Commissioners OK in principle road land buying

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland County commissioners Monday agreed in principle to purchase 100 per cent of the right-of-way for the proposed north loop road and northern road to Odessa.

The commissioners approved unanimously a motion by Durwood Wright for "the 100 per cent concept to the extent we are legally able to commit the county."

County Judge Barbara Culver said the court could not bind future courts, and it is possible that new court members might be in office before purchase is completed. Also, she said, the county court could not make an absolute purchase commitment because funding might not be available.

Judge Culver said the county will put high priority on the right-of-way purchase. "It's very likely we can get the entire right-of-way," she said.

Judge Culver and all four commissioners plan to attend a hearing in Austin June 30 on the proposed routes.

Also at Monday's meeting, the commissioners agreed not to expand their application for federal housing assistance.

The county is applying for a $21,000 community development grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. But those funds are committed to the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center.

Since the application for 17 units of owner rehabilitation and rental assistance which was included in this year's application did not receive funding, Judge Culver said, the county will reapply for those units.

But, the commissioners agreed, they would not apply for more units.

Jerry Tschauner, director of planning for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, said HUD may reject the application because of the small amount of money requested, but the county could then re-examine its position.

Commissioners said the amount of money available is so small that it would be likely that little would be available for actual assistance after administrative costs were paid.

The commissioners also passed a resolution opposing an Ector County request for a permit from the Texas Water Quality Board to dump additional water into Monahans Draw in Midland County.

Ector County has applied for a permit to build a new sewer treatment plant in Midland County which would involve dumping five to six million gallons of water into the draw, in addition to the approximately five million gallons per day discharged into the draw now.

Commissioner Winn Brown, who proposed the resolution, said he is opposed to Ector County dumping the treated water, which he said is sewer effluent, into the draw. "Let them keep their crap," he said.

The commissioners approved a resolution authorizing Judge Culver to enter into an agreement with the Texas Commission on Alcoholism to conduct an education program for driving while intoxicated first offenders.

They also approved a subcontract with Midland College which actually will run the program, at a cost of up to $5,464.

Judge Culver said it will be a condition of probation for first offenders to attend four education sessions.

In other business Monday, the commissioners agreed to submit an application through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for law enforcement equipment for the sheriff's department. The commissioners, however, said they could not remember exactly what equipment had been requested by Midland Sheriff Dallas Smith.

Also Monday, Katherine Shriver, representing two senior citizens groups, requested that the commissioners consider raising the homestead ad valorem tax exemption for senior citizens from $3,000 to $10,000.

She said that increase would cause the county to lose $17,650 in tax revenue next year.

Judge Culver said the county's 32 per cent assessment rate would mean that with a $10,000 exemption rate persons with houses worth up to $31,500 would pay no county taxes.

The commissioners took no action on the request.

Last inmate on the loose recaptured

By MATT YANCEY

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN,Tenn. (AP) — The last of the inmates who fled maximum security Brushy Mountain State Prison with convicted assassin James Earl Ray was recaptured today, authorities announced.

A Tennessee corrections department spokesman said no details were immediately available on how Douglas Shelton, 32, was apprehended. But guards had been concentrating their search for him in the area where Ray and Ray's cellmate, Earl Hill, were seized late Sunday and early Monday.

Shelton worked on the prison's plumbing gang and is believed responsible for the makeshift pipe ladder used by the seven inmates to crawl over the wall. His capture keeps intact Brushy Mountain's record for allowing no succesful escape.

Ray, meanwhile, was back in custody but not talking. Authorities said he, Shelton and Hill apparently spent weeks planning last Friday's break.

"As far as the escape, we feel at this time that we are looking at Doug Shelton, James Earl Ray and Earl Hill, initially," said Warden Stonney Lane. "We know it's well-planned because of the ladder."

Ray, confessed slayer of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., and his former cellmate Hill are sharing a cell again in the prison's maximum security "D block" because of temporary overcrowding, officials said.

They were tracked down by bloodhounds and captured within hours of each other late Sunday and early Monday in the New River section of Anderson County, a snake-infested wooded area about five miles from here.

One prison spokesman said that when Ray was asked what he had been doing between the escape and his discovery Monday by a bloodhound named Sandy, he replied: "Nothing."

James Earl Ray

Asked if Ray was being hostile or difficult, Lane said, "He's not being different than he usually is." The warden added that Ray refused an examination by a medic upon his return, but said he was looked over for possible snakebites or other apparent injuries.

Two investigators from the House Assassinations Committee, investigating King's death, talked with prison officials for more than three hours Monday about the escape.

Ray remained silent.

"We came to the conclusion while bringing him in that any interrogation of Mr. Ray would be futile," Lane said. "He just wouldn't say anything."

Lane said the congressional investigators — Deputy Chief Counsel Robert Lehner and Edward Evans, head of the subcommittee staff for the King half of the panel's probe — had asked to talk with Ray. But he said a decision on a meeting will be up to Ray and his attorney.

Briscoe raps government

By JOE SALMAN

SAN ANTONIO — The government of the United States is the biggest culprit in the nation in holding back energy production, Gov. Dolph Briscoe charged in San Antonio this morning.

"I went to Washington yesterday to testify before Sen. Henry Jackson's committee and the question of holding back production was discussed," the governor said.

"I invited Jackson and repeated my invitation to energy adviser James Schlesinger for them to come to Texas and examine our production situation," he told members of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association who ended their three-day annual meeting today.

Briscoe said the government controls lands that hold 50 per cent of the nation's energy reserves but only 10 per cent of the nation's energy was produced from those lands last year.

"If there is to be an investigation into the holding back of production, it should start with an investigation of the government," the governor said. "And the investigation also should be centered in those states that are doing nothing to produce energy for this country. Those are the areas that are holding back."

He reminded his listeners that Texas alone has produced one third of all the energy used in the history of the United States.

Briscoe said the current battle going on in Washington in energy is really a philosophical battle, a battle that is winnable by Texas and other producing states.

"The outcome of the legislation being determined now in Washington will be decided by the people," the governor said.

Briscoe said there is a growing awareness in Congress that energy is the greatest problem facing this nation and largely will determine the nation's economy and the way of life for its people.

"There are several encouraging things happening. The more the people dig into this energy situation the more they find how serious it is," Briscoe said.

Briscoe said the basic philosophy of the government is a "can't do" philosophy, a philosophy that we should give up on finding more oil and gas and to share those scarce com-

First day back in office abruptly ends vacation

The vacation's over.

"Glad to be back?" comes the perennial question from a fellow at work. The cheek is full with a fat tongue.

Pause.

"Yeah, I guess so," you answer with a reply that's less than notable. It rarely hurts to be casual about some things.

Anyway, you have little choice but to come back. There's work to be done, and you just happen to like your job a whole bunch. A helluva lot.

Besides, you have a stock reason for working. Most everybody does. It keeps the bills paid, or, at least, it tends to keep the creditors at bay. You're able to hold onto the basic necessities of life and to garner a few luxuries.

Of course, the list of "necessities" is forever lengthening, or so it seems, and luxuries become fewer and fewer.

But you know that that really isn't so. You could get by with the bare basics IF you absolutely had to. Few of us do, fortunately or not. Most in the good ol' U.S. of A. are blessed with some degree of affluence and are spoiled but not rottenly . . . maybe.

For whatever reason (from pride to security) work appeals to you, may it put drudgery to shame.

So, it's all over — the vacation, that is. And, in time, there'll be more leisure and lazing-around moments to savor.

It can also be a time to reflect.

'Magnificent Seven' becomes first 400-mile relay team

By RICHIE REECER

As a weary Jay Quintana climbed out of the City of Midland Swim Team pool at noon Monday, he was greeted with cheers and applause from spectators and fellow members of the "Magnificent Seven" relay team gathered at the south end of the pool to await his finish.

Quintana, 18, had just completed the final one-hour shift of a seven-day marathon swim that netted the City of Midland Swim Team four world records.

The final record, the one Quintana had just completed, established a mark for the longest continuous swim by a seven-member relay team. The team swam continuously for seven days.

The relay team, nicknamed the "Magnificent Seven" by fellow swimmers, beat the previous record by about 24 hours. During the seven-day period, the team swam 436 miles, 900 yards. No relay team had ever before reached the 400-mile mark.

The team set a total of four world records during the week. In addition to the seven-day marathon record, they set records for the most distance covered in a 24-hour period, the fastest 100-mile swim by a 20-member team, and the fastest

Flood lights patrol camp after killings

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Harsh flood lights powered by thumping portable generators lit a 610-acre campground as officers searched through the night for clues in the murder of three young Girl Scouts.

"We've got a maniac somewhere around," said Waynes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver Monday. "This thing is horrible, it's the work of a demented person."

The night before, in contrast, was dark and silent as 180 Scouts began a week-long outing at Camp Scott, an isolated retreat about 45 miles east of Tulsa.

According to camp director Barbara Day, no one reported hearing anything unusual between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m., the time authorities believe a lone assailant beat and strangled the girls, then dragged their nude bodies in blood-soaked sleeping bags to the intersection of two dirt roads 150 yards away.

But a newspaper reporter said he overheard scouts telling others Monday that they had heard screams at about 3 a.m.

A camp worker said in response to the report that girls "often hear things and scream and giggle" during the first night of an outing.

Michelle Guse, 9, and Lori Lee Farmer, who would have celebrated her 9th birthday on Saturday, were apparently killed by blows to the head, authorities said. Doris Denise Milner, 10, was apparently strangled by a length of cord, her cries probably muffled by a towel found alongside her body. Her hands were bound behind her back with adhesive tape, one investigator said.

"Apparently, from viewing the scene and the bodies, the little girls were beaten to death," said Ted Lempke, a state investigator. "There is also some evidence of sexual molestation of at least one of the girls."

Autopsies were scheduled to determine the exact cause of death of the trio, who had been sleeping in a 12-by-14-foot tent pitched in a wooded area after arriving at the camp on Sunday.

Police said the tent was 150 yards from one in which four camp counselors slept.

Castro releases ten Americans from jail

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ten Americans jailed in Cuba on drug charges have been freed and flown home, leaving 20 Americans still known to be in Fidel Castro's prisons.

The 10, set free by President Castro amid improving relations between the longtime enemy neighbors, arrived in Mexico City Sunday night aboard a Mexican commercial flight from Havana.

The U.S. Embassy said the Americans flew on to their homes Monday on various flights. The embassy said they refused to allow release of their names.

The State Department said six of those freed were arrested in 1975 on drug charges and were serving terms of three to seven years. It said the other four were arrested this year on drug charges but had not been sentenced.

When the United States and the Castro government agreed June 3 to establish lower-level diplomatic missions in each other's capitals, Cuba said it would review the cases of the American prisoners.

The State Department said release of the 10 "was not part of a deal," but officials said the remaining American prisoners would be a prime concern of the U.S. diplomats who are to be stationed in Havana this summer.

Seven of the remaining Americans are held on political charges.

President Eisenhower broke diplomatic relations between the United States and Cuba in early 1961, just before he left office. President Carter told a news conference Monday there was "no immediate prospect" for resuming full diplomatic relations.

One of the freed prisoners, Albert Polange, arrived in New York Monday night and told reporters he lost 25 pounds during his first three weeks in captivity.

Polange said he and several companions were arrested after a plane he was flying developed electrical problems.

"We flew into their airspace and they sent planes up after us," he said.

He said he and his companions were "charged with everything," sentenced to eight years in prison and fined $6,000. He said he had a Cuban lawyer but was not allowed to enter a plea.

Moluccan rites today

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccans from other communities converged on Assen today for the funeral of the six terrorists killed last weekend when government forces stormed the train on which the extremists held 51 hostages.

There were reports that several bus companies refused to accept charters from Moluccan groups wanting to attend the rites. But sources in the local Moluccan community said as many as 5,000 of the 40,000 South Moluccans living in Holland were expected.

A memorial service was to be held at the Moluccan Evangelical Church. Then the bodies of the six men and one woman were to be buried in a single plot on the southern outskirts of Assen.

Police said they were taking special precautions against violence by the Moluccans or by local Dutch in retaliation for the twin 20-day sieges of the train and the Bovensmilde elementary school.

Members of the Assen and Bovensmilde Moluccan communities carried the coffins of the terrorists through the streets to the church Monday for another memorial service.

The coffins were covered with the flag of the phantom South Moluccan republic, and loud, continuous wailing came from the homes of the dead. The Moluccans blocked the streets leading into their quarter with automobiles, and there was no violence.

Six other terrorists who were captured are being questioned, and a seventh who was wounded is in serious condition. The assault by Dutch forces early Saturday freed 49 hostages from the train and four from the schoolhouse.

The other two hostages on the train were killed. The Justice Ministry said it expected to know by midweek, after autopsy reports and ballistic studies, whether bullets from the marines or the terrorists were responsible.

Premier Joop den Uyl and Justice Minister Andries van Agt, the leaders of the country's two largest political parties, were to make a preliminary report to Parliament today.

Russia detaining U.S. newsman

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today banned correspondent Robert C. Toth of The Los Angeles Times from leaving the country, saying he is being investigated for "the collection of secret information," the U.S. Embassy reported.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry handed an embassy official a note charging that Toth "has been engaged in activities incompatible with the status of a foreign journalist accredited to the U.S.S.R., that is, with the collection of secret information of a political and military character.

"Toth will be summoned for interrogation by the investigative organs in connection with which his departure from Moscow until the end of the investigation is not desired," the note said.

Toth said he received a telephone call summoning him to an interrogation office at Lefortovo Prison later today.

Oil industry backers pushing

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of legislation to remove price controls from natural gas, having won a preliminary victory before a House subcommittee, stepped up their attack in the Senate today on the Carter administration's plan for continued regulation.

As White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger sought to defend the Carter plan before a House panel, the Senate Energy Committee was considering a rival plan to deregulate newly drilled natural gas.

The Senate voted 58 to 32 in 1975 for a form of natural gas deregulation similar to that approved last week by the energy and power subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee. Schlesinger's appearance before the committee's investigations subcommittee is part of the administration's effort to have the full committee reverse last week's deregulation vote.

The investigations panel also wants to ask Schlesinger about a new congressional study which says the administration overestimated the number of plants that would switch from oil or natural gas to coal under the energy plan.

Today, the authors of the 1975 deregulation legislation, along with industry advocates of deregulation, called for Senate rejection of the Carter administration propoal to extend gas price controls to unregulated markets in gas-producing states. The administration contends that deregulation would send utility bills soaring for consumers who rely on natural gas.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and James B. Pearson, R-Kans., told the Senate Energy Committee their bill, calling for lifting price controls on newly drilled gas, would be the only way to protect the nation against gas shortages such as those of last winter.

Pearson said adopting the administration proposal for continued regulation would only lead to further shortages.

And Bentsen said Carter's plan "fails to address the central concern — we have significant potential natural gas reserves that could be exploited economically if the price of new gas is deregulated."

Bentsen said he would support an amendment to the bill that would guarantee that price increases to consumers resulting from deregulation would be incremental, in small steps over a period of years.

There is wide support in the Senate for the kind of approach advocated by Bensten and Pearson.

Former Federal Power Commission Chairman Lee C. White urged the Senate panel to reject both the administration and Bentsen-Pearson bills and approve instead a completely new formula for natural gas pricing.

Testifying as chairman of the energy policy task force of the Consumer Federation of America, White said the new formula should peg gas prices to the cost of producing the fuel. He recommended that producers be limited to a return on their investment of not more than 18 per cent.

This would result in lower prices to consumers than under either the administration approach or under deregulation, while assuring energy companies of a modest profit, White claimed.

But industry witnesses urged approval of the Bentsen-Pearson bill.

Meanwhile, in the House Ways and Means Committee today, the Carter administration described as a "ripoff" a proposal by some congressmen to provide a big, new tax benefit for oil producers.

Several oil state representatives offered the provision as the committee debated Carter's plan to force energy conservation with a tax that would raise domestic oil prices to the world market level and increase the cost of gasoline by about eight cents per gallon.

Under Carter's plan, most of the tax would be rebated, first to buyers of home heating oil and then on an across-the-board basis to virtually all Americans. By 1980, the rebate would be about $45 per person.

Backers of the oil industry, contending the money should be poured back into energy production, proposed that a big share of the tax be given to oil producers even though they would not pay the tax at all.

Laurence Woodworth, assistant Treasury secretary for tax policy, said the President considers that proposal "a rip-off of the American people and wholly unjustified."

Carter told a news conference Monday that despite the rising number of setbacks he still hopes the bulk of his energy program will pass.

House committees already have turned down his plan for a tax of up to 50 cents per gallon on gasoline, his proposed taxes on cars that fail to meet gasoline mileage standards and proposed rebates to people who buy cars that get good gas mileage.

At Monday's news conference, Carter said he doesn't feel the negative votes on his program reflect ineffective White House lobbying, despite some congressional criticism of his techniques.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said Monday that Carter "has a serious problem with Congress" because he is not paying enough attention to congressional leaders.

Clark's judicial contributions noted by chief justice, others

The Washington Post

Tom C. Clark, 77, a gregarious, hard-working Texan who served as a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court for 18 years, died in his sleep Sunday in New York at the home of his son, Ramsey Clark.

Justice Clark stepped down from the high court in 1967 to avoid any appearance of conflict of interest when his son was appointed attorney general by President Johnson. Justice Clark also had been attorney general.

Since leaving the Supreme Court, to which he was named in 1949 by President Truman, Justice Clark continued to lead an active life, sitting on cases in various U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeal throughout the country.

He was in New York for an appeals court hearing when he died. The cause of death was not immediately announced.

In a statement describing Justice Clark as "unique in the annals of this court and the judiciary," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger noted that Tom Clark was the only man ever to sit as a judge in each of the 11 U.S. judicial circuits.

In addition, Justice Clark also became in 1968 the first director of the Federal Judicial Center, which was established to improve the administration of justice.

Even before leaving the high court, he had begun to travel widely, working with lawyers and judges in behalf of this cause, and both Burger and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell took note of this Monday.

"No one in the past 30 years has contributed more to the improvement of justice than Tom Clark," the chief justice said. Bell called Justice Clark's endeavors in this area "without equal."

Tall and genial, with a broad grin frequently breaking out above an ever-present bow-tie, Justice Clark was depicted by one writer as "the traveling salesman of Justice."

As a sitting justice, students of the court described Clark as generally conservative.

300-mile swim.

After completing the final shift, Quintana said he was "pretty happy it's over."

Quintana said his primary thought during the final lap of the pool was, "Now I can go to bed."

Coach Doug Ingram said he was "extremely proud" of his team. "It was quite a challenge, and they have met it," he said.

Ingram said the event helped strengthen the team unity, and has given them much pride and confidence.

The "Magnificent Seven" said their first priority was to get some sleep.

The relay team gathered in the pool office after the week-long swim to joke with each other and talk with the news media. All appeared to be very tired after a week of swimming and semi-sleeping, but none seemed ready to get his much-needed rest. The excitement of the moment apparently served as strong stimulant to keep the group awake just a few more hours.

One of the seven jokingly suggested having an all-night party to celebrate their triumph.

Clay Spears, 16, and Curt Buthman, 17, said they played with a frisbee and slept during their free time.

Buthman also attended Midland College, where he is enrolled in summer school.

Phil Pelligrino, 20, another of the seven, said he tried to eat and sleep during his six-hour free time periods between swimming shifts.

Sid Glenn, 17, another member of the team, has been working five hours a day during the past week, between swimming shifts.

Jeff Lambeth, 16, of Odessa said he just slept and ate between shifts, but he admitted he didn't sleep very much.

Brad Swendig, 19, also attended Midland College during his free time, in addition to sleeping and eating.

Parents of some of the relay team members said the event did not upset their daily routine a great deal. "We're used to having swimmers disturb our schedules," said one mother.

"I think it's wonderful that they broke the records," said Jenny Glenn, mother of Sid Glenn. Mrs. Glenn said she got plenty of sleep, but her family experienced "funny hours eating."

Dorothy Buthman, mother of Curt Buthman, said her biggest hazard during the week was that of "juggling cars" to accomodate her son's needs.

Mrs. Buthman said her son, as well as most of the other team members, stayed at the pool most of the week to encourage the other swimmers.

Parents of swim team members who answered the telephone at the pool proclaimed, "City of Midland pool, home of the world champion swim team!" And the phone has been ringing quite a bit during the past week.

In addition to heavy local and area coverage of the event, the story has been carried by the wire services.

In response to the widespread publicity, many local businesses have given food and drinks to the team.

The City of Midland Swim Team members will get only a short vacation from the pool. They are scheduled to begin training this afternoon for the AAU national swimming championships in August in California.

Concerning the question of whether he would participate in another event such as this one, Ingram said, "If someone breaks these records, we'll go after them again."

Mercury hits 102 degrees

Midlanders donned summer garb, ran through sprinklers and operated air conditioners at full blast Monday to escape the heat that reached to 102-degree mark.

The weatherman predicts more of the same for tomorrow, but the sweltering heat may be broken with rain tonight.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said there is a 20 per cent chance of thunderstorms tonight. The low tonight should be in the mid-60s, but the high Wednesday should be near 100.

Winds tonight are expected to be from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph.

Rape crisis center being planned

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

ODESSA—Plans for a rape crisis center to serve the Midland-Odessa area began Monday in a meeting at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Karen V. Duggan, associate director of the Texas Rape Prevention and Control Project, met with UTPB officials to discuss preliminary plans for the rape crisis center.

According to Dr. Clyde Vedder, professor of sociology at UTPB, officials realize the need for such a center because Midland-Odessa is the largest metropolitan area in the state without a rape crisis center. The nearest center is in Lubbock.

During a news conference Thursday afternoon Duggan said centers have been established in cities the size of Waco to Houston to meet the needs of sexual assault victims and to re-educate the public in dealing with rape.

"The reporting of rape cases has increased 300 per cent the first year in cities with rape centers. Most centers encourage the reporting of rapes because they are a felony and are legally a crime against the state," Duggan said.

Most rape victims, she added, are hesitant about reporting the crime because they have fears of law enforcement officials, hospital personnel and the criminal justice system.

The source of funding for such a center is for the community to decide, she said. Some of the state's centers are funded by Criminal Justice Division grants, the city, county, United Way and Mental Health-Mental Retardation Centers, Duggan said.

Duggan recommended that all rape crisis centers have 24-hour telephone hotlines for rape victims.

"The victim experiences trauma or crisis because the sexual assault is an unexpected event. However, a rape is more severe than other crises because of the fear of bodily harm and the reaction of the victim's family."

"They react differently and feel very singled out. There is a very special need for assistance at a time like this," she said.

Duggan also recommended that a rape victim first report the case to the police and then contact a rape crisis center.

However, the combined events of threats of bodily harm, family and friends' reaction, worry about venereal disease and pregnancy may make her hesitate in deciding to report the case.

After the rape is reported to a rape crisis center, Duggan said, a counselor is sent to the victim to help her through the process and continue with her until a resolution is reached or the woman no longer desires help.

Another function of a rape center, Duggan said, is to try to change society's attitude about the crime and the victim.

"People are afraid of the terms 'sexism' and 'women's lib', but there is discrimination against women when society blames them for causing sexual assault," she said.

"If I leave the keys in my car and it is stolen, I will not be blamed for that man's decision to steal the car, even though I may be called any number of names for leaving the keys in the car," she said. "However, in many cases, the woman is blamed by society for causing the rape to happen."

Duggan also said the centers have brought the law enforcement officials' attitude toward a rape victim into a favorable light.

"The media hasn't portrayed the policeman's role in a flattering manner, so women were hesitant in reporting rape cases. They actually treat women very well," she said.

The first rape crisis centers were founded by task forces in the National Organization for Women, she said, and now churches and civic groups have spearheaded the drive to form more centers.

In a telephone interview, Becky Mahan, director of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center, said reports of rape cases have increased in that city by about 50 per cent since the center opened in March, 1975.

"Lubbock has twice the national average of known rapes because of more reporting of the crime by the victims," Mahan said.

The Lubbock Rape Crisis Center is currently operating under a three-year Criminal Justice Division grant, which will end in February, 1978, Mahan said. However, she added, the center has negotiated to be funded by the Lubbock United Way, the city, and the Junior League.

Mahan said she believes the center has helped change the attitudes of Lubbock citizens toward the crime and the victim.

"The number of hung juries in rape cases has declined to where we have a very few now," she said.

Mahan added that the Lubbock Police Department has been very supportive of the center since it began. Rape victims have also said the police were very supportive during the crisis, she said.

Briscoe hits government

modities throughout the nation.

"That is not the spirit of Texas or of the independent producer such as you," said Briscoe.

The governor said Texas has been treated for many years like a colony. "Texas has produced for many years for others under government regulation at a decided economic disadvantage. The government's policies have been unfair to Texas and other producing states."

Briscoe reported to the TIPRO membership on his testimony before Jackson's committee at which time he offered his own plan for solving the nation's energy dilemma.

"We certainly will not achieve our production or consumption goals under the program outlined by President Carter," said Briscoe.

The governor said his plan included the doing away with the President's tax proposals and substituting a tax plan which would include an excess profits tax with plowback provisions. Another part of his plan would be to tone down environmental regulations that would allow those that search for oil and gas a good chance to accomplish their goals.

Briscoe said he also told the committee that there should be a mandate for an acceleration of leasing offshore lands for oil and gas development. He also told the committee that an accelerated program should be undertaken to develop other sources of energy such as shale oil and coal.

The governor said he also told the committee that the faith of the United States must not be permitted to be decided by whether Saudi Arabia is willing to increase its production.

