CIRCUS DAY WAS A GALA DAY in this city. A large number of out of town people arrived early this morning, to witness the grand parade of the Circus, and a larger number arrived from time to time throughout the morning. Most noticeable was the crowd of children, who lined the sidewalks for two hours preceding the time set for the big show. Times when the parade had passed the crowd disappeared from the streets as if by magic, and the "big top" swallowed them up by the hundreds.

THE FIRST FIRE ALARM OF THE week was turned in at two thirty-five this afternoon, when an out building containing coal, at the residence of J. H. Wilson, 1207 7th caught fire from burning trash that had blown against the house. The fire was extinguished before material damage was done, the firemen using a garden hose which was already in use with good effect, according to Chief Twitty.

YOUTH HELD IN FATHER'S DEATH

Cattle Inspector Faces Trial In Murder Case

CHARGE FOLLOWS DEATH OF TENANT ON LIBERTY FARM

SELF DEFENSE CLAIMED BY ACCUSED MAN AFTER SHOOTING MONDAY

(By the Associated Press) LIBERTY, Texas, Sept. 1.—L. Peeler, special agent of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association, who also holds a commission as state ranger, was to be given an examining trial here today on a charge of murder in connection with the killing Monday of J. A. Thibodeaux, tenant farmer at Double Gum bayou, near the intersection of Liberty, Hardin and Jefferson counties. Peeler, who said he was searching for cattle thieves declared he shot Thibodeaux after the latter had fired a bullet through his right ear.

Two Sons Charged Thibodeaux's two sons, Albert and Elton, 14 and 13 years of age, respectively, were arrested soon after their father's body was lowered into the grave here, the boys charged with cattle theft and will be given an examining trial later.

Peeler's version of the killing was that he had been called by cattle owners in the vicinity of Liberty to investigate the disappearance of cattle. He watched, he said, from a place of concealment in the bushes near Thibodeaux's home. Monday afternoon, he told the authorities, he saw a youth driving a number of cows in the direction of the Thibodeaux home. One of the cows he believed to be the property of Guy Freeman, a cattleman in the vicinity. A little later, Peeler, he said, he heard six shots and saw a row of ten on the ground with two boys preparing to flee. He covered the boys, he said, with his gun and ordered them to call their father who he believed to be hiding nearby. Thibodeaux, Peeler said, emerged from a cotton patch with a rifle. Peeler said Thibodeaux disregarded his command to surrender and shot at him. He returned the fire, he recited, and as Thibodeaux continued to stir in the grass where he had fallen, Peeler said he fired another shot into Thibodeaux's body.

Chief E. D. Hightower, of Liberty county, filed a murder charge against Peeler, who subsequently was released to Frank T. Dewey, cattleman.

Mexican Accused of Murder Surrenders

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 1.—Luis G. Contreras, charged with the slaying of Reyes Nivia at the San Pedro ranch above Brownsville last March, who fled to Mexico immediately after the shooting, walked into the sheriff's office last night and surrendered. Contreras stated he wanted to come back to the United States; that there had been extenuating circumstances in connection with the shooting, and that he wanted the case cleared up. This is the first time on record that a person wanted on a murder charge in Cameron county has surrendered after having once gained the safety of Mexico.

Lubbock Basking In Thrills Of Circus Day As Robbins Brothers Show Attracts Crowds

The first circus of the season is here. The Robbins Bros. Circus well known throughout the entire country, is in Lubbock today, bringing all the joys of circus day.

No need to call the juvenile population twice for breakfast this morning. Long before the sun was up they were up and out of the house, speeding down to the railroad yards to watch the showmen roll the heavy wagons off the long steel flat cars and get a chance to earn a ticket by carrying water for the elephants.

In this time honored occupation they were disappointed. Modern circuses have discarded old fashioned methods. The 13 big pachyderms and two little abies were marched to a nearby hydrant where they emptied several tanks of water, and led a bystander to remark, "Gee, they must have fed those elephants salted peanuts in Amarillo yesterday."

An Enlarged Show

Since its last appearance in this section the Robbins Bros. Circus has been enlarged by the addition of five cars, the seating capacity has been increased to 8,000 and the menagerie now consists of more than 20 cages of wild animals, thirteen elephants and five camels, and a mammoth hippopotamus. The riding Hobsons have been engaged as the big feature equestrian act. The circus this afternoon presented the Aerial as the thriller of the program who gave one of the best trapeze acts ever seen here.

The big tents are located on North Avenue H and the trucks and all were up and ready before the parade hour. Meanwhile the crowds had gathered along the streets till the sidewalks were overflowed, and there was a long line of waiting hundreds growing more and more impatient as the time passed.

Parade Is Seen

The parade made its appearance shortly after noon headed by a big red and gold band wagon with 20 musicians playing stirring martial music. Open dens followed, all left open so that the crowd could gaze upon ferocious looking lions, leopards, tigers, pumas, and other denizens of the jungle. Mounted men and women riders handsomely gowned attracted more than passing attention, and the kids danced with delight as the wagon load of clowns went by making near music on a variety of instruments. The cowboys and cowgirls were viewed with unusual interest by the kids, and their appearance brought memories of Buffalo Bill and Custer's Last Fight.

They were booted and spurred and looked like the real thing. A cage of monkeys tickled the kids also, especially the big fellow who amused himself by making faces at the crowd. A den of monster African male lions attracted more than ordinary attention. There were two calliopes, air and steam both well played, and the elephants and camels brought up the rear of a pleasing parade.

