12 Persons Indicted By Grand Jury Here

Twelve persons were indicted by a 106th District Grand Jury which met Monday in Tahoka, with Judge George Hansard presiding.

Three Lubbock men were indicted in the Feb. 8 burglary of the home of Dale Martin Holler near New Home. They are Francisco Lopez, 27, Daniel Gonzales Martinez, 40, and Juan Leyua Garcia Jr., 32.

Also indicted for burglary of a habitation were Florencio B. Maldonado, 31, of Slaton, charged with burglary of the Mark Brieger home on Dec. 31; and Raul Wilson Jr., 27, of Lubbock, charged in the burglary of the home of A.C. Fillingim Sr. on Feb. 2.

Four persons were indicted for driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense. They are Reynaldo Banda, 38, of O'Donnell; Joseph LaDon Jones, 37, of Lubbock; Bradley Ross Smith, 25, of Rt. 1, O'Donnell; and Miguel Montemayor Jr., 21, of Rt. 5, Tahoka.

Jeffrey Ronald Land, age and address unknown, was indicted on a charge of forgery involving a check in the amount of $1263.47 passed in Tahoka on Jan. 14.

Alvin Cantu, 29, of Lamesa, was indicted on a charge of aggravated assault in the shooting Nov. 8 of Raymond Vargas. One other indictment was returned against a suspect not in custody.

The grand jury refused to indict Tahoka Chief of Police Gary Morrison, who had been charged on the complaint of a suspect he arrested inside a Texaco service station in Tahoka last Dec. 11. The suspect, charged with burglary and with possession of drugs and assault, had filed the charges against Morrison for kicking the suspect in the head in the course of the arrest. The suspect, David Louis Holland of Lubbock, claimed he was restrained at the time, a charge which Morrison denied. The chief said he kicked the suspect when Holland came at him with a 22-inch screwdriver and attempted to stab the officer. Holland since has pleaded guilty of burglary and had his parole revoked, and is scheduled to be returned to the state prison.

Morrison had been suspended from his duties for two days prior to the grand jury action, and was back on the job Wednesday. Mayor Jim Solomon was out of town Wednesday and could not be reached for comment, but Mayor Pro Tem Dalton Wood said "Chief Morrison has been fully vindicated and has been reinstated to his duties."

On Sunday night a Tahoka resident, Robert Rodriquez, was treated and released from Lynn County Hospital for facial cuts and head wounds suffered in an altercation at a game room in Tahoka. Investigation was continuing in the case.

A 1983 GMC pickup driven by Rosalinda Rosa Coronado of O'Donnell and a 1983 Dodge driven by Dena Ann Engle of Tahoka were involved in a collision Friday at Main and S. 1st St.

Mike Lankford of Tahoka reported that someone started up his tractor in a field 4 miles southeast of Tahoka Saturday night and damaged a railroad sign nearby and also damaged a tandem disc and towbar. Crime Line has offered a $300 reward in the case.

Crime Line also has offered a $100 reward in the theft of a battery from a pickup owned by David Midkiff, 7 miles north of Tahoka on U.S. 87 during the night Sunday.

Police issued tickets during the week for no liability insurance and for running stop sign and failure to yield right of way.

In jail during the week were two persons for DWI, one for DWI and sentencing, one for no drivers license and speeding and one for failure to stop and render aid plus no drivers license and no insurance.

Energas To Close Office In Tahoka

Energas Corp. is closing its office in Tahoka sometime within the next month or so and already has moved manager Weldon Self to a new managerial post in Slaton, where he will be in charge of Energas operations for Slaton, Tahoka and Post, which also will have its office shut down.

Self said Tuesday he and his family will be moving back to Slaton eventually. At present he is driving over daily. He also expressed regret at having to leave Tahoka.

Energas District Manager Gene Ehler of Lubbock told the Lynn County News Tuesday that the Energas office currently is still open in Tahoka, but would be closed in a few weeks, probably after April 1.

"We're closing the office and some others in the area strictly for economic reasons," Ehler said. "We're having to streamline our operations because of revenue losses related to the area's economic slump...We didn't want to close these offices, either, but have to do it. We realize customers have been walking through our doors in these small towns for 50 years."

Ehler said Energas employee Larry Monk would continue to be in Tahoka to serve the community. Tahoka customers needing service to continue calling the same Energas phone number. After the office is shut down, automated equipment will transfer those calls to Lubbock and service will be ordered from there.

Ehler said the Crosbyton office was closed last Friday. The office at Post is to be closed in a few weeks, and other offices in smaller towns in the area also will be "phased out."