The TIPRO meeting was to end this afternoon with a seminar on political actions committees, with one of the panelists scheduled to be A. V. Jones Jr. of Albany, president of the Independent Oil Producers Association of America.

Transport meeting scheduled

ODESSA — The Policy Advisory Committee for the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study has been scheduled for 2 p.m. on June 22, according to State Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials.

"This meeting, which is to be held at the District Office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Odessa, will be for the purpose of providing an opportunity for the committee to review the transportation planning process that is being utilized in the two-county study area," said Highway Department Public Affairs Officer Charles R. Muery.

The intent of the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study is to provide an overall transportation plan which will permit the most desirable and efficient means of meeting transportation needs of the study area for the next 20 years. Development of a proposed transportation system is being carried on cooperatively by the state and local governmental agencies.

State representative Tom Craddick of Midland is chairman of the policy advisory committee. Other members include State Senator W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock, Rep. John Hoestenbach of Odessa, Rep. Richard C. Slack of Pecos, Ector County Commissioner Salvado Guerrero, Midland County Commissioner Charlie Welch, Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Odessa City Councilman Glenn Brown.

snipped away. The cut wasn't exactly styled truly.

The column gave the impression that Polk is retiring; he is. But not fully. He'll still be cutting and trimming part-time at the westside barber shop that he's selling to a couple of gals.

Polk's regulars may be pleased to know that and to know that there will be an old-line barber amid all those hair stylists performing behind the barber's pole.

Ira Moore, one of Polk's regular barbers, is retiring, and not just to part-time work.

"He's fixing to go out to pasture, I think," said Polk, who was cutting hair and shaving folks as early as 1929. Moore was cutting hair back in 1916.

His other barber, Louis Powell, is going to stick with the business. He started cutting hair 34 years ago.

And the shoe-shine guy, Roy Walker?

"He's going to stay if they'll let him," Polk said. That, he said, seems quite promising.

Walker was shining shoes and boots as early as 1917 in Big D.

Naturally, he has done a lot more between then and now.

Glad you're "back" in business, Roy.

'Keep Beef King'

The nation's cattlemen at long last have an opportunity to launch a nationwjde promotion and research effort which will help insure the future of the beef industry. It is the Beef Market Development Plan.

And the beautiful part of it is that it is not a government program. Rather, it would be strictly a cattlemen's program, financed and directed by those involved in the cattle business.

But beef and dairy cattle producers must put their stamp of approval on a program in a referendum to determine if they want to initiate a national check-off program on beef and dairy cattle, as provided by the Beef Research and Information Act.

Cattlemen across the land will vote in a referendum beginning on July 4 and continuing for two weeks.

First, however, cattle producers must register to vote, and the registration period now is underway. It will continue through Friday of this week, with registration in Midland being done at the local Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Services (ASCS) office in the Federal Building, 200 E. Wall St.

Persons who own or have owned cattle in the last year may register and vote. They can vote as they wish on the proposal, but they by all means should vote — and to do this they first must register.

If the proposition carries by a two-thirds majority in the July balloting, the program will be off and running, so to speak, in the best interests of the cattle producers and the nation. Another requirement is that at least 50 per cent of those who register to vote must cast ballots or the referendum fails.

It is almost unbelievable, but attacks are being made on the cattle industry by some consumer and legislative groups which claim that beef is unhealthy for human consumption.

Beef, as most of us know, is one of life's basic nutrients. It is necessary to our diets, but there are those who persist in saying that beef is dangerous.

The cattlemen themselves must take the lead in combatting these unwarranted, untrue attacks.

Under the plan as proposed, the monies collected would be spent for beef promotion, consumer education, research and the creation of an expanded beef market at home and abroad.

It is an "everyone-pays-a-fair-share" system to finance an overall program to keep "Keep Beef King."

Another strange chapter in this particular story is the fact that the beef industry — the largest single segment of agriculture — is spending the smallest percentage on promotion and education. The Long Island Duck industry spends far more percentage wise. The beef industry has set back long enough, letting others get ahead, and even taking advantage of it. But the coordinated effort as envisioned by advocates of the market plan would put the beef industry back in the position of leadership where it belongs.

It is said that $30 to $40 million are needed annually to finance the program as planned. Funds would be raised on a collection rate of three-tenths of one per cent of sales value. The method and amount of collection, as well as administrative procedures, have been explained to cattlemen at meetings held in counties throughout the cattle country.

It is felt that this is a most worthwhile self-help program.

It definitely is in the public interest to provide an adequate supply of quality beef for the nation's consumers, and beef producers are attempting to fulfill the order. But markets must be maintained and new markets developed in order for the producer to supply beef at reasonable prices. The Beef Market Development Plan merits nationwide support.

All cattle producers are urged to register for and vote in the upcoming referendum.

ART BUCHWALD

President Carter has a talk with Andy Young

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young keeps insisting that no matter what he says publicly, President Carter never mentions it to him. This is hard to believe. Since we have nothing but conjecture to go on, as to what takes place in the Oval Office, we'll have to base this conversation on conjecture.

"Well, Andy, how's it going?"

"Very fine, Mr. President. I'm really enjoying my work. I didn't realize foreign affairs could be this much fun."

"Tell me about it."

"Well, you get to insult anybody you want to."

"Oh?"

"You can't believe how many racists there are in the world. Do you know they have as many racists in Sweden as they do in Queens, N.Y.?"

"That many?"

"Maybe more. Of course, I haven't been to Sweden, and I don't spend too much time in Queens, except to go to the airport — but they're there."

"What seems to be our problem with Sweden, Andy?"

"Nothing, Mr. President. Things are fine with Sweden. At least they were until I called them racists. Now they're all upset."

"I don't see why."

"Of course, they're not as upset as the people in Queens. I didn't mean it the way they took it in Queens."

"How did you mean it?"

"Well, I was trying to make a point about Sweden and I had to compare it to something. My U.N. office overlooks Queens, so I just said Queens. I could have easily mentioned Brooklyn, the Bronx, Manhattan or Staten Island. They're racist, too."

"Is there anything I can do to cool things down in Sweden or Queens?"

"We could probably make it up to Sweden, but I wouldn't give New York another dime."

"Didn't I read somewhere that you called England racist also?"

"Yessir. They are, too. But they took that statement out of context. What I really meant to say was that all of Europe was racist. It's not their fault — that's just the way they are. I think it's America's job to point it out to them."

"Andy, do you believe it's advisable to go around the world and tell everyone they're racists? I know it's important, but it seems to me, and I'm new on the job, that the role of our U.N. ambassador is to make friends — or at least not lose the ones we've already got."

"Lincoln was a racist."

"I didn't know that."

"So were Kennedy, Nixon and Ford."

"But what has that got to do with foreign affairs, Andy?"

"It has a lot to do with Africa."

"But the Africans are mad at you also, Andy."

"Only the racist ones. The black countries have inverse racism there, and when I told them that they didn't like it. That's why I said Cuba was a moderating influence in Angola."

"You haven't said anything about Japan, China or Korea yet."

"I was planning to take a trip there."

"Do you have to?"

"Mr. President, anytime you think I'm not doing my job I'll be very happy to resign."

"I wouldn't want you to do that, Andy. I really wouldn't."

"Why not, sir?"

"If I accepted your resignation, everyone would say I was a racist."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Red-controlled church in U.S.

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Communist-controlled Serbian Orthodox Church, which has become a front for Yugoslavia's notorious secret police, is about to take over the spiritual guidance of 250,000 American parishioners.

A Supreme Court ruling last year will also turn over to the Communist-backed church $5 million worth of religious property in the United States. The court settled a dispute between the mother church in Yugoslavia and an anti-Communist faction in the United States, with a decision in favor of the mother church.

We have now obtained documents and testimony showing that Yugoslavia's UDB, the feared secret police, installed its choice as head of the church in 1958. Authoritative U.S. intelligence sources have told us that priests are cleared and briefed by Communist officials before they are sent to America. Some maybe little better, said our sources, than spies in frocks.

The UDB has also blackmailed and harassed U.S. citizens of Serbian discent. Similar charges have led to a Senate investigation of Chile's DINA, Iran's SAVAK, Russia's KGB and South Korea's KCIA.

The chilling story of the Communist takeover of the Serbian Orthodox Church in Belgrade is told in secret FBI memos and intelligence reports. These documents also describe an ugly campaign to discredit the anti-Communist leader of the church in the United States, with contrived evidence about his alleged love life.

According to the testimony, the UDB sought to subvert the church in 1958 by installing Bishop German, a charming but cunning prelate, as the new patriarch. The secret police needed the vote of Father Makarije, head of Yugoslavia's famed Dechani monastery, to make it look legitimate.

The courageous cleric was convenient to locate; he had been thrown in prison for refusing to compromise his religious beliefs. Shortly before the vote on the new patriarch, as one eyewitness described it, a carload of UDB agents roared up to the monastery and demanded Father Makarije's ceremonial vestments. Frightened priests surrendered the sacred articles to the secret police.

Broken by mistreatment, the jailed Makarije obediently dressed in his formal cassock and donned the vestments. Then he was hustled from prison to participate in the voting. He followed the UDB's orders and voted for its candidate, Bishop German.

But afterward, an anguished Makarije returned to the monastery and tearfully produced 200,000 dinars (about $666) that the UDB had paid him for his vote. "I feel like Judas," he cried. He tried unsuccessfully to give the money away to his fellow monks.

Four years after the patriarch had consolidated his hold on the church in Yugoslavia, the secret police turned their attention to the United States and began a backstage effort to oust the presiding authority, Bishop Dionisije.

The FBI learned about the plot from a confidential source, whom we have now identified as an important UDB official. Reported a secret FBI memo: "Efforts have been undertaken by representatives of the Uprava Drzavne Bezbednosti (UDB) in Belgrade to discredit Bishop Dionisije, head of the Serbian Orthodox Church in the U.S."

A secret cable from the Yugoslav authorities to their embassy in Washington, describing a blackmail plot against this bishop, was intercepted by U.S. intelligence. The cable was translated and paraphrased in a secret U.S. report, which we have obtained.

The Yugoslav embassy was put on notice that "efforts to discredit Dionisije will be undertaken during the immediate future as the Church Council is scheduled to meet during May, 1963." The embassy was cautioned to treat the plot "in a very top secret fashion."

Coded messages were flashed from Belgrade to Yugoslav diplomatic posts throughout the United States to "get Dionisije." According to the intercepted cables, they were instructed to seek blackmail information, particularly about his love life. They were even encouraged to make off with a lawyer's files "to obtain the archives...to discredit Dionisije." The bishop's household staff was also supposed to be investigated.

Back came the responses. The Chicago consulate mistakenly reported that an emissary was on the way to Belgrade with a petition from Serbian priests who had agreed to cooperate in destroying Dionisije's reputation. The San Francisco consulate reported it had "obtained some material regarding Dionisije" and expected "to obtain additional information" from two priests.

Another FBI report revealed that the Belgrade church had also dispatched "three bishops to the United States...to gather evidence against Bishop Dionisije."

The defamation campaign succeeded in souring many loyal Americans against the anti-Communist bishop who, apparently, was vulnerable to some minor charges. In the end, the Belgrade church defrocked Dionisije and began sending over priests approved by the UDB to serve in U.S. parishes. The Supreme Court resolved the ensuing court battle in favor of the Communist-backed church.

NICK THIMMESCH

Democrats putting Republican fish in Korean nets?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — There is an incipient major scandal in this capital, and it probably involves Democrats for the most part. Since this town's power levers are in Democratic hands, do you think they will use them to hurt their own? Where political power is at stake, motives must always be questioned.

The scandal, of course, is the "South Korean connection" — the dispensing of money and favors to congressmen and others in return for preferred treatment for South Korea. Enough of it has surfaced that, in this era of showcase moralism, investigations cannot be avoided as they were, say, in the Bobby Baker days.

The investigators' net cannot be kept in the boat, but there are signs that this week the fishermen want to make sure that some Republican species are caught as well as Democrat. The signs were front-page stories leaked to the headliner papers — the New York Times and The Washington Post.

The Times reports, in essence, that the Justice Department (dominated by Democrats) is trying to determine whether top officials in the Nixon and Ford Administrations deliberately covered up illegal lobbying by the South Koreans. The Republicans named in this story included Richard Kleindienst, William Timmons, Melvin R. Laird and William Saxbe. Lesser figures were also named, but the gist was that the South Koreans wanted to cover all bases, and Republicans did hold a measure of power, didn't they?

Bam, the next day, The Post revealed that in secret session the House ethics committee voted to subpoena four officials who served in the Ford Administration to determine whether that government knew about congressmen accepting improper gifts from South Korea.

The officials, according to The Post, are Lawrence S. Eagleburger, Henry Kissinger's right arm at the State Department, and who was sworn in as ambassador to Yugoslavia last week; Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who ran the National Security Council (NSC); Robert G. Hyland, a veteran NSC staffer, and Juanita M. Moody, who supervised the monitoring of international communications, meaning that she would know if the Ford Administration knew about such payoffs.

Prosecutors always try to work on functionaries first before going to the top. The top officials involved here are Kissinger and former CIA Director Richard Helms.

Now why would the committee want to get at them? Because there was a report that Kissinger and Helms, who are comrades, wanted to stop a House investigation by the celebrated Pike committee, which could have disclosed damaging information about them.

And how would Kissinger and Helms stop it? By threatening to leak the names of congressmen they knew — through intelligence reports — were taking illegal gifts from the South Koreans. Pike and some of his staffers believe that Kissinger and Helms passed the word to the House leadership that if the investigation hurt these two officials, there would be a massive leak of derogatory information about a "South Korean connection" to Speaker Carl Albert's office and other prominent Democrats as well.

Well, the investigation went forward, and there was a time when the committee, headed by Otis Pike, a highly independent Democrat, gave Kissinger holy hell and voted to cite him for contempt of Congress. President Ford saved Kissinger by invoking executive privilege, and Pike backed down.

Meanwhile, Eagleburger and Hyland were pressuring the White House to push Congress, in the name of national security, not to make the Pike report public. Actually, as the leaked publication of the report in the Village Voice showed, the report only made Kissinger look like a devious liar and made Helms look like less than a Boy Scout.

Defenders of Kissinger and Helms deny any blackmail attempts, while acknowledging the officials used legitimate means to argue against publication of the Pike report.

But the credibility of the blackmail attempt was enough that Pike and 10 members of his committee, including Republicans, wrote Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell on March 15, 1977, asking him to investigate the matter.

Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill claims the furor over alleged payments to Democratic congressmen is blown out of proportion, and that the ethics committee investigation will be thorough and fair. Maybe so.

There is a great challenge to Jimmy Carter and his friend, the attorney general, to pursue this investigation, because some of the names which have surfaced are powerful Democrats such as Speaker O'Neill, for whom Tong Sun Park once gave a huge party; House whip John Brademas, recipient of $5,150 in "legal" contributions from Tong Sun Park; John McFall, once House whip, and former Speaker Albert himself.

At a time when John N. Mitchell and H.R. Haldeman prepare to enter federal prison, it would seem that some moral balance might be sought in Washington, but anybody who believes that Democrats will pursue that is an ass.

Soviets claim model human rights policies

By SETH MYDANS

MOSCOW (AP) —The Soviet Union offers the world a vivid example of true human rights, according to its official press, guaranteeing its citizens the rights to work, to housing, to medical care, to old-age assistance and to rest and leisure.

The official press claims it isn't that way in the United States where, it charges, millions of Americans are denied basic human rights.

For those who "safeguard the interests of the Soviet state," the Soviet constitution promises freedom of speech, of privacy, of assembly, of legal redress and of the press.

Only in the West, which has serious human rights problems of its own, is a hypocritical storm being raised tabout "repressions" in the Soviet Union, according to the Kremlin view.

This Western campaign is said to center on a handful of dissidents "renegades who represent no one but themselves" — and to be used as a smokescreen to hide the worldwide successes of socialism.

It has become clear from a growing campaign in the Soviet press that this is the tack the U.S.S.R. is taking in response to criticism from the West and from its own dissidents who claim the Kremlin has done little or nothing to comply with the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accords.

At a recent news conference here, 22 dissidents distributed a document to Western correspondents, saying: "It's no secret that the human rights situation in the Soviet Union is bad and that it has not improved since the Helsinki accords were signed."

Because of its sensitivity to criticism from outside — what the official press calls "ideological sabotage" — the Soviet Union has leveled increasingly harsh attacks at Western radio stations that broadcast into Eastern bloc nations.

The Soviet Union has seen President Carter's outspokenness on human rights as a direct propaganda challenge, and has responded vigorously, with thorough coverage of alleged human rights violations in Latin America, southern Africa, Western Europe, Northern Ireland — and the United States itself.

A commentator for the official news Agency Tass said recently, "The hullaballoo raised in the United States is turning into a kind of boomerang, for human rights in American society really constitute a tremendously acute problem, affecting millions of people...

"The Soviet Union has no intention at all to 'rise up' or, rather to sink down to the American level of human rights: it has no intention of introducing the exploitation of man by man, unemployment, social inequality, political gangsterism, discrimination against minorities, etc."

The Soviet Union has published dozens of detailed reports from its correspondents in the United States and elsewhere in an attempt to back up its contention that human rights are widely violated and that the U.S.S.R. is being maliciously singled out.

According to Tass, President Carter "has chosen to keep silent about the hundreds of political prisoners in the U.S.A., the fact that millions of Americans of various nationalities are denied basic human rights — in the first place the right to work — that many civil liberties declared in the U.S. Constitution exist only on paper (and) that spying and wiretapping have become daily practice."

Human rights in the official Soviet view include rights which are not guaranteed in the U.S. Constitution but which are in the U.S.S.R., and which the Soviet Union seeks to fulfill — the rights of social welfare including housing, medical care and work.

"In the Soviet Union people are not persecuted for their views," Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, editorialized recently.

"However, persons engaging in anti-Soviet propaganda designed to subvert or weaken the sociopolitical system established in the U.S.S.R. are held legally responsible under Soviet law.

"This also applies to persons who spread deliberately false information and inventions to the detriment of the Soviet state and social system." Pravda said.

'Uncle Sam' has checkered career

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans celebrating Independence Day look on the bearded, top-hatted Uncle Sam as the benevolent symbol of the country, but he was not always an American hero.

Originally conceived by antiwar protesters, he was born during the War of 1812 and it took nearly 150 years — and World Wars I and II—Before he was given official status by Congress.

The term "Uncle Sam" was first used as an unfriendly nickname for the U.S. government during the War of 1812 by a group of northeasterners who opposed the nation's entry into another war with England, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. It is believed they got the idea for the nickname from the large "U.S." initials that Samuel Wilson, an Army meat inspector and provisioner, used to mark on giant barrels of slated meat.

But it wasn't until the 1830s that "Uncle Sam" first appeared as we know him today— a cartoon representing the U.S. government. Political newspaper cartoons had first pictured him as a young man without a beard, gray hair or top hat of stars and stripes.

Though "Uncle Sam" is 165 years old, he is a mere whipper-snapper compared with another famous gentleman caricature, "John Bull," who is the symbol of Great Britain.

"John Bull" also went through a transition, according to World Book. He came into existence in the 1600s as an uncouth farmer. By the 1800s he was pictured as a distinguished dandy with the Union Jack vest.

While "Uncle Sam" owes his beginning to a war between the United States and England, he won his official place in American history in wars that saw these two countries as allies.

Opening lead — ◇ K

You lead the king of diamonds, and the dummy appears. Dummy and declarer play low diamonds, and partner drops the jack.

What now? Make a plan for the defense before you read on.

Give yourself a bad mark if you lead your other diamond at once. You will get only one trump trick, and South will make his contract.

When partner leads a third diamond (his best defense), South ruffs with a low trump. If you overruff, dummy will win with the ten of trumps; if you discard, South will draw trumps, losing only to the ace.

FORETHOUGHT

At the second trick you must lead the ace of trumps. This takes the ten of trumps out of the dummy. Now lead your low diamond to partner's ace.

When partner then leads a third diamond, South ruffs low, you will overruff; and if South ruffs high, you nine will eventually be good.

You cannot defeat the contract by leading a low trump at the second trick. South would get rid of a diamond on one of dummy's clubs. Only the ace of trumps will stop South cold.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-J853; H-A943; D-K4 C-632. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. If he bids two spades or two hearts, you will raise his suit to three. If he bids two diamonds, denying a major suit of four or more cards, you will bid 2 NT.

Testing slated

A series of hands-on tests, helpful to young people in determining what careers they would enjoy, will be offered at Midland College June 20 through 25 for people living in the Permian Basin.

Administering the tests will be Brenda Holder, senior administrator for Aptitude Inventory Measurement Service of Dallas.

Further information can be obtained by contacting Dr. Elizabeth Robineet, Midland College counselor and AIMS consultant, by visiting the college Administration Building or by calling 684-7851, ext. 123.

Albert injured

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker Carl Albert, slightly injured when knocked to the ground by a hit-and-run driver, was released from McAlester Hospital on Sunday.

Albert, 69, was hospitalized overnight for treatment of cuts and bruises received in the weekend mishap.

Authorities charged Sampson Benjamin, 81, with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident.

Degrees awarded

HUNTSVILLE — Three Midland students and a former Midland resident received degrees from Sam Houston State University during spring commencement ceremonies.

Richard Henry Bell, graduate of Midland High School, received a bachelor of science degree in photography.

Cezanne Lyn Bolen of 2611 Ward Street was awarded a bachelor of science degree in photography.

Lana Gay Largent of 2513 Terrace received a bachelor of business administration in marketing.

Betty Mae Sanders of 3607 Storey was awarded a bachelor of science degree in criminology and correction.

Air Force gal gunnery queen

DENVER (AP) — Linda Minor may be one of the prettiest sergeants in the Air Force, but she has no trouble keeping the male troops in line.

Linda, a former beauty queen, is the small arms marksmanship training instructor at Lowry Air Force Base here, the first Air Force woman to hold the job.

"I picked this job because it was different," she says, "and I did not want to be stuck behind a typewriter. Small arms training is not a job you can look beautiful at all day long, but it's much more enjoyable."

Looking beautiful also is not all that difficult for the Roan Mountain, Tenn., native. She was the 1974 Miss Lackland Air Force Base.

"I'm not out to prove anything to anyone," she says of her job preference. "This is a job that has to be done, and I enjoy doing it."

And her boss agrees. Ray Delk, the range officer, has called her "one of the most outstanding small arms instructors I have seen in my career."

NEW YORK (AP) — American Stock Exchange Noon Index: 115.03 +0.35

Market gain broad

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a broad gain today, thanks to an early wave of buying on the news of a prime rate reduction by New York's Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.54 at 914.94.

Advances outnumbered declines by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After Monday's close of the NYSE, Morgan Guaranty lowered its prime lending rate from 6¾ to 6½ per cent.

The move put a stamp of confirmation on recent evidence of a letup in this spring's upward trend in interest rates.

The Dow climbed about 6 points in the first half hour. After that it pulled back as some traders who had evidently been waiting for an opportune moment to dispose of some stocks sold into the rally.

Twentieth-Century Fox, the most active NYSE issue, was down ⅝ at 20⅞. Analysts said some traders were taking profits in the stock after its sharp runup since late last month, when the Fox film "Star Wars" opened with an impressive boxoffice showing.

The Big Board's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .21 to 54.15. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index tacked on .35 to 115.03.

Volume on the NYSE accelerated to 11.97 million shares over the first two hours from 8.82 million in the comparable period on Monday.

CAB approves plan to help flight service

The Civil Aeronautics Board Monday approved a plan that would greatly improve flight service from the Midland Regional Air Terminal to Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

The decision will allow the airline to drop "grasshopper" stops at Wichita Falls and Lawton, Okla., from the "grasshopper" route that includes Midland-Odessa, and Lubbock before going on to Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

When the new route goes into effect, on about August 1, flights will leave the Midland Air Terminal at 7:20 a.m. and arrive at Oklahoma City at 9 a.m. and Tulsa at 9:50 a.m. Return flights will leave Tulsa at 10:10 a.m. and arrive in Midland at 12:44 p.m., Chuck Logue, regional director, said.

By comparison, the Oklahoma City to Midland run begins at 10:35 a.m. and ends at 1:18 p.m. under the present route.

The old route was the biggest money loser in the Continental Airlines system, having dropped $1 million during operations in 1975 and about $2 million for operatons in 1976," Logue said.

With 50 people a day expected to be on the flight from the Midland-Odessa area, Logue said he was "optimistic" that the flight would at least be able to break even.

To do that however, Logue said more than 63 passengers would be needed daily.

Continental officials anticipate tying the Oklahoma plan in with other airline schedules for good connections to Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, New York City, Washington, D.C., Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Memphis, Nashville, Kansas City and other cities.

The streamlined flight service will begin when Rio Airlines can assume the Wichita Falls-Lawton leg of the trip, a date tentatively set for August 1, Logue said.

Home market soars despite higher costs

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — What are home buyers up to?

Higher prices and perhaps higher mortgage rates, to cite two things. But the housing scenario in general doesn't lend itself to easy answers; it's riddled with mysteries.

One of the riddles is speculation, at a time when speculation seems to be growing dormant in some other areas of the economy.

Fears about interest rates and inflation, for example, have begun to abate in recent days, slowly but positively, as Washington continues to pour out bushel baskets of strong economic indicators.

As a result, a calm seems to be descending on some stock market analysts who had been frightened out of their blue chips for most of the past 16 months by the two leering "I's of inflation and interest rates. They are now beginning to suggest that corporate stocks might benefit from the feeling of equilibrium.

Some of the big banks already have declared they are heartened by some recent economic trends and are proclaiming the imminent return to less inflationary times. Interest rates may rise, they say, but not ominously.

