Turkey Lucky bird

LOS ANGELES — Sam Garcia's turkey, which was spared this Thanksgiving when Garcia's family objected to eating it, has a new home. Garcia took the bird, which was once named Dinner and now is called Lucky, to the Crippled Children's Society of Southern California's Camp Joan Mier in nearby Malibu on Sunday. Physically and developmentally disabled children and adults will be able to visit it there next summer. The personable bird likes children and gobbles on command. Lucky will make his home along with two pygmy goats, a sheep, two potbellied pigs, three hens, two ducks, three horses, two ponies and some rabbits in the camp's Mark Gray Nature Center. Garcia bought the 25-pound, brown-and-white turkey for $30 from a nearby ranch two weeks ago with the intention of cooking it for Thanksgiving dinner, but after pleas from his family, Garcia couldn't kill it.

Doo Dah Parade

PASADENA, Calif. — Gloggers wielding toilet plungers danced on tortilla-straw pavement and followers of the Church of the Ornamental Lawn Decorations marched with pink flamingo hats in Sunday's Doo Dah Parade. Toilet paper rolls plummeted amid the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" dancers as the offbeat parade went on for the 18th year. Roller skaters dressed as policemen re-enacted the videotaped beating of Rodney King by Los Angeles officers. "M.C. Pee Wee and His Scandalous Poese," a look-alike with two gyrating women dancers, targeted Pee Wee Herman in jest for his run-in with the law in Florida. Thousands lined the streets to watch a disjointed stream of parade entries ranging from the Bagpeople's Bagpipe Band to a lampoonery of actress Elizabeth Taylor's recent wedding, featuring a photographer in a parachute. The parade originated as an off-the-cuff spoof of the annual New Year's Day Tournament of Roses, but has evolved into a local institution.

U.S. to delay recognition Strauss: Ukraine acceptance to take time

U.S. to start moving toward recognition of Ukraine if voters decide on independence in Sunday's election.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States won't act "precipitously" to recognize Ukrainian independence, but will start moving in that direction if Ukrainians vote for freedom, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow said Sunday.

But recognition within a few days "just won't happen," said Ambassador Robert Strauss.

Preliminary results of Sunday's vote in the Soviet Union's second-largest republic weren't expected until Monday, but polls indicated overwhelming support among Ukrainians for independence from Moscow.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev warned President Bush in a telephone call Saturday that Ukrainian independence would be a "catastrophe" for the Soviet Union and the world, according to the Soviet news agency Tass.

Strauss, interviewed from Moscow on CBS' "Face the Nation," also made another plea for more U.S. aid for the Soviets, saying another coup attempt is possible and that additional aid could "give democracy a chance to really take hold."

Bush went to the Ukrainian capital of Kiev in August and warned parliamentarians against "suicidal nationalism." But as the central Soviet government has lost control in the wake of the subsequent failed coup

Sixty-five people have died from AIDS in the Permian Basin. On Sunday night, about a dozen members of the Permian Basin AIDS Coalition assembled at the Crossroads Christian Fellowship to remember those individuals.

Through the dissemination of material relating to AIDS, the coalition hopes to educate West Texans during a week-long concentrated effort, "How We Live."

Shuttle returns

N.Y. Times News Service

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The space shuttle Atlantis has landed safely at Edwards Air Force Base despite a failure in one of its navigational units that caused NASA officials to end the mission three days early.

After National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials called off a 12:58 p.m. landing Sunday at the base's Rogers Dry Lake because of heavy winds, the Atlantis touched down at 2:34 p.m. to a head wind of 6 knots. The shuttle, with a landing speed of between 200 and 220 knots, used most of the 5.2-mile dirt runway before braking to a stop near the edge of the lake bed.

"Welcome home Atlantis, and congratulations on a great flight," Capsule Communicator Bob Cabana at the Johnson Space Center said to the six-member crew soon after the shuttle came to a stop at 2:36 p.m.

The shuttle had orbited the Earth for six days and 23 hours, which was three days shorter than the scheduled mission, said Don Nolan, a spokesman for the NASA Dryden Flight Research Center Facility at Edwards Air Force Base. The crew, however, was able to accomplish its major goals during the flight, which was the first Department of Defense mission not shrouded in secrecy, he said.

"The primary goal was completed," Nolan said. "The crew was hustling with the other projects when they heard it would be a shorter flight."

Atlantis circled the world 109 times and logged 2.9 million miles during the journey, which began a week ago.

The crew successfully released a mis-

Bush drafts his relatives to represent him abroad

By Christopher Connell
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Having a relative in the White House has its privileges.

President Bush has sent members of his extended family on 15 occasions to his official stand-ins at ceremonies in exotic parts of the globe, from Morocco to Western Samoa.

But presidential brother Jonathan Bush calls such an assignment "hard work."

"You're over there for two days, you have a lot of meetings and then you come home, and then it takes you three or four days to recover," said Bush, a New York businessman who attended a 1989 Argentine presidential inauguration and went to the Ukraine in October to mark the 50th anniversary of the massacre of 30,000 Jews at Babi Yar. His wife Jody also was part of the official party. White House records show that Bush's three other siblings have also gone overseas on official U.S. delegations. So has his wife Barbara, four of the five Bush children, several in-laws, two nephews and a cousin.

There have been 41 presidential delegations to foreign events in Bush's 34 months in office, and White House records show that he's chosen family members to take 15 of the trips.

Bush isn't the first president to enlist his family as goodwill ambassadors for ceremonial occasions.

Former President Ronald Reagan sent his daughter, Maureen, on similar trips. And former President Jimmy Carter repeatedly sent his wife Rosalynn abroad, not only for ceremonies, but as his personal representative to Latin countries. Carter sent his 78-year-old mother Lillian to India, where she had been a Peace Corps worker, for the funeral of a president.

Sending presidential kin abroad "is mostly harmless as long as they behave themselves," said Hume Horan, presi-

Cicippio to be freed today, captors say

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Shiite Muslim group said it would release American hostage Joseph Cicippio on Monday, and the United Nations reported "important progress" in freeing the remaining Western hostages.

The announcement followed the release Sunday of 25 Arab detainees by Israel's allied militia in southern Lebanon. It also came after last month's releases of American Thomas Sutherland and Briton Terry Waite.

The Revolutionary Justice Organization, in a statement delivered before dawn to a Western news agency and the independent Beirut newspaper an-Nahar, said it would free Cicippio at 11 a.m. local time (3 a.m. CST).

The statement was authenticated by a photograph and a videotape of Cicippio, 61, of Norristown, Pa., who

Residents didn't believe Pearl Harbor under attack

EDITOR'S NOTE: When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941, almost all of Pearl Harbor's residents from Adm. Husband Kimmel and Gen. Walter Short on down thought they were witnessing a drill rather than a full-scale air raid. Part one of a five-part excerpt from Pearl Harbor Ghosts.

By Thurston Clarke

The attack on Pearl Harbor on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, followed a schedule roughly the same for everyone, but the emotions of defenders and witnesses had more individual timetables, determined by temperament and proximity to the battle. Most experienced denial and shock, then panic, fear, and anger, in that order. Some had a flash of disbelief, then hours of fear and panic. For some, the period of denial was long, but the shock never-ending, while others experienced a second of panic and a lifetime of anger. Troops in other battles came under fire suddenly and without warning, and civilians elsewhere found themselves in a battle zone, but the surprise of Pearl Harbor produced emotions of exceptional intensity.

Because I had met Elwood Craddock just after arriving in Honolulu, I did not fully appreciate how remarkable his reaction to the attack had been. He had been 12 years old, the son of the manager of the Waipahu pineapple plantation, situated on Oahu's central plateau, a mile and a half from the Army Air Force Base at Wheeler Field. On December 7, he woke before sunrise, dressed in sneakers and khaki pants, ate a quick breakfast, and set out to hunt pheasants and doves with his 22-year-old cousin, Rufus Hough. They walked a mile through pineapple fields to a ridge line, shooting a pheasant with Craddock's shotgun, then stopping to admire the view. The land here was red clay, dusty and arid, a semidesert. They stood on the highest point for several miles, less than half a mile from the end of the Wheeler runway, and with a fine view of its hangars and planes. Overhead, some warplanes circled tightly before breaking loose, one by one, to dive and drop bombs.

PEARL: Military thought attack was another drill

The moment a hanger burst into flames, Craddock shouted, "Japanese planes!"

"No, they're Navy planes. It's a drill," his cousin said.

"But look at them. We don't have planes like that!" He had grown up in the shadow of this base, watching maneuvers and building balsa models of warplanes. "They have red circles on their wings," he argued. "Our planes have a smooth surface, and the Japs' are corrugated, like these."

"The insignia were painted on to make the exercise realistic," Hough replied. "and those aren't real bombs, they're just blowing up sticks of dynamite to make it look real."

The Japanese reorganized into a bombing pattern two miles in circumference, positioning themselves 500 feet above Craddock and Hough. One plane fired its guns, perhaps for the fun of it. Bullets kicked up dust 50 feet away, and at last Craddock remembers, "Rufus was convinced the attack was real."

What makes Craddock so remarkable is that he was the only witness I met in Honolulu, or read about in the narratives filling the University of Hawaii's War Records Depository, who right away recognized the planes were Japanese. Everyone else was like his cousin, believing it so inconceivable for Asians to attack Caucasians, or for a Japanese fleet to sail to Hawaii undetected, that when they saw the aircraft, shell bursts and tumbling bombs, they thought themselves witnessing a drill.

So widespread was this denial of the truth, and so resistant to all evidence, that it bordered on a mass delusion, a result of a widely held misconception about the invincibility of American forces and the inferiority of Japanese ones that was to make the attack successful. It was shared by civilians and servicemen, by haoles (Americans of European descent), native Hawaiians, Chinese, Portuguese, and Japanese, by those distant from the battle and sailors under direct attack, by Tadeo Yoshikawa, who at first thought he was seeing a drill, by officers on Gen. Short's staff, and by Gen. Short himself, who thought that "the Navy was having some battle practice, either that they hadn't told me about or that I had forgotten they told me about." When first informed of the attack by Lt. Col. Bicknell, Short termed his report "ridiculous."

During the first hour, the military experienced difficulty persuading its men to return to their stations, and an Army intelligence officer later reported, "They did not believe that they were being correctly informed. Such a thing simply could not happen." Bicknell himself admitted experiencing "a few seconds of absolute disbelief," as he watched the attack from the lanai of his house on Aiea Heights. He became convinced it was war only when he saw the terrific explosion on the Arizona, and a clearly marked Japanese plane drop bombs on Hickam Air Force Base, then meet a burst of machine gun fire and fall flaming into the harbor. He rushed to the telephone and called headquarters, but had difficulty persuading the officer of the day that Oahu was under attack.

Many civilians failed to take cover, standing in the open, staring skyward, and watching with what a witness described as "no more show of emotion than witnesses to a fireworks display on July Fourth."

In Manoa Valley, Ethelyn Meyre thought the silvery planes were American bombers. When she heard the truth on the radio, she ran into her father's bedroom. He laughed at the news and rolled over to get back to sleep. She woke him again, in time to hear the announcer say, "all men report to your post! Calling all nurses! Proceed to Pearl Harbor!"

"It's only another practice attack," he insisted.

They heard, "Oahu is being attacked! The sign of the Rising Sun is to be seen on the wings of the attacking planes!"

"It's impossible," he said.

Dorothy Anthony's 11-year-old son ran into her room, saying, "Mother, this doesn't sound like practice." She and her husband dashed downstairs in time to watch an antiaircraft net being stretched across the mouth of the harbor. Yet they still refused to believe their eyes, and, thinking the net and explosions were all part of a drill, they enjoyed a relaxed breakfast on their terrace.

Adm. Kimmel witnessed the initial moments from a lawn overlooking the base. He and a neighbor, Mrs. Earle, saw planes circling in figure eights before diving at battleships. Pierce fires were already burning, yet, Mrs. Earle said, she and Kimmel found the sight "unbelievable" and "impossible."

Marine bugler Richard Fiske was standing on the bridge of the West Virginia. He believed the planes were from Wheeler Field and told his shipmate Stanley Bukowski, "I guess we're going to have an exercise." When bombers, with torpedoes visible beneath their wings, circled Ford Island, then peeled off to make a bombing run, he said, "Well there goes the Army. We'd better get to our battle stations." "No, wait," Bukowski answered. "They're going to drop some dummy torpedoes.

at them 15 feet above the water, dropping torpedoes. One exploded, throwing up a wall of water that washed Fiske through a passageway to the starboard side. Yet, like Annapolis ensigns, 20-year veterans, fighter pilots, and rear admirals, he still believed it was an exercise, only accepting the truth when a Marine sergeant yelled, "Goddammit, get to your battle stations. It's the Japs!"

Lt. Victor Dybdal was standing watch on the stern of the destroyer Helm, which had just left her anchorage near the mouth of West Loch and was steaming into the harbor to be demagnetized (a process to prevent her attracting magnetic mines). He thought the planes were Americans one returning from the Enterprise, only changing his mind when one dropped a bomb. Dive-bombers strafed the Helm. Afterward, Dybdal says, their pilots smiled and waved and, for some inexplicable reason, perhaps because no one yet believed the attack was real, "we all waved back."

Japan plans to apologize for Pearl Harbor

TOKYO (AP) — The lower house of Parliament reportedly plans to adopt a resolution apologizing for Japan's 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, which drew the United States into World War II.

President Bush, meanwhile, said in Washington that he didn't see any need for the United States to apologize to Japan for dropping atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Japanese lawmakers plan to adopt the resolution late next week to mark the 50th anniversary of the Dec. 7 attack, Kyodo News Service quoted unidentified sources close to the governing Liberal Democratic Party as saying.

The apology, if adopted, would be a first for Japan's Parliament, although during the past year various government officials and Emperor Akihito have offered expressions of regret for suffering caused by the war.

The anniversary of the attack comes at a time of growing trade tensions between the two countries, and has raised fears in Japan of an anti-Japanese backlash among Americans.

Kyodo quoted its sources as saying that lawmakers of both the ruling and opposition parties are discussing a resolution that would express regret and apologize for the war.

The resolution also would convey appreciation for the help Japan received in recovering from its subsequent defeat in the war, and express Japan's determination to remain peaceful in keeping with its postwar constitution, which renounces using force to resolve international disputes, the news agency reported.

HOSTAGES: Cicippio may be freed was acting comptroller of the American University of Beirut when he was abducted Sept. 12, 1985.

"The Revolutionary Justice Organization announces that it will free the American Joseph Cicippio at 11 a.m. at the Beau Rivage Hotel," the nine-line Arabic statement said.

It said U.N., Syrian and Iranian officials should come to the hotel to take delivery of the educator.

The group has delivered similar invitations to attend hostage releases at the Beau Rivage only to free the captive in Syria, several hours away by car, while dozens of reporters and cameramen waited at the hotel.

In the poor-quality, two-minute videotape, Cicippio appeared without the bushy beard he had even before his abduction. He wore eyeglasses and a dark sweater over a white shirt.

"The Revolutionary Justice Organization has been good to me and cared for me very well during the period of time that I have been with them and have always rendered to my needs in a humanitarian way," Cicippio said.

He spoke in a steady voice, and appeared to be reciting a memoized statement.

He thanked U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and his envoy, Giandomenico Picco, for their mediation efforts.

"I demand and hope that the secretary-general will use all efforts to obtain the release of all detainees throughout the world and Israel," he added.

The written statement said the organization had received "reassuring guarantees" about future moves by the United Nations to gain the release of Arab prisoners held in Israel, Israel's self-styled "security zone" in southern Lebanon and in Europe.

The United Nations has been seeking to arrange a comprehensive swap of Western hostages and the hundreds of Arab detainees.

"The elements of trust are decisive and matters will progress toward the better," the statement concluded.

Meanwhile, Picco was in the Syrian capital of Damascus, where he met with Syria's foreign minister.

A U.N. statement, issued at Picco's request in Damascus late Sunday, said: "A basic understanding has also been reached on a comprehensive approach to the remaining humanitarian issues," including the freeing of Lebanese detained by Israel and its proxy force in south Lebanon, and toward recovering Israelis missing or dead in Lebanon.

Both factors are key to resolving the hostage ordeal, which U.N. Perez de Cuellar said would be over by Christmas.

The U.N. statement said that after the latest round of negotiations, "important progress has been made on the road to a solution of the issue of the Western hostages in Lebanon."

The statement provided no details.

There was no new word from the kidnappers on weekend news reports that Alann Steen, another American hostage, would be freed by Wednesday and that the only other American hostage, Terry Anderson, would be out within 10 days. Two Germans and an Italian also are missing in Lebanon.

An earlier statement from Revolutionary Justice delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut said the kidnappers decided to free Cicippio within 48 hours after "positive results" from negotiations among the United Nations, Syria, Lebanon and Iran.

