VERY HOT

On the side:

Heat record tied

The all-time record high in Big Spring was tied Tuesday, according to Charles Yates, engineering technician for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Big Spring temperatures rose to 104 degrees F. Tuesday, tying a record set in 1953, Yates said.

The record high for today's date is 101 degrees F., which was set in 1962.

"We tied yesterday — we'll probably break the record today," Yates said.

Cold Turkey Day

It's "Cold Turkey Day" at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Patients and staff are joining together today to help each other stop smoking.

According to a hospital spokesperson, all VA hospitals are scheduled to be smoke-free this year. To prepare the patients and employees, the VA is hosting "Cold Turkey Day" to help them quit smoking.

Activities include the Adopt-A-Smoker program, which gives a smoker a friend to offer encouragement; Canteen Service and the Dietetic Service are serving cold turkey lunches; lung capacity tests are being offered; and videos will be shown throughout the day.

Miracle basketball?

The Herald basketball team will come out of three years of inactivity when it plays the Wal-Mart employees tonight at 7 p.m. in Steer Gym.

Proceeds from the game will go to the Children's Miracle Network. Admission is $1 per person and children under six get in free.

The Herald team has only two returning players from three years ago, photographer Tim Appel and Sports Editor Steve Belvin.

Wal-Mart played a benefit game for CMN last month against the Big Spring Police Department. Wal-Mart won the game 52-46.

Cycling event slated

The West Texas Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society and Mobil Exploration and Producing U.S. Inc. announced that the First Annual "Cactus and Crude" MS 150 Bike Tour will begin in Midland July 8.

Cyclists will ride from Midland to Buffalo Springs Lake in Lubbock for a total of 150 miles. Top fundraisers in the event will be eligible for prizes that include trips to San Francisco, Los Angeles or Phoenix.

The two-day cycling event, for participants of all ages, raises funds through a $20 registration fee and a minimum of $150 in pledges. The fee includes all meals, rest areas, medical support, transportation for luggage, mechanical support and more.

Sixty percent of funds raised remain in the chapter's service area, while the remainder is used nationally for research efforts.

For more information, or to register for the event, contact the West Texas Chapter at 699-7787.

A unique postcard

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Governors get all kinds of mail, but the postcard from a climbers' base camp on Mount Everest was a new twist for Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Climber Tom Whittaker, one of three Pocatello residents in a party trying to scale the world's highest peak, advised the governor the trek is going well "despite high winds."

"I'm having a blast," Whittaker said in the missive from the 23,500-foot base camp in Nepal. "It's still a long way to the top, but there are no complaints."

Before Whittaker and Jeff and Kellie Rhoads, all graduates of Idaho State University, left for the climb, Andrus gave them an Idaho state flag to plant at the summit.

Big Spring GI guilty in double murder

By KIMBALL PERRY

For the Herald

FORT BENNING, Ga. — Staff Sgt. Jeffrey L. Meeks was convicted of murder and sentenced Tuesday to life in prison by a military jury for killing Debra Jean Nichols and Todd Justin Dunlap.

The life sentence was the maximum Meeks could receive after the jury returned a verdict that was not unanimous. The death sentence sought by prosecutors could only be pursued if jurors voted unanimously on his guilt.

The jury, led by jury president Col. Stephen O. Perry, announced the verdict at 12:25 p.m. — after about eight hours of deliberations over two days — to a stone-faced Meeks. Although not unanimous the guilty verdict means at least seven of the 10 jurors voted for his guilt. A two-thirds majority was needed to prove guilt, but breakdown of that verdict won't be

Meeks' note: I will be back

By KIMBALL PERRY

For the Herald

FORT BENNING, Ga. — The note, scrawled on a legal pad, is short but it reflects the sorrow Staff Sgt. Jeffrey L. Meeks was feeling Tuesday after he was found guilty of two counts of premeditated murder:

"Mom & Family,
I am very sorry for the pain y'all are going thru right now, but just remember it's one step in a long fight. But just remember no matter how long it takes I will be back, and never forget.

I Love Y'all

Jeff

That same determination to never quit in his quest to prove his innocence is evident in the rest of the Meeks family as well.

Rita Clayton, Meeks' oldest sister, and Matt Meeks, his younger brother, sat outside the courtroom after the verdict, complaining that their brother was a scapegoat — a convenient suspect for a military that had no other suspects during the 14-month investigation.

"Yeah, it bothers me," Matt Meeks said of the verdict. "The jury only knows what they are told."

And again, the story of Meeks' admitting to cutting Ms. Nichols' throat — so the investigation would remain open and the real killer could be found — was used foot; they had been beaten, stabbed and their throats cut.

After the verdict, the jury heard from witnesses on both sides to help determine the sentence. Meeks even took the stand in an unsworn statement — which precludes cross-examination by the prosecution — in an attempt to convince the jury not to take all of his pay, so he could continue his child support payments. Meeks has a 6-year-old son in his hometown of Big Spring.

The defense called Meeks' two sisters, his brother and mother as character witnesses. Each testified that Meeks' relationship with his son was special.

"The defense only asks that the support Sgt. Meeks gives his son not be taken away," Hudson told the jury. The plea did not sway the jury.

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

April unemployment figures for Howard County were similar to those released by the state this week, a Texas Employment Commission spokeswoman said.

The state's unemployment rate last month rose from 6.3 percent in March to 7.0 percent, according to figures released by the TEC.

The April figure released Tuesday was the same as in April 1988.

Howard County experienced a .9 percent jump in its unemployment rate, from 6.2 percent in March to 7.1 percent in April, Yolanda Gonzales of the Big Spring TEC said today.

Gonzales said 1,049 of the county's 14,841 work force was unemployed during April.

Those figures are similar to those of a year ago. The unemployment rate for April, 1988 was 6.8 percent, she said.

She said there were two factors that figured in the increase: Business closings and students entering the work force.

"Basically, we had a few small businesses shut down in April," Gonzales said. "Plus, we had college students entering the work force. It's a state wide thing... other counties in our area had higher unemployment rates in April."

Gonzales added that the April figures represented a slight reversal from the past few months, which showed a gradual decrease in the unemployment rate.

The increase, however, was no cause for alarm, she said, a sentiment echoed by a spokesman for the state office of the TEC.

"I really don't believe the numbers in and of themselves reflect a significant deterioration known, because the judge ordered jurors to never reveal the vote.

Meeks, a former Big Spring resident and graduate of BSHS, received the maximum the jury could have imposed without a unanimous verdict. Life imprisonment, dishonorable discharge, reduction in rank to E-1 and forfeiture of all pay.

Meeks was found guilty of the Nov. 22, 1987, killing of Ms. Nichols and Dunlap in Ms. Nichols' Fort Mitchell, Ala., mobile home. Their bodies were found bound hand and

City reduces user fees at Comanche Trail Park

By STEVE GEISSEN

Staff Writer

User fees at Comanche Trail Park went on the chopping block Wednesday when the City Council voted to reduce the park's rates for swimming and renting the community center, and to repeal the charge for camping.

The council voted 6-0 to reduce the daily entrance fee for the city park pool to $1, and the rental fee for the Dora Roberts Community center to $100 per day for the building and $25 per day for each meeting room.

The pool entrance fee was $2 per day, and fees for renting the community center were $250 for the building and $50 for each meeting room.

The council also voted to repeal the $5 per day fee for camping at the park's campground. Campers will now be able to use the facility free of charge.

The council voted 5-1, with councilwoman Gail Earls dissenting, to repeal the camping fees at the Why won't Mayor Max vote?

By STEVE GEISSEN

Staff Writer

For some city councils, the question of how the mayor will vote on an issue is of primary importance.

But in Big Spring, the question currently is not how the mayor will vote, but if he will vote.

In a move that has raised questions about the intent of the city charter and sent the city attorney searching through legal records, newly-elected Mayor Maxwell Green has refused to vote on council items, saying he questions whether the mayor can vote and still retain the power of veto.

At Tuesday's council meeting Green abstained on every vote. Jean Shotts, city attorney said he was in the process of researching the matter, but added his opinion is the mayor can both vote and retain the power of veto.

"The charter is not clear on this," Green said this morning. "There is nothing in the charter at all on whether the mayor has the power to vote."

However, at the council meeting Shotts predicted the ultimate outcome of a request for a higher legal opinion on the sub-allow the pool to generate more revenue.

The vote on the repeal of the camping fees followed a lengthy discourse, involving council members, Mayor Maxwell Green, parks and recreation board members and other citizens.

Much of the discussion centered on minutes of the parks board April 24 meeting, during which the board recommended repealing the camping fees. However, the minutes of the meeting stated the board was against repealing the fee.

Mack Underwood, parks board member, assured council members the board did indeed recommend "that we go back to free camping," saying the minutes were not accurate.

Underwood said revenue generated by the campgrounds was "practically nil," and the board had received many positive letters from people who had used the campgrounds.

Manhunt nabs suspects

DAINGERFIELD (AP) — Three remaining suspects in the robbery and assault of a police officer were captured after a manhunt by five law agencies and two tracking dogs that were killed during the search, authorities said.

Billy Joe Harris, Tina Harris and Robert Charles Sypniewski were arrested Monday near Gilmer, said an Upshur County Jail official who would not identify himself.

The three were charged with aggravated assault and robbery in the Saturday attack in Morris County on Lone Star patrolman Vernice Duke, the jail official said.

Harris, 46, and Ms. Harris, 26, are from Spring. Sypniewski, 58, is a Houston resident. All were arraigned Tuesday in Daingerfield on charges of aggravated robbery.

Additional bonds of $150,000 apiece were set, court officials said.

Panel favors pay raise

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation that could triple the salary paid to state lawmakers has won approval from a Senate committee.

The full Senate is the next stop for the plan, which won 7-3 approval in the Senate State Affairs Committee on Tuesday.

Rep. David Hudson, D-Tyler, House sponsor of the proposed constitutional amendment, predicted the Senate decision "will be a tight vote."

The measure would ask voters to OK changing the salary of legislators to one-fourth that paid the governor. If approved, salaries paid the part-time lawmakers would soar from the current $7,200 a year to more than $23,000. The lieutenant governor and House speaker would make half the governor's salary, or about $45,000.

Teacher to be let go

HOUSTON (AP) — A teacher who exposed her chest to drill team members to show them the results of her breast augmentation surgery will not work for the school district after her contract expires next year, officials say.

Spring Branch Independent School District board members voted unanimously not to renew Danette Arrington's three-year probationary contract when it ends in 1990.

Board President Mark Price said members believed their decision, made Monday night, "is in the best interest of the school district."

Price said he wouldn't specifically comment on why board members voted against letting Ms. Arrington stay with the district because it is a personnel matter.

Northbrook High School drill team members said Ms. Arrington asked them May 8 if they wanted to see the results of her breast augmentation surgery.

Hometown continues support for Wright

FORT WORTH (AP) — As a lawyer for House Speaker Jim Wright clashed with outside counsel of the House ethics committee, constituents in the speaker's hometown stood firmly behind their congressman.

Most Fort Worth residents were optimistic Tuesday that Wright would emerge victorious from the ethical inquiry that has plagued him in recent months.

The House ethics committee has charged Wright, the nation's highest ranking Democrat, with 69 ethics violations.

Beverly Labovitz, a Fort Worth court reporter, said she's impressed with Stephen Susman, one of Wright's lawyers.

"I heard Stephen Susman on

"They already have him stepping down because in the minds of people he's guilty. They already have him leaving in disgrace. I'd like to see if he didn't do what every other Congressman is doing."

— Fort Worth court reporter Beverly Labovitz.

NPR (National Public Radio) today. I think Susman was an excellent choice of attorney," Ms. Labovitz said.

She said she had not decided whether Wright was guilty of wrongdoing, but said Susman's arguments Tuesday pushed her in favor of the Fort Worth politician.

Ms. Labovitz also said she's glad Wright was finally given the chance to tell his side.

"They already have him stepping down because in the minds of people he's guilty," she said. "They already have him leaving in disgrace. I'd like to see if he didn't do what every other Congressman is doing."

Attorney Hugh Savage, 41, called Wright's troubles "a sign of the times."

"Everybody's pretty much hung out in the open...it's just become the ultimate exposure of everything. I don't think he's done anything worse than anyone else has done.

"Obviously, you've got to stop somewhere, but where do you stop?" Savage asked.

Eighteen-year-old student Daniella Butts said she has heard Jim Wright speak a few times and believes "he has too much support from the people of Fort Worth and the people abroad" to do anything illegal.

"I don't think anyone would put that kind of job in jeopardy."

"I think he'll come out of it. He helped get the super collider here and got General Dynamics to come here ... It's like Gov. Clements said: 'I don't think the people of Texas are going to let that slip by.'"

An elderly man who refused to give his name said he doesn't believe Wright is much different from other politicians.

The man said he thinks the House speaker made promises in exchange for contributions, but "I kinda think that's the way politicians do it."

"I think most of the ones that give in the money expect something, but that's the way politics goes," he said.

IRS employees protest cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — Internal Revenue Service employees are protesting $40 million in cuts in enforcement programs and personnel they say will result in the loss of $200 million to the federal treasury and the loss of jobs of 850 seasonal employees at Austin.

More than 70 IRS employees chanted "honest taxpayers lose, tax cheaters win" as they marched along a sidewalk in front of the Federal Building Tuesday.

Anita Greenberg, president of Chapter 247 of the National Treasury Employees Union, which represents 6,000 workers, said cutbacks at the Austin regional center alone will mean a $95 million loss in tax collections.

The IRS began the year with a $360 million deficit and imposed deep cutbacks to balance its budget.

The additional $40 million in cuts, which the union is asking Congress to offset with supplemental appropriations, were announced in May, Ms. Greenberg said.

"Certainly we care about the loss of jobs," Ms. Greenberg said. "But we have a tremendous responsibility — we are the people who fund the federal budget. There are tax cheats out there and they're robbing America blind."

Those furloughed at the Austin center include 850 seasonal workers, about 600 hired to process tax returns, and about 250 at the Austin Compliance Center to check returns for compliance, according to Bob Branson, public affairs specialist with the Austin District IRS Office.

Prison protest winding down

EDEN (AP) — A disturbance involving most of the inmates of a privately operated detention center headed toward a peaceful resolution early today.

About 330 federal prisoners refused to return to their dormitories after dinner Tuesday night, congregating instead in a courtyard for several hours, Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said. But only about 75 remained outside their cells by just after midnight this morning.

The protest, which prisoners termed a "stand-in," was not violent, but it drew approximately 70 law enforcement officials from 12 agencies to the central Texas town. Some donned riot gear while a strategy was developed to force the inmates back to their cells, officials said.

When inmates began returning to the dormitories after 10:30 p.m., officials decided they would wait for them all to do so.

"We will not take any steps. We will let them sit in the yard and wait," Jim Eyskens, a San Antonio-based federal Bureau of Prisons officer, said of the remaining inmates. "I'm certain this will be resolved without force."

The inmates were upset with prison conditions and food and refused to return to their dormitories, Concho County Sheriff Bill Fiveash said.

Most of the prisoners the government has contracted with the facility to hold are illegal aliens who are serving sentences of 18 months or fewer for federal crimes, said Greg Bogdan.

Tuesday's action was not the first time prisoners had complained about the facility, which opened in early 1986.

In July 1987, prisoners signed a letter citing violations of civil rights, Bureau of Prison standards and sanitation.

Superconductor group formed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A university and two giant companies that are leaders in technology research have joined forces to try to beat Japan in development of commercial uses for superconductors.

The announcement by the American Telephone & Telegraph Corp., International Business Machines and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Tuesday said the consortium's goal is to develop applications for the new technology.

Superconductors are ceramic materials cooled to beyond minus 200 degrees Fahrenheit, at which point they can let electricity pass through them without resistance.

In theory, superconductors could let energy be stored and sent without any loss of strength and more cheaply than is now possible. Potential uses include faster computers and more powerful batteries and motors.

Business

Both the United States and Japan are researching superconductors, but the U.S. has the edge.

The goal of the consortium is to make sure American firms, rather than those from Japan, have the advantage in commercial application of the research.

"This will be a consortium of open communication among the researchers involved," the three organizations said in a joint statement. "The combining of their scientific knowledge and their knowledge of applications will benefit the nation."

The new organization will be called the Consortium for Superconducting Electronics. Researchers will remain at their present locations but will share information.

In January, the White House Science Council said such an organization was needed if the United States wanted to avoid what occurred in laser and videotape technology.

Both were created in the United States but were commercially exploited by Japan.

The consortium announced that research efforts will be concentrated in four areas, including signal distribution, high-temperature materials and technology, advanced devices and integrated circuits, and junctions.

The consortium will focus on applying superconductor technology to high-speed microelectronic devices for use in computers, telecommunications and military systems, the New York Times reported today.

"It is a model of how universities, government labs and industry have to cooperate in the future to address a number of issues," MIT Provost John Deutch told the Times.

Executives to cable TV: Grow up

DALLAS (AP) — Cable television must provide more quality and not just quantity in programming, key executives say.

In the opening session of the National Cable Television Association's annual meeting Monday, industry executives said the rapid expansion of the cable market necessitates a clear focus for future programming.

"Today we are clearly a major source of television in America," said Bob Miron, NCTA vice chairman and president of Newhouse Broadcasting Corp.

James P. Mooney, NCTA's president and chief executive, cited recent polls which indicate the public believes cable provides better programming in cultural, children's, sports and general entertainment areas.

"For several years now, it has become more and more apparent ... that cable has drawn even with broadcasting as a primary television medium," Mooney said. "Moreover, cable is not just more TV, it is different, it is diverse, it is special."

"To the degree that there is a real diversity in television programming which didn't exist 10 years ago, to the degree that national audiences of children, women, minorities, arts lovers, sports enthusiasts and people interested in public affairs now have available all-day, intelligently conceived and well produced programming to meet their needs — it is cable that's made the difference," Mooney said.

But other executives like former NBC president Fred Silverman say it's time cable TV develops a conscience and develop its potential.

Silverman said the cable industry has had a proliferation of tabloid TV shows like "America's Most Wanted."

"I think it's horrible," said Silverman, who now heads his own production firm. Silverman predicted the popularity of such shows has peaked, and said backlash from the public will bring about their demise by next year.

Alvin Perlmutter, a former network documentary producer who now heads his own company, called the shows "a desperate move" to snare audience and said they are "demeaning to the industry we're a part of."

Leaders outline pregnancy prevention program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts to halt the rising number of adolescent pregnancies in Southern states should be aimed at boys as well as young girls, said a plan released today.

"Every three minutes, a girl aged 10-17 gives birth in the United States," said the study. "That stark fact spells tragedy for mother, father and child, and it costs our communities enormously in both human and economic terms."

"Southern communities are most affected because, as a region, we have the highest rates of adolescent pregnancy and childbearing," it said. "Prevention is our best hope of ending this epidemic and helping our children grow up before they have children of their own."

The plan was compiled by the Southern Regional Project on Infant Mortality, in cooperation with the Southern Governors' Association and the Southern Legislative Conference.

The 17 southern states in the study had a higher rate of adolescent pregnancy than the rest of the country, the report noted. In 1985, 47 percent of the nation's 178,000 births to girls under age 17 occurred in 17 southern states, even though only 37 percent of girls under 17 live in the South. Among girls under 17 with second or higher order births that year, 49 percent were in the South.

In the southern states, the public costs of teenage childbearing, in the form of food, welfare and medical assistance, totaled $3.58 billion in fiscal 1987, the report said.

"When our children have children, we all lose," said Mississippi Gov. Ray Mabus, co-chairman of the group that produced the report. "Adolescent parents and their babies face hardships they are not prepared for — risks of poor health, incomplete educations, poverty and welfare dependency."

"The rest of us lose them, their talents, abilities and leadership, and we pay a lot more to treat the problem than we would to prevent it," he said.

Males should be included in all pregnancy prevention programs because focusing solely on females "ignores half the problem," the report said.

It recommended promotion of education and life skills at the earliest possible age through state and federal spending on early childhood education programs and the expansion of Head Start.

It also called for encouraging children to complete high school, including taking "family life" courses designed by parents and local school boards.

In addition, the report called for better job prospects and more community involvement for adolescents, improved health care for young people, and help for parents.

"As the primary shapers of their children, parents mold the value system of their children and this value system frames the way in which these children view early sexual involvement and early parenthood," the report said.

The 17 states are Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, Florida, Texas, Delaware, Tennessee, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Missouri and West Virginia.

board to argue against repealing the fees, Underwood said, but "he gave us a bunch of exaggerated figures about how much business he was losing and it didn't wash with any of us."

Worthy was not at Tuesday's council meeting.

The council also heard a report from Leslie Lloyd on a proposed housing program titled Give a House to Save a House.

Lloyd proposed forming a group that would remodel houses that had been foreclosed on by local taxing entities, and then contract with low-income retirees for ownership of the home.

"A lot of people have never owned a home in their life and when they come of retirement age they want to own a home..." Lloyd said. "And the private ownership of these homes would improve the community of Big Spring."

