Seeking Skylab Prize

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Stanley William Thornton, a trucker's helper from a tiny western Australia town, took in the sights of San Francisco Saturday as he waited to discover whether the charred chunks he says are from the crashed Skylab will win him $10,000.

The prize was offered by the San Francisco Examiner, and 17-year-old Thornton flew here Friday from Esperance to stake his claim. The rules: The first person to show up with an authentic piece of Skylab not later than 72 hours after it came to earth wins $10,000. So far, the only certainty is that Thornton beat the clock.

Somoza Seeks Support

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)-President Anastasio Somoza holed up in his fortified bunker Saturday after a secretive trip to Guatemala in search of military support for his war against the Sandinista rebels seeking to oust him.

Sources said Somoza met briefly in Guatemala City Friday with the leaders of the military governments of Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras, his neighbors in Central America.

Somoza reportedly asked them for military aid for his embattled forces. There was no immediate word on their response. However, a Nicaraguan source said the leaders agreed with Somoza's charge that the rebel offensive was orchestrated by Cuba's Communist government.

DC-10s Back In Air

CHICAGO (AP)-The country's first commercial DC-10 flight in 37 days took off with an apology for being 35 minutes late and a captain's defense of the soundness of his plane.

Perhaps His Most Important...

Carter Busy On Speech

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter, his domestic summit ended in a flurry of secretive meetings with groups of private citizens, has settled down at Camp David to work on what may be his most important speech as president.

Carter was alone with speechwriters and other staff aides today for the first time in more than a week, following a trip Friday to West Virginia and an off-the-record luncheon with more than a dozen journalists.

He summoned Vice President Walter F. Mondale and domestic policy aide Stuart Eizenstat to the Marine-guarded mountaintop compound in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains late Friday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the president would be working on the speech which is scheduled for national broadcast at 9 p.m. CDT Sunday, a time Powell said was chosen to get the biggest possible audience.

Powell said Friday that Carter would return to the White House in time to speak from the Oval Office Sunday night, possibly leaving camp David as early as this afternoon or evening.

He said the president's speech would go beyond outlining proposals to curb oil imports and would deal also with the economy and what Powell described as an increasingly negative mood in the nation.

The New York Times reported today that during the Friday meeting with journalists Carter indicated he has decided on the most sweeping of four energy programs presented to him by advisers. It would reduce the nation's dependence on foreign oil by 5 million barrels a day by 1990 through a combination of synthetic fuel production, increased domestic production of oil and conservation efforts.

Foreign imports now are about 8 million barrels a day.

A White House spokesman declined to comment on The Times report.

Powell, who spoke to reporters by telephone Friday from Camp David, also confirmed that the president is considering personnel shifts at the White House and in Cabinet departments. Powell said he planned to keep his own job, but didn't know all the personnel decisions Carter has made.

Carter made a startling, unannounced trip to Carnegie, Pa., to talk with a group of blue-collar families and drink lemonade Thursday night.

City Sales Tax Rebates Off Slightly

After making some progress on the last report, Snyder's retail sales rebates showed a decline in June, according to the state comptroller's report.

For the period ending June 28, Snyder received $16,335, representing the retail sales tax. This compared with $19,177 for the corresponding report last year and ran the year's total to $264,956 compared to $268,966 a year ago.

Figures for other area towns, with the last payment and the total for the year, in order: Levelland, $21,572 and $212,152; Sweetwater, $17,557 and $221,554; Pecos, $13,495 and $181,996; Brownfield, $12,637 and $157,277; Monahans, $12,290 and $124,950; Lamesa, $12,172 and $157,685; Colorado City, $6,898 and $58,047; Post, $5,199 and $57,295; Rotan, $927 and $24,974; Roscoe, none and $13,079; Roby, none and $3,917.

Two Diplomats Escape Embassy

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Two Egyptian diplomats dropped to the ground from a third-floor window of their besieged embassy under a hail of Palestinian gunfire early Saturday and one died later of a fractured skull, Turkish state radio reported.

It said the second diplomat escaped, though injured, and two other hostages earlier in the day fled safely through a back door of the embassy, which was seized Friday morning by four Palestinian terrorists.

The gunmen, demanding freedom for jailed comrads in Egypt, were reported still holding 16 hostages.

Four Palestinian guerrilla leaders, meanwhile, were on their way to Ankara to try to negotiate a peaceful end to the siege, Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in Cairo.

Khalil did not identify the guerrilla chiefs, but a Foreign Minister spokesman in Ankara said three officials of the group claiming responsibility for the attack, the "Eagles of the Revolution," had flown in from Damascus.

One thing the gasoline shortage has virtually erased is arguments over which brand is better. Nobody seems to care about brands anymore so long as the product will burn in an internal combustion engine.

It hasn't always been that way. As the petroleum industry crept from infancy into its teens and finally into adulthood, the various companies were active in singing the praises of their respective products. In the process, they contributed to the education of youngsters in those days.

There's no telling how many boys and girls first learned about the origin of petroleum from the huge billboards displayed by Sinclair. They showed pictures of prehistoric animals, and these of course were the basis for many questions asked by youngsters, which, in turn, provided them with the knowledge that ancient animals buried thousands of years turned into crude oil.

We suppose the implication was that Sinclair's oil came from animals which were more thoroughly ripened than others. We have a feeling that the FTC probably would not permit a company to display such billboards today.

But Sinclair is long gone from the scene, as are several other names that were associated with the marketing of petroleum products back in those days. And Sinclair itself had swallowed up Pierce Oil Co. many years before Sinclair went into the ARCO (Atlantic Richfield) fold.

And do you remember when the Mobil of today was Magnolia? And more recently when today's Exxon was Humble?

And closer to home, there was Col-Tex, refined at Colorado City, which later became a part of Cosden, which was refined at Big Spring, which still later became a part of Fina, which already had swallowed up Amlico.

And remember when you could buy Onyx gasoline about two or three cents below the prices charged by the majors?

And not too many years ago you could buy gasoline in this area under a Panhandle sign. And then there was Barnsdall, but it faded from the scene.

Down there in East Texas there was a regional product called Dixie. At one time in the thirties, it sold gasoline at the retail level for a dime a gallon. But there weren't many cars around of more than 85 to 100 horsepower. And not many dimes, either.

Gearing For More Business...

Santa Fe To Replace Its Rails In Longer Sections

Rail in quarter-mile long sections will replace existing lines for the Santa Fe Railroad from Dermott to Sweetwater, and around 240 Navajo Indians from New Mexico and Arizona will be brought in to do the work.

Avon Rushing, local station agent for the Santa Fe Railroad, said the new rails have already been laid beside the tracks and that work is expected to begin July 23.

The new rail is actually old rail in some parts of the country, Rushing said, but it is new to the Snyder area.

"From Clovis west there's already a lot of it," he said, "and from Amarillo to Chicago there's a lot of it up through there."

Rail has traditionally been 39 feet in length, he explained, so a joint has been needed every 39 feet to connect one piece of rail to the next. During the wintertime, however, the rails contract and gaping spaces develop between where one rail ends and the next begins.

With the new rail, called (See Longer, Page 11A)

Energy Secretary Unsure Of Future

WASHINGTON (AP)—Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger says lengthy gasoline lines aren't likely to recur this summer or next. But he is less definite in predicting his own future.

"I plan to be around as long as it's useful," Schlesinger said Friday, adding:

"The longevity of the tenure of this position is a matter between the president and myself."

He told a small group of reporters that he has offered to resign several times and that it remains a "continuing offer" open to President Carter any time he wants to accept it.

It was Schlesinger's first public comment on the matter since reports began circulating earlier in the week that he was on the verge of either resigning or being fired.

But Schlesinger told reporters he wanted to talk about the nation's energy supplies - not his own career - and quickly changed the subject.

As for supplies, Schlesinger said that while the long-term outlook "remains grim," there is cause for some new optimism about gasoline for the rest of the summer and heating oil next winter.

Increased imports from Saudi Arabia and stepped-up refinery runs should soon have an effect at the corner gas station, Schlesinger predicted.

And though saying there is no absolute guarantee, he said the kind of lines that were seen in California in May and in other parts of the nation in June seem unlikely to return.

Female Meter Reader Prefers A Job Outside

By SHERI SELLMEYER

Johnnie Pinkerton is a mother, a homemaker and a water meter reader.

She started work two weeks ago as the city's first female water meter reader. Mrs. Pinkerton, 24, claims she's not a women's libber, but added, "I think it's fair that if a woman applied for a job and she could do it she should be hired."

Why be a meter reader? "I like it better outside than being in an office." Mrs. Pinkerton who has a 4-year-old daughter, works part-time now, from 8 a.m. to 12 weekdays.

"It's the first job I've ever had where I work five days a week with holidays and weekends off," she said.

During her two-week route, Mrs. Pinkerton reads all the city's water meters, which number between 4,500 and 5,000. She calls in meter information on a walkie talkie to City Hall, where an operator puts the data into the city's computer for billing.

The most challenging part of her job is finding water meters, Mrs. Pinkerton said. Meters may be in the front or back yards, in the alley, or even two blocks away from the water usage they record.

"Sometimes the weeds around the meters are higher than my head," she said. Often cactus plants or flowers conceal the meters.

Children serve as Mrs. Pinkerton's assistants when they help her locate meters. "Little kids get a bang out of that--they think they're real important."

Meter reading isn't without its adventures. During one reading route a snake greeted Mrs. Pinkerton when she opened a meter lid. "I just read the meter anyway," she said.

Lifting the heavy water meter lids can prove difficult. "I nearly died the first time I lifted one, but you get used to it."

Being out and around appeals to the lady meter reader. "You're always doing something -- either walking to the meter or reading it."

Her new job enables her to keep trim, Mrs. Pinkerton said. "I work and get my exercise and I get paid for it!"

Q--Is the college going to continue the swimming program for children through the school year?

Q--Jerry Baird of the continuing education department at Western Texas College says swimming classes may well be included in continuing education offerings this fall. However, they must fit into the college program. Demands for use of the pool are greater during the school year. They are still in the process of studying possible offerings in continuing education and offerings will be announced as decisions are made in plenty of time for those interested to sign up.

Hermleigh Sets CPR Program

Nola Fenter, head of In-Service at Cogdell Memorial Hospital will present a film program on Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation at Hermleigh's regular monthly community meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hermleigh Community Center.

The CPR method is a means of restoring the breathing and heartbeat of heart attack or accident victims. It is an invaluable tool of first aid and particularly important to people living in rural areas where it requires several minutes for emergency help to arrive.

A covered dish supper will be served at the meeting.

Suit Against Doctor Here Is Dismissed

A suit for damages filed in 132nd District Court by Elfie Nobles against Wilton N. Jones, M.D., has been dismissed by Judge Wayland G. Holt for lack of prosecution.

Lawyers for the plaintiff withdrew from the case on May 16, and the judge at that time allowed time for her to employ other counsel.

Judge Holt dismissed the case the past week.

Roloff, Former Official Exchange Verbal Jabs

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Evangelist Lester Roloff seemed a little surprised when he saw who was going to introduce him as speaker to a young lawyers' luncheon.

But he quickly fell into the spirit of things and exchanged gentle verbal jabs with former Assistant Attorney General Lynn Taylor over whether there was a place in Heaven for lawyers.

Taylor was in charge of the state's case to force Roloff to obtain a state license for his children's homes from 1973 to 1977. He now works for the University of Texas System.

He recalled the time Roloff said, "I wonder if there will be any lawyers in Heaven."

"I am convinced I am in Heaven now because I haven't had to take you on cross-examination in a year and a half," Taylor told Roloff, who last month closed his homes rather than get a license.

"Maybe what I meant was they (lawyers) won't have to practice law when they get there...I hope Lynn will be there," Roloff replied.

He spoke poignantly of walking through the empty Rebekah Home in Corpus Christi and of missing girls from the home singing in the choir of his People's Church.

For years, Roloff kept his homes open without a state license. He could go to jail for his years of defiance of state law. But if he does, he said, it would be as a matter of conscience.

"I won't give Caesar my conscience...It's not a matter of wanting to be a martyr. That's not it. I like to live," he said.

Roloff also told the lawyers that former Attorney General John Hill, Gov. Bill Clements and Attorney General Mark White virtually implored him to put an end to the issue by accepting a license.

"Brother Hill said, 'Brother Roloff, I just pray you'll take a license - put it in your desk, put it under the carpet, but take a license,' " Roloff said, lowering his voice to a near-whisper for dramatic emphasis.

"Brother Mark said the same thing."

Carter Concedes Recession Coming

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-The other shoe finally dropped.

After months of saying it wouldn't happen, the Carter administration finally conceded this past week that the economy will experience a recession this year.

Private economists have been saying that for months. And recent polls show that the public in general believes the economy is getting worse - whether or not they define bad times as a recession or not.

The Carter administration's belated recognition of a recession in its midyear economic review was undoubtably a politically painful one. But in practical terms, the latest forecast of a half percentage point decline in real economic growth is not much different than the informal scaled back "no growth" predictions top administration officials have recently said were likely.

