Cisco Merchants Offer Second Trades Day Saturday

PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN AT 7 O'CLOCK

Cisco merchants Saturday evening at 7 o'clock will present the second of a series of Trades Days with a program to be given in front of the Mobley hotel at D avenue and Fourth street.

The first of the Trades Day programs was presented last Saturday evening and in spite of the short time allowed to advertise it, drew a large crowd. The Lobo band was the feature of that program.

For the forthcoming event the Marx Brothers colored orchestra has been secured. There boys can make the sort of music that tickles the toes and adds a rare gaiety to such a program and visitors to the city that evening can be secured of an hour of excellent entertainment. Other features will be presented at the same time.

The Trades day program has been widely advertised and Cisco has prepared a hospitable reception for its visitors. Similar events will take place on successive Saturday evenings and on each month, on the first Monday, a master program will be presented at 4 p. m. at a place in the city to be announced at the proper time.

J. R. BURNETT DECLINES BANK RECEIVERSHIP

Judge J. R. Burnett today said he has declined an offer of the state banking department for his appointment as receiver for the First State Bank and Trust company of Snyder. Judge Burnett was at Eastland for five years as receiver for a bank which failed in that city and the work which he did in liquidating the assets of that bank was responsible for the offer of the state department that he take over the Snyder bank.

"All that I have in Cisco," he said in explaining his decision not to accept the appointment, "I feel that I should be making too great a sacrifice to accept the position, in spite of the fact that a very attractive salary accompanies it, and I feel a hesitancy in deserting my interests here."

He sent a telegram to the state department this morning declining the appointment. The offer was made yesterday afternoon.

COMM'N PUTS THUMBS DOWN UPON PAVING

No tax was taken for the road, that no motion was introduced. Four of the five commissioners present openly expressed objection to accepting the Jagoe bid on the basis that the city finances are not in condition to allow it and also for the reason that they regarded an asphalt oil treatment of the road as effective in preventing its deterioration. Comm'r Jonah Donovan, however, maintained that the $3,500 or more that has been spent in building the base and laying the calcium will be lost unless some action is taken to complete the road and favored accepting the bid. He maintained that the city would not have another opportunity to pave the strip with an expenditure of $500. The chamber of commerce had offered to squeeze the additional $500 out of its present budget.

Other commissioners, however, felt that the city street department could repair the calcium base and give it a thorough oiling and preserve it. They declared that it would be easier to maintain under this form of treatment. If paving is essential, they argued the city can do it with its own equipment. Commissioner Clements, said the street department would get to work on the road at once.

Mr. Donovan, asserting that it was clear he would not get a second, declined to introduce a motion and his proposition was rejected for want of action.

SOVIET WRITER TO TELL TRUTH ABOUT U. S.

By EUGENE LYONS
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW, Sept. 24. — So many Americans have told the "real truth" about Russia after a visit here, that at least one Russian deserves a chance to reverse the process.

Upon Boris Pilyak, one of the foremost Soviet novelists, falls the lot. He has just returned to the Soviet capital after six months spent in the United States and he is working on a book recording his American impressions which, if his conversation on the subject is any indication, will be sizzling hot. "The most insistent fact about your American society," he said, "is its highly organized and highly tolerated banditry. Infringements of the law and outright violence which in any other part of the world would create sensations, you Americans seem to accept as a matter of course. Bootlegging, hijacking, police corruption — who pays attention to such things in the U. S. A.?"

Truth Doubted
Soviet citizens who listened in as Pilyak gave a few examples of American tolerance for crime — examples in which the names of Al Capone and "Legs" Diamond figured — refused to believe him. They turned to an embarrassed American reporter for the expected denial that such things could be.

"Why our G. P. U. would clean up the lot of them in a month," one of the listeners asserted.

Among Pilyak's reports, which he described as "not too strange," was that he could obtain contraband goods (nearly liquor) in every city he visited by merely calling the nearest drug store.

That he met well-known local criminals — bootleggers, racketeers, etc. — in the homes of socially prominent and respectable people.

That certain American cities (New York for example) "subsist upon what amounts to the sale of easy crimes."

Tax Racketeers
That the American government takes a percentage in the form of income taxes on the earnings of bootleggers and other criminals.

That political leaders in various American cities compete for the support of the criminal elements in obtaining public offices.

That leading gangsters are idolized, biographed, interviewed, unscrupled and protected like national heroes.

"Of course America is a land of unscrupulous industrial technique," Pilyak added. "I don't want to convey the impression that it has nothing but organized banditry to offer to the world. I merely mean that the outsider is flabbergasted by this phase of American life."

"You have certainly attained amazing heights in the matter of physical comfort. I found people complaining about their hard lot who lives better than I could dream here. But the future seems doubtful. In my journey across the United States and back I saw too many huge factories idling, heard too many complaints about hard times to believe that all is as it should be. The American people may have to reduce their living standards and only for the immediate period of crisis but permanently."

Another of the outstanding literary figures in the Soviet Union, Eugene Zamiatin, will visit the United States in the near future. His novel, "We," was published in New York several years ago, as well as many of his short stories. Several of his plays are on the boards of Moscow and Leningrad.

Few Colleges Allow Girls to Smoke

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 24.—There will be no smoking at Meredith, Peace and St. Mary's, Raleigh girls' colleges, this year, that is, not in public. Most of the smoking done among the women, will be strictly on the sly. Neither will there be any pool of parents to ascertain whether they desire their daughters to be allowed to smoke.

Salem College, Winston-Salem, stands out as the only women's college in the state publicly on record that permits the girls to smoke. Smoking will be permitted only where the girls' parents have given their consent and the smoking is limited to special rooms for that purpose.

North Carolina College for Women went into the matter last year after the students attempted to abolish the rules against smoking and on-licensed parents. The response of the parents was so overwhelming against it that President Foust dropped the matter entirely. Davenport College, Lenoir, did away with smoking entirely. At Meredith President C. E. Brewer said there were specific rules against smoking and the penalty is expulsion from the institution. At St. Mary's and Peace, likewise, smoking is not permitted. The question, said President W. C. Pressly of Peace Institute, has not been raised with him as yet.

Financial conversations of the past summer, the tendency of such four power pact would be for the prime and foreign ministers to conduct their direct negotiations, visits to their different capitals, the eliminating Geneva almost entirely as the "world capital."

Nevertheless, the League is not losing sleep. Instead, it is banking on the fact that up to the present time all outside efforts for peace or organization, disarmament agreement

Two More Days Of Big Sale Left

Only two more days, is the announcement of the Cisco Furniture Co., who are now conducting their Closing Out Sale, after which they will move their goods to some other store of the Barrow organization. A. B. Barrow, president of the organization, when seen yesterday said that on Monday of next week, the store here will be closed and goods moved away from Cisco. "We expect to do a good business during the next two days," said Mr. Barrow.

"because rather than move these goods on the train or in trucks, we are taking our loss here in price reductions on the floor and we believe that the people of Cisco trade territory will recognize these extreme values and buy a great quantity of these goods thus saving us the trouble and expense of loading and shipping them away." All Cisco and especially the former Cisco Furniture company customers regret very much to lose this business concern from Cisco. Schulerburg - Bids awarded for new post office building. DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

DE FRAUD NOT:—For this is the will of God, that no man defraud his brother in any matter.—1 Thessalonians 4: 3, 4.

THE GOVERNMENTS LOAN POLICY.

The federal government has announced a policy of leniency in the collection of crop loans made to west Texas farmers, according to an announcement from the West Texas chamber of commerce officers at Stamford, which quotes Sec'y of Agriculture Hyde in a statement that each loan will be considered on its individual merits, "granting extension of time in part or all where repayment would work undue hardship." The policy is not only constructive but is obviously the only one that can be justified by the government's original motive in making these loans available to the farmers.

The individual farmer is not to blame for the present agricultural debacle, and certainly an effort to assist him to make a crop and provide a living for himself and his family should not now be turned into a penalty that would make it even more difficult for him to survive. According to the Stamford statement approximately $2,500,000 has been loaned by the government to the farmers of 67 counties of west Texas. It is a happy consequence that the government is shaping its collection policy in the same spirit in which it was prompted to provide the loans. Stabilization of the agricultural industry is the primary essential for stabilization of the nation's economic conditions and obviously the first and the most serious effort of the nation should be turned toward assisting the farmer toward a condition of prosperity.

Sec'y Hyde's desire that each loan be considered upon its individual merits requires that another step be taken to put the policy into the most advantageous effect, the statement points out. That step is to resurrect the county loan committees which functioned during the granting of the loans. It is patent that these local committees are the only official agencies which can determine with any degree of correctness the merits of the individual cases, and justice requires that the most sympathetic attention should be given each case.

SECOND TRADES DAY.

Cisco's second Trades Day of the fall trade extension campaign will be held Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The first Trades Day, which took place last Saturday, drew a large crowd although the time had been too short for effective advertising.

Cisco extends a cordial invitation to the people of the rural communities in its neighborhood to come to this city Saturday and join with them in the program that will be presented. A colored string band has been secured to provide music for the evening and other features will make the event a thoroughly enjoyable one.

These Saturday night programs are incidental to a big celebration each First Monday when a master program will be presented during the afternoon.

Cisco's motive in providing these celebrations is to enhance its benefits as a trade center to the people of the territory about it. It is endeavoring to give the sort of service these people demand and without which they will go elsewhere. In nearness and in the ease with which it can be reached Cisco is the logical center of trade for the people who make up the population of its particular area. It is anxious to add to these advantages a character of service that will make it to the interest of these people to come here.