Jack Watkins told the council the county does not have a list of homes that have been foreclosed on, but that he had received a list of tax exempt property, which the group could use to determine which local houses would qualify for the program.

Council members were receptive to the plan, and advised Lloyd to discuss the legal ramifications of the proposal with City Attorney Jean Shotts, and report back to the council on their findings.

In other business, the council:

• Heard a request from Ken Dunwoody who proposed renaming Avenue A to Hudgens Memorial Drive, in honor of former Big Spring resident Major Edward Hudgens, a highly decorated U.S. Airforce pilot, who was listed as missing in action in 1970. The baseball field at Webb Air Force Base was named after Hudgens, but after the closing of the base it was renamed Lawson field in recognition of the work Ed Lawson did "to save the field," Dunwoody said.

The council approved of placing the request on its next agenda as an ordinance to be voted on.

• Approved allocating the remainder of budgeted downtown coordinator funds, approximately $3,300, to Main Street Inc., which will hire a new coordinator to replace Teri Quinones who recently resigned from the position. Richard Atkins, co-chairman of Main Street Inc., informed the council that the organization is now a legal entity and can conduct its own business.

• Approved an emergency reading of a resolution accepting a special law enforcement grant from the state of Texas to finance the creation of an identification technician unit in the Big Spring Police department. The grant will provide $26,510 to the department, while the city must pay $9,606. An identification technician compiles and processes evidence at a crime scene, said Police Chief Joe Cook.

• Approved the emergency reading of a resolution accepting a law enforcement grant from the state of Texas to finance the establishment of the position of school resource officer in the police department.

The grant will provide $35,197 to the department, and the city will pay $2,900 to fund the position and acquisition of supplies. Sgt. Drew Bavin will be appointed to the position and will teach a course in law enforcement at Big Spring High School next year. The course will allow students to receive six hours of high school and college credit.

Bavin will also work in all the district schools, giving presentations on law enforcement topics, Cook said.

father, testified the friendship bond he and his son formed. He also was disappointed that his son was not allowed to live to earn "the fruits of his labor."

The prosecution, however, asked for "a sentence that would fit the crime." Maj. Gary Perolman, the prosecutor, asked the jury for the maximum sentence.

"This was a crime of hate and a crime of taking lives," Perolman told the jury. "The accused has committed the ultimate offense governed by man-made laws. The maximum punishment in this case is the proper punishment."

in Big Spring.

118th District Court Judge James Gregg said today that the use of initials rather than actual names is unusual in a suit. "This is the first time I've ever seen it done," he said.

Gregg said there is nothing technically illegal about the way the suit is filed, but said, "It has some problems: who do you serve (with legal documents); who do you answer to?"

The names of the priest and the couple, so far kept confidential, would be a matter of public record if the case goes to trial. The trial proceedings will also be a matter of public record.

The interaction between the local woman, who is identified as an Episcopalian in the suit, and the priest allegedly began after the woman was persuaded by a friend

Both Perolman and Hudson refused comment after the trial.

As the guilty verdict was announced, Meeks stood ram-rod straight and stared at the jury. The shoulders of his fiancée, Beth Frazier, heaved as she sobbed uncontrollably. Meeks' mother also had to be helped from the courtroom.

There was little emotion from the families of Todd Dunlap and Debra Nichols. But once the life sentence was announced, a few of those family members also cried.

The verdict and sentencing must be approved by Maj. Gen. Michael F. Spigelmir, the convening authority of the general court-martial. It is expected to take about 60 days to transcribe the tapes of the seven-day trial before Spigelmir can review the case.

He can reduce, but not increase, the punishment, or could void the outcome. He is not expected to do that, a post spokeswoman said.

The decision is automatically appealed to the Court of Military Review and to the Court of Military Appeals, if necessary. If it is upheld in those courts, the case shifts to the civilian court system and could reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

to counsel with the priest and that a great friendship developed.

On May 20, 1987, the woman became ill and was admitted to a local hospital. At about 11 p.m., the priest reportedly came into her room and waited for a nurse to leave. The suit alleges that when they were alone the priest "touched (her) private parts and breasts and (had) sex with her." The woman was heavily sedated at the time, the suit said.

The suit further alleges that 10 days later the priest appeared at the woman's residence and attempted to have sex with her, but nothing took place. The suit said he later persuaded her to "check into a local motel under an assumed name... and committed numerous sexual acts on (her)."

The husband reportedly realized he and his wife's relationship was failing at the time, but did not know why. The two later divorced.

The suit alleges that because of the priest's actions the wife suffered emotional and psychic distress and has incurred $10,000 for psychological treatment.

The suit also alleges that after the husband became aware of the reason for their marital discord, he became "totally disillusioned with the Catholic Church and all religion, leaving a great void in his life..." and causing him emotional distress.

The former husband and wife are seeking $150,000 each for their alleged emotional distress, for judgement interest, cost of the suit and general relief.

Attempts to reach the church's legal counsel in San Angelo and Father James Dudley, Texas Superior Missionaries of the Sacred Heart, were unsuccessful today.

Weather

Thunderstorms that splattered the Midwest with hail continued today and up to a foot of snow was expected in Oregon and Washington.

Hail the size of golf balls fell Tuesday across Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas, and thunderstorms whipped winds up to 70 mph, downing large tree limbs at Glen Ullin, N.D.

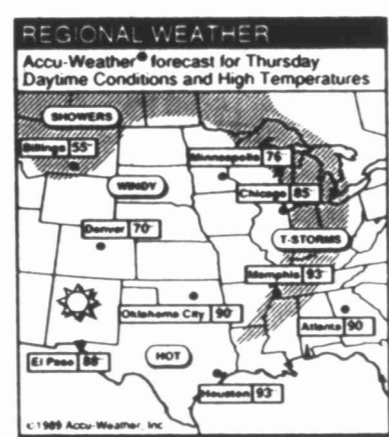

A severe storm watch was in effect for parts of the Dakotas, southern Iowa and northeastern Missouri.

High winds downed power lines at Kenly, N.C., and golf ball-sized hail fell at Greenville, with nickel-sized hail at Gatesville.

Showers and thunderstorms drenched New England and western Pennsylvania this morning, with storms developing in the central Gulf ahead of the same cold front.

Scattered showers fell in the Northwest, with snow in the higher elevations of the Cascade mountains. Weather service advisories said up to a foot of snow was possible.

Today's forecast called for scattered tered showers and thunderstorms from the upper Great Lakes to the central Plains; severe thunderstorms from Kansas to Michigan; scattered showers from the northern Pacific to the Rockies; showers and thunderstorms from New England into the middle Atlantic region; and strong and gusty winds over the Rockies.

Highs were expected to be in the 60s and 70s from northern California through the Rockies.

rent rate is no higher this year than it was this time last year."

The 7.0 percent unemployment rate means there are an estimated 575,900 jobless Texans, Travland said.

Despite the jobless increase, non-farm salaried jobs in Texas increased by more than 21,000 between March and April, due primarily to seasonal growth, the TEC said.

The lowest urban unemployment rate was in the Bryan-College Station area, with 4.6 percent, while the highest was McAllen-Edinburg-Mission, with 16.7 percent.

Rates of unemployment in the urban areas of Texas as announced Tuesday by the Texas Employment Commission for April, compared with revised March figures (in parenthesis) included:

Abilene 6.9 (5.8); Amarillo 5.8 (5.2); Austin 5.6 (4.9); Beaumont-Port Arthur 9.6 (8.4); Brazoria 7.2 (6.3); Brownsville-Harlingen 11.8 (11.1); Bryan-College Station 4.6 (4.4); Corpus Christi 8.9 (7.8); Dallas 5.6 (4.9); El Paso 10.3 (9.7); Fort Worth-Arlington 5.8 (5.2); Galveston-Texas City 7.5 (6.7); Houston 6.1 (5.4); Temple-Killeen 7.9 (7.0); Laredo 13.4 (13.3); Longview-Marshall 9.3 (8.3); Lubbock 5.0 (6.0).

to explain Meeks' being charged. "Jeff had an obsession... to find out who killed Todd and Debra. It drove Jeff to find out who killed Todd," Matt Meeks said. "Jeff is religious, and he promised Todd after he died that he would find his killer so Todd could rest in peace."

He claimed that Sgt. 1st Class Patrick Nichols, Ms. Nichols' estranged husband and suspect early in the investigation, may have been involved in the slayings.

Matthew Meeks also said James Zelfiff, a Criminal Investigation Division agent, "lied 17 times" on the stand. The U.S. Army also had to justify spending 140,000 man hours on the case and not having a suspect, so they arrested his brother, he said. The family has an expert working on the case. That expert will prove by examining the evidence that the water pressure on the water bed in which Debra Nichols and Todd Dunlap were killed was weaker than the prosecution contended during the trial. That will move the time of death back to between 6-8 a.m. Nov. 22, 1987, he said. His brother has an ironclad alibi for that time, Matt Meeks said.

Mayor

ject would "be the mayor is a voting member of the council." He added that "nobody can make the mayor vote. If he doesn't want to that's his prerogative, just like any other member of the council."

The matter was complicated further when councilwoman Gail Earls raised the question of whether the mayor must vote on emergency resolutions before they can take effect.

The city charter states that "the affirmative vote of all the members of the council present" is necessary to declare the need for voting on an emergency resolution.

Emergency resolutions do not have to be submitted to two votes of the council as do other ordinances and resolutions.

Two emergency resolutions were passed at Tuesday's meeting by a 6-0 vote, with Green abstaining.

Asked about the legality of approving the emergency measures as the council did Tuesday, Shotts said, "We may have to go back and re-pass the resolutions." He said he would also research this matter.

As for the power of veto, the city charter states the mayor can veto an ordinance or resolution within three days of council's approval of the measure.

The council can override the veto with the approval of four council members, according to the original charter. However, the charter was based upon a council that consisted of four council members and a mayor. A federal court ruling has since revised the makeup of the council, so that it includes six council members and a mayor.

Shotts said Tuesday his interpretation is that "a simple majority" of four members voting to approve a measure is still required to overrule a mayoral veto.

But Green contends the spirit of the charter is that all council members must vote to approve a measure vetoed by the mayor before it can become effective.

Asked why he doesn't want to vote and retain the power of veto as Shotts has said he could, Green said, "The problem I am faced with is number one: What does the charter itself intend to happen? And number two: With the exception of a tie, what difference does it make whether the mayor votes or not?"

"In the case of a tie, I can see the mayor voting," he said. "But

FDA muddles cyclamate case

Abbott Laboratories' two-decade ordeal with cyclamate is a perfect illustration of how ridiculous health concerns can become when mixed with regulatory agency politics.

The cyclamate case also shows how government is not supposed to work.

Federal Drug Administration officials banned the artificial sweetener 20 years ago. Now, the FDA is expected to reapprove cyclamate. The FDA's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition acknowledges it made a mistake. The sweetener once accused of causing everything from bladder cancer to birth defects has proved to be harmless.

Every day, five days a week for the past 17 years, monkeys at the National Cancer Institute have been fed the amount of cyclamate that would sweeten 30 cans of diet soda. Result: The monkeys are doing just fine.

Cyclamate was widely used as an artificial sweetener when, in 1969, a study by a New York laboratory showed that some rats with cyclamate pellets implanted in their bladders were developing tumors. The FDA restricted the sale of the chemical, and the following year, under pressure from Congress, banned it entirely. From the beginning the ban was controversial. Numerous other countries long ago approved the chemical as the scientific evidence showed cyclamate was not harmful.

Abbott filed for reapproval in 1973, and seven years later the FDA emphatically denied the request. Abbott refiled in 1982 and now — another seven years later — the agency apparently is comfortable with the chemical. Finally, after two dozen long-term cancer studies, more than 70 experiments looking for genetic damage, hundreds of other toxicological studies, and exhaustive and positive reviews of the chemical by the National Cancer Institute and the National Academy of Sciences.

The agency's reversal certainly raises concerns about how government officials evaluate potential health risks. How can it possibly have taken two decades for the FDA to concede its mistake?

The cyclamate story shows the breakdown of a system designed to separate real from imagined risks. That's what can happen when government attorneys and politics take control of what should be a scientific public health matter.

Alternative colleges can offer advantages

By PAMELA PORTER

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — May is graduation month at most American high schools — a time when parents and students share starry-eyed dreams of the future.

More than a third of those graduates will head off to college at the end of the summer, and a large portion will attend co-ed state schools and private institutions that are the mainstream of American higher education.

But if those are female or black, recent studies show there is a good chance that they may not reach their full potential at such mainstream institutions.

What does that mean? Well, picture your college-bound daughter in this situation described in a recent report by the prestigious Carnegie Foundation.

"In many classrooms women are overshadowed. Even the brightest women students often remain silent. They may submit excellent written work, but will frequently wait until after class to approach a teacher privately about issues raised in the discussion.

"Not only do men talk more, but what they say often carries more weight. This pattern of classroom leaders and followers is set very early in the term," the Carnegie Foundation said.

A recent study by the American Council on Education reached a similar conclusion, saying women students face "an enormous amount of differential treatment" on American college campuses. In both academic and social settings, their peers and professors expect less of women than of male students.

Other studies reached similar conclusions about the barriers that threaten the academic performance, self-confidence and social development of minority students.

This is not to suggest that minorities and women do not belong on mainstream college campuses. They do. And obviously there are plenty of women and minorities who thrive in the face of such challenges.

But for those students who need a more nurturing environment, fortunately there are options.

Women's colleges and historically black colleges fell out of style in the late 1960's and 70's, as both groups struggled to fit into mainstream schools.

But officials from black colleges and women's schools say that trend is slowing down and possibly reversing. Many students and their parents are re-discovering the advantages of attending alternative institutions; finding that there are few substitutes for social acceptance and daily encouragement by role models of the same sex and/or color.

It's not surprising then, that a disproportionately high share of black college graduates attended the relatively small number of historically black institutions. And a high percentage of women who succeed in male-dominated careers are alumnae of women's colleges.

Both black colleges and women's schools also have better records than co-ed schools when it comes to turning out black and female scientists, mathematicians and engineers.

Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-Conn., is a product of a girl's high school and a women's college. Although she comes from a prominent political family, she said it was her experience as student body president at Washington D.C.'s Trinity College that encouraged her to pursue a career in the male-dominated world of politics.

She is not alone. Of the 27 women in Congress, 13 are graduates of women's colleges.

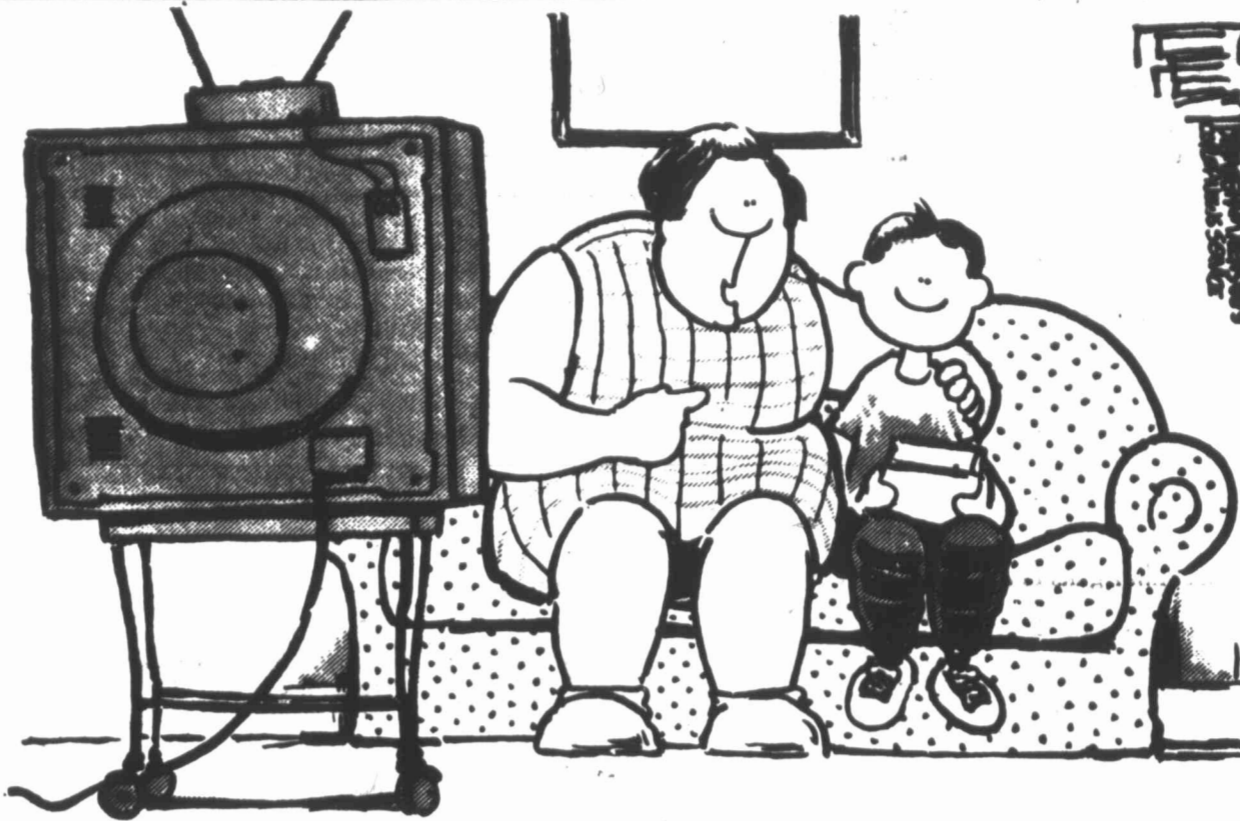

"When you go to a women's college all your role models are women. Those years are a very formative time, a growing time, an ego-building time," Kennelly said.

But the success stories of these specialized schools do not let big co-ed institutions off the hook. Sexism and racism, no matter how subtle, are not only wrong, but a threat to our nation's social and economic security. Economists on all sides of the political spectrum agree that women and minorities will make up a large majority of our nation's workforce in the future.

The American Council on Education and other education groups say the problem with mainstream academia is that the ivy-walled institutions are slow to change. Although women now outnumber men on most campuses and minorities are gaining ground, simply admitting these students to institutions designed for white males is not enough.

To quote the American Council on Education again, "Creating a truly pluralistic campus requires profound change, both on a personal and organizational level."

"Real progress requires that increasing diversity be an integral part of the institution's mission, its planning process and its day-to-day activities."

"IT'S IMPORTANT TO STUDY HARD IN SCHOOL SO THAT MAYBE SOMEDAY YOU CAN WIN THE LOTTERY!"

Voters lost their chance on lottery

The Texas House of Representatives recently defeated, 58-63, a proposal for a non-binding referendum on a state-run lottery. I fail to understand their reasoning.

At some point the state of Texas will likely be faced with a choice of raising taxes or reducing services. A lottery is a viable alternative. Some good arguments can be made, and have been, both for and against a state lottery. If the issue were to be allowed on the November ballot, no doubt we would be exposed to both sides until we were sick of hearing about lotteries.

But a non-binding referendum doesn't commit the state to anything. It is simply a poll of voter choices. With so many other issues on our ballot, why should we not be allowed a say in what could be a major source of revenue for our state.

Personally, I favor lotteries. Ohio, where I lived until recently, had a state-run lottery and I was never a winner. I played occasionally, but I never won. But my sister, who is a born gambler, played big-time. She kept careful records of her winnings and losses, and on a long-term basis always seemed to be ahead. She hasn't hit the jackpot yet, but she's still hoping.

And that, in a nutshell, is why I like lotteries. I am well aware that my chances of winning the big one are pretty slim. Actually, with my luck they're probably nil. But it makes for a nice 15-minute daydream right after I buy the ticket.

For a great many working people, income either exactly matches or is about 10 percent short. It starts out that way when we begin our working lives and never gets any better. If income manages to increase, so does outgo as the kids and the cars get older and more expensive.

After a time it seems pretty discouraging. Second jobs only help for a short period, till we collapse of exhaustion.

If we can buy into a dream of wealth with a $1.00 lottery ticket, what's wrong with that? The poorer you are, the more a dream is important.

Most people spend a little money each week on whatever makes them feel good. That's called maintaining good mental health. If we want to spend it on lottery tickets, we are at least contributing to the state coffers.

A sales tax, on the other hand, contributes to poor mental health every time we fume at the checkout counter when we realize exactly how much taxes cost us.

Give the voters a chance to say yea or nay on a state-run lottery. Maybe the majority of us need a weekly dream. At any rate, it would be an issue guaranteed to bring people to the voting booths.

No date leads to court date

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Tomontra Mangrum, a 15-year-old high-school freshman who lives in West Palm Beach, Fla., was all set to go to the prom a few weeks ago.

She had a date with a young fellow named Marlon Shadd.

She went out and spent nearly 300 bucks on a new dress, and she had to have shoes to match and then there was what it costs to get her hair done.

