Markets Feel Full Force Of Buying Plans

Dollar Slips Steadily Down; Washington Keeping A Close Watch On Europe; Commodity Prices Go Higher

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — With the dollar steadily slipping as the market felt the full force of the Roosevelt gold buying program, Washington today kept a close watch for any signs of European efforts to block the president's program.

In relation to the pound, the dollar fell off to $4.855, almost ten cents weaker than it was four days ago. For the day, it was off more than three cents. The American monetary unit dropped lower, too, as against the franc.

No Unfriendly Intentions

Before beginning to buy gold abroad, the chief executive's advisors communicated with London and Paris to assure authorities there that no unfriendly intentions were involved. The foreign capitals were told that the president's efforts to increase gold prices were dictated by the internal situation here and were part of his general effort to raise the price of commodities.

The results of the conversations were not made clear. Although officials were inclined to minimise the possibility of a monetary war in Bartlett received his wounds in 1863, at the age of 16. He lived to rear a family of 16 children, 12 of whom survive him. He also had 45 grandchildren, 47 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchildren.

Military Units Are Formed; Tear Gas Being Obtained

(By The Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Nov. 3. — Farm strikers tightened their grip on farm-to-market highways in five midwestern states tonight.

While five governors sought to effect an immediate price-lifting program through the federal administration, renewed bombings in Wisconsin, fisticuffs in Iowa, and violence in other states were reported.

Units Are Organizing

The intensified picketing brought from Congressman F. H. Shoemaker at Minneapolis the assertion that "it may be impossible to quell demonstrations" unless farm prices are raised immediately.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt he said farmers were organizing military units under ex-service men. Four companies already were training and arming themselves with tear gas bombs for protection in central Minnesota, he charged.

Peace officers in the area, however, denied knowledge of the organization.

Creameries Bombed

Creameries at Krakow and Zachow, Wis., were bombed today, the sixth such occurrence since the strike began 14 days ago.

Despite the order of Arnold Gilberts, Wisconsin president of the farmers holiday association, 500 holiday and Wisconsin milk pool members voted unanimously to continue the strike at Madison today.

Fresh Doubts Cast On Ford

Johnson Expresses Opinion In Conference That Ford Still Is Ineligible To Make Bids On Federal Contracts

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — Fresh doubt was cast by Hugh S. Johnson today upon the eligibility of the Ford Motor company for government contracts and new qualifications were raised within the NRA organization against the Swope plan for full business self-government.

In response to questions at a press conference, the recovery administrator said President Roosevelt's executive order on contracts provided that to be eligible bidders must "agree" to abide by code terms. He had seen no such agreement from Ford, Johnson said, although "he apparently is complying with the code in full from all I can hear."

No Agreement Known

Johnson added that he had had nothing to do with the presidential order and did not assume to say who was or was not eligible, but when asked if Ford had agreed to the code he responded that he knew of no such agreement, and that he now knew of no change.

If that view should be generally followed by officialdom only a decision by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl overturning the order would

Stockmen Over Panhandle Are Given Warning

Cold Drizzle Falls Over Big Part Of South Plains Area Friday; Skies Clear Here But Frost Improbable

Rains Aid Wheat

Approaching Cold Wave Likely Will Strike Lubbock During Night; Most Of State Will Get Warmer Weather

WINTER weather, which seemingly was leaving the South Plains last night, will strike with greater intensity tonight or early Sunday, the government weather bureau said.

Stockmen in the northern part of Texas were warned to protect livestock.

Skies Clear Here

Although skies cleared early last night, it was believed frost was improbable here. Minimum reading at the experiment station yesterday was 37 degrees, and last night at 9:30 o'clock the Municipal airport reported a temperature of 38—several degrees higher than at the same time the previous night.

A cold drizzle fell over the South Plains region most of yesterday. What the rain took out of the pockets of cotton farmers it put into those of wheat farmers, who rejoiced because of the needed moisture. Ungathered cotton, however, was not believed to have been damaged except possibly in grade and staple.

Strikes Panhandle Tonight

Most of Texas today will have warmer weather, the forecast said. Showers continued over most of the state yesterday.

The approaching cold wave is scheduled to strike the Panhandle tonight, reaching Lubbock during the night.

San Angelo reported clear, cool weather, with the prospect of rain Saturday.

Fort Worth had showers during the day, a minimum temperature of 45 at 1 a. m. and a maximum of 54 at 2 p. m. Dallas had a minimum of .46 and .49 of an inch of rain.

Other readings:

San Antonio — high 67; low 49; partly cloudy.

Beaumont — high 79; low 71; cloudy.

Houston—high 74; low 53; partly cloudy and not much change in temperature expected for Saturday.

Galveston — low 60; clear; no change forecast for Saturday.

Longview—light rains, with continued warm weather.

(By The Associated Press)

JERUSALEM, Nov. 3.—The body of Joan Winters, described as an American professional dancer, and an Indian moslem were found in an olive grove outside the city wall today.

The man was identified tentatively as Mohamed Karaman, an Indian civil servant from Madras.

The bodies were found at the foot of the Mount of Olives near the Garden of Gethsemane where Judas betrayed Jesus with a kiss.

Reports of authorities indicated that Miss Winters and the Moslem had been killed 48 hours or more before their bodies were found.

Wrestler And Promoter Tells That He Was Asked To Contribute To The Campaign Of Governor Ferguson

Becomes Enraged

Was Asked His Standing With Fergusons Before Given A License; Lockhart Testifies As To Contribution

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 3. — Art Mondt, wrestler and promoter, testified today he was told, "to the victor belong the spoils," and was asked to contribute to the expense of electing Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, when he sought a wrestling and boxing permit in Texas.

Mondt was a witness before a legislative committee investigating charges of "job selling" and the general conduct of state departments.

Must Be Repaid

He said W. C. Howth, Beaumont attorney, member of the state Democratic executive committee and Ferguson campaign worker; told him:

"We have spent something over $200,000 to elect Mrs. Ferguson and have got to get it back some way." Mondt also told of conversations he had with Jack Flynn, state boxing and wrestling commissioner, and said Flynn told him:

"It is a political proposition and you will have to see Howth to get a license."

Seemed To Be Theme Song

Mondt commented: "That seemed to be their theme song."

He said his wife and their attorney conferred with James E. Ferguson, ex-governor and husband of the present chief executive, and were referred back to Howth.

Mondt said that on one occasion he became incensed and told Flynn that "Jesse James was a credit to him" and that "the more I thought of it the better I liked Al Capone."

Mondt testified that Howth told him that Luther Wilson had been approved for a license in Beaumont and suggested that he and Wilson discuss an agreement.

License Is Issued

A wrestling promoter's license was issued to Mrs. Mondt after he had agreed to pay Wilson $200 and turn over to Wilson five per cent of the gate receipts, less the state and federal taxes, Mondt testified.

The five per cent amounts to from $5 to $35 a week, Mondt testified.

Mondt testified that when he first

Husband And Father Of Three Victims Absolved Of Blame As Coroner's Jury Reports Findings Friday

(By The Associated Press)

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 3.—A two-day coroner's jury inquiry into the mysterious killings of three members of the Robert F. Hayter family resulted tonight in a verdict that Mrs. Hayter and her two children "came to their deaths at the hands of a person or persons unknown."

Convinced all three were murdered by an outsider who was not "a professional killer," officers said they were working on "definite clues."

Husband Absorbed

Meanwhile, they absolved Hayter, husband and father of the victims.

The coroner's jury completed its investigation of a mass of circumstances surrounding the week-old slayings in the locked Hayter home and reached a verdict without hesitancy tonight.

"Hayter has furnished us with some valuable and apparently definite clues," said Assistant County Attorney C. C. McCuistion, as

United States Fleet Will Be Concentrated In Atlantic Next Spring; About 55,000 Men Are Affected By Change

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The United States fleet will be concentrated in the Atlantic next spring for the first time in almost four years.

President Roosevelt today authorized the first line of defense to start steaming from the Pacific to the east coast after the winter months. It will return to the Pacific in the fall.

The fleet, comprising the battle and scouting forces—the latter formerly known as the Atlantic fleet—have been stationed in the Pacific since the spring of 1932. A year before they were together off the Panama canal. The last time the two forces were together in the Atlantic was in May, 1930, when former President Hoover reviewed them off the Virginia Capes.

During the past 18 months the navy has explained that the scouting force was kept in the Pacific for reasons of operating economy. The situation in the far east was understood, however, to have played a considerable part in the retention of the full fleet in the Pacific.

Japanese officials several times have asserted that the Pacific concentration contributed to tenseness in American-Japanese relations.

The reason given for the order to return, not only of the scouting force, but the full United States fleet was explained by Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant

Most Popular Man In Wyoming Dies In 77th Year; Oldest Member Of Senate; Former Governor Of State

(By The Associated Press)

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 3—John B. Kendick, senior United States senator for Wyoming, died in a hospital here late today in his seventy-seventh year.

The one-time cowboy, who recently returned from Washington where he labored throughout the summer in behalf of the huge Casper-Alcova reclamation project in Wyoming, was stricken at his desk Wednesday night. Doctors at first called his illness cerebral hemhorrage but later revised the diagnosis to uremic coma.

Popular In State

A Democrat in politics, a cowboy for the love of it and a millionaire in lands and cattle, Kendrick was often called the most popular man in Wyoming.

Partisan politics were forgotten here as far as he was concerned, and from all over the state his constituents, Republican and Democratic alike, supported him in his labors at Washington.

He had endeared himself to all Wyomingites through its continued efforts for the welfare of the state at Washington.

Oldest Man In Senate

So great was his following in Wyoming that there was talk in recent months of putting him in the senate by acclamation for his next term. Republican newspapers and Republican party leaders alike talked of the possibility that no Repub-

New Plan Calling For Price-Fixing And Regimentation Of Production And Sales Is Drafted Friday

Five Midwest Executives Will Appeal To President Today; Fixing Of Prices For Six Commodities Urged

BY ROY F. HENDRICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Five midwest governors tonight laid down a new program calling for price-fixing and regimentation of agricultural production and sales before farm officials, decided it had been rejected, and announced that they would appeal to President Roosevelt tomorrow to overrule his aides and put the program into effect in 30 days.