ROAD BOND RELIEF.

The Cisco Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening passed a resolution urging Governor Sterling to submit to the second called session of the present legislature a resolution enabling the legislature to pass a bill setting aside a portion of the revenue from the state gasoline tax to be applied on the payments on county road bonds principal and interest. A bill to this effect introduced by Rep. Brooks during the present session failed of passage as did a similar bill introduced by Rep. Stevenson.

The resolution passed by the Cisco chamber, which is almost identical to a joint resolution passed by the senate and house during the second called session, points out that the department will have a large surplus of funds for the present biennium in a sufficient amount to take care of the situation during the business depression.

Such being the case there is every season to argue the justification of the requested legislation. Eastland county in common with other counties in the state is heavily burdened with taxation. This burden, by far the larger part of which comes from heavy road issues voted to construct roads which the state has taken over and maintains, is a crushing one at a time when ad valorem tax valuations are declining under the pressure of a tense economic condition and there is a positive danger that a number of counties will default unless relief is afforded. A default in such payments is not only serious for the reason that it amasses debt, but also from the fact that it affects the morale of the public. The state can perform no more commendable act than to utilize its resources in relief to these tax-burdened counties, and it is to be hoped that Gov. Sterling will respond to the situation with the submission of the necessary topic and that the legislature will provide the essential legislation.

China Fears Communists

PEIPING, Sept. 24.—The serious flood disasters in the Yangtze valley have hastened the crisis in the battle between Communists and advocates of representative government for dominance in this country. Communists, taking advantage of widespread suffering, are gathering their forces for an attack, which they hope will be a knockout blow for their opponents. Floods, which have dauperized 50 million people, have favored them, they believe. The government at Nanking has accepted the challenge. General Chiang Kai-shek and his followers have realized for some time that Communists are their most dangerous enemy. The Yangtze valley floods came as the most dangerous threat of all. One-eighth of China's 400 million were made homeless and lost their meager possessions. The rice granary of China was wiped out just before the harvest. Communist agitators saw a happy hunting ground for their doctrines. Long before the floods had subsided, agitators moved among refugee camps, exhorting the people to join the Communist party. It is now admitted that the crisis will come this winter. If the government can take care of homeless millions, Communists can hardly enlist them. If relief funds prove inadequate, millions will probably join the well organized Communist armies in the south. Levelland—New loud speaker installed in Wallace theatre. News want ads bring results.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks
Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo. writes: I'm only 28 yrs. old and weighed 170 lbs. until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. also have more energy and further more I've never had a hungry moment. Fat folks should take one teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—85 cents a box lasts 4 weeks—you can get Kruschen at Moore Drug Co. or any drug store in America. If not satisfied after the first bottle, money back.—Adv.

OTHER OPINIONS

THE NATIONAL DANGER

Social legislation and war debts have brought England and Germany as close to national bankruptcy as it is possible to get without falling in. In fact, the recent foreign credits alone saved Germany. No American can know the history of the German and British crises without wondering if the United States is headed in the same direction. To be sure there is no immediate danger, but are not the factors at work here which are responsible for the financial troubles of these two sister nations?

Social legislation has been adding hundred of millions of dollars to the federal budget. It is responsible for the present deficit and for the $1,100,000,000 loan the government is planning to float. Nor have the demands of social legislation been exhausted. All of the costly panaceas, which have brought England and Germany to the end of their resources are already in operation or being advocated in the United States.

The threat is not to this generation, but to posterity. The extravagance and charity of each successive generation leaves new burdens for posterity to pay. Some day posterity, having troubles of its own will be unable to pay.

It will be the part of wisdom when prosperity returns to pay off old obligations as rapidly as possible and to declare a holiday for social legislation that the country may be prepared for the next depression. But have representative governments such wisdom? Here is one that has not. Congress is tugging at the bit to get along on the next great orgy of spending the people's money when government revenues permit it.—Paris News.

RARE FOSSILS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 24.—Starfishes, crinoids, cystoids and trilobites—all unusually fine specimens of the Upper Devonian seas of Germany—have been unearthed and loaned to the Harvard Museum of Comparative Anatomy for study and exhibition. These fossils occur in the Hunsrück slate now being quarried for roofing slates.

Since January 1st, sales of Texas crops and livestock or their products are approximately $112,475,000 according to figures compiled by agricultural department of Dallas News.

SEA LION RULES FLOAT

SANTA CRUZ, Sept. 24.—If a lion is king of the land, there is no reason why a sea lion should not be king of the sea. One of the species evidently decided here recently. The huge animal appropriated a swimmer's float off Seabright Beach for a sun-bath, and refused to budge. Life guards admitted their unwillingness to challenge his right.

FOR THE BEST ANSWERS EXPLAINING THE
MYSTERY of the "HIDDEN QUART"
AND TELLING HOW THIS QUART BENEFITS MOTORISTS

Fact No. 1—Thousands of motorists and service station men have observed that after a car has been given its first fill of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and is driven 200 to 350 miles, a look at the crankcase gauge shows that about one quart of oil is apparently missing . . . but

Fact No. 2—These same people have noticed that on the second and later fillings with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, scarcely a drop of oil will disappear during the first 350 miles, and practically none at 500 and up to 1,000 miles!

The above facts have been checked by actual tests with cars that use six quarts of oil for the crankcase, cars in good mechanical condition and driven at ordinary rates of speed. These facts will also prove true for your car, in proportion to the amount of oil your crankcase usually holds, your car's mechanical condition and the speeds at which you drive.

What becomes of the "hidden quart"? The answer is easy if you study the facts given above and keep in mind the things that only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can do. The explanation of the whereabouts of the "hidden quart" is simple—no technical knowledge of motors or oil is necessary.

Remember—The "hidden quart" of Germ Processed Oil does not escape through leakage . . . does not burn up, wear out nor evaporate. It is "present but unaccounted for." Fact No. 2, given above, proves all this.

After you've found where the "hidden quart" goes, you can easily see the special benefits it gives the motorist—advantages that no other oil can give.

Ask at any Conoco Station or Conoco Dealer for free Entry Blank which contains information about Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil that may help you win. Conoco Station and Dealer employees will gladly answer your questions. Remember, you do not have to buy anything to enter this contest. See Rules of Contest for complete details.

HIGH COURT TO HEAR CHAIN STORE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The great economic and legal battle between chain stores and independents will be renewed in the supreme court next month.

Last spring, by a 5 to 4 vote, the court, with the so-called liberal majority, upheld the Indiana chain store tax in an appeal by the late LaFayette Jackson. Under the Indiana law, chain stores were required to pay a tax proportionately higher than independents.

Now the court, after a four-month vacation, will meet on Oct. 5, to find out if not only a vigorous plea before it, re-hearing by Jackson's administrator, but two somewhat similar appeals involving attacks on similar laws enacted by North Carolina and Mississippi.

In addition, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company has set up an appeal contesting Virginia's law imposing separate distributing house tax on such houses operated by any merchant in the state. A three-judge federal court upheld the Virginia law.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific company also appealed the North Carolina case, attacking a statute which taxes the ownership of two or more stores and flatly exempts from taxation the ownership of a single store.

The Mississippi case involves a state law imposing a tax of one-fourth of one per cent on gross sales of all tangible property, plus an additional tax of the same amount on gross sales of persons operating more than five stores. The North Carolina and Mississippi appeals will be argued the first week of the court term.

The re-hearing petition in the Jackson case bills last spring's decision as "the door of opportunity" for state legislation "to destroy the corner of two or more stores, commonly but erroneously called chain stores." It claimed that there are relatively few national chains of stores, but many independent merchants who own a few stores each. The petition asserted that 33 bills for tax ownership of two or more stores "at high and oppressive rates" were introduced in 25 state legislatures recently.

Marble Boom For Canon City

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 24.—Industrial leaders in Canon City anticipate a boom both in employment and general business conditions in the community within six months with the announcement of U. S. Marble Co. that work on the first unit of one of the largest marble quarries in the country will begin at once.

The crusher, which has been operating in Canon City for the past five years, will be rebuilt and enlarged to handle 30 tons an hour. The entire plant, including storage bins and warehouses, will occupy about six acres.

The marble is quarried about five miles northwest of Canon City. Geologists announced that there is an almost inexhaustible supply of high grade marble in the vicinity. Quarry waste will be ground into terrazzo floor covering which yields to demand.

The Canon City quarries contain marble in three colors—pink, red and buff. Officials of the U. S. Marble Co. declared the shades of pink and rose found in the travertine to be the only such shades in the world, making the marble of immense value in buildings where more than two shades are required.

The new industry in Canon City and its associated activities will eventually employ between 1,000 and 2,000 men.

Hitler Is Fiery Apostle of German Freedom From War's Heritage

By H. A. PETERS
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 24.—If there is one name on the lips of the German people today more than that of Brüning, or Hindenburg, it is that of Adolf Hitler. He is the watchword of youth, fiery apostle of freedom from the war's heritage, preacher of race hatred and promise of a Reich unshackled by tribune.

His rise to the spotlight has been as spectacular as the menace of his doctrines to the stability of present-day Germany. And strangely, his personality, although it dominates 100,000,000 voters, remains as intangible as many of his theories.

