U. S. 180 WASHED OUT—The gaping hole in the highway above was made last night by waters of Bull Creek where it crosses U. S. Highway 180 about five miles east of Gail in Borden County. Frank Miller, who ranches north of the highway, reported nine inches of rain at his place. The Detours of about 100 miles are necessary in going from Snyder to Gail today. (Lee Watson photograph)

Heavy Rains Send Area Streams On Rampage, Wash Out Bridges

South Kent County Bridge Washed Out

Although Snyder received only light showers, heavy downpours of rain over the weekend in surrounding communities sent streams churning out of their banks, damaged roads and bridges, and gave Lake J. B. Thomas what may prove to be its biggest catch.

Roads north and west of Snyder were hard hit. Traffic was halted between Snyder and Gail when flooding streams swept away a section of U. S. 180 about six miles east of Gail. A culvert east of the Bull Creek bridge was washed out, and 150 feet of road was washed out eight feet deep.

To the north, the long bridge over the Double Mountain fork of the Brazos River in south Kent County was washed out.

Rainfall estimated as high as 12 inches deluged an area around Polar, while rainfall from nine inches to 11 inches was reported around Gail. Also, an 11-inch fall at the Miller Community, between Fluvanna and Gail, was reported. This presumably caused the flood which cut a swath across U.S. 180 east of Gail.

Deep Creek was running a swift stream through Snyder late Sunday as a result of rain in the north and northwest sections of Scurry County.

Rainfall ranging from three and one half to six inches was reported in the Fluvanna area, with the heaviest portion north and northeast of the town.

Snyder had only .87 of an inch for the weekend, according to the official gauge of David Strayhorn, weather observer.

Regular communications in an out of Gail were severed, and some Snyder School buses experienced difficulties in making their rounds this morning.

Near Lake J. B. Thomas, Bull Creek was reported three-quarters-of-a-mile wide at Knapp this morning.

At 11 a.m. today the lake level stood at 2,251.06 feet, which is 4.61 feet higher than last week. Water was still running into the lake, although the Colorado River and Bull Creek both had receded about a foot from their crest reached earlier.

Bull Creek, however, was still flowing around spillways of its diversion dam, which turns water into Lake Thomas.

The lake's total volume up to 11 a.m. represented over 155,000 acre feet. The present level 2,251.06 compared to 2,247.45 last week.

A Snyder School bus missed 27 pupils near Knapp this morning, because the pupils were unable to cross high water to reach the bus. Only one of five pupils who normally catch a school bus near Polar made it to the bus stop this morning. Another bus was stuck for a while near Ennis Creek, but it finally made it into town.

Truman Black, manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Snyder, said a mobile telephone unit had been stationed in Gail to handle emergency calls. The mobile unit went to Gail via Big Spring, since all roads from Snyder to Gail were impassable.

Black said the telephone company circuit to Gail was under water in places this morning.

"We won't be able to repair it until we can find it," he said. The mobile unit will remain in Gail until normal service is restored.

Snyder's weekend rainfall brought the total for the year here to 14.11 inches. However, some sections of Scurry County have received as much as 30 inches this year, nearly half of it over the weekend.

Rainfall at Lake J. B. Thomas itself, was light. Only .6 was measured at the dam, and .75 of an inch at the Odessa pump station on the south side.

Texas Pelted By Rains Up To 11 Inches

By The Associated Press

A cold front that couldn't make up its mind hung over northwest Texas today, touching off rain and showers that followed torrential rains Sunday.

Rains of up to 11 inches lashed north and west parts of Texas yesterday. Homes were flooded, bridges washed out and highways blocked. The rain - swollen Rio Grande and its tributaries threatened several south Texas cities.

Skies were cloudy over the whole state. Drizzle and fog were reported at Amarillo and Lubbock. Forecasts called for more rain and showers over the north and west.

The downpours were caused by a cold front that moved across Texas from the north nearly to the Gulf Friday, then became a warm front, reversed its field and went back into Oklahoma to the north. It cooled off again in Oklahoma and moved back into Texas Sunday as a cold front. Weather Bureau officials said such action was not unusual.

Rain yesterday lashed the state in an area north of a line from Texarkana to Waco, Abilene, Wink and northward into New Mexico.

In the south the swollen Nueces River raced a crest toward Cotulla and Aserton. The lower Pecos covered a bridge on U. S. 90.

The Rio Grande was expected to crest at 22 feet at Eagle Pass and at 19 to 21 feet at Laredo. Saturday night a crest at Del Rio, further upstream, closed the international bridge for several hours.

The area was the scene of a tragic flood last year that caused widespread destruction and took many lives.

Eleven inches of rain was recorded at the Bennie Garriker ranch in Kent County. Nine-inch rains were reported in the Abilene and Olney areas. Olney had a windstorm of tornadic force Sunday that demolished four business buildings and damaged several others. No one was injured.

Throckmorton and farm areas around Electra reported 8 inches of rain. Patricia had 9. Archer City had 7.50, Haskell 7, Aspermont 6.15, Olney 5, Electra 5.14, Wichita Falls 4.49, Graham 5.10, Burkburnett 4.70, Knox City 4.40, Stamford 3, Vernon 3.05, Seymour 4, Lamesa 2.61, Canyon 1.51, Quanah 2.3, Crowell 2.50, Henrietta 1.50, Hamlin 2.50 and Abilene 2.11.

A six-inch downpour washed out 300 yards of U.S. Highway 180 six miles east of Gail, county seat of Borden County. All roads in the vicinity were closed.

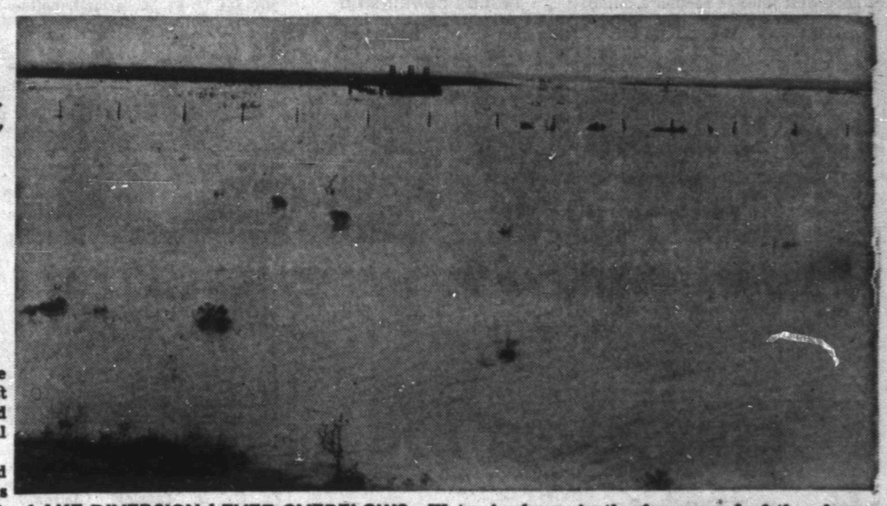

Substantial amounts of rain hit Wellington, Perryton, Ashtola, Lelia Lake, Clarendon, Paducah, Matador, Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Midland, San Angelo, Victoria, Waco, Alpine, Palacios, Childress and Wink.

Flooded roads north of Uvalde Sunday night marooned 27 persons, including two Texas Rangers, tre State Civil Defense Department said. All were being cared for by ranchers.

Water flooded out both the sewage disposal plant anl the city water plant at Graham. The State Health Department said it was sending 8,500 typhoid shots to the area. The city estimated Sunday it had an 18-20 hour supply of water.

Lytle Creek burst its banks at Abilene and about 300 persons were evacuated, some by boats. Twenty families evacuated at Olney when water rose to 4 feet deep in a housing project. The occupants were able to return later in the day, however.

Rains washed out secondary bridges and roads in many counties. Sixty bales of cotton were washed off the yard at a cotton gin at Neinda, near Hamlin.

LAKE DIVERSION LEVEE OVERFLOWS—Water is shown in the foreground of the above picture flooding over an emergency spillway at the north end of the Bull Creek diversion levee, which diverts water from the creek into Lake J. B. Thomas. Water was reported to also be going over an emergency spillway at the south end of the diversion levee, but the levee was still intact when waters began receeding this morning. Bull Creek was flooding about one half mile wide and several feet deep across Farm Road 1610 south of Knapp, and was at least three feet deep across the same road north of Murphy, making Lake Thomas inaccessible from the north. # Bomb Slaying Trial Opens

By GARTH JONES

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Harry L. Washburn went to trial today for the car-bomb slaying of his wealthy ex-mother-in-law.

Washburn was nervous but "confident" as the preliminary legal maneuvering began. The defense indicated it would demand the indictment be dropped.

"No motive" probably will be the plea.

Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver, 51, member of a pioneer West Texas ranch family, was blasted to bits Jan. 19 when she started her family automobile at her mother's home here.

Washburn, 38-year-old Houston contractor and former son-in-law of the Weavers, is accused of attaching 10 sticks of dynamite to the car's starter.

He has denied the charges. He was arrested Jan. 29, saying he was 400 miles away in Houston when the bomb exploded.

His attorneys have indicated they may base their case around the contention that Washburn has no reason to kill Mrs. Weaver or any other member of her family.

The state revealed in an April bond hearing that officers believed Mrs. Weaver was killed by mistake and the bomb in the car was meant for her husband, Harry E. Weaver, 60, world known architect.

Weaver, who says officers first considered him a suspect, told reporters that Washburn felt that the Weavers tried to interfere with their daughter's marriage to Washburn.

A special panel of 250 prospective jurors has been called for tomorrow at 10 a.m., although about 50 have already asked to be excused.

Women make up about half of the venire and probably will result in the first jury of the 51st District Court to include women.