"It looks real," Cicippio's Lebanese wife, Elham, said in Beirut of the promise to free him. "Inshallah (God willing) it will be true."

Cicippio's brother Thomas said in Norristown that he was on "pins and needles" hoping for Cicippio's freedom.

The kidnappers' earlier communication said the United Nations had agreed to push Israel to free more Arab detainees.

Israel, in a statement from its defense ministry, said the 25 detainees were released in response to a request by Perez de Cuellar for a gesture to help the process.

Israel said its hostage-negotiation team had been in contact with the secretary-general and his aides to discuss an overall hostage deal including word on the fate of four Israeli soldiers missing in Lebanon.

In Damascus, Picco met Sunday with Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa to thank Syria for its help in freeing the hostages, the official Syrian Arab News Agency reported.

The 25 Arab detainees were released from the Khiam prison in Israel's self-declared security zone in southern Lebanon, and all but four left the Israeli-controlled area.

The fundamentalist Shiite Muslim faction Hezbollah, or Party of God, drove the released prisoners to a mosque in southern Beirut where about 500 relatives waited.

against Gorbachev, Bush had paid more and more attention to the leaders of the separate republics.

A senior U.S. official said Wednesday that the United States would "move expeditiously but carefully" to recognize Ukrainian independence without trying to complicate the Ukraine's relationship with the center and with other republics. Bush conveyed a similar message to Ukrainian-American leaders.

Strauss said that assuming the Ukrainians vote for independence, the United States "will acknowledge the fact that millions of people have voted for freedom and for independence and we'll do something about it."

"That doesn't mean ... that we will rush into anything precipitously," he added. "It means that we'd have to start moving in that direction."

The United States is likely to send an emissary to the Ukraine to discuss such issues as its commitment to human rights, the control of nuclear arms and responsibility for past Soviet debt, Strauss said.

dent of the American Foreign Service Association, a union of foreign service officers. "It helps provide tone to an occasion."

Mrs. Bush has traveled abroad once without her husband, attending the 1990 inauguration of Costa Rica's new president. The delegation she headed included her son, Jeb, and his wife Columba.

Bush's sister Nancy Ellis led the U.S. delegation to the September celebration of 2,500 years of democracy in Athens, Greece. She also represented the president in Western Samoa two years ago.

William H.T. Bush, the president's youngest brother, and his wife Patty went to Malta in 1989 to help the island celebrate 25 years of independence. They were in Istanbul, Turkey, last month to attend the enthronement of Bartholomew I as the new patriarch of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

The presidential children have also had various assignments.

George W. Bush went to Gambia in 1990. Dorothy Bush LeBlond journeyed to Paraguay in 1989 and to Morocco in 1990. Neil and Sharon Bush, accompanied by Mrs. Bush's nephew, James Pierce Jr., went to Benin for the recent presidential inauguration there.

Only son Marvin Bush hasn't carried the U.S. banner abroad.

Some delegations are small, sometimes consisting only of the U.S. ambassador. Others comprise a half-dozen or more VIPs, often political or business leaders with ethnic ties to the country they're visiting.

"There's no question that these people are very, very glad to see the brother or sister of the president," said Jonathan Bush.

When the weather failed to cooperate for their December 1989 "seasick summit," Bush and others later joked about Bucky's shortcomings as an advance man.

"I'm blameless," said the president's brother, who runs an investment business in St. Louis.

"I was taken with Malta and I wrote a report on Malta and on the people and government leaders I talked to there," he said. "I got a call from the president a week later and he asked me some rather deep questions about the country. I had no idea why he was calling. And the next thing I know they were announcing the Malta summit."

Director of the coalition. "We are also trying to bring to attention the importance of knowing about this disease and helping those who are going to have to face it. Finally, we're reaching out to those who may have trouble coming to grips with having the disease — we're here to help."

Madeleine Maehi, an advocate for the PBAC, discussed the mixed emotions she has felt in dealing with people with AIDS, particularly one man whose death, although seemingly inevitable, shocked her.

"I saw his fear and I saw his loneliness and isolation. I scheduled to see him one day and was told that it wouldn't be necessary. He had passed away," Ms. Maehi said. "It was quick to make the assumption that life will go on."

"When you deal with these people, the aspect of one's mortality really comes into focus," Ms. Maehi added. "It has taught me to appreciate life and not take things for granted, for how quickly they can go."

Ms. Hale believes empathy and providing accurate AIDS information are the main challenges facing AIDS activists.

"We simply have to educate people. AIDS has left no country untouched," Ms. Hale said. "But equally important is compassion. We are not here to judge. It is through compassion that we can reach out to those who are hurting."

According to the World Health Organization, as of July 1991, eight million to 10 million people were infected with the virus that causes AIDS.

"AIDS recognizes no boundaries and it is slowly but surely changing the patterns of daily living for all of us," Ms. Hale said.

SHUTTLE: Atlantis mission ends 3 days early

(From 1A)

Warning satellite into space on Monday, just one day after blast-off. After being notified on Saturday that they were coming back earlier than expected, the crew wrapped up military surveillance and medical experiments.

The mission was shortened due to the failure of one of three navigational devices, called inertial measurement units, said NASA spokesman Don Haley. Under NASA regulations, the shuttle must return to Earth within one day after a navigational device failure is discovered, and the priority landing should be at Edwards rather than Cape Canaveral, Fla., he said.

Landing at Edwards increases the cost of the mission by approximately $1 million because the orbiter must be flown back to Cape Canaveral on top of a Boeing 747 airplane, Haley said. NASA, however, can choose from a number of landing strips at Edwards that are longer than the paved 15,000-foot runway in Florida, he said.

NASA officials were uncertain Saturday whether the shuttle could land at Edwards because strong winds were predicted at the base. Winds gusted at 26 mph earlier on Sunday, but they calmed down at the time of Atlantis' arrival, Haley said.

For the first time ever, a shuttle landed in a northeast direction on runway 05 due to a prevailing east wind, Haley said. As the last experiment for the 10th mission of Atlantis, Commander Frederick D. Gregory used no brakes for 4.5 miles to test the lake bed's surface, Haley said.

Gregory finally used the shuttle's brakes two minutes after the orbiter first touched the surface at 2:34 p.m. so that Atlantis did not roll off the runway.

"They have done tests before using minimal braking pressure," Haley said. "This was the first maximum no-brake test. It's a continuing study of the lake bed to determine how much friction you can get from the surface."

Only 2,700 people arrived at viewing sites around the lake bed to see the shuttle arrival.

Drug smugglers focus on Nicaragua for new market

By Doralisa Piarce
Associated Press writer

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua (AP) — From Monkey Point to Pearl Lagoon, packages of narcotics wash onto the beaches of Nicaragua's Atlantic shore, the newest cocaine coast of Colombian drug lords.

What's more, cocaine and crack are addicting a people so innocent that seven once died from eating cocaine they mistook for flour.

"The problem right now is not major, but it's here and this is still an undeveloped market," said Roger Ramirez, Bluefields police chief. "Drugs are an evil that corrupts the soul. We are trying to stop them."

Drug traffickers stayed clear of Nicaragua during most of the 1980s, when the leftist Sandinistas ruled and were fighting U.S.-supported Contra rebels. They feared anyone caught with drugs would be branded a CIA spy and thrown in jail.

"Back then, the trail ended in Costa Rica and began again in Honduras," said Fred Villareal, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration officer in charge of Nicaragua.

Sandinista anti-aircraft batteries were on constant lookout for enemy aircraft, he said.

Things changed, officials say, after the Sandinistas lost the 1990 elections and the war ended. The drug lords turned their eyes to Nicaragua, particularly the remote, sparsely populated Atlantic coast.

Nicaraguan police and DEA officials say the traffickers look to Nicaragua both as a new market for drugs and a transit point in the drug pipeline from Colombia to the United States.

Intense military surveillance is a thing of the past and the meager national budget leaves local authorities short on the manpower and equipment needed to combat the traffic.

"Out of all the countries from Mexico to Argentina, in terms of assets to work with, this is absolutely the worst," said Villareal, who has spent 20 years fighting the illegal drug trade.

On Nov. 3, officers seized 1,650 pounds of high-grade cocaine in Nicaragua's biggest-ever drug raid.

Chinese report sub missing in Yellow Sea

HONG KONG (AP) — A Communist Chinese submarine has disappeared in the Yellow Sea and People's Liberation Army ships and helicopters have launched a search, sources and press reports say.

The conventional Romeo-class submarine, belonging to the North China Sea Fleet, left the Chinese port of Qingdao about two weeks ago on a mission in the Yellow Sea, northeast of Taiwan, Western sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity. It disappeared shortly thereafter, the sources said.

They added they were unaware how many crew members were on board.

Hong Kong and Taiwan newspapers said Chinese helicopters and ships were searching for the submarine, a medium-range, conventionally powered craft armed with conventional torpedoes.

Taiwan's Central Daily News, quoting unidentified officials from Taiwan's Defense Ministry, reported Thursday that Taiwanese intelligence began tracking the submarine soon after it left Qingdao.

Vance returns to Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance arrived Sunday for talks on sending peacekeepers to war-torn Croatia but said obstacles remain to early deployment.

In Germany, state radio quoted German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher on Sunday as saying that his country would recognize Slovenia and Croatia as independent states later this month. Both declared their sovereignty June 25.

Slovenian President Milan Kucan will visit Bonn on Tuesday and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman will arrive Wednesday to discuss recognition, government spokesman Dieter Vogel said.

Iraqi middleman provides nuclear parts

WASHINGTON — An Iraqi middle man who has already been identified as the linchpin behind a chemical weapons plant in Libya may also have been involved in supplying Iraq's nuclear weapons development program. And he was able to openly buy technology in the United States despite the fact that the U.S. government knew he was shopping for dangerous clients.

Anderson

The Iraqi, Ihsan Barbuti, was identified by the U.S. government as a Libyan agent by January 1989. Earlier this year, press reports also surfaced about Barbuti's role in developing the Iraqi chemical weapons program. New evidence now suggests that chemicals were not his only weapons of choice.

Barbuti's assurances that he would help Iraq acquire "the coating technology" required by Hussein Kamel Al-Majid. Kamel is Saddam Hussein's son-in-law and at the time was in charge of Iraq's weapons development program and industrialization including the oil industry. The letter says the oil company needed the technology for "future oil pipelines" and Kamel needed it for "atom projects."

Beginning in 1988, Barbuti showed a keen interest in an oil pipeline coating formula that had been developed by a Dallas businessman. The process used a material that could also be used as a protective lining for parts of a nuclear reactor. Barbuti was so ecstatic over the possible nuclear applications that he went into business with the unsuspecting Dallas man in August 1988.

The Texan severed those ties in 1989 and reported Barbuti to the government after learning that some of the technology was headed for Libya. It is unclear whether Barbuti was successful in getting the technology to Iraq himself, but his cronies had reportedly learned how to develop it before Barbuti and the Texan parted ways. The letter to Barbuti from the Iraq National Oil Co. suggests methods of financing the deal that were tied to a U.S. bank. The letter says Barbuti could "move funds with Babil Intl." Babil is based in France, and as of January of this year was run by Safa Al-Habobi, the director of Iraq's Al Nasr weapons complex. Babil is suspected of being a front for sensitive Iraqi purchases. Habobi himself solicited millions of dollars from the scandal-ridden Atlanta branch of the Italian Banca Nazionale del Lavoro (BNL), according to a 1991 U.S. indictment. BNL officials in Atlanta were charged in that indictment with illegally lending Iraq $4 billion in credits and unsecured loans.

U.S. officials say another principal in Babil was Pierre Drougal. His son, Chris Drougal, is one of the indicted BNL-Atlanta officials.

The shadowy Barbuti is not available for comment. His family claims he died of natural causes in July 1990, and there is a headstone bearing his name in England. But even Barbuti's death is a mystery. Some of his former business associates suspect he is merely ducking the law. Lloyd's of London has refused to pay his life insurance claim until the company can prove that he is indeed dead.

Today, Barbuti's activities are being investigated by several congressional subcommittees, the U.S. Customs Service and some of his old business partners. But for the U.S. government, the truth about Barbuti and how he was able to arm Iraq using American suppliers may prove too embarrassing to admit.

NUCLEAR THREAT — Secretary of State James Baker says the No. 1 threat to Asian security is North Korea's nuclear build-up.

Here is why. For years, North Korean scientists have studied at the Soviet nuclear research center at Dubna. They have been sighted there within the last three months. What concerns U.S. officials is that Soviet hardliners without the authority of Mikhail Gorbachev are continuing to supply nuclear know-how to North Korea. The next step is for the hardliners to get bold enough to smuggle actual nuclear weapons into North Korea.

Generals can't escape justice

El Salvador's two top military commanders now deny the charge by a U.S. congressional delegation that they took part in planning the murder of six Jesuit priests and two helpers in 1989.

The important fact is not the denial, which was expected, but the stark reality that representatives of this country will not let the killings die. The brutal murders were so savage and senseless that they must not be forgotten.

No matter what Gen. Rene Emilio Ponce, the defense minister, and his deputy, Gen. Juan Orlando Zepeda, say, it is clear that the Salvadoran military not only planned and carried out the murders, but did so convinced that it was accountable to no one but itself. Two officers have been found guilty of the murders despite the fact that the government, military and others in El Salvador fought against even a trial for more than a year.

The extremists have used anticommunism as an excuse for hundreds of killings and atrocities perpetrated by the country's right wing in collaboration with the military.

Gens. Ponce and Zepeda, who were Army chief of staff and deputy chief at the time of the murders, attack the congressional report for using unidentified sources who pinpointed them at the planning sessions. As everyone in El Salvador knows, however, the sources would be murdered if they had been named.

The Salvadoran military believes that the United States will continue to support it each year with about $85 million in military weapons, all in the name of anticommunism as well as the possibility of ending the civil war. Congress indeed halted some aid, but it eventually was made available.

The struggle of decent Americans against the Salvadoran military will not end. The atrocities cannot be buried in denials and stonewalling. The entire truth will one day be made known.

CHARLEY REESE

Assault on drugs turns into patent farce

In the 30-year drug war, the United States has extradited and convicted only one of the prominent members of the Colombian cocaine cartel — Carlos Lehder.

Reese

Mr. Lehder was sentenced to life in prison plus 135 years. He's rather a vicious chap, but he is now the Justice Department's star witness against Manuel Noriega.

The reason is that the Justice Department cut a deal with him. Exactly what kind of deal he's been offered isn't clear, but any deal for this character is a bad deal.

Was it essential testimony? Was it necessary to get a conviction in this trial? Not if the testimony was reported accurately. Most of it seemed to be hearsay and a repetition of what other witnesses have said about old Pineapple Face taking some bucks to look the other way as cocaine moved through Panama. Lehder himself said he never met with Noriega.

That testimony certainly does not seem to me worth giving Lehder a break.

I suspect, however, the Justice Department is having secret cold sweats that the jury might acquit Noriega, Panama's former dictator. That would be one colossal embarrassment for President George Bush.

After all it was Bush who sent 30,000 troops into a foreign country in violation of every known international law to "arrest" Noriega on drug charges so he could be brought back to the U.S., where, cloaked with a presumption of innocence, he could receive a fair trial. If that's not Alice in Wonderland, I don't know what is.

If we're going to play international rogue elephant, then we should have just gone down to Panama and shot Noriega in the head.

To invade a country, blow up a sizable portion of one of its cities, kill several hundred of its residents under the pretense of bringing an accused criminal back to the U.S. to face trial is — well, bizarre and loony.

If you can't grasp its essential looniness, just imagine that an American sets up a drug ring in Moscow but escapes to Chicago. We tell the Russians that since we have no extradition treaty, we won't turn him over. The Soviets send four divisions of paratroopers and a squadron of bombers to attack Chicago, occupy it, retrieve the drug dealer, and then return to Moscow.

Do you get the picture? You don't use armies and invade foreign countries to arrest accused criminals. At least you don't do that unless you're George Bush.

Anyway, the last thing the Bush folks want is for a jury in Miami to let Noriega walk. A Noriega acquitted of criminal charges would create ulcers by the gross in the State Department and send the president's thyroid into orbit.

Apparently this desperate desire to convict the two-bit dictator and former paid employee of the CIA has so rattled Justice that they were willing to cut a deal with Lehder in exchange for a dollop of testimony.

I'm not surprised really because I long ago concluded that the drug war is really a drug farce. We have spent billions on this war and all we get is more cocaine and heroin showing up. You don't need to have a genius IQ to realize that (1) the effort is ineffective and (2) lots of people are on the take.

You got to remember that by the time the drugs get to American streets, you're talking about a retail business selling product in small amounts. It does not compute that thousands and thousands of customers can be located and served without the gendarmes knowing about it.