Hitler is an agitator. All those who hear him addressing a crowd, agree as to his personal magnetism. In a personal talk, or with a group of four or five, this quality somehow deserts him. His magnetism is somewhat gone, and he gives the impression of one who is struggling to maintain a pose—that he fears ideas—perhaps is walking himself up to protect an inner sense of insecurity.

The son of a civil employe in Austria, Adolf Hitler did not follow in his father's footsteps. The father died when he was 13. He went to work in the building trades, became a draftsman. This placed him definitely lower in the social scale than his father. The significance of this must be fully realized in order to arrive at a fair appreciation of the youth, and to explain his later devotion to politics. In Central Europe, a civil servant is a personage. He often wears a uniform, is the object of much respect and deference. The fact that he had gone down in the social scale instead of advancing rangled. His attitude was a constant inward protest. He refused to be regarded as a proletarian.

He therefore enjoys the more his position on the social heights today. His yearning for social standing finds expression in his magnificent Brown House (National Socialist headquarters) in Munich. And that, in turn, points to an interesting kink of personality. Hitler loves Munich. He lives at home there, is confident. Still an Austrian citizen, he likes the easy, comfortable atmosphere of the South German metropolis. He will not leave, although he could wield a much greater influence if he came to Berlin.

Hitler is 42, middle sized, inclined to weight. When he is talking, a lock of hair falls down over his forehead. In personal conversation, he gives the impression that he is unable to concentrate his thoughts, that he is not quite sure of them. He talks rapidly, not so much for emphasis, rather he gives the impression he is trying to convince himself. His facial features are irregular, and undistinguished; the hands are very long with slim fingers. The difference between Hitler and Mussolini may be indicated by one characteristic. Mussolini makes the Fascist salute by throwing out his hand boldly, fingers spread; Hitler raises his arm as though the muscles were cramped, holding his fingers together.

In the lecture hall, he is all action. He gesticulates and stares his audience direct in the face. In private, he never bothers to answer a question directly. He stares at the questioner, then traces himself, and put a counter question which usually consists of "What has that to do with the subject?" Without waiting for an answer he then proceeds into repeated abuses of the existing order. His outward appearance is neat, but he is not over-dressed.

As has been said, he has fused the forces of his whole life into political ambition. He can talk of only one thing—politics. That he claims absolute authority for himself, demands blind obedience from all is characteristic of him.

Enough has been written of his enlistment and service in the German army during the war of his famous "Munich beer putsch" in 1923 which first brought him into the spotlight, of the six months' imprisonment, following failure of this putsch, and of the sensational gain of his national socialist in the elections last fall, which awakened the country to the great growth of discontent and aroused uneasiness abroad.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—Sen. Ben G. Omeel is the first announced candidate for congress out of the general in the legislature who will make the race next year.

Sen. Omeel and one-half the senators are holdovers, and a race next year will take this group out of present offices only if it wins. If they lose, they still have the senate seat.

But house members have to make a choice, since all are to be elected next year.

Rep. Victor B. Gilbert is to be a candidate for attorney general if James V. Allred does not seek reelection to that post. Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt and Sen. Clint C. Small and Walter C. Woodward are prospective candidates for governor. Following are among senators whose terms will expire next year: Beck, Berkeley, Cunningham, Gainer, Hardin, Hornsby, Martin, Parrish, Patton, Pollard, Small, Stevenson, Thomason, Williamson.

It is yet to early for decision to have been reached in most cases by the incumbents whether they are to ask re-election to this office or not, or election to some other office.

A plan to begin diverting gasoline and license fee revenues from the roadbuilding fund to the general operation of the state government will encounter stiff opposition, if brought forward now.

Lawmakers will recall that the University of Texas was designed to be self-supporting from its land endowment; but that from the day the legislature began the policy of appropriating money to it, its budget has been back before every biennial session, and now the university receives as a matter of course nearly $4,000,000 from the general revenue. Schools have their own tax equivalent to the total cost of government, yet when the policy of making rural aid appropriations was formed, the custom of appropriating from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000 a year out of general revenue became a standing one.

Once put the license fees to supporting the institutions of any other service except highway building and the growing demands of the state would never let them get back again to the purpose for which they were levied.

Believe it or not, prisoners in the Texas penitentiary have the benefits and pleasures of radio. From a single receiving set operated by a prisoner, horns are hooked up in the various cell blocks.

Glistening like an oriental tower, the drab old red mortar land office building that O. Henry labored in for years, has been renovated until it appears as one of the most attractive buildings of the state campus group. It is used as a museum by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Seen a white stone highway building will be added to the group making four structures on the capital grounds, with the old Travis county courthouse, to be renovated and improved, remaining temporarily as a fifth.

The State of Texas now officially has one college that is not operating. That is a nautical college, created through the persistent effort of Sen. W. R. Cousins of Beaumont.

Sen. Cousins says the state will be furnished a United States government ship; and arrangements are to be made for an instructional staff in which men of Texas the state with the longest coastline of any, may train some of its people for maritime posts.

Several large irrigation projects are in the course of building in Texas; but no official of Texas has yet raised the question whether the limitation of cotton acreage, thus forcing other land into other crops, will discourage or hold back any of these undertakings. Most of them are designed for vegetables and other crops than cotton. The cotton law itself will tend to more intensified cultivation of the land that is worked; so that it is not probable the irrigation developments already planned will be crippled because of the cotton law in itself; though bringing on of new ones may be retarded by it.

Loboes to Present Season's Second Performance Friday

COMANCHE INDIANS TO BE OPPONENTS

With another week of intensive practice behind them, in which Coaches Jeterles and Hill have endeavored to correct defects that were revealed in the clash with Gorman high school last Friday night, the Loboes are preparing to offer the customers a second spectacle when they meet the strong Comanche high school eleven at Chesley field tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock under the flood lights.

The same lineup which started the game with the Gorman Panthers will probably start the contest with the Indians. This combination, headed by Capt. Chuck Van Horn at right end, proved effective against the powerful Gorman team for five touchdowns, although allowing the visitors one touchdown to add to another collected against the seconds. A faulty line was responsible for the score and the ailing sector has been subjected to a pretty severe corrective dose during the week. No doubt Ciscons will witness a considerable improvement in its performance Friday evening.

Comanche will be playing its second invasion of the Oil Belt. The team is a scrapping outfit and in its first contest held the powerful Breckenridge Buckaroo creditably until worn down by injections of fresh material in the Buckey ranks, allowing the Green Wave to race through five or six contacts in the concluding period.

With another week of work behind them the visitors will, logically, have improved to a great extent and there is every prospect of a heated fray confronting the Cisco golden-clads in this encounter.

The Cisco starting crew will likely consist of Waverley Messingale and Van Horn at ends; Norvell and McMahon at tackles; Wade Messingale and McCall at guards; Preston at center; Wilkins and Clemo Ray at halves; Little at quarter and Jeterles at full.

The second team will probably be given an opportunity to redeem itself for the unfavorably showing the boys made when they allowed the Gorman team to intercept a pass and run it back for the Panthers' first touchdown Friday evening.

This blot on their record sits ill with the fans whose scoring balance so far is in red ink on the wrong side of the ledger.

Cowboy Punter

Big Steve Marshall, co-captain and fullback of the Simmons university is likely to use his toe plenty Saturday when the Cowboys play the Texas University Longhorns Saturday.

COWBOYS AND STEERS MEET THIRD TIME

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—For the third time in athletic history of the two schools, Simmons University and University of Texas elevens meet when the Cowboys invade Austin Saturday. The varsity crews have met only once, that in 1920, when Berry Whitaker's great undefeated team swamped the Abilene eleven, 63-0. In 1929 the Steer "B" squad dropped a 3-0 decision to the Cowboys at Abilene.

Saturday's engagement will be the first of the season for the Longhorns and the second for Simmons, the latter having defeated Daniel Baker last week end. Since Clyde Littlefield, Texas coach, is noted for his cautious early-season tactics, a close game is expected. The Steer mentor rarely elects to show rival scouts more than a glimpse of his real strength in preliminary games, and it is reasonable to assume that so far as possible he will keep his main scoring threats under cover. Reports from Simmons indicate, however, that Coach Les Cranfill will place a strong team on the field, and the Steers may have to open up more than is expected in order to subdue the Texas Conference eleven.

Topping of a week of hard work with a lively scrimmage last Saturday, Littlefield closed his first period of training with his first string group fairly well set. Intensive drills this week in preparation for the Simmons contest probably will be run off with a first team made up of the following: Dubose and Bibby, ends; Blanton and Moody or Doell, tackles; Captain Baumgarten and Cook, guards; Howle, center; Elkins, quarter; Stafford and Craig or Burr, halves; Koy, fullback.

It is interesting to note that the Aggies are set for a double bill Saturday at Kyle field when the Cadets play host to the Tarleton Ploewboys and the Southwestern Pirates. Last year the Aggies downed the Pirates 13-0 and since they are stronger this year than last, it should be no trouble to whip the two teams.

Ray Morrison's Southern Methodist Mustangs are rounding into shape this week for their tilt with the Denton Teachers. Last year the Mustangs worked for the inter-sectional games, but this year the Fences seem to have made up their minds to lead the flag race in the conference. The bid for positions should be cleared up with the two easy games on successive weekends. The Ponies tackle the Teachers this

CAVE MEN HAD TOOTH WORRIES

FALO ALTO, Sept. 24.—Cave men and primitive Indians in California had other things than saber-toothed tigers and mastodons to worry them, Dr. A. W. Meyer, head of Stanford university anatomy department, has concluded.