The White House economic forecast at the start of the year called for growth of real Gross National Product of 2.2 percent in 1979 but that has gradually been scaled back over the months. By comparison, real growth of GNF, after adjustment for inflation, was 4.4 percent between the fourth quarter of 1977 and comparable period in 1978.

Still, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and other top administration officials acknowledged that the forecast for a mild recession may be optimistic.

It "could turn into the much grimmer prospect of a deeper more prolonged recession," he told the Senate Budget Committee this past week.

The major reason for his concern - and the other half of the administration's double-edged dilemma - is the much-higher-than-expected inflation this year. In January the budget forecast was calling for consumer price inflation of 7.4 percent. But in its midyear review, the White House forecast increased that to 10.6 percent. Inflation in the comparable 1977-78 period was 9 percent.

In Government Buildings...

Legal Temperature 78

AUSTIN (AP)-The official legal temperature in Texas government and public buildings will be 78 degrees on Monday.

Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he is abandoning his stand that Texas climate calls for only 76 degrees.

"We're trying to cooperate and we're willing to try it," Clements said in reference to President Carter's mandate of 78 degrees for thermostats in all public and many commercial non-residential building. The ruling is effective Monday.

"In Texas, setting the thermostate at 78 degrees is different than in a lot of other states," Clements told a news conference. "I'm satisfied that some of our new buildings will not allow this. They have no windows, and at that setting I think the inside will get unbearably hot... but in the interests of cooperation we will try 78."

Clements aides said later the governor would issue an executive order asking Texans to cooperate with Carter's directive.

Told the federal government had offered Texas $326,000 to enforce energy conservation regulations, Clements said, "I didn't know that, but we'll take the money."

He indicated enforcement of the 78-degree rule would be similar to the enforcement of odd-even gasoline distribution - left largely to local authorities.

SCORPIO (Oct.24-Nov.22) In dealing with co-workers today, avoid coming on too strong or being too demanding. Unreasonableness will cause needless friction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) Be very careful today to whom you delegate important matters. A poor choice could create a tangle that you will later find difficult to unwind.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan.19) You will be well advised today to bite the bullet rather than do anything that could provoke a confrontation between you and your mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) You will look better to others today if you underplay your achievements instead of boasting about them. Be Mr. or Ms. Humble.

PISCES (Feb.20-March 20) Do not be wasteful today, even though you may experience powerful, extravagant whims. Enjoy yourself but live within your means.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Nothing will be gained today by reviving an irritable family issue that has not been resolved to this point. Let time and patience do the healing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) In situations where you are at fault today, you may find it a trifle difficult to own up to your own shortcomings and attempt to blame others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For the sake of your budget, seek activities today that aren't overly expensive. There's a possibility you could spend far too freely.

Descendants Fight To Clear Dr. Mudd's Name

LA PLATA, Md. (AP)— For 40 years, Dr. Samuel A. Mudd's descendants have fought to clear their grandfather of the deed that inspired the saying "his name is mud" - setting the broken leg of assassin John Wilkes Booth.

The family's appeal is now before President Carter - at least the third president to consider Mudd's case in more than a century.

And this month, restoration work is beginning at the home of the Confederate sympathizer who got a life sentence for aiding Booth after he shot and killed President Abraham Lincoln.

The house, near Byrantown, Md., is being preserved as an historic landmark. It was there, about 30 miles from Washington, that Mudd repaired the actor's leg - broken when Booth leaped from the balcony of the Ford Theater, where Lincoln was mortally wounded.

"Suppose he wouldn't have set Booth's leg. What would history have said about him then?" said Louise Mudd Arehart, a 62-year-old granddaughter. "He took a Hippocratic oath of service to humanity."

Mudd's granddaughter campaigned for nearly a decade to have the house preserved as a landmark. She says a ghostly visitor inspired-her to begin the effort shortly after she and her husband moved into their home here in 1962.

"I started hearing footsteps going upstairs. But we have no upstairs," she said. "I would also hear someone knocking at the door, but when I went to the door there was no one there."

Mrs. Arehart said one day she noticed a man approaching her home in La Plata, about 10 miles from Bryantown.

"This man was slender ... he had an old-fashioned brown coat and cap on," she said. "I went to the front door so I could meet the man. But he wasn't there. I also went outside, but there were no footprints on the ground."

After several appearances, "I figured it had to be my grandfather," she said. And she began her campaign.

In 1975, the Maryland Historical Trust bought the property, and during its latest session, the state General Assembly appropriated $125,000 for restoration.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Arehart's cousin, Dr. Richard Mudd, of Saginaw, Mich., has been trying for 40 years to have his grandfather exonerated.

Mudd was pardoned by President Andrew Johnson when he helped stop an outbreak of yellow fever on the Florida Keys island where he was imprisoned for four years.

But the Mudd family contends the pardon implies their grandfather did something wrong something they vehemently reject.

Their latest petition, presented to Carter by Senator Charles Mathais R-Md., and Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., asks that Mudd's conviction be delcared null and void.

"The family has been doing something on this for years," said Peggy Nalle, a spokeswoman for Mathais.

Christopher Latham Sholes patented the first practical typewriter in 1868.

Newspaper 'Whiz Kid' Faces Murder Charge

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —"Oh, it's so glorious to be alive," wrote Jimmy French when he was 12, a whiz kid newspaper columnist who had met a president, appeared on national television quiz shows, criticized the world that spawned him.

He wrote: "Sometimes I get sad when I think about people, because I can't understand why all the peoples of the world can't love and care for each other.

"Why can't we? I don't understand."

Today, Jimmy French is 20, unemployed, and charged with murder. Police say he and another youth argued in a pinball arcade last April and fought over a broken windshield in French's late model Trans-Am.

People who know him don't understand.

There are missing pieces between 12-year-old Jimmy and 20-year-old Jimmy. Just what happened after he disappeared from prominence?

What is known, police say, is that two youths fought in a vacant lot behind a school. John Kerwood, 19, died of bullet wounds in the chest and head. Officers captured French in an alley the next day.

Jimmy French at 12 wrote:

"Guns belong in a museum. Maybe if man inhabits this planet long enough, that's where they'll end up."

And he wrote: "I don't believe any person is born bad, a thief, a killer. Something we do in our society makes them that way."

That was around Christmas, 1971. Jimmy French, billed by his employer, the Philadelphia Daily News, as the youngest newspaper columnist in America, sat under a Christmas tree, chomping on chocolates, reveling in his fairy tale world.

He wrote that day of warmth and peace, and of people imprisoned like animals: "In a collective way I am accountable for the conditions in society that put them there."

Today, Jimmy French, runaway, high school dropout, is in prison. His father, an unemployed saxophone player, can't raise the bail.

After his arrest April 12, a mug shot of Jimmy French appeared in the local newspapers and on television.

When he was 12, Jimmy French appeared on "What's My Line?" and "To Tell the Truth," and the "Mike Douglas Show." He met former President Nixon at the White House, was photographed on Mayor Frank Rizzo's lap.

Readers nominated him for mayor, governor, even "president of the world."

But to begin at the beginning: another holiday season, Christmas Eve, 1959, Jimmy's mother, Jo Anne French, 25, had just trimmed the tree. She was in the tub listening to carols on a radio when it fell into the water, electrocuting her. Jimmy was 16 months old.

When he was 3, the boy was placed in a child care center. Later, he returned to live with his father, and began hanging around a neighborhood newspaper office. In time, he began writing letters to the editors of the town's three dailies, while other kids played baseball.

Rolfe Neill, then editor at the Daily News, noticed the letters, discovered they had been written by a 12-year-old, and hired him.

Shortly after, an adult Daily News columnist says, Neill held a small ceremony in the newsroom and gave Jimmy a new typewriter, and later, personalized stationery with his picture on the letterhead.

In return, the columnist says, Jimmy French brought Neill cookies and candy and referred to him as "my big, strong, understanding editor." And veterans would get notes on Jimmy's personalized memo pad congratulating "a colleague" on a well-written piece.

For a year he wrote and ate out with the town's top columnists at fancy restaurants. He was paid $15 a week.

In his regular Monday column, he endorsed candidates for mayor; he wrote about capital punishment, war, his father (the "kindest, strongest person on this continent), molecules, electrons, neutrons, gargantuan germs, flowers like the rowneyed Susan and lily of the valley. He spoke out against graffiti and report cards, admonishing a teacher in print who had given him a "d" in spelling.

Then he wrote a column the editorial page editor wouldn't run. According to the columnist, Jimmy went to the managing editor, who backed the editorial page editor. Jimmy resigned, thinking Neill wouldn't let it happen. But he did.

Ron Javers, a former Daily News editor, edited French's columns. Javers recalled him as a "bright kid who had a lot of problems."

Neill, now publisher of the Charlotte N.C. New and Observer, said he had very little contact with French after he left.

"I wouldn't want to speculate on his frame of mind, where he is today," Neill says, "because I just don't know."

Jimmy ran away from home a couple of times and eventually dropped out of high school. He worked as a guard for the city Redevelopment Authority for a while.

He had written once about a city judge, James Thomas McDermott, for whom he was named. Later he wrote:

"He presented me with a playpen and highchair when I was too young to remember. More important than that, he watched me grow. Touched me with gentle, kind understanding. Instilled his well-read wisdom. He has given freely of his time and himself."

Dear Abby

Fears Her Blooper Is Romance-Pooper

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune N Y News Synd Inc

DEAR ABBY: My fiance Joey and I are having a cold war because of what he refers to as a "Freudian slip." The other night in the middle of a warm embrace, I called him "Jimmy." (Jimmy was my former boyfriend.)

Needless to say, I was terribly embarrassed and tried my best to convince Joey that I was not thinking of Jimmy. I honestly wasn't, Abby. I went with Jimmy for a long time, but I can truthfully say that I have absolutely no feelings for him anymore, and I love Joey with all my heart.

How does something like this happen? Is it really just a slip of the tongue, or is there something in my subconscious that is driving me to destroy a good relationship with someone I love by driving him away with a slip of the tongue?

Please help me. My future relationship with Joey hinges on your reply. Thank you. Sign me . . .

I HATE FREUD

DEAR HATE: Not every slip of the tongue has a subconscious symbolic meaning, and not every accident conceals a wish to get hurt. As Freud himself said, "Sometimes a cigar is just a cigar!"

Your slip of the tongue does not necessarily signify a continuing attachment to your ex-boyfriend, but could simply reflect a strongly conditioned habitual response stemming from your association with him over a long period of time.

DEAR ABBY: When being introduced to a person, is it OK to say, "I have certainly heard a lot about you?"

PEGGY

DEAR PEGGY: It all depends on what you've heard.

DEAR ABBY: I have been considering donating my organs for possible transplant at the time of my death. However, I have heard that the family of the deceased is charged for transportation to the special hospital where the organs are removed, and also for the surgery to remove the organs. It this true?

If it is, I would rather not donate my organs since I do not wish to add to the expense of my funeral. Thank you.

CHEAPSKATE DONOR IN OHIO

DEAR DONOR: There is no charge for transportation to hospitals for the removal of organs. Time is so important in their removal that a donor almost always has to be in the hospital at the time of death. (Corneas must be removed within four hours after death; kidneys within 20 minutes!)

There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family for the removal of organs.

However, when one donates his entire body to a medical school, the medical school bears the cost of transportation in some states. In others, the estate of the donor must pay for it.

DEAR ABBY: I have just learned that my daughter and her husband have joined a swingers club. They have been married only two months and are both 23.

I don't want to interfere in their personal lives, but I am worried that this kind of mate-swapping will ruin their marriage. Would you please comment?

A WORRIED FATHER

DEAR FATHER. You have good reason to worry if your daughter and her husband are into mate-swapping—particularly after only two months of marriage. You are wise not to interfere in their personal lives. Regardless of how kinky the behavior of others may seem to us, consenting adults have a legal right to do as they please as long as they aren't hurting anyone.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Museum Begins Youth Classes

Summer Youth Classes offering instruction in art and drama for students from elementary through junior high will begin Monday at the Scurry County Museum.

Students who have not registered may register between 9-9:30 a.m. Monday. Fees will be $15 per student for one class or $25 for both art and drama.

Classes will be held from 10-12 noon and 12:30-2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday from July 16-27. Students will be divided into age groups, with those from 6-10 in one class and those from 11-14 in the other. Art for the younger class will meet from 10-12, with drama from 12:30-2:30. Older students will reverse that schedule with drama in the morning and art in the afternoon.

COTTON INSECTS

Grasshoppers are still causing damage to area cotton fields and control measures have not been too successful.

One other problem of which producers should be on the alert is the possibility of boll worm activity. According to the egg lay prediction (Moth ZV) the immediate peak egg lay of the bollworm should be between July 18-21. It is anticipated that this generation will not be of economic importance, but should be monitored.