Paving Near Little League Park Okayed

The city of Tahoka will use the remaining funds from a Community Block Grant to pave streets in the Little League Park area and also to pave the parking lot at the city swimming pool. City councilmen voted Monday night to take the necessary legal steps to allow use of those funds for that purpose.

Councilmen also discussed landscaping at the new cemetery, and decided to get more bids on the project. Also discussed were plans for enforcing a current junk car ordinance which prohibits abandoned or partially dismantled vehicles in public view, either on private or public property.

Later this month the city plans to test its emergency siren storm warning system. City manager Barry Pittman said the public would be advised ahead of time as to when the test would be made, and what kind of signals are used in warning of a storm or tornado.

Present were Mayor Jim Solomon and councilmen Wayne Tekell, Dayton Parker and Leonard Dunn. Councilman Dalton Wood was absent.

Fishing-Hunting Licenses Now Sold In Lynn

Lynn County residents who have complained several times recently about not being able to buy fishing or hunting licenses in the county now may do so. The office of Lynn County Tax Assessor George McCracken now is selling the licenses.

McCracken said his office is handling the state licenses as a service to the community.

MADE IT ANYWAY — Jimmy Wyatt (21) of New Home and Brent Kirkland of Sudan had a collision here, but Wyatt made this basket despite being fouled; the ball is barely visible at the top of the picture, about to go into the basket. Sudan won the area playoff game 48-34, ending a good season for Coach Jeff Faubion's Leopards at 19-10. (LYNN COUNTY NEWS PHOTO by Terry Wood)

WOODWORK

BY DALTON

LAST MONDAY was Texas Independence Day, so designated because on March 2, 1836, at Washington-on-the-Brazos, a convention of delegates chosen by Texans met to adopt a Declaration of Independence patterned after the national one.

Looking at the Texas almanac, it appears that 58 persons signed the declaration, which was written almost in its entirety by George Childress. Nearly everybody who signed it later had a county named for him.

We realized it was the state independence day early in the day, but forgot to put out the Texas flag until mid-afternoon.

There are some who think it might not be a bad idea for the state to declare its independence from the rest of the United States, and there are some others who would like to see West Texas as a separate state from all the rest of the state, since there are many areas of conflicting interests.

Those ideas have their points, but we need to remain the one big state of Texas just like always. We can get along with those folks from Houston, and we can even put up with most of those states up north.

Incidentally, I'm a poor student of Texas History, or any other history. I don't know where Washington-on-the-Brazos is, or was. And we saw the Alamo for the first time about three or four years ago. Before that, I remembered the Alamo as the only gunfight John Wayne ever lost.

DURING the first week of school a first grade teacher was lecturing her young students on safety. She asked the class if they knew what the colors of the traffic lights meant.

"I know," declared one little girl eagerly. "Red means stop. Green means go. Yellow means go a little faster."

Wiley Named THS Athletic Director

Ted Wiley, Tahoka High School head football coach, also was given the duties of athletic director for the coming school year as the Tahoka school board took this action in a called meeting last Wednesday.

Wiley was given a one-year contract at a total salary of $29,340.

The board also gave tentative approval to a bid on repairs to the high school auditorium roof, authorizing Supt. Clifton Gardner to negotiate the re-roofing with Texas Roofing Co.

It was voted to allow the junior high to use the cafeteria for a dance, subject to certain guidelines.

High School Principal Dr. Duane Carter presented a handbook on the athletic director's philosophy of athletics. The handbook contained job descriptions and general guidelines for the program. Also presented was a schedule for each coach in the coming school year.

Charlie Mac Holland was retained as coaches aide for the rest of the current school year.

All seven board members were present.

Hospital Board Terms Expiring

Terms of Leland White of New Home, Bobby Cox of O'Donnell, Nick Summitt of Tahoka and the late Jess Dorman are up for election to the Lynn County Hospital Board, with candidates having until March 12 to get their names on the ballot by petitions of 25 or more signatures.

Last week's Lynn County News mistakenly reported that the term of Roger Doss of O'Donnell was to expire this year. It does not.

School board candidates for the four districts in Lynn County had until midnight Wednesday to sign up for those elections.

Phebe K. Warner Study Club News

The Phebe K. Warner Club met Feb. 24 in the home of Mrs. Bennie Lou Carter with Mrs. Nan Adams serving as co-hostess. The meeting was presided over by President Edna White with 15 members in attendance.

Money and supplies were collected to send to Girlstown. A thank-you letter from the young lady at Girlstown who is sponsored by the club was read. Each month she receives gifts from two of the club's members.

