LONG WILL DISPOSES OF ANCIENT SOUVENIRS

CHICAGO, April 27.—Although disposing of an estate valued at only $7000, the will of Dr. J. Chester Lyman, who died March 29, is the longest document filed in the history of the Cook county probate court. The instrument goes into minute details, distributing each article owned by the testator, its origin, its history and its present whereabouts. The will contains so many thousand words that it was reproduced in printed form and in this shape it was filed in the probate court. Dr. Lyman was a collector of souvenirs and some of them are considered valuable. A Washington saucer valued at

Factions in Democratic Party Both Want to Be Represented

CONCORD, N. H., April 27.—The re-naming of the old contest between the factions in the democratic party of the state led to the probability of two tickets for delegates at large to the national convention being presented today at the New Hampshire democratic convention. The two factions, which are known as "regulars" and "reformers," headed by Henry B. Hollis and John Mitchell, respectively, both of this city. The sentiment prevailed before the opening of the convention that the delegates should be instructed.

Mr. Grunsky said the commissioners had accomplished the object of their visit, which was the general inspection of the physical features of the canal zone. William Barclay Parsons, the remaining commissioner, returned here last week.

SERIOUS CHARGES

NEW YORK, April 27.—Emil Sonner was placed in the city prison on an execution procured by a man who says he paid the prisoner $25 to be appointed policeman. Sonner, a few hours previously, made the statement to District Attorney Jerome along the lines of that made a few days ago by William Duke, who asserted that at least $200,000 had been collected by him and paid to certain persons "high up" for positions in the service of the city.

HUDSON, N. Y., April 27.—Investigation of the vandalism at the tomb of General Henry B. Livingston, who died in 1808, leads the officials here to believe that the sole object of the ghouls was to secure jewels of great value, which, according to tradition, were buried with Mrs. Mary Livingston, the general's wife, who died in 1855. It is thought no attempt was made to carry away any of the bodies in the tomb. As yet no arrests have been made, but the officers say they believe they can

Fight in the Dark Eighty Feet Above Ground—Three Firemen Face Deadly Peril to Save the Man's Life

NEW YORK, April 27.—Battling fiercely with a madman, eighty feet above ground on a narrow stone ledge, in darkness, Captain William Clark and two firemen early yesterday bravely faced death. Robert Hindman, rendered insane by the agony of an abscess in the ear, had escaped from his nurses in the eye and ear hospital on Park avenue and had clambered out upon a narrow window ledge, barely twelve inches across, from which he threatened the nurses and physicians within the room with a heavy pitcher. There was but one way to secure him, and that by calling out a fire truck to capture him from the outside.

Captain Clark selected Jeremiah Scanlon and William Kimley to assist him, and the long extension ladder was raised from the top of the truck. It was a seventy-eight-foot ladder and reached a couple of feet above the ledge when lifted to its greatest height.

LEVEE BREAKS NORTH OF ST. LOUIS

People Abandon Homes and Seek Safety on the Higher Ground—150 Families Are Forced to Leave Bottoms

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 27.—Early today the Mississippi river registered 32.2 feet at the government gauge here and is still rising. It is expected and predicted that it will reach a stage of thirty-five feet by tomorrow.

There was a slight break in the levee north of St. Louis on the Illinois side, and the flood threatened Madison, Venice and Granite City. The water has risen to a level with the streets of West Madison and people are abandoning their homes and seeking safety on the high grounds near Edwardsville. It is estimated that 150 families have been forced to leave their homes in the Missouri river bottoms and that 10,000 acres of farm lands are inundated.

A CONFESSION IS MADE

The Negro No Longer Seems Frightened Now That He Is Behind the Strong Walls of the County Jail—Mob Violence Not Likely Now

AUSTIN, Texas, April 27.—The grand jury, after hearing the confession of the negro, Simmons, to District Attorney Warren Moore read, and after hearing the introduction of some other evidence that the officers desired to present, returned an indictment for murder and Simmons will be given an opportunity of having a speedy trial. The jury was unanimous in their conclusions and were not very long in reaching them.

The case was transferred from the Fifty-Third to the Twenty-Sixth District Court and the trial will be started Friday morning.

Judge Calhoun briefly charged the jury, after appointing G. W. Walling, Jr., foreman. He did not call special attention to any particular crime to be investigated, but told the jury they were called for the purpose of considering any business that might be presented to them. He cautioned them not to let public sentiment influence them in any manner. He believed every juror would do his duty and not commit any act not authorized by law.

At 10:23 o'clock, just eight minutes after the jury had been called, it had been impeached and moved to the grand jury room to deliberate.

Simmons was brought into court and said he desired to plead guilty, but the court told him it was not time to make any plea. Under the provisions of the law the trial can not occur before Friday, and Simmons will be placed on trial for his life on that day.

IS NO LONGER FRIGHTENED

Since Simmons has been placed in the county jail he has become considerably more composed than he was when in the back being driven from the city calaboose to the county jail. This morning he is said to have gotten back to his normal condition, and when making the statement to District Attorney Moore showed no signs of fright. It is also reported that he had a sound sleep last night, notwithstanding that a large crowd hung around the jail until early this morning.

WILL THERE BE ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE?

At the court house this morning some parties discussing the Simmons case expressed fears that an attempt would be made to assassinate the negro on the day he is brought from the jail to the court house for trial. The prisoner will be given every protection by the sheriff and the militia. It is believed now that all idea of killing the fiend other than through the legal manner has been thrown aside.

MOB VIOLENCE WAS NOT FEARED
Mob violence was not feared by the authorities last night, for in the first place there was not a time that the crowd acted in any manner as if it was serious in hanging the prisoner, and in the second place, with a strong military guard thrown around the jail and a half hundred heavily armed men inside there would not have been much of a chance to get to the negro.

Senator Dolliver, addressing the Senate, denounced the trusts and denied that the Republican party was responsible for them.—News Item.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Carroll Livingston, grand son of General Harry Livingston and "Lady Mary" Livingston, and a collateral descendant of the chancellor who administered the oath of office to President George Washington, is dead at his home here. He was 71 years old. News of the desecration of his ancestor's tomb at Hudson, N. Y., may have hastened his death.

Mr. Livingston retired from the banking business many years ago and devoted much time to amateur sports. He won many prizes in live bird shooting tournaments in France and the United States.

PRICES RISE ON REPORTS OF VICTORY

Japanese Reverses Are Beginning to Be Believed at St. Petersburg in Spite of Lack of Official Confirmation

ST. PETERSBURG, April 27.—The crossing of the Yalu river by the Japanese forces did not impress the Russians in view of the reports of the ongoing Japanese reverses. These reports have become more persistent, and at noon caused an all round rise of prices on the bourse. But so far there has been no confirmation of these rumors officially.

LOOK FOR ACTIVE OPERATIONS
PORT ARTHUR, April 27.—The successful trials of the submarine boats here are regarded by the Novik fleet as opening fresh prospects for active operations on the part of the Russian fleet.

CHINESE FEAR TO OFFEND
NEW YORK, April 27.—Owing to the great fear entertained by the Chinese government of unknowingly violating neutrality it interprets the rules concerning contraband of war in such an exaggerated manner as to seriously interfere with legitimate commerce, according to the Pekin correspondent of the Herald. At present it is detaining at Shanghai an American cargo of tin plate, tea and lead. An American minister has protested to the ministry of foreign affairs.

RUSSIAN BOATS AGAIN SIGHTED
LONDON, April 27.—A special dispatch from Kobe, Japan, says that several vessels, believed to be Russian warships, were again sighted off Gen San, Korea, today.

THE "IMAGE OF THE VIRGIN"
ST. PETERSBURG, April 27.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg, who has been awarded $12,500 for improvements in submarine boats, in an interview says: "There is less danger in navigating submarine boats than torpedo boats, and during a battle the former are safer than any other vessel."

Admiral Vorkhovskiy has shown the empress the image of the virgin, for which it is claimed miraculous properties, which the Russians fervently hope is going to turn the tide of the battle at Port Arthur. The admiral told the empress the story of the image, which depicts the virgin as she appeared in a vision to a sailor, a veteran at the siege of Sebastopol. Two months before the outbreak of the present war the virgin came to the sailor in a dream and said: "Many will be going to defeat Port Arthur until my image is sent there. Then Port Arthur will be victorious."

The sailor went on a pilgrimage to the great monastery of Kieff and told his dream to 1,000 pilgrims there. Each of them gave 5 kopecks (24 cents) to have the dream depicted, but the artists who made the image refused to receive payment. It eventually was sent to Admiral Vorkhovskiy as senior admiral. The picture represents a virgin bearing the image of Christ with archangels on either side, and God, the Father, above, saying: "There can be but one flock and one Shepherd."

veto of the Jerome gambling bill?" "I cannot say."

"The governor has not signed the bill yet."

"I didn't know that," and a look of relief came into Canfield's eyes.

PORT ARTHUR, April 27.—The regulations to be observed by war correspondents with the Russian army were published in today's issue of the Novik. The correspondents of foreign newspapers must have letters of recommendation from their governments to the Russian foreign office and every correspondent must promise in writing not to divulge secret dispatches or criticize the orders of those in command, and must similarly agree to give true accounts of events and avoid irresponsible reports. They are warned that in event of infraction of these regulations or indiscretion or want of tact they will be sent home. All correspondents are absolutely prohibited from visiting the admiralty docks, workshops or naval establishments or from using boats in the harbors or roadsteads of Port Arthur or Vladivostok.

UGLY CHAFFEURS ARE IN DEMAND

LONDON, April 27.—There is no doubt about the falling-off in the demand for young and good-looking chaffeurs. Recent elopements of society girls with these smart young men have thoroughly alarmed well-to-do parents.

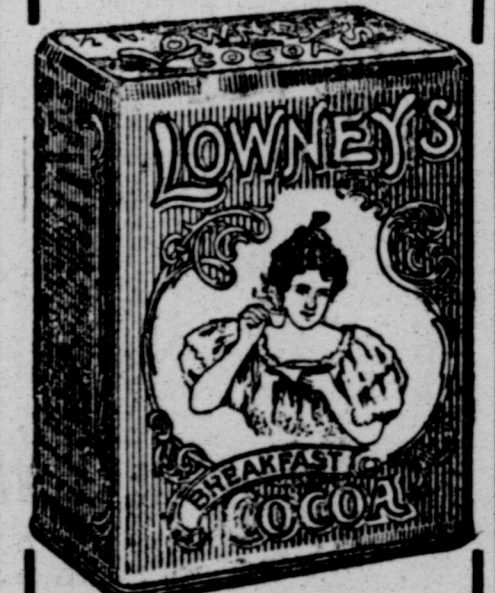

Young chaffeurs are completely at a discount and have difficulty in finding customers even at $150 a year. The danger of good looks in "rogues" has alarmed society. Fathers will not take the risk of an elopement.

Enterprising young chaffeurs do not despair. They are altering their looks by the aid of wigs, beards, etc. The establishments of costumiers and wig-makers are being invaded with this end in view, and "beauty doctors" are busy making the chaffeurs ugly.

Before long there will not be a single good-looking chaffeur in England, but when engaging a man to drive the car, employers should remember that ugliness may be only skin deep, and beware of the gray-haired, wrinkled, made-up man, who is in reality youthful.

GOVERNOR MAY STOP HANGING OF WOMAN

EXECUTIVE STARTS A MOVE FOR CLEMENCY

Murphy Hopes Board of Pardons Will Take Action to Commute Sentence of Italian Murderess

NEW YORK, April 27.—"If any effort of mine can prevent it, my administration shall not be stained with the hanging of a woman. I trust the board of pardons will be able, after weighing the testimony in the case of Anna Valentine, who killed her rival, Rosa Salza at Lodi, to commute her sentence of death to imprisonment for life." Thus spoke Governor Murphy of New Jersey, who is head of the board of pardons, before starting for Europe.

