

The NBA playoffs begin Thursday night amid the general view that the preliminaries will amount to a series of practice games preparing the Los Angeles Lakers and Boston Celtics for their anticipated meeting in the finals.

Don't try to sell that theory to the San Antonio Spurs.

The Spurs, just 35-47 in the regular season and the eighth and last seed in the West, visit the defending champion Lakers, 62-20 and an easy winner of the Pacific Division, in one of four games scheduled for Thursday night. San Antonio believes it can put an early end to Los Angeles' hopes of becoming the NBA's first repeat champion in 17 years.

"I think we've got a 50-50 chance to win," says forward Mike Mitchell.

"I think that San Antonio is the last team the Lakers wanted to meet in the opening round," says center Artis Gilmore, one of many Spurs who have been on and off the injured list this season. "We play them real well. It's going to be a straight-up ballgame."

"There's a definite history of spirited games between the two teams. Traditionally, they've been close battles," says point guard Wes Matthews, who is questionable for the game after missing practice with an illness.

"I think the pressure is going to be on them. They have everything to lose. We have nothing to lose. We'll just have to play with our limitations. The very fact that we know we always play them well will help us."

The Celtics, whose 1969 title marked the last time an NBA champion has repeated, also open the playoffs Thursday night. They take on the Chicago Bulls at Boston Garden, while Detroit plays at Atlanta and Sacramento is at Houston.

On Friday, Washington is at Philadelphia; Utah at Dallas, New Jersey at Milwaukee and Portland at Denver.

The Lakers may not be taking the Spurs lightly, but they seem more concerned at this stage about the Celtics, who romped through the regular season 67-15 and were 40-1 at home.

"The Celtics have already, in so many words, dethroned us," says Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "They're planning the coronation back in Boston Garden. So be it."

"All those other teams who say they can beat us will all have to come through us to get where they want to go," says the Lakers' Magic Johnson. "I love the position we're in. I've always loved being the underdog. We could win 70 games and it would be the same. They just don't respect the Lakers. It don't matter to me though, we'll do our thing out on the court."

Boston, however, seems a bit worried about Chicago. The Bulls were just 30-52, but made a late run when Michael Jordan returned from his foot injury to beat out Cleveland for the last playoff spot in the East.

"I don't think we'll take them lightly especially with the way Chicago has been playing lately," says forward Scott Wedman. "When they played us without Michael Jordan, they were very physical. There's no use looking too far down the road."

Another team that isn't overconfident is Houston, which is given the best chance to knock off the Lakers in the West. The Rockets still remember last season, when they were upset by Utah in the first round.

"This club knows more about being in the playoffs," Coach Bill Fitch says of this season. "If I have to worry about them being ready to play, I'm in trouble."

The Sacramento Kings won't try to stop Houston's Twin Towers, Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson, when the two teams meet according to Kings Coach Phil Johnson.

"We're not going to be able to stop Sampson and we're not going to stop Olajuwon, no one's been able to stop them all season," Johnson said. "You've got to hold those guys to their average."

"The other thing you have to do is not let their bench beat you," Johnson said. "You can't let some guy who doesn't normally have big games come in and have a big game."

The Kings, who won two of six games with the Rockets in the regular season, will go into the game as underdogs and Johnson accepts the role.

"You have to look at us as an underdog," Johnson said. "They won the best division in basketball and we finished fifth. I'm not into predictions, though. I'm looking for a good series."

The Rockets will try not to wear their favorite'a role too comfortably, recalling last year's first round when they were upset by the Utah Jazz.

"This club knows more about being in the playoffs," Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said. "If I have to worry about them being ready to play, I'm in trouble."

Olajuwon finished eighth in the league with a 23.5 scoring average and Sampson was fifth in rebounds with an 11.1 per game average.

Robert Reid, normally the Rockets' sixth man, likely will start at point guard instead of Allen Leavell, recovering from a cracked wrist bone.

"I'll be able to do the job they want me to do," Reid said. "The only difference is you won't see any Leavell or (John) Lucas driving the basket on one or four breaks. I won't be able to do that."

"Our points will come from me getting our offense into the flow and feeding it to the guys who'll make the points," Reid said.

Kings center LaSalle Thompson will have to contend with the Twin Towers.

"With Akeem, you've got to double team him and hope he misses some shots," Thompson said. "And if you don't box him off the boards, you're dead. That's what we have to do, the trouble is, we don't always do it."

1882 — In the first Sunday game in National League history, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 5-1.

1951 — In his first major league game, Mickey Mantle went 1-for-4 as the New York Yankees defeated Boston 5-0.

1953 — Mickey Mantle of the Yankees cleared the bleachers at Griffith Stadium with a 565-foot home run off Washington's Chuck Stobbs. The homer came in a 7-3 victory over the Senators.

1964 — The New York Mets lost their first game at Shea Stadium to Pittsburgh 4-3. The Pirates' Willie Stargell hit the first homer at Shea.

1969 — Bill Stoneman of Montreal pitched a 7-0 no-hitter against Philadelphia.

1976 — Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia hit four consecutive home runs and a single while driving in eight runs in an 18-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs in Wrigley Field.

Angels, Royals find two-hit success

Associated Press

"You can't pitch much better than that," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said.

He was talking about his own Bret Saberhagen, but he could easily have been referring to Ron Romanick of the California Angels.

Both Saberhagen and Romanick pitched two-hitters Wednesday night to lead their teams to victories — Kansas City beating Boston's Al Nipper 1-0 and Romanick stopping the Seattle Mariners 4-0.

Saberhagen, who last year became the youngest pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in the AL, faced just 29 batters, striking out six and walking just one.

The only Boston hits were singles by Tony Armas with two out in the second and Don Baylor leading off the fifth. Neither advanced beyond first.

"This was good, especially coming off a horrible spring," Saberhagen said. "I was concerned whether I could go a strong seven (innings)."

During the spring he struggled with a sore shoulder and a virus.

"Saberhagen is OK," Howser said. "Now I don't have to answer that question any more."

Nipper was almost as good as Saberhagen, allowing just five hits. But one was Steve Balboni's second homer of the season to lead off the second, the only run Saberhagen needed. Last season Balboni had only two hits at Fenway Park.

AL Roundup

Angels 4, Mariners 0

Romanick lost his perfect game by walking the very first batter, the first of five in the game. And, with two down in the sixth, Ivan Calderon's single broke up the no-hit bid.

But the California right-hander didn't mind.

"It's my best game ever, as far as keeping my stuff through nine innings goes," Romanick said. "I was a real pitcher out there.

"I could tell I had real good stuff warming up. I couldn't have asked for a better groove. All of my pitches were working."

Gorman Thomas got Seattle's second hit, a one-out single in the ninth.

Romanick is now 2-0 as he tries to erase the memory of the second half of 1985. After going 13-4 before the All-Star break, he won only one game after July.

"I wanted to take away some of the bitterness of those last two months. I think I'm doing that. It's a real good feeling," he said.

Wally Joyner's solo homer, his second of the season, supported Romanick's pitching and gave the Angels a 1-0 lead in the first. California added two more runs in the fourth and their final score in the seventh.

White Sox 10, Tigers 4

Ron Kittle had a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly, while Carlton Fisk also homered as Chicago overpowered Detroit at Comiskey Park.

"I don't care if I was 1-for-13," said Kittle. "I didn't consider myself in a slump. I hadn't swung at a bad pitch all season. I felt good at the plate, I was comfortable. Guys go through things like that; it just happens."

The triumph was only the second in eight games for the Sox as Floyd Bannister, Bill Dawley and Bob James combined for a four-hitter.

Detroit's Dave Collins was ejected from the game in the seventh inning when he charged the mound after a Bannister pitch sailed behind him. Two innings earlier, Detroit's Randy O'Neal had hit rookie John Cangelosi with a pitch.

Twins 7, A's 5

A two-run homer by Gary Gaetti in the 10th inning, his third of the season, powered Minnesota over Oakland at the Metrodome.

With two outs in the 10th, Mark Salas reached on an infield hit. Gaetti then hit a two-strike pitch from A's reliever Keith Atherton deep over the left-center field fence as the Twins snapped a four-game losing streak.

"The two-strike pitch was up high and he jumped on it," Minnesota Manager Ray Miller said. "He could have taken it and there would have been one ball. You've got to give Gaetti credit for going for it."

Ron Davis, 1-0, earned the victory with 1 2-3 innings of one-hit work.

Salas hit a solo homer in the eighth to knot the game 5-5. Bruce Bochte hit a two-run shot for the A's and Donnie Hill's two-run homer for Oakland in the sixth tied the score 4-4.

A&M not cleared in Murray case

FORT WORTH (AP) — An NCAA official said Wednesday that Texas A&M coach Jackie Sherrill could be mistaken in his assertion that the school will draw no penalty from a controversy concerning quarterback Kevin Murray.

Sherrill said recently that the affair is between Murray and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and that the university is not involved. He based his conclusion on the fact that the allegations against his star quarterback involve a "booster" over whom the school has no control, and that the matter was not related to recruiting.

"Well, he (Sherrill) may feel that way, but it isn't exactly true," NCAA legislative assistant Steve Horton, who is familiar with the case, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Horton cited an NCAA regulation that, in part, states:

"An institution's responsibility for the conduct of its athletic program shall include responsibility for the acts of individuals when a member of the institution's executive or athletics administration has knowledge or should have had knowledge that such individual ... is a member of an agency or organization promoting the institution's athletic program, has made financial contributions to the athletics department or an athletics booster organization, or ... has assisted in providing benefits to enrolled student-athletes."

"Stated more simply, it means you're responsible for the activities of your boosters — particularly if they are prominent," Horton told the newspaper. "The school can be found to be in violation of the rules if it is determined that it could or should have known what the individual was doing."

FOOTBALL

ORLANDO, Fla. — United States Football League club owners vowed to go through with their $1.32 billion antitrust suit against the National Football League and not to take part in any settlement discussions until the trial is concluded.

The eight owners, meeting at the Buena Vista Palace Hotel, made their decision not to settle out of court after hearing a report from league attorneys, Commissioner Harry Usher said.

The 3-year-old league, which is switching to a fall schedule after having played in the spring and summer, contends that the NFL by contracting with all three major TV networks had blocked it out of making a television deal.

