A&M researchers probing Nazi fuel secrets

By LINDA GILLAN
The Los Angeles Times

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Three Texas researchers have told of their efforts to uncover Nazi Germany's secret methods of transforming coal into gasoline, hoping to help solve the nation's energy shortage.

They believe that their academic detective work can provide the United States with the necessary information to build and operate plants to convert coal into synthetic gasoline, oil, gas, and other petroleum products as quickly as the Germans did during World War II.

Their worldwide search for the secret documents has taken on all the suspense of a spy novel. If the project is successful, it could mean that coal conversion could be accomplished in only five to six years instead of the 20 some have predicted.

Germany's achievements were impressive. In 1933, according to the research team, the nation imported 85 per cent of its oil, but by the end of the war about 75 per cent of the nation's fuel was synthetically produced. The Germans could also transform coal into synthetic margarine.

Drs. Kurt Irgolic, Arnold Krammer and Richard Waingerdi appeared before the subcommittee on fossil and nuclear energy research, development and demonstration in Washington Tuesday to testify on the feasibility of coal conversion.

This panel of the House Committee on Science and Technology was told that although producing synthetic fuels was possible, the United States today uses 20 times more oil per capita than the Germans did during World War II and that the amount of synthetic fuel produced in Germany during the war would be used up in eight days in the United States today.

The researchers stressed that coal conversion, at best, could serve only as a stopgap measure until nuclear and solar energy sources were developed.

The German plans must be updated with the technical advances of the last 30 years and adapted for computerization.

The project is under way at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical University in this small town.

It was Waingerdi, a chemical engineer who formerly taught at Texas A and M and now works for a Houston firm, who first saw the parallel between the fuel crisis in present-day America and that in Nazi Germany. Waingerdi knew of the existence of the German documents and initiated the search about a year ago. It has led to the National Archives, the federal Bureau of Mines, several

Area forecaster can't anticipate winter's severity

By MARLEEN RAY

After an unusually harsh winter last season, many Midlanders may be concerned about what the area's upcoming winter will be like.

Unfortunately, however, the person most of us listen to when it comes to weather predictions, the weatherman, isn't able to make a definite forecast about the severity or the mildness of this winter.

Jim Lunney, meteorologist-in-charge at the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Air Terminal, said recently the station doesn't have the capability to predict weather two to three months in advance.

"Chances are it (the winter) will not be as cold as the last one was because the last one was colder than usual," he said.

Last December the average temperature was 44.3 degrees, 1.6 degrees below normal, with the lowest temperature of the month, 14 degrees, recorded on the 31st.

In general, December is normally a dry month, Lunney said. Rainfall measured only .08 inch last December, about .44 inch below the average. It didn't snow on Christmas Day last year, and Lunney said chances are very, very slim that it will happen this year.

He said Midland has enjoyed a white Christmas only once in the 12 years he has been here.

Last January, Midland had an average temperature of 40.5 degrees, 3.1 degrees below normal. On Jan. 10, 1977, the weather service recorded an eight-degree reading, the lowest one of an abnormally cold month. Yet the precipitation level was just about normal with .7 inch of snow occurring on Jan. 8, 1977.

During February, Lunney said, the Southwest was "blessed with temperatures slightly above normal" while the rest of the country was experiencing very harsh weather. The last part of winter here wasn't all that bad, he recalled.

Temperatures averaged 50.2 degrees for the month of February, 2.4 degrees above normal, with .55 inch of rainfall recorded. The lowest temperature of the month was on the 28th with 25 degrees reported.

Even though the weather station isn't able to predict in any accurate way what winter will be like this year, the Old Farmer's Almanac has come out with its speculations. Overall, the almanac foresees that this November should be rather rainy, and December should be on the chilly side. Temperatures are expected to be warmer than average through March, when the winter season ends, with February and March being drier than normal.

Because of severe winter weather last year accompanied by curtailments of natural gas supplies to customers, particularly in the northeastern and north central United States, some Midlanders may be worried that this winter will bring the same discomforting curtailments to Midland. Bob Mills, director of public relations for Pioneer Natural Gas Co. in Amarillo, said there should be no problems in providing natural gas to home owners, churches, schools and hospitals in Texas.

Noting that Texas gas supplies are dependent on how the federal energy bill turns out, Mills said no curtailments are expected unless there is an extended cold spell, and then only major industrial customers will be affected.

Bill McGrew, an official for Texas Electric Service Co., said recently the company is "geared up" for whatever

Wholesale prices soar after decline

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped eight-tenths of one percent last month, the biggest increase since April, as farm prices rose for the first time in six months, the government reported today.

After declining a total of 12.5 percent since April, prices for farm products climbed 2.4 percent in October, signaling higher prices ahead at the supermarket.

Higher prices were reported for livestock, fresh and dried fruits and vegetables, grains, live poultry and

Also contributing to the sharp wholesale price increase last month were cars and trucks, reflecting the bigger price tags for the new 1978 models.

Wholesale prices are paid by retailers and manufacturers before they reach the consumer, but any price changes eventually show up at retail stores.

The October wholesale price increase was the largest since a 1.1 percent rise in April, at a time when inflation was rising at a 10 percent annual rate.

Food prices were largely responsible for the rapid price increases earlier this year, but as they began to decline last spring the rate of inflation began to slow.

Wholesale prices, which had risen one percent or more for three consecutive months between February and April, rose only four-tenths of a percent in May. They then dropped by seven-tenths of a percent in June and by one-tenth of a percent in July before rising one-tenth of a percent in August and one-half of a percent in September.

The Carter administration has predicted an inflation rate of about six percent for the entire year, which is regarded as still high but acceptable. In 1976, the inflation rate was 4.8 percent.

Underscoring the news of the soaring wholesale prices was another Labor Department report that weekly paychecks of most American workers were $15 fatter last May than a year ago, but inflation destroyed any real gain.

Six-year-old Lubbock boy's body found

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The body of six-year-old Johnny Turner Jr. has been found by searchers in rugged Yellowhouse Canyon southeast of here.

The first-grader has been missing since Oct. 26 when witnesses told police they saw a man with a small child at a service station.

Philip Carey Brasfield, 28, of nearby Slaton, was arrested at his home last Monday and charged with aggravated kidnapping and jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond.

When he was arrested, Brasfield was already free on $5,000 bond in a child molesting case.

TEL AVIV, Isreal (AP) — An American aboard an El Al jumbo jet flying over Yugoslavia died today after the cabin suddenly lost pressure and the pilot put the jetliner into a dive from 33,000 feet to 14,000 feet, spokesman for the Israeli airline reported.

Proposed test bans bolster Vance

By MURREY MARDER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance quickly welcomed Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's offer Wednesday to stop peaceful nuclear testing, along with weapons tests, as "a major step" toward halting all nuclear explosions.

The Soviet decision to forego "so-called peaceful nuclear explosions," Vance told a news conference, "is in the direction of what we have been talking about for several months" to achieve "a comprehensive test ban."

Brezhnev's offer still leaves some questions on closing off the last area — underground — where the two nations conduct nuclear blasts.

The Soviet leader proposed "a moratorium" on peaceful tests, as distinct from "a ban on all nuclear weapons tests for a definite period." The United States wants a flat ban on both, with a review within "four to five years." The Soviet Union reportedly wants a limit of about three years.

The Soviet action is "an important step" in seeking "a downturn in the arms race," Vance said. Although Vance did not mention it, a total U.S.-Soviet test ban would overtake two treaties, now pending before an unenthusiastic Congress, to limit nuclear weapons and peaceful tests to 150 kilotons (150,000 tons of TNT equivalent).

Vance made no immediate comment on Brezhnev's other proposal, to halt production "by all states" of "atomic, hydrogen or neutron bombs or missiles." Such sweeping arms proposals are regarded by U.S. officials, who have made some sweeping proposals of their own in past years, as postures rather than practical negotiating offers.

Overall, Vance told reporters, "I think that there has been an improvement in relationships between ourselves and the Soviet Union in the last several weeks and I think this is positive."

He acknowledged, however, that the Carter administration privately has raised with the Soviet Union, "with great seriousness," American concern that some leading Soviet dissidents will be tried on charges of working for U.S. intelligence agencies.

That was one of the issues raised by Vance in a meeting Monday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoliy F. Dobrynin.

Guy Lombardo

Band leader critically ill

HOUSTON (AP) — Famed ban leader Guy Lombardo, 75, was reported in critical condition at Methodist Hospital today.

A spokesman would not specify the nature of the illness but it was known that Lombardo underwent aneurysm surgery Sept. 23.

Lombardo re-entered the hospital last Thursday.

The September surgery involved the resection or removal of an aneurysm, or ballooning, section of the descending thoracic aorta. On Oct. 8, Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, internationally known vascular surgeon, said Lombardo was in excellent condition. The band leader left the hospital Oct. 18.

Young 'aficionados' dig lesson in music

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

It's a delight to behold a happy face and even better to see rows of them facing a rousing musical workout.

And about 1,500 Midland youngsters saw a goateed-draped happy face turn toward them, just as the 80-piece orchestra was recovering from its vigorous labors.

"Thank you very much," said Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, the agile conductor who obviously enjoys his work and the sounds of his pride, The Midland-Odessa Symphony. "Gee, it's great to be here."

The kids were beginning to think so, too. The maestro had just led his company through the stirring "Dance of the Comedians," a Bohemian folk dance.

It was work, and Hohstadt was trying not to pant too heavily into the microphone.

"Excuse me for being out of breath," he said, "but that last bit of music took the breath out of me." He was the lively one up at front and center, just where conductors belong.

Hohstadt's "task" was to give the fourth- and sixth-grade students an entertaining lesson in folk music.

Their teachers had more or less prepared them for the hour-long concert in Midland High School's auditorium. So what Hohstadt told them wasn't totally foreign, although some of the tunes were.

He said a tidbit about American folk songs and then let 'em hear.

"We have working songs, love songs, cradle songs, party songs, patriotic songs, dancing songs, story songs and, finally, we have what I call crying songs . . . very sad. . . ."

After each number or melody, the kids applauded and hurrahed Hohstadt and the symphony. Filling the auditorium were the sounds of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "Shenandoah," "Camp Town Races," "Deep River" and the ever-prancing "Yankee Doodle."

Again, without prompting, came the applause.

"Thank you very much," said the conductor. The pleasure was mutual.

He was about to bring forth a lesson. It would be demonstrated live.

"For a folk song to be a folk song," he explained, "someone has got to keep on singing it."

His "someone" of the hour was Linda Jean, a red-haired folk singer from Fort Davis. Appropriately enough, she was donned in green and Scottish plaid. She came from the Davis Mountains, where she sings "for the birds and wild animals."

For a change (not really), she came to the big city just to sing and play the guitar for youngsters like those in the audience.

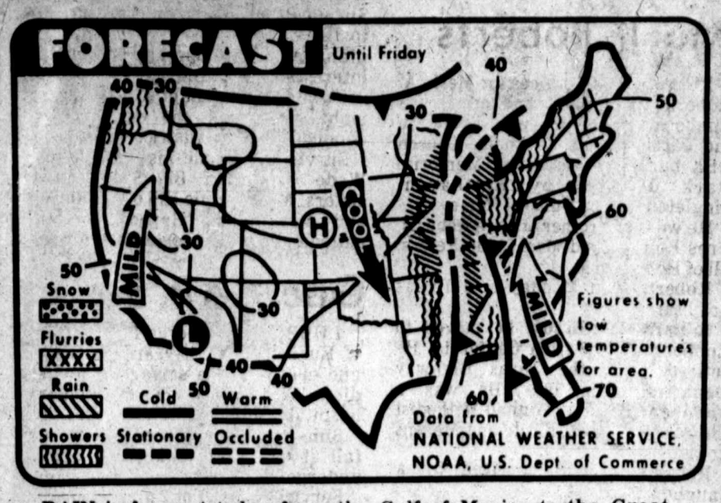

The symphony gently backed her up as she went through "Greensleeves."

Later, she sang the English folk song "The Fox Went Out on a Chilly Night" and turned to Americana with her rendition of "The Erie Canal."

The latter was a working folk song

Arms resolution agreed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Western powers and the African bloc have agreed on a resolution for a U.N. arms embargo against South Africa, and the United States has indicated it may impose some economic restrictions on the racially segregated nation.

The 49-nation African group met Wednesday and approved a Western resolution that had been revised to meet African objections.

The resolution, calling for a mandatory embargo to halt the sale of all arms to South Africa, is expected to receive unanimous approval from the 15 members of the Security Council on Friday.

In Washington, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance announced the U. S. government is calling its commercial attache home from Johannesburg to review American economic relations with South Africa.

The United States, Britain and France on Monday vetoed an African proposal in the Security Council for sweeping economic sanctions against South Africa. But Vance's announcement indicated the United States, second only to Britain in the value of its business investment in South Africa, might be preparing to impose some limited economic restrictions of its own.

The Carter administration was reported considering stopping the U.S. Export-Import Bank's guarantees of loans to U.S. exporters to South Africa, State Department officials said. Such guarantees have totaled about $200 million a year.

Vance also announced that the United States has halted the export to South Africa of all equipment with a military potential and is withdrawing the U.S. naval attache in Pretoria, reducing the number of American military attaches in South Africa to four.

The governments of the United States and most other nations are already observing voluntary arms embargoes against South Africa because of the white minority's apartheid policy of racial separation and repression. But Vance's announcement means a ban on shipment of U.S. spare parts for military aircraft and such borderline items as radar and communications equipment.

South Africa produces most of the armaments it needs, and informed sources at U.N. headquarters say that Israel is the only government openly selling it arms. But the sources say the South Africans buy some military equipment surreptiously from private dealers abroad who sell without the approval of their governments.

The new campaign for international sanctions against South Africa began two weeks ago after the Pretoria government banned the country's two leading black newspapers.

A&M project probes fuel conversion

Air Force bases, private garages and to Europe.

Waingerdi knew also that the soft coal mined in Germany's Ruhr was similar to Texas lignite deposits that total 110 billion tons.

At the close of World War II, a 26-member team of American chemists and engineers was sent to Germany to collect hundreds of thousands of scientific documents throughout the country. They vacuumed up every scrap of information, some within hours of the war's end.

In 1936, German dictator Adolf Hitler issued a four-year plan to prepare for war, stipulating that coal conversion plants must be operational by 1939. Financed by bonds, 18 plants were complete by that year, and their production climbed steadily through the Battle of the Bulge in 1944.

Twenty-five to 30 plants were operating at war's end in 1945 with only 13 percent damage. Records show that most bomb damage was repaired during the war within six to nine months.

"After the war, one of the plants was dismantled and moved to Louisiana, Mo., where the Bureau of Mines operated it until 1953 as a demonstration plant, providing some of the fuel for the Burlington Railroad. Only a portion of the German technology was exploited in the operation of this particular plant, however. And very few of the German documents were examined after the war since natural fuels were plentiful and cheap in the United States.

With the 1973 Arab oil embargo and the now-probable tax burdens for industries that fail to convert to coal, synthetic, coal-based fuels and lubricants could become an important part of the nation's energy mix. Already Dow Chemical, Diamond Shamrock and Union Carbide are providing half the $250,000 annual cost of and Texas A&M project.

South Korea gradually giving ground on Park

The Washington Post

SEOUL, South Korea — Slowly and grudgingly, the South Korean government is giving some ground in the tug-of-war with Washington over Tongsun Park, but no one is willing to say how much.

Competent sources describe the government as shaken by the new threat of losing U.S. military assistance if it prevents Park from giving testimony in the congressional lobbying scandal.

As a result, the sources said, the government is shifting from its adamant refusal to make Park available for questioning.

Sneider is scheduled to meet again this week with the foreign minister as soon as the State Department has examined the package of proposals, some of which are said to have been considered previously in bargaining sessions between the two governments.

The Korean press speculated that the government offered to make Tongsun Park available for interrogation in a neutral third country after a preliminary questioning by U.S. officials in Seoul. On Monday the Hapdong news agency said the foreign minister had made such an offer at his meeting with Sneider.

A similar proposal made here two weeks ago by Assistant U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti was rejected by South Korean officials.

The new willingness to compromise is a substantial change in attitude from that which prevailed a month ago, when the government insisted Park was a free citizen whose civil rights would be violated if he were forcibly required to testify.

At least 25 persons killed as floods, quake ravage Balkans

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Floods caused by torrential rains killed at least 25 persons in parts of Athens and the neighboring port of Piraeus, and an earthquake shook parts of northern Greece, southern Bulgaria and southeastern Yugoslavia today.

There were no reports of casualties or damage from the quake, which registered between 5 and 6 on the Richter scale.

The rains which caused millions of dollars in damage began in the area of the Greek capital Wednesday and continued until just after midnight.

The government declared a state of emergency. Police, troops and other rescuers searched flooded buildings and about 1,500 stranded cars in Athens and Piraeus, 5½ miles to the south. Hundreds were rescued.

Surfaces of many major streets collapsed. Lightening knocked out electricity in much of the Piraeus area.

Several hours after the rain stopped, a sharp earthquake was felt at Kavala, a port in Macedonia 200 miles north of Athens on the Aegean Sea. Thousands fled into the rainsoaked streets at 4:30 a.m., but there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

Greek seismologists measured the quake six on the Richter scale and located the epicenter in the northern Aegean. The seismological institute in Skopje, Yugoslavia, reported a Richter reading of 5.3 and placed the epicenter about 125 miles northeast of Skopje. BTA, the official Bulgarian news agency, reported a Richter reading of 5 and said the epicenter was about 60 miles southeast of Sofia, near the border with northern Greece.

All agreed that the quake occurred about 4:30 a.m., or 2:30 Greenwich Mean Time.

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. An earthquake of 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage, and 6 can indicate severe damage.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 7.9.

about a mule: "She's a good old worker and a good old pal." The youngsters clapped and sang along.

They joined in on some other songs to follow.

"Boy! She's fantastic, isn't she?" asked the conductor.

"Yeahhhhh!" answered the concert-goers.

It was Hohstadt's turn to again take over the music.

"To me," he said, "a folk song is just like a wildflower. Folk songs just miraculously spring from the hearts of people, and wildflowers just miraculously spring from . . . Mother Earth."

For their next numbers, Hohstadt led his musicians through Tchaikovsky's "Italian Caprice" and Ravel's "Bolero."

Then harpist Pamela Hahn of Midland played the old Scottish standby "Loch Lomond."

The climax was yet to come.

For the "big one," Hohstadt asked for a volunteer from the audience to be guest conductor. Hands immediately went up and an unseasoned volunteer was picked.

Up to the stage, dressed in blue jeans, a Little Rascal T-shirt and tennis shoes, sauntered another redhead: 11-year-old Lawana Row, who hails from De Zavala Elementary School.

Hohstadt showed her the basic routine with the baton, and the guest conductor got the 80 musicians heavily into "Gonna Fly Now," theme song from the movie "Rocky." On the "jazz" drums was Iraan's Lucky Floyd who, like Hohstadt in earlier numbers, really got a workout on that one.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" sort of rounded out this semi-annual concert for the school kids, who were returned to school in 25 yellow school buses.

Danny Robertson did it. Back on Sept. 4, he picked what became Midland County's first bale of cotton of the season. It was dryland cotton from south of town. Robertson, who farms 750 acres, was congratulated for his early work at noon today by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Midland Farmers Co-op did the ginning.

Criminal code rewrite try progressing

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in a decade, Congress is making headway in the arduous task of rewriting some 3,000 federal criminal laws dating back to 1789.

The Senate Judiciary Committee approved the criminal code package 12-2 Wednesday, sending it to the Senate floor.

Passage of the legislation is unlikely before next year, however. It has yet to be considered by the House Judiciary Committee, and a full Senate vote is not anticipated this year.

"I am very hopeful that the full Senate will act favorably on a new code as one of the first orders of business next year," Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said after the committee voted to recommend passage.

Cold weather due to continue

It's cold, and the weatherman says Midlanders can expect it to stay that way for awhile if only because it's November.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal, the forecast for Midland, Odessa, Rankin, Big Lake and Garden City calls for clear skies tonight. Friday should be fair and "not quite as warm." The low tonight should be in the upper 30s, and Friday's high should be in the upper 60s. Winds are expected to be light and variable by tonight.

For Andrews, Lamesa, Big Spring, Stanton, the forecast calls for fair skies through Friday with no significant change in temperature. The low tonight should be in the 30s, with Friday's high in the middle 60s. Winds should become light and variable tonight.

Wednesday's high temperature was 69 degrees. The low was 37 degrees. The record high for Nov. 3 is 85 degrees set in 1946. The record low for today is 29 degrees set in 1951.

Glistening sidewalks as depicted in a recent downtown scene tell much of this year's rainfall story in Midland. Now comes word from the weatherman that December normally is a dry month for the Permian Basin. The Old Farmer's Almanac, however, holds promise of rain for November. (Staff Photo)

Winter's severity unsure

the winter season brings. He said TESCO is in good shape to handle this area's energy needs if this season is like last winter.

McGrew said residents who want to conserve energy this winter, but still want to keep their homes as warm as possible, may follow these energy-saving tips:

(1) Set the thermostat for 65 to 68 degrees, then leave it alone because setting it higher won't heat the house any faster. If no one is at home during the day, set the thermostat five degrees lower than usual. A 50- to 60-degree setting will help residents cut down on their heating bills when they plan to be away from their homes for several days.

(2) Have a qualified serviceman inspect the entire heating system at the beginning of the season.

(3) Keep the filters clean by checking them at least once each month. Dirty filters cause the equipment to work harder and use more energy.

(4) Invest in some insulation.

(5) Prevent excessive heat loss by weather-stripping and caulking around doors and windows. Also, storm doors and windows are good for stopping heat loss.

(6) Open the draperies or shades on the sunny side of the house to let the sun shine in. Otherwise, keep them closed to help keep the warm air in.

(7) Be sure the damper to the fireplace is closed when it is not in use.

Lawsuit filed against Estes

TYLER (AP) — Convicted West Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes and Tyler millionaire Billy Pyron are the subject of a $6 million damage suit filed by a Mississippi promoter who claims Estes bilked him in a 1976 business deal.

Don Trull, whose allegations rekindled state and federal probes into Estes' business dealings, filed his suit under the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, claiming he paid Estes $125,000 which was forwarded to Pyron to buy property in Abilene, Andrews and Big Spring.

Trull said in his suit he agreed to buy the land as part of a business deal in which Estes would secure a $1.6 million loan for him. He said he also agreed to purchase three virtually bankrupt corporations "owned or controlled by" Estes.

However, Trull, who now lives in Tyler, said the loan never materialized and his money was not returned.

Pyron said he was unaware of the alleged business deal.

John Connally's busy schedule prompts presidential speculation

By BILL CURRY
The Washington Post

SALT LAKE CITY — It had been only 361 days since America last elected a president, and it would be exactly 1,100 more until the next time, — yet here was John B. Connally on the 29th day of the month making his 19th speech of the month.

He had been squeezed six abreast on a jetliner, had been splashed on from the flight attendants cart and had carried his own luggage through vast airport concourses. The traveling took the better part of the day and even before it was over, Connally turned and said, "What was it Mondale said, he didn't want to spend the rest of his life in hotels?"

All to speak for 35 minutes to a chicken-fed audience at the Western Republican Conference. But when he was done, Tess Gregor of the Utah State Central Committee shook the hand of the silver-haired Connally and delivered the results: "I didn't think I'd like you, but today I fell in love with you."

In many minds, there is little doubt what "Big John" Connally is up to. "Well, he's running for president," concludes Richard Richards, the state party ex-chairman who rebuilt the Republican Party in Utah.

Yet Connally, who last month announced the formation of a political action committee with a $1 million fund-raising goal, answers the question with less commitment. He says simply, "I don't know how you stop that assumption. The alternative is for me to do nothing, to retire from politics."

Connally assures that no decision has been made on 1980, that he is working only to increase the number of Republicans elected to the nation's statehouses, gubernatorial mansions and Congress next year.

"'78 will be the crucial test of whether the mood of the country is what I think it is," he said.

His current efforts, however — raising funds to finance his activities, to meet Republicans everywhere and to distribute to next year's candidates — are crucial to all that.

"If he's going to be a candidate," says Keith L. Brown, Colorado national committeeman from Denver, "he certainly has to be doing what he's doing now."

Connally even professes mixed feelings for the office. He is, after all, the man who as governor of Texas was riding in front of John F. Kennedy when he was killed, the man who saw his fellow Texan and close friend Lyndon B. Johnson virtually driven from the presidency.

'Kelly Girl,' an 'innocent' rag doll and the latest in a series of promotional efforts by Kelly Services, has aroused the ire of several feminist organizations. A letter delivered to doll recipients is also cited as containing "sexual overtones and double meanings." (AP Laserphoto)

'Kelly Girl' causes ire

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A corporation that specializes in temporary office help is sending someone new into the field these days — a cuddly "Kelly Girl" rag doll.

But some secretaries and women's groups are not cuddling up to the pinafored doll.

Some 35,000 copies of the doll are being distributed by Kelly Services Inc. as part of a nationwide promotional effort.

"They're talking about women as dolls and playthings, and that raises a lot of connotations," said Linda Miller, president of the Detroit chapter of the National Organization for Women.

She said the chapter had drafted a letter of complaint, which would be sent to Kelly Services.

A spokeswoman at Kelly Services' world headquarters in Detroit said the company had received no complaints about the dolls, the latest in a series of promotions that have included birthday cakes and tiny trees for top clients.

"When a company goes to the extent of doing something like this, they certainly don't want to alienate anyone," said Ann Reynolds, public relations director. "We're just shocked. We didn't set out to offend anyone, and we wouldn't want anyone to think anything else."

DEATHS

M. C. Hodge

SLATON — M. C. Hodge, 73, father of Yolane King of Midland, died here Wednesday after a sudden illness.

Services are pending with Englunds funeral home.

A native of Kansas, Hodge had lived in Slaton 40 years. He was a retired railroad conductor for Santa Fe Railroad. He was a member of the First Christian Church.

Other survivors include his wife, three sons, two daughters, two sisters, seven grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Miss Uselton

Birdie E. Uselton, 71, of 4409 Pasadena Drive died Tuesday afternoon in a Midland hospital.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home with the Rev. Tommy Nelson, pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church, officiating. He was to be assisted by the Rev. Bill Skaggs, associate minister of Kelview Heights Baptist Church. Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Miss Uselton was born June 12, 1906, in Tony, Ala., and spent her early life in Bonham. She moved to Pecos in 1937 and lived there for a short time. She had been a Midland resident the past 33 years. She was employed by Price Crawley Drug Store and before that, she worked at Daniel Drug Store.

Survivors include her brother, Jay Uselton of Midland; a sister, Mrs. Bessie Box of Bonham; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Dell Uselton of Midland; four nephews, and two nieces.

Pallbearers were to be Leon Shrader, Wes Graham, Roy Greer, Kenneth Kinsey, Charlie Palmer and Brawley Beecham.