Remember all-dressed-up-with-no-place-to-go? That's what happened to Tomontra Mangrum. Came prom night her date didn't show.

So Tomontra acted like most Americans. She filed suit against young Mr. Shadd for expenses she incurred while preparing for the prom.

The defendant claims he had to visit with some college basketball recruiters on the evening of which we speak.

At this writing, the court hasn't ruled on Tomontra Mangrum's suit, but when it does, think of the precedent it could set.

Let's say Tomontra wins. Will that lead to hundreds and thousands of more suits against people who stood up their dates?

I could tie up the courts for years myself. I've been, in the words of the late Ricky Nelson, "stood up and broken-hearted again" on dozens of occasions.

I'll mention only the worst of those occurrences.

I remember exactly how long ago it was. It was 12 years ago. I was 30 and she was younger and we had a date.

Naturally, I made another date with the young woman and she accepted. I showered, shaved and put on my favorite cologne, "Midnight in Montgomery," and drove over to pick up my date.

She wasn't at home. I waited in my car for an hour. She never appeared.

The next day she explained, "I have a boyfriend and I'm trying to break up with him, but he came by before you were supposed to pick me up and got terribly angry. So I left with him to avoid involving you in a messy scene."

I went for it. I also made another date with her. Same thing happened. Lucy pulled away the football again. She wasn't at home.

I was running out of patience, not to mention "Midnight in Montgomery."

She said, "Give me one more chance."

And I said, "Here's what I'll do. I'll be at my apartment this evening until 8 o'clock. If you want to go out with me, come there before 8 or I'll be gone."

At 10 p.m., I gave her up again.

All I really know about her now is she eventually married the boyfriend and left me scarred forever.

How could I ever trust a woman again? How about my expenses?

There was the wasted gasoline I used in my futile attempts to take her out. Five bucks for that.

Then, there was the bottle of "Midnight in Montgomery": $2.50. (I got it wholesale from Filbert my barber.)

The first night I bought flowers and a six-pack, $10.00

And the second night I bought a box of chicken. I'd thought we'd go to some romantic place like the park and eat our chicken. Her part of the chicken, a wing and a leg, came to at least two more bucks.

And what price do you put on mental anguish?

Think how lonely I felt drinking all that beer and eating all that chicken by myself? At least a hundred for that.

And if, one day, you see me and what's-her-name in front of Judge Wagner you'll know which side to pull for.

California bans assault weapons

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — With Gov. George Deukmejian's signing of two bills today, California becomes the first state to ban military-style assault weapons.

The legislation the Republican governor planned to sign would ban the manufacture and sale of more than 50 semiautomatic rifles, pistols and shotguns on Jan. 1.

Attempts to restrict such weapons had been blocked repeatedly by the gun lobby, led by the National Rifle Association, until a shooting rampage at a Stockton school four months ago left five children and the gunman dead.

The slayings by a deranged driver carrying a semiautomatic

AK-47 rifle rallied the public support needed to push the measure through.

Under the legislation, people who owned the listed weapons before June 1 may keep them by obtaining permits. Otherwise, the guns can be possessed only with a special-needs permit, such as those obtained by movie studios for machine guns.

Possession would be a misdemeanor, punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine, or a felony, carrying up to three years in prison. The bills would also increase the penalties for crimes in which assault weapons are used.

The bills would allow the attorney general to go into court to add similar guns to the list.

Women share more than birthday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The odds of two unrelated women sharing the same birthdate and similar names are high enough.

But they are partners to another quirk: they share Social Security numbers.

Elizabeth Carroll and Betty Gibson learned three weeks ago that the Social Security Administration made a freakish mistake years ago and assigned them the same number.

Ms. Carroll, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Ann Smith, was the first to learn about the mixup. When she was considering buying a house, a mortgage company's printout of her credit history also contained Ms. Gibson's, who was born Betty Ann Smith.

Ms. Carroll took the question to the Social Security Administration, which told her it stemmed from a clerical error in the early 1970s.

Ms. Carroll called Ms. Gibson to explain.

"I was dumbfounded," said Ms. Gibson. "I couldn't understand how two people could have the same Social Security number. I've had this one since it was issued to me when I was a little girl."

Bolshoi dancers lose costumes

CHICAGO (AP) — The stars of the Bolshoi Ballet say the show must go on even if they have to pirouette in hand-me-downs after their luggage got lost.

Ten crates of costumes and props that were supposed to arrive ahead of the 30 Bolshoi dancers who are opening in Chicago on Thursday disappeared in New York during transit, and the company is having to make do with borrowed goods.

A high-level diplomatic search continues for the baggage, sent nine days ahead of time on Aeroflot, the Soviet Union's state-run airline.

"We know the flight took off from Moscow, and we know it landed in the United States," said Susan Arons, a spokeswoman for Classical Artists International, which is sponsoring "The Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet" tour.

"But we have no idea where the crates are," she said.

Sirhan again refused parole

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassin, Sirhan B. Sirhan, has an unpredictable capacity for violence and remains a threat to society, a state prison board ruled in denying him parole for the 10th time.

Sirhan, 45, who is serving a life sentence for the 1968 shooting of the Democratic presidential candidate, is not eligible for parole again until next year.

Board chairman David Brown on Tuesday called the shooting "one of the most shocking criminal assassinations in the history of the United States."

In his arguments to the panel, Sirhan apologized for the slaying, said he was no longer a threat to society and that he hasn't given up hope for freedom.

BEIJING — Chinese protesters ride on top of a car around Tiananmen Square with a poster of Premier Li Peng describing him as being "on the ropes," during a huge pro-democracy demonstration Tuesday.

Chinese leaders locked in struggle for control

BEIJING (AP) — The struggle for control of China heated up today as the head of the country's legislature cut short a U.S. visit and China's most famous author joined the multitudes in opposing conservative Premier Li Peng.

Also, two government sources said Hu Qili, one of five members of the policy-making Politburo Standing Committee, had thrown his support to the relatively liberal Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang, who is locked in a battle with Li for the leadership.

Such a development would further weaken Li, who is widely condemned for declaring martial law in Beijing in an effort to quash student protests that have inspired the largest spontaneous movement in Communist China's 40 years.

Hu is in charge of the state-run press. On Tuesday, some media reports criticized Li's attempts to have troops crush the peaceful student movement.

Tens of thousands of students today maintained their defiant 12-day occupation of Tiananmen Square, China's symbolic political center, but city subway and bus service resumed and traffic appeared near normal.

On Tuesday, 1 million people marched in Beijing's streets calling for Li's ouster in the biggest protest since martial law was declared on Saturday, prompting throngs of people to block major roads so troops could not reach the students.

"We won't leave until Li Peng steps down. Persevering to the end is victory," said Duan Xiaoding, a freshman at Chongqing Civil Engineering Institute in Sichuan province. "Fight on until final victory — that's what the Communist Party has taught us."

Hundreds of thousands of protesters have also taken to the streets in dozens of other cities, from Lanzhou in the dusty northwest to Canton in the prosperous south.

Sources in several cities said all protests called for Li's resignation. Reports circulated that Zhao — who had urged conciliation with the students — had offered to resign rather than order troops into Beijing, a move many military leaders and other senior Communist officials have resisted.

The troops were reported on the city's outskirts today and government sources said they did not believe the units would move until the political struggle is solved.

In the first indication of Zhao's status in days, Foreign Minister Qian Qichen told diplomats on Tuesday that the party chief had returned to work.

Early today, the official Xinhua News Agency mentioned Zhao for the first time since before the martial law order and referred to him as party general secretary.

Wan Li, president of the National People's Congress, cut short a U.S. visit Tuesday after meeting with President Bush.

U.S. officials said he was expected to call an emergency meeting of the legislature to press for Li's ouster.

The student movement started April 15 following the death of ousted Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, a favorite with intellectuals.

Students initially called for a freer society and press and an end to official corruption.

Arab summit takes up Lebanon

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Leaders of the Arab League tried to come to grips with the Lebanese problem today, one day after their summit quietly welcoming Egypt back into the Arab family of nations.

President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt lost no time forcefully expressing the views of the most populous Arab state.

"Lebanon has become a grave problem," Mubarak said. "It exhausts us and is exhausting our consciences. We must work together to overcome this crisis before the fire overcomes us all."

Mubarak reoccupied Egypt's place in the league on Tuesday following a 10-year suspension and resumed a leadership role as though his country had never been absent.

Egypt was suspended for signing its peace treaty with Israel in 1979. Only Libya's Col. Moammar Gadhafi tried to insist on the original condition being met for Egypt's return — abrogation of the peace treaty.

In his speech Tuesday, Mubarak asked the league to back the efforts of its six-nation committee on Lebanon to restore Lebanese national unity. Lebanon's civil war is now in its 15th year, with rival Moslem and Christian governments vying for power.

Troops fire on ethnic Turks

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Thousands of Bulgaria's ethnic Turks took to the streets in protest last weekend and security forces fired on and killed an undetermined number of them, emigre and diplomatic sources reported.

Tanks, helicopters and more troops were reportedly dispatched to the restive areas. The sources also said hundreds of members of the country's Turkish minority have staged hunger strikes to protest discrimination.

The clashes appeared to be some of the worst ethnic violence since the early 1980s, when Bulgaria's Communist authorities restricted the Moslem religion, banned public use of the Turkish language and tried to force ethnic Turks to adopt Bulgarian-sounding names.

A diplomat reached in the Bulgarian capital of Sofia said Tuesday that he heard reports of deaths but did not have figures. He said the violence occurred in northeastern Bulgaria, where many of the 900,000 ethnic Turks live.

London youths riot, attack police

WOLVERHAMPTON, England (AP) — About 500 youths hurled gasoline bombs at police in a racially mixed district of the central England town of Wolverhampton following a drug raid in a tavern, police said.

The rioters Tuesday night also threw up a makeshift barricade across a street, looted at least one store and set a local council office on fire, said Deputy Chief Constable Paul Leopold of the West Midlands police.

In 1985, predominantly black and racially mixed areas of British towns and cities including Wolverhampton were swept by a wave of protests of police harassment. In the worst incident, a policeman was hacked to death in the Tottenham district of north London.

Social workers said the underlying cause of those riots included high unemployment among young people, especially young blacks, and poor housing in inner-city areas.

Dutchwoman new Miss Universe

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — The new Miss Universe, Angela Visser of the Netherlands, says she hopes her stay in the limelight will stretch beyond her one-year term.

Miss Visser, 22, a beautician from Rotterdam, today said she plans to use the title to advance a modeling career.

"The most important thing is for people to remember me after this year is over," she told The Associated Press in a telephone interview after she was chosen Tuesday night from among 76 contestants.

Poll finds Americans favor broad measures to curb pollution

NEW YORK (AP) — The vast majority of Americans would accept mandatory trash recycling, higher electric bills and other inconveniences to help clean up the environment, a national poll has found.

Broad perceptions exist that pollution is on the rise. The Media General and Associated Press survey also found backing for initiatives ranging from a ban on household aerosol products to strict emission controls at power plants.

Three-quarters of the 1,084 respondents said laws against pollution in the United States are too weak, and about as many faulted efforts by government, businesses and average Americans to keep the environment clean.

Environmental concerns were heightened by the 10 million gallon Exxon Valdez oil spill in March in Prince William Sound, Alaska. But the poll, conducted by telephone from May 5-13, found concern and support for action beyond oil tanker safety. Among other steps:

- Majorities favored urgent government action, no matter what the cost, to clean up toxic waste and protect drinking water.
- Eighty-one percent said new safety rules and emergency cleanup teams should be in place at all major oil facilities, even if the expense would raise the price of oil and gasoline.

Seventy-two percent favored strict smokestack controls at oil- and coal-burning power plants, even if that would hike the price of electricity.

Most respondents also supported restrictions on their own behavior. Twenty percent said their communities now require them to separate and recycle household trash; of the rest, 87 percent said they would support such a requirement.

Similarly, 75 percent said they would back a ban on household aerosol products, whose propellants can pollute the air; 60 percent supported a ban on charcoal lighter fluid; and 58 percent favored a ban on non-radial tires, which release more rubber into the air than do radials.

Bans on aerosol cans, lighter fluid and non-radial tires are among the measures suggested for Southern California by a regional air quality board in March. Other steps in that proposal won less support nationally: Respondents were split on parking restrictions in cities to discourage driving, and 59 percent opposed banning gasoline-fueled garden appliances.

Overall, 72 percent said pollution appears to have increased in the past decade. Nearly a quarter said they stayed away from the beach last year because of beach pollution.

Concerns about the environment crossed ideological and political lines. Residents of the nation's most densely populated areas were the most apt to see anti-pollution efforts as inadequate and to favor new steps.

Respondents indicated there was plenty of blame to go around. Forty-two percent said businesses are doing a poor job of keeping the environment clean and 36 percent said "only fair," for a negative rating of 78 percent.

Similarly, 83 percent rated the federal government's environmental record as fair or poor, as opposed to good or excellent; 71 percent gave a negative rating to their state and local governments' environmental records; and 79 percent said most Americans are doing only a fair or poor job of keeping the environment clean.

The highest environmental priority was toxic waste disposal, in which 63 percent supported urgent government action regardless of the expense. Next was the related issue of pollution of the nation's drinking water, with 52 percent favoring urgent action, cost aside.

For those and other environmental problems, the poll gave the choices of "urgent government action no matter what the cost, prompt government action, limited government action or no government action." Urgent or prompt action were favored overwhelmingly, by 72 percent or more in every instance.

Responses were split on one current issue, whether the federal government should issue new offshore oil drilling permits. Forty-five percent opposed new drilling off the coasts of California and Florida, while about 35 percent favored new drilling there and 20 percent were unsure.

Opposition was greater to oil drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska. Sixty percent opposed and only about a quarter were in favor, with the rest unsure.

The poll, which had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 points, was conducted by the AP and Media General Inc., a communications company based in Richmond, Va.

World population accelerates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mankind's growth is accelerating again as the world adds the equivalent of another Mexico every year, the Population Reference Bureau reported Tuesday.

The private research group said that the world's population growth, after having slowed in the 1970s, is speeding up once more. As of mid-1989, the world will contain about 5.24 billion people, nearly a quarter-billion more than in 1987.

Demographers Carl Haub and Mary Kent report that the expansion from 5 billion to 6 billion could be attained in a record time — within less than a decade — if growth continues at current rates.

The world is adding about 90 million people per year, slightly more than the current Mexican population estimated at 87 million.

The report is in line with one issued a week ago by Nafis Sadik, executive director of the United Nations Population Fund. That report agreed with the Reference Bureau estimate, and the U.N. official called for increased access to family planning, education and employment for women around the globe.

There have been declines in the growth rate in some developing countries, such as China, Thailand and Indonesia, but there is little evidence of change in many others, they reported.

"Unless we see declines in high fertility rates in many African and Asian countries during the 1990s, the prospect for world population to level out at less than 10 billion seems very dim," they said.

"As far as ultimate world population size is concerned, the 1990s will truly be a decade of decision," they added.

At current rates, the world's population will rise to 6.3 billion by the year 2000 and to 8.3 billion by 2020, the group estimated, adding that the planet's population will double in 39 years.

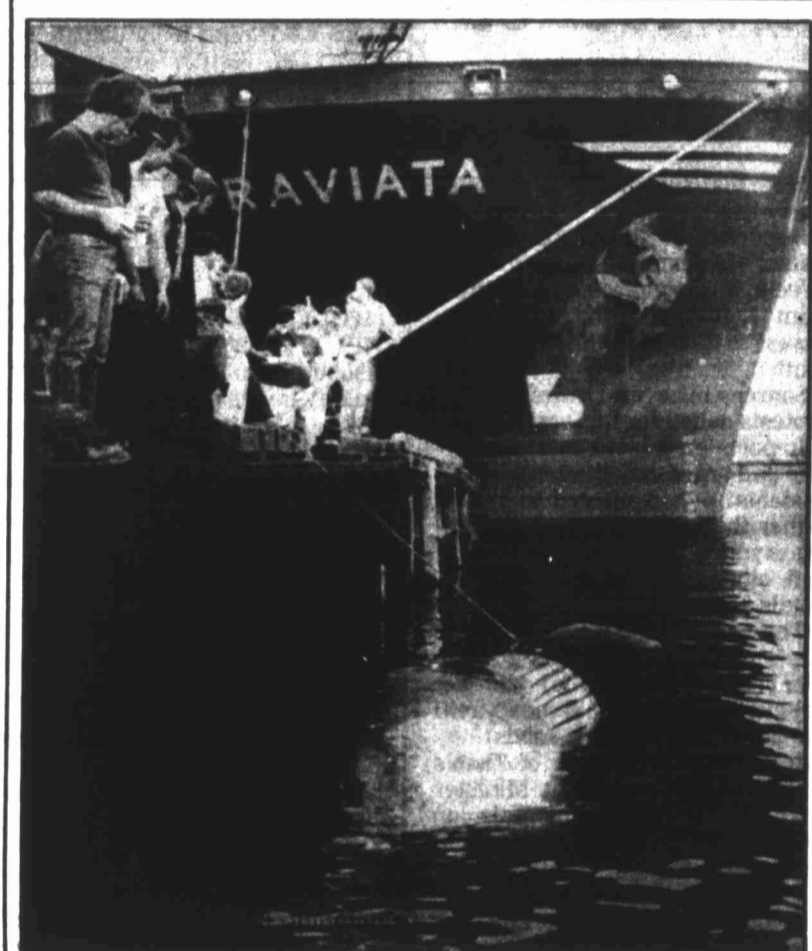

The summary notes a sharp difference between developed and developing nations.

It reports developed nations currently contain 1.2 billion people and will take 122 years to double their population. The developing nations, however, already contain 4 billion and can be expected to double in 32 years.

China remains the most populated country on Earth with 1.1 billion people and an estimated doubling time of 49 years.

Second is India with 835 million and it has a faster growth rate. Expected doubling time there is 32 years.

Far behind those two population giants, the Soviet Union is third with 289 million people and a doubling time of 70 years.

Sudan's universities short of money

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — The anatomy lab at Khartoum University's medical school was washed away by flood and no money is available to build a new one.

The library in the college of engineering can't afford to buy more than one professional journal for each of its 2,250 students.

Sudan's ailing economy is taking a toll on Khartoum University and seven other government-run universities.

But even more serious is the toll it is taking on students after graduation — they can't find jobs.

Educators say all of that adds up to a threatening situation in a country that not only has serious economic problems but also is bogged down in civil war in the south.

The cycle for the crisis in education begins early. Every year 45,000 high school students graduate with grades high enough to enter university, but room can be found for only 5,000.

At the same time, the universities annually graduate around 7,000 students into a job market in which 33,000 university graduates in Khartoum alone are unemployed.

"We demanded 300 million pounds ($25 million) for the university this year, but the government only gave us 128 million pounds ($10.6 million)," said Abdel-Baset Mohamed Ali of Khartoum University's planning and development division.

"The books are no longer up to date, but books are expensive all over the world, and we have almost no foreign exchange."

"We inherited these universities from colonial times. The buildings are old and need refurbishing," he added in an interview.

"And we need to review our degree structures according to the needs of labor. But that kind of change means innovation, and that means expense that we cannot afford. So the degree structure has not changed to be able to cope with the new demands of the labor market."

The lack of money has caused a multiplicity of related problems.

Mohamed Omar Beshir, a professor at Khartoum University's Institute for African and Asian Studies, said nearly half the university's 1,200 professors had left for better-paying jobs in the Persian Gulf states.

A beginning university professor at Khartoum University gets the equivalent of about $165 a month, much more than government bureaucrats but less than what a teacher earns in a private seconddary school.

A senior university lecturer can make double the starting salary, but in Saudi Arabia or other gulf countries he can earn 20 times as much and live a much more comfortable life.

Facility and resource renewal and updating are other problems exacerbated by the university system's money woes.

Abdel-Rahman AbuZayd, former dean of Juba University in southern Sudan and now head of Omdurman National College, said library reference books 30 years old are common and some are even as old as 50 years.

"The books are no longer up to date," he said, "but books are expensive all over the world, and we have almost no foreign exchange."

Instruments and equipment are in severely short supply in institutions specializing in the practical sciences.

At Khartoum University's medical school, torrential rains in August triggered floods that ruined the anatomy laboratory. The university has appealed to the international community, specifically the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), for money to build a new laboratory but so far without success.

Such shortcomings have limited the numbers of students who can be accommodated in disciplines like medicine and engineering.

Coalition protests taxpayer bailouts

WASHINGTON — A coalition of national housing organizations hopes to trigger a storm of protest against legislation that would require taxpayers to pay the $157 billion cost of bailing out the nation's savings and loans.

Calling press conferences in 20 cities, the organizers said the bailout plan would cost individual taxpayers up to $1,000 each over the next decade and urged voters to oppose the legislation by contacting House and Senate members.

The coalition includes ACORN, a liberal organization that lobbies for low-income housing assistance, and the Southern Finance Project, a non-profit organization that assists low-income people in getting housing.