Their program, representing a modification of the plan they drafted earlier in the week at Des Moines, provides for fixing prices of beef cattle, hogs, corn, wheat, milk and butterfat at parity and the fixing of quotas for each farmer, limiting definitely the amount he may produce and sell.

Not Definitely Rejected

Secretary Wallace, present when the governors gave details of the program to newspapermen, said that while farm officials including himself had objected to provisions of the plan as unenforceable, unfeasible and too costly, it had not been definitely rejected.

He said the department would give it immediate and intensive study and that if it is "workable" the department would be willing to employ it.

He indicated that he was skeptical of its workability, but made it clear that he and the department of agriculture were as anxious as the governors to alleviate as promptly as possible distress among farmers due to present low prices.

Smacks Of Fascism

One of Wallace's aides said the plan "smacked of fascism," that it would make of Wallace a dictator capable of imposing upon the nation's farmers complete control of their business, which he doubted would be acceptable to the majority of producers.

Governor Olsen of Minnesota, a farmer-laborite, acted as spokesman for the delegation the other members of which were Governors Herring of Iowa, Berry of South Dakota, Langer of North Dakota, and Schmedeman of Wisconsin.

The all-day conference of the executives with farm administration officials was interrupted from time to time as they received mes-

Hyer is a former state senator and former president of Lions International.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche Woman's Editor

SHAKESPEARE had his seven ages of man. Ursula Parrott suggests the three ages of women and then makes a remark that is worth consideration: "What she will be able to do with herself from 21 on, is increasingly a matter of accident." While the rest of the world has been telling us that it is a matter of choice.

Her three ages and their responsibilities are: 17 to 21—her real responsibility is to be pretty if she can, to be a good dancer, to be asked out, to have lots of beaux, to be herself. 21 to 25 — This is her age of opportunity—to marry, to do some effective work, something of importance to her ego.

25 on—she should be settled as a charming wife, an intelligent young mother, or as a person of affairs with enough success to warm her hands at.

She makes some more observations on women that you may like to mull over for it does us all good to look inward occasionally — provided we do not do it too often. She says: Women are so much the instinctive creators of permanence and continuity of life that if the prom-trotter doesn't grow up to it, she will be a very unhappy specimen, though she probably won't know what's the matter with her."

She adds, too, that "women have to be more adaptable than men; they have to relinquish the lovely enchantments of youth and to 'be your age,' or become pathetic, futile creatures." Perhaps you, too, would like to add, "How true. How true."

TRY THIS ON YOUR PHONE

TELEPHONE conversations sometimes become a matter of some concern in large families—or any place where there are several to use the telephone.

Mrs. John F. Turner has an idea on that. She has placed a clock on the shelf by the telephone so those talking can tell how much time they are consuming. A good reminder.

MAKE IT COMFORTABLE

ONE interior decorator, giving advice to women on furnishing the home suggests that "if you can't afford to go in for artistic effects, go in for comfort." She should get some praise for that.

After all there is nothing to take the place of comfort in the room where you must live.

A pretty chair that is not easy to sit in is virtually worthless. A divan from which you continually slide out toward the floor is worse than none at all.

There is a lot of furniture that is pretty and expensive but it can't compare with something that is comfortable — something in which you can really curl up and enjoy a book or a nap or whatever you happen to be doing.

THE NAME'S NEW

WE ARE not hearing about economy dishes any longer. The talk now is about the New Deal and, just to show you what it is doing for cooking, two of the New Deal dishes have names that you can't pronounce with the aid of an expert. One is Cauliflower Bearnaise and the other is Onions Arragonaise. You probably call them scalloped cauliflower and onions — only the onions are cooked in chicken stock. But those names!

JUST A HUNCH

DO YOU know I think we are going to have a good year next year. It should come along as a part of the New Deal and then it doesn't seem reasonable to suppose that we are going to have another that is as dry as this has been or one that has such extremes of temperature. This prognostication isn't based on any signs it's just a guess. But I have an idea that next year is going to be good, plenty of rain but not too much. Plenty of heat without scorching. That's a guess backed by a hunch.

All Loan Drafts Soon To Be Paid

All drafts in payment of the government's 10-cent cotton loan will be cashed in several days, it was indicated yesterday when it appeared difficulties in cashing of drafts at the Dallas Reserve bank were being ironed out.

Meantime, two concerns in Lubbock, Carlock and Johnson and the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, were having no difficulty in their loans.

To Pay Off Drafts

"The First National bank at Lubbock will pay off all drafts by Carlock and Johnson on J. Kahn and Co.", C. P. Carlock, member of the firm, said. "We have made arrangements for our customers to get their money".

"All drafts on cotton placed with the Texas Cotton Cooperative association are being paid in our Dallas office", N. H. Payne, district manager, said. "Our farmers are actually getting their money".

Chief difficulty, it was explained by cotton men, was the refusal of compresses to guarantee grade and staple in the warehouseman's waiver. At a meeting in Dallas Tuesday night this trouble was adjusted.

Waiver Being Signed

Where compresses are guaranteed by bond that the grade and staple of cotton placed with them for loans is as represented, they are now signing the waiver, it was announced by both the Lubbock Compress company and the Underwood interests, owners of presses at other points on the South Plains.

Eugene B. Smith and Co., represented by Peter Evans and C. W. Booher, expect to have the difficulties ironed out in a short time. The same is true of John W. Hunt and Co., who have also announced making of loans. It was reported several other local concerns might handle the 10 cent loans through the government.

Paul In Jerusalem

Text: 15:1, 2, 6, 22-31

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson For Nov. 5
By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D., Editor Of The Congregationalist

EVERY new religion, or every new phase or manifestation of an old religion, brings its problems and its controversies.

What is the relation of the new to the old? How much of the old should survive in the new outlook and experience? How can the substance and reality of all that was good in the old religion be preserved unless one lays stress upon the symbols and forms in which that religion expressed itself?

Again and again these issues arise in all movements of religion. In fact, it is interesting to see the extent to which they arise in all movements of conviction, and of a progressive nature, without regard to their essentially religious character.

Socialists and Communists of today quarrel about matters of definition and interpretation and programs of action in very much the same way that early Christian sects, and later denominations, have contended in controversy over the orthodox view and the orthodox way.

ONE of the earliest phenomena in the progress of Christianity was the winning to the new faith of those who were not Jews. Paul, who was himself a devout Jew, though he now had become a Christian, felt called upon to keep up certain ritual observances in which he had been trained from his youth and which still had meaning for him.

He did not, however, see any reason why non-Jews accepting the new faith should be burdened with ritual practices which were foreign to them, and which hardly could have the meaning or significance that they had for those brought up in Judaism.

It may seem that Paul's views were not altogether consistent and also that they varied from time to time. The whole matter probably was one of such difficulty of adjustment that it was hard for even so clear seeing and clear thinking a man as Paul to rise to the heights of a view of Christian simplicity and liberty that consistently was manifested.

Later we find Paul, in Jerusalem, shaving his head in ritual observance of a vow that he had made; and the whole situation seems strangely at variance with the clarity and independence of the views that he elsewhere expressed on the subject of Christian liberty.

IT is seldom in deeply controversial issues that men think and act with complete open-mindedness. Even where there may be no prejudice, it is difficult to avoid an attitude of compromise, because of practical considerations.

A distinguishing mark of the Jew, and a central and sacred rite of his religion, is the practice of circumcision. When certain men from Judea came into the communities where Paul and Barnabas had been winning Gentiles to the Christian faith, they insisted that these new converts should conform to the "custom of Moses," and demanded that if they did not do so they could not be saved.

Paul and Barnabas were equally insistent that this Jewish rite was not necessary for the Christian faith or salvation of these Gentile converts. Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders of the church there to determine this question.

THE result was that the church at Jerusalem sided with Paul and Barnabas and sent to the Christians in Antioch Judas and Silas, "men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ," to bear witness to this decision.

The decision, in effect, was that these Gentile Christians should observe the moral law and the decencies of conduct, but that they should be free from the necessity of placing themselves under ritual burdens which could have for them little meaning or reality.

This controversy was much more than a church quarrel. It was a division of opinion about a maor matter in which the conflicting convictions no doubt were sincere and honorable. But the decision was crucial, marking the virtual saving of Christianity from the fate of becoming a narrow and sectarian religion.

Would God that all controversies within the Christian Church had issued so favorably and tended to keep Christianity in the realm of simple, moral and spiritual realities!

Ginnings For Plains Mount

Increase Of 48 Per Cent Is Noted In 18 Counties Over Section; 107,191 Bales Are Ginned To Date

Cotton ginnings of 18 South Plains counties, to Oct. 18, showed a gain of 48 per cent as compared with that of the same date in 1932. A government report showed 107,191 bales ginned this year and 72,363 last year at the same time.

The state as a whole gained almost 30 per cent, the totals being: 3,015,772 bales this year as compared to 2,344,647 bales last year.

Eleven Counties Gain

Eleven counties, Briscoe, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley and Terry showed gains over last year. Two counties, Castro and Parmer, did not have reports for 1932. The other counties showed losses.

Dawson county this year is in the drouth area and its cotton acreage is considerably less. The same is true of Hockley county.

In Lamb county the season is late, resulting in a low ginning report there.

Cotton plowup last summer will affect the final totals in practically all of the counties on the South Plains. Cotton was not quite one third out at the time of the report. Cotton men believe the report for November 1 should show about one third of the probable ginnings for the season.

Following is the comparative report by counties:

County	1933	1932
Bailey	2,688	1,363
Briscoe	2,161	2,628
Castro	390	No report

Dawson	1,737	3,573
Dickens	9,327	2,920
Floyd	6,397	2,153

LUBBOCK	24,222	16,848
Lynn	15,401	5,439
Motley	6,304	1,916
Parmer	509	None
Terry	3,046	949

Broadway Is Just A "Sucker" For A Torch Light Parade; They Whoop It Up As Election Campaign Nears End

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Broadway, in its own vernacular, is just a "sucker" for political torch light parades and bands.