Whether the defense and state can agree on a jury is another question. A request for a change of venue is possible although both sides have said previously they would be satisfied with a San Angelo trial.

District Attorney Aubrey Stokes said he would "just as soon" try the case here.

Cliff Tupper, one of the defense attorneys, said last week that the defense was ready for trial "the sooner the better."

More than 100 witnesses have been called.

One witness on hand—although he may not testify—is Andrew H. Nelson, 45, indicted with Washburn in the slaying. He is accused of showing Washburn how to rig a dynamite bomb to a car. But the indictment specifically says he was not present when Mrs. Weaver died.

Nelson was released on $10,000 bond May 12 but was immediately taken to the state penitentiary when his 1934 conditional pardon of a life sentence was revoked. He was given the life sentence in Lubbock after conviction as a habitual criminal.

He was returned here Sept. 17 for Washburn's trial but his attorney said he did not believe Nelson would testify against Washburn.

Former Commissioner Faces Charge Here

A charge of aggravated assult was filed in county court by county attorney Holt this morning against F. J. (Jones) Chapman, about 48, of Snyder.

The charge was filed on complaint of Truman Elder, 33-year-old oilfield worker who lives in North Snyder. The charge alleges that Chapman was at Elder's home and that he assaulted Elder with a Coca Cola bottle. The offense was alleged to have occurred at about 12:20 a.m. today.

Chapman, who was arrested by sheriff's deputy Bill Love, had not made any plea in court by late this morning.

A former county commissioner, Chapman was fined here in 1953 for being drunk in a public place and for assaulting an officer during his arrest.

Women Found By Searchers In Wilderness

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Two women, weak from exhaustion, hunger and thirst, were found by searchers yesterday in the Columbia River gorge wilderness where they disappeared seven days earlier.

Mrs. Avera Ferguson, 53, and her companion Mrs. Bernice Sharkey, 75, both of Portland, maintained they never had been lost.

"I knew where we were," Mrs. Ferguson told rescurers. "I just couldn't get us out of there. But we certainly were not lost."

They were reported missing by their families after they failed to return from a drive to the Larch Mountain area 20 miles east of here.

Last Wednesday their automobile, bogged down in the mud, was found on a side road in the heavily timbered country.

When two sheriff's deputies yesterday came upon the two women, still neatly dressed in the warm clothing they had donned for the ride, their first request was for water. They said they had not had a drink for six days and had been without food for a full week.

Occasionally sobbing with relief, they told how they spent the first night in an abandoned cabin in the area. They said they started down a trail the following morning and then became lost.

Mrs. Ferguson said they reached the bottom of a cliff. "There was a 15-foot sheer face of rock we couldn't get around and couldn't get over. We could see cars driving along the highway. We could hear the horns and see people. But we couldn't attract their attention," she said.

They spent the nights in a small cave. They said they were cold though dry. Fortunately, the weather in the area had been mild the past week.

At a hospital both were pronounced in good condition. They will be released soon, attendants said.

Organizer Of Seabees Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rear Adm. John Richard Perry, 56, organizer of the Seabees in World War II and chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks since 1953, died at his home here last night after a heart attack.

Funeral services will be held at the Ft. Myer, Va., chapel Wednesday. Later that afternoon the body will be removed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., where the admiral will be buried.

A native of Waco, Tex., Perry enlisted in the Navy in World War I and later graduated from the Naval Academy.

Salk Vaccine Report Is Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele said today "the picture looks very favorable" from available reports on the effectiveness of Salk antipolio vaccine.

The head of the U.S. Public Health Service said the reports are still incomplete, fragmentary in some instances, and unanalyzed but they all indicate the vaccine has given protection in areas where polio has prevailed this summer.

"The published reports from health officials of New York state and New York City and from the state health officer of Oregon are very heartening and it is hoped the results in those areas are typical of the entire country," Dr. Scheele said in an interview.

The three departments he named had reported the vaccine appeared to have been 100 per cent effective among children given the full recommended three shots in 1954, when extensive testing was under way. They also reported favorable results so far this year.

"Those reports and all others we have received indicate the vaccine has given protection," Scheele said.

"However, we will have to have a longer time before the picture can be objectivly analyzed.

Police Investigating Theft From Egyptian

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Police are investigating the weekend burglary of an apartment occupied by an ex-army Captain from Egypt.

The burglary was reported by neighbors of Fouad Aref, 29, who was advisor in Egypt for C. B. Demille's "The Ten Commandments."

Aref told reporters he had been out with a "beautiful and well known Hollywood actress" but declined to identify her.

He said missing valuables included an $8,000 ring and cash.

TICKET SALES SET FOR SNYDER GAME

Reserved seat tickets will go on sale at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Chamber of Commerce office for the Snyder-Monterey game, which will be played in Lubbock Saturday night.

Art Nicholas, school business administrator, said that District 1-AAA this year made an exception in admission prices for the Lubbock and Amarillo schools, since those cities are dealing with both AAAA and AAA schools. Admission prices will be the same as those charged by the AAAA schools.

Reserved seats, which will be $1.50 each, will be north of the 50-yard line on the east side of Jones Stadium. General admission will be $1.25. Student tickets will be 30 cents at the school and and 60 cents at the gate. Adults who buy general admission tickets and students who buy 60-cent tickets will be entitled to end zone seats only.

The tickets will remain on sale at the chamber office through Friday and will be on sale at the school business office until Saturday morning.

Prospect For Recovery Of Ike Termed 'Good'

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

DENVER (AP)—Dr. Paul Dudley White said today that barring unforeseen complications, President Eisenhower's prospects for recovery from his heart attack "are reasonably good."

Dr. White was so satisfied with the progress of the President that he left immediately by plane for Boston. He is recognized as one of the country's top heart specialists.

He told a news conference after a final examination of the President that if Eisenhower's progress continues at its present rate he would be "physically able" to serve another term.

DENVER (AP)—A crack team of physicians maintained a meticulous watch over President Eisenhower today after describing his heart attack as "moderate" — neither mild nor serious — and his condition as "satisfactory."

Prayerful wishes for speedy recovery of the President, who will be 65 Oct. 14, poured into the temporary White House from all over the world.

At Fitzsimons Army Hospital, where Eisenhower was taken Saturday afternoon, there was no thought of the tremendous political impact of the heart seizure which stunned the nation and people all around the globe.

That concern—and it is huge—was left to Republican party leaders who until the President was stricken had almost unanimously refused to entertain the idea that he might not be available for a second term.

Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital, an eminent heart specialist who flew to Denver, said:

"Even if this is a mild case (and he later called it moderate), the President will have to take things easy for a couple of months. If he gets by the next two weeks, then you can say he probably will be all right."

"Another term for President is quite conceivable," he added before turning to Boston.

The attack seemed to have raised an overriding likelihood that Eisenhower would decide against seeking re-election. He said himself last Aug. 4 the state of his health would be an important factor in his decision.

Just a couple of weeks ago he told Republican chairmen from the 48 states to dismiss from their minds the idea of the indispensable man — and not to "pin your flag . . . tightly to one mast . . ."

Because, he said, "humans are frail and they are mortal."

Although cautiously favorable reports came from the hospital here, Eisenhower aides dealt with the question of whether presidential authority could be delegated to other federal officials in the event of an emergency. There is no question that some authority can be, but the White House asked the Justice Department for a formal legal opinion as to how wide the field may be.

A bulletin issued by Eisenhower's physicians at 9:10 p.m. last night said:

"The President is resting very comfortably. There is no change in his condition."

No change meant his condition still was "satisfactory" and that there had been no complications, as a midafternoon bulletin hal put it.

Doctors characterized the heart attack as "moderate" in the afternoon bulletin. It had been first described as a "mild coronary thrombosis," a clotting of blood in a branch of the arteries which supply blood to the heart muscles.

The designation "mild" was used only once—in the Saturday afternoon announcement that the President had been stricken. The switch to "moderate" came after he had been examined by White and another leading heart specialist who flew here from the East.

Break In U.S. Crime Trend Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says 1955 "may show a long overdue break in the upward crime trend of the past seven years."

Hoover reported a slight drop—of 0.7 per cent—in the number of major crimes committed in the first half of 1955 compared with the corresponding period last year.

The drop was so slight, however, that he said 1955 may be "the fourth consecutive year in which more than two million major crimes will have been committed."

Eisenhower Illness May Test Leaders

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The undetermined, possibly lengthy, convalescence ahead of President Eisenhower may test sharply the team spirit of which the administration is proud.

The process may make Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey more than ever the team's strong man.

Three great matters in which the President normally speaks the deciding word may be left to "committee government" to decide. These are military, foreign and budget policies.

Since no government policy can be implemented without money behind it, military and foreign policy decisions boil down to budget decisions, where Humphrey speaks loudest.

President Eisenhower has fallen ill just at the time of year when all the departments and agencies of the government are making up their individual budgets for presentation to the Budget Bureau. Disputes over spending levels that cannot be settled between Budget Director Rowland Hughes and department or agency heads are usually passed on directly to the President, or indirectly to him through the National Security Council. This year the Council decisions may carry even more weight than usual.

Final budget decisions usually are made in mid-December by the President.

Secretary Humphrey publicly expressed the conviction late in August that the administration "can and should" wipe out the now projected 1-billion - dollar deficit for this fiscal year, thereby balancing the federal budget for the first time since 1951.

It was reported, and never denied, that Secretary of Defense Wilson held a conference with service aides, chiefly of the Air Force—the big military spender—at Wilson's vacation home, at which it was determined that the military would see if it could pare a billion dollars from its current spending program.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford visited President Eisenhower in Denver subsequent to this report, and issued a statement that military spending levels for this fiscal year would be unchanged. He said also they should not be cut.

The main strain on the NSC policy team's harmony appears to be between Humphrey and the military over the amount of money the services need.