"It is not necessary for me to say whether I have conscientious scruples against hanging a woman," he continued. "It may be considered remarkable for a governor to start a movement toward extending clemency to one guilty of taking a life; but, if I am setting a precedent to save the state the disgrace of hanging a woman, I feel that it is one worthy of being followed."

The governor will be abroad until June. Attorney Milton Demarest presented the case of his client fully at the recent meeting of the pardon board in Trenton. Their decision will be handed down on June 8.

The one apparently least interested in the outcome is the convicted woman herself. "She is resigned to die," said Attorney Demarest today, "and expresses no anxiety as to the decision of the board. She is a remarkable prisoner."

CABLES COMFORT FOR AN ELOPING HEIRESS

MILLIONAIRE ANDREWS SENDS FORGIVENESS

Partner Met Steamboat to Intercept Couple, But Offers Congratulations and Withdraws

NEW YORK, April 27.—"Rose Wray, on board Etruria. Write father. (Signed) 'C. C. ANDREWS.'"

The yellow slip of paper containing the above telegram from Millionaire C. C. Andrews of London and New York brought a world of comfort to his eloping daughter, only child and heiress, when she stepped ashore from the Cunarder leaning on the arm of C. C. Wray, who was superintendent in Mr. Andrews' works, the Dick Car Company of London.

All plans had been made by John D. Gluck of the firm representing the interests of Mr. Andrews in New York to intercept the couple here. Mr. Gluck boarded the ship at Quarantine with the intention of having the couple taken to Ellis Island and sending the young woman back to her parents. A marriage certificate, dated in Liverpool, caused Mr. Gluck to proffer his congratulations and withdraw. The cablegram from London filled Mrs. Wray's cup of happiness to the brim.

Thus the sun shone at last on a romance that had caused a commotion on both sides of the Atlantic. The bride is tall, fair and 26 and her father is a partner of Charles T. Yerkes in London, of underground fame.

CALL ON BRYAN TO SPEAK FOR HEARST

Indiana Politicians Join in Request for Nebraska Leader to Take the Platform for Their Candidate

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 27.—J. O. Henderson, William Neal and other Hearst leaders have joined in a request to Mr. Bryan to visit Indiana before the democratic state convention is held and make speeches in several of the larger cities. They believe that he can yet turn the tide from Parker to Hearst, and that the democratic leaders will not dare to instruct for the New York judge if Bryan would make the speeches that he made in Chicago. Notwithstanding the Hearst men have circulated the Chicago speech in every county in the state, the Parker men have succeeded in breaking its influence in many places by asserting that Bryan did not make it and that the speech is a forgery and was gotten up in the interest of Hearst. This has caused the Hearst leaders to ask Bryan to come into Indiana, and it is thought that he will do so between this and May 15.

WRECK HAPPENS FROM ODD CAUSE

One Dead and 27 Injured in a Collision of Trains in New Jersey

NEW YORK, April 27.—Of the twenty-seven passengers injured in yesterday's rear-end collision near Elizabeth, N. J., between the Long Branch express and the Florida special on the Pennsylvania, one—the Rev. Mr. Kelley of Ashbury Park, N. J.—probably will die. He sustained concussion of the brain and internal injuries. Among the others hurt was Mrs. Alice Mumma of Harrisburg, Pa. Her injuries are not serious.

The accident was a peculiar one in railroad history. Eight Pullman cars made up the Florida train. Soon after it passed Elizabeth station the air brake pipe connecting the engine and first coach parted. That caused the automatic air brake to be applied to the train. The strain to the engine from the application of the brakes caused the coupling between the tender and first car to break and the engine started ahead while the cars stopped within a short distance.

The engineer at once applied the brakes to the locomotive and started back to pick up his train. Just as the coupling was being made the Long Branch express, running at high speed, rounded a curve. The engineer threw on the air brakes, but the rear coach of the stalled train, which fortunately was empty, was split in twain. All those hurt were in the two forward cars of the Long Branch express.

The fireman of the Long Branch train lost his life by jumping against a fence. His body rolled back beneath the train.

which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, poor digestion, being obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

COMMISSION WANTS CANNON ON TICKET

Iowa Governor Advocates That Speaker of the House Be Running Mate for President Roosevelt

CHICAGO, April 27.—"Joe Cannon of Illinois will be the next vice president if he can be persuaded to accept the nomination," declared Governor Cummins of Iowa today.

"A western man is wanted for the second place on the ticket. There have been mentioned Webster of Nebraska and myself. But even if I wanted this place I should give way to Joseph Cannon, a representative of the west in more senses than one. The only obstacle is that which faces those called upon to persuade him that it is his duty to accept the nomination. He hasn't been able to see it yet."

"Then the matter has been brought to him?"
"Why, certainly—oh, I cannot tell you," said the governor, abruptly breaking off the sentence started.
"Cannon has shown himself in every way a man fit to be vice president," said Governor Cummins. "He has not become another 'Czar Reed,' but he certainly deserves his title of 'watch dog of the treasury.' I can picture to myself what he would do at the head of the senate. I think he would cause a revolution in that department of congress. Certain influences are being brought to bear on him, however, to show that it is his duty to take the place. I believe that eventually those who are working with him will succeed, and that the ticket will read 'Roosevelt and Cannon.'"

GIRLS ENDANGERED ON PIKE'S PEAK

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., April 27.—Three young ladies attempted to walk to the summit of Pike's Peak and had quite an adventure. Two of them played out at Windy Point and tried to get back, but were too exhausted. The third, a Miss Porter, who lives at Manitou, pushed on to the top. Their long absence from Manitou caused much alarm. Rescuers helped the two girls home. Miss Porter was too weak to attempt a return, so she stayed at the Summit House over night.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes News

Law Offices of Henley & Costello.
San Francisco, Feb. 17.

To the legal profession of Texas:
I was a witness to the following: About two years ago Prof. Yost of Palo Alto who was in an extreme condition due to advanced Bright's Disease, came to my office. He was fully proven and was a physician who was himself a victim of Diabetes. The object of the visit was to meet a prominent business man who had for months been investigating an alleged cure for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, and the cure had been discovered. Both Prof. Yost and his physician at once adopted the treatment. Within six months both were so well along towards recovery that they considered themselves beyond danger and at this date neither Bright's Disease nor Diabetes held any terrors for them and the physician is successfully using the treatment in his practice.

Learning that my old law partner, Judge R. R. Bigelow, for many years chief justice of the state of Nevada, had Bright's Disease and that though he had had four or five of our best physicians and was in a serious condition, I lost no time in telling him of the above. It resulted in his complete recovery and he is again back to active practice. As to the curability of chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes I have no more doubts than that I am living. Sincerely yours,
BARCLAY HENLEY.

Market Quotations

Receipts of market cattle today showed some improvement over the supply offered yesterday, the total run of straight market stuff figuring close around 1,200 head with 1,000 transient cattle unloaded during the morning and several cars from the west reported.

With the exception of the Kansas City market which had in 11,000 cattle, there was very little change in values from Tuesday, but with a big proportionate supply of medium to good steer stuff offered on the local market trading ruled slow with prices generally barely steady, though some few of the salesmen claimed a slight loss in steer values from yesterday, with buying extremely dull at the packers' bids.

Two loads of medium weight fed steers ranging between 1,015 and 1,075 pounds sold at $3.70, with the bulk of fair quality butcher stuff at $3.40 to $3.55, and the ordinary kinds at $3.20 to $3.30. Cows sold with the same activity that has characterized trading in this class of cattle during the past two weeks and the moderate supply found a good outlet at satisfactory prices to both the salesmen and the shipper. Best bunches of fat cows landed at $3.25 to $3.50, with a few small sales at $3.25 to $3.50. Medium butcher stock of good average killing quality sold at $2.25 to $2.75, the bulk generally at $2.50. The sales of calves and bulls were about steady, the quality showing up to only a fair average. Top calves brought $3.75 with best bulls at $3.00.

Frank Sansom, the popular and well known young cattleman from Alvarado, was a visitor at the yards this morning. Mr. Sansom says that he has managed pretty well on his fed cattle so far this season and that he does not expect to "get stuck" so late in the day. At present he has on feed in Hill county about 600 head of three and four year old steers which he will commence throwing on the market next month.

The hog market opened with a pretty good demand from the regular buyers, but as reports of lower markets elsewhere continued to come in, what little activity shown on the early opening was lost, and from a barely steady market towards the middle of the forenoon trading continued to ease up till the noon hour all medium quality hogs showed a slight decline from Tuesday's average trading. Salesmen could glean very little from first arrivals sent out by Chicago and Kansas City, the reports leaving the impression of a questionable market, but stating no specific decline, which tempted some of the sellers to hold for later trade, hoping the closes at other points would boost values here a nickel or a dime higher. One car of choice heavy hogs of good quality, averaging 235 pounds, sold early at a top of $4.35, with the bulk of mixed butcher and packer hogs at $4.70 to $4.85; pigs and lights of fair to good quality generally going at $4.40 to $4.50, and the common quality thin light stuff at $3.50 to $4. All indications point for a still lower market here, as the supply at the northern points seems ample for all trade, including the usual heavy export trade at this season of the year. Until there is some marked improvement at the northern points shipped to the local market need not look for any buoyancy in values here.

The representative of Street's Stable Car Line in Montana says the Northern Pacific shipments will be 25 per cent more than in 1903, but that the Great Northern will be no heavier, owing to the severe winter's losses. No Montana cattle shipments need be expected before the middle of August.

Senator T. C. Power of Montana says there are 5,000,000 sheep left in Montana, after losing 1,000,000 during the past winter.

CLEAN UP THE CITY

Dr. R. Chambers has the right idea when he appeals to the women of Fort Worth to assist him in a campaign for a cleaner city and if they will but join in the work much can be accomplished.

The summer season is about to open. Just now winter is lingering in the lap of spring, but there are but few more days of the cool weather and then it will be necessary to prepare against fevers of all kinds. It is the contention of the learned men in the medical profession that the mosquito carries the germ of fever. Therefore it is necessary to kill the mosquito, and it can be done only by every householder taking part in the work. The city cannot accomplish the work alone, as the city cannot go into the homes and put bars over beds, screen windows, put oil on standing tanks of water and fill up unused cisterns. The city can only direct how each householder must do his share of the work, and every man who accomplishes something in this line benefits himself and those who live neighbor to him. It may be that some will think they are immune from the dread diseases which now threaten and that they will neglect their own premises. This may do for a time, but sooner or later wherever there is the proper inducement, the disease will visit, and death will be the penalty the family will pay.

Dr. Chambers makes his appeal to the women folk to assist him by an organization which can be formed, and every woman in Fort Worth ought to respond to the call. The women can accomplish a great deal in their own homes, and much easier than can the men. The health department might appeal every hour to the business man, but he would not have time to leave his business to look after the things at home which are directly under the supervision of the wife. With a strong organization in each of the nine wards of Fort Worth, the spring weather could be ushered in with work in the interest of a cleaner city, and the results would be of great benefit.

INDIANS AS STRIKE BREAKERS

Captain Jack Ellis, the famous ex-chief of Indian police, has gone from Muskogee, I. T., to San Francisco, taking with him fifty picked men, mostly half-breeds, but including several full-bloods, to be used in breaking a street car strike.

This band of Indians is said to have been hired by the United States Railway Company of San Francisco to guard its property and its non-union employees.

"I have quelled whole armies of desperadoes while I was at the head of the Indian police with half the number of men I have on this trip," says Captain Jack. "Just you watch the newspapers and see what we do in Frisco."

Unquestionably it is the right of a street car company or any other concern to protect its property and its employees. But this does not carry with it the further right to set a pack of Indians loose in a civilized community.