The gay white way, which likes to take its heroes and its notables straight, was a magnified edition of the Main street of any town in America last night as the local election campaign approached its end.

They Whoop It Up

Beneath the accustomed dazzle of its electrical display, New Yorkers whooped 'er up with all the good old campaign frenzy against a background of electioneering oratory, loud speakers, parades, booing, police lines, and red flares.

Fifty thousand persons assembled outside nearby Madison Square Garden, where fusion party candidates spoke. Another 25,000 jammed its way in.

Times Square crowds shouted above the bellow of a half dozen loud speakers, blaring forth the merits of Mayor John P. O'Brien. The candidates waved their arms from the roof of a theater marquee at Forty Third street and Broadway.

Police Lines Bulge

Up at Fiftieth, solid police lines suddenly bulged — ten thousand throats gave forth a roar of anger. Tammany had pulled a fast-one."

Five hundred good Democrats had marched to the Garden and under the very noses of fusion crowds three bands burst into strains of "Tammany."

Samuel Seabury, veteran Tammany foe, was speaking. But Seabury or no Seabury, the fusionists rushed to repel the invaders.

Police grunted, pushed—the foe retreated in good order after a prolounged exchange of pleasantries.

Retort Is Elegant

Fusionist band laddies gave the retort elegant Tooting vigorously on assorted instruments, they played, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Tammany."

En route, the booing swelled and waned as good fusionist passed good Tammanyite. Electioneering stands were targets of assorted jeers and cheers.

At Times Square partisan loyalty was too much to stand—and several thousand fusionists rushed a platform where Tammany speakers were addressing the crowds.

Speaker Is Calm

A police detail was rushed from the Forty-Seventh street station and mounted police of the theater section pushed their way to the speakers stand.

The Tammany speaker did not split so much as an infinitive during the excitement.

To the statistically minded, it might be of interest that 140 gross of green and red flares were burned at the fusion rally.

Mexican Denied Mandamus And Is Returned To Jail

Denied a mandamus to force Corporation Court Judge J. T. Inmon to approve his appeal bond, Lorenzo Vargas, a Mexican, was returned to City jail late yesterday. The hearing was in county court before Judge E. L. Pitts.

Vargas pleaded guilty of vagrancy after his arrest Saturday and was fined $50. He declared he understood the fine was to be $15 and he appealed to county court. Vargas also sought to have corporation court records in the case transferred to county court. Judge Pitts held that Vargas, by pleading guilty and accepting sentence, had waived his right of appeal.

Mystery Surrounds Issuance Of Order For Man's Removal

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 3. (AP)—Mystery today surrounded the issuance of an order for the removal of Lieut. John H. Murrel, charged with criminal attack upon Blanche Ralls, from the Bexar county jail.

It was definitely learned that a removal order for the Fort Sam Houston officer was held by the United States marshal's office and at first the supposition was that there would be a preliminary hearing today.

The probability waned somewhat, however, when defense attorneys failed to receive any notice of a hearing. Then a report was circulated that Lieut. Murrel was to be turned over to military authorities.

The whereabouts of Miss Ralls and her sister, Margot, remained a mystery. They had left their former residence.

Mud Battle In Prospect As Longhorns And Mustangs Tilt

DALLAS, Nov. 3. (AP) — Sloppy weather is in prospect for tomorrow's gridiron clash between the University of Texas Longhorns and Southern Methodist university's Mustangs, and coaches of both teams tonight voiced their displeasure over the probability that the game would be a mud battle.

Clyde Littlefield and Ray Morrison, head coaches of Texas and Southern Methodist, respectively, did not believe the prospective slick footing would either severely handicap or help the teams, but they feared it would dull the contest somewhat and make unusual various offensive trick plays which have been developed in the past few days by both teams. Indications also were that attendance would be trimmed sharply—probably down to around 14,000.

The Longhorn coach pronounced his team in first class condition when he arrived here today. The Longhorns worked out lightly and then retired to their quarters.

Modern times have changed the scene. Rythmic beats of the war drums merge with the steady chug-chug of a locomotive, behind which ride on Pullman cushions these present day braves who have left their tomahawks at home. They're on their way to Lubbock, scene of a battle tonight in which wits and strategy rather than bullets and blades are the weapons.

The Indians are coming!

That announcement used to send pale faces scurrying for the old .45 and the nearest fortress.

Today it causes the Texas Tech Matadors to leap over nonchalantly, pick up the old headgear and mumble: "Well, we'll use the old No. 47 tonight, and if that don't stop them Indians cold, we'll cross 'em up with 39 and a lateral pass."

Not So Simple

It really is not so simple as that, and the Matadors have spent several hours this week in efforts to perfect plays that will work against the heavier Haskell Institute Indians when the teams meet at Tech Field tonight. The Matadors have also had their attention called to the defensive part of the game, and have been drilled to stop Coach Gus Welch's Injuns and their Warner system of attack.

Yesterday's workout, for instance, was a mild affair from the casual observer's viewpoint. There was no hard blocking and tackling, no heavy scrimmage. But it was important, and designed to enhance the Matadors' education. Lubbock's High school Westerners, students of the Warner double wingback system, ran play after play at the Matadors, who observed rather than tried to stop 'em.

Coach Pete Cawthon's boys got in only two days of hard work this week. Rain and bad weather cut the practice short. But except for what the Westerners and the Freshmen have taught them, they'll have to dope out their own duties when they bang up against the Braves tonight.

Lineup Is Shifted

Cawthon has shifted his lineup considerably, has announced that he'll break a rule tonight. Instead of starting the "shock troops," as he usually does, and send in the regulars later, the Matador mentor will start what he considers his best team, and keep them in as long as possible or necessary. It will be noted that some promotions and demotions have been made. Butts, Dowell and Curfman are now "top stringers," with McElroy, Sollis and Price in a lower bracket. In the line, Elmer Fortner at center, and Gaines Davis at guard replace Barton and Greer, who haven't showed up to snuff this week.

Coach Gus Welch, who played football at Carlisle under Pop Warner, is bringing 26 men to Lubbock this morning. They are due to arrive at 11:30 o'clock, and a huge welcoming party is planned. Assisting Welch is John Levi, old-time Indian all-American at Haskell.

Haskell's big backfield threat tonight is Robert (Swift Bird) Holmes, 160-pound halfback who has a reputation for running the ball in a manner mindful of Louis "Little Rabbit" Weller, elusive ball-toter of the last three seasons. He is the man the Matadors have been trained to watch and to smother tonight.

Seven Veterans Back

Seven present members of the Haskell team wore warpaint in 1931 when the Indians whipped the Tech Matadors, 8 to 0, on a Dallas field. That was their first, and last, meeting. Eight men on the Tech team were in uniform that day, the day Bill Teal suffered a broken leg that cut short a probable brilliant football career early in his junior year.

An outstanding lineman on Haskell's team is big Fred (Big Horse Iron) Miles, 240-pound tackle who is playing his fourth year. Then there are Striped Neck Falleaf, Mad Bear Pence, Yellow Hawk Alexander, Young Water McDonald, Knocks Off Two Holmes, Hunting Dog Dushane, Deerfoot Hinman, Captain Whirlwind Soldier Duffina and Hawkface Hayes.

Lubbock Boy On Team

A former Lubbock High school gridder is playing with Haskell, and Coach Welch likes him so much he puts him in nearly every game. He is Chief (Lone Star) Jones, a tackle developed by Henry Frnka.

Except for a game with Pop Warner's Temple team, the Indians have made a fair record this season. They opened the year by defeating St. Benedict's, 25 to 0. They then trimmed Washburn college, a team which tied the rampant Tulsa university club, 6 to 0. The Indians played Creighton to a scoreless tie. Creighton defeated Rice Institute of the Southwest conference. With six regulars out of the game, Haskell tied the strong Emporia Teachers and lost to Oklahoma A. and M.

Grinnell, Wichita university and Xavier remain on Haskell's program after tonight.

They're all-blooded Indians who play for Haskell, and they have learned the paleface game at Haskell, largest Indian school in the country, to the extent of being rated with the nation's big shots.

Indian Versus Indian

Not all of Tech's players tonight are palefaces. In fact, five men due to play against Haskell are "first Americans" themselves, and they have pointed to this game with fervor, hoping for the opportunity of getting in and showing their Texas learned stuff against fellow tribesmen.

Lacy Turner, one of them, is a starting guard. Joe Barlow, a tackle who served a term at Haskell before coming to Tech as a freshman gridder, is likely to get in the game against his former team mates. Ted Wilson, busting, bruising fullback, is certain to play tonight. He was a star at Haskell a couple of seasons ago, serving his freshman term here last year. Lee Gaylor and Marion Harris are backfield men due to play against fellow Indians. They all are "hotted up" for the game.

Haskell Coach And Linesman

GUS WELCH

FRED MILES

Here are two "big" men on Haskell Institute's Indian team which plays Texas Tech here tonight. Coach Gus Welch, a Chippewa Indian, succeeded Lone Star Dietz as head mentor, Dietz having gone to Boston to coach a professional team. The biggest man on the club is Fred (Big Horse Iron) Miles, tackle, who played against Tech in 1931 when the Indians won, 8 to 0.

Denton Teachers Lost 19-7 To Sam Houston Bearcats

DENTON, Nov. 3. (AP)—The North Texas Teachers, defending champions of the Lone Star conference, went down to a 19 to 7 defeat before the Sam Houston Bearcats from Huntsville here today. It was the first conference victory for the Bearcats this season.

Brownfield Beats Slaton Club, 19-6

SLATON, Nov. 3. (Special)—After Coach Paul Wright's Slaton Tigers had scored within three minutes of the opening kick-off, the Brownfield Cubs came back, scored once in the third period and twice in the fourth to win a conference game here today, 19 to 6.

Nichols, Slaton back, raced 40 yds. for a touchdown. The kick went awry.