If we're not going to arrest and prosecute the people in our own government involved in drug trafficking or in protecting drug traffickers, then, heck, let's legalize the stuff. But keep Lehder in jail as a souvenir of the great drug war.

Bush must bring end to Hatch destruction

Thank God President George Bush vetoed the "Hatch Act" destruction bill in the last Congress (1990), but now Congress is trying to put it through again. They are scared, afraid of losing their cushy jobs, so they have come up with a sneaky scheme to virtually guarantee their job in Congress for their lifetime. Their secret plan is to tap the personal resources of federal workers, like the army of federal workers and postal employees.

It's true that Congress can't seem to do anything right anymore... and they are demanding more and more of our hard-earned money to pay off the special interests... and more money for their perks like the hefty gas tax hike. They are not worried about their net take home pay... they just raise their salaries, while we sleep, and now they will enjoy the $8 million of new Senate elevators (the old ones worked fine) $2.5 million new Senate office furniture and $2 million to make improvements to one of the several house restaurants where members and staff aides get food subsidized by us taxpayers; $6 million to fancy up the subway that runs between Senate Office Building and the Capitol (two blocks long); $40K for new trash cans for members' offices — at a time when our country is showing a $200 billion federal deficit. Don't they care about the millions of hungry children and homeless in America today.

With this federal deficit and congressional spending completely out of control, we taxpayers need the Hatch Act now, more than ever before. Destruction of the Hatch Act, which was passed in 1939, would make "government by the people" a thing of the past. This would be fine for Congress — a Congress scared stiff they will lose their jobs in the next election unless this army of three million government campaign workers could guarantee their jobs for life for these "representatives of the people."

Last year Congress overwhelmingly passed a bill destroying the Hatch Act with a vote of 297 to 90 in the House and 67 to 30 in the Senate. Bush's veto was overridden in the House and upheld by just one vote in the Senate. That is too close for me and I urge Bush to do whatever he can to stop this destruction of the Hatch Act.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Dec. 2, the 336th day of 1991. There are 29 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 2, 1954, the U.S. Senate voted to condemn Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wisc., for what it called "conduct that tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute."

On this date:

In 1804, Napoleon was crowned emperor of France in a glittering ceremony at the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris.

In 1816, the first savings bank in the United States, the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society, opened for business.

In 1823, President Monroe outlined his doctrine opposing European expansion in the Western Hemisphere.

In 1859, militant abolitionist John Brown was hanged for his raid on Harper's Ferry the previous October.

In 1927, Ford Motor Co. unveiled its Model A automobile, the successor to its Model T.

In 1980, four American churchwomen — three nuns and a lay worker — were shot to death outside San Salvador and buried. (Their bodies were exhumed two days later.)

Media obsession gives Ku Klux Klan its life

Big time media seems obsessed by the Ku Klux Klan. Give them anything that has a sheet or a pointed hat involved in it, and it's time to pull out all the stops.

Grizzard

David Duke wasn't about to be elected in Louisiana, but he was a former Klansman so he winds up on the front pages across the country.

And David Duke was a Southerner, as well. A white Southern male with a Ku Klux Klan background can get more press than Mario Cuomo flipping a coin to see if he's going to run for president and then putting off the decision again to go for two out of three.

The Northern media is especially fond of the Klan as a basis for a news story. It's their geographical ignorance showing. What many know of the South they learned watching the "Beverly Hillsbillies" or "Mississippi Burning."

I was on the phone with a New Yorker, and he asked me, "What time is it in Atlanta?"

"What time is it in New York?" I asked him back.

"Four-thirty," he said. "You're not going to believe this," I said, "but Atlanta is in the same time zone as New York. It's 4:30 here, too."

Where did he think Georgia was? Next to Texas?

One of those talk show hostesses came to Atlanta. Apparently she couldn't find any Southern left-handed lesbian cross-dressers who were being denied their right to marry goats, so she rounded up a few Klansmen, or people who said they were in the Klan, in order to get on television.

Several years ago, Larry King came to Atlanta to do his show and I was asked to appear on the second half. The first half Larry King interviewed some kook from the Klan.

"How can you do this to me, Larry?" I joked with him. "Everybody watching this show sees me following a nut in a robe and a pointed hat and they figure my outfit's in the cleaner's or something."

The Klan hasn't had any influence in the South in decades. What few members remain are too stupid for one thing. What wears robes and pointed hats and has three teeth? 58 members of the KKK — which is about how many you could turn up, given a year, a gasoline credit card and road map of the South.

I remember how the rest of the world wanted the Klan involved during the horror of Atlanta's murdered and missing children experience. A Northern reporter walked in my office one day and asked if I knew how to get in touch with Atlanta's Grand Wizard.

"I'm certain the Klan is involved in this," he said.

"Call 1-800-GET-REAL," I told him.

But what a story it would have made had the Klan been involved. The Ku Klux Klan killing black children in Atlanta, which is in Georgia, which is in the South. Think of the books. Think of the movie starring Northern actors and actresses trying to fake Southern accents. Forget the Klan. Forget David Duke. He's not going to get elected to anything. He couldn't even beat an opponent in Louisiana's gubernatorial race whose supporters sported bumper stickers that said, "Vote for the Thief. It's Important."

Want something to worry about? OK, how about being laid off from your job? The Soviet nuclear arsenal winding up in the wrong hands? Jerry Brown getting elected president?

Or, the doo-doo head you wound up with under the sheets last night had AIDS. Even Klansmen probably have enough sense to use Kondoms.

Kennedy Smith trial course hinges on jury picks, rulings

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The final pretrial rulings Monday in William Kennedy Smith's rape case could dramatically alter what follows.

In the hectic hours before opening statements are scheduled to begin, a 37-member jury pool will be winnowed to six jurors and three alternates.

Circuit Judge Mary Lupo will rule on whether the state can call as witnesses three women who alleged in sworn statements that Smith sexually attacked them in the 1980s.

Among final motions will be one by the defense, rejected earlier by Ms. Lupo, that the jury pool has been tainted by television coverage.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys will use up to 12 challenges each to eliminate prospective jurors they consider unfavorable.

After jurors are selected and taken outside the courtroom, Ms. Lupo will consider arguments on whether the three women should be allowed to testify. Most legal experts following the case expect the judge to bar their "similar-crimes" testimony, called Williams Rule evidence in Florida.

Without their testimony, the trial is expected to boil down to jurors' views of Smith's credibility compared to that of the Jupiter resident who said he raped her March 30 at his family's Palm Beach estate.

Smith's attorneys have indicated they will highlight some inconsistencies in her version of the events and lack of damage to her clothes as they argue she consented to sex, then became vengeful. Pitting his word against hers, defense attorneys likely will repeatedly remind jurors that a defendant is innocent until found guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

But with the supporting testimony, a prosecution case that would otherwise be difficult in gaining a conviction would become a strong one, say attorneys following the case.

"If the Williams Rule comes in, all bets are off. It's a different case," said Joseph Minberg, attorney for prosecution witness Anne Mercer.

Chief prosecutor Moira Lasch disclosed July 22 that the three women had come forward.

One, a medical student, alleged Smith raped her at his Washington apartment in 1988, while she was drunk. Another, now a medical doctor, said she talked Smith out of attacking her at his home in 1988. The third, a former girlfriend of Smith's cousin, Matthew "Max" Kennedy, said she fought off Smith at his parents' home in New York in 1983.

Judges shouldn't allow Williams Rule evidence, named for a 1957 Florida case involving serial rapist Ralph Williams, if it is "solely to prove bad character or propensity," state law says.

Warhol's death goes to court

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortly before his death, Andy Warhol had a premonition: he was going to check into a hospital and die. Warhol proved prescient: On Feb. 22, 1987, the pale prince of Pop Art passed away in New York Hospital.

But attorneys for the late artist's estate say Warhol wasn't psychotic — the hospital and its staff were simply negligent. Tuesday, nearly five years after Warhol's death, a jury will begin hearing evidence in the case.

"We're not saying New York Hospital killed Andy Warhol," said Steven Hayes, the attorney representing the Warhol estate. "We're saying there was an inadequate level of care and attention paid to him."

Jury selection was completed last week in the malpractice and wrongful death lawsuit being heard in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

The wrongful death lawsuit names as defendants the hospital plus 11 individuals: two doctors, staff nurses and interns, and a private duty nurse assigned to Warhol's room.

A state Health Department probe in 1987 alleged Warhol was improperly monitored.

U.S. Communists refute payments

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Communist Party on Sunday denied a report that it received $2 million a year from the Soviet Union until last year.

"It's poppycock," said St. Gerson, a spokesman for the New York-based Communist Party USA.

Gerson said the party's money comes from "dues primarily and the usual fund-raisers, like any other political party."

The New York Times on Sunday quoted Aleksandr A. Drosdov, editor of the newspaper Rossiya, as saying that Soviet Communist Party records showed the U.S. Communist movement received $2 million a year from the Kremlin until last year, when the Soviet party began to collapse.

Drosdov said Soviet prosecutors seized the records from Anatoly Smirnov.

David Harris heads to the orchard on his '50s-era "Poppin' Johnny."

A Nifty NUT

Harris shakes one of the trees in his 53-acre orchard, causing a hailstorm of nuts, leaves and branches.

Esperanza Rodriguez goes ahead of the shaker.

SPRABERRY — The pecan is a nifty little nut. It has the power to control people's lives, particularly when people are trying to control it. That's pretty much what has happened to David Harris, who is corralled by his ranching and pecan-growing operations. His wife Cathy, an educator, gets free from ranch work on most weekdays.

Harris is a rancher in the Spraberry area of Midland and Glasscock counties. He breeds, raises, and sells registered Limousin cattle on a nine-section spread which has been in his family for three generations.

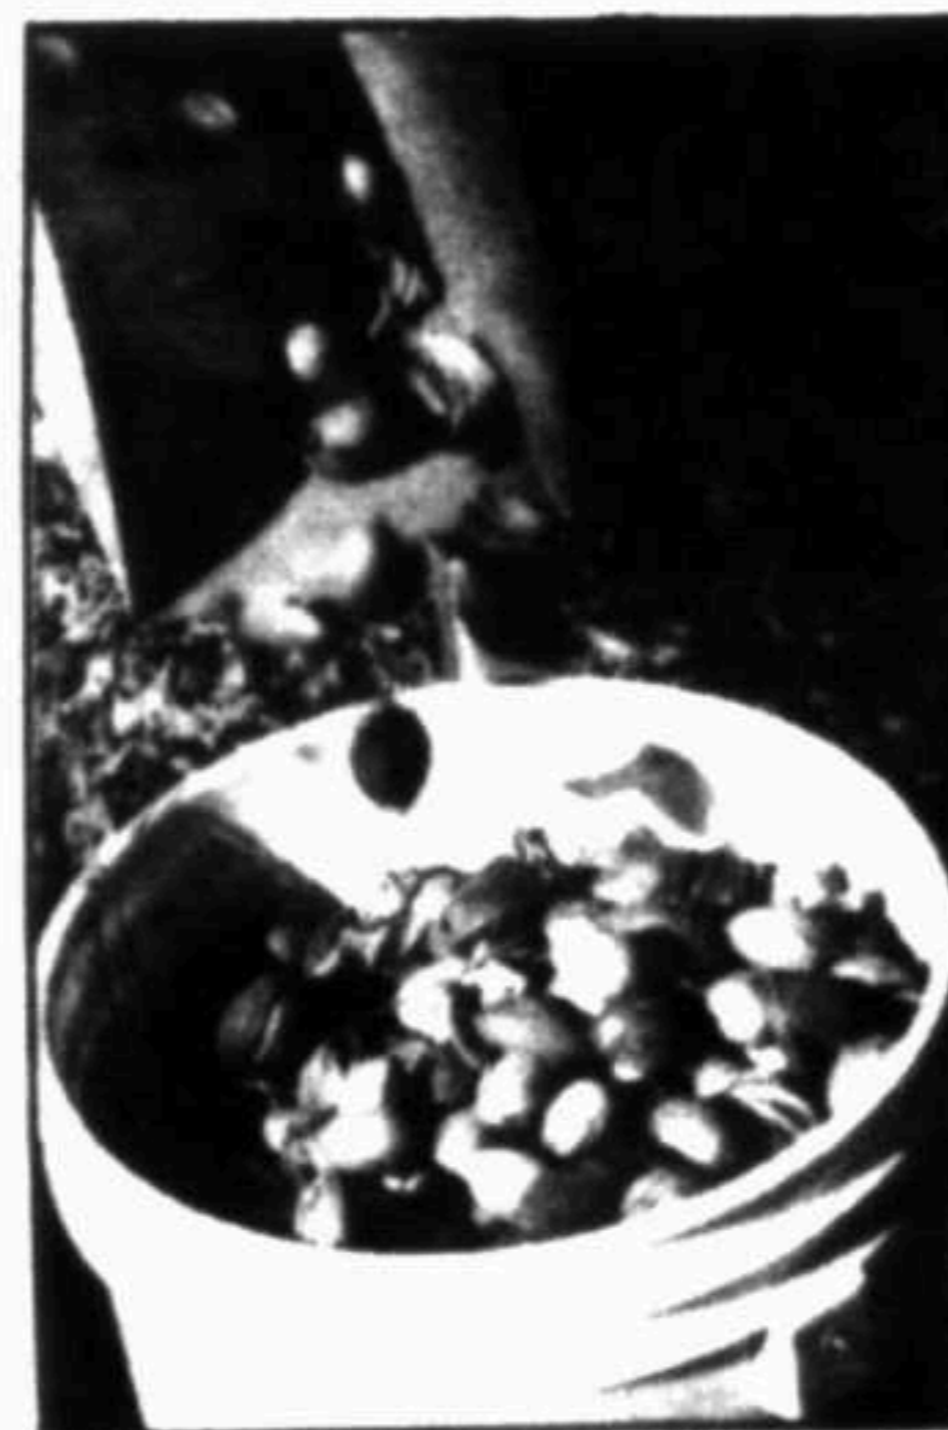

About 20 years ago, the Harrises thought they would diversify, which they did.

They set out to plant 2,500 pecan trees on 53 acres, which represents less than 1 percent of the ranch but which takes in an enormous share of time to nurture the trees.

"Some people are golf widows," said Mrs. Harris. "I'm a nut widow."

The payoff is at harvest time. At that time, Harris hooks a mechanical shaker onto his old John Deere tractor or a newer model. Then, he latches the contraption onto a fruitful tree. And the steady vibration shakes the ripened, wood-capsuled meaty kernels from the tree and into a catcher.

The process is repeated over and over. And, if the economy is smiling, the pecans end up selling well in the marketplace. According to variety, they go by such names as Western, Sioux, Wichita and Cheyenne.

The Sioux, the best of the lot, is "almost sweet tasting," Harris said. The Cheyenne is "kind of buttery." They are all "rich" in a similar vein as pecans' marketplace competitors: almonds, walnuts, and peanuts.

"They are high-protein food," said Mrs. Harris.

The nature of her school-health job at the Region 18 Education Service Center in Midland prompts her to encourage healthy-living and lifestyle habits, including the eating of nutritional food, for students and teachers.

And pecans, she is happy to say, contain the "good" and beneficial kind of fat even though they are high in calories.

"If you really want to eat healthily," she said in referring to label-reading on food products, "don't eat anything you can't pronounce."

It was in February 1972 when the Harrises started planting young pecan trees on their ranch.

But from planting to picking, it takes several years, maybe more, to realize good yields and profits.

"They say 10 to 12 years," Harris said. "In reality, it would take 20 years."

As the trees were maturing, the unforeseen happened: inflation. "The trees were really young when the oil boom of the late 1970s and

Farmers dwell on 'bullet train' as Farm Bureau meets

Texas Farm Bureau president S.M. True Jr. speaks to reporters before the convention opens.

