Rockport Denies Club Special Permit Request

By Pat Blair

A permit that would have allowed construction of a marina clubhouse at Rockport's "saltwater swimming pool" won approval from one board but failed to get the City Council's vote Monday night.

The voting climaxed a three and one-half hour joint public hearing before the City Council and the Planning and Zoning Commission, on a request by the Rockport Sailing Club for a Special Use Permit.

Approximately 100 people attended the meeting which began at 7 p.m. at City Hall and was then moved to the District Courthouse.

After more than three hours of testimony and deliberation, members of the City Planning and Zoning Board voted to approve the Special Use Permit with restrictions. The vote was split 4-1, with board member Sylvia Corey casting the lone vote against the motion. Paul Taylor abstained from voting.

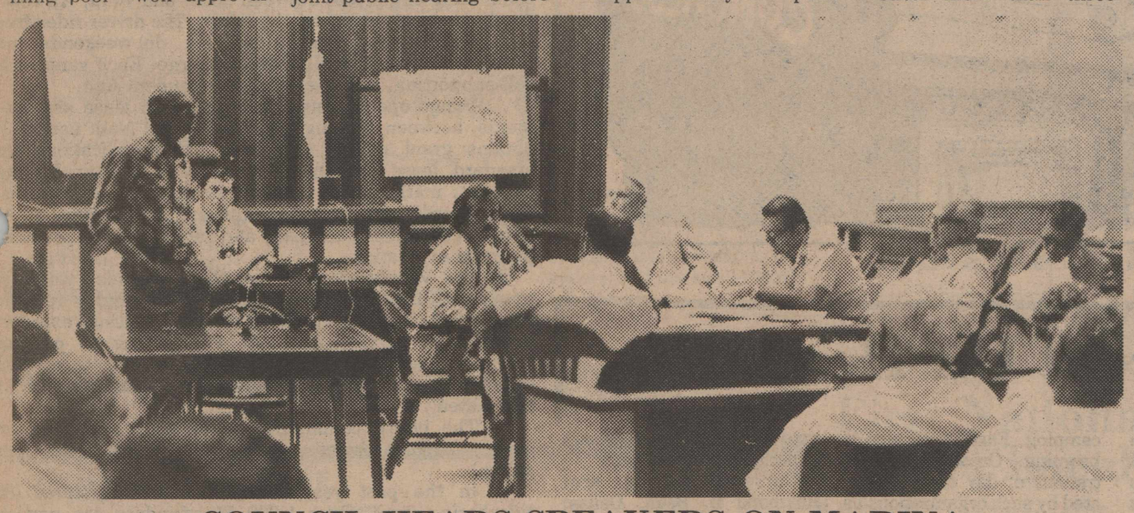

Other members of the Planning and Zoning Commission at Monday night's meeting were Chairman Delmar Hiller, Juanita Wagley, Joe Lister and Jack Guillett.

The matter then went to the City Council.

Councilman Dan Ward moved to deny the sailing club's request. Charlie Garrett seconded the motion, and C. H. "Burt" Mills, Jr., joined Ward and Garrett in the 3-0 vote. Councilman J. Martin Shaw had already announced his intention to abstain from the vote, and Mayor Falk is allowed to vote only to break a tie.

Dr. Shaw announced his intention of abstaining from the vote just after the hearing got under way, in a letter that Mayor Falk read

Bardin Permit Issued For Residence

Jerre Bardin's permit to restore his house at 712 South Church was issued for improvements to residential property, City Secretary Herman Johnson said recently.

Johnson said the permit would not allow Bardin to use the house for any purpose other than residential, unless he obtained a Special Use Permit or a zoning change on the property.

The question of Bardin's use of the property was brought up by some property owners who told the Pilot Bardin's original plans for the house were to restore it as a restaurant.

A check with City Hall showed Bardin's original plans were for a restaurant. The plans he presented to the City in December, shortly after he bought the house, were for the demolition and reconstruction of the "Future Home of the Oar House," an "exclusive restuarant."

However, Jones said no permit could be issued on these plans, because the property is zoned for residential use only. Bardin resubmitted the plans, with appropriate changes, for a permit to reconstruct the house as a residence.

A permit to allow restoration work on the residence was issued on December 28, 1978.

After Bardin began restoration work on the house, he learned that a fence he had built across the front of the property was in violation of city ordinance. In two meetings of Rockport's Board of Adjustment, Bardin was denied a variance that would allow him to keep the fence and was told he must either take it down or make it

Remember Dad...In A Very Special Way

Remember when you got your first bike and your dad ran behind you so you wouldn't fall off?

And remember when he drove you and nine other giggling little girls to see David Cassidy perform in concert?

And when he bought soft drinks for the whole team, even though you lost the game, and the pitcher couldn't see past his nose, and the second baseman's dog kept running on the field?

Takes a pretty special man to live through all that and still have his sanity intact.

Let him know how special he is to you with a Pilot ad. For just $3.20, you can tell Dad (and the world) how wonderful he is to you. The ads are two columns wide, and four inches deep, and will be run in the June 17 weekender edition of the Pilot.

To make sure your father knows just how great he is, call 729-2357 by 3 p.m. Thursday, June 14, and say "I want to tell the world my dad's special with a Father's Day ad!"

Casterline Says 'No Place Like Fulton'

FULTON MAYOR L.E. CASTERLINE

When L.E. Casterline got out of the Army in 1945, he "came straight back to Fulton and said I'd never leave again. I didn't find anyplace I liked as well as I did here."

That helps explain, in part, why the 60-year-old Casterline, owner of a successful shrimping business, wanted to take on the duties of being Fulton's first mayor.

"I've always been interested in this county and in this community," Casterline said during a recent interview in his office at the Casterline Seafood Company.

The first mayor and first city council of the recently incorporated town of Fulton are "starting from scratch," he said, "and we have a lot of problems, but I feel like we'll work them out. We have a good council—they're all interested in taking the town of Fulton ahead. I know it'll take time, but we can get the job done."

Casterline is a native of Fulton, a town named for "Colonel Fulton, one of the old cattle barons." Paradoxically, the old Fulton mansion isn't inside the town's incorporated area. Casterline added, "It couldn't be incorporated because of something to do with the lines between Fulton and Rockport city limits."

A graduate of Rockport High School—later renamed Rockport-Fulton High School—Casterline took over the shrimping business from his father and brother, and has been in the business, he added, since the 1930's.

"I like the business," he said. "I grew up with it. My wife says shrimping is my first love." Casterline recalled that, when he got married, "I worked one day, got married that evening, and went right back to work the next day. The honeymoon was over real quick.

The Casterlines have been married 37 years, have five children, five grandchildren, "and a couple more (grandchildren) on the way." Two of his sons are helping in his business—"the oldest boy never did care for it," he said—and one of his daughters is a bookkeeper for the company. One of his boats is named "Zora Belle," his wife's name. "That was the 400th boat built by Rockport Yacht and Supply," he added.

Fulton has changed quite a bit during Casterline's lifetime. "This place has built up quite fast," he said, "more so the last few years. I see changes every day—they come faster than they did a few years back."

As an example of what he means, he recalled, "When I was a kid, we just had shell roads...kerosene lamps." And Fulton has grown in population, too. Right now in the city limits, the new mayor said, the population is a little more than 500—and the town is continuing to grow.

Shrimping has changed, too, Casterline observed. His business "started out with three little boats that you had to come down and pump at night to keep afloat." In those days, he continued, "the boats went out every day and came back at night. They kept the shrimp barrels on deck—back then you could catch four-five thousand pounds of shrimp real easy."

Today, Casterline has more boats, and they hold more shrimp—"They can hold about 15,000 pounds easy," he said—but the boats have to go farther and be out two or three weeks to bring in a good catch.

Because of this, today's boats carry ice, and the shrimp are headed in the boats. Years back, Casterline said, 40 or 50 people would be waiting when the boats docked, and they'd work until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning heading shrimp.