There is invariably a tendency on the part of both employers and strikers to regard a strike as a private affair. The public, which is usually the heaviest sufferer, is supposed by them to play the part only of disinterested spectator.

But the truth of the matter is that a strike, involving inconvenience to the public, derangement of business, rioting and menace to public safety, is most decidedly an affair of the public. It is an affair which the public has a right to have decided promptly and by peaceful means, not by any private appeal to force, certainly not by an appeal to Indian warfare in the heart of a great city.

The country cannot help wondering what is the matter with the decent men of San Francisco, that they cannot protect their own people and preserve order in their midst, without the help of Indians.

If peace and good order were the end really sought, certainly order-loving citizens would have made ideal guards. But the importation of an armed band of Indians clearly indicates another purpose than peace.

It is, indeed, a remarkable condition of affairs when a city will permit its peace and order to be placed by a corporation at the mercy of a band of Indians.

We have been fondly imagining for a couple of centuries that we are settling the Indian question by annihilating the Indians. Is it possible that we are now to acknowledge our failure and call upon Indians to help us settle our strike question by annihilating strikers?

YOUNG MEN AND THE CHURCH

Editor Bok is after the preachers again. Nine years ago, says Mr. Bok in the Outlook, he wrote an article declaring that the lack of vital preaching was the cause for the absence of young men from the city churches. To use a ball phrase, he was "batted all over the lot" by the preachers for saying so.

In returning to the lists, the editor, who has been gathering statistics all the time, says the percentage of attendance of young men is eight per cent less than it was nine years ago. It was only thirty per cent at that time.

What's the trouble? he asks. Five years ago the ministers said it was the bicycle. For the past three years they have said, "golf." A few Sunday papers. The bicycle has disappeared from Sunday amusements. The Sunday newspapers are more numerous and larger. That leaves only golf, says Bok.

But—He takes up thirty-one churches in different cities where Sunday golf is prohibited and shows that out of a possible 1,640 young men only 427 attend church. So he returns to the old attack.

He has interviewed hundreds of young men and the majority says: "Nothing to go for." "Don't get enough out of the sermon." "It's all words, words, words—no vital message."

Then he tells how the churches of Guntersville of Chicago and Rainford and Lorimer of New York—where the big note of spirituality is sounded—are crowded with young men.

True, he quotes many young men who say they are too tired when Sunday comes and allows for hard conditions and the money madness of the times, but he sticks pretty close to his text:

Lack of vital sermons.

THE SPOILS SYSTEM

The Shreveport Times has a mistaken idea of what is meant by the victor having the spoils. In commenting upon the recent utterance of Senator Bailey the Times says:

If Mr. Bailey will permit the criticism we would like to say that that seems to us to be a well-nigh criminally foolish utterance, coming as it does from a southern senator. Senator Hoar was universally applauded when he declared not long ago that if he were president of the United States he would be guided in making federal appointments in the south by the advice of southern representatives and senators, irrespective of party affiliation. It is to be regretted most profoundly that, barring Mr. McKinley, the republican party has failed so far to send to the White House a man of sufficient intelligence and integrity to adopt the course which Senator Hoar considers to be essential to the highest patriotism. The conditions here are such that neither Senator Bailey nor any one else can doubt the wisdom of the policy advocated by Senator Hoar. The views expressed by Senator Bailey, were they put into practical operation, would inevitably prove of peculiar detriment to the best interests of the southern people.

There is absolutely no reason to find a difference between the expression of Senator Hoar and that of Senator Bailey. Senator Bailey says that he believes the party which wins the battle should have people of its own affiliation in office. Senator Hoar says that if he were president he would consult southern senators and representatives regarding southern appointments. If there were republicans to be appointed to office in Texas, the southern men who live here who have been honored by offices could make a recommendation as between the different applicants for places. Democrats can select the best of several evils, if they are asked to, and they would be honest in the selection. The spoils system would not hurt the south a bit. As it is today Mr. Roosevelt has made appointments in the south which are distasteful to the people in the several communities. He did not consult either democrats or republicans, but went headlong into appointments which have in some instances almost caused riots.

It appears they are just as far apart down at Waco as they were in 1861 to '65. The Grand Army veterans have been visiting Confederate graves on decoration day and have put flowers upon them, and when Confederate decoration day would come the southern men would reciprocate the courtesy, but all this is to come to an end. The Grand Army people have asked the Confederates to keep out of their graveyard. The news reports do not say just why this is, but there promises to be a breach there which was not settled by the little agreement made many years ago between two opposing generals.

At Whitecastle, La., the democrats had a celebration in which they buried the republican elephant in effigy. It is all right to do these little things for a pastime, but why not all get together and have the interment a national affair, and make it more of a reality? The trouble with an effigy is that the real thing may come back to haunt you.

Judging by the experience of the battleship Missouri and the vessels of the Russian fleet it is not smokeless powder that is needed, but ships that are immune.

"But my fair lord, how can we hope to reach the horses?" asked Norbury.

"Ye cannot go round to them, for they would be upon ye ere ye could come to them. Think ye that ye have heart enough to clamber down this cliff?"

"Had we but a rope!"

"There is one here. It is but 100 feet long, and for the rest ye must trust to God and to your fingers. Can you try it, Alleyn?"

"With all my heart, my dear lord, but how can I leave you in such a strait?"

"Nay, it is to serve me that ye go. And you, Norbury?"

The silent squire said nothing, but he took up the rope, and having examined it, he tied one end firmly round a projecting rock. Then he cast off his breastplate, thigh pieces and greaves, while Alleyn followed his example.

"Tell Chandos, or Calverley, or Knolles, should the prince have gone forward," cried Sir Nigel. "Now may God speed ye, for ye are brave and worthy men."

It was, indeed, a task which might make the heart of the bravest sink within him. The thin cord dangling down the face of the brown cliff seemed from above to reach little more than half way down it. Beyond stretched the rugged rock, wet and shining, with a green tuft here and there thrusting out from it, but little sign of ridge or foothold. Far below the jagged points of the boulders, bristled up, dark and menacing, Norbury tugged thrice with all his strength upon the cord, and then lowered himself over the edge, while 100 anxious faces peered over at him as he slowly clambered downwards to the end of the rope. Twice he stretched out his foot and twice he failed to reach the point at which he aimed, but even as he swung himself for a third effort a stone from a sling buzzed like a wasp and struck him full upon the side of his head. His grasp relaxed, his feet slipped and in an instant he was a crushed and mangled corpse upon the sharp ridges beneath him.

"If I have no better fortune," said Alleyn, leading Sir Nigel aside, "I pray you, my dear lord, that you will give my humble service to the Lady Maude and say to her that I was ever her true servant and most unworthy cavalier."

The old knight said no word, but he put a hand on either shoulder and kissed his squire, with the tears shining in his eyes. Alleyn sprang to the rope, and sliding swiftly down, soon found himself at its extremity. From above it seemed as though rope and cliff were well-nigh touching, but now, when swinging 100 feet down, the squire found that he could scarce reach the face of the rock with his foot, and that it was as smooth as glass, with no resting place where a mouse could stand. Some three feet lower, however, his eye lit upon a long, jagged crack which slanted downwards, and this he must reach if he would save not only his own poor life, but that of the eight score men above him. Yet it was madness to spring for that narrow slit with nought but the wet, smooth rock to cling to. He swung for a moment, full of thought, and even as he hung there another of the hellish stones sang through his curls and struck a chip from the face of the cliff. Up he clambered a few feet, drew the loose end after him, unstrung his belt, held on with knee and with elbow while he spliced the long, tough leathern belt to the end of the cord; then lowering himself as far as he could go, he swung backwards and forwards until his hand reached the crack, when he left the rope and clung to the face of the cliff. Another stone struck him on the side and he heard a sound like a breaking sick with a knee, stabbing pain which shot through his chest. Yet it was no time now to think of pain or ache. There was his lord and his eight score comrades, and they must be plucked from the jaws of death. On he clambered, with his hand shuffling down the long, sloping crack, sometimes bearing all his weight upon his arms, at others finding some small shelf or tuft on which to rest his foot. Would he never pass over that fifty feet? He dared not look down, and could but grope slowly onwards, his face to the cliff, his fingers clutching, his feet scraping and feeling for a support. Every vein and crack and mottling of that fall of rock remained forever stamped upon his memory. At last, however, his foot came upon a broad resting place and he ventured to cast a glance downwards. Think God! he had reached the highest of those fatal pinnacles upon which his comrade had fallen. Quickly now he sprang from rock to rock until his feet were on the ground, and he had his hand stretched out for a horse's rein, when a sling-stone struck him on the head and he dropped senseless upon the ground.

An evil blow it was for Alleyn, but a worse one still for him who struck it. The Spanish slinger, seeing the youth lie slain, and judging from his dress that he was no common man, rushed forward to plunder him, knowing well that the bowmen above him had expended their last shaft. He was still three paces, however, from his victim's side when John upon the cliff above plucked up a huge boulder and, poising it for an instant, dropped it with fatal aim upon his shoulder and hurled him, crushed and screaming, to the ground, while Alleyn, recalled to his senses by these shrill cries in his very ear, staggered onto his feet and gazed wildly about him. His eyes fell upon the horses, grazing upon the scanty pasture, and in an instant all had come back to him—his mission, his comrades, the need for haste. He was dizzy, sick, faint, but he must not die, and he must not tarry, for his life meant many lives that day. In an instant he was in his saddle and spurring down the valley. Loud rang the swift charger's hoofs over rock and reef, while the fire flew from the stroke of iron, and the loose stones showered up behind him. But his head was whirling round, the blood was gushing from his brow, his temple, his mouth. Ever keener and sharper was the deadly pain which shot like a red-hot arrow through his side. He felt that his eye was glazing, his senses slipping from him, his grasp upon the reins relaxing. Then with one mighty effort he called up all his strength for a single minute. Stopping down, he loosed the stirrup straps, bound his knees tightly to his saddle-flaps, twisted his hands in the bridle, and then, putting the gallant horse's head for the mountain path, he dashed the spurs in and fell forward fainting with his face buried in the coarse, black mane.

Little could he ever remember of that wild ride. Half conscious, but ever with the one thought beating in his mind, he goaded the horse onwards, rushing swiftly down steep ravines, over huge boulders, along the edge of black abysses. Dim memories he had of beetling cliffs, of a group of huts with wondering faces at the doors, of foaming, clattering water, and of a bristle of mountain beeches. Once, ere he had ridden far, he heard behind him three deep, sullen shouts, which told him that his comrades had set their faces to the foe once more. Then all was blank, until he woke to find kindly blue English eyes peering down upon him and to hear the blessed sound of his country's speech. They were but a foraging party—a hundred archers and as many men-at-arms—but their leader was Sir Hugh Calverley, and he was not a man to bide idle when good blows were to be had not three leagues from him. A scout was sent flying with a message to the camp, and Sir Hugh, with his 200 men, thundered off to the rescue. With them went Alleyn, still bound to his saddle, still dripping with blood and swooning and recovering and swooning again. On they rode, and on, until, at last, topping a ridge, they looked down upon the fateful valley. Alas! and alas! for the sight that met their eyes.

There, beneath them, was the blood-bathed hill and from the highest pinnacle there flaunted the yellow and white banner with the lions and the towers of the royal house of Castile. Up the long slope rushed ranks and ranks of men—exultant, shouting, with waving pennons and brandishing arms. Over the whole summit were dense throngs of knights, with no enemy that could be seen to face them, save only that at one corner of the plateau an eddy and swirl amid the crowded mass seemed to show that all resistance was not yet at an end. At the sight a deep groan of rage and of despair went up from the baffled rescuers, and, spurring on their horses, they clattered down the long and winding path which led to the valley beneath.

