School menu rules

WASHINGTON — Children might still get pizza and hamburgers when new rules force schools to reduce the fat and cholesterol in lunches. But instead of a side of fries, they'll be offered carrot sticks. The fries might show up on a menu later in the week. That's the spirit of regulations the Agriculture Department will announce today: nudging schools toward better diets but not trying to deny 25 million children everything their taste buds crave./7A

WASHINGTON — Non-smoking wives who live with smokers have about a 30 percent increased chance of developing lung cancer compared with women in tobacco-free homes, a large-scale study says. The study, the largest of its kind, supports earlier tests that show a cancer risk from secondhand smoke./7A

Parker & Parsley to buy interests in 1,850 wells

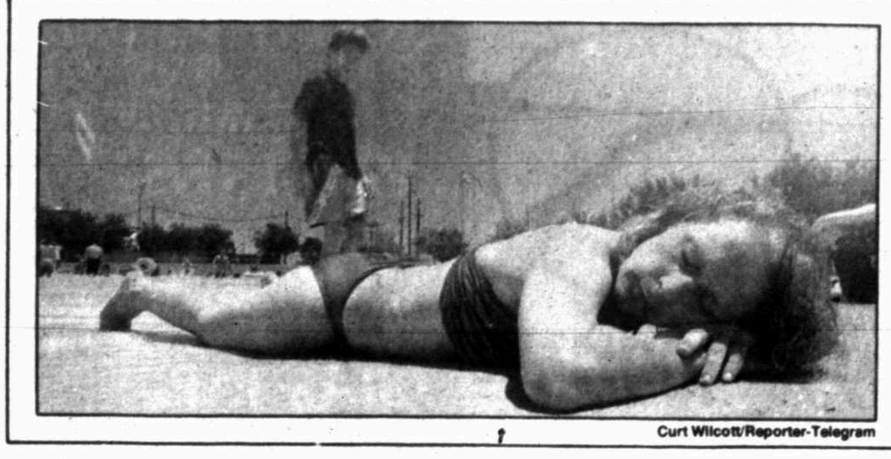

Associated Press

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. said Tuesday it has agreed to pay $122 million for interests and development rights in about 1,850 producing oil and gas wells from PG&E Resources Co.

The deal is expected to close Aug. 1, with an effective purchase date of March 1. Parker & Parsley said it will fund the acquisition under its current bank credit agreement.

Health-reform crunch opens on Capitol Hill

■ If bills aren't passed, sent to conference by mid-August, Congress may lose chance to overhaul program this year, most Democrats say.

By Adam Clymer
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — With an ominous fight over abortion in one Senate committee, Congress stepped off Tuesday into four weeks of activity on health-care legislation that the House majority leader, Richard A. Gephardt, called "critically important."

Unless its committees produce bills this month for their colleagues to vote on, Congress may lose the chance to overhaul health care this year. Gephardt said, "The way I see it, we need to be on the floor in July."

Neither Gephardt nor other Democratic leaders would say that missing that target would be fatal. But most of them say that if bills are not passed in both houses and sent to a House-Senate conference by the mid-August vacation break, there will not be enough time to assemble and pass any substantial health legislation before Congress quits for the November elections.

The leaders want to obtain legislation from as many committees as they can. They could then claim a broader base for the packages they would devise from those proposals and put before their colleagues for a vote.

To get bills passed by each house by August, especially in the Senate where debate can drag on endlessly, they want committee versions they can work on by early July.

While leaders insist they still have time, they have suffered setbacks, from the ouster of one chairman they

City that never wins takes on Big Apple

HOUSTON — It is the city that never sleeps vs. the city that never wins.

Houston, whose Rockets will play host to the New York Knicks tonight in the opening game of the National Basketball Association finals, is desperate for its first-ever, bona fide world-class championship — and an intangible measure of world-class, major-league respect to go with it.

And if the all-important symbolism of such a championship comes under the watchful eyes of people in New York, the nation's biggest city and media capital, so much the sweeter.

Plagued by a legendary history of last-second collapses by teams that seemed on the verge of greatness, America's fourth-largest city has an

United Methodist Church "has a global understanding of Christianity," Bishop Norris says.

Bishop reflects during breaks in annual Methodist gathering

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

When Bishop Alfred L. Norris entered Dillard University in New Orleans in the late 1950s, his sights were set on a profession other than the ministry.

"I've been in the church all my life, and it's really all that I know," said Norris — bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area who is presiding over the 85th session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The conference is being held through noon Thursday at First United Methodist Church in Midland.

"I must confess, however, because there were so many clergy persons in my family, I didn't want to be one initially. I felt that enough Norrises had gone into ordained ministry and there ought to be something else that I could do."

Summer jobs, number of applicants dry up

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

The number of youth entering the U.S. job market this summer is expected to reach 24.5 million, but locally, the number of students seeking summer-only work appears to have diminished during recent years.

Statistics compiled by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics indicate the 16- to 24-year-old labor force will expand about 3.7 million during the July seasonal peak.

But opportunities for summer work for local students have decreased.

"Over the last 10 years, we've seen a drastic decrease in summer hiring," said Jackie Mosley, Texas Employment Commission manager in Midland.

For the high-school student seeking seasonal employment, there is no one institution to turn to for job listings, Ms. Mosley said.

The TEC has several listings for jobs

Clinton: Seek unity or face 'grim alternative'

■ While addressing French National Assembly, Clinton warns of 'militant nationalism, cancerous prejudice, people addicted to political painkillers of violence, demagoguery.'

Associated Press

PARIS — Where Woodrow Wilson once stood, President Clinton challenged his generation of Allied leaders Tuesday to strive for greater European unity or face "the grim alternative" of violence like that rending Bosnia.

"Now we have arrived at this century's third moment of decision," he said in an address to the French National Assembly. Not since Wilson, in 1919, had an American addressed the French Parliament; he did during his crusade for the League of Nations, a failure at home, where the Senate would not approve U.S. membership.

"We must set our sights on a strategic star, ... the integration and strengthening of a broader Europe," Clinton said.

He said it will take years, perhaps decades, of resources and effort, all "very difficult for democracies" when their people see no immediate peril and must be convinced to confront more distant threats.

Clinton said the strategy should be to "secure the peace of a broader Europe and its prosperity" through security cooperation, and the expansion of market economics and democracy from western Europe to former Cold War rivals eastward to Russia.

"We can already see the grim alternative," he said. "Militant nationalism ... cancerous prejudice ... people addicted to the political painkillers of violence and demagoguery."

Clinton said there are signs of all that in "the purposeful slaughter in Bosnia," where Serbian forces have besieged and conquered 72 percent of the primarily Muslim state.

He discussed the factional fighting in the former Yugoslavia at a series of conferences with French leaders, Prime Minister Edouard Balladur, President Francois Mitterrand, and Jacques Chirac, the mayor Paris.

France has about 6,800 troops in Bosnia and Croatia as part of the U.N. peacekeeping force, and the government has some or all might be withdrawn by winter unless there is progress toward a settlement.

In his talk with Balladur, an administration official said, Clinton spoke of the usefulness and the bravery of the U.S. troops. "The French gave no indication that under the current circumstances that they were preparing to remove ... troops," the official said. Clinton said he and Balladur reaffirmed their determination to work closely together in dealing with Bosnia.

After his conference with Mitterrand, Clinton said the French president agreed with his policy.

Israel to resume land-for-peace talks with Syria, minister says

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and Syria are about to resume direct talks on a land-for-peace deal over the Golan Heights in which the United States will play a central role, an Israeli Cabinet minister said Tuesday.

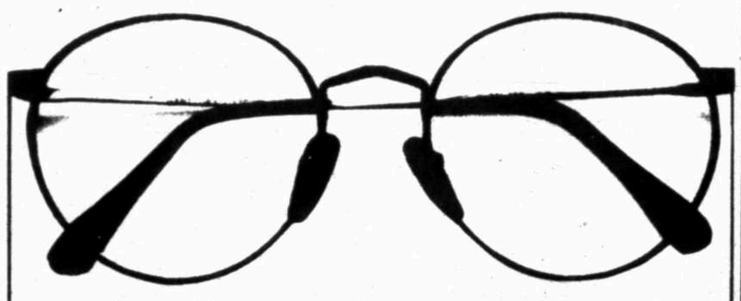

Environment Minister Yossi Sarid said Israel would have to pay a "very, very painful" price for accommodation with Syria, but it would clear the way for peace with other Arab states.

