VOL: 89 NO: 138 | Pampa, Texas | 50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight near 60, high tomorrow in low 80s. See Page 2 for weather details.

AREA

McLEAN — City council members here adopted an unbalanced general operating budget Thursday night.

General income of $198,088 is expected, but expenditures were budgeted at $224,780.

Assistant City Secretary Toni Bohlar said the gap is due to a budgeted item for seal coating streets in town. That item was included on the chance the city is able to find money for the project, she said.

The council also adopted a tax rate of 39.73 cents per $100 valuation, up from 38 cents last year.

In other action, the council approved an Internet use policy from the local branch of Lovett Memorial Library.

PAMPA — Pampa Economic Development Corporation is to host representatives of Lubbock's International Trade Center on Thursday, Sept. 19.

The center is a division of the Small Business Development Center and offers consulting services for companies who have never exported and services for companies who are experienced exporters. The services are free.

To visit with the representatives, contact PEDC at 665-5553.

PAMPA — Auditions will be held tonight and tomorrow for ACT I's season opener, Sylvia, a play by A.R. Gurney.

The title character is a dog that interferes in the marriage of characters Greg and Kate. The play was recently produced in New York City with actress Sarah Jessica Parker as Sylvia.

Auditions will be held tonight and Saturday from 6-8 p.m. in the ACT I theater in the Pampa Mall. Director is Sandra Keeton.

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — One ticket bought in San Antonio correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The jackpot was worth $12 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 6, 10, 18, 19, 21 and 39.

There were 140 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,403.

There were 8,336 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $84. And there were 149,115 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $4 million.

Iraq: Clinton has plot to kill civilians

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) – Iraq's news media accused President Clinton today of plotting to kill Iraqi civilians as a way of getting re-elected in November.

"America's ethical collapse has reached the point of making an election card out of attacking nations, committing aggression and even military aggression, and killing innocent people," al-Thawra newspaper said.

"It has made the election race be based on who will be able to hit Iraq harder."

People in Baghdad are expecting another strike from Washington – saying the question is not whether the United States will attack, but when.

Rasmia Jaber, a housewife and mother of three, said she was bracing for another airstrike.

"I am buying things that I may need if we are attacked again," she said.

U.S.-Iraqi tensions, already high following an Iraqi raid on a Kurdish safe haven and U.S. cruise missile attacks on Iraq, increased when Iraq fired a missile Wednesday at two U.S. F-16s in the northern no-fly zone. The missiles missed, but the White House pledged to retaliate.

The United States is moving sophisticated weaponry to the region. Four F-117A, a stealth attack bomber, arrived this evening and four more of the radar-evading planes were expected later.

In Washington, Air Force spokesman Maj. Wes Davis said 18 F-16C fighter jets from Moody Air Force Base in Georgia were being dispatched to Saudi Arabia. They had been scheduled to relieve a group of F-16s from Hill Air Force Base in Utah, but the Utah aircraft are being kept in the region, Davis said.

Patriot missiles batteries were also being sent in, but it could be days before they are in position.

A second aircraft carrier, the USS Enterprise, is moving toward the area, but its arrival could also take days, Pentagon officials said.

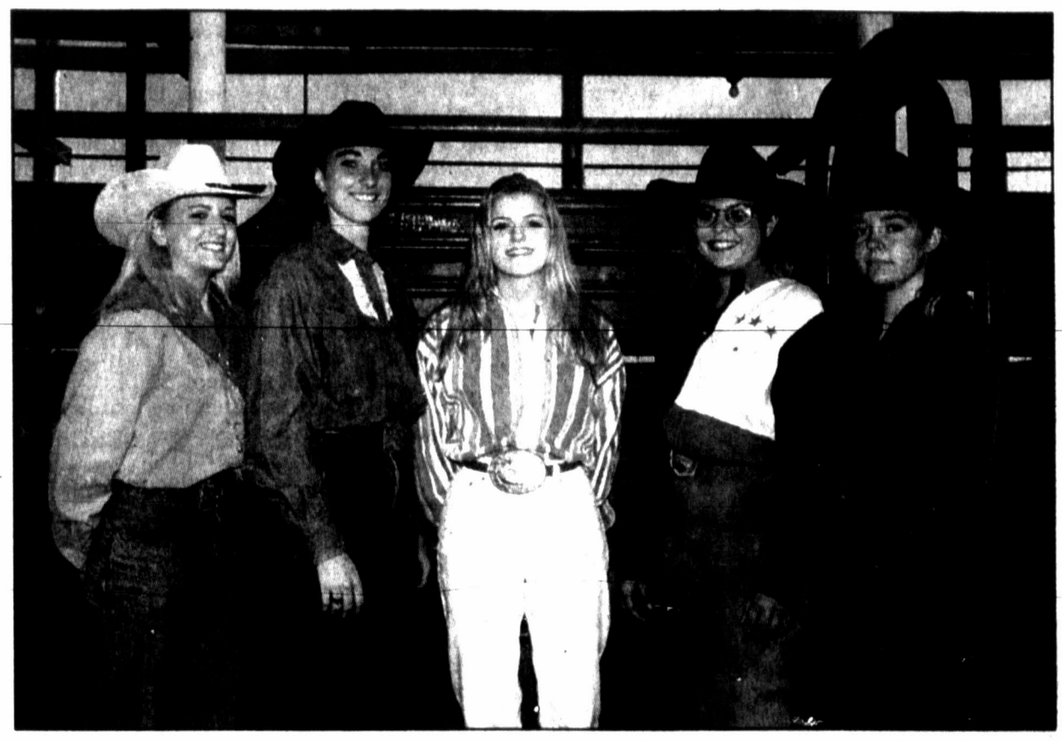

Iraq fired three missiles into a "no-fly zone" for a second straight day Thursday. Unlike Wednesday's attack, they were aimed at a southern area where allied aircraft were not flying, the Pentagon said.

Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein has been pursuing his biggest military venture since the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War by sending troops into the north to help Kurdish allies rout a rival Iranian-backed Kurdish group.

With that victory, Saddam effectively wiped out the Kurdish safe haven that the United States and its allies established at the end of the war, giving him control of northern Iraq for the first time in five years.

The Americans responded to Saddam's moves in Kurdistan by firing cruise missiles on air defense sites in southern Iraq last week. That prompted the Iraqi leader to urge his troops to fire on any U.S. or allied aircraft in the northern and southern no-fly zones.

Rodeo Club queen candidates

The Pampa High School Rodeo Club will be crowning its 1996-1997 queen Saturday afternoon during Tri State High School Rodeo Association action at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena. From left are candidates Leslie Hendricks and Kembra Malberg, current queen Nikki Leggett and candidates Kaysi Douglas and Casey Andreen. The first rodeo performance begins at 10 a.m., followed by team roping at 3 p.m. and the second performance following immediately afterwards. The queen is expected to be crowned after the first performance, around 2 p.m. Admission to the rodeo event is $2 a person.

New Southside Citizens Center director stays busy learning center's operations

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

In July, the board of directors of Southside Senior Citizens Center named Bea Wortham its new administrative director. The appointment was made following the retirement of former director, Mae Williams.

"Since I've been in this position only a couple of months, the routine is still new to me, and I am still learning about the operations every day," said Wortham, who is a former member of the directors' board.

Wortham said she works with nine board members, including President Ed Echols, Vice President Sam Motley, directors Curt Beck, Charles White, Irene Sanders, Charlie Morris, Duane Harp, Dan Morrison and Nathan Hopson. She is responsible for keeping the center open for members and visitors during the morning hours every day, until about 2:30 in the afternoon.

"But on Fridays the center holds its weekly Fun-Nite, offering several choices of activities and entertainment, and food," she said.

The Friday evenings are open to domino players and card players, and some are learning to do line-dancing using a video instruction tape.

"The members have a lot of fun, starting about 7:30 and lasting until they get tired and decide to go home," Wortham said.

On the last Thursday of every month, the center hosts a community covered-dish dinner. Wortham said the tables are set up to serve about 40 people, but often there are more who come because the food and desserts are really good, and people enjoy being together.

Other activities at the center include crafts, such as ceramics and quilting. Until recently, classes were offered in certain crafts, but there are no volunteer teachers available at this time, Wortham said.

The Southside Senior Citizens Center welcomes all senior members and their guests, and new members are invited to join. A year's membership fee of $5 is required.

On Saturdays, about five member volunteers work together to cook and prepare food to package and deliver to Pampa's southside seniors at home, which is a part of the meals-on-wheels program.

"It takes two cooks, and the rest to assemble the trays and make the deliveries every Saturday," Wortham said.

She orders the center's bulk food supplies from the High Plains Food Bank in Amarillo each month, and local individuals or grocery stores provide some contributions.

Some frozen meats and vegetables are available from the food bank, also; however, the center provides fresh meats and produce for some of its meals and for the fund-raising dinners.

"Recently a lady called to tell me she had arranged to have the center pick up whatever foods were needed for that week at one of the local grocery stores, and other times, people make cash donations to the food budget. Those kinds of gifts help us keep up our program," Wortham said.

Pantex Plant halts program after low-level contamination

AMARILLO (AP) – The Pantex Plant has halted one of its nuclear-disassembly programs after some materials were unexpectedly contaminated with low-level radiation.

The Amarillo Globe-News reported that work on the B-61 bomb was temporarily on hold until Los Alamos National Laboratory and Sandia National Laboratories personnel decide how to proceed.

Joe Martillotti, an official with the Texas Department of Health's Bureau of Radiologi-cal Control, said the amount of radioactive material involved was very small, but that state officials will monitor progress of Department Of Energy's probe.

According to a preliminary report, workers were dismantling one of the 1970s-era weapons on Aug. 21 when an alarm sounded. No contamination was found on the weapon or any personnel, who were evacuated from the work area.

Later that day, a leak-detector alarm sounded as workers were scanning a tube on another weapons component. Low-level radioactive contamination was found on the tube and tooling used to work on the tubing, said the report, which was released on Thursday. No exposures to personnel or environmental releases occurred.

"The contaminated areas of the weapon component were bagged, operations were stopped, and administrative control of access to the cell was implemented as a precautionary measure until further evaluation could be conducted on the cause of the contamination," the report said.

Federal, state and Pantex officials told the paper they cannot release the specific type of radioactive contaminant because the information is classified.