But they were too late to avenge, as they had been too late to save. Long ere they could gain the level ground, the Spaniards, seeing them riding swiftly amid the rocks and being ignorant of their numbers, drew off from the captured hill, and having secured their few prisoners, rode slowly in a long column, with drum-beating and cymbal-clashing, out of the valley. Their rear ranks were already passing out of sight ere the newcomers were urging their panting, foaming horses up the slope which had been the scene of that long drawn and bloody fight.

And a fearsome sight it was that met their eyes! Across the lower end lay the dense heap of men and horses where the first arrow-storm had burst. Above, the bodies of the dead and the dying—French, Spanish, and Aragonese—lay thicker and thicker, until they covered the whole ground two and three deep in one dreadful tangle of slaughter. Above them lay the Englishmen in their lines, even as they had stood, and higher yet upon the plateau a wild medley of the dead of all nations, where the last deadly grapple had left them. In the further corner, where the shadow of a great rock, there crouched seven bowmen, with great John in the center of them—all wounded, weary and in sorry ease, but still unconquered, with their blood-stained weapons waving and their voices ringing a welcome to their countrymen. Alleyn rode across to John, while Sir Hugh Calverley followed close behind him.

"By St. George," cried Sir Hugh, "I have never seen signs of so stern a fight and I am right glad that we have been in time to save you."

"You have saved more than us," said John, pointing to the banner which leaned against the rock behind him.

"You have done nobly," cried the old free companion, gazing with a

NORTH SIDE AND ROSEN HEIGHTS

Meeting of City Council—The Catholic Church to Be Dedicated

Nash Furniture Company.

The north side city council, in the office of the North Texas Live Stock Commission Company, met last night with Mayor James D. Farmer presiding and all aldermen present. Owing to the tardiness of Alderman Grant, who had the keys to the office, the council was not called to order until after 9 o'clock.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and approved by the council. Under reports of committees the committee appointed for the accounting of the books of the rearing secretary, John F. Grant, and City Marshall and Tax Collector R. D. Howell, reported that the books of the secretary were in perfect balance and that those of the city marshal and tax collector showed a delinquency of $93. Both reports, upon the recommendation of the committee, were approved by the council.

Upon the suggestion of Alderman Grant the appointment of city officials and committees recommended to the mayor by the council was postponed until the next regular meeting.

PETITION FOR SEWER

Sam Rosen presented a petition asking for permission to construct a sewer, beginning at the alley in the rear of the Rosen Inn, thence to a point on Central avenue, thence along the curb of Central avenue to the intersection of Central avenue and Twentieth street; thence north along the line of the old car track to a point on Marine creek. Mr. Rosen further agreed to lay and construct the sewer under the direction of the city engineer of North Fort Worth, or offered to place the matter of the construction in the hands of the street and alley committee, the committee to draw on him for all necessary funds for its construction. The petition also states that upon the completion of the sewer, said sewer is to be turned over to the city as public property of the city.

After the reading of the petition Alderman Grant suggested that in the absence of the city attorney the matter be postponed until the next meeting of the council. Alderman Arthur asked at what point on Marine creek the sewer would empty. He was told by the city engineer and Mr. Rosen that the outlet would be near the present outlet of the packing house and stock yards sewer system.

BOUQUET FOR MR. ROSEN

"I think it would be a good thing for the town, and if we had a few more men like Mr. Rosen in North Fort Worth we would soon have a fine system in the city," said Alderman Lydon. "I understand that several other citizens have signified their willingness to subscribe toward the construction of a sewerage system, and upon its completion have agreed that it should be turned over to the city as public property."

Alderman Conway at this point stated to the council that the packing houses and stock yards company had at present pending in the courts a number of suits filed against them on account of the present sewer system. The total amount of suits pending he stated would aggregate $100,000, and that the city of North Fort Worth was in no position to be made a party to any or all of these suits. Alderman Arthur

Beautiful and Valuable Memento of Great Exposition

As previously announced, The Telegram has arranged to supply its readers with the "Forest City Art Portfolios," consisting of thirty parts, which will be issued one a week, beginning next Monday and continuing for thirty weeks during the life of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

The portfolios are 11x14 inches in size. Each number, or part, contains sixteen superb photographic views, $100 pictures, judiciously chosen in order to make every separate number representative and complete.

The photographs are taken especially for the work by the official photographer of the fair, and the descriptions are from the pen of Walter B. Stevens, secretary of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. The series is therefore, doubly official.

Thousands of people all over the country feel sorrow at the thought of the phenomenal character of this greatest of all exhibitions. The Gardens, Highways, Lagoons, Palaces of Nations, Amusement Parks, which for seven months will inspire the rapture of visitors from everywhere, which will prove the astonishment of foreigners, and the pride of Americans, will disappear as effectively as the silent Arab in the poem, and be seen no more.

The Telegram is doing its share of helpful work. It has arranged to secure for its readers the complete set, as issued, of official photographic reproductions, representative of the choice scenes and brilliant features, as worthy mementos of the most wonderful gathering of the arts, sciences and industries of all nations.

The possessor of this elaborate series of World's Fair views will be as familiar with the grounds, buildings, exhibits, foreign representations and works of art as any visitor to the exposition itself. Mental pictures fade very rapidly, especially where the variety of scenes and views is so great, as at the World's Fair; but the "Forest City" portfolios will keep them for us forever. The series also constitutes an educational possession, which every one of our readers will highly prize.

The distribution begins next Monday, when Part I will be ready, comprising sixteen large photographic reproductions of several of the buildings already completed and of notable groups in connection with the dedication ceremonies.

Readers should send in at once, using the coupon on page 8 of today's paper.

THE TRACTION CO. AGREEMENT

In presenting the bill against the city the secretary came across some which were for labor and material for improving Main street between Marine and Exchange avenue. The agreement made between Manager Haines of the Traction company and the street and alley committee regarding the improvements of Main street was brought up and again thoroughly ventilated. Alderman Lydon stated that the Traction company, for the privilege of a double track had agreed to put in some needed improvements on the street, but thus far had done nothing with the exception of improving their car service with a double track.

Mayor Farmer then stated that all means available should be exhausted to get the Traction company to take some action in the matter, and if the company refused to abide by their agreement then the council would be compelled to make the improvements.

EXTEND VOTE OF THANKS

Upon a motion by Alderman Lydon a vote of thanks was tendered former City Engineer Carl Zane-Cottrell and H. Harding, who since the incorporation of North Fort Worth as a municipality has acted as treasurer of the town. Mr. Zane-Cottrell filled the position of city engineer with entire satisfaction, being succeeded at the recent election by J. M. Hall, a resident engineer of the north side.

DEDICATE A CHURCH

The new church of All Saints on the north side will be formally dedicated at the morning service next Sunday. Bishop Dunne will officiate at the dedication. Father McKee, the priest of the parish, has worked untiringly for the establishment of the All Saints parish, and the erection of the new church, which was begun last January, and has been erected at a cost of $3,000. The choir of Oak Cliff will furnish the musical program and a large attendance from Dallas is expected, as Father McKee has many friends in that city.

This evening at the Exchange Cafe Mesdames Sawyer and Kelly will entertain the friends and members of the church with a coffee social, the proceeds of which will go to the benefit of the church fund.

METHODIST ENTERTAINMENT

Next Monday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. B. Bones on Central and Lee avenues the Women's Home Mission Society of the Methodist church will entertain friends with a lawn social. Everybody is invited and a large attendance is expected, as the proceeds are to go to a worthy cause.

PANTHERS BEATEN

GALVESTON, Texas, April 27.—Unable to solve Lutch was the tale of woe the Fort Worth Panthers gave at Galveston yesterday. One run is all the Panthers are credited with, while the Sandhogs crossed the plate eight times.

The game ended in the eighth inning in order to give the Fort Worth team time to catch the train for Corsicana. The score: Fort Worth.....0 1 0 0 0 0 0 5
Galveston.....2 2 0 2 0 2 2 11

UNIVERSITY DEFEATED

SHERMAN, Texas, April 27.—Austin College defeated the Fort Worth University team yesterday by a score of 11 to 6. The features of the game were Robinson's work on first, Greer, who pitched for Austin, put up a good game.

WEST TEXAS LEAGUE

SAN ANGELO, Texas, April 27.—Plans are being made for the formation of a league in this part of the state. James Hardie of Brady is at the head of affairs and is bringing matters to a close as soon as possible.

The towns to be included in the league are as follows: Brady, Brownwood, Ballinger, Coleman, San Angelo, Dublin, Santa Anna, Stephenville and Cisco.

It Is Superior to the Street
Fairs—Loop the Loop Is the Feature of the Stadium—All
Are Pleased

The Woodmen carnival now being held here is in no way like unto the street fairs which have been held from time to time, and which have been without merit. This is a series of first-class entertainments, with the Stadium as the center of interest, the Zoo being the next in importance.

Last night the streets were thronged with people, and the shows were liberally patronized. Every one had its crowds and the barker was not driven to the necessity of much talking to induce them to come inside the various exhibitions.

The shows on the grounds give performance every few minutes. It is only in the Stadium that a fixed hour is arranged for the performance to commence. There are two exhibitions daily in the Stadium, the first at 3:30 p. m. and the second at 8:30 p. m. The visitor to the grounds can spend some time with various attractions, and then move to the Stadium in time for the opening act.

The Stadium is provided with seats, and within the enclosure a first-class circus exhibition is given. There are tumbler, trapeze performers, acrobats, jugglers, etc., every act being worth the time one spends to see it. In this attraction is the high dive into a tank of water, which is performed by a man and a woman, and also the loop the loop, in which there is a death trap.

LOOPING THE LOOP

The looping of the death-trap loop must take precedence over everything else ever shown here.

Imagine, if it is possible, a human being, with no thought of suicide, no desire to give up his life, a happy, rollicking sort of young chap, rushing down a 100-foot runway, set at a steep angle and mounted on a bicycle, into a twenty-six foot perpendicular circle, thirty-six inches in width, successfully looping that circle without turning a hair and being shot from the loop like a bullet from a rifle, as unflinched and as calm as he is a moment later when he quietly refers to the weather.

There are so many other magnetic features about this loop ride that it must be seen else a world of its beautiful excitement is entirely lost. The rider rides into that loop with no means of an exit, except by way of the "death trap," which means all that the word "death" carries with it. However, by means of a marvelous bit of mechanism, after the Gauntless rider has passed one-quarter of the way around the loop, a strip of structure about ten feet long slips automatically from the position which it has been occupying, with an aggravating, lazy swing cradles into position for the rider's exit, and clicks into firm position exactly that instant—not the second, but the instant—when the rider rushes upon that last section and out of the structure in safety.

And then such a rush of enthusiastic admirers, all anxious to shake the hand of this brave fellow, such an outburst of "bravos," such a thunderclap of cheers and excited approval as break loose can never be painted by any series of words.

THE GASKILL ZOO

The next big feature that always proves interesting as well as instructive was the Gaskill zoo, or trained wild animal exhibit. At every exposition in this country and abroad the star feature has always been the marvelous trained wild animal exhibitions, where the very acme of human courage, daring, and intelligence, together with a superlative degree of educational zoological features, are the combined salient characteristics of a world's resources and a lifetime's plucky effort, a perseverance and experience as represented by the great Gaskill Carnival Company.

The exterior of the zoo or trained wild animal exhibition is a mass of rare painting, carving and gilding and electric lighting, and represents the very highest degree of decorator's art. Around the base of the interior, the great star-towered cases, wherein are shown the brute creation fully and complete.

The performance in the zoo consists of performing lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, hyenas, jaguars, and other members of the animal kingdom, each trained to perform in all manner of wonderful acts at the command of his or her trainer. The animal trainers with the Gaskill zoo, Messrs. Dyer and Mille, Salina, are universally recognized as the most daring in the entire world, whose feats with their man-eating pets literally baffle description.

A LARGE CONTRACT

What H. T. Pangburn Wants Every Person in Fort Worth to do

When H. T. Pangburn, the enterprising druggist, first offered a 50-cent package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, and guaranteed to return the money if it did not cure, he thought it probable from his experience with other medicines for these diseases, that he would have a good many packages returned. But, although he has sold hundreds of bottles, not one has been brought back.

This is so surprising that he has taken the contract to introduce Dr. Howard's specific in at least half the homes in Fort Worth and to do that he will continue his special price introductory offer.

H. T. Pangburn wants every person in Fort Worth who has constipation, dyspepsia, headaches or liver trouble to come to his store or send him 25 cents by mail and get 50 cents of the best medicine ever made at half the regular price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Father and Brothers Placed on the Stand in Trial of Joe Wolf—Wolf and Lawrence to Get Change of Venue

By 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the jury that is to sit in judgment on the guilt or innocence of Joe Wolf, who is charged with the murder of Hendrix Long, nearly two years ago, had been secured in the Seventeenth district court. The special venire of 100 jurors was exhausted and Judge Smith ordered another fifty men summoned, before a jury was secured, as follows: S. W. Light, J. W. Renfro, J. H. Massie, J. C. Mann, W. B. McRoberts, J. S. Presnall, T. A. Owens, Clay Sandridge, J. E. Keaton, Hal Sellers, A. D. Mann and Lee Calloway.

Five or six witnesses were placed on the stand late in the afternoon, among them C. B. Long, father of the dead boy; Jim Lee and Cleveland Long, brothers of the murdered young man, the latter being his twin.

There was nothing especially new testified to by any of these witnesses other than what was brought out during the last trial of Wolf, which resulted in a hung jury.

C. P. LONG'S TESTIMONY

C. P. Long testified that his son left home, eight miles from Azle, in Parker county, on the morning of December 17, 1902, to bring a load of charcoal to the Fort Worth market. He drove a span of black mules. He was expected to return home three days later, but failing he sent two of his boys to Fort Worth to investigate his detention. They discovered that the mules, wagon and harness had been sold to different parties. The matter was reported to the officers and a search began. It was a month later when the body was discovered in the Trinity about two miles below Fort Worth, badly decomposed. The body had lodged across a willow tree. The dead boy was attired in the same clothes that he wore when he left home.

The wagon was located at the Concho wagon yard on East Belknap street, and in the bottom of the bed near the rear end was found a large splash of blood, which indicated that a struggle had taken place. The blood had trickled down through the bottom of the wagon box onto the axle. The set of harness was recovered at the Central wagon yard, where they had been sold.

Jim Long told of his coming to Fort Worth to search for his missing brother. The same story was related by another brother, Lee Long. He said he was in the city on the day the body was fished out of the Trinity river and he drove home with the body. He said his dead brother had on the same clothes when found that he wore when he left for Fort Worth with the load of charcoal. He identified an old pocketknife which was found in the pants pocket of the dead boy by Constable Tom Wren, who found the dead boy.

Cleveland Long testified that he saw his brother when he started for Fort Worth about six miles with the load of charcoal. He said that there was about forty bushels of the coal, about one-half of it sacked.

TOM WREN'S TESTIMONY

Tom Wren said that he found the body in the river January 23, 1903, near the old race track. He described the wounds on the body, and said there was a wound on one temple and the skull was crushed. The pants pockets had been turned inside out.

The trial of the case will not be concluded before tomorrow. There are some twenty-five or thirty witnesses in the case.

It will be recalled that Wolf was indicted jointly with Joe Lawrence, the killing of Long, the accused men have been previously tried for the murder, Lawrence being found guilty and given a life sentence, while the Wolf jury failed to agree on a verdict.

The Lawrence case has been reversed by the criminal court of appeals.

There are two cases pending against Wolf and Lawrence in connection with the alleged murder of James Wilson. It was stated yesterday that a change of venue will be had and the trials will probably be held in Dallas county.

After Five Years' Suffering from Backache and Kidney Trouble, Was Restored to Health
by Warner's Safe Cure.

MISS JOSEPHINE LANE.

"I suffered for over five years with malaria and kidney trouble—my whole system was impregnated with the poison. It affected my general health, robbing me of energy and vitality, and causing severe headache and backache. The digestive organs were also impaired, so my food seemed tasteless and like lead in my stomach. I passed a dreary existence and my naturally happy disposition was changed into one of constant irritation and nervous inconsistencies.

Warner's Safe Cure was the only remedy ever found which helped me. I began taking it in March, and before the warm weather came I was completely cured, felt like a new woman, full of life and hope.

"Words cannot tell how pleased I am to have my health back. I have a keen appetite and enjoy my meals; digestion is perfect. All my aches and pains have left me. I have gained nine pounds in weight and I feel in harmony with all the world because I am now perfectly well." Miss JOSEPHINE LANE, 152 Shawmut Ave., Boston, Mass.

Thousands, both men and women, like Miss Lane, have been cured of serious complications caused by kidney disease neglected, by Warner's Safe Cure, after all so-called kidney cures had failed.

Warner's Safe Cure is purely vegetable and contains no narcotic or harmful drugs. It is free from sediment and pleasant to take. It does not constipate; it is a most valuable and effective tonic; it is a stimulant to digestion and awakens the torpid liver. It repairs the tissues, soothes inflammation and irritation, stimulates the enfeebled organs and heals at the same time. It builds up the body, gives it strength and restores energy. You can buy Safe Cure at any drug store or direct. 50 CENTS AND $1 A BOTTLE.

Beware of so-called kidney cures which are full of sediment and of bad odor; they are positively harmful and do not cure.

VIEW IN DAKOTA ON STOCK BUYING

three months past and has ridden the range extensively in the efforts. "Nowhere have I had a cash offer. My people down south want to get rid of the cattle, but are not willing to let them go on this basis, with no added security. The prospective purchaser wants us to take all the risk."

FRANKLIN IS OUT OF IT

Harris Franklin declared to the Live Stock World man today that he would put no more cattle on the range—this year at least—and perhaps never again.

"Too much chance about it," he said. "I had enough and to spare. The settler can take a whirl at it now. I could get the cattle cheap enough this year, but we've no place to put 'em. The range cattleman is cleaning up; at least that is his intention. What he is on the alert for is the opportunity to cash."

"A good game for the young man," said Thomas Tomb, of the Lake-Tomb Company. "I've seen all the ups and downs of the cattle business. I have for that's why we are not putting out any cattle this year. We can't make beef on the open range now-a-days and the reservation pasture proposition looks too expensive. We have found it that way, at least. My object now is to gather in my money and put it out at 5 per cent. As I said before, the cattle business is a good proposition for a young man who will ride the range and devote personal attention to his business. It cannot be handled successfully at long range."

George Moorehead has bought southern cattle this year and says he is not in the market. "There will be a good opportunity to get in, but it hasn't presented itself yet," he said. "Liquidation is not over. There is a world of cattle in the country and they must get to market. I do not say that prices have not touched bottom, but I am confident that while the markets of the country are crowded as they have been and are likely to be, no material advance is probable."

This is the tone of the cattleman's talk. "I'm cleaning up," is his reply when asked if he intends to buy any southern cattle this spring.

The settler has fenced up most of the water, and cattleman who provided against this contingency are few. Some express the opinion that not more than 50 per cent of the southern cattle turned on the South Dakota range last year will be brought in this season. Others are even more conservative in making estimates.

"I could put out a lot of cattle if I would consent to accept them as security," said a man who has been endeavoring, unsuccessfully, to make a deal for

Judge Parker's Silence Made the Subject of Jest—Hearst's Candidacy Likened to an Elephant Which Had Crawled Through a Keyhole—Supreme Court Justices Are Masqueraded as Minstrel Men

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Conservative silence on the part of Judge Alton B. Parker of New York was made the subject of jest at the April dinner of the Gridiron Club at the Arlington this year, and the candidacy of William R. Hearst was treated with levity which must have appealed even to Mr. Hearst's friends. The supreme court, the president, senate senators, the speaker and leading members of the house of representatives were made to furnish many a quip and jest, while dignified personages figured in topical songs.

Among those at the tables were Justices Harlan and Brewer of the supreme court of the United States, Secretary Moody, Senators Aldrich, Allison, Cullom, Dick, Dooliver, Kittredge and Millard, Speaker Cannon, Representatives Bede, Benton, Cushman, Dalzell, Hay, Hemenway, Landis, Lovering, Powers, Sullivan and John Sharp Williams.

SUPREME COURT IN DISGUISE
When the dinner was at its height the chief justice announced the entrance of the chief justice and the associate justices and a sedate column of nine stately figures, clad in black gowns, marched slowly in and bowed, while the car opened the court.

In a flash the court was turned into a minstrel show, while Justices Harlan and Brewer gasped, and then burst into uproarious laughter. There were two tambourines, two bones, an interlocutor and four justices. Here is some of the conversation which ensued:

Interlocutor—You seem to take a great interest in Mr. Hearst's candidacy, Mr. Justice Randolph.

Randolph—Oh, yes; I heard a conundrum about it the other day.

Snyder—I was wondering if you had heard of the latest executive order from the White House?

Randolph—Why is Hearst's chase after the democratic nomination like living at a hotel on the American plan?

Interlocutor—Well, really, I don't know. Why is Hearst's chase after the democratic nomination like living at an American plan hotel?

Randolph—Because you pay for it whether you get it or not.

Interlocutor—Well, Mr. Justice Snyder, what do you think of the situation?

Snyder—I was wondering if you had heard of the latest executive order from the White House?

Interlocutor—I think not. What is the latest executive order from the White House?

Snyder—The president is going to give service pensions to first voters.

Interlocutor—Speaking about judges, what is your opinion of Judge Parker, Mr. Justice Wynne?

Wynne—He doesn't seem very talkative. Still, the republicans are going to fix that.

Interlocutor—The republicans are going to fix that? How?

Wynne—Tom Platt is going to send him a frank so he can express an opinion.

Interlocutor—Mr. Justice Bennett, what were you about to say?

Bennett—I see Senator Allison is present. Did you ever hear that story about the man who tried to get him to make a definite statement? You know, there was a flock of fresh-sheared sheep.

Interlocutor—Now, Mr. Justice Bennett, that story is entirely too old to be told in this country. You mean the chestnut about the man who said to the senator: "Those sheep have justice been sheared?" and the senator replied: "It looks like it on this side." That is the old story.

Bennett (interrupting)—I don't mean anything of the kind. Senator Allison did not say, "It looks like it on this side."

Interlocutor—You surprise me. He didn't refrain from committing himself by saying, "It looks like it on this side."

Then, pray, what did he say?

Bennett (triumphantly)—He said: "As respects to that, has it been demonstrated that they are sheep?"

Interlocutor—And that reminds me that we have the other senator from Iowa here tonight, also.

Bennett—Deliver? Oh, yes, Deliver is here, and he is still holding out for the Iowa idea.

THE IOWA IDEA
Interlocutor—Holding out for the Iowa idea? Now, Mr. Justice Bennett, what is the Iowa idea?

Bennett—To get all the offices you can and hold for more, and to take the tariff off codfish and keep it on wheat.

Out of respect to Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, retired, who is favored as a candidate for president by the prohibition party, Mr. Justice Hay sang: "I'm on the Water Wagon Now." Then the dialogue was resumed.

Interlocutor—Mr. Justice Snyder, you appear to have something on your mind. Snyder—I was just thinking of the report I heard today that Secretary Moody is going to resign.

Interlocutor—There have been rumors to that effect. I understand, and we shall all be sorry to have him go.

Snyder—Well, he's sorry, all right, but really, it wouldn't be fair for him to stay.

Interlocutor—I don't think I catch the drift of your remarks. Why wouldn't it be fair for him to stay?

Snyder—Because there are three or four people in Massachusetts who have not been secretary of the navy yet.

Interlocutor—Mr. Justice Bennett, what are your views on the topics of the times?

Bennett—I've been reading a lot about this Hearst boom, and how it is growing and growing, and it reminds me of a man I know who woke up one night and found a pink elephant in his room.

Interlocutor—A pink elephant in his room? How did it get in?

Bennett—He couldn't figure that out, for it was too big to come in the door or the window, but he was so scared he didn't think about that much. All he wanted was to get it out.

Interlocutor—Ah, yes, get it out. And what did he do?

Bennett—He didn't do anything. He was trembling in bed, until, all of a sudden, the elephant settled the whole thing.

Interlocutor—That is very interesting.

What did the elephant do?

Bennett—Why, it backed out slowly through the keyhole.

Randolph—By the way, Mr. Interlocutor, didn't I see Representative "Tim" Sullivan of New York over there?

Interlocutor—You certainly did. Representative Sullivan is with us tonight.

Randolph—I was just thinking what a great thing it was for him to come to congress.

Interlocutor—Great thing? I don't understand you. It is a great thing for any man to come to congress. How does Mr. Sullivan differ from any other member?

Randolph—Why, when he got here he found out that the United States is not bounded by the Bowery and Coney Island.

Interlocutor—What do you hear about the candidate for the nomination for vice president, Mr. Justice Kauffman?

HONORING THEIR DEAD MEN
Kauffman—I hear they talk of running John Sharp Williams.

Interlocutor—I am indeed glad to hear that. Mr. Williams would be a capital choice.

Kauffman (dejectedly)—But he won't get it.

Interlocutor—Won't get it? Why are you of that opinion?

Kauffman—Because the south is too busy remembering her dead men to take any stock in her live ones.

Interlocutor—Mr. Justice Morsell will now oblige with that beautiful melody.

Four members of the court then sang to the tune of "The Little Black Bull" a song, the title of which was given as "Peeping Through the Keyhole in Papa's Wooden Leg; or, Why Was the Ocean Built So Near to the Shore?"

David B. Hill came down the mountain, Hoosan Johnny, Hoosan Johnny.

WHITEWASHING PERFORMANCE
Appropos of the result of the whitewashing investigation of the "charges against members" of the house in connection with the postoffice department, an open session of the Gridiron Whitewashing Committee was held. Various prominent statesmen were arraigned on various charges, a large portrait of each being displayed as the case was taken up.

Each was in order declared not guilty and ordered to be whitewashed, when the official whitewasher would daub the portrait. Thus Speaker Cannon was whitewashed on the charge of not being independent of the senate; Representative Adam Bede on the charge of being a humorist; Attorney General Knox of being too reckless in pursuing the trusts and Senator Fairbanks of being too radical in his views.

After a heated discussion, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristolow, while not found innocent of the charge of trying to put congress in a hole, was ordered to be whitewashed. The whitewash would not stick, and the committee abruptly adjourned.

Beer is Good for You

When the patient is weak, the doctor says "Drink Beer."

When the nerves need food, beer is the usual prescription. So in insomnia; so in nervousness.

The doctor knows that malt and hops are nerve foods and tonics. And he knows that most people drink too little fluid to rid the system of waste.

He knows that pure beer is good for you.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS

NEW OKLAHOMA LINES

The officers of the Muskogee Union Railroad Company have filed an increase in the capital stock from $1,000,000 to $7,500,000 and authorized the construction of 272 miles of road. The company has a line in operation into Muskogee from the Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe lines, and the new lines provided for will run southwest and northeast from that city. The additional increase in the capital stock is to be used for making these extensions.

Three railroads are being surveyed at this time in Western Oklahoma. The Apache, Taloga and Northern has been organized and is ready to proceed with the survey. The Colorado, Oklahoma and Southeastern has two corps in the field surveying two routes between Weatherford and Woodward, both passing through Dewey county. Another surveying force is in the same field, routing a line for the Denver, Woodward and Southeastern. All these lines have a northerly and southerly direction.

Berg and Chief Engineer Hinkley of the New Orleans Terminal Company have been in this city in consultation with President Loree of the Rock Island and President Spencer of the Southern Railway, over the plans and specifications of the terminal company's properties at New Orleans, which will be used jointly by the two roads. The plans proposed were approved and work will be put under way as soon as the improvements will cost it is estimated, between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000, and while they will not be completed for perhaps two years, the temporary yards and stations will be opened for use in July.

From Cherry-Blossom Land.

The Japanese Give Good Example.

It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that a healthy stomach is the basis of all strength. Good nature is also recognized as of great importance. The Japanese as a people are remarkable for their health, endurance, patience and skill. They have a system of physical training which is universally used. It is called the Jiu Jitsu, and by this they regulate diet, bathing, clothing, breathing, muscular development and boxing. They have a philosophy that good humor is followed by good health. They try to banish worry, and believe that a cheerful view of life is a good foundation for strength. Such philosophy could well be adopted by our American people. We are apt to be too serious.

They have many sayings in Japan similar to our own. One is that "a woman is as old as she looks," but a Japanese woman's face is usually as unlined as a baby's. Although the Japanese women do not usually have the well developed figures of our American women, yet they do not gather wrinkles from worry nor suffer as do our American women. What is it that makes our American women often pale, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very often old at forty-five when they should be in their prime? In more southern climates like Japan the women live closer to nature—they live simple, homely lives and do not worry because they cannot dress as extravagantly as their neighbors, nor do they have the ambitions and jealousies of their neighbors to contend with. They eat wholesome food and do not practice high living. To keep young a woman must keep healthy and strong. When she is run down with the pains and ills which come periodically among our women-kind, she adds years to her looks, wrinkles develop, and the woman really suffers untold agony. There is no real need for this if she will practice right living, recognize her bodily needs, practice hygiene—all of which knowledge she can obtain from some reliable medical book like Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which can be had by sending him thirty-one cents for the cloth-bound volume, or twenty-one cents for the paper bound. Dr. R. V.

Pierce, who is the founder and medical director of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, New York, says, "There is no reason why women should suffer if they will take the proper means to cure those irregularities which lead them to a miserable existence."

Women suffer in girlhood from backache, spine-ache and headaches, followed by irregularities, painful or disagreeable, and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could suppose. It is often the result of days of girlhood passed in overcrowded public schools, or worse, in a jail-like boarding school for young ladies. The brain is crowded, indigestible foods disturb the stomach, the body does not get headful growth, and the undeveloped woman leaves school to plunge into social dissipation, followed only too closely by the taking up of wifely duties and responsibilities towards a husband who has only noticed her beautiful face. The woman suffering from continued nervousness, weariness, wakefulness, headache and backache, needs the advice of a physician of large experience. Perhaps the physician of the largest experience in the Diseases of Women is Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. The young wife, desiring the advice of a physician is deterred therefrom by bashfulness, and so are many younger women, single women, and we should advise these to write at once to Dr. Pierce, who will treat their correspondence as strictly confidential, and give them an intelligent medical opinion of their cases without cost.

After long experience in the treatment of womanly diseases, Dr. Pierce evolved a vegetable tonic and corrective which he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is a purely vegetable preparation, without a particle of alcohol contained in it. Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, or Falling of the Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Washington. Recent records McKenzie is afflicted with the harmless mendicancy, usually crippled, who sit silently in the street or wherever people are passing and hold out their hats or a tin box with mute appeal for aid. For several years McKenzie has been a conspicuous figure on the elevated stations. He has but one leg, and always sat on the floor, with his crutches lying in his lap and his hat stretched out for coins.

For weeks at a time he would be seen every afternoon during the rush hours at the stations along the Sixth Avenue line, and then some one would enter a complaint and he would be arrested and sent to the island. There he was always a welcome prisoner, for his mechanical genius found great opportunity about the shops and buildings. During his various periods of confinement he perfected the device for protecting the third rail, and distrustful of every person who attempted to examine them finally called upon the charity organization for help. The officials at once took charge of the matter. They say McKenzie was almost starved when he finally asked for aid.

The meeting was characterized by a remarkable outburst of religious fervor. Oak Park was a closed town practically for twenty-four hours. Business in general was suspended, stores were closed and thought was centered on the work of the revivalists, the Rev. Mr. Biederwolf and Harry Maxwell, the evangelistic singer. Beginning with services at 10 a. m. in four churches, there was scarcely an intermission for fifteen hours in the prayer, praise and singing services.

RANGE CATTLEMEN HOLD MEETING

President Howard of the Association of South Dakota Advises Reasonable and Conciliatory Attitude to Railroads

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Western South Dakota Stock Growers' Association has been full of interest throughout.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the old officers, President C. K. Howard and Secretary F. M. Stewart, who have served so faithfully.

Directors—G. E. Lemmon, Albert Taddiken, S. G. Sheffield, Eugene Holcomb, C. M. Lamson, J. M. Brown, J. Q. Anderson, J. W. Williams, James T. Craig, J. D. Hale, Thos. Sweeney, Edward Stenger, Wm. Reed, B. C. Ash, E. W. Thode, T. B. Irwin and J. W. Stetter have done hard and efficient work for the association and their efforts are appreciated.

Delegates chosen to represent the Western South Dakota Stock Growers at the Denver conference on railroad problems May 2 are:

C. K. Howard,
F. M. Stewart,
A. E. de Rieles.

ADVISES CONCILIATION

President Howard advises conciliatory and reasonable attitude toward the railroads. He said he had been told by those in authority that this policy would be very likely to result in the restoration of return stock passes, which would lead to a more equitable and profitable business.

Mr. de Rieles said the main reason there was so little demand for Texas cattle to go to the northern ranges was bad railroad service. Stockmen could stand the rate of $45 per car from Texas to South Dakota, but cattle are now so long on the road that when they reach their destination in the north they are weakened and often emaciated by the hardships of the trip to such an extent that they could not recover before winter was upon them and the result meant severe winter losses, added to the other troubles of the northwestern range men.

PACKERS' COMPLAINT

United States Senator Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming, in an address to the convention, did not hesitate to say that the return pass was a very small matter to the stockmen as compared with the wretchedly bad service the railroads had been giving during the last season.

Still he thought the railroads ought at least to send home one man with every ten cars of stock. He said there was no doubt that the return pass privilege had been considerably abused by a great many good hearted, but thoughtless shippers, but that fact did not, in his estimation, justify the railroads in making a sweeping rule to deny return passage of attendants.

Referring to the Independent Packing Company scheme, Senator Carey deprecated the idea as being of any real value to stockmen in their present troubles.

He thought some reasonable restrictions and safeguards could easily be adopted that would be fair to stockmen and the railroads from a good deal of responsibility and land stock in better condition.

OPPOSED TO "INDEPENDENT"

It is doubtful, even if a great packing business could be built up as has been outlined, whether men could be found with sufficient strength of character to resist the opportunity to go into a general combine if opportunity presented itself.

Any great packing house combine that would be seriously detrimental to the interests of stockmen would not be likely to last.

Even the railroad combinations were in a precarious condition. He cited the Illinois and Great Northern, the Burlington and Great Northern as an example of what might be expected in these gigantic combinations and mergers.

PACKERS COULD NOT BE PREVENTED FROM CO-OPERATION

By co-operation, Senator Carey thought the packers could handle their business better and earn larger profits and be able to pay more for cattle and take less for beef, pork and mutton than under the old time methods of wasteful competition. The senator cited the case of the Rockfellers as showing how co-operation increases profits, while at the same time decreasing the cost to consumer.

WHAT RANGEMEN MUST DO
"Rangemen in this country, in order to stay in business and make a success," said Senator Carey, must co-operate so as to prevent the overstocking of ranges; they must resort to hay stack insurance; they must put their business on more of a business basis; they must be prepared to take care of the weak and young cattle and manage to do all this and at the same time cut down expenses. Then they will be able to avoid disastrous winter losses and be in position to ship riper and better cattle. The range cattle shipped to market last year were notoriously in waxy condition and owing to the slow service of the railroads the young cattle brought up from the south were in such weakened shape that the severe winter and spring storms caused large losses.

Railroads must furnish relief this season, said Senator Carey, and if they did not give a lower rate and better service they would not haul many cattle to the northwestern ranges during 1904.

The proclamation of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association calling for the congress of stockmen at Denver, May 3, was received with loud plaudits.

S. DAK. CATTLEMEN PRESENT CAUSES

Secretary Stewart Discusses Conditions That Hamper Stockmen in His State—The Faults of Packers

The following extract from the address of Secretary Stewart before the Western South Dakota Stock Growers' Association last week, is one of the most masterly presentations of the cause of the cattlemen that has been made in many years. Mr. Stewart said:

"Since our last meeting here one year ago, many unforeseen and serious changes have been wrought against your interests. Never before in the history of the range stock industry has the same length of time developed so many adverse conditions. The stern command of 'hands up' of frontier days has been repeated from every source which could secure the drop. The cattle king of newspaper fame a few days ago, unless he had foresight enough to unload his herd and title, is today dejected, uncrowned and burdened with troubles exceeding those of a czar or emperor. These unfortunate and disastrous conditions are the natural outcome of modern business methods. Organization and combination have been the order of the day and all industries which have not kept pace with the evolution are suffering in consequence. The live stock industry, one of the most important of the nation, through apathy, indifference and willingness to let well enough alone, stands today practically where it stood fifteen years ago, while the packing house interests and railroads have grown away from us. The very men who once were interested in your welfare, sympathized with you in your adversity and rejoiced at your good fortune, are today arrayed against you. You have now reached a point where you must prepare to defend and protect your industry or get out of the business."

AGAINST INDEPENDENT PACKERS
"The proposed plan to establish a system of independent packing plants to be owned, operated and controlled by stockmen, is a gigantic undertaking, feasible, practical and possible, but which offers no hope for relief in the immediate future. It does not wish to be in any manner understood as opposing this movement, but cannot lose sight of the fact that the same element which controls the packing house industry is a large factor in the ownership and management of western railroads, stock yards, refrigerator car service and even the financial institutions through which a large percentage of the range men secure funds. All these interests will be allied against us and it will require time, energy and money to make it a success."

FAULTS OF THE RAILROADS

"The second blow to our peace of mind and prosperity came from the railroads. All transportation to stockmen withdrawn strictly on account of that handy and ever-present Elkins law. Superannuated, over-burdened consumptive engines, slabsided, dilapidated cars, slow running time and excessive rates have been accepted with the best grace possible. The climax which went into effect January 1, abolishing return transportation on stock ships' contracts. As the matter now stands, if you desire to ship a bunch of those kindly-faced old cows which have stood by you through thick and thin, you can accompany them on their last long journey, protect them from abuse, administer to their needs, see them pass over the scales to the great beyond and your errand of mercy then being ended, you can return to your home on a regular full fare ticket, the cost of which raises the freight rate on your two-car shipment from this section over 10 per cent. The traffic managers of the western roads, at a meeting with a committee from the National Live Stock Association in Chicago, February 25, admitted there was just cause for many of the complaints made. They have agreed to abolish the tonnage system on stock trains, which gives promise of better time being made. They also gave some hope that shippers with range stock would be accorded return transportation. It remains to be seen whether or not they can make good."

THE THIRD DEGREE

"The third degree of the 1903 calamity came in the shape of a demand from the eastern holders of cattle paper, that same be taken up at maturity. The immediate cause for this demand was the fact that some of the Wall street stock jobbers had been caught short on stocks and were offering fabulous rates of interest on call loans, sparring for time and willing to pay anything to secure it. These high rates of interest were inviting to one class of money men for the quick and seductive profits, but to another class as an evidence of an unhealthy condition of trade and both classes called in their western loans. A panic was imminent, with every indication that many of the western cattlemen were to be carried to their ruin by an illegitimate business in which they were in no manner interested or responsible."

"Uncle Sam, however, came to the rescue of his Wall street friends and dumped sufficient funds within their reach to tide them over and he thereby saved many a western bank, commission firm and stockman from going to the wall."

Magazines

EVERY TOWN SHOULD ADVERTISE

One of the first requisites of a good business man, in this age of mercantile activity, is that he should understand the art of advertising. The same rules that govern private concerns should govern the business affairs of cities. Every civilized town that has industrial aspirations and hopes to grow and prosper must needs let the world know what it has to offer by way of inducements. Manufacturing enterprises, educational institutions, business and professional men are ever seeking desirable locations, and it is a noticeable fact that comparatively few cities and towns are attracting them. This is because many towns which possess good water-power, good shipping facilities, good school and residential advantages, lack the life and enterprise to let the world know what they possess. They do not grow because they are unknown. They are like the drowsy merchant who doesn't think it worth while to advertise, but prefers to sit and watch the spiders spin webs across his doorway.

Every new enterprise that locates in a town adds to the prosperity and business possibilities of every dealer in the place, and every citizen who has his own good and the good of the community at heart should take a hand in getting his town into touch with the busy, wide-awake world.—From "The World's Progress," in Four-Track News for May.

A HUMAN HAMLET

Mr. Forbes Robertson's Hamlet is a beautiful performance in which all traditions are swept aside. There is a modernity about it, or rather it is neither old nor new, but intensely human and therefore it belongs to all ages. Mr. Robertson makes Hamlet a man and not the personification of an abstract idea. He is flesh and blood struggling for happiness in the face of a terrible tragedy. His is a youthful Hamlet, with the light and shade of youth, so young that it is difficult to believe that Mr. Robertson is fifty-five years old. Plainly his madness is feigned, and the English player's conception is so admirably portrayed that it carries conviction with it. He is good to look upon, with his thin, intellectual face, his scholarly head, and his wondrous grace. His arms are as eloquent as those of Bernhardt. He reads brilliantly, illuminatingly, although to those who remember Booth, the Robertsonian soliloquy seems lacking in repose. Yet it is consistent. On the other hand, I can remember no one who has ever read the speech to the players so finely.—The Players in Everybody's Magazine for May.

HOW TO DROP PAIN

Annie Payson Call in Leslie's Monthly for May.

A man once grasped a very hot poker with his hand, and although he cried out with pain, held on to the poker. His friend called out to him to drop it, whereupon the man indignantly cried out the more.

"Drop it? How can you expect me to think of dropping it with pain like this? I tell you when a man is suffering, as I am, he can think of nothing but the pain."

And the more indignant he was, the tighter he held on to the poker, and the more he cried out with pain. In the same way people resist pain and hold on to it; when they are attacked with severe pain, they at once devote their entire attention to the sensation of pain, instead of devoting it to the best means of getting relief. They double themselves up tight, and hold on to the place that hurts. Then all the nervous force tends toward the sore place and the tension retards the circulation, and makes it difficult for nature to cure the pain, as she would spontaneously if she were only allowed to have her own way.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Through the accidental finding of some papers, Mrs. Nicholas Van Winkle of Warrenville, N. J., has learned that she is entitled to share in an estate valued at $200,000, which has been left by her mother, Mrs. Mary Havens, who died in Michigan a short time ago.

The latter moved to Michigan and she knew nothing of them until the papers were discovered and communication opened. Her father was found to be still living.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Members of the Charity Society here express the belief that Alexander McKenzie, a professional beggar who was once an electrical engineer, has invented a successful device for the production of the third rail on the elevated tracks and will receive the prize of $100,000 offered by the Interborough Company for that achievement.

So sanguine are the members of the society of the success of Mr. McKenzie's invention that the matter has been placed in the hands of a patent solicitor and a practical test of the device will be made as soon as the patent is perfected in Five delegates to the state convention of the Grocers' and Butchers' Association, to be held at San Antonio, June 14, 15 and 16, were elected at the meeting of the local association held last night. Those chosen were Max Bergman, J. F. Luther, A. S. Dingee, J. C. Martin and A. J. Adams. T. F. Murray, C. C. Cunningham, S. D. Stearns, M. T. Pankey and T. R. McDaniel were elected as alternates. No instructions were given the delegates at the meeting last night, but one other meeting of the association will be held before the date of the convention. Plans for the basket picnic at Lake Erie park, as made by the entertainment committee and printed in The Telegram, were adopted and the committee continued. The change of the date from May 26 to May 10 was also approved. One application for membership in the association was received and granted.

A local chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas will be organized next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time a meeting for that purpose will be held in the R. E. Lee camp headquarters at the court house. The proposed local chapter is one of the outcomes of the recent meeting of the organization held in this city, at which time it was learned there were many women in Fort Worth eligible for membership and willing to form the chapter. Mrs. H. C. Edrington is temporary president and Miss Margaret McLean is temporary secretary of the organization. Persons whose ancestors came to Texas with Austin's colony or whose ancestors aided Texas in her struggle against Mexico are eligible for membership.

"Expositions are the Timekeepers of Progress"

Illustration by courtesy of Everybody's Magazine.

THUS spoke the late President McKinley in his famous speech at Buffalo. It was true—then—is true now. It was true of the Expositions held at Paris, Philadelphia, Chicago, Antwerp, Buffalo—"timekeepers of progress" every one. And these words were not only true, but prophetic, as applied to

The Great Louisiana Purchase Exposition

It is distinctly a "timekeeper of progress." Secretary Walter B. Stevens aptly says:

"Not in that it is longer and wider in ground space, has more and larger buildings, presents a greater number of exhibits, and indulges in costlier concession amusements than those that have gone before, lies the chief claim of this Universal Exposition to public interest. Its magnitude is of small concern comparatively. Its immensity is simply incident and necessary to the execution of the motive. This motive is life, motion, processes. It means creation of power by steam, gas, electricity, until the mighty energy unloosed before the eyes of the beholder reaches the combined strength of 40,000 horses. It means processes of manufacture, artistic and utilitarian. It means the growing flower, fruit and forest. It means industries innumerable in operation. It finds expression in more than a hundred acres of exhibits out of doors. Indoor exhibits include thousands of working mechanisms. This motive of animation finds illustration in the presence of communities of all peoples. It brings together the athletes of various nations for quadrennial competition in Olympian Games. It prompts hundreds of congresses and conventions, National and international.

"Life, Motion, Processes"—and Progress.

These are the key notes of this great World's Fair, and every progressive person will desire to keep closely in touch with what is going on in the days to come. There is no way to do this so effectively as to secure each week, as issued, that

R. F. BELL BACK FROM HOUSTON

R. F. Bell of the William Henry and R. E. Bell Hardware Company, and secretary of the Texas Hardware Jobbers' Association, has just returned from Houston, and in conversation with a Telegram representative today stated that he was very much impressed with the city hall and market place that has just been finished there, as being the lines upon which we should work in our endeavor to build an auditorium.

readily and liberally subscribe to a company organized for this purpose, as the revenue from the rent on the lower floor would be some incentive for the people to subscribe, as the amount derived in that way would easily pay all expenses and leave something to be distributed among the contributors.

A market place, he remarked, was about as essential to our city as an auditorium, and he suggested that those who have the matter in hand make some investigation of this.

THE RANCHES ARE SPOILED

Prominent Sutton County Cattleman Says the New School Land Law Is Playing Havoc With the Big Ranches

"The new school law," said C. S. Greene, of Sonora, Texas, "is playing hob with the ranches in Sutton county. Under this law any person can go right into the center of a ranch when the lease expires and purchase four sections, which spoils the pasture. Some of the ranch owners are trying to get their men to hold certain parts of their lands, but this is very risky, as the men if they want to take advantage of the ranchman can demand of him a certain amount after he gets a deed to the land and put the cowman to just as much trouble as the other fellow who locates on the ranch. Sutton county is strictly a cattle producing district, and there is nothing in the way of feed of any kind raised there. The country around there is pretty well stocked and the ranchmen are anxious to unload, owing to the uncertainty of holding their land under the new school law. Some of them had troubles enough before, but the operation of this law has added to their troubles."

Great changes have taken place all over Southern Texas during the past few years, as it was but a few years since when it was a wide open country. Now everything is under fence, and no stock can be handled unless the stockman owns land or can lease pastures. And under the existing circumstances the time is coming when leases will be a thing of the past and the cattlemen will have to own all the land they use. Stock raising is spreading in all parts of Texas where farming or grain raising can be carried on, and so the cattle producing district is being narrowed down every year. But in Southern Texas the farming will never become so common, as that is not a farming country, and will always remain a cattle producing district. In that part of the state if we could get a sufficient amount of moisture we could produce enough cattle to supply all this country, as we have all the other conditions favorable for cattle raising. The present winter has been exceptionally favorable for cattle, and we have had no losses, but the cattlemen look for a heavy run from that part of the state to the territory and the northern pasture districts. I am now in Kansas City for the purpose of making arrangements to ship to Southern Kansas a string of 1,500 head of stock cows and heifers."—Drovers' Telegram.

BUILDERS AND BUSINESS ISSUE

The city and county edition of The Telegram, to be issued at an early date, will be complete in every way. The moving into its new newspaper home is the particular occasion for the issue of this special edition, and efforts will be directed to the point of getting out a number creditable alike to the publishers and to Fort Worth. A copy of the paper will be put into the home of every taxpayer in Tarrant county, while many thousand extra copies will reach the farms and ranches of Texas cattlemen. An edition of at least 20,000 copies will be issued, and to advertisers the opportunity will be one that will be readily grasped. Phone 177 and an advertising man will call.

NEW BUILDING ON LAMAR STREET IS PLANNED

Architect Sanguinet Is to Erect an Eight Flat Structure as Soon as Plans Are Complete

Architect M. R. Sanguinet is preparing plans for a building which he will erect at the corner of Jackson and Lamar streets at once.

Mr. Sanguinet owns a valuable piece of property on the northeast corner of the intersection of the two streets, which fronts seventy-five feet on Lamar street. His plan is to put up a two-story brick building, which will provide accommodations for eight flats. The structure is to be modern in every particular and when completed will be one of the most comfortable in the city. The ground has been staked off for the work of breaking ground for the foundation. A substantial brick building will shortly be erected at Fourteenth and Main streets by William Clemens of New Braunfels, who yesterday secured the lot from the former owner, Major K. M. Van Zandt, the consideration being $12,500.

WEATHER FORECAST

Another dry day throughout the entire state is shown on the official cotton region bulletin for the past 24 hours. This morning clear weather prevailed over a greater part of the state, there being some indications of rain today at Temple, Kerrville, Palestine and Dublin. No great rainfall, however, is looked for in any section. An average temperature for this time of year prevailed throughout the state. Locally, warmer weather with increasing cloudiness tonight and generally cloudy weather with showers for Thursday is the prediction.

CONDITIONS IN COTTON REGION

Clear and cool weather prevails in the northern and western cotton districts; similar conditions prevail in the valley and east gulf districts. Showery conditions prevail over the south Atlantic states.

FORECAST

The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows:

Tonight and Thursday, increasing cloudiness; warmer tonight.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Forecasted conditions issued the following statement of weather conditions this morning:

A ridge of high pressure overlies a large portion of the country this morning, extending from and including the lake region southwest into Texas; the weather is clear and cool with this area. Stormy conditions prevail over the Atlantic states with rain.

A low is over the Rocky mountain states, with a secondary forming in the extreme southwest with its influence extending eastward into Western Texas.

Showers have fallen over a portion of the northeast section of the east coast states, but no precipitation occurred in the western districts. The weather in the great wheat belt continues clear and cool, with cloudiness increasing and rising temperature in the extreme northwest section.

NEWS OF DEATH AT END OF HIS RUN

Conductor Button of Cotton Belt Gets Word of Daughter's Death at Mt. Pleasant on His Arrival Here

Leaving all the members of his family well and happy last night, Conductor William J. Button of the Cotton Belt system made his usual run into this city, only to be met here by a telegram informing him of the death of his little daughter, whom he had left well and happy but a few hours before.

No particulars as to the cause of the child's death are known here, and at the time Mr. Button began his run there was nothing to indicate that while he was caring for the lives of the hundreds of passengers on his train a life so dear to him was passing away.

Mr. Button returned at once to his home at Mt. Pleasant upon receiving the sad news, taking with him the sympathy of the big-hearted railroad men.

MRS. ALLIE NEAL

The death of Mrs. Allie Neal, aged 30 years, occurred early this morning at her late residence, 624 Jarvis street. Mrs. Neal, who is survived by her husband and one child, came to this city a little over four months ago from Missouri. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

IN THE COURTS

ALIBIS IN WOLF CASE

This morning, when the trial of Joe Wolf was resumed, witnesses were put on the stand in an effort to prove an alibi in behalf of the defendant, and several gave evidence that will be pretty hard for the state to break down. One of the most important witnesses was H. P. Hayes, time keeper for the Armour Packing Company. His testimony was to the effect that Wolf worked as a painter at the packing house from December 17, 1902, to December 19, and drew his pay at noon on December 19. This period covered the time in which it is alleged by the state that the murder of Hendrix Long was committed. The check was for $4. It was cashed by Bank Cooper December 19, who was a bartender for a saloon on the north side. Cooper was not certain as to what time during the day he cashed the check.

It was shown that Mark Wallace, Will Williams and P. F. Bennett also worked at Armour's at the same time Wolf did. All four quit work on the same day—December 19.

Other witnesses placed on the stand were George Carter and Granville Cox, the latter colored.

Carter described the man who brought a mule and a wagon to the Concho wagon yard. The wagon was that of young Hendrix Long, the murdered boy. Cox told his story in a straightforward manner, and the state was not able to contradict his statements. The negro said that the man who employed him to haul the wagon was not Joe Wolf.

Other witnesses for his defense are being heard this afternoon.

BESTOW CROSS TO CIVIL WAR VETERANS

Daughters of the Confederacy Have a Social Meeting at Which Testimonials Are Presented Old Soldiers

Crosses of honor were bestowed upon several Confederate veterans last night by the Daughters of the Confederacy, during an entertainment given in the room of Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans in the court house basement. The bestowal is conducted on stated dates fixed by the Daughters of the Confederacy, such as the birthday anniversary of General Lee and other noted personages who were prominent during the period of the civil war. There are generally two or three bestowals during the year.

Last night those who received crosses were: S. H. Brown, G. P. Clements, W. H. Dixon, H. W. Donnell, C. B. Eaves, G. E. Estes, J. W. Judd, W. A. Lane, B. F. McLendon, J. A. Metcalf, J. R. Morris, R. D. Nester, J. T. Fulham, W. S. Price, W. H. Rivers, A. G. Shattuck, J. G. Smith, J. A. Thornton. The crosses were pinned to the lapsels of the old soldiers by five members of the daughters, and each recipient had something good to say when the bestowal was completed.

The meeting was presided over by President Mrs. Jordan, former Assistant Adjutant McNeely of Lee camp, Captain B. B. Paddock and Mrs. B. M. Harding, the latter having charge of the literary program, which was rendered during the evening and included solos, both vocal and instrumental. Six young girls and boys sang "Dixie," during which the audience joined. Many of the old veterans gave vent to their enthusiasm by yells and hurrahs.

Miss Georgia Redeker rendered a vocal solo, as did Miss Arvida Perry. Miss Mary Swayne delighted the audience with the violin. Miss Charlotte Gregg rendered two beautiful piano solos, as did Miss Fay Lane. The musical program was very much enjoyed by the large audience.

When the entertainment features were concluded the Daughters of the Confederacy served light refreshments.

AN ENTERTAINMENT AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

At the high school yesterday afternoon the pupils of the South Side schools gave a delightful entertainment which was attended by a large number. The following program was given:

Piano solo by Era Barton; recitation by Frank White, boys' chorus, by boys of the eighth grade of the high school; recitation by Minnie Luther; dumbbell drill by Miss Martin's pupils; recitation by Mabel Robinson; high school chorus, conducted by Mrs. E. O. Evans; recitation by Louise Turner; vocal solo, by Cecil Evans; recitation, by Lillian Evans; Indian club drill, by pupils of Miss Boaz; vocal solo, by Maud Sawyers; reading, by Molly Black; chorus, by high school boys.

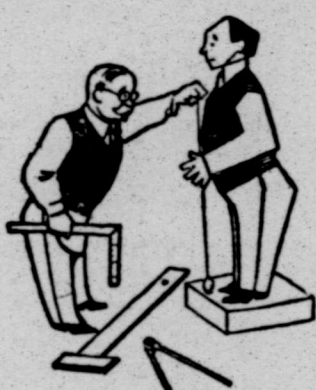

POULTRY BREEDING ALONG INTERURBAN

Dallas Times-Herald: T. S. Latham, who resides on the Interurban line between Arlington and Fort Worth, was in the city this morning. He said: "A great interest has been awakened in poultry breeding among the residents of our section of the country, and many planters are preparing to go into the business on an extensive scale. The 'crop' is not a certain one by any means, nor is the cotton or corn crops, for that matter, but the beauty of chicken raising is that one can speculate on a chicken ranch, and try his hand at cotton and corn at the same time."

PLENTY TO DO

FASHION GIVES APPROVAL OF SEMBRICH CONCERT

A BRILLIANT SCENE AT THE HONORS WITH SOL. MARCOSSON DIVIHO WAS SPARING IN ENMADAME SEMBRICH, WE CRITICISM AS TO VOICE CORES AND NOT ABOVE THE DALLAS AUDITORIUM.

Fashion set its seal of approval on the Silver Jubilee of the Texas Saengerfest, and the opening concert at the auditorium at the Fair Grounds at Dallas last night was a brilliant triumph of the modiste and the jeweller. Of the thousands that thronged the building, beautiful women of fashion, wearing the gowns that only fashion's followers know, crowned with jewels and radiant with the consciousness of social regency seemed dominant.

To enhance beauty's charms, thousands upon thousands of electric lights blazed from intersecting arches that formed the roof of the huge building, while multi-colored bunting in graceful effects filled the intervening spaces.

CROWD ADMIRABLY HANDLED

The handling of the big crowd was in every way admirable, a dozen entrances being provided and ushers for them, both intelligent and courteous.

From the towns tributary to Dallas came large numbers to swell the general compliment to the German citizenship of Texas and its musical societies. As these societies took their places upon the platform they were received with hearty cheers. They have been the pioneers of the best musical life of Texas and the applause accorded them was in part a recognition of this fact.

Their numbers, sung by 200 voices, were illustrative of the German ideals, and the "Blau Aeuglein," with a tenor solo by a San Antonio singer, was one of the delights of the evening, rich in tunefulness, and rendered with a sympathetic tenderness that only comes from heart and ear attuned to melody.

Sol Marcossion, who took Van Oord's place on the program, was a revelation. A great artist, greater than the one whose place he supplied, he played Men-

The auditorium is a badly constructed building for any save athletics or a horse show. The acoustics are bad and the stage at the end of a long oval, placing the majority of the auditors more than 200 feet away from the musicians, is a peculiar arrangement, to say the least, for an auditorium for concert use. In addition, the ceiling is flat and low and the tiers of seats arranged to overlook a central space that seemed somewhat akin to a stadium or circus.