"The negotiations with Syria are about to resume," Sarid told Israel radio. "I can only hope that this round, in which the U.S. secretary of state will participate, will be more positive and promising."

The most recent round of talks between the two countries was held in January. The negotiations were halted after the Feb. 25 Hebron mosque massacre in which a Jewish settler killed 30 Palestinian worshipers.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher has traveled to the region twice since then, visiting Damascus and Jerusalem in an effort to mediate the differences.

Syria wants Israel to declare its readiness to pull out of the entire Golan Heights, captured in the 1967 Middle East War.

North Korea: U.N. distorts facts, inspections remain possibility

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — North Korea accused the United Nations on Tuesday of distorting facts in the dispute over its secretive nuclear progam, and said there is still time for inspectors to verify that it hasn't diverted reactor fuel to make weapons.

But with the United States pushing for U.N. sanctions, chances appeared slim that the North would allow international inspectors full access to its nuclear facilities.

South Korea, meanwhile, said it would do whatever necessary to keep its Communist rival from developing atomic weapons.

"At whatever cost, we will retaliate for North Korea's attempt to develop nuclear weapons," Deputy Prime Minister Lee Hong-koo said in Seoul.

In a letter released Tuesday in Vienna, where the International Atomic Energy Agency is meeting, the head of North Korea's atomic energy department accused the U.N. nuclear watchdog of "wrong conclusions and unreasonable behavior."

The letter from Pak Yong Nam said fuel rods have been removed from an experimental reactor in a way that "preserves the technical possibility" of determining whether any fuel has been diverted.

Hans Blix, director of the nuclear agency, has told the U.N. Security Council that fuel rods were removed in a way that precludes inspectors from determining whether nuclear material was diverted.

North Korea insists its nuclear program is peaceful, but refuses to allow full inspections.

A North Korean envoy in Vienna, Yun Ho Jin, said the U.N. agency had passed up past opportunities to check reactor fuel.

"The evidence clearly shows that some officials of the agency secretariat are ready to distort even technicalities in favor of the ulterior intentions to implement instructions of a superpower," he said.

North Korea has accused the United States and its allies of using nuclear inspections as a cover for military spying.

The United States is pushing for economic sanctions against North Korea. Before introducing a resolution in the Security Council, U.S. officials are working to assure the support of Russia and China, both of which have veto power.

Colombian quake spurs floods, avalanches

BOGOTA, Colombia (NYT) — An earthquake measuring 6.8 on the Richter scale shook several areas of southwestern Colombia on Monday, causing avalanches and floods that totally or partly destroyed several villages.

There were confirmed deaths of about 100 and reports Tuesday of as many as 500 people missing.

With hundreds believed dead, this is the worst natural disaster in Colombia since a volcano eruption killed 21,000 people nine years ago.

The tremor, which was felt in several parts of the country, including Bogota — about 200 miles north of the epicenter in Toribio, northern Cauca — led to about 14 aftershocks and disrupted a glacier known as Nevado del Huila, producing an avalanche.

Officials in the areas affected said villages such as Irlanda and Toez had "completely disappeared from the landscape" as a result of the avalanche and flooding.

The police director, Gen. Carlos Alberto Pulido, said that reports of casualties were not complete. Five Red Cross rescue workers were reported missing. The priest added that the floods had caused the water level to rise almost 33 feet.

City sweats triple-digit heat

Staff Report

High temperatures have stopped just short of breaking any records the past few days, but Midland still has suffered under sweltering 100-degree weather — which is predicted through at least the end of the week.

Tuesday's high temperature soared to 105, coming just one degree away from the record high for that date set in 1964. And, with no major weather systems moving into the area, the trend will continue.

A National Weather Service spokesman said the atomsphere was "basically sitting still," a common occurance this time of year. That combined with hot, south winds have had West Texans wiping off the sweat and turning up the air conditioning.

The hot weather also caused 40 residents at Terrace Gardens Nursing Center, 2901 W. Ohio, to be moved to Terrace West Nursing Center, 2800 N. Midland Drive, after an air conditioning unit broke down Tuesday. A nursing center administrator said the unit was being fixed and the residents should be back at home today.

Today should be sunny with a high near 103 and southwest winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be clear with a low near 70.

Thursday should be sunny with a high between 95-100.

Tuesday's low reached 76, compared to the record low of 57 set in 1949.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

NEVER: Houston is desperate for a winner

even more ignominious mantle to shed. It is one of only two cities with longstanding big-league franchises in baseball, football and basketball and without any championship whatsoever to show for it. The other is Atlanta.

But this year is different, say people in Houston, who are caught up in a frenzied effort to show support for the Rockets — holding not one but three pre-series rallies this week, dressing and even painting themselves in the team's colors of red and gold, and waving banners everywhere that read "Clutch City," a deliberate effort to ward off the "Choke City" moniker that Houston teams earned by setting all-time records for the biggest blown leads in playoff games in two separate sports.

Houston has the home-court advantage in this series. And even more important, it has "The Dream" — Hakeem Olajuwon, the league's most valuable player this year. He has been playing center for Houston teams since 1981, when he came to the University of Houston from his native Nigeria.

'There is no question that winning it all is an extremely important psychological thing for Houston. Houston feels that it is in fact a great city, but it has never had a championship and never gotten that recognition even though it is such a dumb thing, really.'

— Stephen Klineberg, a Houston sociologist

Many Houstonians say that their city's irritating failure to come up a sports winner is emblematic of its inability to be widely recognized as a big-time player in other, more enduring respects.

But Houston should indisputably be considered a world-class city. Often referred to as the energy capital of the world and the nerve center of the country's space program, it is blessed with attributes such as a relentlessly can-do civic optimism, top-rank museums and theater, magnificent parks that are green year-round, and arguably the most advanced cluster of hospitals and health-research facilities anywhere at the Texas Medical Center here.

In fact, Houston should be known as more than a world-class city. As many Houston boosters like to point out, the very first word ever spoken by a man on the moon, 25 years ago this summer, was "Houston."

Not New York or Paris, but Houston — as in, "Houston, Tranquility Base here. The Eagle has landed."

Instead, though, Houston has been the butt of too many jokes, its clogged freeways, unending sprawl and torridly human weather often lumped together in a biting dismissal of the place as "Los Angeles with the climate of Calcutta." No mountains and no beach, either.

Perhaps even worse, Houston has at times even seemed to live in the shadow of a smaller upstate rival, Dallas. No one ever conceived of a hit television show called "Houston," and no one has ever called the football Oilers "America's team," as they do the four-time Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

A world championship for the Rockets could at last serve to introduce a new image: Houston as Winnersville.

"There is no question that winning it all is an extremely important psychological thing for Houston," said Stephen Klineberg, a sociologist at the University of Houston who conducts an annual survey of Houstonians' attitudes on a range of issues.

"Houston feels that it is in fact a great city," he said, "but it has never had a championship and never gotten that recognition even though it is such a dumb thing, really."

CRUNCH: Dems open health-reform push were counting on, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski at the House Ways and Means Committee, to the inability of all five major committees to meet their self-imposed deadline of action by Memorial Day.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, where abortion rights advocates won battles Tuesday, is the only committee with a final vote in sight. Its chairman, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., hopes for a final vote this week and has faced no obstruction, and even occasional support, from committee Republicans.

The more problematic Senate Finance Committee is expected to meet privately on Thursday to consider a draft proposal from its chairman, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Moynihan has moved more slowly than any other chairman as he searched for Republican support. But he is expected to offer a proposal that would require employers to pay for their workers' health insurance, a central element of President Clinton's plan and all the Democratic leadership variations, as well as the element Republicans most strongly attack in every committee.

No House committee has yet taken up any version of the bill.

The House Ways and Means Committee will hold party caucuses today, and Democrats will have their first exposure to the leadership of their new acting chairman, Rep. Sam M. Gibbons of Florida.

He took over when Rostenkowski of Illinois was indicted and faces an awesome initial challenge with health care legislation. No committee votes are likely before next week.

The Energy and Commerce Committee, which once hoped to lead the way in the House, has been stuck just a vote or two short of a majority for any proposal since early April.

Its chairman, Rep. John D. Dingell, has not given up but is making no evident progress.

The House Education and Labor Committee, with a steadfastly liberal majority, seems certain to adopt a sweeping bill. But it has been waiting to see what happens in other House committees.