SPIDER MITES IN GARDENS

Spider mites, or red spiders, are probably the most difficult pests to control in vegetable gardens. With hot dry weather approaching, gardeners should be on the lookout for his pest by checking the underside of plant leaves.

Although spider mites will attack almost any plant, among their preferred hosts are beans, tomatoes, peas, eggplants and corn.

Actually, spider mites are not insects but are eight-legged relatives of ticks and spiders. Their small size, about 1-60 of an inch, makes them difficult to see without a magnifying lens. They range in color from red, green and yellow to white and brown. Spider mites deposit their eggs on the underside of leaves. These hatch in about five days. There may be 10 to 15 or more generations per year.

Mites can cause considerable plant damage by sticking their needlelike mouthparts into leaf tissue and sucking out the juice while injecting a toxic substance into the leaf. Heavy infestations will cause leaves to appear blotched or spotted, turn pale or yellowish in color, curl up, turn brown and eventually drop off. A thin webbing may cover leaves and stems.

Begin a control program as soon as spider mites are detected and before plant damage is obvious. A light infestation of spider mites can be reduced and kept at low levels by spraying plants with a strong stream of cool water every few days.

If chemicals must be used, select from such effective materials as Kelthane, diazinon and malathion. Two to four applications may be needed at five-day intervals. Always follow directions on the pesticide label.

Power Struggle Seen Between Brown, AAM

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)—A power struggle and the growing sophistication of the American Agriculture Movement are part of the background of Reagan Brown's unexpectedly publicized explosion - which included an unfortunate racial epithet - last week.

Leaders of American Agriculture want a quasi official Agricultural Producers Advisory Board to counter what they see as domination of state farm policy by middlemen and corporate farmers.

Brown opposes creation of the board and says it would not "be in the best interest of Texas Agriculture."

American Agriculture struck out with the Legislature, against the combined forces of Brown and the Texas Farm Bureau, and they see Gov. Bill Clements as their best hope.

They went to see him Tuesday after Brown's blow-up and urged him to create the advisory board by executive order and appoint its members.

Clements' press secretary, Jon Ford, said the governor "made no commitment whatsoever," but some of the farmers left with the impression he would create the board.

"The governor indicated he was going to go ahead and create it by executive order," said Jerome Friemel of Hereford, the Panhandle delegate of American Agriculture.

Travis County Commissioner David Samuelson, an American Agriculture member, said Clements asked for a list of possible appointees to the board.

REAGAN BROWN
...doesn't need a board

"A man from San Antonio said, 'It is up to you to appoint them,' and Clements said, 'I've got the right to fire 'em don't I.'" Samuelson said.

He said a number of American Agriculture members worked for Clements' election "on the basis of his promise he would consider" creating the board.

Friemel said Brown's job is to monitor agriculture in Texas but he does not represent farmers.

"We are trying to get a board of producers that can be a sounding board. He and the governor and others can use the findings of this panel," he said.

Samuelson said the producers board would study problems and provide information but was not seeking any kind of administrative control.

But he made it clear the board could be a tool for change when he said some farmers stayed in Austin looking at Agriculture Department documents and Brown's campaign finance reports.

"There's a question of whether any money came from the big middlemen or the grain trade. ... They've got it all in their hands. They get their way now. The truth of the matter is that it's what is running your food bill up," said Samuelson.

Samuelson denies he has any urge to run for Brown's job but said he might run for president of the Texas Farmers Union, a post he sought unsuccessfully this year.

Brown reportedly feels the board, as proposed by American Agriculture, would not adequately represent farmers because it would not have any members with leadership positions on major farm organizations.

He is known to feel that what American Agriculture really wants is a quasi-legal state agency to run agriculture.

Samuelson stressed the importance of the producers advisory board to American Agriculture

"I assure you, American Agriculture is not going to let the producers board lie. If we have to, we would establish our own producers board and look into things and issue our own statements," he said.

Brown's language was ill-chosen but he did make it clear to the farmers in their private meeting that they are not a strong enough voting bloc to overcome votes from urban areas in a statewide election.

As reconstructed by the Austin American-Statesman from interviews with three sources, Brown told the farmers:

"There are more niggers on a Houston street than there are farmers in Texas. You didn't put me here and you can't get me out."

Read the quote, Friemel said, "That's probably the gist of it."

Brown apologized within hours after publication of the remarks.

"Under the illogical influence of anger, I said things for which I am deeply sorry and which do not in any way represent my true feelings about individuals or groups," he said.

Brown's agency, in fact, was the only defendant dropped this year from a U.S. Justice Department suit against nine state agencies for alleged job discrimination. The Justice Department decided that since Brown took over in 1977, the agency had progressed well in hiring minorities.

The number of minority employees rose from 19 percent to 25 percent between 1977 and 1979.

Friemel said the striking thing about the conversation with Brown wasn't so much the racial slur as the vehemence of his response to American Agriculture's appeal for his support of the producers board.

He said Brown shouted at the farmers.

"It was completely out of order for an elected official to carry on that way," Friemel said.

In 1978, Commercial fishermen in the United States landed six billion pounds of seafood with a dockside value of $1.9 billion.

TO APPEAR AT SCURRY RODEO--Lee Thurman, shown during a recent parade appearance, will be on hand for the Scurry County Rodeo, which opens Wednesday night for a four-night run in the Scurry County Coliseum.

With Trick Horse, Dwarf Mule...

Thurman To Clown At Rodeo

Louie Thurman of Burleson will appear at the Scurry County Rodeo, which opens Wednesday with his trick horse, Princess, and his stubborn, diminutive mule, Ginger. Thurman, a veteran of the rodeo circuit, does all of his own training and usually has, in addition to the performing animals, several others in the training pen. He has spent many years training animals to perform for the nation's rodeo circuit.

Princess and Ginger are seasoned show animals and have performed at many rodeos across the nation. Ginger's stubborn antics keep Thurman in plenty of trouble in the arena and an enthusiastic crowd brings out the "ham" in her. In 1976, Ginger walked 56 feet on her hind legs to break a former world's record of 49 feet. Ginger, a 15-year-old henny (born of a jenny and a shetland stud) was raised by Louie. Her mother, owned by Thurman, was also a trick animal. Princess, the paint mare, is eight years old and came from bucking stock. She was born in the Red River bottoms, and Louie has had her since she was a weanling colt. Princess is 54 inches tall and jumps through a 54-inch hoop of fire while mounted. She overcame her fear of fire through trust in her trainer.

Thirty-five years on the rodeo circuit first saw Thurman as a contestant riding the rough stock and then as a rodeo clown. Although he gave up the perils of fighting bulls to younger men, Louie continues to clown by bringing comedy acts to rodeo audiences.

Thurman will appear at each performance of the Scurry County Rodeo.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., once called the "most hated man in Alabama," has been sworn in as the newest member of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Johnson has been hailed by attorney General Griffin Bell as the "role model" for federal judges in the United States. He was once called the "most hated man in Alabama" for his landmark vivil rights decisions during the 1950s and 1960s.

President Carter had nominated Johnson for FBI director, but the judge withdew, citing a health problem that required time to overcome.

Ryan And Renko See No-Hit Efforts Fade

By MARV SCHNEIDER
AP Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan of the California Angels and Steve Renko of the Boston Red Sox both were two outs from no-hitters in American League games California Friday night, until they met the spoilers. New York Yankee star Reggie Jackson ruined it for Ryan and Oakland A's rookie Rickey Henderson did the same to Renko.

Jackson, as it would figure, was the central character in a potentially historic moment in Anaheim. Ryan was on the verge of becoming the first major league pitcher ever to hurl five no-hitters until Reggie drilled a shot under Ryan's glove and into center field for a clean single.

Ryan wound up with a one-hitter, a 6-1 victory over New York, his seventh career one-hitter, and thoughts of what might have been. Musing that if he had caught Jackson's shot, it would have been a double play, he said, "Ijust didn't make the play."

Renko, too, allowed only one hit, and got the victory, 2-0 over the A's in Oakland, but he was not around for the final out. Bill Campbell came out of the Red Sox bullpen to get it, by striking out Dave Revering after Renko had walked Mitchell Paige with two out.

Henderson's hit was a liner past first base. Bob Watson dived for the ball, but it caromed off his glove.

"It was a slider, low and away," Renko said of the pitch Henderson hit. "He didn't hit it good, but he hit it in a good spot."

How did the spoilers feel? "I'm glad I got the hit," said Jackson. "It wasn't a strike. It was at the bottom of the strike zone."

Wedel Back At Texas-El Paso

EL PASO (AP)—John Wedel will return to the University of Texas at El Paso as a track coach, UTEP Athletic Director Jim Bowden announced Friday.

Wedel, who will serve as head coach of the women's track program and as an assistant with the men's team, replaces Ted McLaughlin, who left last month to become head track coach at Southern Methodist University.

The Miners won NCAA championships in both indoor and outdoor track during Wedel's first stint at UTEP in 1974-75. The 31-year-old California native has been an assistant track coach at the University of California at Berkley for the past four years.

Americans Challenge Lytham St. Annes 'Jinx'

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP)—It's 53 years since an American golfer won the British Open title at Lytham St. Annes, the gently undulating links beside the Irish Sea.

Hale Irwin, the U.S. Open champion, and Fuzzy Zoeller, winner of the Masters at Augusta, will be leading a big U.S. contingent this week and trying to reverse the process.

The legendary Bobby Jones was the last American to tame this simple-looking, deceptive golf course, in 1926.

But as the local residents tell you, there really are two golf courses at Lytham St. Annes - one when it's calm and one when the wind is blowing. In a brief hour, one can suddenly be transformed into the other.

This most famous of all golf titles has been won 20 times by Americans, on different British links, since Jones won it at Lytham. So it really seems this course, 6,822 yards long with a par of 35-36-71, has been a jinx for Americans.

Even Jack Nicklaus, the most consistent performer in the British Open over the last 16 years, never has managed to win the title here. He was third in 1963, sixth in 1969 and third in 1974.

Nicklaus has won the Open three times, but always on the famous old Scottish courses. He triumphed at Muirfield in 1966, St. Andrews in 1970 and again at St. Andrews last year.

Bobby Jones won the title here by 2 strokes from another American, Al Watrous, after making one of the most famous shots in the history of golf.

It was on the 17th. Jones was in a sand trap 170 yards from the hole. He took a five-iron and hit the ball out of the sand, over hillocks and trees and on to the green.

There is a plaque in the rough, commemorating that shot. The 17th is called the Bobby Jones hole.

It's the last five holes that make Lytham St. Annes difficult. Many a golfer's hopes have crumbled from the 14th onwards.

The 14th has three wicked bunkers protruding into the fairway from the left and guarding the green. The 25th fairway bends gently to the right, with deep rough. The approach to the 16th green is blind. The 17th is dog-leg in shape with trees and thick rough blocking the way. The 18th has bunkers and a thick clump of bushes.

West Rallies For Slim Win

ABILENE—The West All-Stars, guided by Snyder's Joyce Elrod on the sidelines and daughter Dana Elrod on the floor, overcame a two-game deficit to defeat the East team in the annual Texas High School Girl's Coaches Association All-Star Volleyball Game held at Moody Coliseum here Friday evening.

Dianne Urey, Richard Pearce, was one of the West's major contributors, as that team rallied back after losing the first two games, 13-5 and 10-15.

Superior net work by the East squad kept the West in trouble most of the night, but aided by the yelling, bounding Urey, the West eventually took the victory, 13-15, 10-15, 15-13, 15-5 and 15-12.

Dana Elrod and Grace Gallardo of El Paso Burgess gave the West a quick 5-0 lead in game four, a battle won easily by the West team, 15-5. But the East refused to give up, and took a 11-7 lead in the final and deciding game before Urey and Karen Dornseifer, also of Pearce, got quick points to tie the score, and eventually take the victory.

Joyce Elrod was named to coach the West team after taking Snyder High School to a state AAA championship last season. Daughter Dana, a setter, was named All-State off of the squad.

Holladay To Vie At State

LUBBOCK — Snyder's Tonya Holladay grabbed first place in three regional TAAF Track and Field Meet events here to qualify for the upcoming State Meet in Waco.

Miss Holladay, competing in the bantam division, won the 50-yard dash, the 100-yard dash and the long jump.

She broke the old record of 12-0 in the long jump, clearing a distance of 12-9½. Her 100-yard dash time of 12.9 also bested a regional TAAF record.

The State Meet will be held July 27-28.

Junior Tour Results

Cranford Wins Fourth

Jeff Cranford of Lubbock won his fourth West Texas PGA Junior Tour Tournament in a row here Friday, firing a 78 to edge out Paul Erwin of Snyder and Lubbock's Brady Rodgers.

"Maybe I ought to retire while I'm ahead," grinned the bespectacled youth, who had carded a 76 to win the 14-15 division at Western Texas College a day earlier.

Meanwhile, Erwin and Rodgers locked at 80 each after completing the 18-hole tournament - held at Snyder Country Club. Erwin took second place by nipping his opponent in the first hole of sudden death play.