NORMAN, Okla. — As many as five University of Oklahoma football recruits could be withheld from competing this fall as a result of Proposition 48, Sooner recruiting coordinator Scott Hill says.

Proposition 48 goes into effect in the fall and requires that freshman athletes meet minimum standards in grade point average for core curriculum courses. They also must meet minimum guidelines on either the American College Test or Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Hill said Wednesday that one recruit, running back Nelson Pearson of Lubbock, will been sent to Navarro County Junior College in Corsicana. The other four have satisfactory grades to enroll in school but have not done well enough in test scores to be eligible to play or practice, he said.

The four recruits in question are lineman Tracy Gordon of Pocola, Ok.; running back Fred Gunter of Willingboro, N.J.; wide receiver Jeffrey Jackson of Houston; and lineman Darrel Kirby of Orlando, Fla.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Running back Joe Cribbs of the Buffalo Bills says he has fired his agent for threatening "to go to war" with the National Football League team.

Cribbs said he fired Louis Burrell of Oakland, Calif., because of a USA Today story that quoted Burrell as saying, "We're ready to go to war. If Joe has to go to training camp with Buffalo, he's going to wear a T-shirt that says, 'This Is War.'"

The story also said Cribbs wanted to leave Buffalo, would not report to camp, and never wanted to rejoin the team in the first place. The former Auburn star left the Bills and played with Birmingham in the United States Football League.

Cribbs said Burrell gave USA Today the interview without his knowledge or consent.

BASEBALL

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The California Angels announced Wednesday that they have signed relief specialist Terry Forster to a one-year contract.

Forster, 34, threw approximately 20 minutes in the Anaheim Stadium bullpen with General Manager Mike Port, Manager Gene Mauch and pitching coach Marcel Lachemann watching.

Forster, a veteran of 15 major league seasons with the Chicago White Sox, Pittsburgh Pirates, Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta Braves, has a career earned run average of 3.22 and 122 saves with a record of 50-64.

HOCKEY

MOSCOW — Sweden used a fast-skating style to beat the United States 5-2 and Canada got on track in preparation for a game with the undefeated Soviet team at the World Hockey Championships.

In action Wednesday, Canada routed Poland 8-2, Finland tied winless Czechoslovakia 1-1 and the Soviets beat West Germany 4-1. All teams were idle today.

"Our destiny is still in our hands," insisted U.S. Coach Dave Paterson after the second U.S. defeat. "All we have to do is beat the Canadians and the Czechs and I think that would be enough to reach the playoffs."

NBA amends lottery plan

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA's draft lottery, in which the top seven teams draw for the first draft pick, will be modified starting next year so that the team with the league's worst record gets no worse than the fourth choice in the draft.

The NBA's board of governor's approved Wednesday a new system under which the lottery will apply only to the first three choices although all seven non-playoff teams will be involved. Once the first three are picked, the other four teams then will be awarded picks in inverse order of their won-lost records.

This year's lottery, to be held May 11, will involve seven teams.

Last season, the first in which the lottery was used, the New York Knicks got the first choice with the league's third worst record and took center Patrick Ewing.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Friday, April 18, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Complete assignments and look forward to a year of fulfillment. Organizing yourself will lead to greater efficiency and success. Be ambitious when it comes to career and money. Just do not put yourself out on a limb financially later in the year. Your impersonal ways, which occur now and then, may come back to haunt you, especially in the job market or in romantic relationships you may want to pursue in the near future.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: defense attorney Clarence Darrow, British actress Hayley Mills, "Perry Mason's" Barbara Hale, conductor Leopold Stokowski and A&P food heir Huntington Hartford.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Determination to have things done your own way could result in a misunderstanding. Compromise is the best approach. Avoid becoming too emotional; you could make some embarrassing mistakes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An influential person is very receptive to your creative and original ideas. If you felt uncertain in the past, you are now on a more productive course. A delicate matter requires a diplomatic approach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take the diligent approach to work and it will pay off soon. Your ability to face irritating situations without getting upset impresses superiors looking for management potential. You also perform well under fire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An unexpected visitor or change of events may complicate matters early in the day. Be prepared to roll with the punches. Welcome unique opportunities to combine business with pleasure during a weekend trip.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to focus your attention on accuracy. Today is a great time to plan and execute your fondest dreams. A special person would like to share those dreams.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be more decisive and things will begin to fall into place! Test exciting new ideas before you carry them too far. Do not let your practical nature be overruled. Romance is very fulfilling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make a realistic budget. Stick to it and finances will be less worrisome. Family members will follow your example when it comes to cutting personal expenses. Share the limelight with your loved ones tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do everything possible to get caught up on paperwork before going away this weekend. A special person in your life is sensitive to your needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make long-distance calls early in the day to avoid higher rates. A long-lasting and stable relationship will be put to the test today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An unexpected business trip could entail weekend travel; however, you will be paid overtime. The extra cash will enable you to finalize summer vacation plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today is an excellent day to discuss career plans with those in power. You can capitalize on recent events in a substantial way. Those who are single may find friends or family playing Cupid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you do or say today sets the stage for important career or family decisions. Others look to you for leadership. Your social life begins an upward swing.

THE PESSIMISTS PREVAIL

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ K 10 3 2 ♡ K 8 2 ◇ A K Q 7 3 ♣ 6
WEST ♠ Q 9 8 7 ♡ 6 ◇ 10 5 2 ♣ A K Q 4 2		EAST ♠ J 6 ♡ J 10 9 5 4 ◇ 9 4 ♣ 10 9 5 3
	SOUTH ♠ A 5 4 ♡ A Q 7 3 ◇ J 8 6 ♣ J 8 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Dble
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

When your contract appears easy, look for the worst possible scenario. Then take a look to see if you can develop countermeasures.

Once West made a black-suit takeout double, North decided there was no point in showing his spade suit; instead, he settled for a heart raise. South's spade bid was an attempt to steer the contract into three no trump if North held a club guard. When North now raised spades, South bid the heart game in case his partner held four-card heart support. We are impressed with East's decision not to double. He could not be sure four spades wasn't a better contract, and he felt no need to alert South to the fact that trumps were not breaking.

West led the king of clubs and shifted to a trump. Declarer won in dummy and, if trumps were no worse than 4-2, the play would be simple. Declarer can win with dummy's king, cross to hand with the jack of diamonds, ruff a club and draw two more rounds of trumps, leaving a master trump outstanding. Then he could run diamonds, and the most the defenders could get would be two club tricks and a trump.

The threat to the contract, however, lay in the possibility of a 5-1 trump break. Could that be handled?

Declarer found the way. He won the trump on the table, came to hand with the jack of diamonds and ruffed a club. The ace of spades provided the entry for another club ruff. Now declarer started to run diamonds. As the cards lay, the defenders were helpless. East did the best he could by ruffing the third diamond and exiting with a spade. Declarer won in dummy and led a good diamond, discarding his last spade. Whatever the defenders did, East's good trump was the only other trick they could collect.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Dr. Seuss to join home town celebration

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Theodor Seuss Geisel, known to millions as children's story writer Dr. Seuss, is returning to his native city after an absence of more than 25 years to help celebrate its 350th birthday.

An invitation from Mayor Richard E. Neal to Seuss, who lives in LaJolla, Calif., had been lost in the mail, said Maria DeAngelis of Springfield School Volunteers.

Connections were finally made a few weeks ago, and Seuss, 82, agreed to the May 20th visit.

The creator of "The Cat in the Hat" and "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" will take a tour down the avenue he made famous in "And To Think I Saw It On Mulberry Street."

MIAMI (AP) — "Miami Vice" star Edward James Olmos' television role came in handy when the actor and a friend heard a woman scream and chased a pair of would-be purse snatchers.

Olmos, who plays the dour Lt. Martin Castillo on the NBC-TV series, was on his way to a banquet Wednesday when he heard the scream and saw two men running, he said.

"I caught up with them," said Olmos. "They jumped down two stories into a parking lot area and one of them got hurt. They kept on running, but we confiscated the purse off the first guy."

Asked if he yelled anything at the suspects as he gave chase, Olmos said he called out, "Stop! Police!"

Goldberg

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Whoopi Goldberg dismisses criticism of "The Color Purple" and says she's so fond of director Steven Spielberg that "I'd marry him if I could. But he already did that."

"He has a wonderment about the world," said Miss Goldberg, who played Celie in the movie version of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about a black woman in the South.

"A lot of people complain, the movie doesn't have enough lesbianism, it doesn't have enough this or enough that. And it is very cute in places. But it's necessary, because in Idaho and in Nebraska, it makes it easier to ingest," she said, in an interview in the May 8 issue of Rolling Stone.

Miss Goldberg said criticism of the way black men are depicted in the movie is "a bogus issue." She said black men are shown as abusive or stupid on television and in movies, but no one complains.

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band are among 450 New Jersey musicians featured on a charity single for the hungry.

"We Got the Love," by the non-profit Jersey Artists for Mankind '86, is to be released May 16, Arista Records announced Wednesday.

Net proceeds from sales of the record will be distributed to charities that focus on solving the world's hunger problems, said JAM spokesman Lee Mrowicki, disc jockey and publicist at the Stone Pony, the Asbury Park rock club where Springsteen launched his career.

Others featured on the single are Clarence Clemons, Nils Lofgren, Max Weinberg and Gary Tallent, all of the E Street Band; South Side Johnny; and members of the Asbury Jukes.

The flip side, "Save Love, Save Life," features, among other artists, Frankie Valli on vocals and Tal Farlow on guitar.

MIAMI (AP) — Mel Fisher will be portrayed by Cliff Robertson in "Dreams of Gold," a made-for-TV movie on the treasure salvor's life, according to spokesmen for Fisher and Interplanetary Productions.

The sunken mother lode of the Nuestra Senora de Atocha was discovered by Fisher's son, Kane, and a diving crew 41 miles off Key West last July.

Fisher's wife, Delores, will be played by Loretta Swit, son Kim will be played by William Zabka and Kane by Brut Toms.

CBS is expected to broadcast the movie in September, Interplanetary said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Night Court" judge Harry Anderson is seeking donations to save the historic Variety Arts Center, which contains a library on vaudeville, hats belonging John Barrymore, and W.C. Fields' trick pool table.