Tachyache, for instance, was just as common in those days as now, Dr. Meyer declares, and six out of seven or even eight out of nine, probably suffered from cavities, impacted wisdom teeth and similar dental troubles, he believes.

Preliminary results of study of Indian skeletons found in burial mounds near Mayfield, Santa Clara county, showed marked structural defects and acute nutritive wants, Dr. Meyer said. Evidence was plentiful that these primitive men also experienced considerable pain from

BOOMS IN STOCKHOLM

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24.—Owing to a continued increase in trade in the Port of Stockholm, the head of the Swedish Customs Service recommends the employment of an additional force of more than 50 officials and suggests the appointment of a special chief of the Stockholm Coast District besides the Chief Inspector of the Customs Department of Stockholm.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS PAID IN WAGES AND SALARIES...

A REAL CONTRIBUTION TO WEST TEXAS' PROSPERITY

PROVIDING a livelihood for over 1,200 employees... many of whom are your friends and neighbors... the West Texas Utilities Company has contributed to the prosperity of West Texas, for the last three years, an annual payroll of over $2,000,000.00.

Two millions of dollars is a powerful agency toward the stabilization of business conditions... Its expenditure means a substantial amount of trade for retail stores, grocers, laundries, doctors, dentists, and commercial establishments of all kinds.

Only the continued expansion and development of the West Texas Utilities Company has made possible the building of this payroll. Through efficient management and economical operation, this company has expanded its facilities, reduced rates and stimulated the industrial and agricultural development of its territory. To carry forward these important projects, the assembling of a loyal, enthusiastic and hard-working corps of native West Texan employees has been a logical outgrowth.

These employees are genuinely concerned over their company's activities. They are working for West Texas... its growth and development... just as you are working toward the same goal. To co-ordinate our activities is the constant aim of the West Texas Utilities Company.

Every dollar you spend for electric service... and more!... has, for the past eight years, been re-invested in the future of West Texas. Payrolls alone, for construction and operation, are equal to 30c out of every dollar you spend for electric service—a sum which goes back into this "Land of Opportunity" in salaries and wages paid to West Texan employees.

Do You Know?
... that if you are an average user of domestic electric service you can increase your use and enjoyment of the comforts and conveniences of electric service by three times, and only increase your total bill by approximately 10c a day? This is made possible through a major transmission line electric system and an organization accustomed to doing large things in a large way.

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE" "SINISTER MIND SERVICE INC."

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Fretful Norma Keat, 20-year-old secretary, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, in spite of her father's threats to disinherit her.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Mark Travers is on his way to get away for the honeymoon and he leaves Norma to fashionable Blue Springs. After two weeks there she is gone, partly due to her father's gambling. With $500, she had gambled away the money. The couple return to Marlboro. Mark sets out on a road of pleasure instead of hunting for work. When his funds dwindle again he and Norma move to cheap apartment.

Mark gets one job and loses it. He becomes a floorwalker in a department store. He is happy. After a few weeks he is sent to his parents' home to take him back into his business organization if Mark can prove he can make good. His first task involves a business trip to France. Norma is to remain at home. She is frightened and begs him not to go. In spite of her protests Mark departs. He expects Norma to stay with his parents. She is away but she slips out of the house, leaving no trace of whereabouts. In a restaurant she hears her name spoken.

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(CHAPTER XXXI)
Norma raised startled eyes. "Why, Bob?" she exclaimed. "Why, Bob?"

Bob Farrell smiled. "Wasn't it you for a minute, I thought. Haven't you seen you in a while. Mind if I join you?" "Please do! It's good to see you again, Bob." For a moment the girl's eyes lowered, then met his. "Mark's out of town—it's a business trip—and I'm taking a vacation from my own cooking, dancing and tell me all about yourself."

Farrell pulled out the chair opposite and sank into it. He looked at Norma admiringly. "I haven't seen you for a while," he said. "Nothing to talk about." He hesitated, then continued. "I should have told you my best wishes long ago when I read about your marriage. I certainly wish you every happiness, Norma."

"Thank," there was a pause. Norma said hurriedly, "I've been happy. So happy! Some when you meet the right girl, I hope you'll know the same happiness. You deserve it—and I'll find it, too! You see this is the first time Mark and I have been separated. It's going to be pretty hard, I'm afraid."

Farrell's tone was sympathetic. "Maybe you'd rather be alone—," he suggested.

Norma shook her head. "Oh, I think I'll feel better to have someone to talk to. It's luck finding you here, Bob. I've thought of you so many times. You didn't see Marlboro after all as you expected?"

"No. No, that—that fell through. She didn't notice that he flushed slightly. "You've been doing things I want to hear about," she said. "Chris said you've had a promotion."

"Well, not exactly that. Got a job as a white back and they don't pay me with quite so many extra dollars. I've been lucky on a couple cases. Old McVaine seems to be pulling for me. That's not interesting though. Tell me what you've been doing."

"Keeping house. Cooking and mending and washing dishes. Oh, I love it, Bob! I've never been so happy in my life."

Farrell traced a pattern on the table cloth with the tip of a spoon. "I said without glancing up, "I guess you mean that."

"Of course I mean it! You must be to see us some time. I want to know Mark. When you do I'll understand. Bob, Mark's under! Come to dinner some night soon after he gets back."

"Thanks. Hope I can make it."

name as "Norma Travers," omitting the prefix "Mrs." She sat in the one comfortable chair in the new bedroom, contrasting her surroundings with the apartment and the room she had occupied in the Travers home. Undoubtedly this was the poorest of the three.

"I can stand it for four weeks!" Norma told herself. "Four weeks can't last forever! Four weeks—and Mark will be back!"

When the trunk arrived she unpacked her clothing and hung the dresses in the tiny chest. She put underclothing in neat piles in the drawers of the dressing table. Some of the things she did not bother to unpack. There was no use taking out the pretty evening gowns or evening wrap.

Once Norma paused before the mirror of the dressing table. It was not her own reflection of which she was thinking. "If only I had a picture of Mark to stand there!" the girl lamented. "Even a little kodak picture would be something."

There was no picture and Norma knew it. She rummaged in the trunk again, brought out an object and placed it on the dressing table. It was a fountain pen Mark had used and discarded. Not very personal—still it had been Mark's.

In the afternoon she telephoned Chris Sanders and agreed to meet her at 5:30 on a familiar corner. Norma reached the place first. She saw Chris, slender and erect, threading her way through the maze of traffic. Norma went to meet her.

"Here I am, Chris," she called. The older girl turned her head. She caught Norma's eyes and smiled. "Sorry to be late—" she began but did not finish the sentence. "Why, Norma?" Chris Saunders interrupted herself, "what on earth's happened? You look like a ghost!"

"It's—oh, it's nothing serious. Marks gone away—on business for his father—and I just thought I'd like to talk to you. That's all."

"Home away? Where's he gone?" "To New York. And he's sailing tonight for France. He's going to be gone four weeks, Chris, and already it seems like it's been a million years."

"But I didn't know he was working for his father! When did this happen?" Norma's voice did not betray her. She managed to keep it almost steady as she answered, "I'll tell you about it. Let's go somewhere where we can talk."

"How about 'The Galley'?" "The Galley's all right."

The two girls made their way to the restaurant. When they were seated at a small table against the wall and had given their orders Norma repeated the story of Mark's reconciliation with his father. She told about the business agreement and the trip abroad. Chris listened seriously, now and then asked questions.

It was after they had gone over the whole affair and there was a pause that Norma said hesitatingly: "Chris—there's something I didn't tell you after we came back from Blue Springs. I didn't tell you I saw Hollis Stone there."

is a greater drop in stocks on hand between July and August. Activity in the Texas mills held up considerably better than that for the entire country. Production of cement in August, 1931, totaled 13,549,000 barrels shipments amounted to 15,172,000 barrels and stocks at the end of the month were 24,311,000 barrels. As compared with a year ago, production and shipments are 24 per cent and 25 per cent lower, while stocks increased 2 per cent. During August, cement mills were operating at 60 per cent of capacity, as against 62 per cent in July and 61 per cent in August, 1930.

Flier Sees Next War in 1930

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—The next great war will occur "any time after 1930," and to shelter the people of the world there will be bomb-proof buildings and powerful protective gases.

This view into the future was given by Commander Willis B. Haviland, war aviator of Atlanta, Ga., here on business.

Belief that science will get shortly to provide plans for defense against predicted air raids and gas attacks was voiced by the aviator.

"Another world war will not wipe out cities and nations," he explained. "Science will develop means of countering warfare almost as speedily as the hazards of war increase."

"All buildings will be constructed so bombs will not explode on hitting the roof and the walls will be built so that the force of the blast will have no effect."

Commander Haviland led the first American air attack of the World War. He was in charge of a squadron of 16 planes, which swooped down on the Austrian naval base at Porto Corsini, on the Adriatic Sea, in 1918.

Cement Mills Make Good Showing

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—Texas cement mills made a fairly good showing during August, with production of cement only 3 per cent behind the season's high level registered last month, according to figures from the Bureau of Business Research.

Shipments increased 5.2 per cent over those for August, 1930, though they were 1.2 per cent less than in July, the Bureau's report said. "Stocks at the end of the month were about 24,000 barrels, or about 4 per cent less than in either July or August, 1930. Normally, there

French Revive Ancient Fete

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The revival of an ancient religious fete has just been started in the forest of St. Germain-in-Laye called the Fete of the Loges. The name comes from the Woodmen's cabins originally found in the forest. These disappeared and the chapel which took their place was destroyed in 1346 by the English.