Kevin Boscamp also clamped onto another victory Friday. Playing in the 12-13 age bracket, the Brownwood youth won Thursday with an 84, and carded an 88 Friday for his second victory in a row. He won by seven strokes at WTC, and by 12 at the country club.

Brad James of Seminole took second in the division, with a 100, while Todd Cranford, brother to Jeff, was third with a 101. The youngster also took third here Thursday.

In the 16-18 age bracket, Chris Osborne of Lubbock plotted a 72 to skim into first place by a single stroke over Snyder's Randy Chambers. Mark Leonard, Midland, was third with a 77. Leonard also took third place (with an 80) at WTC on Thursday.

The tour moves to Pecos on Monday, and jumps back to the Snyder area on Tuesday and Wednesday, locating at Sweetwater and Brownfield, respectively.

Top winners will qualify for the annual Tournament of Champions.

Stars Try Rotan Here

Snyder Little League All-Stars will host Rotan here Monday at 7:30 p.m. in what could be the first of a series of playoff games pitting the locals against area teams.

Tentatively, winner of Monday's game will host a Ballinger-Winters playoff victor on July 20. The semi-final round will be held approximately July 24, with the finals taking place on July 26.

The district winner will then advance to bi-district against a Lubbock district champion, July 28 in Snyder. Bi-district champion will qualify for the state tournament held in Waco.

Sanders Signs With Tech

LUBBOCK (AP)-Ricky Sanders, an all-district running back from Breckenridge High School, has agreed to play for Texas Tech.

Sanders also saw high school action as a defensive back and wide receiver. He was also the Class 2A state long jump champion.

Coach Red Dockery said the Red Raiders now have signed 28 freshman players for the 1979 season.

The colony of Maryland was granted to Lord Baltimore in 1632.

Knight Trial Postponed

U.S. Cagers Grab Gold

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Bobby Knight was at his cynical best.

"The Puerto Rican basketball team is a lot easier to beat than their court system," he told writers Friday night after guiding the United States men to the gold medal with a brilliant 113-94 rout in the Pan American Games.

Hours earlier, Knight's trial on an aggravated assault charge lodged by a Puerto Rican policeman was postponed until Aug. 22.

"This may be my very last night in the Caribbean for the rest of my life. I'm not a diplomat. I didn't study foreign policy. The basketball players are the only people on this island I care about.

"I've had nothing on my mind except seeing this team win here since it was picked."

Knight turned to his infamous Sunday incident at a practice site with policeman Jose D. Silva, saying, "Now about all these ... lies."

"My players sat there and saw the whole incident from beginning to end," Knight said. "There didn't have to be any explanations on my part. I have no idea if it's going to be resolved before Aug. 22."

So would Knight coach the 1983 Pan American team in Venezuela if he were asked?

"Well," he replied with a thin grin, "I've coached in the Pan Am Games and I think it would be very selfish on my part, not to stand aside and let someone else have the experience I've had."

As anticipated, the highly partisan crowd of 12,000 jammed into the Roberto Clemento Coliseum verbally derided Knight. They booed him. They whistled at him. They jeered at every opportunity.

The fiery Indiana University coach, atop the shoulders of his jubilant players afterward, raised his right fist into the air and whirled it around at the cooing throng. Then he raised his forefinger, signifying his team was "No. 1."

"I'm not interested in standing anywhere and hearing hissing," he said. "I feel the United States is the No. 1 country in the world. And we are the No. 1 team."

Knight said a telephone call from injured guard Kyle Macy, back in his Lexington, Ky., dormitory room, helped ignite the U.S. to its ninth straight victory in these Games and seventh gold medal in eight tries. Puerto Rico suffered its only loss in nine games.

SCC Notes Winners, Schedule

Bill Null, Kathy Genuchi and Theresa Hildreth combined to win the Weekly Twilight Swingers Golf Tourney held Friday.

They shot a 6-under, 29 in the Florida Scramble tourney.

John and Suzie Reed and Bill and Finnie Seale tied for second with a 30. The other second place squad included Dan and Pat Gallagher and Duane and Nancy Richard.

Upcoming events at Snyder Country Club include the Club Junior Championship Aug. 9-10 for members age 17 and under; the Junior-Senior Championship on Aug. 12; the Pro-Am on the 20th; and the Men's Club Championship on the 25-26th.

Kennedy Can't Shake Chappaquiddick Shadow

BOSTON (AP)—Ten years have passed, and Sen. Edward Kennedy has become a politician more popular than the president. Yet the memory of a car accident on a summer night in 1969 remains a troubling cloud over his future in the 1980s.

Despite Kennedy's explanations, a court inquest, numerous books, newspaper investigations and the lapse of a decade, the doubts and questions and innuendos linger.

Undisputed is that July 18, 1969, Kennedy's Oldsmobile plunged off the side of a one-lane, humpbacked bridge on Chappaquiddick Island. His passenger, Mary Jo Kopechne, drowned in a shallow tidal pond. Kennedy waited 10 hours before reporting the accident to police.

The memory of Chappaquiddick has faded. The nation's youngest voters were grade-schoolers at the time.

Now, a decade after the accident, Kennedy, at 47 and four times elected to the Senate, leads President Carter by almost 2-to-1 in national popularity polls. A recent Harris poll gave Kennedy 48 percent, Carter 25 percent and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., 22 percent. A Harris poll in March between Kennedy and Carter gave Kennedy 59 percent and Carter 35 percent. A Los Angeles Times poll conducted in December gave Kennedy 53 percent and Carter 39 percent.

Kennedy is being pushed to challenge Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination. If he decides to run, many agree he will be forced to face the possibility that Chappaquiddick might influence the election of a president.

Many politicians seem to believe that for presidential candidate Kennedy, Chappaquiddick could be a factor, perhaps even a damaging one, but not enough to spoil his chances.

Republicans who seek their party's nomination resolutely deny if they will discuss Chappaquiddick at all, that they would make a campaign issue of the accident. But they agree voters will still be reminded of Chappaquiddick.

"Inevitably it would come up," says Rep. John Anderson of Illinois. "Inevitably you always have supporters in a campaign who talk about things that you wish they'd be quiet about."

Anderson, a candidate in the New Hampshire primary, says he does not think the memory of Chappaquiddick alone is strong enough to cost Kennedy the presidency.

"Sure it would hurt him. There are always people who judge candidates on issues of that kind rather than the real issues."

Another Republican candidate, Rep. Phillip Crane of Illinois, said of Chappaquiddick: "Obviously there will be people who will resurrect it. I'm sure it would surface again."

Adds Tom Griscom, an aide to Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, "It's going to be the unspoken type of thing if it comes to play at all. I know personally that he (Baker) wouldn't make it an issue himself if he got into a full-blown contest with Kennedy."

Kenneth Curtis, who was Democratic national chairman during the first year of Carter's presidency, says Kennedy's opponents would make sure that voters are reminded of Chappaquiddick.

"It would be a different Republican than I ever knew if they didn't," he said. "I would expect them to use it in little jokes and little ways they would hope to be damaging. I think it's something they would keep very prominent in the background."

But Curtis doubts the memory of Chappaquiddick is strong enough to cripple Kennedy's chances.

"I'm not sure that people have forgotten about it, but it occurred so long ago that they are looking at Senator Kennedy more for what they think his abilities are," he said.

Some of those close to Kennedy agree. "People who are anti-Kennedy would use Chappaquiddick against him, and that would provoke further comment from the press," said Paul Kirk, a political aide to the senator from 1969 to 197.

"But given what we've been through over the past 10 years, the question will be focused on the strength of his public performance and issues that need hard attention, like energy and the environment," Kirk said.

Kennedy himself, when asked last May whether people have forgotten or forgiven Chappaquiddick, replied:

"It's up to the people. I hope they make a judgment based on the total record. I'd certainly expect that. I'd expect it in terms of Massachusetts, and I'd expect it in terms of the future."

That night 10 years ago began with a party at a cottage on Chappaquiddick, an island off the edge of Martha's Vineyard, for Kennedy, five male friends and six young women who had been campaign workers for the late Robert Kennedy.

About 11:30 p.m., Kennedy says, he left the party to take Miss Kopechne to the ferry back to Edgartown on Martha's Vineyard. But instead of following the tarred road to the ferry, Kennedy swung onto a dirt road that led to Dyke Bridge and the beach beyond. His car plunged off the bridge. Kennedy escaped, but Miss Kopechne drowned.

A deputy sheriff later claimed he saw Kennedy's car 1½ hours later than when Kennedy claimed he was on the island road.

Kennedy says he dived futilely to save the young woman, then fetched two men from the party, Paul Markham and Joseph Gargan, who also tried to rescue her. Finally, the two men drove Kennedy to the ferry, which had stopped running for the night. The senator says he swam the 500 feet to Edgartown.

Kennedy reported the accident to police the next morning.

Why neither Kennedy, Gargan nor Markham, all lawyers, did not report the accident immediately, and why Kennedy turned off the tarred road onto a bumpy, narrow dirt road were unanswered questions.

Though the memory of Chappaquiddick has dimmed, it has not disappeared.

Rep. Rick Nolan, D-Minn., is organizing a campaign to draft Kennedy for the presidential nomination. An aide, Steve Johnson, says that about 200 of the 1,000 or so letters Nolan has received about the effort mention Chappaquiddick.

"A lot of them are really crank letters," Johnson said. "The people who are concerned about Chappaquiddick are the people who send little posters that say, 'Wanted for murder and for president.' They send us books and pamphlets. They scrawl around the edges - not all of them, but a good share of them."

More evidence of the public's fascination with the case is the success of "Death at Chappaquiddick," a book critical of Kennedy's behavior after the accident.

The book, written by Richard and Thomas Tedrow, first appeared three years ago, but now its publisher, Green Hill, is advertising it heavily in conservative political journals and gun and detective magazines.

Green Hill's marketing director, Thomas Siebel, says the small Illinois publishing house expects to sell 40,000 copies through the mail this year.

A Lou Harris survey conducted three months after the accident found 47 percent of those polled agreeing that Kennedy "has displayed qualities that disqualify him for high public trust."

However, in a Harris poll taken in June 1979, 23 percent concurred that "because of what happened at Chappaquiddick, he showed he does not deserve to be president."

America's 18-year-old voters were in the second grade when the accident occurred, and many adults have undoubtedly forgotten the details of the episode. A spokesman for Harris said the pollsters did not try to find out if attitudes shift when people are re-educated about Chappaquiddick.

But a Boston Globe poll shows that the subject of Chappaquiddick can change minds. The survey of Democratic voters in New Hampshire gave Kennedy a 22 percentage point lead over Carter. But Kennedy lost five points when poll takers asked a question that reminded voters about the accident.

Estes Trial Generated Little Outside Concern

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)-There were no shocks, no links to big-time government, no multi-million dollar empires toppled when Billie Sol Estes, once considered a rising star on the Texas political horizon, was convicted in a second fraud trial.

Instead, the four-week proceedings that ended last week generated little concern outside areas where Estes was not remembered.

In 1963, Estes, then 37, was sentenced to a 15 year prison term for concocting a scam to defraud hundreds of West Texas farmers by selling mortgages on non-existant fertilizer tanks.

Estes' arrest and subsequent trials left his business, which included about 30 companies in Texas and New Mexico, in a tangled wreckage and fueled a national scandal that cut a swath through the nation's capital.

However, 16 years later, the paunchy middle-aged man again found himself in court. And although he was standing trial on charges similar to those that landed him in three federal prisons over a six-year period, the trial was surrounded by little fanfare.

The 54-year-old Estes was found guilty Wednesday by an eight-woman, four man jury in connection with a scheme to defraud investors through various business ventures and for concealing his assets from the Internal Revenue Service to avoid paying $10 million in back taxes.

As a result, he could spend another 10 years in prison and fines of more than $10,000.

Estes' financial troubles began in 1962 when a West Texas semi-weekly newspaper ran a series of articles on Estes' "invisible" fertilizer tanks.

The series called Reeves County "the anhydrous capital of the world - on paper, that is," and dominoed to leave Estes' financial empire, valued at $150 million, in ruins.

The downfall of the "Boy Wonder" of farm finance brought county, state and federal investigations that shook the U.S. Agriculture Department with charges of payoffs and favoritism and linked then-Vice President Lyndon Johnson, as well as several U.S. senators and congressmen to the case.

The hoopla made Estes a national name, the subject of comedians' jests and the rage of his creditors.

During the 1964 presidential campaign, Barry Goldwater also attempted to make Estes' ordeal a campaign issue, saying the case was a "sordid picture of favortism and fraud" and tainted the Johnson Administration.

Goldwater's efforts, however, failed because Texans apparently did not believe or did not want to believe the accusations.

Estes eventually was paroled in 1971, one week before his 25th wedding anniversary, under the condition he not engage in private or promotional business activities.

However, the wheelings and dealings of the former financier surfaced two years ago when Don Trull, a former business associate, released documents he claimed would bring a second, hidden Estes empire to its knees.