"If the Variety Arts Center becomes the next galleria, we lose more than a few velvet curtains," Anderson told a news conference Wednesday. "This is such a gem, a jewel."

Anderson, star of the NBC-TV comedy series, said he will lead a troupe through a two-week series of performances of the "Hats Off" vaudeville revue starting April 23 to raise money needed to stall foreclosure proceedings.

Milt Larsen, founder of the center, told reporters he called the news conference to regretfully announce its imminent closing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music fans have nominated veteran quartet the Statlers as finalists in six categories for the 20th annual Music City News Country Awards.

Texan traditionalist George Strait was named a finalist in four categories, including two top awards — entertainer of the year and male vocalist of the year.

The Statlers, of Staunton, Va., are finalists for entertainer of the year, top vocal group, comedy act of the year, No. 1 video for "My Only Love" and album of the year for "Pardners in Rhyme." They have two records who are finalists for single of the year, "My Only Love" and "Too Much of My Heart."

Strait, of San Marcos, Texas, is a finalist for entertainer of the year, male artist of the year, television special of the year for "Strait from the Heart of Texas" and album of the year for "Does Fort Worth Ever Cross Your Mind?"

On Monday night, Strait was voted male vocalist of the year by the Los Angeles-based Academy of Country Music.

Finalists and winners are chosen by subscribers to The Music City News, a Nashville country music publication. It is the only country music awards contest of its kind.

Joining the Statlers and Strait as finalists for entertainer of the year are Alabama, the Oak Ridge Boys and Ricky Skaggs.

Other finalists for top male vocalist are Lee Greenwood, Gary Morris, Skaggs, Conway Twitty and Hank Williams. There are six finalists instead of the normal five in some categories because of a tie in voting.

Finalists for female vocalist of the year are Janie Fricke, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Charly McClain, Reba McEntire and Anne Murray.

Winners will be announced June 9 during a live national broadcast from the Grand Ole Opry House.

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Friday, April 18, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Complete assignments and look forward to a year of fulfillment. Organizing yourself will lead to greater efficiency and success. Be ambitious when it comes to career and money. Just do not put yourself out on a limb financially later in the year. Your impersonal ways, which occur now and then, may come back to haunt you, especially in the job market or in romantic relationships you may want to pursue in the near future.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: defense attorney Clarence Darrow, British actress Hayley Mills, "Perry Mason's" Barbara Hale, conductor Leopold Stokowski and A&P food heir Huntington Hartford.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Determination to have things done your own way could result in a misunderstanding. Compromise is the best approach. Avoid becoming too emotional; you could make some embarrassing mistakes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An influential person is very receptive to your creative and original ideas. If you felt uncertain in the past, you are now on a more productive course. A delicate matter requires a diplomatic approach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take the diligent approach to work and it will pay off soon. Your ability to face irritating situations without getting upset impresses superiors looking for management potential. You also perform well under fire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An unexpected visitor or change of events may complicate matters early in the day. Be prepared to roll with the punches. Welcome unique opportunities to combine business with pleasure during a weekend trip.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to focus your attention on accuracy. Today is a great time to plan and execute your fondest dreams. A special person would like to share those dreams.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be more decisive and things will begin to fall into place! Test exciting new ideas before you carry them too far. Do not let your practical nature be overruled. Romance is very fulfilling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make a realistic budget. Stick to it and finances will be less worrisome. Family members will follow your example when it comes to cutting personal expenses. Share the limelight with your loved ones tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do everything possible to get caught up on paperwork before going away this weekend. A special person in your life is sensitive to your needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make long-distance calls early in the day to avoid higher rates. A long-lasting and stable relationship will be put to the test today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An unexpected business trip could entail weekend travel; however, you will be paid overtime. The extra cash will enable you to finalize summer vacation plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today is an excellent day to discuss career plans with those in power. You can capitalize on recent events in a substantial way. Those who are single may find friends or family playing Cupid.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What you do or say today sets the stage for important career or family decisions. Others look to you for leadership. Your social life begins an upward swing.

THE PESSIMISTS PREVAIL

North-South vulnerable. North deals.

	NORTH ♠ K 10 3 2 ♡ K 8 2 ◇ A K Q 7 3 ♣ 6
WEST ♠ Q 9 8 7 ♡ 6 ◇ 10 5 2 ♣ A K Q 4 2		EAST ♠ J 6 ♡ J 10 9 5 4 ◇ 9 4 ♣ 10 9 5 3
	SOUTH ♠ A 5 4 ♡ A Q 7 3 ◇ J 8 6 ♣ J 8 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Dble
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠

When your contract appears easy, look for the worst possible scenario. Then take a look to see if you can develop countermeasures.

Once West made a black-suit takeout double, North decided there was no point in showing his spade suit; instead, he settled for a heart raise. South's spade bid was an attempt to steer the contract into three no trump if North held a club guard. When North now raised spades, South bid the heart game in case his partner held four-card heart support. We are impressed with East's decision not to double. He could not be sure four spades wasn't a better contract, and he felt no need to alert South to the fact that trumps were not breaking.

West led the king of clubs and shifted to a trump. Declarer won in dummy and, if trumps were no worse than 4-2, the play would be simple. Declarer can win with dummy's king, cross to hand with the jack of diamonds, ruff a club and draw two more rounds of trumps, leaving a master trump outstanding. Then he could run diamonds, and the most the defenders could get would be two club tricks and a trump.

The threat to the contract, however, lay in the possibility of a 5-1 trump break. Could that be handled?

Declarer found the way. He won the trump on the table, came to hand with the jack of diamonds and ruffed a club. The ace of spades provided the entry for another club ruff. Now declarer started to run diamonds. As the cards lay, the defenders were helpless. East did the best he could by ruffing the third diamond and exiting with a spade. Declarer won in dummy and led a good diamond, discarding his last spade. Whatever the defenders did, East's good trump was the only other trick they could collect.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

If you need a good helper, try advertising in our classifieds. Who knows? You may spark the beginning of something big!

Dr. Seuss to join home town celebration

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Theodor Seuss Geisel, known to millions as children's story writer Dr. Seuss, is returning to his native city after an absence of more than 25 years to help celebrate its 350th birthday.

An invitation from Mayor Richard E. Neal to Seuss, who lives in LaJolla, Calif., had been lost in the mail, said Maria DeAngelis of Springfield School Volunteers.

Connections were finally made a few weeks ago, and Seuss, 82, agreed to the May 20th visit.

The creator of "The Cat in the Hat" and "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" will take a tour down the avenue he made famous in "And To Think I Saw It On Mulberry Street."

MIAMI (AP) — "Miami Vice" star Edward James Olmos' television role came in handy when the actor and a friend heard a woman scream and chased a pair of would-be purse snatchers.

Olmos, who plays the dour Lt. Martin Castillo on the NBC-TV series, was on his way to a banquet Wednesday when he heard the scream and saw two men running, he said.

"I caught up with them," said Olmos. "They jumped down two stories into a parking lot area and one of them got hurt. They kept on running, but we confiscated the purse off the first guy."

Asked if he yelled anything at the suspects as he gave chase, Olmos said he called out, "Stop! Police!"

Goldberg

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Whoopi Goldberg dismisses criticism of "The Color Purple" and says she's so fond of director Steven Spielberg that "I'd marry him if I could. But he already did that."

"He has a wonderment about the world," said Miss Goldberg, who played Celie in the movie version of Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel about a black woman in the South.

"A lot of people complain, the movie doesn't have enough lesbianism, it doesn't have enough this or enough that. And it is very cute in places. But it's necessary, because in Idaho and in Nebraska, it makes it easier to ingest," she said, in an interview in the May 8 issue of Rolling Stone.

Miss Goldberg said criticism of the way black men are depicted in the movie is "a bogus issue." She said black men are shown as abusive or stupid on television and in movies, but no one complains.

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band are among 450 New Jersey musicians featured on a charity single for the hungry.

"We Got the Love," by the non-profit Jersey Artists for Mankind '86, is to be released May 16, Arista Records announced Wednesday.

Net proceeds from sales of the record will be distributed to charities that focus on solving the world's hunger problems, said JAM spokesman Lee Mrowicki, disc jockey and publicist at the Stone Pony, the Asbury Park rock club where Springsteen launched his career.

Others featured on the single are Clarence Clemons, Nils Lofgren, Max Weinberg and Gary Talent, all of the E Street Band; South Side Johnny; and members of the Asbury Jukes.

The flip side, "Save Love, Save Life," features, among other artists, Frankie Valli on vocals and Tal Farlow on guitar.

MIAMI (AP) — Mel Fisher will be portrayed by Cliff Robertson in "Dreams of Gold," a made-for-TV movie on the treasure salvor's life, according to spokesmen for Fisher and Interplanetary Productions.

The sunken mother lode of the Nuestra Senora de Atocha was discovered by Fisher's son, Kane, and a diving crew 41 miles off Key West last July.

Fisher's wife, Delores, will be played by Loretta Swit, son Kim will be played by William Zabka and Kane by Brut Toms.

CBS is expected to broadcast the movie in September, Interplanetary said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Night Court" judge Harry Anderson is seeking donations to save the historic Variety Arts Center, which contains a library on vaudeville, hats belonging John Barrymore, and W.C. Fields' trick pool table.

"If the Variety Arts Center becomes the next galleria, we lose more than a few velvet curtains," Anderson told a news conference Wednesday. "This is such a gem, a jewel."

Anderson, star of the NBC-TV comedy series, said he will lead a troupe through a two-week series of performances of the "Hats Off" vaudeville revue starting April 23 to raise money needed to stall foreclosure proceedings.

Milt Larsen, founder of the center, told reporters he called the news conference to regretfully announce its imminent closing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music fans have nominated veteran quartet the Statlers as finalists in six categories for the 20th annual Music City News Country Awards.

Texan traditionalist George Strait was named a finalist in four categories, including two top awards — entertainer of the year and male vocalist of the year.

The Statlers, of Staunton, Va., are finalists for entertainer of the year, top vocal group, comedy act of the year, No. 1 video for "My Only Love" and album of the year for "Pardners in Rhyme." They have two records who are finalists for single of the year, "My Only Love" and "Too Much of My Heart."

