MEXICAN REVOLUTION A MILITARY REVOLT

City Officials Call For General Clean-up of the Town

Government Forces Claim to Have Situation Well in Hand and That Revolt Will Soon Be Put Down.

For the past week the eyes of the western world have been centered on Mexico, where the regular periodical revolution is in progress. At the beginning of the outbreak it was feared a general revolt of the population was imminent but later developments indicate that the principal discontent is with the military forces, units of which have revolted, under their leading officers, against the present government.

A number of minor battles have been fought, the most recent that of Juarez on last Friday, in which the rebel forces were victorious after a sharp skirmish. The small federal garrison was interned at Fort Bliss, Texas, under agreement between the revolting forces and United States officials.

At a high from Mexico City sums up the attitude of the government generally as follows:

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—Preparations continued today in the northwest of the republic where rebels and federals are mobilizing armies to determine on the field of battle whether the present federal government shall continue or shall be taken over by a group of the army generals who a week ago began a revolution.

Home guards, consisting of civilian volunteers armed by the government are being organized in several states. Press dispatches said today that 6,000 home guards soon would be on a war footing in the state of Michoacan and that two battalions already were armed and ready for the field in the state of Guanajuato.

Circles close to the government continued to indicate that much satisfaction was felt at the attitude of the United States government in permitting the federal government to purchase arms and ammunition while continuing the embargo on such shipments to the rebels.

An army supposed to number about 2,000 men under the rebel Gen. Roberto Cruz was reported to be advancing south along the Southern Pacific railroad in the state of Sinaloa from Culiacan toward Mazatlan. Federals were said to be strongly entrenched and ready for battle at the latter city.

A federal victory there would be a severe blow to the rebel western campaign, but should General Cruz be victorious and continue on to Chihuahua the federalists would be placed in a serious position. Cruz could then threaten the capital and force the federalists to use for their defense troops needed in the northern campaign.

Secretary of War Calles is in the field in personal command of the largest federal force, which is centered around Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes. He apparently continued today to prepare these forces for a movement northward toward Canitas and Torreón. The rebel General Urbazgo holds Canitas, a railroad junction of strategic importance, while the rebel General Escobar holds Torreón, a similar junction farther north.

Defeat of these two would leave the way open for a federal campaign directed against any or all of the rebel states of Chihuahua, Coahuila and Sonora.

Jose Basconcelos, presidential candidate whose campaign committee has denounced the revolution, arrived here this afternoon and was greeted by a peaceful demonstration by more than 10,000 followers.

The capital population follows with much interest such information of the situation as the newspapers publish, which is chiefly confined to the communiques of the government.

New Industry for the Western Plains

AMARILLO.—Samples of the first bear grass fibre to be manufactured by the newly developed machinery of the Yucca Fibre Products company to be established in Tucumcari, N. M., were brought to Amarillo Wednesday by E. H. Whitehead, publicity manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The fibre closely resembles manilla hemp in size and texture and has a remarkable strength.

It is said to be suitable for the making of rope, burlap bagging, matting and twine rope. Experiments have demonstrated that the fibre is also suitable for the making of cotton bagging, and it can be substituted for many of the uses of hemp jute and sisal. It is especially prized for the making of upholstery stuffing in cushions and furniture as a substitute for horsehair and other fibres.

The samples brought here were taken from the initial run of two tons of raw bear grass which were recently shipped to Memphis, Tenn., to test out the new machinery for the factory, which was manufactured in the Tennessee city.

It has long been known that bear grass fibre was suitable for these uses and one factory in St. Louis has used a considerable amount of bear grass from West Texas and New Mexico during recent years. However, there has never been found a suitable means of separating the fibre from the pulp by mechanical means, and as a result the bear grass industry has been in much the same position as was the cotton industry prior to the invention of the cotton gin.

The greater portion of New Mexico and the Texas Plains produces a vast amount of bear grass which grows wild throughout the section. The United States government experiment station in Tucumcari has recently planted a large plot of the grass to study the practicability of cultivating the plant on a commercial scale. Experiments have shown that the grass grows best from a "root bed" and that the blades reach sufficient length to yield a harvest every two years.

Several tons per acre have been grubbed from wild land, and under cultivation even larger production may be assured. Four dollars per ton is the price to be paid for the fibre. One man can grub three to four tons per day from the pastures now.

In addition to the fibre, many by-products are secured from the "crown" of the plants. Among these products are soap, alcohol, shampoo, hair tonic and other toilet articles. These articles are made from the juice and pulp of the crushed plants.

Lamb County Band Concert Great Success

The concert given by Lam's Lamb County Band at the high school on Friday night, March 8, was declared by all present to have been a most pronounced success. The various members of the band showed not only decided talent but also evidenced painstaking care and attention on the part of Mr. Lam in developing the talents of the various members. It is no light task to instruct such a class as compose the various units of the Lamb county organization, and Mr. Lam is entitled to much credit for the advancement the boys have made.

To single out any particular feature of the decidedly interesting program, would be to make a distinction without a difference, as all was presented in a most pleasing manner. Perhaps, though, some features were more enjoyed than others, if such could be the case, mainly on account of peculiar appeals made to personal feelings. Among these might be indicated "The Whistling Farmer Boy," which vastly appealed to the audience. But each number was good, and the audience were not only pleased, but greatly edified.

METHODIST NOTES

Regular preaching services at the Methodist church Sunday morning and evening. The pastor and membership extend to you a most cordial invitation to worship with us on these two occasions. Sunday morning the pastor will preach a special sermon to the young people on the subject, "Samuel Makes the Decision." This is Decision Day, set apart by our officers and Sunday school teachers for the particular purpose of encouraging a definite stand for Christ by all who have never been converted.

This occasion should find a maximum attendance at Sunday school, where you will find a class to suit your needs. Parents are requested this week to speak to their children about their souls, and children are urged to speak to their parents about this all-important question of accepting Jesus. The services Sunday morning will not be of the high-pressure type. We are simply going to pray and work to the end that every person out of Christ will let Him into their lives, after a calm and deliberate decision.

At the Sunday night service we will again expect and appreciate another full attendance. Extra chairs are available, so do not fear that you will be turned away. The pastor will preach on "The Way That Seemeth Right," an evangelistic subject striking at the points where we are living. Come to this service and hear this sermon that we all so much need. You will find with us a worshipful spirit, a cordial greeting and a warm fellowship.

Remember the Epworth Hi-League at 6:45 o'clock.