Soon almost every state and federal agency in Texas again began digging into his business affairs.

And, after two years and almost $1 million in investigations, the government took Estes to trial, basing its case on 29 hours of secretly taped conversations between paroled swindler and an undercover agent posing as an investor.

The defense, on the other hand, claimed from the start that the government had a "very weak" case and attempted to discredit the tapes by arguing Estes was nothing more than a liar who liked to brag.

However, Estes had a sympathic jury on his side. He had faced 10 charges that carried a total maximum penalty of 80 years in prison and more than $80,000 in fines but only was convicted on two of 10 charges.

And, following the conclusion of the trial, some of the jurors apologized to Estes, claiming they were coerced into returning the guilty verdict.

"I love you, Billie Sol. Remember that," said one woman juror as she left the courthouse.

Three shook Estes' hand and two cried along with members of his family.

Judge Sets Date For Use Of Literacy Test

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—In a decision that could affect dozens of other states, a federal judge has ruled the Florida school system cannot make its functional literacy test a requirement for a high school diploma until all vestiges of school segregation are gone.

The 54-page decision filed Friday, which upheld the validity of the exam itself, could affect 36 other states that have some form of competency testing. Florida's was the first to be challenged in the courts.

The suit, filed on behalf of black students who failed the exam but were scheduled to graduate this spring, challenged the state-mandated test as racially biased and discriminatory.

It said the black seniors' first three years in school were spent in inferior, segregated classrooms and they never managed to catch up to their white classmates.

U.S. District Judge George Carr said the test itself was valid and reliable but could not be used for four years, until all Florida children had equal educational opportunities under a totally desegregated school system.

He said that in four years, next fall's freshmen would have had the benefit of a totally desegregated high school education and the literacy test would not be discriminatory.

Attorneys for each side hailed the ruling as a major victory.

The state Department of Education was pleased the controversial 240-item basic skills examination itself was upheld. "We won. The test was held as valid," said Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington.

Bay Area Legal Services, which brought suit last October, also was pleased with the injunction.

"It was total victory," said Steve Hanlon, Legal Services' attorney. "We won on all major issues. It was a remarkable opinion and it will have major consequences for the state and the nation."

Hanlon had asked the judge either to throw out the test altogether or delay it for at least three years.

The 4,200 seniors who flunked the test this spring were to get certificates of completion instead of diplomas. But Carr's ruling awards diplomas to those who flunked the test while meeting all other graduation requirements.

The suit was brought on behalf of ten unidentified black Hillsborough County high school students. By the time the case got to court, eight of the 10 had passed the literacy exams on retakes, and the suit was expanded to a class action to include all seniors who were failing.

California Standard To Increase Exploration

DENVER—Standard Oil Company of California (parent organization of Chevron U.S.A. Inc.) has announced a $400 million increase in its 1979 capital and exploratory expenditure program.

Oil and gas exploration expenditures are being increased from $480 million to about $730 million, with 70 percent of the increase to be expended in the United States.

Development and production expenditures are being increased from $745 million to more than $850 million, with 66 percent of the increase directed to domestic projects.

The company reported that it also is giving special attention to energy-conservation projects, acceleration of its Shale Oil programs, and research and development of synthetic fuels.

The supplemental expenditure program for the balance of the year will increase the 1979 total to more than $2.3 billion. This is more than double the Company's net earnings for last year and a 35 percent increase over 1978 expenditures. About $1.5 billion, or 63 percent of total 1979 expenditures, will be in the United States.

During the first part of this year the company's earnings and cash flow exceeded earlier forecasts. This, together with improved economic incentives, makes it possible for the Company to invest additional sums in energy development. The company added, however, that this high level of expenditures might require some limited outside financing.

The company stated its basic policy continues to provide for the investment of capital, manpower and technological resources in economically viable projects associated with all types of energy production.

Longer Rails

welded rail, there will be only four joints to the mile, Rushing said. Also, the new rail will be broader and slightly taller than the old rail and will be made of stronger metal, too. Thus, greater stability will be provided.

Chris Dodge, an assistant road master out of Amarillo, said: "That old rail here is 30 years old. With the longer trains and heavier loads, we need to replace it."

Dodge will be in charge of the Indian crews. One crew of 120 men is scheduled to start July 23 laying the new rail on one side of the track. Two days behind them, another crew of 120 men will begin laying the new rail on the other side of the track.

The crews will be averaging about three miles of track a day, he said, and the work is expected to last three to 3½ weeks.

Rushing and Dodge indicated the Indian workmen will be living principally at the worksite. Cook cars and cars for sleeping will accompany the men along the railroad tracks.

While the new rail is being laid down, railroad traffic will be suspended for eight hours each day.

Earlier this year, said Rushing, some 60,000 railroad crossties were replaced from Dermott to Sweetwater.

"One reason (for the improvements on the railroad tracks) is a projected increase in business, a projected increase in just normal business plus the possibility that coal trains will come through," said Rushing.

Rushing predicted an overall expansion for the railroad industry.

"I don't see how it could be anything but bigger and better with the fuel situation the way it is," he said.

Today Last Day To File For Natural Gas

J.N. Eicke, Chairperson of the Scurry County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, reminds farmers, food procesors, food distributors and other agricultural concerns desiring protection against natural gas curtailments to file a written priority request with their supplier no later than July 15, 1979. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), originally designated June 15 as the last day for this requirement but extended it by one month.

"Users of interstate natural gas have been certified by the Secretary of Agriculture to be protected up to the full requirement against curtailment", Eicke said.

The request should include:

Name and address; Intended end user and volumes of natural gas needed; Natural gas purchases for most recent 12 months for which records are available; Documentation to support calculation of needs; Standard industrial classification (SIC) code numbers such as 01 for crops and 02 for livestock, and signature swearing or affirming to accuracy of the request.

It is suggested that local natural gas suppliers be contacted concerning procedures for obtaining agricultural priority. "If additional assistance if needed, our state and county offices will soon have information regarding eligible 'Essential Agricultural Uses' as well as a suggested format for filing", the ASCS Official said.

Madalyn O'Hair's Son Free On Bond

HOUSTON (AP)—The son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair is free on $5,000 bond after being charged with attempted capital murder of a police officer.

William Joseph Murray, 33, posted bond Thursday after a one-hour standoff with police that led to his arrest.

Houston police said they answered a domestic disturbance call at Murray's southwest Houston home Wednesday. While trying to talk with Murray, who was inside his apartment a shot blasted through the front door, police said.

Murray later surrendered a .22 caliber rifle to his attorney, police said.

"I've always had trouble with that one," Mrs. O'Hair said when reached at her Austin home.

Road Building Takes 7 Years

WHITEWRIGHT, Texas (AP)—The average lag from the time the state highway commission votes to build a road to the time the construction contract is let is seven years and three months, Director Luther DeBerry of the highway department said Friday.

DeBerry said half the engineering time necessary to design a highway is spent satisfying bureaucratic requirements.

He addressed Whitewright-area residents following the dedication of a 7.3 mile stretch of Texas 160 from Whitewright to the Collin County line.

Licensing Laws Expire In Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)-All you need to become a psychologist in Florida these days is few dollars for a state license, and officials are worried the way is now open for phonies to become Freuds.

A state law regulating the practice of psychology expired last Sunday, allowing anyone to go into the business as long as they anted up the price of a license - as little as $5.50 in some areas.

Since then, some 200 people have bought licenses - double the number in all of 1978. There were about 700 licensed psychologists practicing in the state at the end of last year.

"I think there's a bunch of phonies in it," said Joe Simonic, manager of the occupational licensing division of the Dade County Tax Collector's office.

"One fellow called and said he'd like one of those whatchumacallit licenses," Simonic said. He said the caller explained he wanted a license for the profession the state had stopped regulating. "You know he can't be a phychologist," Simonic said.

A lawsuit seeking an emergency injunction to stop sales of the licenses has been filed by the Florida Association for the Advancement of Psychology.

Bell's Proposed Hike Harder Case To Judge

AUSTIN (AP)—Southwestern Bell's current $145.2 million rate increase request is lower than previous company proposals but it will be a harder case to judge, says a Public Utility Commission lawyer.

The telephone company wants $105 million of the total package to come from increased monthly charges for residential and business customers.

Attorney John Bell says the commission's most difficult decision will be how to split costs among different customer classes and various sized cities. Municipal rates generally are based on the size of the service area.

"In the last two rate cases long distance and private lines carried the brunt of the increase - more business-oriented kinds of rates," Bell said Friday.

Southwestern Bell received a $124.5 million increase in August 1978, compared with the $214.3 million it requested.

The newly created commission granted Bell a $57.8 million increase in 1976 after the company asked for $298 million.

"In this case, Southwestern Bell is saying that those two areas (long distance and private lines) cannot carry more than they're presently carrying and there's only one other area that can - local exchange rates," the lawyer said.

He added he does not know whether the phone company's approach is right or wrong.

"It concerns me," Bell said. The commission staff will scrutinize the company's proposal before making its own rate recommendation on Aug. 28.

Southwestern Bell will defend its request Sept. 4 against expected attacks from the commission, cities, consumer groups and others. At least 25 parties will formally intervine in the case, including the Communications Workers of America, the U.S. General Services Administration and the Texas Municipal League.

The company wants to impose a $1.55 flat rate increase on all home and business monthly charges. Southwestern Bell has approximately 3.75 million Texas accounts.

Under the phone company's proposal, basic monthly rates would jump in Houston from $8 to $9.55, in Dallas from $7.50 to $9.05, San Antonio and Fort Worth from $7 to $8.55.

Court Hears Three Cases

Three cases were dealt with in 132nd District Court Friday afternoon.

One involved David Lynn Tovar. He pleaded guilty to a theft charge and drew a three-year prison sentence that was probated three years.

The theft case dates back to a June 14 arrest in which he was charged with stealing a $4,100 gold and diamond dinner ring from Cora Smith.

The other two cases involved charges of driving while intoxicated. Named in them were Lawrence T. Thamez and Asencion Rios Jr.

Both were arrested July 1. Both entered guilty pleas and both were assessed 30-day jail terms and fined $500. Final sentencing in their cases, however, was delayed until July 23.

Mafia Chief Shot To Death

NEW YORK (AP)-Carmine "Lilo" Galante, the 69-year-old Mafia chieftain who was reportedly running the 200-member Joseph Bonanno mob, was shot to death Thursday in an apparent underworld hit that left two other men dead and a fourth wounded.

Galante had been depicted as a leading candidate for the "Boss of all Bosses" mantle of the late Carlo "Don Carlo" Gambino.

Reporter Wages War On Consumer 'Rip Off'

HOLEYWOOD (AP)-Anyone wanting to understand David Horowitz's approach to consumer reporting need look no further than his immigrant background.

"My instincts are those of the Bronx barrio," says Horowitz, who absored his first lessons in survival as a child while playing under the kitchen table. It was the center of activity in his family's crowded, one-bedroom apartment.

"You didn't let anyone rip you off, and if you did get ripped off, you fought back. My parents came from Europe, but they didn't knuckle under because of the language barrier or their lack of education."

Horowitz, 42, still clings to that street fighter philosophy as the nation's best-known and highest-paid consumer reporter. He appears daily on NBC's Los Angeles station and is the host of the high-rated syndicated series "David Horowitz Consumer Buyline." His book, "Fight Back: And Don't Get Ripped off," is in its fourth printing for Harper & Row.

He aims for the middle class and blue collar workers, and his targets are strictly those of the pocket book: misleading advertising, shoddy products and the nickel-and-dime ripoffs that plague us everywhere we turn.

Horowitz doesn't take after multinationals nor does he lead a monastic life. He makes a lot of money and says he doesn't have to apoligize to the "cheap-shot artists" who suggest he lives a little too well to relate to the average consumer.

He says, "I have a good income, but that doesn't mean I'm not interested in nickels and dimes. I don't forget my background."

"Consumer Buyline" is syndicated to television stations in 40 cities. How effective is his show? Horowitz answers: "I can only tell you by the mail. We get 2,500 letters a week. When you get that kind of mail you know you're reaching people."

Horowitz finds his targets wherever he goes. Like service stations that charge for air and water. Or the vending machines in the Atlanta airport that charged five cents to change a dollar bill. He spent months to get the airport commissioner to put in free change service.

"The commissioner thought I was a whacko when I said I wanted to save a nickel," he says. "But it's a public service, and it should be free. It's only a nickel, but it's a matter of fighting back. We're being nickel and dimed to death."

Fifty-six television stations and more than 300 newspapers have consumers reporters. Many of them also are "action line" reporters who act as ombudsmen to solve the problems of viewers and readers.

Horowitz says: "So much of the television reporting is just regurgitating the consumer handouts and using a little film. I don't do the consumer handouts. If the government says be careful of Brand X, it's because it's dangerous to your health. Everybody has that.

"That's not what I go after. I go after the people ripoffs. You make people aware that you can fight back. You can't do anything about a government report that some drug causes bladder cancer. You can do something about an advertising ripoff."