This is the BANK that SERVICE is Building

Webster defines "loans" as follows: "Anything furnished for temporary use.

When we pay what we borrow we make progress . . . we build up . . . we acquire. When we merely pay interest on what we borrow we mark time. We all have a certain unsound feeling about a loan that runs on and on—never getting any smaller.

Obviously a loan is something that should be repaid . . . otherwise its usefulness has been destroyed.

COMM'N PUTS THUMBS DOWN UPON PAVING

The city commission, at a called meeting yesterday afternoon, declined to join the chamber of commerce in a proposition to pave the Lake-Zoo road at Lake Cisco by which the chamber and the city would each contribute half of the $1,000 for which the Jagoe Construction company offered to place a double bituminous surfacing on the strip. The caliche base for the half mile which leads to the zoo, swimming pool, parks and fish hatchery has already been laid.

No vote was taken for the reason that no motion was introduced. Four of the five commissioners present openly expressed objection to accepting the Jagoe bid on the basis that the city finances are not in condition to allow it and also for the reason that they regarded an asphalt oil treatment of the road as ineffective in preventing its deterioration.

SOVIET WRITER TO TELL TRUTH ABOUT U. S.

By EUGENE LYONS United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW, Sept. 24. — So many Americans have told the "real truth at last" about Russia after a visit here, that at least one Russian deserves a chance to reverse the process.

Upon Boris Phinyak, one of the foremost Soviet novelists, falls the lot. He has just returned to the Soviet capital after six months spent in the United States and he is working on a book recording his American impressions which, if his conversation on the subject is any indication, will be sizzling hot.

"The most insistent fact about your American society," he said, "is its highly organized and highly tolerated banditry. Infringements of the law and outright violence which in any other part of the world would create sensations, you Americans seem to accept as a matter of course. Bootlegging, hijacking, police corruption — who pays attention to such things in the U. S. A?"

Truth Doubted Soviet citizens who listened in as Phinyak gave a few examples of American tolerance for crime — examples in which the names of Al Capone and "Legs" Diamond figured — refused to believe him.

They turned to an embarrassed American reporter for the expected denial that such things could be.

"Why our G. P. U. would clean up the lot of them in a month," one of the listeners asserted.

Among Phinyak's reports which he fellow-Russians find too strange to be credible were the following:

That he could obtain contraband goods (namely liquor) in every city he visited by merely calling the nearest drug store.

That he met well-known local criminals — bootleggers, racketeers, etc. — in the homes of socially prominent and respectable people.

That certain American cities (Heno for example) subsist upon what amounts to the sale of easy divorces.

Tax Racketeers. That the American government takes a percentage in the form of income taxes on the earnings of bootleggers and other criminals.

That political leaders in various American cities compete for the support of the criminal elements in obtaining public offices.

That leading gangsters are idolized, biographed, interviewed, entertained and protected like national heroes.

"Of course America is a land of marvelous industrial technique," Phinyak added. "I don't want to convey the impression that it has nothing but organized banditry to offer to the world. I merely mean that the outsider is flabbergasted by this phase of American life."

"You have certainly attained amazing heights in the matter of physical comfort. I found people complaining about their hard lot who lives better than Stalin does here. But the future seems doubtful in my journey across the United States and back I saw too many huge factories idling, heard too many complaints about hard times to believe that all is as it should be. The American people may have to reduce their living standards not only for the immediate period of crisis but permanently."

Another of the outstanding literary figures in the Soviet Union, Eugene Zamiatin, will visit the United States in the near future. His novel, "We," was published in New York several years ago, as well as many of his short stories. Several of his plays are on the boards of Moscow and Leningrad.

Few Colleges Allow Girls to Smoke

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 24.—There will be no smoking at Meredith, Peace and St. Mary's, Raleigh girls' colleges, this year, that is, not in public. Most of the smoking done among the women will be strictly on the sly. Neither will there be any roll of parents, so ascertain whether they desire their daughters to be allowed to smoke.

Salem College, Winston-Salem, stands out as the only women's college in the state publicly on record that permits the girls to smoke. Smoking will be permitted only where the girls' parents have given their consent and the smoking is limited to special rooms for that purpose.

North Carolina College for Women went into the matter last year after the students attempted to nullify the rules against smoking and convinced parents. The response of the parents was so overwhelming against it that President Foust dropped the matter entirely.

Davenport College, Lenoir, did away with smoking entirely. At Meredith President C. E. Brewer said there were specific rules against smoking and the penalty is expulsion from the institution. At St. Mary's and Peace, likewise, smoking is not permitted. The question, said President W. C. Pressly of Peace Institute, has not been raised with him as yet.

THE GOVERNMENTS LOAN POLICY.

The federal government has announced a policy of leniency in the collection of crop loans made to west Texas farmers, according to an announcement from the West Texas chamber of commerce officers at Stamford, which quotes Sec'y of Agriculture Hyde in a statement that each loan will be considered on its individual merits, "granting extension of time in part or all where repayment would work undue hardship." The policy is not only constructive but is obviously the only one that can be justified by the government's original motive in making these loans available to the farmers.

The individual farmer is not to blame for the present agricultural debacle, and certainly an effort to assist him to make a crop and provide a living for himself and his family should not now be turned into a penalty that would make it even more difficult for him to survive. According to the Stamford statement approximately $2,500,000 has been loaned by the government to the farmers of 67 counties of west Texas. It is a happy consequence that the government is shaping its collection policy in the same spirit in which it was prompted to provide the loans. Stabilization of the agricultural industry is the primary essential for stabilization of the nation's economic conditions and obviously the first and the most serious effort of the nation should be turned toward assisting the farmer toward a condition of prosperity.

Sec'y Hyde's desire that each loan be considered upon its individual merits requires that another step be taken to put the policy into the most advantageous effect, the statement points out. That step is to resurrect the county loan committees which functioned during the granting of the loans. It is patent that these local committees are the only official agencies which can determine with any degree of correctness the merits of the individual cases, and justice requires that the most sympathetic attention should be given each case.

SECOND TRADES DAY.

Cisco's second Trades Day of the fall trade extension campaign will be held Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The first Trades Day, which took place last Saturday, drew a large crowd although the time had been too short for effective advertising.

Cisco extends a cordial invitation to the people of the rural communities in its neighborhood to come to this city Saturday and join with them in the program that will be presented. A colored string band has been secured to provide music for the evening and other features will make the event a thoroughly enjoyable one.

These Saturday night programs are incidental to a big celebration each First Monday when a master program will be presented during the afternoon.

Cisco's motive in providing these celebrations is to enhance its benefits as a trade center to the people of the territory about it. It is endeavoring to give the sort of service these people demand and without which they will go elsewhere. In nearness and in the ease with which it can be reached Cisco is the logical center of trade for the people who make up the population of its particular area. It is anxious to add to these advantages a character of service that will make it to the interest of these people to come here.

ROAD BOND RELIEF.

The Cisco Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening passed a resolution urging Governor Sterling to submit to the second called session of the present legislature a resolution enabling the legislature to pass a bill setting aside a portion of the revenue from the state gasoline tax to be applied on the payments on county road bonds principal and interest. A bill to this effect introduced by Rep. Brooks during the present session failed of passage as did a similar bill introduced by Rep. Stevenson.

The resolution passed by the Cisco chamber, which is almost identical to a joint resolution passed by the senate and house during the second called session, points out that the department will have a large surplus of funds for the present biennium in a sufficient amount to take care of the situation during the business depression.

Such being the case there is every season to argue the justification of the requested legislation. Eastland county in common with other counties in the state is heavily burdened with taxation. This burden, by far the larger part of which comes from heavy road issues voted to construct roads which the state has taken over and maintains, is a crushing one at a time when ad valorem tax valuations are declining under the pressure of a tense economic condition and there is a positive danger that a number of counties will default unless relief is afforded. A default in such payments is not only serious for the reason that it amasses debt, but also from the fact that it affects the morale of the public. The state can perform no more commendable act than to utilize its resources in relief to these tax-burdened counties, and it is to be hoped that Gov. Sterling will respond to the situation with the submission of the necessary topic and that the legislature will provide the essential legislation.

Doing a "Gandhi"!

OTHER OPINIONS

THE NATIONAL DANGER

Social legislation and war debts have brought England and Germany as close to national bankruptcy as it is possible to get without falling in. In fact, the recent foreign credits alone saved Germany.

No American can know the history of the German and British crises without wondering if the United States is headed in the same direction. To be sure there is no immediate danger, but are not the factors at work here which are responsible for the financial troubles of these two sister nations?

Social legislation has been adding hundreds of millions of dollars to the federal budget. It is responsible for the present deficit and for the $1,100,000,000 loan the government is planning to float. Nor have the demands of social legislation been exhausted. All of the costly panaceas, which have brought England and Germany to the end of their resources are already in operation or being advocated in the United States.

The threat is not to this generation, but to posterity. The extravagance and charity of each successive generation leaves new burdens for posterity to pay. Some day posterity, having troubles of its own, will be unable to pay.

It will be the part of wisdom when prosperity returns to pay off old obligations as rapidly as possible and to declare a holiday for social legislation that the country may be prepared for the next depression. But have representative governments such wisdom? Here is one that has not. Congress is tugging at the bit to get along on the next great orgy of spending the people's money when government revenues permit it. — Paris News.