Gephardt's sense of urgency was endorsed, in more muted terms, by the Senate majority leader, George Mitchell of Maine, who agreed on the importance of action before the July 4 break.

"Obviously the longer the time consumed in committee, the less time for floor action," he said, adding that he expected Senate debate to take "some weeks, but I can't be any more precise than that."

A taste of that debate came in the only committee that met Tuesday, the Senate Labor Committee.

Abortion rights advocates won two committee fights by comfortable margins. Significantly, they defeated by a vote of 11 to 6 an effort to prohibit any national health insurance plan from paying for abortions except in cases of threats to a mother's life, rape or incest.

But they and their foes both warned of potential stalemate in the full Senate on the issue. "If abortion is not in the bill," warned Sen. Barbara A. Mikulski, D-Md., "it will be a big fight."

Similarly, but from a different perspective, Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., predicted "a standoff on the floor" if abortion services were specifically included in the bill.

Wofford, who wanted the bill to say that insurers could decide whether they wanted to cover the procedure, warned that unless the issue was handled delicately, it could kill health legislation.

"That must not happen," he said.

POLL: 78.9 percent feel a curfew is needed

(From 1A)

however, no action has been taken.

In addition, a large number of callers — both for and against a curfew — feel that control lies with parents, and not with city officials or police.

"I appreciate the fact that Dallas was able to pass a curfew," said Joshua Wimberly, of Odessa. "I can't think of the need for any child under the age of 16 to be out that late. There are no constructive things to be done that late for people of that age."

"It's a super idea," Debbie Elander said. "There are groups of us in Midland that have been discussing this the last couple of weeks. The kids need the curfew so the parents can know where their kids are at all times. To not have one is causing trouble in Midland."

A female caller named Jackie voted in favor of the curfew. "I work at Walgreen's. When I got off at 12:15 the other morning, there were three boys in our parking lot skateboarding."

Only a very small percentage of the callers who participated in the poll and left comments were believed to be teens.

"I believe that although a curfew would probably help curb some of the violence, some of the teen-agers know what they're doing and are not all juvenile delinquents," one teen caller said. "We should not have to come home at 11 o'clock just because some people give us a bad name."

"The government has taken too much upon itself," Dave Roberts said. "It's time we left things to the parents and demanded more parental guidance. The government should not get involved in homes and in telling parents what to do. It would be one more step toward totalitarianism."

James Beatty agreed, saying, "I believe those who break the law should be punished, not everybody. There's no point in punishing everybody for what just a few do."

Mrs. Tom Allred said, "If parents did their job, this would not be needed. And I'm sorry that most parents do not do their job."

"I definitely think a curfew is needed," Mrs. Harry Miller said. "And Mr. Miller feels the same way. We must get this situation under control."

Another anonymous caller, who moved here from a smaller community where a curfew was in effect, said such a law "forces parents to take more interest in what their kids are doing." The caller added that "vandalism was a virtual unknown" in the town where the curfew was in effect.

An anonymous caller said, "I think it's a crying shame that the judges in this community are trying to impose a curfew on their children based upon the fraudulent findings of a grand jury report that claimed that all the things our kids are doing are bad. We just don't need this kind of thing in this community."

Another anonymous caller said, "I think parents should get back in control of their children. If they don't, the city will have to."

WELLS: P&P cuts major deal

(From 1A)

ating subsidiary of Dallas-based DALEN Resources Corp., a subsidiary of Pacific Gas & Electric Co., the company said.

The acquisition is Parker & Parsley's second major deal in a month. In mid-May, the company made an unsolicited offer to buy all the common stock of the Australian company Bridge Oil Ltd. for $208 million. Company officials have been in Australia working to complete the offer, which is set to expire June 12 unless Parker & Parsley decides to extend it.

Most of the properties in the PG&E deal are located in the Permian Basin of West Texas and the Mid-Continent and Rocky Mountain regions. They include PG&E's interests in four Spraberry units — Driver, Pembrook, Jo-Mill and Canon Ranch — as well as interest in other Spraberry properties.

Also included in the deal is PG&E's 85 percent working interest in and operations of the Eola-Robberson Field in Garvin County, Okla. Parker & Parsley also will get a 100 percent interest in the Elmore City Gas Processing Plant.

Last year, the daily net production from the total producing oil and gas wells included in the deal were some 5,300 barrels of oil and 26 million cubic feet of natural gas. The reserves are 65 percent oil and 35 percent natural gas, Parker & Parsley said.

JOBS: Summer work dries up

such as in restaurants and grocery stores, but many of these are not summer-only jobs. "We get very, very few summer jobs," Ms. Mosley said.

Most summer jobs in Midland are gained through friends, with the prospective employee telling a network of people that he or she is in search of a job, Ms. Mosley said. Newspaper classified ads often will list seasonal work, she said.

Others find employment simply by going to businesses that might offer seasonal work and applying in person, Ms. Mosely said.

She theorized that the drop in summer employment might be related to a downturn in the oil business, leaving potential employers unable to hire extra help for the summer.

Or, conversely, the drop in employment might be related to a fewer number of teens wanting to spend a summer working, she said.

Federal job programs for this group of the work force are limited only to those youth from less affluent families, said W.C. Wilson of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) office in Midland.

Jobs provided through JTPA are within state and federal institutions, or within private non-profit organizations. This year, the Midland JTPA office will find work for about 200 Midland youth, Wilson said. This number is similar to previous years, he said.

Open to students ages 14-21, JTPA jobs include a variety of occupations, including bookkeeping, recreational assistants, maintenance assistants, stock clerks, teachers' aides and child-care providers, Wilson said.

JTPA workers area employed seasonally at the city of Midland and Midland County offices, Casa de Amigo and other governmental and non-profit agencies.

These jobs are similar to those in the older Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), Wilson said. JTPA replaced CETA in 1983.

REFLECTS: Bishop presides over session

(From 1A)

Teaching wasn't the answer, either.

"I didn't want to preach or teach because most of my family were preachers or teachers, and I wanted to do something totally different."

Instead, he wanted to become a dentist.

"But, of course, I didn't have the last word on that. Someone who is much bigger and more powerful than I had other ideas, and I finally succumbed."

During the spring of his junior year, Norris was impelled to choose the ministry.

"You walk around the campus and everything and everybody seems to look different, and you feel different, and you try to figure out what it is that has brought about this metamorphosis or change, and it's almost as though a lightning bolt strikes and you say, 'eureka,'" Norris said, recalling when he made the decision that his father had made before him.

"God is tugging at me so intensely that I can't break away any longer. There was no one experience. It wasn't a cataclysmic kind of thing. It was a gradual thing, but eventually it took hold."

Norris counts himself fortunate that at the time he was dating Mackie Lyvonne Harper — who would later become his wife.

"She helped me to understand what was happening to me, and I think she, along with many others, saw it coming, and she helped me to deal with it when it finally hit me so hard that I had to say, 'Yes. It has happened.'"

Norris remained at Dillard University and received a degree in business administration in 1960.

Then he went to Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, where he received master's and doctor's of divinity degrees. He was ordained a deacon in the Methodist Church in 1961 and an elder in 1963.

Being a fourth-generation preacher, Norris said, has its "ups and downs.

"When you are following in that kind of train, it's almost inevitable that some comparisons are going to be made.

"But the upside of it is that you've got so much tradition and heritage that inform and inspire your ministry that sometimes you tend to do things you didn't know you could do.

"I guess you have so many genes operating at some level that you can't comprehend or articulate."

Norris has served the church in many capacities. He has been pastor of four churches, was a delegate to the 1976, 1984, 1988 and 1992 general conferences and led the Louisiana Conference ministerial delegation in 1992.

He has been a delegate to each jurisdictional conference since 1976 and a delegate to each World Methodist Conference since 1976.

In 1967, Norris participated in a Preaching Mission to Latin America.

In 1980, he served as guest speaker for Bishop's Week at Mount Sequoyah in Fayetteville, Ark., and in 1988, he was guest preacher for the Liberia Annual Conference in Liberia, West Africa.

His years in church work have left him, he said, "a lot more patient than I once was. I used to have a very quick temper. Now, I am much more tolerant of other people and their views.

"My attention is on loftier things now than it once was. I was more interested in me then, and that's changed. I'm still interested in me, but not nearly to the level that it was.

"And I see other people's interests as being very important and other people's concerns become my own."