An All-Star Performance

The circus this afternoon drew a good crowd. The big show program opened with a new, novel, and out of the ordinary musical revue entitled "The Arabian Nights," under the personal direction of the show's equestrian director, Bert Rickman. A charming and their appearance brought memories of Buffalo Bill and Custer's Last Fight. They were booted and spurred and looked like the real thing. A cage of monkeys tickled the kids also, especially the big fellow who amused himself by making faces at the crowd. A den of monster African male lions attracted more than ordinary attention. FATHER SHOT TO DEATH IN FAMILY ROW AT COLEMAN

FATHER CHARGED BY SON WITH BEATING WIFE OVER DIVORCE CASE

(By the Associated Press) COLEMAN, Texas, Sept. 1.—On the verge of a nervous collapse, D. F. Sanderson, 18, charged with the murder of his father, was under guard here today in a private home.

D. F. Sanderson, Sr., was killed in his home following the filing of a divorce suit by his wife. The son surrendered, and told officers he shot his father because the latter had beaten and threatened his mother.

After the shooting the boy got in an automobile and drove down town. He met Constable Perry Bishop on the street, handed the constable his gun, saying "I have killed papa."

Sanderson was taken to the court house where he collapsed. After being given a stimulant, he revived, and was formally charged with murder. He was carried to the home of Mrs. Annie Stubblefield, nearby, where he was under guard today, but in a serious nervous condition.

Officers were called to the Sanderson home Monday night to quell a disturbance. The elder Sanderson was arrested and released yesterday evening, when a divorce citation was served on him. He returned home, and according to the son, began abusing Mrs. Sanderson when the boy said he fired two shots from an automatic pistol.

Strange Coincident Seen After Drowning

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 1. (AP)—An extraordinary coincidence in connection with the drowning of two boys here Monday Edward Collins and J. M. The Woman's Daily Editorial

WAR PAINT VS. COON SKIN

Behold the Indian! He tells not neither does he fight, yet Chief Sitting Bull in all his glory was not arrayed like this one.

In his bearded self there is no tomahawk! Lo, instead there is a vanity case! And in the vanity case is rouge, powder, eyebrow pencil and lipstick.

They say it is natural—the primitive in him coming out! That it is the same instinct that caused his forefathers to dab themselves with clays and pigments and hop around a fire and work up their backs before going to battle.

Certainly it is the primitive in him! When a man wears an orange striped necktie, or a sprigged shirt, or a lavender suit, it is the primitive in him.

Behold the gorgeous uniforms of armies, societies, and brass bands. Feathers, gold buttons, much braid, and color!

Men poke fun at women for their love of dress. It is the small boy that follows the band, and it is the small boy who rigs up the garage and woodshed into a circus tent and decorates himself with mustaches, cotton muscles and paint, and displays himself to an admiring public who pay ten pins apiece to get in.

Were it not for conservative tailors who can tell to what lengths the male would go? And hark! Speaking of vanity cases, who knows also but that the obsolete watch pocket may find a new use?

Of course, women love to adorn themselves. They always have. They pride themselves on it. But let me not pretend that away down in the bottom of their hearts they haven't rather a weakness for it, too. Just because the cave man wore a necklace of brontosaur teeth, he was no less a cave man. And I don't suppose his wives thought him effeminate.

CONDITION—An obviously "made-up" appearance.

TREATMENT—Follow your natural coloring, don't select your rouge and powder at random, and follow the natural coloring of your face when you powder up. Use the same tint on your cheeks that you use for your lips. If you are a blonde, a light rouge is advisable. For a brunette, a darker red is better. Eccentric make-up should be avoided. Your powder should be harmonious with your skin. For a dark skin, a rachel powder is best, but on a light one, a flesh tint is better. Though make-up has much more standing than it once had, the most fastidiously groomed women avoid artificiality, and strive to achieve only a perfectly natural effect.

Man Admits Forcing Negro Into Murder

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 1. (AP)—Clyde Reece Bachelor confessed today that he made Harry Leonard, negro, kill his father-in-law, county Judge Lamar Smith at Wetumpka, Ala., Monday night. Bachelor confessed while he and the negro were being brought here from Montgomery for safe keeping and repeated the confession in the jail.

Officials said that insurance carried by Judge Smith had been established as the definite motive for the crime. Deputy Sheriff H. P. Massingill on his arrival with the prisoner said that on the trip Bachelor pointed to the plantation hand and declared "that old negro fired the shot but I made him do it." Bachelor said he agreed to pay Leonard a sum he owed him and to give him $400 in cash if he would kill the judge.

Judge Smith was slain and his wife wounded by a shot fired through the window of their home Monday night.

Simplicity Marks Wedding Ceremony Of Miss Elizabeth Scott And Roy L. Watson At The Home Of Her Parents

A simple and impressive ceremony marked the wedding this morning of Miss Elizabeth E. T. Scott, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy R. Scott, and Roy L. Watson, of Newcastle, at the home of the bride's parents, 1901 Main street, Rev. J. W. Watson, of Lamesa, cousin of the groom, performed the ceremony.

An arch opening off the living room was decorated with ferns and marigolds, with large baskets of fall flowers at each side, and it was under this that the couple stood during the ceremony. The receiving rooms were beautiful with ferns and fall flowers, marigolds predominating.

Proceeding the ceremony, Mrs. Richard L. Douglas sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by Miss Marjorie Leland, who played during the ceremony. Little L. G. Wilson son of Mr. and Mrs. Maple Wilson, was the first member of the wedding party to enter. He bore the ring in a long-stemmed rose. Mrs. Ernest Lee, matron of honor, followed him. She was followed by the bride.

The bride wore a blue crepe roma dress trimmed in exquisite lace and carried a shower bouquet of roses. Her going away suit was in blue and grey with accessories to harmonize. They left immediately after ceremony for Newcastle.

Mrs. Watson graduated from the Lubbock high school in 1923 and was employed in the office of M. M. Dupre, superintendent, the following year. She attended the Tech last winter and has been stenographer in the law office of R. L. Douglas until her marriage. Mr. Watson is a cotton buyer.

White, Johnnie Pierce presided over the bride's book.