Mrs. Williams

SHREVEPORT, La. — Services were Saturday in the First Presbyterian Church for Mrs. Marjorie Adams Williams, 80, mother of Mrs. John Scherer of Midland. Burial was in Forrest Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Williams died recently at her residence in Shreveport, La., following a lengthy illness.

She was a native of Union City, Tenn. She had been a resident of Shreveport, La., for the past 50 years.

Merle Roberts

LUBBOCK — Services for Merle A. Roberts, 77, of Dallas and formerly of Lubbock, will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the First United Methodist Church with burial in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home.

He was the brother of Nate Roberts, Pres Roberts and Mrs. Stella Peters, all of Hobbs, N.M.

Roberts died Monday in a Dallas, hospital.

A native of Brady, he moved to Lubbock in 1943 from California. He retired from the Texas Highway Department in 1965. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Scottish Rite and Masons Lodge.

Roberts also is survived by a daughter.

The family requests memorials be given to the Heart Fund, the American Cancer Society and the American Heart Association.

J. H. Choate

BIG SPRING — John Harold Choate, 79, a longtime Howard County resident and rancher, died Wednesday in a Big Spring hospital.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home with burial in Trinity Memorial Park.

Choate was born Jan. 23, 1898, in Ponatoc. He married Vera Wade Aug. 16, 1922, in Big Spring. He moved in 1922 to Fort Stockton, where he was ranch foreman on the White and Baker Ranch. He worked for the Big Spring Police Department from 1937 to 1941, and since that time he managed and operated ranching interests south of Big Spring.

Choate was a Baptist. He served eight years on the Midway Independent School District Board.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Wade Choate of Big Spring; two sisters, Mrs. Mamie Hill of Big Spring and Mrs. Merle Haygood of Annandale, Va., and two grandchildren.

George P. Sims

LUBBOCK — George Patrick Sims of Eunice, N.M., 49-year-old rancher and operator of a salvage company, died Wednesday in a Lubbock hospital.

Sims, who was injured Oct. 21 in a fall at Lovington, N.M., died before undergoing surgery.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church of Eunice with the Rev. Robert Thompson, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Lovington, N.M., and the Rev. Wayland Boyd, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Eunice Cemetery.

Sims was born April 15, 1928, in Eunice. He was a member of the Boy Scouts' Conquistador Council executive board. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Sims, were pioneer ranchers in the southern portions of Lea County. They died in the late 1960s.

Survivors include his wife, Aline, of the home; a son, George Patrick Sims Jr. of Eunice; three sisters, Ellie Spears of Hobbs, Winnie Kennann of Eunice and Bess Daugherty of Lovington, and a brother, Leo Sims of Hobbs.

A&M enlists computers in battle against pests

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP)—Scientists at Texas A&M University have enlisted computers in the constant battle against crop-threatening pests and insects fought by the nation's farmers.

The project, called "Bugnet," uses eight portable computers to process information from the field and help farmers plan more prudent use of pesticides.

Dr. Don W. DeMichele, associate director of the university's Biosystems Research Division, said in a recent interview: "The program will help farmers eliminate the costly guesswork of spraying pesticides. Another advantage is that it will make information available to people in the field much faster.

"Using conventional means, such as publishing our findings, could take 10 years before the information is of any value to the farmer," he said.

DeMichele said, "I envision that in three years we'll have this type of small computer in offices throughout the Texas Agricultural Extension Service."

When a farmer spots shedding from a cotton plant, for instance, he can call in an extension service field worker who will inspect the crop and feed his information into the computers.

"Then our Bugnet system will determine immediately if the shedding is natural or if spraying for the boll weevils, a common cotton pest, is necessary."

Proposal to split court succeeds in splitting panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to split the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals into two bodies has divided the House Judiciary Committee along lines similar to those of the old civil rights battles.

The committee is planning to vote next week on whether to split the 5th into a "new 5th" and a new 11th Circuit.

The "new 5th" would cover Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. The 11th would include Texas and Louisiana.

At the behest of Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., the committee's chairman, the Senate approved the division earlier this year. But the old civil rights coalition is working to prevent the House from doing the same.

"If (the 5th Circuit) has long been viewed as a place to go to make sure your constitutional rights are protected. It has a lot of respect and credibility on civil rights issues, women's issues and humanitarian issues, and we don't know what might happen if it is split up," said Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas.

The NAACP, in opposing the division, has been more explicit. Clarence Mitchell and Eric Schnapper, in testimony on the issue, said the division would wreck the appellate court's usefulness to blacks.

Mitchell said that judges like John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans, Thomas Gee of Austin, and Chief Judge John R. Brown of Houston, "who have been among the most sensitive members of the court" on civil rights issues, would be on the new 11th Circuit bench and have no jurisdiction over cases arising in states which would comprise the "new 5th."

Schnapper said that of the nine judges who would remain in the "new 5th," seven are "among those least sensitive" to civil rights issues.

In particular, he said, blacks fear the fact that Judge James P. Coleman of Mississippi would, by virtue of seniority, become chief judge for the "new 5th" and have the power to assign the judges to hear civil rights cases. He said Coleman was not sympathetic to blacks when he was governor of Mississippi and has not changed since becoming a judge.

Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., is sponsoring the House proposal to divide the circuit. Flowers and his supporters say their effort has nothing to do with civil rights. It is a matter of efficiency.

They point to the huge caseload the 15 judges have had to assume. Both the House and Senate agree that 11 new judges are needed in the states involved to handle the number of appeals.

In 1961, there were 630 appeals filed in the circuit. Last year, there were 3,629. The judges render decisions on more than half of the cases without hearing oral arguments. They take short-cuts on the written opinions they deliver in an effort to cope with the burden.

Adding 11 judges to the existing court would "be completely unwieldy. You'd have a real mess on your hands," says Rep. Sam Hall, D-Texas.

As for the civil rights groups, he said, "I don't follow their reasoning. I can't see a diminution of the rights of those organizations if you divide it."

Classes dismissed

BIG SPRING — Students in Midland and approximately 26 area towns will be dismissed from classes Friday, as teachers attend the Texas State Teachers Association District 18 convention in Big Spring.

The convention will be in the coliseum at Howard College.

Teachers will elect new officers and attend meetings on such topics as bilingual-bicultural education, council for exceptional children and student pregnancy.

Heavyweight pumpkin soon to be in pies

BARBOURSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — George Mumma has something in his backyard that is orange, weighs 232 pounds and would have made a dynamite Jack O'Lantern.

A retired vocational agriculture instructor, Mumma says he's been growing giant pumpkins for three years.

"A fella gave me the seeds," Mumma said. "He just said they were from a big pumpkin. I didn't even give it any special care. It just kept growing on its own."

Mumma likes to eat the raw seeds from a smaller variety of pumpkins he grows, but there's one thing he likes better — pumpkin pie.

Burglary reported by laundry

Burglars entered the Midland Maytag Laundry sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning and took six pairs of pants, three cases of soft drinks, an iron and change, valued at a total of $188, according to police.

Police said entry to the business was gained through a duct in the ceiling.

True colors show

There are those in the West who were hailing "Eurocommunism" as a new democratic force not aligned with Moscow that would transform European politics. Now, however, they should know better. However Eurocommunism might transform European politics, it has revealed itself in recent weeks as effectively undemocratic and effectively aligned with Moscow.

What happened earlier in October in France is instructive on the first point. The Communist Party and the Socialist Party, united since 1972 and the odds-on favorites to capture the general election in March, fell out with each other. The particular differences concerned nationalization of industry and wage rates, but the general point of the differences was remarkably clear.

The Socialist Party showed itself for what it historically has been, a party of left-wing reform, while the Communist Party showed itself for what many non-Communists in the West have thought it not to be, a party bent on the destruction of French democracy and the creation of a new Communist state.

As for the effective alignment of the Eurocommunists with Moscow, one should consider that the leaders of the Communist parties in Italy and Spain have pledged themselves anew to Marxist-Leninist principals and refused to deny that the Soviet Union is their legitimate version of socialist order. The pledge and the refusal are tantamount to alignment with Moscow. Walter Lacqueur of Georgetown University has pointed out that "as long as the Eurocommunists profess to believe that the Soviet Union constitutes a higher form of social and political organization than elsewhere, they aren't independent."

As obvious as it seems that Eurocommunism isn't the democratic marvel it was cranked up to be, it is notable that the attitude of the Carter administration toward the prospects of Communists' entering the governments of Italy and France is still one of indifference. As such, it is a departure from the attitude of administrations past.

At a recent conference in Washington, D.C., former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger remarked that the current administration's attitude is evidence that it fails to understand that the containment of Communist regimes has worked to preserve the possibilities of human freedom in the world. The Carter administration, said Mr. Kissinger, has agitated for human rights, but it has not shown a matching concern for those kinds of governments that institutionally conduce to the preservation of those rights.

Cyrus Vance, the current secretary of state, recently remarked, in the administration's trope of indifference, that the Soviet Union has more to fear from the advent of Eurocommunism than the United States. As the Eurocommunists palpably behave like the Communists they are, against democracy and according to the ideal of Soviet communism, Mr. Vance usefully might ask whether the ones who really fear the advent of Eurocommunism are not the Europeans themselves.

Be careful, please

Skateboards, which have been around since the 1950s, have increased dramatically in number in the last three or four years. The number increased from about 14 million in 1975 to 20 million in 1976.

But at the same time, there has been a dramatic growth in the number of injuries associated with skateboards.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates 375,000 persons will be injured in skateboard accidents this year, more than will be injured playing scholastic, collegiate and backyard football.

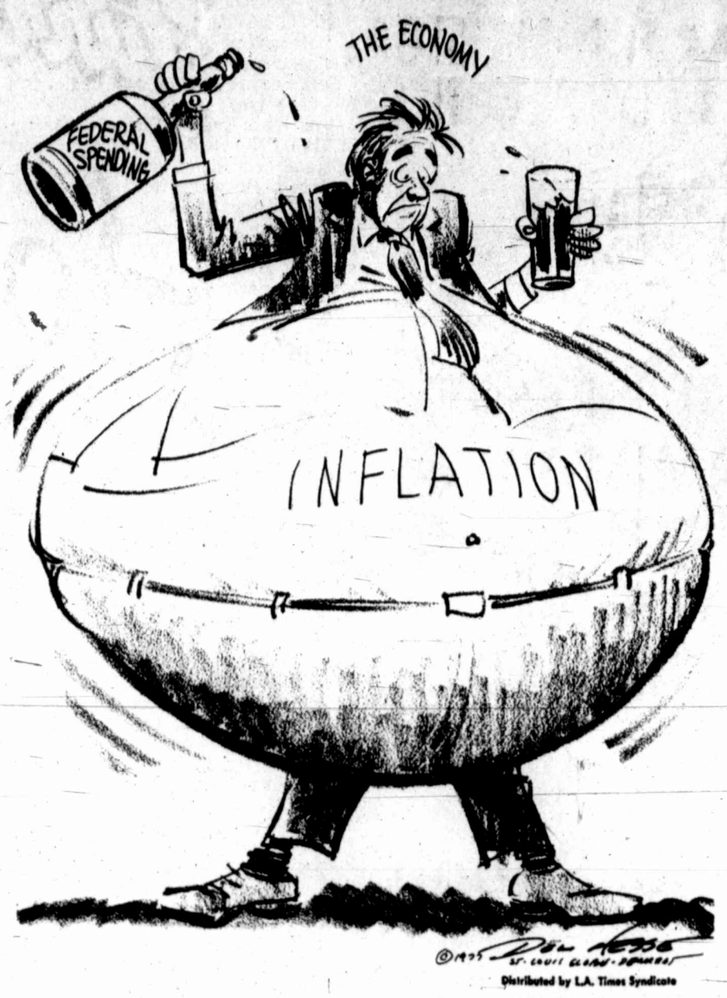

It is reported that more than 25 per cent of all skateboard accidents occur the first day of use. Most injuries come from skaters' inexperience or such problems as potholes.

The commission's skateboard report shows that only 2 per cent of the injuries resulted from skateboard defects.

So, it appears that "safety" is the key to the skateboard injury problem in Midland and elsewhere across the nation.

Safety campaigns are in order .... now and at regular intervals as long as skateboards continue to roll.

ART BUCHWALD

Professor says it's a question of ethics

By ART BUCHWALD
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — While scrounging around the front pages of the newspaper the other day, I found a fascinating story. Mr. Robert P. Beasley, a former executive vice president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., was indicted in Manhattan on charges of having stolen most of $1 million in corporate money, which was supposedly set aside for illegal political campaign contributions.

Mr. Beasley, so the 40-count indictment reads, allegedly used the political slush money that Firestone set aside to finance personal investments and debts he had accured.

The reason the story attracted my attention is that it seemed to me to be the perfect textbook case for any graduate business school.

I sought out my old friend, Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who holds the "Chair of Jurisprudence and Big Business Payoffs" at Conglomerate Tech.

"Professor, assuming the facts are as they have been presented in the indictment, who is right, Beasley or Firestone?"

Applebaum said, "First, we must remember that Beasley has not been convicted of any crime and still must have his day in court. Therefore, we have to deal with this case hypothetically. The tire company allegedly set aside $1 million for a political slush fund, presumably to win over politicians to the cause of rubber. Although illegal, this is a good standard business practice.

"Beasley allegedly was responsible for disbursing these funds to worthy officials who, when elected, would look kindly on Firestone when a government rubber problem came up.

"But if he used the money for his own personal benefit, Beasley violated the trust the company had put in him."

"But if the slush fund was illegal in the first place, what is the difference between what Beasley did and what Firestone attempted to do?"

"I would say that the answer is that when a large corporation sets aside a million dollars to illegally finance political campaigns, it is the obligation of the individual assigned to dispense the money to see that it goes for what is was designated for. After all, you have to sell a lot of tires to raise a million dollars."

"Yet, isn't it possible that Beasley needed the million dollars more than the politicians who were supposed to get it?"

Applebaum said, "That's possibly true. But no company which sets up an illegal political fund can afford to let one of its officers keep the money for himself. This would be breaking faith with the stockholders who expect a company to spread around a slush fund where it will do the most good. How can a corporation ask a politician to do it a favor when it hasn't contributed to the candidate's campaign?"

"Right," I said. "But look at it from this angle. Maybe Beasley did Firestone a favor. If he had used the money illegally for political contributions, all the top officers of Firestone might have been indicted. This way only he got indicted, and the Firestone people are off the hook.

"That's true. But that is only because Beasley got fingered. If he had given the money to the people Firestone were trying to get in the bag, we might never have known about it.

"Not only did Beasley let his company down but he has made it practically impossible for Firestone to set up another political slush fund for quite some time. This means Firestone will have no support amongst elected officials for years to come. You can't run a tire company without political friends."

"Tell me, Professor, if you had been in Firestone's place what would you have done with the million dollars?"

"If I had thought Beasley was going to keep the money, I would have taken the million and bought the Goodyear blimp."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Another battler against cancer

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTDN — The indomitable Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., isn't the only senator who has been fighting a heroic battle against cancer. In the Happy Warrior's shadow, Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., has been going through similar anguish.

This is the story of Bartlett's quiet but dramatic struggle for life. It is also the story of how a colleague, Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., took advantage of his friend's illness to slip a clause Bartlett opposed into the strip-mining law.

Dewey Bartlett is a robust, former dive-bomber pilot, a one-man bulldozer, who barges through a heavy work schedule with the same zest that has also endeared Humphrey to the Senate.

Bartlett's health had always been rugged. But shortly after the Senate opened last January, he hurried through a routine physical examination. The following day, the doctors showed him X-ray pictures of an ominous spot on his right lung.

The doctors urged Bartlett to check into the Bethesda Naval Hospital for further tests. Then he entered New York's famed Sloan-Kettering Institute for more conclusive tests. On January 21, the day Jimmy Carter was taking his oath of office, surgeons were removing cancerous nodes from the senator's right lung.

Bartlett soon plunged back into his 14-hour-a-day Senate routine. He also began a regimen of radiotherapy and chemotherapy, which drained his strength. The strain sent him back to the hospital with the flu. Depressingly, X-rays showed another possible cancerous growth on his lungs, and he was rushed back into surgery.

This took him out of the Senate battle over the strip-mining bill. The federal government owns tremendous coal reserves under the ground. But the big ranching interests and land speculators hoped to squeeze huge profits out of the coal by controlling the surface rights. They could hold out for exorbitent payments, Senate sources warn, if the surface rights were strengthened.

The issue was taken to a Senate-House conference, where a five-to-five deadlock appeared likely to kill the inflationer provision. Bartlett opposed the multi-billion-dollar giveawey clause, but he was recuperating from cancer surgery when the showdown came.

He had entrusted his proxy to his friend, Sen. Cliff Hansen. According to competent sources, Bartlett told Hansen that he firmly opposed the controversial clause. But Hansen told us he had received no instructions from Bartlett's staff how to cast the proxy vote.

In any case, Hansen withheld the hospitalized Bartlett's proxy. This broke the deadlock; the multi-billion-dollar bonanza was passed by a five-to-four vote and was written into the strip-mining legislation.

Outraged opponents of the coal caper, including Bartlett, later tried to recall the vote. But it was too late.

The dauntless Bartlett, meanwhile, is continuing the devastating chemical treatments. His weight has dropped, and his hair began falling out. But he has faced the ordeal, nevertheless, with cheerful humor.

He had never been able to tame his cowlicks with brush or comb. The chemotherapy, he said wryly, had solved the problem. His head felt so naked, however, that he began wearing a white golf cap in the Senate corridors. Finally he decided he would rather "look like Yul Brynner."

The doctors, meanwhile, are searching for the right combination of chemicals to combat Bartlett's cancer. As for the senator, he is using his misfortune, like Humphrey, to help others. He has mounted such an intensive anti-smoking campaign that several Senate staff members have curtailed their smoking habits.

Next year, Bartlett intends to run for re-election — "God willing," he adds with a smile.

Footnote: Senator Bartlett declined to comment on the proxy incident. Senator Hansen told our associate Jack Mitchell that he "would be answerable" to Bartlett for his handling of the crucial proxy vote.

WHO'S NEWS — The pressure has been building up at the Justice Department to head off a threatened indictment against ex-CIA chief Richard Helms. Friends of Helms in high places have warned Attorney General Griffin Bell that the former CIA director may be forced to divulge national secrets in order to defend himself, but the conscientious Bell believes CIA officials must be subject to the law. They cannot be excused from trial, he has said privately, on national security grounds. This would mean CIA agents could break the law whenever they pleased, without worry about facing trial.

— Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti offered to take a federal grand jury to South Korea to take the testimony of the accused payoff man, Tongsun Perk. The Korean authorities rejected the proposal. Instead, the Koreans offered to let Civiletti speak to Park for 30 minutes at a hotel, with two Koreans present. Civiletti felt this would be worse than no contact at all with Park.

— President Carter has taken a personal interest in the Korean payoff scandal. He called Ben Civiletti to the White House for a personal briefing on his negotiations in Korea.

NICK THIMMESCH

On seniority for Congress and the Supreme Court

WASHINGTON — Striking a balance between youthful vigor and the wisdom of experience is as difficult as toeing the line between freedom and order. Go too far either way, and the consequences in the populace can be discord and loud cries.

In our time, there has been much panting and huzzahing for a youth movement, and indeed the cry was answered, to some degree, in the House of Representatives where several superannuated committee chairmen were rudely dumped.

Still, there is great value in experience; the question is how to use it most effectively. Smart corporations, educational institutions, law firms, whatever, do not deny experience from being rewarded with power, but neither do they allow power to sit on one spot too long.

It is only in authoritarian regimes that power becomes so rooted that the leaders have great spikes of hair growing out of their ears. One thinks of the Soviet Union, Communist China or the executive council of the AFL-CIO.

Anyway, I have a proposal for this power center which might be useful for the remainder of this century, namely, that (1) no member of Congress can serve as chairman of a committee for more than 10 years; (2) Supreme Court justices must retire after 20 years' service or at age 80, whichever comes first. Simply put, when a person holds this kind of powerful seat too long, he or she gets to thinking that he or she owns the place.

Look at Congress. Southerners dominated the chairmanships until, recently because of the one-party South. Now the great Northern urban centers are also tending toward one party — Democrat — and this species will dominate in the years immediately ahead. Reflect on the fact that young Sen. Edward Kennedy will very likely be the next chairman of the Judiciary Committee because of his seniority.

Georgia's Richard Russell was chairman of the Armed Services Committee for 15 years. J.W. Fulbright of Arkansas ran Foreign Relations for 16 years. Carl Hayden was 92 when he served his 14th year as chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee; he earned seniority for being re-elected from Arizona, once an entrenched Democratic state.

Several senior Southerners still command Senate chairmanships. James Eastland, 73, has run Judiciary for 21 years; John C. Stennis, 76, Armed Services, eight years; Jennings Randolph, 75, Environment and Public Works, 11 years; Russell B. Long, 59, Finance, nearly 11 years.

Washington state's senators lead the Northerners in tenure. Warren G. Magnusson, 72, has chaired Commerce for nearly 23 years. Jackson, 65, has run Energy (formerly Interior) for nearly 15 years.

There is less of such longevity in chairmanships on the House side. George Mahon of Texas will have run Appropriations 15 years when he retires at the end of next year. West Virginia's Harley Staggers has chaired Commerce nearly 12 years, and Kentucky's Carl Perkins has run Education and Labor for 11.

Gone are the days when an Emmanuel Cellar would chair the Judiciary Committee 22 years; or Wilbur Mills, Ways and Means, 17.

Let us consider the Supreme Court, where venerability is considered a virtue. By my scheme, a justice could be sworn in even at age 60 and serve until he reached 80. Age 80, or 20 years' service, would be the limit. Enough.

Justice William Douglas holds the record — 36 years on the high court. Frankly, Douglas had lost a large measure of open-mindedness in recent years. He could have retired with more distinction in 1960.

Now it will be argued that the example of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes weakens my proposal. Holmes was wounded three times in the Civil War, wasn't appointed to the court until he was 61, remained there 29 years before retiring at 90 and lived nearly four more good years. He served from Roosevelt (Theodore) to the year when Roosevelt (Franklin) won the Presidency. Thus, Holmes was quite exceptional.

Justice Hugo L. Black served 34 years, and so did Justice Stephen J. Field. Justice Felix Frankfurter was on the court 24 years, and Justice Louis Brandeis, 22. Altogether, 29 justices served 20 years or more, most of them in far less hectic times than now. Holmes even had time to knock off at noon and go to a burlesque theater for the afternoon. Can you imagine Justices William Brennan (on the court 21 years) or Harry A. Blackum (seven) doing that?

If Supreme Court justices knew they had only 20 years to do good work, they might concentrate a bit more. If senators knew they could no longer lord it over committees for more than 10 years, they might think about chairing another committee or even going on the Supreme Court.

There are a number of senators who would do well to leave the Senate for the high court where their talents could be used to benefit the republic for another 20 years. Though not a chairman because he's a Republican, Sen. Jacob Javits, 73, would make a first-rate justice.

A person in one job too long can become jaded — even in youth. An older person can find new perspective in a new enterprise — even in age. We should think hard about using our experienced, senior people in better ways. We need them, but not in the same seats of power forever and ever.

Candidate wants new accountability

Providing a new accountability for Texas is the goal of C. R. "Charlie" Sanderson of San Antonio in his bid for state treasurer in 1978.

Sanderson, in Midland today to announce his campaign, said the state treasurer's office is in "dire need of being updated."

In a 1972 report by the state comptroller's office, Sanderson said, it was found that 49 percent of the state's idle funds were in demand rather than interest-bearing accounts.

Sanderson, a certified public accountant and Bexar County auditor for 12 years, said that in 1975 the late State Treasurer Jessie James reduced the amount of funds in demand accounts to 29 percent, but Sanderson wants to reduce the amount even further.

"Anyone can do that. I can probably do that by telephone," Sanderson said.

Sanderson said he believes he can get the funds reduced to 10 percent, but "it will take some doing to get it below that."

C. R. Sanderson

His experience as Bexar County auditor, Sanderson said, will allow him to work more closely with the state comptroller's office and the state auditor's office.

"The treasurer should understand the duties of the comptroller and auditor so that their functions can mesh without conflicting with the (Texas) Constitution's separation of powers," he said.

'I could qualify as state auditor and I understand the comptroller's duties," Sanderson added.

The Legislature, Sanderson believes, needs to update laws dealing with the treasurer's office.

Most state laws dealing with state financial management date back to 1943, and some as far back as the late 1800's when state revenues totaled in the low millions, Sanderson said.

"The present comptroller (Bob Bullock) has largely overhauled the operations in his office and, with the institution of a moderm cash management system in the treasurer's office, Texas would be brought up to contemporary national financial standards" Sanderson said.

Reagan Brown talks of impending doom

By ED TODD

The United States is threatened with "disaster" from within by the Washington bureaucrats and from without by the Russian communists," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown told the Midland County League of Women Voters today.

"Our country is in grave danger . . . . (It's) on the verge of a national disaster," Brown said.

That threat is in the gradual eroding of the country's economic system — free enterprise.

". . . We better let the system work," advocated Brown, who said that some policy-making politicians and bureaucrats mistakenly "think they are smarter than the person who drilled the oil well or . . . who runs the refinery."

Brown said that the American people have "built a great land" in following the economic system described some 200 years ago by Scottish philosopher Adam Smith in his book "The Wealth of Nations."

"The common folks, the working people, let 'em alone" and the free-enterprise system will work, Brown said.

Threatening the nation, too, he said, is the encroachment of the Karl Marx-brand of socialism.

One aim of the Russians, he said, is "to destroy America" by shutting off the nation's energy supply.

Brown said that the get-out-the-vote efforts of the League of Women Voters "are going to be moot if our system goes down the drain."

And that system, if allowed to run uninhibited and on its own merits, will, in effect, produce the energy America needs and will need in the years to come.

Too, the nation needs renewed love to help ward off moral and economic decay. "That's America — loving each other," he said.

Earlier in his talk, Brown focused on agriculture and energy.

"Agricultural production consumes only 3 percent of the energy used in the nation today," Brown said.

He said agriculture "has taken a back seat in congressional energy legislation."

But his main slant on agriculture, other than feeding people, was making farming and ranching profitable.

"We must keep a profit in agriculture," he said.

Without that, more and more of the nation's food producers will be forced out of business. Food prices then, he said, may triple or even be 10 times what they are today.

Thousands of acres of irrigated land are being "taken out of production because of the high cost of natural gas to operate the pumps.

Brown, 56, touched on West Texas' possible water shortage in the future in his talk to the League at Midland College.

Jesting or not, he proposed the digging of a big trench from the Arctic Circle southward to Texas.

At noon today, Brown was to speak to the Midland Rotary Club.

At 4 p.m. today, a public reception was to be held for the commissioner in the Midland Hilton.