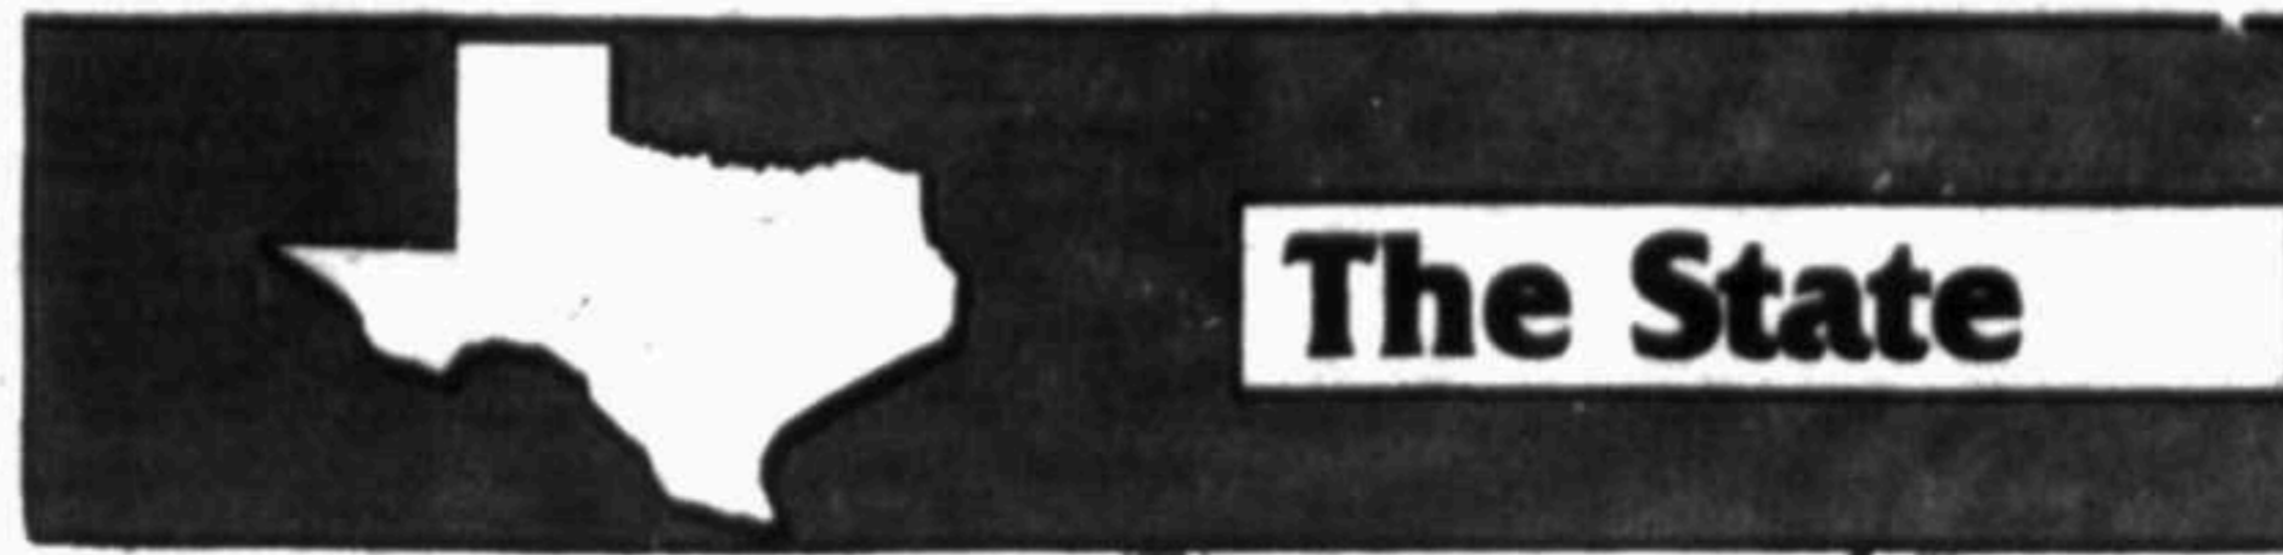

LUBBOCK (AP) — Farmers are usually very comfortable around massive machinery. After all, most growers in Texas make their living in huge tractors, combines and cotton strippers.

But there is one piece of high-powered machinery that some farmers in central Texas would just soon not see crisscrossing their planted rows in the near future: a high-speed rail.

"There is a lot of problems involved in farmers' and ranchers' minds about the high speed rail project," S.M. True, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said Sunday.

"When we talk about the high-speed rail, we talk about eminent domain," True said. "People are concerned their land will be condemned and they will not justifiably be paid for the land that will be taken."

True made his comments during the opening of the farm bureau's 88th annual convention, which kicked off Sunday in Lubbock and will run through Wednesday.

True said the farm bureau has not taken an official position on the rail, which is expected to bring the nation's first "bullet" train to Texas over the next several years.

A French-American consortium won a $6 billion contract in May to construct a rail for the 200-mile per hour train that will link Dallas, Houston, Austin and San Antonio.

Farmers in central Texas have taken a defensive stand in a resolution about the rail, which will be considered by growers during the convention.

"We should assist Texas landowners and farmers in resisting the unwanted and wasteful use of land for the Texas high speed transit or bullet train," the resolution says. "We should propose alternate plans such as along present interstate highways or better utilization of the present Amtrak system."

True said ranchers are concerned the rail will divide their property.

"There is a possibility the rail will divide ranches and there will not be access to the property without going a long ways around," he said.

Other topics expected to be discussed during the convention are federal farm programs, animal health, food safety and enforcement of the Endangered Species Act.

True said too many parts of the state are being designated as shelters for endangered species.

"Farmers find that they have some kind of exotic bird or some kind of animal on their place and they are not able to use their land for what it is really intended for," True said.

"The only privilege they have now is paying the taxes on it. We think this is wrong and we certainly plan to work hard to change some of the endangered species concerns that come up in the future."

Police, prosecutors hid evidence in murder case, report shows

DALLAS (AP) — Police and prosecutors withheld evidence which could have helped attorneys defending a man who was eventually sentenced to die for the 1977 murder of a Tyler woman, a newspaper reports.

Records show investigators and prosecutors also misled a judge and then lied to jurors to implicate Kerry Max Cook, The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story in Sunday's editions.

The newspaper obtained records — including reports from transcripts of secret grand jury meetings — showing that police questioned a teen-age girl who publicly had threatened to kill Linda Jo Edwards.

Even though police say they ruled out the girl as a suspect, the threats on Ms. Edwards are considered "exculpatory" evidence, or information that tends to point to a defendant's innocence, legal experts said.

The Smith County district attorney's office was under court order to turn all such evidence over to Cook's attorneys, but court records show that a prosecutor told a judge there was no exculpatory evidence.

Cook, 36, of Jacksonville, has long maintained that he is innocent. In September, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the conviction after ruling that his rights were violated at his 1978 trial.

The court ordered a new trial, and Smith County Criminal and District Attorney Jack Skeen is trying to decide whether he has enough evidence to retry Cook.

Cook remains on death row in Huntsville.

Many law enforcement officials in Tyler say they remain convinced of Cook's guilt.

The district attorney at the time of the trial, A.D. Clark III, told The Associated Press that Cook had admitted to attacking Ms. Edwards. In a conference before the punishment phase of the trial, Clark said, Cook told prosecutors the woman was alive when he left the scene.

"There's no question that he was a victim of justice gone awry," said Richard Reyna, who has investigated Cook's case for Centurion Ministries Inc., a New Jersey organization that investigates inmates' claims of innocence.

Among other recent findings in the continuing investigation are that Smith County prosecutors knowingly misled the jury when they said Cook fled Tyler after the slaying and never intended to return.

But grand jury transcripts show that authorities knew that Cook's trip the morning after the murder had been planned in advance, and that he returned three days later.

Also, Randy Dykes, a prosecution witness, now says in a sworn affidavit to Centurion Ministries that he lied to implicate Cook. Dykes said that Assistant District Attorney Michael Thompson "clearly intimidated me to the point where I was prepared to say whatever he wanted me to say."

Head-on crash leaves 3 dead

GEORGETOWN (AP) — Three people were killed and eight others injured when a flatbed truck sideswiped a car and rammed into two oncoming vehicles, authorities said.

The flatbed truck crossed into westbound traffic on Highway 196, about three miles west of Interstate 35, at 10:50 p.m. Saturday, said Phyllis Stolle, a dispatcher for Texas Department of Public Safety in Austin.

The truck began traveling east, sideswiping a car and running head-on into another car and a pickup truck, Ms. Stolle said.

Isidro Esquivel, 22, of San Antonio died at Brackenridge Hospital. She was the driver of the pickup.

Johnny Banks, 33, of Fort Hood was pronounced dead at the accident scene. Banks was in the car that was struck head-on. Ms. Esquivel and Banks both were wearing seatbelts, Ms. Stolle said.

The third victim also was in the car that was struck head-on, but was not immediately identified, Ms. Stolle said.

Two of the injured remain in critical condition at Brackenridge Hospital.

Troy Thomas, age unknown, was listed with head and chest injuries. He was in the flatbed truck and not wearing a seatbelt.

Weekend sales please retailers

Shoppers, concerned with the economy, appeared to be looking for lower-priced gifts.

Associated Press

Several of the nation's big retailers said Sunday they were pleased with results of the first weekend of the Christmas shopping season as bargain-hunting consumers responded to special holiday sales and discounts. But it was obvious that Americans, with an eye toward the weak economy, were shopping conservatively and generally looking for lower-priced gifts. And while some retailers may have exceeded their expectations for the beginning of the season, sales were still weak when compared with the results of more robust economic times.

J.C. Penney Co. Inc. said sales were stronger than anticipated this weekend, while Sears, Roebuck and Co. said business was as expected and Dayton Hudson Corp. reported mixed results.

Home furnishings retailer Pier 1 Imports Inc. and toy retailer Child World Inc. said they were pleased with their sales.

"Business was good all over," said Duncan Muir, a Penney's spokesman. "Friday was really much better than expected."

Sales at Sears "met our expectations," said Matt Howard, senior vice president for marketing. "On balance, we're quite pleased with the entire weekend."

At Dayton Hudson, sales were better than expected at the company's department stores and its Mervyn's clothing stores, spokeswoman Ann Barkelew said. Business was slower at the Target discount store division on Friday and then picked up on Saturday, she said.

Overall, the company's sales were up from Thanksgiving weekend last year, Ms. Barkelew said.

But retailers had to work hard to get customers to buy this weekend. The storeowners generally got their sales with advertised specials and price markdowns.

At Dayton Hudson, "People are buying what we're promoting," Ms. Barkelew said.

Howard said Sears shoppers responded well to merchandise advertised in commercials broadcast on CBS Thanksgiving night.

For the most part, consumers were drawn to practical and lower-priced gifts. Shoppers interviewed around the country on Friday said they were looking for bargains and had cut their gift-giving plans because of the economy and concerns about job security.

Muir said the most popular items at Penney stores included women's cotton turtlenecks, sweaters in the $18-$30 range and men's flannel boxer shorts.

At Sears, "In general the focus was on practical gifts vs. luxury items" such as gifts from the bed and bath departments, Howard said.

Child World chief executive officer John Devine said consumers seemed to be spending about as much as they did a year ago, when sales were pummeled by the recession and concerns about the approaching Gulf War.

To protect themselves, the storeowners went into the season with lowered expectations.

"We planned for a difficult environment, planned for consumer confidence to remain low and we were aggressive going in," Howard said.

NEW YORK — The price of crude oil rose Friday in a quiet post-Thanksgiving session, but futures prices for refined petroleum products were mixed.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in January settled at $21.48 per barrel, up 13 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Many traders were out of the market for a four-day holiday weekend. Those who had to work found no news or rumors to motivate the trading.

For the week, crude oil rose 27 cents a barrel. Heating oil fell .34 cent and gasoline fell .19 cent.

Analysts said crude showed the strength because oil companies have been increasing the amounts they are refining. That creates stronger demand for crude, but will result in bigger supplies of heating oil and gasoline.

Natural gas prices fell Friday, with contracts for delivery in January settling at $2.090 per 1,000 cubic feet, down 1.5 cents for the day but up .4 cent for the week.

Kaman makes choppers, missile parts and guitars

By Thomas Becher

Associated Press writer

BLOOMFIELD, Conn. — He's a Leonardo da Vinci in a business suit: inventor, engineer, entrepreneur, musician, philanthropist. And at 72, Charles H. Kaman shows no sign of slowing down.

Kaman still works 70 hours a week presiding over Kaman Corp., a conglomerate that produces military helicopters, high-tech parts for Patriot and Tomahawk missiles, and the Ovation guitar — the instrument of choice for many musicians.

"I can't imagine anything worse," he said recently of retirement.

Kaman is one of a distinguished group of American helicopter pioneers that includes Igor Sikorsky, the man whose name is virtually synonymous with vertical flight.

Among Kaman's innovations are the first helicopter powered by a gas-turbine engine — more powerful and lighter than a piston engine — and intermeshing twin rotors stabilized by his patented servo-flap controls. His K-225 helicopter was the first ever to perform a loop-the-loop, in 1949.

His H43B chopper flew more rescue missions in the Korean and Vietnam wars than all other aircraft combined. Kaman's newest helicopter, the SH-2G, soon will enter service for the Navy.

But like da Vinci, the 15th-century artist, inventor and scientist who designed a helicopter centuries before one actually would fly, his interests are wide-ranging.

"There's a lot more to the world than helicopters," said Kaman, a tall, slim and energetic man.

As a teen-ager, Kaman was a good enough guitar player to get an offer to join the Tommy Dorsey band. He chose to pursue aeronautical engineering instead, earning a degree from Catholic University in Washington.

But he never lost his love of music and in 1966 invented the Ovation guitar, now sold through the subsidiary Kaman Instruments.

Using the company's studies in vibrations and molding, Kaman and a group of engineers designed a guitar with a rounded synthetic back and bracing that improved sound.

Rock star Jon Bon Jovi and country singer Glen Campbell swear by the Ovation, considered among the best acoustic guitars in the world.

Kaman sees no incongruity in making both helicopters and guitars.

"With helicopters, the big problem is to reduce vibrations, and in music, it's to create them," he said.

For his first helicopter, the K-125, Kaman carved the rotor blades in the basement of his mother's West Hartford home, using parts of a 1933 Pontiac.

It was 1945, and Kaman, age 26, had just quit his job with Hamilton Standard in East Hartford to form his own helicopter company with $2,000.

Hamilton had considered making components for Sikorsky's VS-300 helicopter. Kaman says he was hooked the day he saw the early chopper hover over swamplands near Bridgeport.

Kaman Corp. finally got off the ground on a slushy winter day in 1947, when the K-125 lifted a few inches into the air.

Kaman landed a Navy contract in the late 1940s to develop rotor technology. Soon, military orders began to flood in.

The company started diversifying in the late 1950s, when Kaman realized his dream of "a helicopter in every garage" wasn't going to fly.

By the 1960s, Kaman branched into nuclear technology, making neutron tubes and such secret military projects as parachutes for manned space flights.

Two of the three surviving K-225s are on display at the Smithsonian space museum in Washington and at the air museum at Bradley Airport in Windsor Locks.

But the third now is being restored, a reminder to employees of the entrepreneurial spirit that built Kaman Corp.