LADIES OF CHURCH OF CHRIST BIBLE STUDY

Special Session of Congress April 15

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Hoover cleared the way Thursday for the solution of two of the three most pressing problems before his administration by calling the last congress into extraordinary session on April 15 to consider further farm relief and limited tariff revision legislation.

He also gave further consideration to the appointment of the national commission which is to take up the third and perhaps gravest problem—general law enforcement, with particular reference to the prohibition amendment and the abuses which have grown up around its operation.

Fort Worth Fat Stock Show Has Fire Loss Estimated at $150,000. One Death

FORT WORTH, March 11.—At least one person was killed, several were injured and property loss estimated at $150,000 entailed when fire destroyed buildings housing the poultry, merchants and agricultural exhibits at the southwestern exposition and fat stock show here today. The fire was brought under control after it had threatened to add to its toll the automobile building and coliseum. Firemen late today were searching the ruins for other bodies, as smoke was so dense immediately after the fire gained headway that it is possible others were caught in the blazing structures.

The body was identified late today as that of W. R. James of Fort Worth, an exhibitor at the show. Of those injured, three, G. E. Wilson, Fred Wilson, and S. A. Edwards, are firemen. G. E. Wilson was the most seriously hurt.

Lamb County Man Draws Fiddler's Prize

AMARILLO, Feb. 8.—Eck Robertson of Lubbock won the second annual Tri-State Fair association's old fiddlers' contest at the municipal auditorium last night.

Robertson, accompanied by his 3-year-old son, Eck, Jr., who is something of a musician himself, played several selections and kept the audience in an uproar. Milt Trout of Dimmitt, second in the contest here a year ago, placed second last night. Babe Helton of Canadian was third; A. F. Copeland of Amherst, fourth; Zeke Welch of Amarillo, fifth; Allen Criswell, Stratford, sixth; F. M. Beck, Abilene, seventh; W. C. Massie, Roswell, N. M., eighth; J. O. Kelly, Tucumcari, N. M., ninth and Orb Kolb, Silverton, tenth.

making up the biggest exhibition of poultry ever shown in the south, perished when the poultry building burned. The fire started at about 11 a. m. when decorations in the merchants' exhibit building burst into flames. It is believed the fire started when the decorations caught fire from a gas burner in one of the booths.

The flames spread quickly to the agricultural and poultry exhibits. All available fire fighting apparatus was called, but the fire spread rapidly despite their efforts.

Despite the disastrous blaze, events on the stock show program went ahead according to schedule. A capacity crowd saw the rodeo performance and others visited the exhibits not damaged by the fire. Stock show officials said the exposition would not be affected by the fire, but every event would be carried out according to the program.

Hoover to Visit Texas; No Defense of the Bible Is Needed

WASHINGTON, March 1.—President Hoover told L. B. Creager, republican national committeeman for Texas, Thursday, that he intended to visit the Lone Star State, but that he probably would be unable to get away from Washington for any extended trip during the special session of congress.

Creager said he expected the states of the South, and especially those which gave their electoral votes to Hoover, to receive "very fine recognition" from this administration in the matter of appointments.

"Without committing the President in any way," Creager said, "I expect him to do all he can to give us the benefit of a two-party system."

County Agent D. A. Adam Fostering Activities of Boys' 4-H Clubs

4-H Club work in Lamb county is being made a major portion of the program of County Agent D. A. Adam during the year 1929. So far 42 boys have been enrolled, and the interest and demonstrations are pretty well divided between livestock projects and grain sorghum row crops. Fifteen of these boys have entered and are taking pure seed projects in grain sorghums, and three are growing watermelons as their projects, and the rest are interested in livestock, with a big percentage of the latter being dairying. The boys interested in the pure seed projects have pooled their orders for pure seed with the county agent, and efforts are now being made to supply pure bred Jersey heifers for the calf club, and gilts have already been supplied five of these boys. Oscar Smith of the Fieldston schools, adult club leader, states that 4-H club work is a part of the routine and must be made a success, and as a result this adult club leader has worked up a model program with his club that would be the envy of most any club leader in the state.

These club boys are now making their arrangements to feed out 50 head of baby bevers next fall, the calves having been located by the county agent, and financial arrangements made.

The value of club work to the program in Lamb county cannot be over-estimated, for we are looking forward to these boys in stabilizing agriculture in Lamb county in the future.

Last Charges on McCloskey Dismissed

AUSTIN, March 7.—Remaining charges against Congressman-elect Augustus McCloskey of San Antonio were dismissed here this afternoon by District Judge J. D. Moore.

Judge Moore also entered an order dismissing the companion cases that had been filed against Judge McCloskey's secretary, Chas. Ramirez, and Elmer Wernette.

All the cases charged alteration of returns in the election in Bexar county last November.

Mrs. H. H. Bush is visiting and attending to business matters in Fort Worth this week.

Los Angeles' Loss Is Over Million Dollars

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—The Los Angeles Automobile Show, composed of 300 cars, several airplanes and motorboats, was a mass of ruins Wednesday, as a result of a fire which swept the four large tents in which it was housed. The loss was estimated at $1,250,000.

About 2,500 persons who were in the tents when the fire broke out left quickly while the orchestra continued with its program. Two persons were injured. A fireman, J. A. Adol, was overcome by smoke and Claud McFaul was severely burned.

The cause of the fire was thought to have been sparks from an electric circuit or flame from the exhaust of an airplane motor. The wings of a plane first caught fire and the flames soon consumed one of the tents and spread to the others.

Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene and all available police were called to maintain order.

All fire equipment in the central district was brought into play but the flames spread too rapidly to permit anything to be saved.

Most of the automobiles were insured.

FARM FAMILY HEALTH IMPROVED

AMARILLO.—Fifty farm families in Potter county have definitely begun health and sanitation programs based largely on better diet as demonstrated by Miss Izora Clark, home demonstration agent. These families have learned that on the choice of food depends much of the freedom from colds and constipation, and that malnutrition, so common among children, may be entirely avoided by correct diet. At least one and one-half pints of milk per person per day, leafy vegetables three times a week, other vegetables every day, and liberal servings of citrus fruit or tomatoes three times weekly, constitutes part of the health program advocated and in use. In addition to this, 250 school children in rural districts are cooperating with teachers and Miss Clark in scoring themselves by a health score card.

No charge will be made to the literary events.

The schools of the county and the directors of the meet extend a hearty invitation to the patrons of the schools and all friends of education to attend both days of the meet.