Strait, of San Marcos, Texas, is a finalist for entertainer of the year, male artist of the year, television special of the year for "Strait from the Heart of Texas" and album of the year for "Does Fort Worth Ever Cross Your Mind?"

On Monday night, Strait was voted male vocalist of the year by the Los Angeles-based Academy of Country Music.

Finalists and winners are chosen by subscribers to The Music City News, a Nashville country music publication. It is the only country music awards contest of its kind.

Joining the Statlers and Strait as finalists for entertainer of the year are Alabama, the Oak Ridge Boys and Ricky Skaggs.

Other finalists for top male vocalist are Lee Greenwood, Gary Morris, Skaggs, Conway Twitty and Hank Williams. There are six finalists instead of the normal five in some categories because of a tie in voting.

Finalists for female vocalist of the year are Janie Fricke, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Charly McClain, Reba McEntire and Anne Murray.

Winners will be announced June 9 during a live national broadcast from the Grand Ole Opry House.

Padres win third squeaker from reeling Dodgers

Associated Press

Tom Lasorda is rarely at a loss for words on the subject of baseball, but he readily admits he has no explanation for the Los Angeles Dodgers' record-setting run of futility.

"I've never seen anything like it," the Dodger manager said Wednesday night after his team played its 10th straight one-run game in a 2-1 loss to San Diego. "If somebody had told me something like this would happen, I'd have told them they're crazy."

Simply put, what has happened is that the Dodgers — favored by most to repeat as National League West champions — have lost seven of those games, including the last three in San Diego's final at-bat.

Padres Manager Steve Boros, whose team has won seven of 10 — and shares with the Dodgers the major-league record for consecutive one-run games at the start of a season, also is devoid of a meaningful answer.

"I'd like to be able to explain it, but I can't," Boros said after Graig Nettles' pinch-hit single off reliever Tom Niedenfuer produced the winning run with two out in the ninth inning. "This whole 10-day stretch has been simply remarkable."

Nettles, whose glove work at third base for the New York Yankees made him a Dodger World Series nemesis long before he joined the Padres, certainly came through with his biggest hit of the season. He went to the plate mired in a 1-for-16 slump.

"I know relief pitchers don't like to get beat with their second best pitch, so after it got to 3-2 I was looking fastball all the way," Nettles said.

The hit scored Kevin McReynolds from second base.

Dennis Powell, 0-2, making his first start of the year, allowed the Padres just four hits in 8 1-3 innings. Niedenfuer replaced Powell after the latter had walked McReynolds.

Steve Garvey grounded out to first, moving McReynolds to second, and Garry Templeton was intentionally walked to bring up Nettles. His hit made a winner of reliever Rich Gossage, 2-0, who worked the ninth in relief of starter Dave Dravecky.

The 10th consecutive one-run game for both teams is one shy of the National League record for consecutive one-run games in a season. While Lasorda wouldn't mind setting the record in a victory, he would rather have a laugher.

"We're just in a rut and we've got to get out of it, said Lasorda, whose team has scored just 27 runs in 10 games — eight of them well pitched. "We need the day off, I'll tell you that."

Reds 5, Braves 3

In his 17th major-league season, Dave Concepcion could be forgiven for relaxing every now and then. But the 37-year-old Cincinnati shortstop didn't stay on top because he'd made a habit of such things.

"I was getting lazy, losing my stroke," Concepcion said when explaining why he showed up 5½ hours early.

The extra batting practice "really worked," said Concepcion, who hit two homers and drove in three runs.

Concepcion started the seventh inning by lining loser Rick Mahler's first pitch over the center-field fence for his first homer of the year to tie the game at 3-3. He also hit a first-pitch homer to left off reliever Bruce Sutter in the eighth. It was the fourth two-homer game of his career, the last time coming June 5, 1981 against Montreal.

Pinch-hitter Tracy Jones had put the Reds ahead — and made a winner of John Denny — with a single later in the seventh.

Astros 4, Giants 1

Strikeouts may have become commonplace to Nolan Ryan. That's understandable after 4,101 of them. But a game-winning RBI from a lifetime .122 hitter is another matter.

"I didn't realize that was it," Ryan said jokingly in discussing a two-run, second-inning single. "A big RBI man like me ... that is pretty surprising."

Ryan, 2-1, struck out nine San Francisco batters in 7 2-3 innings. He allowed six hits and walked three before Dave Smith came on in relief to collect to his third save.

The game-winning RBI statistic has been used only since 1980, but Ryan said he couldn't recall ever having one in his 19-year major-league career.

"It was a mistake pitch on his part," said Ryan of loser Roger Mason, who offered no argument. Mason described the pitch as a "way too fat" fastball over the middle of the plate.

Thompson averaged 12.8 points this season and 9.6 rebounds.

"My offense has picked up, but I'm proudest of my defense and the improvement in my passing game," Thompson said. "My mental game is much better, too."

The Pistons-Hawks series features two all-stars — Detroit's Isiah Thomas and Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins, who won the NBA scoring title with a 30.3 average.

Wilkins surpassed his season average in games against Detroit, hitting 50 percent of his shots and 31.5 points a game.

Thomas, the all-star game most valuable player, has had problems against Atlanta, shooting 41 percent from the field. He hit 49 percent against the league.

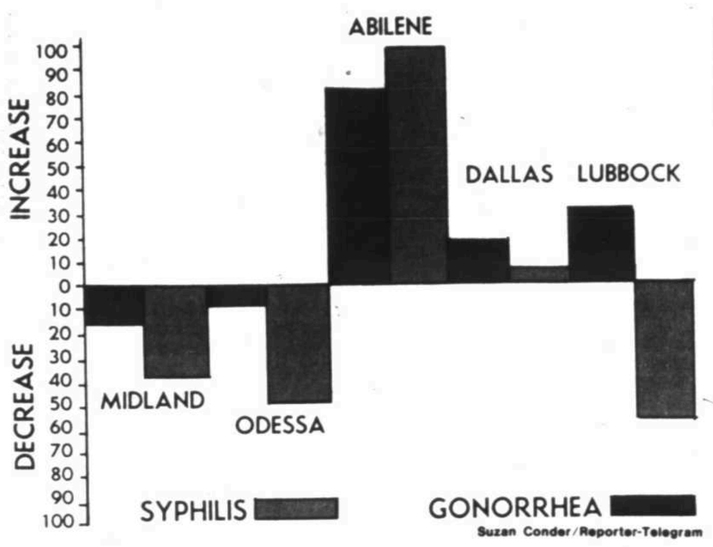
Midland County reports fewer VD cases



By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

While real estate agents notice an ever-increasing rise in the number of houses up for sale and employment statisticians count an increase in the number of jobless in the Permian Basin, at least one agency, the Midland City-County Health Department, reported a decrease — in the number of reported venereal disease cases.

"The decrease can be attributed to a number of factors, including sexual attitudes, local economy and a population decrease," said spokesman Jim Davis. "We're still showing a decrease. Let's face it, if you don't have a job, you can't go out a lot, therefore limiting your contacts."

Davis said while VD rates normally follow the seasons, with an increase generally in the spring and summer months and a decrease in the fall and winter, the previous year had other factors which contributed to an overall decrease in the number of cases of both gonorrhea and syphilis.

"We've seen a decrease statewide due to the AIDS scare and the turndown in the economy," he said. "Locally, we've had a population decrease. It's hard to know exactly, though, what the real reason is."

Davis responded to a report from the Texas Department of Health's Venereal Disease Control Division, which revealed that while the number of AIDS cases in Texas was steadily rising, the state's once "nation-leading VD rate" was on the decline.

"I can't help from believing that its (VD) decline relates to a very healthy respect for AIDS," said Joe Pair, director of the division. Pair was quoted in a recent UPI story.

The report showed that while Texas still had the highest total number of syphilis cases, (10,745 in 1985), it was a 4 percent decrease from 1984. The number one spot is now held by Florida. The most recent statistics showed Texas ranked only 15th in the nation in the gonorrhea rate, said the report, with Georgia occupying the top spot.

Locally, Midland and Odessa showed substantial decreases in both diseases with Midland reporting a 38 percent decline in the number of syphilis cases and a 15 percent drop in gonorrhea cases. Odessa had a 49 percent decline in syphilis and a 9 percent decrease in gonorrhea.

Other cities also reported a decline. Those figures for syphilis and gonorrhea, respectively, include Amarillo (4 percent, 6 percent); Lubbock (55 percent, 32 percent); Temple (35 percent, 10 percent); Bryan (43 percent for both); Longview (25 percent, 9 percent); Corpus Christi (24 percent, 18 percent); San Antonio (5 percent, 6 percent); Beaumont (17 percent, 5 percent); Houston (9 percent, 18 percent) and Galveston (6 percent, 16 percent).

Others, however, had a mixed change. Figures for syphilis and gonorrhea, respectively for the following cities are: Wichita Falls (16 percent decrease, 81 percent increase); Austin (22 percent decrease, 36 percent increase); Tyler (15 percent decrease, 26 percent increase) and Victoria (60 percent decrease, 14 percent increase).

Still other cities saw an increase in the two diseases, including El Paso (7 percent, 5 percent); Dallas (7 percent, 18 percent); Fort Worth (21 percent, 30 percent); McAllen (28 percent, 6 percent) and Lufkin (23 percent, 30 percent).

Abilene, however, revealed the most dramatic increase in both diseases, reporting a 100 percent increase in syphilis and an 83 percent increase in gonorrhea.

According to David Hoehns, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Health in the Abilene region, there are a number of factors contributing to the unusual increase.

"There are several reasons," he said. "We treated a lot of people from other areas and we changed the way we classify residency. Before, we attributed a VD case to where the person was from if they were not an Abilene resident. Now we count morbidity by where they will be in the next few weeks."

Midland high school pupils host beach party

From Staff Reports

Midland may not be blessed with sandy beaches and palm trees, but that's not stopping Midland high school students who on Saturday will host a beach party during the first Spring Fest at Lee Youth Center.

Sponsored in part by Midland-Lee Youth Centers Inc., Spring Fest is unique in that the group has never before hosted an activity of this magnitude, director Amy Simper said.