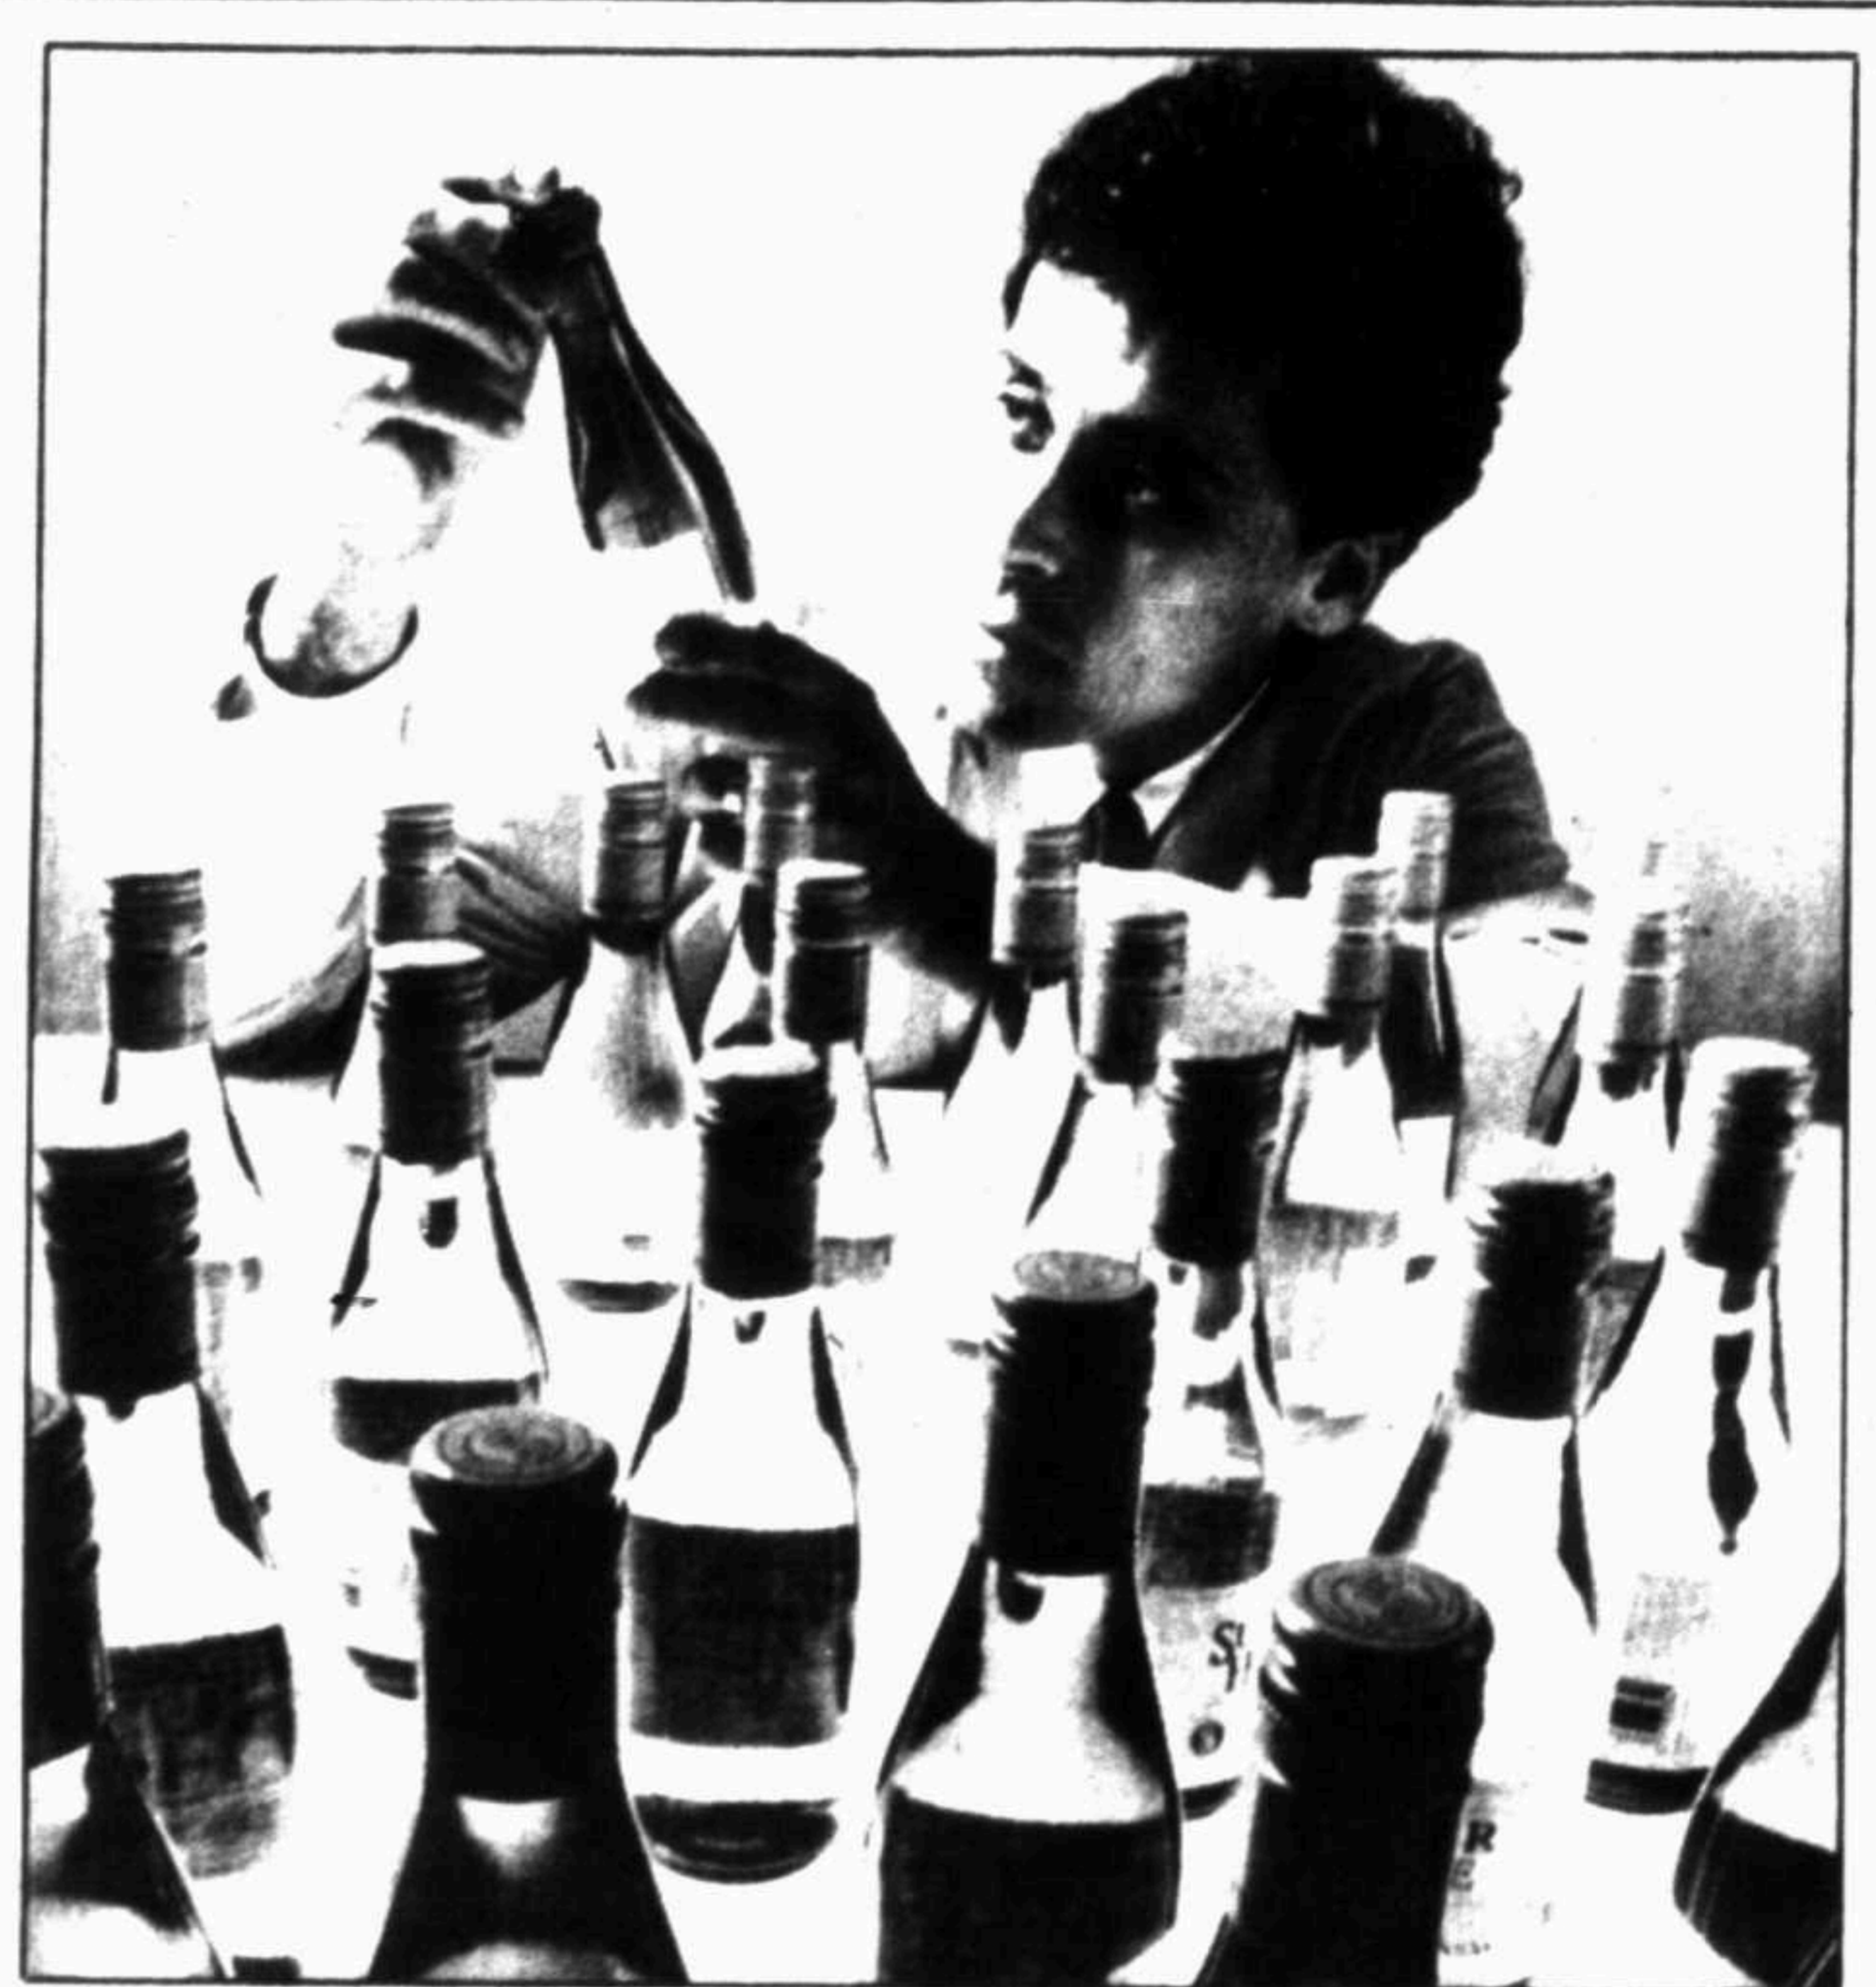

Kaman Corp. reported that earnings rose sharply last year, to $19.2 million, or $1.06 per share, from $8.72 million, or 48 cents a share, in 1989. It was the 20th consecutive year the company had posted an increase in earnings.

"They probably have one of the most efficient and capable management teams," said Mark Bobbi, an aerospace analyst for Forecast International in Newtown. "They tend to promote from within, and that has led to a loyal and lean organization."

Kaman's son, C. William Kaman, president of Kaman Instruments, has another explanation for his father's success.

"He's a visionary," he said. "He's innovative and practical. His business is his hobby. Most everything he approaches is like that."

Kaman, who lives in the Hartford suburb of Farmington with his wife Roberta, likes to share his philosophy with Kaman Corp.'s 6,000 employees scattered across the United States and Canada.

Barbie sales to exceed $800 million

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — At age 32, Barbie is doing better than ever, and so is the doll's manufacturer, Mattel Inc.

More than three decades after she was introduced, Barbie is expected to post sales for Mattel this year of more than $800 million, up 10 percent from last year and almost double the level of four years ago. She is far and away Mattel's most important product, accounting for half the company's revenues.

After years of weakening finances and misguided marketing strategies, analysts said, Mattel has pulled itself together by giving new life to Barbie and its other established toys and by cautiously investing in new toy lines that have the potential to be steady sellers.

Mattel's recent flair for reading the tastes of children and their parents is not limited to Barbie. It has built its large-doll business to more than $200 million in sales this year from $50 million four years ago with new products like L'il Miss Singing Mermaid, one of the hits of the current Christmas season. Sales of its Hot Wheels toy cars have doubled, to more than $100 million.

Mattel has also cautiously stepped up its licensing deals. It just signed an agreement to sell dolls based on the Flintstones and other animated characters from Hanna-Barbera Productions Inc.

Earlier this month, Mattel solidified and expanded its relationship with Walt Disney Co. The companies extended their existing deal, under which Mattel sells a line of Disney preschool and infant toys, for 10 years.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Krugerrand value up and down since 1975

By Bill Doyle

Q. I bought 20 one-ounce Krugerrand gold coins through a bank in Minnesota on Dec. 17, 1976. The receipt has been lost in our moving four times since. Now that I have sold those coins, the Internal Revenue Service must be taken care of. How much I won't know until I can get some idea of the cost.

Doyle

Can you locate the price of those coins on that date?

A. Along with gold, the price of Krugerrands has gyrated wildly since 1975, when the ban on Americans owning the yellow metal was lifted. At its peak, it was over $800. Pinpointing its price on a given date is no easy chore. Nonetheless, Nina Lipton, research director of Platinum Guild International in New York City has come up with your answer.

She reports that one-ounce Krugerrands were going for $137 apiece on Dec. 17, 1976. Coin dealers usually shave prices a bit for quantity purchases. So you might have paid somewhat less than $2,740 for 20. To get an accurate number, you should check with the bank where you bought the Krugerrands.

Because you owned those coins for more than one year, the difference between your purchase price and the amount you received from the sale was a long-term capital gain. Report it as such on your income tax return.

And count yourself fortunate. If, along with many other folks who were mesmerized by the so-called "gold mystique," you had bought at higher prices, you would have a fat loss. One-ounce Krugerrands now sell for about $360.

Q. I wanted to claim a capital loss, which was substantial, on the sale of gold but was informed I cannot do so. Why?

A. Because of a provision in the Internal Revenue Code. In order to take a tax loss on gold or other collectibles, you must be in the business, either full-time or as a sideline. Doing it as an occasional collector or even an active hobbyist does not qualify you to take capital losses on sales or deductions for expenses connected with your collection and/or hobby.

The kicker here is, while you are not allowed to claim tax losses, you are required to report profits from sales as capital gains. This has been described as a "one-way" tax rule, with everything going in the revenooers' direction.

Q. I did not heed your warning against buying rare coins from shady dealers and, about seven years ago, purchased some from a dealer who has since gone out of business. The dealer was recommended by a radio commentator. I can't find him either. Nor can I find anything showing what I paid. My husband and I are nearing retirement and plan to sell the coins. What do you suggest?

A. All I know is the cost was between $9,000 and $10,000.

A. Ouch! Brace yourselves for a double whammy — a loss on the sale and, because you are not in the coin-dealer business, inability to take a tax loss.

The natural advice is to take those coins to a number of dealers and get prices. You'll undoubtedly be shocked when you learn how little you can get for them. The markup between the prices at which dealers buy and the price at which they sell is large in the best of situations. With a fly-by-night dealer, such as the one you named in your letter, that markup can be horrendous. Some radio and television stations have been and continue to be havens for shills promoting get-rich schemes in coins, real estate and whatever else gullible members of the public can be suckered into at a given time.

Q. Upon retirement some years ago, I received a gold bar from my employer. Would it be wise to sell this bar and invest the money where it would earn interest?

A. Of course. Gold is sterile, meaning it earns nothing. Instead, it holds the allure of possibly rising in value. And that hasn't happened in years.

Because your gold is in bar form, chances are it will have to be assayed before you can sell it.

Bill Doyle is a syndicated columnist for King Features. He welcomes written questions, but is able to provide answers only through the column.

Getting another shot at Mojo is Lee's wish come true

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

One of the most unlikely Class 5A Small School playoff pairings has become a reality — Midland Lee vs. Odessa Permian at 2 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock's Jones Stadium.

Unlikely? Well, considering the fact that No. 2 Permian had to climb over No. 1 state ranked Arlington Lamar to get to this point is one heavy strike against the all-District 4-5A quarterfinal pairing. And for Midland Lee to erase a region round roadblock jinx is another point to consider.

But it is the regular season mismatch back in October that makes this meeting seem a bit out of whack. Odessa Permian 33, Midland Lee 0. It is the only blemish

— Midland Lee center K.C. Jones

'This is a totally different team than what played Permian the first time. We are playing great defense and the offense has improved. We have put our game together.'

on the record of either team that has a combined record of 25-1 this season. However, it is a big blemish — like a big pimple appearing before the prom dance.

So, do these Rebels really want another shot at the Mojo mystique in a year that the Panthers seem intent on making the world pay for disqualification from last year's run for state roses?

Apparently, the answer is yes. After the 29-7 win over Sherman in Wichita Falls Saturday, Lee players acted as if they had been given a reprieve from a

Payne's patience pays off

N.Y. Times News Service

LA QUINTA, Calif. — Payne Stewart had to wait an uncomfortably long time before his superb golf amounted to anything, but his patience was rewarded Sunday when he captured the single richest hole in the nine-year history of the Skins Game.

Stewart went from being shut out on Saturday to winning $260,000 when he holed a 4-foot putt on the 376-yard, par-4 14th hole of the TPC Stadium Course at PGA West.

The birdie was worth eight carryover skins — the seven previous holes had been tied — surpassing the $240,000 payoff Jack Nicklaus received when he birdied the 18th hole of the 1984 event.

It was all the money Stewart won over two days of competition, but it was enough to make the reigning U.S. Open champion the overall winner of the made-for-television event, earning him in his debut an automatic exemption to return next year.

"That's the biggest money putt I've ever made," said the knicker-clad Stewart, who on Sunday appropriately wore burgandy and gold, the colors of the National Football League Washington Redskins.

Stewart's timely birdie put him past — in money, not tee-shot yardage — long-driving John Daly, who won $40,000 this afternoon to finish second with a total of $160,000 and three new cars. (Each par-3 hole included the reward of a car in addition to the $20,000 skin.)