Like everyone else, Fulton's mayor said, shrimpers are feeling the effects of the energy crisis. "These boats use five to eight thousand gallons of diesel fuel in a three-week trip," he said. "Not long ago, diesel fuel was 12 cents a gallon. Now it's 65 to 80 cents a gallon." But when asked about his views on the future of shrimping, he said, "My future has always been good."

"Shrimping," he said, "is something I grew up with. I've always fished in the bays, oystered—I just like it around the water. I gave Uncle Sam four years of my life in 1941-45, including three and a half years in Europe. We landed in Belfast, Ireland, made an airfield in England...the invasion of Sicily...invasion of Italy... By the time we got to the foot of the slopes, we had enough points to come home.

He's been in Fulton ever since, running his business, which, he said, "keeps me pretty busy. With shrimp running, you stay busy about seven days a week."

Does he ever think about retiring? "I think about it," he said, "but I haven't made the decision to stop yet. I wouldn't want to quit all the way."

Radar Found Guilty

Police radar went on trial in Florida recently, and the verdict was (to borrow a phrase from cartoonist Garry Trudeau): guilty, guilty, guilty!

Specifically, Judge Alfred Nesbitt of Dade County found after hearing three weeks' worth of evidence that the reliability of radar devices used by police to nab speeding motorists "has not been established." If and when manufacturers turn out more dependable radar gear, he said, he might change his mind—but for the time being, radar is not acceptable.

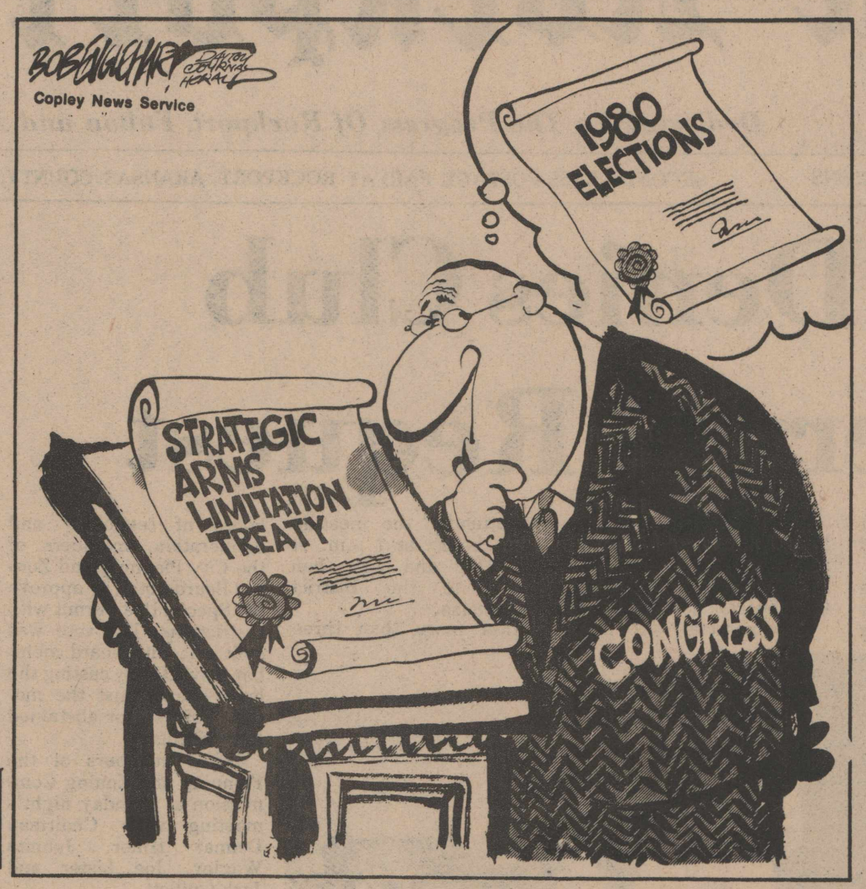

The implications of this decision go far beyond the confines of the case at issue before Judge Nesbitt. True, his authority does not extend beyond the pruview of Dade County; and, true, other Dade County judges need not necessarily follow his lead—but the salient fact is that for the first time traffic radar has been dealt a severe blow in legal proceedings. The validity of the technique has been called into question—and the success of the anti-radar forces in Florida is sure to prompt similar legal actions elsewhere.

To this, the great majority of American drivers, law-abiding and otherwise, might add: And why not? Even the most discreet drivers have come to loathe police radar. The knowledge that anywhere—over the crest of the next hill, around the next bend—a radar-equipped patrolman may be waiting to nab you...well, it kind of takes the joy out of motoring.

What's more, there really does seem to be grounds for calling radar's reliability into question. A Florida television station recently attracted nationwide notice when it filmed a house and a tree being clocked as moving along at a brisk clip by police radar.

So: Radar is unsporting, and it may well be inaccurate in many applications. There's just one problem—the fact that there's no replacement in sight.

Like it or not, traffic law enforcement has become dependent on radar. On the other hand, motorists have the right to expect radar readings to be accurate. The answer, as Judge Nesbitt suggests, is for the companies concerned to improve the quality of the product—if, indeed, that can be done. Failing that, look for a plethora of legal challenges to radar readings—and, as radar use is restricted, significantly higher average speeds on the nation's highways. A fine mess.—(The Caller-Times)

State Of The Region

Juliet K. Wenger

One of the policy decisions that officials of each of our towns and cities make is whether or not they want to take steps to influence the growth of their communities. In some communities, there is enthusiasm for maximum growth; in some, minimum. In others, there is interest in encouraging the type of growth that will allow the residents to retain their community personality.

The latter attitude is found in the town of Bayside, only 600 people, which is making significant improvements hopeful of remaining a small town, but the best possible small town in which to live. Much had happened in a short time, in a little more than a year that Bayside has been incorporated.

Mayor Billy Paul Fricks explained that the decision was made to incorporate because assistance programs were not available until a government entity existed to be one party to contracts and to be responsible for carrying out proposed work.

The purpose of the incorporation is being achieved. Bayside is obtaining funds to make improvements that are beyond community resources to finance. At the same time, they are holding down taxes by continuing to be a "do-it-yourself" town. If you own an average home, you'll probably pay about $17 a year, $3 on a lot. If you are a senior citizen, you probably won't pay anything at all.

Money has been committed through Economic Development Administration to bulkhead and protect Town Park, where the bluff is eroding away, and through federal programs to map the city, showing where the utility lines run, and put up street signs.

An oil company in Refugio County donated pipe for the street signs, and boys and girls from the Coastal Bend Youth Services program installed the signs. Five young people under this program, which is funded by CETA, have done a lot of improvement and maintenance in the town. Mayor Fricks said these jobs were not available until incorporation, and have been helpful to both the town and to youth.

Refugio County gave bayside its allocation of money to buy materials to weather-proof homes of the elderly. The money buys materials to be used to renovate a house to the extent of cutting out rain and wind and holding in heat, thus saving energy. To stretch the money as far as possible, the mayor, somecouncilmen, other citizens and the young people being paid with CETA funds all helped in the construction work.

Small homes are now livable - with floors, ceilings and paneled walls - that did not offer adequate shelter before. With neat vegetable gardens in front, they are an asset to the community as well as to the elderly who live in them.

To have the mayor and some of the councilmen show up to do necessary labor isn't unusual. They do it when the need arises. The mayor, who teaches drafting at Bee County College, built his own home with the help of friends, and has had a hand in building other houses when adequate housing was not available for people wanting to make their home there. When the mayor wanted a shrimp boat, he built it.

A boatbuilder has opened one of Bayside's newest industries, and is building exceptionally fine shrimpboats. The shrimping industry centered around Bayside in Copano Bay has a new outlet, a seafood market on the highway. The constable, Bayside's only law enforcement officer, is building a new boat barn for storage. Incidentally, the mayor says the rate of solving crimes is unusually high as the constable knows everyone in town, although he works in Refugio for an oil company.