TWO WORLD COURT OPPONENTS VIE FOR HONORS

COLUMBUS, S. C., Sept. 1. (AP)—E. D. Smith, who voted for the world court proposal when it was adopted by the senate and Edgar A. Brown, who criticized his vote, will be in the run-off primary September 14, when South Carolina democrats will decide who will represent them in the United States senate the next six years, after March 4, 1927.

Senator Smith led his two opponents, former Senator N. B. Dial and Brown, speaker of the South Carolina house of representatives, in the returns from the primary yesterday, but failed to obtain a majority over both men.

John G. Richards led the field of nine candidates for governor, Ira Blackwood was second and Edmund B. Jackson third. The figures from 1,189 precincts were:

Richards 37,620; Blackwood 31,020; Jackson 28,770.

T. B. Butler had a small lead over James O. Shepard of Edgefield for lieutenant governor.

Four of the seven congressmen were renominated without opposition, E. B. Hare of the second, Fred H. Donnick, third; John J. McSwain, fourth, and Willard H. Gasque, sixth.

In the three other districts the incumbents, Thomas S. McMillan, W. F. Stevenson and W. H. Fulmer, were leading their opponents by wide margins.

Will Rogers, Oklahoma Cowboy And Humorist, Praised By Magazine Of Newspaper Folk; Writes For Journal

(EDITOR'S NOTE) Here is an account of Will Rogers, Oklahoma cowboy-humorist, whose comical writings appear each Sunday in the Daily Journal's "Western Weekly". West Texas own eight-page magazine section. In addition to commanding local interest by virtue of his original wit Mr. Rogers is even more welcome to Lubbock readers by virtue of local relationship. Mr. Rogers is an uncle of Mrs. Ben C. Dickinson, of Lubbock. The accompanying story of Mr. Rogers' success is reprinted from "The Fourth Estate", a periodical printed expressly for newspaper people.

Will Rogers, the Oklahoma cowboy is interviewing the heads, crowned and uncrowned, of Europe, Asia, and points East. His newspaper articles about his European experiences and observations, released through the McNaught-Syndicate of New York, are attracting much attention in this country and abroad.

When Sir James issued this informal invitation, he and Rogers were sitting side by side at a dinner given by Lady Astor. After the cigars had been duly smoked, Will accompanied the famous author to his living quarters and there heard from Barrie's own lip the story of how Maude Adams was selected to play the leading role in "The Little Minister". Barrie also told Rogers many other interesting things about his life, writings and opinions, and Will wrote them down in his picturesque style. This interview has been spoken of as one of the best that has come out of Europe in many a day.

Howard Sedan Burns On Road to Tahoka

A Buick sedan, the property of E. F. Howard, local wholesale and retail oil dealer, was completely destroyed by fire on the Lubbock-Tahoka highway shortly after eight o'clock last night. Mr. Howard was returning from a business trip to the Lynn county capital when his transmission became over-heated and the car burst into flames. The loss was partially covered by insurance, members of his family reported today.

Billy Evans Says

Two Big Finds. Not many ball players of Italian birth have been numbered among the major league stars. The season of 1926 promises to be a decided exception, for two of the biggest finds of the year are Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees and Oscar Melillo of the St. Louis Browns.

An Odd Ceremony. I happened to be officiating in St. Louis on the day of the presentation. Shortly before the game began the speaker of the occasion loudly yelled Melillo's name, at the same time waved a small traveling bag in the air to acquaint Oscar with the nature of the gift.

Stir Up Interest. Unquestionably Lazzeri and Melillo have stirred up a keen interest among the Italian fans, who have always been strong in the game. These two players, certain to be stars, will give the sons of Italy a chance to do so arguing when a discussion arises as to whether the Irish, Dutch or Italians make the best ball players.

"Silk" Knew How. At one time in the majors Irish and German players predominated, with the Irish having the edge. Now the game has become one for all nations. Some of the best players in the big show are Poles.

As a matter of fact, athletes of Polish extraction are shining in all sports, many of them starring on the college gridirons. In the days when the Irish and German players ruled the roost in the majors, "Silk" O'Loughlin, every bit Irish, had two favorite expressions he always used when engaged in dispute over some close play.

NOW A REALITY

Lubbock's new hotel—for so many months a dream and for the past eight months a vision—today is a reality. It has opened its doors and stands towering,

Lubbock citizens can point with pride to that half million dollar hospitality, which will radiate Lubbock hospitality to all who enter its portals.
It bears the stamp of the chief incident of Lubbock's municipal make-up—secure belief in the future of both city and territory.

THE ANSWER

I chanced the other day to watch a dog—a good dog, one with canine blue-blood in his veins—as he lay idly before his master's place of business.

Then I wondered why God, in His infinite wisdom, did not make arrangements for human beings, harassed as they usually are by the cares of the world, to put all thoughts aside and sit idly, resting with mind inactive and with a total obtundance from thought.

But as I pondered on the subject I suddenly answered my own query the product of mental side-track. If such a boon were offered mankind too many of us would indulge in it and as a result progress would suffer.

It wouldn't do for man to puthought from his mind and that is why he cannot do it. God knew before He ever made the first man, that to make him in that manner would be wrong so God, in His wisdom, made man as he should be and thus safe-guarded progress.

IT WAS THE NEWS

A New York newspaper with an international reputation for accuracy in judging the value of news recently published a very interesting edition.

Across the top of the first page an eight-column headline announced the death of Rudolph Valentino. This was accompanied by a large picture of the deceased in a sleek costume. Running down the right-hand side of the first page were two columns of details. On the second and third pages were more pictures and more details.

Nothing was missed. The pictures of his former wives were placed alongside the pictures of his intended wife.
The entire lay-out was one of the best jobs of journalism possible. The chances are every minute detail was read by a large majority of this newspaper's subscribers. It was the big story of the day and was played and read accordingly.