City Marshal Cooper was called to Dallas last week by the death of his brother, Mr. J. P. Cooper, editor of the Dallas Tribune, which occurred Wednesday morning. Mr. Cooper was well known in newspaper circles, having edited papers at Ancon, Longview and Waxahachie before going to Dallas. He was an able and fearless writer, and his editorial opinions were universally respected.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Weaver of Goodland were in town Saturday and while here had six trays of White Leghorn eggs set at the Hatchery.

To the People of Sudan:
Winter will soon be over, and with the approach of warmer weather, it behooves us to begin to think about cleanliness and precautionary measures and methods of preserving health, comfort and happiness, both for ourselves and our neighbors.

The Mayor will, in the near future, proclaim a clean-up day, but let's every one begin now to clean up our premises.

Your attention is here and now called to Ordinance No. 6, which prescribes that all dry, or up-ground outdoor toilets shall be cleaned at least once each month, and shall be kept, at all times, in a clean and inoffensive condition, and any person failing to comply with this ordinance is subject to a fine of not exceeding fifty dollars. This ordinance has not been rigidly enforced, but after April 1st, if necessary this ordinance WILL BE ENFORCED.

Some smart man has well said that "The law that governs least, governs best." This, we think, is very true, for it is much more satisfactory to every one concerned for everybody to do right without having to be forced. It is great embarrassment to have to force people to do the things that they ought to take pleasure in doing without even having to be asked.

"In unity there is strength." Let's all begin to work together, now, for a better, cleaner, healthier and happier town, and not embarrass our city officials by forcing them to force us to do our part in maintaining decency, cleanliness and promoting our own health, as well as that of our neighbors.

Written by order of the Sudan City Commission, assembled in regular session, Monday night, March 11th, 1929.

W. W. CARPENTER,
City Secretary.

New Sales Record By Goodyear Co.

"Probably the best possible evidence of the wide popularity of Goodyear tires and other products was given in the 1928 statement of earnings just made and which shows that the Goodyear company set a new record in sales volume," according to local Goodyear dealer J. A. Hutto.

"The report showed an increase in total unit sales of tires of 32 per cent over 1927 and sales amounted to $250,769,209, an increase of $23,590,669 over the previous year, notwithstanding the lower selling prices prevailing in 1928 and large losses incurred by the industry generally due to the drastic drop in crude rubber during the first half of the year."

"This record," according to Mr. Hutto, "is, in the last analysis, a tribute of faith in Goodyear products by the motoring public of America and the world. It proves that more people prefer Goodyear tires than any other kind."

He called attention to the fact, brought out in the company's report to stockholders, that tire prices are now lower than ever before in the history of the industry, being 50 per cent below 1914 and 1919-20 prices, while mileages have steadily increased.

"In his report to stockholders, President P. W. Litchfield took occasion to praise Goodyear dealers in these words: 'The great body of Goodyear dealers through which Goodyear tires are marketed constitutes unquestionably, we think, the most efficient medium of distribution and service available to the consuming public the world over. They are giving to the public greatly increased values in tire performance and service.'"

"I believe in the United States of America and the principles of freedom, justice, equality and humanity upon which it was founded and for which American Patriots have given their lives and fortunes.

"I believe it is my duty towards my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; and to defend it against all enemies."

Any erroneous reflection upon the character or reputation of any person, company or corporation which may appear in these columns will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

"BOOST OR MOVE."

THAT MOODY VETO.

There is genuine and widespread rejoicing in Texas since the action of the legislature overriding the Moody veto of the Small anti-land grab bill. Texans have once more shown the stuff of which ME's are made. Governor Moody and his puppet attorney general have received a rebuke that should reach both to private life at the expiration of their term of office, if not sooner. Land titles in Texas will be preserved inviolate unless the bill is declared unconstitutional by the high court—an inconceivable contingency.

This is as it should be. The whole dirty business was piracy from its inception, and no man should have known it better than Gov. Moody and his attorney general. The least they could have done in decency was to approve the measure and let the supreme court settle the mooted question of constitutionality. Conceding their ignorance and honesty of purpose, each should be furnished a pair of long ears and tied up in a stall.

SPRING STOCKS ARE READY.

Improved business conditions and a constantly increasing demand indicate a splendid spring trade. Local merchants have made liberal provision for a large volume of spring business, and they are prepared to meet this demand with up-to-date merchandise.

Women who plan their spring wardrobe early will find the Sudan stores ready for them with large and complete stocks of new things, in the latest styles and the finest quality. You cannot buy reliable merchandise cheaper than you can buy the same article right here at home.

It will be to your advantage to buy right here in Sudan this spring. It means greater satisfaction for you and greater prosperity for everybody.

DOES IT PAY?

It is announced that the Woolworth Company, operating a great chain store system throughout the country, has appropriated three million dollars this year for advertising. It is the first time on record when that firm has resorted to advertising, and the decision is a very important one in the commercial world. The company, as evidenced by its stock quotations, is in a very strong position and has enjoyed prosperity. But this isn't enough. The field can still be further exploited, and to that end an extensive and systematic advertising campaign is to be launched.

SHE DOES PLENTY.

The department of agriculture wants to ascertain the financial value of a woman's contribution to the home, on the farm and elsewhere. The department, however, puts the responsibility of fixing the rate per hour on the housewife—who just at present has no time to spare to prepare three meals per day, feed and dress the kiddies, do the washing and mending. She is not a bookkeeper. The best way to obtain correct figures is to multiply the hours of actual service by the hour rate paid skilled laborer—and some housewives are worth double.

BAN ON UGLIES.

Commercial billboards that obscure danger signals and hinder the full view of standard markers erected on the highways have aroused the indignation of the U. S. bureau of public roads.

The director of that service in his recent annual report expresses the hope that "means may be found by suitable legislation to effect their complete elimination upon all roads constructed in part with money appropriated by the national government."

NO WOMAN JURORS.

Legislators of Wyoming do not want women on juries. Nearly sixty years ago Wyoming was the pioneer state of the union to give the vote and most other male rights to the ladies, but the skies have changed. Inasmuch as the men seem to be striving to evade jury service it is not thought polite to exact from the ladies a service that is dodged by their husbands.

A New A-B-C of
Poultry Raising

The Question of Vitamins and Their Value in Poultry Feeding Is of Paramount Importance.