A sandwhich shop which features homemade bread follows the Bayside "do it yourself" tradition. The owners built the building, laid the utility lines, poured the concrete. These are the types of businesses that Mayor Fricks likes to see come in, to provide what residents of the town and visitors need and want, but no more.

City Hall is in what was at one time a school building, where Mayor Fricks' father was principal and his mother taught school. This is also a community building, a location for exercise classes and CPR training. In it is a library. Residents come, find the books they want and check them out to themselves, then later return them. That's the kind of town Bayside is.

Accent On Health

More than a third of a million Texas youngsters will move out of cities and towns into summer camps this year, and the trips may be the highlight of their young lives.

The Texas Department of Health is charged with making sure that the comps conform to safety and health standards for the active youngsters.

Texas has 582 summer camps registered with the General Sanitation Division of the Texas Department of Health (TDH), which conducts its activities under provisions of the Texas Youth Camp Safety and Health Act which became effective in 1973.

Roy G. Burton, who handles the program, says licensing and inspection covers camps which operate four or more consecutive days, have five or more children 18 years of age or under, and have activities normally associated with camping.

"These camps are just like little cities," said Burton, "and they must meet all the sanitation and safety needs of the campers."

On-site inspections by sanitarians from TDH Public Health Regions and the Central Office cover many topics. In looking for camp compliance with minimum standards, the inspectors cover such areas as: qualified counselors, medical care, environmental safety, proper food service, adequate and proper supervision of recreational activities, water supplies, and garbage and sewage disposal. In addition, swimming pools are monitored.

All camps which operate are required to submit an application by May 1 of each year, approximately a month before the end of school and the arrival of summer campers. Serially-numbered licenses are issued to camp owners and operators who meet the Department's standards.

Burton said the camps vary greatly in size. The smallest will have about 25 campers, while a Baptist church camp operating year-round near Dallas will accommodate 30,000 campers in a year.

Largest concentration of private resident camps is in the Hill Country around Kerrville, which traditionally has been associated with camping. East Texas also is booming. Greatest concentrations of day camps operated by such organizations as Girl Scouts, the YMCA, YWCA and Campfire Girls are located in the large suburban areas around Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

Most of the camps rely on some type of natural attractions, such as a lake, forest or stream. Many are water-oriented.

Jimmie D. Dickens, Director of the General Sanitation Division, said Texas summer camps provide a wonderful program for boys and girls. We work with about every religious denomination and a number of other organizations. Among these is a Lions Club Crippled Children's Camp and one exclusively for diabetics (Camp Sweeney in Cooke County)," he said.

The Texas regulations came about mainly because of national publicity given to accidents and deaths at camps in other areas of the nation. Texas had a fine record last year—only 108 minor accidents and no deaths were reported.

While Texas camp operators were leery of regulations at first, this attitude has changed. Dickens explains, "Camp operators overall have been quite responsive since determining that we are attempting to help them have a better camp."

One reason for the change in attitude is an 11 member Texas Advisory Council on Youth Camp Safety appointed by the Governor with the State Health Commissioner as its chairman. The advisory council assists the State Health Department in Developing standards and setting policy for the administration of the regulations. Its members are qualified through activities with private organizations or through experiences in the field.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

VANGO: SAVED 500,000 GAL. GAS.

REPRESENTATIVE CLARENCE D. LONG(Maryland)"...I would like to share with my colleagues Maryland's Vango, an exciting and very effective program for energy conservation.

"Vango is a Federal and State-funded, nonprofit corporation organized in 1977 for the purpose of providing standardized no-risk leases of vans to employers or to groups of individual commuters for use as vanpools.

"First in the Nation. Maryland's program is used as a model by other States which are establishing ride sharing programs. Vango services eliminate the financial risk to vanpoolers, simplify getting started, and are provided at no cost to the users.

"A vanpool is a 12 to 15 seat passenger van carrying commuting employees between home and work. All costs are divided evenly among the riders. The driver rides free and gets use of the van after work, on weekends and holidays for only a small mileage charge. Each vanpool is self-supporting, self-operating independent unit.

"Vango operates as a middleman in lease arrangements between leasing companies and van users. It obtains grant money; prepares bid specifications for standard lease agreements; awards a master leasing contract; markets the vanpool concept among potential users; coordinates commuter ridematching; cosigns lease between the leasing company and vanpool users; provide program evaluation.

"The vanpool concept benefits everyone—workers, employers, and the community. Workers enjoy reliable economical commuting with guaranteed seating; express, door-to-door service; no rush-hour driving or parking problems; reduction in personal auto insurance; and possible large savings if the need for a commuting car is eliminated . . .

"The entire community benefits by a substantial energy savings (vans get 150 passenger miles per gallon) . . .

"In the past year, Maryland has registered 85 ridesharing vans. Over 1,000 Marylanders are participating in this program which has saved over 500,000 gallons of gasoline. Just think how much energy could be saved if the whole country knew about vanpooling . . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

We quote Rep. Long; "Anyone who is interested in more information about Vango should call or write Mr. Allen Winn, State ridesharing coordinator, Maryland Mass Transit Administration, Airport Investment Building, Suite E-100, Linthicum Heights, Maryland, 21090. 301/794-Pool."

FEDERAL REPORTS

Wyatt Bill Would Reduce

U.S. Congressman Joe Wyatt introduced a bill in the U.S. House of Representatives Thursday, May 31 to repeal a costly federally-mandated reporting system which is scheduled to be imposed on hospitals.

In response to a law designed to monitor welfare fraud and abuse, the Health Care Financing administration (HCFA) developed the system for hospital uniform reporting (SHUR). Several hospitals in the 14th Congressional District, and throughout the country, have pointed out that the cost of complying with the HCFA's reporting system to be required, even though the hospitals already have their own systems, would cause tremendous economic and administrative burdens.

"HCFA has estimated, through a sample study of only 50 hospitals, that the average cost of implementation would be only $10,000 and the average annual ongoing cost would be less than $7,000," said Wyatt on the floor of the House.

"However, I have been in contact with several hospitals in the 14th Congressional District of Texas who have projected much higher costs. Memorial Medical Center of Corpus Christi, a 500-bed acute care general hospital...has estimated that direct costs alone, involving extra personnel, supplies, etc.,...needed to implement SHUR amount to an incredible $175,000."

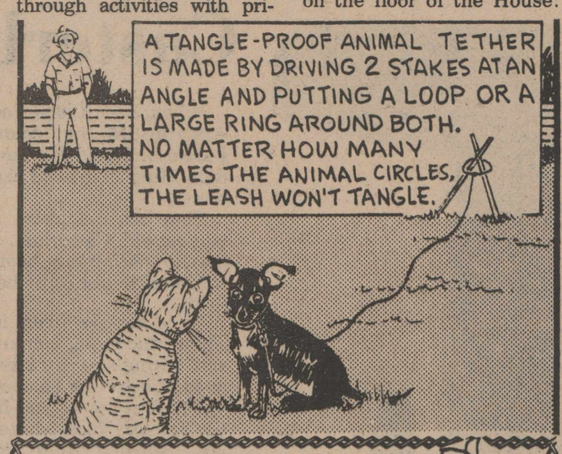

Wyatt said that another hospital, in Victoria, assessed the cost of administering SHUR at $260,000. The hospital industry estimates that costs of up to $100,000 per hospital will be passed on to the consumer because of the SHUR system.

Wyatt called SHUR "a 1½ inch thick nightmare of charts, definitions, principles and statistics. After reviewing the SHUR manual, it is obvious that HCFA has gone beyond the legislative intent of a uniform reporting system for hospitals, and twisted (it) to develop a uniform accounting system."

Wyatt told his colleagues on the House floor that the wide discrepancy between the government's estimates and the hospital industry's estimates is reason enough to look at the SHUR program. Wyatt said the results of cost/benefit analyses conducted on SHUR led him to believe that HEW had not done its homework thoroughly in determining the cost of SHUR to hospitals.