Midland-Lee Youth Centers, operated by the Midland Independent School District, re-opened in 1984 after a long hiatus. Since then, the facilities have scheduled a variety of activities in which high school students may participated.

Ms. Simper said the public is invited to attend all Spring Fest activities scheduled from 6 to 9 p.m. In addition to the beach party, other highlights include carnival booths, live student entertainment on the Show Mobile and gazebo fashion show.

From 9 p.m. to midnight, MISD students are urged to participate in a dance with music provided by The Drive. Admission is $3 and student identification is required.

Spring Fest co-sponsors include Water Wonderland, Midland Community Service, an affiliate of the City of Midland division of Parks and Recreation, FitzCo Sound Inc., and KWES-Radio.

Lawyers honor Trimble, McElwrath

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Two "very meaningful awards" were presented to Bobby Trimble, president of the annual Christmas in April program to upgrade houses of the poor and elderly, and to Midland lawyer Michael "Mike" McElwrath by the Midland County Young Lawyers Association.

Trimble, a 56-year-old independent oil scout, was presented the MCYLA's Liberty Bell Award for his "outstanding" community service.

"The (Christmas in April) program has got virtually world-wide attention," said Medferd Owen, MCYLA past president and candidate for chairman of the Texas Young Lawyers Association's board. "This program has grown like wildfire," he said. "It's all because of Bobby Trimble's work."

McElwrath, 34, was named the MCYLA's "Outstanding Young Lawyer" for 1986 for his excelling in both community service and in his profession.

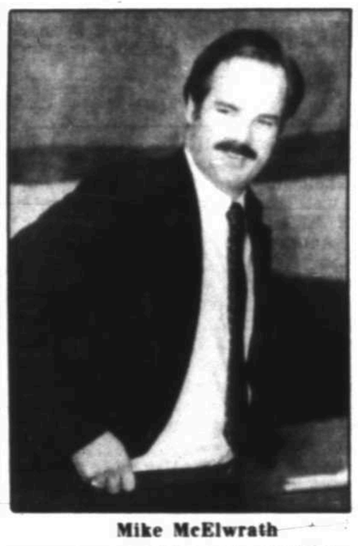
"He has distinguished himself as an outstanding lawyer," said Robert Rendall, who announced McElwrath's selection. Rendall noted that McElwrath has "excelled not only in community service but has upgraded his profession."

McElwrath is one of 35 nationwide finalists in the 1986-87 White House Fellowships competition. Between 12 and 18 of the finalists will be recommended for presidential appointments as White House Fellows and will serve one-year appointments as special assistants to the vice president, to members of the Cabinet or to the president's principal staff.

TRIMBLE and McElwrath were honored Wednesday in a MCYLA luncheon in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

Rendall noted that last week, the Federal Bureau of Investigation conducted "in-length" interviews of 20 to 30 people in probing into McElwrath's character and past. The FBI already has made a background check of the candidate.

Bobby Trimble



Mike McElwrath

"If the FBI makes its way back to Austin to check on me," quipped McElwrath, "I'm dead in the water." He is a 1977 graduate of The University of Texas law school.

"I do feel honored to receive this award," McElwrath said.

"He has been excellent," said Rendall, who chaired the committee which selected McElwrath.

McElwrath said the honor "is particularly gratifying because I firmly believe that our young lawyers practice with a degree of sophistication, honesty and ability" that is virtually without peer, he said. He noted that he "falls in the footsteps" of such lawyers as Mark Withrow, Jack Ladd and Brian Martin who have been "great assets to the community."

McElwrath noted that while the Outstanding Young Lawyer award recognizes professional contributions, it also "places a lot of emphasis on community service," which "really makes it more rewarding." McElwrath specializes in oil-and-gas litigation.

HE IS CHAIRMAN of the city of Midland's Planning and Zoning Commission, president of Leadership Midland Alumni Association, statewide vice president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association, chairman of the board of deacons of the First Presbyterian Church, a member of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and president of MCYLA. He also works as a volunteer in the Christmas in April program and worked in the Midland Centennial Celebration of 1985.

In accepting the Liberty Bell Award, Trimble noted that he hopes other people in communities across the nation "get excited" about the Christmas in April concept and implement the volunteer program in their communities.

"That's what this is all about — getting one (Christmas in April program) started in every city in the United States," Trimble said.

"I think this is something that everybody enjoys even though it calls for a lot of hard work," Trimble said.

McElwrath noted that Trimble "richly deserved" the Liberty Bell Award for his volunteer work in the community-wide Christmas in April program.

"It's a really rewarding program," McElwrath said. "It's a lot of hard work."

The MCYLA is nominating Trimble for the statewide Liberty Bell Award. Previous winners of the MCYLA's Liberty Bell Award here include Midland County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry, the late Court Bailiff Roy Merket and retired Justice of the Peace John Biggs.

TRIMBLE IS president of Christmas in April, which started out as a cleanup campaign in 1973 and which evolved in 1974 into a housing rehabilitation program. He also is president of Langtry Village, a federally-funded home for the elderly. The home is sponsored by Christmas in April.

In recounting the history of the Christmas in April program, Owen noted that the program began in 1973 as project of the Midland Park Center YMCA. Trimble became coordinator of the program in 1974 and was named president of CIA in 1976. Over the years, approximately 1,100 run-down Midland homes have been repaired. In the beginning, 17 homes were repaired at a cost of about $3,700. In 1986, about 200 homes will be repaired on the weekend of April 26 and 27 at a cost of about $100,000.

Country boy finds himself living, working in the big city

This city has been my abode for more than a decade.

I'm appalled.

It never occurred to me that I'd been living within the confines of an "asphalt jungle" for any length of time. I fooled myself. It's not in my nature to scrape and slide on asphalt, concrete and brick. I'm more at home ploughing the dirt, stomping in sand, chopping weeds and talking to trees than I am looking at tall buildings, smelling the stench of exhaust fumes and running into pot holes.

Ruts I'm used to. That's a byproduct of living in the country and traveling over dirt roads, which, in East Texas' blacklands, turn to sticky mud when wet.

Now, I was born in Big D but, of course, not by choice. Dad was going to seminary there and Mother was looking after the household and bearing me when I ventured into his life.

Before I was even toddling, we were out of Dallas and into the country. I was home at last — thank goodness, God, Providence and fate.

The country life was good.

The sheer freedom afforded by open space is refreshing. In the country, you'll find your kinship to our heavenly Earth and to the wonders of wildlife and life.

But I had no comparison. I knew nothing else but country and the excitement of going into town on occasional Saturdays to get groceries not provided by the garden and clothing and wares not mail-ordered from Sears, Roebuck & Co. and to go to the moving-picture show and to get a nickel ice cream cone.

We took Saturday night baths in a No. 3 tub, as I recall, and heated water on the kerosene stove.

At suppertime, beans, potatoes and cornbread were staples. We even thanked the Lord for our vittles. It seemed so natural.

Country life was so comfortable.

Then, as a child, I returned to Dallas just to visit.

It was a frightening but an amazing experience. It was thrilling. I recall the grandeur of the Flying Red Horse atop the towering Magnolia Building.

The city was just to visit.

Now, I'm living in one and sometime wonder why. But there's no need to wonder. I worked at getting here. I went to college to get an education so that I could work in the city, I suppose. Now, I'm working in the city with the intent of returning to the country.

White hammers home major themes

Gov. Mark White

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White returned to the campaign trail and again hammered home his major themes Wednesday, a day after his "energy summit" in Dallas with five other Democratic governors.

The governor pushed improvements in education, economic development and foreign trade — all staples of his campaign — in a speech Wednesday to the Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce.

White said Texas has the money for higher education but needs to encourage students early on to shoot for college. He proposed a "college bound" program to prepare students for college starting in eighth grade, saying his educational reforms will create "a whole new set of Spindletops."

The declining U.S. competitiveness stems partly from mediocre education, he said. "We better get smart, America, or we'll be cooking hamburgers or shining shoes and that's all."

White won points with the TAMACC by talking about the indigent health care package, which he called a long-range plan for the future.

Also:

— White said he wants to go to the White House Tuesday to discuss energy problems with administration officials, but did not know how many representatives President Reagan wants to attend.

White seemed confident, however, that Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh and he would make the trip. White, Nigh and four other governors agreed Tuesday to again urge the president to support a temporary, variable oil import fee.

Reagan has opposed an oil import fee, but White, without elaborating, said the president might change his mind.

— Texas' $424 windfall from the federal government, White said, should go toward establishing a dedicated university fund for research and development.

"I'm firmly committed that it's going to education," he said. The university research fund would lure business to the state and create jobs, he said.

— Asked what he thought of Monday's televised debate between the three Republican candidates for governor, White said "rather dull." The three GOP candidates — Bill Clements, Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance — reminded the governor of "three clowns in a one-ring circus," he quipped.

SBC vice president offers plan to restore harmony

AMARILLO (AP) — The vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention has offered a four-point plan that could restore harmony to the denomination.

The Rev. Winfred Moore also expressed interest in running for the presidency of the denomination at the annual convention this June in Atlanta, but he would not commit himself.

Differences between moderate and conservative elements among the denomination's 14 million members flared into conflict during the 1985 annual convention held in Dallas.

Accusations were made that the moderate voice had been stifled by improper parliamentary procedures, blocking substitutions for an administration-picked committee which names trustees to 20 national agencies and institutions.

At the convention, Moore was chosen as vice president after he was defeated by the fundamentalist-backed Rev. Charles Stanley of Atlanta for the presidency.

Moore, reached at his Amarillo home by telephone Wednesday, said he wrote the plan to answer questions from other Baptists on what he would do to solve conflict if president. The proposal details the distribution of power, appointment process and parliamentary procedures.

He said his plan would increase the distribution of power and include smaller churches by allowing no more than two individuals from the same church to be asked to serve on boards and agencies.

The plan would also ask for nominations from each state convention president, Woman's Missionary Union president, state executive director and chairman of the state convention executive board.

Presently, nominations are on an at-large basis, Moore said. "I think these are the people elected in their respective states who have more knowledge of the people of the state."