Egyptian Arms Deal Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is trying to counter with its own offer a Russian bid to sell arms to Egypt. Such a sale of American weapons would almost surely bring a hot protest from Israel.

The American offer was made on the theory that United States security would be weakened if Russia became an arms supplier to Middle Eastern countries.

Egypt was described as very much interested in the American offer but was reportedly seeking American financial aid to buy the military equipment.

Eight Governors Are Lining Up As Possible Stevenson Foes

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eight governors and several senators emerged today as potential contenders with Adlai E. Stevenson for a Democratic presidential nomination suddenly made attractive by the possibility that President Eisenhower may not run again.

There was a growing belief that Eisenhower, hit by a moderate heart attack in Denver Saturday, will not seek nor let himself be pressured into accepting a second term nomination.

That would leave the Republicans without a strongly entrenched candidate for the GOP nomination Republican talk has been limited largely to the hope that Eisenhower would run again.

Some Republican strategists saw Vice President Nixon having the strongest support from among the state chairmen, governors and others who make up the core of the Republican organiation, but they were not sure Nixon could win the nomination even with the blessing of President Eisenhower.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, former California governor and a former presidential aspirant, made it clear yesterday he has not changed his mind about refusing to run again.

His name sprang back into possible speculation along with those of former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, Sen. Dirksen of Illinois and two Californians who might cause Nixon trouble in his home state—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and Sen. William F. Knowland, minority Senate leader.

Some Democrats saw the possibility of Eisenhower's withdrawal as strengthening Stevenson's candidacy, though it touched off backstage activity by a covey of potential Democratic favorite son candidates.

In losing to Eisenhower in 1952, Stevenson polled more than 27 million votes, a higher total than any other member of his party had ever assembled in a presidential election.

Some Democratic strategists reasoned that if Stevenson could register such strength against Eisenhower, he might be expected to win a contest against any other Republican.

Among the Democratic governors, the name of Averell Harriman of New York led all the rest. Harriman already has received some intensive support for the nomination from Carmine DeSapio, New York national committeeman and Tammany Hall leader.

Harriman has said he is for Stevenson. But that has not precluded speculation that if he believes Stevenson cannot make the grade he will try for the nomination himself.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan stands out as another possibility. He probably would face even stronger opposition from Southern members of the party than either Stevenson or Harriman because of his participation in efforts to force the so-called "party loyalty" rule on the 1952 Democratic convention.

Some Democratic leaders have been talking of Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut as a possibility, and the name of Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio has figured for years in recurring speculation.

In the ranks of younger members of the party, Governors George M. Leader of Pennsylvania, Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Frank Clement of Tennessee are mentioned. In the minds of most party leaders, however, they are tabbed at this point as vice presidential material.

Among senators, only Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stuart Symington of Missouri and Richard Russell of Georgia are regarded as approaching top-flight possibilities.

Friends of Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota quietly are trying to form a Midwestern bloc that might make him a powerful factor in next year's convention.

5 Men Escape From Stockade At Amarillo

AMARILLO, (AP)—An intensive search for three of five men who escaped from the Amarillo Air Force Base stockade yesterday resumes at dawn today.

More than 20 state and county officers plus air base authorities searched this Panhandle area until midnight last night, when operations were dropped due to fog and cold. Two were recaptured.

The men—one soldier and four airmen—escaped yesterday afternoon. Lt. T. A. Stubbs said the men used a broomstick and a bed slat to force a door.

They ransacked a farmhouse seven miles northeast of here while the owner, Mrs. Lily Gano, was out and stole clothing and a rifle. Two of the airmen were caught shortly afterward.

Bob Miller, who lives in the area, reported that one of the men called at his home and asked to borrow an automobile, saying his had broken down. Miller recognized the clothing, which was taken from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Gano. He drove to the farm and found the prison clothes and the rifle missing.

Base officials said the two men recaptured were Airmen Elmer R. Wollard, 18, Washington, D.C. and William G. Rankin, 18. Milwaukee.

The two airmen still free were identified as Robert J. McCollom, 21, of Dixson, Tenn., and Jack Wyllis, 18, of Columbus, Ohio. The soldier was identified as Weldon Flanigan, 19, of Kenwood, Tex.

The Airmen were all in the stockade on AWOL charges, the base said, while the soldier was held for Fort Lewis, Wash., officials.

'Fact Sheet' Is Critized

NEW YORK (AP)—Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said today a Democratic National Committee "Fact Sheet" comparing Eisenhower and Truman fiscal policies is an "incredible document" put to confuse the voters.

"If this is an example of the Democratic party's 'facts,' the voters had better beware," Hall said in a speech prepared for the Union League Club.

"They are in for the greatest campaign of misrepresentation, distortion and twisting of fact in the Democratic party's history."

1-AAA Is Preparing For Loop Openers

A football fan never knows what to think.

Fans of District 1-AAA, after seeing what a scrap Lamesa put up aginst Midland at the beginning of the season, were figuring that team to be one of the rough ones this year. And it may still be. But what can you figure when Lamesa loses to an El Paso school?

Maybe Austin of El Paso really has something this year. At any rate, it had enough to beat Lamesa 20-12.

Then there is Sweetwater, which many still thought strong by virtue of the 20 points it scored against Abilene, and Stamford comes up and downs the Mustangs 20-7. Stamford, of course, is one of the state's stronger Class AA teams.

Right now it might appear that Snyder and Levelland are about the top-rated teams in the district. Levelland is beginning to look more impressive, especially after taking Littlefield 39-7 last Friday.

Palo Suro of Amarillo may be slightly stronger than figured, as may be Vernon. Palo Duro, even after fumbling all over the field, downed Enid, Okla., 13-6 Friday night, and Vernon took Pampa 14-13.

Big Spring and Plainview were in the losing ranks, the Steers losing to Ysleta, of all teams, 7-0, and Plainview falling to Dumas 21-13.

District play opens this weekend, and the openers will include Snyder at Monterey of Lubbock (Jones Stadium) Saturday night, Big Spring at Palo Duro of Amarillo Friday night, Plainview at Lamesa Friday night, Sweetwater at Levelland Friday night, and Vernon open.

A speedy junior back, Mike McClellan, led the Stamford team to its win over the Mustangs. Melelland and Don Wills made practically all the ground gain for Stamford. McClelland, Wills, and Ricky Giles each scored once for Sweetwater. Stamford was leading 13-0 at halftime. Sweetwater scored in the third period when Harroll Hobbs took the ball the last five yards of an 5-yard drive. Stamford recovered five Sweetwater fumbles, which accounted for part of Sweetwater's loss.

Big Spring got a workout on defense as Ysleta scored the only touchdown of the game, scored one more which was called back, and threatened seriously twice. Ysleta halfback Glenn Adams got the score for Ysleta.

The Dumas team, which had taken Palo Duro by one touchdown earlier in the season, edged Plainview in the third quarter of their game when Jim Anderson returned a punt 70 yards for a touchdown. Dumas scored first in the game when back Jim Tiner finished a 60-yard drive with a short punch into the end one. He got the second Dumas score in the third on a 20-yard run. Plainview scores were by Jesse McGuire, quarterback who sneaked through for the first to tie the score, and J. L. Caylor, who scored in the third in his team's attempt to catch up. Jim Boswell kicked the three extra points for Dumas, which has won three straight.

Palo Duro barely took the Enid team, scoring in the fourth when Drew Sparlin intercepted an Enid pass and ran it back 47 yards to score. Frank Brown converted following that TD to make it 13-6. Enid had moved out to score first in the game on a 19-yard run by Ray Robertson. That was in the third quarter. In the same period, Edward Mills took the ball the last two yards to tie the score 6-6.

Vernon moved from behind a 13-0 Pampa lead, and the extra point kicks of Keith Morris meant the difference in the game as Vernon won by one point. Pampa got the first score when Dickie Mauldin rturned a Lion punt 70 yards for the score and Cecil Rynolds converted. After leading 7-0 all the first half, the Harvesters made it 13-0 in the third when Mauldin went across tackle 24 yards to score. Late in that period, Vernon blocked a Pampa punt and recovered in the end one, and then early in the fourth Richard Christopher took the ball 54 yards for the tying score.

It was fullback Joe Kennedy who led Levelland to the big win over Littlefield. Levelland had already downed Brownfield 60-0 this season. Kennedy scored three touchdowns in the game, two of them punt runbacks of 70 and 47 yards. Halfback Jesse Sudderth scored twice in the game on runs of 55 and 27 yards and kicked two extra points. Littlefield scored with about two minutes left in the game when Mike Greer went around end 15 yards. Sonny Reeves got the other Levelland TD on a short run, while Jimmy Johnson got one conversion.

Lamesa opened scoring in its game with the El Paso team, with Doyle Chapman, quarterback, racing 34 yards on the sixth play of the first quarter. Carl Phelen made it 12-0 in the second when he went through the middle for 1 and another score. On the first play following that score, however, Austin's Terry Thomas, quarterback, moved 67 yards to score, with John Miele adding the point on a kick. About three minutes were remaining in that quarter when Austin's team recovered a Lamesa fumble 35 yards from the goal, and Norman Lane took a pass from there for another score. Miele kicked another point. In the third, Thomas carried 44 yards for another score.

Corpus Christi Has Winningest Team

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—The Corpus Christi Clippers ended up as the winningest team in organized baseball.

They took the first half and the second half and won the playoffs with loss of only one game in the Big State League race.

Then they whipped Pampa of the West Texas-New Mexico League four straight in the Little Dixie Series.

The Clippers ended the season last night by clouting Pampa 8-2 in the Little Dixie Series final game. It gave them eleven straight playoff victories.

The Clippers pounded 12 hits, including homers by Connie Ryan anl Leo Posado, and called on Herb Shankman to stop the Oilers when they threatened in the sixth inning. Shankman came in with the bases loaded and nobody out. He walked in one run but settled down to pitch 1-hit ball the rest of the way.