Energy Department spokesman Tom Walton said officials anticipated that problems could crop up in the B-61 dismantlement program and lab officials now are studying how to proceed.

The B-61 was produced in various versions over the years.

School to have no valedictorian

PORT NECHES (AP) – There won't be a valedictorian and salutatorian selected for graduating classes at Port Neches-Groves High School after 1998.

School trustees have voted to eliminate the honors, beginning with the graduating class of 1999.

Instead, the school will give special recognition to anyone finishing in the top one-fourth of the senior class.

Summa cum laude will represent the top two percent, magna cum laude the top five percent and cum laude the top ten percent. The title of "recognized" will be applied to students who rank in the top 25.

"We feel this way we were recognizing more students," assistant superintendent Shirley Ramey said Thursday. "We want to recognize those students who work hard and don't quite get into those top levels of praise."

A scholarship committee will be appointed by the principal to choose a student among the top 2 percent to receive a state university scholarship that now goes to the valedictorian.

Wheeler to have County-Wide Health Fair

WHEELER – A County-Wide Health Fair is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Wheeler School Cafeteria.

Free health screenings will be provided, including blood pressure, sponsored by Wheeler County EMS; blood sugar, sponsored by Parkview Home Health; glaucoma, sponsored by the Lions High Plains Eye Bank; and hearing, sponsored by High Plains Hearing Aid Center.

Highlighted programs will include a demonstration on the Jaws of Life by the Wheeler Fire Department at 10 a.m. and demonstrations on the Roll-Over Convincer at 11 a.m., 12 p.m., 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. The Convincer demonstrates passenger safety in roll-over collisions.

Also included in this year's fair is The Bridge, which will be video printing children. The videos are ready to be used for news broadcasts in the event the child is found missing, similar to the photos used in many cases. Parents are asked to bring a VHS tape for their family.

The Texas Department of Health will provide an immunization clinic on a sliding fee scale. All required childhood immunizations plus tetanus and diphtheria shots will be available.

A variety of other exhibits and information booths from the health care industry will also be providing accurate, up to date information.

For more information, contact the Wheeler County Extension Office at (806) 826-5243.

Widow of 'Marlboro Man' sues tobacco firm

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) – The wife of an actor who appeared for years as the "Marlboro Man" and died last year from lung cancer is suing Philip Morris Company and other tobacco giants.

Lilo McLean, wife of David McLean, names Philip Morris, which makes Marlboro cigarettes, along with Liggett Group, R.J. Reynolds, the American Tobacco Company and Brown and Williamson in her federal lawsuit. The claim seeks unspecified damages.

David McLean, who appeared for many years in television commercial and print ads as the Marlboro Man, died of lung cancer in Los Angeles last October. He was 73.

His widow's lawsuit was filed Aug. 30 in the Marshall court of U.S. District Judge David Folsom but eluded public notice until the Marshall News Messenger obtained a copy of the lawsuit this week.

Michael York, a Washington, D.C., lawyer representing Philip Morris, said the company is prepared to defend itself.

"I have not seen his actual allegations. I can tell you Philip Morris has defended smoking health claims for more than 40 years – all successfully," he said.

Jack Baldwin, the Marshall attorney representing Mrs. McLean, said Thursday night that his client, who still lives in California, instructed him not to comment on specifics of the case.

Baldwin said the case was filed in East Texas because it would have a better chance there of getting to trial quickly. At any rate, he said, trial was at least 18 months away.

Mrs. McLean's lawsuit alleges that every cigarette maker in the United States conspired to hide facts regarding the addictive nature of nicotine. She says her husband suffered from emphysema in the late 1980s because of his nicotine addiction and later was stricken with lung cancer.

David McLean began his role as the rugged Marlboro pitchman in the early 1960s.

Hurricane Fausto whips Baja California beaches

CABO SAN LUCAS, Mexico (AP) – Hurricane Fausto whipped thundering waves against tourist beaches at the tip of the Baja California peninsula today, flooding streets, closing shops and driving hundreds from their homes.

The storm about 60 miles west of here brushed southern Baja with winds up to 100 mph and heavy rains. Forecasters said the storm was moving north at 8 mph, and likely to swing northeastward across the peninsula and the Gulf of California by Saturday.

The federal government issued a hurricane warning for residents of mainland Mexico from Guaymas south to Eldorado in advance of the storm's expected movement.

Baja California Sur Gov. Guillermo Mercado Romero ordered state officials to remain on "full red alert" until further notice.

There were no immediate reports of major damage or injuries, however.

Guests in tourist hotels were ordered to leave their rooms to avoid being hit by broken glass. They were herded in basements and meeting halls.

State civil defense officials said as many as 3,800 people might be evacuated but Red Cross workers said the departures so far were voluntary and affected only several hundred people.

Most were taking the storm's onset in stride – even John and Fiona Mellon of Miami, who had planned a 10th anniversary trip to the Caribbean but shifted their plans to this resort due to concern over Hurricane Hortense.

County to have public hearing on budget, tax rate

Gray County commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Monday, Sept. 16, in a regular bi-monthly session for a public hearing on the 1997 county budget and to consider the annual tax rate.

Gray County Judge Richard Peet invites the public to the commissioners' meeting for open discussion on the budget.

"For the new year, we are proposing no tax increase. The considered budget meets all current service needs, as well as additional programs for revitalization of the air field and some county roads," Peet said.

The agenda covers general business transactions and reports and presentations on Lake McClellan, group medical insurance by Ritha Williams, a request by Koch Company to cross County Road G near the intersection with County Road 9, and a request by Southwestern Public Service Co. for high voltage line easement access at Perry Lefors Airport.

Also on Monday, the commissioners will:

- Discuss a written agreement with Skellytown Fire Department.
- Consider advertising for bids on jail phone system in the sheriff's department.
- Discuss a donation to Pampa Community Day Care Center.
- Consider asking for bids on group medical insurance.
- Recognize Sammie Morris' reclassification to Level III tax assessor/collector.
- Discuss courthouse elevator maintenance contract.
- Consider a request for hangar transfer from Leonard Hudson Drilling Inc. to Scott White.

She added that she has been serving coffee and cereal for some who stop in for early breakfast every now and then, but that the food supplies are not available to prepare anything else.

Two of her regular coffee drinkers are Joe Eastland and W. M. Griffin, who stop by every day for coffee.

"I've been a member ever since it opened," said Griffin, who claims to be a charter member before it was chartered.

Griffin said he once was a past administrator for about six months when the organization was first formed, and for many years he was a committee volunteer and delivered meals.

"I'm 90 years old now, and I just can't do all those things anymore, but I like to come here to relax and watch TV," he said.

Eastland agreed that it was a nice place to come to relax and said that he enjoys visiting old friends, "but I haven't been coming near as long as he has," referring to his friend, Griffin.

Southside Senior Citizens Center was officially chartered in 1980. It is an agency member of the Pampa United Way and accepts individual donations. In the 1996 budgeted allotment, the county allowed $2,000, said A.C. Malone, Gray County auditor. The City of Pampa covers monthly costs of utilities and provides the building, according to John Horst, director of finance for the City of Pampa.

Members have fund-raising projects off and on throughout the year, including their biggest events, which are the annual banquet in November and the annual barbecue fund-raiser in December.

Their efforts to raise money is to some day build a larger building, not only to provide an activities center for the Southside Senior Citizens organization, but to give a place for the young people and young families to enjoy as well, said Wortham.

"This was a goal set by members and the former director, Mrs. Williams, and is still in the hopes of those continuing the program," she said.

Reports critical of Pentagon security for U.S. troops overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) – Faced with two reports that are highly critical of Pentagon efforts to protect troops against terrorism, Defense Secretary William Perry is ordering a revamping of security measures to prevent a repeat of the June bombing that killed 19 U.S. airmen in Saudi Arabia.

Senior Pentagon officials were bracing for the expected release next week of a presidential commission report into the June 25 terrorist truck bombing. The report is highly critical of Perry, senior Pentagon officials, the U.S. Central Command and military field commanders, according to a senior defense official familiar with its contents.

In addition, a report from the Republican-led Senate Intelligence Committee on Thursday challenged Perry's claims that "spotty and inconclusive" intelligence left the military unprepared for the truck bomb attack on a military housing complex in Dhahran. To the contrary, the report said, the military, right up to the secretary of defense, had ample warning from intelligence reports that something much like the actual attack would take place.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the committee's chairman, said blaming the attack on bad intelligence was "preposterous."

"There was no intelligence failure," Specter said. "In fact, in the preceding year, there have been more than 100 intelligence reports on alerts of a general nature and very specific reports" about the threat to the Khobar Towers housing complex.

Specter cited several warnings that should have led to a swifter response by the Pentagon, including a June 13 State Department intelligence report and a June 17 Military Intelligence Digest report outlining suspicious incidents at Khobar Towers. The latter report noted "a pattern appears to be developing that warrants improved security efforts."

The presidential team's report was expected to conclude that officials did not respond adequately to clear indications that the Khobar Towers complex was vulnerable to a terrorist bombing.

U.S. commanders on the ground were faulted by presidential investigators for not getting Saudi officials to agree to certain security improvements, particularly relocating a perimeter fence to create a larger buffer zone around the apartments.

The 40-member team was headed by retired Army Gen. Wayne Downing, former head of U.S. special forces.

"It's bad," the official who spoke on condition of anonymity said of Downing's report. "It's clear there's enough blame to go around."

Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon rejected the assertion that the report was highly critical of Perry. But he said Perry will announce within days additional protective measures that respond to some of the recommendations in the report.

"These steps include uniform Department of Defense standards for force protection, more control to local commanders over force protection, improving intelligence collection and use, and increased funding for new anti-terrorism technology," Bacon said in a statement.

Senate hearings on the June bombing revealed that while commanders had ample intelligence, it was not focused on any one kind of threat.

In addition, Gen. Binford Peay III, commander of the U.S. Central Command responsible for troops deployed in Saudi Arabia, testified that budget limitations forced delays in implementing some security improvements, such as covering windows with shatter-resistent plastics.