It so happened that the night before Valentino's death, another nationally known man died. He was Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university. Dr. Eliot was 92 years of age. His long life was spent as an operator. In this field he attained the highest rank. His "Five-foot shelf of books" has broadened many thousands of ambitious minds. Since Dr. Eliot was such a great figure in the educational world this New York newspaper naturally published the news of his death on the first page. It gave him two-column headlines down at the bottom of the page with a one-column picture, and told all about his useful life.

KEEP OFF

When green was first invented and 'twas spread around the grass it must have pleased the eye of every soul who chanced to pass.
'Tis nature's favorite color, and a soothing one at best. That must be why all foliage with shades of green is best.

Consider any lawn, any downy grass beneath the trees. Say, is there any place that tempts as much, to loiter at ease? The softness seems to call you, and you answer to the call. You know that on the spread of grass there is restfulness for all.

It sorta makes one wonder, when you think of parks and such.
Are folks, who tend a lot of them, with true life out of touch? 'Tis true they spread their lawns in the open; in the nook. But, as to making things worth while, one point they overlook.

The green, and soft-like blanket makes a person see the fun of stretching out upon it just to loaf beneath the sun. The thing I cannot understand, when'er the signs I pass, is why folk ever spoil the scene by "Please Keep off the Grass."

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING UP
and DOWN
BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Marcus Loew, an unimposing figure in a straw hat and grey Palm Beach suit. Managing, somehow, to look cooler than the dripping crowd in Broadway lobby.
Surrounded by the usual horde of hangers-on that trail the successful and important. Like most men of great wealth and power, he is unassuming. He attracts not one-tenth the attention given an over-dressed, soft looking young man who recently began to get by in the movies who bawls, no doubt, that he must affect artificial mannerisms to keep in the lime-light.

See Buster Collier almost anywhere nowadays with one of the McCarthy Twins, who dance most pleasingly in revenue. And 'tis said Buster is smitten most sorely. But which twin it is,
I dare not say. And how a young man chooses between twins is another mystery I cannot fathom. I know merely that it's the one billed as Dorothy.

Now a young lady employ in one of the most popular "snacks and bakes" cafes carefully selecting her lunch and sipping the cost the while. And learned from her the amusing news, that the employes of such places in Manhattan are rationed out food according to their time of service. Thus, if you have worked a year you may eat $1 worth free. And so on up and down the scale.

Passing the city's largest department store at the hour of 3:30 in the morning heard the sound of voices and saw a crowd gathered about. And it seems that thrice weekly the entire personnel of the store is lined up and put to singing "moral songs." The words of which tell how they love their work, and how loyal they will be, and all that sort of thing. Which makes me more and more to think how little removed from Main street we are after all.

Note that the foyer of the Algonquin hotel, once claimed as exclusive stamping ground by the Manhattan inner circle of intelligentsia, has now surrendered—like most other places, peoples and things, to the film invaders. Now the lobby and tables alike at noon hour are cluttered by blasé young scribes who write columns, fan-magazine articles and such. While pres-sents buzz loosely about, unbothered by either conscience or police. Ann stars and near stars appear from time to time when it seems most favorable.
Quite the center of cinema affairs in this city it is now.

Furs now burden the windows of Fifth avenue shops as we blunder along through the heat mopping our brow. And when the blizzards are blowing us from the sidewalk they will be showing straw hats and sport blazers.

Ten stockingless girls within two blocks on Broadway. And nobody paying particular attention. But everyone looked around at the girl who wore a heavy cloth coat with fur collar.

And other things too numerous to mention.

WASHINGTON
LETTER

GROANS EMANATING FROM WAR AND NAVY OFFICIALS
AS BUDGET CUTS EXPENSES

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Groans were heard emanating from the war and navy departments the day the news of President Coolidge's latest budget plans arrived here from the Adirondacks.
"Cut to the bone!" exclaimed officials of the two services, when told that's what the president insists on.
"Why! the army and navy are nothing but skeletons already, and some, even of their ribs are missing. Another cut and their very spinal columns will be in danger."

Only the aviation folk can see a ray of light in the gloom. Their services, both land and sea, are to be expanded.

As much as two years ago army men were pointing out that they simply had to have more money. Barracks were falling down, they complained, uniform were wearing out, their wartime accumulation of munitions were deteriorating.

They didn't get more. They got less.
And now they're to get still less.
It always is difficult for a layman to tell how much more there is in such lamentations from a crowd of specialists. Professional soldiers are enthusiasts, of course. To have to economize seems to them a national calamity. It may not be as bad for the country as they think it is.

If they really are right about it however, the prospect is terrible.

The navy people's despair is deeper.
If anything, than that of army officers.

"The navy," as young Col. Theodore Roosevelt told me—this was a long time ago, too, when he was assistant secretary—"has been living off its fat ever since the war."

That is to say, it hadn't been getting any additional nourishment even then. It's been getting less since then.
Now it's to be cut down still further.
Up to certain point it may be healthy to fast and reduce, but beyond that point it's weakening, and finally fatal.

The navy department had an idea it was going to get 10 new 10,000-ton cruisers. Congress authorized them.
Building them however, calls for money.

With a reduced, instead of an increased allowance, they're impossible.
Indeed, some of the ships in commission now probably will have to be tied up, if there's to be fresh financial paring.

Maneuvers will have to be curtailed also. There won't be money enough to pay for the necessary fuel. The navy thinks highly of these war games. To be compelled to abandon them will be a serious blow at training and discipline, experts assert.

The war department has been deeply concerned in the strengthening of the land defenses of the Panama Canal Zone, since their weakness was disclosed by fleet operations in the last three years.

The navy department has been equally interested in the establishment of more formidable bases on the Pacific coast and the Hawaiian Islands.
These improvements were impossible with past appropriations. Maintenance of such defenses as exist, already will be impossible, too, with still smaller ones.

Such, at any rate, is the verdict of military and naval authorities.