Action Due On School Food Service Bids

Snyder School Trustees have scheduled a meeting for Monday night to consider bids on school food service. The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the administration building.

Bids were opened at the regular meeting held on July 5, but action was delayed pending a study by the business office.

Also set for consideration at the special meeting Monday night is a request that the board rescind its resolution delaying the valuation of farm and ranch land on the basis of production. Legislation gives the board the option of putting the new provision into effect this year, or delaying it until 1980. The Scurry County Taxpayers Association has asked the board to make it effective in the Snyder district this year. The new tax law gives the farmer or rancher the option of valuation on production or the existing formula applied by the taxing agencies.

Selling ice cream sodas on Sunday was outlawed in some parts of the United States in the 1890s. So, according to one story, an unknown person of the day put ice cream in a dish, added flavoring - but no soda water - and came up with the ice cream Sunday, or sundae, according to National Geographic.

Nuptial Vows Pledged

Laura Lea Pennington of Dallas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pennington of Garland, and Richard Dewey Cornett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Cornett of Snyder, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremoney in the chapel of the First Baptist Church here June 2 at 7 p.m.

Dr. Boyce Evans, evangelist with Southwestern Evangelism Association, Lubbock, officiated the ceremony. The bride's father presented her in marriage.

The bride wore a long white satin dress with long sleeves accented with a four-inch lace trim. The bodice featured a V-neckline trimmed in lace, and an empire waistline. The gown was made by her grandmother. Her long cathedral veil was attached to a band of white silk flowers adorned with pearls.

She carried cascading peach and white roses entwined with baby's breath tied streamers of white lace.

Donna Lynn Berry of Dallas was maid of honor. She was attired in a gown of peach complimenting the bride's dress and carried peach carnations trimmed with baby's breath and peach ribbon streamers.

Flower girl Emilee Irons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Irons of Snyder, wore a long white dress with a high empire waist and carried a basket of fresh carnation petals which she strewed in the bridal path.

Bridesmaids Mary Kay Shepherd of Dallas and Donna Kay Liner, groom's sister, of El Paso, were dressed like the maid of honor.

David Patrick of Snyder, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Best man was Steve Miller of Snyder. Groomsmen were Toby Black of Snyder and Craig Lummus of Waco. Seating guests were Bryan Wayne of Waco, Fred Liner of El Paso, brother-in-law of the groom, Bryan Marlar and Rick Martin of Snyder, and Terry Kubena of Hermleigh.

Vows were pledged before an altar decorated with a gold arch, a candelabrum holding 20 tapers. The bride's brother, Glenn Pennington of Garland, was candlelighter.

Mrs. Judy Neill of Snyder, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Jim Patrick, uncle of the groom, as he sang "The Lord's Prayer." A quartet including Terry Jones, Steve Miller, Jim Shelbure of Greenville, and Toby Black sang "I'll Go To My Grave Loving You."

A reception was held in the garden room of the church. The bride's table featured a four-tiered white cake topped with wedding bells and white roses. The table was centered with an arrangement of peach carnations in a brass container and punch was served from a crystal bowl. Danna Myers and Eltine Davis of Midland served.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD DEWEY CORNETT

The groom's chocolate cake was decorated with a Baylor Bear, carrying a football and a green and white banner, was served from a table covered with a beige cloth. The centerpiece was fashioned with greenery, gold bows and peach carnations in a brown pitcher. The pitcher belonged to the groom's great-grandparents, Nell and the late Carl Gray who were married 60 years. Also in the arrangements were a cowbell from his paternal grandparents, Eva and the late Dewey Cornett of Willis who were married 43 years, and a 51 year old rolling pin, a gift to his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lloyd of Hermleigh at their wedding. Serving were Debbie Roemisch and Dot Patrick, aunt of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will be at home in Dallas presently. They plan to move to Greenville this fall when a branch of the Kidney Dialysis Center is scheduled to open.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Snyder High School and a 1979 graduate of Baylor University with a bachelor of science in nursing. He is a member of Esquire Fraternity. The bride is a graduate of South Garland High School and Baylor University. She also has a BS degree in nursing.

Out of town guests were from Beaumont, Garland, Dallas, Waco, Greenville Spur, Lubbock, El Paso, and Midland.

HEALTH TIP
from DEAN

If you canned your own food - check each jar for spoilage or contamination. Look for:

A bulging or leaking jar - the seal has broken and the food is spoiled. Don't eat it.

A bad odor or mould on the food means contamination - destroy it.

Don't taste any home-canned foods direct from the jar. Bring vegetables to a rolling boil for at least 10 minutes - cover and boil meats and poultry at least 20 minutes.

North wanted to know how South had managed to get set at three notrump.

South explained that he was just unlucky. He had won the heart lead and decided to knock out the ace of spades to start proceedings. If he had knocked out the club ace first he would have made his contract.

"Why didn't you duck the first heart?" asked North. "Then as long as East had six hearts for his overcall and the aces weres split you would have been sure of your contract."

"You know, I never thought of that," replied South. "Somehow or other the fact that an ace can never do better than to take a king caused me to go wrong."

There is a lot of substance to South's contention. If he had held the king of hearts and the queen had been led there is a good chance that he would have seen the advantage of ducking that first trick, but as it was the chance to grab a king with the ace was too much of a temptation and he went wrong.

Pair Says Nuptial Vows

MRS. RUSSELL LYNN STANFIELD

Carol Sydney Adkins became the bride of Russell Lynn Stanfield of Cambridge, Mass., recently in the St. Mark's Catholic Church in Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S.W. Adkins of Lewisville. The bridegroom is the son of Jean Howell of Lubbock and O.H. Stanfield of Kilgore. Stanfield is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Wilson of Snyder.

The Rev. Arthur Michalka performed the double ring ceremony. Theresa Colwell of Troy, organist, and Kathi Simon of Houston, solist, provided traditional pre-nuptial wedding selections.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza with a sheer yoke and high mandarin collar accented with Venice lace and pearled embroidery. The bishop sleeves had satin covered buttons closing the deep cuffs. The full skirt flowed to a full chapel train. She wore a Venice lace caplet that held her chapel length veil, also edged in sheer lace and pearls. The bride carried a cascade of white roses with baby's breath and ming fern.

Maid of honor was Kim Walker of Houston. Catherine Adkins, sister of the bride, of Lewisville, Cheryl Jones and Shelly Koepke of Houston, Robin Trimble and Lori Grand of Kountze and Lisa Gilliland were attendants.

Mike Blankenship of Lubbock was best man. Groomsmen were David Rutledge of Richardson, Mike Gerst and Jimmy Pendergrass of Lubbock, Kirk Cobb and Don Caughron of Dallas and David Belk of Fort Worth. Ushers were Mark Snider and Glenn Foore of Houston, and Chris Adkins, brother of the bride.

The reception was held in the Ave Maria Room of the church. The bride's table was accented with silver punch bowl, candalabra, bouquet of white gladiolus and traditional wedding cake. Mahood, Fogle Exchange Vows

The marriage of Patricia Lee Mahood and Ronald Arthur Fogle was solemnized in Abilene in the chapel of the First Baptist Church on Saturday evening, June 16.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Mahood, 107 West Silver, Hobbs, N.M., formerly of Snyder, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Fogle of Abilene.

The double ring ceremony was performed in a candlelight setting by the pastor, Dr. James Flamming. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

The musicians were Dr. John Campbell of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, organist, and Debbie Steel of Midland and David Evans of Arlington, sololists.

Dr. Campbell played for the processional, "Trumpet Voluntary" by Jeremiah Clarke and for the recessional, he played "Toccata, Symphony by C.M. Widor and "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" by J.S. Bach. Dr. Campbell accompanied Miss Steel who sang "He Has Chosen You For Me." David Evans accompanied himself on the guitar and sang "The Wedding Song."

Candles on three levels lighted the wedding scene. Two spiral candlelabra framed a stained glass window with a Bible on a stand in front of the church and a red rose draped across the Bible. Four candlelabra trees and a series of candles were on different levels. Complimenting the candelabras were green palms laced through the holders and pew markers of fern and greenery completed the setting.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Kathy Mahood of Hobbs as maid of honor and Mrs. Pam Austin of Abilene as bridesmatron. Bridesmaids were Miss Marcy Floyd of Hobbs, N.M., and Miss Jeanne Claman of Pasendena.

Best man was Boyd King of Odessa and groomsmen were John Orr, David Weaver and John Culver of Abilene.

Guests were seated by Dennis Austin of Abilene, brother-in-law of the bride, Bob Allen III of Abilene and Mike Chastain of Plano, brothers-in-law of the groom, and Bill Patton of Hobbs.

MRS. RONALD ARTHUR FOGLE

The bride wore a candlelight ivory gown of sheer sata peau and silk Venice lace with long sheer sleeves with deep cuffs edged in silk Venice lace. The empire bodice with Queen Anne neckline was overlaid with lace. The demi-bell skirt with Watteau train and the mantilla veil appliqued in lace design were edged in lace.

She carried a cascade bouquet of starburst poms with stephanotis and baby's breath.

The feminine attendants wore matching full length gowns of sheer polyester knit of ivory and marigold print, designed with empire bodices, scoop necklines and capelets extending below the hipline in the back and finished with self-ruffles. They carried nosegays of butterscotch daisies with baby's breath and greenery with brown ribbon.

The bride's mother wore a full length toast polyester knit dress with ruching trim, slit long sleeves and overblouse giving a two-piece effect. The groom's mother wore a warm brown full-length dress of polyester and chiffon with V-neckline and short cape. They wore matching corsages of ivory cushioned poms with baby's breath.

The groom wore an ivory Royale tuxedo with ivory shirt and stephanotis boutonniere. The groomsmen wore toast Bently tuxedoes and contrasting pants with ivory shirts and the ushers wore brown Bently tuxedoes with ivory shirts with boutonniers of butterscotch daisies.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents hosted the reception at the Abilene Woman's Club. Mrs Bob Allen III, sister of the groom registered guests.

Guests were seated at tables ornamented with crystal hurricane lanterns with bronze daisies and greenery. Refreshments were served from the bride's table and the groom's table.

A four branch silver epergne holding lighted candles, green fern and baby's breath ornamented the bride's table laid with an ivory lace cloth. Silk beige flowers, greenery and baby's breath topped the four-tiered wedding cake and lower tier separated by columns. Fruit punch from a silver punch bowl, toasted pecans and ivory and brown mints were served with the cake.

Chocolate cake and coffee were served at the groom's table decorated with brown linen runners, and a brass lantern surrounded by ferns and baby's breath.

A bridesmaids brunch was hosted by the bride's sister, Mrs. Dennis Austin at the Kiva Inn Sidewalk Cafe Saturday morning.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will be at home at 1315 Park Place, Hurst.

Both were honor graduates this spring, the bride taking a bachelor of science degree in physical education with a minor in English from Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene and the groom taking a bachelor of business administration degree in banking and finance from Texas Tech University at Lubbock.

Miss Mahood was named to Who Who's in American Colleges and Universities, was selected as one of the five finalists as Best-Dressed Co-ed and recently was chosen as a University Princess. She was varsity cheerleader for the HSU Cowboys for three years and is alumni secretary for the Delta Sorority.

She has also attained membership in Sigma Tau Delta, national English fraternity; Kappa Delta Phi, national education honor fraternity, Tri Beta, national biological honor fraternity, and Alpha Chi, national honor society. She had been employed part-time in the recreation department of the First Baptist Church of Abilene.

The groom has been on the Dean's honor roll for the four years he was a student of banking held at Texas Tech in the summer of 1978. He is a member of Phi Alpha Kappa, national finance honorary society; Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, and Beta Gamma Sigma, national business honor society.

The groom's parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner on Friday evening at Briarstone Manor.

A bridal shower was given for the bride in Hobbs at the home of Mrs. J.C. Pye with other hostesses, Mrs. Cecil Brown, Mrs. Vernon Hepp, Mrs. Joe H. Floyd, and Mrs. Walter Case.

In Abilene a bridal shower was held at the home of Mrs. S.C. Herring and a couple's old fashioned ice cream and "pounding" party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Derward Nollner.

Wrinkle Prevention

Once you get wrinkles, short of surgery there's nothing much you can do about them. But wrinkles can be prevented with the right steps. Fine lines on the forehead come from raising the eyebrows too much. Lines in between the eyebrows come from trying to focus too hard and may indicate that eyeglasses are needed. Crow's feet at the corners of the eyes and lines around the mouth are caused by smiling. Keep smiling but make sure to apply extra moisturizer to this area as well as to the neck. Remember the best weapon against wrinkles is moisturizer.

Diet Tip

If you're dining out at a restaurant and want to make sure you stick to your diet, follow this plan: Have the bread moved away from you, then begin your meal with a glass of water and a salad or bowl of consomme. Don't order anything with creamy sauces, have plenty of vegetables and for dessert request a fresh fruit cup. This will give you a satisfying meal for less than 500 calories, and most people won't even know you're on a diet.