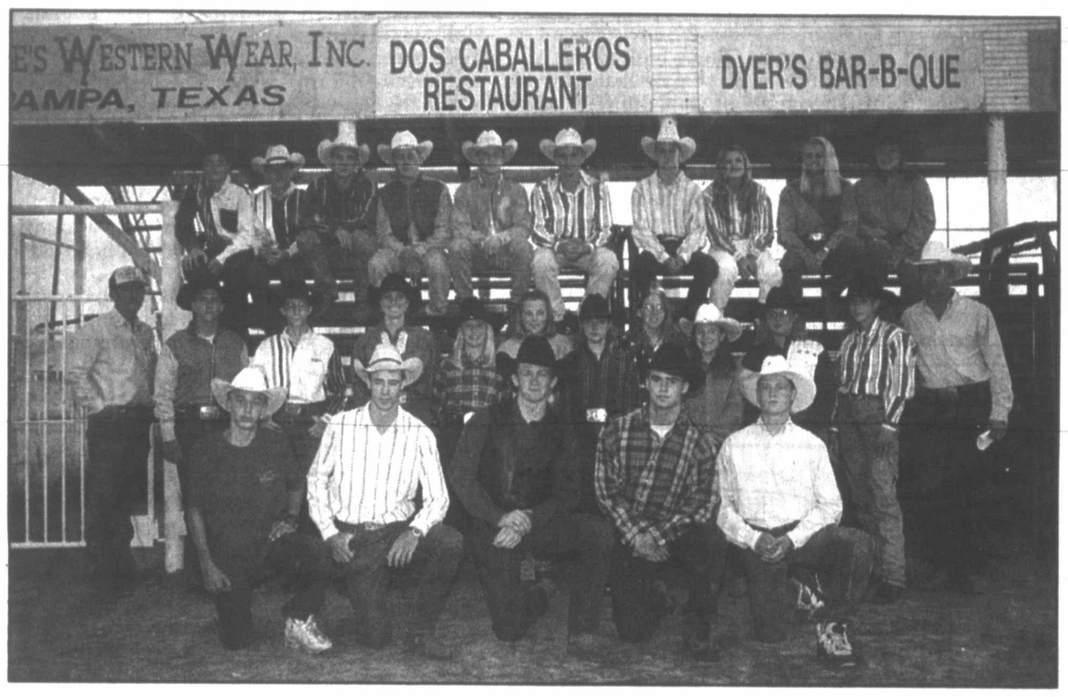

"The Downing report is exactly what Secretary Perry asked for," Bacon said. "It's candid, it's thorough, and it contains a number of recommendations designed to improve the protection of U.S. forces."

In the June 25 attack, terrorists parked a fuel tanker truck loaded with an estimated 2,000-3,000 pounds of explosives just outside the perimeter fence of the Khobar Towers complex, where some 2,000 of the 5,000 U.S. servicemen stationed in Saudi Arabia live.

The attackers fled to a car and then the truck bomb detonated, devastating the side of one of the closest apartment tower 85 feet away. All but one of the 19 killed were inside that building.

The bomb was ten times more powerful than a car bomb attack in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, that killed five U.S. service members last November.

House approves CRMWA deferral payments

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. House of Representatives this week unanimously approved a measure sponsored by Reps. Mac Thornberry (TX-13) and Solomon Ortiz (TX-27) that will help the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority (CRMWA) with a project intended to improve and expand upon the supply of drinkable water in cities and towns throughout the Panhandle.

The measure, approved Tuesday, is called the Emergency Drought Relief Act of 1996. Introduced on July 26 and passed by the House Resources Committee on Aug. 1, the bill allows CRMWA to defer for three years the principal and interest it currently owes the federal government in payment for land, water and facilities acquired in 1950 for the Canadian River Project.

CRMWA's annual payments are currently $3,398,105.66. The total amount of the three year deferral would be $10,194,316.98.

In addition to this deferral, the legislation also reimburses CRMWA for land it turned over to the National Park Service in 1990 to create the Lake Meredith National Recreation Area. The reimbursement, which was not provided for in legislation authorizing the original transfer, would total $4 million.

According to Thornberry, these funds will help with the construction of a project to provide groundwater for conjunctive use with water from Lake Meredith. This project will involve the acquisition of about 43,000 acres of groundwater rights, development of a well field capable of supplying up to 45,0900 acre-feet per year and a 35-mile aqueduct to bring the well water to a location where it can be mixed with water from Lake Meredith. The total cost of the project is expected to be $80 million.

"The name of the bill is somewhat misleading in light of all the rain we've had over the past couple weeks," Thornberry said. "But the fact remains that the past three years have been among the driest in our state's history, and there's no guarantee that the next three years won't be more of the same. The more we can do to expand and improve upon our region's supply of water, the better off the families, farmers and ranchers in our region will be."

Thornberry noted that water from Lake Meredith currently must be mixed with other sources of groundwater to meet recommended federal standards. This project will help the CRMWA meet these standards by tapping additional water supplies.

Thornberry also noted that in addition to the CRMWA, the legislation also provides additional funding through debt deferral for water projects in Corpus Christi and the Nueces Water Authority.

The bill will now be sent to the Senate for its approval. A date has not yet been set for a vote.

Physician to research aspirin as cancer fighting agent

HOUSTON (AP) – Aspirin already is recommended as a way to reduce the risk of a second heart attack or stroke. Now, recent studies suggest that the regular use of aspirin may reduce the risk of cancer.

A Houston doctor says he'll concentrate on that issue for the next three years.

Dr. Michael Wargovich, associate professor of medicine at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center, is an expert in cancer prevention. He said Thursday he wants to determine how effective aspirin is, and at what dosage.

A 1991 study found that the risk of colon cancer was cut in half for men and women who took aspirin at least 16 times a month for at least a year.

Wargovich wants to give varying strengths of aspirin to 60 patients who have had polyps in their colons within the last five years.

The 60 will then be placed in one of four groups: those who take no aspirin, those who take a baby aspirin, those who take adult aspirin and those who take two adult aspirins.

Nation briefs

Florida State named nation's No. 1 party school

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State University is national champion, but not in football.

FSU was named the No. 1 party school in the country by the Princeton Review's "Advantage Guide to the Best 310 Colleges."

And to delight the hearts of Seminoles all the more, the book ranked arch-rival University of Florida No. 3.

"Oh that's good," said Tom Guillot, a 22-year-old junior at FSU. "We beat 'em again. We beat 'em in everything."

FSU dethroned three-time champion University of Rhode Island, which failed to finish in the top 10 after banning alcohol on campus last year. George Washington University in Washington was No. 2.

FSU, which won college football's national championship in the 1993 season, was ranked fourth in the guide's first edition, and then came in second three years in a row behind Rhode Island.

This is the first year it came in No. 1.

Autopsies find no sign of physical disease

DETROIT (AP) — At least three of 40 people known to have committed suicide with Dr. Jack Kevorkian's help showed no signs of physical disease, the Detroit Free Press reported today.

Autopsies conducted on Rebecca Badger, Judith Curren and Marjorie Wantz showed no signs of the illnesses they claimed to have, medical examiners told the newspaper. The women did share a history of personal problems and difficult-to-diagnose ailments, the newspaper reported.

Kevorkian attorney Michael Schwartz said coroner L.I. Dragovic has a "personal agenda" to stop Kevorkian and is an unreliable authority in cases involving the assisted-suicide advocate.

Badger, 39, of Goleta, Calif., committed suicide with Kevorkian's help on July 9 after complaining of pain from multiple sclerosis for eight years.

Dr. Michael Stein, a Walnut Creek, Calif., neurologist who treated Badger, told the newspaper he only gave Badger a tentative diagnosis of multiple sclerosis in 1988. "She was diagnosed as possibly having MS," Stein said Thursday.

Badger was a recovering alcoholic who had become addicted to prescription painkillers, her daughter, Christy Nichols, told the newspaper.

Infected mosquitoes invade Connecticut towns

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Mosquitoes infected with the potentially deadly Eastern equine encephalitis virus have spread across the border from Rhode Island to two Connecticut towns.

However, none of the species in Stonington and North Stonington that tested positive for the virus frequently bite humans, officials said.

"We don't want to infer that there's any sense of emergency," Gov. John G. Rowland said Thursday.

The mosquitoes infected in Connecticut were found within a 5-mile radius of a Westerly, R.I., swamp officials have identified as the source of the virus.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

San Antonio Express-News on state ethics policy:

Gov. George W. Bush's move to restrict lobbying activities of former employees puts him in a class by himself. He is the first Texas governor to do so. That shouldn't be lost on state legislators.

Bush last week announced he will limit the lobbying activities of staff members who leave his administration. The tough new policy also prohibits senior staff members from working in the governor's office if their spouses are registered lobbyists.

The governor joins a handful of state officials who also seem to understand that the perception of influence-peddling is unacceptable. House Speaker Pete Laney and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock have similar policies in place.

Surely other legislators can see the need to follow Bush's lead. They now are free to work as lobbyists as soon as they leave office. As such, the perception lingers that former lawmakers would enjoy greater access to the Statehouse. Does anyone really believe they don't?

The public, meanwhile, is left to wonder if the lobbyists will cross the line between a perceived conflict of interest and a real one.

The Legislature in 1991 passed an ethics law barring former members of state boards and commissions and former high-level state agency employees from representing clients before their former boards or agencies during the first two years after leaving their state jobs.

A glaring omission leaves lawmakers untouched. That should be remedied.

El Paso Times on welfare bill:

Only days after signing into law a welfare reform bill that came down hard on America's poor and harder on legal immigrants, President Clinton was already looking for a way out. Call it political posturing, but so far his tinkering with the law has given it some heart. ...

The reforms would take many current legal immigrants off Supplemental Security Income and food stamps; future legals would be ineligible for most federal benefits, such as non-emergency health care, during their first five years in the United States. To soften those blows, Clinton issued directives to speed up the naturalization process, promote job training and extend the food-stamp program time limit for legals. ...

Now that the ink has dried it's up to the president ... to ensure that the new system is not just new, but improved.

Clinton's stars are getting dimmer

L. Brent Bozell

In 1992, candidate Bill Clinton barnstormed the country surrounded (and bankrolled) by the Beautiful People of Hollywood. Barbra Streisand, Warren Beatty, Michael Douglas, Michael Eisner, Steven Spielberg – this was the A-list to end all A-lists of celebrity star power. By early 1995, one would have thought by the way they were avoiding him that Clinton had the Ebola virus, he looked to be such a loser politically. With Clinton's fortunes once again reversed, and with the perfect setting for public relations mega-exposure, it's rather surprising that such a relatively meager contingent of celebrities showed up for the Democratic convention in Chicago.