Mildred Brown, president of ACORN, said the public is unaware that taxpayers will ultimately have to pay for the $157 billion plan to shore up the thrift industry and ought to block the legislation.

"The taxpayers of this country did not cause the savings and loan crisis, and we didn't share in the fortunes that many thrift operators made at our expense," said Brown.

"People would be outraged if they knew what Congress was doing."

Rep. Lane Evans, D-Ill., said taxpayers ought to swamp their local congressmen with complaints about the bailout.

"We need to derail this legislation before it gets through the process, and the public has that kind of influence if they'll use it," he said.

AT&T MultiQuest™ Service

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T) announces its intent to introduce within Texas on July 14, 1989, AT&T MultiQuest Service, a new interactive 900-type telephone service. Since February 19, 1989, this innovative service has been available to Texas businesses only on an interstate basis. With AT&T MultiQuest Service, Texas business customers (otherwise known as sponsors) may offer value-added information services to callers originating long distance calls from Texas or elsewhere in the United States over AT&T's public switched network. A Texas caller, accessing the service by dialing the sponsor's 1-900 plus seven-digit number, can obtain recorded and/or live information by communicating with attendants, voice messaging equipment and computer data bases. Flat-rate, time sensitive usage charges will be billed to the caller for the sponsor's service.

AT&T is offering AT&T MultiQuest Service within Texas in response to requests by its business customers for a service that offers intrastate as well as nationwide interactive voice & data transport capability. Potential sponsors include entrepreneurial companies entering into new ventures that are information intensive, local mass announcement sponsors who want statewide as well as national coverage coupled with interactive capability and other information service providers.

The Texas intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service will be tariffed as an "add-on" offering to a sponsor's existing interstate AT&T MultiQuest Service. The intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service costs will be recovered from sponsor usage charges set forth in AT&T's intrastate tariffs. The usage charges billed to the caller are determined by the sponsor as appropriate to the service being offered and are not tariffed charges.

For more information about AT&T MultiQuest Service please call your AT&T Account Executive or AT&T's business consultants toll free on 1 (800) 552-0212. They can answer your questions regarding this service and how it can be of benefit to you.

AT&T intends to file a tariff to offer this service with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on June 13, 1989, effective July 14, 1989. Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may contact the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf, or write to them at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757.

Intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service is projected to generate $1.1 million in the first year of its offering or .1% of AT&T's total gross service revenues in Texas.

Thousands killed in Iranian executions

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Since its cease-fire with Iraq, Iran has become a killing ground of executions.

Hundreds of people — some say thousands — have been put to death in purges that reflect political turmoil inside Iran since the fighting stopped in the Persian Gulf in August.

It is the biggest wave of executions in Iran since 1980-81, when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's loyalists turned on their leftist and secular allies who helped topple Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in the 1979 Islamic revolution.

Fears mount that a growing outcry against "liberals" and the power struggle within the Tehran hierarchy indicate that more executions are likely.

The radical newspaper Jomhuri Islami said in a recent editorial: "The liberals are in conflict with the revolution."

"Why have they been left... to infiltrate every place they want to carry out wicked acts?... The snakes are in their holes and waiting to release their poison."

Among those executed were followers of Ayatollah Hussein Ali Montazeri, the most prominent of the so-called moderates, who was ousted in March as Khomeini's successor as Iran's spiritual leader. He had called for a halt to the executions, wider freedoms and openly criticized the shortcomings of the 1979 Islamic revolution.

Many who were executed were middle-ranking Islamic clerics, including Hojatoleslam Omid Najafabadi, a former revolutionary judge. They were described by Intelligence Minister Mohammad Reza Shahrinasab as "pseudoclergymen... involved in various political, moral and corrupt offenses."

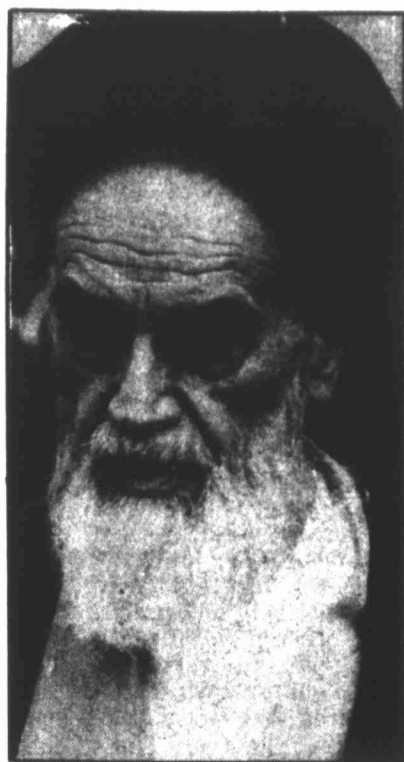

The purges appear aimed at eliminating dissident or outlawed factions opposed to Khomeini in the postwar era or deemed to be too liberal for the new radicalism.

The Iraqi-based Mujahedeen Khalq, or People's Holy Warriors who make up the main anti-Khomeini opposition movement, claim that more than 12,000 political prisoners have gone to their deaths at the hands of the state in the last six months. It has given out the names of 1,600 it says have been victims.

The United Nations, Amnesty International and the U.S. State Department estimate that about 1,000 political prisoners have been executed, although they acknowledge that the true figure is probably far higher.

Iranian officials deny the dissidents' claim. But the official media have reported that scores of "counterrevolutionaries" have been publicly executed since August.

The media have also reported nearly 550 alleged drug smugglers have been hanged from mobile cranes and expressway overpasses in a score of cities under a new anti-narcotics law that makes the death sentence mandatory for possession of even small amounts of drugs.

AYATOLLAH KHOMEINI

The Mujahedeen rebels claim Tehran has sought to mask the purge of dissidents by claiming that many of those executed without trial were drug smugglers.

The rebels alleged that 200 people it said were executed in the western city of Hamedan in recent weeks as smugglers were dissidents.

Reports persist of mass executions in Iranian prisons. Some dissident accounts claim that hundreds of prisoners, some of them held without trial for years, were blown up, while other groups were gassed.

Khomeini's supporters say that the deposed Montazeri was politically naive and allowed himself to become the mouthpiece for opponents of the regime.

But diplomats and other analysts believe Montazeri was reflecting growing uneasiness among many Iranians about the direction the Islamic revolution had taken.

With the radical resurgence, Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi has called for a purge of "so-called liberals" and "the enemies of Islam" in Iran.

Tehran newspapers have been echoing the outcry against the "liberals," believed to include Mehdi Bazargan, the Islamic Republic's first prime minister.

He resigned in 1979 in protest of the storming of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the taking of its staff hostage. Since then he has led Iran's token opposition party despite constant harassment and was becoming increasingly close to Montazeri.

Iran's military has not escaped the purge. Senior Iranian officials claimed in April that several networks of U.S. spies had been smashed within the military.

They allegedly included senior figures in the navy and army, long distrusted because of their links with the shah, and even the Foreign Ministry, whose officials have been branded as too pro-Western.

Texas graves believed linked to Mayans

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An archeologist says eight graves discovered at the city's Botanical Gardens are believed to date back nearly 2,800 years and may have links to the ancient Mayans.

Herman Smith of the Corpus Christi Museum said the find, discovered last week, appears to have connections with a 13-grave burial site unearthed last February at the Botanical Gardens.

Both groups are believed to date back to 800 B.C., he said, and there are indications they had links to ancient Mexican and Mayan civilizations.

"What is most intriguing of all is that we have the suggestion that South Texas may have been the conduit for culture traits from southern Mexico into the Mississippi River Valley," Smith told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

The archeologist said earlier theories about the migration from what is now Latin America to what is now the United States were that the people came by canoe across the Gulf of Mexico. There are now indications, however, that the voyagers came through Central Mexico and up into South Texas, he said.

The eight graves found last week include three females, one of whom was about eight months pregnant and appears to have been killed by a spear point through her chest, Smith said.

Another woman was buried surrounded by and atop many artifacts, he said, adding that her burial site was to be excavated Tuesday.

Smith said the three women possibly were killed in the same massacre that claimed the lives of the 13 found at the previously excavated site, where some also showed signs of traumatic injuries, such as crushed skulls or spear wounds.

Also within that group were two who were buried with painted stones in their mouths, a child with a stone in his hand and a woman with four small incense pellets in her mouth. Smith said those are indications the group had some connection with the Central American Mayans who were known to bury their dead with stones or incense in their mouths.

Smith said he also found impressions of cotton thread, indicating the group had contact with civilizations that grew and produced cotton.

"These people were in touch with people who were trading in Mexico," he said. "Eight hundred B.C. is awful early for cotton to be here, even to be in Mexico."

Great Pyramid looks greater after facelift

GIZA PLATEAU, Egypt (AP) — The Great Pyramid of Cheops, the most famous of ancient Egypt's royal tombs, was declared safe for tourists and reopened Saturday for the first time in nine months.

A Dutch woman and an American student were the first of the scores of tourists who waited under the hot Egyptian sun to tour the pyramid.

Since August, workers had been sealing cracks, reinforcing limestone slabs for safety and clearing vermin from the inside of the magnificent structure, which now boasts television monitors.

The restoration project was the first step in a five-year plan to transform the pyramid area, including the Sphinx, into an open-air museum.

Gasping after the 155-foot climb to the King's Chamber, Sophie D'Lang of Rotterdam said she and her husband were spending the last day of a vacation in Egypt.

"I didn't think we had a chance to see inside Cheops," said Mrs. D'Lang, who waited more than three hours for the re-opening. "I think what they've done is great."

Michael Saxton of Dayton, Ohio, said he waited four hours. "For me the pyramid has special meaning because of the way it's built. It's amazing."

The Great Pyramid is Egypt's top tourist attraction, and tourist officials protested when it was closed Aug. 15.

But the Egyptian Antiquities Organization prevailed with the argument that newly discovered cracks in blocks lining interior passages and a half-inch layer of salt on inside walls had to be fixed without interruption by tourists.

With a base of 13.1 acres, it stood at 481.4 feet when it was built 4,600 years ago. Today, it is 31 feet shorter after losing about a dozen layers and its capstone. It also has lost almost all its outer facing of hard, white limestone, stripped for use in stone bridges, irrigation canals, houses, walls and buildings.

During the renovation, rubble was cleared and lighting added to a chamber winding 396 feet beneath the pyramid.

SUMMER SCHOOL FOR LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT CHILDREN

Registration for the Big Spring ISD summer school program for limited English proficient students will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 30-31, 1989, from 8:15 a.m. through 4:00 p.m., including the lunch hour. Registration will take place at the Administration Office, 708 11th Place.

Summer School for limited English Proficient Children will be held for eight weeks, from June 26 to August 18, 1989. To be eligible for this program, students must be eligible for enrollment in Kindergarten or Grade 1 for the 1989-90 school year (i.e. 5 or 6 years old on or before September 1, 1989). Students must also meet state limited English proficiency guidelines. A birth certificate is required for registration. Parents with questions should call the Administration Office at 267-8245.

Vegetation near Chernobyl found growing to giant size

MOSCOW (AP) — Some of the vegetation in the contaminated zone around the Chernobyl nuclear power plant is growing to giant size, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

"Some plants are exhibiting gigantism," according to the newspaper Lenin's Banner, including "giant green pines" near woods that were left withered after the Ukrainian plant's explosion and fire in 1986 that spewed radiation into the air.

Some tree branches and leaves are abnormally formed, and stamens tend to split, the newspaper said.

Tree buds have turned into leaves in seasons when they should lie dormant, it said.

The article denied rumors that rodents are proliferating within a 18-mile radius around the stricken plant or that nothing has been left alive in the area.

"Although there have been some genetic deviations noted in rodents in the zone, no noticeable changes in their condition or behavior has appeared," the newspaper said.

But it said the area's population of elk and wild boar seems to have dropped.

The Chernobyl disaster, the worst accident known to have occurred at a nuclear power plant, left at least 31 people dead and forced the evacuation of more than 100,000 people.

Food fad: Popcorn-on-the-cob

HEREFORD (AP) — On a whim one day, corn farmer Ed Dziuk stuck an ear of popcorn in a microwave oven. What he saw amazed him: The kernels burst into fluffy white flowers, still attached to the cob.

A food fad was born. "Everyone on the planet Earth should experience this thing once because it's exciting," says Ed's brother Al.

When Ed and brother Dave showed him the microwave marvel, Al says, he had no doubt it would sell. He was right.

Microwave popcorn-on-the-cob is popping up in grocery stores, gift shops and mail-order catalogs nationwide, an offbeat option to the conventional varieties that consumers buy off the cob.

A three-minute spin on a microwave carousel transforms a plain yellow ear of the Dziuks' product into an ear of white, fluffy popcorn. While some kernels pop on the cob, others fire off the ear before puffing up.

With all the gourmet and fancy popcorn now on the market, do American consumers really need popcorn-on-the-cob?

The Dziuks have no doubt. The popcorn producers boast that this farm-fresh corn grown in West Texas has nothing artificial.

"It stays fresher on the cob and it's this year's corn," says Dave, who oversees marketing with the help of Rip Hawk, a former world tag-team pro wrestling champ who joined the brothers in their venture.

In the two years since they launched Texas Microwave Popcorn-on-the-Cob, they have learned that selling a food fad isn't easy. "You can't just come up with a great new product and have people grab it up," says Al.

He and his brothers sold three acres' worth of popping corn in 1987, in packages of two or three ears and a plastic bag for popping.

But efforts to enlarge the operation stalled until the group learned that getting on store shelves was next to impossible without enlisting the help of a food broker, no matter how ingenious the product.

"We really had to learn the food business, which we knew nothing about," says Dave.

In 1988 they planted 56 acres of popcorn-able corn, yielding about 1.5 million ears, only to see thousands of ears sit unbought in their warehouse. About 500,000 ears remain unpackaged, and an equal amount was removed from the cob to sell as plain, pedestrian popcorn, off the cob.

The fledgling operation got a break when Hawk and the Dziuks approached United Supermarkets Inc., a Lubbock-based grocery chain. After seeing a demonstration of the product, buyer Max Tipton called other employees out of their offices to watch the corn pop. All agreed that their kids would be captivated by such a gimmick.

After United helped line up a food broker, the ears of popcorn began gaining wider distribution last fall.

"We went from zero to a pretty fair track record now," says Hawk.

Last fall, more than 19,000 packages of Texas Microwave Popcorn-on-the-Cob were sold, and more than 20,000 have gone out the door so far this year. Tipton says the company's packages, which sell for $1.79 at United Stores, are selling at an average rate for popcorn.

To prepare it for shipment, the hand-harvested ears must be shucked and the ends trimmed with a radial saw before they're enclosed in plastic bags, each of which holds 6-10 ounces of corn.

Texas Microwave Popcorn-on-the-Cob now is distributed to 11 states, most in the Southwest and Midwest. In addition to grocery stores and Michael's craft stores in 10 states, the product soon may be sold in some J.C. Penney stores, Hawk says.

The retail price ranges from $1.79 to $3 per package. The group figured its product would be largely a holiday item, but found that demand picked up this spring.

"Popcorn is a year-round thing nowadays," Dave says.

Popcorn has become big business. Americans bought 807 million pounds of unpopped popcorn last year, according to the Chicago-based Popcorn Institute, and gobbled 12.9 billion quarts of popped corn.

The United States consumes two-thirds of the world's popcorn, and Hawk and the Dziuks weren't alone in devising a corny new way to pop it.

Wesley Friesen of Venice, Fla., introduced Corny Bros. Popcorn on the Cob. It comes three ears to a package and sells for $3.95. Other companies sell their on-cob corn as a novelty item, packaged in old-fashioned mason jars.

"We don't want to become millionaires," Al says. "But we do think we have something here."

Quilt lady vows to keep world's largest quilt in one whole piece

ANTLER, N.D. (AP) — Leona Tennyson is known as "the Betsy Ross of the Prairie" for her work in assembling the world's largest quilt. Now, like the original Betsy Ross, she has a fight on her hands: State officials want to take apart her labor of love.

"I will never allow it to be dismantled. I will fight to the end for that," declared Tennyson, a 74-year-old ranch owner and insurance saleswoman.

The quilt is shaped like North Dakota and features intricate details of each of the state's 53 counties and 1,358 townships. It weighs 800 pounds and measures 85 by 134 feet, 1 1/2 times as long and wide as a basketball court. Twenty-five to 40 people are needed to carry it.

But Tennyson's pride and joy now sits in a heap, stuffed with mothballs and covered with plastic, in a storage room at Minot State University's athletic complex. Critics call it a white elephant, and they say Tennyson is too stubborn to admit it.

The state Historical Board, which oversees items placed in the state museum in Bismarck, refused to accept the quilt for display, saying it was not a historical artifact. The board recommended it be dismantled so each county could be given its particular section — a proposal that angered Tennyson.

"It is too beautiful of a piece of work to be torn apart," she said. "The sections fit together just like section of land on the ground."

The state Centennial Commission, which gave Tennyson about $10,000 in expense money for the project, has appointed a special committee to find a solution to the quilt quandary.

State Tourism Director Jim

Fuglie, a member of the panel, says he "pooh-poohed" the quilt until he walked on it, tracing a path from his hometown of Hettinger to Bismarck.

"Just the incredible calculation to make it fit to scale is phenomenal," Fuglie said. "My instincts are not to dismantle it. I think there is a way to display it. We just haven't found it."

Tennyson, a rusty-haired great-grandmother, lives alone in a modest home in this town of 100 people just two miles south of the Canadian border.

She recently bought a van to haul the quilt to events during the state's 100th birthday celebration this summer. She probably will charge $1 to see it, she said.

State officials rallied around Tennyson when she struggled to make her quilt the world's largest — especially when she had to enlarge it at the last minute to surpass a quilt in Australia.

Gov. George Sinner held a news conference to promote the project, and the quilt was displayed on the state Capitol grounds, as well as in Fargo's civic auditorium.

The Guinness Book of World Records certified the quilt last July as the world's largest. A quilt that was assembled in San Francisco to memorialize AIDS victims was many times larger, but its panels were laid side by side, not actually sewn together.

Former Gov. Arthur Link, chairman of the Centennial Commission, said the dispute over the quilt involves some basic questions — who owns it and what possible use could be found for it.

One solution would be to put it on a huge roller, "sort of like an endless towel," Link suggested. Another idea is to store the quilt in an air-tight container and use pictures to explain it.

Tennyson coordinated the Citizens Centennial Quilt Committee, which used 7,000 volunteers to cut and assemble the pieces that eventually became the quilt.

Volunteers in each township and county were responsible for their own sections, and the 53 completed county sections were sent to Tennyson in Antler, where she and some local volunteers sewed together the completed quilt.

"Some feel she got paid for it so it isn't hers. She's very set in her ways," said bartender Madonna Eide in Antler, where Tennyson and her quilt are a popular conversation piece.

But letters Tennyson receives from people across the state — one woman suggested each resident of the state donate $1 to construct a building for the blanket — convince her that the quilt should never be dismantled.

Government isn't always serious business

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — While state representatives were debating deer vasectomies and tossing around a plastic urinal, their august Senate colleagues staged a speed voting contest.

"Remember the Mickey Mouse Club had 'anything can happen day'?" This is one of them," Rep. James Kosteva said Thursday, during the House's seven-hour budget debate.

The flying red urinal, normally used by bedridden men, interrupted Rep. Carl Gnodtke's speech on the tourism potential of strategically placed portable toilets with "Say Yes! to Michigan" stickers on them.

Rep. Margaret O'Connor proposed an amendment to ensure tax dollars would not be used for vasectomies to control the deer population of Detroit's Belle Isle. The amendment lost.

Meanwhile, Senate leaders challenged the chamber to see how fast it could approve a series of minor bills.

The first passed in 40 seconds, not fast enough for Majority Leader John Engler, a Republican.

"We can do better than that," he said. "Everybody's in their seat. Let's try again."

The second bill was launched in 11 seconds, the third in four. To cheers and applause, the senators mustered the votes for the final bill in just two seconds.

Women pay tribute to GFWC pioneers

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

Several current and past members of the 1905 Hyperion Club met Thursday to pay tribute to the pioneers of the General Federation of Women's Club's and to discuss the organization's 100th anniversary.

Annie Matt Angel and Mary Arnold Hefley, shared the history and contributions of the organization during a luncheon at Big Spring Country Club.

The program concerned the 100th anniversary of the GFWC, which will be celebrated next year.

The 1905 Hyperion Club is the only Hyperion club that belongs to the organization, Angel said.

According to information from the GFWC, nearly 100 years have passed since the organization came to be.

The organization of the General Federation in 1890 was the banding together of women's clubs that had been in existence for many years. Their representatives had come to New York in 1889 at the invitation of Sorosis, a club organized in 1868, in celebration of its 21st birthday.

A small group of women — 67 delegates from 17 states — formed the organization that has grown into per capita membership of more than 600,000 in more than 12,000 clubs formed into 51 state federations.

What is the purpose of these women's clubs that have made such achievements through the years? The best definition was given more than 50 years ago by former GFWC president Mrs. Thomas G. Winter.

"A group of organized women in every community which can be depended upon to promote all movements leading to the betterment of life."

According to Evelyn Oppenheimer, book reviewer, "No group has been more ridiculed and caricatured than the clubwomen, yet no group has contributed more vitality and variety to the cultural scene in this country. They have rushed in where no angel would dare put foot or wing. They have prodded and pushed men into action for civic causes from the wilderness community to the metropolitan."

The 1905 Hyperion Club members can testify that women's clubs truly do contribute to the community.

According to club facts, the 1905 Hyperion Club — the first study club in Big Spring:

Began the first library. After abolishing the public drinking cup, club members installed the first drinking fountain in the schools.

Members began the first clean-up campaign. Because no one wanted a dump ground, the town was incorporated.

Members assisted in establishing the first museum.

Established the first playground.

Sponsored the first fine arts exhibit.

Financed the first community chorus.

"Since 1905, we have worked for building a better Big Spring. We have contributed not only to civic improvements, but helped in youth programs, education, conservation, and sponsored traffic safety. Today, we pay tribute to the pioneers who paved the way for us, a move forward to meet the challenge of the future," Angel concluded.

Homemakers discuss the past

Elbow Extension Homemaker's Club met Thursday at the home of Ethel McKinnon, with President Myri Soles presiding. The devotion was from Matthew 5:3-4.

Eleven members answered roll call with "Something Mother did that is outdated now." Mentioned were making lye soap, washing on a rub board, heating water (to boil the clothes) in an iron pot over a fire outside, wearing a homemade bonnet with strips of cardboard inserted to make it hold its shape, scrubbing floors on hands and knees, ripping up pants to make quilts.

The International Understanding Committee chairman, Lola Kelly, told about watching a television program about Netherland prisons. She noted that the prisoners are allowed to go home on the weekends. But, that their return percentage is no better than in the United States.

Cokes were taken to the Big Spring State Hospital.

Program suggestions for 1990 yearbook are to be in as soon as possible.

Gloria Kappas presented the program "Closet Clutter." She noted that big jobs need to be broken down into smaller ones. Don't try to do the whole house at once, she suggested. Have boxes for (1) sell, (2) storage, (3) put away (4) put back and a garbage container to put things into as you clean out a drawer or closet. Once you've put something in one, don't take it out.

The next meeting is to be a sewing machine demonstration (how to correct things that go wrong when you sew, like the thread breaking, skipped stitches, wrong tension, etc.) at Lola Kelly's house.

Members honor club founders

Members of Beta Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met May 6 in Garrett Hall at First United Methodist Church to honor its international founders.

Hostesses were: Joyce Bradley, chairman; Corinne Buckner, Shirley Burgess, Sherry Key, Susan King, Betty Addy, Anna Walker, Dorothy Smith, Jean Broughton, Wanda Walker and Betty Conley.

"We Have Learned by Our Founders Roles" was the program's topic. Jo Dell Myrick presented "Time Line of Beta Kappa Chapter." The music committee, Virginia Martin, chairman; Lila Adkins and Betty Birdwell were in charge of the music. The business meeting was conducted by Kathy Terrazes, president. The following committee reports were given: membership, scholarship, and recruitment grant.

Announcement was made of the state convention to be held in Abilene June 15-17.

The work of the International Research Committee was discussed. This committee will include in the 1990-1994 manual, the following topics:

1. To what extent is geography being taught in the schools?
2. To what extent are legislators and other non-educators intruding in the educational scene?
3. What are the pros and cons of national teacher certification?
4. To what extent are teachers prepared to handle the products of a disordered society?

Military

Army Cpl. Billy D. Mayes, son of Doyle T. and Liz Mayes, Lorain, is a member of the 9th Infantry at Fort Ord, Calif., participating in the multi-national peacekeeping force and observers (MFO) as the primary U.S. military contingent in the Sinai.

The MFO, an independent agency responsible to the governments of Israel and Egypt, was established as a result of the 1979 Egypt-Israel peace treaty.

The mission of the unit is to operate checkpoints and observation posts, and conduct reconnaissance patrols along the Sinai Peninsula.

The peninsula is located on the southeast shores of the Mediterranean Sea and extends eastward from the Suez Canal to Israel and southward from the Mediterranean to the Red Seas.

Mayes is a team chief. He is a 1986 graduate of Lorain High School.

Pvt. 1st Class Ritchie L. Lake, son of Jim E. and Olivia Lake, Snyder, has graduated from a helicopter repair course at the U.S. Army Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Va.

During the course, students learned to perform direct and general support maintenance on helicopters. Also included was instruction in safety practices, usage of around support equipment and special and precision tools. He is a 1983 graduate of Selwyn High School, Denton.

Spec. Ricky J. Dyess, has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal at Fort Richardson, Alaska.

The Achievement Medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

He is a target acquisition surveillance radar repairer with the 106th Military Intelligence Battalion.

Dyess is the son of Billy Joe Dyess of Lamesa.

The specialist is a 1981 graduate of Lamesa High School.

In-laws flunk mom's safety test

DEAR ABBY: My in-laws are wonderful grandparents to my 2½-year-old son. They would do anything in the world for him, except take the trouble to buckle him up in his car seat. This is a big problem for me because I depend on them to baby-sit quite often. I can't afford to pay a sitter, and there's no one else.

I've tried several times to stress the importance of car-seat safety but they think it's unnecessary since it's only a 10-minute drive from their home to mine.

My husband has been very firm with them, but twice I've caught them not using the car seat. I haven't told my husband because it would cause a family feud. His parents are very stubborn and don't take criticism very well. Abby, I fear for my child's safety, but don't know what to do. Please print this letter and stress the importance of buckling up small children. Perhaps they'll listen to you. Thank you! — WORRIED MOM

P.S. My in-laws have their own car seat. We purchased one for them so they would always have it handy when our son is in their care. DEAR WORRIED MOM: You have good reason to worry. There is only one solution to your problem. Do not trust your in-laws to drive your child. Their excuse, "It's only a 10-minute drive from their home to yours," means nothing. A large percentage of all automobile accidents occur within a mile of one's home.

DEAR ABBY: I know that many people share this problem. If you

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't cope with. I am a 25-year-old woman dating a 28-year-old man. Stan and I have dated for a year, and he is the one man I would like to spend the rest of my life with. He says he loves me, but he is having trouble breaking away from his ex-girlfriend. She lives four hours away, and he has gone to see her several times since he told me he loves me. She has also been here several times that I know of for sure — I suspect several times I didn't know about. In short, I fear unexplained absences, and his disappearing into a telephone booth to make a "quick" phone call that lasts 20 or 30 minutes. I can't handle this stress.

I have no desire to see any old boyfriends. I have let go of my past, but Stan hasn't.

All my friends tell me I am crazy for believing him. Am I? — INSECURE IN IOWA

DEAR INSECURE: You have good reason to be insecure. If you want to buy a peck of trouble, continue your romance with a man you can't trust.

Winning recipe

Homemaker wins $3,000 at beef cook-off

Fort Davis — "This is probably more money than I've ever had at one time," declared Kathy Rypke, as she was presented with the $3,000 top prize at the Texas Beef Cook-Off.

Her winning recipe, "Cajun Sunshine Beef Salad," used a flavorful combination of seasonings with a "little bit of Cajun."

The attractively-served salad consisted primarily of a spiced rice topped with thin strips of Cajun-seasoned top sirloin, positioned on a bed of lettuce outlined with thin rings of red, yellow and green pepper slices.

Having entered her first cooking contest several years ago, Kathy has been "hooked" ever since. Last year's participation in the cook-off in Jackson, Miss., as representative of the Microwave's South Region was her first competition on the national level.

Ten finalists were selected from 345 entries to receive the expense-paid trips to Prude Ranch, where participants prepared his/her recipe for a panel of five judges.

The 1990 Texas Beef Cook-Off will be conducted at the Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo in February. Deadline for entries will be Jan. 15 and should be sent to Mrs. Peggy Jones, 6423 Oil Field Rd., Sugar Land, Texas 77479-4603.

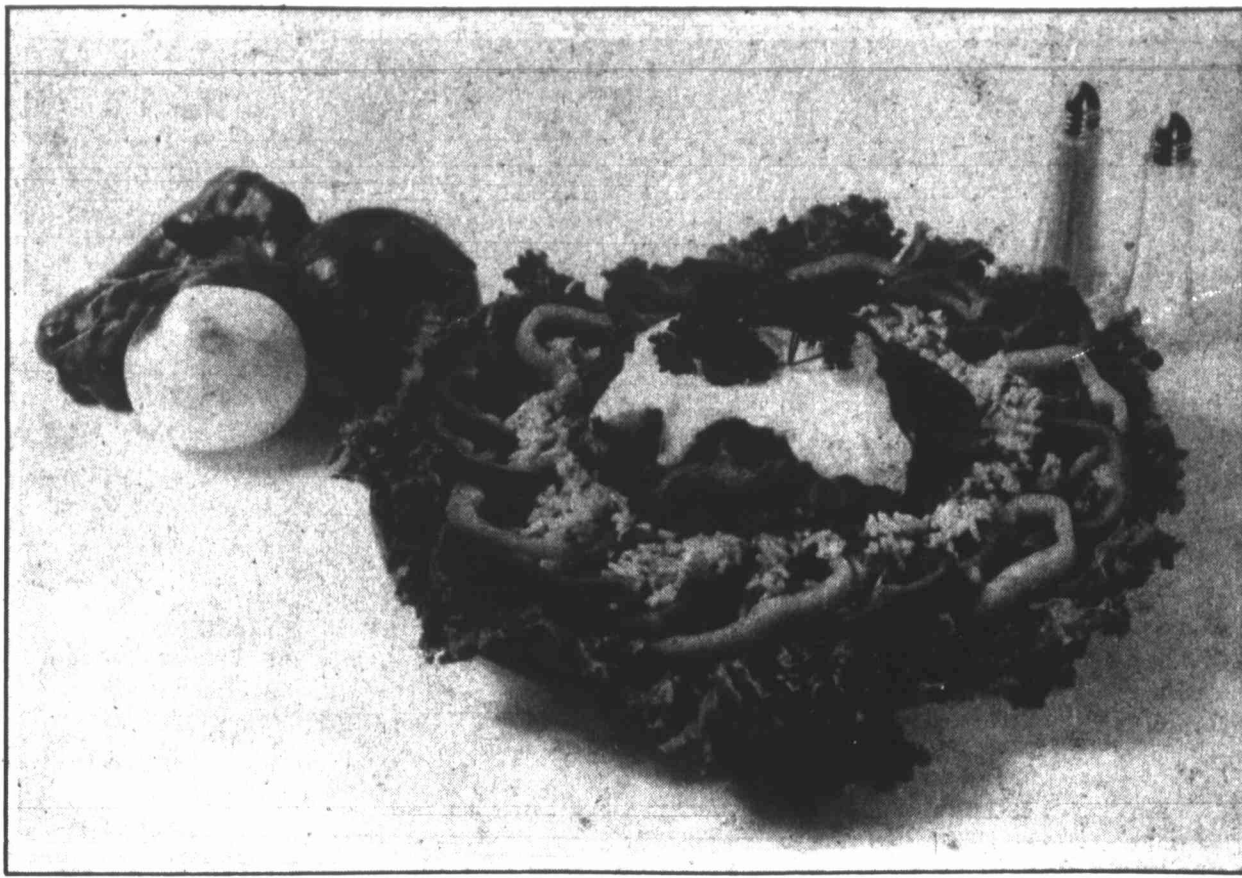

CAJUN SUNSHINE BEEF SALAD

Kathy Rypke, Bedford
1 1/2 lbs. beef top sirloin, 1-inch thick

1 tsp. cajun blackened beef seasoning (in specialty section of grocery store)
3 tbs. olive oil, divided
2 large cloves garlic, divided
4 or 5 thin strips fresh lemon peel
1/4 cup each chopped green, red, and yellow bell pepper
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
2 tbs. fresh minced parsley
1/4 tsp. crushed, converted rice
Salt
Leaf lettuce
6 each green, red, and yellow bell pepper rings, sliced 1/4-inch thick
Parsley sprigs (optional)

Dressing
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 tsp. freshly grated lemon peel
1/8 tsp. crushed red pepper
1 tsp. minced fresh parsley

Trim beef well and rub cajun seasoning on both sides. In large skillet, heat 1 tablespoon olive oil over medium heat. Add 1 garlic clove, sliced, and strips of lemon peel. Sauté for about 1 minute until garlic begins to brown. Remove garlic and lemon with slotted spoon and discard. Sear beef in remaining hot oil on both sides until browned. Reduce heat to low and continue pan-frying until beef is cooked but still pink in center (3-5 minutes per side). Remove beef to plate and wipe pan with paper towel to remove any residue. Add remaining 2 tablespoons oil along with chopped bell peppers. Sauté 2 minutes. Add lemon juice, parsley, crushed red pepper, cooked rice, and desired salt. Continue sautéing 2-3 minutes more, stirring until

3 tbs. dark brown sugar
1 large lime
Place 2 tbs. margarine in skillet and melt over medium heat. Add steak and cook 10 minutes on each side, adding additional margarine as needed. Sprinkle with chili powder, black pepper, and fajita seasoning, turning meat to cover both sides. Lower heat. Poke holes in steak (one side only) with sharp knife. Spread with honey; then brown sugar. Squeeze juice of 1 lime over steak. Serve with Honey Hot Mushrooms.

HONEY HOT MUSHROOMS

3/4 pound fresh mushrooms, halved
3 to 4 tbs. margarine
1 medium red bell pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
Chili powder
Coarse black pepper
Fajita seasoning
2 tbs. dark brown sugar
2 to 3 tbs. honey
1/2 large lime
3/4 cup sliced green onions, including stems
3/4 cup pitted ripe olives

Sauté mushrooms in margarine over medium heat for 4 minutes. Add red pepper and stir-fry 3 to 5 minutes. Lower heat. Sprinkle with seasoning to taste and brown sugar. Drizzle with honey. Squeeze juice of 1/2 lime over all. Place mushroom mixture, green onions, and olives on serving platter around meat.

Serve potato pancakes for brunch

Today we're having potato pancakes. Let's pretend it's a Saturday. You've had a hectic week, so you've loafed around in bed most of the morning. It's too late for breakfast and too early for lunch, so we'll have "brunch." The family is going to enjoy this. Let's get our ingredients together. This morning we will need:

- Potatoes (2-about size of a baseball)
- Eggs (2)
- Onion (1-small)
- Salt and pepper
- Flour
- Bacon
- Apple sauce

First, put the bacon on to fry. Be sure there's enough for the family. Next, peel and grate the potatoes and onion. You want this grated very fine. Mix the grated potatoes and two teaspoons of grated onions together with two eggs, two tablespoons of flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons of salt, and pepper to suit taste. Now heat some of the bacon grease on a griddle, and with a spoon, drop in the potato mixture, making small pancakes. While you're doing this, heat some apple sauce in a sauce pan until it's just warm. Cook the pancakes until they are a golden brown, and serve with the apple sauce and bacon. Elapsed time? Less than 30 minutes. You have a delicious brunch that will keep the family going until the evening meal.

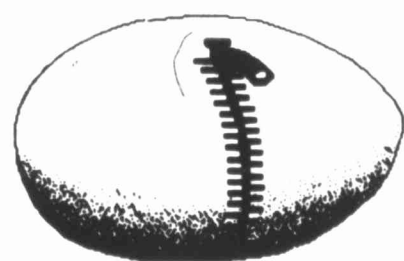

Having a brunch around 10 or 11 a.m. makes the evening meal just right for about 4 or 5 p.m. So, let's think about Mexican food. How about a nice hot tamale pie? For this evening's meal, you will need: Ground Beef (2 lbs.)

How to open an egg

- Onion (1-medium)
- Tomato sauce (1 can)
- Sugar
- Cheese
- Cornmeal
- Baking powder
- Egg (1)
- Green pepper (1-large)
- Tomatoes (1-#303 can)
- Chili powder
- Salt
- Olives
- Flour
- Milk
- Shortening
- Garlic (1 clove)

I know this is a lot of ingredients, but trust me. It's easy. First, cut the green pepper into strips, chop the onion, mix in with the ground beef, and lightly brown in a large skillet. Pour off the excess drippings and add the can of tomatoes, the tomato sauce, about two tablespoons of chili powder, one tablespoon of salt, and a clove of garlic, crushed. Set the oven thermostat to 425 degrees. While oven is heating, cook this mixture for about 25 to 30 minutes, occasionally stirring to keep from sticking, and at the same time adding a cup of the cheese, shredded. When cooked, pour in a large casserole, leveling the top. Now, mix one cup of cornmeal with one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of sugar, two teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of salt. Combine this with one cup of milk, one beaten egg, and two tablespoons of melted shortening. Mix this and pour over the hot meat mixture, and bake in the preheated oven for about 20 minutes or until topping is done. Elapsed time? A little over an hour, but with a dish like this, who's watching the clock? While dining, you will probably hear a few "Ole's."

By the way, I'm going to let you in on a little secret that Texans have kept to themselves for about one and a half centuries.

I just hope I don't have to go into exile, if I'm found out. Actually, that might be best, for men have been lynched for less.

The secret is: Mexican food is a powerful aphrodisiac! Don't laugh. Mexican food is one of the most powerful aphrodisiacs known to man. Why do you think Texans eat so much Mexican food? Young Texans eat it 10 to 12 times a week, but older Texans use a little more discretion. After the age of 50, until we reach our mid-80s, we slow down. We only eat Mexican food six or seven times a week. Don't say I didn't warn you. Next week, eggs benedict and a meat and cheese salad.

Questions & Answers

Q. What causes the milk sauce for my scalloped potatoes to curdle?

A. Chemical interaction of potatoes and milk tends to cause milk to curdle. Some experts say you can minimize the possibility of curdling by heating the milk (don't boil) and then adding to potatoes.

Q. What causes a cake mix to be lumpy?

A. If cake mix is stored in a humid area, it may become lumpy. Slow beating will help break up lumps. While some small lumps may be visible in batter when a cake has been mixed according to package directions, they will disappear during baking.

Q. How can I prevent my banana or date bread from having a sticky top after storage?

A. For storage, cook break completely on a rack before covering. If weather is humid, almost all quick breads become sticky and little can be done to prevent it.

Q. How can I fill cupcake papers neatly?

A. Use one of these methods: Small ice cream scoop with metal bar to help push batter out, soup ladle, or a small measuring cup, carefully filled by dipping into batter.

Q. What method and power do you recommend for microwave reheating a dish such as crepes stuffed with spinach, cheese and rice?

A. Crepes can be heated individually or together. Arrange filled crepes on a microwavable plate.

Cover with waxed paper and microwave on medium, rotating plate several times, until heated through.

Q. Does diet margarine substitute directly for regular margarine or butter?

A. No. Diet margarines have greater volume and less fat and will not consistently produce desirable results in recipes designed for regular margarine or butter.

Q. My Sour Whipping Cream Cake falls after it's removed from the oven. Longer cooking makes edges hard and dark. What do you suggest?

A. It is difficult to diagnose. Several possibilities follow. The recipe may have too much liquid that doesn't evaporate during baking or the pan may be overfilled. Generally, fill a cake pan half full. To assure accuracy, determine the volume of pan by how many cups of water it will hold. Add half that much batter to prepared pan. The balance of ingredients may be wrong. For example, too much shortening. Measure carefully with correct utensils.

Q. What's the difference between mayonnaise and commercial salad dressing?

A. Mayonnaise is a mixture of eggs, oil and seasonings and has higher fat content. Salad dressing is made from a starch thickener, vinegar, eggs and sweetener. For sandwich spreads, use the two interchangeably. But in hot or cooked dishes use only mayonnaise, unless recipe was specifically developed for salad dressing.

Tip of the week: As a gift alternative to sweet treats, make a hearty beef casserole or minestrone. Deliver hot and ready to eat. Be sure to include recipe and storage instructions.

More to horse racing than meets the eye

Sports Editor

I am not a knowledgeable horse racing fan. But with new sports writer Ruth Cochran around, I am learning more about the sport.

I always thought you get a good breed of horse, teach it to run as fast as it can, stick it on a track and win lots of money.

Ruth, an avid horse racing fan, tells me there's a lot that separates the good horses from the great ones. Such factors as different methods used by trainers, how the jockey handles the horse and even the temperament of the animal.

Steve's stuff

Just like a human, if a horse doesn't feel like running that particular day, it won't run a fast time.

I got a chance to review the Preakness Stakes last week, and even somebody who knows little about the sport, had to appreciate the sport after seeing that race.

Just like two sprinters barreling down to the finish line, Sunday Silence and Easy Goer, staged the best race of Preakness history.

They thundered through the stretch together, a blend of colors, the chestnut Easy Goer on the rail, the jet black Sunday Silence alongside. They ran side by side, forever it seemed, matching stride for stride as if tied together by a tether.

Then, if for only an instant, it seemed as if Easy Goer took a moment to glance to his right and steal a peek at Sunday Silence. It was as if the prematurely crowned wonder horse was looking at the ugly duckling and thinking to himself, 'What? You again?'

Yes. Again.

They had finished 1-2 in the Kentucky Derby on a cold, wet day, along a muddy Churchill Downs track that obviously did not suit Easy Goer. Two weeks later, the surface came up bone dry and lightning fast at Pimlico for the Preakness.

And they finished 1-2 again.

When all this racing started, the racing experts tabbed Easy Goer the horse to beat. If there was going to be a Triple Crown winner in the 80's this was the horse. Easy Goer was another wonder horse.

How do you figure out Sunday Silence though?

The experts say he is not a strikingly handsome horse with the regal bearing of say a Secretariat or Affirmed.

He does not turn heads or dominate races in the manner of Seattle Slew or Citation.

All Sunday Silence does is win.

Now The gangly colt sits on the threshold of the first Triple Crown in 11 years. Standing in the way is the Belmont Stakes two weeks away, and of course a revenge-minded easy Goer.

It seems Sunday Silence was the Rodney Dangerfield of the track — no respect. Arthur Hancock III, co-owner of Sunday Silence felt so.

'I have a question for you,' Hancock addressed the media after the Preakness win. 'Was it too dry today? Was it too moist? Was it too windy? Was it too warm?'

His message was clear. Please, no more excuses. It's time to give Sunday Silence some credit.

'Easy Goer is a great horse,' Hancock said. 'But we've got a great horse, too. He deserves respect. We're proud of him.'

And even an upstart racing fan like me is proud of Sunday Silence. The Colt reminds me of an overachiever, one of those who reaches down and gets that little surge when the going gets tough.

One thing for sure, I'll be in watching the Belmont Stakes. I never knew horse racing could be so good.

Pistons back on win track

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons weren't about to get caught with their guards down twice.

Detroit's backcourt trio of Isiah Thomas, Joe Dumars and Vinnie Johnson, who scored only 27 points on 11-for-45 shooting in the first game, combined for 69 points in Game 2 of the Eastern Conference finals as Detroit beat the Chicago Bulls 100-91.

The win evened the best-of-7 series at 1-1.

"Guards are our strength," center Bill Laimbeer said. "When they score big, we usually win the game. Our coach says, 'Run faster, jump higher, shoot straighter and you'll win.' Tonight, they just hit their shots, it's that simple."

The series now shifts to Chicago for Games 3 and 4 Saturday and Monday — and the Pistons, who were 26-15 on the road during the regular season, can hardly wait. Detroit has won its last five visits to Chicago Stadium.

"I think now the pressure's on them," said Johnson, a reserve who scored 13 of his 16 points in the second quarter. "They have the home-court advantage and they're going to have to hold it."

The Pistons earned the home-court advantage throughout the playoffs by virtue of their NBA-best 63-19 record, but the Bulls took it away with a 94-88 victory in Game 1.

The Pistons, who had been idle for five days after sweeping Milwaukee in the second round, were sluggish in that first game — especially Johnson, Thomas and Dumars.

In Game 2, the three guards scored 24 points on free throws alone.

"They were driving the ball to

Lakers win one with defense

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers usually win with their high-powered offense. But teams don't win back-to-back NBA titles by being one-dimensional.

The Lakers showed what they can do on defense Tuesday night, holding Phoenix to 14 field goals in 43 attempts during the second half of a 101-95 victory over the Suns.

The win gave Los Angeles a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals and was the ninth in as many playoff games for the two-time defending NBA champions, equaling the playoff record for consecutive victories they set seven years ago.

It was also the 14th win in a row for the Lakers, including the regular season, and their 11th straight playoff victory dating back to last year.

The Lakers went ahead for good by outscoring the Suns 30-12 over a span of 12:20 in the second half, turning a 68-60 deficit into a 90-80 lead with 4:35 remaining.

"James Worthy and the double-team was the difference in this game," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "We dug it out. It was a case of staying with the defense, playing hard. They missed a lot of shots but a lot were contested."

Worthy scored 12 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, but Riley was referring to the defensive job Worthy did on the Suns' Tom Chambers, who was just 8-for-23 from the floor.

"You have to give their defense the credit," Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "We shot poorly, but they deserve the credit for a lot of our turnovers."

"Their jump-switching worked well, we just didn't handle it. They forced us way out and it seemed we were taking a lot of shots as the 24-second clock ran down."

The series shifts to Phoenix for Games 3 and 4 Friday night and Sunday afternoon. The Suns beat the Lakers in all three regular-season meetings on their home floor. Phoenix has lost 19 straight games at the Forum dating to 1984.

"Nothing's changed in this series," Fitzsimmons said. "We still have to win one in the Forum and take care of our home turf. Tonight, L.A. took care of its home turf."

Byron Scott led the Lakers with 30 points, Magic Johnson had 22 points, 14 assists and nine rebounds and Orlando Woolridge came off the bench to get 10 points, five rebounds and three blocked shots for Los Angeles.

"Woolridge gave us life when we were struggling," Riley said. "Without him, we don't win."

Kevin Johnson led Phoenix with 22 points and 10 assists, but also had 10 turnovers and scored only four points in the second half. Chambers had 21 points and 10 rebounds and Dan Majerle and Jeff Hornacek each had 16 points.

"I expended myself in the first half and I just didn't have my usual energy in the second half," Kevin Johnson said. "(Los Angeles reserve Michael) Cooper pressured me during the whole second half. I just didn't have my normal level of energy."

Cooper kept the Suns' point guard from getting the ball on five consecutive Phoenix possessions during the fourth quarter.

"Michael Cooper made a commitment to play defense tonight," Riley said. "He is the greatest denial player I've ever seen. By that, I mean not letting a certain player get the ball."

When asked if he was aware of what he did to Kevin Johnson,

Cooper said, "My mind is to realize it, but my feet don't like hell. I'm going home to them."

Eddie Johnson, voted the NBA's best Sixth Man, was held to 10 points and was just 2-for-11 at the field.

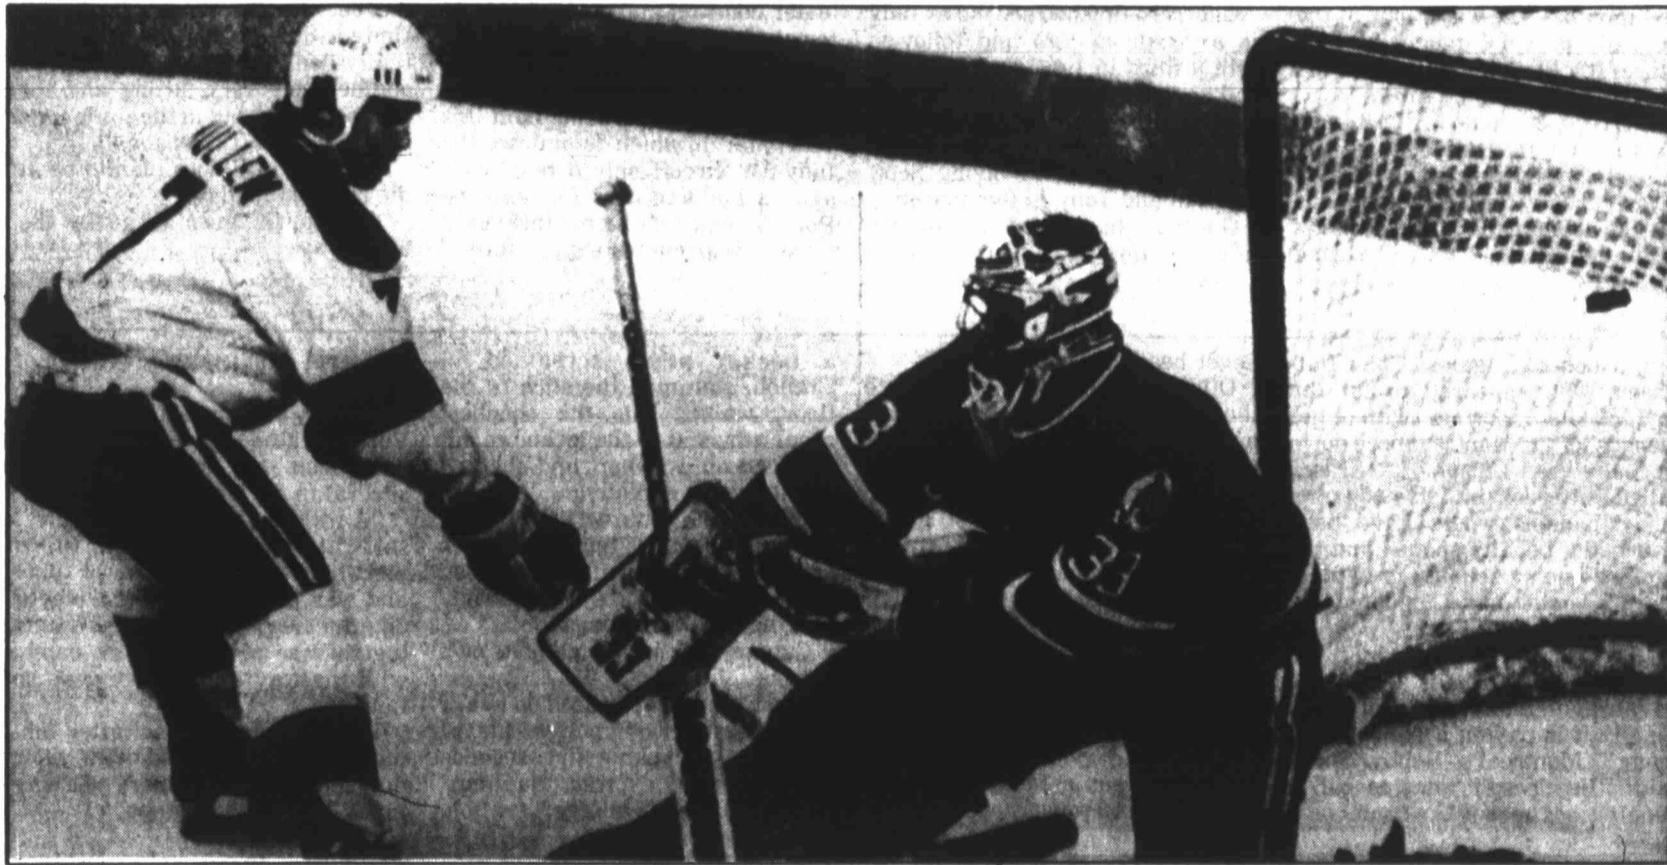

"It wasn't defense on my part," Johnson, he just missed a few shots," Fitzsimmons said.

A three-point play by Johnson with 5:09 remaining in the quarter gave the Suns a 90-88 lead, but the Lakers scored 13 points in the third quarter to tie the Phoenix lead to 90-90.

With Majerle leading the Suns, the Suns battled back to a 93-90 lead with 1:30 remaining. But Worthy made a layup with 25 seconds remaining and Scott sank three free throws in the final 15 seconds to keep the Lakers on top.

Neither team led by more than six points until a jump shot by Hornacek with 6:53 left in the quarter capped an 8-0 run that put the Suns ahead 65-57.

When asked if he was aware of what he did to Kevin Johnson, Flames to fall behind 3-2 in the NHL championship series? Who are those guys wearing bleu, blanc et rouge, anyway?

Montreal captain Bob Gainey says that, yes, they're the Canadiens. And despite the 23 banners hanging from the Montreal Forum rafters, the kings of hockey have won only one title this decade.

"Contrary to what people think," Gainey said, "we don't win it every year."

The Flames built a 3-1 first-period lead on goals by Joel Otto, Joe Mullen and Al MacInnis and held on to move within one game of doing what no Canadiens opponent has ever done: Carry the Cup in triumph around the Forum ice.

Game 6 is Thursday night. "Maybe the pressure is off us," Calgary's Doug Gilmour said, "but we need to win it there. We can't think about coming back here" for Sunday's possible seventh game.

That's all Montreal has left to think about. But it's not the only thing on the Canadiens' minds.

Unbeaten hoopsters will do battle tonight

Tonight at 7 the Herald and Wal-Mart hoopsters will put their undefeated records on the line when they square off in a benefit basketball game at Steer Gym.

Admission is $1 per person, and children under six get in free. The proceeds will go to the Children's Miracle Network.

The Herald is 1-0 in benefit play. In its first appearance in '86, the Herald downed the Big Spring Police Department 62-47. In its first benefit game last month, Wal-Mart beat the police department 52-46.

Both Herald coach Marcellino Chavez and Wal-Mart mentor Richard Hilario are expecting wins from their teams. Chavez and the Herald might be hampered by lack of practice time however.

"We haven't had any practices, but we feel we're in pretty good shape and can take on Wal-Mart," said Chavez. "We did need to practice though, but we're athletic enough to give them a good game."

"From what I've heard they (Wal-Mart) like to drive to the basket. Our game plan is to stop their drives and make them beat us with the outside shooting. We're going to stop them inside. I don't want to take them by no less than 10 points," Chavez concluded.

"It should be lots of fun," said Hilario. "We've had two practices and we're in pretty good shape. Our game plan is to run and gun. Out first two called Phi Slamma Jamma depends on the team that goes our way, we'll play at least 12."

Sports Briefs

BASKETBALL

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cotton Fitzsimmons, who led the Phoenix Suns to their best season in the franchise 21-year history, was named The Sporting News' NBA Coach of the Year.

Fitzsimmons, who also won the award in 1978-79 when he was with Kansas City, received eight votes in a poll of 18 NBA coaches. Detroit's Chuck Daly was second with four votes.

HOCKEY

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bruce McNall, who masterminded the trade that brought Wayne Gretzky to the Los Angeles Kings, was named The Sporting News' NHL Executive of the Year and Pat Burns of the Montreal Canadiens was named Coach of the Year.

McNall received 12 of 30 votes cast by NHL executives. Runners-up were Vancouver's Pat Quinn and Montreal's Serge Savard, who each received four votes. Burns received 10 of 20 votes cast by his peers. Vancouver's Bob McCammon was second with five votes.

TENNIS

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Tim Mayotte and Aaron Krickstein rallied to lead the United States to a 3-0 sweep of Switzerland at the World Team Cup tournament.

Mayotte overcame Jakob Hlasek 3-6, 6-4, 6-1. Krickstein outlasted Claudio Mezzadri 5-7, 6-4, 6-0 and the doubles partners of Rick Leach and Jim Pugh beat Hlasek and Heinz Guenthardt 6-3, 6-4.

West Germany, using the same team that won the Davis Cup last season, beat Spain 2-1 when Boris Becker and Eric Jelen beat Javier Sanchez and Sergio Casal 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Becker, ranked second in the world, beat Sanchez 6-3, 6-3 while Jordi Arrese upset West Germany's Carl Uwe-Steeb 6-3, 6-3.

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Thierry Tulasne of France ousted second-seeded Marcelo Filippini of Uruguay 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 in the City of Florence men's international tournament.

Filippini, who turned an ankle on match point of the first set, became the only one of the top eight seeds not to advance to the second round.

Sixth-seeded Horacio de la Pena of Argentina downed Goran Pirpic of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-2 and eighth-seeded Spaniard Fernando Luna defeated Raul Viver of Ecuador 6-0, 6-4.

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — Patricia Tarabini of Argentina upset top-seeded Katerina Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-1, 6-3 in the first round of the Strasbourg Open tournament.

No. 2 Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia beat Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union 6-3, 6-4; No. 4 Bettina Fulco of Argentina downed Regina Krajcovicova 6-4, 2-6, 6-0; No. 6 Judith Wiesner of Austria defeated Karine Schimper of South Africa 6-4, 6-4; and No. 7 American Gretchen Magers overcame Neige Dias of Brazil 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated qualifier Sabine Hack of West Germany 6-3, 7-6 (8-6) in the first round of the Geneva European Open women's tournament.

Second-seeded Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union and No. 7 Sandra Cecchini of Italy were upset, Zvereva losing 6-3, 7-6 (6-3) to American Shaun Stafford and Cecchini to Karin Kschwendt of Luxembourg 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Barbara Paulus of Austria, the defending champion, beat South Africa's Dinky Van Rensburg 6-2, 6-1.

PARIS (AP) — John McEnroe, whose recurring back problems forced his withdrawal from the Italian Open earlier this month, is still suffering pain and will not play in the French Open, which begins next week, an official announced.

GOLF

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Canada's Dave Barr and Dawn Coe beat Tommy Tomlinaga and Chihiro Nakajima on the first hole of sudden death to win the inaugural International mixed team tournament.

The Canadian duo, fourth after the first round, won the 36-hole tournament when Nakajima got into trouble with her tee shot in the playoff and finished with a bogey while the other three players all carded pars.

The U.S. team of Craig Stadler and Julie Inkster, who led after the first round, finished at 297 as Inkster started the day with four straight bogeys and never recovered, finishing with an 84 — 10 over par from the women's tees.

Pitcher knows how to handle bats

By The Associated Press
Cincinnati reliever Rob Dibble found an unusual way to take Terry Pendleton's dangerous bat out of the St. Louis Cardinals' lineup.

Umpire Joe West immediately ejected Dibble, who faces a minimum $200 fine for his actions. John Franco saved Danny Jackson's victory as the Reds beat the Cardinals 6-4.

"I'd like to make a public apology to the people of Cincinnati, to my team, to the Cardinals, to the umpires," Dibble said. "I should never have lost my composure like that. I embarrassed myself, my family and my team. Sometimes I'm overcompetitive. This was one of those times."

But Manager Pete Rose wasn't smiling about his hard-throwing reliever's antics in the eighth.

Jackson, 3-7, has just two victories since opening day — both against the Cardinals, who are winless in four games against the Reds this season.

The left-hander, who won 23 games last season, pitched five shutout innings before a three-run rally chased him in the sixth. He also had a two-run single.

The Reds scored six runs in two-plus innings off rookie Matt Kinzer, who got his first major-league loss in his first start. The right-hander had made two scoreless relief appearances since being called up from Class AAA Louisville on May 16, when reliever Todd Worrel went on the disabled list.

Padres 3, Mets 2
Eric Show scattered nine hits in 8 2-3 innings for his first victory over New York in four years as San Diego beat the Mets and Dwight Gooden at Jack Murphy Stadium. Show had been 0-7 in 11 previous starts against the Mets since 1985.

It had also been four years since the Padres beat Gooden, who had a six-game winning streak against San Diego snapped.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 1
Ex-Dodger Ken Howell allowed three hits in eight innings and Mike Schmidt drove in two runs as visiting Philadelphia beat Los Angeles.

Howell, 5-2, struck out six and walked two and Steve Bedrosian got the last three outs for his fifth save.