During the 1992 session of the South Central Jurisdictional Conference, Norris was elected to the episcopacy on the first ballot. He was assigned to his position as bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area.

"It's tough, because you have so many people's lives in your hands, and that's, of course, figuratively, but also literally, and so many people looking to you for leadership," Norris said.

"And any time you have thousands of people who are looking to you for leadership who have as many ideas themselves as there are pebbles of sand on the beach, and you've got to lead those people into some kind of unified understanding of what it means to be the church in this day and time, it's very challenging, but also rewarding."

Much of the work being done this week is aimed at preparing members of the United Methodist Church to do the church's work, Norris said.

"The church has to be a movement directed by God in Jesus Christ toward the world in order that the world might be helped to become the kingdom of God, and this cannot be done in isolation.

"It means that the church must be engaged with the world constantly, which in itself is a challenge because so many people look upon the church as a sanctuary in which we are protected from the world," he said.

Artist to speak

Artist Kenneth Wyatt is scheduled to be the speaker at noon today at the United Methodist Church's Northwest Texas Annual Conference Ministers' Wives Luncheon at First United Methodist Church.

U.S. eyes flight ban in Haiti, Dominican Republic military operation

N.Y. Times News Service

Hoping to tighten the sanctions noose around Haiti's military dictators, the White House may soon ban commercial flights into Port-au-Prince and dispatch military gear — and perhaps troops — to the Dominican Republic, administration officials said Tuesday.

The measures are under discussion as part of a larger multinational push to pressure junta leader Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras into stepping down and permitting exiled Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to return and serve out the remainder of his elected term.

Aristide's lawyer, former congressman Michael Barnes, said White House officials had told him they were poised to ban commercial flights to Haiti "very quickly." He said the administration has also indicated it would help Aristide make regular AM/FM radio broadcasts to Haiti.

"It was suggested this would all be done quickly, very quickly," Barnes told reporters at a press conference.

The White House had no immediate comment, but the Organization of American States, made up of the United States and 34 Caribbean and Latin American nations, issued a non-binding resolution Tuesday urging a flight ban.

A flight ban would further tighten United Nations economic sanctions imposed last fall and stepped up last month in an effort to force Cedras to honor his pledge last July 3 to allow Aristide to return from the United States. Instituting a ban would likely take a week or two from the announcement date to allow foreign nationals and others to leave Haiti, the State Department official said.

"There would be a fuse on it, I don't know how long, a reasonalble time, probably somthing like two weeks or something," the official said. "There would be sufficient time for people to make plans."

Separately, Pentagon spokesman Dennis Boxx said the United States is preparing to ship helicopters, inflatable boats, communications equipment and related gear to the Dominican Republic to help officials in that country seal its border with Haiti. The border has been an important crossover point for black market sanctions busters smuggling goods into Haiti.

"We are identifying that equipment, locating it, and frankly, making some preliminary plans to move it to the Dominican Republic at this point," Boxx told reporters in a regular press briefing. "There is a possibility that we would use some U.S. personnel for ground maintenance and technical support. That's still being worked, and it has not been settled yet."

Hillary squeezes shopping into tour of cultural sites

PARIS (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton squeezed 20 minutes of shopping into a whirlwind tour of Parisian cultural landmarks Tuesday, including a question-answer session with 25 French fourth-graders at a museum.

At a women-only breakfast hosted by Social Affairs Minister Simone Veil at a posh restaurant on the Champs Elysees, Mrs. Clinton recalled that she had studied French child care and health insurance programs during a visit here in 1989.

"There is much the United States can learn from that kind of national commitment," she said. "It's really a commitment for the future, which is why my husband and those of us working with him are trying very hard to extend to our children and all of our people the security they need."

Mrs. Clinton wistfully recalled the days when she and her husband wandered Paris freely, "without anyone following us, nobody taking pictures, nobody caring that we spent hours and hours just wandering and talking and visiting."

"They keep us on a very short leash, but I have a feeling we'll break out and do something to feel like we're out in Paris, even if it means going out at 2 or 3:00 a.m.," she said.

Health care and human rights also dominated Mrs. Clinton's 40-minute meeting with French First Lady Danielle Mitterrand at the Elysee Palace.

Mrs. Clinton interrupted the official portion of her visit to duck into Repeto, an upscale boutique for ballet attire. She purchased pink warm-up leggings and a matching skirt for daughter Chelsea, 14.

At the Paris Opera, Mrs. Clinton had a front row seat to watch part of Jerome Robbins' "In the Night."

"It was just wonderful," she told the dancers afterward. "I knew it would be short, but I didn't want it to end."

Mrs. Clinton toured the ornate 19th century theater, pausing to admire the brightly colored ceiling with depictions of famous opera scenes painted by Marc Chagall.

Mrs. Clinton also strolled the grounds of the Rodin Museum, the sumptuous villa where the sculptor lived and worked earlier this century.

"I've always liked Rodin because his sculpture, for me, is a combination of intellect, feeling and strength," she told reporters.

Clinton's decision on China is wrong

President Clinton's recent decision to "cave-in" on human rights in China by renewing that nation's most-favored-nation trading status is yet another example of how a politician's actions are much more important than his rhetoric.

China still maintains slave labor camps, but Clinton's action on breaking the link between human rights progress and trade benefits for China came only a year after he had insisted such a tie should exist. Are slave labor camps acceptable now? Or massacres in Tiananmen Square? Or are the American people simply to not comprehend the connection between international trade and unacceptable human rights policies in a foreign land?

The United States has a duty not only to illustrate by its own policies concerning human rights what constitutes acceptable action, but through its international dealings with other nations as well. It should "reward" those nations that meet the established criteria with most-favored-nation trading status. It obviously should withhold that status from those nations in violation of human rights — such as China.

Now, through his action on China, Clinton has suddenly reversed what has been a reasonable and prudent policy on international trade. That's a tragedy because what it implies is that the United States' position on human rights simply does not matter. That's untrue, of course. The United States is the world leader on human rights and should be asserting those rights through its dealings with foreign countries on the international stage.

Even worse, the move says that Clinton's actions do not give substance to his words. That's sad because a president's words can be one of his most effective tools.

More than anything, however, Clinton's decision says that slave labor camps and Tiananmen Square massacres don't matter — and they matter very much. They are what separate China from the United States and liberty from totalitarianism.

JACK ANDERSON

CIA: Fear of China fuels Asian arms race

WASHINGTON — The fear of China's emerging military strength is fueling an Asian arms race that could have far-reaching implications for U.S. and world security, according to the Central Intelligence Agency and other analysts.

Anderson

That's why the Pacific Rim is the only place in the world where arms sales have accelerated in the past five years.

Military spending by seven Pacific nations — Japan, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan and Thailand — rose from $31.7 billion in 1979 to $51.4 billion in 1989, an increase of 62 percent. The pace has picked up even more since then — and its having an ominous chain-reaction throughout Asia.

"I am firmly convinced that, in about three years, America will have to begin rebuilding our defense capability, which costs far more (than maintaining current forces)," California Gov. Pete Wilson recently told us. "We don't seem able to learn the easy way." Consider these trends:

■ Indonesia, in a stunning expansion of its navy, last year bought one-third of what used to be the East Germany navy. The sale included 39 vessels (including 12 guided missile corvettes) from Germany. Rival countries like Singapore and Malaysia are particularly concerned. They believe Indonesia has expansionist designs, which might include some islands off Malaysia's coast.

■ Japan has both internal and external reasons against expanding its so-called "Self-Defense Forces." Japan is nonetheless being pushed by the United States to quietly rearm and assume more responsibility for regional defense. As a result, Japan is buying large tank-transport ships, long-range transport aircraft, and is building at least four destroyers, modern frigates and submarines.

■ Malaysia is creating its own rapid deployment force for unknown reasons. It is also buying two missile frigates from Britain, F-18 fighter aircraft from the United States, and more than $600 million in military equipment from Russia — including MiG-29 fighters.

■ Singapore has for years been proud of its air force, consisting mainly of more than 40 American-made F-5 aircraft. Singapore also stockpiles Italian training jets and French helicopters, and is currently planning a major modernization of its air force. This will include upgraded electronics and the acquisition of E-2C Hawkeye early warning aircraft from the United States.

■ South Korean defense spending climbed from about $10.6 billion in 1990 to an estimated $12.4 billion in 1992, an increase of 17 percent — in direct response to the increasing bellicosity of the North Koreans.

■ Taiwan, which also aims to make its own subs, has ordered six frigates from France and is building another eight frigates under license from the United States. The tiny island nation is buying American F-16s, and also plans to acquire at least one E-2C Hawkeye early warning aircraft. In one of the largest orders in the world, Taiwan has purchased 60 of the new Mirage 2000 jets from the French for $6.5 billion.

Top-Secret intelligence reports also indicate that Taiwan is using its decades-old academic exchange program for military purposes. Taiwan is believed to have chemical-weapons capability, and could have the skilled technicians in place for a future nuclear program.

All of this puts the United States in a ticklish position in dealing with China.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Some muckrakers expose government ills

LINTON, N.D. — "Invidious" was the deliciously defamatory word chosen by Lloyd Cutler, White House counsel, to denounce my use of "bribery" to characterize the undeclared gift of $100,000 in so-called profit to the Clintons. I'm used to that. Here are three recent examples of investigations stemming from enlightened invidiousness, in this space and elsewhere, and where they went. Three years ago, a cloud no bigger than a man's hand appeared on the political horizon: the bank operated by the House of Representatives was exposed as a check-kiting center, providing interest-free loans to perkomaniacal members.

Safire

Though high-class media downplayed the story because no public funds were involved, late-night talk-show hosts sensed a rip-off that would resonate with real people. The voter fury they fanned forced the previously complacent speaker to close down the corrupted facility.

But the little cloud was seeded with suspicion. A source told me that the House sergeant-at-arms, a casher of mysterious checks, was the protege of a powerful committee chairman.

Absent hard evidence, unable to force suspects to talk, what's a poor muckraker to do? I trusted my source and my sniffer enough to speculate in print: "Why hasn't the sergeant-at-arms been fired? . . . Because he is under the protection of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois . . ."

I like to think that this and a subsequent jab at "Rosty's protege" helped awaken official investigators. Last October, Jack Russ, whose mentor could no longer protect him, pleaded guilty to embezzling $75,000 and concealing from Congress $221,000 in check-cashing chicanery. He's now in jail. Did he implicate his patron in copping a plea, or did he take the rap? We'll find out at Rosty's trial.

The point is that muckraking — which ranges from speculative suspicion about public figures to detailed exposes by teams of investigative reporters — often contributes to the continuous cleansing of Augean stables.

It is usually denounced as invidious ("detrimental to reputation") by both the fair-minded and the culpable. Bert Lance used to say, "There's more muck-rakers around these days than muck-makers." And many times, investigations stimulated by muckrakers fail to reach the level of prosecution.

But even those can serve a purpose. Another example: When press reports appeared in the 1992 campaign that the passport files of Bill Clinton and his mother were searched by State Department political appointees looking for dirt, the furor caused the appointment of independent counsel.

In a couple of months, Joseph diGenova's grand jury is likely to conclude that the search of the files was not unlawful, but the perpetrator of the crime of disclosing their contents could not be found. No indictments will be handed up, but a public report will be issued about this abuse of power sure to taint the record of former Secretary of State James Baker and his closest aides. As a result, no future secretary is likely to run the risk of letting henchwomen do political dirty work soon again; the cost of the investigation was public money well spent.

Curiously, raking this Passport Office muck turned up yet another invasion of privacy: it became known that evidence was tainted by the illicit eavesdropping on calls made through the State Department's communications center. In this space and elsewhere, demands were promptly made to find and punish the snoops who — with no warrant — secretly listened in on calls made by private citizens.

However, even this Reno nonfeasance could have its positive effect: individuals eavesdropped upon in the past who file civil suits may be able to force Justice to disgorge evidence about the specific invasion of their privacy.

And today, officials at State's Comm Center politely ask callers beforehand if they want the call "monitored." We invidiots mark success in scandal-mongering not merely in convictions obtained but in wrongdoing made costly and future predations averted.

Criminals get what they deserve, despite protests

Capital punishment foes lined up to protest the execution of Charles Rodman Campbell in Washington state. In Texas, a handful of protesters gathered — objecting to the execution of Stephen Nethery. Both groups stood in silent vigil to show their opposition to the planned executions. But despite their protests, both criminals were executed. Examining their crimes, both men got exactly what they deserved. In Campbell's case, he could never get sufficient punishment.

The ongoing debate over the death penalty has raged for a generation or more. It will continue as long as opinions differ. And they always will.

But when you peel back the rhetoric and the emotions of the issue, you have individual cases involving real people and real acts of brutality. That seems to be the missing element in the anti-capital punishment argument.

Let's take the Campbell case.

Three lives brutally taken. . . .

Campbell was a career criminal, never productive. If it can be said that a man has no value and no worth, the words can be applied to Charles Rodman Campbell. His life was worthless. . . .

As a final note, Campbell did not go to his death easily. He was too weak to stand and was strapped to a board as the hangman's noose was pulled tight around his neck. And given one final chance to speak, Campbell stood silent. No apologies for the three victims, no words of remorse. But the time had finally come for Charles Rodman Campbell to answer for his crimes.

Limiting 'fertility rewards' may return sanity to welfare

Even when government attempts to make sense, it seems there are forces in society that just won't let go.

Take New Jersey for example.

But first, to set the stage, let's present a little story.

Joe earns a fair wage, enough to care for his family, but not much more. Then, his wife becomes pregnant and he knows his bills will go up.

His solution? Why, he just goes into his boss' office and tells him that with a new child on the way he expects to see more in his paycheck to help with the added expenses he's facing.

Sound silly?

Not if you happen to be one of the millions of Americans on welfare. Want more money? Just have more children and get a higher allotment.

New Jersey is attempting to do something about this odd system of fertility reward. That state is starting a new program where welfare is set at a certain rate. If you choose to increase your family size, that's your problem and you'd better deal with it.

Sound fair? Most Americans think so. But it's not considered fair by virtually every liberal organization in the nation.

They argue it is each welfare recipient's right to get the extra benefits. . . .

It seems we have arrived at the point where the only people who have rights are the ones who don't pay their own way.

Clinton aides pass hat to pay for golf game

Things occasionally happen in Washington that people outside the Beltway just can't understand.

Recently, David Watkins, a top White House aide used White House helicopters to play golf at the Holly Hills Country Club in Ijamsville, Md.

Buchwald

A lot of spoilsports complained that this was a waste of taxpayers' money. Watkins didn't see it that way. The Marine helicopters were not being used in Haiti at that moment, Watkins had finished his work for the day and everyone knows that a golf outing is essential to the smooth running of a great country.

When the firestorm struck, Watkins gave another reason for the helicopter ride. He maintained that all he was doing was making a dry run in case President Clinton decided to play the Holly Hills course some time in the future. He was also curious to see if the club's golf carts had air bags. "It was purely a business trip," he said and no one should criticize him for taking it.

Unfortunately, President Clinton blew his stack — or whatever a President blows when one of his staff screws up. He reassured the American people that they would not have to pay for whirlybirds.

The cost was $13,129.66. Watkins, a very wealthy but frugal man, announced that he had no intention of chipping in one golf tee because he didn't think he had done anything wrong.

Pan to the White House — the President calls his entire staff into the Oval Office and says, "Ladies and Gentlemen, we have a slight problem. David Watkins took off in one of our helicopters yesterday to play a round of golf at a country club near Frederick, Md. Because he was photographed boarding the aircraft with his golf clubs, the helicopter blades have hit the fan.

"I have assured the country that the American taxpayer will not have to pay a dime for Dave's game. Since he insists that he did nothing wrong, I am asking senior members of the White House staff to pass the hat."

An aide says, "That's fine with me, sir. I love golf and I'll just donate the money I had set aside to send my kids to summer camp."

Another aide says, "Clara and I will put our house on the market."

The President says, "You don't have to do that if you don't want to."

A staffer called Louie chimes in, "Of course we want to. Today they bash Watkins for flying off to play golf — tomorrow it could be one of us."

The President takes one of Hillary's straw hats and passes it around the room.

Another top staffer says, "If we pay for his golf game, Mr. President, can we kill him?"

Fortunately for the staff, Watkins finally announced that he would foot the damages, seeing how he was a millionaire and everything.

One of the mysteries about the Watkins affair was why were two helicopters involved? The President explained, "You have to have two — one to take you there and the other to hover over the fairways in case you lose your ball."

Despite agreeing to pay for his golf game Watkins refuses to apologize for his joy ride. But he did agree to donate his golf clubs and shoes to the President Clinton Presidential Library.

New school-lunch rules may equal burger with side of carrots

By Robert Greene
AP farm writer

WASHINGTON — Children might still get pizza and hamburgers when new rules force schools to reduce the fat and cholesterol in lunches. But instead of a side of fries, they'll be offered carrot sticks.

The fries might show up on a menu later in the week.

That's the spirit of regulations the Agriculture Department will announce today: nudging schools toward better diets but not trying to deny 25 million children everything their taste buds crave.

Four years from now, schools will have to make sure that no more than 30 percent of lunch calories come from fat, and no more than 10 percent from saturated fat.

The lunches will have to cut down on sodium and cholesterol, although no specific levels are set. Lunches will have to provide more fiber, meaning more fruits, vegetables and grains.

Those guidelines were published by the government in 1990 as a way to help Americans avoid cancer, heart disease, hardening of the arteries and other disease linked to diet.

To give schools more flexibility, the rules say menus can be based on a week's worth of meals.

Children might enjoy ham on a croissant one day — about 33 percent fat — but make up for it with grilled chicken and rice the next — about 20 percent fat. They might get one chocolate cake a week for dessert, with fruit served the other four.

"It's all in how you plan the menu," said Mary Begalle, a registered dietician and head of food service for Rosemount, Minn., schools, which have been cutting fat for three years. "It's not one food item."

"Really, what these rules will do is force people toward better menu planning," she said. "When you have an entree that's a little bit higher in fat, then you need to couple that with other meal choices or food choices that are naturally low in fat."

Study: Woman married to smoker is more at risk

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Women who do not smoke but are married to men who do have a small but increased risk of developing lung cancer, a study has confirmed.

The study, being published today in The Journal of the American Medical Association, extends findings that were reported three years ago from preliminary data.

The study found that the risk of developing lung cancer for the women with spouses who smoke was about 30 percent higher over a lifetime than for those with nonsmoking spouses.

This is a relatively small risk compared with that of people who smoke themselves, whose risk is 30 to 40 times higher, said Dr. Elizabeth T.H. Fontham of the Louisiana State University Medical Center in New Orleans, who led the study.

The study highlights the risks of second-hand cigarette smoke at a time when the tobacco industry is under increased scrutiny from Congress and the Food and Drug Administration has raised the possibility that cigarettes should be regulated as an addictive drug.

At a news conference Tuesday, the American Medical Association reiterated its position that the agency should regulate tobacco as it does other addicting drugs.

The study was immediately criticized by the Tobacco Institute, the Washington trade representative of the tobacco companies.

Thomas Lauria, a spokesman for the group, said: "Press conferences tend to blow this kind of thing way out of proportion. There is a very, very low level of risk if there is any at all."

The latest results from the study, which was conducted in five cities, expanded the earlier report with data from 200 more patients.

Panel: American college campuses are awash in alcohol

■ Percentage of college women who drink to get drunk goes from 10 percent in 1977 to 35 percent in '94. Today's students drink 'every day or three or four times a week instead of just on weekends.'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — College campuses are awash in alcohol, with white men the biggest drinkers but a quickly increasing number of women now getting drunk as well, a commission of academic and civic leaders said Tuesday.

"Binge drinking on our campuses has devastating consequences," from rape and violence to academic woes, said the Rev. Edward A. Malloy, president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the private Commission on Substance Abuse at Colleges and Universities.

"Alcohol abuse must not be accepted as simply a part of the 'rites of passage' of college students," said Malloy. "It is unhealthy and it is contra-educational."

The 16-member commission, set up two years ago by the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University, urged colleges to take steps to discourage binge drinking, including banning alcohol ads and promotions from campus mixers and athletic events and from campus newspapers.

Malloy and others expressed alarm at statistics showing a sharp rise in the percentage of college women who drink to get drunk, from 10 percent in 1977 to 35 percent today.

"Women are accepting the worst aspects of the macho world," said Joseph A. Califano Jr., the former health secretary who is president of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse.

The 98-page report, "Rethinking Rites of Passage: Alcohol Abuse on America's Campuses," cited statistics from a federal student survey and other studies that indicated:

■ More nation news/5B

■ Fifty-one percent of college men and 37 percent of college women reported going on drinking binges — five or more drinks at one time — in the past two weeks.

■ Thirty-five percent of men and 21 percent of women had gone on binges at least twice in the past two weeks.

■ Ninety-five percent of violent crimes and 53 percent of injuries on campus are alcohol-related.

■ In 90 percent of all campus rapes, the assailant, the victim or both had been drinking.

■ Sixty percent of college women who acquire sexually transmitted diseases, including herpes and AIDS, were drunk at the time of infection.

■ Students spend $5.5 billion on alcohol each year, more than on their books, coffee, tea, sodas and other drinks combined.

Malloy said white males are the biggest problem drinkers, averaging nine drinks a week. Hispanic men downed almost six drinks a week, white women four drinks, black men 3.6 drinks and black women just one drink.

Joe Paterno, the Penn State football coach and commission member, said, "The single biggest problem we have in coaching today is alcohol." It generally afflicts white players, not black athletes, he said.

Malloy said fraternity and sorority students knock back 15 drinks a week, three times as much as other students.

And today's students drink "every day or three or four times a week instead of just on the weekends," he said.

The same panel last August issued a report urging colleges to go smoke-free.

Plan turns workers into government inspectors

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — If efforts to reform the 24-year-old Occupational Safety and Health Act are successful, the nation's top workplace cops will win the right to "deputize" workers as inspectors.

It's an idea applauded by the AFL-CIO, which says it will give employees a meaningful way to voice their concerns and prevent accidents, and opposed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which calls it a "ruse" for union organizing.

This controversial legislation, now making its way through the U.S. Congress, would require businesses with 11 or more workers to create "joint safety and health committees" made up of an equal number of employees and managers.

The committees would have the authority to review a company's safety and health plan.

Murder trial begins for second defendant

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Michael Scott Thomas was described as a victim by his defense attorney in opening remarks Tuesday in the first day of his trial on charges of capital murder in the death of a local hairdresser.

Thomas, 20, of Midland is the second man to be tried in the April 14, 1993, shooting death of Tommy Edward Musick, 48.

Musick was shot four times in the back of the head and left to die on a county road. He died in the early morning hours of April 15 at an Odessa hospital.

Thomas is co-defendant in the case. Ramsey Blake Harrell, 18, the other co-defendant, was convicted of murder on Feb. 14 and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

■ Trial updates can be heard daily beginning Monday on The NowLine. For the latest reports at the completion of each day's testimony, call Cityline at 560-2400, and enter category 1213.

Harrell confessed to being the trigger-man in the murder.

Thomas is on trial for capital murder, robbery and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He remains free on a $25,000 bond he posted in August. He is under "house arrest."

Jury selection lasted all Monday; the jury was seated about 5:30 p.m. The seven-man, five-woman jury began hearing evidence on Tuesday.

Defense attorney Glen Aaron said he anticipated the case will go before the jury Thursday afternoon.

During opening arguments Tuesday, Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre told the jury that Harrell shot Musick, but Thomas worked with him to clean up the blood, dump the body and even initiate the cover-up of returning to Musick's house to see why he "didn't show up."

Aaron called the murder a "horrible incident" and said "Musick was not the only victim. Scott Thomas was also the victim of a violent young man who committed a senseless crime."

He said Thomas doesn't know why Musick was shot and claimed that Thomas was surprised at the

Basement closed

The basement of Midland Center is closed and will remain so for about a week while workers remove asbestos, city officials said. Although the asbestos doesn't pose any present health risk, officials are concerned that future renovations may disturb the asbestos and expose it. The city is getting ready to make modifications at Midland Center to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Cost to remove the asbestos, found in parts of the basement, will be approximately $40,000, officials said.

Center shares grant

AUSTIN — The Midland Rape Crisis Center is among 114 state programs that will share $4 million in federal grants to provide services for crime victims, Gov. Ann Richards announced Tuesday. The Midland center will receive $38,400 to assist sexual assault victims and their families. The grants are awarded on a competitive basis and go to such programs as rape crisis centers, battered women's shelters, centers for sexual abuse and to victims of driving while intoxicated crimes. The money comes from a federal fund established by the Victims of Crime Act of 1984 and is financed with fines and penalties assessed convicted federal criminals.

Residents pledged

ODESSA — Permian Basin residents pledged more than $177,500 for the Children's Miracle Network Telethon that aired over the weekend on KWES-TV. Local segments were broadcast from Medical Center Hospital; nationally, it was broadcast from Disneyland. Local coordinator Christina Padilla said 100 percent of the money raised will stay in the basin and will be used for the neonatal special care nursery and pediatric intensive care unit at MCH. "Even in the a slightly weak economy people in the Permian Basin continue to show support for worthy causes," Ms. Padilla said. Money pledged this year was a 25 percent increase over last year, she said.

Registration

The Midland Police Department will be registering local vehicles in the statewide Help End Auto Theft (H.E.A.T) program each Wednesday from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and 4-6 p.m. in the department's main lobby. Cost is $2 a vehicle for four years. Each vehicle will be issued a sticker for the front and rear windows. Depending on the color of the front sticker, the vehicle can be stopped from 1-5 a.m. locally and 24 hours along the border of Mexico by law enforcment officials.

Ranch Rodeo to reflect true cowboy spirit

■ Celebration to begin this weekend at Midland County Arena and Midland County Exhibit Building.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Old West's ways of rodeoing, campfire cooking, dancing and cowboy poetry will be exhibited this weekend at the seventh annual Midland Ranch Rodeo Celebration at the Midland County Arena and Midland County Exhibit Building.

"Midland County was founded on ranching" back in the 1880s, said J.P. "Pat" McDaniel who, along with rancher Candi Cowden, is coordinating the event.

"The reason we all are here today . . . is because of ranching," McDaniel said. "People forget that. That's what we are trying to preserve: the (county's) ranching heritage."

The 1994 Midland Ranch Rodeo is dedicated to the late E.J. "Jean" Conner, who promoted "cowboy ways," according to the Midland Ranch Rodeo Association, sponsor of the event. Conner lived his belief "in the importance of family traditions and values," the association said.

The ranch rodeo was founded in 1988 by three Midland-based ranchers — the late Charlie Welch, Ralph Powell, and Ms. Cowden — "to reflect the true cowboy spirit."

This area is steeped in a "strong ranching heritage that goes way back into the 1880s," Ms. Cowden said. "It is my ancestry. It is my livelihood, but I enjoy it, too."

Her family has been involved in ranching in West Texas since the 1800s.

The Midland Ranch Rodeo is designed to give people the opportunity to see examples of routine ranch work aside from fence mending, windmill and barn fixing, calf birthing and cattle-sheep-goat doctoring.

Wife of accused 'rag burglar' pleads guilty, receives probated sentence

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel

The wife of a man accused of a string of burglaries pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property and received a probated sentence, according to her attorney.

Cybil Bonnette, 36, aka, Barbara Bustamante, was sentenced to eight years probation in exchange for her guilty plea, according to David Rogers, the defense attorney.

Ms. Bonnette was arrested several hours after the March 31 arrest of her common-law husband, Andrew Bonnette, 36. He was arrested after leading police on a high-speed chase that ended near the Odessa Country Club on Highway 80.

Bonnette remains in the Midland County Detention Center in lieu of $150,000 bond.

Pólice spokesman Sgt. David Garcia said the arrest was a result of detectives conducting surveillance of the area where most of the burglaries occurred.

Bonnette's vehicle, a 1993 Lincoln Towncar, was located at Sinclair Place Apartments, 4534 Sinclair Ave. Detectives continued their surveillance until Bonnette got into the vehicle and left. The detectives — who followed Bonnette in an unmarked car — were later joined by a police unit, which attempt-

Board approves interviewing, posting for 27 MISD positions

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

The approval of posting and interviewing for 27 new positions within the Midland Independent School District sparked a brief discussion over the district's budget and tax rate at the MISD board meeting Tuesday.

MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi said the board's approval was simply sought for posting and interviewing for the positions — which include teachers, a psychologist and three paraprofessional positions.

Final approval to actually hire people for the positions would be subject to budget approval.

After Baressi presented the list, trustee Jack Hightower asked the board to approve

Education official to recommend funding for university's proposal

Staff Report

ODESSA — The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's $1.2 million proposal to integrate cutting-edge technology into public education has been selected as one of three Centers for Professional Development and Technology and could receive state funding over the next two years.

Pending acceptance of stipulations, Commissioner of Education Lionel Leno will recommend at the next State Board of Education meeting that three schools receive funding for their projects.

The other winning proposals were submitted by UT-Brownsville and the University of Houston at Victoria.

UTPB's proposal was supported by a consortium of the independent school districts of Ector and Midland counties and Pecos-Barstow-Toyah, Region 18 Education Service Center and area community representatives.

Organization to honor Midland paper for efforts in recycling, beautification

Staff Report

The Reporter-Telegram has won the statewide Keep Texas Beautiful Media Award, which recognizes local newspapers, radio and television stations for "outstanding public service efforts designed to educate, inform and encourage public involvement in litter prevention, solid waste issues and community beautification projects."

The newspaper will be recognized at the Keep Texas Beautiful 27th annual convention on July 6-8 in Lubbock.

In announcing the award, it was stated: "The citizens of Midland have benefited from a contract agreement between the Reporter-Telegram and Champion Paper. This five-year contract states that the Reporter-Telegram will buy a percentage of its newsprint from Champion and, in return, Champion has agreed to accept Midland's newspapers and magazines for recycling at its Sheldon Mill near Houston."

The Midland recycling program has been so successful that the community's six-month goal of recycling 20 tons of paper a week was achieved in less than two months.

area ranching teams together to promote the history and the lore behind actual ranch events," Daniel said.

The lore of cowboying and ranching will be expressed at 1 p.m. Saturday through the words and music of cowboy poets and musicians.

The performing artists include Biscuits O'Bryan, storyteller and camp cook for the I.O. Everybody Ranch in Sutton County; cowboy poets Clay Lindley and Gil Prather known as the "Jose Brothers"; singer Fletcher Jowers; Larry Scott, Shreveport radio disc jockey and a member of the Texas Western Swing Hall of Fame; singer Jeff Gore; and musician brothers Guy and Pip Gillett.

The highlight of the weekend event is the Ranch Rodeo Competition, which will feature 10 ranch teams of working cowboys competing in traditional ranch-rodeo events.

The events "typify ranch work," McDaniel said.

Those ranch rodeo events, which begin at 3:30 p.m. Saturday, include double mugging, team roping, team sorting, and calf branding.

The ranch rodeo will also feature a Buckaroo Rodeo for boys and girls, ages 4 through 7, who will compete on stick-horses and in bucking-horse and barrel-racing events and a Boot Scramble for boys and girls ages 8 through 12.

Midland Ranch Rodeo events include:

Friday: 7:30 p.m., Midland Ranch Rodeo VIP-Sponsors barbecue dinner;

9 p.m., Red Steagall Concert.

Saturday: 9 a.m.: Gates open for Bit, Spur, Saddle & Cowboy Collectibles Show and hayrides;

Noon: judging of chuck-wagon cook-off for best beans, bread, meat, dessert and for the most-authentic campsite and high-point wagon;

12:30 p.m.: serving of chuck-wagon meals at $6 a plate;

1 p.m.: playing and singing Western cowboy music and reading cowboy poetry;

3:30 p.m.: the Ranch Rodeo Competition

9 p.m.: Ranch Rodeo dance featuring Jody Nix and The Texas Cowboys, $7 a ticket.

Sunday: 8 a.m., serving of chuck-wagon breakfast at $5 a plate;

9:30 a.m.: cowboy church service;

11 a.m.: books open for Playday sponsored by the Midland County 4-H Club;

Noon: Playday begins.

The ranches that are fielding teams in the competition are:

■ E Ranch. The E Ranch, which was founded by Troy Eiland in the 1940s in Ward County, is owned by the four Eiland children and is headed up by Bethel Eiland. Scott Welch, Troy Eiland's grandson, and his partner, Toby McWilliams, operate the ranch. Their brand is the letter "E" on the animal's right hip.

■ Scharbauer Brothers. Scharbauer Brothers & Co, is operated by Clarence Scharbauer III, Douglas Scharbauer, Chris Scharbauer, and Pamela Ruth Scharbauer whose forefathers settled this country in the late 1800s. The ranch's brand is the figure "5" on the left hip.