The program was brought by Mrs. Grace Prohl on the conservation of natural resources. Mrs. Prohl stressed that water shortages and pollution by litter and hazardous wastes are our problems and gave ways by which individuals can do their part in fighting these threats to the environment. Beautification of our community is also a responsibility held by all, especially property owners. Alleys and vacant lots require special attention. Mrs. Prohl suggested the planting of such wildflowers as primroses, yellow daisies, wild verbena, and corn flowers to help beautify neighborhoods. With regard to the proposal to store nuclear wastes in Deaf Smith County, Mrs. Prohl urges all South Plains residents to voice their concerns for the safety of the Ogalala Aquifer, the water source on which this entire area depends. Toward that end, the Phebe K. Warner Club suggests writing to the following addresses:

Area Communities Target Industries

LUBBOCK--Sixty-one industries that are growing and that are best suited for this part of the southwest were spotlighted last week at a meeting of economic development leaders from a four-state area.

The list is the result of a "target industry" study conducted by Public Demographics, Inc. of Cincinnati, Ohio, for Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) for the benefit of communities the electric utility serves. SPS provides electric service to a population of about one million in a 52,000-square mile area including the South Plains.

"This study will allow communities to take a 'rifle' approach in seeking industry to diversify our area's economy", said Bert Ballengee, SPS chairman of the board and chief executive officer. "We haven't given our communities a magic wand that will suddenly casue new industries to flock to our area. We have provided a very necessary tool, though, for them to use as they seek more jobs and economic growth for this region."

From the list of 61 industries, a 13-member task force of prominent area business leaders selected a "top ten" which they felt would be most beneficial for this area and would be the prospects most likely to locate here.

Those 10 industries are:

Food preparations: The manufacture of prepared foods, especially frozen foods and snacks.

Miscellaneous plastic products; Firms that mold primary plastics or that fabricate finished plastic products.

Vitreous china plumbing fixtures: China and earthenware fittings and bathroom accessories.

Metal barrels, drums and pails, For use by oil, chemical and other industries.

Hardware: Includes furniture hardware and motor-vehicle parts.

Electronic components: Semiconductor subassemblies, microwave components and assorted other products.

Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies: Lamp bulb components, electric furnaces and other products.

Truck trailer industry: The manufacture of truck trailers, trailer chassis and cargo containers.

Surgical and medical instruments: For medical doctors, eye doctors and veteranarians.

Data processing services: Reports, key punching and the servicing of equipment.

Fighting Cancer

News from The American Cancer Society

By Roy Hall, M.D.

Let's paint a picture - every woman on the South Plains suddenly developing breast cancer this year. The American Cancer Society estimates that 119,000 women in this country will develop breast cancer in 1987 and that over 38,000 women will die from their breast cancer. Those deaths would be comparable to eliminating a city the size of 40,000 from the map each year!

With early detection of breast cancer, the chance of that cancer being widespread throughout the body at the time of diagnosis is decreased from over 75 percent to less than 20 per cent. We now have the means of discovering breast cancer early before it spreads. These methods include self-breast examination by the woman, breast examinations by her physician, and mammography. Self breast examination is a simple procedure which should be done on a monthly basis at home. It can be done while taking a bath or shower. Or it may be done while dressing. It usually takes no more than 2 -3 minutes. The doctor's examination of the breast should be performed on a yearly basis, unless there are abnormalties noted on the examination at home - at which time, the doctor's examination should then be performed.

Mammography is a simple and safe x-ray procedure which does not utilize any injections, or needles, to examine the breast. It takes a picture of the inside contents of the breast. Often times, this test can detect a breast lump before it is large enough to be felt by the hand. The American Cancer Society has recommended time sequence for the mammograms based upon the patient's age.

The x-ray risks from the mammogram are nowdays almost neglible and certainly less than the risks of the cancer.

Soak cup apple pieces in salted water for ten minutes. They'll remain crisp longer and won't turn brown.

EAGLES LOSE CLOSE ONE — Southland's Eagles lost a 43-42 decision to Sudan in sub-regional at Smyer Tuesday night, despite 24 points from Benny Arguello (24), shooting here as Sudan's Bill Gardner (45) and Eddy Boyles watch.

That company, Budd, has been one of American industry's biggest innovators since it opened back in 1912. It introduced the first wire wheel, the first steel disc wheel, the first American-made truck wheel certified for use on tubeless radial-ply tires and the first ten-year wheel and rim warranty.

Two men were college Presidents before they became Presidents of the United States—Woodrow Wilson and Dwight Eisenhower.