Chamles, Brownfield back, ran 15 yards for a touchdown early in the fourth period after a long pass had put the ball across Slaton's goal line in the third. Burnett, a power in Brownfield's lineup, crashed over for the last touchdown late in the game.

Slaton made 13 first downs to Brownfield's ten, and the Tigers penetrated Brownfield's 20-yard line 6 times, to three penetrations for the Cubs. Slaton passed nine times and completed three of them, and the Tigers intercepted two of Brownfield's six passes, 2 of which were complete.

Chamies, Burnett and Captain Thomas were outstanding performers for Brownfield, with Simmons and Nichols doing the heavy work for Slaton.

Combining the names of Pop Warner and Claude E. Thornhill into a coined word, Stanford gridiron fans are terming the Indians 1933 style of football, the "Thorner" system.

Huie-Ribble And Lydick Roofers In Indoor Wins

Huie-Ribble's indoor baseball team broke a long losing streak last night and upset the Avalanche-Journal Publishers, 10 to 7, in a more or less exciting game. A five-run lead taken in the first inning was more than the Publishers could overcome before Huie-Ribble added one more in the third, one in the fifth and three in the sixth.

In the other game last night, Lydick Roofing company nosed out J. C. Penney company, 6 to 5, in a game as close as the score indicates.

Roofers Take Lead

The Roofers scored 4 times in the first inning. J. C. Penney tied it in the third, after scoring twice in the first and once in the second. Mendall Hughett broke the tie with a Roofer run in the fifth, but First Baseman Thompson scored for the department store team for a 5-all deadlock in the sixth. Hughett ran across the plate in the seventh for the winning run, the Penney club behind held scoreless.

Williamson, who had pitched a close game against the Mitchell Cafe team Thursday night, held the Huie-Ribble team well in check last night except for the first and sixth innings. The Publishers scored once in the third and three times in the fourth, adding one in the sixth and two in the seventh in a spirited hitting rally.

Lineups:

Huie-Ribble—Wilson, 3b; Rhea, lf; Pullem, c; Walker, ss; Sollis, p; Brooks, 2b; Lawson, 1b; McCarty, cf; Huie, rf.

Avalanche-Journal—L. Blagg, lf; Powers, 2b; Green, ss; Nichols, 3b; Finley, cf; Williamson, p; D. Blagg, 1b; Graves, c; Hutson, rf.

Mustang-Steer Game Features For Southwest

Teams On Edge For Important Battle In Dallas Today As Defeat Means Loss In Race For Title; Bears Play TCU

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Saturday morning found the Methodist Mustangs and the University of Texas Longhorns on razor-edge for their most important football battle this season—a Southwest conference combat that means success or failure to each team.

A defeat for the Mustangs means elimination from the championship marathon since they have been defeated by Arkansas. A victory for the Longhorns would keep their conference record unmarred and would permit them to retain top ranking with the Arkansas Razorbacks.

To Shoot The Works

The works, lock, stock and barrel, will be shot. Southern Methodist drilled all week on a slashing ground offensive with Robert Wilson, J. R. Smith, Hack Ross and Bob Turner lugging the leather.

Each club will have all their stars in the fray. John Hilliard, out since the Nebraska game with an injured ankle, is primed for a personal yardage duel with Robert Wilson. Jay Arnold is ready to prove himself a better backfield blocker than the giant Hack Ross.

Texas was reputed to have a weak line. Southern Methodist's front wall has not been impressive in practice. There was a strong possibility the game will develop into a strictly backfield battle.

Bears Are Out

The Texas Christian Frogs and Baylor Bears will furnish fireworks in the other conference battle. They meet today at Waco. Texas Christian, defending conference champion, is in the same boat with the Mustangs. A loss for the Frogs means their elimination from the championship race. The Baylor Bears, defeated by Arkansas and Texas A. and M. are out of the chase.

It will be home-coming day for the Bears and that means plenty of trouble for the Frogs. Texas Christian, with a strong line and a capable backfield, is favorite over Baylor—a team that boasts two of the best ends in the conference in James and Petty, but a team with an apparent weak running attack.

The Texas A. and M. Aggies are at Shreveport to play a non-conference game against the Centenary college Gentlemen. Centenary has not been scored on in the last ten games. The Gentlemen are favored to take the Aggies.

Rice At Santa Clara

The Rice Institute Owls will show Saturday at San Francisco, California, against Santa Clara university.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, resting easy with three conference wins and no defeats and only two more championship games to play, remains idle today.

St. Benedict's Wins Over West Texas Teachers, 12-7

AMARILLO, Nov. 9. (AP) — Larry "Moon" Mullins' St. Benedict's college Ravens of Atchison, Kan., defeated the West Texas Teachers college Buffaloes, 12 to 7, here today in the first intersectional football game for both teams.

Woodrow Dunaway, former Amarillo High school quarterback, tossed two passes that scored the winning counter for the invaders.

St. Benedict's scored in the first period when Fullback Neff plunged over from the nine after getting possession on the Buffs' 20-yard line on a fumble by Captain Williams.

Poe, Buff center, touched one of Williams' passes in the third period and automatically gave the Ravens possession in mid-field. Dunaway passed to Deutsch for 41 yards, the end being brought down from behind by Quarterback Morgan on the Buffs' 14. He then passed over the goal line to Quarterback McCann.

Southwest Teachers Trounce Trinity Tigers On Mud Grid

WAXAHACHIE, Nov. 3. (AP) — Maintaining their undefeated Lone Star conference record this season, the Southwest Texas Teachers today trounced the Trinity Tigers on a muddy field with a heavy rain falling most of the game. The score was 7 to 0.

Porter's ball carrying and Horton's kicking featured. Horton drove the Tigers deep into their own territory in the second period with long kicks. Then Porter ran back a punt to the Trinity 25-yard line. From there he dashed over his own left tackle for 13 yards. Four plays gave the Teachers a first down on the two-yard line and Gott plunged over for the score. Carnes kicked goal.

Trinity fought back in the third period, advancing the ball to the Teachers' 4-yard line. A fumble there was recovered by the Teachers and Horton punted out of danger. Jameson, Brown and Kroulik played stellar games for Trinity.

Intersectional Games Today Feature Start Of November Gridiron Warfare

St. Mary's Battles Fordham On Polo Grounds Today

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Intersectional football warfare, concentrated largely on eastern gridirons, will usher in the November campaign tomorrow, along with the first wintry blast of cold weather.

In some sectors it may even be necessary to sweep off the snow before the opening kickoff. In others the forecast of rain tonight threatened to raise havoc with intricate maneuvers on muddy battlegrounds, upsetting ball-carriers and the "dope" alike.

Eastern college forces are braced for the shock of the season's biggest invasion. Of the dozen outstanding intersectional games on tomorrow's slate, seven will be played along the eastern front, with outstanding teams of the far west, middle west and south training with their biggest guns on the home ramparts. In addition, two other eastern outfits, Holy Cross and Carnegie, will deploy on mid-western fields, against Detroit and Purdue, respectively.

Fordham Is Favored

The Giant Gaels of St. Mary's, California, lead the big push in a battle with Fordham that promises to reverberate as loudly in San Francisco as it will at the Polo Grounds. This new but nevertheless intense east-west rivalry will draw the day's biggest crowd. Close to 65,000 spectators are expected to jam the park where the biggest turnout of the World Series numbered 46,000 cash customers.

The game brings together teams coached by two of the most conspicuous and successful exponents of the Notre Dame system, Edward Patrick (Slip) Madigan of St. Mary's and James H. (Sleepy) Crawley of Fordham's undefeated Rams, who now have their eyes on a bid to the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day. If both do not "shoot the works" tomorrow, fans and critics alike will be disappointed. Fordham rules a slight favorite.

Irish Meets Navy

Notre Dame itself is out of the national championship picture for 1933, with a record of two straight blankings and a scoreless tie thus far in four engagements. The fighting Irish have never lost three in a row and never been beaten by Navy, their opponents at Baltimore tomorrow, but that won't keep Edgar (Rip) Miller, another product of the Rockne system, from sending the Midshipmen into the battle hopeful of achieving an upset.

The south's contribution to the intersectional melee finds Tulane's weakened outfit tackling unbeaten Colgate on the neutral ground of the Yankee Stadium while Tennessee's volunteers invade the national capital to play George Washington, a new power in the eastern ranks and also undefeated. The teams from Dixie look like the under-dogs.

The eastern color-bearers should not have anything to worry about so far as the Army-Coe, Pittsburgh-Centre and Temple-Drake affairs are concerned. Unbeaten Holy Cross also looks a bit too strong for Detroit but Carnegie is apt to be flattened by the Purdue steamroller.

Southern Cal. Is Idle

In only three of the seven major conference do the leading teams figure in championship games. The pace-setters in two others, Oregon in the Pacific coast group and Utah, champion of the Rocky Mountain area, clash at Portland. The other two undefeated teams in the Pacific coast conference, Southern California and Oregon State enjoy an off-day.

Michigan's powerhouse, the Big Ten favorite, figures to eliminate Illinois from the running. Minnesota's sensational outfit, on the basis of recent performances, should beat Northwestern and strengthen the crucial character of the Gophers' forthcoming tussle with Michigan. Ohio State has the edge over Indiana while Chicago hopes to score its first conference triumph for Coach Clark Shaughnessy at the expense of Wisconsin.

While Arkansas, the Southern Methodist conference leader, is idle for the day, Texas is the favorite over Southern Methodist and Texas Christian the choice over Baylor.

Alabama, despite some weakness on attack, appears capable of dislodging Kentucky from the group of southeastern conference leaders in one of the south's outstanding frays, at Birmingham. Georgia should repeat the 1932 trouncing administered to Florida but Vanderbilt may have the tables turned by Georgia Tech. Duke, the standout of the old Southern conference, figures to avenge last season's setback by Auburn. The Virginia Poly-Washington and Lee battle at Blacksburg looks like a toss-up.

Noble Kizer and Rip Miller, Navy and Purdue football coaches, respectively, were buddies in the Notre Dame line in '24 and became brothers-in-law, marrying sisters from Elkhart, Ind., near Notre Dame.