Alaska couple uses fish wheel to catch salmon

NENANA, Alaska (AP) — Ponderously and monotonously, Charlie Stevens' fish wheel screens the muddy waters of the Tanana River for migrating salmon.

Occasionally, the dull rhythm is broken by the sounds of a thrashing salmon scooped from the river by the huge wire baskets of the wheel.

It slides down a wooden trough into a holding box, its long spawning run from the Pacific Ocean brought to an end after an 840-mile journey up the Yukon and Tanana rivers.

The fish wheel has done its job. For Charlie Stevens and his pretty wife, Gayle, the work has just begun.

They must remove the catch from the holding box — up to four times a day during the height of the run — and process the fish.

They operate their two fish wheels for profit and for personal use of the catch.

The commercial salmon season was short this year. It took only 5½ days for the fish wheels on the Tanana to scoop up the 15,000 salmon set as a quota for the Nenana area.

Stevens hesitates to say how many salmon he caught for the commercial market. He does admit to an income of about $8,000 during the season, however, including cash for his own catch and profit from a fish-buying venture with a partner, Terry Clark.

The most profitable part of the commercial catch is the salmon eggs, used to make red caviar. The plump eggs sell for about $2.50 a pound to brokers in Seattle.

Illinois geneticist isolates new form of life on earth

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A "new" form of life on earth, which arose earlier than the two previously known forms and is most like the "common ancestor" of all life on the planet, has now been identified by a University of Illinois geneticist, it was announced Wednesday.

Scientists believe that by knowing more about life's origin on earth, they will be better able to understand and discover life that may have evolved elsewhere in the solar system and the universe.

This third life form is simpler than the two life forms that have long been known — the microscopic bacteria or "lower form" and the "higher" animal and plant life.

After billions of years, the third life form now exists only in oxygen-free environments such as the deep hot springs of Yellowstone National Park, the bottom of oceans, sewage treatment plants and cow stomachs, according to Prof. Carl Woese.

Long classed as another form of bacteria, the organism is ideally suited to what was probably earth's primitive conditions. It takes in carbon dioxide, hydrogen and water, and gives off methane — sometimes known as "marsh gas" and "coal gas."

The new finding will not necessarily mean a change in the instruments used on space probes. Vehicles sent to Mars and the Moon contained sensors that would have detected any methane-emitting organisms, according to Dr. Richard Young, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientist. No evidence was found that such a life form exists there.

The research team led by Dr. Woese was funded by NASA and the National Science Foundation.

Woese and other evolution experts have theorized that all life now on earth arose from a single common ancestor some 3.5 billion to 4 billion years ago, before the oldest known rocks were formed and while the earth was a hot, bubbling, gassy mass. formed 4.6 billion years ago, according to (The earth and sun were theory.)

President takes to podium to say U.S. backs Israel

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is trying to rally support for his Mideast peace policies in the American Jewish community while warning that "intemperance and partisanship" are a threat to a permanent solution.

But cries by demonstrators Wednesday that the president is "stabbing Israel in the back" and the worries of established leaders over his overtures to Palestinian Arabs indicate he has not succeeded in quelling fear and suspicion.

In what his partisans called "a balanced speech that pulled no punches," Carter told the International Jewish Congress that his commitment to Israel remains unshakable. He said he understands that the Palestine Liberation Organization fans Israel's worst fears by refusing to recognize Israel's right to survive while using terror and violence.

On the other hand he referred to what he called the "legitimate rights" of Palestinian Arabs while saying that he prefers that an independent Palestinian state not be set up on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

"We are proud to be Israel's firm friend and closest partner — and we shall stand by Israel always," Carter told the audience, which 11 times interrupted his speech with applause.

His reference to partisanship and intemperance was an apparent retort to Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker, who told the same audience Tuesday that Carter policies are not only jeopardizing Israel's security but are playing "Russian roulette" with world peace.

The emotional high point of the evening came when Carter accepted an elaborate Torah from a 14th century Jewish community in Czechoslovakia.

As he held it in his arms, he said it will be placed on display "where I'll observe it daily as a constant reminder of the spirit of human rights, decency and love."

"It was a very moving thing to see the president of the United States holding the Torah in his own hands," said Hyman Bookbinder, a prominent Israeli supporter in Washington.

Bookbinder said that while he did not agree with every detail, the overall thrust of the address was "one of the most eloquent and encouraging speeches ever made before a Jewish audience about Israel...."

Administration jawbones against lifting SS ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is resisting a congressional move to let persons over age 65 earn as much as they wish without losing some of their Social Security money.

Joseph A. Califano, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said Wednesday that only 1.3 million of the 22 million U.S. retirees would benefit from the proposal.

Califano's protest was prompted by a move in Congress to eliminate the $3,000 ceiling on wages that Americans over 65 can be paid without having their Social Security checks reduced.

He said the legislation would serve only "a privileged minority" while placing new burdens on working men and women.

Last week, the House passed a bill that would phase out the ceiling by 1982. The Senate began considering its version of the Social Security bill Wednesday.

The Senate Finance Committee proposed raising the ceiling to $4,500 in 1978 and $6,000 in 1979. But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and other senators plan to offer an amendment to eliminate the ceiling by 1982.

In a letter attacking the amendment, Califano told senators it would "benefit most the wealthier citizens among our elderly."

Advocates of the change argue that it would reward elderly persons for their industry and help low-income retirees to keep pace with inflation.

They also contend that if more people over 65 worked, the additional taxes paid would more than offset the extra $3 billion a year that the Social Security Trust Fund would have to pay out in benefits if the current wage ceiling were eliminated.

The Social Security Administration says the 1.3 million retirees who would be affected include 800,000 persons whose benefits were reduced this year because they earned more than $3,000 and another half million who lost all benefits. Some 54 percent of the 1.3 million earned more than $10,000 and 17 percent earned more than $20,000.

There is no ceiling on earnings by persons 72 or older, who represent 11.3 million of the retirees. Persons between 65 and 72 lost $1 in Social Security benefits for every $2 earned.

Senators tackle SS hot potato

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is tackling the most controversial parts of a Social Security bill after rejecting use of income tax revenues to bolster the ailing retirement system.

The Senate on Wednesday defeated 74-16 an attempt by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton to ease the payroll tax burden for employees.

The Missouri Democrat wanted $500 million to be diverted from income taxes each year for Social Security. Eagleton said payroll taxes were moving "past the breaking point" for workers.

The Senate scheduled a debate today on the question of how the payroll levy for Social Security should be split between workers and employers.

The bill approved in committee would give employers the main burden for rejuvenating the shrinking Social Security fund, from which billions of dollars are disbursed for medical care as well as pensions.

Soviet grain harvest falls short

The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — A 1977 Soviet grain harvest that was far worse than even the most pessimistic of Western forecasts may mean more business for American farmers, Western agricultural experts said here Wednesday.

If so, it will happen without forcing up prices at American supermarkets, they added.

The experts were reacting to a surprise announcement by President Leonid I. Brezhnev that the Soviet Union harvested only 194 million metric tons of grain this year, down more than 13 percent from last year's record 223.8 million ton harvest and 9 percent below the 213 million ton target for 1977 contained in the Central Economic Plan.

Brezhnev revealed the figure in an address Wednesday to a joint meeting of Communist Party and government leaders gathered here in honor of next week's 60th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The latest U.S. forecast was for a Soviet grain harvest of 215 million tons, and as recently as last July experts were predicting a record 225 million ton crop.

"That was a bit of a stunner," said one Western expert here of Brezhnev's harvest report.

The 194 million ton figure is the fourth best in Soviet history and far better than the disastrous crops of 1975 (140 million tons) and 1972 (167 million tons). Still, it comes at a time when Soviet needs are increasing both to match population increases and to feed growing livestock herds. The current Five Year Plan calls for the grain harvest to average 220 million tons per year through 1980.

Brezhnev only indirectly indicated any disappointment with the figure. The harvest occurred in a year "which is far from being the best and not even average in terms of weather," he said. In a statement that some Western experts interpreted as an attempt to head off any criticism of the party's agricultural program, Brezhnev added that the leadership is "aware that not all the problems of agriculture have been resolved." The party is "making every effort to ensure that this branch fully satisfies the country's growing requirements," he said.

Western experts blamed the poorer-than-anticipated harvest on a spring drought and heavy summer rains in the virgin lands of Central Asia and Siberia. These are areas opened to agriculture by Nikita S. Khrushchev in the 1950s.

Despite such moves and perennially heavy investments in the agricultural segment, it has continued to be a recurring trouble-spot for the Soviet economy ever since Stalin collectivized the nation's farms.

Fries defines republic

A talk on Americanism by Bob Fries, consulting geologist, highlighted the Wednesday noon meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

"Commentary on the Constitution" was the subject of his address.

Fries, in emphasizing the fact that the United States of America is a republic and not a democracy, as many persons have been led to believe, explained the difference between a republic and a democracy.

A democracy, he said, represents majority rule government, while a republic is governed by laws which limit men, as cited in the U.S. Constitution.

He said the United States is the only country ever to acknowledge a Supreme Being in its constitution, which puts it above and beyond the rule by man concept.

Certain hazards which are ever present in a democracy also were mentioned.

The speaker pointed out some of the more common violations of constitutional provisions, stating that various agencies of government often step beyond their limits in setting and enforcing rules and regulations.

Fries urged his listeners to examine the "nature of our laws" under the Constitution, and then to stand up and speak out forcefully for what they think is right.

Panel scrutinizing alleged Passman bribe

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The House Ethics Committee is investigating allegations that former Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., received at least $40,000 from a Swiss bank account controlled by Korean businessman Tongsun Park, it was learned Wednesday.

Sources close to the case said Jay Shin Ryu, a former employee of Park, has told investigators he delivered two cash-filled envelopes for Passman at Park's instructions.

Ryu has told authorities he gave the envelopes to a third party designated by Park — a Louisiana rice merchant who was close to Passman.

Passman, who was defeated for re-election last year, denied Wednesday through his Washington attorney, James Hamilton, that he had received any money from Park. It was understood that the rice merchant had acknowledged receiving some funds from Park but had told officials the money was repayment of a debt.

The activities of Passman, 77, who served 30 years in Congress, have long been under scrutiny by a federal grand jury here that is investigating the Korean influence-buying case.

Passman, who frequently traveled to South Korea to promote the sale of Louisiana rice, was chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee that had jurisdiction over foreign aid allotments.

Park was once South Korea's only agent for the purchase of surplus American rice, most of which was financed under U.S. foreign aid programs.

Ryu, in public testimony before the Ethics Committee last month, said Park instructed him to fly to Zurich, Switzerland, in April, 1972, to have $190,000 transferred from a secret account there to another of Park's accounts in the United States.

Ryu, who received federal immunity to protect him from prosecution for his testimony, said Park gave him a letter authorizing the transfer but did not explain the reason for it.

The Swiss account was coded with a Chinese character representing the name "Jin," Ryu said. Under questioning, Ryu said he did not know the significance of the name.

"Jin" is a frequently used Korean name.

One investigative official said the $40,000 Ryu later delivered apparently came from the Swiss account, although Ryu has told authorities he did not look into the envelopes.

Ryu did not testify publicly about the delivery of any cash. The committee elicited testimony from him that he had provided information in closed session that was being investigated.

Hans Toch wins award

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hans Toch recently won the Hadley Cantril Memorial Award for his book, "Men In Crisis."

The award is presented annually "to the author of the publication judged by an awards committee to represent an especially significant contribution to the social and behavioral sciences."

The award consists of a medallion and a citation.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — White House officials sought to explain Wednesday a contradiction between President Carter and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell on the handling of the criminal case against former CIA Director Richard M. Helms.

Bell told reporters Tuesday that he had met with the President at the White House on July 25 and received his authorization to explore the possibility of plea bargaining with Helms in order to avoid a trial at which sensitive national security information might be revealed.

However, more than two months later, at a news conference Sept. 29, Carter said flatly that Bell had not consulted with him on the Helms case. Asked about his own view of the case at that time, the President replied:

"He (Bell) has not consulted with me, nor given me any advice on the Helms question. I am familiar with it through reading in the press. I have no way to know yet the strength of the possible indictment or charges."

Wednesday, White House deputy press secretary Rex Granum offered this explanation for Carter's failure to mention the July 25 meeting and his assertion that he had not discussed the case with Bell:

Although the July 25 meeting was private and not announced at the White House, the president had been told that his press secretary, Jody Powell, had discussed it with some reporters. Therefore, he assumed the fact that the meeting was held was public knowledge. When Carter said Sept. 29 that Bell had not consulted him about the case, he meant he had not talked to Bell about it since July 25.

"That is the president's recollection," Granum said.

Downcast Patty says SLA made her do it

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, disappointed by a reaffirmed bank robbery conviction, says the courts still fail to recognize that her involvement in the crime was the result of her abduction by the SLA.

"Everything that occurred in 1974 was the result of my being kidnapped," she said Wednesday in a telephone call to a newspaper reporter. "Justice demands recognition of that fact."

A three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that the 23-year-old Miss Hearst received a fair trial and upheld her conviction for the 1974 robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco.

Chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey was unavailable for comment, but associate Wayne Smith said the case definitely will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I am extremely disappointed that the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals was incapable of rendering a purely just decision," Miss Hearst said in a statement read to a San Mateo Times reporter.

"The lesson to be learned from my experiences so far is, 'don't get kidnapped'," she added.

Despite Wednesday's unanimous decision, there is little likelihood that Miss Hearst, free on $1 million bail, will soon start serving her seven-year prison sentence.

U.S. Attorney James Browning, who prosecuted the case, told a news conference his office "will not seek any order for her confinement" pending completion of the appeals process.

"We had hoped the appeal would be in her favor," said Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst. "We thought there were very good grounds for the appeal."

Miss Hearst was convicted in March 1976 for her role as a rifle-toting bandit in the April 15, 1974 Hibernia Bank holdup.

The appeals court said trial Judge Oliver Carter acted properly in ordering Miss Hearst to answer government questions about her months as a fugitive with her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

"We conclude on the basis of well-established principles that no reversible error occurred and that the judgment must be affirmed," the court said in its 40-page decision.

In oral arguments before the appeals court, Bailey had said her constitutional rights against self-incrimination were violated when she was asked questions not legally permissable.

Miss Hearst used the 5th Amendment 42 times during her eight-week trial in refusing to answer the questions Bailey contended should not have been asked.

But the appeals court agreed with a government argument that Miss Hearst's activities while with the SLA after the bank robbery were crucial to her defense of duress.

The court ruled that Carter properly balanced "the need for the evidence in the search for the truth against the possibility that the jury would be prejudiced."

Steel furor intensifies

By ROGER SMITH
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The dispute among American steel companies over how to combat rising imports deepened Wednesday when U.S. Steel Corp. president David M. Roderick reaffirmed his company's opposition to import quotas.

Roderick, speaking to reporters before addressing a regional meeting of U.S. Steel stockholders here, said the anti-dumping provisions of the Trade Act of 1974 "should be vigorously and promptly enforced." Other companies have said that new legislation establishing quotas or other protectionist measures are needed.

Speculative double reaps rich reward

Opening lead — ♠ 4

Declarer put up dummy's queen of spades, hoping that the double and opening lead had been based on top spades. East won with the king of spades, and South discarded a diamond since he was unwilling to give up any of his nine winners.

East naturally returned a diamond, and New York expert Al Roth won with the jack. To make sure of the best defense, Roth cashed the jack of spades before leading a low spade to the ace.

FORCED RETURN

This forced East to return another diamond. Roth thereupon ran the rest of the diamonds and the ten of spades for a total of nine defensive tricks. The speculative penalty double thus brought in 900 instead of a mere 250 points, a fact that should be noted by the Senate Banking Committee.

If this kind of double appeals to you, remember it when the opponents bid a game that depends on good luck. In this case, the rebids of two clubs and two spades were non-forcing, so that North and South had clearly worked themselves up to an ambitious game. Double such a contarct when your cards tell you that declarer is going to run into bad luck.

ANSWER: Pass. Don't go out of your way to rebid the mangy heart suit when you have only 7 points in high cards. Relax, and let your partner struggle with this one.

New Baptist chief to seek race input

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former missionary in Africa, the newly-elected president of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, says better relations are needed with black and Mexican-American Baptist churches.

The appeal was made by the Rev. Dr. Milton Cunningham, pastor of the Westbury Baptist Church of Houston, who was elected by acclamation Wednesday during the annual convention of the Texas Baptists here.

Cunningham, whose church has several black and Mexican-American members, said his service in Africa gave his a greater sensitivity toward different races and he said one of his priorities would be promoting better relations between Baptist churches.

Messengers to the state convention also approved a record budget of $28 million, $2.5 million higher than last year's package.

In the convention sermon, Dr. Browning Ware, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Austin, said Texas Baptists are still falling short in dealing with members of other races.

"Our relationship with other races was marked by apathy until the 1954 Supreme Court decision," he said. "In response, we first resisted; then conformed and now rest on our modest laurels."

Youth finds friends in frat house

AMES, Iowa (AP) — The boy had some run-ins with the law, stealing and trying forgery. But instead of being placed with foster parents, he was given 55 "foster brothers" at an Iowa State University fraternity house.

George Belitsos, a youth worker, says fraternities and sororities can be better places for troubled teenagers than foster homes.

"You know, you've just got to be inventive," said Belitsos. "This idea is part of our overall effort to find new resources in the community that nobody's ever considered."

Belitsos is director of Shelter House and Youth Services Care, a program that seeks alternatives to institutions for troubled youths.

He said the Greek groups can help some older teens who lack "extended families" of grandparents or other relatives to care for them when problems arise at home.

"Often a kid needs a separation from home. But we need structured alternatives to foster homes or institutions," he said.

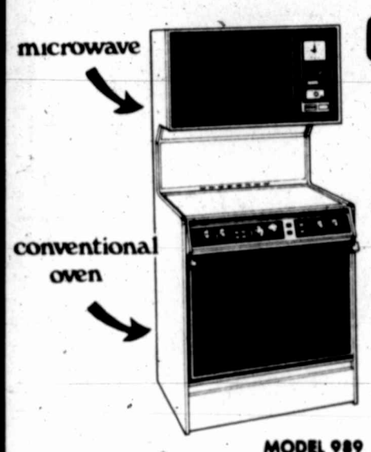

The 17-year-old delinquent who lived in a fraternity last year was a test case. Belitsos said Wednesday he hopes to place at least five more boys and girls at Iowa State this winter. Several fraternities and sororities are interested in the program, he said. Each has been checked with Ames police to ensure a good reputation.

Mexican abortion results in death

MARLENE CIMONS
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — When she entered the McAllen, Tex., hospital on Sept. 26, the woman was suffering severe chills and a fever, anemia and jaundice, all from a virulent blood infection caused by a $40 Mexican abortion.

A week later, she was dead.

Earlier that month, the woman, a 27-year-old, unmarried Mexican American who had a Medicaid card, went to a physician complaining of chest pains. While she was there, she also told the doctor she thought she might be pregnant.

He told her that Medicaid-funded abortions were no longer available, because federal money had been terminated officially Aug. 4.

Had she come to him a few weeks before, she could have been attended in a hospital, by a trained doctor, under sanitary conditions.

Instead, she crossed the border into an adjacent town in Mexico and found an abortionist there.

Her death, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is the first certified fatality of a Medicaid patient from a septic abortion.

"She only lived for about six days," said the McAllen physician who treated her shortly before she died, and who did not wish to be identified. "She had a severe blood infection from a type of micro-organism that is one of the most virulent, called clostridia. This type of infection occurs when an abortion is done in circumstances that are devoid of any concern for the patient."

He paused. "It comes from dirt," he said. "It comes from the grossest lack of concern for the patient. Her abortionist was only interested in her $40 — not in her."

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, which has been asked to monitor the consequences of the Medicaid cutoff, sent two doctors — called Epidemic Intelligence Service officers — to McAllen to investigate the death. They spent nine days in the community, from Oct. 19 through last Friday.

"They found five cases of infections, including the woman who died," said a spokesman for the disease control center. "All five had abortions performed across the border in Mexico. Three of them had Medicaid cards. One did not. The other woman was a Mexican who lived in Mexico but was admitted to a hospital in the United States. According to the information we have, the cost for the abortions was $40.

Witness takes Fifth Amendment nine times

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A defense witness in the Cullen Davis capital murder trial invoked his Fifth Amendment rights against self incrimination nine times today when asked about illegal drugs at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

The jury was sent out when defense lawyer Richard Haynes moved into that area of questioning during a prolonged examination of Arlington electrician W.T. Rufner, 38.

Rufner and the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, were lovers and sharing the mansion for a period of months in 1974-75 after Davis had moved out.

Haynes fired a series of questions concerning drug possession by a number of persons whose names have surfaced during the 11 weeks of trial testimony.

"Did Beverly Bass ever possess a narcotic substance in your presence while you were living at 4200 Mockingbird?" Haynes asked Rufner.

"I take the Fifth Amendment, your honor," he replied.

Miss Bass, 19, was the lone unharmed survivor of a murderous 1976 shooting spree at the mansion and one of three to name Davis as the gunman who allegedly killed Mrs. Davis' daughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12, and another person. Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, were wounded.

One of the questions posed to the witness was whether Mrs. Davis had given him a gram of cocaine or heroin on his birthday in June 1974.

Rufner took the Fifth Amendment at that point, also.

"You cannot invoke the Fifth to protect anyone else from incrimination," Haynes pointed out during a debate with prosecutors.

Rufner was arrested March 27, 1974 and charged with possession of a controlled substance and was assessed a probated prison sentence Oct. 18th at same year.

"I can not and will not permit any witness to testify when his attorney has advised him that his testimony can be incriminating," Trial Judge George Dowlen said at one point.

With the jury present, Haynes asked Rufner:

"Did Priscilla ever take a plastic bag with a white powdery substance and toss it to you...?"

Rufner turned to Dowlen and asked at that point if he could take a break. It was then that Dowlen sent the jury out and the questioning about drugs ensued.

Prosecutor Joe Shannon accused Haynes of "trying to impeach your own witness."

Haynes replied, "I'm not trying to impeach him. I'm trying to develop the facts."

Judge denies delay motion on Hughes residence trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory has denied a motion to delay the scheduled Nov. 14 start of a trial to determine the legal residence of the late Howard Hughes.

Gregory turned down Wednesday the request submitted by Jack Whitem, an attorney for Noah Dietrich, a former Hughes aide who was named executor of the estate in the so-called Morman will.

The attorney argued that a trial on the validity of the Morman will is scheduled to begin next Monday in Las Vegas and it would be impossible for Dietrich to be adequately represented in both courts at the same time.

Gregory agreed with attorneys for Texas and the co-administrators of the estate who argued that the Houston trial had been scheduled before a trial date was set in Nevada.

Texas hopes to prove Hughes was a resident of the state. Texas has a state inheritance tax. The administrators of the estate contend he was a legal resident of Nevada at the time of his death. Nevada does not have a state inheritance tax.

SEEKING RE-ELECTION for state senator of the 30th District is Democrat Ray Farabee who now is completing his first term of office. In announcing his candidacy today, the 45-year-old incumbent said, "My first term in the legislature has been productive and worthwhile . . . I would like to continue my public service in the Texas Senate." The 30th Senatorial District covers a 29-county area in North Central and Northwest Texas.

Energy advisory council protests Carter package

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' Energy Advisory Council sent a hot protest to Congress today about President Carter's energy program, particularly the crude oil equalization tax.

The resolution, authored by Attorney General John Hill, was passed unanimously by the council, which is made up of the state's top energy officials, while Gov. Dolph Briscoe was in Washington lobbying with the House-Senate conference committee.

Briscoe left for Washington Wednesday after President Carter canceled a meeting for Friday with the nation's governors on a national energy program.

The different bills that passed the Senate and House setting out the national policy are being considered by the conference committee in hopes of reaching a compromise.

Amendments were made to Hill's resolution by Speaker Bill Clayton, Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace, and Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, that strengthened and enlarged Texas' opposition to parts of the program supported by Carter.

"One area in which I am hopeful is that of killing the oil equalization tax attempt outright," Hill told council members.

Hill said the proposed oil equalization tax, which was approved by the House, was unfair and basically a tax on consumers who would eventually pay the cost.

Wallace said the rebates that would be made to fuel oil purchasers from the tax income was an "unfair, purely political move."

"This tax is an attempt to solve technical problems with political answers," McKnight said.

Wallace's amendment stressed that any national policy should include incentives for full production. "Consumers are not going to get relief until we get full production," he said.

McKnight added an amendment pointing out that an oil equalization tax would in effect cut off much of Texas' tax income that has supported state government for many years.

Clayton added an amendment that urged Congress to search for alternative oil and gas resources while trying to solve the current crisis.

Other portions of Hill's resolution urged phased deregulation of natural gas prices, as passed by the Senate, and to reject plans to tax utility and manufacturing plants which are unable to convert from natural gas to coal immediately.

Sturgis-Lorenz relationship tangled web

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — On the surface it appeared to be a routine police complaint from a woman who claimed that she had been receiving telephone threats from a man.

But the two people involved were hardly ordinary citizens. The man, Frank Sturgis of Miami, Fla., had been convicted in the Watergate burglary. The woman, Marita Lorenz of Manhattan, had been mixed up in CIA plots to murder Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, according to intelligence sources.

The tangled connection between the pair, which stretches back for more than a decade, has aroused a great deal of interest among investigators. But one government law enforcement official said Tuesday night, "Frankly, it's a mess. We can't get it straightened out, and maybe we never will."

Sturgis was arrested Tuesday on Lorenz' sworn complaint, arraigned on a felony charge of harassment in State Supreme Court and held on $25,000 bail. Henry Rothblatt, Sturgis' attorney, denied the charge and said Sturgis had been summoned to New York by Lorenz.

