

PAINTINGS FOR EXHIBIT SUNDAY

These paintings of Harold Bugbee and his wife, Oliver Vandruft Bugbee, will be included in the exhibit to be held here Sunday afternoon, November 5. Mrs. Bugbee is shown at top with one of her wildlife pictures, Quail, such as those at lower left, are often found frequently in her works. Exhibited for the first time will be Harold Bugbee's picture, below, which shows Old Blue, the famous JA steer, leading two young wild buffalo.

Sunday Afternoon

Paintings of Harold and Olive Bugbee to Be Shown Here Sunday

An exhibit of paintings by Harold Bugbee, one of the nation's foremost interpreters of the Old West, and those of his wife, Olive Bugbee, noted wildlife artist, will be held in the community building Sunday, Nov. 5 from 2 to 6 p.m. Wellington area residents will be the first to see three of Bugbee's paintings, for they have not been exhibited and only a few friends have seen them. They will go soon to the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon to become part of its permanent collection. It is also the first public showing of his works in Wellington.

Mrs. Bugbee will also show several paintings for the first time, and altogether she plans to bring 17 pictures. The exhibit is sponsored by the 1924 Study Club.

"We invite the public to attend and enjoy these pictures of Harold and Olive Bugbee on Sunday. They show a part of life as we know or have known it here in the south-east Panhandle," said Mrs. Raymond Ross, exhibit chairman.

"I especially want all school children to attend, and this is my personal invitation to them," she continued. Mr. and Mrs. Bugbee plan to be here to meet visitors. Hunters getting ready for the bird season will take special pleasure in Olive Bugbee's paintings of quail in their natural habitat; wild turkeys, some almost hidden in cover; or sparrows sitting on bear grass seed pods.

Some of the birds will be against a background of plants native to Collingsworth county and Donley county. These were painted since she became a resident of the county.

Friday Night

Undefeated Quana Next on Rocket Slate

Wellington Skyrockets will meet the undefeated Quana Indians Friday night, Nov. 3 in a game to be played on the Indians' grounds.

The Indians are in the class with Perryton, as far as playing is concerned, Coach Frank Lindsey said this week.

At the same time, he reported Rocket spirits are good and his team is eager for a chance at Quana.

The Indians run out of a balanced T formation, with their chief offensive threat the outside belly series. Defensively they are about equally as strong. Two men stand out for the Quana team—Scarborough, a quarterback, and Blackie Wade, left half, who gave the Rockets so much trouble last year. Line players are consistently good.

Taking all teams in their stride, the Indians defeated Stamford, Crowell, Vernon and Hollis in non-conference play, then won over Childress, Perryton and Spearman. Lindsey reported that Mauldin is still bothered by his sprained ankle and Gary West, although eager to play, remains on the sidelines with his leg injury. It is likewise doubtful that Herman Childress will be able to play, and Dan Henard is in the same condition. Childress has a rib injury and Henard a broken toe. At least no new injuries appeared in the Shamrock game.

Game time at Quana is 7:30 p.m.

Horton Gets Army Honor

John A. Horton is here visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Horton, after completing his basic combat training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Horton was selected the outstanding trainee of Co. A, 4th Bn., of which he was one of 240 men. He will report to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, at the end of his furlough, for further training.

County Denied Injunction on Road Closing

A permanent injunction by which Collingsworth county was seeking to prevent the closing of a road in the north part of the county, was denied by Judge Lewis Goodrich, who presided at a hearing in 100th District Court here Thursday, Oct. 26.

Notice of appeals to the 7th District Court of Civil Appeals was given by County Attorney R. L. Templeton. The defendant in the case is Hugh Grogan of Abra, the owner of section 101, block 22, through which the road runs diagonally for a length of about one and one-fourth miles. A temporary restraining order was issued in favor of the county by Judge Goodrich on July 13.

The county claims that it acquired a deed to the right of way from the defendant's father in 1930 and that it had been used as a road by people of the community prior to that. The road leads from the Abra community to Ramsdell community in Wheeler county.

Grogan had built a fence across the road and posted a "closed" sign, according to instruments filed with Mrs. Lora Lowrie, district clerk. He is represented by Guy Hardin of Shamrock.

Judge Luther Gribble, presiding judge of the 100th District Court, disqualified himself as he was county judge at the time the transaction between the county and the late J. H. Grogan was said to have been taking place.

Both parties agreed to leave the road open pending the appeal.

Burglars Enter Dodson Store Saturday Night

Burglars broke into the Owens Grocery and Station at Dodson Saturday night, Oct. 28 some time before the shower and took between 60 and 70 cartons of cigarettes and a .410 gauge shotgun, Sheriff John Rainey reported.