But going against the mood, in a manner far from fully understood, is the housing market.

In May, for the first time in four months, the level of mortgage rates on new homes rose, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported. The rise was small, to 8.96 per cent from 8.94 per cent in April, but the direction's the thing.

Hometown blacks raising defense funds for youth

WAXAHACHIE, Tex. (AP) — At six-foot-five and a bony 155 pounds Oliver Lee Davis was an eye-catcher on the basketball court when he averaged 30 points a game for Dallas Skyline High School.

But when he added four-inch heels, Davis "looked like a monster" on the witness stand, according to the prosecutor whose arguments led to a 99-year sentence for the defendant charged with a sexual attack on an Ellis County jail immate.

In two years Davis, now 19, has gone from professional basketball prospect to the Coffield Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections. Blacks in this town of 15,000 claim Davis is really the victim of racial prejudice.

In March 1975, Davis, whose nickname is "Slim," was tried for an armed robbery he denied committing. Eight months earlier he and three other black men had been arrested for holding up a small grocery store in Waxahachie. Less than $200 was taken and the bandits used a blank pistol.

An all-white jury convicted Davis, despite his claims that he had merely accepted a ride and did not know he was headed for a robbery. Surprisingly though, the Ellis County jurors, who have a reputation for tough sentences, placed Davis on probation.

Assistant prosecutor David Bass said it was the first time an Ellis County jury had recommended a probated sentence in a robbery case.

"They must have thought 'Well, this guy was a little on the fringe of this robbery; he's got a chance to do better, he's got a lot of opportunities, so let's help him'," Bass said.

But those opportunities — including a basketball scholarship to San Jacinto Junior College in Houston — quickly evaporated.

A Davis defense committee pamphlet recalls the incident this way:

"Hey, hey come back here. We've got something else for you."

That "something else" was a sexual abuse charge alleging Davis had participated in the gang-rape of a fellow inmate (the only white) in the Ellis County Jail.

Court records show that the charge had been filed three months earlier, on Jan. 10, a week after the attack was reported. Davis' defense said he had not known about the charge against him until that day in court.

Bass said the five inmates charged in the sexual abuse case were offered five-year sentences in exchange for guilty pleas. Two accepted the offer, charges against two were dropped and Davis went to trial.

PUMPING HER OWN — The new energy "face of America" is demonstrated by Cynthia Rhodes of Chambersburg, Pa., who pumps her own gas at a self-serve island. Millions of Americans who never before stirred from their autos at a service station are now pumping their own, washing their own windows, airing tires and checking their own oil. (AP Wirephoto)

Wellhead crude levy under attack by House

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Friends of the oil industry on the House Ways and Means Committee Monday began moving against another major chunk of President Carter's energy plan — his proposal to raise the price of U.S. crude oil through a tax at the wellhead.

The oil producers have no great objection to the tax. But they want to keep about half of the proceeds instead of passing them all along to the government.

They would do this through what is called a plowback provision. The committee has divided narrowly on plowbacks in th8e past, and Rep. Joe D. Waggonner Jr. (D-La.), a leader of the pro-oil members, predicted the vote would be very close again.

One of Carter's proposals to reduce the use of oil is to impose a three-step tax on the price of domestic crude oil to raise it to last April's world price of about $13.50 per 42-gallon barrel.

The price now ranges from $5.25 to $11.28 depending upon whether it comes from old or new wells. The committee began debating this part of his energy package Monday.

Since the tax's purpose is to conserve oil rather than raise revenue, Carter's plan is to rebate the entire amount of more than $2 billion a year — when fully effective — to taxpayers through rebates and to heating-oil customers through lower bills.

Waggonner and several Republicans and the committee said Monday they will try to change the use of the proceeds to permit perhaps half of it to be given back to producers — if they promise to plow it back into the search and production of oil. Republicans tried in vain to pass this in the fight over oil pricing in the last Congress.

Either proposal would achieve Carter's goal of raising the price of oil tu cut its use, but he is opposed to giving the proceeds back to producers to finance their capital costs.

Last week the committee rejected another Carter plan to cut oil use with a standby tax on gasoline and watered down his plan to tax the purchase of gas-guzzling cars.

Committee staff members said there is a parliamentary problem in taking up a plowback provision because this would take the committee into the area of price controls which is in the jurisdiction of the Commerce Committee. The staff members were told by several representatives to try to find a way.

Earlier Monday the committee refused to earmark revenue from the gas-guzzler tax for mass transit, energy research and bloc grants to states for highway use.

Several members of Congress who indicated that may support it later said it would be premature to earmark the money until the full shape of the tax elements in Carter's energy program is known.

South Plains well testing

A Yoakum County wildcat was pumping oil on production tests and an offset is planned for a Scurry County sector. A Dawson discovery offset also is slated.

Tenneco Oil Co., Oklahoma City, was testing at No. 9 H. A. Hedberg, Yoakum County scheduled San Andres prospector in the Prenice area, five miles northwest of Tokio.

It pumped 19 barrels of oil and 40 barrels of water in 24 hours, through perforations at 5,184-5,265 feet, opposite the San Andres. Testing continued.

Drilled to 5,325 feet, the well is plugged back to 5,293 feet.

Location is 1,325 feet from south and east lines of section 322, block D, J. H. Gibson survey, 2¾ miles northeast of the depleted original San Andres strike.

The discovery, Amoco Production Co. No. 2 N. C. Clanahan, finaled in 1965, for 34 barrels of 28.3-gravity oil daily, through perforations at 5,238-5,294 feet.

SCURRY STEPOUT

Lario Oil & Gas Co., operating from Odessa, filed application to drill No. 4 Schuler as a location west stepout to the four-well Tonto, North (Strawn) field of Scurry County.

It is projected to 7,200 feet, and spots 660 feet from south and 900 feet from east lines of section 443, block 97, H&TC survey, six miles northeast of Snyder.

DAWSON OFFSET

Vaughn Petroleum, Inc., Dallas, staked site for No. 1 O. P. Vogler, a location southwest offset to the recently completed reopener of the Gold Creek (Cisco reef) field of Dawson.

Location for the 9,100-foot test is 2,074 feet from south and 1,974 feet from west lines of section 6, block 34, T-4-N, T&P survey, 10 miles southeast of Lamesa.

Vaughn completed the reopener in April to flow 204 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, through a 3-16-inch choke and perforations at 8,914-8,924 feet.

Crockett gets strike

J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas, has completed the former Texas Oil & Gas Corp. No. 1-A Parker as an Ellenburger gas strike in Crockett County, five miles northwest of Ozona. Suggested pool designation is Parker-Harrell.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 2,025 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 32,185-1, and gravity of the condensate 66.2 degrees.

The well is producing from open hole at 8,757-8,787 feet, after treating the pay zone with 8,000 gallons of acid. It was drilled to 8,800 feet, and has 4½-inch casing set at 8,740 feet. It also tested that open hole section unsuccessfully before plugging back.

Top of the Ellenburger was picked at 8,614 feet, under ground elevation of 2,496 feet.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 77, block GH, GC&SF survey, seven miles west of Ellenburger production in the Ozona, Northeast field.

Two Irion wells final

Two Irion fields gained extensions and a stepout is planned for a Crockett field.

The Dove Creek field of Irion gained a current fourth San Angelo oiler and northwest extension to that pay with completion of No. 9 Winterbotham, eight miles southwest of Knickerbocker.

The 24-hour potential was for 8.5 barrels of 39-gravity oil, and three barrels of water, producing through perforations at 881-890 feet.

It is 180 feet from north line, which is Dove Creek, and 580 feet from east lines of J. C. Brandes survey 786.

The Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp) gas field gained a ⅞-mile south extension on the east side with completion of Esperanza Energy Corp. No. 1-D Sugg, 16 miles north of Barnhart.

It rated a calculated, absolute open flow of 25 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-condensate ratio of 33,147-1. Gravity of the hycrocarbon fluid is 68.4 degrees.

Completion was effected through perforations at 7,472-7,842 feet. The section had been acidized with 1,750 gallons and fractured with 90,200 gallons plus 100,000 pounds of sand.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 39, block 14, H&TC survey.

The test was slated to drill by John H. Hill of Austin.

CROCKETT STEPOUT

Union Oil Co. of California staked site for No. 1-105 Mitchell, a 2,900-foot southwest and north outpost to Ellenburger production in the Crockett part of the JM field, 35 miles southwest of Ozona.

Location is 2,742 feet from south and 1,218 feet from west lines of section 105, block 1, I&GN survey. It has a projected depth of 14,000 feet.

LCRA asks rate hike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission said today it will begin hearing Thursday a request by the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to increase electrical rates eight to 10 per cent.

The hearing originally had been set for Monday before a commission examiner but was postponed in order that it could be heard by the entire three-member commission.

The request is opposed by the 34 cities and 11 electrical cooperatives served by the LCRA.

Commission staff members said the hearing on the $8.9 million request was expected to last for six or seven days.

In addition to seeking permission to increase rates to wholesale and retail customers, LCRA also has asked the commission to trim the size of a rate reduction for retail customers in San Marcos and Kerrville. City councils in those two cities approved cutting LCRA rates by 14 per cent but LCRA wants a cut of only nine per cent.

Discovery reported

ABBEYVILLE, LA. — Diamond Shamrock has announced a significant onshore gas discovery in Vermilion Parish near Abbeyville on the Gulf Coast.

The well, No. 1 D. J. Vincent, was perforated at depths of 15,729-15,740 feet in the Camerina formation and flowed at a rate of 7.4 million cubic feet of gas per day at 9,945 pounds flowing tubing pressure, on an 11/64-inch choke.

TIPRO hears Schmitt call for Congress to use 'common sense'

By JOE SALMAN
Staff Writer

SAN ANTONIO — John J. Christmann of Lubbock was re-elected president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association Monday afternoon at the association's 31st annual meeting in San Antonio.

It was also announced by the TIPRO officials that the 1978 convention will be held in Houston June 4-6.

• ENERGY OIL & GAS •

All other 1976-77 officers were re-elected for another one-year term. They are: George P. Mitchell of Houston, chairman of the board; Shelby D. Pitts of Dallas, secretary; Alan C. Roberts of Fort Worth, treasurer; W. E. Turner of Austin, executive vice president; Julian G. Martin, Austin, research director, and Jim Sewell of Austin, publications director.

One of the vice presidents, John J. Redfern Jr. of Midland, who heads Region 6 headquartered in Midland, is one of more than 20 Midlanders who are attending the convention.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico and one of the Apollo astronauts during the moon exploration program, was the speaker for Tuesday's membership luncheon.

"If President Carter's reference to dealing with the energy crisis is similar to dealing with a war, then the independent operators should be referred to correctly as the shock troops in the war," Schmitt said.

"And, if the actions of those troops are important to a successful energy program, then you must hang in there tough and not give up."

Referring to his experience in the space program, the senator said we found we could do nothing without common sense. "We have gotten away from that philosophy, but I see signs in Washington that the congressmen now are getting back to a common sense approach," he said.

Schmitt said he didn't agree with very much that is in the energy program set forth by the President.

"I especially don't agree that we can have a 5 per cent annual economic growth and a 2 per cent energy use growth. In the past the two have been on almost an identical curve.

"I also don't agree with the negative approach, that approach being that we have very little oil and gas to find and that the answer is conservation." Schmitt, who has a geological background, said he believes that conservation is a fine idea, but there is much more oil and gas to find than the administration would lead the public to believe. But the administration must offer enough incentives to spur a search for that oil and gas.

Schmitt also said that the administration is putting too much emphasis on uranium and other energy sources. "We already know how to find and develop oil and gas fields, but we have much to learn about uranium as a base energy source," he said.

Attending the convention with Redfern from Midland are Cathy Stranathan, R. A. Ward, Jack Young, Wilson Smith, C. E. McKnight, Earl N. Crane Jr., David Farris, Bob Dean, Jack Lent, Earl Davis, Paul Erdman, James E. Trott, Malcolm Able, Dave Lage, Myron Anderson, Foy Boyd, Glenn Brant, Ken Buckles and Ed Thompson, executive secretary of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

During the membership meeting, Harry Heinecke, retired veteran oil editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was given a plaque in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the oil industry through his precise reporting of industry affairs. Heinecke retired last year after more than 20 years as head of that newspaper's oil department.

Winkler probe set

Union Texas Petroleum Corp., operating out of Midland, has staked site for a 19,200-foot Fusselman and Ellenburger wildcat in Winkler County. It is the No. 1-A-21-12 University.

Drillsite is 1,320 feet from south and 2,200 feet from west lines of section 12, block 21, ULS, 1½ mile northwest of Wink. It is also ⅝-mile south of the firm's No. 1-21-12 University which was plugged and abandoned in August 1975 at 15,703 feet.

Menard gets gas strike

Fred G. Brown of Midland finaled No. 1 Bobby R. Sykes, a Strawn gas discovery in Menard County, seven miles northeast of Menard townsite.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was 4.18 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, natural, through perforations at 1,677-1,691 feet.

Drilled to 1,834 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set at 1,S33 feet.

Location is 1,253 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 3, BS&F survey, abstract 137.

Exploration scheduled

Wildcats have been scheduled in Nolan and Menard counties, while a long outpost is planned in an Edwards deep area.

Hadson Ohio Oil Co. of Oklahoma City, has scheduleds a 6,500-foot venture in Nolan, seven miles southeast of Sweetwater. It is No. 1-74 Pior.

Drillsite is 800 feet from north and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 74, block 21, T&P survey, ½ mile northwest of the depleted Ellenburger opener in the Lake Sweetwater field.

MENARD VENTURE

Anadarko Production Co. of Jacksboro, filed application for a 4,500-foot wildcat in Northwest Menard, a southeast offset to its No. 1 J. C. Sorrell, an active wildcat. It is designated No. 1-A J. C. Sorrell.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,260 feet from west lines of section 4, block C, BS&F survey, abstract 724.

It is 20 miles northwest of Menard and 2⅝ miles northwest of the Tuckmar (Cross Cut) gas field.

EDWARDS OUTPOST

Sun Oil Co. intends to drill No. 2 P. J. Babb 11½ miles east of the two-well Hopkins (Ellenburger) gas field and 1½ mile east of the three-well Rocksprings, West (Canyon) gas field in Edwards County.

Location, 1½ mile northwest of Rocksprings townsite, is 1,594 feet from north and 936 feet from west lines of section 45, block 2, abstract 704. Planned depth is 9,000 feet.

UPTON SITE

Holly Energy, Inc., Midland, staked site for No. 3 Amacker as a 1⅝-mile east outpost to Strawn oil production in the Amacker-Tippett field of Upton County.

It is slated to 9,500 feet, and spots 1,980 feet from north and 2,410 feet from west lines of section 87, block D, CCSD&SRGNG survey, seven miles northwest of McCamey.

$25 billion set for lines

HOUSTON — Worldwide pipe line construction expenditures will total $25.4 billion in 1977-78, reports Market Data Book, a publication issued by Pipe Line Industry magazine.

In 1977, spending will reach $12.2 billion, and in 1978 outlays will increase to $13.2 billion.

Nolan project yields gas, oil

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, No. 1 Estaban Fitkin, ⅞ mile southwest of Lovelady No. 1 Shields, lone Ellenburger well in the Estaban field of Nolan County, was bottomed at 6,967 feet, preparing to run another drillstem test after it recovered gas on one test and gas and oil on another.

A two-hour drillstem test in an unidentified section from 5,673-5,687 feet, recovered 2,880 feet of gas in the drillpipe, 40 feet of free 42-gravity oil, 80 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut drilling mud and 100 feet of oil- and gas-cut muddy water.

Another test from 6,890-6,952 feet had no recovery reported, while a test from 6,944-6,952 feet, recovered 676 feet of gas and 352 feet of drilling fluid and a trace of oil, and the packers failed.

The project is 600 feet from north and 1,880 feet from west lines of section 74, block 23, T&P survey, seven miles southeast of Roscoe.

The Estaban field has one Ellenburger well producing at 6,662 feet; two Strawn reef wells producing at 6,272 feet, and three Canyon wells producing at about 6,194 feet.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Gulf No. 1-A Fisher, td 4,589 feet, swabbed eight barrels of fluid, cut 40 per cent oil, in seven hours, through perforations at 4,472-4,502 feet.

Eddy County draws three sites

Eddy County, N.M., drew sites for a wildcat and two field projects.

R. C. Bennett and J. C. Ryan of Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 Penasco Communitized as a 9,000-foot wildcat, two miles northwest of Morrow gas production in the Boyd field.

Drillsite is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 31-18s-25e, 11 miles southwest of Artesia.

Also, Maddox Energy Corp., Midland, filed application for permit to drill No. 1 Torres Communitized, an undesignated Eddy test, one mile north of Morrow gas production in the Atoka field.

Location is 990 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 9-18s-26e, six miles south of Artesia. Planned depth is 9,300 feet.

Holly Energy, Inc., Dallas, No. 7-A W. D. McEntyre is slated as a Morrow test in the Loco Hills field of Eddy, 14 miles southwest of Maljamar.

It is slated to 11,400 feet, and spots 1,650 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 20-17s-30e.

Houston police's reign under review

By TOM CURTIS
Special to The Washington Post

HOUSTON — This is the story of a city police department viewed by some of its critics as the most violent and unchecked force in the United States. Critics have called it a shoot-first-and-ask-questions-later constabulary, many members of which are seen as dispensing brutality and instant justice with abandon and operating virtually without civilian control or fear of legal consequences.

The blue army in question is the 2,766-member Houston Police Department.

Although the view described above is hardly unanimous in this generally conservative "law-and-order" city, the fifth largest in the United States, it is one increasingly held by lawyers, civil libertarians, leaders in the black and Hispanic comunities, and local citizens appalled by a continuing pattern of brute force that might make even producers of television's ferocious cop shows wince.

"We are a police state," Houston's celebrated criminal defense lawyer, Percy Foreman, says simply.

He amplifies: "This is the case here more so than in any other city in the United States, and I've practiced in just about all of them. It even transcends the police state situation that prevails in some of the totalitarian countries.

"You must understand that there is no difference between human nature here in the U.S. and what existed in Germany, or Czechoslovakia, or where have you. The only brake on brutality and sadism and an I-am-the-law attitude, the only brake on that here is the Constitution of the United States.

"If a district attorney elects not to enforce it against police officers, as (is) traditional in Harris County, nothing can be done to turn the situation around."

Foreman has been retained as counsel by the family of Joe Campos Torres, a 23-year-old Chicano first beaten and ultimately drowned on May 6 while allegedly in the custody of six Houston police officers.

According to reports on each officer's involvement in the Torres incident prepared by Police Chief B.G. (Pappy) Bond and released by Houston's Civil Service Commission, six officers took Torres from a bar to a secluded warehouse district, where five of them beat him while his arms were handcuffed behind him.

Later, after a jail booking officer refused to accept Torres and ordered two of the officers to take him to the county hospital for treatment of a bloodied nose and injured leg, the six officers returned to the site of the beating, the chief's report said.

There, the reports continued, one of the officers dumped the drunk and severely beaten Chicano over a 20-foot embankment into a bayou, saying, "Let's see if the wetback can swim."

Lawyers for the fired officers said they would have no comment on the substance of Bond's reports other than to deplore them as prejudicial to their client's rights.

Rather than being an aberration, Foreman says, Torres' alleged murder was merely another expression out of several hundred in a "consistent, repetitive 16-year pattern" of police violence abetted by local district attorneys who have "whitewashed every charge against policemen" before grand juries, thus, he says, emboldening even more police violence.

Even Houston's two-term mayor, Fred Hofheinz, conceded at a news conference 10 days after Torres' death that "there is something loose in this city that is an illness." He described it as "an attitude on the part of a lot of people, including a lot of community leaders (and) people in charge of mass communications ... that whatever a police officer does, its okay."

The result, Hofheinz said, Is "that the police officer goes about the daily duties knowing that he or she has that kind of community protection for whatever they may do, whether it is against the law or not."

In just the 3 1-2 years Hofheinz has been mayor, local grand juries have considered without charges at least 24 cases of police officers who have shot and killed civilians, or who have shot and wounded them.

The first grand jury to indict a policeman during that period did so in April 1977. That officer allegedly had shot a local businessman after the two mens' cars had collided on a local freeway while the officer was off duty. He was indicted for attempted murder.

Among recent police incidents:

—A policewoman and policeman shot a young black, when, they said, he appeared to be pulling a weapon from his pocket. The weapon turned out to be a Bible. The policewoman had fired in such haste that she shot the black man through the windshield of the squad car the officers were riding in. Neither was indicted.

—In February 1977, a policeman shot and killed wealthy attorney Sanford J. Radinsky while executing a search warrant on the room he was sharing with two women at Houston's Rice Rittenhouse Hotel.

School finance proposal drafted

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A new public school finance proposal, giving a bigger break to rural and suburban districts, was drafted over the weekend by "Big Seven" board members.

The big city board members met in Ruidoso, N.M., over the weekend and made a compromise gesture toward rural interests.

Representatives of the Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and El Paso districts attended the meeting. San Antonio was unrepresented.

Copies of the "Big Seven" position paper will go to House Speaker Bill Clayton, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe says he will call a special legislative session when the two chambers can agree in advance on a school finance bill. A predominantly urban coalition of House members blocked final action on school finance in the last 30 minutes of the regular session May 30. The present law would be a financial disaster to many districts if it remains in effect this fall.

In the closing days of the regular legislative session, the "Big Seven" favored basing local costs of the Foundation School Program — the Local Fund Assignment (LFA) — on an average of market values plus the lower agricultural productivity values.

Rural interests, however, would not accept that, and they called the shots in the House.

The latest proposal is a compromise with the House's formula that based LFA on a combination of productivity value of agricultural land, 80 per cent of residential property values and full market value of all other taxable property.

In the coming school year, LFA would be based on the a district's average of full market value and agricultural productivity values as determined by the Governor's Office of Educational Resources.

But in 1977-78, an adjusted figure would come into play, valuing residential property at 60 per cent of its true value, agricultural land on its productivity and everything else on market value.

"It gives urban and suburban areas a little more of a break," said Aubrey Holden of the Texas Association of School Boards.

A 21 cents per $100 value tax rate would be applied against the value figures this fall and a 22 cents rate would be used the following year to determine a district's LFA.

Holden said the position paper also would urge the legislature not to reduce the 180-day school year and to set up a means to avoid evaluating land in the hands of speculators on its agricultural productivity.

Girl's trip may delay parole

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The publicity surrounding nine-year-old Sandy Chandler's lone journey to the White House last week in search of a presidential pardon for her jailed mother could backfire, her mother says.

Sandy, an articulate sixth-grader, broke open her piggy bank and flew alone to Washington last week to ask President Carter to pardon her mother, who is jailed at the minimum security Federal Correctional Institute here.

On Monday, a tearful Patricia Gale Boake sat with Sandy in her lap and said she feared the publicity could have hurt her appeal for a reduced sentence and her parole chances. She said it could even result in a transfer to another prison.

"I hate to discredit what she did, but I don't believe it will do any good," said Mrs. Boake, 42, who is serving a three-year sentence for bond-jumping. "I think with everything that has been going on it has probably hurt the situation."

Mrs. Boake's attorneys, including Percy Foreman of Houston, have filed a motion to have her sentence reduced.

"At lot of it was adverse publicity," she added. "They thought we had set this up, instigated the whole deal. In no way could I have instigated such a trip.

"I was shocked, I couldn't believe it," she said of her daughter's journey.

Sandy left on her own last Tuesday morning after leaving a note to her older sister, Delilah, 20, with whom she lives. Delilah called police, but later Braniff Airlines officials called to tell her Sandy was in Washington.

"But it was all a waste," the tow-headed girl said upon her return. "The only person I did not see was the President. I spent all my money to go to washington and I don't think it was fair that the President did not see me."

"The White House is not going to apologize," special White House assistant Midge Constanza, who met with Sandy, said Monday. "We're sorry it has not been resolved, but there is nothing the President can do."

Mrs. Boake said her sentence stems from a series of incidents dating back to 1969 when the family lived in Arizona. She worked at a beauty college while on probation on a mail fraud conviction.

Mrs. Boake said she was forced to testify before a grand jury in connection with an organized crime investigation, but was charged with perjury by omission after her testimony failed to help convict two men.

The family moved to Calgary, Canada, until 1975, when Mrs. Boake returned to Houston on the advice of her attorneys. The move to Calgary constituted bond-jumping.

A few weeks ago, her daughters moved to Fort Worth to be close to their mother, whom they visit several times a week.

"The kids will probably have to move," Mrs. Boake said. "If they do have complications, Sandy will probably have to go back to Canada and live with her older sister."

Gays gathering for bar protest

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston gay rights activists say they will bring together 4,000 sympathizers Thursday night for a candlelight protest march against singer Anita Bryant, scheduled to sing at the State Bar of Texas convention.

Miss Bryant recently led a successful campaign in Dade County Miami, Fla., to defeat a law that would prohibit job and housing discrimination against gays.

Gibson Gayle Jr., president of the state bar, said Miss Bryant would receive the tightest possible security during her visit to Houston.

"We don't mind marching or practicing any other form of free speech," Gayle said. "No one is going to commit any illegal acts either."

Organizers of the march say they will have their own security monitors to insure the demonstration is peaceful. They said the marchers will not stop at the hotel where Miss Bryant is scheduled to perform but they will march past the hotel.

The protest leaders said about 200 attorneys who will be inside the hotel will wear black arm bands to share in the protest of the marchers outside.

Police said they doubt 4,000 marchers will be available.