Will aviation development offset a decline in land and sea strength?
As to this the foremost experts themselves are in hopeless disagreement. The average American can't make even an intelligent guess at it.
Seemingly it's going to be left to the next war to settle the question.

that few there be who really know

In Bible times the bat was one of the animals considered unclean, and this early sinister reputation has been hard to live down. He is said to have horrid bed-bugs, a charge based on error; he will try to tangle himself in one's hair, when that is about the last thing a bat would allow to happen.

"Blind as a bat" is a ridiculous way to allude to the sight of an animal that, in semi-darkness of twilight, is able to catch hundreds of insects, large and small, in the course of a few hours.

This is the way the bat spends his life, catching insects, many of which infest our houses. All our North American species live entirely on active living insect prey.

Habit of many species. Their habits vary. Some spend the day in caves, some in trees, some live only in tropical lands, while others live in summer from our northern states to the arctic, and migrate southward in winter. Some do not migrate, but adbernate in a semi-torpid state in caves, where the winter temperature is relatively high.

Some are only a couple of inches long, while others of our species have a body length of four or five inches and a wing spread of nearly a foot and a half. Creature of darkness, though he be, he and all his tribe are

Helpful Health Hints

MODERN INDUSTRY KNOWS
IMPORTANCE OF FIRST AID

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene
the Health Magazine.

Since the World War, increasing attention has been given by the Red Cross, by public health educators and by industries to the training of a considerable number of persons in the elements of first aid.

Such work is particularly important in industries that spread over much territory; for example, in mines, where an employe may be seriously injured at a point far removed from medical assistance.

Many industrial plants now have regular classes for instruction in first aid methods, under the direction of the plant physicians or instructors provided by the Red Cross. Interest in the work is stimulated by the holding of competitive first aid exhibitions, and by the advancement of employees showing special aptitude for the work to positions as safety engineers or social workers in the industry.

Methods Simple.
The conditions which occur most frequently in industrial work and which require prompt first aid, properly carried out, are hemorrhaging as a result of any cut or mutilating accident, shock as the result of a fall or electric phenomena, and burns.

It is, therefore, obvious that first aid instructions are first concern with proper methods of preparing or transporting persons suffering from fractures or from shock, which prevent their walking to a place for treatment.

Persons unconscious from electric shock, from drowning, or from inhaling fumes of gases have to be resuscitated.
The method is essentially simple and easily comprehended by any employe who is willing to take the time to learn. The method must, however, be taught by an experienced worker in the first instance.

Burns are mutilating and many secondary complications of a serious nature occur, unless the first aid treatment that is given is prompt and accurate. This involves the cleansing of the wound and the use of simple sterilized substances, by the covering of the wound with melted paraffin and sterilized gauze.

All sorts of first aid cabinets have been prepared for use in industrial plants. Some of them resemble miniature drug stores in their completeness.

In general, the first aid equipment requires hardly more than eight or ten simple articles, such as gauze, antiseptic, simple antiseptics, tourniquet and assorted bandages. With these, a necessary first aid treatment may be applied and the patient kept safe and comfortable until first class medical treatment becomes available.

With Our Contemporaries

SAVING ON SMALL
EXPENDITURES

The details of the visit of the director of the budget to President Coolidge discloses a strenuous day. Congress had piled on the regular expenditures additions reaching 75 million dollars.
These included 34 millions for war pensions, 18 millions for the veterans' bureau, 14 millions for the government's share of the federal civil service retirement fund, and 5 millions for the District of Columbia.

Such a situation was a challenge to the president, and he went into the departmental estimates with a blue pencil. When he had finished he had saved the country 100 millions dollars.

It was announced at the same time that the number of employes in the government service would be reduced 2 per cent by failure to make appointments to fill vacancies.

There is constant and energetic pressure to allow a few thousand dollars more here, and a few thousand more there, on the ground that such trifling amounts would never be felt when the expenditures were running into the billions. The president has learned the lesson that all the little expenditures count, and that if there is to be a saving it must be made all up and down the line. It is another example of the need of watching the bunghole while sawing at the spigot. Every head of house knows it is the accumulative trifles that eat up the income.—Kansas City Star.

TEETH

Chemists who have made the study of coloring on the teeth of children in this section a study have come to the conclusion that lack of a proper amount of milk and vegetable diet is the cause. This was announced by the head of the chemistry department of the Canyon Normal recently. While it is somewhat difficult for fresh vegetables to be obtained without great expense in the winter time on the Plains, unless one has a hot bed or takes advantage of the canner, there is no earthly excuse for children not getting an abundance of good food milk here at all times with our abundant areas of grass lands and the boundless productivity of our lands of all the feed varieties, and the ease with which cattle are raised here.—

THE VANITY CASE

BY CAROLYN WELLS COPYRIGHT 1926 N.E.A.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MRS PRENTISS sees mysterious lights in the Heath household next door one night and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog over the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune and BUNNY MOORE, beautiful, vivacious, to whom suspicion points because of her strange actions.

Myra Heath never used cosmetics, never wore colors, yet when her body was found she was heavily rouged. She was a collector of glass, and it was a rare old bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candies were burning at her head and feet; nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath."

The strange thing about Heath's disappearance is that the windows and doors were locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Fingerprints of Bunny and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Meanwhile TODD HUNTER BUCK, Mrs. Prentiss' nephew, has met Bunny and fallen in love. Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Heath. He phones her again, saying Inman is the murderer. Bunny faints under a grilling by DETECTIVE MOTT, and Inman confides to Buck that he saw Bunny ascending the stairs after the murder. Mott questions all the servants and tells them to keep quiet.

Anderson invites Cunningham to his house and there, while waiting for his host, Cunningham is suddenly confronted by Perry Heath, who disappears as mysteriously as he had appeared. Shortly afterward Anderson comes in and he reproaches Cunningham for letting Heath escape.