Moore, pastor of First Baptist Church in Amarillo, said people asked to serve on boards and agencies should be from churches with a history of supporting the Southern Baptist Cooperatiye Program, the denomination's plan for financial support of its organizations.

He also called for a professional parliamentarian at the national conventions to maintain proper procedures and said proper identification should be used when ballots are received by delegates.

In the Dallas convention, one of the dividing issues was whether the Bible is inerrant, or without error.

"There is diversity among us all right and always has been diversity in Southern Baptist ranks. When you find 14 million people you're going to have diversity;" he said.

"Some of the diversity is theological. There are differences in interpretation. Then of course we've had political activity. We don't really like it but we have it just the same."

He described himself as a moderate conservative, as compared to the fundamentalist conservatives. His backing in the Dallas convention came from the moderate elements.

Moderates and conservatives have been at odds over the leadership of Stanley, who is not eligible for re-election.

The Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., who is considered to represent the conservative wing of the convention, announced his candidacy last week.

"What is most amazing about Bobby Trimble's CIA is that it is totally self-sufficient," Owen said. "CIA neither solicits nor accepts federal funds." The program is financed via donations.

The Christmas in April program has been established in such Texas cities as Pecos, Wichita Falls, Beaumont and Port Arthur and in Washington, D.C., "due to the program's popularity and Bobby's continuous evangelistic crusade for CIA, Owen noted. Inquiries about the program have been received "from as far away as Jerusalem," Owen said.

For his efforts, Trimble has received numerous awards, which include the Governor's Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service, the Exchange Club's Annual Golden Deed Award, the U.S. President's Volunteer Action Award and the Freedom Foundation Award.

"However," said Owen, "the true measure of his efforts are the homes that are repaired and the lives that are touched."

Other factors included a general population increase, a rise in the number of people who can no longer afford to go to a private physician who are using the public health facilities and new computerization of the facility resulting in a "tightening up of the system."

Hoehns also attributed the increase to a high sexual activity among bisexuals at the local colleges and a general fear among bisexuals to continue having sex with other males. Hoehns said those persons are tending to have sex with women now, even though they may carry the AIDS virus, thus helping to spread not only AIDS, but other sexually-transmitted diseases.

Man held for heroin possession released

From Staff Reports

One of three men arrested Monday night for possession of heroin was released Wednesday on a $50,000 bond, police reported this morning.

Miguel Aguirre, of Garden Lane, whose age is unknown, was released, while Manuel Galindo, 28, and 25-year-old Merced Galindo, both of 1625 English Drive, remain in police custody, officers said.

The men were charged with possession of heroin with the intent to deliver after police discovered 40 grams of high grade heroin in their vehicle. Police said they stopped the group's vehicle after narcotics officers received a tip.

Also, about $2,025 in currency was stolen Tuesday from Sears Roebuck and Co., Midland police reported.

Police Roundup

John Marshall, 2703 Wydewood, told police officers the money was taken sometime between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday from the store at 4511 N. Midkiff.

Another business, the Silverado Apartments, 2613 N. Midland Drive, reported about $550 in currency and checks stolen sometime between 5:45 p.m. and 5:55 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Micki Gentry, 2613 N. Midland Drive, told officers $430 in cash, one $250 money order, one personal check for $95 and one $5 money bag were taken.

In other law enforcement reports, about $800 in stereo equipment was stolen from a Midland home sometime between 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. Dorothy Gerow, 723 Sinclair, told officers one $200 receiver, one $200 amplifier/equalizer, two speakers worth $100 each and one $200 turntable were taken from her home.

About $400 in bicycles and lawn equipment were stolen from a Midland home sometime between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 3:30 a.m. Wednesday. Georganna O'Connor, 400 E. Broadway, told officers one light blue men's bicycle worth $100, one brown men's bicycle worth $100, one $150 lawn mower and one $50 lawn edger were taken from her home.

Huey L. Jones, 400 E. Wadley, reported the theft of a 19-inch color television. Jones told officers the TV was taken around 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Eight storms hit U.S. last year, official says

HOUSTON (AP) — Eight major tropical storms and hurricanes battered U.S. coastal areas in 1985, costing almost $4 billion in damages, but the director of the National Hurricane Center doubts that this year will be as hectic.

"It was one of the most active hurricanes seasons we've had," said Neil Frank, adding that before 1985 there had not been eight main storms cross U.S. coasts since 1916.

"It was the costliest hurricane season in the history of the nation," said Frank, who cited the damage estimate Wednesday at the Eighth Annual National Hurricane Conference.

Frank said he cannot predict the future, but he added that it would be "extremely unusual" for such a busy season to hit again in 1986.

At the hurricane center in Coral Gables, Fla., forecasters track tropical storms and relay information to coastal areas where officials decide what emergency procedures to implement during a storm season that generally runs from June through October.

But forecasters need more advanced technology to better predict potentially deadly paths of tropical storms and protect coastal residents, Frank said.

Frank said that until such technology is developed, there should be backup emergency evacuation plans when unexpected weather conditions occur.

"The biggest nightmare is a weak storm that explosively strengthens," Frank said.

The hurricane forecaster theorized nature may have been testing emergency systems by pushing the storms, none of which were extemely strong, onto coastal areas.

Odessa man indicted for assaulting police officer

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The Ector County grand jury Wednesday indicted a 31-year-old man on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer and possession of cocaine in connection with an April 9 raid on a southside Odessa residence.

District Judge Bill McCoy set bonds totalling $10,000 on the two charges for Catarino Nunez Patino, 1122 W. Clifford. Patino also faces a misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana, with bond set at $750. He remained in the Odessa city jail today in lieu of bonds.

McCoy continued a $5,000 bond set earlier for his 32-year-old wife, Barbara Campos Patino, on a possession of cocaine charge. Mrs. Patino was released after posting bond.

The charges grew out of an April 9 early morning raid at the Patino residence by search-warrant-armed Odessa narcotics officers and Ector County Sheriff's deputy Jim Dickson.

Patino was shot in the right hand when he allegedly pointed a 9mm semi-automatic pistol at Dickson as the officers forced the front foor of the Patino residence open about 12:23 a.m., police reports said. The reports indicated a number of shots were fired as officers entered the Patino home.

Officers seized a quantity of a substances believed to be cocaine and marijuana and arrested Patino and his wife.

Patino was hospitalized for several days at Medical Center Hospital for treatment of the gunshot wound to his right thumb.

Odessa police investigate man's fatal shooting

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Police late this morning continued to investigate the fatal shooting of a 37-year-old man whose body was found in front of a southside residence late Wednesday night.

According to police spokesman John McAhon, Manuel Abila Brito, 216 S. Pine, died as a result of multiple gunshot wounds.

Brito's body was found on the sidewalk in the 1300-block of West Clifford by police officers responding to a report of multiple shots fired in the area. Ambulance personnel arriving on the scene were unable to find any vital signs and Brito was pronounced dead by Peace Justice R.G. Hungerford who ordered an autopsy.

McAhon said there are no suspects in the shooting of Brito. Witnesses heard the multiple gunshots and saw a white vehicle, believed to be a Chevrolet, leaving the area, he said.

Mexican, U.S. officials warn women to stay clear of Rio Grande at night

EL PASO (AP) — After the discovery of six bodies of young women in or near the Rio Grande in the last month, authorities are warning women to stay clear of the river at night.

Detective Sgt. Jimmy Apodaca of the police department in Juarez — El Paso's sister city across the Mexican border — said a body discovered on Wednesday had been in the river for some time.

"We don't know who she is at this time," he said.

Apodaca said the condition of the body found Wednesday made it difficult to tell the age of the woman, the cause of death, or whether she had been sexually assaulted. She was wearing slacks and a blouse.

Francisco Flores, head of an investigative group of the Mexican state judicial police, said Juarez law enforcement officers have begun combing the river with 30 men from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily in an "Operation Rio Bravo."

"We're warning girls not to hang out at the river at night," he said.

Four of the women found were raped and strangled. In another case, police say a woman drowned in the river, and foul play is not suspected.

Three of the women who were apparently slain were found on the Mexican side of the border, and those cases are being handled by Juarez police.

Juarez police still have not identified the bodies of two young women, estimated to be about 14 and 18, found Saturday in the Rio Grande.

According to Juarez police reports, the women were found near the Bridge of the Americas and had been raped and strangled.

A month ago, a young woman who also had been raped and strangled was found floating in the river near Juarez. She has not been identified, Juarez officials said.

In El Paso, sheriff's investigators are looking into a similar case in which a woman who had been raped and strangled was found March 25 in the Franklin Canal near Socorro Road. The canal is fed by the Rio Grande.

El Paso County sheriff's Capt. Paco Aguirre said the woman has not yet been identified.

The woman was described as being in her early 20s, about 100 pounds, 5 feet 5 inches with long, black hair. She had on only a black brassiere when the body was recovered. The three Juarez victims were also found wearing only bras.

Aguirre said, "There's a good possibility that at least three (of the deaths) are related. Whether one person is involved is hard to tell," Aguirre said.

He said the deaths of the two women found Saturday near Juarez and the woman found March 25 in Franklin Canal may be related.

Flores said, "We think the (three) cases are related to one perpetrator, but there's still doubt about that."

In the case of the two women found Saturday, there were probably two or more killers because one victim had been raped repeatedly, he said.

Publisher stresses importance of U.S., Mexico ties

AUSTIN (AP) — Newspaper publisher Alejandro Junco de la Vega says that, with the exception of a nuclear holocaust, he sees nothing more important to the United States than its relations with Mexico.

"How unfortunate that despite good intentions the net result of U.S. policy (in Mexico) is the strengthening of force and the weakening of friends," Junco de la Vega, president and publisher of El Norte and El Sol newspapers in Monterrey, Mexico, told a University of Texas audience Wednesday.

Junco de la Vega was the first lecturer in the Edward H. Harte Lectureship on Latin America and the Media, established in 1985. Harte is publisher of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Junco de la Vega stressed that U.S. money had been made available in the past, and probably would be available in the future, to help Mexico. However, he said the net result was the political regime in power in Mexico had used it to increase their monopolistic hold on the country.

"The U.S. is helping create monopolistic conditions in our country and it will lead to totalitarianism," he said.

He said "the most convincing evidence it is not working and as a system we are headed toward a totalitarian society is to observe the differences along our large common border."