"In addition, the financial hardships to be borne by our rural hospitals if SHUR is implemented merits the immidiate attention of HEW," Wyatt said. "Too often, rules and regulations promulgated by our Government ignor the specific needs and problems experienced only by rural communities."

The bill to repeal the SHUR system, H.R. 4282, has been referred to the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Police Report Activities For Past Week

Charges ranging from public intoxication to robbery and possession of marijuana were filed against five area men in two separate incidents, as Rockport police put in a busy weekend.

The weekend's activities included investigation of four traffic accidents, including one that sent a Rockport man to the hospital.

Roy Garza Martinez, 22, of Rt. 1, Ingleside, was charged with possession of less than two ounces of marijuana, reckless driving and driving with a suspended licinse, and bond set at $750-$250 for each offense-following his arrest after a chase by Rockport police Sunday.

Two other men in the car with him—Noel Garza Martinez, 17, of Rt. 1, Ingleside, and George Martinez Perez, 17, of 513 Avenue A, Ingleside-were charged with public intoxication and fined $40 each following the incident. They were arrested about 5:15 p.m. Sunday.

Rockport Police Officer Martin DeLeon reported he was driving down Rockport Beach Road in his personal vehicle Sunday afternoon when he noticed a "white Catalina with blue vinyl top" being driven at "excessive speed of almost 70 miles per hour."

DeLeon said the car almost hit him and three children who were playing. He and other Rockport police officers gave chase to the vehicle driven by Roy Garza Martinez. The car stopped at a residence on Fuqua at James, and the occupants ran toward the rear of the building.

DeLeon reported four men in the car, but one of the men escaped, police said. According to the police report, when the men left the car, they threw away "a small plastic baggy" containing a small amount of marijuana leaves, and additional marijuana leaves were found on the front and back seats and the floorboard of the car. During booking, police said, Roy Martinez had in his possesion "a small bag of green leafy substance believed to be marijuana."

Two Corpus Christi men were being held charged with robbery following the Friday night, June 1, theft of groceries from Mrs. Don Nicholas in the H.E.B. parking lot.

The men were Jack Kenneth McNabb, 18, and Roy Lee Perez, 19, who were arrested also following a car chase through Rockport. Perez was also charged with driving while intoxicated. Police said they are on probation for an earlier robbery and burglary. No bond was set for the robbery that occurred Friday night, but a bond of $500 was set on the DWI charge against Perez.

James Jacob McCabe of 1304 South Church, Rockport, was taken to Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi Friday afternoon after the car he was driving was struck by a car driven by Janice Gray Watkins of Rockport.

Ms. Watkins was driving east on Market Street and McCabe west when he attempted a left turn in front of her onto Church Street. McCabe was cited for failure to yield right-of-way. The accident happened about 5:33 p.m.

Three cars were involved in an accident on Broadway at Rockport Beach Road at about 3:40 p.m. Sunday, when Rita Watson Hicks of Orange, traveling north on Broadway, stopped to avoid hitting another vehicle. The car behind Ms. Hicks, driven by Frances Wood Dorsey of Port Lavaca, also stopped, but a third car, driven by Helen Najvar Blair, struck Ms. Dorsey's car and shoved it into Ms. Hicks vehicle.

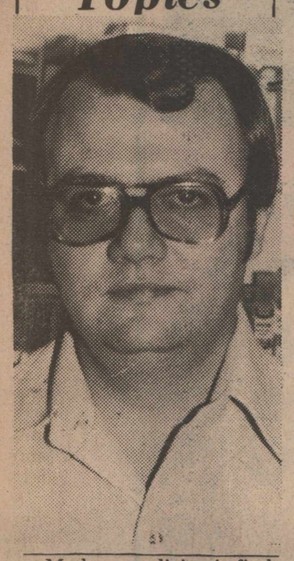

Police did not issue any tickets and cited as a contributing cause of the accident improper turning by the fourth car which left the scene.

Earlier Sunday, at 1:50 p.m., Carl Benson Holley, 17, of 904 Oak, Rockport, was traveling north on Austin Street when a car driven by Tai Van Bui, 41, of Houston, southbound on Austin, turned left onto Cornwall in front of Holley.

Holley's car struck Bui's on the right side and when the car spun, it was struck again by Holley's car on the left side. Bui was cited for failure to yield right-ofway.

Saturday morning, at about 11:45 a.m., a Corpus Christi man, Alfredo Rojas, was cited for following too closely, after his car struck the rear of a car driven by Hugh Edward Warner of Humble. The accident occurred while Warner was attempting a left turn from Raht (Highway 35 North) onto Enterprise by the Dairy Queen.

Tourist Association Reports Of Gasoline

By Pat Blair

Gasoline is "much harder to find than we thought," but it is still available in Rockport, says Dale Rolland, president of the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association.

From May 22 through Memorial Day, May 28, the Tourist Association ran an ad in the San Antonio "Light" newspaper that emphasized the availability of gasoline in Rockport. The ad was aimed at counteracting "bad publicity" in San Antonio and, originally, in Austin to the effect that there was no gas on the Gulf Coast.

Pat Loflin, a member of the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association, said the Association was unable to get the ad published in Austin because the Austin newspaper wanted an advance deposit, and the payment could not be authorized by the Association and the Chamber of Commerce in time to meet the publishing deadline. The ad was a joint project of the Tourist Association and the Chamber.

Rolland said there was gas available in Rockport during the three-day Memorial Day weekend, although there was not as much as originally hoped.

"Four or five stations out of the 13 or 14 in the area were open," he said. "Part of the problem is, the stations themselves don't know what'll happen when other stations close. For instance, we talked to the girl at U-Tote-M, and she said they'd never run out of gas. But they hadn't had a situation where the big stations in town were closed and people were lining up to buy gas."

Jerry Beattie, Tourist Association member and one of the planners behind the ad, said he "found gas all over town" during the three-day weekend. "On Monday, even the Exxon stations were filled up. I didn't see anybody that couldn't get gas."

He said he saw evidence that the San Antonio ad did help in bringing more tourists to Rockport over the weekend.

"We don't want to lie to anyone (about the gas situation)," Rolland said, "but we don't want them to think we don't have gasoline when we do. There was gas in Rockport."

He said there "can't be any doubt" that the scarcity of gasoline is at least denting Rockport's tourist business.

He estimated that this year's Memorial Day crowds were "probably about 10 percent lighter" than those of previous years.

Safe Boating Week Is Proclaimed

By a special proclamation, Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk proclaimed the first week of June to be National Safe Boating Week in Rockport, in conjunction with similar programs by the U.S. Coast Guard and the American Red Cross.

In the proclamation, Falk stated that boating had become a national leisure time activity, and as such, individual attitudes would seem to provide unprecedented occasions for accidents.

Falk also stated that boating safety programs were being sponsored by the U.S. Coast Guard, the U.S. Power Squadron and the American Red Cross, which he felt contributed to area waterways having a relatively safe and almost accident free record.

Flotilla 79, Rockport's U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, will also be taking special notice of National Safe Boating Week. Members will be available to give courtesy boat safety inspections at no charge. Boat owners should call Walter Luce at 729-1751 or 729-7459, or Leonard Specht at 729-7042, or George Moore at 729-7882.

R-F Pirate Band Members To State

Band students from Rockport-Fulton High School journeyed to Austin June 4 to participate in the UIL Solo and Ensemble State Contest, and brought back several good ratings.

Students were judged on a scale of I for Superior, II for Excellent, III for good, IV for fair, and V for poor.

Mary Ballou, playing a clarinet solo received a I rating, while Beth Randow on the flute, Belinda Cross on the Cornet, and Jay Merrett on the Saxophone all received II's. Delores Guttierez received a III for her clarinet solo.

A flute ensemble consisting of Luanne Little, Beth Randow, Paula Maxwell, and Janet Schnepp received a II rating.