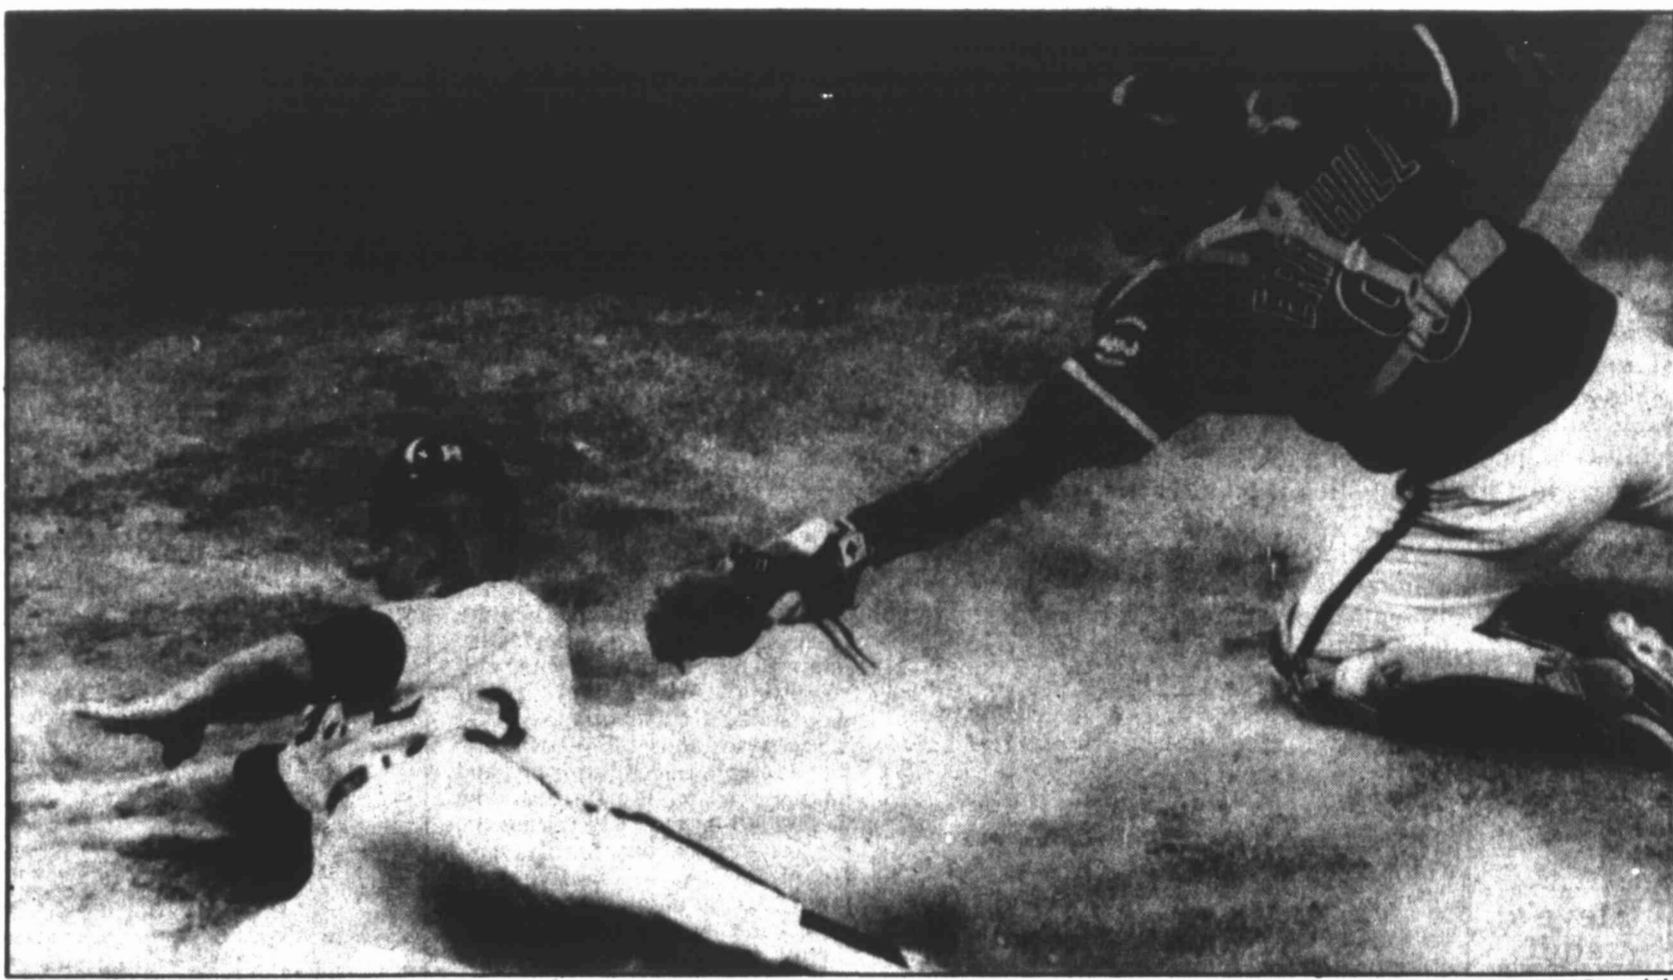

Howell, who beat Los Angeles 3-0 on May 12 in Philadelphia, went from the Dodgers to Baltimore in the Eddie Murray trade last December and was dealt to the Phillies four days later for outfielder Phil Bradley.

Giants 4, Expos 2
Rick Reuschel became the NL's first eight-game winner this season and Will Clark hit a two-run homer, leading San Francisco past Montreal at Candlestick Park.

Reuschel, 8-2, allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings and gave up one earned run. He has allowed just three earned runs in his last 47 innings for an ERA of 0.57 over the last month, and 2.06 for the season. Mike LaCoss got the last four outs for his fifth save.

Pirates 5, Braves 2
John Smiley pitched an eight-hitter and Glenn Wilson hit a two-run homer as Pittsburgh sent Atlanta to its eighth loss in 10 games.

HOUSTON — Houston Astros Glenn Davis (27) fades away from Chicago Cubs catcher Damon Barryhill (9) and hooks home plate with his toe to score in the sixth inning Tuesday night in the Astrodome. Davis scored from third base on a sacrifice fly. The Cubs won the game 5-4.

Shawon Dunston hit a two-run homer and Scott Sanderson won his fourth straight decision as Chicago beat Houston in the Astrodome, moving into first place by one game over the Mets in the NL East.

Sanderson, 5-2, pitched 5 1-3 innings and allowed four runs on six hits. Calvin Schiraldi pitched three innings for his fourth save.

Chicago took a 2-0 lead off Mike Scott, 6-3, in the second when Dwight Smith singled and Dunston hit his first home run of the season.

Ryan wins game; Bo gets revenge

By The Associated Press
Even as Nolan Ryan beat the Kansas City Royals, Bo Jackson started to get even.

Ryan improved his record against Kansas City to 22-11 as Texas took a 10-0 lead in the fourth inning and hung on for a 10-8 victory over the Royals Tuesday night.

Bo Jackson was upset with the loss and didn't want to talk about the homer.

"I wasn't throwing very well," said Ryan, 5-2, who struck out six to increase his major league-leading total to 79. "I lost the groove and never recovered."

In other games, Toronto beat Minnesota 2-1, Detroit beat Cleveland 7-2, Boston beat Seattle 6-5, Baltimore beat Chicago 9-3 and Milwaukee beat Oakland 9-1. California's game at New York was postponed by rain.

He got Tony Fernandez to foul out before Gruber's fly to short right field hit Moses' glove, bounced off his chest and rolled toward the infield. Bell followed with a fly to deep right-center field.

Shane Rawley pitched two-hit ball for eight innings before Juan Berenguer, 2-2, relieved to start the ninth.

Indy driver on the outside looking in INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Before and after Sunday's Indianapolis 500, Roberto Guerrero will help with Spanish radio broadcasts. During the race, he will watch in frustration from one of the luxury suites along the main straightaway.

Otto's goal, only 28 seconds into the game, came on a rebound of his own shot after Montreal's Rick Green misplayed the puck. The rebound bounced off Otto's chest and shoulder and hopped past goalie Patrick Roy.

"That is a bit hard to take," Montreal coach Pat Burns said. "The guy had both skates in the crease. If you look at the video, you can see both his skates right in the crease."

When Burns wasn't playing Capt. Video, he was acting like Dr. Demento.

After the game, he walked out of Montreal's dressing room, grabbed a hockey stick, screamed in French, slammed the stick to the floor, walked into the coaches' room adjacent to the locker room, pounded on a locker, and shouted more French expletives.

"That's the game we have to win, no doubt about it," Burns said later after calming down. "We played our best game of the series. They had the breaks and we didn't."

The Flames capitalized on two of three first-period power plays; Mullen's goal came five seconds after a penalty expired, MacInnis' during a man-advantage situation.

Guerrero finished second at Indy as a rookie in 1984 and followed with a third in 1985, fourth in 1986 and second again in 1987. But he was eliminated from last year's race when he was caught up in a first-turn incident involving Scott Brayton and Tony Bettenhausen.

Guerrero had hoped to secure a ride for this May with another team. But, Alfa-Romeo said he was under contract and could not drive for anyone else.

When the team is ready, Guerrero will be driving one of the few new March chassis being built this year. March, which dominated the Indy-car circuit only a few years ago, is building cars for only the Porsche and Alfa teams this year.

"We've been testing in Italy,"

Guerrero, who began testing the car for the first time in the United States this month. "We really don't have a reference. The engine feels very strong and the car feels good, but at the same time you could be off the pace."

NFL seeking new commissioner

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Football fans may learn this week whether the hunt for Pete Rozelle's successor will be a long or short one.

The 28 owners gather today and Thursday to hear the report of the six-member search committee appointed in March to find a new commissioner after Rozelle's surprise announcement that he will step down after 29 years.

"There won't be a new commissioner chosen here," says committee member Art Modell of the Cleveland Browns. "What we do hope to do is get the list down to a manageable number and set the ground rules for the selection."

By almost all accounts, there are currently about a dozen candidates, who are being screened by an executive search firm, Heidrich and Struggles.

By almost all accounts, at the top is Jack Kemp, the former quarterback and congressman and currently the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Kemp, probably the only potential candidate who could almost surely get the 19 votes needed on the first ballot, has said he wants to stay in his cabinet position, although there are indications he could be coaxed into taking the job.

Right behind are Jim Finks, president of the New Orleans Saints, and Paul Tagliabue, a partner in the Washington law firm of Covington and Burling.

Finks, 61, is one of the few team officials who has managed to make few enemies. The 48-year-old Tagliabue, a former Georgetown basketball player, has been the NFL's Washington counsel since 1980 and the point man on several major court cases, including the current antitrust suit filed by the players' union.

Then come a group of dark horses that reportedly include former Democratic National chairman Paul Kirk; Pete Dawkins, the former Army football star and later a general; Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, and Robert Mulcahy, chairman of the New Jersey Meadowlands Commission who lured the Giants and Jets from New York to New Jersey.

Mulcahy could be a dark horse — but so was Rozelle.

Rozelle, then the 33-year-old general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, was chosen as commissioner after four days of deliberations and said recently he probably got the job because he wasn't known well enough around the league to have made enemies.

These are normally docile meetings, a get-together for cleaning up items like roster size and other items left over from the year's principle sessions in March.

Other than the discussion of the commissioner selection, the most pressing new business is the selection of a site for the 26th Super Bowl. It will be held in the north in 1992 with Seattle, Indianapolis, Pontiac, Mich. and Minneapolis the major contenders.

Indianapolis was thought to have the inside track, largely because the Hoosier Dome is the facility best able to house that event and the city has played host to a variety of major events recently, including the 1987 Pan American Games.

But some owners are worried about the costs of the Super Bowl party there and even more are irritated at Robert Irsay, owner of the Colts, for paying $3 million over six years to his first-round draft pick, wide receiver Andre Rison.

Rison was the 22nd choice in the draft and the first first-rounder other than top pick Troy Aikman to sign. His salary is 27 percent higher than what last year's 22nd pick got and club officials believe it could set an inflationary standard for other rookies.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion of the new international league, which is now the World American Football League — a name that will almost surely lead it to become known as "The Waffle."

Tex Schramm, the former president of the Dallas Cowboys and the WAFL's new president, will report on progress to the owners.

Schramm said Tuesday that New York is the only definite site for a franchise "because the networks want it."

He said the other sites prominently mentioned — Mexico City, Montreal, Chicago and at least three in Europe — London, Milan, and Frankfurt — were likely in what he said would be a 12-team league with six foreign teams and six in the United States.

The goal is to begin play next spring.

"I think we're on target," Schramm says. "That's our goal and I think we can meet it."

Rose investigation has many loose ends

CINCINNATI (AP) — Federal prosecutors have joined Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti in commending the cooperation of Ronald Peters, the restaurateur who claims to have taken bets on behalf of Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose.

The U.S. Attorney's office is recommending leniency for Peters in return for his "substantial assistance" to federal authorities. Peters is awaiting sentencing on cocaine trafficking and tax-evasion charges.

Giamatti also wrote a letter of recommendation last month for Peters, who has cooperated with baseball's investigation into Rose's alleged gambling. Giamatti's letter drew an angry response from a federal judge, who accused the commissioner of having a vendetta against Rose.

That judge, Carl B. Rubin, later withdrew from the case. His replacement, U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel, is waiting for completion of a pre-sentence investigation before setting a sentencing date for Peters, Spiegel's office said Tuesday.

During a conference last month with Rubin, Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert C. Brichler said Peters had indicated to investigators that he took bets from Rose amounting to perhaps more than $1 million over a two-year period.

One of those identified as running Rose's bets to Peters is telling his story to Penthouse magazine, an author said Tuesday.

Paul G. Janszen, a bodybuilder serving a six-month sentence in a halfway house for tax evasion, has been interviewed over the last six weeks by Gerald Posner, the author said Tuesday night.

Posner said in a telephone interview from New York that the story is still being written and researched.

"I have met with Paul Janszen a number of times in Cincinnati and have finished at least a draft of an article I think will be appearing in Penthouse in the next couple of months," Posner said. "I've been asked to write the article by the people at Penthouse."

Posner declined to discuss the substance of his article, but he said his checking of Janszen's claims leads him to believe the bodybuilder is being truthful.

"I have found him so far to be credible," Posner said.

Janszen, a former acquaintance of Rose, has been identified by code in court documents as one of those who ran bets for Rose to Peters. Janszen passed a polygraph examination taken earlier this month at the request of baseball investigators. The Associated Press reported last week.

Peters, 31, has announced as part of a plea agreement that he'll plead guilty to charges of cocaine distribution and making false statements on his 1985 tax return by failing to report $80,000 from gambling and bookmaking.

Peters can be sentenced to up to 20 years in jail and fined $1 million on the cocaine charge. He could face an additional three years in jail and a $250,000 fine on the tax charge. Brichler has indicated Peters probably wouldn't receive more than an 18-month sentence if he cooperated with authorities.

Brichler and U.S. Attorney D. Michael Crites were out of their office Tuesday afternoon and unavailable for comment. Their leniency recommendation says Peters "made a good-faith effort to provide substantial assistance to the government in the investigation and prosecution of another individual." That other individual is not named in the document.

Rose is under investigation by a Cincinnati federal grand jury looking into allegations of tax evasion. Giamatti is reviewing a report on Rose's gambling that could lead to a suspension if there's evidence Rose bet on baseball.

Giamatti was harshly criticized by Rubin for writing an April 18 letter to the judge that said Peters had been "candid, forthright and truthful" with baseball investigator John M. Dowd. The letter said Peters had supplied information about Rose and his associates.

Dowd's 225-page report was sent to Giamatti and Rose this month. Giamatti set a hearing on the matter for June 26.

Names in the news

AUSTIN (AP) — Frank Sinatra, George Burns and Dinah Shore are among celebrities owed money dating back 40 years to the gala opening of Houston's Shamrock Hotel when they were paid for appearances with oil stock.

Other celebrities, or their estates, due money from that opening are Harpo Marx, Gene Kelly, Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen, Tony Martin and Jane Russell, state Treasurer Ann Richards said Monday.

"Of course we're always happy to return money to its rightful owners, but with this group we could open a major Hollywood studio," she said.

WILLIAMS BURNS

Flamboyant oilman Glenn McCarthy, who was said to have been the model for the character played by James Dean in the movie "Giant," opened the luxury hotel in 1949. The hotel folded three years ago, but the shares in Damson Oil Co. have continued to pay dividends, said Bill Cryer, spokesman for Ms. Richards.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A private investigator hired by Hank Williams Jr.'s manager says there is evidence to support the singer's claim that someone slipped him drugs before a May 6 concert he failed to complete.

During the concert the singer Carthy, failed to finish a single song and stumbled offstage after 20 minutes. Williams refunded $65,000 to the city of Baton Rouge, La.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Connie Sellecca, opera's Beverly Sills, singer Jessi Colter, lyricist Hal David, philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson, singer Tom T. Hall, coach K.C. Jones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not reach out to the wrong people in your eagerness to expand your social life. Probe deeper. A financial decision is required. Insist on having all the facts and figures today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your winning personality nets you a variety of business opportunities. Seek companionship rather than romance this evening. Entertaining at home is more fun and less expensive than going out. Cook something special.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Contact people for social as well as business reasons. A timely letter or phone call will help you boost your income. Parents prove to be more savvy than you gave them credit for being.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This might be the right time for fulfilling your dream of having a house in the country. A relationship that seems shaky is probably not right for you. Look around.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A trip or visitor is the key to making a deal that will help you get rid of some lebt. Guard against a tendency to be accident-prone. Protecting your wealth is good business. Do not let yourself get run-down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You will accomplish more by working behind the scenes. Try to follow through on an early afternoon suggestion. Do not allow someone's muddled financial idea to sway you. Get the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stay alert and be prepared to deal with unexpected emergencies. You may have to make a tough decision involving a key relationship. A lunch date could spell romance for you. Trust your instincts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Others may be difficult to deal with today. Clear up important tasks before launching a new, joint project. Try to keep things on the home front on an even keel! Avoid arguing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Steer clear of far-fetched financial proposals involving your money. An old grievance is likely to resurface. You handle the situation with style! Do not gloss over your differences with loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Weigh all the pros and cons before making an important decision. A bonus or sudden raise can make a dream vacation come true. Consult loved ones before finalizing travel plans. Welcome their suggestions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An influential person recognizes your effort and painstaking attention to detail. Good financial luck puts a smile on your face. Enjoy a special evening with your loved ones. Romance thrives on tenderness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen to partner's ideas, but do not feel that you must always agree. A financial deal becomes more profitable. Welcome good news regarding travel or a job. Your ESP is very powerful.

CRMWD meeting set

The Colorado River Municipal Water District board of directors meeting will take place Wednesday, May 31 at 10:30 a.m.

President John L. Taylor cancelled the May 17 meeting due to the death of Virginia Ivie, mother of CRMWD General Manager Owen H. Ivie.

Taylor said that the agenda will be the same. Meetings of the personnel and long range planning committee have been set for 9 a.m. in advance of the board session at district headquarters in Big Spring.

Cheyenne Romine, daughter of Jackie and Toby Romine of Grady, won third place in All-Around competition at a recent YWCA State Gymnastic meet in San Angelo.

CRMWD income

A repetition of the first quarter of modest income increases and substantial expense underruns was repeated in April for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

As a result net income of $2,035,013 was up 13.4 percent over budget projections for the four months.

Revenues of 3,965,675 were up $112,751 or 2.90 percent over budget estimates. Most of the income, or $3,928,449 was from water sales. Expenses for the four months which amounted to $1,943,364, were $110,687 less than projections, or 5.39 percent. Electric energy for pumping totaled $1,001,062, or $65,651 less than estimated, a margin of 6.15 percent less.

Through April, water sales amounted to 4,742,278,750, just 21 million gallons more than the same time a year ago. Water in reserve amounted to 201,310 ac. ft., or 37.72 percent of capacity. Lake Spence had 205,300 ac. ft. and Lake Thomas 56,010 ac. ft. or 27.5 percent.

Stanton band award

The Stanton band won Sweepstakes honors for the second consecutive year earlier this month.

The band was awarded the University Interscholastic League's Sweepstakes Award for having earned Division I's in marching, concert and sight reading competition.

A panel of judges made the selections

HERALD STAFF REPORT

More than 300 people, including representatives from all of the Big Spring schools, turned out Saturday for the Students Against Driving Drunk and Just Say No Anti-Drug Rally.

The rally, held in the Big Spring Mall parking lot, was organized to raise the consciousness of young people about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, said Gay Herren, chairperson for the event.

"The more fun they can have at events like this, the more of an impact it will make on them," said Herren, a library aide at Runnels Junior High School who organized the school's SADD chapter.

Cheerleaders and band members from Big Spring High School, Runnels and Goliad Middle School performed at the event as did the Drugbusters dance team and members of the high school and junior high SADD chapters.

Speakers included Drew Bavin of the Big Spring Police Department who spoke on the recently organized Drug and Alcohol Network Group — a network of community leaders designed to mobilize local resources to fight drug abuse among young people.

"What I want for you to see, and understand when you see it is what (the first letters of the words) Drug and Alcohol Network Group spell," Bavin said. "All you have to remember is this word here," he said turning around and displaying the back of his shirt, which read, "DANG."

Bavin said the group would be attending training seminars and working in the schools next year.

Herren said the turnout for the rally, held in Saturday's sweltering heat, "was great."

"I've been waiting for this to happen for a long time," she said, adding she wants to make it an annual event.

"We wanted to bring the community together to show the kids we're all in this together. It's going to take all of us working together to fight this."

QUICK PROFILE

George and Mary Leatham have owned and operated G&M Garage, a full service auto repair shop, since 1974. George is a "Yankee by birth, a Texan by choice," and Mary grew up in Coahoma. Their children are Sydney, 6, and Taylor, 4.

WHAT ARE YOUR HOBBIES?

George enjoys skeet and trap shooting. Mary says her hobby now is "raising children."

WHAT DO YOU DO TO KEEP IN SHAPE?

Mary walks Scenic Mountain as often as possible to keep in shape, usually in the evenings. George installed a home gym for his fitness routine, but confesses his workouts have slackened off.

WHO IS A PERSON YOU ADMIRE?

George admires Ted Turner — "He's aggressive!" Mary admires their parents — Jack and Wanda Pipes, and Edie Leatham and the late George Leatham, Sr.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE TELEVISION SHOW?

The Leatham family regularly watches "Roseanne," "60 Minutes," and all the news shows.

DO YOU HAVE ANY PETS?

The family has a dog named "Two Bits"; a cat called "Pepper"; and a hamster named "Whiskers" — plus a fish which is nameless.

WHAT MAGAZINES DO YOU SUBSCRIBE TO?

The Leathams read Redbook, Good Housekeeping, and skeet and trap shooting publications.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE LEISURE THING TO DO IN BIG SPRING?