He said Mexican officials have a long list of excuses why there are differences at the border. "They say we are not yet ready for a voting democracy," he said. "Yet across the river Mexican-Americans organize and vote effectively and in some cases even provide political leadership."

"In my estimation," he said, "part of the problem is the arrangement where bureaucrats on one side of the border talk to bureaucrats on the other side of the border about the problems of their respective bureaucracies but not about the problems of you and I."

White: Cities should keep out of immigration policy

AUSTIN (AP) — While Austin officials consider a proposal to declare the city a sanctuary for Central American refugees, Gov. Mark White says Texas cities should keep out of immigration policy.

The Austin City Council scheduled a second hearing today on the proposed sanctuary resolution. If approved, Austin would become the first city in Texas to take such action.

But White said the decision isn't up to cities since immigration policy is a matter for the federal government.

"For cities or states to interject themselves in this area is counterproductive," White said in an interview.

"For us to set up a 'mini-immigration service' in every city, I think, is not appropriate," the governor added.

The City Council last week heard four hours of public testimony on the resolution that is backed by Mayor Fink Cooksey. The council postponed a decision on the plan, but a majority of council members have indicated they support it.

Some 18 cities nationwide have declared themselves sanctuaries for political refugees. Cooksey's proposal says that Austin police wouldn't help federal officials pursue immigration law violators.

A U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service official said the resolution calls for law-breaking.

"They are illegal aliens. Transporting illegal aliens is a federal crime," said Richard Casillas, INS district director.

Appeals court overturns capital murder conviction

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the capital murder conviction of a Texas Death Row inmate who sued the state for not carrying out his death sentence.

The court, in a 6-3 vote, said Wednesday the conviction of Larry Keith Robison should be reversed because State District Judge Charles Dickens of Fort Worth erred in agreeing with a prosecution objection to a question a defense lawyer asked a prospective juror.

The question dealt with whether the prospective juror had doubts about insanity as a defense to criminal charges.

"I've been expecting something like that," Robison said during a prison interview Wednesday after learning of the court's decison. "Something of an inner voice told me I was going to be around awhile."

Nevertheless, he said he has been trying since March 1985 to have any appeals halted.

"They should carry out the sentence," he said. "I filed motions. I filed a lawsuit because they wouldn't let me drop my appeals. I thought it was unconstitutional that I had to remain down here when I was given the death penalty. Yet I was serving time in addition to the death penalty."

Robison, 28, was convicted of robbing and slaying Bruce Gardner, 33, at a Lake Worth cottage on Aug. 10, 1982. Three other people were slain in the house and a fourth, Ricky Lee Bryant — Robison's roomate — was found dead in a house next door.

"Am I guilty? I did the crime," Robison said. "Whether I'm guilty of capital murder, that's for a jury to decide.

"I've got mixed feeling about it," he said about the appeals court ruling. "If I go back for a new trial, a conviction is likely unless they misplace some evidence."

Double-chocolate cake mix expensive — and worth it

By LINDA ANDERSON

If it's true that "nothing says loving like something from the oven," then a fresh, warm, sweet cake must speak of complete and utter devotion.

Cake is the crowning glory of a major meal — the kind you spend hours over a hot stove (OK, oven) to prepare — and what is a birthday without a cake? Coffee goes better with cake and so does just about everything else. (Do you get the impression that I have a terminal sweet tooth?)

A cake made from scratch is so much better than most boxed-cake mix cakes, but sometimes the baker doesn't have the time or talent to create his own masterpiece and must rely on mixes.

For these cooks, Betty Crocker has introduced a Cake Lover's Collection of boxed mixes designed to be miles better than other boxed mixes. Available in only four flavors (double chocolate, carrot, chocolate almond and Dutch apple), the cake mix is supposed to contain three times more natural ingredients, whatever that means. At least, that is what company publicity claims.

Well, anything that is supposed to be "double chocolate" is hard to resist at our house, so the usual taste-testers sampled the cake-mix cake for taste, price and advertising accuracy. And to top it off, we covered ours with fudge icing, making it a triple chocolate cake. Who says you can get too much of a good thing?

The Cake Lover's Collection, priced at $2.09 for a 23-ounce two-layer box, is quite a bit more expensive than most other cake mixes. Other brands cost about $1.09 for a two-layer box and can often be found on sale for 99 cents or even 89 cents. Store brand mixes are usually cheaper than that, but unfortunately don't often taste as good. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Cake Lover's cakes seem to be more costly in other ways, too — a single serving (1/12 of the cake) contains 340 calories when prepared according to label directions (the mix itself, without the necessary added ingredients, has 240 calories). The same serving of prepared cake has 43 g of carbohydrate, 17 g fat and 280 mg sodium. It does contain 10 percent of the iron suggested in the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance, so it has some nutritional value, however slight. (We chocolate cake lovers are resourceful when it comes to justifying our sweet teeth).

Label advertising asks the question: "Why do we call these cakes Cake Lover's Collection? Because each one of these rich, delicious cakes is filled with the kind of pure, fresh-tasting ingredients that make a cake lover's mouth water. Double Chocolate is filled with the real chocolate chunks that bake into melted pools in a rich chocolate cake. It's a chocolate lover's dream come true."

The mix really does have pieces of chocolate throughout it — not chips or shavings, just little pieces of chocolate — and they do melt into pools of chocolate inside the cake.

For all it's chocolate glory, however, the cake met with some mixed reviews. The small children tasted it, mushed it up and ran off to play. Some of the teens said it was OK, but one adult and one teen thought it was almost too squishy (fudge icing does that).

The other adult tasters — most of the sweets-loving newsroom staff — must have liked it because they came back for seconds and thirds and even fourths. (Well, they were small pieces!)

Will we buy the mix again? You bet! I thought it was wonderful and since I do all the grocery shopping ...

Summer seminars teach economics

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The understanding of how this country's economic system works has not kept pace with its economic growth, says an expert in the field.

"Most Americans feel uncomfortable discussing economics because they believe they know less about it than they should," says Dr. Gerald Swanson, president of the Richmond-based Academy for Economic Education.

Swanson, who is also an associate professor of economics at the University of Arizona, says that this feeling of "economic illiteracy" stems from the fact that most adults were not exposed to the practical aspects of economics until they were in high school and college.

"But," he adds, "even very young children sometimes have to make economic choices and would be better equipped to do so if they had some previous experience in economic choice making."

To provide more competence in the area of economics, the academy offers three- to four-week summer economic seminars for elementary, secondary and high school teachers, who then pass on their knowledge to their students — starting right in kindergarten.

"In the academy's program, leading economics teachers from major universities make what is often considered a tedious subject come alive," Swanson says."Basic economics becomes a study of human beings and how, in terms of their own individual choices, they make their lives better or worse.

"By teaching basic economics in terms that are both relevant and simple, students gain a better understanding of how the American economy works and an appreciation for the American free enterprise system. After all, to benefit from a system you have to understand how it works."

The academy, through sponsorship of major universities and colleges, offers graduate credit courses for teachers in economic education, Swanson says, with 50 workshops having been sponsored since the start in 1979 through 1985.

Among the schools that have hosted summer workshops are William and Mary, University of Cincinnati, Illinois State University and Baldwin-Wallace College.

More than 1,500 teachers have completed the course and more than 300,000 young people have gained economic knowledge through these teachers, Swanson says.

Every teacher participating in the workshops is required to develop his or her own curriculum and then implement it in the classroom.

The teachers taking the courses pay only minimum tuition, Swanson says. Funding is provided by the academy, a number of corporations, foundations and business people and Figgie International Inc., whose chairman, Harry E. Figgie Jr., provided the initial creative and financial stimulus for the program.

Skills money-saving

By MARIAN FARR

Marian Farr

Rising unemployment rates mean more Texas families are facing a financial crisis. This can be a frustrating and stressful situation, but improved money management skills can help families survive these tough times.

Families must give high priority to paying fixed expenses such as rent or mortgage payments, insurance premiums, car payments and installment debt from the income they have available. That leaves food, utilities, clothing, household operations and other flexible expenses to be cut.

The following can produce the greatest savings of flexible family expenses:

■ Reduce food costs by carefully planning meals and snacks for each day for a week ahead. Plan low-cost protein foods such as dry beans, eggs, peanut butter, turkey and chicken, hamburger or liver. Stretch meat in casseroles and other combination dishes.

■ Reduce utility bills by raising the temperature in your house to lower cooling costs. If you have a portable fan, use it in place of air conditioning when possible or along with the air conditioner to make the higher temperatures feel more comfortable.

■ Consider selling a second car or recreation vehicle. This will save money on gas, insurance and upkeep. However, think carefully about your future transportation needs before selling, since you may need a second car for transportation to a new job.

■ Reduce child care costs by arranging the family's schedule so that an unemployed parent can take care of the children while the other parent works. If both parents are unemployed, alternate child care duties so each will have an opportunity to look for a job or have some personal time. An unemployed single parent may try to share child care with a relative, neighbor or friend.

■ Repair or remodel clothing you already have and swap items of clothing with other family members or friends. Investigate local resale shops and garage sales to find good buys on used clothing. These are especially good options for buying children's clothes which are often outgrown before they are worn out.

■ Consider cutting out or finding alternatives to all "extras." Depending on the family circumstances, "extras" might include cable television or several cable hook-ups; gift-giving or donations; expensive habits such as smoking; magazine subscriptions; more than one telephone; and entertainment costs. Make use of free or low-cost resources for entertainment, such as the public library, parks and community events.

Researchers testing effectiveness of chicken pox vaccine

WEST POINT, Pa. (AP) — Many adults probably remember chicken pox as a brief, unpleasant episode in childhood which was over after a few days of discomfort and itching.

More than 3 million Americans contract chicken pox or varicella, each year and, by the time they reach age 10, as many as 85 percent of all children in the United States have had chicken pox, according to Merck Sharp & Dohme, a pharmaceutical firm.

For some who contract the pox, it is no minor matter, however. It accounts for about 4,500 hospitalizations and an estimated 100 deaths in this country each year.

Though chicken pox is the last common infectious disease of childhood for which no vaccine is yet available, researchers say a vaccine to prevent the disease has now been developed and is undergoing tests. In clinical trials involving several thousand children, doctors have found the vaccine to be more than 95 percent effective.

Auto Line resolves complaints

By JOHN K. SCHMIDT

John K. Schmidt

The Better Business Bureau administers a referral mediation and arbitration program for the manufacturers listed in the accompanying chart for the resolution of vehicle performance complaints alleging that the problem is the manufacturer's responsibility.

The scope of the Auto Line program is summarized in the chart with general information.

In 85 percent of the cases, a settlement is reached in the referral and mediation phase of the program.

The remaining cases are decided by volunteer arbitrators whose decision is binding on the manufacturer and non-binding on the customer.

The manufacturers want their customers to use this program if they have an unresolved problem.

Look under the "Area Covered" heading in the chart to determine the coverage for each vehicle and check the "Manufacturer's Obligation" column for the time limitation.

Call 563-5264 if you feel you qualify under the program.

John K. Schmidt is president of Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin Inc.

DEAR ABBY

'Neatness' messing up family

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a fanatic about neatness. When Harry (not his real name) comes home from work, he zooms through the house, snatching every toy he sees to put away. Our children, 2 and 4, may keep the toy they're holding — the rest Daddy sees as "clutter." It's hard to explain to a 3-year-old why she can't find the bear she was playing with only minutes before.

I am not a poor housekeeper, but I have to fight to keep the Sunday paper an extra day if I didn't finish reading it. Christmas morning Harry sat with a garbage bag while presents were being opened so the boxes and wrapping paper could be discarded immediately. ("Hand the trash to Daddy, then you may open another present.") Christmas card envelopes with addresses I needed were thrown out while the mail was being opened.

When Harry and I were dating, I teased him because he did his laundry every day. He explained that if anything happened to him, he didn't want anyone to find a pair of dirty socks in his apartment! I thought he was kidding; now I know he was serious.

My self-esteem as a housekeeper is shot because I can't keep everything perfect for Harry. Does Harry have a problem? Or do I have one? — END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Psychiatrists have a name for people like Harry. He's "compulsive obsessive"; everything must be in "perfect" order at all times or he's inappropriately upset. Your problem is dealing with your husband's compulsive behavior unless (or until) you can persuade him to see a therapist and put an end to it.

DEAR ABBY: While waiting for a smog check at a gasoline station, I met a man and we got to talking. I'm a widow, 68 years young. He told me he was a widower, age 70. As it turned out, we both belong to the same health club and we seem to have a lot in common. I liked his looks and thought he'd make a nice friend.

My car was ready first, so as I was paying my bill, I thought to myself, "Why not give him my phone number so he can call me?"

I tore a deposit slip with my name and address on it out of my checkbook and handed it to him, saying, "Here's my phone number. Call me, and maybe we can have coffee sometime." He smiled and seemed pleased.

Well, it's been two weeks, and I haven't heard a peep from him. Do you think I was too forward? — WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Too forward? Absolutely not. I say, "Shoot the ducks while they're flying!"

DEAR ABBY: I am 39, and last month my husband of three years died. We were very much in love, and the loss is almost unbearable.

In the past few weeks I've received dozens of cards and notes, for which I'm grateful, but many were addressed "Mrs. Jane Doe" or just "Jane Doe."

Abby, I'm widowed, not divorced! The omission of my husband's first name hurts me. Maybe I'm too sensitive, but my husband's name is dear to me. I've lost him; I don't want to lose his name as well.

Please remind your readers that a widow is entitled to, and WANTS to, use her husband's full name. It's one small way she can keep him close to her. — HEARTBROKEN IN OHIO

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Please accept my heartfelt condolences. I shall print your letter, hoping it will spare other widows the pain you have experienced.

Please consider that those who "hurt" you when they omitted your husband's first name in addressing their cards and notes of sympathy did so unwittingly. So give them an "A" for thoughtfulness and a "D" for lack of awareness.

DEAR ABBY: Problems! Problems! My fiance and I are invited to the wedding of a couple we have known for a long time. They owe us $200. We would ordinarily spend $100 for a wedding gift, but as long as they owe us $200, we plan to deduct $100 from what they owe us, and call that our wedding gift.

How should we word the card? — FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: You may word the card any way you wish — bearing in mind that any reference to their debt would be in the worst possible taste at this time.

CURIOUS SHOPPER

Ordinary garden slugs edible

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. Somebody told me that garden slugs are edible, but I find this hard to believe. Are they?

A. Ordinary garden slugs are edible. If you're not familiar with them, slugs are long, brown and wormlike, and thrive in moist areas. They've closely related to snails but have no visible shell and, like snails, which are also edible (escargots), they leave a trail of slime as they glide along.

Every March in Guerneville, Calif., the residents of this river community hold their Annual Slugfest. Prizes are awarded to children who bring in the biggest slugs, and there is a cookoff at which recipes are judged. There are slug events in other parts of the U.S. as well.

A week prior to cooking a slug, it's placed in an escape-proof box which has been carpeted with cornmeal, upon which the slug feeds. After seven days or so, it's removed from the box and tossed into boiling water which is laced with vinegar. When it's well-boiled, the slug is removed and its head is cut off. It's then cut open to remove the guts, which emerge, mercifully, in one piece.

The slug may then be fried in oil and served with a garlic sauce, breaded and deep-fried, curried in a cream sauce or prepared in any imaginative way the adventurous cook may desire. Ostensibly slugs are rich in protein.

When one Guerneville resident was asked what slugs tasted like, she replied, "Not as bad as you think."

Readers' response: To readers who wrote to protest my response to the question, "Why are apples in the supermarket all the same size?", thank you for pointing out that apples are graded to size by machine after they are harvested. Certain size apples go in certain boxes.

The chemical daminozide plays its role before the grading process, while the apple is still on the tree. "This pesticide," states an Environmental Protection Agency news release (January 22, 1986), "promotes uniform fruits and fruit firmness which reduces bruises in handling and shipping and increases storage life by two to three months.

"The product is used to delay fruit ripening and premature drop which permits harvesting at one time rather than spot picking over a period of up to six weeks. The delay promotes increased red color in apples with no advancement in apple maturity or reduction in quality."

In addition, the news release states that daminozide is a systemic pesticide, which means it's taken up by the fruit. Its residues cannot be washed off or removed by peeling.

As reported in the New York Times by Keith Schneider, Renee Potosky, a spokesman for the Uniroyal Co., makers of this chemical, whose brand name is Alar, "We have tested this product continuously since 1968. At no time have we found any data that gives us any cause for concern. It is safe to use."

There are those who disagree. Diane Baxter, a toxicologist with the National Coalition Against the Misuse of Pesticides, claims, "There are seven studies that show this chemical is a strong carcinogen. In one study 70 percent of mice developed tumors that were abnormal for that breed."

As further reported by Schneider, C.F. Kirby, a senior vice president of Tree Top Inc., a cooperative that represents 3,750 apple growers, says, "This has got to be one of the greatest chemicals ever developed. We've been using it here (Washington, Oregon and Idaho) for years without any problems. If we lose it, it's going to cost us a fortune."

On January 22, 1986 the EPA decided to allow the continued use of Alar but suggested label modifications so that farmers would be instructed to use approximately half the amount of the chemical that they had been using.

The tolerance level in the fruit was also lowered, and extensive new data will be required to support the chemical's continued use. This means new studies will be performed on animals, and also means apples will be selected randomly in supermarkets around the country and analyzed for residues of daminozide. Apple juice and applesauce will also be checked.

Q. I'm interested in knowing if toasted sunflower seeds contain cholesterol. I was told at the health-food store that due to the fact they are a natural food, they must be healthy to consume. I was not satisfied with that answer. Mrs. Stanley Ellis, Sutherlin, Ore.

A. Sunflower seeds do not contain cholesterol. Cholesterol is only found in animal products such as meat, fish, butter, cheese, eggs and milk.

Sunflower seeds are rich in protein and high in fat. The fat, however, is in the form of polyunsaturated oil, which is beneficial, as this type of oil (liquid at room temperature) is actually supposed to lower blood cholesterol. An ounce of sunflower seeds has 159 calories, but more if they are toasted in oil.

Incidentally, if you want to save money on sunflower seeds, you can eat seeds that are packaged for birds if you don't mind hulling them. The hulling procedure more than doubles the cost.

Reader feedback: Anne Eubank, Modesto, Calif.: "I just finished reading your column about aluminum cookware and I thoroughly agree and must stress — never, never store food in aluminum pots, as it is very dangerous. Anything with acid, such as tomatoes or fruits, should be taken out of pots immediately."

Smart shoppers save

Associated Press

Don't get mad when your food bill goes up — get smart.

Smart shopping strategy helps you save money at the checkout counter without sacrificing taste, nutrition or convenience, according to food and consumer experts in an article in a recent issue of Redbook. The key is to devise a shopping plan.

■ Assess your spending habits. Pinpoint where you are overspending. Heinz Biesdorf, professor in the Department of Consumer Economics at Cornell University, suggested keeping a record of all food purchased, with prices, to compile a workable profile of your grocery spending.

Many families overbuy meat, stock up on produce that spoils before it is eaten, or overspend on specialty items.

■ Consult the weekly food specials. Since 30 percent of the average food dollar goes for meat and poultry, check these items carefully. Stock up on sale-priced canned or packaged goods — but only those items your family likes. Don't buy too much produce or it will spoil.

■ Make meal plans. Dianne Odland, home economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Human Nutrition Service in Hyattsville, Md., said meal planning helps cut down on both impulse buying and extra trips to the supermarket.

■ Always go with a list. Odland said you can either go with a complete list of all specific foods needed for preplanned menus, or with a partial list of general categories such as cereal, bread, main courses and so on. That way you can buy bargains and plan meals based on what you bought.

■ Avoid impulse buys. Stick with your list, except for specials you can use or items you need but forgot to write down. Snack before you shop — never hit the supermarket hungry.

■ Use coupons wisely. Don't expect major savings with coupons — they seldom cover perishables that make up the lion's share of your food dollar. Check to see if the coupon requires a minimum purchase (often no bargain), and if the couponed item is cheaper than one on special. Don't buy a product you may not like just because you have a coupon.