Here, pieced together from intelligence sources, are some elements of the mystery surrounding the case:

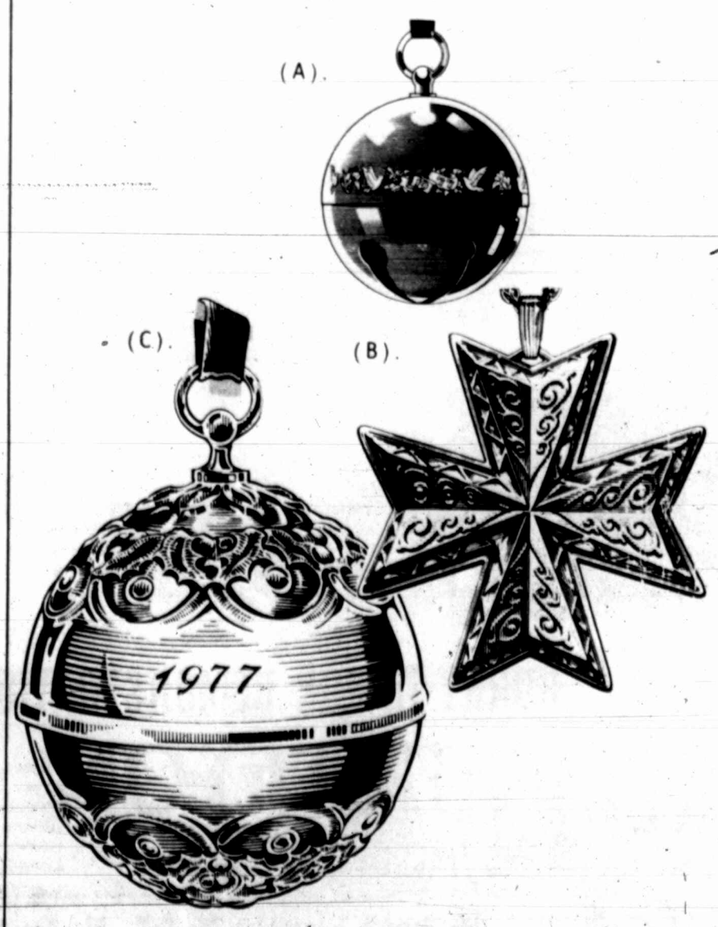

The Sturgis-Lorenz Connection: Lorenz was Castro's lover in Cuba during the 1950s, and was recruited by Sturgis, then a high-ranking Castro aide, to spy for the CIA. According to intelligence sources, in 1959, when she was a secretary to Castro, she and Sturgis fled the island and went to Miami.

In 1961 she allegedly agreed to help out in a CIA-inspired plot to kill Castro. Armed with a jar of cold cream laced with poison, she returned to Cuba and became his lover again. Somehow, she was supposed to put the stuff on Castro. But the cream melted, and the plot was aborted. Lorenz fled back to Miami.

Bulldogs seek tennis repeat

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

That second time around. It's always harder. The element of surprise is gone. You can't come in the back way anymore and sneak up on people. The second time around they know you're coming and they're waiting for you. The second time around you're the guy with the big rep and everybody's gunning for you.

Fifteen other teams will be trying to put a dent in Midland Hiqh's rep this weekend when the Texas State Team Tennis Tournament opens Friday morning in Wichita Falls. Coach Larry Burgin's Bulldog netters won the title a year ago when the tourney was held here in the Tall City, but making it two in a row is a big order to fill.

Midland goes into the two-day competition a slight favorite, but the field is stocked top to bottom with outstanding teams and anyone of them could be holding the championship trophy come Saturday afternoon.

"The tennis has gotten better all over the state," explained a concerned Burgin who is quite aware of the enormous challenge facing his charges. "Even the number four teams in each of the regions are capable of winning it."

Four regional tournaments were held around the state late last month with the top four finishers in each region earning berths in the state event.

Midland tops the list of Region I entrants, which also includes Odessa Permian, El Paso Coronado and El Paso Eastwood. Representing Region II will be Dallas Richardson, Wichita Falls Rider, Wichita Falls High, and Trinity Euless. The four Region III net squads will be Houston Clear Lake, Houston Clear Creek, Houston Cypress-Fairbanks, and Galveston Ball, while San Antonio Churchill, San Antonio Alamo Heights, San Antonio Roosevelt and Corpus Christi King are the Region IV representatives.

All of the teams, with the exception of Coronado, Eastwood, Richardson, Trinity, Cypress-Fairbanks and King, participated in the state tourney last year.

This year's Midland team is probably just as strong as the one that wom the title in '76, but the balance of power has shifted from the girls to the boys. Also, the team Bur gin will be taking to Wichita Falls is a little bit younger than the 1976 champions, and how well those younger players come through under pressure could be the pivotal factor for the Pack in the tournament.

A year ago, the girls carried the load for Midland. It's that simple. The girls didn't lose a single match all year at the number four, five and six singles positioms, and the two and three doubles slots. In last year's semifinal match with Dallas Highland Park in the state tournament, the boys lost all nine of their matches. But the girls staved off elimination by winning all of theirs to tie the match, 9-9. Midland was eventually declared the winner by virtue of a 21-18 edge in sets.

But the girls were hurt by graduation. Gone is that talented trio of performers who were so unbeatable at four, five and six — namely Amy Tompson, Sue Ann Clark and Liz Ruwwe. Back however, are their top two — junior Vicki Vasicek and senior Cary Garton. They will be joined by sophomore Mary Morgan, senior Dinah Boyd, junior Julie Stoltz, sophomore Karen Farquhar and senior Sherry Armstrong.

A year ago, the boys team was Burgin's achilles heel. They were talented, but they were young and inexperienced. Now, a year later, they're ready to take charge.

Junior Jeff Bramlett, who is developing into one of the finest high school netters in the state, will be playing nunber one singles, and will be supported by a talented cast that includes seniors Kirk Farquhar, Tim Baird, Craig Aldridge and Joe Love, and juniors Jeff Rea, Arthur Yeager and Duncan Kennedy.

"If the young kids can come through for us," Burgin said, "it will make all the difference."

But Burgin is worried about something else as well. His team's desire.

"We won everything last year," he stated. "And now, I think they're all just a little too self-satisfied. They're just not as hungry as they were last year. The bad weather and last week's homecoming have cut into our

Solemn vows kept . . . in a way

Going into Texas Stadium Sunday, we made two solemn vows, one to the Mrs. and one to the readers.

First we promised the Mrs. that we wouldn't even look at a Cowboys' cheerleader, let alone point a camera at one.. To the reader, we swore to avoid Tony Dorsett's locker after the game, unless he had a day like the one he enjoyed against Notre Dame in 1976...or 1975... or 1974.

It wasn't that we have any built-in prejudices against either, it's just the growing belief that both have been, ah, er, uh...overexposed?

IN THE case of the cheerleaders, we were faithful to our word. Only trouble is that every time we aimed the camera at one of those creative booster signs fans hang over the wall—you know, Go Cowboys, Yea

Dallas, Bat the Lions——one of those camera sensitive creatures would jump in the way and spoil the picture, despite whispered orders to cease, desist and get out of the way.

You could tell they were a sadistic bunch. They'd not only jump in front of the camera, but laugh in your lens.

Our intentions in regard to Dorsett were equally sincere. The last trip to Dallas was for the Pittsburgh-Cowboys exhibition back in September. Tony was the star of the locker room then and it was only natural, since he was the Cowboys' new fair...curly-haired hero and a recent recipient of the Heisman Trophy.

Surely, by mid-season, it was assumed, the adulation of the press would have subsided.

True to our pledge, we avoided Tony's locker like it belonged to one of those Cowgirls. After a while, we looked around and everybody...Roger, Harvey, Drew, Charlie, Cliff, Hollywood, Randy, Efren, all of them, had gone home.

There was still a crowd around 33's locker, folks shoving microphones in his face, pumping questions at him like they were blitzing linebackers.

Since it was the only show left, guiltily we wandered over.

WHEN YOU think about it, it's a wonder Dorsett isn't in constant controversial hot water. Anyone subjected to interrogation as long and as often as Tony could be excused for an inadvertent slip of the lip that could make him or someone else look bad in print.

One writer, for example, was in the process of putting words in Tony's mouth about his battle for a starting berth with Preston Pearson. Dorsett patiently pointed out that he hadn't said it the way the questioner had rephrased it and then recalled his own words.

As has been said before, his agility in the locker room is every bit as

Jilted bidder halts sale of Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — A jilted suitor for the Boston Red Sox has mounted a ninth-inning rally that halted the sale of the team.

Trustees of the estate of the late owner, Thomas Yawkey, were ready to sell the franchise this week to a group headed by newly-named General Manager Haywood Sullivan and former team trainer Edward (Buddy) LeRoux, given the title vice president-administration Wednesday.

BUT AN Ohio-based conglomerate stepped in with a law suit claiming the trustees illegally turned down a better offer.

An American League vote on the sale, scheduled for today, was postponed indefinitely on Wednesday at the behest of the Yawkey estate.

A-T-O INC., of Willoughby, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland, says the estate must accept its bid of $18.75 million. The firm, which owns Rawlings Sporting Goods, was one of several unsuccessful bidders.

The Sullivan-LeRoux group, including Yawkey's widow, would pay $15 million — $3 million from Mrs. Jean Yawkey herself.

"A-T-O IS still interested in becoming owners of the Red Sox," said a company spokesman. "The matter is in the hands of our attorneys."

Sale of the team, said Sullivan and LeRoux, "was bound to produce a number of problems ... and we are confident this one will also be solved soon."

However, a spokesman for the Yawkey estate, Joseph LaCour, indicated the suit will not be settled before the end of the month.

Announcement of postponement of the AL vote was made by League President Lee MacPhail only 24 hours before the scheduled meeting in New York.

THE FRANCHISE, meanwhile, will remain under control of the Yawkey estate. Sullivan, promoted to general manager Oct. 24 in a front office purge, will direct the team's selections in the free agent draft Friday in New York.

Jazz' Baylor yells 'No foul'

By The Associated Press

Elgin Baylor, coach of the New Orleans Jazz, was well aware of the National Basketball Association's policy against verbally assaulting referees.

But Baylor did not flinch in taking his best shots at what he considered some poor officiating Wednesday night in the Jazz' last-second 104-102 loss to the Kansas City Kings.

"That was atrocious," Baylor said angrily about the work of referees Jack Madden and Tommy Nunez. "I think if something was said more often, they would be more cautious with their jobs."

Baylor was particularly incensed about an offensive foul called against Truck Robinson with six seconds remaining and the score 102-102. He felt the foul should have been against Kansas City.

"I'm sure Truck got fouled, he didn't foul anybody," charged Baylor. "He went straight up. He was doing that all night and they weren't calling anything either way. I don't know how they could call something that time."

Kansas City's Lucius Allen, who was guarding Robinson, knew the answer. "He (Robinson) bumped Scott (Wedman)," Allen said. "I was trying to tie him up from behind. That's how he operates. He bumps you, falls away and then puts up his shot. I don't see any way that it wasn't an offensive foul."

After the controversial call, Allen hit a 10-foot jump shot with one second left, giving the Kings the victory and ending New Orleans' five-game winning streak.

Richard Washington led Kansas City with 22 points. New Orleans' Pete Maravich scored 33.

In other NBA games, the Atlanta Hawks whipped the Detroit Pistons 102-89, the Chicago Bulls edged the Philadelphia 76ers 103-102, the Buffalo Braves downed the Denver Nuggets 104-100, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Boston Celtics 104-101, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the New Jersey Nets 107-

Andrews, Fort Stockton clash in 2-AAA showdown

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

There are two weeks left in the area high school football chase, but for all practical purposes, the season could be over in three of the area's six districts after teams take to the field Friday night.

Playoff contenders Andrews, Seagraves and either Wall or Menard can earn a tour of the state with victories Friday. Lake View is another possibility, but the Chiefs will have to have some help. The other districts will just have to go to the wire.

As far as pure excitement, however, District 2-AAA is unmatched this Friday. Unbeaten Fort Stockton meets once tied Andrews in what could be the biggest battle since the Invasion of Normandy. Storm the beaches troops, and shoot from the hips—and don't look back.

ANDREWS, THE preseason choice to win the 2-AAA title, is where they want to be. Fort Stockton, a team not picked to be in the race by this time of the season much less undefeated, is where they want to be.

Andrews can win a bi-district playoff berth with a victory over the Panthers, but a Fort Stockton win would leave the race open for another weekend. The Mustangs already own a victory over once beaten Pecos, but Fort Stockton must still play Pecos next week, so the loop could still end in a three-way tie. Andrews can make it simple, however, with a victory. They would then own wins over Pecos and Fort Stockton, and it wouldn't matter what they did against Monahans next week.

District 9-A will be decided Friday no matter what happens unless a tie is recorded. That's where undefeated Wall meets undefeated Menard. A winner would go to the playoffs while a tie might not decide it this week.

MENARD DRAWS the home field for this one, but powerful Wall is favored in the contest since they have had a more consistent offensive attack this year.

District 5-A could also end Friday if Seagraves downs the Plains Cowboys. The No. 1 ranked Eagles could win their fourth straight trip to the playoffs with a win, but a loss could throw the loop into a three-way tie with Stanton and Plains gaining new life.

Undefeated Lake View plays hapless Sweetwater Friday, but they need a little help from Snyder to nail down a playoff berth. The Chiefs need to beat Sweetwater coupled with a Snyder win over contender Lubbock Dunbar. Dunbar plays Lake View next week and that winner would decide the 3-AAA crown if Dunbar beats Snyder Friday.

THAT LEAVES districts 7-AA and 6-A to be decided, named this week. They will have to wait for another week in tight fisted races.

McCamey and Marfa are headed for a district shootout next week despite what each does this week. Both own 4-0 loop marks at this point, so even with a loss on Friday by either team, the loop will be decided in McCamey next week.

McCamey seems to have the easiest task this week with a game in Wink, who is winless in district. Marfa, on the other hand, tests stubborn Rankin on the road. Rankin won the title a year ago, and have been known to pull an upset in key contests.

DISTRICT 7-AA is only a four team district, so that loop is destined to go the rout before a winner can be established. But the first week of pla, last Friday had a shocker.

Crane's Golden Cranes, who posted a meager 2-5 pre-district record, whipped major contender Ozona last week, 21-13, and now are in position to challenge for the crown. Kermit defeated Sonora last week to join Crane at the top. Kermit is the preseason choice to win the loop crown. Kermit meets Ozona this week while Crane hosts Sonora. The loop could be decided in Kermit next week when they face Crane.

The good thing about high school football is that the best is always saved until the last.

Fields tops 5-4A stats in rushing

Abilene High's Reggie Fields continued to gain ground at better than 100-yards-per-game, according to lastest District 5-4A football statistics released today.

Fields has gained 570 yards for a 5.1-yard average per carry. Midland High's Brently Jackson is second with 409 yards and a 5.3 average per carry.

Abilene players also lead in three other categories. Quarterback Glen Stirman took over the passing lead after Midland High's defense shut down Odessa's Neal Gray last week. Stirman forged to the front with 553 yards on 37 bullseyes in 80 attempts. Gray is second with 406 yards on 20 for 69. Stirman and Midland Lee's Todd Clements lead in touchdown passes with five each.

Bo Booker of Abilene leads in reception yardage with 210 on 10 catches while Fields is the league scoring leader with 44 points, one more than San Angelo's Carl Brainard and two more than Terry Orr of Cooper.

IN TEAM statistics, Odessa Permian, 7-0 for the season, took over first place in offense and defense. The Panthers are averaging more than 300 yards a game rushing and passing while limiting the opposition to 153.

On paper, Mustangs, Panthers a toss up

TERRY WILLIAMSON

On paper, at least, Friday's matchup between the Andrews Mustangs and the Fort Stockton Panthers is as close to a toss up as is possible.

Fort Stockton is undefeated with an 8-0 mark for the season while Andrews is 7-0-1, the tie coming against AAAA Big Spring the first week of the season, and the Mustangs had a touchdown called back in that one. Both teams are 3-0 in league play.

Fort Stockton is rated as the best offensive team in District 2-AAA, averaging 337 yards per outing. The Panthers have also put up 26 points more than Andrews this season.

But Andrews is the second rated offensive team in the loop, averaging 331 yards per outing. Only 51 yards total offense separates the two squads. You can't get much closer than that.

DEFENSIVELY, THE two teams are close, but this is where Andrews holds the slight edge, and may be the reason that the Mustangs are a slight favorite in the game.

Andrews leads the league in defense by allowing only 157.1 yards per contest while Fort Stockton is second with a 177.4 yards per game allowed. Against the rush, the Mustangs have been almost unbeatable, allowing only 647 yards this year while Fort Stockton has given up 813 steps.

Since Andrews has blue chip quarterback Booger Brooks, who leads the district in rushing with 666 yards this year and 11 touchdowns, the edge must go to the Mustangs. Andrews also has the third leading rusher in the loop in Kenny Hearne with 612 yards. Stockton's Oscar Salmon is fourth with 599 and Tate Randle is sixth with 478 yards.

DISTRICT 2-AAA has not been blessed with the pure passer this year, but Andrews' Brooks is second in the league with 459 yards in the airways on 22 of 55 completions. Stockton's Randle is third with 435 yards on 27 of 58, and again there is no real edge.

Stockton's Wayne Jefferson has caught eight passes for 202 yards this year to rank second in the league while Andrews' Eldon Jones rates fourth with four snares for 152 yards. Joel Gilliland has eight for 137 yards and Weldon Jones seven for 131, both belong to the Mustangs. Oscar Gallegos has 98 yards in receptions for the Panthers, but Andrews seems to have a few more deadly targets to throw at.

Fort Stockton rates the edge in the kicking game with two strong booters, and if the contest develops into a defensive duel, the Panthers could come out on top.

STOCKTON'S RICK McIvor has booted 24 point after points and six field goals, and has scored 60 points this year to become the league's third leading scorer—just six points behind Andrews' Brooks. Panther punter Randle has a 36.3 per punt average while Andrews' Ricky Chesshire has a 28.6 average. The kicking game seems to belong to Stockton.

Now take all the facts and figures and toss them out the window. Statistics don't win football games. They are merely indicators, and the facts and figures are not really enough apart in this one to make a firm decision. One of the teams is just going to have to decide to want the

Stonewall Brigade to tackle AHS JVs

The Robert E. Lee Stonewall Brigade faces the Abilene High junior varsity at 7 p.m. today in Memorial Stadium while the Midland High Bullpups wait until Saturday to square off with unbeaten Abilene Cooper's JV in Abilene.

Cooper takes a 7-0-0 mark into Saturday's game after the Big Spring JV called off its game with the Key City team last week when several JV players were moved up to the Steer varsity to take the placeof injured players.

Lee takes a 1-7-0 mark tonight againat Abilene's 2-4-0 reading.

Abilene beat San Angelo, 42-20 last week and is on a two-game winning streak while Lee lost to Odessa Permian, 34-13.

Odessa took a 19-9 surprise victory over Midland's Bullpups, scoring 12 points in the final 57 seconds to win.

While Lee and Abilene battle tonight, the rest of the league waits until 1:30 p.m. kickoffs Saturday. Besides the Midland-Cooper tussle, Big Spring will be at Odessa and Permian at San Angelo in seeking its eighth win in nine outings.

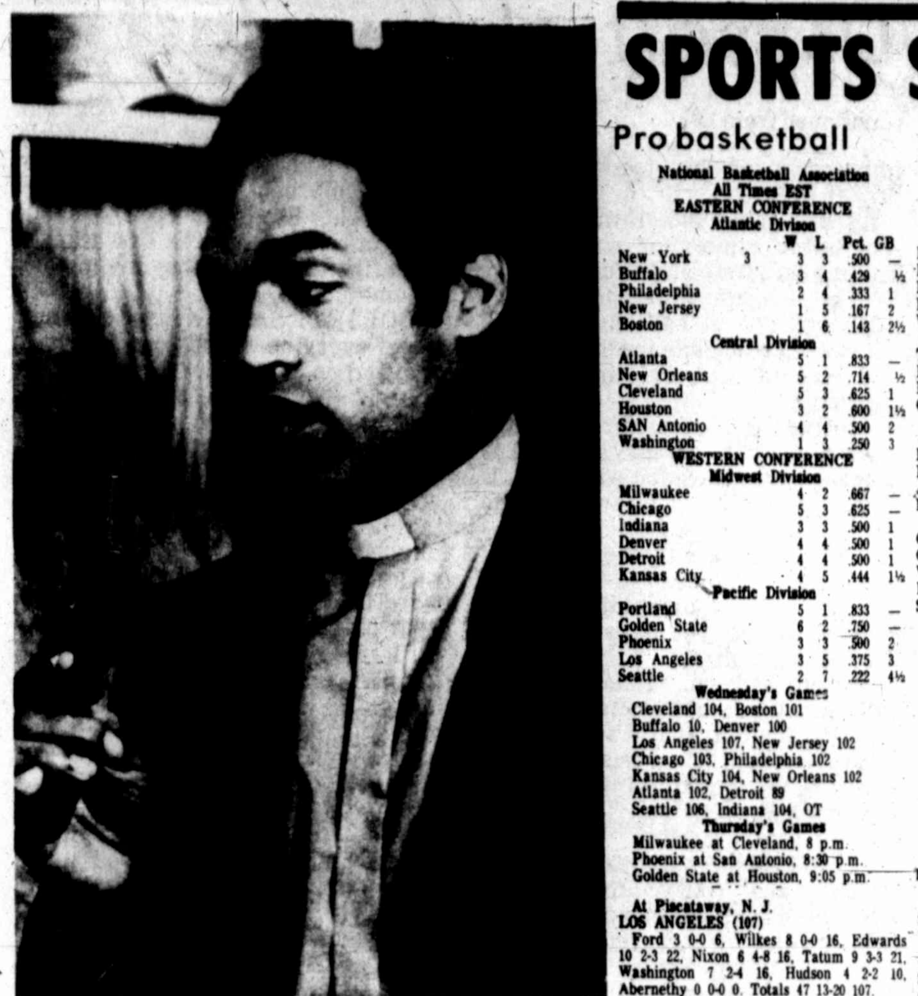

Greenwood splits basketball openers

WESTBROOK—The Greenwood Rangers opened the Class B basketball season here Tuesday by splitting two games with Westbrook.

The Greenwood Rangerettes scored a 95-58 victory over Westbrook as Jenni Anderson led the way with 39 points. Rita Lopez had 38 for Westbrook. Other top Greenwood scorers were Russan Ratliff, 17; Jamye Holliday, 15; and Jana Mobley 12.

The Greenwood boys dropped a 39-34 decision to Westbrook, but Greenwood's Joe Mobley led all scorers with 21 points.

O.J. Simpson

O. J. leaves long trail of memories

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — It was four years ago, in the comfortable living room of O.J. Simpson's apartment in suburban Buffalo.

A question was asked about injuries. Another followed. Suddenly, O.J. became annoyed.

"Listen, man, do we have to talk about this?" he asked. "I don't want to talk about the subject. I never think about getting hurt."

Tuesday afternoon the Buffalo Bills made a formal announcement. Simpson will undergo surgery early next week in Buffalo to repair cartilage damage to his left knee.

FINALLY, AT age 30, in his ninth professional season, the surgeon's knife will cut into those magnificent legs of his for the first time.

If this isn't the end for one of the great athletes of all time, it sounds an awful lot like it.

The Juice doesn't need football any longer, not in his financial situation, and considering that the Buffalo Bills are the absolute pits of the sport, it doesn't make sense that he should rehabilitate himself back into the athletic version of the Black Hole of Calcutta.

Who wants to think of O.J. with this current mess, anyway?

IT'S MUCH more pleasant to think of him in other times, in exciting, pleasant circumstances.

How about the last game of the 1972 season? It's in Washington and no runner has ever enjoyed a 100-yard game against George Allen's Super Bowl-bound Redskins. O.J. does—101 yards in 26 carries.

His most important yards were the 21 he traveled in the fourth quarter, breaking three tackles to score the tying touchdown and key a 24-17 upset.

Or what about the 1975 game against the Steelers in Pittsburgh?

THOSE STEELERS might have been the greatest defensive team ever assembled. They are on their way to their second straight Super Bowl championship.

The Juice ripped them for 228 yards, including an 88-yard touchdown run, in a 30-21 upset. It may have been the greatest day a runner ever enjoyed against an outstanding defense.

Remember the 1975 game against Cincinnati on a Monday night? He was virtually unstoppable, except that the Bills' defense gave up points faster than he could score them or set them up in the 33-24 loss and Buffalo had to stop running when he reached 197.

Do you recall the day in New York when Jets Coach Charley Winner gambled on fourth down and passed up an insurance field goal?

Earl Edwards stopped John Riggins shy of the first down. O.J. rocketed out of the backfield on the next play, took Joe Ferguson's pass in full stride and raced past Jet defenders to give the Bills a 24-23 victory.

OR ANOTHER unforgettable Sunday in Shea Stadium, when he sloshed through the mud to break Jim Brown's all-time ground-gaining record for season, then went on to break the supposedly insurmountable barrier, 2,000 yards?

The most memorable moment of all could have taken place after that game when he refused to meet the nation's news media unless his entire offensive unit came along with him.

Not long ago, O.J. chose what he hoped would be his professional epitaph: "He was the best of his time."

Personally, I prefer the words of Dwight White, the fierce Steeler defensive end, the day OJ. destroyed Pittsburgh:

"He slithers, he leaps, he hurdles, he accelerates and changes directions. Use all the adjectives you can think of, then, at the end of them, add on another."

102, and the Seattle SuperSonics outlasted the Indiana Pacers 106-104 in overtime.

Hawks 102, Pistons 89

The victory gave the surprising Hawks a 5-1 record, their best start since the franchise shifted from St. Louis to Atlanta in 1969, and moved them into first place in the Central Division, a half-game ahead of New Orleans.

Ron Behagen, who suffered a broken nose in a collision with teammate John Drew while rebounding during the fourth period, led Atlanta with 22 points. Drew had 20 and Detroit's Bob Lanier scored 29. Lainer also suffered muscle spasms in his right eye and said he was seeing double. He was to be examined by an eye specialist today.

Bulls 103, 76ers 102

Artis Gilmore scored 30 points, including the go-ahead basket late in the fourth quarter, as the Bulls handed the stumbling 76ers their third straight loss and fourth setback in six games. George McGinnis' 21 points paced Philadelphia, the losing finalist in last season's playoffs.

Braves 104, Nuggets 100

Randy Smith scored 32 points, Billy Knight had 23 points and 12 rebounds and Swen Nater collected 14 points.

Free agent draft...it's baseball's new way of life

By WILL GRIMSLEG
AP Sports Writer

"Take it from one of the middle men, baseball's free agent re-entry draft Friday will be a "sellers'" and not a "buyers'" market.

"I foresee a great demand for the quality players just as in the inaugural draft a year ago," says Jerry Kapstein, the enterprising players' agent from Providence, R.I., "I think, if anything, the results of a year ago have produced these definite conclusions:

"One, fans want to see winning baseball. They don't care how the team comes by the players needed to produce it.

"Two, successful owners try to do what is best for the fans. They find that winning baseball pays for itself through increased gate receipts.

"THREE, THE dire prediction of traditionalists that the re-entry draft would destroy the game proved completely false. Attendance in 1977 was the highest in history. The draft, instead of hurting the game, fired hot stove interest that carried over into the season.

"Four, another proven misconception is that players signing big money, long-term contracts would lack motivation. An overwhelming majority of the free agents had excellent seasons."

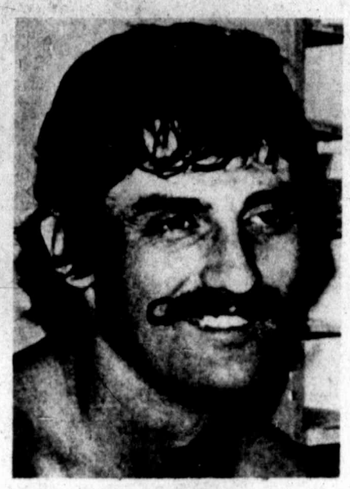

Kapstein, a 34-year-old bachelor, Harvard graduate and exnaval officer, has emerged as one of the most potent forces in baseball's new free agent structure, dictated by arbitrators and the courts.