Dallas school district leaders will begin donation hunt

DALLAS (AP) — Without even trying, the Dallas Independent School District received almost $300,000 last year in private donations for its "above and beyond programs."

Dallas public school officials say, however, that they're going to start trying — and estimate they could raise up to $4 million per year with a new campaign to solicit such donations.

James Bond, 67, has been named president of the nonprofit Dallas Independent School District's Foundation for Public Eduction, Inc., which will solicit the donations of land and money from Dallas-area citizens.

Colleges have long solicited private funds and the district feels there is no reason why the public schools can't do the same, said Bond, who will be unsalaried.

Rodney Davis, DISD director of information, who said the district received almost $300,000 in private donations last year with no campaign, would use the funds for programs "above and beyond" the district's regular curriculum.

Supt. Nolan Estes has said the campaign could raise up to $4 million per year.

The new campaign may be controversial and such upheaval could kill the foundation, admitted Bond.

"Once the donor gives us the money, unless there are conditions, he has nothing to say, and once we have it we don't have to give it to them (the school board). We won't be afraid of controversies, but if we get into controversial issues or politics, we're dead," Bond said.

"My summer power bill is lower than my neighbor's."

PUMPING HER OWN — The new energy "face of America" is demonstrated by Cynthia Rhodes of Chambersburg, Pa., who pumps her own gas at a self-serve island. Tower advocates non-compromise

SAN ANTONIO — More than 300 members of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association this morning heard U.S. Sen. John Tower of Texas warn the independents against making any compromise on their stand concerning President Carter's energy program.

Speaking at the 31st annual meeting of the association in San Antonio, Tower said, "You must continue your fight for what you know you can achieve — what you know is best for this nation."

Tower used several actions of past Congresses to stress his point.

"As you all know, when the matter of decreasing the depletion allowance from 27 per cent to 22 per cent arrived, you were told that if you would agree to this, you would be left alone. And you all know you were not left alone.

"Then when they wanted to decrease the allowable percentage even lower or get rid of it, they said if you agreed you would be left alone.

"Then the intangibles thing hit you.

"From this history you know you must continue to fight for what you must have," Tower said.

The senator said that he believes that compromise might be okay if there were not alternatives, but that there are alternatives.

He offered a bill that he will present to Congress next week as one of those alternatives. The main part of that bill is a section that would abolish the present composite price mechanism.

Another feature of the bill would put old and new oil, as they are currently defined by legislation, on an upward escalation to bring their price on a par with unregulated new oil as currently defined, by June 1, 1979.

Tower said his bill would immediately deregulate new crude oil, currently defined as that oil discovered on a property after May 31, 1977.

In other salient decontrol areas of the bill, stripper well oil, deep stripper well oil, high-water-ratio production and tertiary oil would be exempt.

His bill proposes a formula for stripper well oil that would take into consideration the depth of production. He proposes that production from 2,000 to 4,000 feet would qualify as stripper production if it made 15 barrels of oil per day or less, and up to 60 barrels for wells to 20,000 feet.

Exemptions for high-water-ratio production would start when a well produces three times more water than oil.

Tower went on to say that these are very critical times for the United States, particularly in the field of energy. "The problems we now face and those we have faced over the years were brought on by the failure of congressmen and presidents to understand the complex economy of the oil industry," he said.

"One thing we should all thank President Carter for is his bringing to attention of the American public that we do have a real energy crisis, and not a crisis contrived by the oil industry."

"I am very optimistic about our chances of getting deregulation of new natural gas, because I see a growing independence of the Congress from the President in this energy battle. However, there still remain in Congress many who have a greater fear of the oilman making a profit than that of the unreliability of Middle East energy sources."

Tower said congressman Robert Krueger's victory in subcommittee last week was a major step in getting deregulation of new natural gas.

Krueger, a Democrat from New Braunfels, followed Tower on the program and explained to the TIPRO members the victory referred to by Tower, which was a 12-10 vote in favor of his amendment which came out of the House energy and power subcommittee.

Krueger credited the success of the subcommittee vote to the intervention of 22 agricultural groups in the form of lobbying for the amendment, and intervention by the iron and steel workers, segments of the auto industry, and the lumbering industry.

"And of course much of the credit goes to the hard work of those independents in the petroleum industry," he said.

Krueger told a receptive audience that "this was the first time in the history of the U.S. Congress that a deregulation bill has gotten out of a subcommittee.

The three-day meeting in the Hilton Palacio del Rio will continue Tuesday when new officers of the association will be elected. The 1976-77 president is John Christmann of Lubbock.

Christmann was honored at a reception Sunday night at which more than 450 persons attended, including many from Midland and other West Texas cities.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will be the speaker at Tuesday's general business session. He will be given TIPRO's highest award for achievement, "The Hat's Off Award."

Eddy County draws three sites

Eddy County, N.M., drew sites for a wildcat and two field projects.

R. C. Bennett and J. C. Ryan of Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 Penasco Communitized as a 9,000-foot wildcat, two miles northwest of Morrow gas production in the Boyd field.

Drillsite is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 31-18s-25e, 11 miles southwest of Artesia.

Also, Maddox Energy Corp., Midland, filed application for permit to drill No. 1 Torres Communitized, an undesignated Eddy test, one mile north of Morrow gas production in the Atoka field.

Location is 990 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 9-18s-26e, six miles south of Artesia. Planned depth is 9,300 feet.

Holly Energy, Inc., Dallas, No. 7-A W. D. McEntyre is slated as a Morrow test in the Loco Hills field of Eddy, 14 miles southwest of Maljamar.

It is slated to 11,400 feet, and spots 1,650 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 20-17s-30e.

Crockett gets strike

J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas, has completed the former Texas Oil & Gas Corp. No. 1-A Parker as an Ellenburger gas strike in Crockett County, five miles northwest of Ozona. Suggested pool designation is Parker-Harrell.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 2.025 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 32,185-1, and gravity of the condensate 66.2 degrees.

The well is producing from open hole at 8,757-8,787 feet, after treating the pay zone with 8,000 gallons of acid. It was drilled to 8,800 feet, and has 4½-inch casing set at 8,740 feet. It also tested that open hole section unsuccessfully before plugging back.

Top of the Ellenburger was picked at 8,614 feet, under ground elevation of 2,496 feet.

Wellsite is 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 77, block GH, GC&SF survey, seven miles west of Ellenburger production in the Ozona, Northeast field.

Exploration scheduled

Wildcats have been scheduled in Nolan and Menard counties, while a long outpost is planned in an Edwards deep area.

Hadson Ohio Oil Co. of Oklahoma City, has scheduleds a 6,500-foot venture in Nolan, seven miles southeast of Sweetwater. It is No. 1-74 Pior.

Drillsite is 800 feet from north and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 74, block 21, T&P survey, ½ mile northwest of the depleted Ellenburger opener in the Lake Sweetwater field.

MENARD VENTURE

Anadarko Production Co. of Jacksboro, filed application for a 4,500-foot wildcat in Northwest Menard, a southeast offset to its No. 1 J. C. Sorrell, an active wildcat. It is designated No. 1-A J. C. Sorrell.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,260 feet from west lines of section 4, block C, BS&F survey, abstract 724.

It is 20 miles northwest of Menard and 2⅝ miles northwest of the Tuckmar (Cross Cut) gas field.

EDWARDS OUTPOST

Sun Oil Co. intends to drill No. 2 P. J. Babb 11½ miles east of the two-well Hopkins (Ellenburger) gas field and 1½ mile east of the three-well Rocksprings, West (Canyon) gas field in Edwards County.

Location, 1½ mile northwest of Rocksprings townsite, is 1,594 feet from north and 936 feet from west lines of section 45, block 2, abstract 704. Planned depth is 9,000 feet.

UPTON SITE

Holly Energy, Inc., Midland, staked site for No. 3 Amacker as a 1⅝-mile east outpost to Strawn oil production in the Amacker-Tippett field of Upton County.

It is slated to 9,500 feet, and spots 1,980 feet from north and 2,410 feet from west lines of section 87, block D, CCSD&SRGNG survey, seven miles northwest of McCamey.

$25 billion set for lines

HOUSTON — Worldwide pipe line construction expenditures will total $25.4 billion in 1977-78, reports Market Data Book, a publication issued by Pipe Line Industry magazine.

In 1977, spending will reach $12.2 billion, and in 1978 outlays will increase to $13.2 billion.

Companies will install 28,328 miles of pipe lines in 1977 and an additional 31,152 will be built worldwide in 1978, the book says.

The Market Data Book includes expenditures for major pipe line components through 1980. It estimates 1,157,600 miles of liquids and gas pipe line systems will be in operation in the United States by 1980.

Test in Utah hits big flow of gas

FORT WORTH — American Quasar Petroleum Co. announced it has successfully tested gas at a probable new field discovery in the Overthrust Belt of Northeast Utah.

The well, No. 20-1 Hogback Ridge in Rich County, 80 miles northeast of Salt Lake City, took a drillstem test from 9,440 to 9,493 feet.

Gas flowed at an estimated rate of 15 million cubic feet per day on a short test, with more than 2,000 pounds per square inch flowing wellhead pressure.

The zone has not been identified.

The well will continue drilling toward its 12,500-foot objective.

TIPRO hears Schmitt call for Congress to use 'common sense'

By JOE SALMAN
Staff Writer

SAN ANTONIO — John J. Christmann of Lubbock was re-elected president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association Monday afternoon at the association's 31st annual meeting in San Antonio.

It was also announced by the TIPRO officials that the 1978 convention will be held in Houston June 4-6.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

All other 1976-77 officers were re-elected for another one-year term. They are: George P. Mitchell of Houston, chairman of the board; Shelby D. Pitts of Dallas, secretary; Alan C. Roberts of Fort Worth, treasurer; W. E. Turner of Austin, executive vice president; Julian G. Martin, Austin, research director, and Jim Sewell of Austin, publications director.

One of the vice presidents, John J. Redfern Jr. of Midland, who heads Region 6 headquartered in Midland, is one of more than 20 Midlanders who are attending the convention.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico and one of the Apollo astronauts during the moon exploration program, was the speaker for Tuesday's membership luncheon.

"If President Carter's reference to dealing with the energy crisis is similar to dealing with a war, then the independent operators should be referred to correctly as the shock troops in the war," Schmitt said.

"And, if the actions of those troops are important to a successful energy program, then you must hang in there tough and not give up."

Referring to his experience in the space program, the senator said we found we could do nothing without common sense. "We have gotten away from that philosophy, but I see signs in Washington that the congressmen now are getting back to a common sense approach," he said.

Schmitt said he didn't agree with very much that is in the energy program set forth by the President.

"I especially don't agree that we can have a 5 per cent annual economic growth and a 2 per cent energy use growth. In the past the two have been on almost an identical curve.

"I also don't agree with the negative approach, that approach being that we have very little oil and gas to find and that the answer is conservation." Schmitt, who has a geological background, said he believes that conservation is a fine idea, but there is much more oil and gas to find than the administration would lead the public to believe. But the administration must offer enough incentives to spur a search for that oil and gas.

Schmitt also said that the administration is putting too much emphasis on uranium and other energy sources. "We already know how to find and develop oil and gas fields, but we have much to learn about uranium as a base energy source," he said.

Attending the convention with Redfern from Midland are Cathy Stranathan, R. A. Ward, Jack Young, Wilson Smith, C. E. McKnight, Earl N. Crane Jr., David Farris, Bob Dean, Jack Lent, Earl Davis, Paul Erdman, James E. Trott, Malcolm Able, Dave Lage, Myron Anderson, Foy Boyd, Glenn Brant, Ken Buckles and Ed Thompson, executive secretary of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

During the membership meeting, Harry Heinecke, retired veteran oil editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was given a plaque in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the oil industry through his precise reporting of industry affairs. Heinecke retired last year after more than 20 years as head of that newspaper's oil department.

South Plains well testing

A Yoakum County wildcat was pumping oil on production tests and an offset is planned for a Scurry County sector. A Dawson discovery offset also is slated.

Tenneco Oil Co., Oklahoma City, was testing at No. 9 H. A. Hedberg, Yoakum County scheduled San Andres prospector in the Prenice area, five miles northwest of Tokio.

It pumped 19 barrels of oil and 40 barrels of water in 24 hours, through perforations at 5,184-5,265 feet, opposite the San Andres. Testing continued.

Drilled to 5,325 feet, the well is plugged back to 5,293 feet.

Location is 1,325 feet from south and east lines of section 322, block D, J. H. Gibson survey, 2¾ miles northeast of the depleted original San Andres strike.

The discovery, Amoco Production Co. No. 2 N. C. Clanahan, finaled in 1965, for 34 barrels of 28.3-gravity oil daily, through perforations at 5,238-5,294 feet.

SCURRY STEPOUT

Lario Oil & Gas Co., operating from Odessa, filed application to drill No. 4 Schuler as a location west stepout to the four-well Tonto, North (Strawn) field of Scurry County.

It is projected to 7,200 feet, and spots 660 feet from south and 900 feet from east lines of section 443, block 97, H&TC survey, six miles northeast of Snyder.

DAWSON OFFSET

Vaughn Petroleum, Inc., Dallas, staked site for No. 1 O. P. Vogler, a location southwest offset to the recently completed reopener of the Gold Creek (Cisco reef) field of Dawson.

Location for the 9,100-foot test is 2,074 feet from south and 1,974 feet from west lines of section 6, block 34, T-4-N, T&P survey, 10 miles southeast of Lamesa.

Vaughn completed the reopener in April to flow 204 barrels of 42-gravity oil per day, through a 3-16-inch choke and perforations at 8,914-8,924 feet.

Sterling gets stepout sites

Texaco Inc. has staked sites for two stepouts to Canyon production in the Big Salute oil pool of Sterling County, 13 miles southwest of Sterling City.

No. 4-J Sterling Fee, slated to 7,920 feet, spots 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 25, block 31, T-5-S, T&P ½-mile north and ⅝-mile southeast of production.

No. 2-K Sterling Fee, a ⅞-mile southeast stepout, spots 660 feet from north and west lines of section 29, block 31, T-5-S, T&P survey. It has a projected depth of 8,080 feet.

Discovery reported

ABBEYVILLE, LA — Diamond Shamrock has announced a significant onshore gas discovery in Vermilion Parish near Abbeyville on the Gulf Coast.

The well, No. 1 D. J. Vincent, was perforated at depths of 15,729-15,740 feet in the Camerina formation and flowed at a rate of 7.4 million cubic feet of gas per day at 9,945 pounds flowing tubing pressure, on an 11/64-inch choke.

The well also produced condensate at the rate of 144 barrels per day.

Eddy project gauges 2.1 MM

Mesa Petroleum Co., Midland, No. 1-E Hondo-State, Eddy County, N.M., undesignated test, surrounded by Morrow gas fields, flowed gas to pits at the daily rate of 2.1 million cubic feet, plus a trace of condensate, for nine hours.

The flow was on a 24-64-inch choke and through perforations at 11,048-11,203 feet, opposite the Morrow. The section had been acidized with 1,400 gallons.

The test has been shut in to await pipeline connection.

It is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 32-20s-28e, nine miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Grantham elected VP

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — John R. Grantham has been elected vice president-Administration of Northwest Energy Co., reports John G. McMillian, Northwest chairman and chief executive officer.

Grantham was senior vice president-Administration of Apco Oil Corp. before joining Northwest. He had been employed by Phillips Petroleum Co. and Exxon Co. before going with Apco.

He received a bachelor's degree in Engineering Administration from Texas A&M University.

Activity noted in East Crane

A Crane area gained an extension and plans were made for a pool reentry.

Atlantic Richfield Co. has completed No. 4-C Block 31 Unit as a ¾-mile southwest extension to Atoka production in the Block 31, East field, 15 miles northwest of Crane.

It finaled to flow 407 barrels of 40.8-gravity oil and four barrels of water daily, on a 13-64-inch choke and through perforations at 7,500-7,508 feet, after 1,000 gallons of acid.

It is 1,320 feet from north and 2,640 feet from east lines of section 34, block 31, ULS.

Amoco Production Co. intends to reenter and attempt completion above 9,000 feet at No. 1-FC University, for completion try as a ⅝-mile east extension to upper Pennsylvanian oil production in the Block 31, Northwest field.

Originally drilled by Skelly Oil Co. as No. 1-E Texas, it was abandoned in 1949.

Location is 736 feet from north and 1,979 feet from west lines of section 10, block 31, ULS.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Gulf No. 1-A Fisher, td 4,589, pb 4,540 feet, swabbed 16 barrels of fluid, cut 25 per cent oil in 12 hours through perforations at 4,472-4,502 feet.

Texaco No. 3-Z State of Texas, td 12,531 feet, running tubing for tests through perforations at 12,518-12,528 feet.

CRANE — Norwood No. 1 Wilson, drilling 1,950 feet in anhydrite.

CROCKETT — Hendon No. 1-A University-Amoco, td 1,245 feet, testing, no gauge, through perforations at 839-1,184 feet.

C&K No. 3-A Amacker, td 6,684 feet, pb 6,630, recovering load. It flowed by heads eight hours on a 16-64-inch choke, making 8.28 barrels of oil and 2.76 barrels of water through perforations at 4,718-4,754 feet.

Hamon & Hamill No. 1 Sutton, td 9,310 feet, shut in. It flowed through the separator through a ½-inch choke and perforations at 8,160-8,194 feet, making gas at the rate of 643,000 cubic feet per day, plus 25.59 barrels of load oil in the last 24 hours of testing.

Mesa No. 1-61 Hoover, td 7,710 feet, shut in for repairs.

DAWSON — Gulf No. 2 Speck, drilling 11,305 feet in lime, chett and shale.

EDDY — Gulf No. 1-AD Estill, td 11,600 feet, preparing to run a 5-inch liner.

Mesa No. 1 Smith-Federal, drilling 9,805 feet in lime, shale.

Mesa No. 1-B Potter-Federal, drilling 2,522 feet in lime, shale.

Hondo No. 2 Alscott-Federal, drilling 8,840 feet in lime.

EDWARDS — Cities Service No. 1-A-A Whitehead, drilling 9,652 feet in shale.

GAINES — Texas Pacific No. 1 Taylor, drilling below 100 feet.

HALE — Cities Service No. 1-A Druesdow, drilling 10,311 feet in sand and lime.

HOCKLEY — Gulf No. 1 Haymes' td 7,879, pb 7,836 feet. Preparing to test through perforations at 7,614-7,627 feet, after acidizing with 3,000 gallons.

Union Texas No. 1-57 Farmar; td 7,240 feet; swabbed 45 barrels of load water, increasing content to 90 per cent oil, time unreported, through perforations at 7,031-7,038 feet.

LEA — Gulf No. 1-D Christmas; td 6,700 feet, pumping no gauge, through perforations at 5,489-5,907 feet.

Gulf No. 1-RL Lea; td 12,480 feet, testing casing.

Gulf No. 1 West Brunson; td 9,250 feet; operations have been taken over by Campbell & Hedrick.

Moncrief No. 1-8 State; td 9,995 feet, preparing to run a drillstem test.

Brock No. 1 Mauldin; trilling 13,127 feet in lime, shale. A 1½-our drillstem test from 12,838-12,985 feet, recovered 120 feet of muddy water on top of the water blanket, 2,800 feet of water blanket and 20 feet of mud.

LOVING — C&K No. 1-87 Johnson; td 15,192 feet, set cast iron bridge plug at 15,032 feet.

MARTIN — RK No. 1-H Hippity Hop; td 12,071 feet, plugged and abandoned.

RK No. 2-A Wolcott, drilling 10,741 feet.

Gulf No. 1-A Glass, drilling 7,038 feet in lime.

PECOS — Monsanto No. 4-A Bernice, td 10,726 feet, pb 10,719 feet, recovering load through perforations at 8,416-8,436 feet, which had been treated with 4,500 gallons of acid. The last flow gauge was for 1.3 million cubic feet of gas per day, plus 33 barrels of oil and 32 barrels of water in 15 hours, through a ½-inch choke.

Union Texas No. 1 Montgomery, td 15,196 feet, pumped 44 barrels of oil and 63 barrels of water in 20 hours, through perforations at 5,780-5,814 feet.

Gulf No. 1 Belding, td 20,540 feet, set a bridge plug at 18,000 feet.

Gulf No. 1 Emma Lou, td 20,462 feet, still fishing.

Gulf No. 1 Zauk, td 21,850 feet, pb 18,680 feet, flowed to pit 100 barrels of water in 5½ hours, with a gas rate of five million cubic feet per day, through perforations at 18,055-18,172 feet.

Getty No. 1 Hayter, td 12,590 feet; flowed six barrel of condensate and 100 barrels of water in 24 hours, through a 24/64-inch choke and perforations at 11,262-11,399 feet. Gas rate was 100,000 cubic feet per day.

ATAPCO No. 1-1 Adam, drilling 2,297 feet in anhydrite and sand.

Enserch No. 1-14 Neal; td 11,870 feet, nippling up blow out preventer.

REEVES — Adobe No. 1 Graham, drilling 13,480 feet in lime.

Getty No. 1 Dwyer, td 21,268 feet, pb 20,490 feet; preparing to acidize perforations at 20,124-20,437 feet.

NRM No. 1 Wynne, td 15,762 feet; taking a drillstem test from 15,500-15,762 feet.

SCHLEICHER — Gulf No. 1 Offutt, drilling 210 feet in redbed.

UPTON — Gulf No. 1-I Corbett, drilling 11,635 feet in lime and shale.

Gulf No. 939-D McElroy; drilling 9,101 feet in shale and lime.

VAL VERDE — C&K No. 1-40 Mobil Mills, drilling 8,895 feet in lime and shale.

WARD — Texaco No. 1-D State Gas Unit; drilling 12,990 feet in shale and lime.

Monsanto No. 1 Monroe; td 17,565 feet; preparing to set a cast iron bridge plug at 17,325 feet.

Monsanto No. 1 Rodgers; td 3,100 feet; waiting on cement; set a 13⅜-inch casing at td.

Gulf No. 1 Cadenhead; drilling 403 feet in redbed and anhydrite.

Houston police's reign under review

By TOM CURTIS
Special to The Washington Post

HOUSTON — This is the story of a city police department viewed by some of its critics as the most violent and unchecked force in the United States. Critics have called it a shoot-first-and-ask-questions-later constabulary, many members of which are seen as dispensing brutality and instant justice with abandon and operating virtually without civilian control or fear of legal consequences.

The blue army in question is the 2,766-member Houston Police Department.

Although the view described above is hardly unanimous in this generally conservative "law-and-order" city, the fifth largest in the United States, it is one increasingly held by lawyers, civil libertarians, leaders in the black and Hispanic comunities, and local citizens appalled by a continuing pattern of brute force that might make even producers of television's ferocious cop shows wince.

"We are a police state," Houston's celebrated criminal defense lawyer, Percy Foreman, says simply.

He amplifies: "This is the case here more so than in any other city in the United States, and I've practiced in just about all of them. It even transcends the police state situation that prevails in some of the totalitarian countries.

"You must understand that there is no difference between human nature here in the U.S. and what existed in Germany, or Czechoslovakia, or where have you. The only brake on brutality and sadism and an I-am-the-law attitude, the only brake on that here is the Constitution of the United States.

"If a district attorney elects not to enforce it against police officers, as (is) traditional in Harris County, nothing can be done to turn the situation around."

Foreman has been retained as counsel by the family of Joe Campos Torres, a 23-year-old Chicano first beaten and ultimately drowned on May 6 while allegedly in the custody of six Houston police officers.

According to reports on each officer's involvement in the Torres incident prepared by Police Chief B.G. (Pappy) Bond and released by Houston's Civil Service Commission, six officers took Torres from a bar to a secluded warehouse district, where five of them beat him while his arms were handcuffed behind him.

Later, after a jail booking officer refused to accept Torres and ordered two of the officers to take him to the county hospital for treatment of a bloodied nose and injured leg, the six officers returned to the site of the beating, the chief's report said.

There, the reports continued, one of the officers dumped the drunk and severely beaten Chicano over a 20-foot embankment into a bayou, saying, "Let's see if the wetback can swim."

Lawyers for the fired officers said they would have no comment on the substance of Bond's reports other than to deplore them as prejudicial to their client's rights.

Rather than being an aberration, Foreman says, Torres' alleged murder was merely another expression out of several hundred in a "consistent, repetitive 16-year pattern" of police violence abetted by local district attorneys who have "whitewashed every charge against policemen" before grand juries, thus, he says, emboldening even more police violence.

Even Houston's two-term mayor, Fred Hofheinz, conceded at a news conference 10 days after Torres' death that "there is something loose in this city that is an illness." He described it as "an attitude on the part of a lot of people, including a lot of community leaders (and) people in charge of mass communications ... that whatever a police officer does, its okay."

The result, Hofheinz said, Is "that the police officer goes about the daily duties knowing that he or she has that kind of community protection for whatever they may do, whether it is against the law or not."

In just the 3 1-2 years Hofheinz has been mayor, local grand juries have considered without charges at least 24 cases of police officers who have shot and killed civilians, or who have shot and wounded them.

The first grand jury to indict a policeman during that period did so in April 1977. That officer allegedly had shot a local businessman after the two mens' cars had collided on a local freeway while the officer was off duty. He was indicted for attempted murder.

Among recent police incidents:

—A policewoman and policeman shot a young black, when, they said, he appeared to be pulling a weapon from his pocket. The weapon turned out to be a Bible. The policewoman had fired in such haste that she shot the black man through the windshield of the squad car the officers were riding in. Neither was indicted.

—In February 1977, a policeman shot and killed wealthy attorney Sanford J. Radinsky while executing a search warrant on the room he was sharing with two women at Houston's Rice Rittenhouse Hotel.