Tahoka Ex Named Top Citizen At Seminole

Seminole residents paid homage to their Citizen of the Year at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday, Feb. 19. The "top citizen" is Jean (Flippin) Moffatt, a 1965 graduate of Tahoka High School and the daughter of Welch Flippin of Tahoka and Marian Flippin of Sherman.

Mrs. Moffatt was recognized for her leadership in numerous organizations in the community, some known to many people and some "behind the scenes" known only to a few. She has been active in the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs and the Texas Federation of Music Clubs in addition to teaching English and journalism at Seminole High School for a number of years. The top citizen of the prior year, in presenting the award to Mrs. Moffatt, said "She continually gives unselfishly of her time and talents to anyone who asks."

She is a graduate of Lubbock Christian College, Harding College, and has a masters degree in journalism from Texas Tech University. She is a member of Westside Church of Christ in Seminole where she is a junior department coordinator.

She was the editor of The Seminole Sentinel from 1968 to 1972, and she and her husband, John, are owners of Seminole Printing. They have two children, John Welch, 10, and James Richard, 19 months.

The average lifespan of a pigeon is about ten years. A record exception is a pigeon who lived for thirty nine years.

The Low-Down on High Blood Pressure

There could be good news for people who have high blood pressure—especially for black people who have it. Doctors now have a new medicine that can bring it under control with virtually none of the common side effects.

The treatment, a calcium blocker drug once used to treat angina, could be especially important to blacks, who are twice as likely as whites to have high blood pressure, but in whom traditional therapies have a higher rate of failure due to lower efficacy or serious side effects.

The body's blood vessels are surrounded by smooth muscle cells. In people with hypertension, these cells contract abnormally, clamping down on the size of the blood vessel opening. This makes the blood inside exert more force on the inside walls, and blood pressure goes up. An abnormal build-up of calcium inside these cells actually triggers the excess contraction.

The new drug, called Calan SR, blocks the entry of calcium into these muscle cells, preventing the construction and lowering blood pressure. Being able to treat this root cause of hypertension is especially important to black people, who are likely to have a much more severe form of the disease that can lead to kidney failure or stroke.

According to experts at G.D. Searle & Co., makers of the new drug, Calan SR will be welcome news to hypertension patients for yet another reason — once-a-day dosage, making it easier to remember to take the medication as directed. Also, there are virtually no side effects, such as fatigue, mental depression, heart rhythm irregularities and raised blood cholesterol levels, that can occur when hypertension patients take other medications.

A new medication may mean longer, more active lives for people with high blood pressure.

IT'S A FACT!

When that newfangled machine called the automobile first came out, officials in England set the speed limit at four miles per hour and required someone with a flag to walk in front of every car on the road.

These days, speed limits are often monitored by radar. Many drivers who wish to be alert to radar install radar detectors in their cars. Most units have alert levels set at factories. One of the smallest detectors, the Micro Eye Quantum from BEL-Tronics Limited, is programmable to match performance to driving environments. Other features include digital readout of radar strength, override circuitry for specific radar bands and separate audio and visual alerts. Technology has certainly come a long way!

BRINGING UP BABY

Dining Out With Baby

Q: Going out to eat at a restaurant with our 10 month old can be traumatic. He is too young for table foods but too old for strained baby food. What do you suggest we feed him and how do we make the situation easy on all of us?

A: One outstanding characteristic of jarred baby food is its convenience. When a family is enjoying a meal in a restaurant, it is easy to take along prepared foods designed just for baby.

Because your baby has not yet started table food, we recommend introducing him to Junior Foods. They have more texture and encourage chewing for babies who are beginning to develop teeth. For many youngsters, the transition from strained to Junior is appropriate at 8 or 9 months.

You should be aware that toward the end of the first year, there is usually a big drop in baby's appetite. Because of a smaller appetite, the baby may become a picky eater. To encourage the child's interest in eating, adults may wish to eat at the same time as the toddler. Serve small portions of the jarred baby food and offer seconds only if the child is ready. Don't try to push your child into eating. It will only disrupt your meal. If he sees others enjoying their meal, he will be encouraged to eat with the grown-ups.

Toddler foods are the next step toward table foods. Gerber Chunky Foods for Toddlers are mildly seasoned and have bite-size pieces of vegetables and meats.

Table or adult foods should be introduced gradually, usually during your child's second year. Remember that table foods, especially restaurant foods, will be richer and spicier than those infants are accustomed to eating.

The best advice is go slowly and be aware of your infant's individual needs. Providing foods designed just for your baby will help make dining out a more pleasant experience for everyone.