Yes, Christopher Reeve was there. So, too, was "registered Republican" Kevin Costner, who proclaimed that "I'm voting for the president. I think he's going in the right direction, and I think he's doing a good job." Costner was a double whammy for the Democrats, one of the top movie stars in the business and a "registered Republican" to boot. One has to assume the Democrats were happier still that no one in the press questioned that label, especially since Costner's been running from it for years. "I registered as a Republican when I was 21. My parents were Republicans," he told Vanity Fair back in 1992. "But as I've gotten older, I've questioned my whole conservative background ... I think you should be fair about how you treat people."

Billy Baldwin, brother of Alec and equally liberal, was there, too. The Creative Coalition, on whose board he sits, is a leftist amalgamation of show biz heavyweights. They were active at both conventions with panel discussions on topics like abortion and campaign finance reform. Baldwin attempted to be everywhere, lending his intellectual firepower to the day's public policy debates, but when given the national spotlight in an interview on CNN, he inexplicably focused on one of the burning issues of ... 1989. "People like Jesse Helms and Phil Gramm and Dick Armey and Newt Gingrich are offended by ... a Mapplethorpe photograph and don't feel the taxpayers' money should be spent on being offended," he droned, "but I don't think it's the government's job to define what's art and what's not art and what's offensive and what's not offensive." (Question: Does this mean that Baldwin believes taxpayers' money should be spent offending taxpayers?)

Aretha Franklin sang the Star-Spangled Banner, Ted Danson rambled on about the environment on CNN, and Edward James Olmos took to the convention podium only to yell at the delegates for not listening to his speech about something or other. Candice Bergen, Ron Silver, Richard Lewis and a handful of other lesser-known celebrities were on the floor from time to time. But that was about it.

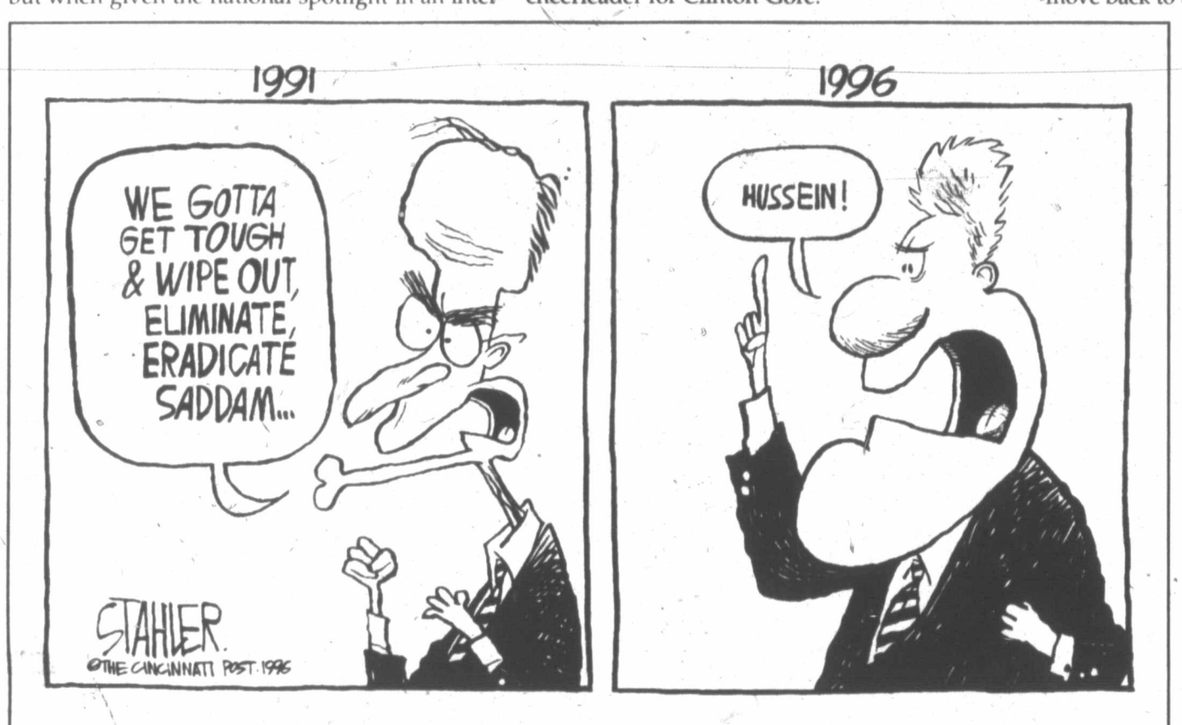

Clinton did have the one entertainment outlet he could rely on for unabashed fawning. MTV had shown some real improvement in correcting its unabashedly pro-liberal slant in its news reports during the GOP convention in San Diego, but in Chicago returned to its old form as fearless cheerleader for Clinton-Gore.

Anchor Tabitha Soren spent her time lauding the Democrats' economic plans while demonstrating how little she knows about economics. There was this gem, straight from the Clinton Who Cares About The Facts Anyway? handbook: "The president pushed through a deficit-reduction plan which has since cut the deficit by one-half. The plan raised taxes on the wealthy and received not one Republican vote."

And then there was this doozy of a question to DNC Chairman Chris Dodd: "The Democrats are running their campaign on fiscal responsibility and deficit reduction, while the Republicans have offered tax cuts. Don't you worry a little bit that voters will say, 'Hey, forget responsibility, let me take the cash?' "

All in all, though, there seemed to be something missing in Chicago. Various news reports had predicted that Robin Williams would make a major address; he didn't. A Barbra Streisand appearance would have been a natural here; she was a no show, too. Perhaps it's that this administration's earlier failures on issues like gays in the military and socialized health care have left liberals in Hollywood listless. Maybe Clinton's post-1994 moderate makeover, with support for the V-chip and welfare reform – issues that are pure dynamite within the Hollywood community – has soured this powerful entity's support for the administration.

Whatever the reason, Clinton is not presently relying on this very powerful industry to promote his re-election campaign. And my guess is that as long as he continues to enjoy a double-digit lead, he'll be happy to keep the leftists at arm's length. But should the race tighten, and should Clinton need last-minute reinforcements, this cavalry will be waiting in the wings. All he needs to do to summon them is move back to the left, back in sync with them.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 13th, the 257th day of 1996. There are 109 days left in the year. Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins at sunset.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 13th, 1788, the Congress of the Confederation authorized the first national election, and declared New York City the temporary national capital.

On this date:

In 1759, during the final French and Indian War, the British defeated the French on the Plains of Abraham overlooking Quebec City.

In 1803, Commodore John Barry, considered by many the father of the American Navy, died in Philadelphia.

In 1943, Chiang Kai-shek became president of China.

In 1948, Republican Margaret Chase Smith of Maine was elected to the U.S. Senate, becoming the first woman to serve in both houses of Congress.

Village, family – which came first?

Mona Charen

The phrase "it takes a village to raise a child" first gained currency several years ago. Back then, the African aphorism was invoked by liberal social scientists and others who sought to defuse concern about America's deteriorating families. The subtext was: If it takes a whole village to raise a child, then it isn't such a big deal whether a child has one parent or two.

Hillary Rodham Clinton seized upon the phrase just as it was becoming a cliche. But the phrase has gone beyond cliche now – if my colleague Howard Fineman of Newsweek is right – it has become the heart of the 1996 presidential campaign.

Robert Dole indirectly challenged Mrs. Clinton in his acceptance speech, saying, "It doesn't take a village, it takes a family."

At the Democratic convention, Mrs. Clinton insisted on her version. "Of course, parents, first and foremost, are responsible for their children." But they are insufficient, she argued, to raise a "happy, healthy, hopeful child. It takes teachers. It takes clergy. It takes business people ... It takes a president."

Well. Bill Clinton has certainly shrunk our concept of the proper role for the chief executive. Where once we vested presidents with authority over war and peace, taxes and tariffs, this president seems to be in charge of curfews, cigarettes and school uniforms. And Mrs. Clinton now says he's in charge of raising our children.

Mrs. Clinton didn't even make the case for her side as well as she could have (she does so a little better in her book.) Even those well disposed toward her would have to pause over the notion that business people are required to raise your kids and mine.

Her argument would have been better cast as follows: "Parents are the single most important ingredient to raising happy, healthy children. Everything our common sense suggests about two-parent families is supported by the social science data. Children of intact families experience less of every pathology – poor school performance, trouble with the police, suicide, early sexual behavior – than do children of divorce. And children of divorce experience fewer of these than do children of parents who never married at all."

"But to say that parents are essential is not to say that they are sufficient. We don't live in little isolated islands called families. We live in communities. And the community that surrounds the family provides essential supports to it. The community must reinforce and echo the lessons parents try to teach at home, not undermine them. That's why our friends in Hollywood are so wrong when they say the answer to violence and smut in entertainment is simply to turn it off. I can't turn off my neighbor's set. And if his son is listening to music that degrades and dehumanizes women, my daughter is in danger."

"Moreover, the community (or what I call the village) has an obligation to look out for all of our children because there are times when the family fails in its essential obligations. At times like those, as when a child is being physically or sexually abused, the village must rescue the child from his parents."

If Mrs. Clinton were making that argument, she'd get no quarrel from conservatives. Indeed, in some of the chapters of her book, she comes close. It's as if Bill Clinton were not the only member of the first family to take advice from Dick Morris about how to steal ideas from the Republicans.

The flaw in Mrs. Clinton's approach is that it misperceives the problem. Sure, the "village" is important. But villages will not even exist if families fail to form properly. It is clusters of families – what Edmund Burke called the "little platoons" of society – that create villages, communities and eventually nations. We have seen, to our grief, what happens to whole communities in the United States when the illegitimacy rate soars above 60% and 70%. They become uncivilized. The strong victimize the weak, and violence reigns. The struggling families who persist in trying to raise happy and healthy children are trying to walk a straight line through a hurricane.

Government cannot, by itself, reverse the decay of families. But it can begin by understanding the nature of our problem.

Dole campaign tries to gain momentum

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

For the catchup candidate, the challenge becomes one of changing the mix, breaking the pattern, jarring the leader and then his lead.

Republican Bob Dole has been trying all of the above, without discernible impact on President Clinton's double-digit leads in the voter opinion polls, national and, more significant, state-by-state electoral vote.