An ensemble of French horns played by Mark Boone, Jeff Maxwell, Sandy Von Heuvel and Dianna Fake received a III rating.

Laboratory To Exhibit 400-Year Old Artifacts

Cannon barrels...silver coins...and anchor...These are among some of the 400-year-old artifacts that will be on exhibit at the University of Texas, Port Aransas Marine Laboratory beginning Monday, June 4.

Called "Treasure, People, Ships and Dreams," the exhibit will continue through July 11 and is a traveling marine archeology exhibit presented by the Texas Antiquities Committee. The display will be open for viewing at the Marine Laboratory from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

The exhibit is the culmination of a project started eight years ago by the Antiquities Committee, and traces the ill-fated voyage, the ordeal of survivors and the modern archeological methods used to excavate the wrecks of three Spanish ships that went down off the shores of Padre Island during a thunderstorm in the spring of 1554.

Artifacts recovered from the remnants of the sunken ships have been incorporated into the exhibit. Among these, in addition to a crossbow, silver pesos, and eating utensils, is the oldest known astrolabe in existence.

Maps, photographs, drawings and text complement the artifacts, and the Marine Laboratory will show a related 30-minute film, "Graveyard of the Gulf," at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, 3 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

The Texas Antiquities Committee has been responsible for the preservation of historic shipwreck sites in Texas waters since enactment of the Texas Antiquities Code in 1969.

In preparing the "Treasure, People, Ships and Dreams" exhibit, the Texas Antiquities Committee worked closely with the Texas Archeological Research Laboratory, University of Texas at Austin; Old Spanish Missions Research Library at Mission San Jose, San Antonio; and the Institute of Texas Cultures, San Antonio.

Wyatt Co-Sponsors '79 Viet Nam Bill

U.S. Congressman Joe Wyatt has announced his co-sponsorship of the Viet Nam Veterans Act of 1979. In co-sponsoring the bill Wyatt has joined with the 19 Viet Nam veterans now in Congress.

"The basic idea behind the bill," said Wyatt, "is to update the veterans programs so they reflect today's economic realities, and to help modernize the methods by which these programs are run."

According to the sponsors of the bill, existing veterans programs are inadequate to support the present needs of veterans and have been tailored to meet the needs of persons out of the service for a long time. The sponsors contend that the new veteran has very real needs which are short-changed.

"While the overwhelming majority of the Viet Nam era vets have moved easily back into the mainstream of American life," said Wyatt, "the evidence shows that many have not been that lucky.

"High unemployment rates, high crime rates, drug and alcohol problems, and alarming divorce and suicide rates are some of the problems which we have not had to face in these numbers with veterans of other wars.

"In our rush to forget the tragedies of that war, both personal and political, we also lost sight of the person who was sent to fight it. In our rush we have inadvertently made the Viet Nam vet another victim of that war. We must acknowledge our continuing responsibility for the problems these veterans incurred by serving at their country's behest."

The bill has five parts including, allowance for veterans to use up to one year of their GI Bill benefits as a voucher to pay employers for on the job training; giving the VA new authority to treat psychological, and drug and alcohol related problems; extending the time limit for education benefits for vets discharged before December 31, 1969 to allow the access to increased benefits adopted in 1972; giving assistance to states which provide low-cost housing loans to veterans; authorization for a study to evaluate programs for veterans.

PERMIT

to the assembly. In the letter, Dr. Shaw said he felt like the "doctrine of conflict of interest would not apply" in this matter because he is not and has not been a member of the Rockport Sailing Club, but "in the interest of community harmony" he would absent himself from voting.

Mayor Falk then read two letters, one for and one against the sailing club's request, and read a petition he had received favoring the sailing club. He said there were 251 signatures on that petition.

Victor A. Dooley, Jr., speaking against the sailing club's request, presented a petition to the City Council, and a copy of the petition to the zoning commission, which he said was signed by "more than 2,340 resident taxpaying citizens of Rockport and the Aransas County Navigation District Number One."

The petition, he said, "protested any and all requests" for any zoning changes at any time on Rockport's beaches. Dooley told the city council and commission members, "for every one of those signatures, I can truthfully state that, had there been time, there would have been an additional five signatures" for every one now on the petition.

Fifteen persons spoke during the hearing, 10 against and five for the sailing club's request for a Special Use Permit.

Among those speaking against the sailing club was Bob Dingenary who said the approximately 6 acres of land and water that make up the saltwater swimming pool area is "some of our choicest unimproved land." Dingenary added that, if the sailing club's petition was approved, it would "pave the way for other construction on the beach."

Referring to the petition Dooley had presented, Dingenary said, "If you (the Council and Commission) turn down this petition, you'll be saying in effect, 'pay your taxes and shut up'."

Dingenary also quoted from a Texas Parks and Wildlife letter which, he said refuted claims by sailing club members that they did not intend to fence the area if the Special Use Permit was granted. In the letter, there was mention of "complete fencing" as well as safety lights and other facilities in connection with the marina.

Later, Parks and Wildlife biologist John Smith told the gathering that he had mentioned these structures in an in-house memo written after he first learned of the sailing club's request. Smith said the sailing club "had not mentioned these structures at that time, so I apologize for the memo" since this was the basis for the Parks and Wildlife letter.

Al Barnes, commodore of the Rockport Sailing Club, told the assembly that there would not be a fence around the proposed marina, that food and drink would not be sold, that public access to fishing areas would not be closed and that rental of sail boat docks would not be restricted to club members.

Reading from a letter he prepared for the Council, Barnes said the improvements would be constructed totally with private funds. He said the permit for dredging the water had already been given by the Corps of Engineers, and said there is "nothing unique" about the Aransas County Naviagation District giving a lease to the sailing club. Bait stands, women's clubs fish processing operations are among the businesses and organizations to whom the district grants leases, he said.

"We are not planning anything that will be a detriment to the community," he added. He said the saltwater swimming pool has been "virtually abandoned" for seven years and the area is no longer safe for swimming.

Rockport resident W.L.D. Winship said he has "always enjoyed swimming" in the saltwater pool, adding, "that's the only decent place around here to swim." He continued that, on the 4th of July last year, "I counted 100 people in that pool," and he showed photos he said he took last year of people in the pool.

Wilson Newman, a resident of Rockport for two and a half years, said, "I swim quite a little in the pool. There aren't too many people who swim there, but I do."

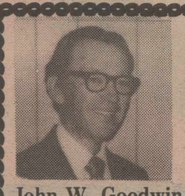

Herb Booth told the group, "Nobody can get the insurance to run the thing (the saltwater pool) as a swimming pool. You can't get lifegaurds, and without lifegaurds, its a danger to the community. If we can't do something with it, we should fill the thing up with sand, because it's a hazard. We like boats, and we're looking for a place to sail 'em."

Lathy Harris expressed doubts on how sewage could be handled if the sailing club was permitted to construct restrooms and other facilities at the site.

GARBAGE

One day a mother was scraping vegetables for a salad as her daughter came in to ask permission to go to an "Adult" movie. "But all the kids are going," she said, "and their folks don't think it will hurt them." As she talked she saw her mother pick up a handful of scraps and throw them into the salad. Rather startled, she shouted, "Mother, you are putting garbage into the salad!" "I know," her mother replied, "but I thought if you didn't mind garbage in your heart and in your mind that you wouldn't mind a little in your stomach." Thoughtfully the girl picked the peelings from the salad and then smiled at her mother. "I guess I'll just tell them I'm staying at home tonight," she said as she went through the kitchen door.

Healthful Hints

Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

Q. Tell me about ginseng.

A. Ginseng is a root which has been used by the Orientals for thousands of years as a sort of general tonic. When one starts reading about ginseng and talking to people who have used it, they get that "you name it, ginseng is good for it" feeling!

It's main claim to fame seems to be as an aphrodisiac, although research has been done which has shown it to be helpful for treating colds, coughs, rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, diabetes, anemia, insomnia, stress, headache, backache, double vision and menstrual problems.