How To Personalize Wedding

By Barbara McDowell

NEW YORK (NEA) - Traditional weddings — those beginning with "Here Comes the Bride" and ending with "I now pronounce you man and wife" — are rapidly becoming things of the past. They are being replaced by ceremonies that better reflect the personalities and lifestyles of their principals.

"Many contemporary couples object to the idea of a carbon-copy wedding," says Colorado writer Susan Polis Schutz. "They would prefer to take part in a ceremony that is relevant and expressive of their own lives."

But many are not sure how to plan such ceremonies. Inspired by a traditional wedding that she found ill-suited to the bride and groom, Mrs. Schutz began work on her latest book, "Expressing Our Love," which offers suggestions and readings for personalized ceremonies.

Mrs. Schutz stresses that a wedding need not take place on a mountain peak at sunrise to qualify as original.

"To give your wedding an individualized touch, you should have the freedom to do as little or as much as you want," she says. It could simply mean adding a favorite poem or song to the standard ceremony.

Mrs. Schutz offers a checklist to consider in personalizing your wedding:

- When will we get married? What time of year? What time of day?
- Will we write any or all of the ceremony? If so, what words best convey our feelings about marriage?
- What poems, readings and music will be included? How will they be performed?
- Where will the wedding take place? If outdoors, is there an alternate plan in case of bad weather?
- Who will perform the ceremony?
- How many guests will we invite? Who will they be?
- What about invitations and programs?
- Will dress be formal or informal?
- What colors, flowers and symbols will accent our celebration?

Mrs. Schutz suggests beginning work by studying the traditional vows of your faith. Question anything that seems unclear or offensive. (For example, you may prefer being pronounced "husband and wife" to "man and wife.")

Once you are familiar with the standard service, you can decide whether to work within its framework or start from scratch. Check early that the person who is to perform the ceremony is amenable to your plans.

Then it's time to begin writing. Mrs. Schutz suggests breaking the job into sections: opening greeting, wedding pledge, prayer or meditation, marriage vows, exchange and blessing of rings, marriage pronouncement and closing words. After that, devise smooth transitions — perhaps musical — between sections.

Make "sincerity and simplicity" the keynotes of your service, she says. And don't make it too long — a common mistake of those writing their own vows.

Your written words may not translate well into speech. So, read your draft aloud, preferably into a tape recorder. Revise anything that seems awkward.

In selecting the music and poetry or prose readings to accompany your ceremony, keep in mind both personal favorites and the tone of the occasion. Mrs. Schutz notes that weddings have successfully featured the writings of everyone from Elizabeth Barrett Browning to Dolly Parton, William Shakespeare to Leonard Nimoy.

Many couples choose biblical passages. Others select quotes from a person they admire. Some read from their own poetry or from their diaries or love letters.

Take your resources into account in deciding upon music, Mrs. Schutz advises. You may have trouble squeezing a 100-voice choir into a tiny chapel or transporting a pipe organ to a mountain meadow.

You may wish to perform some of the music yourself. Mrs. Schutz recalls one ceremony in which the groom played the guitar, the bride sang and their guests joined hands in a circle around them.

That brings up guest participation, which Mrs. Schutz believes can add a memorable touch to a wedding. She explains that it can be achieved with group singing or reading — or simply by a moment of silent prayer.

The group involvement at one wedding consisted of guests helping put together the bridal bouquet, recalls Mrs. Schutz. Each was greeted upon arrival with a flower and note requesting that the flower be given to the bride at a point in the ceremony.

Once every details of the ceremony is decided upon, walk through the entire service, asking yourselves such questions as: Does the service capture the perfect mood? Does it express our feelings about marriage? Does it reflect our personalities?

If everything meets your expectations, prepare a final copy of the service. It should resemble a play script, including all spoken words, speakers and movements. This document will guide the rehearsal and ceremony.

The fruit of all this labor is not only a memorable wedding, concludes Mrs. Schutz. It also teaches you to work together; that's good practice for the rest of your married lives.

Cancer Claims Marshall's Son

WASHINGTON (AP)— Labor Secretary Ray Marshall's 16-year-old son, Christopher, died Wednesday following a 1½-year struggle against cancer.

Frank Greer, a spokesman for the Cabinet officer, said the youth had been taken to the National Institutes of Health hospital in suburban Bethesda, Md., last week.

The Marshall family was with Christopher when he died at about 4 a.m. EDT, Greer said.

Doctors discovered that Christopher, one of five Marshall children, had cancer at the end of 1977.

MISS KATHY MAHOOD
...selected for international event

Former Snyder Girl Travels To Australia

A former resident of Snyder, Miss Kathy Mahood of Hobbs, N.M., has been selected for an international opportunity in Western Australia this summer.

The state of Western Australia is celebrating its 150th anniversary. To commemorate the occasion, the Girl Guides Association of Western Australia is having an international camp. Girl Guides and Girl Scout organizations in 19 countries have been invited to send participants.

The camp is expected to number around 200 senior rangers and adults. It will take place in York, a town 60 miles from Perth and will include such activities as arts and crafts, horseback riding and town and country tours. A period of home hospitality is also included in the invitation.

Zia Girl Scout Council of Artesia, N.M. has appointed Mrs. J.N. Bryant of Hobbs as a liaison for Miss Mahood. She is helping her prepare for the trip by seeing that she gets community and state resources ready to take with her. She is making contacts available with people who have spent time in Australia.

This is a dream come true for Miss Mahood, who has a collection of Koala bears she enjoys displaying. While attending CIT (Counselor-In-Training) at Camp Mary White, Kathy used the camp name "Koala" never dreaming she would one day get to visit Australia, the home of the three-foot, tree-dwelling, thick grayed fur Koala bear.

On August 9, Kathy will arrive in San Francisco where she will stay with a hostess Girl Scout family for a time of orientation. She will be met there by five other Girl Scouts from throughout the United States who will be traveling with her to Australia from that point.

Miss Mahood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Mahood, 107 West Silver, Hobbs, N.M., formerly of Snyder. She has been active in Girl Scouting for 10 years serving as president of the Cadette Planning Board in 1977, and as president of Zia Girl Scout Council's Senior Planning Board in 1979. She has held all offices of her troop as well as serving as Patrol Leader in 1979.

She attended a National Event in Connecticut and New York last summer and holds the rank of First Class Scout.

Miss Mahood is currently serving as President of the Sub Deb Sorority. She is active in the Hobbs High Eagle Marching and and Acapella Choir, and serves on the Student Council. She was the Hobbs High School Eagle Mascot this past year. She recently returned from Roswell where she attended Girls State as a delegate representing her high school. She is active in the youth activities at First Baptist Church and is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 11.

The Corps of Engineers dredges about 240 million cubic yards of sediment from the Mississippi River each year. This is enough to cover Delaware with a layer more than an inch thick, according to National Geographic.

GUARD AGAINST HEAT EXHAUSTION, SUNSTROKE, HEATSTROKE

We are experiencing extreme temperatures this summer and guarding against heat exhaustion, heatstroke or sunstroke should be a must for us all.

The combined effects of sun, exercise, heat and excessive perspiration which result in loss of fluids and salts can produce a serious condition.

HEAT EXHAUSTION

The body's normal reaction to high temperatures is to pool blood near the surface of the skin so that sweat is formed and then evaporated into the air releasing heat.

This can cause a lack of sufficient blood in the vessels deep in the body if a person is exposed to high temperatures - especially combined with a high humidity---for a long period of time.

Some symptoms of heat exhaustion include muscle cramps and weakness, and although the victim's temperature may be near normal, the pulse is often very weak. The skin is usually cool but very pale and moist.

Treatment consists of getting the person out of the sun immediately. Slowly sipping cool -- not cold -- water will help to cool down the body.

SUNSTROKE, HEATSTROKE

Heatstroke, or sunstroke, is more serious than heat exhaustion. It's often a medical emergency.

A breakdown of the cooling system of the body which causes the body temperature to rise uncontrollably causes heatstroke.

Because the sweating mechanism is not working, there is very little perspiration.

One symptom of heatstroke is dry, red, hot skin and a fast, strong pulse. The victim may also be nauseated and have a headache. There is also a possibility of the person collapsing.

As in the case of heat exhaustion, the important thing is to get the victim out of the sun and to lower the temperature.

Sponge the person with water, especially around the head. Avoid giving the victim stimulants such as tea or coffee because of the possibility of complications such as increased blood pressure.

If the person is unconscious, give no fluids at all.

To prevent sunstroke or heatstroke, avoid being in the sun and heat for a long period of time, drink a sufficient amount of liquids and wear loose-fitting clothing such as cotton T-shirts which help to retain perspiration and keep the body cool.

I hope you will be able to enjoy a safe summer and remember try to keep yourself as cool as possible.

Pick up meat and poultry last at the supermarket.

Have the clerk package them together so they stay colder longer, suggests a consumer marketing information specialist.

Take them straight home and store immediately, says Gwendolyne Clyatt with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Wild strawberries and raspberries are wonderfully delicious, but not one in a million people ever gets an opportunity to taste them, much less to have them as regular fare. They do seem of better flavor than the cultivated varieties, though that may be because of the surprise of discovery.

Man has cultivated these and any other fruits bringing their enjoyment and nourishment to the majority of the people. Man has also found that cultivating forests can increase the yield of lumber by tremendous amounts, and when those forests are owned by the lumber producers they are given better overall care and are still beautiful.

Leaving the wilderness free of man's encroachment means only that it will be useful to a small handful of people while its potential enrichment of all the people becomes denied.

Gov. Dixy Lee Ray of Washington sharply criticizes the U.S. Forest Service's RARE II wilderness program saying the proposed federal designations far exceed what the residents of her state desire.

"What is wilderness?" Ray asked. "Wilderness is preservation taken to the ultimate.Or, to sum it up in a single phrase, which may be unfair and an over-simplification, wilderness is where people ain't." Ray estimated that the RARE II program in Washington state would cost 3,000 jobs directly in the lumber industry and, by ripple effect, a total of 10,000 jobs.

"The position I've taken as governor of Washington and, with the full support of the majority of our citizens, is this: No more wilderness. We have already given enough" Ray said.

Gov. Robert List of Nevada and the Oregon governor, Victor Atyeih, echoed Ray's sentiments. Atyieh asked Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary of agriculture, who heads the RARE II program, "What is the purpose of wilderness areas?"

"In this instance," Cutler said, he would stick with Ray's definition - a wilderness is "where people ain't." However, he sharply disagreed with Ray's position on the whole question.

Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado sided with Cutler, saying that "our experience with RARE II has been a constructive one."

Our observation of the situation in Colorado does not lead us to believe that the governor is expressing the preferences of the residents of that state.

We note that Margaret Thatcher, new prime minister of Britain, is advocating selling off government property to assist in ending the economic chaos in that nation.

Our federal government is up to its ears in debt yet owns about a third of all western lands, most of which have been badly mismanaged.

There is an untold wealth of resources in the forests of these lands which could become continual renewable sources of lumber. Later on the by-products of the lumber industry might become a trememdous source of alcohol and other products to take the place of scarce oil.

It may be nice for one or two people to be able to sit under a tree in an uncared for forest and feel they are in a secluded area denied to most of the population. The taste of partaking something denied most others is a pleasant one to some. But, like the wild berries, it is far better for cultivation to provide the fruits of natural resources to the greatest number of people.

5-and-10 milestone

It is a century since the opening of the first 5-and 10-cent store, F.W. Woolworth's in Lancaster, Pa.

A wire report on the occasion notes that none of the chain's outlets today sells anything for a nickel. There are, however, a number of items still obtainable for a dime.

Comforting, perhaps, but an artificial rose, a bubble pipe and a comb as examples of current rock-bottom pricing only make the good old days look even better.

JOGGING 1979

being neighborly

Are you not weary of American politicians trying to run from and escape home-front problems by redirecting our attention overseas?

Here we are with such ailments as inflation, energy and crime—which could prove fatal—presuming to tell the South Africans, the Cambodians, even the Guatemalans how to conduct their affairs.

How dare we condemn another government because some of their civil liberties are inhibited by government, when here at home our civil liberties are restricted by anarchy in the streets!

Five administrations ago the Good Neighbor Policy was enunciated because it sounded politically palatable.

But we adopted it without stopping to think what it really means to be a "good neighbor."

In every neighborhood, the good neighbor is the one who minds his own business.

He loves his own wife. He sees that his own children behave. He tends his own garden and cuts his own grass and keeps his own house painted.

And as a good example, his influence tends to inspire emulation.

For more than a hundred years we Americans led the world that way—by example.

Watching our experience with indivicual liberty and self-government England initiated sweeping democratic reforms; the French threw off the yoke of their dissolute king and rapacious aristocracy. Watching our example our Latin American neighbors freed themselves from Spain.

From 1776 until the early 1900s, every other enlightened nation on earth was going our way.

We were good neighbors. We were a lighthouse for the world.