"Professor," inquired a student in one of our agricultural colleges, "you say we don't know what vitamins are; then, how do we know they're any?" "Do you know what life is?" retorted the instructor. When the pupil admitted that he did not the professor crisply retorted, "Silly! You're reasonably sure that you are living, aren't you?" In that reply lies the key to a proper understanding of the subject of vitamins for poultry raisers. True we don't know what they are, but we know that they will accomplish what is to be gained after all.

Of the four known vitamins, A, B, C and D, proper understanding of the functions of the first and fourth is of paramount importance to poultry raisers. The other two may be ignored as B is present in the outer covering of all plants and chickens do not seem to need vitamin C at all.

If feed is deficient in vitamin A a disease called nutritional rickets may develop. Mature birds affected in this way will die in from four to twelve months and young chicks in from four to eight weeks. Since feeding the proper ration of vitamin A means a very considerable protection against this disease, it may be seen that a proper understanding of the source of this important vitamin is something worth considering.

Vitamin A is produced in all plants that grow in sunlight and is stored in the part that shows a green or yellow color at maturity. Thus we find it in yellow corn, the outer leaves of cabbage, the leaves of alfalfa and similar plants. In yellow carrots and in sprouted oats, if they are sprouted in the presence of enough sunlight to insure a good green color. Any other kind are valueless. These are not the only sources of vitamin A, but they are the ones principally used in poultry feeding. Strangely enough, drying does not affect the vitamin content of vegetable products, a fact which accounts for the value of alfalfa hay, and meal, when used for winter feeding.

Another valuable source of vitamin A is cod liver oil. When a sufficient quantity of the products mentioned above cannot be obtained, cod liver oil at the rate of about 2 per cent may be added to the mash to provide the necessary vitamin A content and also the equally valuable vitamin D.

Vitamin D, just mentioned, is important because without it the mineral elements of the fowl's ration intended to supply bone and egg shell will simply pass through the system unused. In young chicks this appears as "leg weakness" or more properly, rickets. Older fowls show a similar weakness when they are not getting enough vitamin D. They will also lay eggs with soft or extremely thin shells. Their eggs will also prove deficient in hatching qualities.

A peculiarity of vitamin D is that it can be formed both in the feed or in the bodies of the birds themselves when exposed to direct sunlight. It must be direct sunlight, however, as only the ultra-violet rays produce vitamin D and they cannot pass through ordinary window glass. The part played by ultra-violet rays in developing this necessary vitamin has been definitely established by experiments in the University of Kansas. Hens which were kept from a natural sunlight but exposed 20 minutes daily to artificially produced ultra-violet rays laid a normal number of eggs with satisfactory hatchability.

As previously mentioned, cod liver oil contains vitamin D and if mixed in the same proportion as recommended for supplying vitamin A, it will supply the other one also. The oil is not an altogether dependable source of vitamin D, however. Some grades do not contain enough of it to be of any real value. So, whether you feed oil or not, see that your fowls get as much sunshine as possible. Let them out in the open whenever possible. Shelter them in the open front type of house and keep it open as much as the weather will permit. When the house must be closed totally or in part, instead of glass use the new glass substitutes, which allow the ultra-violet rays to pass through. Then your hens will be healthy and strong. They will lay more plentifully; their eggs will hatch better and the chicks will be free from many weaknesses. Thus it appears that the subject of vitamins is a fairly simple one, after all. Even if nobody does know anything about their chemical makeup, it is easy to see how they work and how to utilize their valuable properties in the proper nourishment of the poultry flock.

News of Texas Told in Brief

SAN ANTONIO.—A plot to blow up the Southern Pacific railroad bridge here across the San Antonio river in Roosevelt Park was discovered when two small bombs lying in the river bed found a hand-made bomb containing almost a quart of nitro glycerine. Planted in the water under the trestle, the bomb had been made water proof, with a copper fuse eight feet long leading from it to the river bank.

BROWNSVILLE.—Matias Ramos, assistant secretary of war of Mexico, landed in an airplane here Tuesday with a party of American citizens, including Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Maddox. Mr. Maddox is a Tampico oil man and owner of the plane. Ramos was whisked away from the airport in an automobile and has not been located.

AUSTIN.—J. W. Howard of Houston county and his wife were given permission in a bill passed by the House to sue the State Highway Department for alleged negligence in failing to clear a state-operated road of gravel piles, which assuredly caused injuries to the pair in an automobile accident.

AUSTIN.—The senate accepted the house's request that the governor's salary be increased to $10,000 instead of $12,000 and the election on the proposed constitutional amendment raising the salary be held July 16 instead of at the primary next year.

AMARILLO.—Three Dallas girls were in an automobile which crashed into a house here. The front of the building was demolished, and it was moved several inches on its foundation. Billie and Peggy O'Neal were in the hospital suffering from cuts and bruises. The girls told the officers they were visiting here from Dallas.

WASHINGTON.—Reports here that John W. Phillips, Dallas, Texas, postmaster, might be named second assistant Postmaster General were met with a statement by R. B. Crenner, republican national committee man from Texas, that he would be delighted to have the appointment made.

DALLAS.—The gift to the city of Dallas of a $100,000 baby hospital was announced here today by T. L. Bradford. It will be a memorial to his wife and daughter.

ALBANY.—Fire damage estimated at over $35,000 occurred at Albany when the Humble Oil and Refining Company's auto train of three trailers, two warehouses and two oil tanks, containing 9,000 barrels of gasoline, and all the contents of the warehouse, broke out in one of the most spectacular fires ever seen here. No injuries were reported.

COLLEGE STATION.—Co-operative marketing was discussed here at the opening of the third annual school of co-operative marketing conducted by the Texas A. & M. College.

FORT WORTH.—One of the largest deposits of silica sand in the state has been discovered at Lake Worth, near Ten Mile Bend, according to Lucius A. Lytle, technical commissioner of the Association of Commerce.

WASHINGTON.—Exports of merchandise from Texas were valued at $139,476,902 during the second quarter of 1928, compared with $113,169,720 in the corresponding period of 1927, an increase of $26,307,182, according to figures made public by the Department of Commerce. Texas was second among the states in the value of its foreign shipments during the quarter.

LOCKNEY.—A five to one majority for the issuance of $115,000 in bonds was given by the voters of Lockney independent school district in the election held for building and equipping a modern high school building.

AMARILLO.—With A. D. Jones of Roswell paying $1,000 for Ruth Mischief 12th, an 18 months old heifer of Major Domino, consigned by F. M. Love of Dumas, and $800 for Major Mischief, yearling son of Modest Mischief, consigned by Love, the thirteenth annual auction sale of the Panhandle Hereford Breeders' Association broke records on ten yearling standing. Twenty-nine bulls sold for $2,200, an average of $341.49 a head, ten females sold for $3,300, an average of $330.00.