Texas A&M Press publishes book on dirt

COLLEGE STATION — A book for the adventurous reader on dirt may seem a bit absurd, but when you dig into it, that's the target of "Dirt," a new book by John Anthony Adams.

Published by Texas A&M University Press, the book is designed to change the minds of those who think dirt is, well — dirty.

For instance, writes the Phi Beta Kappa orange grower from San Bernadino County, Calif., dirt — in the form of soil surfaces — provides a window to the past. Ancient soils themselves no longer exist, but their appearance is sometimes preserved where muds were turned into rocks.

All soils originated from rocks, Adams writes, explaining how the clays, sands and silts were formed.

"Could your distant ancestor have been a rock?" asks the author. "There has been an imaginative and interesting conjecture that clay has not only been of great importance to life, but that life may have originated from clay particles. A Glasgow chemist, A.G. Cairns-Smith, has speculated that our ancestors were literally made of clay."

"Dirt" takes a here's-mud-in-your-eye approach for the unusual, the not-frequently-thought-of and the incredible. Chapters deal with such issues as death, decay and compost, muck, mystery and the good old days and the plowman's folly.

Concise and easy to understand, "Dirt," priced at $11.95, offers fascinating facts for anyone on this terra firma and is, well, dirt cheap.

Texas A&M tops other state institutions in student retention

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University, which has the highest student retention rate among public colleges and universities in the state, also ranks well above the national average, according to recent figures.

Nearly 70 percent of the entering freshmen at Texas A&M receive their degrees at the end of four years, said registrar officials.

A U.S. Department of Education report found that fewer than half of all students earn a degree in the four years after high school graduation. Nationwide, one student in four took six, seven or more years to complete a degree.

Using figures for the 1983 freshman class, records show that 84 percent returned for their sophomore year, approximately 75 percent for their junior year and 72 percent for the senior year.

Texas A&M also boasted the highest retention rate for minority students among all public colleges and universities in Texas. The Coordinating Board, State College and University System reported that more than 81 percent of the undergraduate black students enrolled at Texas A&M in the fall of 1983 returned to begin the 1984-85 school year. The figures are the most current for which comparative data is available.

Critical Considerations Before Cotton Planting To Be Explored In Meeting Of County Producers

Critical decisions which normally confront Lynn County cotton producers at planting time are being compounded this year by new regulations and increasing economic pressures, says County Extension Agent Stanley M. Young. But information which will help area farmers make those crucial decisions will be explored at a meeting March 9 in Lubbock, the agent said.

The South Plains Development Program cotton conference will be from 1-5 p.m. at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock. The center is on FM 1294, just east of I-27 at the Shallowater exit.

Considerations that will be examined, Young said, will include cotton provisions of the farm bill, conservation compliance implications for area cotton, soil fertility, declining cotton yields, mill demands for fiber quality and ways to minimize barky cotton penalties.

Provisions of the federal farm bill which affect cotton producers on the High Plains will be explored by Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension agricultural economist and cotton marketing specialist from College Station. Effects of conservation compliance regulations on High Plains cotton producers will be explained by Dr. B.L. Harris, Extension soils specialist, College Station.

Programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to help apply farming sytems methods to conservation compliance needs will be discussed by Dr. John Abernathy, resident director of research at the Lubbock-Halfway Experiment Station.

An update on 1986 soil fertility surveys will be presented by Wayne Wyatt, general manager of the High Plains Underground Water District No. 1, Lubbock. The relationship of fertilization and declining yields will be explored by Dr. Art Onken, professor of soil fertility at the Lubbock-Halfway Experiment Station.

New technology in textile processing and its impact on fiber quality demands will be presented by Dr. John Price, head of processing research in the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University. Dr. John Gannaway, Experiment Station cotton breeder at Lubbock, will look at ways to meet those quality needs.

What's being done to help farmers minimize the problems of barky cotton will be reported by Dr. James Supak, Extension cotton agronomist at Lubbock.

The South Plains Development Program is a coordinated regional effort of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to promote economic development in agriculture and improved family life in 21 counties. It is sponsored through county Extension Program Councils and special SPD task forces which identify educational needs and coordinate educational activities.

GAME WARDEN OF THE YEAR — Game Warden Roger Hensley of Marble Falls, left, receives an award for Game Warden of the Year for Texas in the Southeastern Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, at the 40th Annual Conference, held recently in Baltimore, Maryland. The presentation was made by Col. Jack T. Taylor, superintendent of the Dept. of Natural Resources for the State of Maryland. Hensley is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Hensley of the Draw community. He is a 1952 graduate of Tahoka High School. Cotton Today

Cotton Program Praised: National Cotton Council President Aven Whittington has told a House Government Operations Subcommittee that the cotton program is proving effective and has stimulated the industry's recovery.