China Fears Communists

PEIPING, Sept. 24.—The serious flood disasters in the Yangtze valley have hastened the crisis in the battle between Communists and advocates of representative government for dominance in this country.

Communists, taking advantage of widespread suffering, are gathering their forces for an attack which they hope will be a knockout blow for their opponents. Floods, which have impoverished 50 million people, have favored them, they believe.

The government at Nanking has accepted the challenge. General Chiang Kai-shek and his followers have realized for some time that Communists are their most dangerous enemy.

The Yangtze valley floods came as the most dangerous threat of all. One-eighth of China's 400 million were made homeless and lost their meager possessions. The rice granary of China was wiped out just before the harvest.

Communist agitators saw a happy hunting ground for their doctrines. Long before the floods had subsided, agitators moved among refugee camps, exhorting the people to join the Communist party.

It is now admitted that the crisis will come this winter. If the government can take care of homeless millions, Communists can hardly enlist them. If relief funds prove inadequate, millions will probably join the well organized Communist armies in the south.

FOR THE BEST ANSWERS EXPLAINING THE

MYSTERY of the "HIDDEN QUART"

AND TELLING HOW THIS QUART BENEFITS MOTORISTS

Fact No. 1—Thousands of motorists and service station men have observed that after a car has been given its first fill of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and is driven 200 to 350 miles, a look at the crankcase gauge shows that about one quart of oil is apparently missing . . . but

Fact No. 2—These some people have noticed that on the second and later fillings with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, scarcely a drop of oil will disappear during the first 350 miles, and practically none at 500 and up to 1,000 miles!

The above facts have been checked by actual tests with cars that use six quarts of oil for the crankcase, cars in good mechanical condition and driven at ordinary rates of speed. These facts will also prove true for your car, in proportion to the amount of oil your crankcase usually holds, your car's mechanical condition and the speeds at which you drive

What becomes of the "hidden quart"? The answer is easy if you study the Facts given above and keep in mind the things that only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can do. The explanation of the whereabouts of the "hidden quart" is simple—no technical knowledge of motors or oil is necessary.

Remember—The "hidden quart" of Germ Processed Oil does not escape through leakage . . . does not burn up, wear out nor evaporate. It is "present but unaccounted for." Fact No. 2, given above, proves all this.

After you've found where the "hidden

quart" goes, you can easily see the special benefits it gives the motorist—advantages that no other oil can give.

Ask at any Conoco Station or Conoco Dealer for free Entry Blank which contains information about Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil that may help you win. Conoco Station and Dealer employees will gladly answer your questions. Remember, you do not have to buy anything to enter this contest.

HIGH COURT TO HEAR CHAIN STORE FIGHT

STORE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24. — The great economic and legal battle between chain stores and independents will be renewed in the supreme court next month.

Last spring, by a 5 to 4 vote, the court, with the scolded liberal members in the majority, upheld the Indiana chain store tax. The decision was appealed by the late LaFayette Jackson. Under the Indiana law, chain stores were required to pay a tax proportionately higher than independents.

Now the court, after a four-month vacation, will meet on Oct. 5, to find before it not only a vigorous plea for a re-hearing by Jackson's administrator, but two somewhat similar appeals involving attacks on similar laws enacted by North Carolina and Mississippi.

In addition, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company has brought up an appeal contesting the validity of Virginia's law imposing a separate distributing house tax on each such house operated by any merchant in the state. A three-judge federal court upheld the Virginia tax.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Company also appealed the North Carolina case, attacking a statute which taxes the ownership of two or more stores and flatly exempts from taxation the ownership of a single store.

The Mississippi case involves a state law imposing a tax of one-fourth of one per cent on gross sales of all tangible property, plus an additional tax of the same amount on gross sales of persons operating more than five stores. The North Carolina and Mississippi appeals will be argued the first week of the court term.

The re-hearing petition in the Jackson case hails last spring's decision as "the door of opportunity" for state legislation "to destroy the monopoly of two or more stores, commonly but erroneously called chain stores." It claimed that there are relatively few national chains of stores, but many independent merchants who own a few stores each.

The petition asserted that 53 bills to tax ownership of two or more stores "at high and oppressive rates" were introduced in 25 state legislatures recently.

Marble Boom For Canon City

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 24. — Industrial leaders in Canon City anticipate a boom both in employment and general business conditions in the community within six months with the announcement of the U. S. Marble Co., that work on the first unit of one of the largest marble quarries in the country will begin at once.

The crusher, which has been operating in Canon City for the past three years, will be rebuilt and enlarged to handle 30 tons an hour.

The entire plant, including storage bins and warehouses, will occupy about six acres.

The marble is quarried about five miles northwest of Canon City. Geologists, announced that there is an almost inexhaustible supply of high grade marble in the vicinity. Quarry waste will be ground into terrazzo, a floor covering which yields to design.

The Canon City quarries contain marble in three colors — pink, rose and buff. Officials of the U. S. Marble Co., declared the shades of pink and rose found in the travertine are the only such shades in the world, making the marble of immense value in buildings where more than two shades are required.

The new industry in Canon City and its associated activities will eventually employ between 1,000 and 1,500 men.

Hitler Is Fiery Apostle of German Freedom From War's Heritage

By H. A. PEITERS
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 24. — If there is one name on the lips of the German people today more than that of Brüning, or Hindenburg, it is that of Adolf Hitler. He is the watchword of youth, fiery apostle of freedom from the war's heritage, preacher of race hatred and promoter of a Reich unshackled by tribune.

His rise to the spotlight has been as spectacular as the menace of his doctrines to the stability of present-day Germany. And strangely, his personality, although it dominates 6,000,000 voters, remains as intangible as many of his theories.

Hitler is an agitator. All those who hear him addressing a crowd agree as to his personal magnetism. In a personal talk, or with a group of four or five, this quality somewhat deserts him. His magnetism is somewhat gone, and he gives the impression of one who is struggling to maintain a pose — that he fears direct and personal exchange of ideas — perhaps is walling himself up to protect an inner sense of insecurity.

The son of a civil engineer in Austria, Adolf Hitler did not follow in his father's footsteps. The father died when he was 13. He went to work in the building trades, became a draftsman. This placed him definitely lower in the social scale than his father. The significance of this must be fully realized in order to arrive at a fair appreciation of the youth, and to explain his later devotion to politics. In Central Europe, a civil servant is a personage. He often wears a uniform, is the object of much respect and deference. The fact that he had gone down in the social scale instead of advancing rangled. His attitude was a constant inward protest. He refused to be regarded as a proletarian.

He therefore enjoys the more his position on the social heights today. His yearning for "social" standing finds expression in his magnificent Brown House (National Socialist headquarters) in Munich. And that, in turn, points to an interesting quirk of personality. Hitler loves Munich. He feels at home there, is confident. Still an Austrian citizen, he likes the easy, comfortable atmosphere of the South German metropolis. He will not leave, although he could wield a much greater influence if he came to Berlin.

Hitler is 42, middle sized, inclined to weight. When he is talking, a lock of hair falls down over his forehead. In personal conversation, he gives the impression that he is unable to concentrate his thoughts, that he is not quite sure of them. He talks rapidly, not so much for emphasis, rather he gives the impression he is trying to convince himself. His facial features are irregular and undistinguished; the hands are very long with slim fingers. The difference between Hitler and Mussolini may be indicated by one characteristic. Mussolini makes the Fascist salute by throwing out his hand boldly, fingers spread; Hitler raises his arm as though the muscles were cramped, holding his fingers together.

In the lecture hall, he is all action. He gesticulates and stares his audience direct in the face. In private, he never bothers to answer a question directly. He stares at the questioner, then braces himself, and puts a counter question which usually consists of "What has that to do with the subject?" Without waiting for an answer he then proceeds into repeated abuses of the existing order. His outward appearance is neat, but he is not overdressed.

As has been said, he has fused the forces of his whole life into political ambition. He can talk of only one thing — politics. That he claims absolute authority for himself, demands blind obedience from all, is characteristic of him.

Enough has been written of his enlistment and service in the German army during the war, of his famous Munich "beer" putsch" in 1923 which first brought him into the spotlight, of the six months' imprisonment, following failure of the putsch, and of the sensational gain of his national socialist in the elections last fall, which awakened the country to the great growth of discontent and aroused uneasiness abroad.

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Sept. 24. — Sen. Ben G. Oneal is the first announced candidate for congress out of the several in the legislature who will make the race next year.

Sen. Oneal and one-half the senators are holdovers, and a race next year will take this group out of present offices only if it wins. If they lose, they still have the senate seat. But house members have to make a choice, since all are to be elected next year.

Rep. Victor B. Gilbert is to be a candidate for attorney general if James V. Alfred does not seek reelection to that post. Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt and Sens. Clint C. Small and Walter C. Woodward are prospective candidates for governor.

Following are among senators whose terms will expire next year: Beck, Berkeley, Cunningham, Gain-cr. Hardin, Hornsby, Martin, Parrish, Patton, Pollard, Small, Stevenson, Thomason, Williamson. It is yet to early for decision to have been reached in most cases by the incumbents whether they are to ask re-election to this office or not, or election to some other office.

A plan to begin diverting gasoline and license fee revenues from the roadbuilding fund to the general operation of the state government will encounter stiff opposition, if brought forward now.

Lawmakers will recall that the University of Texas was designed to be self-supporting from its land endowment; but that from the day the legislature began the policy of appropriating money to it, its budget has been back before every biennial session, and now the university receives as a matter of course nearly $4,600,000 from the general revenue. Schools have their own tax equivalent to the total cost of government, yet when the policy of making rural aid appropriations was forced, the custom of appropriating from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000 a year out of general revenue became a standing one. Once put the license fees to supporting the institutions or any other service except highway building and the growing demands of the state would never let them get back again to the purpose for which they were levied.

Believe it or not, prisoners in the Texas penitentiary have the benefits and pleasures of radio. From a single receiving set operated by a prisoner, horns are hooked up in the various cell blocks.

Glistening like an oriental tower, the drab old red mortar land office building that O. Henry labored in for years, has been renovated until it appears as one of the most attractive buildings of the state campus group. It is used as a museum by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Seen a white stone highway building will be added to the group making four structures on the capital grounds, with the old Travis county courthouse, to be renovated and improved, remaining temporarily as a fifth.

The State of Texas now officially has one college that is not operating. That is a nautical college, created through the persistent effort of Sen. W. R. Cousins of Beaumont.

Sen. Cousins says the state will be furnished a United States government ship; and arrangements are to be made for an instructional staff in which men of Texas, the state with the longest coastline of any, may train some of its people for maritime posts.

Several large irrigation projects are in the course of building in Texas; but no official of Texas has yet raised the question whether the limitation of cotton acreage, thus forcing other land into other crops will discourage or hold back any of these undertakings. Most of them are designed for vegetables and other crops than cotton. The cotton law itself will tend to more intensify cultivation of the land that is worked; so that it is not probable the irrigation developments already planned will be crippled because of the cotton law in itself, though bringing on of new ones may be retarded by it.

A $25,000 Armory building is under construction at Amarillo.

Headaches

Here's Smiling Relief... Muscular Pains

Most of your suffering from common every-day aches and pains is unnecessary and unwise. Unnecessary, because Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve quickly and without unpleasant after effects; unwise, because pain makes your physical condition worse instead of better. One pill usually brings relief in a few minutes.

If you suffer from any of the disorders listed above, take Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. If they do not give you greater relief in less time than anything else you have used, go to your druggist and get your money back.

A package of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in your medicine cabinet, pocket, or hand-bag means fewer aches and pains.

Cowboy Punter

Big Steve Marshall, co-captain and fullback of the Simmons University is likely to use his toe plenty Saturday when the Cowboys play the Texas University Longhorns Saturday.

COWBOYS AND STEERS MEET THIRD TIME

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—For the third time in athletic history of the two schools, Simmons University and University of Texas eleven met when the Cowboys invade Austin Saturday. The varsity crews have met only once, that in 1929, when Berry Whitaker's great undefeated team swamped the Abilene eleven, 63-0. In 1929 the Steer "B" squad dropped a 3-0 decision to the Cowboys at Abilene. Saturday's engagement will be the first of the season for the Longhorns and the second for Simmons, the latter having defeated Daniel Baker last week end. Since Clyde Littlefield, Texas coach, is noted for his cautious early-season tactics, a close game is expected. The Steermentor rarely elects to show ritual scouts more than a glimpse of his real strength in preliminary games, and it is reasonable to assume that so far as possible he will keep his main scoring threats under cover. Reports from Simmons indicate, however, that Coach Les Cranfill will place a strong team on the field, and the Steers may have to open up more than is expected in order to subdue the Texas Conference eleven. Topping of a week of hard work with a lively scrimmage last Saturday, Littlefield closed his first period of training with his first string group fairly well set. Intensive drills this week in preparation for the Simmons contest probably will be run off with a first team made up of the following: Dubose and Bibby, ends; Blanton and M'ody or Doell, tackles; Captain Baumgarten and Cook, guards; Howie, center; Elkins, quarter; Stafford and Craig or Barr, halves; Roy, fullback.

SOUTHWESTERN SEASON OPENS ON SATURDAY

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—The official opening of the Southwestern grid season is due for Saturday with all the conference teams except the Baylor Bears getting into action. Five of the games are due to be set-ups for the conference eleven, but reports predict a real battle for the T. C. U. Frogs when they tackle the Louisiana State University team at Port Worth.

The Texas Longhorns have the only easy game of the year Saturday when they meet Leslie Cranfill's fighting Simmons Cowboys. While this game is expected to be far from a run-away battle, it is believed that the Steers will clear up the backfield. Speed is going to be the aid for success put forward by the Cowboys, but the Steers should encounter no real difficulty unless it is overconfidence.

It is interesting to note that the Aggies are set for a double bill Saturday at Kyle field when the Cadets play host to the Tariaton Plovboys and the Southwestern Pirates. Last year the Aggies downed the Pirates 7-0 and since they are stronger this year than last, it should be no trouble to whip the two teams.

Ray Morrison's Southern Methodist Mustangs are rounding into shape this week for their tilt with the Denton Teachers. Last year the Mustangs worked for the inter-sectional games, but this year the Frogs seem to have made up their minds to lead the flag race in the conference. The bid for positions should be cleared up with the two easy games on successive weekends. The Pontes tackle the Teachers this week and the Simmons Cowboys next Saturday.

The Arkansas Razorbacks report many weaknesses this year, but they whipped the College of the Ozarks last year 27-0 without a hard try, so a good bet would be about 20-0 in favor of the Parkers this Saturday. They play at Fayetteville.

Rice Institute has experienced a tough battle for the last several years with the Sam Houston Teachers, but brilliant sophomores and juniors should make the battle an easy victory with apparent ease this season. Rice looked good last Saturday when they whipped the Texas College of Arts and Industries 37-0 at Houston with Jack Frye, sophomore back, scoring the fifth touchdown.

T. C. U. will have a hard time with L. S. U. perhaps, but the Frogs are a powerful eleven, and with a consistent power attack, a win is expected for the Southwest conference team when the Louisiana team comes to Fort Worth. T. C. U. has a powerful display of good backs with Branch, Hinton, Spearman, Oliver, Captain Green and others. Their line was very good last year and it is almost as good this season. They are sure to be in the fight for the conference flag.

All in all, the conference will see but one, possibly two, good battles over the weekend. Rice fans may find an upset in the Sam Houston Teachers, and T. C. U. will have a hard fight with Louisiana State.

CAVE MEN HAD TOOTH WORRIES EXPERT SAYS

PALO ALTO, Sept. 24.—Cave men and primitive Indians in California had other things than saber-toothed tigers and mosquitoes to worry them, Dr. A. W. Meyer, head of Stanford university anatomy department, has concluded.

Toothache, for instance, was just as common in these days as now, Dr. Meyer declares, and six out of seven or even eight out of nine, probably suffered from cavities, impacted wisdom teeth and similar dental troubles, he believes.

Preliminary results of study of Indian skeletons found in burial mounds near Mayfield, Santa Clara county, showed marked structural defects ad acute nutritive wants, Dr. Meyer said. Evidence was plentiful that these primitive men also experienced considerable pain from abscessed, decayed and broken teeth he said.

Teeth in these days were used for mechanical purposes to a great extent, it has been shown, adding to the pains of those who were forced to mill leather through skin jackets and such things, perhaps while suffering from severe tooth aches.

The fact that many of the bones found in the burial mound indicate those of small children indicates that the standard of living among the primitive inhabitants of the region was very low. Dr. Meyer said and indicated that the securing of food was a real problem. No evidence was found that the Indians either spun or wove, Dr. Meyer stated. Shell money was found in large quantities, indicating the tribes had learned the art of barter, however.

SWEDES JOIN RAT WAR

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24.—Sweden has joined an international war on rats it has now been announced. The Swedish government health authorities have formally accepted an invitation to participate in an international congress, in Paris, aimed at total extinction of rats. Dr. C. A. King, of Stockholm, famous bacteriologist, will represent Sweden.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS PAID IN WAGES AND SALARIES...

A REAL CONTRIBUTION TO WEST TEXAS' PROSPERITY

PROVIDING a livelihood for over 1,200 employees... many of whom are your friends and neighbors... the West Texas Utilities Company has contributed to the prosperity of West Texas, for the last three years, an annual payroll of over $2,000,000.00.

Two millions of dollars is a powerful agency toward the stabilization of business conditions... Its expenditure means a substantial amount of trade for retail stores, grocers, laundries, doctors, dentists, and commercial establishments of all kinds.

Only the continued expansion and development of the West Texas Utilities Company has made possible the building of this payroll. Through efficient management and economical operation, this company has expanded its facilities, reduced rates and stimulated the industrial and agricultural development of its territory. To carry forward these important projects, the assembling of a loyal, enthusiastic and hard-working corps of native West Texan employees has been a logical outgrowth.

These employees are genuinely concerned over their company's activities. They are working for West Texas... its growth and development... just as you are working toward the same goal. To co-ordinate our activities is the constant aim of the West Texas Utilities Company.

Every dollar you spend for electric service... and more!... has, for the past eight years, been re-invested in the future of West Texas. Payrolls alone, for construction and operation, are equal to 30c out of every dollar you spend for electric service—a sum which goes back into this "Land of Opportunity" in salaries and wages paid to West Texan employees.

Do You Know? ... that if you are an average user of domestic electric service you can increase your use and enjoyment of the comforts and conveniences of electric service by three times, and only increase your total bill by approximately 10c a day? This is made possible through a major transmission line electric system and an organization accustomed to doing large things in a large way.