AUSTIN.—Governor Moody vetoed all of the items carried in the $27,607.17 emergency educational appropriation bill, except the 1928 school provisions, the $17,000 for rural aid and a few other items. The depleted condition of the general revenue fund as of next September 1 was given as his reason for whittling the bill.

BROWNSVILLE.—Postmaster G. V. Bennett announced the receipt of 1,000 letters for transportation to

Nature Thought of Everything

Nature thought of everything when the human body was made. When the body is about to become ill, nature planned danger signals to warn us. Thus, if our children grind their teeth when they sleep, or lack appetite, or suffer from abdominal pains, or itch about the nose and fingers, we should know that they may have contracted worms. Then, if we are wise, we buy a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and safely and surely expel the worms. Thus we avoid the danger of very serious trouble. White's Cream Vermifuge costs only 35c a bottle, and can be bought from H. G. Ramby Drug Store

Mexico City by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Sunday. This will be the first southbound flight of the international mail from Mexico City to Brownsville which Lindbergh will inaugurate Saturday. He is scheduled to arrive here at 1:15 p. m. with his first northbound mail.

PLAINVIEW.—Beginning March 15, the city of Plainview will have a daily newspaper, as the result of a recent deal which consolidated the Evening Herald and the weekly Plainview News, which was announced today. Owners of the new Herald-News Publishing Company, Inc., are E. J. Perry, former publisher of the News, E. B. Miller and H. C. Thiburn, former owners of the Herald; and J. L. Nunn and Dr. J. E. Nunn of Amarillo.

COLEMAN.—A pecan tree on the farm of Lem Cresswell near here, last year netted $140. The yield was 640 pounds, and the nuts were of such good quality that they brought from 20 to 25 cents a pound. Mr. Cresswell marketed 12,000 pounds last year and expects to have 25,000 pounds this year because of new trees coming into bearing. He prefers pecans with shells of medium thickness rather than the ultra-thin shelled nuts, because birds and insects seldom bother them.

AUSTIN.—Reappointment of James Shaw as state banking commissioner was confirmed by the senate in executive session.

Mrs. H. H. Weimhold and two children, Forrest and George, made the round trip to Clovis, N. M., Saturday, and while there visited the Wicks Hatchery, one of the most up-to-date hatcheries in the South west.

CUTTING Lubricating Costs

Our volume of sales on Conoco Amalie Oils is growing larger each month, and there is a reason for this growth.

Our customers are buying these oils time after time and they are telling their neighbors about the lubricating satisfaction they are getting.

In this way the news is spreading that the CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY is the one to go to for cheaper lubricating values.

Tests are proving that tractor owners are getting more hours of running on Conoco Amalie Oils, and are holding up a better pressure on their indicators than with any oil they have ever used.

Car owners are finding their oil looks better and has a better body when drained from their car after a THOUSAND MILES OF RUNNING than other oils they had used after five hundred miles of running.

The proof is there before their eyes that by using Conoco Amalie Oils they are CUTTING THEIR LUBRICATING COSTS.

If you are not using this oil you are losing money

Littlefield

(Lamb County Leader.)
A general clean-up of the Littlefield cemetery is planned for Friday, of next week, to be sponsored by members of the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club, Parent-Teachers Association, Women's Study club and Boy Scouts.

Miss Barbara Green, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McGee, died at McCamey, March 1, of septic myocarditis. The funeral was held in Littlefield, her former home, from the Baptist church, Rev. Roy Kemp officiating.

R. W. Jones made a trip to Mineral Wells last Wednesday to take his wife and Mrs. R. F. Meacham there for medical treatment. He returned Sunday morning. When he returned he found his son, Emory, suffering from a serious attack of tonsillitis. Emory is not well yet, but is reported improving.

Officers and members of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, in regular session Tuesday noon gave considerable discussion in regard to resurveying and improving the local cemetery, and a committee was appointed to work in cooperation with others toward a definite plan of action.

The high school will enter the one act play contest this year. Miss Louise Thaxton will sponsor the play.

Notice is being published in this issue of the Lender, calling an election April 2nd, at the city hall, for the purpose of electing a mayor and two commissioners to serve the city during the coming two years.

Unusual prosperity in Littlefield and its surrounding territory is reflected through the increased bank deposits as compared with one year ago. The First National Bank has increased its deposits over $100,000 during the past 12 months.

Mr. J. C. Whicker, proprietor of the Littlefield hotel, which has been a very popular hostelry here for many years, will soon build a large addition to the hotel and make many additional improvements.

Amherst

(Amherst Argus.)
The Baptist revival meeting came to a close Sunday night, marked with every success. The preaching was done by Rev. Hulton Coffman, state evangelist, assisted by the local pastor, Rev. Hembree. L. C. Briscoe had charge of the choir.

Washington's birthday was celebrated gaily by the members of the Four Hundred Bridge Club Wednesday afternoon when they were entertained by Mrs. M. L. Walker.

At a recent meeting of the city officials, an audit of the city books was asked by the commission, and bids were asked on the same.

The Amherst track boys went to Littlefield Wednesday for try-out and practice with Coach Shelton.

We are informed that Rev. J. W. Hembree, pastor of the local church, will start a revival meeting at the Baptist church at Fieldton next Sunday.

Muleshoe

Muleshoe upheld her record of progressiveness last Thursday, when the Improvement Plan carried by a five to one vote and virtually means the paving of six blocks in the business part of the town. Although the voting was not as heavy as was expected, many people who did not go to the polls asserted that they were heartily in favor of the plan.

Building operations in Muleshoe and vicinity continue to increase each week and with the approach of spring, it is predicted that the city will see the largest building program in its history. With construction going forward on several residences and business houses, contractors are busy this week making estimates for additional structures, which are to be erected as soon as possible.

Levelland

(Hockley County Herald.)
About twenty members of the local Boy Scout Patrol enjoyed an outing at the lake about two miles north of town Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Gladys Howard, assistant deputy Grand Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, was the guest of the local chapter of this place Tuesday afternoon in an informal meeting held in the Masonic Hall.

The commissioners' court is in receipt of a communication from the Extension department of the A. & M. college stating that W. T. Magee, of southwest Texas, had been appointed agricultural agent for this county and would arrive here to assume his duties on March 10th.