That has led to:

—A shakeup of Dole's campaign advertising team, with the replacement of the two men who were running it. The new message, if there is to be one, has not yet been broadcast.

—An effort to find openings against Clinton on such issues as rising drug use among the young, foreign policy and his plan to broaden the popular family leave law.

—A new campaign forum that really is an old one revisited, with invited, supportive audiences to ask questions and offer comments, usually friendly and admiring. Other candidates have done that, notably Richard Nixon, who made ten "citizen panels," question-and-answer sessions with invitation-only audiences, the television staple of his 1968 campaign.

But Nixon was ahead, and trying to stay there. Dole is lagging by polling margins of 15 to 20 points that no candidate has been able to reverse and win in the final eight weeks of a presidential campaign. Some have come close. Nixon barely hung on to win the 1968 election, although his advantage was not so wide as Clinton's now.

The theory of Dole's "Listening to America" sessions, two of them on Monday in Georgia and Florida, is that the supportive audiences will produce a positive image and message for local and regional audiences.

Dole's issue in chief remains his $548 billion tax cut proposal, with a 15%, three-year reduction in income taxes as the centerpiece. "I thought you were very objective," he said after hearing his plan praised at an earlier listening session in Colorado Springs. He conceded later that it wasn't exactly a bipartisan audience.

At this point, revival will take far more than holding the GOP base; he needs independent and uncommitted votes, and he needs to overcome skepticism reflected in the polls that he can indeed cut taxes and deliver his promised balanced budget at the same time.

What it's really going to do is blow a hole in Clinton's lead, he said.

But that hasn't been happening.

The Republican plan was to capitalize on economic anxieties among middle-class Americans, and to promise lower taxes and sharply higher growth rates as products of the plan Dole delivered on Aug. 5. More than a month later, he still is trying, saying that the process Clinton boasts is not good enough.

The unemployment rate had just dipped to the lowest level in seven years, and Clinton was citing it as evidence that his economic plan is delivering progress that would be imperiled by the Dole proposals.

There are long-term problems in the economy, and Clinton concedes it. But the polls show that confidence in his management is up, not down.

Staff and strategy shakeups have been tried before, but seldom with major impact so late in the season. Indeed, exactly four years ago President Bush, his faltering campaign under new management, belatedly produced his economic program, calling it an agenda for American renewal. It was largely a repackaged replay of prior GOP proposals, and no significant help in the race he lost to Clinton.

For Dole, the next best target for a campaign jolt would appear to be the nationally televised debates, three likely, the first, tentatively, on Sept. 25. The Dole camp would like a head-on debate with Clinton, without Ross Perot, but the third candidate may be unavoidable.

And Dole needs the forum. It is at least a chance to change the mix.

Santa Claus poses in front of the MacKenzie-Childs Airstream Trailer in Dallas recently. # Dole beats Clinton in race for laughs as TV talk show hosts batter GOP candidate's image, age

NEW YORK (AP) – Bob Dole's age might be slowing him down in the polls but it's revving up the late night TV comedy circuit.

In the race for laughs, Dole is way ahead, getting skewered by talk show hosts nearly twice as often as President Clinton.

And, with 40 percent of Americans under 30 saying they regularly get their political information from late night television, it's not something the candidates can lightly shrug off.

Night after night a barrage of one-liners hammer the Republican presidential candidate, portraying – on good days – a grumpy old man, struggling to crawl out of the stone age.

"To appear more presidential, he's been smoking pot and nailing hookers," cracked CBS's David Letterman during his Sept. 5 "Top Ten" list of "Signs that Dole is Getting Desperate."

NBC's Jay Leno talks about a new Dole biography called "Bob Dole: the Second 100 years." And Conan O'Brien quips that the 73-year-old Dole is so optimistic he "always sees the glass of Metamucil half-full."

Not that the comedians are any kinder to Clinton. If anything, the caricatures of the president are more pointed, depicting a philandering conniver with a weight problem.

O'Brien did an imaginary interview with a blustering, chip-chomping president on the day his adviser Dick Morris resigned in a sex scandal – an incident gleefully milked by all the late night jokesters.

If Clinton had known Morris had a prostitute in his hotel room during phone conversations, Leno bellows, "he would have hung up and driven right over."

Letterman chortled, explaining the president loves campaigning "because, you know, it's a great way to meet chicks."

The broadcast buffoonery can be both tough and topical.

The day after Ross Perot announced his Reform Party running mate – economist Pat Choate, a political novice – late-night TV teed off on the pick that was made after established politicians turned down the Texan.

"Ross said Pat had all three criteria he was looking for in a vice president: He was home. He answered the phone. He said 'yes,' " Leno laughed Wednesday night.

Letterman took aim the same night, too: "Now for those of you who don't know what an economist is," he said, "think accountant – without all the charisma and all the thrill-seeking excitement."

Dole and Clinton make bigger targets, however. And in the sheer number of jokes told, the president gets off easier than his main rival.

According to the Center for Media and Public Affairs, a non-partisan research group, Leno, O'Brien and Letterman lobbed 449 barbs at Dole this year through July compared to 299 at Clinton. Dole has also been the butt of twice as many Saturday Night Live sketches on NBC as Clinton.

Clinton is ribbed most often about his sex life (111 jokes), Whitewater and other scandals (44) and his eating habits (38). Dole is zinged for his age (221), his poor campaigning ability (84) and his personality (68).

A study released in May by the Pew Research Center found that 25 percent of Americans said they learned something about the campaign from late night television, and 40 percent of those under the age of 30 said they regularly get campaign information from this comedic source.

World briefs

Forecasters predict Hortense will bypass U.S.

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — With its frightening mass of 140-mph winds and torrential rains, Hurricane Hortense took aim at the northeastern United States today – but forecasters say it will likely miss.

Hortense swiped at the Turks and Caicos on Thursday and barreled harmlessly past the Bahamas after two direct strikes that killed 16 people, demolished hundreds of homes and destroyed more than $100 million worth of crops in Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

"It's still on track for the easternmost part of New England, and then Nova Scotia and Newfoundland ... but we should start seeing a turn to the northeast in a day or two," said Mike Hopkins of the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Hortense, which made two unexpected changes of direction to strike a devastating blow Tuesday on Puerto Rico, has accelerated into a much more formidable, yet more predictable, storm, Hopkins said.

Stampede kills 24 grade school students

BEIJING (AP) — Children rushing to attend a school flag-raising ceremony stampeded over each other, crushing 24 to death and injuring another 74, according to reports today.

After the 7:20 a.m. bell sounded for the flag raising, children at the Nanbing primary school in southwestern Yunnan province rushed from a back building, China's state-run media reported.

Students tumbled in a 9-foot-wide passageway at the foot of a stairway, and those behind kept coming. Within minutes, more than more than 200 children were piled on top of each other.

School officials, teachers, neighbors, police and army personnel worked Monday to rescue the children, but 24 died of suffocation, the newspaper reports said.

Top British rock band cancels American tour

LONDON (AP) — The British pop band Oasis is canceling the rest of its U.S. tour, it said Thursday, amid speculation the group is splitting up.

"Oasis has internal differences on their ninth tour of America, which has resulted in the tour being pulled two-thirds of the way through," a band statement said. "It is unlikely that immediate touring commitments will be fulfilled."

The band did not perform in Charlotte, N.C., on Wednesday. Its next stop was to have been Atlanta on Friday.

Members of the five-piece band from Manchester, England, have become multimillionaires following two best-selling records. A month ago a series of outdoor shows near London attracted the country's largest-ever paying audience for a single rock act.

Indy police chief steps down in face of scandalous brawl

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) – Sixteen drunken white men stumbled out of a downtown bar last month, grabbing their crotches and making lewd remarks to women before beating up a black man who confronted them, witnesses said.

The revelation that the men were members of an elite Indianapolis police unit strained already poor relations between police and the city's black community. On Thursday, the police chief resigned and the 16 officers were reassigned to desk jobs.

Police Chief Don Christ, who is white, said stepping down was "in the best interest of the department as well as the city of Indianapolis."

But those who protested the most – a group of black ministers – said Christ's resignation was unnecessary and does little to improve the situation.

"We wanted resolution, not resignation," said Lionel Rush, an elder at the True Victory Church of God and Christ.

The chief stepped down amid police, FBI and grand jury investigations into the Aug. 27 brawl in which officers are accused of harassing women and beating up and arresting a black motorist who confronted them. They also arrested a white man, who was allegedly beaten after he tried to intervene.

One of the police officers also shouted a racial slur, one of dozens of witnesses said, and at least one officer pulled his gun.

"Bottom line is, if it were you or I and there were 30 credible witnesses, there wouldn't be a grand jury investigation. You would be downtown. You would be tried, convicted and put in jail," said Jeff Gordon, the black man who was beaten.

Prosecutors decided not pursue charges against Gordon or the other man who was arrested.

The FBI has said it is investigating the brawl as a civil rights matter, and Mayor Stephen Goldsmith called for a grand jury probe, which will begin Oct. 1.

Goldsmith, the Republican nominee for governor, said Thursday he did not ask the police chief to resign. "I don't know that it's the right thing to do. He thinks it's the right thing to do," the mayor said.

"No one knows what happened that night," he said. "It's clear some police officers acted inappropriately. It's also clear some did nothing wrong."

Among the witnesses were women who said they were taunted and three white ministers who were out for the evening with families. They said the officers smelled of beer and did not initially identify themselves as police.

"It was the most unfair thing I ever saw in my life. They were half-drunk," said the Rev. Timothy Keep. "I told one cop, 'You guys are a disgrace.' ... I mean, he was blowing Budweiser in my face."

Stokes Barn to host Oklahoma band

The Stokes Cross S Barn will present Loretta Hall and The Crimson River Band of Elk City, Okla., Saturday night, with a full evening of family entertainment.

A ranchero supper will begin at 7 p.m., followed by the entertainment at 8 p.m. The activity will be held at the Stokes Barn, located on Hwy. 60 east of Pampa, across from the Schwan's warehouse.

The entertainment includes country, traditional and gospel music in an alcohol-free facility.

Admission for the entertainment portion is $3, with people invited to bring their lawn chairs. The ranchero supper meal (Mexican pile on) is $6 a person, with tea and sourdough cobbler included. The concession will be open all evening.

For more information, call 665-0190 or 665-7896.

Every Sunday, millions of Americans confuse greener lawns with greener pastures.