School finance proposal drafted

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A new public school finance proposal, giving a bigger break to rural and suburban districts, was drafted over the weekend by "Big Seven" board members.

The big city board members met in Ruidoso, N.M., over the weekend and made a compromise gesture toward rural interests.

Representatives of the Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and El Paso districts attended the meeting. San Antonio was unrepresented.

Copies of the "Big Seven" position paper will go to House Speaker Bill Clayton, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe says he will call a special legislative session when the two chambers can agree in advance on a school finance bill. A predominantly urban coalition of House members blocked final action on school finance in the last 30 minutes of the regular session May 30. The present law would be a financial disaster to many districts if it remains in effect this fall.

In the closing days of the regular legislative session, the "Big Seven" favored basing local costs of the Foundation School Program — the Local Fund Assignment (LFA) — on an average of market values plus the lower agricultural productivity values.

Rural interests, however, would not accept that, and they called the shots in the House.

The latest proposal is a compromise with the House's formula that based LFA on a combination of productivity value of agricultural land, 80 per cent of residential property values and full market value of all other taxable property.

In the coming school year, LFA would be based on the a district's average of full market value and agricultural productivity values as determined by the Governor's Office of Educational Resources.

But in 1977-78, an adjusted figure would come into play, valuing residential property at 60 per cent of its true value, agricultural land on its productivity and everything else on market value.

"It gives urban and suburban areas a little more of a break," said Aubrey Holden of the Texas Association of School Boards.

A 21 cents per $100 value tax rate would be applied against the value figures this fall and a 22 cents rate would be used the following year to determine a district's LFA.

Holden said the position paper also would urge the legislature not to reduce the 180-day school year and to set up a means to avoid evaluating land in the hands of speculators on its agricultural productivity.

Girl's trip may delay parole

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The publicity surrounding nine-year-old Sandy Chandler's lone journey to the White House last week in search of a presidential pardon for her jailed mother could backfire, her mother says.

Sandy, an articulate sixth-grader, broke open her piggy bank and flew alone to Washington last week to ask President Carter to pardon her mother, who is jailed at the minimum security Federal Correctional Institute here.

On Monday, a tearful Patricia Gale Boake sat with Sandy in her lap and said she feared the publicity could have hurt her appeal for a reduced sentence and her parole chances. She said it could even result in a transfer to another prison.

"I hate to discredit what she did, but I don't believe it will do any good," said Mrs. Boake, 42, who is serving a three-year sentence for bond-jumping. "I think with everything that has been going on it has probably hurt the situation."

Mrs. Boake's attorneys, including Percy Foreman of Houston, have filed a motion to have her sentence reduced.

"At lot of it was adverse publicity," she added. "They thought we had set this up, instigated the whole deal. In no way could I have instigated such a trip.

"I was shocked, I couldn't believe it," she said of her daughter's journey.

Sandy left on her own last Tuesday morning after leaving a note to her older sister, Delilah, 20, with whom she lives. Delilah called police, but later Braniff Airlines officials called to tell her Sandy was in Washington.

"But it was all a waste," the tow-headed girl said upon her return. "The only person I did not see was the President. I spent all my money to go to washington and I don't think it was fair that the President did not see me."

"The White House is not going to apologize," special White House assistant Midge Constanza, who met with Sandy, said Monday. "We're sorry it has not been resolved, but there is nothing the President can do."

Mrs. Boake said her sentence stems from a series of incidents dating back to 1969 when the family lived in Arizona. She worked at a beauty college while on probation on a mail fraud conviction.

Mrs. Boake said she was forced to testify before a grand jury in connection with an organized crime investigation, but was charged with perjury by omission after her testimony failed to help convict two men.

The family moved to Calgary, Canada, until 1975, when Mrs. Boake returned to Houston on the advice of her attorneys. The move to Calgary constituted bond-jumping.

A few weeks ago, her daughters moved to Fort Worth to be close to their mother, whom they visit several times a week.

"The kids will probably have to move," Mrs. Boake said. "If they do have complications, Sandy will probably have to go back to Canada and live with her older sister."

Dallas school district leaders will begin donation hunt

DALLAS (AP) — Without even trying, the Dallas Independent School District received almost $300,000 last year in private donations for its "above and beyond programs."

Dallas public school officials say, however, that they're going to start trying — and estimate they could raise up to $4 million per year with a new campaign to solicit such donations.

James Bond, 67, has been named president of the nonprofit Dallas Independent School District's Foundation for Public Eduction, Inc., which will solicit the donations of land and money from Dallas-area citizens.

Colleges have long solicited private funds and the district feels there is no reason why the public schools can't do the same, said Bond, who will be unsalaried.

Rodney Davis, DISD director of information, who said the district received almost $300,000 in private donations last year with no campaign, would use the funds for programs "above and beyond" the district's regular curriculum.

Supt. Nolan Estes has said the campaign could raise up to $4 million per year.

The new campaign may be controversial and such upheaval could kill the foundation, admitted Bond.

"Once the donor gives us the money, unless there are conditions, he has nothing to say, and once we have it we don't have to give it to them (the school board). We won't be afraid of controversies, but if we get into controversial issues or politics, we're dead," Bond said.

Gays gathering for bar protest

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston gay rights activists say they will bring together 4,000 sympathizers Thursday night for a candlelight protest march against singer Anita Bryant, scheduled to sing at the State Bar of Texas convention.

Miss Bryant recently led a successful campaign in Dade County Miami, Fla., to defeat a law that would prohibit job and housing discrimination against gays.

Gibson Gayle Jr., president of the state bar, said Miss Bryant would receive the tightest possible security during her visit to Houston.

"We don't mind marching or practicing any other form of free speech," Gayle said. "No one is going to commit any illegal acts either."

Organizers of the march say they will have their own security monitors to insure the demonstration is peaceful. They said the marchers will not stop at the hotel where Miss Bryant is scheduled to perform but they will march past the hotel.

The protest leaders said about 200 attorneys who will be inside the hotel will wear black arm bands to share in the protest of the marchers outside.

Police said they doubt 4,000 marchers will be available.

Home market soars despite higher costs

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — What are home buyers up to?

Higher prices and perhaps higher mortgage rates, to cite two things. But the housing scenario in general doesn't lend itself to easy answers; it's riddled with mysteries.

One of the riddles is speculation, at a time when speculation seems to be growing dormant in some other areas of the economy.

Fears about interest rates and inflation, for example, have begun to abate in recent days, slowly but positively, as Washington continues to pour out bushel baskets of strong economic indicators.

As a result, a calm seems to be descending on some stock market analysts who had been frightened out of their blue chips for most of the past 16 months by the two leering "I's of inflation and interest rates. They are now beginning to suggest that corporate stocks might benefit from the feeling of equilibrium.

Some of the big banks already have declared they are heartened by some recent economic trends and are proclaiming the imminent return to less inflationary times. Interest rates may rise, they say, but not ominously.

But going against the mood, in a manner far from fully understood, is the housing market.

In May, for the first time in four months, the level of mortgage rates on new homes rose, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported. The rise was small, to 8.96 per cent from 8.94 per cent in April, but the direction's the thing.

Sales of new homes have been strong, but existing home sales are booming, and so are prices. The median price of an existing single-family home rose $1,000 in April to $42,000.

But the national median price tells only part of the story. In the West, for example, the median price rose $3,800 in April, reaching $57,200. And if the survey were limited to California, the increase would have been even higher.

In that state houses are purchased for resale. The home buyer, in effect, has put himself in the position of a middleman, acquiring properties not to live in but to sell for immediate profit.

The question that cannot be answered is whether the phenomenon is regional or national. So far the California type of speculation has been rare in other areas of the country, but you must remember that many fevers as well as sound ideas have spread eastward from the coast.

At any rate, the existing home market is soaring. In April alone some 310,000 resale transactions took place, representing a total market value of more than $14 billion, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The April sales performance translates into a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.3 million units, which the Realtors say is a "healthy 17.4 per cent above the level of a year ago."

Hometown blacks raising defense funds for youth

WAXAHACHIE, Tex. (AP) — At six-foot-five and a bony 155 pounds Oliver Lee Davis was an eye-catcher on the basketball court when he averaged 30 points a game for Dallas Skyline High School.

But when he added four-inch heels, Davis "looked like a monster" on the witness stand, according to the prosecutor whose arguments led to a 99-year sentence for the defendant charged with a sexual attack on an Ellis County jail immate.

In two years Davis, now 19, has gone from professional basketball prospect to the Coffield Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections. Blacks in this town of 15,000 claim Davis is really the victim of racial prejudice.

In March 1975, Davis, whose nickname is "Slim," was tried for an armed robbery he denied committing. Eight months earlier he and three other black men had been arrested for holding up a small grocery store in Waxahachie. Less than $200 was taken and the bandits used a blank pistol.

An all-white jury convicted Davis, despite his claims that he had merely accepted a ride and did not know he was headed for a robbery. Surprisingly though, the Ellis County jurors, who have a reputation for tough sentences, placed Davis on probation.

Assistant prosecutor David Bass said it was the first time an Ellis County jury had recommended a probated sentence in a robbery case.

"They must have thought 'Well, this guy was a little on the fringe of this robbery; he's got a chance to do better, he's got a lot of opportunities, so let's help him'," Bass said.

But those opportunities — including a basketball scholarship to San Jacinto Junior College in Houston — quickly evaporated.

A Davis defense committee pamphlet recalls the incident this way:

"Hey, hey come back here. We've got something else for you."

That "something else" was a sexual abuse charge alleging Davis had participated in the gang-rape of a fellow inmate (the only white) in the Ellis County Jail.

Court records show that the charge had been filed three months earlier, on Jan. 10, a week after the attack was reported. Davis' defense said he had not known about the charge against him until that day in court.

Bass said the five inmates charged in the sexual abuse case were offered five-year sentences in exchange for guilty pleas. Two accepted the offer, charges against two were dropped and Davis went to trial.

This time the all-white jury was not as eager to give Davis another chance. They gave him the maximum — 99 years in the penitentiary.

Judge Hartsfield said the stiff sentence even surprised him.

"I thought when I opened their verdict that they really meant nine years and someone had put in an extra nine. But they meant 99," the judge recalled.

The inmate said Davis raped him and, during the attack, claimed the white prisoner was paying for "what white people had done to black people."

Now, Waxahachie's blacks have started a Davis defense fund to raise funds for the appeal of the case. Many believe the charges were trumped up to "keep Waxahachie's blacks in line."

Ellis County officials deny that the city has racial problems. Two of the city's five councimen are black — while the town is only 25 per cent black.

The courthouse has been flooded by letters questioning the severity of the sentence. A petition with 8,000 signatures has asked the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to consider Davis' case.

Houston police's reign under review

By TOM CURTIS
Special to The Washington Post

HOUSTON — This is the story of a city police department viewed by some of its critics as the most violent and unchecked force in the United States. Critics have called it a shoot-first-and-ask-questions-later constabulary, many members of which are seen as dispensing brutality and instant justice with abandon and operating virtually without civilian control or fear of legal consequences.

The blue army in question is the 2,766-member Houston Police Department.

Although the view described above is hardly unanimous in this generally conservative "law-and-order" city, the fifth largest in the United States, it is one increasingly held by lawyers, civil libertarians, leaders in the black and Hispanic comunities, and local citizens appalled by a continuing pattern of brute force that might make even producers of television's ferocious cop shows wince.

"We are a police state," Houston's celebrated criminal defense lawyer, Percy Foreman, says simply.

He amplifies: "This is the case here more so than in any other city in the United States, and I've practiced in just about all of them. It even transcends the police state situation that prevails in some of the totalitarian countries.

"You must understand that there is no difference between human nature here in the U.S. and what existed in Germany, or Czechoslovakia, or where have you. The only brake on brutality and sadism and an I-am-the-law attitude, the only brake on that here is the Constitution of the United States.

"If a district attorney elects not to enforce it against police officers, as (is) traditional in Harris County, nothing can be done to turn the situation around."

Foreman has been retained as counsel by the family of Joe Campos Torres, a 23-year-old Chicano first beaten and ultimately drowned on May 6 while allegedly in the custody of six Houston police officers.

According to reports on each officer's involvement in the Torres incident prepared by Police Chief B.G. (Pappy) Bond and released by Houston's Civil Service Commission, six officers took Torres from a bar to a secluded warehouse district, where five of them beat him while his arms were handcuffed behind him.

Later, after a jail booking officer refused to accept Torres and ordered two of the officers to take him to the county hospital for treatment of a bloodied nose and injured leg, the six officers returned to the site of the beating, the chief's report said.

There, the reports continued, one of the officers dumped the drunk and severely beaten Chicano over a 20-foot embankment into a bayou, saying, "Let's see if the wetback can swim."

Lawyers for the fired officers said they would have no comment on the substance of Bond's reports other than to deplore them as prejudicial to their client's rights.

Rather than being an aberration, Foreman says, Torres' alleged murder was merely another expression out of several hundred in a "consistent, repetitive 16-year pattern" of police violence abetted by local district attorneys who have "whitewashed every charge against policemen" before grand juries, thus, he says, emboldening even more police violence.

Even Houston's two-term mayor, Fred Hofheinz, conceded at a news conference 10 days after Torres' death that "there is something loose in this city that is an illness." He described it as "an attitude on the part of a lot of people, including a lot of community leaders (and) people in charge of mass communications ... that whatever a police officer does, its okay."

The result, Hofheinz said, Is "that the police officer goes about the daily duties knowing that he or she has that kind of community protection for whatever they may do, whether it is against the law or not."

In just the 3 1-2 years Hofheinz has been mayor, local grand juries have considered without charges at least 24 cases of police officers who have shot and killed civilians, or who have shot and wounded them.

The first grand jury to indict a policeman during that period did so in April 1977. That officer allegedly had shot a local businessman after the two mens' cars had collided on a local freeway while the officer was off duty. He was indicted for attempted murder.

Among recent police incidents:

—A policewoman and policeman shot a young black, when, they said, he appeared to be pulling a weapon from his pocket. The weapon turned out to be a Bible. The policewoman had fired in such haste that she shot the black man through the windshield of the squad car the officers were riding in. Neither was indicted.

—In February 1977, a policeman shot and killed wealthy attorney Sanford J. Radinsky while executing a search warrant on the room he was sharing with two women at Houston's Rice Rittenhouse Hotel.

School finance proposal drafted

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A new public school finance proposal, giving a bigger break to rural and suburban districts, was drafted over the weekend by "Big Seven" board members.

The big city board members met in Ruidoso, N.M., over the weekend and made a compromise gesture toward rural interests.

Representatives of the Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and El Paso districts attended the meeting. San Antonio was unrepresented.

Copies of the "Big Seven" position paper will go to House Speaker Bill Clayton, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe says he will call a special legislative session when the two chambers can agree in advance on a school finance bill. A predominantly urban coalition of House members blocked final action on school finance in the last 30 minutes of the regular session May 30. The present law would be a financial disaster to many districts if it remains in effect this fall.

In the closing days of the regular legislative session, the "Big Seven" favored basing local costs of the Foundation School Program — the Local Fund Assignment (LFA) — on an average of market values plus the lower agricultural productivity values.

Rural interests, however, would not accept that, and they called the shots in the House.

The latest proposal is a compromise with the House's formula that based LFA on a combination of productivity value of agricultural land, 80 per cent of residential property values and full market value of all other taxable property.

In the coming school year, LFA would be based on the a district's average of full market value and agricultural productivity values as determined by the Governor's Office of Educational Resources.

But in 1977-78, an adjusted figure would come into play, valuing residential property at 60 per cent of its true value, agricultural land on its productivity and everything else on market value.

"It gives urban and suburban areas a little more of a break," said Aubrey Holden of the Texas Association of School Boards.

A 21 cents per $100 value tax rate would be applied against the value figures this fall and a 22 cents rate would be used the following year to determine a district's LFA.

Holden said the position paper also would urge the legislature not to reduce the 180-day school year and to set up a means to avoid evaluating land in the hands of speculators on its agricultural productivity.

Girl's trip may delay parole

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The publicity surrounding nine-year-old Sandy Chandler's lone journey to the White House last week in search of a presidential pardon for her jailed mother could backfire, her mother says.

Sandy, an articulate sixth-grader, broke open her piggy bank and flew alone to Washington last week to ask President Carter to pardon her mother, who is jailed at the minimum security Federal Correctional Institute here.

On Monday, a tearful Patricia Gale Boake sat with Sandy in her lap and said she feared the publicity could have hurt her appeal for a reduced sentence and her parole chances. She said it could even result in a transfer to another prison.

"I hate to discredit what she did, but I don't believe it will do any good," said Mrs. Boake, 42, who is serving a three-year sentence for bond-jumping. "I think with everything that has been going on it has probably hurt the situation."

Mrs. Boake's attorneys, including Percy Foreman of Houston, have filed a motion to have her sentence reduced.

"At lot of it was adverse publicity," she added. "They thought we had set this up, instigated the whole deal. In no way could I have instigated such a trip.

"I was shocked, I couldn't believe it," she said of her daughter's journey.

Sandy left on her own last Tuesday morning after leaving a note to her older sister, Delilah, 20, with whom she lives. Delilah called police, but later Braniff Airlines officials called to tell her Sandy was in Washington.

"But it was all a waste," the tow-headed girl said upon her return. "The only person I did not see was the President. I spent all my money to go to washington and I don't think it was fair that the President did not see me."

"The White House is not going to apologize," special White House assistant Midge Constanza, who met with Sandy, said Monday. "We're sorry it has not been resolved, but there is nothing the President can do."

Mrs. Boake said her sentence stems from a series of incidents dating back to 1969 when the family lived in Arizona. She worked at a beauty college while on probation on a mail fraud conviction.

Mrs. Boake said she was forced to testify before a grand jury in connection with an organized crime investigation, but was charged with perjury by omission after her testimony failed to help convict two men.

The family moved to Calgary, Canada, until 1975, when Mrs. Boake returned to Houston on the advice of her attorneys. The move to Calgary constituted bond-jumping.

A few weeks ago, her daughters moved to Fort Worth to be close to their mother, whom they visit several times a week.

"The kids will probably have to move," Mrs. Boake said. "If they do have complications, Sandy will probably have to go back to Canada and live with her older sister."

Dallas school district leaders will begin donation hunt

DALLAS (AP) — Without even trying, the Dallas Independent School District received almost $300,000 last year in private donations for its "above and beyond programs."

Dallas public school officials say, however, that they're going to start trying — and estimate they could raise up to $4 million per year with a new campaign to solicit such donations.

James Bond, 67, has been named president of the nonprofit Dallas Independent School District's Foundation for Public Eduction, Inc., which will solicit the donations of land and money from Dallas-area citizens.

Colleges have long solicited private funds and the district feels there is no reason why the public schools can't do the same, said Bond, who will be unsalaried.

Rodney Davis, DISD director of information, who said the district received almost $300,000 in private donations last year with no campaign, would use the funds for programs "above and beyond" the district's regular curriculum.

Supt. Nolan Estes has said the campaign could raise up to $4 million per year.

The new campaign may be controversial and such upheaval could kill the foundation, admitted Bond.

"Once the donor gives us the money, unless there are conditions, he has nothing to say, and once we have it we don't have to give it to them (the school board). We won't be afraid of controversies, but if we get into controversial issues or politics, we're dead," Bond said.

Gays gathering for bar protest

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston gay rights activists say they will bring together 4,000 sympathizers Thursday night for a candlelight protest march against singer Anita Bryant, scheduled to sing at the State Bar of Texas convention.

Miss Bryant recently led a successful campaign in Dade County Miami, Fla., to defeat a law that would prohibit job and housing discrimination against gays.

Gibson Gayle Jr., president of the state bar, said Miss Bryant would receive the tightest possible security during her visit to Houston.

"We don't mind marching or practicing any other form of free speech," Gayle said. "No one is going to commit any illegal acts either."

Organizers of the march say they will have their own security monitors to insure the demonstration is peaceful. They said the marchers will not stop at the hotel where Miss Bryant is scheduled to perform but they will march past the hotel.

The protest leaders said about 200 attorneys who will be inside the hotel will wear black arm bands to share in the protest of the marchers outside.

Police said they doubt 4,000 marchers will be available.

Home market soars despite higher costs

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — What are home buyers up to?

Higher prices and perhaps higher mortgage rates, to cite two things. But the housing scenario in general doesn't lend itself to easy answers; it's riddled with mysteries.

One of the riddles is speculation, at a time when speculation seems to be growing dormant in some other areas of the economy.

Fears about interest rates and inflation, for example, have begun to abate in recent days, slowly but positively, as Washington continues to pour out bushel baskets of strong economic indicators.

As a result, a calm seems to be descending on some stock market analysts who had been frightened out of their blue chips for most of the past 16 months by the two leering "I's of inflation and interest rates. They are now beginning to suggest that corporate stocks might benefit from the feeling of equilibrium.

Some of the big banks already have declared they are heartened by some recent economic trends and are proclaiming the imminent return to less inflationary times. Interest rates may rise, they say, but not ominously.

But going against the mood, in a manner far from fully understood, is the housing market.

In May, for the first time in four months, the level of mortgage rates on new homes rose, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported. The rise was small, to 8.96 per cent from 8.94 per cent in April, but the direction's the thing.

Sales of new homes have been strong, but existing home sales are booming, and so are prices. The median price of an existing single-family home rose $1,000 in April to $42,000.

But the national median price tells only part of the story. In the West, for example, the median price rose $3,800 in April, reaching $57,200. And if the survey were limited to California, the increase would have been even higher.

In that state houses are purchased for resale. The home buyer, in effect, has put himself in the position of a middleman, acquiring properties not to live in but to sell for immediate profit.

The question that cannot be answered is whether the phenomenon is regional or national. So far the California type of speculation has been rare in other areas of the country, but you must remember that many fevers as well as sound ideas have spread eastward from the coast.

At any rate, the existing home market is soaring. In April alone some 310,000 resale transactions took place, representing a total market value of more than $14 billion, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The April sales performance translates into a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.3 million units, which the Realtors say is a "healthy 17.4 per cent above the level of a year ago."

Hometown blacks raising defense funds for youth

WAXAHACHIE, Tex. (AP) — At six-foot-five and a bony 155 pounds Oliver Lee Davis was an eye-catcher on the basketball court when he averaged 30 points a game for Dallas Skyline High School.

But when he added four-inch heels, Davis "looked like a monster" on the witness stand, according to the prosecutor whose arguments led to a 99-year sentence for the defendant charged with a sexual attack on an Ellis County jail immate.

In two years Davis, now 19, has gone from professional basketball prospect to the Coffield Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections. Blacks in this town of 15,000 claim Davis is really the victim of racial prejudice.

In March 1975, Davis, whose nickname is "Slim," was tried for an armed robbery he denied committing. Eight months earlier he and three other black men had been arrested for holding up a small grocery store in Waxahachie. Less than $200 was taken and the bandits used a blank pistol.

An all-white jury convicted Davis, despite his claims that he had merely accepted a ride and did not know he was headed for a robbery. Surprisingly though, the Ellis County jurors, who have a reputation for tough sentences, placed Davis on probation.

Assistant prosecutor David Bass said it was the first time an Ellis County jury had recommended a probated sentence in a robbery case.

"They must have thought 'Well, this guy was a little on the fringe of this robbery; he's got a chance to do better, he's got a lot of opportunities, so let's help him'," Bass said.

But those opportunities — including a basketball scholarship to San Jacinto Junior College in Houston — quickly evaporated:

A Davis defense committee pamphlet recalls the incident this way:

"Hey, hey come back here. We've got something else for you."

That "something else" was a sexual abuse charge alleging Davis had participated in the gang-rape of a fellow inmate (the only white) in the Ellis County Jail.

Court records show that the charge had been filed three months earlier, on Jan. 10, a week after the attack was reported. Davis' defense said he had not known about the charge against him until that day in court.

Bass said the five inmates charged in the sexual abuse case were offered five-year sentences in exchange for guilty pleas. Two accepted the offer, charges against two were dropped and Davis went to trial.

This time the all-white jury was not as eager to give Davis another chance. They gave him the maximum — 99 years in the penitentiary.

Judge Hartsfield said the stiff sentence even surprised him.

"I thought when I opened their verdict that they really meant nine years and someone had put in an extra nine. But they meant 99," the judge recalled.

The inmate said Davis raped him and, during the attack, claimed the white prisoner was paying for "what white people had done to black people."

Now, Waxahachie's blacks have started a Davis defense fund to raise funds for the appeal of the case. Many believe the charges were trumped up to "keep Waxahachie's blacks in line."

Ellis County officials deny that the city has racial problems. Two of the city's five councimen are black — while the town is only 25 per cent black.

The courthouse has been flooded by letters questioning the severity of the sentence. A petition with 8,000 signatures has asked the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to consider Davis' case.

DEATHS

White services set for Friday

ODESSA — Artis White Jr., 26, of Odessa died Saturday in Roswell, N.M.

White was the brother of Bobby W. White, Otho Lee White, Freddy Lee White, Eugene White, James White, Joyce Ann White, Irma White and Virginia White, all of Midland. He also was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Artis White of Midland.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home in Odessa with burial in Rosehill Cemetery.

White was born Sept. 19, 1950, in Big Spring. He married Lydia Arrant in 1974 in Roswell. He moved to Odessa from Houston in 1972. He was foreman for a shop. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Other survivors include the widow, three sons and four other sisters.

W. M. Johnsons services today

BIG SPRING — William M. Johnsons, 88, of Ackerly, died at 6 p.m. Sunday in a Big Spring rest home.