Mary enjoys working in the yard or taking walks with the kids — "and sometimes I like to just lay around and read." George relaxes on the shooting range at the Gun Club.

WHAT DID YOU DO ON YOUR LAST VACATION?

The family drove to San Antonio to visit Sea World and the Zoo.

WHAT ARE YOUR FUTURE GOALS?

Mary would like to be able to spend more leisure time with her family. And George says he hopes to "shoot a 100 straight in trap."

'Heatwave' loves Laredo temperature

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

The most content weatherman I know is Richard Berler. He is a television weatherman in Laredo. His nickname is "Heatwave."

"When I was studying meteorology at Florida State all the meteorology kids noticed I liked it hotter and more humid than in Tallahassee. They gave me the name 'Heatwave' and it kinda stuck," he says.

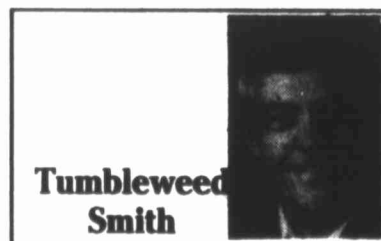

He likes hot weather. Therefore, he likes Laredo. Sound logic.

Laredo is one of the hottest places in Texas. One of the very hottest, according to Heatwave.

"If you measure the hottest places by the number of days that exceed 100 degrees, Presidio comes out the hottest spot. That city averages about 83 days over 100 a year."

Laredo averages only 54. But in 1988 Laredo had 75 days over 100.

"By a measurement of days that exceed 90 degrees, it's a lot closer," comments Heatwave. "Presidio averages 178 days a year. Rio Grande City averages 179. Zapata 177. Laredo averages 171, but last year we had 194 days over 90 degrees."

Tumbleweed Smith

"If you measure by the average temperature for the whole year combined, averaging the daily highs and lows, Laredo and Weslaco tie for the lead with an average for the whole year of about 74 degrees."

Laredo has produced some of the hottest temperature records in the entire country.

"In January of 1936, Laredo hit 98 degrees, which is the highest ever recorded in the history of the U.S. in January," says Berler.

"One other note. In February of 1986 Laredo had three consecutive days to break 100 degrees, including one day that was 103. That's the only case in the history of the U.S. that a spot in February has broken 100 degrees three days in a row."

Heatwave can spout hot weather statistics all day long without looking at a single record book.

"I like the heat," he says. "I grew up in Westport, Connecticut and used to dream of walking the streets of Laredo at high noon."

He got his start in the weather business in Duluth, Minnesota, which is a little cooler than Laredo. He pursued his dream of going to Laredo and sure enough there was an opening and he came down.

"I feel quite at home here in the heat," says Heatwave. "I love this South Texas brush country."

Laredo and Duluth are at opposite ends of Interstate 35.

"When I left Duluth, I didn't even take a map," says Heatwave. "I just drove until the road ended."

Duluth weather is terrible.

"On one occasion the high temperature for the day was 22 degrees below zero," recalls Heatwave. "That was two in the afternoon. We ended up going down to 38 degrees below zero that night."

He left Duluth nine years ago.

"On May 7th the last year I was there we had a high of 33 degrees with three inches of snow. You're supposed to be having springtime weather by then. How do people live up there?"

Weddings

Hillger-Kingston

Wendi Carol Hillger and W. Greg Kingston, Garden City, were united in marriage May 20, 1989 at a 5 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church, Garden City, with Bro. Herb Wood, pastor of Abilene Baptist Church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Hillger, Garden City.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glen T. Kingston, Garden City.

The couple stood before an arch draped with blue ribbon. The altar was decorated with baskets and bows, and wicker baskets holding sprays of blue, peach and white carnations.

Pianist was Dana Ruth Schafer. Vocalist was Tanya Smith.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown made by her grandmother, Allene Lawson. The satin and rose-point lace gown featured a fitted bodice of lace and satin with a tulle yolk, high lace collar, and tapered sleeves. The full skirt of satin was fashioned with lace cutout appliques on the chapel-length train.

Maid of honor was Winette Hillger, bride's sister.

Bridesmaids were Tavie Murphy, Garden City; Suzy Perkins, Big Spring; and Kimberly Doyle, bridegroom's cousin, Gail.

Best man was Todd Schafer, Garden City.

Groomsmen were Jody Kingston, bridegroom's brother, Dallas; Corky Turner, Garden City.

MRS. WENDI KINGSTON
ty; and Weldon Hillger, bride's brother.

Ringbearer was William Hillger, bride's brother.

Ushers were Termit Kendrick, Big Spring; and TRoy Calverley, Garden City.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted in the reception hall. The bride's three-tiered traditional white wedding cake with white icing was trimmed with a sweet pea border with blue and peach rosebuds and was topped with a Precious Moments bride and bridegroom music box, a gift from Clay Kingston. The bridegroom's horseshoe-shaped chocolate cake with white icing and blue border was topped with a barefoot cowboy riding a stick horse.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Garden City High School and a 1989 graduate of Howard College.

The bridegroom is a 1982 graduate of Garden City High School and a 1988 graduate of Texas Tech University.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will make their home in Midland.

Glendening-Paulk

Tracy Glendening and Bill Paulk were united in marriage April 21, 1989 at Tarzan Baptist Church, with Rev. Monroe Teeters officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Glendening, Tarzan. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Paulk, Lamesa.

Pianist was Wanda Louder, Tarzan.

Maid of honor was Nola Scarborough, Junction.

Best man was Michael Hatchett, Lamesa.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Klondike High School, and attended Angelo State University.

The bridegroom is a 1986 graduate of Lamesa High School, and attends Howard College.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

MR. AND MRS. BILL PAULK

Anniversary

The Sonny Peaches

Mr. and Mrs. Sonny G. Peach, 2503 Larry Dr., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday at their home.

Hosting the 3 p.m. tea reception were the couple's children.

Peach was born in Lorraine.

Mrs. Peach, the former Loretta Kubena, was born in Paint Rock.

The couple met in 1939 in Big Spring, and were married May 24, 1939, with Justice of the Peace Porter officiating.

The couple has four children: Lynn Hogg, Houston; Sonja Kingston, San Antonio; Sharon Peacock, Midland; and Dixie Hall, San Antonio; and four grandchildren.

During their marriage, the Peaches have lived in Big Spring.

The Peaches, former owners of P&P Electronics, are both retired.

Hobbies and interests include gardening, woodworking and fishing.

Rest after any surgery

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER

Same-day surgery performed without hospitalization requires recuperation time to ensure successful recovery, according to a physician at New York University Medical Center.

"Anyone who is going to undergo anesthesia should know the body needs some time to recuperate from its effects," said Dr. Fred Danziger, associate professor of clinical anesthesiology. "There is no way to speed up this process, even if the shortest-acting drugs available are used in the lowest dose that provides safe and effective anesthesia."

"Most people need 48 hours of rest and relaxation at home before they resume normal activities following day surgery," Danziger said. "It is normal to feel tired and somewhat dizzy after anesthesia. The sensation is not so different from having a bit of a hangover."

Piano students audition

Several local piano students have registered as candidates for membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, teacher division of the American College of Musicians.

The young piano hobbyists, who recently played in the National Piano Playing Auditions, strive for, district, state and national honors that the mother organization will confer according to the number of standard classic, romantic and modern pieces chosen from the masters of piano forte literature each student can creditably perform in the presence of an import examiner of note.

From coast to coast, more than 105,000 enthusiastic piano pupils of the nation participated in the annual national piano-playing event that was conducted in 759 music centers of the country, according to a news release. Participants were certified, given a gold or bronze embossed pin, and a year's membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians and Piano Playing Hobbyists of the World.

Local students who participated are:

- Emilee Beckham's class - Kaci Hooser, Kristy Hooser, Kathy Johnson, Stephanie Kennedy, Stephanie Padilla, Christopher Painter, Christina Perez, Amanda Reagan and Lydia Sprinkle.
- Dolores Lillard's class - Mindi Kesterson, Stephanie Barraza, Erin Schwertner, Jamie Falkner, Jason Froman, Brad Froman, Paige Duncan and Jodi Lelek.
- Marie Louise Barnes' class - Ann Marie Scott, Kimberly Long, Angela Murphy, Gwen Mason, Shane Higgins, Stacy Slaten, Charlotte Walters, Marilyn Corwin and David Gerhart.
- Brenda Bedell's class - Elisha Hubbard, Sterling Cave, Angela Tubb, Kim Middleton, Brandy Bedell and Robin Cave.
- Ann Cheatham's class - Stephanie Park, Jenny Dormier, Stefanie Waggoner and Amanda Armstrong.
- Carol Maule's student - Sheree Webb.
- Sallie Wilson's student - Ryndi Hamby.
- Mildred Harris' students - Krystal Bell, Brooke Burelsmith, Tiffany Wheat, Tracey Machicek, Bridget Machicek, Bonnie Wilde, Amy Hoch, Karla Jones, Kristi Jones, Jenny Phillips, Jamie Glass and Wesley Glass.

How to correct cloudy drinking glasses

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Glasses washed in a dishwasher can be clean, but they may still be cloudy.

Cloudiness is due to build-up, a film of matter on the glass, and etching. To identify the type of cloudiness, try scratching the surface of the glassware with a pin or sharp object.

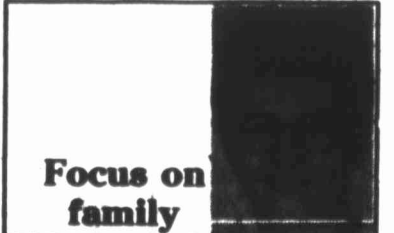

If the pin scratches off some of the cloudiness, film build-up is the problem.

Or drop vinegar on the glass and rub with your finger.

If the surface is clear when it has dried then film build-up is the problem.

If the surface of the glass seems pitted or remains cloudy after rubbing with vinegar, the cause of cloudiness is probably etching. The most common cause of filming is hard water.

Hard water mineral drops dry on the glassware and continue to build up with each dishwashing. Food films can form on glassware and dishes when hard water minerals combine with protein in the residue of milk, soft cooked eggs or rare meat.

Focus on family

Hot water sets these proteins. A hard film build-up can be removed by treating with white vinegar rinse, followed by chlorine bleach, then another white vinegar rinse in a dishwasher cycle.

Commercial products also are available.

Remove all metalware during the process. To prevent hardness filming, use softened water or increase the amount of detergent.

Using a rinse agent may be all that is needed. Food films can be removed by hand washing and drying. The first sign of etching is often an iridescent or "rainbow" appearance on glassware or on the glaze of china.

Poor-quality glassware is not necessarily more likely to etch than fine crystal. The true cause of etching seems to be related to soft water and/or overuse of detergent since the largest component of a dishwasher detergent is polyphosphate, a water softener.

Extremely hot water can speed the etching process. Damage from etching cannot be corrected.

Texas had 188,788 farms in '87 census

Early data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture show that the state had 188,788 farms, 68,792 of which had annual product sales of $10,000 or more.

Land in farms totaled 130,502,792 acres, 85 percent of them in farms with $10,000 or more in sales, the Commerce Department's Census Bureau reported.

The census showed that the state's farmers and ranchers sold $10.54 billion in agricultural products and that farms with $10,000 or more in sales averaged $147,748 per farm.

Other findings: $2.96 billion or 28 percent of total agricultural sales were for crops, while $7.58 billion or 72 percent came from the sale of livestock, poultry and their products.

The agriculture census obtains information on all identified farm and ranch operations in the United States.

'The Letter'

By LOUISE BURGESS

I once knew this family, a husband and wife God gave them three children to brighten their life, but soon a dark tragedy entered their home. The death angel beckoned and the father was gone.

The mother was left with three children to raise and from all of the neighbors came nothing but praise. She took them to church and taught them to pray and God seemed to bless them in his own special way.

The years passed swiftly and the children were grown and one by one they departed the home. The mother was lonely, life wasn't the same and she looked for a letter, but no letter came.

I was the mailman and each day without fail. She'd always be waiting when I delivered the mail. Anticipation and hope I could read on her face and a trace of tears which she couldn't erase.

The long-awaited letter one day finally came and I smiled to myself as I turned down the lane. I gave her the letter and as I turned from the door with a soft little moan she sank down on the floor.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

Kay Gilliam keeps her fingers on ATS Telcom's service information at the computerized control center located at Big Spring's Industrial Park. ATS, which sells, installs and services telephone systems for business application, maintains service offices in several other cities but tracks jobs at the local headquarters. ATS customers enjoy the advantage of local 24-hour service by radio-dispatched trucks.

Local schools, businesses choose ATS Telcom systems

"Chances are, if you make a phone call in Big Spring — to a school, hospital, bank, the newspaper or city officials — you'll be connected with one of our installations," says Gene Moses, president of ATS Telcom.

ATS, located in the Industrial Park, was founded in 1978 and is one of the oldest telephone equipment companies in West Texas. Their service area includes Midland, Odessa, Abilene, San Angelo, Lubbock and many smaller towns within a 150-mile of these cities. An office will be added in Austin later this year.

"We are installing second generation equipment for some of our original customers," Gene says. He points out the company sells, installs and services commercial firms only, installing a wide range of equipment from small analog key systems to large digital private-branch-exchanges.

"The advantage of ATS-installed equipment is that your company can pick and choose among the systems available," says Gene. You get what you need, to accomplish what you want, within your budget — from basic to highly sophisticated applications. Equipment is purchased from a number of major manufacturers.

An important advantage is that the customer has a local point of call for service. ATS operates service offices in many locales, and maintains a central computerized control center — at the Big Spring location — to keep track of customer information.

"ATS has radio-dispatched service vehicles," explains Gene. "Locally our maximum-response time is two hours — and we try to do better than that. The customer calls us, no matter what the problem is. If contact needs to be made with AT&T or Bell Telephone, then we do that for the customer."

ATS telecommunications systems may be rented, leased, lease-purchased or bought outright. There is a one-year warranty on all installations including parts and labor, and service contracts are available beyond that.

Examples of installations by ATS are Ector County schools; U.S. Agricultural & Soil Conservation Service offices in 20 counties; La Quinta motels in Abilene and San Angelo; Eckhard Drugs throughout West Texas; and more than 100 installations for Texas Highway Department.

"Even though we have about 250 installations in Big Spring, our firm is probably better known in other areas," Gene said.

The installation of private phone systems is still relatively new and not widely understood, according to Gene. Customer education continues to be an important part of their business.

ATS will send a representative to any business to discuss equipment evaluation. Their phone number is 263-8433.

Weddings

Olson-McKnight

Ann S. Olson, 1900 Mittel, and Kirk M. McKnight, 3308 Cornell, were united in marriage May 20, 1989 at a 3 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church, with Rev. Kenneth Patrick officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the late John and Mazie Saunders. Bridegroom's parents are Verma Lee McKnight, Big Spring; and Kermit and Edith McKnight, Clinton, Ark.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with a gold candelabra adorned with a large silk fern with white silk flowers.

Organist was Beth Spence. Vocalists were Cindy Feagins and Rev. Patrick.

The bride, given in marriage by her sons John and Tommy Olson, wore an aqua mist tunic-style, tea-length dress with a drop waist and double-tiered skirt of chiffon, topped with a chantilly lace long sleeve tunic.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk, aqua carnations and gypsophelia, with satin and lace streamers.

Matron of honor was Darla Choate, Big Spring.

Best man was Kermit McKnight, bridegroom's father.

Usher was John Olson, bride's son.

Candlelighter was Tommy Olson, bride's son. After the wedding, a reception was hosted in the church parlor. The bride's table, draped with a white linen cloth with embroidered cutwork, featured a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with hearts sprinkled with the bride's colors of aqua and peach. The cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom surrounded by heart-shaped lace, entwined with ribbons and roses. Silk, aqua and peach spider lilies and button poms served as the centerpiece.

The bride is a graduate of Northside High School, Ft. Smith, Ark.; and a graduate of Baylor University's School of Dental Hygiene. She is employed by Dr. David Rickey.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Coahoma High School and Texas A&M University. He is employed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

McKinley-Carley

Cathie Marie McKinley, 538 Westover Rd. #260, and Mark Kevin Carley, 538 Westover Rd. #230, exchanged wedding vows April 21, 1989 at a 7 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church, with Rev. Kenneth Patrick officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Jerry and Vivian Jones, 2308 Brent.

Bridegroom's parents are Gail and Betty Carley, Wagoner, Okla.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an off-white two-piece pleated suit with lace composed of roses. Starflowers decorated the shoulders and hem.

The bride, a 1977 graduate of Big Spring High School, attended Texas Tech for one year. She is employed by Dr. Cox at Malone and Hogan Clinic.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Eisenhower High School, Lawton, Okla. He is assistant manager of Beall's department store.

MR. AND MRS. MARK CARLEY

The couple, who spent three days in Ruidoso, N.M., will make their home in Big Spring.

Military

Navy Seaman Recruit David M. Williams, grandson of Melvin M. and Mary C. Williams, 1310 Donley, has completed the Basic Storkeeper Course.

While attending the six-week course at the Naval Technical Training Center Meridian, Miss., Williams was taught the technical knowledge and skills for effective performance as a storekeeper aboard ship or at a shore activity. His instructions included the identification of components and functions of the Navy supply system, practical exercises in receipt control, inventory management, material transfer shipments and finance procedures. He was also taught the safety requirements pertaining to the loading and unloading of material, packaging and preservation, and preparation of various types of goods for shipment. A 1986 graduate of Big Spring High School, he joined the Navy in October 1988.

Chandler-Livingston

Marlia Chandler and Danny Livingston, Tulsa, Okla., exchanged wedding vows May 6, 1989 at a 9 a.m. ceremony at Brush Hill Baptist Church, Checotah, Okla., with Tommy Shropshire, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Carl Chandler and Karen Chambers; and the granddaughter of Charles and Marie Tompkins, Big Spring.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. H.O. Livingston, Oklahoma.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with flower arrangements.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white, satin gown, with long, lace sleeves, fashioned with lace and pearls.

She carried a bouquet of peach and white carnations, accented with blueberry and peach ribbon.

Best man was James Hawk.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the home of the bridegroom's parents. A table, draped with a lace cloth, featured a two-tiered wedding cake decorated in peach, white, blueberry and green.

The bride plans to return her school to obtain her diploma. She is employed by Tompkins Oil Co.

MR. AND MRS. DANNY LIVINGSTON

The bridegroom attended school in Oklahoma. He is employed by Charles and Marie Tompkins.

The couple spent their honeymoon in the bridal cabin at Fountain Head Lodge Resort in Lake Eufala, Okla. They also took a cruise on Eufala Lake.

The couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Hyperion Club installs officers

The 1948 Hyperion Club met Thursday for a luncheon at Big Spring Country Club.

Out-going president, Mrs. Robert Moore, presided at the last meeting of the 1988-89 year. Gifts were presented to all out-going officers.

Mrs. Jerry Foresythe installed the 1989-90 officers, they are: Mrs. Jerry Currie, president; Mrs. Dean

Tidbits

By LEA WHITEHEAD Staff Writer

It was quite a Mother's Day celebration for Helen Draper last weekend. One she almost missed.

Because of business matters, she and Bill thought they would not be able to attend graduation activities at Southwest Texas State University to see their son, Kelly, receive his master of arts degree. But at the last minute, the way was cleared, and they joined their other son, David, and his wife Sarah, Midland, for the big event.

Kelly received several honors at the end-of-the-year student banquet, including Most Outstanding Graduate Student of the Year in theater; Most Outstanding Set Design for the play "Female Transport"; and Most Outstanding Costume Design for the production "Beaux Stratagem." Kelly had been costume foreman for the theater department for the past year.

Kelly has taken a summer job as costume foreman for the Oklahoma Shakespearean Festival at Southeast Oklahoma State University, Durant — he will be responsible for design of sets and costumes for seven plays for the festival which will be held in July.

Kelly graduated from Big Spring High School in 1972 and from Howard College in 1975.

It was a case of beginner's luck for Taylor Leatham, 4, son of George and Mary Leatham.

Taylor caught a five-pound fish in a tank near St. Lawrence where George had taken him for his very first fishing trip.

"Taylor was so proud," says Mary. "He helped clean 'his' fish, then planned the menu for a family dinner. He even helped prepare the French fries, and watched while I cooked."

Taylor's sister, Sydney, 6, shared in the catch.

James and Lois Ellison have just returned from a two-week vacation in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

They visited their daughter, Cheryl, and son-in-law, Dennis Coon. The Coons moved to St. Thomas from Pennsylvania last November.

The family shared a picnic on St. John; went deep sea fishing (reeling in an African pompano which even the boat crew had never seen!) and took a glass-bottomed boat to waters so clear you could see 72-feet down (and alas! there was a beer can on the bottom.)

Recent houseguests of August and Phyllis Graumann were longtime friends, Dr. D'Wayne and Myrtle Collins, Manitou Springs, Colo.

The two couples met in Snyder in 1955 and have remained close friends ever since — although they see each other only about once every 10 years.