GUILTY LIPS

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Keut, 20-year-old secretary, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, in spite of the father's threats to disinherit her.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Mark tells his expensive rooster to get money for the honeymoon and he and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs. After two weeks their money is gone, partly due to Mark's gambling. With $500 borrowed, the couple returns to Marlboro. Mark sets out on a quest for pleasure instead of hunting for work. When their funds dwindle again he and Norma move to cheap apartment.

Mark gets one job and loses it. Then he becomes a floorwalker in Blossendale's department store. He is disappointed that the young couple are happy. After a few weeks Mark's father sends for him, offers to take him back into his own business organization if Mark will prove he can make good. His first task involves a business trip to France. Norma is to remain at home. She is frightened and begs not to go. In spite of her protests Mark departs. He expects Norma to stay with his parents while he is away but she slips out of her house, leaving no trace of her whereabouts. In a restaurant she hears her name spoken.

Norma raised startled eyes. "Why, Bob?" she exclaimed. "Why do you?"

Bob Farrell smiled. "Wasn't it you who for a minute," he admitted, "haven't seen you in a long while. Mind if I join you?"

"Please do! It's good to see you again, Bob." For a moment the girl's eyes lowered, then met his. "Mark's out of town—it's a business trip—and I'm taking a vacation from my own cooking. I certainly wish you every happiness, Norma."

"Thanks." There was a pause before Norma said hurriedly, "I've been happy. So happy! Some day when you meet the right girl, Bob, I hope you'll know the same happiness. You deserve it—and you'll find it, too! You see this is the first time Mark and I have been separated. It's going to be pretty hard, I'm afraid."

Farrell's tone was sympathetic. "Maybe you'd rather be alone—"

"No, Norma shook her head. "Oh, I think I'll feel better to have someone to talk to. It's luck finding you here, Bob. I've thought of you so many times. You didn't have Marlboro after all as you expected?"

"No. No—that—that fell through."

"She didn't notice that he flushed slightly. "You've been doing things I want to hear about," she told him. "Chris said you've had a promotion."

"Well, not exactly that. Got a while back and they don't let me with about so many orders to run. I've been lucky on a couple cases. Old McVaine seems to be pulling for me. That's not interesting though. Tell me what you've been doing."

"Keeping house. Cooking and sweeping and washing dishes. Oh, and I love it. Bob! I've never been so happy in my life."

Farrell traced a pattern on the table cloth with the tip of a spoon. "I said without glancing up, 'I guess you mean that.'"

"Of course I mean it! You must see to see some time. I want you to know Mark. When you do, you'll understand. Bob, Mark's wonderful! Come to dinner some night soon after he gets back!"

"Thanks. Hope I can make it."

name as "Norma Travers," omitting the prefix "Mrs."

She sat in the one comfortable chair in the new bedroom, contrasting her surroundings with the apartment and the room she had occupied in the Travers home. Undoubtedly this was the poorest of the three.

"I can stand it for four weeks!" Norma told herself. "Four weeks can't last forever! Four weeks—and Mark will be back!"

When the trunk arrived she unpacked her clothing and hung the dresses in the tiny chest. She put underclothing in neat piles in the drawers of the dressing table. Some of the things she did not bother to unpack. There was no use taking out the pretty evening gowns or evening wrap.

Once Norma paused before the mirror of the dressing table. It was not her own reflection of which she was thinking.

"If only I had a picture of Mark to stand there!" the girl lamented. "Even a little kodak picture would be something."

There was no picture and Norma knew it. She rummaged in the trunk again, brought out an object and placed it on the dressing table. It was a fountain pen Mark had used and discarded. Not very personal—still it had been Mark's.

In the afternoon she telephoned Chris Saunders and agreed to meet her at 5:30 on a familiar corner. Norma reached the place first. She saw Chris, slender and erect, threading her way through the maze of traffic. Norma went to meet her.

"Here I am, Chris," she called. The older girl turned her head. She caught Norma's eyes and smiled.

"Sorry to be late—" she began but did not finish the sentence. "Why, Norma!" Chris Saunders interrupted herself, "what on earth happened? You look like a ghost!"

"It's—oh, it's nothing serious. Mark's gone away—on business for his father—and I just thought I'd like to talk to you. That's all."

"Bone away? Where's he gone?"

"To New York. And he's sailing tonight for France. He's going to be gone four weeks. Chris, and already it seems like it's been a million years!"

"But I didn't know he was working for his father! When did this happen?"

Norma's voice did not betray her. She managed to keep it as steady as she answered, "I'll tell you about it. Let's go somewhere where we can talk."

"How about 'The Galley'?"

"The Galley's all right."

The two girls made their way to the restaurant. When they were seated at a small table against the wall and had given their orders Norma repeated the story of Mark's reconciliation with his father. She told about the business agreement and the trip abroad. Chris listened seriously, now and then asked questions, and when the whole affair and there was a pause that Norma said hesitantly: "Chris—there's something I didn't tell you after we came back from Blue Springs. I didn't tell you I saw Hollis Stone there."

Flier Sees Next War in 1980

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—The next great war will occur "any time after 1960," and to shelter the people of the world there will be bomb-proof buildings and powerful protective gases.

This view into the future was given by Commander Willis B. Haviland, war aviator of Atlanta, Ga., here on business.

Belief that science will act shortly to provide plans for defense against predicted air raids and gas attacks was voiced by the aviator.

"Another world war will not wipe out cities and nations," he explained. "Science will develop means of counteracting warfare almost as speedily as the hazards of war increase."

"All buildings will be constructed so bombs will not explode on hitting the roof and the walls will be built so that the force of the blast will have no effect."

Commander Haviland led the first American air attack of the World War. He was in charge of a squadron of 16 planes, which swooped down on the Austrian naval base at Porto Corsini, on the Adriatic Sea, in 1918.

Cement Mills Make Good Showing

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—Texas cement mills made a fairly good showing during August, with production of cement only 3 per cent behind the season's high level registered last month, and at 644,000 barrels, only 7.6 per cent less than in August 1930, according to compilations of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

"Shipments increased 5.2 per cent over those for August 1930, though they were 4.2 per cent less than in July," the Bureau's report said. "Stocks at the end of the month were about 24,000 barrels, or about 4 per cent less than in either July or August, 1930. Normally, there Activity in the Texas mills held up considerably better than that for the entire country. Production of cement in August, 1931, totaled 13,549,000 barrels, shipments amounted to 15,172,000 barrels and stocks at the end of the month were 24,311,000 barrels. As compared with a year ago, production and shipments are 24 per cent and 25 per cent lower, while stocks increased 2 per cent. During August, cement plants were operating at 60 per cent of capacity, as against 62 per cent in July and 81 per cent in August, 1930.

French Revue Ancient Fete

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The revival of an ancient religious fete has just been started in the forest of St. Germain-en-Laye called the Fete of the Loges. The name comes from the Woodmen's cabins originally found in the forest. These disappeared and the chapel which took their place was destroyed in 1346 by the English.

The little church was dedicated to Saint Florent and was no more than a memory when René Guéhenot asked Louis XIII for permission to use one of the huts as a hermitage. Guéhenot, because of his piety and kindness, came to be regarded as a saint and the hut was made the objective of many pilgrimages.

It was not long afterward that a religious order was installed in the huts, and in 1644 Ann of Austria erected a church and monastery on the site. The Fete of Loges was inaugurated eight or ten years later under the name of Fete of Saint Florent. The name was changed in 1790 to the Fete of the Loges and as such it has been revived. Pilgrims visit the spot today to seek indulgence. The forest fete formerly drew thousands of Parisians all through the 19th Century, and with the building of a railway, the fete gained even greater popularity.

"DEAD" FOR FIVE YEARS

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 24. — After seven years of insanity, Signora Annetta Moresco regained her reason to find out that she has been officially "dead" for five years. The hospital for the insane, after investigation, admitted that an error in names had been made and another woman had died under the name of Moresco. Legal steps are underway to straighten out the tangle.

Locked the Stable After the Horse Was Stolen

We are all familiar with the above saying which means, Action came too late. Now, that is the way with many people about their insurance—they think about it when it is too late—they lock the stable too late.

When your car perhaps has been stolen or you are faced with a liability suit, then it is too late to insure—
Let us protect you now.

LOANS DEFINED

This is the BANK that SERVICE is Building

Webster defines "loans" as follows: "Anything furnished for temporary use."

When we pay what we borrow we make progress . . . we build up . . . we acquire.

When we merely pay interest on what we borrow we mark time. We all have a certain unsound feeling about a loan that runs on and on—never getting any smaller.

Obviously a loan is something that should be repaid . . . otherwise its usefulness has been destroyed.

For Your Information-

From the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics

Prices are Now at the 1915 Level

Merchandise is cheap. Prices are now at the 1915 level. We are buying for less and selling for less. Your dollar goes further. You can have and enjoy many things at a smaller expenditure than has been possible in fifteen years.

When business is brisk and demand is again at its height, prices will have a tendency to resume higher levels.

Buy the things you need, the possession of which will make you and your family happier and more comfortable.

It has always been the policy of Jno. H. Garner's to offer the HIGHEST QUALITY DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE. But first of all, we never forget the QUALITY for a Price.

What John Ruskin Said:

There is hardly anything in the world that some man cannot make a little worse and sell a little cheaper, and the people who consider price only are this man's prey.

---JOHN RUSKIN.

We are prepared to take care of your wants with the new and desirable merchandise bought at today's lowest prices.

Merchandise is cheap and you will profit in buying your fall supply now