Services were to be held at 2 p.m. today in River-Welch Funeral Home chapel with burial at 5 p.m. in Rose Hill Cemetery in Merkel.

Johnson was born Dec. 21, 1888, in Pinson, Ala., and came to the Ackerly area with his parents in 1908. He was a retired farmer and a veteran of World War I.

Survivors include his wife, Etta Johnson, and two nephews.

Services held in San Angelo

SAN ANGELO— Services were to be at 3:30 p.m. today in Johnson's Funeral Home chapel in San Angelo for Ray Alexander, 70, father of Mrs. Mary Lou Thompson and brother of R. J. Alexander, both of Big Spring. Alexander died at 6:05 p.m. Sunday. The Rev. Gene Stark of First Baptist Church of Eldorado was to officiate. Burial was to follow in Eldorado Cemetery. He was born Oct. 6, 1906, in Calf Creek. He was married to Lula Mae Bruton Dec. 18, 1930, in Sonora.

Other survivors include his wife, one son, two brothers and seven grandchildren.

Midlander's mother dies

SAN ANGELO — Victoria Ramirez, 82, mother of Mrs. George Cortez of Midland, died at 11:30 p.m. Sunday at her residence after a long illness.

Services were to be held at 3:30 p.m. today in Segunda Iglesia Bautista with the Rev. James Fulkerson officiating.

Burial will be in Fairmount Cemetery directed by Gutierrez Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Ramirez was born July 22, 1894, in Sonora and was married to Alberto V. Ramirez Feb. 26, 1919, in Ozona. She was a Baptist.

Survivors include her husband, three sons, five daughters, 34 grandchildren and 46 great-grandchildren.

Jolly services held at Clyde

ABILENE—Services were to be today at First Baptist Church in Clyde for Mrs. Marion E. (Bettie) Jolly, 86, of Clyde, mother of Dr. Marshall Jolly of Midland.

Burial was to follow at the Clyde cemetery.

Mrs. Jolly died Sunday night at an Abilene hospital.

Born in Honey Grove, she moved to Clyde at an early age. She and her husband celebrated their 68th wedding anniversary last December.

Other survivors include her husband, two daughters, three sons, 14 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Midlander earns listing

LAS CRUCES — Belle Ann Harris of Midland was named to the spring semester' dean's list at New Mexico State University.

Retirement study plan disclosed

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Carter said Monday he will soon name a special commission to look "very carefully" into the rules governing Social Security and federal employes' retirement programs and advise him on ways to correct existing inequities.

Carter disclosed the plan when he was asked at a news conference how he would justify the existing rules, under which 1.5 million retired federal workers can draw full pensions while they hold down full-time jobs, yet 30 million retirees on Social Security lose benefits if they earn substantial extra income.

"I don't try to justify it," Carter replied. "I don't think it is right. I don't think it is fair."

Reporting that he had held two recent meetings about the need for the federal retirement system to be "reassessed and perhaps changed," Carter said he thought it was "time for a presidential blue-ribbon commission to look into this whole question," including "double-dipping, triple-dipping, sometimes quadruple-dipping into retirement benefits by Federal workers."

At his ninth televised news conference since taking office, the President dealt with 14 questions that crossed the spectrum from relations with Congress on his energy program to human rights issues in the world arena.

In the foreign policy field, the President made these points:

—In his first direct comment on the announced Soviet intention to bring treason charges against dissident Anatoly Scharansky, Carter said he had "inquired deeply" but had found nothing to sustain the Soviet charge of links between Scharansky and the Central Intelligence Agency.

But as he added his voice to other official U.S. denials of the chief accusation against Scharansky, Carter said he had no plans to honor a request for a meeting made to him by Scharansky's wife, Natalya. She is presently in Washington attending a conference in support of Soviet Jews.

—Reasserting his commitment to human rights, Carter brushed aside as a "misplaced aim" a new Soviet press campaign against him personally which has caused concern among some observers of the Kremlin. Carter said he believed "the pressure of world opinion might be making itself felt on them (Soviet leaders) and perhaps I am a kind of scapegoat."

In a related development, the State Department announced Monday that it had called in a Soviet Embassy official here to protest the arrest and brief detention over the weekend of Robert C. Toth, Moscow correspondent for The Los Angeles Times. In a statement, the department said the arrest was part of a campaign "to discredit and harass American correspondents and inhibit contacts with Soviet citizens."

—The President stressed that arms control negotiations with the Soviets are continuing despite the human rights controversy. He disclosed that Paul C. Warnke, the chief U.S. arms negotiator, will "within the week" head a working group to negotiate steps toward controlling arms deployments in the Indian Ocean. the talks are scheduled to begin next week in Moscow.

This week, Warnke is leading a U.S. team at the start of negotiations here on a treaty to ban all underground nuclear weapons tests.

—Declaring that U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young is viewed by Third World nations as one U.S. representative "who understands their problems," Carter said he agreed with Young's decision to "shift his emphasis more toward other developing nations outside of Africa."

Young's controversial recent statements accusing former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford of "racism" have been construed to imply "a much heavier condemnation than Ambassador Young meant," Carter said. While Young's remarks "are different from what I would have said," the President said his old friend still has been "a superb representative of our country."

Carter did not disclose details of the arrangements he has in mind for the proposed review of federal pensions. He indicated, however, that he wants it to deal with the "wide differences in the retirement benefits that can be expected among Americans who have done the same work ... and who have contributed widely varying amounts of money into their own retirement system."

The President also said he wanted a review of the financial soundness of existing programs, private as well as public. He said "many government retirement systems are unsound, particularly at the local level. Unlike pensions paid under the federal retirement program, Social Security benefits are subject to limitations based on the amount of earned income reported by a recipient.

Under present law, a Social Security recipient may earn up to $250 a month — $3,000 in any year — and lose no benefits. But he retired worker loses $1 of benefits for every $2 of earnings in excess of $250 a month. This means that a man with a Social Security stipend of $3,600 a year could lose his whole benefit if he earns over $10,200 a year in other income.

Clark's judicial contributions noted by chief justice, others

The Washington Post

Tom C. Clark, 77, a gregarious, hard-working Texan who served as a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court for 18 years, died in his sleep Sunday in New York at the home of his son, Ramsey Clark.

Justice Clark stepped down from the high court in 1967 to avoid any appearance of conflict of interest when his son was appointed attorney general by President Johnson. Justice Clark also had been attorney general.

Since leaving the Supreme Court, to which he was named in 1949 by President Truman, Justice Clark continued to lead an active life, sitting on cases in various U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeal throughout the country.

He was in New York for an appeals court hearing when he died. The cause of death was not immediately announced.

In a statement describing Justice Clark as "unique in the annals of this court and the judiciary," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger noted that Tom Clark was the only man ever to sit as a judge in each of the 11 U.S. judicial circuits.

In addition, Justice Clark also became in 1968 the first director of the Federal Judicial Center, which was established to improve the administration of justice.

Even before leaving the high court, he had begun to travel widely, working with lawyers and judges in behalf of this cause, and both Burger and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell took note of this Monday.

"No one in the past 30 years has contributed more to the improvement of justice than Tom Clark," the chief justice said. Bell called Justice Clark's endeavors in this area "without equal."

Tall and genial, with a broad grin frequently breaking out above an ever-present bow-tie, Justice Clark was depicted by one writer as "the traveling salesman of Justice."

As a sitting justice, students of the court described Clark as generally conservative.

'Magnificent Seven' set mark

300-mile swim

After completing the final shift Quintana said he was "pretty happy it's over."

Quintana said his primary thought during the final lap of the pool was "Now I can go to bed."

Coach Doug Ingram said he was "extremely proud" of his team "It was quite a challenge, and they have met it," he said

Ingram said the event helped strengthen the team unity and has given them much pride and confidence

The "Magnificent Seven" said their first priority was to get some sleep

The relay team gathered in the pool office after the week-long swim to joke with each other and talk with the news media All appeared to be very tired after a week of swimming and semi-sleeping, but none seemed ready to get his much-needed rest The excitement of the moment apparently served as strong stimulant to keep the group awake just a few more hours

One of the seven jokingly suggested having an all-night party to celebrate their triumph

Clay Spears, 16, and Curt Buthman, 17, said they played with a frisbee and slept during their free time

Buthman also attended Midland College, where he is enrolled in summer school

Phil Pelligrino, 20, another of the seven, said he tried to eat and sleep during his six-hour free time periods between swimming shifts

Sid Glenn, 17, another member of the team, has been working five hours a day during the past week between swimming shifts

Jeff Lambeth, 16, of Odessa said he just slept and ate between shifts, but he admitted he didn't sleep very much

Brad Swendig, 19, also attended Midland College during his free time, in addition to sleeping and eating

Parents of some of the relay team members said the event did not upset their daily routine a great deal "We're used to having swimmers disturb our schedules," said one mother

"I think it's wonderful that they broke the records," said Jenny Glenn, mother of Sid Glenn Mrs Glenn said she got plenty of sleep, but her family experienced "funny hours eating."

Dorothy Buthman, mother of Curt Buthman, said her biggest hazard during the week was that of "juggling cars" to accomodate her son's needs

Mrs Buthman said her son, as well as most of the other team members, stayed at the pool most of the week to encourage the other swimmers

Parents of swim team members who answered the telephone at the pool proclaimed, "City of Midland pool, home of the world champion swim team'" And the phone has been ringing quite a bit during the past week

In addition to heavy local and area coverage of the event, the story has been carried by the wire services

In response to the widespread publicity, many local businesses have given food and drinks to the team

The City of Midland Swim Team members will get only a short vacation from the pool They are scheduled to begin training this afternoon for the AAU national swimming championships in August in California

Concerning the question of whether he would participate in another event such as this one, Ingram said, "If someone breaks these records, we'll go after them again."

Mercury hits 102 degrees

Midlanders donned summer garb ran through sprinklers and operated air conditioners at full blast Monday to escape the heat that reached to 102 degree mark

The weatherman predicts more of the same for tomorrow, but the sweltering heat may be broken with rain tonight

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said there is a 20 per cent chance of thunderstorms tonight The low tonight should be in the mid-60s, but the high Wednesday should be near 100

Winds tonight are expected to be from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph

Rape crisis center being planned

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

ODESSA—Plans for a rape crisis center to serve the Midland-Odessa area began Monday in a meeting at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin

Karen V Duggan, associate director of the Texas Rape Prevention and Control Project, met with UTPB officials to discuss preliminary plans for the rape crisis center

According to Dr Clyde Vedder, professor of sociology at UTPB, officials realize the need for such a center because Midland-Odessa is the largest metropolitan area in the state without a rape crisis center The nearest center is in Lubbock

During a news conference Thursday afternoon Duggan said centers have been established in cities the size of Waco to Houston to meet the needs of sexual assault victims and to re-educate the public in dealing with rape.

"The reporting of rape cases has increased 300 per cent the first year in cities with rape centers Most centers encourage the reporting of rapes because they are a felony and are legally a crime against the state," Duggan said.

Most rape victims, she added, are hesitant about reporting the crime because they have fears of law enforcement officials, hospital personnel and the criminal justice system

The source of funding for such a center is for the community to decide, she said Some of the state's centers are funded by Criminal Justice Division grants, the city, county, United Way and Mental Health-Mental Retardation Centers, Duggan said

Duggan recommended that all rape crisis centers have 24-hour telephone hotlines for rape victims

"The victim experiences trauma or crisis because the sexual assault is an unexpected event However, a rape is more severe than other crises because of the fear of bodily harm and the reaction of the victim's family."

"They react differently and feel very singled out There is a very special need for assistance at a time like this," she said

Duggan also recommended that a rape victim first report the case to the police and then contact a rape crisis center

However, the combined events of threats of bodily harm, family and friends' reaction, worry about venereal disease and pregnancy may make her hesitate in deciding to report the case

After the rape is reported to a rape crisis center, Duggan said, a counselor is sent to the victim to help her through the process and continue with her until a resolution is reached or the woman no longer desires help

Another function of a rape center, Duggan said, is to try to change society's attitude about the crime and the victim

"People are afraid of the terms 'sexism' and 'women's lib', but there is discrimination against women when society blames them for causing sexual assault," she said

"If I leave the keys in my car and it is stolen, I will not be blamed for that man's decision to steal the car, even though I may be called any number of names for leaving the keys in the car," she said "However, in many cases, the woman is blamed by society for causing the rape to happen."

Duggan also said the centers have brought the law enforcement officials' attitude toward a rape victim into a favorable light

"The media hasn't portrayed the policeman's role in a flattering manner, so women were hesitant in reporting rape cases They actually treat women very well," she said

The first rape crisis centers were founded by task forces in the National Organization for Women, she said, and now churches and civic groups have spearheaded the drive to form more centers

In a telephone interview, Becky Mahan, director of the Lubbock Rape Crisis Center, said reports of rape cases have increased in that city by about 50 per cent since the center opened in March, 1975

"Lubbock has twice the national average of known rapes because of more reporting of the crime by the victims," Mahan said

The Lubbock Rape Crisis Center is currently operating under a three-year Criminal Justice Division grant, which will end in February, 1978, Mahan said. However, she added, the center has negotiated to be funded by the Lubbock United Way, the city, and the Junior League

Mahan said she believes the center has helped change the attitudes of Lubbock citizens toward the crime and the victim

"The number of hung juries in rape cases has declined to where we have a very few now," she said

Mahan added that the Lubbock Police Department has been very supportive of the center since it began. Rape victims have also said the police were very supportive during the crisis, she said

Transport meeting scheduled

ODESSA — The Policy Advisory Committee for the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study has been scheduled for 2 p m on June 22, according to State Department of Highways and Public Transportation officials

"This meeting, which is to be held at the District Office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Odessa, will be for the purpose of providing an opportunity for the committee to review the transportation planning process that is being utilized in the two-county study area," said Highway Department Public Affairs Officer Charles R Muery

The intent of the Midland-Odessa Regional Transportation Study is to provide an overall transportation plan which will permit the most desirable and efficient means of meeting transportation needs of the study area for the next 20 years. Development of a proposed transportation system is being carried on cooperatively by the state and local governmental agencies.

State representative Tom Craddick of Midland is chairman of the policy advisory committee. Other members include State Senator W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland, Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock, Rep. John Hoestenbach of Odessa, Rep. Richard C. Slack of Pecos, Ector County Commissioner Salvado Guerrero, Midland County Commissioner Charlie Welch, Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. and Odessa City Councilman Glenn Brown.

million gallons per day discharged into the draw now.

Commissioner Winn Brown, who proposed the resolution, said he is opposed to Ector County dumping the treated water, which he said is sewer effluent, into the draw. "Let them keep their crap," he said.

The commissioners approved a resolution authorizing Judge Culver to enter into an agreement with the Texas Commission on Alcoholism to conduct an education program for driving while intoxicated first offenders.

They also approved a subcontract with Midland College which actually will run the program, at a cost of up to $5,464.

Judge Culver said it will be a condition of probation for first offenders to attend four education sessions.

In other business Monday, the commissioners agreed to submit an application through the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission for law enforcement equipment for the sheriff's department. The commissioners, however, said they could not remember exactly what equipment had been requested by Midland Sheriff Dallas Smith.

Also Monday, Katherine Shriver, representing two senior citizens groups, requested that the commissioners consider raising the homestead ad valorem tax exemption for senior citizens from $3,000 to $10,000.

She said that increase would cause the county to lose $17,650 in tax revenue next year.

Judge Culver said the county's 32 per cent assessment rate would mean that with a $10,000 exemption rate persons with houses worth up to $31,500 would pay no county taxes.

The commissioners took no action on the request.

Midlanders earn degrees

ABILENE — Nancy Louise Hardwick and Dorothy Ann Singletary, both of Midland, received degrees from McMurry College in spring commencement ceremonies. snipped away. The cut wasn't exactly styled truly.

The column gave the impression that Polk is retiring; he is. But not fully. He'll still be cutting and trimming part-time at the westside barber shop that he's selling to a couple of gals.

Polk's regulars may be pleased to know that and to know that there will be an old-line barber amid all those hair stylists performing behind the barber's pole.

Ira Moore, one of Polk's regular barbers, is retiring, and not just to part-time work.

"He's fixing to go out to pasture, I think," said Polk, who was cutting hair and shaving folks as early as 1929. Moore was cutting hair back in 1916.

His other barber, Louis Powell, is going to stick with the business. He started cutting hair 34 years ago.

And the shoe-shine guy, Roy Walker?

"He's going to stay if they'll let him," Polk said. That, he said, seems quite promising.

Walker was shining shoes and boots as early as 1917 in Big D.

Naturally, he has done a lot more between then and now.

Glad you're "back" in business, Roy.

Assassin Ray keeping mum about escape

By MATT YANCEY

James Earl Ray

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — Convicted assassin James Earl Ray, back in custody but not talking, apparently was one of three inmates who spent weeks planning last Friday's break from Brushy Mountain State Prison.

"As far as the escape, we feel at this time that we're looking at Doug Shelton, James Earl Ray and Earl Hill, initially," said Warden Stonney Lane. "We know it was well-planned because of the ladder."

Shelton, who worked on the prison's plumbing gang and is believed responsible for the makeshift pipe ladder used by seven inmates to crawl over the wall, was the only fugitive still at large today. His capture would keep intact Brushy Mountain's record for allowing no successful escapes.

Ray, confessed slayer of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., and his former cellmate Hill are sharing a cell again in the prison's maximum security "D block" because of temporary overcrowding, officials said.

They were tracked down by bloodhounds and captured within hours of each other late Sunday and early Monday in the New River section of Anderson County, a snake-infested wooded area about five miles from here.

One prison spokesman said that when Ray was asked what he had been doing between the escape and his discovery Monday by a bloodhound named Sandy, he replied: "Nothing."

Asked if Ray was being hostile or difficult, Lane said, "He's not being different than he usually is." The warden added that Ray refused an examination by a medic upon his return, but said he was looked over for possible snakebites or other apparent injuries.

Two investigators from the House Assassinations Committee, investigating King's death, talked with prison officials for more than three hours Monday about the escape.

Ray remained silent.

"We came to the conclusion while bringing him in that any interrogation of Mr. Ray would be futile," Lane said. "He just wouldn't say anything."

Lane said the congressional investigators — Deputy Chief Counsel Robert Lehner and Edward Evans, head of the subcommittee staff for the King half of the panel's probe — had asked to talk with Ray. But he said a decision on a meeting will be up to Ray and his attorney, Jack Kershaw, who was to arrive here today.

State officials, under criticism for allowing the break to occur, already are considering measures to beef up security around the walls of the 85-year-old fortress.

Gov. Ray Blanton said Monday he was asking President Carter to take custody of Ray, who was sentenced to a 99-year term following his guilty plea to a state charge of murder in the 1968 slaying of King.

Right-of-way buying OK'd

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland County commissioners Monday agreed in principle to purchase 100 per cent of the right-of-way for the proposed north loop road and northern road to Odessa.

The commissioners approved unanimously a motion by Durwood Wright for "the 100 per cent concept to the extent we are legally able to commit the county."

County Judge Barbara Culver said the court could not bind future courts, and it is possible that new court members might be in office before purchase is completed. Also, she said, the county court could not make an absolute purchase commitment because funding might not be available.

Judge Culver said the county will put high priority on the right-of-way purchase. "It's very likely we can get the entire right-of-way," she said.

Judge Culver and all four commissioners plan to attend a hearing in Austin June 30 on the proposed routes.

Also at Monday's meeting, the commissioners agreed not to expand their application for federal housing assistance.

The county is applying for a $21,000 community development grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. But those funds are committed to the Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center.

Since the application for 17 units of owner rehabilitation and rental assistance which was included in this year's application did not receive funding, Judge Culver said, the county will reapply for those units.

But, the commissioners agreed, they would not apply for more units.

Jerry Tschauner, director of planning for the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, said HUD may reject the application because of the small amount of money requested, but the county could then re-examine its position.

Commissioners said the amount of money available is so small that it would be likely that little would be available for actual assistance after administrative costs were paid.

The commissioners also passed a resolution opposing an Ector County request for a permit from the Texas Water Quality Board to dump additional water into Monahans Draw in Midland County.

Ector County has applied for a permit to build a new sewer treatment plant in Midland County which would involve dumping five to six million gallons of water into the draw, in addition to the approximately five

Schlesinger to plead case

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House energy adviser James Schlesinger is going before a congressional panel to try to salvage the Carter administration's plan for keeping some controls on natural gas prices.

The administration hopes to persuade the full House Commerce Committee to reverse last week's decision by its energy and power subcommittee to deregulate the price of some natural gas.

Schlesinger was scheduled to appear today before another commerce subcommittee, the one on oversight and investigations. He will defend the administration proposal to allow a slight rise in interstate natural gas prices while federal price controls are extended to unregulated markets within gas-producing states.

The administration contends that deregulation would send utility bills soaring for consumers who rely on natural gas.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the investigations subcommittee, said he also wants Schlesinger to respond to a new congressional study that says the administration overestimated the number of plants that would switch from oil and natural gas to coal under the energy plan.

Meanwhile, the House Science and Technology Committee was expected to deliver a blow to another part of the administration's energy plan. Carter wants to cancel a nuclear breeder reactor project at Clinch River, Tenn. The committee will probably vote to keep the project going.

Carter told a news conference Monday that despite the rising number of setbacks he still hopes the bulk of his energy program will pass.

House committees already have turned down his plan for a tax of up to 50 cents per gallon on gasoline, his proposed taxes on cars that fail to meet gasoline mileage standards and proposed rebates to people who buy cars that get good gas mileage.

At Monday's news conference, Carter said he doesn't feel the negative votes on his program reflect ineffective White House lobbying.

'Magnificent Seven' becomes first 400-mile relay team

By RICHIE REECER

As a weary Jay Quintana climbed out of the City of Midland Swim Team pool at noon Monday, he was greeted with cheers and applause from spectators and fellow members of the "Magnificent Seven" relay team gathered at the south end of the pool to await his finish.

Quintana, 18, had just completed the final one-hour shift of a seven-day marathon swim that netted the City of Midland Swim Team four world records.

The final record, the one Quintana had just completed, established a mark for the longest continuous swim by a seven-member relay team. The team swam continuously for seven days.

The relay team, nicknamed the "Magnificent Seven" by fellow swimmers, beat the previous record by about 24 hours. During the seven-day period, the team swam 436 miles, 900 yards. No relay team had ever before reached the 400-mile mark.

The team set a total of four world records during the week. In addition to the seven-day marathon record, they set records for the most distance covered in a 24-hour period, the fastest 100-mile swim by a 20-member team, and the fastest

First day back in office abruptly ends vacation

The vacation's over.

"Glad to be back?" comes the perennial question from a fellow at work. The cheek is full with a fat tongue.

Pause.

"Yeah, I guess so," you answer with a reply that's less than notable. It rarely hurts to be casual about some things.

Anyway, you have little choice but to come back. There's work to be done, and you just happen to like your job a whole bunch. A helluva lot.

Besides, you have a stock reason for working. Most everybody does. It keeps the bills paid, or, at least, it tends to keep the creditors at bay. You're able to hold onto the basic necessities of life and to garner a few luxuries.

Of course, the list of "necessities" is forever lengthening, or so it seems, and luxuries become fewer and fewer.

But you know that that really isn't so. You could get by with the bare basics IF you absolutely had to. Few of us do, fortunately or not. Most in the good ol' U.S. of A. are blessed with some degree of affluence and are spoiled but not rottenly . . . maybe.

For whatever reason (from pride to security) work appeals to you, may it put drudgery to shame.

So, it's all over — the vacation, that is. And, in time, there'll be more leisure and lazing-around moments to savor.

It can also be a time to reflect.

Flood lights patrol camp after killings

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Harsh flood lights powered by thumping portable generators lit a 610-acre campground as officers searched through the night for clues in the murder of three young Girl Scouts.

"We've got a maniac somewhere around," said Waynes County Sheriff Glen "Pete" Weaver Monday. "This thing is horrible, it's the work of a demented person."

The night before, in contrast, was dark and silent as 180 Scouts began a week-long outing at Camp Scott, an isolated retreat about 45 miles east of Tulsa.

According to camp director Barbara Day, no one reported hearing anything unusual between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m., the time authorities believe a lone assailant beat and strangled the girls, then dragged their nude bodies in blood-soaked sleeping bags to the intersection of two dirt roads 150 yards away.

But a newspaper reporter said he overheard scouts telling others Monday that they had heard screams at about 3 a.m.

A camp worker said in response to the report that girls "often hear things and scream and giggle" during the first night of an outing.

Michelle Guse, 9, and Lori Lee Farmer, who would have celebrated her 9th birthday on Saturday, were apparently killed by blows to the head, authorities said. Doris Denise Milner, 10, was apparently strangled by a length of cord, her cries probably muffled by a towel found alongside her body. Her hands were bound behind her back with adhesive tape, one investigator said.

"Apparently, from viewing the scene and the bodies, the little girls were beaten to death," said Ted Lempke, a state investigator. "There is also some evidence of sexual molestation of at least one of the girls."

Autopsies were scheduled to determine the exact cause of death of the trio, who had been sleeping in a 12-by-14-foot tent pitched in a wooded area after arriving at the camp on Sunday.

Police said the tent was 150 yards from one in which four camp counselors slept.

Castro releases ten Americans from jail

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ten Americans jailed in Cuba on drug charges have been freed and flown home, leaving 20 Americans still known to be in Fidel Castro's prisons.

The 10, set free by President Castro amid improving relations between the longtime enemy neighbors, arrived in Mexico City Sunday night aboard a Mexican commercial flight from Havana.

The U.S. Embassy said the Americans flew on to their homes Monday on various flights. The embassy said they refused to allow release of their names.