Of the 15 top players plucked in the 1976 draft, Kapstein served as business agent dor 10 of them, negotiating long term contracts totaling more than $15 million.

THEY INCLUDED Joe Rudi ($2.1 million), Don Baylor ($1.6m) and Bobby Grich ($1.6m), all signed by California; Rollie Fingers ($1.7m) and Gene Tenace ($1.6m), San Diego; Bert Campaneris ($1m) and Doyle Alexander ($955,000), Texas; Don Gullett ($1.9m), Yankees; Wayne Garland ($2.3m), Indians, and Dave

Joe Rudi

Rollie Fingers

Cash ($1.6m), Expos.

Although he has a stable of some 30 major league players, capable of creating a diamond dynasty on their own, the bustling New Englander has only five among the 80-odd which will be up thrown into Friday's grab bag, but they are all strictly top drawer.

They include ace relief pitchers Rich Gossage of the Pirates and Rawly Eastwick of the Cardinals; 14-game winner Ross Grimsley of the Orioles; another pitcher, Pat Darcy of the Cardinals, and hard-hitting outfielder Richie Zisk of the White Sox.

While Kapstein zealously guards the privacy of his transactions, it's figured these five players may draw as much as $7 to $9 million.

ALTHOUGH HE won't discuss specific teams, it is obvious that Kapstein feels that the success of the New York Yankees and their controversial acquisition, Reggie Jackson, backs up his theory that money spent on superstars can return manifold.

The Yankees' George Steinbrenner was one of the big spenders in the 1976 draft, paying $2.9 million for Jackson and $1.9 million for Gullett. Jackson's clutch hitting picked up the team in September and carried it to the Yankees' first World Series victory in 16 years. Reggie, with three home runs in the final game, was the Series hero. Gullett was injured most of the year, but still posted a 14-4 record.

The Yankees drew more than two million fans both at home and on the road. They made money.

"Rudi and Baylor were hurt most of the year, but no one could accuse any of the free agents of laying down on the job," Kapstein said. Those two relievers, Campbell and Fingers, had terrific years. Alexander won 17 games for Texas."

Fingers had an 8-9 mark and 35 saves. Bill Campbell, bought by Boston for $1.1 million, was 13-9 with 31 saves.

"The free agent draft is new fact of life in baseball," the New England agent said. "It has certain advantages in that a team can add to its strength without giving up talent, as in a trade.

"The fans want a winner. The goal of all 26 owners is to give them one. One way to do it is to strengthen the team at the market place."

workouts, and when we have had workouts, they've been too casual."

NET NOTES: The team, accompanied by Burgin and his assistant, Bonnie Craddock, left early this morning by car for Wichita Falls. Their first round match is scheduled for 8 a.m. Friday morning. If they win that one, they'll play again at 1. . . Midland's biggest challenge will probably come from Richardson, Alamo Heights, and Churchill.

Permian, San Angelo clash for title tilt

Although Odessa Permian rules District 5-4A with a 5-0 record, it can all go down the drain for the Panthers if they don't knock off second place San Angelo Saturday night in Odessa.

The Bobcats are in second place at 4-1, but a victory over the Black Cats would virtually propel Smitty Hill's Concho Cats into the state playoffs. And beating Permian is something San Angelo has made a habit of in recent years.

A San Angelo win over the 8-0 Panthers would throw them into a tie for first with only 0-5 Big Spring left on the schedule. It wouldn't matter, then, how Permian fared against Odessa, if San Angelo then beats the Steers.

In other action on Friday, Abilene Cooper invades Midland as the Bulldogs attempt to climb in the standings. Should Midland negotiate a win over the Cougars similar to last week's 27-7 shocker against Odessa, the Purple Pack could move into a tie for second, provided Permian beats San Angelo.

Midland Lee will be trying to level its district record at 3-3 against Abilene in the Key City while Odessa will be playing at Big Spring.

game more than the other, and that's where the fun will begin.

Last week in the picking game, I hit on 16 of 20 games for a season total of 183-65. Now to this week.

ANDREWS 21, FORT STOCKTON 14—Despite what R-T cartoonist Norman Johnson thinks, the Mustangs will win this one.

LUBBOCK ESTACADO 15, LAMESA 13—The Tors will end the season on a sour note.

CRANE 14, SONORA 13—The Golden Cranes now have the important taste of victory, and that will cause momentum.

MARFA 24, RANKIN 14—Marfa will be ready for McCamey.

McCAMEY 24, WINK 14—McCamey will be ready for Marfa.

STANTON 34, O'DONNELL 7—The Buffs will still have their eyes on the Plains-Seagraves outcome.

JUNCTION 18, RRAGAN COUNTY 14—The Owls could pull this one out of the fire, but this hasn't been their season.

MORE WILDNESS: Abilene Cooper 14, Midland High 6; Midland Lee 20, Abilene High 18; Odessa Permian 24, San Angelo 14; Odessa High 30, Big Spring 14; Monahans 21, Odessa Ector 13; Pecos 31, Seminole 8; Lubbock Dunbar 19, Snyder 13; Lake View 32, Sweetwater 12; Kermit 21, Ozona 20; Seagraves 35, Plains 7; Iraan 25, Clint 0; Wall 28, Menard 9; Eldorado 14, Mason 6.

AS WE joined the crowd, the subject under exploration was the difference between college and pro ball.

"The biggest difference," Tony explained, "is at halftime. I'm still not used to going into the locker room and seeing players light up a cigarette."

Another area of contrast is the season. "We've already played 13 games, counting exhibitions, which is more than the average college season. And we still have seven to 10 games left. That's the equivalent of two college seasons. You learn a lot, but it's also important to pace yourself so that you have something left for the finish."

Dorsett went on, "In college football there is so much electricity in the air from the fans that it's infectious. In pro football, it's a business. You are expected to perform whether you are pysched up or not. That's what they are paying you for."

IN ONE respect, Dorsett says pro football and college football are similar. "I can understand with this offense why rookies report to the Cowboys' camp earlier than other teams. Training camp meetings are like a trig or calculus class, the offense is so intricate and scientific."

Tony adds, "It made me feel like I was in college. I was just hoping I could pass the test they give you."

Asked if he encountered any animosity or felt any dissension over signing as a rookie for box car figures, Tony replied, "No, people seem to be happy for me when they look at my background. There were seven kids and we lived in a small project apartment. The first thing I did after signing was buy my mother a home."

DORSETT SAID he found "Money is not everything. That's something I realized in my senior year at Pittsburgh. After the Sugar Bowl, I declared myself a pro and went on the banquet-speaking circuit to pick up some extra money. The money was good, but it was a mistake. I realized that health and happiness are the only important things."

Dorsett, the Hawk, is looking forward to a Dallas visit from his four-year-old son, curiously nicknamed Little Hawk. "No, I don't expect him to follow in my footsteps, I just want him to do what he wants. If he does play football, I'll give him all the pointers I can, but that's his decision."

As for his own football career, Tony says he "fell into a family tradition. My four older brothers played and I just followed them. It was expected. They all regretted not going to college, but didn't let me make the same mistake."

Someone wanted to know if the post-game attention was getting old, did all the interviews bother him?

"Well, let's say I'm getting used to being the last person out of the locker room. If there were no interviews, I think they would be telling me something... that I'm on my way out."

ABC takes stiff jab from probing group

By WILLIAM J. DRUMMOND
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — ABC Sports Wednesday took some sharp jabs from a House subcommittee looking into the discredited U.S. Boxing Championships, which the network suspended last April amid charges that the tournament rankings were fixed.

The House Communications Subcommittee, investigating the need for possible changes in laws regulating the TV networks, questioned ABC Sports officials for 3 1-2 hours.

The subcommittee sought to determine the manner in which fighters were selected for the tournament that offered approximately $1.5 million in purses. It also tried to find out just what made the tournament a "championship" event.

ABC OFFICIALS conceded that a young associate producer on the network staff had warned in a Dec. 21, 1976, memorandum — two weeks before the bouts began — that only about half of the boxers included in the tournament were qualified, another 11 were "marginal," six were "distant" and the remaining 14 were "disgraces."

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, said the boxing ratings of Ring Magainze, upon which the network relied, "lacked the integrity we thought they had."

Arledge said internal misgivings about the quality of the rankings were so strong that ABC insisted that Ring Magazine and promoter Don King submit affidavits guaranteeing the validity of the rankings. Arledge said they were the first such affidavits required in his 17 years of sports broadcasting.

ABC did not make these problems known before the tournament, network officials told the subcommittee.

The failure by the network to inform the public of the real quality of the participants in the tournament constitutes the main interest by the subcommittee in the sports world.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., said in an opening statement the first day of the two-day hearing:

"The principal concern is whether in fact what we see on the networks is accurate. If the networks pay for an event, will their advertising, promotion and reporting of that event be subject to 'hype'? ... If a network carries a boxing match, does it have a duty to report accurately the records of the fighters? Or is the duty to the public merely to show the fight?"

Chaps' basketball ducats go on sale

Season tickets for Midland College's home basketball games go on sale today and will remain on sale through the month of November, according to athletic director Delnor Poss.

A season ticket for the 12 Chaparral home game is priced at $16 for adults, $8 for students and, $32 for the entire family. They may be purchased at the Midland College athletic office located in the Physical Education building, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Poss pointed out that the regular single game admission charge is $2 for adults and $1 for students. MC students are admitted free with their identification cards.

The Midland College cage season opens on Monday, Nov. 7, when the Chaps host McMurry College's junior varsity in a 7:30 p.m. game in the PE building. The Chaps will also be home next week against Laredo Junior College on Tuesday and Wayland Baptist College junior varsity on Friday.

Debbie Massey fires one over in Mizuno

TOKYO (AP) — American rookie pro Debbie Massey fired a one-over-par 75 today to coast to a six-stroke victory in the $100,000 Mizuno Classic Ladies Professional Golfers Association tournament.

Miss Massey, 26, won the $15,000 first prize in the three-day tournament, an official LPGA event, with a 220 total, two under par.

Sixty-nine golfers, including 45 Americans, teed off in strong winds on the 6,925 yard, par-74 Hanayashiki golf course near Kobe, western Japan.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston linebacker Robert Brazile compares playing football against his old college roommate Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears with a game of checkers between the former Jackson State stars.

In both games someone is likely to get crowned.

"If I make a wrong move in a checkers game, he'll try to beat me," said Brazile, who'll try to slow down the NFL's leading ground gainer Sunday when the two teams meet in the Astrodome. "It's the same out here on this field but it's more of a physical and mental thing."

Payton, who rushed 205 yards against Green Bay last week to take over the National Football League rushing lead with 858 yards, doesn't think his friendship will get in the way against Brazile.

"The type of respect that we have for each other is such that if Robert got out there and I came his way and he did anything but try to knock me crazy, I would think less of him for it," Payton said.

Salinas ready to toss lettuce in bidding for free agents

SALINAS, Calif. — Watch out, Gene Autry and George Steinbrenner. The minor league Salinas Angels, armed with virtual mountains of green stuff to throw around, are jumping into baseball's free agent bidding wars.

The wheeling-dealing Angels are after players who produce — and who want to produce.

How about a lifetime supply of lettuce, for openers?

"We are not talking about a 20-year supply, but a lifetime supply," said Salinas general manager Pete Ciccarelli. "If a guy lives to be 90, we will give him lettuce until he dies."

BOB ANDREWS, owner of the Class A California League affiliate of the California Angels, has a hand in some big league agriculture in the San Joaquin Valley.

"Bob has agreed to give free agents who sign with us a lifetime supply of fresh produce, artichokes, cantaloupes, strawberries, lettuce, whatever," said Ciccarelli. "This is probably more than major league owners Gene Autry (California Angels) or George Steinbrenner (New York Yankees) are investing."

Money is something else, however.

Like most minor league teams, Salinas operates on a tight budget with help from its major league affiliate. Most players earn $600 a month and get paid only for the months they spend with the team.

"WE STARTED a slush fund, but there were so many other things going on during the season I wasn't able to devote a lot of attention to it," said Ciccarelli, whose team drew 76,141 fans for the season. "We built up $1.84, but I'm sure Bob would go as high as $800 or $900 a month if we could get a quality guy who is really going to add to our club."

That would be enough to make most general managers pass on trying to lure big name free agents available in Friday's draft, but not Ciccarelli.

He has written most of the free agents as well as player agent Jerry Kapstein, offering them trips to Salinas, population 76,000, to talk contracts.

"THE GUY that says money is not the most important thing is right up my alley," he said. "Salinas has more to offer for esthetic purposes than any city in the big leagues. It is a wonderful place to raise a family and we have great fans.

VIEW FROM THE LIVING ROOM

It's tough to stop Buckeyes . . . or Woody

By HOWARD SMITH

NEW YORK (AP) — The lights come up, the march music begins, the cameras close in and thousands of Ohioans settle down for another edition of what may be the longest running television show in history.

It's "The Woody Hayes Show" starring that genial talk show host, noted military historian, amateur psychiatrist, raconteur and football Coach Wayne Woodrow Hayes.

Lee Vlisides, sports director of WBNS-TV in Columbus, says something like "Well, coach, that was some game," and then leans back and listens ...and listens ...and listens.

"It's very difficult to stop Woody once he starts talking," says Vlisides. "He has a tendency to dominate the other guests. He runs off into history and political science, and last week he was giving us a lesson in physics.

"I have to jump in every so often and say 'Okay, coach, now it's time to pause for this word,' just to get the commercials in."

"The Woody Hayes Show" is in its 27th year and has dominated its time slot Saturday nights almost as completely as the Ohio State football team has dominated its time slot Saturday afternoons. "In our viewing area we're about the equivalent of "Roots" every week," says Vlisides. "We have about half the market, about 110,000 homes."

The format, in theory, has Vlisides questioning Hayes about the day's game mixed in with a few filmed highlights and interviews with some of the players. But the interviews are not likely to be confused with "Meet The Press." An Ohio State pep rally is more like it. They don't call it "The Woody Hayes Show" for nothing.

"If I have an announcer who wants to ask embarrassing questions," says Hayes, "he gets over it or he gets out.

"The best thing on the show is when I interview the players. I can get them to talk when other people can't. I get them to talk about their interests, their aspirations. People used to have the idea that football players were big, dumb guys. I think we've broken down a lot of those opinions. We're able to show people what the players are really like.

Vlisides is in his second season as Hayes' announcer. He almost didn't make it through the first one. At a luncheon last year Vlisides made the mistake of questioning Hayes' defensive strategy in a game against Wisconsin. The result was a screaming match in which Hayes emerged the clear winner by several decidels.

"It's a proven fact that Woody will not answer any questions he doesn't want to," says Vlisides. "He'll give you a response but he won't answer the question. We have come to a tacit agreement. I am allowed to ask my questions and he is allowed not to answer them."

Sometimes Hayes' tendency to wander off the subject of football results in some interesting guests.

"One time he brought two unknown players on the show wearing jerseys whose numbers corresponded to the numbers of local school bond levies. He introduced them as number 47 and number 49. They were fifth stringers. They never played. He pointed to their shirts and said he hoped everyone would support these bond issues.

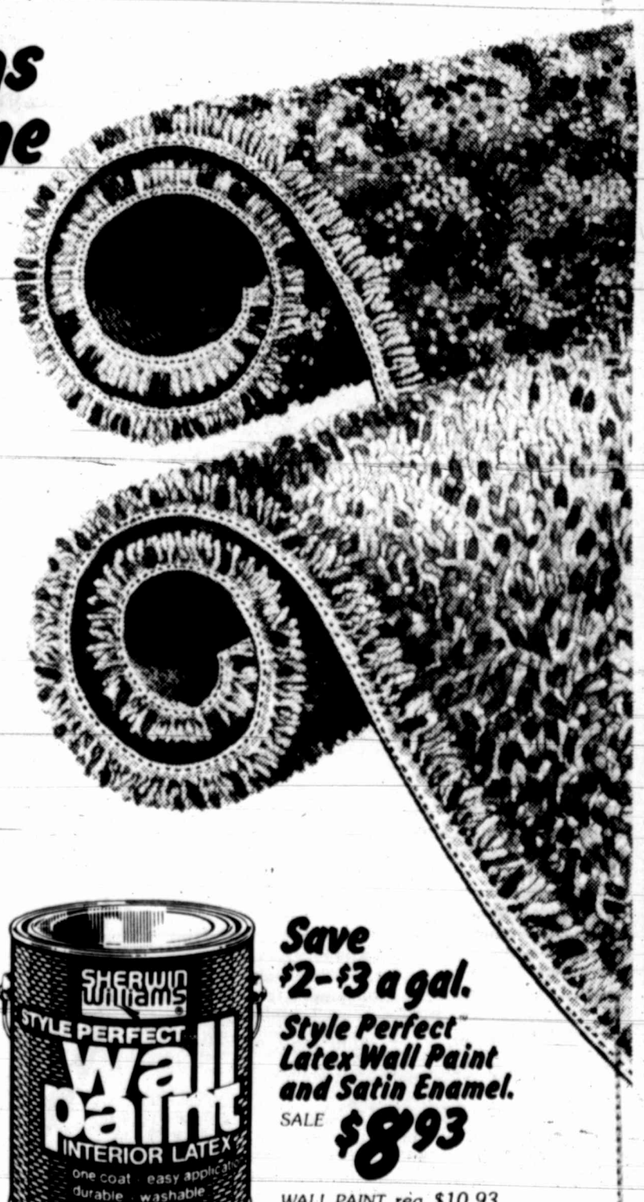

"We almost got hit for equal time by the opposition on that one."

Hayes' teams don't lose very often but when they do you would expect him to be more irascible than usual. Not so.

"He's much more open and calm when he loses," says Vlisides. "The show after the Oklahoma game was probably one of the best we've done."

Texans close to unanimous on some issues

HOUSE

SOCIAL SECURITY. Rejected, 196 for and 221 against, an amendment to prevent "standby authority" under which general Treasury money could be used to pay Social Security benefits. Defeat of the amendment left intact proposed authority for the Social Security fund to borrow from the Treasury if its reserves fall perilously low. The amendment was proposed to HR 9346, a bill increasing Social Security taxes on employes and employers and making several other changes in the pension program. It was headed for final passage and consoderation by the Senate.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Tex., sponsor of the amendment, said: "I feel the worst thing that the House could do to erode public confidence is to pump funds from the general Treasury into the system."

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., an opponent, said Americans will be heartened that Congress is "saying we will back up that Social Security trust fund to the full extent of the American Treasury...This is the signal they are looking for."

Members voting "nay" favored putting the U.S. Treasury behind the Social Security fund.

Reps. Samuel Hall (D-1), Charles Wilson (D-2), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Bill Archer (R-7), Jake Pickle (D-10), W. R. Poage (D-11), Jack Hightower (D-13), John Young (D-14), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Omar Burleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19), Henry Gonzalez (D-20), Bob Gammage (D-22), Abraham Kazen (D-23), and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "yea."

Reps. Jim Mattox (D-5), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jack Brooks (D-9), Barbara Jordan (D-18) and Robert Krueger (D-21) voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague (D-6) and James Wright (D-12) did not vote.

SOCIAL SECURITY. Adopted, 386 for and 38 against, an amendment to prevent compulsory Social Security coverage for federal, state and local government employees and employees of non-profit organizations. The amendment, attached to the bill making changes in the Social Security system (see above vote), set a two-year study of how to bring about universal Social Security coverage.

It eliminated a proposal that universal coverage begin in 1982, in order to bolster the Social Security trust fund. Government and non-profit workers covered by pension plans other than Social Security were to have their equity safeguarded in the integration procedure.

Members voting "nay" favored universal Social Security coverage beginning in 1982.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Burleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Teague, Archer, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, White, Burleson, Mahon, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, de la Garza, Jordan, Gonzales and Kruger voted "nay."

BUSING. Adopted, 230 for and 186 against, a resolution instructing House conferees to insist on anti-busing language when they meet with Senate Conferees on the Legal Services Corporation Act (HR 6666). Both chambers have passed the bill extending the life of the agency, but disagree over whether Legal Services attorneys can participate in school desegregation cases. The Senate says participation should be allowed and the House is opposed to it. This vote reaffirmed the House's opposition.

Members voting "yea" favored reaffirming the House position.

SENATE

OPIC. Passed, 68 for and 12 against, a bill (S 1771) extending the life of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) until Sept. 30, 1981. OPIC insures certain foreign investments by U.S. companies, guarantees loans by U.S. banks to developing countries, and provides direct loans to developing countries. Although a wholly-owned U.S. government corporation, it requires no appropriations out of the Treasury because it turns a profit. S 1771 was sent to the House.

Senators voting "yea" favored continuation of OPIC.

PANAMA VOTE. Tabled, 69 for and 13 against, an amendment indirectly related to the Panama Canal treaties issue. The amendment was proposed to S 1771, the bill extending the life of the Overseas Private Investment Corp. (OPIC) until September 1981 (see above vote). It was directed at an understanding between U.S. and Panamanian negotiators that OPIC would loan $20 million to Panama for starting up a Panamanian government development bank, and said that any such loan would need Senate approval. The $20 million is part of about $300 million which Panama would receive through international lending agencies; although treaty negotoators agreed on that financing, it is not written into the treaties the Senate eventually will debate.

ABSENTEEISM. Directed, 77 for and four against, the Sergeant at Arms "to request the attendance of absent senators." Due to conflicting business elsewhere on Capitol Hill, only 11 senators were able to answer a quorum call. That prompted Majority Leader Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.) to call this vote, the effect of which was to populate the chamber and expedite action on an energy bill. There was no debate.

Nine counties earn disaster area label

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nine South Texas counties that suffered economic losses as a result of the devaluation of the peso have been designated by the Small Business Administration as disaster areas.

The counties are Brooks, Cameron, Hidalgo, Jim Wells, Maverick, Starr, Webb, Willacy and Val Verde.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said this week the SBA had notified him that eligible owners of small businesses have until next July 28 to seek loans of up to $100,000.

The low-interest rate loans will be made by regional SBA offices to firms that can show a decline in business as a result of the devaluation of the peso, said a statement from the governor's office.

Midland Youth Center chatter

By KIM WOOD, SHERI BAILEY, and DINAH BOYD

Homecoming 1977-78 is over, and Midland High once again is back to its regular schedule. The MHS Youth Center held a lovely dance Saturday night, with Old West decorations. The parade was a great success. Boldly driving down the street was a huge, red command truck carrying the 100 Club sweetheart. This unique vehicle was lent to the Youth Center by Tony McCarthey. Nickel Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge also let the Junior Council borrow a jeep. Both added greatly to the parade. Thanks!!!

Out football team, still hot from the last victory, meets Abilene Cooper Friday night. In the event that this will be a long weekend for the students, there will not be a dance after this game. The music will strike up again, however, after the big Midland-Lee game.

The Bulldog tennis team is defending its title this weekend at Wichita Falls. Good luck in this State Team Tournament!

Girl's volleyball team lost a heart-breaker to Odessa last Tuesday night. The team plays Abilene Cooper here tonight, so everyone get on out to the game and cheer the team on to victory.

Congratulations to the Junior Rotarians and the Junior Lion. They are Holy Holt, John Hurt, and Clare Tompson, respectively.

The Cross-Country Team is still doing all the good. The boys will be Amarillo this weekend. Good Luck. Until next week—

That's life.
Kim, Sheri and Dinah

P.S. Good luck to the Rebs as they meet the Abilene Eagles.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Murmurs mean little

Dear Dr. Solomon: The doctor said that our son, who is eight, has a slight heart murmur. But he told us not to worry, as there was nothing abnormal about it—and nothing to prevent him from doing anything he wants. I'm still a bit anxious, however, because I had always assumed that a heart murmur was a sign that there was something wrong. — Geraldine T.

Dear Geraldine: Heart murmurs are very common in children. And in the great majority of cases, they do not mean a thing — the heart is perfectly normal and just as sound as a murmurless heart.

At one time, it is true, a murmur was believed to be cause for caution and concern. In those days, children were often unnecessarily restricted becauce of a perfectly harmless murmur. We certainly don't want to make that mistake today. If you doctor says you have nothing to be concerned about, I would take his word for it.

Even in instances when a murmur does indicate a heart abnormaity, incidentally, a parent should not despair, as the majority of these are not all serious and are very apt to go away by themselves. And where a serious cardic (heart) defect does occur in children, the condition can almost always be corrected by modern heart surgery.

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the talk about high blood pressure, you never hear whether or not people in big cities or certain parts of the country have it more than others—at least I never do. I'd be very interested in finding out this sort of thing, and for that matter, any other statistics you happen to have run across about just who is most likely to get it. — Dave W.

Dear Dave: Geographically, the South has a slightly higher percentage of hypertension—or high blood pressure — than other parts of the country (21.8 percent of the population). Next comes the Northeast (20.7 percent), the North Central States (20.1 percent) and then the West (19.3).

There are also certain differences between various groups of people. For on thing, as the family income goes down, the rate of hypertension goes up. In general, the poor, the elderly, blacks and females are more likely to have hypertension than other people.

According to the latest figures from the National Center for Health Statistics, at least one fifth of all adult Americans — nearly 23 million people — have hypertension. So, wherever you happen to live, do check your blood pressure regularly — about once a year. If you blood pressure is on the high side, be sure to follow whatever regime the doctor prescribes for you.

Water labeled unfit in small Valley town

SANTA ROSA, Tex. (AP) — Residents of this impoverished Rio Grande Valley town have been advised to boil all their drinking water after state officials declared the water not fit to consume.

"The Department of Health people found some bacteria and algae in our water and it disturbed them quite a bit," said Santa Rosa Mayor Joe E. Cameron this morning. "Nobody here has ever gotten sick from the water but the bacteria they found could cause diarrhea."

Last week, Cameron fired off letters to local and national politicians — including Sen. Edward Kennedy — pleading for some federal funds to help Santa Rosa correct its "salty, stinky-tasting" water.

"Our whole water system is 20 years old and like I've been telling the people, it's got to be fixed and we just don't have the money to do it," said the mayor. "I don't see why the government can't help us. They throw millions of dollars down the tube every day for programs that don't help as many people as a new water plant would help us."

Santa Rosa has a population of 1,466 with a per capita income of $1,268, according to the latest census reports, said a city official, who added, "99 per cent of the populaton is Hispanic and that's a conservative figure."

Cameron said men began working today at the town's water settling plant to "clean the thing up. This happens when you don't have the money to hire the people to take care of it.

"We have a firm coming over this afternoon to install a new chlorinator which will cost a bunch," he continued. "We'll have to take some of the money we were going to use to retire some city bonds and spend it on the water plant. The bond people will just have to wait."