This Sunday, Come and join us in the love, fellowship and worship of Jesus Christ. You may be surprised to find the grass is actually greener on our side of the fence.

SOUND ADVICE!

"LAY NOT UP FOR YOURSELVES TREASURES UPON EARTH, WHERE MOTH AND RUST DOTH CORRUPT AND WHERE THIEVES BREAK THROUGH AND STEAL:"
(MATT. 6:19)

SOUND ADVICE IS CONTAINED IN THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT. JESUS ALWAYS SPOKE IN THE VERNACULAR OF THE DAY. ANY OF THE VALUABLE THINGS THAT PEOPLE POSSESSED WERE LIABLE TO BE STOLEN, FOR ONLY THE RICH HAD VAULTS IN WHICH TO KEEP THEIR TREASURES. THE COMMON MAN USED TO HIDE HIS GOOD CLOTHES AND OTHER PRIZED POSSESSIONS AWAY IN SOME HIDDEN NOOK OF HIS HOUSE--BUT THEN, ALTHOUGH SAFE FROM A THIEF, THEY OFTEN FELL PREY TO RUST AND MOTHS! IF A MAN HAD SOME MONEY, INVARIABLY HE HAD IT HIDDEN IN THE GROUND--THEN HE WORRIED NIGHT AND DAY THAT SOME TREASURE HUNTERS MIGHT DISCOVER IT! THE POOR PEOPLE OF THE TIMES WERE ALWAYS DIGGING IN FIELDS, HOPING TO FIND MONEY THAT SOMEONE HAD HIDDEN AWAY!

SO, NO MATTER WHAT A MAN DID WITH HIS MATERIAL POSSESSIONS, HE WAS ALWAYS WORRIED ABOUT THEM! JESUS' ADVICE, TO THE COMMON MAN, TO LAY UP IN HEAVEN A TREASURE OF GOOD DEEDS, DONE HERE ON EARTH, WAS PRACTICAL, INDEED FOR...

"FOR WHERE YOUR TREASURE IS, THERE WILL YOUR HEART BE ALSO."
(MATT. 7:21)

FROM THE BACK PEW

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
Religion Editor

After we bought our shiny new computer in January and uncrated it upon the altar of the computer desk, our family solemnly gathered around it to receive the four commandments: thou shalt not eat around it, thou shalt not drink near it, thou shalt never install pirated software (that's akin to practicing unsafe sex) and thou shalt remember wherever thou cruisest, an electronically omniscient computer geek is watching you from his climate-controlled office.

Though personally I prefer being a Luddite, with great regret I admit my computer is growing on me because I like the solitude of using it.

This week, my column idea came to me after the Tuesday city commission meeting when several of us - avoiding the supper dishes no doubt - continued to visit after the business was conducted. The topic of conversation was "The Internet - Friend or Foe (or Censored or Uncensored, or Uses and Abuses. Take your pick.)

The conversation came around to the situation in Allison where the feds claim a man was downloading kiddie porn from a school computer. Besides the child victimization/criminal behavior angle, the situation highlights the technology angle - seemingly private activities thousands of miles away are as close as your mouse button.

I barely found the Democratic and Republican homepages during their conventions. I can manage to e-mail my children most of the time. But just knowing if I wanted to see something verboten that someone, somewhere is counting hits to a page or monitoring a chat room or tracking my viewing patterns, scares me straight.

The conversation reminded me of the sixth grade when Terri Lipscomb, a girl I had known since the four year old beginner class at Tabernacle Baptist Church, told me that at the final judgment, Christians would be called to account for every thought, word and deed of their life. Like "This is Your Life" for eternity. Whoa, you mean God's not forgetting anything like the time I beat up my cousin's cousin or stole the dime box of candy cigarettes at Colonial?

Nope, she said darkly, everything.

You better think clean thoughts, she warned.

And our Internet conversation drew me back to that day on the playground and Terri's warning. Now, whether her understanding of eschatology is correct, I don't know, but it will hold a sixth grader in line for at least a couple of days. After all eternity is a long time coming and there are more pressing issues, like one's social life.

But the Internet is more immediate. If I check out some naughty news, I'm just pretty sure that somewhere, someone in cyberspace is saying, "Ah ha! Cheryl is looking at All The News That's Not Fit to Print! See how bad she is."

That a stranger can know something so intimate is frightening. Whether some hidden techno conscience is watching me I don't know, but I'm not taking any chances.

Between the Internet and the final judgment, there's not much room for sneaking around.

Port chaplains tend the human side of shipping

TBy KEVIN MORAN
Houston Chronicle

HONG KONG — The captain of the Serifos waved the chaplain's launch away from his ship, anchored near the main channel from the South China Sea.

But a crewman ran along the deck, waving for the launch and port chaplain Peter Ellis to stand by. Second engineer Ivovic Mijomir, 35, grease-smeared from Sunday morning engine room work, clambered aboard.

The ship's Greek owners had sent money that weekend to send another crewman home. Mijomir, from Montenegro in the former Yugoslavia, still was stuck on the rust-eaten, 22,000-ton scow. The Serifos, flying the flag of St. Vincent in the Caribbean's Windward Islands, had been detained by Hong Kong government inspectors for mechanical violations.

Mijomir said he was five months without pay and 40 pounds off normal weight because his diet lacked fresh vegetables, fruit and meat.

Mijomir's story and others worse are told in one port or another every day.

Almost always, the people who first hear them are port chaplains. They spend their lives letting the world's most mobile — and invisible — labor force know that someone ashore never forgets them.

Ellis, an Anglican priest, has been at it for more than 25 years. He also has worked in Britain and Singapore as a chaplain with Missions to Seamen, founded in England in 1835. Today, the ministry's flying angel symbol hangs at more than 100 seamen's centers around the world.

Ellis is senior chaplain at the Hong Kong Mariners' Club, an interdenominational facility with Danish, German and Belgian chaplains. They'd like to visit all 36,000 ships that call in Hong Kong annually, but they can only get to about 3,000.

"A ship like the Serifos can take days of going back and forth," said Ellis. "There are other times when you can be on and off a ship in 10 minutes or so."

Worldwide, Missions to Seamen chaplains made 57,000 ship visits last year and hosted 750,000 people at seamen's centers, Ellis said.

The Hong Kong club offers religious and social services. It also includes a library, video service, restaurant, bar and small bowling alley.

Other seamen's centers around the world are not nearly so plush.

In the same week that Ellis visited the Serifos, Father Roland Doriol, a French Jesuit priest, was excited about the addition of a third room to Stella Maris Seamen's Center in the Philippine port of Cebu City.

Each "room" is a large metal cargo container. The crude but serviceable center is affiliated with the Catholic church's worldwide Apostleship of the Sea.

Missions to Seamen and Apostleship of the Sea are two of the world's major maritime ministries. Others are the Norwegian Seamen's Church, the British Sailor's Society and the Seamen's Church Institute of New York and New Jersey. Founded in 1834, SCI is North America's largest seafarers' agency.

"No other group of individuals has a better insight on the human side of shipping than port chaplains," said Doug Stephenson, director of SCI's Center for Seafarers' Rights.

"Because port chaplains are trusted and such an institution in the maritime world, seafarers disclose things to chaplains they won't tell anyone else," said Stephenson. "When they visit ships, they go not only to see the captain but also to the mess deck and crew quarters, the heart and soul of the ship."

Doriol is an electrician who has spent most of his ordained life working on ships. He started on French ships with French crews but ended up working alongside Filipino, Indian and other Third World seafarers on foreign-flag ships, his pay down $600 to $800 a month.

"My father was a fisherman who did not want me to become a seaman," said Doriol, one of about 15 French priest-seamen who started "Mission de la Mer" in 1968. "So, maybe it was a way for me to disobey him."

The French priests signed on ships not to proselytize — they rarely offered Mass —but to serve as examples, reporting conditions at sea to church people and others ashore, Doriol said.

"The proximity to the people is more important than formal prayer," he said. "The chaplain has to feel a lot and not speak too much. The practical service he will give is to bring a newspaper, to bring information, to take a letter."

Today, chaplains throughout the world are linked.

Doriol visited Ellis in Hong Kong in April on his way back to Cebu from an Asian port chaplains' meeting in Madagascar. Stephenson has helped Doriol with seafarers' problems. Doriol knows Karen Lai, the lay Catholic port chaplain at the Galveston Seaman's Center.

Lai, employed by the Diocese of Galveston-Houston, has attended maritime law seminars conducted by Stephenson.

The international network helps chaplains track troubled ships. If pure moral suasion fails to resolve problems, chaplains can call in government inspectors or union organizers who can make business more difficult for ship owners and operators.

"I don't think there is anywhere where the church is more a necessary part of an industry than it is in the maritime industry, every bit as necessary and legitimate as shipowners' agents and cargo shippers," said Stephenson.

International law and international conventions require nations to ensure the welfare of crews on visiting foreign ships.

"In most countries, this national, legal obligation to provide for visiting crews is not satisfied by the state but rather by private, voluntary church-related organizations," said Stephenson. "They are on the cutting edge."

Shipowners in the last 20 years have deserted their own nations' flags to register vessels in countries that offer low fees, few taxes, lax regulation and infrequent inspections.

Consequently, chaplains say they end up spending a lot of time trying to help crew members like Mijomir get fair treatment and safe conditions on ships.

Still, they say, their main service on most ships is simply spreading brotherly love to the seafarers.

"The neatest part about being a chaplain is that when I visit a crew from China, for instance, one will ask why I'm being so kind to them," said Lai. "When I say 'Because you're my brother,' they just beam from ear to ear because they understand that we accept them as part of the human family."

Lai is the first non-ordained person ever certified as a U.S. port chaplain and is among just a few women serving as U.S. port chaplains. She is secretary of the ecumenical North American Maritime Ministry Association.

She is known for devoted correspondence with seafarers and their families.

"I would say I write an average of 40 letters a month," said Lai. "I have well over 100 seafarers from about 19 countries on the list right now. There are people who I've been writing for 10 years."

Lai, 37, began her career in 1985 as a volunteer at a Detroit seamen's center. She came to Galveston in 1992. Afraid of heights, she said she still gets "jelly-kneed" now and then climbing ships' gangways.

Ellis said he thrives on his work but has no real affinity for the sea.

"The ships don't interest me so much either," he admits. "It's the people. There's something special about the seafarer and the seafaring community."