Buck meantime, is determined to clear Bunny. He resolves to have a good talk with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

And then the object of Toddy's anxious thought came and satated herself on a low chair beside his own. So softly had she come, that he had no idea of her presence until he heard her soft, low voice saying:

"Mrs. Prentiss bid me come and talk to you for a few minutes before I go to my room."

"I'm glad to have you," he said, speaking quietly, too, and involuntarily laying his hand on the little one that rested on his chair arm.

Bunny looked up at him, her eyes of "wind-flower blue" dimly visible in the faint light that glistened from the doorway.

"You are very good to me," she said, with a sad little sigh. "You and your aunt both. But I wish I could go home."

"I wish you could!" exclaimed Tod, his hand tightening its clasp on her own.

"Why do you speak like that? You frighten me!" she exclaimed, for his tone had been emphatic.

"I am frightened about you," he murmured. "Tell me, Bunny, tell me, dear, do you trust me?"

"Yes," she said, and her voice was clear and frank. There was no trace of coyness or shyness, it was as if soul spoke to soul, and with his power of reading the intent of another's words, Buck believed her.

He turned to face her more fully.

"Do you know you are in danger? Grave danger?"

"I suppose I am. But what can I do? I am very much alone."

Her voice quivered and tears came into the blue eyes.

"No," Buck declared, "you are not alone. You have two staunch friends beneath this roof, and one of us, at least, would die for you!"

This was dangerously close to melodrama, but was saved therefrom by Toddy's obvious earnestness and the ringing note of affection in his tone.

But Bunny shuddered.

"Don't mention death," she said, "we've had enough of that for the present."

"So we have," he said, "and I, too, want to avoid the subject but if I am to help you, and Lord knows you need help, I'll have to ask you some pretty blunt questions."

"You may," Bunny said, but her voice had taken on a cold formality, almost as if she spoke to an official detective.

"Oh," Tod groaned, "don't speak to me that way, or I can't talk at all!"

The girl laughed outright.

"Go on with your blunt questions," she commanded, but the laughter seemed to linger in her intonation.

Tod plucked up a morsel of courage. Surely a murderer could not laugh like that!

"When did you first see Mrs. Heath after she was dead?" he asked.

"Oh, I can't tell you that!" She gasped as if in horrified surprise and started to rise from her chair.

"No sit still. Don't tell me anything you don't choose to, but do—oh, Bunny, do confide in me! You must have help—I will help you. Dear Heart, tell me all—about it."

"I—I've nothing to tell, and now she spoke really coldly, and with an accent of displeasure. "I thought detectives found out the truth from clues and things, not from asking people questions."

"Both methods are used," and now Toddy was stern and grave. "So you won't help me to help you?"

"I can't—oh I can't—don't ask me a—about it! Don't!" Her little hands twisted themselves nervously together and one foot beat a tattoo on the porch floor.

"Well, tell me this," Buck felt he mightn't get a better chance and he must find out some things. "Did you go downstairs and come up again late that night? After you had gone to your room for the night, I mean?"

"Why—no,—of course, I didn't. Why should I?"

"But the maid said she saw you."

"Do you take her word in preference to mine?"

"No, I do not. However, Inman also says he saw you."

"Larry said that!" she sounded grieved, rather than angry. "Well, then it's his word against mine, isn't it?"

Bravado had come to her aid. Her air was almost saucy her tone almost gay.

"Buck was annoyed. How could she treat such a serious matter so flippantly?"

"Bunny, dear," he said, "I can't let you go on like this. And, too, before we go any further, there is something else I must tell you. I love you, darling, and I want you to learn to love me. I want you to promise that when this awful affair is all over, you will let me try to win your heart, try to make you see how I adore and worship you, and try to win your love in return. How about it, little sweetheart?"

The fact that no repulse had met his overtures made Toddy's heart leap high with joy, and he caught the girl to him.

But she drew away, her hands gently pushing off his eager arms.

"Don't," she whispered, "at least not now,—not yet. You don't know,—oh, Toddy, dear, you don't know,—"

"You're going to tell me, all I don't know," he caught her fluttering hands and held them close. "You're going to let me be your father confessor and your guide, philosopher and friend, as well as your slave and adorer and—and, my darling, your future husband."

She sighed, and for a moment he thought she was going to surrender her sweet self to his embrace, then she turned away from him, and with tears in her voice she said: "No, please don't touch me, I—oh, I don't know what to say or do! And you can't help me,—at least, not now! I must—I must go through with it! I have to,—oh, I have to!"

"Yes, dear, but I'll go through with it, too. I'll be with you every step of the way. You can depend on me,—oh, Bunny, you can depend on me!"

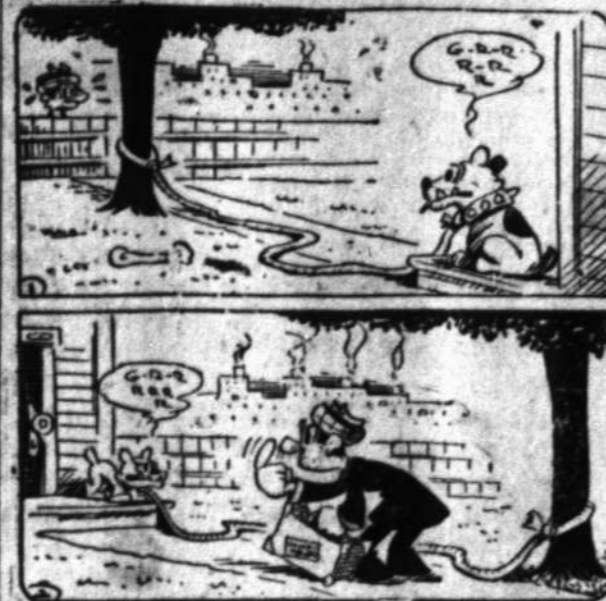

"I will believe that,—but, no, I must go alone,—alone."