Last month, the town was cited for 12 violations by the Texas State Department of Health Resources because of its water.

"The state will not approve another water well and the present one will not satisfy the state standards," a Santa Rosa city official said last week.

Discovery completes, confirmers potential

Eddy County, N.M., drew a discovery, two confirmation completions and a stepout site. A pool extender has been completed in Chaves.

Kincaid & Watson Drilling Co., Artesia, No. 7-8 Humble was completed as a Seven Rivers discovery in Eddy for a 24-hour pumping potential of 25 barrels of oil and 10 barrels of water, through perforations at 1,144-1,148 feet.

The pay section had been acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 26,000 gallons and 48,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 1,200 feet, where 5½-inch casing is set, top of the Seven Rivers was picked at 1,144 feet, under ground elevation of 3,648 feet.

Location is 330 feet from north and west lines of section 8-17s-29e, 17 miles east of Artesia.

Dorchester Exploration Corp., Midland, No. 1 Morrison Communitized was completed as a second well and one-mile west estension in the Four Mile Draw, West (Morrow) gas field in Eddy.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential gauge was 5.250 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 9,190-9,197 feet, no treatment reported.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 5-19s-26e, 10 miles south of Artesia.

The discovery, Samedan Oil Corp. No. 1 Fanning, finaled in September 1973 for 2.97 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 9,207-9,233 feet.

Exxon Corp. No. 1-CU New Mexico-State has been completed as the second upper Pennsylvanian well and location south extension in the Winchester field of Eddy.

It flowed a preliminary completion gauge of 4.6 million cubic feet of gas, plus 1,080 barrels of condensate and 320 barrels of water in 24 hours.

The flow was through an unreported choke and perforations at 9,666-9,978 feet, after 6,000 gallons of acid treatment. Gas-oil ratio measured 4,259-1.

Drilled to 10,400 feet, with 5½-inch casing set on bottom, it is plugged back to 10,300 feet.

Wellsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 36-19s-28e, 13 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Texas Pacific Oil Co., Inc., No. 1 Glenn Farmer, location southeast stepout to the Kennedy Farms (Morrow) gas field in Eddy, flowed gas at the rate of 5.7 million cubic feet per day for an unreported time.

The flow was through a 32-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,586-8,704 feet. It has been shut in.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 26-17s-26e, three miles southeast of Artesia.

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, staked site for a ¾-mile southwest stepout to Morrow production in the Kennedy Farms field. It is No. 1-IS Siegenthaller Communitized.

Drillsite, one mile southeast of Artesia is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 21-17s-26e, one mile southeast of Artesia.

Yates Petroleum No. 1 I. L. Johnson has been finaled as a location north extension to the Linda (San Andres) field of Chaves, 14 miles southeast of Elkins.

The 24-hour potential was for nine barrels of oil and 46 barrels of water, producing through perforations at 1,001-1,045 feet, after 64,000 gallons and 190,000 pounds of fracture sand.

Wellsite is 990 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 30-6s-26e.

WEC suit recessed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The $2.5 billion damage suit filed by a group of utilities against Westinghouse Electric Corp. for canceling contracts to supply them with uranium has recessed until Tuesday.

A consultant hired by Westinghouse testified Wednesday the company's announcement in September 1975 it could not supply some 65 million pounds of uranium ore did not force the price of the ore up.

Westinghouse has contended the price increases that began in late 1973 were the result of the Arab oil embargo and a conspiracy by an international cartel of uranium producers.

Ms. Celia Star Gody, senior vice president of Foster Associates Inc. of Washington, testified for Westinghouse the company's disclosure it couldn't supply the fuel did not increase prices.

The price of uranium ore in 1973 was about $10 a pound, and had risen to about $25 a pound when Westinghouse made the disclosure. The price climbed up to about $40 a pound and has stayed there, she said.

Ms. Gody said even if the announcement had precipitated price hike by uranium producers the effect should have worn off by now.

"I'm not aware prices have headed back down," she told U. S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr..

When she concluded her testimony Merhige recessed the trial so he could attend a judicial conference.

The trial began in September. It originally involved 10 electric utilities that claimed they had bought nuclear reactors from Westinghouse and the company in turn had agreed to supply them with fuel.

Each of the utilities presented its own evidence in the first phase of the trial.

Probe set in Garza

Hilliard Oil & Gas. Inc., Midland, has scheduled No. 1 Connel-l Estate, an 8,100-foot prospector in Garza County, eight miles northeast of Ellenburger oil production in the Rocker A field.

Drillsite is 853 feet from south, and 2,030 feet from west lines of section 129, block 5, H&GN survey, 14 miles southeast of Post.

Pecos gas discovery takes potential test

A pay opener has been completed in a Pecos gas area, Reeves County drew site for an explorer, and attempt will be made to extend an Andrews field pay.

Getty Oil Co. No. 2-26 Mendel, has been completed as a Wolfcamp lime pay opener, and ½-mile north extension to Wolfcamp sand production in the Gomez gas field of Pecos, 12 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

It was completed through Wolfcamp lime perforations at 10,464-10,620 feet, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 10.2 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-condensate ratio of 1,749-1. Gravity of the liquid was 50.7 degrees.

Producing section had been acidized with 9,500 gallons.

Completion as an extender to the Wolfcamp sand horizon, was for a calculated, absolute open flow of 220,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 11,109-11,150 feet, following 9,000 gallons of acid and 15,000 gallons, plus 22,500 pounds of fracture sand.

Drilled to 11,300 feet, with 5- and 5½-inch liners hung from 9,898-11,300 feet, it is plugged back to 11,257 feet.

The following tops were picked, elevation unreported; Delaware lime, 5,272; Delaware sand, 5,307; Bone Springs, 8,060; Wolfcamp, 9,562; Wolfcamp lime, 10,459 and Wolfcamp sand, 11,071 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 26, block 48, T-9, T&P survey.

REEVES PROSPECTOR

HNG Oil Co., Midland, has announced plans to drill an 18,500-foot searcher for gas in Reeves, 3½ miles east of the Worsham-Bayer multipay gas field. It is No. 1-23 Hoover-Morris.

Location is 1,650 feet from north and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 23, block 7, H&GN survey, six miles northwest of Coyanosa.

ANDREWS SITE

Texam Oil Corp., Dallas, has scheduled No. 1-A University Lands as a ⅜-mile southwest stepout to Tubb oil production in the Martin pool of Andrews.

Location for the 6,500-foot test is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 14, block 11, ULS.

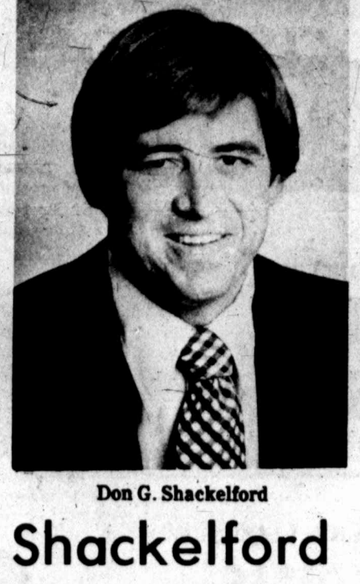

The field has six wells currently producing from the Tubb, three of which are in a south extension sector.

Reentry scheduled

Taubert, Steed, Gunn & Medders, Wichita Falls, filed application to re-enter and deepen to 5,800 feet at No. 12-C S. B. Burnett Estate, former Tannehill well, for recompletion try as a second Bend conglomerate producer and ¾-mile northwest extension to that pay in the Big N field.

It is 666 feet from north and 2,180 feet from east lines of section 11, block F, H&TC survey, abstract 175, 14 miles southeast of Guthrie.

Don G. Shackelford

Shackelford appointed

SAN ANGELO — Tucker Drilling Co., Inc., has announced the appointment of Don G. Shackelford as comptroller for the company.

Tucker Drilling president Bruce L. Fly said "We are very pleased to have a man of Shackelford's ability with us. We expect his experience will contribute substantially to our success during the current period of continuing growth for our company."

A native of Texas, he is a graduate of Eastern New Mexico University with B.B.A. degree in Business Administration. He also received an M.B.A. degree from the same university in accounting. Shackelford is a certified public accountant.

He worked five years with Elmer Fox, Westheimer & Co. in Midland. He also has consulting and auditing experience working with a number of leading West Texas-based oil and gas companies.

He is a member of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and is a former member of the Board of Directors of the Permian Basin Chapter of AICPA.

Tucker Drilling is engaged in contract drilling and in exploration for gas and oil, operates producing oil and gas wells and owns leasehold acreage in Texas and Louisiana.

90 percent of offshore rigs working

TULSA, Okla. — More than 90 percent of the 396 worldwide offshore drilling rigs are now working to produce more petroleum from the oceans' floors, reports The Oil & Gas Journal.

The world's surplus of the rigs is declining rapidly, the journal said.

The 357 rigs under contract in early September is a record, the journal reported.

The 39 rigs not working represent $100 million's worth of "idle but usable" equipment, the journal said in a news release. Some are waiting on technicalities, and some others are undergoing repairs or modifications.

Employment of the rigs is up, the journal reported.

"Business . . . is much better but still not as good as it could be," said the journal.

The overbuilding surplus, which caused high unemployment, is "disappearing about as fast as could be expected," the report said.

The upturn in activity could be jarred by a temporry seasonal decline. However, 1978 may be a banner year for offshore contractors, the journal said.

North America is both the busiest and fastest growing area for offshore drilling contractors.

Elsewhere across the oceans, drilling activity is looking good in the North Sea, in the Arabian-Persian Gulf, and off the coasts of Mexico and Brazil.

The offshore-drilling business, which heretofore has cycled from surplus to shortage and back, "is fast tilting toward higher supply again."

New energy department struggles with fusion

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The new Department of Energy is in the midst of a struggle over whether the science and thechnology of laser fusing should be kept under military control or be given civilian leadership.

For the time being at least, the $120 million-a-year program to produce fusion power from laser light will be kept secret and witll continue to come under the Energy Department's assistant secretary for defense programs. But the decision to keep laser fusion under military control was made only after a long debate inside the fledgling department.

"There was a decision made at one level to take laser fusion out from under the military," one source inside the Energy Department said. "But this decision was reversed at a higher level."

Acting Assistant Secretary Robert D. Thorne told the Senate Energy Committee Wednesday of the decision to maintain military controls over the laser fusion program, which has been under way now for more than five years. Thorne said the decision to keep laser fusion under the military umbrella was made "because of the classified nature of its day-to-day operations."

The Energy Department inherited laser fusion from the now defunct Energy Research and Development Administration, which itself inherited the program from the Atomic Energy commission. The old AEC and its two successor agencies are resposible for nuclear weapons testing and development.

There had been a strong push by environmentalists and by private industry to get laser fusion out from under military controls and as recently as last week Thorne was showing an organizational chart around Capital Hill that showed the program removed from military controls and put under civilian leadership.

"That chart was withdrawn," an Energy Department source said. "It could happen that eventually laser fusion might get civilian leadership but it won't come right away."

Laser fusion research and development received $116 million from Congress this year, with most of the money spent at the nation's nuclear weapons laboratories at Sandia and Los Alamos in New Mexico and at Livermore in California. KMS in Ann Arbor, Mich., and Exxon Corp., also do some laser fusion research. So does the University of Rochester.

Fusion by laser involves striking pellets of deuterium and tritium gas with laser light so powerful and intense it melts the pellets and ignites the gas in an instant, producing temperatures of hundreds of thousands of degrees. The secrets involved in the process surround the making of the pellets, not the laser that ignites the pellets.

"The way these pellets are made comes right out of nuclear weapons technology," one source said. "It involved secrets that are crucial to the way hydrogen bombs are exploded."

The pellets are tinny balloons filled with what scientists call DT gas, a mixture of deuterium and tritium. Both radioactive isotopes of hydrogen, they are key ingredients in thermonuclear warheads.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

Production indicated

Fortune Drilling Co., Inc., San Angelo, No. 1 Robertson, Tom Green County wildcat, one location northeast of the depleted Susan Peak, Northwest (upper Strawn) field, has indicated production in the Strawn with the recovery of oil on a drillstem test.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken from 4,657-4,673 feet. Recovery was 390 feet of free 32-gravity oil and 90 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud.

Operator was taking a drillstem test from 4,720 to 4,732 feet.

An earlier test recovered 100 feet of gas, 20 feet of slightly gas-cut mud and 180 feet of slightly gas-cut water. The test was from 4,371-4,3890 feet.

Location is 2,500 feet from south and 690 feet from west lines of section 164, block 11, SPRR survey, nine miles southeast of San Angelo.

Who will pay for gas line?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has congressional approval on his decision to push for an Alaska natural gas pipeline, but major issues must be settled before construction starts.

And the biggest issue is who is going to pay for the $10 billion pipeline, which Carter says should be financed privately.

On Wednesday, when the House and Senate approved Carter's decision, Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, told colleagues that without federal help the project may fail.

Sen. John A. Durkin, D-N.H., said he would never vote for federal assistance, and several members of both houses said they agreed with him.

Carter selected a consortium of U.S. and Canadian companies to build a trans-Canada pipeline network for carrying natural gas from Alaska's North Slope to terminals in the San Francisco Bay area and suburban Chicago.

The pipeline would supply roughly 5 percent of the nation's current natural gas needs for 25 years.

The $10 billion cost would make it the most expensive project ever financed privately. And federal agencies figure there could be an overrun of $2 billion.

Spokesmen for the Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, the major U.S. firm, and its partner Canadian and American companies, say the project can be privately financed. No firm arrangements have been made.

Schleicher areas gain wildcat, field stepouts

Schleicher County drew sites for a wildcat and two pool stepouts, and an explorer is planned for Coke.

J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, has scheduled No. 2 Rousselot, a 9,000-foot venture in Schleicher, 16 miles northeast of Eldorado.

It spots 694 feet from north and 503 feet from east lines of section 13, block FF, GC&SF survey, 1½ mile northwest of Canyon gas production in the Sawyer field and two miles west of the Turkey Roost (Ellenburger) gas field.

STEPOUTS STAKED

Cola Petroleum, Inc., Midland, has staked two stepouts to production in the two-well Canyon "B" gas area of the Eldorado, North field of Schleicher, about four miles northwest of Eldorado. They are slated to 6,600 feet.

No. 1-A Whitten, a west and slightly north offset is 2,320 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 26, block LL, TCRR survey.

No. 1 Whitten, a 2¼-mile southwest outpost, is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 34, block LL, TCRR survey.

CONFIRMER FINALS

The Eldorado, South (Canyon sand) gas area of Schleicher gained a confirmation with completion of Gas Development Corp., Midland, No. 1-105 Clovis Olsak, 2¾ miles southwest of Eldorado.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 6.130 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 864,062-1. Gravity of the condensate is 63.5 degrees.

The well finaled through perforations at 6,411-6,510 feet, after acidizing with 4,000 gallons and fracturing with 36,000 gallons and an unreported amount of sand.

It is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 105, block A, HE&WT survey, one location southwest of the opener.

The discovery, Gas Development No. 1 Shell-Williams, finaled in July for 1.555 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 6,395-6,483 feet.

COKE PROSPECTOR

WES-TEX Drilling Co. of Abilene, has scheduled No. 1 W. E. Burns, a 6,600-foot Strawn venture in Coke, eight miles southwest of Robert Lee.

Location is 660 feet from north and 2,473 feet from west lines of section 237, block 2, H&TC survey, 112 mile southeast of the depleted Green Mountain (Canyon reef) field.

Dealer suggests unique, friendly Christmas gift

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — For a Christmas gift that will crawl up your arm, sit on your nose and look you directly in the eye, try one of Jim Carroll's hairy Mexican Red-legged Tarantula spiders.

"It's not the pet for everyone," the pet shop owner admits. But it could be the perfect answer for those who don't have the time to house train and care for a dog or cat.

As one of the large, brightlycolored spiders crawled up the side of his face, Carroll noted the advantages of having a tarantula as a playful pet:

—They don't object to being caged, don't have to be taken for walks and don't bark or meow.

—They can go up to three months without eating, though they prefer to be fed at least twice a month. And when they do eat, they're not picky. A grasshopper or a baby mouse is exquisite cuisine for a tarantula.

—The monthly food bill for one of them, Carroll said, is about $1.

—They're long-lasting pets, too. Females live for about 23 years, while males reach maturity at about 11, mate once and then die.

Most of Carroll's tarantulas are males because they're easier to catch. Females don't often come above ground, he said.

Carroll, who doesn't stock dogs or cats and deals primarily in small birds and reptiles, sells his three-to-five-inch tarantulas for $14.95, complete with cage, and will put on a demonstration for potential buyers.

He may let a eight-inch tarantula crawl across his face, dragging its bony fangs up his cheeks, past his eyes and onto his forehead in a breathtakingly daring display intended to prove how harmless the hairy creatures really are.

"It's really hard to get them riled up," he said, explaining that if they do bite, their venom is only about as potent as that of a bee or wasp.

Of course, they aren't highly animated. You can't teach them how to fetch, play dead or roll over, Carroll said, but if you poke them with a sharp instrument, they will rear up on their hind legs.

Somewhat nearsighted, they can't see more than two inches in front of them, though they have eight eyes.

And, Carrol has learned, they aren't very sociable toward one another. If you put two of them in a cage together, the stronger one will kill the other and devour him.

"I only lost one that way," Carroll said. They have private cages now.

North Texas city ready

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — "Ladies and gentlemen, now departing London's Heathrow Airport for a supersonic, nonstop flight to Wichita Falls, Texas."

British pilots of the supersonic Concorde aren't making that announcement yet.

But if Dallas-Fort Worth area residents don't want the controversial plane, this North Texas city, population 105,000, would be happy to take it off their hands — pollution, noise and all.

The Wichita Falls city council approved a resolution this week seeking authorization from the Federal Aviation Administration to secure landing rights for the needle-nosed SST.

The Concorde has been tenatively cleared to land at several U.S. airports, including the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport — but not the Wichita Falls Municipal Airport.

City officials say the Concorde landings would be welcomed as a way to improve waning passenger service to the municipal airport. They fear there is not enough traffic to warrant expected expansion for which federal money has already been received.

Video tape disturbs White House canines

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Every time President Carter holds a formal news conference, the bomb-sniffing dogs at the White House set up a howl.

The animals presumably find no fault with Carter's question and answer sessions. They do object to television cameras armed with video tape.

Before each news conference, the room in which Carter meets with reporters is cleared so Secret Service agents and the dogs, assigned to the uniformed Executive Protective Service, can search for contraband, most particularly bombs.

It seems video tape smells the same as a bomb to the dozen German shepherd dogs recruited last year to help protect the president. The animals are reported to be proficient at sniffing, tracking and attacking. They may now have to be schooled in the distinction between explosives and tape.

Incidentally, several White House reporters swear they have seen the canines sporting official-looking passes, complete with their pictures in color, hanging from their collars. A Secret Service spokesman insists passes have not been issued to the dogs.

"It's my understanding that was simply a joke," spokesman John Warner says.

It takes a brave man to schedule an Octoberfest featuring root beer. Small wonder the gods rained on Carter's back yard both days set aside last week for a staff picnic that bore the questionable label Oktoberfest.

Some 600 employees of the White House and the Executive Office of the President paid $3 each for the privilege of drinking root beer and eating sauerkraut, sausages and potatoes on the White House lawn.

After two rainy days forced cancellation of the rites, White House messengers were kept busy returning about $1,800 to the offices of the would-be partygoers. That's a lot of root beer.

Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary, walked through the press room one day this week waving a large cigar he said befitted his new ndeed, Powell now is spending more of his time on affairs of state and less on the functions of his press office. This week, for example, Deputy Press Secretary Rex Granum is conducting three of the five daily press briefings.

Asked if he considers himself as well-informed as Powell, Granum declared, "I do."

The shift in Powell's priorities was dictated by concern among Carter and his aides about the way the White House has been performing or, some would say, failing to perform.

Maybe you haven't noticed but a lot of newspapers began referring this week to the president instead of the President.

The change in widely used newspaper style should not be taken personally by Jimmy Carter. The Associated Press and United Press International began wrestling such questions of capitalization long before anyone knew Carter would reach the White House.

On Monday, almost identical new stylebooks covering capitalization, abbreviations and other niceties were put into effect by AP and UPI and adopted by many newspapers. Arranged alphabetically, the entry under "president" reads:

"Capitalize president only as a formal title before one or more names: President Carter, Presidents r.

"Lowercase in all other uses: The president said today. He is running for president. Lincoln was president during the Civil War."

Maybe it's part of the deimperialization of the presidency. If that's the case, stylebook compilers have been at it for a long time.

Until Harry Truman became president, all AP dispatches put a "Mr." before each reference to a president's last name. Truman became simply Truman.

Children lose appeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The five children of a man who died from radiation treatment administered after a Dallas pathologist mistakenly diagnosed him as having lung cancer lost their suit Wednesday in the Texas Supreme Court.

A trial court had entered a $43,849 judgment against Parkland Hospital for the children of Jay Claude Hutchings.

The Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals overruled the judgment, however, stating that the hospital was not responsible for the pathologist, who was paid by the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas.

Court records show that Hutchings had a biopsy performed at Parkland in 1971 after complaining of a mild cough for a month. The pathologist diagnosed Hutchings as having an inoperable tumor, and he underwent cobalt treatment for about a year.

It was later learned, however, that the pathologist had discovered shortly after his original diagnosis that Hutchings did not have cancer but had a "harmless condition" that is sometimes mistaken for cancer, the appeals court said.

Nevertheless, the radiation treatments continued until Feb. 2, 1972. On April 8, 1972, the hospital staff discovered that Hutchings should not have received the treatments. A small tumor was removed from Hutchings' right lung, and he was released.

He died, however, in Amarillo July 7, 1972, as a result of the damage done to his lungs by the radiation, the appeals court said. The cause of death, the court said, was respiratory failure due to radiation fibrosis and lung inflammation as a result of radiation therapy.

In rejecting the children's plea, the appeals court said the negligence of the pathologist cannot form the basis of an action against the hospital since the pathologist was not an officer or employee of the hospital.

Market moves lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower in cautious trading today, continuing the steady decline that began Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 3 points in early trading, recovered a bit, posting a .69 loss at 800.16 by noon.

The much-watched indicator of blue-chip stocks closed at a two-year low of 800.85 Wednesday after losing more than 21 points since the start of the week.

By mid-day losers outnumbered gainers by a margin of about 5-to-3 among issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume came to just 7.5 million shares, compared with 9.03 million the previous day.

The NYSE composite index of all listed common stock was off .07 at 49.71 at noon.

Worries over interest rates and inflation put added pressure on the market this week, analysts said.

The Labor Department confirmed one fear with a report today that the wholesale price index for October rose to 9.6 percent on an annual rate from 6 percent in September. But the news, which had been largely expected, showed no signs of pushing the market lower.

Investors also were said to be cautiously awaiting the Federal Reserve Board's weekly report on the nation's money supply due out after the close of the NYSE today.

Among actively traded issues, American Motors was down ⅛ to 3⅞; General Motors fell ⅜ to 66⅛; American Telephone and Telegraph was unchanged at 58⅞ and Eastman Kodak gained ½ to 50¼.

Among other issues, Getty Oil fell 2¾ to 149¼; and Phelps Dodge added ⅛ to 18½ after losing 1⅞ Wednesday following a report on lower quarterly earnings.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off just .05 at 111.53 at mid-day.

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1938 the minimum hourly wage was 25 cents. In 1978, because of legislation signed this week by President Carter, it will be $2.65, or 10 times the dollar amount of 40 years ago.

Now divide by four.

The answer, in terms of purchasing power, is about where the minimum wage stands in relation to that 25 cents of 1938. Using a standard measurement, the 1957-1959 dollar, buying power was about $2 in 1938, less than 50 cents in 1977.

"The impact on our economy will be very beneficial," said Carter during a White House ceremony. "All that ever came" of earlier increases, he said, "is a little better way of life."

Carter said the newest increases, to $3.35 an hour by Jan. 1, 1981, will put $9 billion into the pockets of America's low-wage workers. He didn't mention inflation.

Neither, apparently, was much mention made of the critics who believe the midumum wage itself feeds inflation and thus in part defeats its goals. The poor, who must spend all their money on necessities, are most hurt by inflation.

The minimum wage, aimed at redistributing more of the nation's income into the lowest income brackets, remains controversial, no matter how democratic its goal.

Among the criticisms: it actually closes off job opportunities to the unskilled, it undermines apprenticeship programs, it adds to teen-age unemployment, it contributes to the price spiral by forcing up allother wages.

This, in turn, it is argued, forces millions of Americans into higher tax brackets.

Among the defenses: it is required to help provide the unskilled with the necessities of life, it furthers the cause of more equitable income distribution, it strengthtens democracy, it primes the economic pump.

While the goals are noble, one commonly misunderstood aspect of the situation is how the money is taken from workers by dollar erosion almost as fast as they get it.

Business expenses, that is, are simply passed on through as price increases. Some of the expenses might be absorbed if productivity rises, but history shows productivity doesn't rise by making unskilled labor more costly.

Instead, the greater the number of unskilled the less likely are productivity gains to be realized, an economic phenomenon demonstrated during every recent business cycle.

Productivity increases are a product of human skills and the wise use of capital and technology that lower production costs, allow goods to be sold for lower prices and still leave excesses to be distributed to workers and shareholders.

To raise productivity — call it efficiency — requires capital.

The capital expenditure to create one job varies from industry to industry. In chemicals it might be hundreds of thousands of dollars, in others only a small fraction of that. Some authorities say the average is $50,000-$75,000.

Therefore, says business, to create jobs we must have lower taxes. We must encourage savings. We must reduce inflation. And we must invest the ensuing benefits in a larger production plant.

Almost everyone concedes that the problem with selling the story lies in the suspicions of rank-and-file Americans that fat cat industrialists are serving their own interests rather than those of the nation.

But the alternative, say supporters of this argument, is to give some people more of the pie without cutting into the piece that's supposed to go to their neighbor.

It can't be done, of course. It's an illusion, like inflated dollars. And those on the minimum wage know it better than anyone else.

Graduate center sets new courses

The Permian Basin Graduate Center has announced the beginning of three courses to be presented by Marion Kimberly in the PBGC classrooms, basement of the Metro Building, 119 N. Colorado St.

Ms. Kimberly will present "Assertiveness Training" from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday. The course will begin Monday and continue through Dec. 12. The fee is $80.

The course is designed to help people express themselves more effectively and comfidently, according to a PBGC representative.

"Presenting Yourself" is a two session course beginning Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. The course is designed for persons wanting to improve the image they present to others in a self-assured manner.

Role-playing and feedback techniques will be used to help the student in situations dealing with employees and employers, employment interviews and similar situations. Fee for the course is $30.

On Tuesdays, "Women in Management" will be presented from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Dec. 13.

This course is designed for women who already hold responsible positions, as well as those who are interested in advancing into supervisory and management roles.