Entry was gained by prying a bar off a back window and forcing it open. Taken along with the gun and cigarettes was a small amount of change, probably totaling between $3 and $4, the sheriff added.

Rainey estimated the cigarettes valued at around 200 and the gun approximately $60. The latter belonged to Junior Owens, one of the owners.

Bath Room Ruined in Fire

G. M. Owens, 202 9th St., was painfully burned in a fire which ignited in the bath room of his home at 9:50 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 29, Richard Bailey, fire chief, reported.

Owens told firemen he was washing a pair of overalls in a pan of gasoline which he had placed in the bath tub, when it ignited from a hot water heater in the same room, Bailey continued.

The bath room was ruined and there was some water damage to a bed room, the fire chief said.

Sunday afternoon Fire department members returned to the City Grocery scene to finish putting out smoldering fire that had burned since the blaze early Wednesday that gutted the building.

WHS Reunion

Ineva Cudd Bowen Queen of Homecoming

Ineva Cudd Bowen was crowned Wellington Homecoming Queen in the assembly for ex-students Friday night, Oct. 27. Mrs. Bowen was elected in secret ballot sent out to ex-students prior to the reunion.

The identity of the queen was not revealed until the time of the coronation.

Billy Hatch placed the crown on her head and presented Mrs. Bowen with a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Second place in the contest went to Miss Bessie Rainer, secretary of the Ex-Students Association.

Both women have been active in the organization's work.

Two cousins living on the South Plains tied for third place: Kathleen Boston Smith of Slaton and Tommie Ann Campbell Hatch of Lubbock.

The three in runner-up positions were presented chrysanthemum corsages.

Cotton Crop Half Harvested With 19,296 Bales Ginned

Collingsworth county cotton ginnings stood at the 19,286 bale mark when wet weather halted gathering this week, and the estimate on a county-wide basis is that the crop is about half out.

A check with gin managers showed that yields are considerably better than were expected as the gathering started, and the county is probably raising more two-bale-per-acre cotton than it ever has, this on irrigated land.

A number of reports of bale per acre cotton from dry land fields also comes in, and in most parts of the county it is believed the crop will equal that of last year.

The crop is considered 60 to 65 per cent out around Dodson, where some believe the total yield will be higher than last year, and others say it will be about the same or a little less.

Boll weevil damage was not great.

"People spent a lot of money but kept the weevil under control. We may have lost 10 per cent of our cotton but I doubt it," Ed Crowder of the Farmers Co-op at Dodson told The Leader.

Weevil did result in more light spot cotton, but the price index is to where it hasn't been too bad on farmers, it was pointed out. On the whole there is no more than 50 points difference in it and white cotton.

Some reports of the staple being not so good, although Marvin Wynn of the Davis Gin at Dodson reported staple as much as 1 7/32 inch, and cotton of this kind will bring a little more than 37 cents a pound.

"A big lot of irrigated cotton will make two bales per acre and the dry land cotton will probably average three-fourths of a bale," Crowder said.

"The biggest part of the crop is being machine harvested. We may wind up with 90 per cent of it gathered that way," he continued.

A considerable number of new machines have been purchased and in many instances several farmers are working together, all going into a field as it gets ready.

The crop is estimated as being a little less than half out in the Wellington area.

Here again, weevil damage was not as much as was thought earlier, and both the yields and grades have been better than expected, J. N. Glasgow of the Farmers Co-op office reported.

"We were still getting a lot of white cotton when the wet weather started," he said.

Between 25 and 30 per cent of the crop is out around Quail, according to Pat O'Hair of the Quail Gin office.

Here again there were reports of two-bale-per-acre yields from irrigated cotton, and a lot of bale-per-acre dry-land cotton.

Almost all the cotton in that area is bringing 30 cents per pound and better and seed prices are also better than last year, O'Hair pointed out.

Most of the farmers in the Lutie area have been hand-gathering their crop so far, and just now are machines going into the fields in number. "There's much more money in this crop than last year and the yield is about the same," Bill Oldham said.

Cortez Barnett, manager of the Dozier Gin reported the crop a fourth to a third out in the north part of the county. That area received considerable

Assistant to Governor

Brad H. Smith Brings Traffic Safety Campaign Here Nov. 9

Brad H. Smith, who is coming to Wellington Nov. 9 under the sponsorship of the Wellington High School Safety Commission, is the first state official ever designated to coordinate the traffic safety problems of Texas.

Lewis Graham, sponsor of the WHS Safety Council, says that the meeting is open to both adults as well as school children. He has invited the students and parents of the schools at Samnorwood, Quail and Dodson to attend. The meeting will be held at the Wellington School Cafeteria at 7:30.

Smith became a member of the Governor's Staff on Feb. 1, 1958, and bears the title of Assistant to the Governor and Director of the Governor's Highway Safety Commission.

His job is to tie together the several State government traffic safety functions. He is receiving assistance from 12 departments and agencies of the Texas State government in bringing official pressure to bear on each phase of the traffic safety problem.

He is conveying the Governor's personal and official interest in the strongest possible action to these State officials, and in establishing and maintaining the most productive working relationships between citizens' groups interested in traffic safety in all parts of the State. These are exemplified by the veteran Texas Safety Association and more than 100 country traffic safety councils all over Texas, organized as a direct result of Governor Daniels' leadership, and the numerous city traffic safety councils.

Smith was born in Palacios and has lived in South Texas all his life. He has spent more than 30 years in newspaper, radio and television news work. He has operated newspapers in McAllen and Victoria, and more recently was publisher of the Weslaco News.

Christian Ethics

The worldwide war now in progress — one which has been termed "cold" but is actually as hot as any war in which man has ever engaged — is a battle to the death between two directly opposed ideologies, Christianity and Communism. The decision will determine the fate of all future humanity.

Communism, a system which believes that man and certain men in particular represent the highest type of existence or in other words that there is no god but Man, is waging its offensive war with gusto and more success than we like to admit. Its adherents are enthusiastically obsessed with their faith and, in many cases, are willing to sacrifice themselves for it.

Nothing less than the same complete dedication to the Christian ideology can hope to stem the tide of communist oppression. This is why the people of the U. S. and all of the free world must turn from their selfish desires to a more complete practice of Christian ethics and more complete dedication to Christian ideals.

Chancellor Conrad Adenauer of West Germany puts it this way. "Communism is a false ideology. But it is an ideology and can only be met with moral and spiritual weapons. We are in an ideological battle. Therein lies the decisive task. It may last decades, but it must be won. A nation without an ideology is self-satisfied and dead."

We in America and the free world have a superior ideology in Christianity. All we need do, and this is no small achievement, is to give ourselves over completely to that ideology, practicing it in all times and places and everything that we do.

We must make a choice and make it soon. We can't have both selfishness and freedom. We can't long enjoy both immorality and democracy. We can't have widespread dishonesty and ideological victory. In each case it must be, eventually, all one or all the other.

There is a widespread movement currently gaining much attention. It is termed Moral Re-Armament. Leaders of the movement state that what we need in this country is patriots of all races, ages and political affiliations who will put right what is wrong in their own lives and in the life of the nation, thus re-arming the nation to face the threat of godless communism.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I note that Pres. Kennedy and Gen. Eisenhower agree on the lowdownness of extremists, which is a new dirty name to call people who extremely differ with you.

My unextreme neighbor says he hopes a little of this high-level anti-extremism will slop over on his draft board, which seems now minded to require of him what he considers extreme patriotism.

Says our Internal Revenueurs could also do with a small dose of moderation, so as maybe they would then take a less extreme attitude toward short memories.

I note that National Newspaper Week has now been held for this year, and there was a right smart of bragging on our newspapers, especially by newspapers.

My biased reader neighbor says a Free Press is a mighty fine thing, but one drawback is that it is free to hold back the Truth as well as being free to print same when it finds some.

Says, for instance, all the papers he reads made a big deal of Newspaper Week, but biased-up the news by leaving out mention that it was also Save the Horse Week.

Considerable tongue turbulence here lately about the government discount-selling obsolete war planes to Yugoslavia, and training Red pilots to shoot people with same.

My panic-pooped neighbor says this has been going on for ten years, so the howl about it is not what you might call a premature reaction.

But says he has faith that our leaders wouldn't have sold these planes without getting a promise that any Americans facing them later on will be shot down gently.

I see where our self-winding people-keepers are going to assign numbers to all citizens, so taxes can be collected by automation.

Some folks are nervous this will make names unconstitutional and society pages will look like market pages with items like "453-53-8559 Weds 466-48-3545 Under Double Ring IRS Regulation Q-783."

Might be inconvenient other ways, too, like when people have a new baby, not knowing who he is until Washington gives him a number and a Living Permit.

I note that when a Washington bureau goofs these days they just blame it on a loose wire in an electronic brain.

When the Army needs, say, 46 portable parade grounds, and a stray hole in a punch card makes out the order for 46,000,000 of same, it is not a bureau boggle but just an electrical failure and a good joke on the taxpayers.

But my push-button neighbor says this is no comfort, and not much improvement over the situation when all costly boners were caused by loose screws in bureau brains.

Rockets Miss Victory By Hair Breadth, 8-6

By Max Courtney

Windswept Powell Field provided another fruitless battleground for the Skyrockets Saturday afternoon as the Rockets fell 8 to 6 to the Shamrock Irish.

The homecoming crowd almost filled the stands, and they saw a show of skill and wits in a very tight, hard-fought ball game. The Rocket line seemed to suffer some from the gap left by injured Herman Childress. Gary Holliman showed the crowd some very fine running as several times he drove straight up the middle for outstanding gains.

During the first half the Irish seemed to dominate the play. As it has happened before, the Rockets came back from the half time rest, fired-up and ready to go.

Wellington won the toss, took the south goal with the wind to their backs and kicked to the Irish. The wind carried the ball into the end zone away from Raymond Sanders, one of the Irish tri-captains. It was then placed on the twenty, where the Irish soon lost it on downs.

The first quarter was a run and hop affair with the Irish taking the edge and placing the ball on the 3-yard line enabling them to score on the first play of the second quarter. Bill McBryde, 205 pound Irish fullback, drove it over. Larry Reeves then passed the ball to Jim Wortham, but it went over his head and was caught by Tommy Scrivner.

The Rockets took the kick to open the second half and Jackie Daves with a lit fuse, grabbed the ball on the five and zoomed down the gridiron to the 47. His was only the first of several fine runs produced by Rocket ball carriers.

After several fumbles and pass interceptions, the Irish attempted to punt into the wind from the 35 on their own end of the field. The ball, caught by the wind, was blown around and wound up in the Wellington stands. The punt moved the ball up only 4 yards.

Craig Bergvall, a little later, fired the ball downfield to Lynn McLain, who was standing on the goal line, for a beautiful touchdown play which was called back because of an offside penalty. The Rockets then in the final minutes moved the ball to the Shamrock half-yard line where Quarterback Richard Mauldin drove across. The try for the extra points was no good.

With 45 seconds remaining in the game the Irish held the ball four downs and ran out the clock to end the game.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Killingsworth Tuesday and Thursday nights of last week was their son, Woodrow Killingsworth of Dimmitt, who has churches under construction in Oklahoma.

Four architects in Oxnard, Calif., spent two weeks searching for the best fallout shelter and nominated the city jail because it was solidly built.

Stubble Mulching Pays Off in This Area

Stubble mulch farming is known as farming with as much crop residues on top of the soil as possible. This is sometimes known as trash farming.

All tillage operations are performed to leave crop residues on top of the soil the year round, planting the next crop in the stubble. This gives protection to the young seedling, adds organic matter to the soil by the decaying of the crop residues, and gives better stands due to maintaining moisture close to the surface. It also serves another purpose which most of us are able to visualize. This being protection of our valuable soil against wind and water erosion. Wind and water erosion is our most common loss, either muddy water running across a field or dust in the air we breathe.

Stubble mulch farming can aid this situation a great deal. The crop residues on top of the soil tends to obstruct the movement of water, giving it more time to penetrate the soil and leaves a cover to keep the small soil particles from blowing during high winds.

On the Rolling Plains as well as High Plains country, where some mechanical practice such as terraces are needed to aid in the control of water erosion, stubble mulch farming fits in to the farming operation and greatly aids the control of water erosion.

Some of the types of equipment used in stubble mulch tillage are large sweeps, rod weeder, blade type implements, cultivators, and close spaced sweeps.

We should not need any encouragement to save our soil from eroding, because our country was first known for its farming. Control of erosion should be enough reason for leaving our crop residues on the surface of the soil. We know our land cannot be farmed when it is up in the air, as it was in the 1930's, or washing down our streams when we have a rain. No one wants to admit that this soil belongs to him, whether it is in the air or going downstream with the water.

Stubble mulch farming is not an inconvenience but a soil and water saver. It will fit into any cropping system and be very useful. In the event of a dry year and crop residues are not produced, a tillage operation leaving the surface rough or in a cloddy condition will aid in preventing water and wind erosion.

Now is the time to think about saving your soil. Call on your Soil Conservation District Supervisors for assistance or see your local Soil Conservation Service technicians. They will be happy to assist you in carrying out a sound conservation plan on your farm. Give them a try. They are here at the farmer's request to serve him in his best interest.

Five million adults ride bicycles in America and adult use of the two-wheeler is growing more popular each year.

Publish New Book on Indians

AUSTIN.—A comprehensive history of the Indians of Texas has been published by the University of Texas press.

"The Indians of Texas: from Prehistoric to Modern Times" by University anthropologist W. W. Newcomb, Jr., records the origins, appearance in Texas, life cycle, livelihood, warfare and varied customs and beliefs of the state's original inhabitants.

The tribes depicted in "The Indians of Texas" include:

Karankawas, whose family laws forbade a man to visit, speak to or look upon his parents-in-law;

Lipan Apaches, once "proud and independent warriors" who became "the skulking, beggarly riff-raff of the Texas frontier";

Comanches, "the principal and most stubborn adversaries the Texans had";

Wichitas, who believed an enemy could be destroyed by placing a lock of his hair in the mouth of a toad and killing the toad, and

Caddos, most productive, advanced and populous of all the Texas Indians.

"To most Americans the life and livelihood of our Indian predecessors is a romantic and fascinating subject, but often a sketchily understood one," Dr. Newcomb writes in the book's foreword.

"There is good reason for this ignorance and misunderstanding: Most Texas tribes disappeared many years ago, some before Americans entered what is now Texas," the author reports.

Since anthropologists have had no first-hand facts about most Texas Indians, "what is known about their habits has to be gleaned from the written accounts left by the soldiers, missionaries and explorers who first visited them."

The 404-page book is illustrated with photographs and drawings by Hal M. Story, artist at the University's Texas Memorial Museum.

Dr. Newcomb is Museum director and has served on the University faculty 11 years. He is the author of "The Culture and Acculturation of the Delaware Indians" and numerous scientific articles.

Coastal Shrimp Get Dye Stain To Study Move

ROCKPORT.—Approximately 40,000 Gulf shrimp have a new head dress in a research program of the Game and Fish Commission, according to Howard Lee, director of marine fisheries.

Biologists of the department have netted and stained the heads of these shrimp. The coloring is injected with a hypo needle. Fishermen and netters who take these shrimp are asked to report them to the nearest game warden or the marine laboratory at Rockport.

This is part of the study of the migration of shrimp in the coastal waters. Last year a similar program was carried out by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. As a result, there are now shrimp in the Gulf waters that have pink heads and some with green heads.

When the shrimp are retaken, it is possible for the biologists to have some record of the migratory habits of the shrimp.

First Visit in 19 Years

One Wellington ex-student returning for the reunion Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27 and 28, made his first visit to Wellington since 1942.

He was G. L. Farrar Jr., of Tulsa, Okla., whose father, G. L. Farrar, was superintendent of schools here for a period of about 14 years. He now lives in Lubbock.

In Tulsa, Farrar is engineering editor of the Oil and Gas Journal, a position he has held 10 years.

He is married and has four children: Lance, 16; Bonnie, 14; Susan, 10; and Gary, 8.

Farrar was graduated from high school here in 1938 and later received his bachelor's degree from Texas Tech and master of science degree from Texas A&M, where he also taught five years. He later received a professional degree from Tech, based on performance. For five years, Farrar was a chemical engineer with Magnolia Petroleum Company.

Asked about his father, he replied:

"He is 75 years old and hasn't learned to slow down yet. You remember he always went with his coattail out behind him."

After leaving the teaching profession 12 years ago, Mr. Farrar sold advertising for the South Plains Review a number of years.

6 Pronghorns Go to Italy

AUSTIN.—Six Texas pronghorn antelope have been sent to Italy. They were accompanied by Fred W. Stark, director of the San Antonio Zoo and Aquarium. A trio of antelope was presented to both the Rome and Naples zoos.

Through a request from Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission, to Governor Price Daniel, a letter of official sponsorship from Texas was carried to Italy by Mr. Stark.

Mr. Stark is the director of the San Antonio Zoo and Aquarium, and long has been interested in the extension of international zoological cooperation.

In a letter to the Game Commission, Professor Dr. Raffaele Anatriello, administrator of the provincial project, said they were interested in having the pronghorns, which would be one of the most specific North American animals, in the Italian zoological gardens.

The zoological garden in Rome is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. The International Union of Directors of Zoological Gardens will be in session there, according to Dr. Adriano Monarca, sub-commissioner of the zoological garden in Rome.

Extension Work Program Group to Meet Nov. 2

The executive committee of the Collingsworth County Program Building Committee for the Extension Service will meet Thursday, Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Greenbelt Electric Co-operative, Inc., building, according to Miss Kathryn Potter, home demonstration agent, and Bob Lynch, county agent.

Attending will be the officers and all committee chairmen, along with local Extension Service personnel. Anyone interested in the work is invited to attend.

The purpose of the meeting is to hear reports of each committee concerning the 1962 Extension Service plan of work, Miss Potter and Lynch reported.

The executive committee will vote on accepting the committee reports or make recommendations concerning them for the committees and their work.

The final reports as approved will be the basis for Extension Service work during the coming year, the agents explained.

THREE COACHES AND A PLAYER

This group is part of those responsible for the first football team Wellington ever had, and it includes three of the coaches and one player. They attended the dinner Saturday honoring various WHS teams. From left are Austin O'Neil, who lives in the north part of the county; Judge Luther Gribble, and Lee O'Neil of Lubbock, who were three of the coaches. At right is Joe Terry. One other member of the first team was present, Lee Powell, who is pictured elsewhere.

Select Posts With Care

COLLEGE STATION. — A mile of good fence costs about $500 and a major item in this investment is posts. For this reason, advises Bill Smith, extension forester, posts need to be selected with care.

Commercial pressure-treated pine posts provide a sound investment. They will give superior service at the lowest cost per year of effective life of the fence.

Some landowners may reduce their fencing costs by the home treatment of pine fence posts. This material may come from their own timberlands in the form of thinnings, he said.

The recommended preservative for home treatment is pentachlorophenol. This chemical may be mixed with fuel oil to make the solution in which the posts are soaked. This method is known as cold-soaking and can be satisfactorily used only on pine.

Some woods such as cedar, mulberry, bois d'arc and locust are naturally durable and do not require treatment. The heartwood or generally darker colored center is the durable portion of these woods. The sapwood or lighter colored portion is not durable and will readily decay, the forester said.

Make certain, he emphasized, that posts from these woods

Those Ding-Dong Daddies

MAGAZINE TELLS HOW DUMAS GOT COMMERCIAL FEEDLOT

With a tendency in some quarters to holler "uncle" when business gets rough (Uncle Sam, that is), the citizens of Dumas rightly deserve the recognition they're getting in a recent issue of Farm Quarterly, national farm magazine, published in Cincinnati.

Back in the roaring '20's, somebody wrote a song, "I'm a Ding-Dong Daddy from Dumas, you oughta see me do my stuff." Today, Dumas is prosperous because the Ding-Dong Daddies got together on some big community projects. The latest is a commercial feedlot designed to keep both their feed and their cattle at home.

Moore county produces some 100,000 tons of milo per year as well as 2 to 2½ million bushels of wheat. The livestock population consists of about 4500 cows, while some 20 to 25 thousand stockers graze the wheat pastures every winter.

These stockers have moved in from nearby states and in the past were taken up the line to Colorado feedlots when the grazing season was over. Then the grain raised in Moore county followed in trucks.

Last year the Daddies decided it was time to do something about this. They organized the Moore County Feeders, Inc., issued stock of $1 par value and soon had enough capital to build a $135,000 feed lot with capacity for 5,000 head of cattle. This allows a turnover of 12,000 to 15,000 cattle a year.

Officers of the corporation are farmers or ranchers and a veterinarian. An experienced have a high percentage of the heartwood, otherwise they are a poor investment.

Information on treating pine fence posts by the cold-soak method may be obtained by contacting county agents or Texas Forest Service district foresters in the East Texas area, or by writing to Smith at Texas A&M College, College Station.

DIGGINGS PLANNED FOR INDIAN RELICS

AUSTIN. — Archaeologists from the University of Texas will dig for Indian relics in seven parts of Texas which are soon to be covered with water.

National Park Service is advancing $60,000 to finance the searches. Seven areas to be mined for remains of Indian cultures are those to be covered by Sanford Reservoir on the Canadian, Amistad on the Rio Grande, McGee Bend on the Angelina, Navarro Mills on Richland Creek near Corsicana, Columbus Bend near Columbus on the Colorado, Livingston on the lower Trinity, and Toledo Bend on the Sabine.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sullivan were in Austin over the week end to attend the football game between Texas University Longhorns and the Rice Owls. The Hills visited their son, Creed Hill and the Sullivans visited with their daughter, Patricia. Both are freshmen at the University.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

The fire that destroyed the Masonic Lodge and the City Grocery last Wednesday was dire enough to cast a pall of gloom over the whole town; but the spirits of the people perked up quite a bit Thursday when it was learned that all the records of the Lodge and the grocery store had been preserved. When the safe of the City Grocery was opened the coins were still hot, but the checks, charge tickets and books were intact. The historic records of the Masonic Lodge were found to be in good condition. Probably two-thirds of all the Masons now living in Collingsworth county were made a Mason in that venerable temple.

Something should be said about the splendid work of the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department. They could have put out the blaze in short order if it had not been for the double ceiling which acted as a flue—a wooden one—and spread the flames over the entire building in a matter of minutes. As it was they kept a deplorable loss from turning into a calamity by preventing the holocaust from reaching the lumber yard to the west and Whites Auto to the south. If Whites Auto had caught on fire the whole west side of the business district of Wellington could have been destroyed in the high wind that sometimes gusts to 30 miles an hour. We should be thankful so much of the town was saved.

A number of people have remarked that they believe October is a better time to have the reunion of the ex-students of Wellington high school than the scorching days of August. Not only is the weather better, but it seems more appropriate to have it at a time of the year when all of the school facilities are in operation. And the business of the old grads getting to see a football game with the Rockets' traditional rival from the north is a natural.

By the way, that wasn't a bad game for either team. Shamrock won the first half and the Rockets clearly outplayed the Irish in the second. Wellington actually made two touchdowns in the second half, but the beautiful touchdown pass play was called back because of an offside penalty.

Brad Smith, Director of the Texas Traffic Safety Commission, is coming to Wellington on Nov. 9 for a traffic safety meeting that will be held in the school cafeteria. His other stops on this trip will be Abilene, Amarillo and Lubbock. I have known Brad Smith for nearly 30 years and have heard him speak on a variety of topics, and I have never known him to make a speech that was not highly interesting. Long practice has given him the ability to take hard cold facts and make them come alive in terms of living people who might have been killed and of dead people who should be living still. The subject of his talk will be: "Traffic Safety Is Everybody's Business."

FARM SAFETY

"One of the finest programs I have ever heard" was the comment of Maynard Coe, farm safety director, National Safety Council, Chicago, used to describe the annual meeting of the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, held in Houston March 28. Coe was referring to the reports made by committee chairmen covering their activities for the past year. New Council officers are Calvin Pigg, Fort Worth, president; Sherman Clark, vice president and L. O. Tiedt, secretary-treasurer, both of Houston. The Texas Home Demonstration Association will later designate a vice president for women's activities.

At left is Lee Powell, member of the first football team the school ever had, and now a teacher and livestock raiser at Byers. Raymond Powell, center, graduated in 1929, after a distinguished all-around athletic career and later was captain of the WTS Buffaloes. He now teaches in the Amarillo Schools. At right is Lloyd Powell, who graduated in 1927, and who did not continue his athletic career beyond WHS. He is with the Bureau of Mines at the Helium Plant, Amarillo.

Band Boosters Meet Nov. 6

The Band Boosters will meet Monday, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. in the band hall, J. K. Porter, president, announced.

a Clarendon resident. Others are seen among cover found in the hill country around Kerrville, her former home, and other South Texas points.

Many find her wild turkey paintings most eye-catching. The beauty of these fine birds is brought out, sometimes as a part of the overall picture, at other times with trees or brush serving as background.

Olive Vanduff Bugbee has no formal art education. She began her career as a commercial artist, then turned to painting when the armed forces took her partners in the business during World War II. She has had eight invited one-man shows, and her works have been shown in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Chicago, and other points.

During the summer, her paintings were exhibited jointly with those of her husband at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum, and appeared in a one-man show sponsored by the San Antonio Art Museum and Junior League of that city.

Her works are in many private collections, as well as in banks and other public buildings of the Southwest.

Harold Bugbee paints from his experiences as a working cowboy and present day rancher. Horn and hoof, bone structure and muscle rhythm, he shows with realism cattle and cow horses as he came to know them on long drives along the breaks of Salt Fork and in Palo Duro.

A 12-year-old boy when he came from his native Lexington, Mass., to Clarendon, Bugbee appeared on the Southwest Panhandle scene in time to know well some of the early cattlemen and to follow along as they worked. From them he soaked up the lore and history of this region, and these men and their stories went into his paintings. Thomas S. Bugbee, his father's cousin, was the second permanent rancher in the Panhandle.

One of the paintings shown Sunday will be that of Old Blue, famous lead steer of the JA Ranch, who took cattle up the trail, then came back with the cowboys.

"He kept up with the horses, too, and this is no small feat for a steer," Bugbee explains.

"Once the boys on the Grooms ranch caught a buffalo yearling and a two-year-old and sent word to the Colonel (Col. Charles Goodnight) who was then building his herd. Did he want them? He did and he sent Mitch Bell and someone else with the wagon and Old Blue up on the Canadian to get them." The picture shows Old Blue pushing ahead, a rebellious, tugging young buffalo snubbed on each side.

A poignant bit of Panhandle history is seen in "When the Buffalo Went North," a herd traveling over familiar country in the early morning haze. Always the Buffalo went north in the spring, after wintering here. They went as usual in the spring of 1878.

"The hide hunters waited here for them to come back. They waited that fall, but the buffalo never did come. That was when part of the hunters went to Canada and some to Wyoming. Others went to New Mexico, where they became involved in the Lincoln County Wars," Bugbee says.

"On the Sunny Slopes of Long Ago," will give a light touch to Sunday's exhibit. A man and woman ride together on what is unmistakably the banks of Salt Fork. He is on a handsome apaloosa—and that horse has caused some questions among Bugbee's friends. An apaloosa in Old Clarendon? One pioneer ranch woman took a look and settled the matter.

"Of course there were Apaloosas. The traders brought them in. Now that would be his Sunday horse, and certainly he would use it when he took a lady riding."

Bugbee, who, paints in oils, studied under Charles Cummings at Des Moines, Iowa, and with Bert Phillips at his newly-founded Art Academy in

Quail-Dodson Open Cage Season Tuesday

The Quail Quails and Bob Whites open their basketball season Tuesday night, Nov. 7 in a doubleheader with the Dodson Mustangs, boys and girls, on the Quail court, Supt. Herman Moseley announced this week.

Both Moseley, who coaches the girls, and Purl Tippie, veteran coach who is in his first year at Quail, report the teams in good spirits and high enthusiasm.

Twenty-two games are scheduled for both teams, along with two invitational tournaments, Wellington and Samnorwood, and the district tournament at Clarendon.

Nineteen girls are working out daily for the Bobwhites, Moseley said. Six seniors form the starting team, including Larita Patterson, Sherry McGuire and Jerri Stephens, forwards, and Linda Jenkins, Betty Moseley and Almeda Tidwell, guards. Beyond this, there is one junior, Jan Langford, while the four sophomores are Peggy Gollighugh, Sue Ward, Rita Clay and Mary Finley.

Eight Freshmen round out the roster: Diane Moseley, Loretta Neeley, Patricia Kimbro, Kay Blevins, Sue Saunders, Shirley Horton, Alcie Holliman and Rosie Baker. Rosemary Horton is manager.

Coach Tippie has four seniors, three of whom lettered last year: Rudell White, Billy Wilson and Buford Wheeler. James Boen is the fourth senior, but he is not listed as a letterman.

Backing up these are five juniors: J. C. Saunders, John Cummings, James Branch, Paul Boyce, and Dean Johnson.

Sophomores are Carroll Kennedy, David Phipps, Robert Russell, John Carson and Carl Kilman. Two freshmen complete the roster: Dale Morris and Joe Harris, both of whom played on the junior high team last year.

Quail is already familiar with Tippie's coaching, for he led the Samnorwood Eagles to 9 district championships in 9 years coaching there. Twice he took his teams to regional victory and into the state contest. In five years coaching at Lazbuddy, he produced two district winners.

The Tuesday game with Dodson opens at 7 p.m.

Antoon Heads Science Club

The first meeting of the Wellington high school science club was held Monday night, Oct. 30 at the high school.

Officers were elected and include Bobby Antoon, president; Freddy Watkins, vice president; Jerry Rainey, secretary; Richard Mauldin, treasurer; James Poteet, parliamentarian; Frances Warrick, reporter; C. A. Crawford, sponsor.

Following a lengthy discussion it was voted not to pay any dues.

A committee headed by Mr. Crawford, and made up of the officers, will choose programs for the club.

Alvina Roberts was chosen sweetheart of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Elbert, who are harvesting maize on the South Plains, and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rhodes of Abernathy flew to Dallas to see Jerry Elbert play in the Texas Tech and Southern Methodist football game Saturday. The tour returned by Wellington for Sunday with Mr. Elbert's mother, Mrs. S. W. Elbert, then went on to Abernathy.

TV Show Here Saturday

A fast traveling troupe of television personalities and an hilarious professional television beatnik blew into Wellington Saturday morning and left a bus-load of goodwill and prizes behind.

The neighborly tourists hailed from television station KFDD-TV.

Featuring the co-star of the "Dobie Gillis Show," the beautiful Miss New Mexico and the chipmunk stars of "The Alvin Show," the hand-shaking personalities drew a crowd estimated at 1000 by city police.

While the antics of beatnik Maynard G. Krebs and lovely Sugg Conn kept the crowd laughing, it was the kids, as usual, who had the best time of all. Chipmunks Alvin, Simon and Theodore plus the KFDD clown were too much for any youngster to resist. Sugg Conn repeated the genuinely laughable phonetic punctuation routine.

Among local television personalities introduced to and mixing with the crowd were KFDD-TV news director Ralph Wayne, farm and ranch director Jack Tompkins, sports director Doug Rains and television's original Dr. I. Q., Jay Owne. Others included the star of the "Plainsman" series, Warren Anderson, morning newsman Jim Pratt, morning weatherman Dave Castle, announcer Doc Stewart and production manager Tommy Short, who kept hands-a-clappin' with the music of the Panhandle Playboys.

Prizes were won by Phillip Brown, L. A. Johnson and Gary Judd.