Curtis Strange was next with $120,000 and two cars, all of which was won with a birdie on the par-3, 17th hole, worth three carryover skins. But the famed island green victimized Strange on the second hole of overtime, which occurred because Strange and Daly halved the final hole, when he missed a 5-foot par putt that gave the final $40,000 skin and a car to Daly.

Nicklaus, the only player to participate in every Skins Game, was shut out for the second time in his Skins career, the first occurring in 1986.

Bills clinch 4th straight title

Associated Press

Bruce Smith is back and the Buffalo Bills are back in the playoffs.

Smith, the 1990 Defensive Player of the Year, saw extensive duty for the first time this year in Sunday's 24-13 victory over the New York Jets. The Bills clinched their fourth straight AFC East title and won their 17th consecutive game at Rich Stadium as Smith had five tackles and a sack.

"My strength was good," he said. "I was a tad slow, but I was able to protect myself."

The Bills (11-2) are not into protecting so much as attacking. Their no-huddle offense has ravaged most opponents.

NFL Week 13

Recently, however, the defense has stepped up. Against New York, it was solid, stopping the Jets (7-6) on 10 of 11 third downs and forcing three turnovers that led to 17 points.

"For the last three weeks, we really have been starting to come into our own," nose tackle Jeff Wright said. "Hopefully, we can keep it going down the stretch."

Jim Kelly was 21-for-38 for 251 yards and threw touchdown passes to Andre Reed and James Lofton. Thurman

Davis Cup goes to France

Associated Press

LYON, France — In one of the most improbable upsets in Davis Cup history, the French "Musketeers" were reborn.

Fifty-nine years after last winning the Davis Cup, France captured the biggest prize in tennis Sunday as Guy Forget beat Pete Sampras in four sets to clinch a 3-1 victory over the defending champion United States.

Inspired by a wild, flag-waving, chanting crowd, Forget served his way out of trouble time after time — he had 17 aces — to overcome Sampras 7-6 (8-6), 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

With the outcome of the best-of-5 competition already decided, the team captains cancelled the last singles match between Andre Agassi and Henri Leconte.

When Forget hit a forehand volley into the open court on match point and collapsed onto his back in exhilaration, France celebrated one of its biggest sporting achievements in decades.

JIMMY PATTERSON

If this can happen — anything's possible

It is one of the signs of the Armageddon. I'm certain of it.

What happened on Thanksgiving 1991 in the Patterson household was of mammoth proportions and, at the very least, deserves mention in the supermarket tabloids.

My father finally admitted he's again watching Cowboy games.

Two seasons ago — even two weeks ago, for that matter — to have the patriarch of the Patterson clan claim to again have an interest in the Cowboys was about like him turning Libertarian on me.

The evening began rather typically. I called the folks to wish them a Happy Thanksgiving, and after I got back down off my Robert Tilton soapbox, I made a rather simple statement.

"Cowboys won again today," I began.

"Yeah, how 'bout that," Dad said.

("How 'bout that" is one of ol' Dad's trademark statements, has been for years, but this time there was a touch of genuine exuberance in it.)

Then, this.

"Did you watch the game?" I asked, knowing full well that he had not.

"Yeah, he watched it," mom quickly chimed in, as if providing late breaking news, something she has always loved to do.

Up perked my ears. "You did?" I asked.

It was two games in a row Dad had actually sat and watched, he admitted.

I sat in stunned silence, my jaw sprung open, hanging limply on the floor.

(Getting my father to watch not one, but two straight Cowboy games, is akin to having him say, "Ya know, that Shirley McLaine is starting to make a lot of sense. I think maybe I mighta been Napoleon in a former life.")

Stabbing in the dark for conversation, I asked what I at first perceived to be a rather dumb question. "So," I began, "are you actually starting to like Jimmy Johnson?"

"He's all right," Dad finally admitted. "Everything would be great if that Jerry Jones and his money would stay up in Arkansas."

For 29 years come this April, Dad will have been a home owner in about the only part of Irving that hasn't suffered through the obscene change that comes with growth.

Tom Landry had been in the metroplex only three years when we moved to Irving in '83, so after the ol' guy was fired from his coaching duties as The Only Coach The Cowboys Ever Had back in February '89, my father was like hundreds of thousands of others. Understandably bitter.

Landry's dismissal still stings to Dallas fans today. It likely always will.

But funny things happen to the old Cowboy faithful when Dallas beats Washington and Pittsburgh — its two worst enemies, by far — on back-to-back November days.

In a pre-game interview Thanksgiving with Will McDonough, even Landry hinted that he would like to be considered again for the coveted Ring of Honor that posts the names of the biggest Cowboys around Texas Stadium. Landry said he would like to someday be a member, and if and when the subject came up again next season "We'll see how I feel," he said.

As a kid, "We'll see" coming from an adult was tantamount to a "yes."

So with Landry soon to be in the Ring of Honor, and Dad again among the Cowboy faithful, all in the world may not be right, but at least it's a start.

Unless Armageddon comes, that is.

REBELS: Mojo may face new Lee QB combination

(From 1C) Lee coach Earl Miller set the tone quickly in the post-game locker room. "I think you guys realize that we played poorly against Permian the first time. We let them intimidate us, but I take the full blame for that because we did a poor job of coaching," Miller said.

DAVIS: Gorman stands by decision to pick Sampras

(From 1C) It may be impossible for Americans to fully comprehend what the victory meant. But try this: French President Francois Mitterrand immediately sent a telegram to the team. "I followed with passionate interest the matches you played with your worthy adversaries," the message read.

speed. But we are healthy now. You won't see the same Lee team this time."

Tight end Jeb Honeyman feels this Lee team is drawing from past tradition. "This is something Rebel teams of the past have done," Honeyman said. "We just throw everything on the field and let the chips fall where they may. We're rising to the challenge and it's a lot of fun."

DAVIS: Gorman stands by decision to pick Sampras

(From 1C) This may be Lee's cruelest team. They seem genuinely pleased to play a team that already owns a 39-0 win over Lee. Such is the nature of the state playoffs. The feeling is that the Permian Basin will also have a great interest in the matchup before the week is out.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠7 ♠KQ10982 ♠88 ♠AJ

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now? A.—Your rebid of two hearts already told partner you have a minimum opening bid with at least six hearts.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠Void ♠Q87 ♠K855 ♠Q98742

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take? A.—With 7 points in high cards, you have to respond.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠92 ♠7 ♠QJ9752 ♠A1088

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take? A.—On this sequence partner promises a six-card heart suit, so we see no reason why three diamonds should be a better contract.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South

you hold: ♠QJ7 ♠88 ♠1092 ♠AK965

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now? A.—You have pretty good spade support, but you already took that into account when you responded at the two-level.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold: ♠AK888 ♠AK4 ♠AQJ ♠88

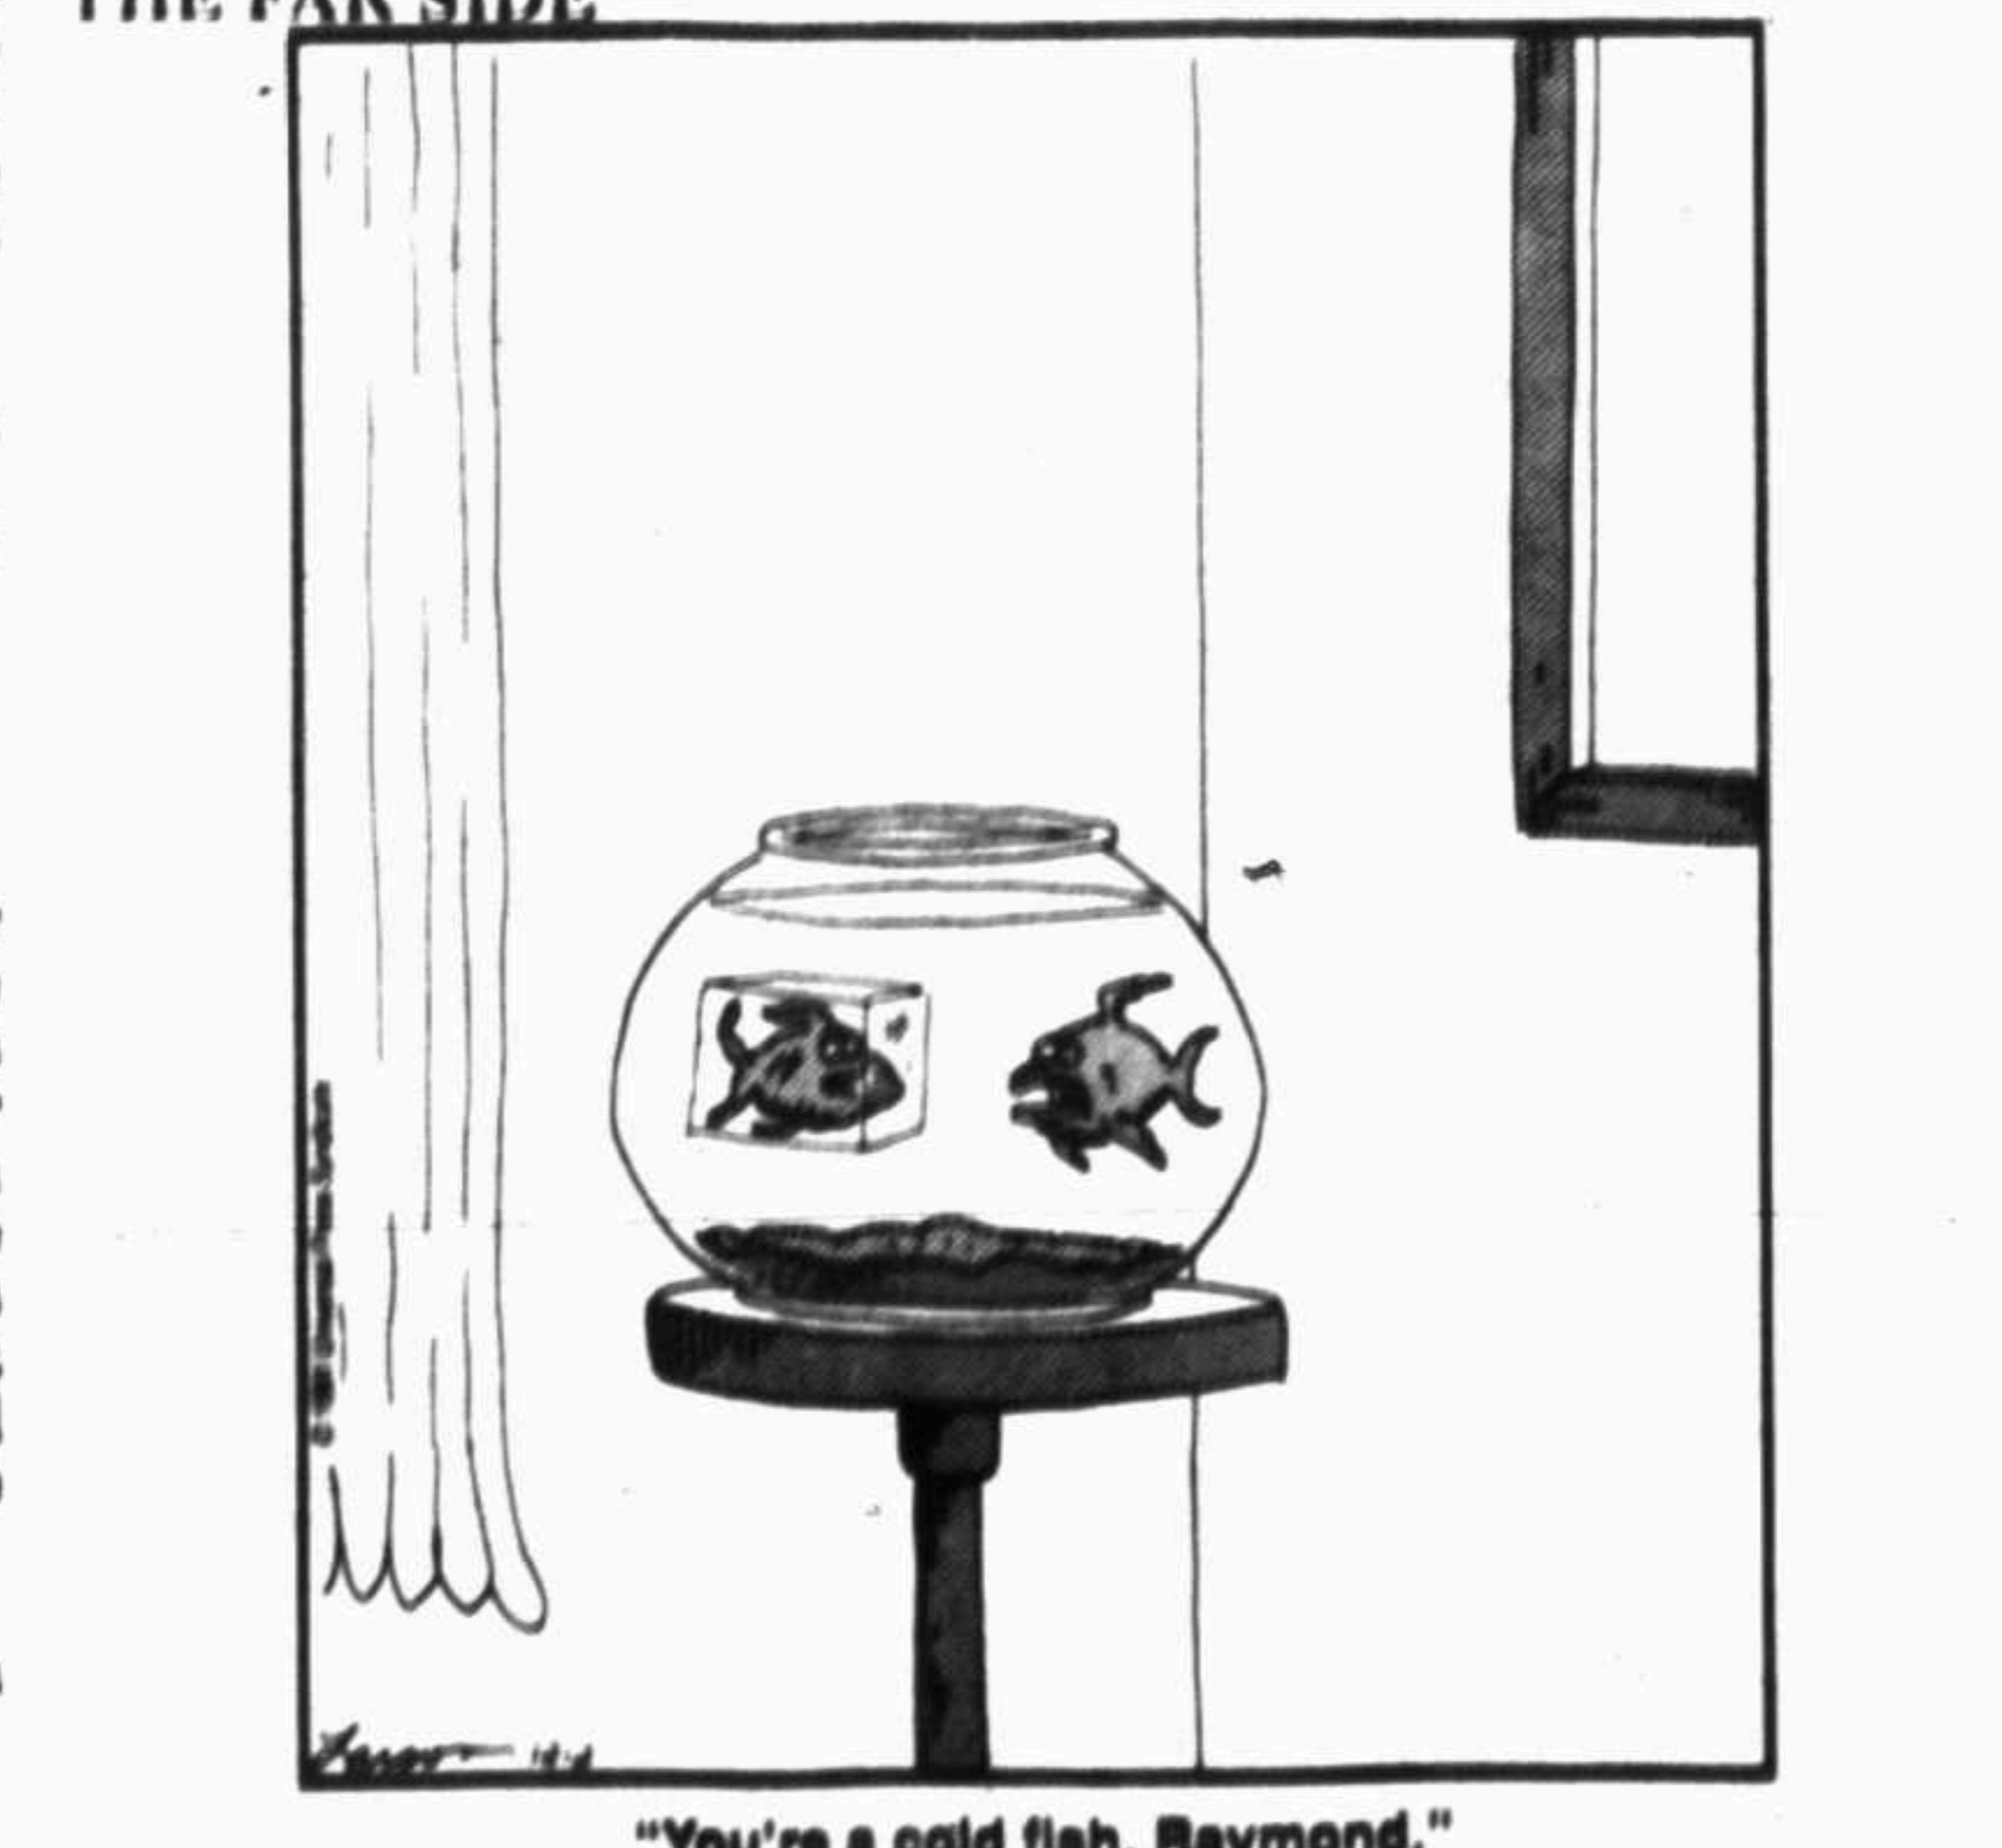

What is your opening bid? A.—We are not averse to opening two no trump on a balanced hand with one suit unstopped, but not when we hold a good five-card major. Since the hand certainly isn't strong enough for a demand bid, the only sensible action is to open one spade and hope partner can respond.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠K5 ♠KJ2 ♠AK8762 ♠K9