Newcombe, Ford Listed As Starters

By JOE REIHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Newcombe a huge right-hander who won 20 games for Brooklyn, and Whitey Ford, the little 18-game-winning left-hander who helped clinch the American League pennant for New York last Friday, will the opening game pitchers when the Dodgers and Yankees renew their World Series rivalry in Yankee Stadium Wednesday.

Odds-makers, who earlier had installed the Yankees a slight favorite, now have changed it to a "pick-'em affair" because of Mickey Mantle's pulled muscle, which threatens to sideline the star Yankee center fielder during the series.

Neither manager would go beyond his first-game hurler but it was expected that Manager Casey Stengel of the Yanks would name Tommy Byrne, another left-hander, to pitch the second game, also in the stadium. Then, the experts figured, he would come back with his right-handers, Bob Turley, Don Larsen and perhaps Bob Grim, for the three games at Ebbets Field.

Like most managers, Walter Alston of Brooklyn is reluctant to start a southpaw in Brooklyn, so it is likely he will call upon Johnny Podres, a left-hander, in the second game at the Stadium and save Billy Loes, Carl Erskine and perhaps Newcombe again for Ebbets Field.

Both clubs were slated to hold a practice session today at home. Tomorrow the Yankees will work out at Ebbets Field and the Dodgers at Yankee Stadium.

Alston was characteristically silent with the series just two days off, but Stengel was bubbling with optimism.

Terps Could Have Perfect Year Again

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

Unless they run into unexpected complications, the big, bad Terrapins from the University of Maryland could well glide through to their third unbeaten, untied season in the past five years.

While it's true that Jim Tatum's split T outfit doesn't play as tough a schedule as some of the other top teams, it's equally true that the Terps can beat the best—namely UCLA.

Maryland won victory No. 2 Saturday with a 7-0 decision over the defending Pacific Coast Conference champions. It was their toughest opposition on this year's schedule.

This week, Maryland visits Baylor of the Southwest Conference. Then, on successive weeks, they play Wake Forest, North Carolina, Syracuse, South Carolina, Louisiana State, Clemson and George Washington.

UCLA plays Washington State this week in their first Pacific Coast Conference game.

Notre Dame, another club that was overlooked in the preseason estimates, apparently has found someone to fill All America Ralph Guglielmi's shoes. He is Paul Hornung, a fine all-around offensive back. He directed the Irish attack in the 17-0 shutout of Southern Methodist.

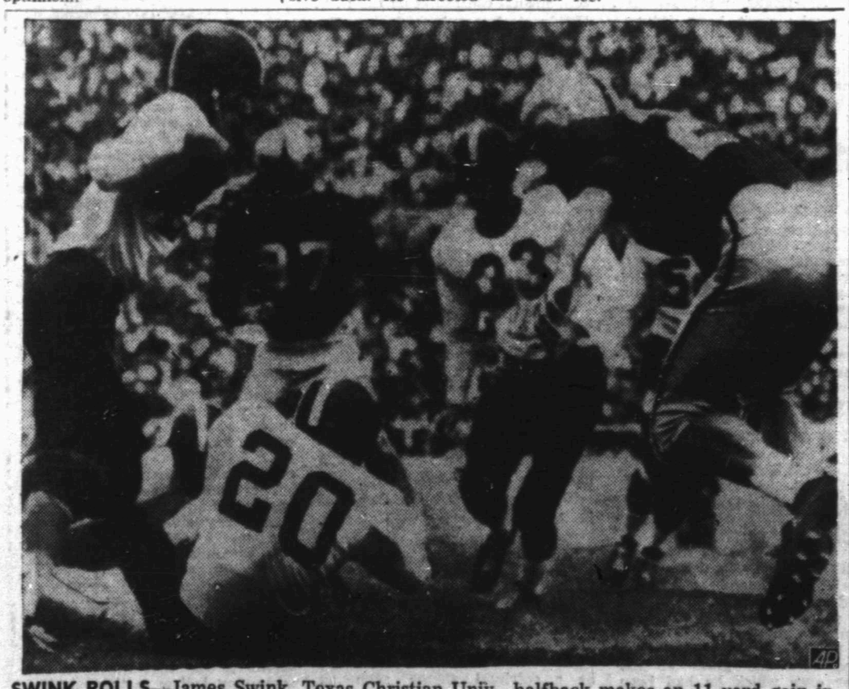

Duke appears to be the only team capable of giving Maryland a tussle for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. The two don't meet, so the title will be decided on what they do against the other teams in the league.

Oklahoma probably will win the Big Seven title as usual. They had trouble with North Carolina before emerging with a 13-6 victory for No. 20 in a row. But even if they are not as strong as usual, the rest of the Big Seven is weaker.

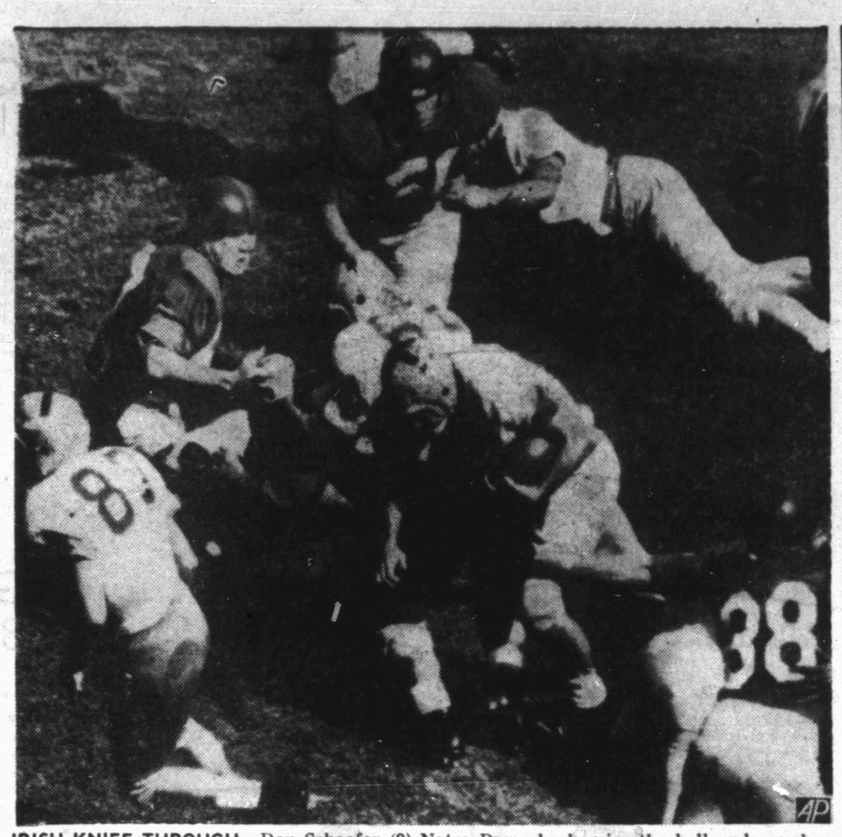

On the subject of streaks, both Kansas and Tulsa snapped long losing skeins. The Jayhawks held the dubious distinction of bringing a 17-game streak—longest in college football — into the game against Washington State. Kansas won it 13-0. Tulsa, which had lost 15 in a row, whipped Hardin Simmons 41-19.

Michigan, the Big Ten favorite, whipped Missouri 42-7. Georgia Tech, probably the best in the south, had some bad moments before downing Florida 14-7. Defending Southwest Conference king Arkansas sailed past Oklahoma A&M 21-0.

Bazil normally poduces moe than half the wold's supply of coffee.

SWINK ROLLS—James Swink, Texas Christian Univ., halfback makes an 11 yard gain in the game against Texas Tech at Lubbock. Ray Taylor (20) of TCU and Ronnie Herr (24) of Tech are in the play.

IRISH KNIFE THROUGH—Don Schaefer (9) Notre Dame back grips the ball and smashes through the Southern Methodist line for an 11 yard gain in the game at South Bend. Identifiable players in the action are: Smitty Keller 88 end; Lou Farris 56, center both of SMU and Dick Prendergast 87, end; and Pat Bisceglia 62, guard, of Notre Dame.

Majors Get Records At Start And Finish

By ORLO ROBERTSON
The Associated Press

The 1955 major league baseball season started and ended on a record note.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, newly crowned National League champions, started it by reeling off 10 straight victories—a major league high for triumphs at the beginning of a campaign.

And when Wally Moon of the St. Louis Cardinals hammered a home run off Chet Nichols of Milwaukee in the ninth inning yesterday two more records went into the books. It was No. 1,263 by National League batters and 2,224 by hitters of both leagues for new standards.

In between the accomplishment of the Dodgers and Moon's feat, which qualified his record-smashing bat for a place in baseball's Hall of Fame, there were enough other records and highlights to make 1955 one of the most interesting in years.

The Dodgers clinched their pennant on Sept. 8, the earliest date in history. And the New York Yankees pulled away in the final week after one of the closest battles in years.

Brooklyn wound up with a 13½-game advantage over the second-place Milwaukee Braves with the New York Giants, 1954 winners, another five games back. The Yanks beat the American League's defending titleholders, Cleveland Indians, by three games.

There was only one managerial change during the middle of the season. That was replacement of Eddie Stanky as pilot of the Cardinals by Harry Walker. But Leo Durocher stepped down Saturday after 7½ years at the helm of the Giants and was replaced by Minneapolis' Bill Rigney and Fred Haney was fired yesterday as manager of the Pirates.

Without any attempt to evaluate the importance of the performances, here are some of the other highlights of the year:

PITCHING

Don Newcombe (20-5), Dodgers, and Robin Roberts (23-14), Phillies, were only 20-game winners in either league. Roberts won 20 or more games for sixth consecutive year.