And with that she left him and walked slowly back into the house.

an early advance today in wheat prices here. At some Canadian points heavy rains since yesterday were still in progress. Opening 5c off to 5c up wheat rose sharply all around. Corn and oats were also strong, corn starting 1/2c to 1 1/2c higher and subsequently gaining a little more. Provisions tended downward.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 1. (AP)-The cotton market opened easy despite good cables, first trades showing losses of 2 to 6 points. The market continued to ease off after the opening on liquidation and hedge selling, until October traded down to 17.75c, December to 17.75c and January at 17.70c, or 12 to 13 points below yesterday's close. Prices then rallied 5 to 6 points on a telegram from New York stating that the weather bureau there reported a tropical disturbance near the island of Saint Kitts in the West Indies. The news here was without such information.

The market turned easy when the weekly weather and crop report proved less unfavorable than expected. Denial from Washington of any tropical disturbance helped the easier tone. October traded down to 17.70c, or 16 December and January to 17.67c, or 19 points below yesterday's close. Towards mid-session the market rallied nine points on the persistent report from New York that a storm disturbance actually prevailed in the West Indies.

NEW YORK TRADING NEW YORK, Sept. 1. (AP)-The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 7 points under renewal of realizing or liquidation while buying was less active after the covering and advances of yesterday evening. Reported indications of a tropical disturbance some distance southeast of Porto Rico appeared to cause no immediate panic and selling was probably promoted by a more favorable view of weather prospects. December eased off to 17.81c with the general market showing net losses of about 11 to 15 points before the end of the first hour.

The forenoon market was rather weak, owing to the favorable eastern belt forecast and a somewhat better weekly review of crop conditions by the weather bureau than expected. This contained unfavorable features as to crop progress over the important parts of the belt, but failed to bring in any fresh buying of consequence while there was moderately active selling or liquidation. December sold off to 17.69c or 20 to 24 points net lower, but steadied at this level on covering and rallied to 17.82c, the market at mid-day showing net declines of 3 to 15 points.

The market was comparatively quiet after mid-session and prices fluctuated narrowly within the earlier range.

At the beginning of the last hour the government issued notice of a slight storm disturbance in the vicinity of the Virgin Islands, in the West Indies.

WALL STREET TRADING NEW YORK, Sept. 1. (AP)-Stock prices gave another impressive demonstration of strength at the opening of today's market which was featured by a resumption of heavy buying in the railroad and oil shares, several blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changing hands in the first few minutes of trading. New York Central opened with a block of 5,000 shares at 14 1/2 up 2 points, and the highest price since 1906. Dupont selling ex-dividend 3 1/2 opened at 308 compared with a closing price of 305 yesterday. American Smelting and General Asphalt each opened a point higher.

Speculative interest in the early trading centered largely on the railroad shares, which responded to unusually favorable earnings statements now being published. New peak prices for the year, or lower, were registered in the first half hour by Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago Great Western preferred, Missouri Pacific, Peru, Marquette and Rock Island.

In the industrial list, new-top prices were quickly recorded by American Tobacco, Commercial Solvents B. Co., Petroleum Phillips Petroleum and Union Tank Car.

Buying received considerable stimulus from the covering operations of bear traders who had sold stocks freely in expectation of a marked stiffening of money rates.

A sharp overnight jump of 27 points in Italian lire, which sold around 355 cents, overshadowed all other developments in the foreign exchange market. The principal European rates held firm.

Eight Pound Son Is Pleasing H. L. Pharr The Lubbock Bazar association has a new member, sponsored by Homer L. Pharr, widely known and popular suburban haired follower of Blackstone. A young man, in fact a very young man, weight eight pounds, put in his appearance at a local hospital shortly after eight o'clock Wednesday morning and Judge Pharr should be, whether he is or not, passing cigars around to his friends as a celebratory step. Both Mrs. Pharr and the youngster are doing fine, friends said.

Major Candidates In California All Run Neck And Neck; Republican Leading Richardson For Governor

(By The Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 1.—Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young continued today to increase his lead over Governor Friend W. Richardson in the contest for the republican nomination for Governor with the tabulation at six a. m., today of complete returns from 3,650 of the state's 8,274 precincts.

Young's lead at that time amounted to 12,611 votes, a gain of 2,139 since the 2 o'clock tabulation. The vote stood: Young, 126,982; Richardson, 113,972; Goodell, 46,866; McClellan, 1,992; Mitchell, 1,625 and Thomas, 916.

Senator Samuel W. Shortridge, Coolidge republican, had more than doubled his advantage over Robert M. Clarke, his leading anti world court opponent, in the race for the republican nomination for United States senator. He was leading by 20,196 votes.

The figures for 3,696 precincts complete: Shortridge, 120,593; Clarke, 89,387; Linerberger (anti world court and anti saloon League candidate), 31,182.

Despite the growing vote in favor of their opponents, both Richardson and Clarke refused to admit defeat.

In the contest for lieutenant governor, Baron Pitts, former American Legion department commander, won by a wide margin, in the face of the incomplete returns. With complete returns from 2,929 precincts, his advantage amounted to more than 34,000 votes over his nearest opponent, Frank F. Merriman.

(By The Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 1.—Decisive victory still eluded the major contestants in yesterday's state primary election as returns from about one-third of California's precincts were tabulated early today.

C. C. Young, candidate for the republican gubernatorial nomination, was leading Governor Friend W. Richardson by 16,812 votes, and Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Coolidge republican, was almost 14,000 votes ahead of Robert M. Clarke, one of his anti-world court rivals for the republican nomination for United States senator.

None Concede Defeat
In neither case was the lead large enough to bring statements conceding defeat from either Governor Richardson, seeking a second term on an economy platform, or Mr. Clarke, whose candidacy had the active support of Senator Hiram Johnson, Shortridge's colleague in the senate.

Complete returns from 2,584 precincts out of a total of 8,274.