The Greenwood, Miss., producer said the program has contributed to estabishing a more level playing field in international markets and should be continued as an effective trade policy. He said other export programs are needed, including an improved GSM-102 audit guarantee system, a revolving fund, and allocation of sufficient resources to USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service and cooperator programs.

In his testamony before the subcommittee chaired by Rep. Glenn English (D-Okla.), the Council president said exports of cotton seed products have declined dramatically and that USDA should be urged to act favorably on the industry's request for an export enhancement program to regain markets lost to subsidized substitutes.

Funds Sought For Expanding Eradication: Sen. Howell Helflin (D-Ala.) has taken the lead in seeking a supplemental appropriation for expanding the southeastern boll weevil eradication program into Alabama, Georgia, and Florida this year. Heflin's request was made in a letter to Sen. Quentin Burdick (D-N. D), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee. Joining in the request were Sens. Shelby (D-Ala.), Helms (R-N.C), Sanford (D-N.C), Hollings (D-S.C), Thurmond (R-S.C.), Nunn (D-Ga.), Fowler (D-Ga.), Chiles (D-Fla.), and Graham (D-Fla.).

The group pointed out that, based on experience in the Carolinas, boll weevil eradication would reduce costs by $28 per acre while increasing yields. The supplemental funds would cover the federal government's 30 percent share of the expanded program's cost.

Cotton Program Costs Dropping: The cotton program's cost to the federal government is declining rapidly, and is projected to be down 60 percent during the four years remaining under the 1985 farm law.

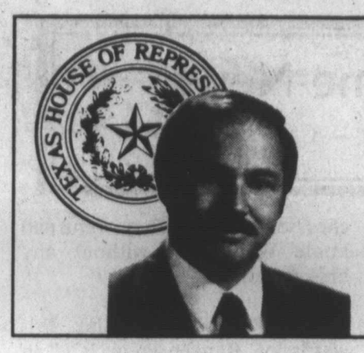

Aven Whittington, Greenwood, Miss., cotton grower and president of the National Cotton Council, said these figures -- cited recently by Charles V. Cunningham of the ASCS Commodity Analysis Division in Washington -- indicate the program is working as envisioned, with most of its costs up front.

Cotton program costs, which amounted to $2.1 billion during fiscal 1986, are projected by Cunningham to drop to $1.4 billion in fiscal '87 and average about $850 million annually during the program's remaining four years. This would mean a 60 percent reduction in program costs over the life of the farm law. Whittington said the figures indicate cotton's share of farm program costs will decline from 8 percent in the first year of the program to only 4 per cent during the last four years. About 75 percent of USDA's projected costs for the remainder of the program are for deficiency payments. Actual costs could be considerably less if cotton prices increase above loan rates.

"Cotton programs historically have accounted for about 10 percent of farm program costs," Whittington noted. "USDA figures indicating the share will drop to less than half that amount certainly supports the cotton industry's contention that the cotton program is working to the benefit of producers as well as taxpayers and should remain intact."

CAPITOL JOURNAL

STEVEN A. CARRIKER
House of Representatives

The legislature has passed a bill which I co-sponsored to repeal the subject matter test for Texas teachers. This will save the 14.3 million dollar price tag the tests were estimated to cost. The TEACAT test administered last spring, although it received a great deal of criticism, bolstered public confidence in public school teachers due to the 97 percent plus passing rate. Most people agreed that the good showing on the first test made the subject matter test superfluous.

A fight between the state Water Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission is heating up over who should license a hydro-electric facility on Possum Kingdom lake. The state contends that control of water has been re-affirmed as a state right numerous times. But when re-licensing time rolled around for the Possum Kingdom facility, FERC decided to get into the act by mandating additional water release suggested by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, supposedly to enhance downstream recreation. The outcome of the dispute could affect upstream users of Brazos water as far as Abilene, Anson, and Stamford since adjudicated water rights might require additional releases to replace lost P.K. water.

Response to the 78th District questionnaire on budget cuts has been revealing. Only one of the 12 categories of state spending, the Texas Arts Commission, was picked for cutting by more than 50 percent of the respondents. To illustrate how difficult it is to balance the budget by cuts alone, this agency's entire budget of 5 to 6 million dollars is only one-tenth of one percent of the deficit of $5.8 billion. The area with the greatest support seems to be services for the elderly, where less than 10 percent of the respondents said to cut.