Slapsie Maxie Triumphs Over Mickey Walker

Rosenbloom Awarded Decision After 15 Rounds To Abolish Toy Bulldog's Hope To Gain Light Heavy Title

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Maxie Rosenbloom, champion of the light heavyweights, flung back the challenge tonight of doughty little Mickey Walker, once king of the welterweights and middleweights. Rosenbloom slapped his way to a fairly decisive decision in 15 rounds before a crowd estimated at 10,000.

No Knockdowns

There were no knockdowns and few thrills for the biggest crowd of the indoor season here as Rosenbloom, as confidently good when his title is at stake as he is mediocre when touring the outskirts in non-title matches, slapped and cuffed his way to the decision of two judges, Charley Lynch and Jim Buckley. Referee Ed Forbes voted for Walker, but his choice failed to find a companion opinion either among the experts or the spectators.

A faint shade of the man who whipped Jack Britton for the welterweight crown in 1923, lost it to Pete Latzo, then came back to win the middleweight championship from Tiger Flowers in 1926, Walker fought his battle only in flashes.

A couple of years ago this sawed off marvel of the modern ring was fighting heavyweights, beating such men as Paulino Uscudun, Johnny Risko, and Jimmy Maloney on the way to a disastrous battle with Max Schmeling for the right to challenge the heaviest of ringdom's titles.

But tonight, 32 years old, close to the end of the trail, Mickey could do little more than charge gamely forward swinging his fists for the body, resting as much as possible in clinches, rallying with his old bull dog ferocity, but rarely.

Lamesa Smothers Tahoka, 55 To 0

LAMESA, Nov. 3. (Special)—The Lamesa High school Golden Tornado smashed the Tahoka Bulldogs, 55 to 0, here this afternoon in a conference B football game.

Coach Ted McCollum started his second stringers early in the game and against these the Bulldogs threatened to score. The Tornadoes rallied, and chalked up 25 first downs to three for the visitors. The Tornado line was practically impassable.

The Lamesa team meets Slaton Tigers here next Friday afternoon in what is expected to be one of the stiffest conference tilts for the Tornadoes. Slaton fans probably will come here in a special train.

AGGIES BEAT TEXAS "B"

ARLINGTON, Nov. 3. (AP) — [illegible] North Texas Aggies defeated University of Texas "B" team 6 to 0 today, in a game played on a muddy field during a hard rain.

The Aggies scored the single marker of the game late in the fourth period, when Boyer, Aggie back, intercepted a pass from Wetzel and ran 25 yards to score. Brown kicked goal but the Aggies were penalized for holding and the next try failed.

Can You Imagine This?

SHADES of the day when Texas was the home of the swashbuckling buckaroo, the hard-handed, weatherbeaten cattle baron and his band of daredevil punchers! Shades of the day when Texas was known as the land where "men are men" of the "he" variety!

For one of our leading cities is going "softy" and its leading journal unblushingly advertises high silk hats!

Texas, the hustling, bustling progressive state where men are supposed to be too busy carving out a new empire to go in for lace on their underwear—Texas, assaulted by the "silk topper"!

Heaven forbid!

In The Dallas News of yesterday's date a downtown Dallas store offered this message, although, suffice to say, the advertisement was not on the sports page:

"Who's Afraid of the Big High Hat? Tra-la-la-la-la-la!

"Long over the horizon is the day where those in the know peeked longingly at the big high opera hat and said 'no-o-o! I'm afeared of the hig high hat!' Now they take it. The middle-aged chap, the man about town, the college fellow . . . that dressing correctly is bounden duty, that dressing smartly correct is part of the evening's fun, that to top off one's dress clothes with a big high silk opera hat (and to wear a maroon carnation on the lapel) is a thing magnificently well done!"

"Magnificently well done!"

That should bring a snort to hardy West Texans who have made a homeland out of a wilderness in less than a generation.

"Dressing correctly is bounden duty!"

Thank heaven, dressing correctly in this country means only wearing the regulation pants, shirt, coat, hat, shoes, sox and underwear, and a man isn't judged by whether or not he wears a "maroon carnation" to match his drawers!

Fie, on you, Dallas!

What are you doing, trying to ape Bawston? Or jolly old Lunnon, perhaps?

Where at's your Texas bringin' up?

Don't you know that stuff's all hooey and that men's minds today are occupied with sterner stuff?

"Tra-la-la-la-la-la-la". That's the most shameful line in the whole ad. It fits the picture of a Dallas going highhat down town while the city fathers and the health authorities wrangle over your "Depression Acres", home of hundreds of ragged and hungry transients!

But we of the West, where, by golly, men still are men with innards enough to venture on the streets after sundown without a "maroon carnation", won't accept that as a true picture of the Dallas we know and like.

It just doesn't go arm-in-arm with Texas of today any more than with the Texas of yesterday.

ERADICATING TYPHOID

The American Public Health association announces that complete eradication to typhoid fever in the United States will be sought.

The startling progress already made toward this goal makes eventual success a strong probability. Between 1914 and 1932 typhoid mortality decreased 80 per cent.

That typhoid fever is a disappearing disease is an obsarvable fact. Not so many years ago, the development of one case of this malady was enough to strike fear into an entire community. Terrible tolls in life were taken where it became epidemic.

Those were the days before medical science had learned how to control the disease and before discovery of the preventive anti-typhoid serum. Due to the progress made since then in fighting the disease, typhoid now holds little popular fear. Epidemics are of rare occurrence and isolated cases are becoming less in number.

That the day is not far off when this disease will be practically unknown is not an unreasonable hope, in view of what has been done so far in conquering it.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S appointment of a woman to be juvenile court judge in the District of Columbia may set off a carload of patronage fireworks when Congress gets back here in January.

The lady, Miss Fay L. Bentley, has been a sort of chief truant officer for district schools. Now she finds herself the center of a grand political row before she even gets her judicial robes well draped.

Several prominent Democratic Senators predict her appointment will be held up as Exhibit A in their patronage troubles under the New Deal.

Miss Bentley is rated on Capitol Hill as a personal choice of Mrs. Roosevelt's. But—arch crime—they say the young lady is really a Republican.

Senator King of Utah was certainly not consulted about the appointment in his official capacity as chairman of the District committee, making him an unofficial mayor.

HECTIC: Members of Congress have been running an ever-rising fever under their inability to get patronage.

If the charges of Republicanism against Miss Bentley pan out as the men on Capitol Hill say they will she is apt to become the centerpiece of an elaborate embroidery of complaints.

The so-called executive sessions of the Senate, wherein Presidential nominations come up for confirmation, should prove hectic affairs according to all advance indications.

SHIRTS: President Roosevelt made a telling point on the radio the other night when he told about the shirt salesman who tried to justify a price increase on his shirts from $1.50 to $2.50 by laying it on the cotton processing tax.

About a pound of cotton goes into a shirt, said the President, and the tax thereon is four and a fraction cents. An official of a cotton spinning concern who listened in says Mr. Roosevelt only half told the story.

About half a pound of cotton is used in making a shirt, he said, cutting the cost increase from the new tax to slightly over two cents.

DIAMONDS: Administration officials are beginning to wonder whether the American public is taking to hoarding diamonds since the lid was clamped on owning more than $100 in gold.

During the first nine months of this year diamond shipments from Amsterdam went up 40 per cent in excess of the same period in 1932.

This year's monthly shipments have averaged around 4,000 carats. But in 1929 when diamonds were mounted on dinner pails they ran about 15,000 carats.

NOTES: Considerable confusion has resulted from use of the expression "sign a code". . . NRA officials explain you don't actually sign your name to a code; you merely comply with its provisions. . . . Even the President does not sign the codes. . . . He signs an executive order putting them into effect. . . . The Chase National bank has to struggle along with only 68 vice presidents. . . . It must be where Roxy got his idea for the ushers. . . . President Roosevelt doesn't allow even illness to disrupt his schedule of press conferences. . . . The other day when confined to his room with a heavy cold he received a delegation of eight reporters who had been chosen by their colleagues. . . . He answered all their questions and they reported back to the large group waiting in the press room.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE Stock Exchange community is trying to get used to the idea that it's going to be thrown to the Congressional lions regardless.

Richard Whitney's latest White House visit was intended to sell the President the idea of permitting the exchange to keep on doing its own regulating. It was neatly timed to coincide with the publicized suspension of a member for violating specialist regulations—supposed to prove iron control or something. Word has seeped out that the interview was less than a shining success.

The material Pecora dug out on last summer's bull market is said to have rubbed pepper in ancient wounds. Also the impression prevails in high quarters that Wall Street is doomed to the arena no matter how much virtue it acquires before January. If Congress can feast on Wall Street's gore it may divert attention from the demands of local constituencies which might prove embarrassing to the national program.

GESTURES: But the big board authorities will keep right on with their own reform plans in the desperate hope of staving off Washington intervention. A uniform system of accounting for all listed corporations is almost ready to shoot. Most of the companies are expected to comply without protest. Then stockholders will be able to compare balance sheets and earning statements of different concerns with some assurance that the figures mean what they say.

The question of eliminating all odd lot trading on margin will also be revived. There is powerful opposition to this step within the exchange (it would take an awful bite out of the odd lot business) but the demand for regulation has reached the point where only the most dramatic gestures have any chance of registering.

There is talk of hand-cuffing the big professionals—who have caused a lot of the grief—by rigid censorship of pools. But every move so far in that direction has failed to make the faintest dent in the ranks of the "sure thing" boys.

SET-BACK: A New Yorker who has spent months laying a diplomatic groundwork in Washington for amendment of the Securities act says he felt he was making real progress until a few weeks ago. Then came Wiggin and the Chase—and blooey! He thinks New York will be lucky now if they don't make security selling a crime.

There is a feeling in the Street that Wiggin dumped the apple cart more thoroughly and at a worse time than even the National City crowd. Plenty of his former associates are saying it with cusses. You can find Wall Streeters who now admit that regulation from without isn't such a bad idea.

OVERSEAS: New York has been amusing itself with reports that a certain utility group was going to do some financing in London and stick its tongue out at the Securities act. This thought has crossed several of Wall Street's brightest legal minds.