Young, 126,982; Richardson, 113,972; Goodell, 46,866; Robert F. McClellan, 1,992; W. D. Mitchell, 1,625; Mayo Thomas, 916.

The republican senatorial aspirant was running as follows in 2,559 precincts, complete and incomplete: Shortridge, 79,287; Clarke, 65,387; Walter L. Linerberger (anti-world court and anti-saloon league candidate) 20,398. Clarke supporters here pointed out that the two anti-world court candidates combined were polling a heavier vote than Shortridge.

Johnson Plays Part
An interesting feature of these two major contests was the part played in each by Senator Johnson, Johnson stamped the state for both Young and Clarke, attacking Governor Richardson's administration as "reactionary and spendthrift" and assailing Senator Shortridge for his pro-world court record in the senate.

John B. Elliott, who was endorsed for senator by William Gibbs McAdoo, was leading leaders Dockweiler, whom he accused of complicity in a Tammany Hall plot to capture California democracy, 3,200 to 2,814 in the early count. Carl Alexander Johnson, San Diego, dry, also bearing the McAdoo endorsement, was trailing Justus S. Wardell in the gubernatorial race, 19,811 votes to 23,118. Wardell also was accused by the McAdoo candidates of trafficking with Tammany.

Discoverer of Famous Remedy Wins Fortune

Years of Research Work Brings Fortune to Dallas Man

To be rewarded after many years of study with that which he sought, and to receive for it a fortune in the sum of $50,000, was the lot of G. M. Gordon, well known pharmacist of Dallas, Texas, discoverer of Gordon's Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels—a medicine said by many to have almost miraculous powers of bringing relief to sufferers from stomach or bowel troubles.

To find a medicine which would combine the necessary antiseptic and digestive effects, so essential to the successful treatment of ailments emanating from the stomach, was the task to which Mr. Gordon set himself many years ago. The effort was a hard and at times a discouraging one, but in the end he won—found exactly what he had hoped to find—Gordon's Antiseptic.

Nineteen out of twenty people have indigestion or some sort of stomach distress after eating, caused by fermentation (souring of food matter), which can only be stopped with an antiseptic.

Gordon's Antiseptic goes right to the seat of stomach troubles, as it exercises a distinctly antiseptic as well as a digestive effect in the stomach and bowels. It stops and prevents fermentation, soothes and heals the irritated and inflamed condition of the stomach and bowels. Relieves indigestion, constipation, gas on stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating after meals, excess acid, bad breath, sick headache, nervousness, tones up the digestive organs and stimulates the stomach and bowels to their normal function.

Gordon's Antiseptic is sold by good druggists, $1.50 for sixty-four doses—less than 3c a dose.—Adv.

NEWS and COMEDY

CIRCUS DAY HAS CHARM FOR CITY

ing ballet of thirty real dancing pretty young women, a big tuneful chorus of 20 voices, wonderful scenery and electrical effects, a stunning wardrobe of gorgeous oriental costumes and a real wonderful singing chorus and cast of principals goes to make up one of the best spectacular productions ever seen here.

Many Features

Aside from the many big features there were several acts which won much applause. The Ben Mohammed troupe of Arab tumblers was great, especially the fellow who made a complete circuit of the hot tent turning somersaults all the while. There were three herds of well trained elephants under the direction of Maj. Budenditel. One did a real shimmy dance. Besides the Hobsons Troupe's regular big comedy riding act, the lady and comedian rider of the troupe did single riding acts, and both turned several somersaults with never a miss. There were trained ponies, monkeys, dogs and human wolf hounds which obeyed Kate and Tom Smith's every command. Captain Tiber and his educated sea lions who juggled balls, walked up steep ladders and played on musical instruments; the Matsamodo troupe of eight Japanese jugglers, balancers and wirewalkers did a wonderful act. One of their number slides down a wire from the dome of the big top while standing on his head, and thirty clowns led by their "King Bee" Kenneth Waite were busy most of the afternoon and were real funny. Ponce Bill and his Congress of Rough Riders and a band of real Sioux Indians gave a very fine wild west performance.

The Hobson Bros. Circus is a clean wholesome attraction, and gave one of the best performances that has been seen here. The big tent should be packed tonight after the creditable program of this afternoon.

Ex-Mayor Ordered To Pay Tax On His Teeth

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 1. (AP)—William Riddle, former mayor and Atlantic City's largest individual tax payer, was today ordered to pay taxes on an assessment of $1,200 for a set of platinum false teeth by a ruling of the Atlantic county board of taxation.

The former mayor was protesting against an assessment of $958,000 on board walk property when in the heat of the argument he removed the glittering molars.

"I move you, Mr. President," said Walter Melwitt, an Atlantic City assessor, "that we assess the teeth at $1,200."

The question of jurisdiction arose as the former mayor is now a resident of Ventnor City. The board adjourned to think it over and after a recess decided that Atlantic City was entitled to the assessment since the teeth had been found here.

I. C. C. Refuses To Change Grain Rates

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—An order refusing to disturb the existing relationship of grain rates to Gulf ports from Southwestern territory was entered today by the interstate commerce commission which denied a petition of the New Orleans joint traffic bureau.

The New Orleans plea was based on the contention that in fixing Gulf grain rates in June 1925 the commission had unjustly favored Texas ports which were competing for the traffic. A reconsideration was asked by New Orleans on these grounds.

The saddest words of tongue or pen are "Mother, when does school begin?"

Merger Hearings To Be Held At Dallas

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Hearings on Southwestern railroad consolidation proposals will be begun by the interstate commerce commission on September 28 at Dallas.

At that time applications of the Kansas City Southern to take over the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and the association application of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas to take over the St. Louis Southwestern will be the subject of discussion.

The two applications were put forward by railroad interests led by L. F. Loree and involve extensive groupings of major Southwestern railroads.

Finance Director Mahaffie of the commission will conduct the hearings. It takes only the other one to start a fight.