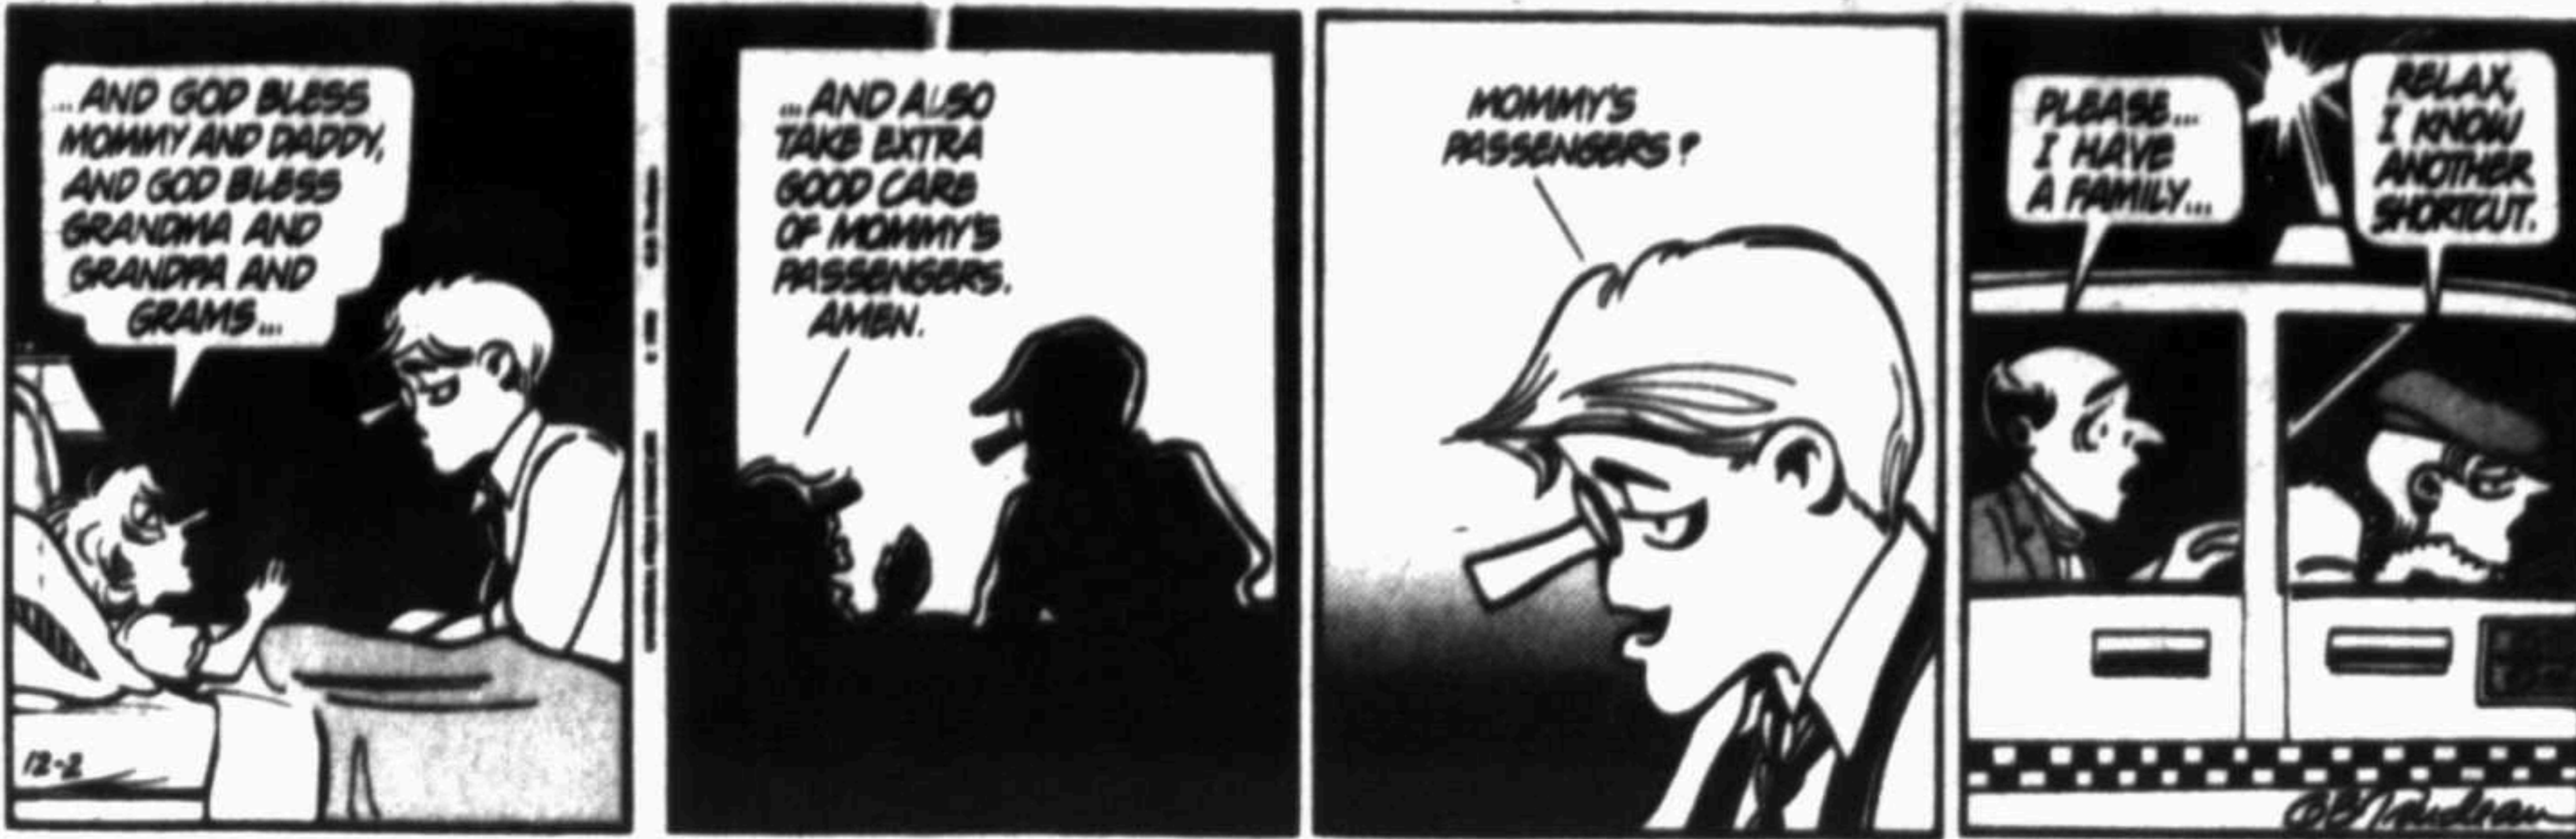

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take? A.—You could overcall two diamonds, but if your side does have a game it is far more likely to be three no trump than five diamonds.

Blind faith in Santa harmful, commentator Rooney says

RADNOR, Pa. — The Thanksgiving leftovers in the refrigerator haven't even gone bad yet and Andy Rooney is already trashing Santa Claus.

In this week's TV Guide, the CBS News commentator said blind faith in the red-suited, roly-poly reindeer wrangler is harmful. "There is no Santa Claus, Virginia..." Rooney said he would have written in response to the famous letter to The New York Sun in 1967. "The sooner you give up on the idea that you can get something for nothing and learn to make it on your own, the better off you'll be. Forget the fairy tales." Rooney doesn't even believe Virginia wrote the letter, since its reference to her "little friends" is unlikely from an 8-year-old. Her father probably wrote it, he said. "Our early indoctrination in ideas like Santa Claus is what leads people to buy lottery tickets at odds of several million to one," Rooney said.

NEW YORK — Jimmy Stewart said he doesn't want his life story on the silver screen.

"I would just do everything I could to talk them out of making a movie of my life," Stewart, 83, said in the Dec. 9 People magazine. "I've had an interesting life, but things like my time in the war, I wouldn't want to talk about."

Stewart was a bomber pilot in World War II.

MADRID (AP) — Blaming Christopher Columbus for colonial abuses against American Indians is like blaming the Inquisition on Jesus, said Gerard Depardieu, who will play the explorer in "Columbus."

The French actor said Columbus was a romantic adventurer and an artist. "I don't understand why he has to have any responsibility for the Black Legend of the conquest," said Depardieu told the newspaper El Pais in an interview published Sunday, a day before cameras were to roll.

"Columbus discovers — his sailors will do things for which he is not guilty. It's what we attributed to Jesus Christ the responsibility for the Inquisition."

Authorized by Pope Gregory IX, a battle heresy in 1281, the Inquisition used torture to extract confessions from people accused of witchcraft, alchemy and unorthodox thinking.

The responsibility for composing a piece of music to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor was awesome, according to John Duffy, who wrote "Time for Rememberance," a symphonic song cycle that will be performed in Honolulu on Saturday.

"You feel that you must find some way to people's hearts, to hit them in the guts, to not hold back and not be sentimental," said Duffy, who was commissioned by the U.S. Department of the Interior, the National Parks Service and the U.S.S. Arizona Memorial.

Duffy said he began composing the work "just as the Persian Gulf war was starting, not an auspicious day to honor the war dead of 50 years ago." On the day he completed it, he said, "I opened the newspaper and saw a picture of Hiroshima with 1,000 candles on the lake."

One goal the Emmy Award-winning composer kept in mind was the desire to reach survivors of the victims of Pearl Harbor. "There will be survivors there, fathers and mothers of men on the U.S.S. Arizona, brothers and sisters," he said. "I wanted to speak to them through music, to respect and express to them some sense of healing."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The farewell concert of the mother-daughter country duo the Judds was set for Wednesday and will be broadcast live in a pay-per-view television special.

Naomi Judd, 45, is retiring because of chronic hepatitis, a sometimes fatal ailment. She plans to become a spokesman for the American Liver Foundation and write an autobiography.

"I want to go out with class and dignity," she said.

Her daughter, Wynonna Judd, 27, will go solo.

The concert will be "a huge party for my mom — a going away party."

LOS ANGELES — Thomas Kent Carter, who played a teacher on the NBC television series "Funky Brewster," was arrested after allegedly stealing a car and taking police on a high-speed freeway chase.

Carter, 36, posted $10,000 bail Sunday.

Sgt. Ron Waugh said the chase began early Saturday when Carter walked up to a woman in her driveway and demanded her luxury car. When she refused, he allegedly hit her in the stomach and took the vehicle, Waugh said.

Red Raiders end on up note

Associated Press

Had the Texas Tech Red Raiders started the season the way they finished it, maybe they'd be the ones representing the Southwest Conference in the Cotton Bowl.

But Tech started out 1-4 before closing out the season with five victories in its last six games, including a wild 52-46 victory over Houston Saturday.

That buried the Red Raiders, who watched the steady Texas A&M Aggies (10-1, 8-0) walk through the conference unscathed on their way to meet Florida State (10-2) on New Year's Day.

Still, the late season run gave Tech a second-place finish in the conference and hope for better times in 1992.

"We didn't win enough to go to a bowl game, but we're thrilled getting the win and beating Houston in the Dome," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "That puts a good notch in our gun."

Also Saturday, Tulsa escaped Ownby Stadium with a 31-26 victory over Southern Methodist.

On Thanksgiving night, A&M wrapped up their 16th SWC title with a 31-14 thrashing of last year's champ, Texas, which has now had three losing seasons in four years under David McWilliams.

The Cotton Bowl lost any national championship implication when Florida State fell to Florida 14-3 in Gainesville Saturday. The Seminoles, top-ranked for three months before losing to Miami 17-6 two weeks ago, have dropped two straight and fallen to No. 5.

The ninth-ranked Aggies have won nine in a row since losing to Tulsa 35-34 on Sept. 21.

Other SWC teams in bowl games are Baylor (8-3), which plays Indiana Dec. 31 in the Copper Bowl at Tucson, Ariz., and Arkansas (6-5), which faces Georgia in the Independence Bowl Dec. 31 at Shreveport, La.

The Razorbacks, who leave for the Southeastern Conference next year, started their farewell SWC tour with four victories before suffering four straight defeats.

For the Houston Cougars, Saturday's loss epitomized a season of disappointment following preseason talk of a run at the national title.

The Cougars finished 4-7 overall, 3-5 in the SWC — not that record-setting quarterback David Klingler had a bad year, just a bad line. And a porous defense that negated his many accomplishments.

This year, Klingler completed 278 of 496 passes for 3,388 yards, 29 touchdown passes and 17 interceptions, finishing his career with 726 completions on 1,262 passes for 9,430 yards.

Klingler threw six touchdowns and passed for 533 yards against the Raiders, but Tech's Robert Hall threw touchdown bombs of 95 and 80 yards to Rodney Blackshear and led the Red Raiders to the numbers that counted the most, the ones on the scoreboard.

Blackshear caught five passes for a school record 251 yards.

Hall, who also rushed 35 yards for a touchdown during a third quarter surge, completed 13 of 24 passes for 388 yards. He ran for 96 yards on 16 carries.

Klingler completed 40 of 71 passes but threw two interceptions and lost a fumble.

"Our job on offense is to score enough points to win and we didn't do that, so it's our fault," Klingler said. "We're not going to point fingers at anyone."

Houston's heartbreaker followed a 49-45 loss to Texas Christian the week before.

"We scored 45 points last week and got beat and we scored 46 this week and lost," Houston coach John Jenkins said. "That's hard to imagine. Without a doubt, defense will be a priority in the off-season."

While the Cougars were scratching their heads over a disastrous season, the Red Raiders' talk was filled with hope.

Baylor and Arkansas tied Tech as conference runners-up with 5-3 marks, followed by Texas and TCU (7-4, 4-4), which suffered debilitating losses at quarterback for the second straight year.

Rice (4-7, 2-6) finished behind Houston in seventh place, followed by SMU, which hasn't won a league game since the NCAA death penalty stripped the program in 1987.

McMahon wins over Eagles

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Jim McMahon has played his way to the hearts of his Philadelphia Eagles teammates.

McMahon will try to unite the Eagles' offense Monday night against the Houston Oilers, AFC leading defense with a glitzy knee and a sore elbow that plagued him all season.

His performances have earned the respect of his teammates, who weren't sure what to think of the controversial quarterback when he signed as a free agent.

"My impressions of him have changed tremendously," defensive end Reggie White said. "My attitude changed to the point where I had to personally apologize to him."

"When he was with the Bears, I liked him as a person but I didn't like his image. I made some comments about that. When he got to Philadelphia we saw what a good person he was and he got along with everyone."

McMahon has also made an impression on opposing defenses, helping the Eagles (7-5) on a four-game winning streak with a shot at making the playoffs. He stepped in when Randall Cunningham was lost for the season in the first game of the year.

"I had never met him before," Eagles coach Rich Kotite said. "I don't think that he was ever what he was perceived to be. He's the ultimate team player. I think the players were thinking the same thing as me, 'I wonder what kind of guy he is.' He's himself and they respond to him."