***

Our views on new revenues for the state have also been informative. Your questionnaires showed that only six percent favor a personal income tax. By contrast, almost one-third of you said that a corporate profits tax was a less objectionable way for the state to meet its obligations. As most budget plans are now on the table, the legislative committees are closely scrutinizing agency budget requests and comparing these requests to the various budget plans of the Governor, Senate, House and legislative budget board. The Legislature is now weighing the needs for state services against the budget realities, removing waste where it exists, and considering whether new revenues are needed.

Employees Buy Seed Company, Stress Service

It's not very often that a group of employees has the opportunity to purchase the company they worked for. But for 12 employees of the now defunct Terra Seed operation of Lubbock, Texas, ownership became a reality when they purchased the seed operation from Terra International of Souix City, Iowa. The new employee-owned seed company is Summitt Seed.

"Let's not try to kid anyone, when you get right down to it, all seed companies are pretty much equal in the varieties of seed. But for us - the 12 of us - we bet our lives on our commitment to service, quality and research," stated David True, president. "It's not that the other seed companies don't have good intentions, it's just that they're not employee-owned - and that means we have a commitment - a dedication that the other seed companies just can't match.

"How many seed companies can say they have owners out everyday in the field selling, listening to customers needs, learning and responding?", True asked. Summit's warehouse manager owns 1/12 of the company - that's an additional guarantee of quality. Each one in the office owns 1/12 - this alone eliminates levels of "bureacracy" - cutting down on all kinds of red tape." Those in research also own 1/12, and to us, this commitment is one for the future -always looking for ways to improve.

Summitt Seed carries grain sorghum, corn, sorghum sudangrass, cotton and forage sorghums. Dealer in Lynn County is Western Seed & Delinting.

Rudd To Hold Town Hall Meetings

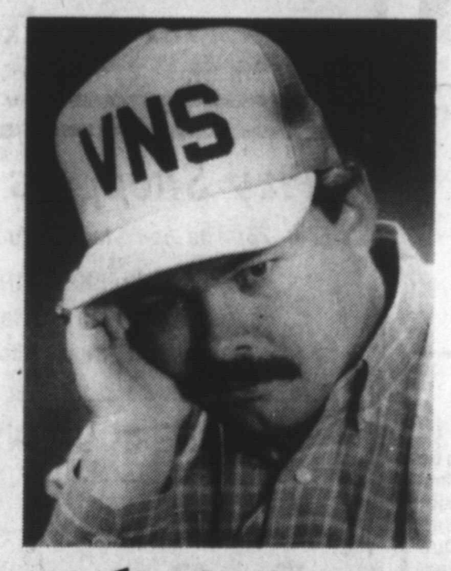

State Representative Jim Rudd (D-Brownfield) will hold a series of "town hall meetings" in the eight counties which he represents in the Texas Legislature. He will be in Lamesa at 8 a.m. at the Forest Park Community Building Friday and in Brownfield Saturday, March 7, at 9 a.m. in the school administrators building, board room.

"I want to go throughout District 77 and find out what the people are thinking and to report directly to them what is happening in Austin," Rudd said.

A group of elk is known as a gang.

With VNS cottonseed, someone always makes a profit.

Unfortunately, it may not be you.

Let's face it. VNS cottonseed is more inexpensive than Certified or Generation One cottonseed. It's no wonder. VNS's purity is questionable. It's not even inspected. VNS is just a grab bag of surprises. Surprises that in the end can cost you money.

Additionally, when you buy VNS cottonseed, you're taking a chance with your entire crop. Buy a Summit Seed cottonseed, such as their Deltapine SR 383, and you'll know exactly what you're getting — the best cottonseed available.

More importantly, Summit's cottonseed actually pays you to use it. The average price difference between VNS cottonseed and Summit's Generation One for instance, is about $2.25 an acre. But planting VNS or impure cottonseed could cost you 3¢ a pound premium compared to the quality and strength of Generation One lint. That's a $15 bonus per bale and a net return, in your pocket, of $13.75 per bale.

With a return like that, the question is not whether you can afford to plant Summit Seed's Certified or Generation One cottonseed, it's whether you can afford not to. Specify Summit Seed's Deltapine SR 383, SR 482, or SR 10. Make sure that when someone profits on your cottonseed, it's you.

FARMERS MUST BECOME 'AGRICULTURAL CAPITALISTS'--Farmers and ranchers must become "agricultural capitalists" said a keynote speaker at the International Stockmen's School in Houston Feb. 19. Charles G. Scruggs of Austin, vice president and editor-in-chief of Progressive Farmer magazine, said that farmers and ranchers must be as aggressive in their marketing and management of capital as they have been in managing production. This should include profit planning, discovering costs, enterprise accounting and analyzing, adding value to raw generic products, and investment in successful agribusiness enterprises.