Herb Score, Cleveland, broke Grover Alexander's 1911 rookie record by striking out 211, including 16 Red Sox (high for the year) in one game.

Sam Jones, Cubs, hurled only no-hitter of season. Pirates were the victims.

Vernon Law, Pirates, pitched the longest game of the year, 18 innings, but didn't receive credit for victory when Pittsburgh won out over Milwaukee in 19th.

SW Schools To Be Responsible For Alumni Recruiting

By WILBUR MARTIN

DALLAS (AP)—The Southwest Conference was on record today that it would hold the various member schools responsible for athletic recruiting violations by alumni.

It also warned athletic staffs to read the rules on recruiting, understand them and live up to them.

The warnings were directed to unnamed schools involved in recruiting violations discussed at a special meeting of the conference's ruling committee here yesterday.

No specific school was named, nor was any specific case revealed in a brief statement read by Executive Secretary Howard Grubbs at the end of a seven-hour closed meeting.

Before the meeting, Texas, Southern Methodist and Baylor admitted minor, "technical violations" of the recruiting rules on transporting prospective athletes to and from visits to the schools.

Grubbs refused to confirm that these three and two others—Rice and A&M—were involved in the reports discussed today.

Rice Athletic Director Jess Neely denied any violations and A&M, already on two-year probation for its recruiting practices, declined comment.

None of the conference representatives would elaborate on the official statement.

Grubbs said some of the reports heard were based on material gathered by private investigators.

Asked if the conference had discussed hiring permanent investigators, Grubbs said "no conclusion" on this was reached.

The two types of cases discussed were:

1. Those of a technical nature by members of the athletic staffs regarding transportation and letters of intent (athletic contracts).
2. Those by friends or alumni of a member school.

In brief, the conference warned the coaches to learn the rules and abide by them.

It warned that member schools would be held responsible for the actions of "its friends and alumni" in recruiting.

Grubbs was also directed to officially inform certain "friends or alumni" of some schools to discontinue their recruiting activity.

League Wins Award

The independent, nonpartisan, privately financed Texas Research League has won the highest kudos in its field, the distinction of having done "the most noteworthy piece of governmental research" produced by any citizens' organization during the past year. The award, a national one, was made by the Governmental Research Association at its Atlantic City convention.

The job was a monumental one—the production of a fourteen-volume study report on Texas state hospitals, undertaken at the request of the Board of Texas State Hospitals and Special Schools. Seven of the League's own staff headed by Aris A. (Bob) Mallas Jr., flanked by professional consultants and voluntary consultants recruited from Texas private enterprise, tackled the chore, which contained recommendations whose purpose was to improve the administration of the system, brings its laws up to date, and effect operating economies.

So thoroughly did the league do its work that the 54th Legislature this year enacted most of the principal legislation called for in the league's report. It may take years to work out all the kinks invilved in so sweeping a reformation, but at least a start has been made.

Far from resting on its new-won laurels, the league has taken on an even bigger chore—a study and analysis of Texas' far-flung highway system, its construction, planning, financing and administration. This is a highly complicated problem, the biggest single operation in state government, and nobody understands all the angles simply because no concerted inquiry has ever been made into its many-sided operations.

That is where the Texas Research League can render another public service of the greatest importance, at a time when highway planning and construction is taking on new importance and urgency.

The job for which it received a national award was the league's first major research project, which speaks well for its organizational efficiency.

Red China Squelched

Exactly half the dozen member nations which voted to take up the matter of unseating Nationalist China from the Security Council and seating Communist China in its stead were Communist countries. Against them stood 42 other countries which supported the U.S. resolution not to consider the problem at all at the session which opened in New York Monday.

In blocking this sixth attempt to up the Reds and down the Nationalists the West didn't work up even a gentle sweat. Mr. Dulles never left his seat. Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the U. N., handled the chore quite easily. He was promptly supported by Britain's Minister of State Anthony Nutting, who said Britain feels now as it did last year that reopening the controversy would do more harm than good.

And that was that. Even Molotov had himself made a perfunctory motion to effect the exchange of Red for Nationalist China. In sharp contrast to past occasions, he spoke temperately and with out the usual invective, probably in furtherance of the Russian "new look."

Indonesia, which abstained from voting last year, voted this time on the side of the Soviet bloc. Besides Russia, the other nations supporting the Communists were Burma, White Russia, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, India, Norway, Poland, Sweden, the Soviet Ukraine and Yugoslavia.

Israel, Afghanistan, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yeman abstained.

Molotov went into action 12 minutes after the tenth annual General Assembly session opened, but he came like a lamb in contrast to previous efforts to seat Red China on the Security Council. He noted that the Big Four Geneva conference had created a "more auspicious" atmosphere for the current session, then said in mild terms that the Assembly could further relax international tensions by giving Red China her "legitimate rights."

Red China shot her way into Korea, but she hasn't been able to shoot her way into the United Nations. In pursuance of the "new look' among the Communists, she is making civilized noises, but she still has a lot to atone for.

'Civilization Sickness' May Be Cause If You Suffer Fatigue Without Reason

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you suffering from "civilization sickness?"

You probably are if you find yourself getting fatigued without reason, irritated over trifles, and unjustifiably critical of yourself, your friends and members of your own family.

Every culture develops its own typical ailments. The typical ailment of America today is tension and strain, a condition which some theorists believe is the main cause of our growing crop of ulcers, heart attacks, divorces, and other diseases.

But what causes the tension? It isn't the difficulty in solving man's age-old problems of food, clothing and shelter. It really isn't overwork either, in my opinion, nor the result of too much ambition.

The average man isn't overly ambitious. And never in history before has he been able to achieve so comfortable an existence with so little labor.

Then what makes him so weary and cross, so upset and impatient, so afflicted with gray nameless ailments that puzzle his doctor because the doctor probably has them, too, and doesn't know what to call them?

I think that our "civilization sickness" is no more than the penalty of feeling endlessly crowded. We are like a man with a 40-inch waist who insists on wearing a 36-inch belt. No wonder we are unhappy, bilious in temper, and see spots in front of our eyes. They aren't spots—they're people.

Actually, of course, we are more crowded. Our population has leaped from 75 million in 1900 to 165 million in a 55-year period in which millions also have fled the old monotony of farm life for the false glamor of the teeming cities.

But much of our crowdedness is unnecessary. It results from one thing: everybody wants to do the same thing at the same time. They all want to work what used to be called bankers' hours—9 to 5; they all want to play on the same weekend days.

Whatever a man tries to do he finds himself hemmed in by the growing herd.

He goes to and from work standing up in a packed bus because everybody wants to work from Monday to Friday. He finds his night clubs and motion picture theaters jammed on Saturday nights, because that's the night everybody wants to kick up his heels.

On Sundays (unless it's raining) he worships in a thronged church or tries to putt on a golf green that looks like a political convention. Driving to the beach through maddened Sunday traffic he feels like a charioteer in "Ben Hur"; the beach itself resembles Dunkirk just before the evacuation began.

Whatever he does — from awaiting his turn at a luncheon counter to parking his car in a lovers' lane — a man has to wait in line, has to fight for his place. He is elbowed, pushed, and shoved; he elbows, pushes and shoves back. The result: general bickering, confusion, frustration; more acid stomachs, more headaches; and finally more ulcers, heart attacks and apoplexy.

The solution is as simple as it is inexplicable that it already has not been applied: break up the ancient pattern by which men work at the same time, play at the same time.

This can be done by putting civilization on a 7-day week. Why shouldn't offices and factories be manned 16 hours a day, each 8-hour period utilizing half its present staff? This would reduce rush hour traffic, cut down on the parking problem, and make for a general easier tempo in living.

With more people working on Saturday and Sunday, and more of them taking their days off in the middle of the week, the weekend pressure on pleasure resorts would automatically lessen. It shouldn't be too hard to adjust to: a church can be just as inspiring on Thursday as on Sunday. So can a golf course or a beach.

All it takes to give Americans a more leisurely, unhurried, uncrowded life — and cut down on the toll of the "civilization sickness" — is to break with a few outmoded traditions.

How soon we will do it I don't know. But I do know one thing: the only sure way a man can keep a good digestion and a serene disposition today is to run away from home and become a hermit.

Danes Go All Out To Keep Andersen Relics Protected

BY INEZ ROBB

ODENSE, Denmark. — This delightful city on the delicious island of Funen or Fyn (which Danish map do you buy?) is the Stratford-on-Avon of de-lovely Denmark. And it must, if one hopes to make friends and influence Danes, be approached as is matrimony, "reverently and in the sight of God."

For Odense is the home of Denmark's greatest literary hero, Hans Christian Andersen. The two aspects of their national life which the polished Danes, who are addicted to dancing and light beers, take with deadly seriousness are Andersen and their pastry. They will stand no nonsense about either!

So I now realize how lucky the United States was to escape war with Denmark when Danny Kaye offended the sensibilities of the nation by stretching himself out in Andersen's bed when he was shown through Andersen's home and the Andersen museum a few years ago, shortly after he completed his film portrayal of the great writer of dour fairy tales.

Fortunately for the sensibilities of the offended Danes, anti-quarians discovered shortly after the bed's desecration that it was, after all the fuss and hullabaloo, NOT really Hans Christian Andersen's bed, after all!

So the Kaye bed was promptly consigned to the museum attic and the proved and unprofaned bed set up in its place. But in the interim, to prevent such distressing incidents in the future, the museum authorities have erected walls of glass around Andersen's charmingly Victorian furniture.

Now, unless some maniacal movie actor breaks through the plate glass, the Andersen relics are safe from all but time and tide.

The Danes have to take the bitter with the bitter, and they are delighted that Mr. Kaye's movie impersonation of Andersen, despite the liberties taken by both the actor and the script writers, has brought hordes of tourists to Odense and the charming Andersen museum.

I have had even longer thoughts about another famous Danish literary figure ever since I visited Elsinore and Kronberg Castle, the fantastically beautiful Renaissance pile to which that melancholy Prince of Denmark, Hamlet, was heir.

For centuries, deep thinkers have been writing endless tomes to prove that he was a neurotic, mixed-up kid whom a good head shrinker could have unkinked in 10 easy couch sessions.

Well, sir, I wish to enter a strong dissent: Hamlet was crazy as a loon and should have been locked up in those big dungeons under Kronberg. Anyone who stood to inherit as beautiful and big a piece of real estate as Kronberg, who was betrothed to Miss Denmark of 1492 (or whenever it was) and chose instead to stage a St. Valentine's Day massacre really was a strait-jacket case.

Any sensible character would have banished his mother and step-father to one wing of the huge castle, assigned Banquo's ghost to another, and then have settled down and married the girl. A real stupe, this Hamlet! I would have made peace with the devil himself to live at Kronberg!

By the way, Hamlet has been a great lesson to the Danes: as far as I can see, none of them has been melancholy since.

And, finally, just one word about a semi-Danish character: if you want to get along with the Danes, for heaven's sake, don't even mention Christine Jorgensen!

Quick-Acting Remedy For Agriculture Ills Would Be Welcomed By Republicans

By DAVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Reporter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Republican leaders worried about next year's farm vote would welcome with open arms a quick acting remedy for agricultural ills that could be adopted as their very own.

Party leaders from the White House down generally agree that the administration must come up soon with something that will turn a slide in farm income into a climb. The agility with which Democrats have seized upon the issue and complaints coming from politically important farming areas have convinced them of this.

Much as the Republicans would like to find something fundamentally brand new, the chances are poor indeed. The possibilities have been pretty well canvassed in the past.

To bring about an improvement in farm returns before next year's elections, the administration must channel more dollars into farmers' pockets.

When Secretary of Agriculture Benson got his farm program under way, he expressed belief that it would — if given time—help agriculture to adjust from the abnormally high levels of war and postwar farm production to a more nearly normal peacetime level. He conceded that there would be some price and income declines during the period of adjustment.

Agriculture, he declared, would wind up fundamentally sound with farmers under a minimum of government control.

But the secretary now agrees with party leaders that something more needs to be done to keep farm income from dropping any lower during the adjustment period.

Reduced to their simplest terms, there are only two ways of boosting farm income. One is to raise prices. The other is to pay subsidies.

Both have formed the basis of past farm programs and both run counter to general philosophies and policies of the Eisenhower administration.

Unless there is a change in administration thinking, plans which would increase farm income by raising prices will be rejected. There is only one way by which the department could raise prices and that is by jacking up farm price supports on products now being supported and by placing supports under a wide group of commodities not now protected by props.

Benson has said there will be no abandonment of the administration's flexible support system under which price floors are low in times of surpluses, to discourage overproduction and to encourage greater consumption, and high in times of shortages, to encourage expanded production. It also is against the administration's policy to support prices of livestock, poultry, fruits and vegetables—big sources of farm income—because of their perishable nature.

GOP Taking A Gamble In Building Plans For Ike

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) —Republican party chiefs are taking the big gamble. They are planning for the 1956 presidential campaign on the assumption that President Eisenhower will agree to seek a second term.

To scramble a few metaphors, the GOP command is out on a limb—ready to sink or swim with their eggs in one basket.

At Republican national headquarters they say very candidly that there is just the one basis for all the preliminary campaign groundwork — and it is progressing rapidly.

L. Richard Guylay, GOP publicity chief, says: "The national committee is proceeding on the assumption that President Eisenhower will be the Republican candidate."

After the recent meeting of GOP state chairmen in Denver, some party leaders weren't so sure. Eisenhower warned them not to nail their flag so securely to one mast that if the ship sank, they couldn't rip it off and tie it to another.

But GOP National Chairman Leonard Hall listened to everything the President had to say—and then announced he was more convinced than ever that Eisenhower would again head the ticket.

Actually, Republican leaders are ignoring Eisenhower's advice. They are nailing their flag securely to the Eisenhower mast while planning to capitalize on his personal popularity and the theme of "peace and prosperity."

Under these circumstances, it will place the Republicans on a fearfully embarrassing spot should Eisenhower not choose to run.

Those who think he won't make a second race put up this argument: Eisenhower is now 64. He may want to turn the job over to a younger man and retire to his Gettysburg farm, where he can enjoy the last years of his life. They also say Mrs. Eisenhower has had enough of the White House and doesn't want the President to shorten his life with another four years of the crushing burden of the presidency.

But on the other side, they argue Eisenhower has a high sense of duty and that his duty is to remain in the White House another four years to carry out the program he has begun. They argue Ike won't let the party down and that he has come to the point where he enjoys his job as well as the political game.

In the midst of such uncertainty, the Republican chiefs appear confident they know their man and what he will do at the proper time. One of them said: "We think we know our candidate — and the Democrats don't. This gives us an advantage in planning the campaign."

'Dirty Air' May Be Cause Of World-Wide Warm-Up

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Air pollution is accused of many things—choking city residents, souring tourists, stunting flower gardens, unravelling stockings.

Now there's talk that dirty air may be the secret of the apparent warming up of the world's climate in recent years.

More than 100 laboratories are working on specific phases of the pollution problem. Oil industry scientists, for example, have brought out a new gadget for measuring and identifying impurities in the air. They hope to find out how auto exhausts, wastes from burning rubbish, fumes from industrial smokestacks react to other things in the air.

Factories are installing more and more equipment to hold down air pollution. Cities debate complex and expensive schemes for clearing out smog pockets.

Besides the toll in human comfort, air pollution costs untold sums in property damage.

Now, Dr. John G. Hutton of General Electric's engineering laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y., says all this bad air may be "having a greenhouse effect on our climate."

The industrial scientist charges that man is "contaminating the earth's atmosphere faster than nature can clean it." This pollution pumps up a belt of carbon dioxide encircling the earth which acts like a blanket—or a greenhouse.

The idea that the dirty air is having a greenhouse effect and warming up the climate will be studied, Dr. Hutton says, by many scientists during the International Geophysical Year in 1958.

Henry M. Margolis, president of Schmieg Industries, a Detroit producer of industrial equipment for removing dust and fumes, says the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to work with groups set up in individual communities throughout the nation to seek a unified approach toward the growing air pollution menace.

The scientists say if they can find out what really happens in the air they may in time find a way to eliminate air pollution.

Maybe then we'll get our old climate back.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Adoption Is Becoming Increasingly Popular

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Being a parent today is more popular than ever. More Americans want families. People who can't have children naturally have the same desires. Thus adoptions are becoming increasingly popular.

Today they are socially approved. This is in sharp contrast to 25 years ago when adoptions were more of a hush-hush matter: an adopted child was suspect, often pitied, and expected to be eternally grateful for his good fortune.

The subject of adoptions in this country is of widespread interest right now. There have been charges that although there are plenty of children to go around, unreasonable restrictions involving age, religion, and culture are keeping thousands of available children from would-be adoptive parents; that couples unable to meet qualifications set up by placement agencies, are impatient at the long periods required by legal and investigative procedures, are turning to black, or gray markets to get a child.

In order to get an up-to-date, over-all picture on this subject, I talked with Miss Margaret Thornhill, special consultant on the U. S. Children's Bureau's project on Unprotected Adoptive Placements, which has been conducting a nation-wide survey since it was set up in October 1954.

Latest census figures show that 95,000 children are in institutions. Most of these children have parents who have not relinquished them for adoption. Some 150,300 are born out of wedlock each. Of this number 96,000 are non-white, predominatly Negro.

"The demands for children to adopt centers on the young, white infant," Miss Thornhill explaines. "There are relatively few of these available."

Hollywood Today

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This week Bob Hope was filming the first of eight TV hours he'll do this season, including one in London and another in Paris. He'll also make two or three pictures in the coming year.

"And I'm the guy who was going to retire last year," he laughs.

"I was down in Palm Springs playing golf with my first agent, Charlie Yates," Bob related. "Charlie dropped dead right in front of me. He lay there stone cold for 20 minutes until they came for him.

"It didn't really affect me for three days. Then the shock set in. I was terribly upset. Then I thought I was dying. About this time, NBC came to me with a new contract deal. I told them nothing doing; I was retiring."

The depressed Hope went to his doctor for a complete physical. That's when his spirits changed. "He told me to get out of his office," Hope said. "In fact, he chased me down the street. I was too healthy."

As a result, he signed a new pact with NBC calling for eight TV shows a year. His first one, Oct. 4, will be on film because Hope will be making a movie, "That Certain Feeling." He reported that six of the shows will be revues, two of them plays. He'll do "Sorrowful Jones" and another comedy.

This winter he goes to England for a film with Katharine Hepburn and Alec Guinness. He'll do the two European TV shows then.

Despite all this activity, he hasn't forgotten the lesson of Charlie Yates.

"I'll never get into the routine that I found myself in a couple of years ago," he remarked. "Then I was doing a daytime radio show five days a week, a nighttime radio show, TV and pictures. I must have been out of my head.

"Now I'm doing no radio. TV and pictures will be enough."

Bob is looking better than he was in years. Once pushing 190 pounds, he has trimmed down to the 170s. His humor is also in good form. He delivered some snappy gags including this one: "The new Beverly Hilton is such a swank hotel that they won't even serve navel oranges without a cummerbund."

LITERARY GUIDEPOST

A DREAM OF KINGS. By Davis Grubb. Scribners.

In the late 1850s, when rivalry, bitterness and hatred were boiling up savagely into rebellion and civil war, hatred was boiling up in Tom Christopher—according to this novel by the author of the popular "The Night of the Hunter."

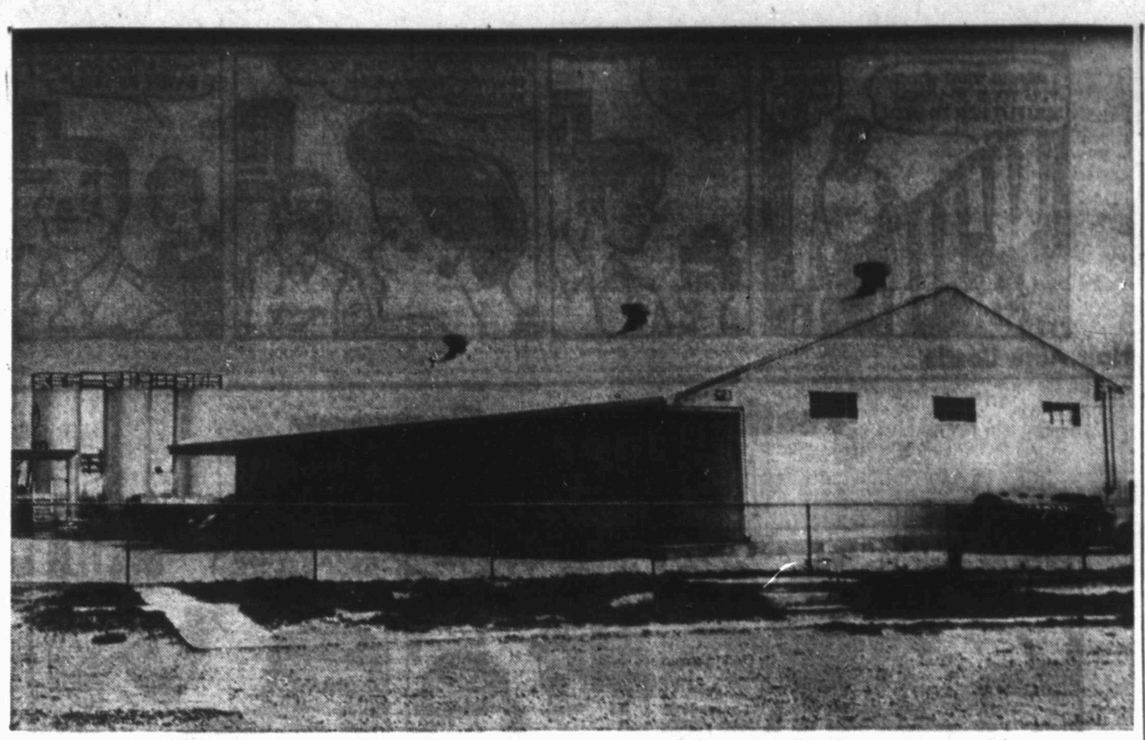

Young Tom was an orphan. Little Cathie Ellen Hornbrok, whose mother has died and whose father Abijah has run off, is thrown on the mercy of Aunt Sarah, who is bringing up Tom. The boy has some claim on the aunt, but Cathie doesn't. She's living on charity, she's told plainly by crotchety old Sarah. To Tom, Cathie is the stranger, and he bedevils her. He drives her back deeper and deeper into the sanctuary of her impassioned dream — that her father has ridden off gloriously to war and will come back crowned a king.

Tom, having no memories to cherish, takes over Cathie's. But all the time the hatred, as he thinks, stands in his way; and the opaque veil of childhood innocence must be torn away before he discovers that his hatred was love.

There are some splendid passages in this novel, or perhaps I should say splendidly manipulated passages. Master of a vigorous vocabulary, having an easy way with metaphor, Grubb reminds you at times of Thomas Wolfe — a Wolfe writing "Wuthering Heights," say (Emily Bronte had her Cathie, too, and her Heathcliff was an orphan). But it seems to me that finally there's something hollow to this novel. It has everything but the substance; nique leaves me dry-eyed, and the faultless tear - jerky technique despite all that is done to stir me, I don't budge.

TEXACO DISTRIBUTION CENTER HERE—Texaco petroleum products are distributed in this area by the McGlaun Oil Co., pictured above, from the most modern and complete warehousing facilities of any Texaco distributor in the state of Texas. Winterizing cars, once a necessity, is still important but the research and developments made by Texaco scientists have simplified the winterizing process greatly in the last few years. (Lee Watson photograph)

Winterize Your Car For Better Driving, Texaco Products Distributor Cautions

Today's weather, and the fact that summer officially ended last week, is reminding many persons that one of the most important things they can do is have their cars prepared for the difficulties of winter driving conditions.

Gay McGlaun, of the McGlaun Oil Co., Texaco products distributor for this area, said that winterizing is an important attention necessary to the efficient and instant operation of any car during the winter months, but he added that the process has been simplified by Texaco scientists who have produced motor oils which "automatically adjust to the driving condition."

The new oil is familiar to many persons who have used it in their cars for the past year or so, McGlaun said.

It is Texaco's multivis motor oil especially recommended for use in new or newly rebuilt car engines, and is called Texaco's 10-W30 motor oil.

"At zero degress Fahrenheit the oil is 10 weight, light and ready to flow smoothly and evenly to all engine parts, and at 210 degrees Fahrenheit it is 30 weight oil, automatically adjusted to the hot temperature of the engine to provide not only full and even lubrication, but also heavy enough to maintain the lubrication only the heaver oil can give a hot engine," McGlaun said.

"Of course, there is more to the proper operating condition of a car than just the motor oil used, but the oil is one of the most important to the long - life and efficient operation of the car," McGlaun said.

He outlined some of the other essentials of winter driving as quick starting which can be provided only by an effificently burning fuel such as Texaco's new Sky Chief gasoline, which burns so completely that all engine parts are kept clean at all times and have no carbon deposits to hamper the operation of valves or cause spark plugs to miss fire.

An efficient electrical system, especially a battery that maintains full charge, and freedom from short circuits is also necessary to good operation of the car during winter time, McGlaun said.

"Before your car starts giving trouble on cold mornings the trouble can be avoided by paying a visit to a Texaco service station and letting the attendants prepare your car for winter driving conditions," McGlaun said.

The Texaco stations in Snyder are: Northside Texaco on the Clairemont Road in north Snyder; Glenn Bolin Texaco, Fourteenth Street and Avenue S; Doug McGlaun Texaco, Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue W; Bill Bolin Texaco, 900 Twenty-fifth Street; and Dusty Thirty - seventh Street and Avenue S; Aubrey Blakely Texaco, Moore Texaco, 601 East Highway.

It's Hard To Lay Down Your Guns

This is the first of an exclusive series of twelve articles by Sgt. Lloyd W. Pate, who has been decorated by the Army for leading efforts to resist brainwashing and indoctrination by the Chinese Communists while he was a prisoner of war in North Korea. Sgt. Pate was a principal witness in the court martial of Sgt. James C. Gallagher, who was found guilty Aug. 19 and sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor for murdering two fellow prisoners in the camp where he and Sgt. Pate were interned, and of informing and collaborating with the enemy.

Here, in his own words, is Sgt. Pate's dramatic story of his prisoner-of-war experiences, as told to Herald Tribune writer B. J. Cutler:

By Sgt. Lloyd W. Pate

On New Year's Eve in 1950, the Army served steak to its troops just behind the front lines along the 38th Parallel in Korea. My stomach felt a little funny and I didn't eat. It was two years, seven months and twenty days before my next American meal.

At the time, I was corporal leading a 57 mm. recoilless rifle squad in Company K, 19th Regiment, 24th Infantry Division. I'd been there four months while we chased the North Koreans out of South Korea and up to spitting distance of the Ualu River. Then the Chinese came in and pushed us back to the 38th.

The night around 6 o'clock the Chinese hit again. We were sent up on the line as reinforcements and told to hold at all costs. There were Chinks all around us. The artillery was landing as close as ten yards in front of us, trying to keep them off us. It seemed the the more Chinks we'd kill, the more would come. We'd kill one and two would take his place.

By the next morning the Chinese completed their encirclement. We were trapped and had one chance in a hundred of coming out. We got orders that is was every man for himself, to break up into small groups and try to fight our way out. My buddy, Cletys Nordin, from Oklahoma, and I got off that hill with some other G. I.'s and reached the road.

There was a steady stream of men and horses going south on the road. We thought they were South Koreans, so we fell in with them. In those days I couldn't tell a South Korean from a North Korean or a Chink. They all seemed to wear any uniform that pleased them. Later I found out better.

Soon this Korean-looking soldier came by with a box of cookies. Cletys and I were hungry so I asked him for some in sign language. He shook his head "no." I figured they were stolen from some G. I. and grabbed two handfuls and booted him in the behind. He trotted off down the road mumbling to himself.

The cookies didn't seem to do our hunger any good. Another one came by with a big box of candy bars and I stopped him and asked him to give us four. He said no and I grabbed four and booted him and he went off mumbling to himself.

There was a curve in the road in front of us and we saw a group of Americans coming back. "My God," one shouted. "Fall out of ranks here. These guys are Chinese. They're taking you around the corner and making you lay down your weapons and surrender."

About sixteen of us did a quick to-the-rear march. We got off the road into a rice paddy and started going in the other direction. The Chinese didn't do anything, just kept going south. We found a deep ditch and started moving through it. Before we knew it, there were about 200 Chinks all around us in the ditch ahead, behind us and on the banks on each side.

There was a lieutenant with us. He was the ranking man, and he held a quick conference to see what the majority wanted. A few of us wanted to surrender. The lieutenant gave a direct order. He said to lay down our weapons and surrender for the benefit of the majority.

So I did the hardest thing I ever had to do in my life. It was to lay lay down my weapon and raise my hands. I'd seen what the North Koreans did to prisoners, torture so bad I don't want to describe it. I figured it was better to fight and get a quick bullet than to go through all that.

The Chinks came over and made sure we didn't have any hidden weapons. Then they lined up in a single file and marched us toward the hill. We had wounded men in the group and also a medic. When we reached the bottom of the hill they permitted the corpsman to patch up our wounded. Then they marched us halfway up a hill and made up sit in the snow.

The guards came over looking for things to confiscate. They took my watch, a pen and pencil set, my cigarettes, some American coins and a ring I bought during the two months I served in Japan. I managed to keep some Life Savers and chewing gum.

It was about 30 degrees below zero, maybe a little colder. We sat all day in the snow, watching the artillery and the airplanes playing hole hell with the Chinks. They were getting it on the road, out in the fields, in the ditches, everywhere. On the other slope of the hill was a larger group of G. I.s from Companies K and L. Artillery killed most of them and got some of the Chinks, too.

That night the Chinks lined us up against a cliff and put machine guns and automatic rifles in position. They threw rounds in the chambers and an officer raised arm. From all indications they were fixing to shoot us. Then a runner came up with a piece of paper and handed it to the officer. They had a little conference and pretty soon started us marching.

From every hill and every ravine they brought out American prisoners. They walked us all night, mostly in circles. In the early part of the morning, the guards started falling out; they couldn't take it any more. They put us in a ditch and kept us there all day without food or water except snow which we melted in our mouths.

As it got dark they started us marching again, this time in a zig-zag toward the south. Nordin had mortar shrapnel in his legs and had trouble walking. I helped him the best I could. In the morning we stopped in an open field and had our first P.W. food. It was millet, a small yellow grain. When I bit down into it, I almost broke my teeth. Some G. I. said there were rocks in it. I think they were diamonds because rocks aren't that hard.

We had one guard per man. I had a little Chink guard on me. He came up to my chest, but he had a Thompson submachine gun and that was enough to make him the biggest man I'd ever seen. He could speak a little Japanese and so could I. Talking to him gave me my first hope since I was captured.

The guard—I called him Slim—said he had been a soldier under Chiang Kai-shek. He said he'd been captured by the Communists and forced into their Liberation Army. He wanted to go to Formosa and rejoin Chiang. Slim offered to help me escape if I'd promise him he wouldn't be shot by the Americans and we'd send him to Formosa.

I told him he wouldn't be shot and probably would be rewarded if he would help me and some of the men escape. He then made a plan. He said we were following the lines south and he expected the Americans to hold. When we got near the lines, we would be put in an assembly area and Slim said at this time we could bug-out.

By this time, we were carrying the Chinks' food, their ammo and sometimes even their weapons. But we were all too damm tried to run-fight or care what happened next. We'd fall asleep while marching and I'd wake up in the middle of a rice paddy with my little guard pulling on my sleeve to wake me up.

After a few days we came to a village and were put in a Korean house. We got soybeans and rice to eat. It was here that I saw my seventeenth birthday on Jan. 11. I had lied about my age to enlist in the Army over a year earlier.

On that day I had a lot of time to think about my growing up in Columbia, S. C, and Jacksonville, Fla., and my reasons for being in the Army. I had a close relative who was dishonorably discharged. I wanted to make it up for him. So far I hadn't done much, but with Slim's help I hoped to get another chance. And maybe live to see my eighteenth birthday.

In a second article, to appear tomorrow, Sgt. Pate tells how his group of P. W.s kept up their morale and even found ways to harass the Reds on forced night marches in subzero weather.

Weight-Losing Deadline Near

CHICAGO (AP)—With the deadline only hours away, 44-year-old Mrs. Lillian Korzen still needed to lose 18 pounds today to save her marriage.

Her husband, who filed suit for divorce last May, promised to take her back if she could slim her 190 pounds down to 127 by Sept. 27. Korzen charged cruelty, but said he was filing the suit because his wife weighed too much.

Judge Cornelius Harrington approved the dieting arrangement and Mrs. Korzen has spent the last five months in fast.

Yesterday her attorney Edwin C. Podwell said she weighed in at 145 and had been prohibited from dieting any more by her physician. "She looks pretty good," Podwell said. "There's no question but that she could take off the weight if she had more time."

He said he would ask for a continuance of tomorrow's scheduled court appearance.

Korzen's attorney said, however: "I'll produce an accurate scale and I will ask her to get on it."

Ex-King Changes Mind

PARIS (AP)—The French Press Agency says ex-King Norodom Sihanouk has been named premier of Cambodia for a three-month term. The former King had said previously he would not take the job. The dispatch from Phnom Penh, capital of the Indochinese kingdom, gave no reason for his change of mind.

Two Rescued From Pacific

HONOLULU (AP)—Two shark-bitten survivors of a mid-Pacific plane crash were en route to Honolulu today aboard the freighter that found them after 44 hours in the sea.

Three others were dead from the crash of a Flying Tiger DC4 cargo plane about 900 miles west of here.

A message from the freighter Steel Advocate identified the survivors as:

Chief Pilot Tony Machado, 40, Hollywood, Calif., and copilot Robert C. Hightower, 22, Vallejo, Calif.

The dead were identified by the airline as:

Warren F. Gin, 34, Los Angeles, a copilot; and nevigaters Richard C. Olsen, 43, Van Nuys, Calif., and Dominick Ventresca, 43, Sepulveda, Calif.

The freighter is due in Honolulu Wednesday.

The two survivors were reported suffering from shark bites, broken bones and shock but the rescue vessel said their condition was not critical.

The plane was ditched Friday night when three of its four engines failed. It was carrying military cargo from Honolulu to Japan.

A pound of magnesium now costs 28½ cents cimpared to 23 cents for a pound of aluminum.

Case On Kidnaping Scheduled This Week

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—The second phase of the state's case against two white men accused of kidnaping and killing a Negro boy begins here this week.

Dist. Atty. Stanny Sanders said he expects a preliminary hearing on the kidnap charge to be held not later than Friday. The men were cleared of a murder charge last Friday in a trial that drew international attention.

The boy, 14-year-old Emmett Till of Chicago, was snatched from his uncle's home near here early Aug. 28—four days after he allegedly wolf-whistled and made "insulting" remarks to Mrs. Roy Bryant, 21, in the Bryant grocery store at Money.

Bryant, 24, and his half-brother J. W. Milam, 36, of Glendora, Miss., were arrested the next day. A brutally battered body identified as Till's was found in adjoining Tallahatchie County Aug. 31.

Messages To Ike Sent By Japanese

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama today messaged President Eisenhower, "The people and my government join me in prayer for your quick return to good health."

Hatoyama said he was distressed by the news of the President's illness.

Family Picket Line Withdraws From Plant

BESSEMER, Ala. (AP)—The family picket line that shut down a big freight car manufacturing plant and left 900 workers idle has been withdrawn.

E. L. McClain, 31-year-old discharged plant guard, said yesterday he had decided to let his dispute with the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co. be settled through regular grievance channels of the CIO United Steelworkers.

His picketing, aided by his 25-year-old wife and two of their small children, interrupted operations of the plant Wednesday and closed it completely Thursday.

McClain claimed that he was unjustly fired after a fight with another employe three weeks ago.

Sporting Colors

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's Communist party has taken up that old capitalist pastime of baseball. The party has formed two teams on its newspaper Red Flag. Team colors: red, white and blue.

Mexico To Bottle Drink With Wallop

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Pulque, favorite alcoholic drink of Mexico's lower classes, is being bottled for the first time. This will give it new outlets in better grade bars, in restaurants, even in supermarkets.

Pulque comes from the maguey plant, something like the century plant found in the United States. Tequila and Mezcal are made from the roots. Pulque is the juice from its core. This liquid is fermented and later flavored — pineapple, orange, apply, any flavor desired.

It packs a wallop stronger than beer.

TWO-EGG CAKE
. . . with glamorous decoration

Helps For Homemakers

Send your questions to "Helps for Homemakers," Snyder Daily News, or call 3-5486.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

THIS TWO-EGG CAKE is made the quick-beat way; a basic recipe, it gains glamor from its fixings. If Concord grapes are available, you can use them to make the cake filling; if not, use a good grape jam. Frost the cake with cinnamon whipped cream and give it a gorgeous garnish made from halved red or blue grapes and fresh mint leaves.

GRAPE CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar
½ cup emulsifier-type vegetable shortening
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 cup milk
2 eggs
Concord Grape Filling or grape jam
Cinnamon Whipped Cream
Extra red or blue grapes & fresh mint leaves

Method: Line bottom of square pan (9 by 9 by 2 inches) with paper. Put flour, baking powder, salt and sugar into sifter. Put shortening and lemon rind in large mixing bowl; stir together to soften shortening. Sift in dry ingredients. Add ¾ cup of the milk and mix until all flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes at low speed of electric mixer or 300 vigorous strokes by hand. Add eggs and remaining ¼ cup milk; beat 1 minute longer at low speed of mixer or 150 vigerous strokes by hand. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 45 to 50 minutes. Turn out on rack to cool. Split cake in half horizontally, forming two layers. Spread Concord Grape Filling or grape jam between layers. Spread top and sides of cake with Cinamon Whipped Cream. Decorate with "bunches of grapes" made form halved seeded grapes and mint leaves. Chill until ready to serve.

CONCORD GRAPE FILLING

2 tablespoons cake flour
½ cup sugar
salt
¼ cup water
1 cup Concord grapes

Stir flour, sugar and dash of salt in a small saucepan. Add water and Concord grapes; bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Boil 2 minutes. Strain through a sieve. Cool before spreading on cake.

CINNAMON WHIPPED CREAM

2 tablespoons confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1½ cups heavy cream

Combine all ingredients, whip until stiff.