It is believed to rejuvenate the entire system, but should be considered mainly as a preventative. Nutritionists feel that it should be taken over a long period of time to stimulate rejuvenation and virility.

Ginseng is available in various forms such as powder, capsules, a liquid extract, and, of course, as a tea.

Q. Do I need to take vitamin D as a supplement? Don't I get enough from the sunlight that I'm exposed to?

A. Nutritionists agree that vitamin D is formed by sunlight on the oils on the skin which are later absorbed back into the body. That was terrific for the pioneers who took baths only on Saturday nights, but these days, by bathing every day, we keep the oils needed to form vitamin D washed off our skin. Therefore, yes, we need to use vitamin D supplements.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Please send questions to: Jean Glowka, Rt. 1, Box 437, Rockport, Tx. 78382.

First National Bank Shows Local Paintings

"Watercolors of the Gulf Coast" by Fulton artist V.F. "Rip" Harrison are being shown in the lobby of the First National Bank, Rockport, during the month of June.

The paintings depict local scenes near boat barns and docks where, Harrison says, "There's a world of subject material" -- one of the reasons he began painting.

Harrison began painting 10 years ago, when he and his wife Eileen moved to Fulton from Corpus Christi after retiring from Southern Mineral, an oil company.

His job with Southern Mineral, Harrison said, was in the areas of economics and finance, subjects which don't provide much art background.

"I like to help others get started in art, the way everyone here was so helpful in getting me started," he said. "If you're not careful, you can spend a good deal of money on the wrong supplies, only to have to replace them a month later."

He continued, "Rockport is an ideal place for painters. The community has a great interest and welcomes artists with open arms." In his opinion, Rockport is fast becoming the art center of the Gulf Coast, and in support of this, cites the 14,000 people who attended last summer's art festival. "Rockport is getting a good name for art these days," he said, adding, "People are coming more to look and also to buy."

Harrison's watercolors have shown in the Rockport Art Festival for the past six years, and in every SeaFair since that event began. His works are also on display at Estelle Stair's Gallery on Austin Street.

Summer Reading Program Starts June 11

"In Search of Texas Treasures", the summer reading program theme, will begin at the Aransas County Public Library June 11 with a Magic Show presented by Del Edwards and his assistant, Mrs. Edwards.

Jeff Messinger, County Marine Extension Agent, will present a Marine film Tuesday June 12 at 10 a.m.

Kindergarten through 8th grade students, local and summer visitors, may register at the library during the first two weeks of the program.

The Summer Reading Club is aimed at encouraging children to come to the library and become familiar with its resources. This year's program, "In Search of Texas Treasures", will incorporate activities and programs that emphasize the resources of the community and region as well as the state.

Certificates will be awarded to participants who read 10 or more books.

Summer Reading Club meetings will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. - 12 June 18 through August 2. For further information call the library 729-2390.

Notable Notes

Mexican Flag Needed

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are looking for a new Mexican flag to fly at the Ski Basin. The flag should be three by five feet, and anyone who has a flag they will donate, or knows of where to get one should contact Bill Agee, 729-2254 or 729-5387 during the afternoons.

Sculptor Exhibits Works

Rockport sculptor Ron Crabbe has been invited to exhibit his work in the Corpus Christi Museum, 1919 Water Street, during the month of June. Crabbe set up his show Friday, June 1, and the exhibit will continue through June 30. In a letter to Crabbe, C.L. Williams, Curator of Exhibits for the museum, said, "We are happy to welcome you as one of our exhibitors. Our art committee has chosen well."

Doubles Tourney Set For Weekend

With the sixth annual Summer Fun Mixed Doubles tennis tournament scheduled for this weekend, June 9 and 10, Patsy Tynes, president of the Rockport Association, tournament sponsor, is urging players to sign up for this event which long has been regarded as the most important tennis event in this area.

Of special signifance is the fact that from the first, this tournament has been dedicated to the memory of Col. Fred Whittle, retired Air Force officer who dedicated the last years of his life to interesting more local people in tennis, especially beginning players, according to Mrs. Tynes.

She said Colonel Whittle is credited with getting many of the local high school outstanding players involved in the game and providing much of their early coaching.

Each year the Whittle Memorial trophy is awarded the winning doubles pair in Division A. In addition, trophies will be awarded winners in other divisions.

Entry blanks are available from local club professionals, Ed Slusher at the Racquet Club and Jimmy Aleman at Key Allegro Tennis Club. The latter club will be host to the tournament this year with the final matches scheduled for its courts. Preliminary matches will be played on the courts of both clubs.

More entries are needed to insure success of the tournament, Mrs. Tynes said, adding that entries can be made by calling Slusher at 729-0880; Aleman at 729-0471; Mary John Lynch at 729-0394 or Mrs. Tynes at 729-2677.

An attractive feature of the tournament is that every player will have an opportunity to participate in at least three matches, each with a different partner.

Tournament entry fee is $7.50 per person. This includes cost of a chicken supper Sunday evening at the conclusion of the tournament. Non participants may take advantage of the supper for $2.50 per person. Any Rockport resident or property owner may enter the tournament.

A unique feature of the Mixed Doubles Summer Fun tournament is a poolside draw party Friday, June 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Racquet Club when mixed doubles partners will be chosen by lot. Also, at that time a Calcutta pool will be set up.

Any surplus realized from the tournament will be used by the Rockport Tennis Association to promote tennis in this area, especially with younger players, Mrs. Tynes said. Tickets will be sold on a Yamaha tennis racquet contributed by Net Result Sport Shop with proceeds going to the Tennis Association.

Waste gains at incredible rate

America is generating trash at an incredible rate, and the amount is increasing every year.

In 1974, 211 million people discarded more than 48 billion cans, 28 billion bottles, 30 million tons of paper and four million tons of plastic waste. Some experts see these amounts doubling by 1980. — CNS comply with city ordinance.

At the board's February 16 hearing, Bardin's request was met by a petition from five property owners asking that the request by denied.

Edward M. Armstrong did not lead the opposition to Bardin's request for the variance as was originally reported in the Pilot.

Armstrong was one of four property owners who appeared at the February 16 meeting of Rockport's Board of Adjustment to request rejection of Bardin's request. The pilot erroneously named Armstrong as opposition leader.

At the February 16 hearing, a petition with five signatures was presented to members of the Board of Adjustment. The petition read:

"We the undersigned property owners wish to respectfully request the rejection of Mr. Jerre Bardin's application for a variance of Rockport's City Zoning Ordinance . . . He has erected a front yard fence at 712 South Church in violation of the Ordinance and did not request the required building permit. We feel that the City Ordinance is just and valid and should be enforced."

The petition was signed by Mr. Charles Balthrope, Armstrong and his wife, Barbara, and Jowell M. Hearn and his wife, Mary. The Armstrongs and the Hearns were present at the meeting, and the minutes state that they "voiced their objection based on Mr. Bardin not complying with City's ordinance which they felt should be enforced.

Eat Yourself Slim

When health priorites get confused

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Eating ordinary foods from the American marketplace may be less dangerous and less expensive than relying on high-priced so-called "health foods."

In a recent broadcast of a study done by reporting journalists at ABC television in Los Angeles, the "organically grown produce" were tested by independent labs along with ordinary supermarket fruits and vegetables. The results were startling, especially to innocent buyers who had paid up to twice as much for produce they believed to be free from pesticides. They were virtually the same in pesticide levels and came from the same wholesale markets, much to the embarrassment of the organic food sellers.

This does not mean that there are no organically grown foods — but how can one tell the difference? The facts are, the only way one can be really sure of having pesticide-free produce, would be to grow it yourself — not a bad idea, considering today's food prices.

Misconceptions can hurt the consumer in other ways in addition to the pocketbook. The case of a healthy woman is reported who had become ill after taking the liquid protein diet. She was given potassium chloride (KCL) to correct high potassium losses. Whenever she felt tired or weak, she took more KCL. She was found dead one morning of an overdose.