This course will focus on the special concerns of women as managers. Emphasis will be on developing individual awareness and skills in several areas. The course fee is $75.

Marion Kimberly received her B.A. from Mt. Holyoke College and her M.A. in community counseling for The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Ms. Kimberly is in private practice as a career couselor and also teaches career exploration courses. She has participated in and conducted professional training workshops on group leadership, communication skills, and assertiveness.

Persons desiring more information may telephone 683-2832 or 563-2311.

Remember Roseland? They still crowd in to dance

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

NEW YORK (AP) — Still they come to Roseland.

They come to remember and to forget. They come for flirtation and light conversation, for an afternoon's courtship or a companionship of years.

Above all, they come to dance.

And under the compassionate lights and gentle batons of the Roseland ballroom, all things are possible and the cliches are true:

The music works like vanishing cream and the red paper roses look fresh in crimped white hair. Wall flowers bloom, or at least forget, and withered widows can pretend to be Cinderellas.

After 58 years, Roseland survives on 52nd Street west of Broadway, a time capsule of ladies and gentlemen dancing cheek to cheek in a vast art deco music box.

Every week, 6,000 to 10,000 persons pay $3.50 each to dance on the 10,000 square foot floor of polished maple. About 2,000 people can dance in the nation's largest ballroom.

"I see Roseland as a happy place where people come to truly dance and have a good time. We want to do away with the lonely hearts image," said Nancy Brecker Leeds, daughter of Lou Brecker who opened the original Roseland on New Year's Eve in 1919.

At that time, it was located at 51st Street and Broadway, under Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's pool hall. In 1956 it moved to its present location, the old Gay Blades ice skating rink, and it is still family owned.

Roseland remains an island of gentility, a flourishing anachronism in a garish district of theaters, discos, bars, peep shows, assorted joints and souvenir shops. It retains an air of innocence and pleasant unsophistication.

Roseland is to the blue collar, white collar and polyester set what Regines, the popular East Side discotheque, is to the jet set. A meeting place, especially for older singles.

"It's a social club, a hobby, a home away from home, a religion," said Ade Kahn, Roseland's public relations man for many years.

Roselanders come from all over. They fly in from Detroit for the weekend, take the train from Philadelphia, drive in from New Jersey, catch the subway from Queens or a cab from Brooklyn. A man once came in snow shoes and a blind man felt his way with a cane.

They are secretaries, housewives, teachers, businessmen, doctors, lawyers, truck drivers, steam fitters. Dance teachers take their students and psychiatrists have been known to take their patients for a dose of dance therapy.

Roseland doesn't swing, it sways. It is cavernous, but cozy. The scent of safe adventure wafts over this museum of glad rags and plastic roses, golden slippers, chiffon scarves, false eyelashes and beauty spots. It is a King Solomon's mine of rhinestone baubles and a church social of Sunday best.

In a jazzier time, it used to be Roseland Dance City, but they dropped the "Dance City," because it sounds classier.

And there's no dime-a-dance stuff, either. That went out in the 1920s, along with marathon dancing.

Amost 60 million people have danced there, including Ray Bolger, Ruby Keeler, Chita Rivera, Fred and Adele Astaire. And there was Rudolf Valentino, Joan Crawford, James Cagney, George Gershwin.

In the lobby under glass, the magic shoes of the greatest dancers are preserved, glazed artifacts of sequins and beads, or beat out loafers with worndown heels.

Also under glass are the names of more than 500 married couples who met at Roseland. But death and divorce have left gaps in the columns.

Alternating Latin and American bands play nonstop under the American flag that ripples in electric lights over the satin-draped bandstand. Over the years, Roseland has throbbed to the music of Benny Goodman, the Dorsey brothers, Harry James, Gene Krupa, Guy Lombardo.

New MC courses starting

Classes in defensive driving, acupuncture and real estate will be offered next week at Midland College, according to James Bramlett, director of the department of community services.

Defensive driving will be taught by Larry Freeman. The class will include eight hours of instruction by film and lecture. Midland College is an approved cooperating agency to teach the National Safety Council's course. The class will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday through Wednesday for one week in room 100 of the occupational-technical building. Fee is $10.

Acupuncture, the ancient Chinese practice of puncturing the body with needles to cure diseases and relieve pain, will be taught by Lee Yoo Sun. Classes will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays for three weeks in room 106 of the occupational-technical building. Fee is $12.

The real estate salesman's license course will deal with the basic concepts of Texas real estate laws. The class, taught by Billie Roberts, is recommended for anyone needing a concentrated study program prior to taking the state exam for a real estate salesman's license. Classes will be from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday for one week in room 106 of the occupational-technical building. Fee is $10.

Preregistration will be in room 147 of the occupational-technical building between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Ceremony scheduled

ODESSA — Open house and dedication ceremonies for the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation's new Polydrug Rehabilitation Facility will be at 4 p.m. Friday at 10th and MacArthur streets here.

The facility will offer detoxification services for alcoholics and drug abusers from Ector County.

The facility was built by the city of Odessa on land provided by Ector County and will be staffed by personnel of MH-MR. The facility has a 14-bed capacity and will be open 24 hours a day.

The ceremonies are open to the public.

Rare mineral art displayed

NEW YORK (AP) — A showing of mineral sculptures by George Stangl will be on display at the Antiques & Treasures Gallery in New York through Nov. 5.

Stangl uses minerals such as jasper, jade, malachite, coral and agate for his sculptures.

Slide show on historical home given to Lt. William Brewer DAR chapter

Mrs. John McKinley of the Midland County Historical Society presented a slide program on the Brown Dorsey Medallion Home in Midland for a meeting of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Midland Woman's Club.

The society has bought and furnished, with the assistance of interested friends, the home, which was built in 1899. The house, occupied first in 1900, is the first historic landmark in Midland County.

Mrs. McKinley said contributions for the home, located at 213 N. Weatherford St. and open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. Sundays and on request, may be sent to her at 2102 Community Lane.

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell and Mrs. Lee B. Park gave the national defense report on education. They attended a recent showing of films at the Educational Center. The films are available to Midland school children. Those viewed included "Lottery," "Future Shock," "Witches of Salem," "for the 70s."

Education today reflects lack of basics, as children can neither read nor write, as indicated by the lowering of SAT scores during the last 12 years, costing American taxpayers $70 billion, the speakers pointed out. DAR encourages education through sponsorship of its schools, scholarships, American history essay awards, annual resolutions and its textbook committee.

Mrs. Gordon Walker, pecan chairman, announced the new crop of pecans will arrive for sale about Nov. 1. New members approved by the national board of DAR in October introduced were Mrs. Glen Allison, Mrs. W. E. Chapman, Mrs. J. B. Ford, Mrs. H. S. Harris Jr. and Mrs. F. H. McGuigan.

Hostesses to the social period were Mrs. Erma Mancill, Mrs. W. H. Thams and Mrs. W. E. Bryant.

Shrink won't listen to you? It could be burnout syndrome

By LEIGH FENLY
Copley News Service

If your shrink has lost interest in your problems, nurses bark at you and doctors seem less than caring — it may not be you. It may be evidence of "burnout."

Burnout has become an increasingly used term to describe a composite of work-related stress problems that plague persons in the helping professions — doctors, nurses, psychologists and welfare workers.

The syndrome affects all persons who work intensively and intimately with people who have problems. It involves a certain feeling of uselessness, inevitability and hopelessness. One patient is simply replaced by another, and then another.

Burnout, said Dr. Barbara Smith of Occupational Health Services for Los Angeles County, is not a personal problem. "It is a work-related problem, caused by stresses on the job. No one can escape it. And it can happen more than once.

"It's part of the myth," Smith said in an interview. "Those in the helping professions are supposed to be immune to the problems. They are supposed to be able to deal with it."

The early warning signs of burnout are a total involvement in the client's problems, or the reverse — a withdrawal from work, problems and clients.

"You can see it on the individual," said Smith. "They look haggard. They are never rested though they sleep 10 or 12 hours a day.

"The pattern is usually to go home and have two or three drinks before you can relax. Then you flop in front of the television. Or, if you're not into drinking, then it's Valium, or grass. And then maybe it gets to the point during the day where you need something to make it through the afternoon.

"It's being grouchy, irritable, hassling with coworkers, feeling useless."

Smith has been initiating combative measures for dealing with burnout in county departments in Los Angeles. She is an advocate of a personalized approach by supervisors.

"If a worker has handled a particularly high stress situation, you can not expect that person to pick up the emotional baggage and go on.

"This is a time for extra care and feeling. You could say, 'Why don't you take your break now, instead of at the scheduled time?'

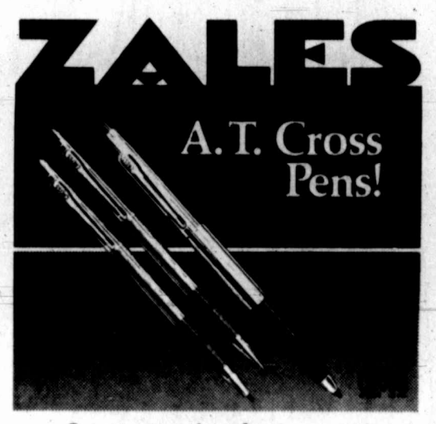

She suggests these methods:

— Relax: Allow two minutes at various times during the day to close your eyes and take 10 deep breaths. Do a little visual imagery at the same time. Imagine yourself in a quiet, soothing place.

— Decompress: Before you get home from work, or immediately thereafter, do something for YOU. Some people can relax substantially, simply by listening to the car stereo and blocking out any thoughts of work. Others play hard-hitting tennis or take long, exhausting bike rides.

Class reunion brings remarks about classmate's condition

By ERMA BOMBECK

I never go to a college reunion that I don't come away feeling sorry for all those paunchy, balding jocks trying to hang onto youth.

I feel sorry for the men too.

Mayva and I always sit together. We seem to be the only two in our class who have fought the battle of middle age and won.

"How do we do it?" I whispered, watching the class of '49 dance away in merciful darkness. "I feel like Marie Osmond at a Prune Festival."

"I know what you're saying," said Mayva. "Look at Ginger Horwich. Can you believe she's wearing glasses this thick? Blind as a bat."

"Where?" I asked, digging in my purse and holding my bifocals to my nose like a lorgnette.

"And what about Marci Miller? Who is she fooling with that caftan?"

"Mayva, as I have always said, 'You show me a woman in a caftan and I'll show you a lot of fat that doesn't fit.' Incidentally, isn't that caftan a lot like yours?"

"No," said Mayva irritably, "mine has no waist. Oh my goodness, would you look at who just came in. Mary Moosebaum with hair as white as the driven snow. Who does she remind you of?"

"Thomas Edison."

"Exactly. Of course, we shouldn't laugh. Someday our hair will start to turn and we'll no longer be . . ."

"Henna No. 4. Hey, look at the next table. It's the class success, Barbara Judson, our newly-elected Senator. They're sure making a big fuss over her, but I respect her. If you have to work to make ends meet, you have to work. Besides, it might lead to something big. At least she's not like Paula Pringle."

"That vicious old broad," said Mayva. "Never has a kind word to say about anyone. I'm going over and tell her how much I've missed her."

As Mayva left the table, I couldn't help remarking to my husband, "Mayva looks old. Wonder how long it will take me to start showing my age?"

DEAR ABBY

Five-year stall plan deserves 'nay'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Eddy (not his real name) and I have been going steady for four years. I'm 25 and Eddie's 26. We definitely planned on getting married, but here's the problem: Eddie says we can't get married until he pays his parents back for putting him through college. Otherwise he'd be getting married on his parents' money.

Abby, his parents are very well-off, and I'm sure they don't expect to be paid back.

The way Eddie has it figured, it will take him at least five years to pay off his parents. He says in the meantime we should just go steady.

I suggested we get engaged, but Eddie doesn't believe in long engagements. What do you make of this? — EDDIE'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: I think Eddie should be commended for wanting to repay his parents, but it seems to me he's giving you a five-year stall. Stalls are for horses and other four-legged animals. I'd say "Nay."

DEAR ABBY: I work in a nursing home, and one of the residents here has asked me to write the following letter to you:

"Dear Abby: I am a sick old lady. My dentures no longer fit me, and since they are very uncomfortable, I don't wear them much anymore.

When my daughter visited last Sunday, she ordered me to wear my dentures at all times so that when I die I will look 'presentable.'

What do you advise? — TROUBLED IN L.A."

DEAR TROUBLED: Tell your daughter that you are more concerned with being comfortable NOW than being "presentable" then.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14-year-old gil with a story to tell.

Last night about 9 p.m. I was walking home alone from the public library. (I live eight blocks from there.) The wind was blowing hard, and it was very cold. Besides, I had a load of books under my arm.

A car pulled up alongside the curb, and a nice-looking man opened the door and asked, "WANT A RIDE?" He looked okay and was about my fathers age, and my feet were about to drop off with freezing, so I said yes and hopped in.

He asked me where I was going and I told him. He drove me there, but before he let me out, he said, "Young lady, I want you to promise me that you will NEVER again accept a ride with a stranger, no matter ho 'nice' he appears to be. I happen to be a decent man, but you took an awful chance. You can't tell ANYTHING about a man by the way he looks. Two years ago I had a niece about your age who accepted a ride with a strange man, and three days later they found her lifeless body in a ditch four miles from your home. She'd been raped and strangled."

Abby, I promised that man I would never again get into a car with a stranger. And I never will. — LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for sharing you experience. It contains valuable advice.

DEAR ABBY: When someones asks, "What nationality are you?" and I say, "I was born and raised in the U.S.A., which makes me an American, why do they say, "Oh, I know that — I mean are you Jewish, Catholic or Protestant?"

Abby, don't they know that they are asking about a person's RELIGION—not their NATIONALITY?

I have a friend whose parents came from Italy, and people are always calling him an Italian. He is NOT an Italian, he's an American!

If I sound angry, I am. Oh, boy, would you be doing a lot of people a big favor if you put this in your column. — 100 PERCENT AMERICAN

Teens display creative ideas in redecorating own rooms

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Young people may come up with some creative ideas when they are given the opportunity to refurnish their own rooms. In any event, it will improve their dispositions, two mothers have learned.

One parent provided a sum that was far less than the investment she might have made in her 17-year-old daughter's room. "And I would not have been able to inject so much personality into it," she said.

Another mother indulged her 15-year-old son. He was restless and unhappy with all the castoffs he had been living with, and wanted to do it himself. She was hesitant, but now says "I was truly amazed that he could do this in such a mature way and that it cost so little."

Both parents recommend the idea, not only because it puts youngsters on their own, and makes them feel as if they have accomplished something, but because they work better in surroundings they enjoy.

Daughter kept her studio- lounge bed (it was two years old) but she moved it from its place along the wall so that she could put a headboard on the wall. She painted a length of picket fence white, and put it behind the bed to serve as a headboard.

Two ice cream chairs bought at a tag sale for $9 and then painted white were used in the corner of a room with a wire spool from a building supply store that made a very good table. She covered the table in a plain white fabric and stenciled little flowers to its border. She did the same thing at the windows where she used some old white sheets as curtains.

The walls were painted vivid pink and the molding white. In the corner with her little patio grouping, she put a large poster of a waterfall. In another area there was an environmental poster showing mountains and streams.

The mother of the male decorator was surprised that he pitched into it with "such gusto."

He retained his brown rug, and kept a buff color on the walls. A rug that he found at the dump was cleaned and put on one wall and below it was a long free-form barn board that he also found at the dump. He attached it with angle irons to the wall, strong enough to hold his stereo system. A mini-jungle of green plants - nine or so, in every size - was created by putting the greenery around the room on high and low tiers of cinder blocks that he found about the house outdoors. It gave the room a cool, refreshing look.

Print coordinates room

Copley News Service

Q. I would like to redecorate my bedroom which is only medium sized.

I plan to buy new furniture and had thought of a cane or rattan that is fresh in feeling.

I would like to have wallpaper on the walls. Should the draperies and bedspread then be plain or should I introduce another pattern in contrast to the wallpaper pattern which is flowered? — B.F.J.

A. First you should start with a plan and an idea of the kind of room you wish to create. You have already done this with your choice of cane or rattan furniture to give an informal feeling.

In keeping with this kind of atmosphere you might like a fresh color scheme — perhaps crisp yellows and greens in a floral wallpaper that has a coordinated fabric.

If you used a floral green and yellow wallpaper, you could use a yellow spread and yellow draperies. But you need not be restricted to that or to green whuch would be the other logical selection.

You could repeat the print in the bedspread and drapery. This can give a coordinated look that is attractive in both large and small rooms.

Some wallpaper manufacturers offer a selection of coordinated patterns — a small print, a large print, a stripe, a geometric and something else. All are in the same color scheme but have different dominating colors.

Because they are professionally planned and coordinated you can't go wrong in color coordination or design compatibility.

Another possibility is that some paper and fabric coordinates also are available where the design in the fabric is done in the reverse of the wall covering to add interest.

Q. How should I trim two small windows in the dining room?

The dining room opens off an open kitchen on one side and the living room on the other.

The dining room set has a Mediterranean look and the floors are hardwood.

A. Do you wish to call attention to or away from the dining room windows?

If the living and dining rooms blend together, you could treat them similarly. However, if the dining room windows are small you might consider shutters. They could be wooden louvers.

Panel cites hazards of diet plan

By HARRY NELSON
The Los Angeles Times

BETHESDA, Md. — Calling attention to the loss of potassium resulting from use of liquid protein diets, a panel of experts on weight control last week urged consumers to use the diets only while under the care of a physician.

The panel also recommended at the close of a three-day Conference on Obesity and the American Public that physicians become more knowledgeable about the low calorie liquid diets and their hazards.

The diets — some in liquid form and some in solid form — are available without a prescription at many drug and health food stores.

"There is no safe prescription of these products that the public can use," declared Dr. Theodore B. Van Itallie, chairman of the conference panel charged with making recommendations to the public regarding the so-called liquid protein diet.

This recommendation as well as others made during the conference will be forwarded to a number of private and governmental agencies involved in nutritional planning, including the National Institutes of Health, which helped sponsor the conference.

Van Itallie said the panel is aware of seven or eight deaths that have been associated with use of these products. He emphasized that the deaths have not been investigated sufficiently to state that they were caused by the diet.

"This is not an innocuous procedure. We don't want to create panic, because the deaths are so few, but we are concerned. Our medical knowledge tells us (more) people could die," the physician said.

Physicians suspect the deaths are related to the potassium depletion that can result from use of the diets. Potassium depletion can produce a heart rhythm abnormality called ventricular fibrillation that can cause death.

According to Dr. George A. Bray, professor of medicine at the University of California at Los Angeles and conference chairman, some of the liquid protein diets are made of animal collagen. Collagen is connective tissue and includes animal products such as hooves and horns.

The typical liquid or solid protein diet provides only about 300 calories a day compared to the 2,500 to 3,000 calories the average person consumes. This kind of starvation diet causes the body to lose potassium unless a physician provides for an adequate amount of potassium in the patient's diet, Bray explained.

Additional amounts of potassium are lost by persons who are consuming some of the liquid diets made from animal collagen. This occurs, Bray said, because such products contain a number of unneeded amino acids that the body can excrete only by expending still more potassium.

He said that some manufacturers use the collagen source of protein, rather than another source such as meat or egg albumin, because it is cheaper.

If the patient is taking diuretic drugs for the control of high blood pressure, the risk is even higher because these drugs result in still more potassium loss.

Van Itallie listed three groups of individuals who should not be on the protein diet: Pregnant women, persons under 18 years of age and person who need to lose only five or 10 pounds.

Concerning the latter group, Van Itallie said the diet is contra-indicated because "the hazards outweigh the benefits and this group should use other methods."

He said the mildly obese are more apt than the heavily obese to experience the nausea and weakness sometimes experienced by people on the diet.

The panel had been expected to make a recommendation that the Food and Drug Administration require that the products bear a label stating the risks of potassium loss and that the risk would be less if the patient were under a doctor's care.

However, Van Itallie said he has been informed by the FDA that labeling would affect the entire foods for health industry, including that part with which the experts have no grievances. He explained that because of the way the FDA laws are written, requiring a list of hazards on the label would automatically cause all foods for health to be classified as drugs rather than foods, thus preventing a new array of problems.

In other recommendations the panel favored extending the FDA rules on labeling of foods so that the calorie content of foods would be more emphasized.

The panel also said government should reward people who contribute less to the cost of health care by having good health habits by giving them tax rebates, and that the government should encourage insurance companies to do the same by lowering insurance premiums.

Dr. Saul M. Genuth of the Salzman Institute for Clinical Investigation at Mount Sinai Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, told of a four year experience with 1,200 patients on an egg albumin protein diet.

He called the diet excellent for short term weight loss but — like every other diet available — not capable of making possible long-term maintenance of weight loss for very many people.

He said the average weight loss for males weighing 300 pounds or females weighing 250 pounds was 85 pounds.

Forty percent of his patients had high blood pressure at the start of the diet but two-thirds of these achieved normal blood pressure while on the diet, Genuth said.

Many mild diabetics who were on insulin before the diet were able to stop insulin after three months on the diet, he said.

Recipes answer call for typical Mexican food

By BARBARA HANSEN
The Los Angeles Times

To most Americans, Mexican food means enchiladas, tacos, chiles rellenos, tamales and burritos, with beans and rice on the side.

So here are recipes for some of these popular dishes, two of them from restaurants.

EL TECOLOTE CHILES RELLENOS

1 pound jack cheese
1 (1-pound 11-ounce) can whole green chiles
Salt
6 eggs, separated
2 1-2 tablespoons flour
Oil
Relleno Sauce

Cut cheese into sticks about 1-2 inch wide, 1-2 inch thick and 1 inch shorter than chiles. Stuff each chile with a cheese stick, set on a platter and sprinkle lightly with salt.

Beat egg whites with 1 teaspoon salt until they hold firm, soft peaks. With same beater or a whip, beat yolks until thick. Fold yolks into whites, add 2 tablespoons flour and beat until smooth.

Heat about 1-4 inch oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Coat each chile with batter and fry in hot oil on each side until golden brown. Remove chiles and serve topped with Relleno Sauce. Makes about 2 dozen rellenos, depending upon number of chiles in can.

Relleno Sauce
1-2 teaspoon cumin seed
1-2 teaspoon oregano
1-4 cup canned red chile salsa
1 tablespoon oil
1 1-2 tablespoons minced onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
2 cups canned stewed tomatoes, mashed almost to a pulp
3 cups water
1-2 cup flour
Salt

In blender, blend cumin, oregano and chile salsa until smooth. Set aside. Heat oil, add onion and garlic and cook until golden. Add salsa mixture, tomatoes and 2 1-2 cups water and blend well. Mix flour with 1-2 cup water and gradually blend into tomato mixture, stirring well. Add salt to taste. Simmer for 20 minutes. Serve hot over chiles rellenos. Makes 4 1-2 cups sauce.

Some like their burritos dry and some like them moistened with a sauce. If you're in the latter group, try the following Wet Burrito Sauce from The Red Onion in Woodland Hills, Calif.

THE RED ONION'S WET BURRITO SAUCE

1 large beef soup bone
1 cup minced onion
1 teaspoon minced garlic
2 tablespoons lard or oil
1 (15-ounce) can tomato puree
1 teaspoon chicken seasoned stock base
1-4 teaspoon ground cumin
3 teaspoons ground California chile
1-2 teaspoon MSG
1 quart water
Salt
4 tablespoons cornstarch blended with 1 cup water

Roast soup bone at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Saute onion and garlic in lard until onion is transparent. Place onion mixture, soup bone, tomato puree, chicken stock base, cumin, ground chile and MSG in a large, heavy kettle. Add 1 quart water. Bring slowly to a boil, then lower heat and simmer about 2 hours, adding salt to taste. Remove soup bone. Stir in cornstarch mixture and cook and stir for 10 minutes. Makes 5 1-2 cups.

Enchiladas are usually served with beans and rice on the side. But in this recipe, the beans are inside the enchiladas, making a change from the usual cheese, beef or chicken filling.

The mashed beans are mixed with canned chiles, red chile sauce and other seasonings. Try them sometime as a substitute for refried beans and not just as an enchilada filling.

BEAN ENCHILADAS

2-3 cup dry pinto beans
1-2 cup chopped onion
1-2 of a 4-ounce can chopped green chiles
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 1-2 (10-ounce) cans red chile sauce
Oil
10 or 11 corn tortillas
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1-4 cup chopped green onions

Soak beans overnight in water to cover generously. Cook in soaking liquid until tender, 1 to 1 1-2 hours. Drain. Mash beans in a large bowl. Add onion, chiles, garlic salt, salt and 2 tablespoons red chile sauce to beans and mix well.

Spread 1-4 cup red chile sauce over bottom of a 12x8-inch baking dish. One at a time, soften each tortilla in hot oil in a skillet. Drain on paper towels. Place a spoonful of bean mixture on tortilla, roll up and place seam side down in baking dish. Spoon remaining sauce evenly over enchiladas. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees 20 minutes, or until cheese is melted and sauce is bubbly. Sprinkle with green onions before serving. Makes 10 to 11 enchiladas.

Use prepared taco shells or deep-fry tortillas to make your own shells for these beef and chorizo tacos

SPICY BEEF TACOS

2 to 3 chorizos
1 pound ground beef
1-2 teaspoon chili powder
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt, pepper
Dash hot pepper sauce, optional
10 taco shells
Shredded lettuce
1-2 pound shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

Canned or bottled taco sauce. Remove casings from chorizos. Brown chorizos with beef in a heavy skillet, breaking up the meat to keep crumbly. Add chili powder, garlic, salt and pepper to taste and hot pepper sauce, if desired. Place 4 tablespoons meat mixture in each taco shell, add some lettuce and top with cheese. Accompany with taco sauce. Makes 10 tacos.

Vegetables, fruits ease week's budget

COLLEGE STATION — Fall vegetables and fruits, increasing in supply, may ease the week's budget, says Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. But expect higher dry bean prices, especially pintos, due to heavy rains in some growing areas.

Pumpkins are plentiful, and seasonal vegetables include cooking greens—mostly collards, mustard and turnip tops—sweet potatoes, broccoli and rutabagas. Also acorn and butternut squash, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, potatoes and dry yellow onions.

In fruits, several varieties of grapes are available, with tokays often lowest priced. Cranberries are more plentiful, as are new crop apples—with best apple prices on smaller size bagged apples. Pears, bananas and oranges are priced right.

At meat counters, today's pork—pork is high in nutritive value—is leaner. Good buys: Boston butt roast, quarter loin cut into chops, semi-boneless hams, and some brands of bacon are moderately priced, as well as frankfurters, liver and roll sausage.

Beef supplies are ample. Featured cuts this week include chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks, some boneless rolled roasts, ground beef and beef liver.