It's a pretty picture but it won't wash. In the first place the group doesn't need money at present. In hte second it is doubtful that London would deliberately slap Washington's face by permitting the issue.

Last but not least the thoughtful say they can conceive no better way to make sure that Washington would crack down with a vengeance on utilities and securities dealers.

THE GREATEST GAME BUTCHERS IN HISTORY

Johann Georg I (1585-1656) and his son Johann Georg II (1613-1680) were Electors (rulers of Saxony) Their reigns were quite undistinguished, except that they established an all-time record in game slaughter, having killed a total of 225,761 heads between them. In their capacity as Electors they also occupied the office of Lords High Masters of the Chase of the German Empire, which gave them access to all the forests and game preserves of the Reich. The elder Johann Georg was such as zealous huntsman that he once refused the crown of Bohemia, for the reason that Bohemian game seemed to him inferior to that of his own country.

A LEGLESS RACE

This bizarre contest took place at the Carthage Fair, in 1867. The two contestants who had both lost their legs were powerfully built men. The winner, Isaac Reynolds, made the mile circuit in 15 minutes 15 seconds, beating William Quillan, his opponent, by 2 minutes.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOAN WARING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a New York millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love. The romance progresses happily until Joan and Bob are invited to a house party. Through the scheming of BARBARA COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob for herself, Joan and Bob become estranged.

Meanwhile PAT WARING, Joan's younger sister, is in an automobile accident and JERRY FORRESTER, her escort, is killed. The fact that they had come from a road house and that Jerry had been drinking appears in newspapers. Bob's father reads about the accident and asks Bob to give up Joan.

Pat runs away to New York. Joan follows and begins a search for her sister and also for a job which will enable her to remain in New York. She is engaged to sing at a night club owned by BARNEY BLAKE, who proves a steadfast friend.

Pat is hired as a model in a large wholesale house. She writes to her mother but does not give her address. At the close of working hours one afternoon she receives word to report to the manager's office.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

It was a little before 10 o'clock that evening when Lois Clayton, who shared the tiny apartment with Pat, heard the latch key in the hall door. Pat entered, her eyes shining queerly, her cheeks flushed.

"Why, Pat!" Lois' voice was amazed. "What are you doing back so early?"

"I walked out on the old duck," Pat said.

"Walked out on him?" Lois gasped. "Oh Pat!"

"That's what I said."

"You'll probably be fired."

"I thought of that, too."

"Good heavens, Pat," Lois said soberly, "couldn't you have stayed just an hour or so longer?"

"No," Pat said. "I couldn't. Not for a hundred jobs. He got fresh." Her face flamed suddenly. "Oh, Lois, he tried to kiss me in the taxi! He called me 'girlie,' and thought I was stalling when I pulled away."

"The old sap!" said Lois. "But you don't find a new job every day."

Pat was silent. There was something she couldn't tell Lois. About the taxi stopping in front of a speakeasy. She couldn't say "Once I tried being a good sport, Lois," because then she would have to explain about Jerry and the tagic climax to that night. Tonight had been an opportunity to justify herself, though she had not analyzed it in that way. "I couldn't have looked myself in the face if I'd gone to a place like that to save my job," Pat thought.

"What in the world did you do?" Lois queried.

Pat laughed. "Well, when he stepped out of the taxi to the sidewalk I made up my mind I wouldn't get out. I slammed the door and said to the driver 'Drive on please.' I think he was so astonished that he started the car without thinking. Thank goodness, I had enough to pay the taxi bill! I wish you could have seen Mr. Brentford standing there with his mouth open, like a surprised old fish!"

"Gosh, Pat. I'm afraid it will cost you your job."

"Anyway," Pat said. "I'm glad I did it." She was slipping out of her clothes. In her sleeveless gown, her blond curls loosened, she sat on the edge of the bed. "What business had the manager to fix a date up for me, anyway?"

"Why didn't you beg off then? You might have said your fiance was in town. Or that you were sick."

"Tried it," Pat said grimly, "but it didn't work. I had a feeling something was up when I walked into that office and saw this old fellow waiting in the next room. So I said to Mr. Livingston 'I hope everything was all right this afternoon. If anything was wrong, you'll have to excuse me because I've been feeling ill all day.'"

"I call that smooth," Lois said.

"Well, he just smiled, Lois, and said, 'I didn't notice anything wrong. I thought you looked swell in the white evening dress. Mr. Brentford, one of our best customers, thought so too.' Then he went on about how he was sure I was going to prove myself a valuable employe and before long he'd have to speak to the cashier about a little raise. And some more hokum about expecting cooperation from all the employes and how we were all like one big family. Then he said this Brentford wanted to run out for dinner and a show and he knew he could count on me to entertain such a good friend of the firm for a few hours."

"Smooth, too," said Lois. "And then he dated you up with the old gink. Maybe this Bentford's a good scout, after all, and won't tell. Maybe he's so vain he'll be ashamed to tell your boss he didn't make a hit with you."

"Maybe." But Pat's tone was doubtful.

Nothing unusual happened during the next morning. Pat became more hopeful as the customary routine progressed. Lunch hour came and still there were no signs of a storm brewing. But a little later Jane drew Pat to one side. The look on her face warned that trouble was on the way.

to get the jitters. Lots of girls have let Tony Brentford pay for a swell dinner for them. When he found they weren't ambitious, that was all there was to it. All Mr. Livingston expects is tact, so there'll be no hard feelings."

"Break the bad news," Pat said abruptly.

"Well, you cost the firm a nice order. And nice orders aren't picked up very often these days. Brentford cancelled everything. You haven't a chance to stay. Anything in sight?"

Pat shook her head. 'Only Mul-

AUSTIN, Nov. 3. (AP) — Enforcement of the law prohibiting employment of women more than nine hours a day and 54 hours a week is hampered by the state itself not observing the requirement, Jack Flynn, state labor commissioner, reports.

State eleemosynary institutions, where many women are employed, are said by Flynn to be among the violators and little can be done about it. Flynn said attempts to enforce the law in state institutions often were met with rebuffs and threats that if the labor department became too insistent it might prove unpleasant.

The condition has repeatedly been called to attention of the legislature in discussions on labor bills, but the legislature in adhering to its economy program has not seen fit to reduce the working hours of its hospital attendants from 12 to eight and hire additional employes.

Flynn said the state's lack of conformity proved a handicap when labor department inspectors made efforts to enforce the law. The department notwithstanding, is proceeding against violators and bringing them into court. Eight complaints were filed recently against two Austin concerns and Flynn indicated complaints would be filed in other cities as soon as investigations have been completed.

The extension teaching bureau of the University of Texas is making preparations for increased demands for its services as a result of the NRA and shortened hours for workers.

The first survey leading to solution of the problem of what to do with leisure time is being made in the petroleum industry. Ray L. Martin of the industrial-teacher training bureau is working toward an arrangement that will give employes an opportunity for cultural advancement in their spare time. He reported that many whose hours had been shortened had shown a keen interest in studying courses associated with their employment and in general education courses.

At a conference of persons interested in the movement it was proposed that the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Kansas, in which are located the mid-continent fields, cooperate in offering courses to the oil field workers. The plan, as yet in tentative form, proposes to give courses by correspondence and to establish extension teaching centers.

Farmers of Cork County are up in arms because of the Free State minister in charge of the plan for government beet factories refused to hear a legation appointed to tell why the county should have one of the plants.

ate Of Farm Program Rests With FDR; New Plan To Be Offered; Price-Fixing Is Urged By Governors

ages from home urging them to sist on price fixing and asserting hat the farm strike movement was preading. Reports were also eived telling of violence in Wisonsin, Nebraska and Iowa as an utgrowth of unrest among farmrs.

Previously Asked Code

At a previous meeting in Des Moines, the governors agreed to sk that prices be fixed at production costs plus a "reasonable profit" farmers, that this be incorporated in a NRA code for agriculture, nd that farmers be assigned quoas and licensed.

Olson said that since opening discussions here, they had been informed parity prices were higher han production costs as determind by cost accounting methods, so e adopted a new goal. Parity is re-war purchasing power.

He said they also found that a RA code would not be possible ecause the industrial act specifially exempted farmers from its censing provisions under an mendment pressed by Senator ong (D. La.). The governors then rned to the provisions of the rm act that authorized Wallace enter into marketing agreeents, or to prescribe them and to ntrol the marketing of commodies, and developed the new proam which Olson said called for:

Prices Are Announced

Fixing prices of the six commodes by December 2 at parity which ould be $1.03 a bushel for wheat; cents a bushel for corn; $8.50 a undred pounds for hogs; $6.70 for ef cattle; 30.6 cents a pound for tterfat and $2.08 a hundred unds for milk.

Licensing of handlers and prossors of these commodities to reire them to pay the fixed prices. his would mean licenses for packs, millers, manufacturers of corn oducts, creameries, cheese factors and plants distributing milk.

Assigning quotas to each farmer presenting the amount each ould be allowed to produce d the amount that each ould be permitted to sell. Cards ould be given each producer and given intervals farmers would be thorized to sell a given percentge of their quota.

The quotas would be based on ast production and temporarily, til a complete check of production records was made, tentative otas would be fixed based on aims of farmers supported by fidavits.

The quantities farmers would be rmitted to sell would be those ich the department of agricule ascertained could be absorbed the processors.

Olson said farm officials assertit would be necessary "to spend lions of dollars" to purchase proits which the processors might unable or unwilling to purchase d that this would amount to bilization which the department dired to avoid.

Olson added, however, that in opinion there would be no acl necessity for stabilization, that amounts farmers sold could be ited so as to prevent a glut of rkets.

He said the department challengthe figures of farm production ts advanced by the farmers lon and the farmers holiday asiation" as "too high."

Olson said the governors offered police the plan in their states d were confident it could be cessfully employed not only re but in five other states, Nebaska, Kansas, Missouri, Indiana, nois and Wisconsin.

Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Stocks bestirred themselves today, getting their leadership from rails and other issues which usually remain in the background when inflationary sentiment is ruling the market.