What was perhaps the biggest single sale of grain to be made in Levelland, was that of Dr. G. W. Beakley and Son, who operate quite an acreage in the vicinity of Levelland and who finished the delivery of seven carloads of threshed hogear and maize, which was sold to the Joplin Implement and Grain Company some time ago. The total weight of the grain was in excess of 500,000 pounds. The price paid was $1.25 per hundred pounds.

Mrs. Humphrey and two children of Clovis spent Sunday with her father, Mr. F. P. Wilson, and sisters, Misses Lula Belle and Sue.

"Well," went on Father, "that's what I did. Since the X Y Z wanted my road I decided to let them have it, but to make them pay high for it. And I did make them pay. Oh, yes! I made them pay. And I took the money they paid and bought X Y Z stock with it. When the next stockholders' meeting comes around, as it will soon, the X Y Z will find that while they were grabbing my little road I was grabbing their whole big system. And, if Mr. Paul is right in what he tells me, it is the X Y Z road itself and not the individual directors who have bought the A B C. The result is that I shall really own both roads, for I own the X Y Z, and the X Y Z owns the A B C. Haw, haw, haw!" Father chuckled deep and long.

Then he went on. "I owe a lot of it to you, Paul; and to you, Fred," he said, "and I want to thank you both. Later, I'll be able to give you a more substantial evidence of my gratitude." Fred got up. I knew he got up, though I could not see him. There was something in his voice that told he was rising. "You can square things with me right now, Mr. Dinsmore," he said. "I've been wanting to ask you something for a long while, and this is my chance."

I caught my breath. I remembered what Fred had said to me on that horseback ride at the beginning of the whole trouble. Could he be about to—No, it was too preposterous! Still—"Well, what is it?" It seemed to me that Father's voice had grown a little harsh.

"I want to marry your daughter, Josephine," said Fred. Josephine! I caught my breath again. Josephine! Good gracious! Could Fred have been talking about Josephine all the time when I thought he was talking about me? If so—well! It was a fearful blow to my vanity, all right. And coming right on top of my finding out that Father had taken pretty nearly everybody except me into the confidence. It was heartrending. And when I remembered that Mr. Braxton had gone away without any adequate explanation and that I didn't know who he was, anyhow, it was simply crushing. I didn't wait to hear Father's answer. I didn't wait for anything. I just turned and ran.

Somewhat I stumbled down the stairs to the second story and turned along the corridor to my room. I wanted to bury my nose in the pillow and—Oh! Let it go at that. Then, abruptly, I stopped. A noise, faint but unmistakable came from somewhere below and stopped me in mid career. I went to the balustrade and looked down.

I saw nobody. But I saw something. A faint yellow glow that had not been there before. Illumined the hall. For a moment I could not make out where it came from. Then I saw that it must be from the doorway that led to the basement stairs.

I was scared, I'll admit, not so much because I ascribed any supernatural powers to those nocturnal visitors as because I didn't know who or what they were. They might be robbers, for all I knew. Nevertheless, I was mad and heartless and reckless and didn't care what happened. So I marched straight down the stairs to the basement door on down into the lower regions.

The cellars were low and vaulted and divided up by big pillars. I rushed along. Pretty soon I saw that the brightest light came from behind an extra big pillar a little way ahead on the right. It was a different sort of light from that in the rest of the house. It had the same whitish greenish, bluish, glory quality that I had noticed in the ballroom the night before. I recognized it in a moment and knew I was on the track of my ghosts. I poked my head from behind a pillar and looked.

I almost fainted. Right in the middle of a small quadrangular place under the strongest glare of the lights was a cot on which a man lay sleeping. And stealing toward him, dagger in hand, came a woman—a woman dressed in a long flowing gown of white. There was no mistaking her intentions. Murder was written in her very gesture.

I would have given anything to have screamed but I couldn't do it. I couldn't move. Terror paralyzed me. Then beyond the woman I caught sight of Perkins. He was working his head backward and forward just like the old vulture that he was. That broke the spell. With a shriek I rushed forward and flung myself between the murderess and her prey. "Stop! Stop!" I shrieked. "Stop! You devil!"

And then the woman stopped. And I saw that she was Miss Labert. She was apparently quite as much frightened as I had been. She dropped the hand that held the dagger. Then—"Gee," she said, "if it ain't the little Dinsmore kid. What do you know about that?"

I gasped. I was not an expert on murders, but I was certain that this was not at all the sort of remark that a thwarted murderess ought to make. A sickening feeling that I had made some awful mistake swept over me.

Then behind me I heard the cot creak as the sleeping man jumped from it; and before I could turn he caught me in his arms.

"You dear brave girl," he cried, in my ear. "You're the dearest, bravest, loveliest girl I ever saw in all my life."

It was Mr. Braxton's voice. I twisted my head and looked over my shoulder. It was Mr. Braxton who held me. I suppose I shrieked and pulled back. I know I faced completely around.

But Mr. Braxton did not let me go. Instead he smiled. "You darling," he said. His lips were very near mine.

I hesitated. Then slowly I swayed forward and—Oh, well. You know! Then I heard a ripple of applause behind me and a voice asked: "Did you get it, Jimmy?" And another voice answered: "You bet I did. It'll be a peach-erino, too. She didn't cloak the action a bit!"

I wrenched myself round horrified, bewildered, amazed—Oh! Anything you like. Two or three men were standing about a black box, on which was mounted a tripod. One of them was turning a crank attached to the box.

I think I understood then. But Mayo didn't wait for the knowledge to permeate. "It's all right, dear," he said. "We're moving-picture people. Perkins let us use the house in making our new play. We were nearly done when you and your sister turned up and we just had to finish it, or lose all that we had done. You see, we had used the locations in earlier scenes and we couldn't possibly duplicate them successfully elsewhere. You'll forgive us, won't you, dear?"

"Then—then"—I had grasped the main fact, but I was slow in absorbing the details—"then you were only acting in that automobile. You weren't really hurt?"

Mayo smiled. "I was acting, yes," he said. "But I was hurt too. There wasn't any deception about that part of it. But the doctor strapped me up and I managed to get through the rest of the scenes that night. And tonight there wasn't much to do. I only had to be murdered!"

"Murdered!" I gasped; then I laughed nervously. "Oh, of course I'm a goose," I agreed. "But—but—" I glanced around and dropped my voice to a whisper—"in the ballroom last night you—you really kissed her and you—you seemed to like it so and—"

But with a joyous laugh Mayo gathered me into his arms. It almost seemed as if this was somebody else's cue to butt in. Any way they did it. "Here! Here! Here!" protested a voice.