The State Department said six of those freed were arrested in 1975 on drug charges and were serving terms of three to seven years. It said the other four were arrested this year on drug charges but had not been sentenced.

When the United States and the Castro government agreed June 3 to establish lower-level diplomatic missions in each other's capitals, Cuba said it would review the cases of the American prisoners.

The State Department said release of the 10 "was not part of a deal," but officials said the remaining American prisoners would be a prime concern of the U.S. diplomats who are to be stationed in Havana this summer.

Seven of the remaining Americans are held on political charges.

President Eisenhower broke diplomatic relations between the United States and Cuba in early 1961, just before he left office. President Carter told a news conference Monday there was "no immediate prospect" for resuming full diplomatic relations.

One of the freed prisoners, Albert Polange, arrived in New York Monday night and told reporters he lost 25 pounds during his first three weeks in captivity.

Polange said he and several companions were arrested after a plane he was flying developed electrical problems.

"We flew into their airspace and they sent planes up after us," he said.

He said he and his companions were "charged with everything," sentenced to eight years in prison and fined $6,000. He said he had a Cuban lawyer but was not allowed to enter a plea.

Moluccan rites today

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccans from other communities converged on Assen today for the funeral of the six terrorists killed last weekend when government forces stormed the train on which the extremists held 51 hostages.

There were reports that several bus companies refused to accept charters from Moluccan groups wanting to attend the rites. But sources in the local Moluccan community said as many as 5,000 of the 40,000 South Moluccans living in Holland were expected.

A memorial service was to be held at the Moluccan Evangelical Church. Then the bodies of the six men and one woman were to be buried in a single plot on the southern outskirts of Assen.

Police said they were taking special precautions against violence by the Moluccans or by local Dutch in retaliation for the twin 20-day sieges of the train and the Bovensmilde elementary school.

Members of the Assen and Bovensmilde Moluccan communities carried the coffins of the terrorists through the streets to the church Monday for another memorial service.

The coffins were covered with the flag of the phantom South Moluccan republic, and loud, continuous wailing came from the homes of the dead. The Moluccans blocked the streets leading into their quarter with automobiles, and there was no violence.

Six other terrorists who were captured are being questioned, and a seventh who was wounded is in serious condition. The assault by Dutch forces early Saturday freed 49 hostages from the train and four from the schoolhouse.

The other two hostages on the train were killed. The Justice Ministry said it expected to know by midweek, after autopsy reports and ballistic studies, whether bullets from the marines or the terrorists were responsible.

Premier Joop den Uyl and Justice Minister Andries van Agt, the leaders of the country's two largest political parties, were to make a preliminary report to Parliament today.

Russia detaining U.S. newsman

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today banned correspondent Robert C. Toth of The Los Angeles Times from leaving the country, saying he is being investigated for "the collection of secret information," the U.S. Embassy reported.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry handed an embassy official a note charging that Toth "has been engaged in activities incompatible with the status of a foreign journalist accredited to the U.S.S.R., that is, with the collection of secret information of a political and military character.

"Toth will be summoned for interrogation by the investigative organs in connection with which his departure from Moscow until the end of the investigation is not desired," the note said.

Toth said he received a telephone call summoning him to an interrogation office at Lefortovo Prison later today.

DEAR ABBY

Mother's Day brings complaints or warm stories from readers

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Immediately following Mother's Day, and for several weeks thereafter, I receive numerous letters concerning that special day we set aside to "honor" Mother. Some excerpts:

". . .As far as I'm concerned, Mother's Day is a crock of cranberries! All my kids are married and have their own lives, which is fine with me, but weeks can go by and none of them thinks to call me, but on Mother's Day they all fight over me."—CHICAGO MOM

". . .I had only one child, and I regret to say that it was a boy. He is married now, so every holiday he spends with HER mother. Whoever said: 'A son is a son until he takes a wife, but a daughter is a daughter all her life' sure said a mouthful."—MILWAUKEE MOM

". . .My husband gave me a card for Mother's Day, and I told him I wasn't his mother, so we got into a fight over it. I happen to be six years older than him, but I am not old enough to be his mother. Was I wrong to get steamed?"—NOT HIS MOTHER

(I told her she was indeed wrong—that she was probably overly sensitive to the age difference, and that provoked her anger.)

". . .When my only daughter sent me a check for $25 with a note telling me to buy myself something for Mother's Day, I felt so bad I cried all day. If she's too busy, or lazy, or lacking in imagination to pick out a present, I certainly don't need her charity."—HURT IN WALPOLE, N.H.

". . .I am a retired school teacher who never married, but I've always loved children. The young boy who delivers my newspaper knows that, so on Mother's Day he left me a sack of jellybeans and a lovely Mother's Day card, on which he wrote, 'You would have made a wonderful mother.' Wasn't that dear?"—TOUCHED IN TULSA

". . .What do you do with a mother who sends back the Mother's Day gifts her children give her? She says, 'I don't need anything and I don't want anything, so please take it back!'"-D. AND S.

". . .I wish my children would get together and buy me ONE useful gift. Every Mother's Day I get nine gifts I have no use for."—CLEVELAND MOTHER

". . .How many times should a mother have to tell her children she's allergic to flowers? For Mother's Day I got five bouquets again! I told the delivery man to leave them on the porch, then I gave them to my neighbors."—PHOENIX

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to go directly to those who are in a position to help you reach financial goals. Let them know what you have in mind and then carry through with their suggestions. You are able to gain advancement by applying yourself mentally, too.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Let your contracts know what they can do to help your more in your endeavors and get good results. Do the research work necessary for the information you need, but pay particular attention to details.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Getting a new plan in operation that will improve your monetary and practical structure is wise now. Consult with and expert if you have any doubts. Take no chances with one who talks too much.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what it is you want from others and you can get it with less trouble than usual. A good time to either extend or accept social invitations.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) People in the business world who were cool to your ideas and desires are now willing to listen. Take advantage of it. Take time to be with loved one more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Let friends and loved ones know how you feel. Don't take them for granted. Avoid an unscrupulous associate who could cause you trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Pleasing a bigwig could get you the support you need at this time. Avoid unnecessary expenditures of money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put those ideas to work that will give you a chance to improve conditions around you. Make new contracts who have the information you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get the support of one who means a great deal to you and increase mutual happiness. Keep promises you have made to others. Unexpected but welcome invitation is likely to come.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do what you can to improve relations with co-workers. Be more willing to do what they want. A public affair arises that is favorable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put that organizational ability you possess to work and get ahead faster in your routine work. Have talks with co-workers and gain their cooperation. Spend some time with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use spare time for recreational endeavors. Cultivate friendships that could lead to more success. Take the lead with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find a better way of handling affairs at home so that all is more comfortable there. Entertain at home with good results.

Photographer rolls around on birthday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rachel Thompson, a photographer, held her 30th birthday party at a roller skating rink here.

"It only cost me $100 to rent the rink on a Monday night," she said, "and about 100 people showed up, all of whom paid 50 cents to rent a pair of skates."

The highlight? "I guess it was when this guy came skating out with my birthday cake and I started skating toward him. Neither of us could really skate well, and for one perilous moment, I thought we'd really had it."

Would she do it again? Yes. "Most people said it was the best party they'd ever been to," she said, "and it was great to know that I had so many friends willing to fall down just for me."

Faye Hoff marries in Houston ceremony

HOUSTON — Faye Linda Hoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hoff of 2504 W. Shandon St., Midland, and Michael Deutser Copland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Copland of Houston, were married at 6 p.m. Sunday in Houston Oaks Hotel.

Rabbi Norbert Weinberg performed the double ring ceremony. Bobby Tinterow was the pianist, and Canter Arturo Sergi was soloist.

Judith Ann Hoff of Houston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The other bridal attendants were Betsy Jan Hoff of Midland, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Arlene Fran Hoff of Houston, sister-in-law of the bride.

Barry Jagoda of Washington, D.C., was best man. The groomsmen were Sidney Levine and Dr. Bruce Alan Hoff, brother of the bride. E. Stanley Topek and Stephen Smith were the ushers.

Mr. Hoff presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white silk organza with Venise lace fashioned with a scooped neckline and short cap sleeves scalloped in the matching lace. From the princess silhouette, the silk organza skirt fell to slipper length. Her full train was chapel length. A Camelot headpiece held her elbow-length French illusion veil. She carried a teardrop cascade of Eucharis lilies, baby's breath and stephanotis and foliage accented with a touch of peach.

Following the ceremony, a champagne party and dinner-dance were held. Music was by the Bobby Tinerow Orchestra.

The couple is taking a wedding trip to Paradise Island, Bahamas.

Ham makes filling

Deviled ham mixed with grated cheddar cheese and a little chili sauce makes a good filling for toasted sandwiches. If you cut the sandwiches in quarters you can serve them for party fare.

Best fiction written for catalogues

By ERMA BOMBECK

Some of the greatest fiction in the world is being written these days by authors who will probably never be recognized.

I'm speaking of course of the catalogues that go out each year from nurseries describing their flowers, trees and shrubs.

Our neighbors, Babs and Jerry, never miss an issue. Last year, Jerry could hardly contain himself. "Look at this," he said thrusting the catalogue in our faces. "This amazing super-growing species soars into a magnificent tree in just one year. That's not all. It smothers itself in lavish masses of bouquets and its branches appear to bend from the sheer mass of the weight of the magnificent blossoms. It grows more in one month than most other shade trees grow in a year and when mature will spread to 50 feet. Plant now! Step back and watch out! Price: $3.95."

"Gee Jerry," said my husband, "that sounds too good to be true."

"You think that's terrific, listen to this one. 'Imagine the thrill of picking your own ripe, luscious bananas for breakfast or snacks, for fruit salads, pies and cakes. All this from the most spectacular tropical plant your neighbors have ever envied. Exciting and educational for the children.'"

Babs grabbed the book out of his hand. "Here's what I'm going for. Winter blooming flowers from Holland that bloom all winter. These flowers laugh at winter snow!" The picture showed a family of three standing at their picture window looking into rows of pink, yellow and blue flowers nestled above the snow. The flowers were laughing.

"And now for the zinger," said Jerry. "This one is going to not only amaze our friends, but rid our home of flying insects. Its a Venus fly trap that actually eats mosquitos and flies. When your home is insect free, it says you can feed it bits of raw hamburger.'."

"How about unplanned children?" I giggled.

'You haven't taken any of this seriously, have you? You'll be sorry when you have to fight your way into our yard with a machete knife."

We didn't see Babs or Jerry for several months. When we did our questions were obvious. "Hey, Jer, how's the amazing super-growing species that soars into a magnificent tree in just one year?"

"It spread to 50 feet all right, just like the ad said . . . all underground and around the septic tank."

"And the banana tree?"

"We didn't get the crop we had hoped for. Someone set a cocktail in the pot and it caught cold and died. As for the Venus fly trap, it ate the winter blooming flowers because the laughing got on its' nerves."

"Does this mean you're giving up?"

"Indeed not," said Jerry, leafing through the catalogue. "We're getting a prayer plant. It says here it amazes adults and children and each leaf folds out like a pair of hands at worship . . . ."

New cage franchises struggling

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — It's been nearly a year since the owners of National Basketball Association teams cast a lifeline to the members of the sinking American Basketball Association, and those who grabbed it are finding the price of survival to be steep indeed.

Just how steep was expected to be a prime topic of conversation at the annual summer meetings of the NBA Board of Governors, which opened today and will continue through Friday at the Hotel del Coronado.

It was at last year's summer meetings, June 17, 1976, at Hyannis, Mass., that an agreement was announced which brought an end to the 9-year-old ABA, with four teams being absorbed into the NBA. Now, nearly 12 months later, those four survivors—the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs—are still foundering.

The debts accumulated in their years in the ABA, the $3.2 million entrance fee, the cost of buying out their ABA brothers who were not included in the merger, the legal fees and costs involved in settling a myriad of lawsuits, the constantly rising operating expenses and their agreement not to share in television revenue—all have contributed to the financial plight of the former ABA teams.

And it's a serious plight— sources say at least one of the four clubs has debts in the ritzy neighborhood of $10 million.

The Denver Nuggets, for example, who played to better than 95 per cent of capacity this year and led the NBA in attendance, still had to withdraw a proposed stock offering because of a shaky financial outlook caused by a backlog of debts.

But the most troubled of the teams is the Indiana Pacers, who could not meet their June 1 player payroll on time and have been conducting a long and fruitless search for new financial support. Each of the four teams owes the league $200,000 by June 30 as the final part of the $3.2 million entrance fee, and for the Pacers, who are having trouble paying their day-to-day expenses, that represents a major obstacle.

Mets attempting to dump Seaver

ATLANTA (AP) — "You don't give away a Tom Seaver," said New York Mets' Manager Joe Torre.

Perhaps. But the Mets certainly are trying to trade the star pitcher.

The feud between the team's three-time Cy Young Award winner and Mets' management seems to have reached a head and Seaver appears to be headed elsewhere, with rumors rampant that Cincinnati is that place. Seaver must approve any deal the Mets make, and he said he would be willing to go to the world champion Reds.

SPORTS

"If there is a deal with the Reds, I would okay it," the 32-year-old right-hander said Monday night. "This thing has been coming to a head for a year and a half. Last year, I just kept things inside me, things I shouldn't have. Things were said in the press that branded me as an 'ingrate' during contract negotiations."

Seaver and the Mets conducted bitter contract talks prior to the 1976 season and the pitcher eventually signed a three-year, $750,000 contract. But that was before the lucrative free agent market. Now Seaver wants to renegotiate the contract and the Mets have refused.

In a statement released Monday by the Mets and signed by Board Chairman M. Donald Grant, the club explained its stand.

"So that there can be no misunderstanding regarding Tom Seaver and his association with us," the statement read, "we wish to announce we do not and never have wanted to trade Seaver.

"However, Tom now wished to renegotiate his contract that he was so happy with a year ago. Our board of directors voted unanimously against renegotiation.

"The contract is the fundamental cornerstone of our country and baseball as well.

"In the spring of 1976, Tom asked for and received a three-year contract and expressed his happiness with the terms. Never once during the 1976 season did he register anything but satisfaction with the contract.

"With the advent of the free agent draft, other players were promised more lucrative contracts. It was then that Tom expressed his unhappiness."

And Seaver has continued to express his unhappiness with the Mets, especially when the team failed to sign any free agents last winter. Now, apparently, both sides have had enough, and Seaver is available for the best offer.

In addition to Cincinnati, the teams rumored to be bartering with the Mets for Seaver are the Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies and Atlanta Braves. But the Reds appear to have the inside track.

Cincinnati's offer for Seaver was said to include ace reliever Rawly Eastwick, who has announced he will play out his option and leave the Reds after this season. Also rumored to be a part of the transaction are pitcher Gary Nolan and infielder Doug Flynn.

"The deal has already been made," Reds third baseman Pete Rose said Monday.

"I will never sign another contract with the Reds," Eastwick said Monday. "I'm being held out of games here and I can't pitch effectively unless I pitch often. I'm being played around with."

Eastwick also said he would not sign a contract this season and would become a free agent after the season instead.

Fork ball changes Sutter's life

CHICAGO (AP) — If it weren't for the development of an exploding fork ball, Bruce Sutter could very well be back in Lancaster, Pa., working in a printing factory instead of pitching for the first place Chicago Cubs.

Sutter, who signed with the Cub organization in 1972, underwent surgery for a pinched nerve in his arm in 1973 and when the operation was over he had lost his fast ball.

"I was ready to chuck it in and go back to the printing presses," said Sutter. "But Fred Martin told me to try the fork ball. It was awkward at first and it took me a couple of months to really learn.

"But this year is the first time that I have reached the point where I can throw it for strikes anytime I want."

Sutter doesn't throw it for strikes all the time, however. "Why should I throw it for strikes when they swing at balls bouncing in the dirt?" he asked. "If they start taking, I'll throw the strikes."

The 25-year-old right-hander's record of 30 appearances with a 2-1 record, a 0.81 earned run average and 17 saves is amazing enough but it pales when compared to his walks-strikeouts ratio. In 55 innings pitched, Sutter has yielded but seven walks—two of them intentional—against 63 strikeouts.

Ordinarily, a pitcher who records two strikeouts for every walk can expect a winning record. A 3-1 ratio is a sign of greatness. Sutter's ratio in simple arithmetic is 7-1.

"He's the greatest relief pitcher that I've seen in my 45 years in baseball," said Cubs Manager Herman Franks. "Name me a better one? You can't do it. Compare his statistics with anyone else. Look at 'em, walks and strikeouts, hits and innings pitched. And remember they are all in tough situations. We never use him in games that are totally won or lost."

Sutter never alters his pitching style.

"Situations make no difference to me," he said. "I pitch the same way all the time whether I come in and the bases are loaded or start an inning from scratch. You are pitching against major leaguers. There are no soft touches. You can't relax. If you do, they'll knock you all over the lot."

Sutter is appreciative of the support he receives from Cub fans who are packing Wrigley Field these days. When his name is announced over the public address system, a loud cheer goes up and they cheer every strike he throws.

"Hell yes, I love it," said Sutter. "It pumps you up. But it's like everything else. Everyone is for you when you are going good and against you when you are going bad."

Sutter feels he shouldn't receive all the praise.

"To win you have to have both hitting and pitching," he said. "When you are pitching well, the guys behind you respond and play better defense. You have to have it all—pitching, hitting and defense.

Bartow resigns UCLA cage post

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Gene Bartow, UCLA's basketball coach for the past two years, has gone from one extreme to another.

He's leaving one of the nation's most renowned basketball schools to accept a position as coach and athletic director at University of Alabama in Birmingham — a school that doesn't have a basketball team or even an athletic program.

That will be Bartow's job.

Dr. S. Richardson Hill Jr., UAB president, confirmed Bartow's appointment Monday when he said, "Gene Bartow will serve as athletic director and head coach of the UAB basketball team we hope to field during the 1978-79 season.

"He is one of the great coaches and leaders of young people in the country today and we're confident he'll continue his outstanding leadership at UAB."

J.D. Morgan, UCLA's athletic director, said late Monday afternoon that Bartow hadn't informed him of his decision but added he expected to hear from the man who succeeded the legendary John Wooden.

"I'd feel better about making a statement after I've heard from Gene and knew all the ramifications," Morgan said. "I'm not surprised, though, and he had my permission to talk to the people at UAB. All I can say is to wish him the best of good luck and happiness.

"We appreciate what he has done the last two years at UCLA and also appreciate him as a coach and gentleman."

Morgan said he isn't in a hurry to find a replacement for Bartow and he'll take three or four weeks, if necessary.

"But, the situation isn't as critical as it was when Dick Vermeil (football coach) left us last year (for the Philadelphia Eagles) only eight days before the signing of letters of intent.

"Or, when John Wooden resigned at the end of the basketball season (1973-74) and just before the recruiting season. Or, when Tommy Prothro (football coach) said he was leaving to take a job with the Rams on New Year's Eve."

Indiana coach Bobby Knight once said that the second man to follow Wooden, who won 10 national championships in 12 years, would be under considerably less pressure than the first successor.

Some familiar names and some new ones will now crop up as possible prospects for the UCLA coaching job, such as:

Gary Cunningham, Wooden's former assistant and now a UCLA Alumni Assn. executive; Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps, North Carolina's Dean Smith, Louisville's Denny Crum, Providence's Dave Gavett, Oklahoma's Dave Bliss and Bill Sharman, the former Laker coach.

SIU, Gamecocks remain unbeaten

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Dewey Robinson of Southern Illinois University was a 19th-round choice when the major league clubs culled the college ranks for talent earlier this month.

But Arizona State University will attest that he already is a pitching craftsman.

"The mark of a good pitcher is to come up with the big pitch in the key situation," Arizona State Coach Jim Brock mused after Robinson stopped his top-rated club 3-2 Monday. "And it was obvious that Dewey did just that."

Robinson, a senior righthander, surrendered 11 hits but continually pitched out of trouble.

The victory left fourth-ranked Southern Illinois, 40-10, and South Carolina, 42-10-1, the only unbeatens among the six remaining schools in the double-elimination College World Series tournament.

Jim Lewis scattered eight hits and struck out 14 as South Carolina beat crowd-favorite California State-Los Angeles 6-2. The two tornament unbeatens meet Wednesday night.

In completion of a game suspended by rain Sunday night, co-favorite Minnesota eliminated Baylor 4-3 in 11 innings.

In elimination-round games tonight, Arizona State, 53-2, faces Minnesota, 39-11, in a matchup of pre-tournament favorites and California State-Los Angeles, 41-21, meets Clemson, 42-9.

"I'm not an overpowering pitcher, so I have to change speeds and pitch smart to be effective," said Robinson, selected by the Chicago White Sox in the free agent draft. "Sure, I gave up 11 hits because they're a good hitting team, but I don't think that I was hit all that hard."

His club managed only four hits, but coupled with three Arizona State errors, it was enough. Neil Fiala drove in two of the Salukis' runs.

"When you hold a team to three runs you should be able to win," said Brock. "We didn't play well and that's my fault, I didn't have them ready to play."

Arizona State has come into the college classic as the top-rated team in four of the last six years but not won the title. Now the Sun Devils are one loss away from elimination.

Eight cities seeking future Super Bowls

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight cities were to place bids for future Super Bowls before National Football League owners today at the NFL's annual spring meetings.

The cities bidding for the NFL championship games of 1979, 1980 and 1981 were New Orleans, the site of the 1978 Super Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., which hosted the game earlier this year, Dallas, Seattle, Pontiac, Mich., Houston, Los Angeles and Miami. Houston, where the game would be held in Rice Stadium, seems to have the inside track for the 1979 game.

Also on the agenda for the owners was the matter of retroactive compensation. The league has to decide whether a team that signed a free agent who played out his option with another team owes any compensation to the player's original club. That includes any player who jumped to the World Football League, then back to the NFL, and a player who simply played out his option and signed with another NFL team.

For instance, do the New York Giants owe the Miami Dolphins anything for signing fullback Larry Csonka after the WFL folded? Csonka had left the Dolphins to sign with Memphis of the WFL. And are the New York Jets entitled to compensation from the Washington Redskins, who signed John Riggins after the running back played out his option with New York?

The owners also were expected to discuss future television revenues with Commissioner Pete Rozelle. The league's pacts with the three TV networks are up after this season. Bidding for the new contracts is expected to be heavy, with ABC expected to pursue rights to the Super Bowl. ABC, whict televises NFL games on Monday nights during the season, has never telecast the Super Bowl, which will be played in prime time for the first time in 1978.

Cubs call up Buckner to replace Gordon

The player-short Midland Cubs added outfielder Jimmy Buckner to their roster to replace Karl Gordon, an infielder sidelined for the season as a result of an injury last week against San Antonio.

Buckner batted .309 for Monterrey in 79 games in the Mexican League last year, but the 5-8, 165-pounder has been out of baseball this season.

The lefthander is the younger brother of Chicago Cubs first baseman Bill Buckner.

A lefthander all the way, Buckner played for Asheville of the AA Southern League in 1975 and batted .270 with 12 homers and 58 rbi. However, he was released by Rochester of the International League in 1976.

Buckner joins the Cubs in time for the first-half stretch drive which begins Wednesday in Amarillo and then moves to El Paso as the Chicago farmhands continue their pursuit of the Diablos in the West Division chase.

Buckner worked out with the Cubs at 11 a.m. today, the final workout before the team left for Amarillo.

Gordon was injured rounding second base last week against the Dodgers, pulling all of the tendons in his left ankle, requiring surgery. Batting at a .342 clip over the last six weeks, Gordon raised his average to .270 before he was hurt.

Bosox move into first with extra-inning victory

By The Associated Press

Carlton Fisk knows when the odds are in his favor.

"There was a good chance for a hit," the Boston catcher said after his long single in the bottom of the 10th inning scored Rick Burleson from third and gave the Red Sox a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Monday night.

The victory moved Boston into first place in the American League East Division, one-half game ahead of the New York Yankees.

Fisk was batting with the bases loaded and one out.

"Their infield and outfield were playing in and their pitcher (Larry Anderson) had to give me something good to hit," Fisk said. "I was just trying to hit the ball hard.

"When a guy's throwing as well as he was, you can't go up there only trying for a fly ball. You have to think of getting a hit."

Fisk lined the ball over the head of Chicago centerfielder Chet Lemon.

In other AL games Monday night, Texas blanked Cleveland 3-0 and Kansas City defeated the Yankees 8-3. In the National League, the New York Mets downed Atlanta 7-1, Cincinnati edged Philadelphia 5-4 and Montreal nipped Houston 3-2.

"First place is a nice place to be," Boston Manager Don Zimmer said.

It was Boston's fifth straight victory and eighth in the last nine games.

Relief specialist Bill Campbell, Boston's fourth pitcher, picked up the victory by retiring the last six Chicago batters.

Burleson opened the 10th with a walk off Anderson, the third Chicago pitcher. Rick Miller was safe on a fielder's choice and both runners moved up on a wild pitch. Jim Rice was walked intentionally to load the bases with none out. Carl Yastrzemski fouled out before Fisk belted the winning hit.

Rangers 3, Indians 0

Burt Blyleven's four-hit shutout was backed by home runs by Juan Beniquez and Burt Campaneris as Texas downed Cleveland. Only John Lowenstein was able to bother Blyleven, 6-7, getting two of the Indians' hits and also walking once.

Beniquez, who also doubled, gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead in the fourth with his homer into the left field stands. It was the first hit off loser Dennis Eckersley, 6-5. Campaneris led off the sixth with his second homer of the year.

Royals 8, Yankees 3

George Brett scored from first base on a bloop single in the first inning, then slammed a two-run homer, powering Kansas City over New York and knocking the Yankees out of first place in the AL East.