KCL is readily available in health food stores and many markets, and is used as a salt substitute, and as a food supplement. The problems arise when dosage levels or contraindications are not shown on the labels, or when misinformed clerks take it upon themselves to suggest quantities for us. Such suggestions may be in high amounts in order to sell great quantities. These products may be regarded as harmless by the lay public, but yet another case in point demonstrates the dangers of unintentional overdoses.

A mother gave a 2-month-old baby KCL mixed with breast milk to cure colic on the advice of a book called "Let's Have Healthy Children" by Adelle Davis. The child became cyanotic and died in 28 hours as a result of an overdose of potassium.

The notion that "more is better" is a misconception often practiced in puchasing vitamins. The best way to get vitamins, minerals and all nutrients is normally and naturally in a wide variety of foods. Sometimes vitamin supplementation is necessary such as in old age, infancy, pregnancy and lactation, malabsorption problems or pathologic conditions, such as cancer.

The average healthy person who fears his food intake may be nutritionally deficient, and who takes huge quantities of many vitamin supplements, may eventually overwhelm his body by overdose and toxic levels. Vitamins A and D are highly poisonous in excessive quantities while lesser quantities may be taken without incidence. The recommended dietary allowances published by the Food and Nutrition Board, and referred to as RDA, are listed on food and supplement labels and can be relied upon for safety.

It is surprising how many people will fear traces of some chemicals, and consume excessive quantities of others without question. A woman in my office recently would not touch beef because she feared it may be contaminated with DES, yet she smoked two packs of cigarettes a day without apparent concern.

Still other folks diligently seek out "safe" foods, yet see nothing wrong with loading their bodies with various drugs. I talked to a man who was terrified at the thought of eating bacon, because of nitrites, yet he had permitted a greater immediate danger to his health by becoming 75 pounds overweight. While I do not condone nitrites, his health priorities are confused. He could die from overweight next week, but is unlikely to die from nitrite contamination.

It seems that every week or so some new danger is discovered and propelled into our awareness to frighten us. Tests done on laboratory animals do not always transpose to human beings with the same results, but fears are instilled nonetheless.

We must be concerned with the contamination of our food supply and our environment. Each of us has the responsibility for our own health, and we should learn to take the best possible care of our bodies through a good nutritious diet, exercise and a reasonable lifestyle that allows at least some peace of mind.

Excessive fears are debilitating. If people panic every time a scare comes along, proven or not, we can become blithering idiots. Life is full of risks, and there are no guarantees about anything.

Cooking Corner

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Nutritionally, you can't lose with beans. Not only do they satisfy hunger because they are digested slowly, they also contain only 118 calories or fewer per half-cup serving.

They're a good source of protein, although it's not a "complete" source of all the amino acids humans need. Team beans with corn, wheat or rice to get a complete balance of amino acids.

A rice and bean salad or casserole, a bowl of spicy chili beans with hot corn tortillas or cornbread, baked beans served with whole-wheat bread — all these supply high-quality and low-cost protein for vegetarians or people on a budget.

Beans also contain good amounts of iron, calcium, phosphorus and potassim, and doses of vitamins B1 and B6 plus niacin and folic acid. Not only that, beans are a great source of natural fiber.

Here are a few soaking methods from "A Primer on Bean Cookery" published by "Beans of the West," an organization of bean producers.

To quick soak: to 1 pound of any dry bean add 6 to 8 cups hot water. Heat, let boil 2 minutes cover and set aside for an hour before cooking.

To regular soak: to 1 pound dry beans add 6 cups cold water. Let stand overnight or for several hours in a cool place.

Overnight salt soak: to 1 pound beans add 6 cups cold water and 2 teaspoons salt. Let stand overnight or for several hours before cooking.

Although soaking beans isn't essential, it shortens the cooking time and helps some varieties hold their shape. Some cooks prefer to drain beans after soaking and cook in fresh salted water. Others feel that the soak water should not be discarded. I usually cook the beans right in the soaking water.

To cook soaked beans put them into a pot and cover with 6 cups of water. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons oil, bacon drippings or butter, and 2 teaspoons salt, plus other seasonings. If you use oil, the beans won't foam.

Simmer them, covered, until tender. Add hot water as needed to keep them covered with water.

CHEESY BEAN BAKE

3 cups cooked pinto, red or kidney beans
1 cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped bell pepper
2 tbsps. oil
1 cup cooked rice
1 cup cottage cheese
3 cups grated cheddar cheese

Cook beans as directed. Drain. Saute onion and pepper in oil until tender. Fold into beans along with remaining ingredients.

Spoon into a 2-quart casserole. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes or until bubbly. Makes five to six servings.

Note: Canned beans may be used in place of fresh-cooked dry beans.

SUNSHINE BEAN CASSEROLE

2 cups EACH, drained cooked red beans, large limas and garbanzos
1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup brown sugar
1 to 2 tbsps. prepared mustard
½ cup ketchup
1 tsp. cumin powder
¼ red wine (or ¼ cup water with 3 tbsps. vinegar)
Salt and pepper to taste

Put drained beans (canned beans may be used) into a 2½ quart casserole mix lightly and set aside. In large skillet cook ground beef, onions and garlic until meat is lightly browned stir in remaining ingredients.

Add skillet mixture to beans in casserole mix together. Cover and bake for about an hour at 325 degrees. Or simmer the mixture in an electric slow cooker on low for three to four hours. Makes six to eight servings.

Next time you feel like taking the trouble to bake beans, make a big batch. They freeze very well and it doesn't take much more energy to make 6 quarts than 6 cups. Ingredient amounts to make 6 quarts (24 servings) appear in parenthesis in the following recipe.

OLD FASHIONED BAKED BEANS

1 lb. (4 lbs.) great northern or small white beans
1 qt. (4 qts.) boiling water
1½ tsps. (2 tbsps.) salt
1 tsp. (4 tsps.) dry mustard
½ tsp. (2 tsps.) freshly ground black pepper
Dash cayenne or Tabasco (½ tsp.)
½ cup (2 cups) chopped onion
¼ cup (1 cup) molasses or honey
¼ cup (1 cup) brown sugar
¼ cup (1 cup) cider vinegar
¼ lb. (1 lb.) salt pork, cubed

Add beans to boiling water boil two minutes remove from heat and let soak one hour. (Or cold soak in cold water overnight, if desired.) Drain beans.

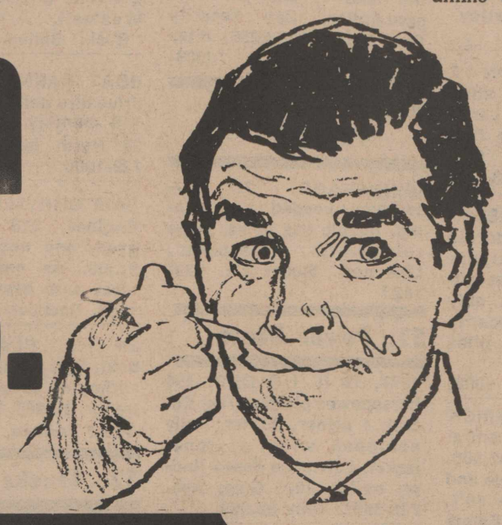

Combine dry ingredients and mix well with beans. Stir in Tabasco, onion, molasses, brown sugar and vinegar. Pour half of the six-cup mixture into a 1½- to two-quart baking dish (use a big roasting pan for the 6-quart amount).