I looked up and saw Father and Mr. Paul and Josephine and Fred glaring at us with eyes as big as saucers. "Hello, Dad," I said, happily. "Come and shake hands with your son-in-law to-be."

Dad seemed paralyzed. For the first time in my life I had knocked him completely out. His lips moved but he couldn't say a word. He simply gulped.

But Perkins saved the situation. Perkins was still there, though I quite forgot him. Now he sprang forward and shook his skinny fist in Mr. Paul's face.

"Oh, he!" he cried. "You said I couldn't act, did ye no? Ye put chief Gin ye care to see 'The Murder at the Chateau,' ye'll find out whether I can act or no. Who's the rule now, I'm askin' you. Who's the rule now?" Mayo whispered in my ear. "We had to give the old man a part in the play or he wouldn't have let us use the house," he explained. "Mr. Paul seems to have told him once that he couldn't act and he's hated him ever since."

I understood.

Well! That's about all. Dinsmore's Folly is in steady demand now at enormous prices to picture companies who find its varied architecture very valuable. Father is head of the X Y Z system. Jimmy—Jimmy was the cameraman—finished up the picture he had taken of Mayo and me and gave it to us for a wedding present. I guess it's about the only bona fide picture of a really truly unconscious courtship in existence.

(THE END.)

WHAT'S DOING IN WEST TEXAS

The stock judging team of the West Texas State Teachers College attended the thirty-third annual Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth. The team was composed of three students and Professor Frank R. Phillips.

A new garage building 100 by 140 feet will be constructed in Dalhart within the next thirty days by Chas. Williams. This building when completed will place business houses on three sides of the county court house.

Plans have been completed for a new two-story, fifty by eighty foot Masonic hall for Perryton. It is planned to put a basement under the building with provision for the installation of a heating plant, which will be used only if Perryton fails to get natural gas soon.

Cow testing in the Association in Deaf Smith county reveals that in one herd one cow made a net profit of $16.62 in five months, while another made a profit of $69.50. Six herds are under test and ten "boarded" cows have already been sold because of poor performance, according to reports from Hereford.

Kermitt pow has, in addition to numerous important improvements, a $10,000 railroad station being completed, a new $250,000 court house, a school house just starting costing $125,000 and a contract of $189,000 has recently been awarded by the state for a highway.

The Brady Building and Loan Association has announced that it will loan money to Brady citizens, enabling them to pave streets adjoining their premises, at $1.58 per month on every $100. Forty blocks of resident paving have been completed and more contracted for.

R. L. McCaskey, Boy Scout manager at Guymon, is planning to secure a plot of ground to be used as a nursery for shade trees, with the boy scouts to be drilled in the care of the plants. He will help with the seeding and care of ground around the court house.

Thirty-five planes have landed at the Ranger airport since its opening last Armistice Day, when in two days forty-eight planes attended the celebration. The daily average income of the well-equipped airport is $2.60 from gasoline and oil and hangar service.

Work is drawing to a close on the new two-story Lockney Hotel. It will have fifteen guest rooms, coffee shop, lobby, barber shop and some stores on the ground floor. It may be decided to put another of fifteen rooms on the building.

Within the next six months Merkel will have a four story modern hotel to cost $25,000. On the first floor will be a commodious lobby, office, cigar stand, drug store, coffee shop, with banquet hall adjoining, and five store buildings. The upper three floors are to have 44 guest rooms.

The Pecos Mercantile Company is to install more than $15,000 worth of new equipment with a new mezzanine floor, a new men's shoe department. This store when built twenty years ago was considered one of the most modern in West Texas.

Would You Know One If You Saw It?

If you ever came face to face with a germ, would you recognize it? Of course it is not likely that you ever will see a germ, unless you own a tremendously powerful microscope, for you would have to magnify one over a thousand times to make it as big as a pin head. But you should recognize the fact that these tiny germs can get into your blood streams through the smallest cut, and give you typhoid fever, tuberculosis, lockjaw, blood poisoning, and many more dangerous and perhaps fatal diseases. There is one sure safeguard against these dangers — washing every cut, no matter how small, thoroughly with Liquid Borozone, the safe antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borozone at H. G. to extend the $50,000 storm sewer from East Third street to the T. & P. drainage ditch. This extension will be made at a cost of $20,000 and will care for the flood waters coming from the south part of the city.

A contract has been let for the paving of four and one-half blocks of street in the main business section of Santa Anna. At the time the paving is done the water main will be replaced with an eight inch pipe which will cause the insurance fire rate to be reduced.

FIGHT FOR HOMES

One thousand residents of the Western boundary between Oklahoma and Texas who just learned they were residents of Texas, prepared recently to fight for retention of 42,000 acres of land granted years ago to homesteaders.

For a length of approximately 130 miles there is a narrow wedge-shaped strip of land widening as it extends to the south where 1,000 "Oklahomans" face the possibility of losing their homes because the land on which they settled is now claimed by Texas.

A supreme court decision several years ago fixed the western Oklahoma border along the 100th meridian. A survey, conducted more recently, located the exact boundary and discovered to the dismay of 190 families that the land the government had granted them as homesteaders no longer belonged to them, but to the state of Texas.

The national government has never had the right to "patent" or to grant to homesteaders, Texas public land because when the Lone Star state entered the union it retained right to its own public lands.

So title to the 42,000 acres now reverts to Texas and the 190 families must file claims in this state. But, meanwhile, several Texas land sharks are said to be making an effort to file on the land before the present land owners have a chance.

If the face is the index of the mind some of our girls have highly colored imaginations.

'We Will Meet You With a Smile'

Happenings of The Schools

We Sophs feel ourselves fortunate this week. We get to report the marriage of one of our favorite teachers. Miss Rosa Hammon, our mathematics teacher for three years and Mr. W. R. Elmore stole a march on all of us last Friday evening by slipping away to Muleshoe where a marriage ceremony was performed for them by Elder Hicks of the Methodist church there. Miss Hammon has been our athletic coach this year in addition to her other duties. At an early date in the season the basketball team, to show her their respect and love, presented her a splendid coach's sweater. Much a we regret to lose Mrs. Elmore, who has announced her intention of retiring after this year, we give her our very best wishes and bid her God speed in building a happy home for herself and husband. Mr. Elmore is one of the prosperous farmers of the Circleback country, and is worthy of the woman he has won as his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Newton had as guests for the past week-end, a brother of Mr. Newton, who with his wife drove up from Brownwood to take a bird's eye view of the plains.