The quality of life at sea is declining, chaplains say. Hidden ownership, frequent ship sales, smaller crews, cheaper competing labor and longer contracts make life tougher, they say.

Contracts used to run four or six months at a time. Now, they run nine months to a year.

"They don't know who they work for," said Ellis. "Being away longer, not knowing that there is any continuity of work, where they'll be next year or whether somebody will replace them, are great concerns."

Quicker turnarounds of ships in port mean little or no time ashore for crew members, he said.

Ellis recalled a recent talk with a seafarer.

"I'm like a car," the man told Ellis. "Now I'm a leased car. When I don't work properly, I'm sent back and somebody else takes my place. Before, I used to be an owned car. If something went wrong with me, the owner would put me in somewhere and repair me and look after me and then he'd bring me back again."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Margaret Ray agrees that "Burning Hell" offers a graphic depiction of the Bible's underworld. She realizes that the film carries a warning against viewing by young children.

She brought her four kids to the Free Christian Drive-in anyway.

"The standard theaters are getting worse and worse and worse," she said.

Although "Burning Hell" and other movies at the drive-in may be graphic, "they're spoken straight from the word of God - not from something man-made that is supposed to thrill you," she said.

For 40 years, the Free Christian Drive-in has offered free admission and free concessions.

"All of our films are entertainment," owner Jimmy Rea Jr. said. "A guy doesn't just stand up there preaching."

The theater was owned and operated by his father until his death three years ago. Now, the younger Rea runs the ancient projector — or at least tries to.

"I think the devil comes out here and plays havoc with that projector," he said. "He's a pretty good scapegoat anyway."

Several volunteers - including Rea's son, daughter and mother - work at the concession stand, nicknamed "The Ark."

Rea, who is not an ordained minister, leads the nondenominational audience in a prayer before and after the shows, and an offering is taken.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pope John Paul II has named a Philadelphia priest, Monsignor Edward J. Adams, to be archbishop and apostolic nuncio to Bangladesh.

"Archbishop-elect Adams is a very dedicated, intelligent, prayerful priest of whom the archdiocese has always been proud," said the archbishop of Philadelphia, Cardinal Anthony Bevilacqua.

Man With 'Inner Qualities' Has Fewer Than He Thinks

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Available in Maine," who lamented that women disregard him because he is not drop-dead handsome and doesn't drive a Jaguar. He included the ways in which he would show his love if only a woman would see the inner qualities of this mid-30s man with a master's degree.

Although you gave him sympathy, my double-standard alarm went off. Suspicious phrases include: "Is it lovely outside, or is it just you?" and "I'll hide cute little gifts so I can put a smile on your beautiful face." I would be willing to bet serious money that he is not talking about inner beauty.

In my experience, most average-looking women in their mid-30s have long since given up any fantasies of an Adonis in a Jaguar sweeping them off their feet. They are looking for a life partner with whom to share love, respect and the storms of life. I doubt these are the women "Available" has in mind. I would bet that he has his heart set on a beautiful woman 10 years his junior that he can put on a pedestal (or in a trophy case).

I've known several of these men, average-looking males who bemoan their lack of success with their latest obsession — who is always lovely and always much younger. I've also known many bright, witty and interesting professional women in their 30s and 40s who never have a date because all the men their age are busy pursuing pretty girls in their 20s.

"Available" might do well to examine his own values first. Perhaps he's the one who is passing judgment based on appearance. After all, shallowness knows no gender.

My husband and I are average on the looks scale. I'm 49 and he's 48, and we've been married for four wonderful years. I know what it's like to be in a partnership of equals based on love and respect, and there's nothing better.

SUSPICIOUS IN WASHINGTON

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with you concerning your response to "Feeling Guilty." You told her you saw no reason to tell her children that their father had been married previously.

My mom had told my brothers and me that she and Dad had eloped and were married by a justice of the peace.

When I was 18, my mother died. While helping Dad sort through her things, I found some pictures of her as a bride in a formal wedding gown. Several aunts and uncles and other family members were in those pictures.

This left me wondering why my three brothers and I had never been told about Mom's first marriage. I was hurt to think she didn't trust me enough to share that part of her life with me.

My grandmother was left to explain my mother's first marriage, and I was left to wonder what else I didn't know about my mother.

HURT DAUGHTER

DEAR HURT: Although I saw no reason why "Feeling Guilty" should tell her children about their father's first marriage since it was very brief and was annulled by the Catholic Church, I confirmed her option to tell her children when they were old enough to understand what a "divorce" is.

***

DEAR ABBY: The question has arisen in some of our singles' coffee "get-togethers," who should pay for the baby sitter? I am a single guy dating a divorcee with two children. When I ask her out, should I pay the sitter? Or should she?

V. IN FARMINGTON, N.M.

DEAR V.: Single women (divorced or widowed) are usually living on a tight budget, especially with small children to raise, so I would suggest that you offer to pay the sitter. If the woman feels that it is either unnecessary or inappropriate, she will object, in which case you can back off.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Sept. 15, 1996

Endeavors that just missed the mark last year were closer to succeeding than you thought. Build your new dreams on these solid foundations in the year ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not settle for immediate returns today in a situation in which you could profit more by waiting patiently. Time will be your ally. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, how much you do will not be important. You must do everything well. Spreading yourself too thin could prove to be a self-defeating technique.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you can be trusted with confidential information, but today you might be tempted to reveal several secrets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even as a last resort, try not to request favors from friends if it would inconvenience them financially. You might embarrass someone close to you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your most impressive achievements might come from your second efforts today. However, if you are impatient, you may pass up your chance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Remember past experiences today, especially those that didn't fulfill your expectations. If your memory is faulty, your performance will not be as good.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It might not be a good move at this time to get involved in a new endeavor with a person who introduced complications into your life previously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your peers consider you to be a quick thinker with the ability to make on-the-spot decisions. Today, however, snap judgments could be faulty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Consistency will be essential today, especially when trying to complete intricate tasks. If you operate in fits and starts, you may not get conclusive results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might meet someone who will cause your heart to flutter. However, after getting to know this person better, you may find that you have nothing in common.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have to handle another difficult domestic situation today. Profit from your experience by not repeating the same mistake.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might not have the ability to master unfamiliar situations today, so avoid experimenting with new methods, techniques, tools or materials.

FOOTBALL

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Whitharral was ranked No. 1 in the first week of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's weekly high school six-man football poll, which was released Thursday.

The Panthers (1-0) received six first-place votes and 75 total points after winning their opener Friday 42-0 against Southland.

Milford, which received one first-place vote, is ranked second with 66 points, followed by Gordon (1-0) with 65. Panther Creek (1-0) and Chillicothe (1-0) round out the top five.

Richland Springs (1-0) received 29 points and is ranked sixth and District 4-A member Jayton, which downed Trent 38-6, is ranked No. 7. Balmorhea (1-0) received the final first-place vote and is No. 8.

Wellman (1-0) and Groom (1-0) round out the Top 10.

HOUSTON (AP) — The first overtime game in the history of Texas high school football was a mistake, and Dickinson coach Sam Mims admits it.

The district 23-4A executive committee agrees, and Dickinson and Mims have been punished for doing it.

The Gators violated University Interscholastic League rules by playing overtime in a non-district game, last Friday night's 6-3 loss to Houston Strake Jesuit.

"The officials asked us before the game how we wanted to determine a tie, and we mistakenly assumed that it was legal to do in a non-district game, which it's not," Mims said.

The new overtime rule is mandatory in the playoffs, although districts may use it in their seasons.

UIL athletic director Charles Breithaupt was annoyed the rule was misread.

"We're disappointed that they chose to do that, because we very explicitly told all the schools not to play overtime in non-district games," he said. "It's in the memos and the coaching manuals, and we talked about it at coaching school.

Astros' Kile hurls pitching gem against Phils

HOUSTON (AP) — Darryl Kile picked a good time for a one-man show.

One night after the Houston Astros used seven pitchers, Kile gave the bullpen a complete game rest Thursday and pitched out of a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the seventh inning for a 4-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Manager Terry Collins can't recall a bigger pitching performance this season.

"There's no substitute for clutch pitching like Darryl gave us," Collins said. "We needed that as much as any game we've played this season."

Kile (12-8) gave up seven hits, struck out nine and didn't walk a batter in pitching his fourth complete game of the season.

"There's nobody in this league that will say anybody has better stuff than Darryl Kile," Collins said.

Kile's thriller gave the Astros a good send-off for a critical eight-game road trip beginning tonight at Colorado while the Cardinals are battling the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

"I think the pressure is on them (St. Louis), not us," Kile said. "We've got to go play the Rockies and if the Cards lose, we're right behind them. I think the Cards are looking more at us."

The Astros play three games against the Rockies, two at Atlanta and three at Florida before returning home to close out the regular season with three games each against the Mets and Florida.

Kile was at his best after loading the bases with none out in the seventh.

The Astros led 3-1 when the Phillies loaded the bases on singles by Jon Zuber and Wendell Magee Jr. and a hit batter. But Kile got out of trouble by striking out pinch-hitters Ruben Amaro and Benito Santiago and retiring Ricky Otero on a fly ball.

"We had a chance to get to him in the seventh but he pitched great," said Mike Williams (6-13) "I think that's the hardest I've seen him throw.

"I'm not a hitter, but I could tell when I went up there and right off the bat he threw me a fastball that I didn't have a chance."

Amaro hit a fastball on the first pitch in the seventh inning but it went foul. Kile then went to his effective curve and caught Amaro looking at the third strike and a curve also got Santiago.

"I had good command of my curveball today and you've got to give credit to the guys, they went out and got some early runs," Kile said. "That always make it easier."

The Astros scored twice in the first.

John Cangelosi doubled and scored on a single by Bagwell. An error by third baseman Kevin Sefcik moved Bagwell to second, and Derek Bell hit an RBI single. Craig Biggio walked in the third, went to second on Williams' wild throw and scored on another single by Bell.

Bagwell hit a solo home run in the eighth, his 30th of the season.

"The story of this game is Darryl Kile," Bagwell said. "To go out there and give us nine innings was huge. A big thing, too, was we jumped out 2-0 and made it easier for him."

The Phillies lamented that they allowed Kile to escape the seventh inning.

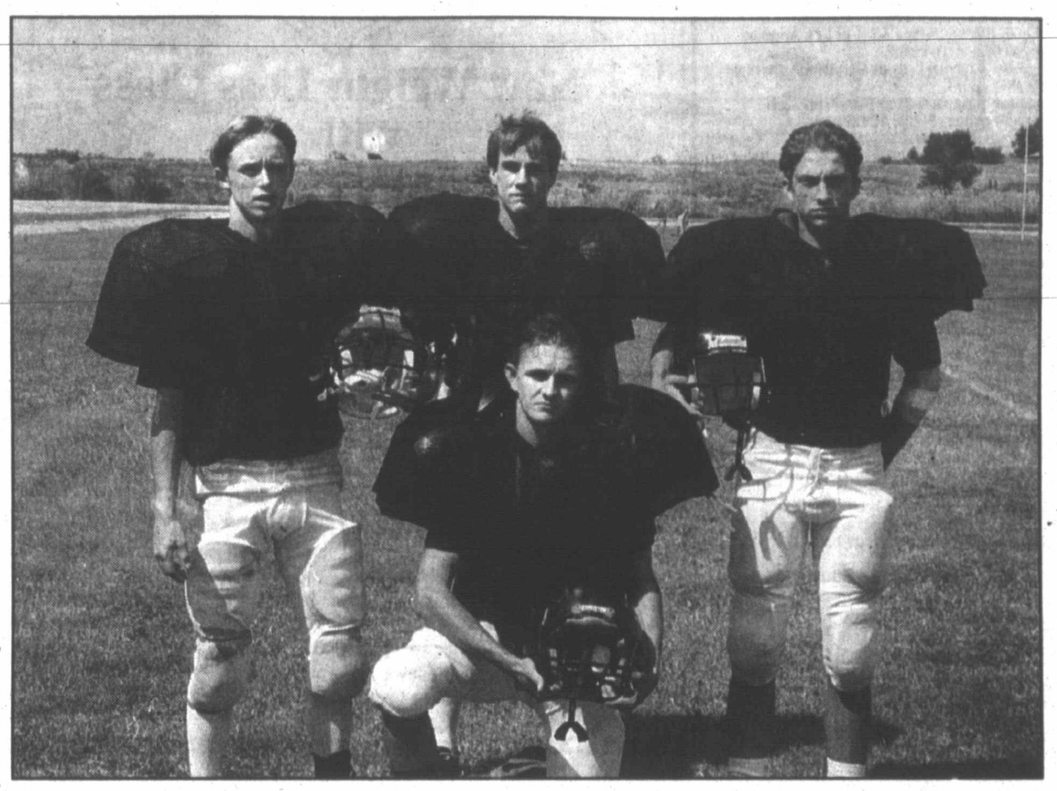

"He pitched pretty good," Phillies manager Jim Fregosi said. "He got his breaking ball over but we just let him off the hook when we had the chance.

"Our guy pitched well, too, but we had just one chance to get to Kile and we couldn't get it done. We get the bases loaded with nobody out and we can't get a hit or break the game open."

Harvester notebook

Fans should see a lot of passing from both Pampa and Amarillo High quarterbacks tonight. AHS' Dan Belcher completed 12 of 24 passes for one touchdown in the Sandies' 15-13 win over Clovis. Pampa's Clint Curtis was 7 of 20 for 113 yards and a touchdown in the Harvesters' 37-12 win over Lubbock Estacado. . . .Either 160-pound senior Jason McEwen or 160-pound sophomore Justin Roark could break into the starting lineup at defensive cornerback tonight against the Sandies. PHS head coach Dennis Cavalier will make his final decision today. . . .The Harvesters made a big jump in this week's Harris poll, moving from No. 52 to No. 30 in Class 4A. Pampa is ranked ahead of the other District 1-4A teams. Borger is No. 35, followed by Randall, 86; Canyon, 103; Dumas, 150, and Caprock, 192. La Marque is 4A's top-ranked team. . . .Pampa senior J.J. Mathis, who missed the first three days of practice this week because of a low grade fever, returned to practice Thursday and may play tonight. Mathis is the District 1-4A leader in kickoff returns. He averaged 36.7 yards in three returns against Estacado. Mathis also had 15 tackles from his free safety position. . . .Harris Rating System has Pampa favored by two over AHS. Pampa has two victories over the Sandies during the '90s and both were close contests. Pampa won 23-21 in 1991 and 27-20 in 1993. Overall, AHS has a 53-16-3 advantage. The first Pampa-Amarillo game was played in 1921. . . .Pampa linebackers Jared White and Ryan Bruce were kept busy against Estacado. White, a sophomore, had 22 total tackles and one fumble recovery. Bruce, a senior, added 15 total tackles, a fumble recovery and interception. . . .Pampa's backfield got plenty of help from its front line against Estacado. Senior center Willie Shaw and senior tackle Bryan Swift threw some key blocks. The kicking game could play a big role in tonight's game. AHS' Kyle Duncan kicked three field goals against Clovis, one from 52 yards out. Pampa's Josh Blackmon booted a 22-yard field goal against the Matadors and was a perfect 4 of 4 in extra-point conversions. . . .Looking ahead, the Harvesters will play an improved Plainview team next Friday night. Plainview also won its season opener, 14-3 against Palo Duro.

McLean seniors

Only five seniors are listed on the McLean football roster this season, but the Tigers started off fast with a 25-0 win over defending state Six-man champion Amherst in the 1996 opener last week. Mclean seniors are Chad Richards (front) and (standing, left to right) Shawn Sanderson, Charles Harris and Jason Hooper. Not pictured is Derek Glass.

Thomas making big impact

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — An undersized, overachieving underdog, Zach Thomas has earned an instant fan following as the Miami Dolphins' new middle linebacker.

His admirers include old middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti.

"Let's put it this way," Buoniconti said. "It's nice to see a football player playing the position."

By most measurements, the former Pampa High School and Texas Tech University standout is too small and slow for the job. So was Buoniconti, the leader of the Dolphins' defense during their consecutive championship seasons of 1972-73.

"You look long and hard for what you call the great athlete — 6-3 and 250 pounds with the ideal build and size and everything else," Buoniconti said. "They've been looking for that since I retired." John Offerdahl was good, but it was hard to tell because he was hurt so much. Bryan Cox was big and strong but stiff and robot-like and not a very good linebacker."

Thomas, a rookie replacement for the departed Cox, made an immediate impact with 29 tackles, one sack, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery in his first two outings. He's the centerpiece of a surprising stout defense that has allowed just 20 points and 56 yards rushing going into Sunday's game against the New York Jets.

At 5-foot-11 and 231 pounds, Thomas stirs memories of the 5-11, 220-pound Buoniconti. Thomas was drafted in the fifth round last April by Jimmy Johnson; Buoniconti was a 13th-round pick by the Boston Patriots in 1962.

"I've heard about him," Thomas said. "Someone is going to have to fill me in. I didn't really keep up with those days, but I heard he was a great player, and it's an honor to be compared to him."

San Diego Chargers find road now gets harder

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

After the San Diego Chargers disposed Seattle and Cincinnati at home, Bobby Ross said, "Now, it gets harder."

"Harder" this week may be as hard as it gets — a trip to Green Bay, where the Packers are coming off their first Monday night home game in a decade, a 39-13 thrashing of Philadelphia.

The oddsmakers concur — the Packers are 7 1/2-point favorites.

San Diego has one thing going for it: Green Bay was out to make a point Monday night before a national television audience that included the rest of the NFL's players. Teams that win games like that often let down, even as they talk about avoiding a letdown.

In some ways, these teams mirror each other, particularly on defense.

Stan Humphries, gritty as he is, isn't Brett Favre, who used to be the best "young" quarterback in the game and now is just the best quarterback, period.

OK, maybe the Chargers can defense Favre and his tight end tandem.

Can they defense 60,000 cheeseheads?

PACKERS, 20-10.

Buffalo (plus 3) at Pittsburgh (Monday night)

The Bills haven't looked particularly impressive, but they've been winning. In their first real test, they harass Mike Tomczak into a mistake or two that makes the difference.

BILLS, 19-17.

Indianapolis (plus 10) at Dallas

Normally, this spread would be too large. But the Colts (2-0) may mail this one in while saving their eight injured players, including Marshall Faulk and Tony Bennett, from more punishment. Their bye is in two weeks.

COWBOYS, 24-7.

Detroit (plus 2 1/2) at Philadelphia

The Eagles derailed the Lions 58-37 in the playoffs last year.

Ray Rhodes is angry and Wayne Fontes hasn't heard the ultimatum yet.

EAGLES, 24-21.

Baltimore (plus 3 1/2) at Houston

Another of those Franchise Free Agency Bowls. Even with no home crowd ...

OILERS, 31-14.

New York Jets (plus 12 1/2) at Miami

Keyshawn may do another meaningless TD dance. Jimmy will laugh.

DOLPHINS, 27-8.

Minnesota (plus 3 1/2) at Chicago

Warren Moon may be back. Too bad. Brad Johnson wins.

BEARS, 16-12.

Kansas City (minus 3 1/2) at Seattle

John Friesz won't replace Rick Mirer for the Seahawks.

Maybe he should.

CHIEFS, 24-6.

Arizona (plus 9 1/2) at New England

Vince Tobin is learning that a curse hangs over the Cards.

PATRIOTS, 24-18.

Jacksonville (minus 6 1/2) at Oakland

If the Raiders lose this one ...

RAIDERS, 18-15.

Washington (minus 1 1/2) at New York Giants

The last time the Giants had a six-game winning streak over the Redskins, it ended with a 17-13 loss.

REDSKINS, 17-13.

Tampa Bay (plus 13 1/2) at Denver

The good news for the Bucs is that Trent Dilfer may not play.

BRONCOS, 34-6.

New Orleans (plus 3) at Cincinnati

A game that someone (anyone) has to win.

SAINTS, 24-22.

Last Week: 7-8 (spread); 12-3 (straight up).

Season: 14-16 (spread) 23-7 (straight up).

Dodgers' Nomo throws two-hitter against Cardinals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hideo Nomo, pitching in front of a former Japanese prime minister, carried a no-hitter into the sixth inning Thursday night to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Nomo (15-10) allowed two hits in eight innings, walked three and struck out six for his fifth win in six decisions.

Nomo held the Cardinals without a hit until one out in the sixth when Ron Gant hit his 28th home run.