Until the last hour the market exhibited its recent fondness for loitering, although carrier issues and the rail equipments made progress out of the rut. Wall street again heard numerous rumors as to monetary matters. One of them had it that Washington might soon say something about stabilization, placing the possible level considerably under the dollar's present gold value. On the other hand, Wall street wondered whether the new foreign gold purchasing program looked like the beginning of an effort to stabilize.

Whatever the reason, final dealings on the stock exchange witnessed a broad, brisk recovery, bringing many net gains of 1 to 3 points and some of larger proportions. Sales totaled 1,514,620 shares, the week's best volume. Steels, led by U. S. Steel which rose 3 1-2, were strong. Automobile issues traded actively at rising prices. General Motors advancing 1 1-2. Chrysler was up 2.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3. (AP)—Cotton was decidedly quiet most of today's session but there was a moderate spurt of activity in the afternoon and the close was 4 to 5 points net higher.

The weekly mill takings report was bullish, totaling 431,000 bales against 384,000 in the corresponding week last year.

The opening was steady as Liverpool cables were better than due, sterling was steady and gold advanced to 433.57 an ounce. Manchester reported good inquiry with better prices maintained. In early trading here, December advanced to 9.37 and March to 9.81 or 4 points above yesterday's close. Prices then fluctuated narrowly within a range of 3 points during the rest of the morning.

In the early afternoon, prices eased off to 9.30 for December and 9.76 for March or 8 to 7 points down from the highs of the morning and 1 to 3 points under yesterday's close.

The market became firmer in the later part of the afternoon, owing to much higher sterling, a higher close of wheat and a sharp upturn in stocks. Prices advanced to new highs for the day with December at 9.58 and March at 9.85, or 7 to 8 points above the lows. December closed at 9.57 and March at 9.81 both up 4 points net. May closed at 9.96 up 5 points.

Port receipts 58,370, for week 323,837, for season 3,628,556, last season 3,291,816. Exports 73,332, for week 300,345 last year 4,386,321. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 167,321, last year 179,871. Spot sales at southern markets 42,977, last year 62,856.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Cotton was steady in a quiet market today, with prices reaching the best levels in the late trading on covering stimulated by a rising stock market.

December contracts after selling off to 9.34 rallied to 9.64, and closed at 9.62. The general market ended very steady at net advances of 6 to 8 points.

Buying by houses with Liverpool connections presumably on the differences combined with a moderate trade demand was sufficient to absorb early offerings.

The market firmed in late trading on a spurt of buying which seemed to be influenced by the action of securities and grains, ay sold up from the low of 9.21@9.29 with active months generally showing net advances of 5 to 9 points and closing within a point or two of the best.

Exports today 76,736 making 2,516,702 so far this season. Port receipts 58,386. U. S. port stocks 3,931,384.

Officers Are Restrained From Tax Law Enforcement

Sheppard and other state tax and enforcement officers today were temporarily restrained from enforcing provisions of a state law requiring payment of an occupation tax on coin-operated machines and marble machines in an order handed down by Judge J. D. Moore in district court here today.

The suit attacking validity of the law was filed by H. I. Drollinger of Harris county, Joe Day of Austin, and the Electro-Ball company for themselves and for the Coin-Operated Vending and Amusement Machine association of Texas. The suit also was filed in behalf of managers, exhibitors and owners of every coin-operated machine of any type in Texas.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3. (AP) — Limited supplies of fed steers and yearlings in today's trade sold at steady prices with weeks listed 4.25@5.75—unusually warm weather this week depressed prices for dressed beef at eastern centers with heavy cuts especially hard to move; in view of this situation, buyers and live markets tended to become stringent in purchasing fed steers with weight; offerings scaling around 1050 lbs. and above closed unevenly 15 to 50 cents lower with 1300-1500 lbs. and above receiving 25 to 50 cents of the loss. Current prices this week for weighty steers brings selling levels about to a par with the low spots last January and February. Light yearlings averaging 900 lbs. and down were in best demand but were unable to hold up in the face of declining dressed beef prices. In late days a weakness developed on these light cattle and prices closed steady to 25 cents lower. The bulk of fed steers and yearlings closed cleared 4.35@5.75 and not many above 5.00. A few loads of light fed heifers and mixed yearlings brought 6.25@6.40. Long fed steers scaling around 1300-1500 lbs. sold largely at 4.25@5.50. Stockers and feeders closed about steady after a strong to a higher trend early in the week. In some cases fleshy feeders were 25 cents lower. Most replacement steers cashed at 3.25@4.50.

Hog trade today was rather uneven. Some markets listing steady to 10 cents higher prices compared with Thursday's while others were 5 to 10 cents lower. Chicago secured a top of 4.30.

Slaughter lambs cleared at steady to 25 cents higher prices with the bulk selling within a spread of 6.00@7.00.

Progressive Republicans To Stand Behind Recovery Plan

CHICAGO, Nov. 3. (AP)—A declaration that the American people would resent attacks by the Republican national committee on the Roosevelt administration came today from the progressive Republican organization.

"The attack just made by the Republican national committee against the recovery problem will be resented," a statement from the progressives said. "The utter failure of the reactionary Republicans to properly manage the country is still fresh in the minds of the people.

"This group which failed so recently can not with good grace attack the present administration which is at least making an honest attempt to do something on behalf of the people."

The statement called for the nation "to stand loyally behind the president." It was signed by Robert McCormick Adams, Richard W. Wolfe, and Newton Jenkins, national committeemen of the progressive group.

Grains

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Nov. 3. (AP)—Demand for cash grain here today was somewhat better than in recent trading. Receipts included wheat 4 cars; corn 5; oats 1, and sorghums 2.

Prices ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid to destination:

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points:

Wheat No. 1 hard 98 3-4@96 3-4. Barley No. 3 nominally 59@61; No. 3 nominally 58@60. sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 pounds nominally 96@97; No. 3 milo nominally 94@96. No. 2 kaffir nominally 92@94; No. 3 kaffir nominally 90@92.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: corn No. 2 mixed 60@61; No. 3 white 62 1-2@63 1-2; No. 2 yellow 60 1-2@61 1-2.

Delivered Texas common points: oats No. 2 red 45@46; No. 3 red 44@45.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 3. (AP)—Possibilities that Washington conferences would result in an administration attempt to set a minimum price limit on farm products took all grain values higher today.

The upturn of prices, however, was apparently due more to unusual dearth of selling than to enthusiasm to buy. A noticeable factor was some purchasing of December delivery of wheat supposed to be for United States government account.

Wheat closed firm 1 5-8 to 2 1-2 cents above yesterday's finish, corn 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 up, oats 1 1-8 to 1 1-2 advanced, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents higher.

These prices are furnished by the following Lubbock firms: Poultry—Lubbock Poultry and Egg company, delivered Lubbock; Grain—S. E. Coné Grain and Seed company, following prices being bid by Lubbock grain dealers; Cotton—Bleeker Cotton company. All prices subject to change during day.

$17,800 for water works improvements. Dan Moody, former governor, presented the application of Cameron county water district 19, near Harlingen, for $324,000 for irrigation purposes.

A delegation from Atascosa county asked for $30,000 for installation of a waterworks system at North Pleasanton. R. R. Smith of Jourdanton, a member of the group, stated that the board indicated it would recommend the project if the voters approved it in an election.

Some Are Revised

The board was holding its first hearing on some of the applications and others had been revised at its request.

The cities of Pecos and Wichita Falls asked for $300,000 and $368,000 respectively for water works improvements. The Hankamer Stowell Canal company of Anahuac requested $250,000 for canal improvements and the Petroleum common school district of Nueces county sought $48,000 for construction of a school.

The town of Odem in San Patrico county asked the board to approve its application for a loan for a water works system formerly placed with the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Richmond applied for $60,000 for a water system.

The board held a night session and planned to hear additional delegations tomorrow. Col. Ike Ashburn of Houston, chairman, announced that applications on 86 projects aggregating $27,850,789 already had been approved.

Verdict Of Suicide Given After Man's Body Is Found

FORT WORTH, Nov. 3. (AP) — A verdict of "death from a gunshot wound, self-inflicted," was returned today by Justice W. H. Faulkner in the death of an unidentified man, about 55, who was found dead this morning on the J. M. Ellis farm, five miles south of Fort Worth.

He had been shot in the head.

Small caliber pistol was near the body. A Dallas newspaper, dated November 1, was nearby. It had a notation on the margin which said "This is the depression. I made it as long as I could. It is hard to leave this way."

ligan stews for awhile."

"I'm sorry, Pat." Admiration and pity were mingled in Jane's eyes. "Mr. Livingston told me to ask you to stop by the cashier's desk this afternoon."

"Thanks, Jane."

Well, that was that. At five Pat got her envelope. Inside were several crisp bills, her salary to date, and a brief memorandum attached; "After today your services will not be needed."

Pat read it with a wry little smile about her mouth, reached up to pull her small hat to a more nonchalant angle, and bravely walked out of the building.

She would have to find a cheaper place to live at once. Lois could get someone else to come in to the apartment. And Pat would have to find a job.

She located the cheaper place without trouble — a fairly large room with a cubby-hole and gas plate where she could prepare her meals. The two windows would be a comfort and compensate for many other defects and deficiencies, Pat decided. There were faded curtains at the windows, a faded rug and mismatched furniture, but the place was clean and it was at the rear of the building. That was desirable because it made it quieter.

"Not nervous, are you Joan?" Back stage, Barney was smiling down at her.

"Just a little," Joan confessed. "No need. You'll go over all right." He was smiling, pleased with her appearance, confident, already savoring success. He reached forward, caught her hands in his and patted them reassuringly.

They were Barney and Joan now. In the week acquaintance had ripened into an almost unbelievable friendship. Barney had taken the initiative, saying simply, "I'm going to call you Joan. It would be foolish to call you Miss Waring when I feel I know you better than any girl I've ever met." And then with the same directness, he had said, "You'll call me Barney, too, won't you?" Joan, to her amazement, had found it surprisingly easy.