Miss Bond spent the week-end in Clovis nursing a rather serious sinus affection. She did not return until the late stage Monday evening. During her absence Mrs. Talbott directed her English classes along the primrose path of English proficiency.

Friday afternoon was given over to a school track meet. Grover Crain was high point man of this meet. However, he will not be permitted to represent us in the county meet since last Friday was his 21st birthday. He can say that the day he came of age he gave a good account of himself for his class. The Senior class was the winner of this meet, but the Sophomores crowded them hard for honors. The Sophomores beat the Juniors and the Freshmen.

Monday afternoon our declaimers were selected as follows: Seniors, Lenora Payne and Leonard Payne; Juniors, Charlie Simmons and Hazel Shores. It was our good fortune to have Brother Harder of the Baptist church with us as one of the declaimers' judges. We shall be glad when he moves into the parsonage across the street from us, and he assured us that it would be only a few days until he will be over there. The other judges of this contest were Brother Hooton and Mesdames Wells, Talbott and Fouts.

This week has seen us with another marked increase in enrollment, our total enrollment for the year now being 730. Of the new group of students only one is in high school. Lester Elmore, who is coming into town with Mrs. Elmore, as she is staying at home and driving back and forth each day.

The Juniors gave an additional presentation of "The Bride Broom" at Fairview last Saturday evening. They each report a pleasant experience with our neighbor school. We Sophs met in town last Saturday evening expecting to be entertained by our sponsor, Mr. Newton, but company for the evening prevented his entertaining us, so we went to the home of Katherine Findley where we all had a most enjoyable evening, even if we did "storm" her.

The news has leaked out that Messrs. Talbott and Findley had a birthday dinner last Sunday, but they refuse to tell exactly how many dozen candles were lighted on the birthday cake. However, T. J. says he could not count all of them, and we believe that T. J. can count nearly to 100. This we do know, they invited the family of Mr. Wilkins over to eat birthday cake. Mr. Wilkins and his family report "lots to eat." Say, people, pass your invitation next time to hungry boys and girls instead of to well-fed teachers. They will appreciate it much more.

Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins had as guests at dinner, Mrs. MacMillan, Miss Evelyn Runnels, and Mr. Don Broyles. Don told that he ate too much turkey Sunday, and we are just piecing things together. Miss Eads and Mrs. Wells, two of the grammar school faculty, spent the week-end in Lubbock.

Friday evening Messrs. Wilkins, Talbott and Brown motored over to Lubbock. They report that they visited the Tech as guests at a meeting of the Pi Gamma Mu Fraternity. While in Lubbock they equipped themselves with a supply of track and field goods for the use of the school.

We are told that a reception for Mrs. Elmore will be the order of the day later in the week, but you readers must wait until next week to learn just what nature it will take. Attendance is growing again this week. Many of those who have been out due to illness are getting back. The trucks are again carrying in considerably more than 300.

Sunday seemed to be an important day for inspection of our school buildings. Among the teaching visitors were one gentleman from Plainview whose name we did not secure. Others were Miss Edna Tumlinson of Amherst; Mrs. John Briscoe, Jr. of Pilderton; Mr. and Mrs. Young of Abertown; Mr. Young is vocational teacher there and his wife heads the language department.

Mr. Findley, our very efficient janitor, has been on the sick list for a few days but he seems to be improving now.

Do not forget the date of our county track and field meet at Olton. It will be Friday and Saturday, the 22nd and 23rd of this month. On those dates we shall undertake to verify the belief of our teachers and coaches in our ability to meet other schools when we have a fair chance. We do not have it in basketball or football because of a lack of field equipment for the games, but we should be able to compete with any one in field and track. There will be no school on those days, nor will a truck run then. Each pupil must see to getting himself over to Olton. This day will not be lost, but later on it will be made up.

It is a matter of considerable interest to our groups to watch how the Seniors observe their credits at this season of the year. Well, perhaps, we Sophomores will be just as much interested in such a procedure within two years, but we hope to enter a Senior class with every requirement satisfied to that time.

The Sophomore Class.

PRESS LETTER

(From A. & M. College of Texas and U. S. Dept. of Agriculture co-operating.)

New Small Grain Varieties Profitable DENTON.—If all farmers in this county had grown Denton wheat last year there would have been an additional $150,000 farm income, judging by the reports of 14 demonstrators to M. T. Payne, county agent. These men planted 173 acres to this variety from which they threshed an average of seven bushels more to the acre than from ordinary seed. At market prices it represented a net profit of $1211.

SAGERTON (Haskell County).—How contouring land to conserve moisture doubled the cotton yield is told by W. P. Trice, county agent, in describing a demonstration with G. H. Nehring, who lives near here. "Due to the lateness of the season only two contour lines were run last year on this farm and from 30 acres of cotton planted on this contoured land 7 bales were gathered. Mr. Nehring's son planted 50 acres of the same land, only separated by a turning plow, in rows running up and down the hill. He made 6 bales of cotton."

CONCHO.—"Sheep never had stomach worms and tape worms until you came along with your post-mortem examinations," a veteran ranchman here told Roy Terry, county agent, the other day. "The used to die, though," he added with a twinkle in his eye. Last year 10,000 sheep were treated for stomach worms in Concho county in demonstrations by Mr. Terry, who declares that capsules of tetrachloroethylene are proving the most efficient remedy since ranchers have learned how to use them.

PITTSBURG.—Many farmers here are in the habit of side dressing sweet potatoes with fertilizer but demonstrations by six farmers in Camp county last year failed to show large enough increased yields to make the practice pay. Side dressings of 100 pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer to the acre increased yields slightly more than seven bushels. W. R. Morgan, county agent, states that this increase hardly paid for the fertilizer and the extra cost of applying and harvesting, and did not compensate for the risk of damaging the crop by marring the beds.

WELLINGTON.—Preston Phillips, a farmer who lives in the local community and who has paid for his quarter section in six years, told the county agent recently that he made 45 bales of cotton on 50 terraced acres, and that he did not believe he could have produced half that amount without the terraces.

Nature's First Law

The planets that circle high up in the sky
Are kept in their orbits for some reason why;
And some power unseen, yet plainly we know,
Keeps them in their place and makes them all go.
And this same power has laid down a plan,
Called nature's laws, for the guidance of man.
Preservation is nature's first law, they say,
And you must save, if this law you obey.
The First National Bank can teach you no more
Than nature has taught many times before.