Fryer chickens—supply and price remain about the same, but notice the difference on whole and on cut-up fryers. Be your own butcher and save, Mrs. Clyatt suggests. Eggs are attractively priced for the season, with Grade A large generally the best value. Also, turkey parts are priced low.

Frozen vegetables in heavy supply include broccoli, corn-on-the-cob, and frozen potatoes. Also look for plenty of canned corn, tomatoes, and tomato products.

CHWORDS: Here's the beef-buyer's slogan — "No waste, no taste." Without the flecks of fat through the lean and the rim of fat along the edge, much of the rich and wonderful flavor of beef would be missing.

CAKES

PEANUT BUTTER POUND CAKE

By Sandra Huxman

1¼ cups butter or margarine (2½ sticks)
2 cups sugar
6 eggs
½ cup peanut butter
2 cups all purpose flour

Cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after every addition. Blend in peanut butter, then flour. Pour into two 9 x 5 inch pans. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven about 50 to 60 minutes or until the test done. After about 15 minutes of baking, sprinkle finely chopped peanuts onto the batter to give it a crunchy topping.

FRESH COCONUT CAKE

By Mrs. B. R. Brogdon

Buy one fresh coconut, punch eyes out of coconut and pour all of milk out and save. Then grate all of fresh coconut, which has been cracked and peeled.

Make your favorite 2 layer plain cake (I prefer the 2 egg layer cake)—Put the following between layers:

Put ½ of the grated coconut in a pan and put 1 cup sugar over it; then pour coconut milk over and stir well & boil in oven for 5 minutes.

GOLDEN POUND CAKE

By Mrs. John W. McFadden

1-1/2 cups butter (not margarine) softened
1 lb. sifted powdered sugar
6 eggs
1 Teaspoon vanilla
2-3/4 cups sifted cake flour

In large bowl of mixer beat butter until creamy. Gradually beat in sugar, beating well after each addition, until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Beat in vanilla. Gradually and gently stir in flour, blending just until flour is throughly incorported (do not overmix). Turn into well buttered and lightly floured bundt pan. Bake in preheated 300 degree oven 1 1/2 hours. Cool in pan 5 minutes. Turn out on rack. Cool completely. Sprinkle with vanilla powdered sugar.

This cake freezes very well.

CASSAVA CAKE

By Mrs. Jeffrey B. King

½ cup milk
1 egg beaten
6 tbsp. butter
1 cup sugar
¼ cup grated coconut
½ cup flour
2½ tsp. baking powder
Few grains salt
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix cassava or tapioca with milk and eggs; let stand for 5 minutes. Cream butter and sugar; add tapioca mixture and coconut to creamed butter and sugar. Mix batter well.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt; add to batter; stir in vanilla and turn batter into an oiled and floured 8-inch square cake pan. Bake in 400 degree oven for about 40 minutes or until done. Cut in squares or rectangles. Yeild: 8 servings.

FIVE MINUTE DEVILS FOOD CAKE

By Ruth Boyd

2 cups Sugar
½ cup oleo
2 whole eggs
½ cup sour milk
1 tsp. soda
3 heaping tbsps. cocoa
2 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. Vanilla
1 cup boiling water

Mix sugar and also; add whole eggs and milk with soda; Sift together flour, cocoa and salt and add to above mixture; add Vanilla and mix thoroughly; add boiling water and mix flour into sheet Pan 10"X14" and bake at 350 degrees until Cake springs back when touched.

Chocolate Icing
2 cups Sugar
1 small can condensed milk
2 tbsps. white corn syrup
1 tsp. Vanilla

Boil above ingredients together for 2½ minutes; add ¼ lb. butter 1 pkg chocolate Chips (11 oz) 1 cup Chopped Nuts Stir until butter and Chocolate Chips are melted and pour over cake.

WATERGATE CAKE

By Mrs H.G. Phillips

1 (18½-ounce) package white cake mix
1 (3½-ounce) box instant pistachio nut pudding
1 cup oil
1 cup club soda
3 eggs
½ cup chopped pecans

Topping

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 13x9x2-inch pan. Mix ingredients in order given and beat until smooth. Pour into prepared pan and bake 350 degrees about 40 mins. or until cake tests done. When cool, top with topping and refrigerate. Cake also can be made in 2 (9-inch) layer pans.

TOPPING

1 (3½-ounce) package instant pistachio nut pudding
1¼ cups milk
1 (9-ounce) carton frozen whipped topping, thawed
1 cup snow flake coconut

Beat pudding with milk until thickened. Fold in thawed whipped topping. Add ½ cup coconut. Spread lavishly on cake, then cover top with ½ cup of coconut which has been toasted, then refrigerate.

APPLE SLICE CAKE

By Dian Houghton

Combine 2 cups sugar, 2 sticks of margarine, 2 beaten eggs, 2 tsps. vanilla and cream together.

Add to mixture 2 cups flour, ½ tsp. soda, ½ tsp. baking powder, 2 tsp. cinnamon, 1 tsp. salt and mix well. Next add 4 cups diced apples and 1 cup nuts. (Nuts optional).

Cake batter will be very thick. Spread batter into greased and floured 13"x9" pan and bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes. Serve with whipped topping.

MANDARIN ORANGE CAKE

By Mrs. Betty Peters

1 box yellow cake mix (18½ oz.) butter recipe mix
½ tsp. butter extract
1 tsp. vanilla
4 eggs
½ cup cooking oil
1 can (11 oz.) Mandarin orange segments (do not drain).

Mix all the above ingredients by hand in a large mixing bowl. Pour into 3 layer pains or sheet pan. Bake layers at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

By Mrs. T. L. Cauthen

Let 6 Eggs and 2 sticks of margarine sit for from 6 to 24 hours. (Room Temperature) In large bowl sift 1 cup flour, then add 1 cup sugar. Add second cup of sifted flour, then second cup sugar. Add the 6 eggs, 1 tbsp. flour, then add margarine.

Beat all ingredients for 10 min.

Frosting
1 9 oz. whipped cream
1 large (20 oz.) can crushed pineapple (do not drain).
1 small package instant vanilla pudding mix

Keep cake refrigerated.

POUND CAKE

BOHEMIAN CAKE

By Mrs. R. A. Whitson
1 cup oil
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
2½ cups flour
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup coconut
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup nuts

Mix well together, adding nuts & coconut last. Bake in bundt pan 1 hour at 350 degrees.

DATE PECAN CAKE

By Mrs. Omer T. Cook

1 pound chopped dates
1 pound chopped pecans
1 cup whole wheat flour sifted
½ teaspoon salt
2 rounded teaspoons baking powder
2/ cup honey
4 eggs separated
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg yokes, honey, vanilla and beat until fluffy. Add and mix well dry ingredients. Stir in dates and nuts. Beat egg whites until peaks form. Fold into batter. Pour into small (3x6 inch) loaf pans. Bake 30 minutes in preheated 350 degree oven. Store tightly covered for several days before serving for best flavor. Slice for serving. May be wrapped in brandy or wine soaked cheese cloth and stored also.

HEAVENLY DELIGHT

By Mona Craig

1 angel food cake (already baked)
1 small carton sour cream
1 small box vanilla pudding
½ cup pecans chopped
1 can of prepared pie filling—cherry

Mix pudding according to directions on box, then add sour cream and pecans. Pour pudding, sour cream and nut mixture over an angel food cake which has been torn in pieces in a pan (oblong). Mix thoroughly—then top with cherry pie filling. Tastes best when made a day before serving.

CHOCOLATE POUND CAKE

By Lyn Ryan

1 bar sweet baking chocolate
2 cups sugar
1 cup shortening
4 eggs
2 tsps. vanilla
2 tsps. butter flavoring
1 cup buttermilk
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. soda
1 tsp. salt

Partially melt chocolate over hot water. Remove and stir rapidly until melted. Cool. Cream sugar and shortening. Add eggs, flavorings and buttermilk. Sift together flour, soda, salt; add to shortening. Mix well. Blend in chocolate. Pour into a well-greased and floured 9-inch tube pan. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) about 1½ hours. Remove from pan while still hot and place under tightly fitting cover until thoroughly cooled. Tastes good with or without glaze.

GLAZE:

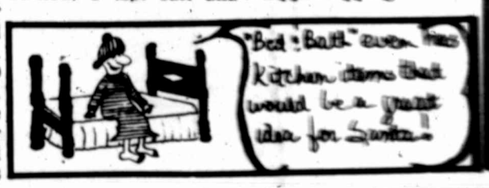

Melt 1 bar of sweet baking chocolate and 1 tbsp. shortening in ¼ cup water over low heat. Mix 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and dash of salt. Blend in chocolate and ½ tsp. vanilla. For thinner glaze, add a small amount of hot water. Makes ¾ cup.

SPITZKABOK

By Marcia Oglesby

3 cups flour
3 cups milk
6 eggs
Little salt and vanilla

Cook milk until it boils. Add flour, eggs, salt and vanilla. Stir until mixed. Put batter into baker's pastry bag. Squeeze batter into hot oil, fry until golden brown. Put on paper towel to absorb grease. Then sprinkle with sugar. Makes 2 doz.

The Cat Litter with Superior Odor Control and Super Absorbency.

Buy Me Get One Free!

We want you to switch to Jonny Cat with Green Gard from the cat litter you've been using! Once you try it you'll discover it controls odors better than any other cat litter on the market. Made from rare mineral deposits from a remote California mountain range, this uniquely different, super-absorbent miracle material, plus our special technology, creates a litter that many cat lovers consider to be the best that money can buy.

Only Jonny Cat contains Green Gard, a special deodorizing additive which is activated by moisture, releasing a scent of freshness for longer lasting odor control each time kitty uses the box. And Jonny Cat is dust controlled and sanitized, too.

Jonny Cat is the best selling cat litter in the West!

SAM RENNICK

I left my heart(burn)...

Kreux is the West German tourist who got off a chartered plane when it stopped for fuel in Bangor (Maine). Believing he was in San Francisco, he wandered about town for four days before learning that he was on the wrong coast. —The Associated Press

The city council of Hangover, Kan. was meeting in special session. Anticipation filled the air as each councilman took his seat and opened his portfolio. Something great seemed about to happen.

The mayor rose and looked expectantly at each councilman. "Ladies and gentleman," he said, "as you all know, we are meeting here in special session to consider the Henri I. Carnier plan, coded HIC. Each of you has done research in a specific area. Bob, why don't you start the ball rolling for us?"

"I'm afraid what I have to report isn't going to make that little ball roll," Bob Brady said. "My assignment was restaurants. In the city of San Francisco there are 1,496 restaurants. In these restaurants you can get German, French, Italian, Russian, Greek, Japanese, Chinese, Mexican, Indian, Armenian and, possibly, American food. They don't even call it food out there, though; they call it hot cuisine. I think this means they put a little chili in everything, though I'm really not sure. Now here in Hangover, as you know, we have one restaurant, Emma's Kountry Kitchen. I think it is safe to say we all love Emma deeply, but the fact is, she doesn't know a turkey from a toothpick. Her best dish is the Chicken and Hamburger with Special Mayonnaise Sauce Combination Plate Number 3, which is available on Friday night only, and which, as we all also know, will have you up at 3 the next morning about as often as not. Jack, all I can say is, how this French chef Henry Whachamacallit, could have thought that was San Francisco, as far as food is concerned, I do not know."

"...ere nearly two weeks before he found out ... Francisco, wasn't he?" Jack Maloney ...a must have fixed him something good."

"...at?" Councilman Brady said.

"...et's move on," said the mayor. "Steve, ...hment was nightlife. What did you learn?"

...rmstrong got to his feet. "What I learned is ...tated. "They got a thing called 'The Drag' ...ncisco, and it's the rage. All it is is a bunch ...s who dress up like women and dance. So ...pretty bad to me, in more ways than one, if I may ...y so. Whereas here in Hangover, we got our Saturday night square dances. Now you know well as I everybody says we got the best callers west of KC. So I'd say we're one up on 'em, in terms of nightlife." Armstrong sat down, immensely pleased with himself.

"Thank you, Steve," Mayor Maloney said. "That's certainly very encouraging."

"You're very welcome, mayor," Steve said.

"Let's go now to transportation," said the mayor. "Janet, you have the floor."

"The facts on transportation are these," said Councilman Janet Landry. "In San Francisco they have a rather unusual form of transportation called cable cars. They are like trolleys, but instead of running on tracks, they are pulled up and down the streets by cables. Now and then one of the cars comes unhooked from the cable. When this happens, the cable car slides down the hill into the bay, and everybody drowns. In the newspapers they always call these accidents 'regrettable,' but that's all they say, because the cable cars are the city's biggest tourist attraction, and if word gets around they're all sliding into the bay, people will go to Los Angeles instead. They don't like Los..."

"Excuse me, Janet," Mayor Maloney interrupted. "Could we get on to the transportation here in Hangover, please?"

"I wish you'd call me 'Miss Landry,' Mayor Maloney," said Miss Landry. "'Janet' implies such familiarity. I don't even call myself Janet."

"Very well, then," said the mayor. "Could we please have the rest of your report, Miss Landry?"

"You certainly may," Janet Landry said cordially. "I have some good news and some bad news. Which would you like first?"

"Please, Miss Landry," said the mayor, exasperated.

"Okay, already," Miss Landry said. "I saw that on TV. Here's the good news: We don't have any hills for cable cars to slide down, and we don't have any bay for them to slide into. Now for the bad news: We don't have any cable cars, either."

"...Miss Landry," said the mayor, ...keep his patience, "we all know these ...at you are supposed to tell us about is our buses. Can they be made into a tourist attraction?"

"You mean those two smelly 1945 buses KC gave us?"

"Those and no other," the mayor said.

"You must be joking, Jack."

"That's 'Mayor Maloney,' if you don't mind, Miss Landry," said the mayor, "and thank you very much for your enlightening report." The mayor stood up. "Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I am encouraged. Henri I. Carnier spent 12 days in our town before finding out it isn't San Francisco, and he only found it out because of that blasted Maude Perkins. Mr. Carnier has shown us the way. There is no reason this town cannot be as great a tourist attraction as San Francisco. Miss Landry says our buses are smelly, but they can be spruced up, and although Emma's Chicken and Hamburger with Special Mayonnaise Sauce Combination Plate Number 3 isn't perfect, she makes a mean rhubarb pie."

"You can say that again," Bob Brady interjected.

"I think only one thing is keeping us from being like San Francisco," the mayor continued, undeterred. "We have got to change our name. Henri I. Carnier might still be here if only he had not had a little too much one night and, the next morning, said to Maude Perkins, and I quote, 'Zees hangover his for za birds.' Old Maude slapped him sober and drove him straight to the Greyhound depot, where he learned the truth. Ladies and gentlemen, while I am willing to entertain other suggestions, I hereby place into nomination and strongly urge for the new name for our town: Good Times, Kansas." The mayor sat down.

Pickwick tickets on sale

The play is the annual fall production of the Pickwick Players, the performing company for young people at Midland Community Theatre. The performances will be at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The production is presented by the Pickwicks and MCT in cooperation with the Junior League of Midland Inc.

A series of special performances for elementary students in the city will be presented next week.

"Arthur and the Magic Sword," written by Keith Engar, is a dramatic retelling of the events in the childhood of Arthur which led to his being chosen king of England. As king, he became one of the most legendary monarchs in the long and colorful history of Britain.

Cody Farris has the role of Arthur in the Pickwick production and other pivotal cast members include Scott Morris as Merlin the magician, Doni Douglas as Morgan Le Fay, Mike Harrell as Sir Hector and Mark Andrade as the Archbishop. Still others in the cast include Laura Wolf, Judy McDuffy and Andy Kimbrough.

The production is staged and directed by Debbie Waddell, director of children's theater at Midland Community Theatre.

DCO to begin with 'Rigoletto'

DALLAS — The Dallas Civic Opera raises the curtain on its 21st annual season with a gala performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto" Friday night.

The 7:30 p.m. opening event will be followed by additional "Rigoletto" performances at 2 p.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. next Tuesday. All will be in the Music Hall at Fair Park here.

"Rigoletto," staged and directed by Carlo Maestrini, with set designs by Ferdinando Scarfiotti and costumes by Peter Hall, will feature Alfredo Kraus as the Duke of Mantua and soprano Maddalena Bonifaccio as Gilda, along with Ingvar Wixell as Rigoletto the jester and Cynthia Munzer as Maddalena.

The DCO's new season continues through mid-December, with three additional productions.

The Southwest premiere performances of Bellini's "I Capuleti ed I Montecchi" (Romeo and Juliet) are scheduled Nov. 18, 20 and 22, with famous diva Marilyn Horne heading the cast.

Verdi's powerful masterwork, "Macbeth," starring soprano Roberta Knie as the scheming, iron-willed Lady Macbeth, will have performances Dec. 2, 4 and 6. The final production of the season, Massenet's "Manon," opens on Dec. 14, with repeat performances on Dec. 16 and 18.

Numerous performances in the season already are sold out. Information on availability of seating for remaining performances is obtainable from the Dallas Civic Opera ticket office, 214-528-3200.

NBC producing new miniseries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Dain Curse," Dashiell Hammett's forerunner of the hardboiled private eye, is now in production on Shelter Island, N.Y., for an NBC miniseries.

James Coburn stars as detective Hamilton Nash in the murder mystery, set in 1928.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC will film "Fire in the Sky" from a Paul Gallico story about a comet that explodes near Phoenix, Ariz.

Michael Blankfort and Dennis Nemec wrote the three-hour script from Gallico's story after the aftermath of the devastating explosion.

Hudson, Remick to star in 'Wheels' miniseries

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock Hudson and Lee Remick will star in the 10-hour dramatization of Arthur Hailey's novel about the automobile industry, "Wheels."

Universal will produce the miniseries for airing on NBC.

Hudson will play automobile executive Adam Trenton and Miss Remick will portray his wife.

Final tryout slated

Midland Community Theatre will hold a final tryout session for its 1978 season-opening musical, "Carnival," at 8 p.m. Friday in Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana Ave.

Persons who attended earlier tryouts Sunday afternoon and Monday night are urged to return for this final session. Actors, singers and dancers, including persons who have never worked in an MCT production, are invited to come and try for parts. Persons do not have to be MCT season members to qualify for parts.

Additional information on the Friday night auditions may be obtained from the MCT office, 682-2544.

Teachers groups plan workshop

The Midland Music Teachers Association and the Odessa Music Teachers Association will join in sponsoring a piano workshop Saturday in Odessa's First Baptist Church.

As a preliminary event, the

associations will present pianist Larry Walz of Denton in a recital at 8 p.m. Friday in the Fine Arts Building auditorium of Odessa College. Walz will play works by Saint-Saens, Grieg, Ravel, Schumann and Chopin. The recital will be open to the public at no charge.

Walz, who is a member of the music faculty at North Texas State University in Denton, will be in charge of the Saturday workshop.

A morning session will be held between 9 a.m. and noon, and an afternoon session will begin at 1:30, continuing until 4:30.

The morning event will be a lecture stressing technique while the afternoon session will consist of student performance analyses. Midland students performing on the analysis program will be Joy Young, Mary Banks and Teresa Brown.

Registration for the workshop will begin at the church at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Fee for teachers will be $10. Keyboard students may attend for a fee of $5.

Walz is a charter member of the American Liszt Society. Last March, he was one of the featured speakers at the Music Teachers National Association convention in Atlanta, addressing the delegates on "Schumann and Liszt: Poetry and Nature in Music." During last year's Bicentennial observance, he gave recitals which featured premiere performances of keyboard works by American composers. He made a New York debut recital in 1949 and since then has concertized extensively in the U.S. and Mexico. He has studied with such famous pianists as Egon Petri and Beveridge Webster. He is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music where he was a student of noted Hungarian pianist Miklos Schwalb.

Milt Hinton, considered by many to be America's leading jazz bassist, will be among approximately two dozen top musicians participating in Midland's first Jazz Party Nov. 15 through 20 in the Midland Hilton. Tickets for the six-concert festival may still be purchased from the sponsoring Midland Jazz Association, 682-5334.

Cavett making fourth network try

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post

Dick Cavett remains one of the conundrums, mysteries, puzzles and confoundments of the television business. Here we have an engaging young man who pleases television critics, who has a capacity for creating the kind of controversy that brings news stories, and who is a fellow of notable, high intelligence. He tells jokes with skill and few in mass media have been able to sustain interesting conversation with more verve.

Yet the same Dick Cavett, complete with Yale degree and an interest in the meaningful segments of life, has trouble keeping a job. He has been on all three commercial networks, and now can be found on PBS (which, despite all the oil companies that underwrite programs, doesn't stand for Petroleum Broadcasting System, but rather for the non-commercial Public Broadcasting System).

As one wag, with a better sense of humor than of broadcasting history, remarked, "The only place left for Cavett to go if he flops on PBS is door-to-door."

But before that happens, Cavett and his production team have a budget of $1.8 million to invest in this year of programming. Of the sum, $1 million was voted by the managers of the stations that make up PBS and the other $800,000 came from the fund-raising skills of the public station in New York City.

Art chairman sets innovative show

ODESSA — Barry Phillips, chairman of art at Odessa College, is taking a new approach with his art exhibit opening Tuesday in The University of Texas of the Permian Basin art gallery.

He's making the art forms from ordinary, every-day masonite and two-by-fours.

Phillips said flexible masonite affords an excellent opportunity as an artistic medium. "Masonite can be bent, molded and contorted into all types of subtle visual forms," he said.

"I think using the whole four-by-eight sheets of masonite creates a colossalness matching the gallery with its vista of the surrounding landscape. The works aren't overcome by the environment," he said.

The public is invited to watch Phillips create the exhibit entitled "4 x 8: An Installation of Forms," from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday. A reception at 7 p.m. Monday will officially open Phillip's exhibit in the gallery. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Williams presentation set at Theatre Centre

Nashville entertainer Jim Owen brings his one-man show, "An Evening With Hank Williams Sr.," to Midland Theatre Centre tonight.

The show presents the life of the legendary singer Hank Williams in story and song.

Owen has been presenting his show with great success throughout the South and Southwest during the last year. The show had a performance in Midland last spring and is brought back for another engagement in response to popular demand.

Tickets for tonight's presentation, priced $5, will for sale at Theatre Centre in advance of the 8 p.m. performance. Theatre Centre is located at 2301 W. Indiana Ave., just south of Commercial Bank & Trust Co.

Antique show opens on coliseum grounds

An annual fall antique show and sale opens Friday in Building A on the Ector County Coliseum grounds.

The show will continue Saturday and Sunday. Friday and Saturday hours will be 1 to 9 p.m., while Sunday's schedule is 1 to 6 p.m.

The exhibition is presented by Continental Shows Ltd., of Canyon and will feature dealers in all kinds of antiques from many parts of the nation.

Troupe to conclude three-day residency

LUBBOCK — Ballet Hispanico of New York will conclude a three-day residency on the Texas Tech University campus with a public performance at 8:15 p.m. Friday.

The dance program will be in the University Center Theater on campus, with tickets to be available before show time at the center.

Ballet Hispanico was founded in 1970 by Tina Ramirez to provide a professional dance company which would reflect the culture of Hispanic-Americans. All of Ballet Hispanico's dancers come the Spanish-speaking regions of the U. S. They perform heritage works — the rhythms of the Caribbean, the festive dances of Mexico, the passionate Spanish Flamenco, the simple folk dances of Latin America, the street savvy of New York's Spanish Harlem. The company's repertoire includes works by such noted American choreographers as Talley Beatty, Geoffrey Holder, Louis Johnson and Anna Sokolow.

Group adapting Longfellow poem

FORT WORTH — Casa Manana Playhouse, the young people's theater at Fort Worth's famous Casa Manana, will offer a musical adaptation of Henry Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha," in performances beginning this weekend.

The first presentation will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, with other performances scheduled fer 2 p.m. Nov. 12 and 19 and 7:30 p.m. Nov. 11. In addition, there will be school performances Nov. 15 through 18.

The adaptation of "Hiawatha" will be a musical collage featuring dancers from Texas Christian University as well as those from the Fort Worth Ballet and Ballet Concerto. The production is directed by Zac Ward of the Casa Manana Playhouse staff, assisted by Peter Fritz.

Pivotal cast members include Kes Whites as Hiawatha, Kathey Ward as Nokomis, Ellen Pace as Wenonha. Other featured performers are Christy Kellogg, Francisco Martinez, Gitche Manito and Carol Prud'homme. Still others in the cast are Nancy Drotning, Rick Flippin, Pete Schneider, Mike Metts, Jane East, Cyndee Joseph, Geri Bartholomew, Leslie Oeler, Claire Smolik and Cal Baker.

Association makes plans for city's first Jazz Party

With less than two weeks remaining before the start of the first Midland Jazz Party, final planning for the Nov. 15 through 20 event is under way.

Approximately two dozen of the nation's leading jazz musicians have been invited to participate in this first annual festival, sponsored by the newly-charterd Midland Jazz Association.

The six-concert party will be in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton. The Nov. 15 through 19 concerts will be evening events, with the concluding session on SunDaY, Nov. 20, to take place during the afternoon.

Tickets or, actually, chairs, for the entire concert series are now being sold on a first-come, first-served basis. No tickets for individual concerts will be available — persons must purchase admission for the entire series.

The admissions may be purchased from Max H. Christensen, president of the Midland Jazz Association, whose offices are in the Petroleum Building, or from association directors Bobby J. Crues or Kenneth H. Griffin.

Among the famous jazz musicians invited to play at the upcoming concerts are guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli; pianists Dave McKenna, Derek Smith and Dick Hyman; xylophonist Red Norvo; bassists Jack Lesberg, Milt "Judge" Hinton and Michael Moore; drummers Mousey Alexander, Jack Hanna and Cliff Leeman; clarinetists and saxophonists Kenny Davern, Johnny Mince, Flip Phillips and Eddie Miller; trombonists Carl Fontana, Ed Hubble and Bill Watrous; trumpeters Pee Wee Erwin, Ed Polcer and Ruby Braff, and vocalist Mavis Rivers.

Comedy offered

AMARILLO — A comedy from London, "No Sex, Please, We're British," is the current offering at Amarillo's Country Squire dinner theater.

The hilarious farce has performances at 8:30 p.m. daily, preceded by dinner service between 6:30 and 8 and special pre-show entertainment beginning at 8.

"No Sex, Please, We're British" stars Jim Slaughter and Robin Mosely as a couple deluged with X-rated literature.

Country Squire dinner theater is located on Interstate 40 in Amarillo.

Per Month Plus

Manager Trainee needed to fill $50,000.00 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $14,400.00 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn; however, for those who survive, the first year average compensation is $20,100.00 due to additional sales commisions. 90 to 95% of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

The qualifications are tough - please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification.

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. A 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy, retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over (60) hours per week (no Sunday or out of town work).
4. Willing to take polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as Real Estate, Automobile, Mobile Homes, Vacuum Cleaners or Etc.

We have an extraordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer "candidates" to us.