WET FIELDS SLOWING COTTON SEEDBED PREPARATION--Wet fields may keep cotton farmers from getting their seedbeds in ideal shape for planting, says a cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. For good seed germination and seeding emergence, a seedbed should be firm and well settled. There should be a good balance of air and water, a lack of weeds and good herbicide distribution. The planting operation should leave a soil profile with a slight mound that provides adequate drainage away from the seed trench. Avoid valleys or depression in the furrow that will pocket water and concentrate herbicides around the seed zone.

OUT OF THE WOODS

By Juanell (Wood) Jones

THE FIRST DAY of Spring is just a couple of weeks away, on Saturday, March 21. But the weather today (Tuesday) as I'm writing this, is already spring-like, and it is absolutely beautiful outside. This is the kind of day that makes employees everywhere want to play hookie after lunch and head for their favorite outdoor sport, in my case, tennis.

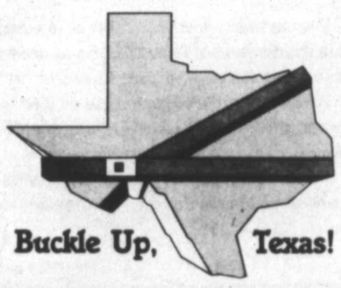

My boss, although a certified tennis fan and also my father, nevertheless frowns upon such inclinations from his employees. And I'm pretty sure if I called in sick after lunch, and then was spotted brandishing a tennis racquet at the courts, I would be looking for a new job, post-haste.

I could never do that, anyway. I'm much too honest for my own good. I can't even tell a good fib when it might be a good idea — like when a friend asks me what I think of her new hairdo. By the time I fumble around and finally tell her it's okay, she knows I think it's awful. That's why I never ask if anybody likes my hair — they might not lie very well, either.

By the way, the friend with the awful hairdo is purely fictitious. Any similarity to any living persons is coincidental and unjustified. Anyway, all my friends have lovely hair.

I did tell my mother once that her hair looked awful. She agreed with me though — she had just hopped off her motorcycle and her motorcycle helmet had mashed her hair down to where no amount of fibbing would make it look good.

I don't know how I got onto the subject of hair. I meant to talk about tennis and warm weather, which by the way does nothing for your hairdo.

4-H Reaches Youth In Many Ways

Today's 4-H program is noted for its flexibility, a feature that makes it the largest youth serving organization in the country.

4-H is flexible because it is organized in different ways, for different needs, in different places.

Organization may take the form of community or neighborhood clubs, project clubs, special interest groups, television and special activities. Young people may take part in 4-H through any or all of these.

The community or neighborhood 4-H club is associated with an area known to local people, such as a crossroads, a small community, a town, a section of a suburban community, a city block or blocks, or a housing complex. The number of 4-H members in a club may range from five or six to more than 100. This type of 4-H club continues from year to year. Usually both boys and girls belong to the club, enrolling in projects according to their interests.

In many areas, 4-H is organized on a "project club" basis. Young people are encouraged to form these clubs for a year or less. Examples include project clubs for garden, clothing, dairy, automotive, horse, bicycle and small engine. These 4-H clubs vary in number of members from five to six to 50 or more. The 4-H project club territory may range from a neighborhood cluster of a few families to a city block to two or three towns--or an entire county. In many counties members of community or neighborhood 4-H clubs may belong to a larger area 4-H project club. Teenagers especially like this system.

In special interest groups, the subjects taught depend on the interests and ages of the girls and boys related to the needs of their community. Young people may take part in this kind of intensive short-term group if they do not wish to be members of a 4-H club. They may get training in bicycle safety, health, first aid, fire prevention and safety, or jobs in local businesses.

Special educational activities often supplement 4-H programs. These include tours; 4-H junior and teen leader training workshops; achievement programs; camps; state conferences; seminars; recreational leadership training; exhibitions; fairs and shows; project training meetings; and career exploration.

There are many special state and national events held for 4-H members each year. The largest national event is National 4-H Congress, held in late fall in Chicago, to recognize about 2,000 state, sectional and national winners. National 4-H Conference, held each spring at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C., involves 250 4-H'ers in developing national 4-H programs.

Groups and individual 4-H'ers take part in special activities as they gain experience and can benefit from them.

Whichever method suits youngsters best, 4-H has a way for them to learn and to have fun in an exciting youth program.

Major Cawthon advised, "Interested persons should contact the recruiting coordinator in either Lubbock, Amarillo or Wichita Falls for employment qualifications and application forms.