But the day we began calling ourselves "good neighbors" we tended to abandon leadership by example. Then and since we have sought with money, duress, threats or force to make other nations over in our own likeness.

In your home community a buttinsky is the most despised of persons.

In the community of nations also.

And worse is the conspicuous inconsistency of our rude, pompous, presumptuous impertinence.

We boycott one nation for allowing a few rights to blacks, yet we wrap our diplomatic arms around nations which allow no rights to women.

It has become ludicrous, the manner in which the United States encourages and supplies first one side and then the other in Angola, in Zaire, in our own hemisphere in Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay.

And sometimes both sides at once—as in the Middle East.

Henry Kissinger once told a Harvard seminar: "We got involved in Vietnam to contain Moscow. Then we discovered it was not Moscow we were containing but Peking. Then we discovered we were really there to contain Hanoi."

"And gentlemen," Kissinger concluded, "Hanoi is not worth containing."

As we approach another campaign time, several hopefuls in both parties are traveling the world in an effort to appear "presidential."

The smart ones will be those who stay home—recognizing that we want our next President of the United States to be a President of the United States—addressing himself to the gut, do-or-die home-front issues of inflation, energy and crime.

Only if we confront and resolve these problems can we give the world something better than a red star to steer by.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Science is proving that man can live in outer space and at the bottom of the sea. It's the space in between that is causing all the trouble."

Several months ago there was jubilation in the oil patch when President Carter announced his plans to decontrol the price of crude oil.

Veterans in the oil patch, however, were reserved and even downright skeptical about what the impact might have on the local companies and in turn on the local economy.

It seems that the industry's exposure to growing government regulations over the past six years has understandably caused oilmen to be doubters.

What has developed has been a wait and see attitude, an attitude caused by a bureaucratic cloud of uncertainty that almost is exclusive to the oil industry.

When the President made his announcement, total deregulation was praised by most of us. We fell into a group of uninformed who didn't know about the pages and pages of regulations and red tape. Oil in Scurry County won't automatically jump to 80 percent of world price. Increases will come, but they will be slow, much slower than the rising inflation rate.

From the beginning, informed producers told us that the outcome of the proposed windfall profits tax would have more bearing than total decontrol.

Now it seems that liberal congressmen and senators are waiting to take any excess profits and use that tax revenue to finance popular social programs that will buy even more votes.

The House has already passed a bill calling for a 60 per cent excess profits tax. The measure is now being debated in a Senate committee and a vote could likely come this week.

We're hopeful that more intelligent thinking will prevail in the Senate. Oil companies already are taxed at 48 per cent, and a tax of 60 percent would reduce any incentive to plow money into additional recovery or discovery measures.

We've been told that it's budget time for many producing companies. The uncertainty of it all has created planning problems, and as a result the entire community dependent on oil sits and waits.

A government affairs group from the Snyder chamber sent testimony to Washington last week, and additional letters from local citizens are solicited.

Personally, government has had adequate time to solve the energy problem. It's time to face facts; the government has failed.

It's now time to give the free enterprise system a chance to work. Move back give 'em room, give them incentives to put private capital to work and we're confident that the energy crunch will be something we tell our grandchildren about.

MINNEAPOLIS (NEA) —It's a classic David-and-Goliath contest, pitting an underfinanced but dedicated group of young people against one of the world's largest and most successful marketers of processed food products.

The role of David is played by the Infant Formula Action Coalition (INFACT), operating from the basement of a religious center near the University of Minnesota campus here. Its entire budget last year was $29,000.

Cast as Goliath is the Nestle Alimentana Co., a multinational corporation with headquarters in Vevey, Switzerland. Its global sales of virtually every imaginable type of food produce billions of dollars in annual revenues.

Only a few of the company's products - Nestle Crunch candy bars, Nestea instant tea and Nescafe instant coffee - are distributed under the corporate name in the United States. But the company also markets hundreds of items here under the brand names of affiliated or subsidiary firms. Among them:

Libby, McNeill & Libby canned foods, Stouffer frozen foods, Taster's Choice coffee, Beringer Brothers wines, Crosse and Blackwell specialty foods, L'Oreal cosmetics and Deer Park Mountain Spring Water.

INFACT is promoting a nationwide consumer boycott of those products as a means of pressuring Nestle to drastically revise its techniques for marketing an item which, ironically, isn't sold in the United States - infant formula.

Nestle is, however, the world's largest producer of baby formula, accounting for one-third to two-thirds of the estimated $1.5 billion in annual industry sales.

Much of that business is transacted in the less developed nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America, where the industry advertising and promotional efforts have been designed to convince mothers that its packaged products are acceptable substitutes for breast-feeding of newborn children.

As part of that campaign, pediatricians have been offered free travel, presents and other inducements to promote commercial formulas. Company - employed "milk nurses," dressed to look like medical professionals, propagandize new mothers.

But sanitation problems, inadequate refrigeration and lack of fuel for sterilization lead to contamination of the formula, regularly producing illness and even death.

Those who begin feeding babies on free samples distributed by doctors, "milk nurses" or hospital personnel discover that subsequent purchases can consume a quarter or a third of a poor family's total income. Over-dilution of the formula saves money but leads to malnutrition.

The controversy already has reached Washington, where a Senate subcommittee chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., last year conducted hearings on the subject.

But because Nestle is based in Europe, it is not susceptible to legislation or litigation in this country. INFACT says that's why it launched the "Boycott Nestle" campaign to convince the company to act more responsibly.

In the two years since the boycott began, it has been officially endorsed by an imposing list of religious groups, including 150 Roman Catholic orders, the National Council of Churches and dozens of Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist, Episcopal, Unitarian and other Protestant groups.

Nestle says it "completely supports the concept that breast milk is the best food for infants" and claims that "the company's distribution practices are not aimed at getting mothers to abandon breast milk in favor of formula."

But the company continues to maintain an aggressive Third World promotional and marketing program. Moreover, it never has satisfactorily answered the central question posed by Kennedy during the 1978 Senate hearings:

"Can a product which requires clean water, good sanitation, adequate family income and a literate parent to follow printed instructions be properly and safely used in areas where water is contaminated, sewage runs in the streets, poverty is severe and illiteracy is high?"

To The Daily News:

We would like to express our deepest appreciation and thankfulness for all prayers and other ways people have shown concern since we first learned of Trudy's illness. At the present time, Trudy is on a chemotherapy program. We appreciated your prayers and financial support in helping us to combat this illness. Words cannot express all that we feel, so we just want to say "Thank You." Continue to remember Trudy and her family daily in your prayers.

it's possible

Love is the incredible possibility opener. In fact, St. John quoted Jesus as saying, "A new commandment I give to you — that you love one another." (John 13:34)

A young nursing student was considering these words one day and was suddenly struck with the thought, "Wow! How can you command a person to love? Love is a feeling and you simply can't command a feeling to appear!"

Throughout the day, the words kept coming back to her mind, especially when she was in the presence of another nurse she simply couldn't get along with.

She tried praying about her attitude. "God," she said, "that girl is obnoxious." But the more she prayed that way, the more those words stuck in her mind — "A new commandment I give to you — that you love..."

This went on for days. She argued with God, pointing out all the reasons why the other person was unworthy of any love. "But God, you know how irritating she is. She gets A's on all her papers. She gets up early every morning and gets her studies organized. She even eats like a machine — every morsel is placed perfectly and precisely in her mouth!"

Finally, tired of the mental struggle with the idea, the young nursing student prayed, "God, I give up. I just can't even like this person. If you want me to love her, than you do it through me!"

Gradually, a miracle started to occur. This young woman started to see her fellow student in a different light. She realized that the girl ate that way because her family had taught her to eat that way.

Instead of being irritated by her obsessive organization and drive for grades, new insights into the other person's behavior revealed that this other girl was wearing herself out with her schedule — she was attempting to be the perfect student because she was compelled by a hard-driving self-flagellation that would accept nothing less.

She was tension personified! And her behavior drove everyone else away from her as well.

Suddenly, the command to love took on new meaning. Love was the one thing in all the world this tension-trapped girl needed. And the only way anyone could show her love was if it was commanded!

Slowly, a friendship developed between the two students. And out of that friendship, created by a command to love, tensions began to drip away. The unlovely student became more relaxed and more alive.

Other friendships developed as her whole life began to unfold like a blossom in the dew-covered morning. All because one person responded to the command to love!

Who is the person in your life that is most unlovable? Try loving them through God's ability and power. You may be in for some beautiful surprises!

Sleep studies recommended

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — During the last several months I've experienced a strange feeling while sleeping. I'm awakened in a state of panic fighting for breath. This has happened on more than one occasion in a night and on several different nights. I'm in good physical condition. I do push ups every day and I walk or jog about three miles daily.

I knew a man in his 20s who died with a similar condition. He was in the Marine Corps at the time. I don't have any nightmares, although I have experienced a cold sweat when I awake. I've not been able to relate this sensation to anything I've ever been dreaming. Of course, now I think about it before I retire and then I do get concerned.

DEAR READER — You probably will need sleep studies to find out exactly what's going on. Such sleep studies would entail recording a brain wave (EEG) during the normal sleep hours.

One of the recent discoveries about sleeping is that some people experience sleep apnea, meaning literally they stop breathing during sleep. Your description sounds like that, but, of course, it would have to be documented. People who have been monitored sometimes don't have respirations for as long as three minutes. The lack of oxygen eventually stimulates the brain and there may be a forceful gasp for breath at that point. One patient was studied who had such episodes as often as 400 times a night.

Incidentally, this kind of problem in sleeping is made much worse by taking sleeping pills. Many of these tend to depress the respiration and that's certainly not what you need in this circumstance. Check with your doctor and see if he can make an appointment for you at a sleep center in your area. You may have to go to the nearest university for such detailed studies. But in view of the specific nature of your history, I think it might be worth it.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia, to give you more information about the common problem of sleepless nights. Your problem could be related to something else other than sleep apnea and it's important that you understand that sleeping pills are of little or no value and should never be used except on a temporary basis, even for other forms of insomnia. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

That fact that you're in good health otherwise may have nothing to do with the problem of insomnia, particularly sleep apnea.

Many people who think they have insomnia really sleep longer than they think. This can be documented by sleep studies. For some reason there is an illusion in time that people experience who tend to wake up during the night. A few minutes of being awake sometimes seems like hours.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, many people with insomnia tend to benefit from changing their life style. That includes eliminating stimulating drinks that contain caffeine, such as coffee, tea and colas, the proper use of exercise and developing proper sleep habits. These measures are often much more beneficial in the long run than sleeping pills.

Folks Meet Eye-To-Eye At Tall Clubs Gathering

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Things are looking up for Jeff Holt, who came here from Houston for the chance to look a woman straight in the eye and kiss her without bending over from the waist.

Holt, at 6-foot-4, is in the right place - the annual gathering of Tall Clubs International. There are 230 taller-than-average folks from the United States and Canada gathered for activities that include a beauty contest, a steamboat ride along Pittsburgh's three rivers, eating, drinking and dancing.

The women are all 5-foot 10 and up; the men stand at least 6-foot-2.

"It's very refreshing," said Holt. "I can hide in the middle of this group and blend in the background. It's nice when you're all the same size."

Terri Vogt of Pittsburgh agreed. "I can wear my spiked heels tonight. I can't wear heals at work or I won't fit through the doorways." She's 6-foot-5.

The reigning Miss Tall International, Roxanne Pasquarella of Miami, is a 6-footer who says most short men feel inferior.

"Some men feel height gives them superiority or gives them dominance. It's kind of fun after you go back into society after a convention. You're so used to looking people straight in the eye, and then you have to look down."

A 6-foot-7, 350 pounds, Jeff Talbert of Pittsburgh is not the tallest man at the convention, but probably the biggest.

"Cars are not big enough," said Talbert. "Doorways are too small and so are theater seats. I can't buy clothes in a store. I can't buy shoes and I have to send away for what I do have."

The first tall club was organized in 1938 by Kae Einfeld, a former Walt Disney cartoonist who drew Snow White's seven dwarfs. Now there are 34 clubs in the U.S. and several in Europe.

"I never had a social life," said Talbert, who joined a tall club about a year ago. "People had a tendency to make a big deal about my size. I just got tired of it and never went out. But this last year has been such a pleasure."

"It's nice to be around tall people," said Kathy Ward, a 6-footer representing Pittsburgh in the beauty pageant. "A lot of tall people are very self conscious. This helps them in the real world where everybody else is short. It's kind of lonely at the top."

The conventioners were welcomed to the city by Mayor Richard Caliguiri, who stands under 5-foot-6

Oil Used To Make Petrochemicals

NEW YORK (AP)— About 1.5 percent of the total oil and natural gas consumed in the United States each year is used to produce the petrochemical feedstocks from which most plastics resins are made, according to the Society of the Plastics Industry.

Eighty percent of all Americans spend 70 percent of their income on four basic necessities--food, housing, health care and energy, reports Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.