Barney was simply irresistible. He was genuine, Joan realized. And fineness and honesty were coupled with a strong, personal magnetism. She was more attracted to him than she had been to any man in a long while.

There had been several dinners at a charming English type inn, tucked away along the countryside, not far from Greenwich. And two long drives through green hills with sudden glimpses of blue lakes.

They had been friends from the beginning and Joan knew she was happier because of it. Barney liked her. She liked him. That was enough. His interest, his devotion, if she were honest, was cated to her. He was counting on her, believing in her!

A slim girl in the white and blue costume, a sailor cap on one side of her dark hair, her features concealed by a black mask, stepped out into the glow of electricity.

Triple Murder

county officers continued the inquiry into the slayings of Mrs. Hayter, a daughter, Nell, 14, and a son, Sidney, 17.

Print Is Found

C. M. Reber, state fingerprint expert, said a thumb print on a pistol found near the body of Sidney was not that of the boy or his father.

"The trail of this case may lead a long way," McCuistion said. "We do not believe the murderer lives in Lawton. Neither do we believe he is a trained or professional killer."

Hayter, a traveling salesman, told authorities he left the management of the family finances to his wife because she was "a saving woman," and said he believed she "might have had $600 or $800 in the house."

However, the robbery motive was in part discounted by the fact that Mrs. Hayter's jewelry, valued at $400, was not removed.

secretary of the navy, as a return to the fleet's normal operating policy.

Under this policy the fleet makes long cruises in either ocean, he said, in order that the personnel may become experienced in tactics, maneuvers, and knowledge of navigation and piloting off both coasts.

Practically all units of the fleet except submarines, some of the base force aircraft and vessels undergoing overhaul are ordered to make the voyage.

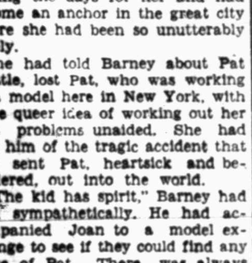

The personnel to return will total slightly more than 50,000 enlisted men and 4,500 officers.

There will remain on the west coast approximately 11,000 enlisted men and 900 officers, aboard warcraft retained there.

Simple Invention May Reap Fortune For Local Man; Valveless Tire Tube

A valveless automobile tire inner tube, patented by a Lubbock man, A. J. Richardson, 30, may reap a fortune for him.

Richardson, a salesman at Montgomery Ward & Co. store here, declared several large companies had inquired about the tube.

"It's a simple thing that should have been thought of ten years ago," Richardson, of 2108 Twenty-second street, said.

The tube, after being placed in the tire, is inflated with a needle-like tube through the hole in the rim through which ordinary inner tube valves protrude. When the tire is inflated, the needle is withdrawn, and the hole it made automatically is sealed, Richardson explained.

He declared the invention had been tested and found satisfactory in use here. Richarson said he was two years and three months in perfecting his invention and securing a patent.

Britain Protected

Great Britain is equipped with its tremendous equalization fund which is ready at all times to protect the pound against foreign onslaughts. It could throw millions onto the exchange market at any time London authorities might feel that the Roosevelt campaign was working to Britain's disadvantage.

As the dollar declined, commodity markets rose today. Wheat gained 15-8 to 2 7-8 cents, corn was up 13-4 to 2 3-8 cents, cotton was 4 points higher. On the strength of the advances in grains the stock market also moved upward, closing one to three points higher.

Picketing was reported also in South Dakota, the eastern border of Nebraska and Minnesota. Members of the Alabama dairy league at Birmingham today joined the strike, voting to hold their milk until the price was increased 17 cents to $2.35 a hundredweight.

The oldest man in the senate, Senator Kendrick observed his 76th birthday last September 6.

Called a cowboy prototype of Abraham Lincoln, he had been in public life in Wyoming since 1920 when he was elected to the state senate and served two terms. Gathering political prestige, he was elected governor in 1923 and filled that position until 1927 when he went to the senate where he had served continuously since. In his last joust at the polls, in 1928, he was re-elected by a huge majority to serve until January, 1935.

FDR Has Open Mind

On the industrial control plan advanced by Gerard Swope of the General Electric company, the consumer advisory board of NRA said in a statement that whenever the management-ownership group in industry "is granted relief from the regulating influence of competition in determining prices and other vital terms in economic bargains, the other parties to the bargain must be equally strengthened."

At the same time it was established authoritatively that President Roosevelt has an open mind on the Swope plan and related ideas and wants to see whether industry can run itself or whether some form of government supervision must be continued.

Confession Is Used In Trial

Defense Objections Fail To Prevent Use Of Statement By McGee; Man Declares He Was Beaten By Police

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3. (AP)—Over strenuous defense objections, permission was given the state today to read to the jury a confession George McGee is purported to have made admitting a part in the kidnaping of Miss Mary McElroy here last spring.

A defense motion to bar police testimony and the statement was overruled by Judge Emory H. Wright after a lengthy argument during which the jury was excluded from the courtroom.

An accusation of police brutality in obtaining the statement from McGee was charged by the defense which also declared that the defendant was under the influence of liquor and drugs at the time of his apprehension in Roanoke, Va., and consequently did not know what he was doing when he signed the document.

During the course of the argument McGee was questioned. He told the court that he had been beaten by police in an attempt to force him to sign a paper, the contents of which he was ignorant.

Denial that the youth had been mistreated was made by Detective William E. Simpson who with other officers returned McGee here from Virginia and obtained the statement.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 12

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

By this time Tarzan was convinced he had been left upon an island. Wandering his lonely way through the jungle, he felt strong upon him the desire for companionship. He almost regretted he had not cast his lot with the apes. They were better than no company at all. But he had seen nothing of them since that first day when he slew their king and subdued Akut.

Moving leisurely one morning, sometimes on the ground and again among the trees, Tarzan was attracted by the scent of Sheeta, the Panther, upwind ahead of him. He wanted loin cloth. Swiftly he glided in pursuit of his beast. Sheeta, himself, was stalking game and had taken to a large tree.

Beyond and below, Tarzan saw the tribe of Akut lolling in a small, natural clearing. And Akut was the closest to Sheeta. Hidden from the ape's view, the panther crouched. Tarzan cautiously gained a position in the same tree, a little above the huge cat. In his left hand the ape-man grasped his slim stone blade. Now with a hideous shriek, the panther launched himself toward the great ape.

As the startled Akut looked up, he saw the panther almost above him, and already upon the beast's back the white-ape that had bested him that day near the great water. With one arm around Sheeta's fierce throat, Tarzan kept his firm grip upon the thrashing, squirming body. The other arm, which grasped a slender knife of stone, rose and fell in mighty blows above the panther's heart.

Huey's Bridge Gets New Sign

Senator Says His Enemies Are Sick Because They Have To Look At A Long Bridge But He Is Glad Of It

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 3. (AP)—Stripping the brand of "Huey P. Long" from the new Red river bridge at the gates of Shreveport by a band of the senator's north Louisiana opponents failed to dampen his tramp through the state.

Long told T. C. Dawkins, public safety commissioner of Shreveport, that secure steel bands riveted to the girders would immediately replace 40 by 10 foot wooden signs which were unbolted Wednesday night by a score of fast workers and dumped into the swirling stream.

To Resume Tour

These signs he said will again announce to the world that the bridge was made possible by the efforts of the gubernatorial administrations of Governor Huey P. Long, now senator, and O. K. Allen, the present occupant of the mansion.

About the same time the senator announced from New Orleans that beginning next Wednesday he would resume his stump tour of the state carrying his doctrine of seven new taxes for the legislature through nine communities in North and Central Louisiana.

Sixteen Arrested

Sixteen men were arrested for tearing down the emblazoned tributes to Long and Allen from the bridge. But all were released of charges of malicious mischief as policemen offered no evidence to connect them with the stripping of the signs.

Commenting on the episode at the bridge, Long from New Orleans remarked that "it just makes those birds in Shreveport sick at their stomachs to have to look at a Long-Allen bridge."

"But that's what they're going to have to do," he said. "It makes them sick and it makes us glad they are sick."

Death Of Baptist Leader In Mexico Announced On Friday

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3. (AP)—A message received here today by the Baptist foreign mission board headquarters from Saltillo, Mexico, announced the death of Mrs. George H. Lacy, veteran missionary of the Southern Baptist church.

Mrs. Lacy was Miss Minnie Meek, of Caledonia, Arkansas, before her marriage. She is survived by her husband and five children, Elizabeth, Minnie L., George W., James Meek and Robert W. Lacy.

The son, James, is in school in Abilene, Tex., this year.

The governor of New York state receives $25,000 a year as his salary.

Child Orders Her Christmas Early

Addressed to old St. Nick at the North Pole, little Miss Jacque Lewis' letter to Santa Claus was received in yesterday's Avalanche-Journal mail. The letter, carrying no stamp, was the first received here for Santa Claus. Jacque is 6.

Written in a childish scrawl, the letter read:

"Bring me a little red car, books and nuts, I will not ask you for more than that and please don't bring me anything more.

"Jacque Lewis,
"1310 Avenue En."

Little Jacque, a kindergarten pupil, is daughter of Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of First Presbyterian church, and Mrs. Lewis. Her mother said yesterday that Jacque had 'taken a shine' to a red velocipede made like an automobile since her only present method of transportation, a small tricycle, has been outgrown and the little girl has decided to give it to a less fortunate child as a Christmas gift.

Mrs. Lewis was surprised that the letter ever found its way from the residence. She had no idea the postman would accept the unstamped communication which the child had stuck up adjacent to the mail box and Mrs. Lewis had intended removing it before the letter carrier came around.

But even Uncle Sam gives the kiddies an occasional 'break' as Yuletide approaches and the letter, North Pole address and all, reached The Avalanche-Journal as hundreds of them do every year.

Avalanche-Journal papers will this year publish as many Santa letters as they possibly can but will print none received prior to December 1 or received after December 18. Parents and teachers are asked to co-operate by seeing that children get their letters in as soon after December 1 as they possibly can.

"There was less wind than usual," Mr. Jones said in concluding his report.