Catcher Darrell Porter drove in three runs for the Royals, who were making their first Yankee Stadium appearance since losing the 1976 AL championship series to the Yankees last October.

Winner Paul Splittorff, 5-4, needed help from Doug Bird and Steve Mingori. Mike Torrez, 7-5, took the loss.

Mets 7, Braves 1

Pitcher Jerry Koosman backed his four-hitter with two runs batted in, leading the Mets over Atlanta.

"I didn't want to take him out because I didn't want to lose his bat." Mets Manager Joe Torre said of Koosman, who had two hits.

Koosman, 5-6, struck out 10, walked three and held the Braves hitless until the fifth inning when Atlanta scored an unearned run following the pitcher's error. Koosman's two-run single came in the eighth when the Mets scored four runs.

Reds 5, Phillies 4

A home run by Dan Driessen leading off the bottom of the ninth lifted Cincinnati past Philadelphia. Driessen's sixth homer of the season gave the victory to reliever Pedro Borbon, 2-3, and saddled Phils reliever Wayne Twitchell with his fifth straight defeat.

Greg Luzinski had tied the score in the eighth, tripling home Larry Bowa. Mike Schmidt homered for Philadelphia, his 12th of the season, while George Foster slammed his 14th homer for the Reds.

Expos 3, Astros 2

Run-scoring singles by Tony Perez and Andre Dawson and a sacrifice fly by Gary Carter in the fifth inning helped Montreal beat Houston.

Santo Alcala, 2-3 hurled no-hit ball for 41-3 innings but was chased after giving up a two-run homer to Houston's Jose Cruz in the eighth.

Kansas City Royals George Brett scampers past the falling New York Yankee catcher Thurm Munson to score in the first inning of Monday night's game at Yankee Stadium. Brett scored on teammate John Mayberry's single to center field. (AP Laserphoto)

Cage league starting

The Washington branch of the YMCA is conducting a summer basketball league for men 18 years of age and over.

Registration for the summer league will officially end June 17. Every registered participant who is not a member of the YMCA will be charged a summer program fee. All participants will be charged a $3 player fee.

To enter call the Washington YMCA, 682-6294.

Net event rained out

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Although it is officially just tennis rather than lawn tennis in the United States now, that does not seem to have altered the stranglehold American men still have on the game on grass.

Even without their top star Jimmy Connors, the American dominated the John Player tournament, which ended inconclusively in rain and disarray Monday.

Of the last eight, six came from the United States—Brian Gottfried, Stan Smith, Bob Lutz, Roscoe Tanner, Dick Stockton and the surprise of the tournament, Tim Gullikson, from Olalaska, Wis.

Gullikson, ranked 45th in the United States, volleyed his way through to the final against Jaime Fillol of Chile. But Gullikson and Fillol will have to wait before they know who will win the $13,300 first prize until later. For the second year in a row, rain blighted the tournament, forced postponement of the final for a day Sunday, then washed it out again Monday.

It now will be played at London's Hurlingham Club Saturday, two days before the start of Wimbledon.

SPORTS CHATTER

What is a sports writer?

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

What is a sports writer? Is he merely a glorified public relations man, whose job it is to build legends out of ordinary men, and write glowing copy about the home team, all the while using adjectives like great, terrific, fantastic, superb and magnificent? Or rather, is he a reporter, a newspaperman, who should concern himself with objectivity and fact; who should write the truth even if it does fracture a few fantasies?

These questions came up for probably the millionth time recently at an NCAA press seminar in Gatlinburg, Tenn., that featured a rap session between some 40 writers and two college coaches — Dan Devine, the head football genius at Notre Dame, and Johnny Orr, the basketball mentor at the University of Michigan.

Orr echoed the sentiments of most coaches across the country when he said, "I like all my writers to be cheerleaders."

Many years ago, they may have been just that. Writers like Grantland Rice, Paul Gallico, Damon Runyan and Ring Lardner spent most of their natural lives making heroes of men like Ruth, Gehrig, Thorpe and Grange. Ruth may have hit the home runs, but it was the sports journalists of his day who built him into a legend. And Grange may have scored the touchdowns, but it was the moving newspaper poetry of men like Rice that had every kid in America trying to become the next "Galloping Ghost."

THAT WAS their job then. They were hero builders in an era when heroes were badly needed. But times have changed. People have changed. Along about the late fifties, writers began to realize that there was just a bit more to their job than that. Sure, the world still needed heroes. It will always need heroes. But it also wanted truth.

Well, most of it did anyway.

I'll never forget the lady that called me last winter, and complained that I had been unjustly harsh in a story I had written. In closing she said, "if you can't say anything good, then make something up." Make something up. That's what she said.

That's just one example. How about the confrontation between Oklahoma City Times sports columnist Frank Boggs and thousands of irate OU fans last November, when Boggs wrote a story confirming the fact that the Sooners were under preliminary investigation by the NCAA? He needed police protection after that for merely printing the truth. I guess people like to here the truth, unless it concerns "their team." Then they grab the nearest pair of ear muffs. Because God forbid, "their team" can do no wrong. And even if they did, they don't want to hear about it.

At the press seminar in Tennessee, Orr and Devine were emphatic on one point. And that is that victory is all-important, and negative writing does not help achieve that cause.

"HELL," ORR added, "these guys drink our booze, eat our food and ride on our charter flights. I think they owe us something."

He's right there. In fact, if I were in Orr's shoes, I would feel the same way. I guess it's not quite as bad as being on the take, but it falls into about the same category. How in the hell can you mooch rides, food and liquor off somebody and then try and write objectively? It can be done I imagine, but it takes an awful lot of practice and a lot of cold blood.

But that still doesn't answer the question, does it? For that I turn to Jimmy Cannon, who like Rice, Gallico, Runyan and Lardner is one of the immortals of this profession. His words hit the nail right on the head.

"Sports writing survived," he wrote, "because of the guys who don't cheer. They're the truth tellers. Lies die. Go into any town where they have placid baseball writing, where they're all for the home team, and you'll find out that in that town baseball is not considered an exciting game.

"Telling the truth — and writing it with vigor and clarity — that's what makes writing exciting.

"I don't want sports writers to be fans. I want them to be the guys who neither love nor hate the sport, and whose life is not wrapped up in the sport and who remember they are working newspapermen, not baseball people — no more than a police reporter is a cop."

That answers the question.

Robinson grabs early pin lead

SEATTLE (AP) — Jay Robinson of Los Angeles surprised even himself as he grabbed the first round lead Monday in the $95,000 Columbia Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) National Championships at Leilani Lanes.

"I usually don't get off to this quick a start," said Robinson, who rolled a 300 game and averaged a sizzling 250 for the first eight games. "I usually just hang around the middle of the field until the last day or so, then make my charge.

"But you know, the last time I won a tournament (last summer at Trenton, N.J.) I led from start to finish, so maybe this is a good omen."

Johnny Miller putting pieces back together

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — For much of the season, said Johnny Miller, "that wasn't Johnny Miller out there. It was somebody else with somebody else's swing.

"Now, I've finally started hitting the ball like somebody I know. You should hear from me in the future."

It could be as soon as this week in the 77th United States Open Golf Championship.

"I'm not expecting to win anything right now. I'm playing good, but not phenomenal."

Then—as sometimes happens with the game's one-time golden boy who, suddenly and mysteriously went into a dismal slump, his conversation took a 180 degree turn.

"I'm not saying Johnny Miller won't win, I'm just saying I'm not expecting it.

"But I'mhitting the ball pretty good now. I'm hitting it like I used to. It's either going dead straight or a little to the right. Most of this year I'd stand over the ball and not know whether it's going to go left, right or straight. It's a pretty helpless feeling."

"And I'm putting good, too. I'm not making a lot, but I'm rolling the ball good, maybe better than I have in two years.

"I'm very close, very close to being back where I was before."

And that was right at the top of the game.

In 1974 he won eight tournaments, a record $350,000 and Player of the Year honors. The following year he won four titles and recorded that fantastic blitz of the desert events. Last year he collected three titles including the Britith Open.

He hasn't been a factor in any tournament he entered. He missed the cut as often as he made it. Only last week in the Memphis Classic did he start to turn it around.

"I don't think I was nearly as concerned about the slump as everybody else seemed to be," he said.

The trouble came from too much muscle and too much comilacency, Miller said. The muscles—big, hard-working, non-golf muscles—developed from physical labor on his newly-purchased ranch in the Northern California wine country. Complacency developed from his financial status bolstered by various commerical contracts.

Packers favored

Midland's Stockton Packers will be the favorite in the Fast Pitch Softball Tournament which will begin Friday and runs through Sunday at Hogan Park.

The Packers won their sixth tournament in seven tries at Wichita Falls last week to raise their season's record to 37-3.

In the Midland tournament, the Packers will be facing a 16-20-team field with entries expected from Odessa, Amarillo, Borger, Carlsbad, N.M., Hobbs, N.M., Dallas, Big Spring, Lamesa and Lubbock.

Showdown highlights meet

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—A showdown between two Olympic gold medalists in the long jump highlights the annual Prefontaine classic track and field meet that starts Tuesday evening at the University of Oregon's Hayward Field.

Arnie Robinson, the 29-year-old who won the gold medal in the long jump in the Montreal games last year, will face his toughest competition from Randy Williams, who won the long jump in the 1972 Olympics.

Robinson won the long jump at the national Amateur Athletic Union meet in Los Angeles last Friday with a leep of 27 feet ½ inch. It was the 15th time he had jumped farther than 27 feet. Lynn Winbigler of the Oregon Track Club will compete in the women's discus. She set the American record in that event at 187-2 in the AAU meet.

Connors, Evert both seeded first

LONDON (AP) — There may be a load of surprises when the Wimbledon Tennis Championships begin Monday. But the seeding for the tournament went exactly as expected.

Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert were named the top seeds for the tournament. Connors, who won Wimbledon in 1974, also is rated the No. 1 men's player in the world. He is one of five Americans ranked in the top 10 for the tournament.

Miss Evert, defending women's champion who also won at Wimbledon in 1974, is an overwhelming favorite to win again.

Seeded second in the men's draw was defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, followed by French Open champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Rounding out the men's top 10 were No. 4 Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., the hard-serving left-hander who eliminated Connors at Wimbledon last year; No. 5 Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla; sixth-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania, a finalist in 1976; No. 7 Raul Ramirez of Mexico; No. 8 Vitas Gerulaitis, the Italian Open titlist from New York; ninth-rated Dick Stockton of Dallas, and No. 10 Adriano Panatta of Italy.

Behind Miss Evert in the women's draw were Czechoslovakian expatriate Martina Navratilova, rated No. 2; Virginia Wade and Sue Barker of Great Britain, seeded third and fourth, respectively; No. 5 Billie Jean King, making a comeback from semi-retirement; No. 6 Rosie Casals of San Francisco; seventh-ranked Betty Stove of The Netherlands; No. 8 Kerry Reid of Australia; No. 9 Dianne Fromholtz of Australia, and No. 10 Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia.

Rivers for Otis?

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankess and Kansas City Royals are mulling over an even-up trade of centerfielder Mickey Rivers and Amos Otis, The Associated Press learned Monday night.

A highly placed source told The AP that Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog proposed the deal, but it was opposed by Joe Burke, the team's gereral manager.

Rivers, 28, batted .312 and was a key factor as the Yankees won the 1976 American League pennant. His lifetime average is .289 and he was hitting .315 going into Monday night's game against the Royals.

Nation's mayors believe money tie that binds them, voters

By LEE MITGANG

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The nation's mayors don't agree with the voters on every issue, but one problem always brings mayors and their constituents together — money.

The struggles to balance city budgets and to control soaring local taxes were seen — in a survey taken by The Associated Press at the U.S. Conference of Mayors' annual meeting here — as the most important gripes shared by mayors and citizens.

Mayors also complain about problems in attracting industry, developing downtown areas and improving housing in their cities. But they say the people themselves consider deteriorating streets, high crime rates, unemployment and even stray dogs as the major issues.

One hundred of the 300 mayors attending the conference responded to the survey, taken here Monday.

"Almost all our problems are related to money," said Mayor L.D. Ochs of Colorado Springs. But he added that his citizens make "demands for expanded services, while at the same time demanding that levels of taxes be reduced."

Surprisingly, only one mayor, L.T. Kramer of Paterson, N.J., said his city's biggest problems was quality of education, and he said his citizens agree with him.

Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles said his citizens complain most over lack of jobs, but that his own problem is broader, including crime, rising city costs and poor housing.

Twenty-nine mayors said their cities' biggest problems are the rising cost of government and other budget problems. Another 12 named economic development problems as their top concern. Eleven identified housing, and eight said lack of jobs is a problem. The other 40 gave a variety of answers that didn't fall into any of these categories.

According to 28 mayors, people in their cities complain most of rising local taxes. Another 19 said citizens gripe most often about poor streets while crime and lack of police protection was third on the list with 12 mayors saying that was their citizens' most frequent complaint.

Fifty-three mayors said they were "just satisfied" with President Carter's performance in office. Another 21 were "pleased," 15 were "disappointed" and 11 didn't respond.

The Carter energy proposals apparently have little support among the mayors. Of those participating in The AP survey, 31 opposed the program, 27 gave it partial support, 22 stated full support, and 20 did not respond.

Texan nabbed in drug bust

NEW YORK (AP) — A Texas man, allegedly carrying about $100,000 worth of marijuana in the trunk of a rented car, has been arrested in Manhattan, police report.

Police said they seized nearly 50 pounds of pure Columbian marijuana from Douglas Moyes, 27, of Austin, Tex., and charged him with felony narcotics possession.

The arrest was made on the West Side by anticrime police officers John Addington and Thomas Winton.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Europe builds health trails

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm just back from Europe, and I am struck by how much easier it is to get out and go for a walk or jog there than it is in this country. And in such pleasant surroundings! There are lots of public paths and country roads—dirt ones—while here, everything seems to have been built simply for cars and trucks. Who ever goes for a walk in the subrubs? Or most country towns? City streets are about it. Don't you think this has an awful lot to do with why everyone gets so fat? I feel the difference already, and it has only been two weeks.—H.J.

Dear H.J.: I think you have a very good point. And some of the European countries are developing additionsl public facilities for exercise within the reach of most people. In a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, Drs. Robert Buxbaum and Ronald O'Connor report on the hundreds of miles of woodland running paths—also called fitness trails—that have been built in Sweden during the past 10 years. The trails have many advantages: they are much more pleasant than streets or cinder tracks; they are free of automobile hazards and pollution; they are engineered to have a natural, springy surface that is easy on your joints; and the cost is relatively low—they are about $6,5000 per mile to build, and the upkeep is minor.

Practically every community in Sweden has a nearby trail, and at least one complex is illuminated for nighttime use. In winter, the trails are used for cross-country skiing. The system is supported by community "Trim Centers," which provide exercise information, training, a place to sauna and change clothes, and a yearly stress test for what amounts to about $10 or $15.

Drs. Buxbaum and O'Connor point out that the Swedes emphasize a lifetime of physical activity—their word for it is "motion"—rather than the competitive sports so many people abandon upon leaving school. The fitness trails are found in other European countries, too, notably Switzerland and West Germany. They are certainly something that American Communities might take up.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw something in your column about eye guards to wear if your are playing squash or handball. I haven't been able to find any in the stores near me. Do you know where they are made?—John V.

Dear John: One model that I have seen is manufactured by Champion Glove Comapny, 2200 East Ovid, Des Moines, Iowa, 50313. If you write to them, I'm sure they will tell you if they have an outlet in your part of the country. Or perhaps a store you deal with could order them. As you probably know, these eyes guards have no lens in them—but simply an elongated, padded frame that would prevent a handball or squash ball from hitting the eye. The side vision is excellent.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Baptists open 120th convention

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Some 16,000 messengers to the Southern Baptist Convention were urged to pray and to continue spreading the word of Christ today by their out-going president, James L. Sullivan.

"People never stand taller than when they are on their knees praying for others, asking God to use them to bless a world," Sullivan said in the 120th annual convention's opening address.

Sullivan asked the convention representatives to donate both their time and money to help the church move forward, especially in mission work.

"We have established churches, hospitals, schools, children's homes, homes for the aged and many other worthy endeavors. They are already a reality," he said.

"Our goal is to use these forces to extend, expand, let God empower and move with force to the ends of the earth and through us, so each person can hear of and respond to Christ before this century ends.

"This is the way the Gospel must be spread — through public media, loud speakers, word of mouth, mass rallies — every way. Yet no method is ever quite as effective as face to face, heart to heart sharing of one's personal faith."

Those attending the three-day convention will represent almost 13 million members from 35,000 churches. The annual assembly of the country's largest protestant denomination will end Thursday night with Billy Graham challenging them to evangelize the world by the end of the century.

The 132-year-old SBC will be breaking with tradition in not electing Sullivan to a traditional second term as convention president.

But he has declined because of "ceaseless air travel, constant physical and emotional strains and extended absences from home."

The theme of this year's conference is "Let The Church Reach Out."

The convention is also expected to criticize television programs of questionable morality. Also under attack is an Internal Revenue Service ruling requiring closer reporting on church-related hospitals, colleges, homes for the aged and children's homes. The Southern Baptists claim the IRS action constitutes the state mixing in the churches' business-a violation of the separation of church and state.

The convention will also consider what assistance should be given 35 Baptist churches in Canada who identify themselves as "Southern Baptists."

Secretary to deliver rights talk

By EDITH M. LEDERER

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance will try to clear up confusion about President Carter's human rights policy at the annual meeting of the Organization of American States opening today.

A U.S. official said Vance would meet privately with the other 24 foreign ministers at the conference to impress on them that the Carter administration is serious about human rights and speaks "with one voice on the issue."

"There is still doubt among Latin American ministers on the seriousness of the U.S. position on this," said the official, who asked that his name not be used.

Latin American delegates said conservative military regimes will argue that security forces must violate human rights to control terrorists.

"Nobody's going to be soft on terrorism," the U.S. official said, "but the mark of civilized society is how you treat people who break the law."

Vance, who will spend two days at the meeting, will "listen to the Latin Americans as they throw objections at him and state their case," the official added.

The secretary of state also will seek greater cooperation with the OAS Inter-American Commission on Human Rights. A report to be presented this week criticizes Uruguay and Paraguay for refusing to permit on-site investigations by OAS teams.

"If countries won't allow onsite inspection, it seems to us that their cries about U.S. interference are not justified," the American source said. "They're trying to have it both ways, and they're not cooperating in the human rights field at all."

The seven-day conference also will consider a Latin proposal for collective economic security. The United States opposes the measure, which would set up a quasi-judicial body that could assess damages against member countries imposing preferential tariffs or other restrictive economic measures.

The American delegation also opposes the so-called Calvo Doctrine supported by the Latin Americans, which would require multinational corporations operating in Latin America to be treated as a domestic corporation by each country.

The United States has proposed cutting its contribution to the OAS budget from 66 to 49 per cent to give other nations a larger stake in the organization and reduce criticism that it is dominated by the United States.

Antitrust suit goes against VW

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A $15.35 million antitrust judgment against Volkswagen and its American subsidiaries has been upheld by a federal appeals court which said the companies drove a Texas air conditioning manufacturer out of business.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Monday that Volkswagen must pay Heattransfer of Texas the large judgment because it had violated both the Sherman and Clayton antitrust acts, which forbid restraint of trade.

The court said VW and its subsidiaries conspired to coerce dealers not to purchase Heattransfer products from 1969-74.

Car insurance hearings to be in three parts

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — This year's car insurance hearing will be a three-part affair, with the crucial issue of rates coming up July 21 and Aug. 2.

On July 14, the date originally announced for the hearing, the State Insurance Board will hear all auto matters other than rates.

Its staff and the insurance industry will lay out their recommendations for new auto insurance rates at a prehearing conference July 21.

After reviewing the written proposals, the board will conduct a hearing on Aug. 2, at which it will hear testimony, arguments and cross-examinations.

New rates probably will take effect Nov. 1.

Last year, rates increased 15.5 per cent on Jan. 1 and by another 7.1 per cent in October.

WHEREAS, on the 14th day of June, 1977, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law, the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and said Order of Sale and the mandates thereof, I did on the 14th day of June, 1977, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant the following described property, situated in Midland County, Texas, to-wit:

Lots 3 & 4, Block 5, Eastover, 3rd Addition, an addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas as shown by deed from Curtis Jones recorded in Vol. 536, Page 579 of the Deed Records of Midland County, Texas as dated: 1-15-71.

And I will, on the first Tuesday in the month of July, 1977, the same being the 5th day of said month, proceed to sell all the right, title, and interest of the defendant in and to said property at the Court House door of said county in the city or town of Midland, between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. to the highest bidder for cash; provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner of said property directly or indirectly or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

Said sale is to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and cost of suit; and the proceeds of said sale are to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.

DATED at Midland, Texas, this the 14th day of June, 1977.

Dallas Smith, Sheriff
Sheriff, Midland County, Texas

Five being considered for FBI chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next FBI director might be a black man who struggled up from the ghetto or a judge who once was invited to a war protester's victory celebration.

Or it might be a California prosecutor who once ran for Congress and lost. Or a Massachusetts judge who once was an Army counterintelligence agent. Or a career FBI man who worked in the South at the height of the civil rights movement.

President Carter announced Monday that these five men were recommended to him by a nine-member search committee which began work in February, screening more than 200 candidates and interviewing about 50 of them.

He said he and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell will talk with the five finalists personally. A Justice Department spokesman said Bell will begin his round of interviews "quickly, perhaps next week."

Carter's choice will need Senate confirmation to take over the FBI from Clarence M. Kelley, the current director who has announced plans to retire Jan. 1. Kelley, 65, has been head of the beleaguered investigative bureau and its 8,000 agents for 3½ years.

The committee offered Carter a diverse list with something of a "one of each" tone to it. There is one black — Sheriff William Lucas of Detroit; one Republican — U.S. Circuit Judge Harlington Wood Jr. of Chicago, and one career FBI man — Neil Welch, agent in charge of the Philadelphia field office.

The other two, who fall into no particular category, are John Van de Kamp, district attorney of Los Angeles County, and John J. Irwin, a judge on the Massachusetts Superior Court.

Lucas, Van de Kamp and Wood have worked in the Justice Department and Welch has worked at the FBI's Washington headquarters.

Lucas, 49, earned a law degree from Fordham University and became a New York City policeman was assigned in 1962 to a detail protecting then-Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy during a visit to the city. Kennedy was impressed by him and brought him to the Justice Department.

Wood, 57, was former President Gerald R. Ford's choice to succeed John Paul Stevens on the federal appeals court in Chicago when Stevens took his seat on the Supreme Court.

Jerry Fines, who worked with Wood then and now is the U.S. attorney in Springfield, Ill., recalled the massive protest march of April 24, 1971. Wood had negotiated the arrangements with protest leader Rennie Davis and others, and the antiwar groups thought the march turned out so successfully that they staged a victory party.

Wood, the only Justice Department official invited, went to the party, Fines recalled.

Van de Kamp, 41, worked at the Justice Department in the late 1960s when he helped organize teams to deal with racial and political unrest.

Welch, 50, began his FBI career in 1951 and rose steadily through the ranks. When the bureau opened its first office in Jackson, Miss., in 1964, Welch was appointed assistant agent in charge.

Irwin, 47, was appointed to the Massachusetts Superior Court last July by Gov. Michael Dukakis. He has been active in Democratic politics but has never run for office.

Labor union's election today

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

With a bitter campaign over, some 277,000 members of the United Mine Workers are voting today to determine who will lead their strife-torn union for the next five years.

The three-way race for the union leadership pits incumbent President Arnold R. Miller against Harry Patrick, his former ally and the union's secretary-treasurer, and against Lee Roy Patterson, a western Kentucky strip miner and member of the UMW executive board.

The candidates wound up their campaigns Monday in the heart of the Appalachian coal fields, each close to home and predicting victory.

No matter who wins the vote count, the election probably won't settle the internal feuding that has fractured the union or curb the spate of wildcat strikes that have stalled production.

Patterson has already vowed to challenge the election if he loses, and both government and industry officials fear that protracted legal struggles will interfere with — if not delay — the start of contract talks this fall. The current contract expires in December and all three candidates have warned of a possible nationwide strike.

Eligible to vote are some 187,000 working coal miners and approximately 90,000 retired miners in 25 states and Canada.

High speed chase ends in arrest

STANTON — A high speed chase at 110 to 115 miles per hour resulted in the arrest of Sergio Lopez in Big Spring.

According to the Stanton sheriff's office, officer Gilbert Baraza began following a speeder on the edge of Stanton on Highway 80 and chased him to Big Spring, where a road block had been set up to stop him.

The spokesman for the sheriff's Office said the speeder ran the road block at which time Trooper Bill Jennings with the Department of Public Safety joined the chase, puncturing a tire and gas tank in the chase.

Lopez was taken into custody and appeared before a magistrate in Big Spring where bond was set at $200.

He is now in custody at Stanford awaiting bond to be set on charges of excessive speeds and fleeing from a police officer, the spokesman said.

Accident kills man

ODESSA — An Odessa man died late Saturday night from injuries received in an automobile-pickup truck collision.

Luciano Bejarano, 23, was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital by Justice of the Peace Manuel Valles about one hour after the accident, which occured on Industrial Avenue .7 mile south of Odessa, the Department of Public Safety said.

A passenger in the second vehicle, a pickup truck, was treated and released.

Bejarano's automobile was traveling south in the northbound lane, a DPS patrolman said. Officers said Bejarano was thrown from the car after the crash.