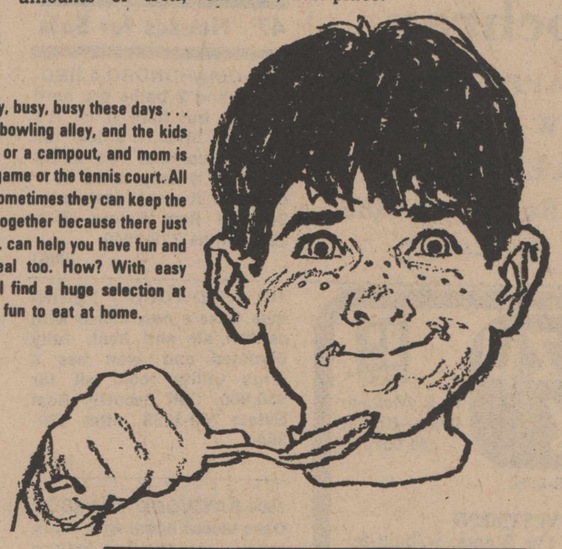

Add half the pork in a layer, then the rest of the beans. Top with a final layer of pork. Pour in boiling water to reach the top of the beans. Cover and bake at 300 degrees for six hours if to be served at once, five hours for those to be frozen.

Add a little boiling water if needed during baking to keep them from drying out.

Nursing Homes Get Superior Ratings

Texas nursing operators are proving that they want a "superior" rating from the Texas Department of Health.

Fourteen more superior facilities have been announced by Dr. Raymond T. Moore, Commissioner of Health.

Listed in the elite group are: Colonial Manor Nursing Home, Mrs. Johnnie M. Benson, administrator, Fort Worth; Coon Memorial Home, Ruby Ilene Willis, administrator, Dalhart; Bellmire Home Inc., Robert E. Duvall, administrator, Bowie; Leisure Lodge Gilmer, Sunshine Knowles, administrator, Gilmer; The Traymore, Harold H. Hartsfield, administrator, Dallas; Trinity Lutheran Home, Helen L. Reingardt, administrator, Round Rock; Merritt Plaza Nursing Home, Inc., Randall E. Deen, administrator, Marshall.

Also, Crockett County Care Center, Harold F. Taylor, administrator, Ozona; Meridian Geriatric Center, Bettie A. Sawyers, administrator, Meridian; Bell Haven Convalescent and Nursing Care Center, Darrell K. Cross, administrator, Killeen; The Quitman Nursing Home Inc., Susan F. Brady, administrator, Westview Manor, Ray Dean Elliott, administrator, McGregor; Chandler Memorial Nursing Home, John L. Poteete, administrator, San Antonio; and Hi-Plains Nursing Home, Gordon Russell, administrator, Hale Center.

To qualify under the rating system, a facility must make an exceptional effort to exceed minimum standards in services and personnel, according to Dr. Moore.

The Texas Department of Health grading system is based on bonus (merit) points for facilities exceeding minimum requirements in certain operational areas, as well as negative (demerit) points for certain deficiencies in operation. A required number of net bonus points is necessary for a superior rating.

Television Auction Raises $123,376

KEDT-TV, Channel 16 raised $123,376 during the Seventh Annual TV Auction, May 20-26, according to Myra Lombardo, Auction Manager. The amount is over $6000 more than was raised in 1978.

Viewers saw seven nights of televised biddng on new, general merchandise items as well as art and various collectibles. Super special items, including a 1979 Ford Pinto, donated by H.E.B. Food Stores, a bronze statue by Dr. Sherman T. Coleman, an oil painting by Frances Crane, and a bronze statue by Kent Ullberg brought the highest prices. All merchandise was donated to the Auction by local and area merchants and artists. Some special items over $300 in value were sold during a "live auction" in which bidders were encouraged to call in, stay on the phone line and continue to bid until the item was sold.

Over 1,000 volunteers participated in the Auction, serving as auctioneers, merchandise solicitors, telephone operators, board markers, bid sorters and runners, confirmation operators and table captains. Bert and Susie Rucker served their second year as Auction Chairmen.

Income from Channel 16's TV Auction constitutes seventeen percent of the station's budget. Channel 16 is a community-owned and is South Texas' only Public Broadcasting Station.

Texas Will Produce Gasohol

AUSTIN—The Texas Senate passed legislation by a vote of 28-0—legislation legalizing the production of alcohol in Texas for fuels. House Bill 1986 authored by State Representative Bill Keese (D-Somerville) and sponsored in the Texas Senate by Valley State Senator Raul Longoria (D-Edinburg) is legislation vital to the development of alcohol fuel facilities, such as gasohol, in Texas.

The legislation creates a new permit in the Alcoholic Beverage Code allowing for the production of gasohol. Currently, the alcohol portion of gasohol has been prohibited in the State for more than 40 years. Under a changing energy situation, the law presents a barrier to the development of gasohol in Texas. Already shortages are being experienced in some parts of the nation. Texas is currently experiencing some diesel fuel shortages.

The legislation was one of two bills by Keese to remove existing institutional barriers to gasohol. House Bill 2068, which would allow the construction of large-scale gasohol facilities in Texas, met strong opposition from the Liquor Lobby in the State Capitol. Current Texas law requires that a holder of a liquor permit be a Texas citizen or, if a corporation, that the corporation be 51 percent Texas-owned. Holders of beer permits are exempted from this provision.

"The Liquor Lobby just did not realize that they were standing squarely in front of gasohol's future in Texas," Keese related. "They learned the error of their ways though. We had almost every agricultural commodity association and farm organization in the State behind this bill."

Keese stated that the Lobby relented upon a strong showing and counter-lobbying by the agricultural community.

The Texas Senate amended House Bill 1986 to include the very important elements in Keese's other legislation, House Bill 2068.

"I must say that no one person or group was responsible for passage of this gasohol legislation. It was a real community effort."

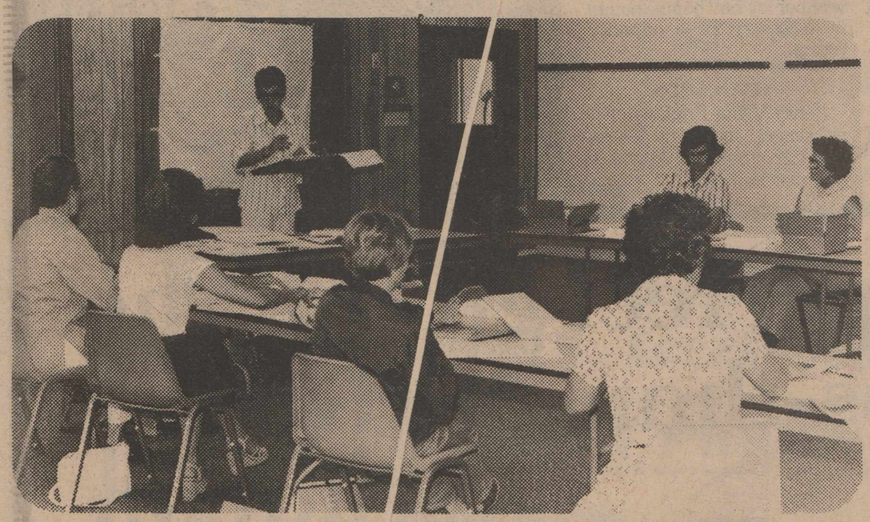

Agricultural Commissioner Reagan Brown had previously endorsed both pieces of legislation and worked behind the scenes for passage of the legislation, as did Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

"Had we not been able to amend HB 1986 to include HB 2068," Keese stated, "we would have lost a $15 million federal loan guarantee for a pilot gasohol facility in the Rio Grande Valley." The Valley gasohol pilot plant is expected to generate 470 jobs in the community of Santa Rosa, Texas, $330,000 in State and local taxes, and $26.5 million to the local economy, according to data supplied by the Texas Industrial Commission.

The Commission's director, Gerald Brown, further reports that should ten percent of the total motor fuels market in Texas become gasohol, the impact on Texas would amount to 6,000 workers employed directly in gasohol and would require 79 additional gasohol facilities the same size as the Valley plant.

Mr. Brown further stated that although "there is no short term solution to the current energy problem, the development of an in-state alcohol plant and a gasohol program would help diversify the Texas industrial economy, create stable employment for the state farm community and provide a domestic source of clean energy.