McMahon, who led Chicago to the 1985 Super Bowl title, was placed on the Bears' Plan B list last season but the Eagles didn't hesitate to sign him as Cunningham's backup.

"We didn't feel that way (that McMahon's career was over) when we signed him and obviously, he's proven that he's not," Kotite said. "Even if he's not sharp from a standpoint of practice."

McMahon's injuries have kept him from working out most of the time but he's still found a way to score enough points for the Eagles to win with the aid of their top-ranked defense.

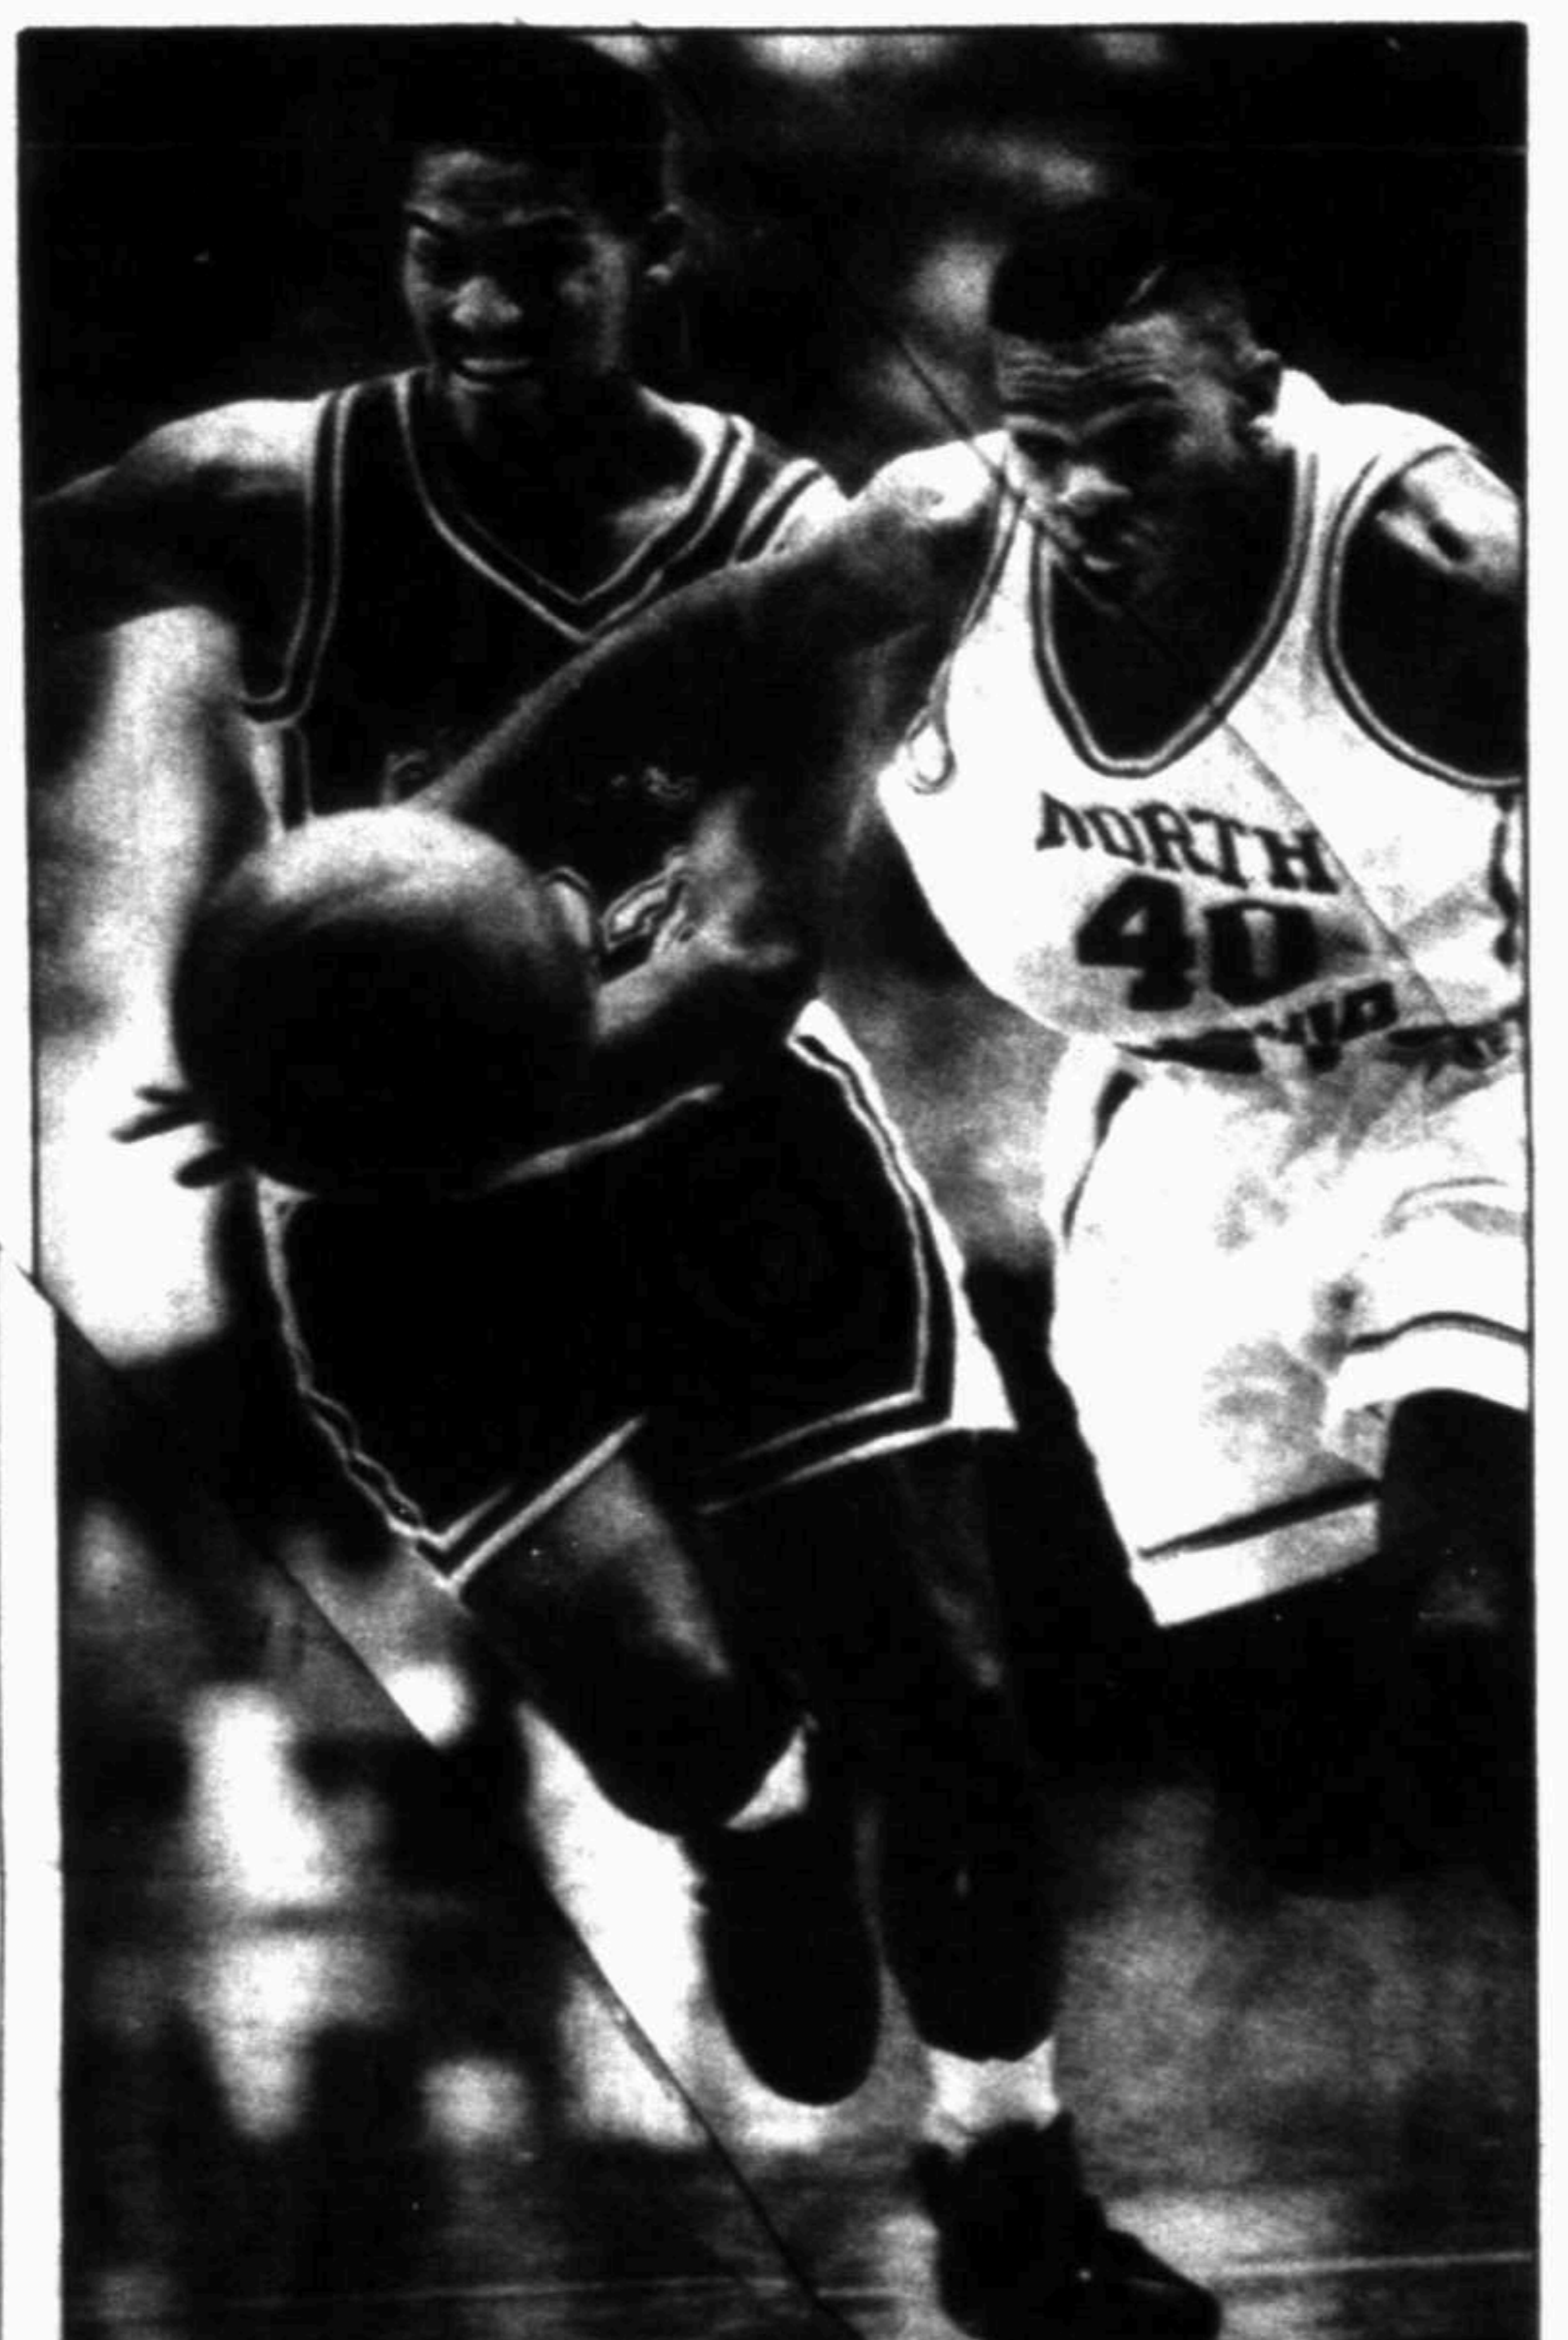

He's been a leader on and off the field since he arrived.

"I think he brought it last year even when he wasn't playing," Kotite said. "The players respect him very much. He's their guy. They know that he's not 100 per cent healthy and I think he inspires the people around him."

McMahon's injuries are a good measure of the Eagles' success. They lost four in a row when he missed most of four games after hurting his knee against Washington. They've won four in a row since he returned.

"Stepping in and playing with injuries has really boosted this team," White said. "We knew he could do what he's done in the past. We were just hoping he could do it the whole season because we believe with him in there we can go a long way."

The Eagles have remained in contention for the playoffs with defense. The Eagles rank first in the NFL in total defense, pass defense and run defense.

North Carolina's Hubert Davis (40) battles for a loose ball against Cornell's Shawn Maharaj.

UNC remains undefeated

Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Reserve Matt Wenstrom hit 10 of 12 shots from the field and scored 21 points as No. 6 North Carolina defeated Cornell 104-86 Sunday.

Cornell (0-3) took a 14-8 lead with 13:51 left in the first half, but Wenstrom tied the score at 17 with a jumper two minutes later and then scored on an offensive rebound with 10:41 left to put the Tar Heels ahead 19-18. North Carolina didn't trail again.

The Tar Heels (4-0) went on a 12-0 run that put them ahead 35-20 with 6:15 left in the first period and led 52-36 at the half. North Carolina ran away with a 12-4 run at the start of the second period.

Wenstrom, filling in for injured center Eric Montross, also grabbed six rebounds. North Carolina also got 18 points from George Lynch, 16 from Kevin Salvadori, 12 from Hubert Davis and 11 from Donald Williams.

The Tar Heels shot 60.5 percent from the field, compared to Cornell's 34.4 percent. Cornell also turned the ball over 25 times to North Carolina's 17.

Cornell was led by Jeff Gaca and Shawn Maharaj, both of whom had 13 points.

Montross will have his injured foot X-rayed Monday. The Tar Heels were also without Pat Sullivan, who injured his back Saturday. Sullivan was expected to be ready to play this week.

No. 16 Alabama 80, Virginia 69

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Lattrell Sprewell scored 30 points, and No. 16 Alabama broke open a close game with a late 13-1 surge to remain unbeaten with a victory over Virginia.

Alabama (3-0) went ahead for good at 67-65 with 5:32 remaining on two free throws by Robert Horry, who had 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Alabama took its biggest lead at 76-66 with 3:09 left on a fast break layup by James Robinson.

Virginia (2-1) led 39-36 at the intermission and the game was tied several times the second half before the Crimson Tide drew away.

TCU, 6-0, wins San Juan event

Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Unbeaten Texas Christian, led by Mark Moton's 16 points, beat Eastern Kentucky 55-48 Sunday night to win the San Juan Shootout and hand the Colonels their first defeat.

TCU (6-0) led 32-24 at halftime and 42-30 with 12:25 left when both teams went scoreless for three minutes. John Allen broke the drought for Eastern Kentucky (4-1) with 8:45 left, pulling the Colonels to 42-32. Allen led EKU with 12 points.

But the Horned Frogs outscored the Colonels 7-3 over the next five minutes, taking a 49-35 lead on a basket by Brent Alwater.

Any chance for victory by EKU expired in the final minute when forward Jamie Ross and head coach Mike Pollio were called for technicals after arguing a charge call.

TCU's Ken Fiedler and Junior Graves capitalized on the technicals and upped the lead to 54-43 with 44 seconds left.

TCU's Michael Strickland was chosen the tournament's Most Valuable Player while coach Moe Iba was picked as its top coach. Strickland scored six points in the championship game.

EKU's Chris Brown, carried off the floor on a stretcher during Saturday night's game against Miami, was on the bench Sunday but not in uniform.

With 12:50 remaining in the Saturday's semifinal, the reserve junior forward fell and twisted his neck.

MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

OPEN ASKED QUESTIONS:
Is it worthwhile for adults also? Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
• ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship, some make over $700 monthly! Some make over $1000 monthly! Some make over $1500 monthly! Some make over $2000 monthly! Some make over $2500 monthly! Get hard facts about one of the best sales careers in Midland.

Pitney Bowes is a Fortune 500 company entering a growth phase unprecedented in its history.

We're very selective about the people we choose to represent us. Our sales representatives are not "order takers". We need an aggressive, strongly self-motivated sales professional who either already has, or who can quickly acquire, an in-depth knowledge of business customer needs...and how our products can anticipate and meet those needs.

We're a company that's sales-oriented. Our 130 Branch and District Managers came out of sales. We're a company that invests heavily in training and supporting its sales teams. A company in which a person with drive has ample opportunity to reach a management-level position.

Have a sales record you're proud of? Have the ability to sell high technology products and systems in a highly competitive marketplace? We'd like to give you hard facts about your growth and earning potential with Pitney Bowes.

Please send confidential resume and/or letter outlining background and earnings history to:
