FFA Week Is Slated February 22 to March 1

Twenty years of outstanding progress by Future Farmers of Texas were acknowledged by Governor Price Daniel recently as he designated February 22 through March 1 as official FFA Week.

In presenting the proclamation to Billy Penn, State FFA president and George Hurt, state director of Vocational Agriculture, the Governor praised the work of the Future Farmers who are studying the science of agriculture and who are striving continuously to improve the agricultural economy of the state.

The Texas Future Farmers have been extremely successful in developing leadership, promoting good citizenship, and inspiring patriotism among its members, the Governor said.

Billy Penn, state FFA president from Lufkin, received the proclamation in behalf of the 36,000 active members in 904 FFA chapters in the state.

George Hurt pointed out that the Future Farmer organization is composed of boys who are studying vocational agriculture in the public high schools as preparation for careers in farming, ranching and related occupations. Hurt credited the teachers of vocational agriculture, the school administration, and the lay people where vocational agriculture is taught, for the success of the FFA program in the state.

Opening day of FFA week, February 22, is Washington's birthday. FFA members and workers cite Washington as having advocated practical farming methods a century ahead of his time.

An election for $60,000 in county road bonds will come up for voters' action this Saturday, February 22. If approved by the qualified county voters, the bonds will provide for right-of-way for a farm-to-market road to the Page gas field, and possibly other road improvements. Qualified voters of the county are those who have some property rendered for county taxes, and who have also purchased a poll tax for the current year.

DIVERSIFICATION AND IRRIGATION BEING STUDIED

Chamber of Commerce Manager C. H. Wright reports that the directors in co-operation with County Agent Godwin are studying possibilities of diversification on the irrigated lands in this county.

They are in the process of contacting producing and marketing specialists to discuss the proposition, and are mailing questionnaires to farmers who already have irrigated lands in order to get their ideas.

New Gas-Distillate Discovery Indicated In Schleicher County

A new discovery well is indicated in the R. E. G. (Tillery) field 20 miles northeast of Eldorado. It is the Miami Petroleum Co., Inc., of Abilene No. 1-e C. S. McMillan which flowed gas at the daily rate of 5,702,000 cu. feet on a drillstem test in the Harkey sand between 5,284-89 feet.

Tool was open two hours and gas surfaced immediately. Distillate sprayed throughout the test. Recovery was 15 feet of high gravity distillate and one cup of drilling mud. Operator ran logs. Pipe was set Wednesday afternoon for try for completion.

Pan-American No. 6 Wilson drilling at 6,149 feet in shale.

El Paso Natural Gas Co. No. 1 Treadwell set surface pipe Wednesday morning at 600 feet. Pico Drilling Co., of Breckenridge has the rotary contract and is moving in rig. W. T. (Tuffy) Hammon is tool pusher.

Standard Oil Co. of Texas 3- No. 5 Wilson was drilling at 3,671 in lime and shale. Tucker Drilling Co., of San Angelo has the drilling contract, using their rig No. 3.

Tucker No. 1 Tisdale drilling at 4,991 feet in shale.

Shell No. 1 Tisdale drilling at 6,263 feet in lime and chert.

Standard Oil Co. of Texas has completed remedial work on their Viola McWhorter well No. 2 lease 2-A. Testing for gas-oil ratio was going on late Wednesday and results were proving satisfactory.

Commissioners Okay Bids For Sonora Highway Right-of-Way

In a lengthy session Monday, the Commissioners Court of Schleicher county considered bids for material and labor for right-of-way on the new Sonora highway. Highway 277 from Eldorado south to the Sutton county line is to be completely rebuilt and re-routed in several places. Low bids approved by the commissioners were as follows:

T. J. Moore Lumber Co. of Junction, posts and staves, windmills, and some of the wire.

Taylor Welding Shop of Eldorado: pipe, and part of the wire.

Marion Owens, labor for building the fence along the right-of-way.

Sam Morgan of London, tanks and troughs.

A. H. Butler of Eldorado, drilling of the two water wells.

There were many other local and out-of-town bidders on the material and labor.

Most of the right-of-way from the Sutton county line north to the fairgrounds just south of Eldorado has already been acquired. Work will get under way as soon as the rest of the right-of-way into town is acquired.

The new Sonora highway will come into Eldorado on South Divide street, one block west of the present main street. Several blocks of the street in Eldorado will be paved curb to curb.

State highway engineers estimate that the new highway will cost half a million dollars and will take about a year to complete.

This past year has seen the rebuilding of Highway 277 from Sonora north to the county line.

Post Script

Over 400 people attended the open house Saturday at the newly enlarged and remodeled Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Company. A steady stream of visitors registered and were served refreshments during the visiting hours, and were given orchids and other souvenirs.

This rig is capable of servicing 12,000 feet of 2 7/8 tubing and spooling 12,000 feet of 9 1/8 inch line.

The unit, known as rig No. 30, caused much interest among those who saw it and promises to speed up work-over and servicing jobs in this area.

Company personnel operating the rig here Monday were Fred Buie, C. E. Crawford, Glenn Snodgrass, George Marks, and Travis Coleman.

Lt. and Mrs. John Haley and son visited in the home of his uncle, Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Haley from Thursday until Saturday. Lt. Haley has been assigned to duty in Iceland and will leave soon for his new post. His family will remain in the States.

Sinclair Expansion To Aid In Schleicher Gas Development

Tulsa, Okla., Feb. 15.—Sinclair Oil & Gas Company and Skelly Oil Company are completing an extensive field gas gathering system connecting six fields in Schleicher and Tom Green counties, Texas, to their jointly owned Gas Products Plant No. 23 in the Huldale field of Schleicher county.

In addition, preliminary work is under way to gather gas from three additional fields in Schleicher county.

With Sinclair as operator, the plant began operations in July, 1956, processing oil-well gas gathered from the Huldale, North Huldale and Cox Brown fields.

Through installation of an additional 1,100-horsepower compressor at the main plant and the installation of the extensive gathering system, oil-well gas is being gathered from the Mount Susan and located north-northeast of Eldorado, nearest town; about 30 miles south of the city of San Angelo, 160 miles northwest of San Antonio & 220 miles s.w. of Ft. Worth.

Pecan Station field in Tom Green county and from the O'Harrow, Butler, Toenail Trail and Otto fields in Schleicher county.

A 200-horsepower compressor has been installed in each of the Pecan Station and Mount Susan fields. These compressors are being connected to the gathering system and will be placed in operation this month.

The engine block for a 550-horsepower compressor has been completed in the O'Harrow field preparatory for installation of a skid-mount compressor. This compressor will handle oil-well gas production from the Otto, O'Harrow, Butler, and Toenail Trail fields.

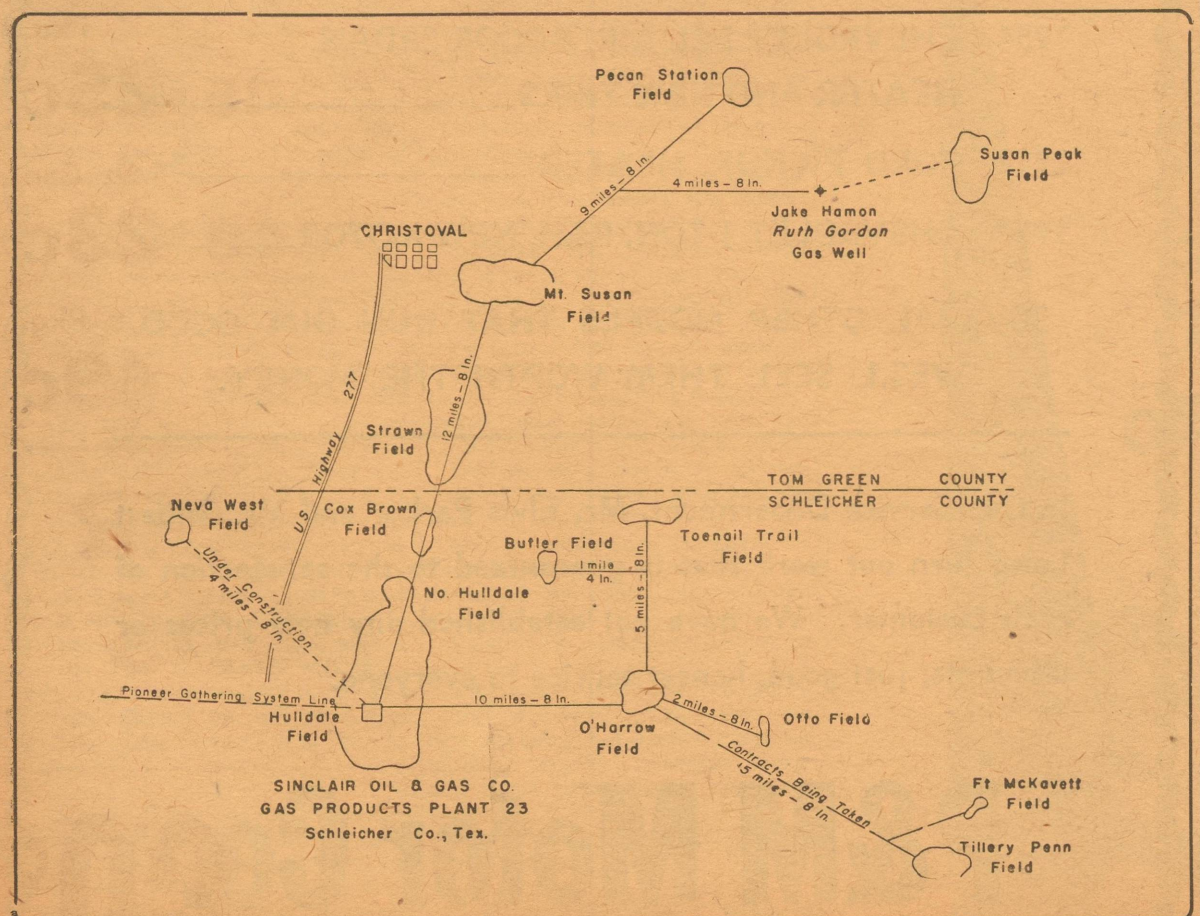

The gas gathered from each of the six fields will be compressed to 450 pounds for delivery directly to the absorber at Plant No. 23.

Surveys have been made for a line to utilize oil-well gas production in the Neva West field, rights-of-way are being taken, and the line is expected to be in operation by March 1.

Contracts are being negotiated with producers in the Tillery-Penn and Fort McKavett fields. Gas from these fields will be connected to the existing gathering system when contracts are completed.

In order to take care of increased development in existing fields and new fields, the gathering system was designed for 200% of both oil-well and gas-well gas presently available.

Pioneer Gathering System, Inc., a commercial gas pipe line company, is under contract to take the full volume of residue gas from the plant. Prior to delivery to Pioneer, residue gas is dehydrated and desulphurized. Only hydrogen sulphide gas removed from the residue is flared at the plant.

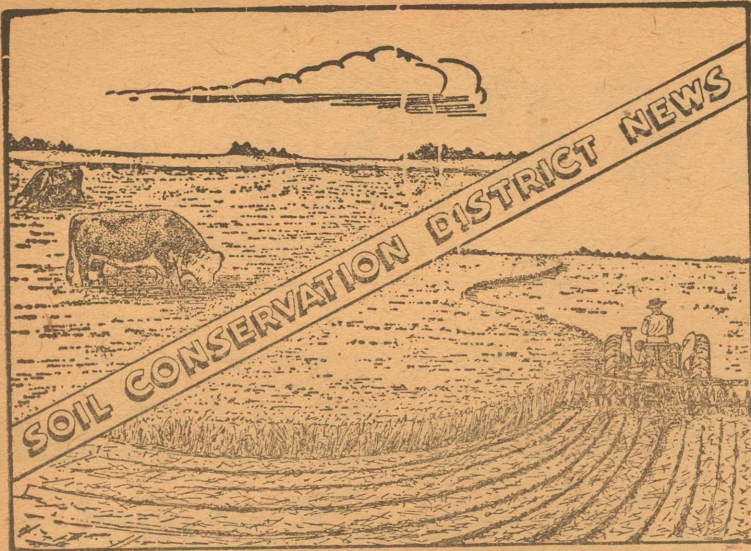

SINCLAIR Oil & Gas Company and Skelly Oil Company have expanded their gas conservation project in West Texas. Scope of an extensive field gas gathering system connecting oil-well gas production from fields in Tom Green and Schleicher counties to Gas Products Plant No. 23 in Schleicher county is shown. Sinclair is operator of the plant, located north-northeast of Eldorado, nearest town; about 30 miles south of the city of San Angelo, 160 miles northwest of San Antonio & 220 miles s.w. of Ft. Worth.

MOISTURE PENETRATION CONTROLLED BY CONSERVATION PRACTICES

By Lloyd B. Johnson
Soil Conservation Service

The year 1957 was the best rainfall year for Schleicher county for the past 17 years. Since 1941, when Soil Conservation Service technicians began keeping the rainfall records, there have been only three years in which the rainfall exceeded 20 inches.

The rainfall for 1957 received at the five gauges was as follows:

|                                     |       |
|-------------------------------------|-------|
| J. Ford Oglesby .....               | 24.90 |
| J. Forrest Runge .....              | 30.78 |
| Shell Pipeline, Eldo. Station ..... | 27.15 |
| Eldorado (court house) .....        | 23.13 |
| Jack Wade .....                     | 31.00 |

The rainfall average by years from 1941 through 1957 follows:

|            |       |
|------------|-------|
| 1941 ..... | 19.40 |
| 1942 ..... | 22.36 |
| 1943 ..... | 14.41 |
| 1944 ..... | 18.68 |
| 1945 ..... | 18.38 |
| 1946 ..... | 15.50 |
| 1947 ..... | 13.30 |
| 1948 ..... | 15.70 |
| 1949 ..... | 27.25 |
| 1950 ..... | 14.60 |
| 1951 ..... | 7.40  |
| 1952 ..... | 7.44  |
| 1953 ..... | 12.44 |
| 1954 ..... | 12.05 |
| 1955 ..... | 13.46 |
| 1956 ..... | 9.13  |
| 1957 ..... | 28.39 |

Average for last 17 years: 15.88.

The average rainfall for any period means very little in some respects. This is evident by the past 17-year rainfall record. For two years out of 17 the rainfall was nearly double the average and for two years in succession less than half the average of 15.88 inches.

However, there is one important thing that can be concluded from the rainfall received during the past 17 years: all the rainfall received could have been used on the land where it fell. This is evident without the aid of a rainfall record when close observations are made.

When cultivated crops and pasture grasses become parched and brown beneath the summer sun following good spring rains, it is obvious that some of the water went somewhere besides into the soil where it fell. Conservation treatment on the land made the difference during last year's good rains. Cropland and pastures that were protected by plant cover or other good conservation practices readily absorbed a large part of the drought-breaking rainfall. Unprotected land on the other hand, shed the water into rivers and lakes. The water that ran off into the rivers is forever lost from the farm or ranch on which it fell. The water that filled the lakes in the cultivated fields prevented crops from being planted. Had this water been held and stored on the land where it fell, by proper conservation measures, crops could have been planted and a crop produced.

Moisture penetration in cropland of Texas, in May, 1957, where paired fields were adjacent and similar except for conservation treatment.

The following treatments are followed by Number of fields, and the average penetration (inches):

|                                                     |    |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------|----|-----|
| Cover Crop .....                                    | 13 | 60" |
| No cover crop .....                                 | 13 | 35" |
| Stubble mulch .....                                 | 6  | 40" |
| No stubble mulch .....                              | 6  | 28" |
| Terraced & Contoured .....                          | 8  | 46" |
| Not terraced or contoured .....                     | 8  | 30" |
| Combination of practices .....                      | 13 | 75" |
| No conservation practices .....                     | 13 | 44" |
| All cropland with conservation treatment .....      | 40 | 59" |
| All cropland without conservation treatment .....   | 40 | 36" |
| Good cover .....                                    | 64 | 39" |
| Poor or no cover .....                              | 64 | 14" |
| Pitted or chiseled .....                            | 9  | 26" |
| Not pitted or chiseled .....                        | 9  | 8"  |
| Root plowed .....                                   | 20 | 35" |
| Not root-plowed .....                               | 20 | 13" |
| All rangeland with good cover or treatment .....    | 93 | 37" |
| All rangeland with poor cover or no treatment ..... | 93 | 13" |

(Note: Penetration charts from Soil Conservation Magazine, October, 1957.)

These observations explain why the rain you keep is what counts. The amount of water received in rain gauges means very little to farmers or ranchers unless all or most of it is held and stored on the land where it falls.

The Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district had 36 entries in the essay contest they sponsored in conjunction with the Fort Worth Press "Save the Soil and Save Texas" awards program. The title of the essay, which is given by the Fort Worth Press each year, is "We Are Stewards of the Land."

Judges, selected by the board of supervisors, gave the first five essay winners to the district supervisors, at their regular monthly board meeting Friday, Feb. 7. The winners were: Eddy Etheredge, first; Penny Dollar, second; James Sallee, third; Ernest K. Nimitz, fourth; and Charles West, fifth.

WE ARE STEWARDS OF THE LAND

(Ed. note: The following essay by Eddy Etheredge was first place winner in the contest, conducted here recently by the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation District board of supervisors.)

Land is the most important of all natural resources. Upon it men and animals are dependent for food. Indirectly, all of our clothing, regardless of the material of which it is made, has originated from the soil. We look to the land for building materials from which homes are constructed, for food, for the raw materials which support industry, and for other necessities and comforts of life.

Where land is rich and productive, nations prosper, and great civilizations are made possible. All ancient nations developed in regions of abundant food supply. Ample food supplies must be available before men are free to give attention to other useful and desirable pursuits.

The history of the more important nations of the world might be written in terms of the treatment they gave to the land resources. Where lands were protected, nations have prospered and advanced; where soils were wasted and destroyed, nations have become impoverished and ceased to exist.

American scientists traveling in the Far East found ancient olive presses where there were no trees, wine presses where there were no fruits.

What do these discoveries mean? They mean that the soil resources of a once prosperous country had been wasted and destroyed because the people who formerly lived on the land had taken too little thought for the future; that soil erosion had sapped the life of a great civilization and buried its towns and cities deep in the earth. We Americans, who live in the greatest country of all, must strive for better conservation of our great land which could be turned into a desert or remain the same beautiful land we now know. Let's be good stewards and leave our land, not as good as we found it, but a better, more prosperous, and more beautiful paradise than can ever be equaled.

I thought For The Week Ministerial Alliance

"This my joy therefore is fulfilled." John 3:29. These are the words of John the Baptist as he came to the climax of his ministry. They are an expression of perfect happiness. All of his joy had been fulfilled. A study of John 3:27-30 reveals the reasons for, or the secrets of, true happiness.

True happiness is found in:

1. Doing God's will. John was conscious that God sent him for a special ministry, for he said, "I am sent before him," meaning before Christ. John who who sent him, why he was sent, where he sent, and that he had performed his mission. He had the joy of a job well done for the Lord.

2. Friendship with Jesus. "But the friend of the bridegroom which standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice." This is a familiar symbol: John was that special friend of Jesus who was sent to arrange the preliminaries of the wedding between Jesus, the bridegroom, and the church, the bride. John was the forerunner of Jesus. His supreme joy was found in friendship and fellowship with Jesus.

3. Service for Christ. John found joy, not only in his friendship with Jesus, but also in service for Jesus. He was conscious of his mission—he was careful to do his task well. John knew it was a divine privilege, and he wanted to use it well.

4. In the hope of the future. "He must increase," said John of Jesus. John's vision of the future of the kingdom of Christ thrilled him to unspeakable joy. He rejoiced greatly as he was given a glimpse of the growth of the kingdom. He must have rejoiced that his witness to the Christ would win souls to Christ in all ages to come—and his joy was certainly fulfilled. John was assured that he would be rewarded in the future with a home in glory with the father, the son, and the saints of the ages. It would be his reward for faithfulness—his hope of such reward gave him great joy. Happiness is within the reach of every soul.—J. O.

BACK TO THE BIBLE

Can we understand the Bible alike?

"Come let us reason together." Isa. 1:18. Let us see that we can.

Who were the parents of John the Baptist? Lk. 1:13. "Zacharias and Elisabeth." Where did John begin to preach and what did he preach? Mt. 3:1-2. "In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judaea, and saying, repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Where and by whom was Christ baptized? Mat. 3:13. "Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him."

Neighbor, fellow traveler to the judgement, all who claim to believe the Bible see and understand the Bible just alike in all three of the passages given above. Why is that true? Simply because we all believe exactly what the Bible says about the things mentioned.

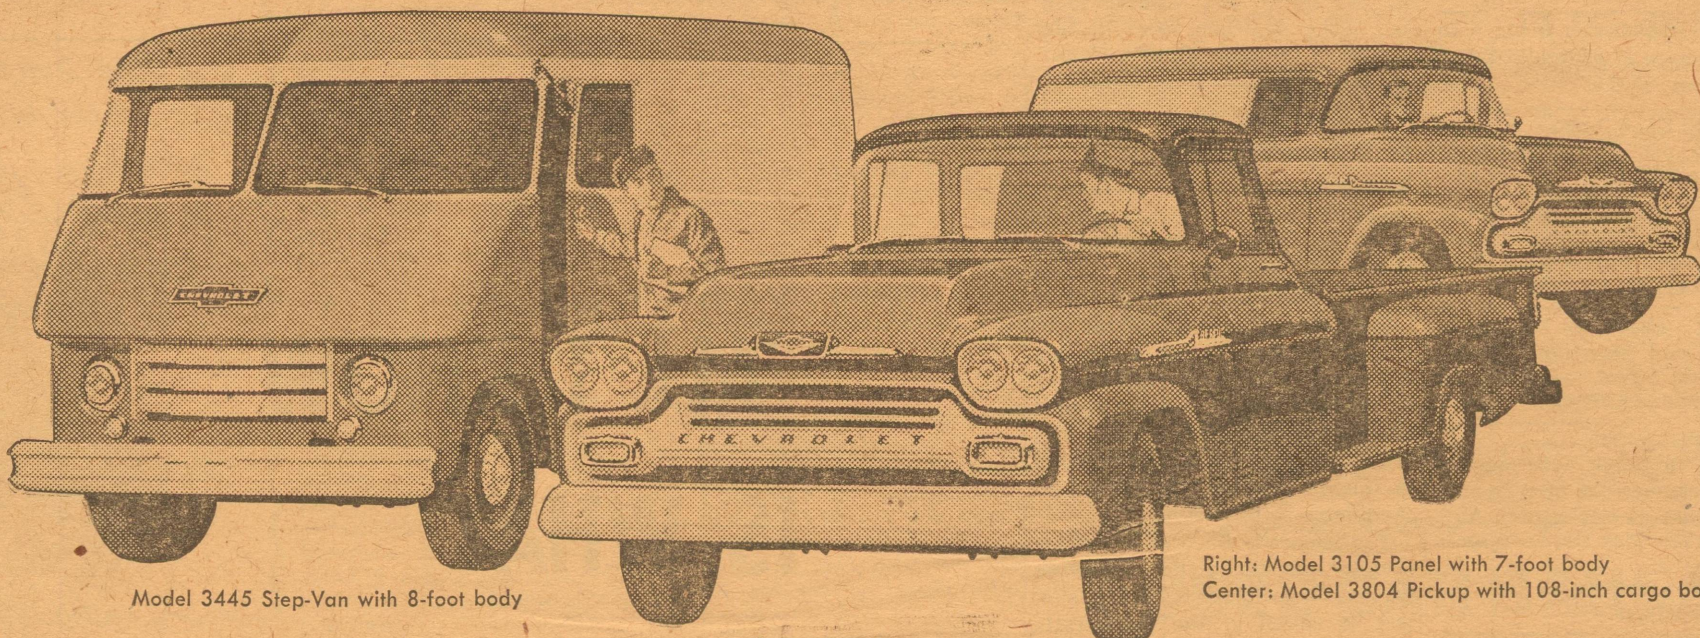

Just so, if we all believe what the Bible says on any subject, we will understand the Bible just alike. Read Heb. 11:3. The man that does not believe "the worlds were framed by the word of God," never will understand how the worlds were framed.

Come to the Church of Christ, one block west of the court house, where the gospel is preached like it reads in your Bible.

"ALL I KNOW

I READ
PAPERS"

America's best-loved humorist also was one of the best-informed persons in his time. Nothing, it seemed, escaped his notice. His comments on the passing scene were applauded and repeated by millions the world over. "All I know is what I read in the papers" became his trade-mark. Will Rogers recognized that newspapers, more than any other media, are the common source of information of all the people. The simple fact that everyone knew immediately what he was talking about provided an important basis for his fabulous popularity.

That same simple fact is just as true today as ever.

Change From Dryland to Irrigation Farming Should Be Planned

College Station. — Efficient irrigation systems just don't happen, says R. V. Thurmond, extension agricultural engineer. They are the result of study, planning and engineering. Thurmond advises that now is an excellent time to plan for the dry summer months ahead. Don't wait, he says, until the situation is acute before seeking assistance on irrigation problems. An adequate irrigation plan should include an evaluation of the farm's soil and water resources, an evaluation of the present cropping system and the possibilities for growing new crops under irrigation; a thorough study of the costs involved, including capital investment and the annual costs—depreciation, fuel, labor and other expense items.

Too, under irrigation he points out that more machinery is usually required; more fertilizer is needed for maximum production; insect problems are often multiplied; harvesting costs are upped and the increased production could bring on additional marketing problems.

After a decision has been made to make the change to irrigation, a well designed system should be planned before any money is spent for equipment. The plan on paper should show how the plan will operate. It will require a lot of engineering and this should come from a reliable source. County agents and S. C. S. personnel can advise and assist with the planning.

In the high rainfall areas, Thurmond says a drainage system must be a part of the irrigation plan for the farm. It is just as important to get surplus water off of crop land as it is to supplement rainfall with irrigation, says the engineer.

Dried Prunes Top Marc Plentiful Foods

College Station.—Dried prunes are given top billing on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's March plentiful foods list for this area. A larger than average crop, plus a liberal carryover from last year, assure an abundance of this fruit. Prunes are a perfect food for March "Good Breakfast Month," coupled with cereals or served alone. Other fruits on the list are apples and canned pears.

Eggs return to USDA's plentiful foods list for the first time since last July, as production is expected to reach a seasonal high in March. Also, March is "National Egg Month."

Dairy products are also in plentiful supply. Milk production is increasing seasonally and the 1958 outlook is for record supplies. January 1 stocks of American cheddar cheese were estimated at 372,000 pounds and stocks of butter were above a year ago.

Pork continues to take the spotlight at meat counters as supplies will probably be at their seasonal peak during March. Frozen whitening is plentiful, too. January 1 stocks totaled 18 million pounds—eight million above a year earlier.

Canned and frozen corn and pinto beans are the only vegetables listed as plentiful for March. Production of pinto beans was estimated to be 1,455,000 hundred-weight larger than the year before. Stocks of frozen corn are at a record high. Peanuts and peanut products complete the plentiful list compiled from a survey of major food suppliers in this area.

C. L. MARTIN ILL IN SONORA

C. L. Martin was admitted to the Hudspeh Memorial hospital Sunday with an illness diagnosed as pneumonia.

At his bedside have been Mr. and Mrs. Roy Martin and Nancy of Pasadena and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hill of Abilene in addition to local members of the family.

Mr. Martin is improving and doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carroll and Vicki of Ozona spent Saturday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hazelwood. They were dinner guests Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whiteley.

Regardless of intentions, the effect of the much publicized Jack Porter letter, inviting Texans to a Republican fund-raising dinner in Houston honoring House Republican leader Joe Martin of Massachusetts, has just about killed off any chance to pass a gas bill at this session. At least it looks that way right now. Speaker Rayburn plans to call the bill up later this month.

The Porter letter was unfortunate. Actually the gas bill's connection with it was purely incidental. Mr. Porter, invitations to a limited number of Houstonians, reminded them of Martin's prior support of a gas bill, which was vetoed, said Martin must be depended upon to line up Republican support for the pending measure, and in the same letter appealed for liberal contributions to the Republican fund-raising dinner. A hundred thousand dollars were donated—which would probably have been given if the gas bill had never been mentioned.

That amount is not unusual for similar political dinners by both Democrats and Republicans. But the very fact the gas bill was mentioned in Porter's letter serves as fuel for opponents of the gas bill to use, and they have made the most of it.

The gas bill is designed to correct a mistake made by the Supreme Court in ruling that the Federal government has the power to dictate to a farmer in Texas (or anywhere) the amount he can charge for gas produced on his property, at the well-head before it ever gets into interstate commerce.

If such a ruling is retained, then it can be used as a precedent for Federal control of prices a farmer can get for his sheep, cow-hides, oil, or any other commodity to be shipped in interstate commerce. It is clearly an invasion of State's rights.

Austin.—Money is making the biggest news in Austin at the moment.

Discussion swirls around such topics as campaign funds, unemployment, recession, taxation, receiverships and credit insurance rates—all pocket prodding issues.

Gov. Price Daniel publicly deplored the money-raising efforts of Texas' Republican National Committeeman H. J. (Jack) Porter, who staged a $100-a-plate dinner in Houston to raise money for Republican congressional campaigns. His widely publicized letter asking contributions pointed out the need to gain support for the natural gas bill now before Congress.

A hard-fought issue for many years, the bill is generally favored in Texas and other gas-producing states, but bitterly opposed in gas-consuming Eastern and Northern cities. Opponents were quick to label Porter's approach as "mass bribery" and "selling legislation for campaign contributions." Proponents of the bill groaned. They contended that Porter had heaved a huge monkey wrench into plans for passage this session.

Governor Daniel said the incident "should convince all Texans that the Republican leadership in this state has nothing to offer but embarrassment, discord and division."

Why No Jobs

Viewing the soaring unemployment figures, Governor Daniel took more jabs at the GOP. Loss of jobs reportedly increased more in the past month than at any time since World War II.

As far as Texas is concerned, said the governor, much of the blame can be laid to the Republican administration's ineffectiveness in controlling oil imports. Competition of foreign oil, he asserted, has caused Texas production to slip steadily, bringing loss of jobs and revenue to the state. National farm policies also were criticized by the governor.

Texas Employment Commission says its January unemployment compensation payments hit $537,800, an increase of almost 70% from last September.

More Taxes?

Governor Daniel has slightly and very cautiously amended his determinedly cheerful stand about possible need for new state taxes.

He still doesn't agree with Comptroller Robert S. Calvert's chilly predictions. These are for a $12 million deficit by the end of this biennium (in 1959) and need for the next Legislature to scratch up $100 million in new revenue.

Governor Daniel said he felt the state would just about break even by 1959. But he conceded that the needs of a growing state might call for more money by then. He still favors a gas gathering tax, which he proposed last year, but emphasized he isn't recommending that or any other new tax for the time being.

Home Demonstration Agent's Column

By MRS. VIDA KREKLOW

Not long ago at a 4H club meeting a 9 year old club girl was very serious when she told me that she was going to be a nurse when she grew up. I asked her why she had decided so soon what she was going to be. "Well," she said, "it looks like I am going to have to take shots the rest of my life, and I just don't believe they hurt a nurse as much as they do other people."

She just about summed up most children's concept of the world of medicine as far as they are concerned. And for you parents with children of the 'many shots' age, the situation can be a real problem. But take hope—they do change in attitude as they grow up. A recent study, made by a group of doctors, showed all children behave about like yours do at certain age levels. During the first six months of a baby's life it shows no emotional response; from age one to four, greatest fear, violence and even resentment; from fifth year, they taper off on the fighting; and after they are eight, self control and pride take over.

Check these findings with the age of your child. Don't try to shame their fears away. You can keep them from ever growing up emotionally as far as shots are concerned by making too much out of, as the little girl said, something that we are going to have to take all our lives.

****
We are eating better than we did in the good old days. I don't mean more steak and standing rib roasts or things like that; I mean we are becoming more selective concerning our diets and are eating foods which are good for us. In the 1930's one third of the diets were classed as "poor." Today only one tenth, or one table out of ten, of the population are eating a "poor" diet.

Don't get confused on this. An expensive diet may be classed as "poor." The meat from the fore quarter of an animal has the same food value as from the hind quarter.

Today's home maker is many things—
"For life today in America is based on the premise of ever-widening circles of contact and communication. It involves, not only family demands but community demands, international demands on the good citizen, through social and cultural pressures, through newspapers, magazines, radio programs, political drives, charitable appeals and so on.

"This is not the life of simplicity but the life of multiplicity that the wise men warn of."—Anne Morrow Lindberg "Gifts from the Sea."

I have a copy of this book. It is good reading for the too busy person trying to live up to the ideals we've set up for ourselves in today's world. If you'd like to read it call me.

In case you are interested, or even curious, the latest color chart for women's hose lists: orange frost, topaz, blush-of-pink, stem green, persimmon, aqua marine, breath of blue, luster-pearl, and in-the-pink.

There is no reason in the world why these beautiful colors wouldn't be just as good looking as the old stand by color "suntan"—but isn't it funny how long it takes most of us to accept something new? That goes for ideas, food and other things as well as stocking colors.

During February the clothing leaders are presenting demonstrations to their clubs on care of clothing called "Clothes Cost Money! Take Care of Yours."

Cleaning and storage will be the only areas touched upon—as any home maker knows the care of clothes takes a lot of time and a lot of space. Writing the word space just now reminds me of what a speaker said not long ago. "To the average woman, the space age means what it always has—more space in clothes closets, more space in the living room, more space in the whole house."

It wouldn't be too interesting reading to list a lot of stains and how to remove them in this column but if you would like a copy of a bulletin on just that subject, please call and one will be mailed immediately.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

The two most adaptable varieties of hybrid grain sorghums for Schleicher county are RS610 and Texas 620.

RS610 is a medium-early hybrid which blooms slightly earlier than martins. It has good exertion, the head dries slower than martins. The seed are large, medium soft and are subject to discoloration during rainy season. RS610 is well adapted where 7078 maize is adapted, and has good adaption where martins is grown. Pedigree: combine kafir-60 x 7078.

Texas 620 blooms about the same as martins, is dry headed and has excellent exertion. It produces larger heads and is slightly taller of the two; Texas 620 should be harvested promptly when mature. Pedigree: combine kafir-60 x Texas 07.

These hybrids are adaptable to our soils and climate as were their parents. Producers can expect fully 40% more increase in yield and since the parents are adaptable the yield will approach even a higher percentage. This increase is available at an additional .70 cents per acre cost.

Producers cannot afford to plant other sorghums. See your seed dealers for costs and supply of seed or your county agent.

August 22, 1957, the Texas Egg law went into effect. Your local grocery stores are equipped to grade your eggs. Should your eggs be not grade, by law they are to be sold as ungraded eggs regardless of quality. Now, if you are a producer selling high quality eggs and want to do your own grading to insure that you receive the price for your quality eggs, write the State Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas, for the correct forms to apply for your egg grading license. Return the form and $5 for your license. Laws say grades given your eggs will be checked through the concern buying your eggs, periodically. This $5 license will allow you to grade and sell up to 10 cases weekly. Should you sell more eggs weekly your license fee is increased.

Here is the story on sorghum alnum that producers should know.

In 99 performance tests in every farming area of Texas, sorghum alnum rates the following as compared to sudan, sweet sudan, and perennial sweet sudan.

Planting seed were the same for all grasses.

Stand. Perennial sweet sudan seed gave satisfactory but poorer stands than the others.

Seedling vigor. Sorghum alnum and common sudan were best.

Regrowth after clipping. Sorghum alnum and perennial sudan were better than the two annuals.

Stalk size. Common and sweet sudan had the smallest stalks, perennial sweet sudan was next and sorghum alnum the largest stalks.

Leaf disease. Sorghum alnum and perennial sweet sudan had the least leaf disease.

Forage production. Sorghum alnum appeared best followed by perennial and sweet sudan. Common sudan last.

Palatability. Sorghum alnum a poor last.

Sorghum alnum produced more forage of a lower palatability the first clipping, but each succeeding clipping was less, whereas perennial sweet sudan forged even and ahead.

A parson, denouncing members of his congregation who put on airs, said, "Some people reminds me of de bottom figger of a fraction. De bigger dey try to be, de smaller dey really is."

money has been pretty tight with us. And Bill has been saying we just couldn't afford a new car now. Well, he gave me the surprise of my life today. He drove home a big new FORD! It's a Custom 300 Sedan and the prettiest car you ever saw. It drives like a dream, Mom! And just listen to this—Bill bought it for less than the similar model would have cost us last year. Be sure to tell Dad about this... and maybe you'll get one of these grand new Fords, too.

Love,
Mary