■ Mabee Ranch. The Mabee Ranch was established by John E. Mabee in 1932. In 1959, Mabee's nephew, Guy Mabee, took over the ranch's operation. After Guy Mabee retired from ranching in 1983, Joe Mabee and his two sons, Guy Mabee and John Mabee, became partners in the ranching business. The Mabee brand is the figure "6."

■ Triple 7 Ranch. The Triple 7 Ranch is the old 144-section McElroy Ranch in Crane and Upton counties and is operated by Sammy Hooper. The ranch's brand is the letter "7."

■ J&K Cattle Co.: The J&K Cattle operation in Andrews County is managed by Jim Munsell and Kenneth Munsell, who have been in the cattle business for more than 30 years. Their brand is the letter "M."

■ Scharbauer Cattle Co. The Scharbauer ranching operation, which dates back to the late 1800s, is a sophisticated family operation. Chris Scharbauer, who represents the fourth generation of Scharbauers to manage the family ranching interests, subscribes to the idea that "working never hurt anyone." The ranch brand is the figure "5."

■ Powell Ranch. Midland cattleman Ralph Powell operates the ranch. Powell is the great-grandson of A.B. Powell, who settled in Sterling County in 1891. Powell operates on part of the historic Nail Ranch in northern Midland County. The brand, which dates to the 1860s, is the "P bar" on the left hip.

■ The o6 Ranch. The o6 Ranch of Alpine country has been operated by the Kokernot family for more than 118 years. Chris Lacy manages the ranch. The ranch's brand is the "o6."

■ Lazy Z Ranch. The Lazy Z Ranch in Martin County was established in 1928 by the George W. Glass family. Part of the Lazy Z originated from the holdings of an enterprising Midland cowboy-banker, Oscar Braxton "O.B." Holt. Today, the 32-section ranch is owned and operated by Monta Jo Glass Johnson and George Holt Glass. The brand is a laid down, lazy "Z."

■ Long X Cattle Co. The Long X, which is out of Kent, was part of the holdings of the Reynolds Cattle Co. William D. Reynolds and George T. Reynolds, who founded the company, worked cattle operations in the western part of the United States and drove Texas Longhorn cattle up the trails to Kansas. The Reynolds ranchers married daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Matthews of Albany and acquired the Long X Ranch in the scenic Davis Mountains. The ranch brand is a long, laid-down "X." shooting.

Aaron said Thomas isn't guilty of the crimes he has been charged with but he may be guilty of "poor judgment."

The state's case was basically the same as the case against Harrell. The defense's case differs in that the defense has not made an issue of the victim's homosexuality.

Harrell's highly publicized trial focused on his defense that he shot Musick for making sexual advances toward Thomas.

Musick's companion of 20 years, Jerry Hon, testified that Musick was called by Thomas that evening to give the defendants a ride. He said Musick never returned.

He also indicated that Musick left with the money bag in which he always carried cash. Hon said he believed Musick had money with him at the time but when the bag was recovered no cash was found.

The state focused on an alleged lie Thomas told a woman at the KOA Campground near Harrell's home on the night of the shooting. Thomas and Harrell were carrying two sports bags with them because Harrell was leaving home. Testimony at Harrell's trial indicated the bags got heavy so they wanted someone to give them a ride to Thomas' home.

The KOA manager testified that Thomas told her his father was coming to pick them up. However, Thomas' father later testified he was out of town that day and couldn't have picked them up.

Musick was called and gave them a ride, his roommate testified.

Musick took the defendants to Thomas' home, which was located down the street from his home. A neighbor testified to seeing the car at Thomas' home and watching the two defendants doing something in and out of the car.

Testimony was also heard from two men who saw a car — later identified as Musick's — leaving the scene where the body was found on a dirt road near Mission Dorado County Club. One of the men said he saw a dark-haired man wearing a white baseball cap in the passenger side of the car. The men found the body and called 911.

Midland County Sheriff's Investigator Jerry Wallace testified to investigating the murder. He said Hon tipped him to the defendants. Wallace said he went to Thomas' home where he found a significant amount of blood on the carport and driveway.

Wallace said he went to Harrell's home to question the defendants in the early morning hours of April 15. Thomas was taken to the sheriff's office for questioning. Wallace said that while he was present, Harrell confessed to his mother that he shot Musick.

About a week after his arrest, Wallace said Thomas indicated he was "tired of covering for Harrell" and told officers the location of the bags the men were carrying on the night of the shooting.

In those bags investigators found Musick's money bag, which didn't have any currency in it.

After the state rested its case, Aaron began the defense. He presented a cream-colored hat that he claimed belonged to Thomas. Thomas' father testified to buying a cap — just like the one in evidence — for his son. He also testified that both he and his son were friends of Musick.

Testimony will continue this morning.

AWARD: Organization to honor Reporter-Telegram

(From 1B)

To support the program, the city of Midland distributed special green recycling dumpsters to collect the used paper, and several community groups — including the Reporter-Telegram — mounted an educational campaign to encourage recycling.

The newspaper also published weekly maps of recycling locations throughout Midland, in addition to printing and distributing 28,000 copies of the "Recycle Midland" brochure. Close to 23,000 brochures were distributed in the newspaper's Earth Day edition, while the remaining 5,000 copies were taken to the Keep Midland Beautiful office for distribution.

In addition to the recycling efforts, the newspaper's publisher, Charles Spence, was recognized for his role in providing coloring books and monthly planners for each school student in Midland.

According to Cindy Botes, executive director of Keep Midland Beautiful, "Mr. Spence was asked to meet the match we needed for an Urban Forestry/Texas Forest Service grant to print a coloring book. He not only agreed to meet the match, but went far beyond. The Reporter-Telegram worked with a local artist in designing the book. The newspaper then printed and distributed the books in its Sunday edition with a circulation of 30,000."

The coloring books were then taken by volunteers to each Midland elementary school and distributed to some 13,780 students.

But it didn't end there.

"After this distribution, Mary Hardin, the newspaper's national advertising sales manager, saw a need for secondary students to have the valuable information contained in the coloring book, but in a format they would enjoy," Ms. Botes said.

"So, we came up with a monthly planner that contained information about urban forests, paper recycling, the school calender and environmental tips."

These were distributed to the city's 19,000 secondary students and another 5,000 were provided to the local Keep Midland Beautiful office for its use.

In discussing her organization's overall relationship with the newspaper, Ms. Botes said, "The Reporter-Telegram's staff is more than willing to work with us in all facets of our programs. Keep Midland Beautiful is given a place of prominence in the newspaper."

In addition to Spence and Ms. Hardin, local Keep Midland Beautiful officials specifically cited Michael Kashgarian, staff writer, and Joe D. Williams, staff photographer, for their efforts in covering the group's programs and projects.

schools," UTPB President Charles Sorber said. "The support shown through the strength of the consortium definitely helped our efforts."

Nineteen grant applications were made to the TEA for state aid in organizing Centers for Professional Development and Technology. From the original group, nine were selected to defend their proposals before a review panal in May in Austin.

A major component of the Permian Basin Center for Professional Development and Technology is adding multi-media classroom units to the university's teacher-training program.

The student teacher will use the multi-media curriculum for interdisciplinary learning activities. Participating public schools include South Elementary in Midland and Austin Elementary in Odessa. A learning facility will connect Barstow Elementary School to the university.

"With the integration of technology and restructuring of teacher training in the region, we can better prepare educators and students for the 21st century," said Pete Ienatsch, education division director at UTPB.

"Field-based education gives future teachers a more realistic preparation. They are working with the populations they ultimately will be teaching.

"By linking the region's educational community through technology, many teachers and students will be exposed to multi-media instruction for the first time," Ienatsch said.

Other components of the center include field-based teacher preparation, cooperation between classroom teachers and college professors to develop innovative teaching techniques and extensive staff development.

GUILTY: Accused burglar's wife gets probated sentence

(From 1B)

ed to stop Bonnette.

Garcia said Bonnette attempted to flee and a high-speed pursuit began on Midland Drive.

Officers said Bonnette headed west on the North Service Road on Highway 80. At one point he got on the highway and then returned to the service road. The vehicle then turned north on the road between the old Mansion Dinner Theater and the Odessa Country Club.

Bonnette's vehicle got stuck on the road, which was under construction. Bonnette fled the car and began throwing rocks at officers in an attempt to elude them, Garcia said.

After a short pursuit on foot and struggle, Bonnette was arrested.

Garcia said Bonnette threw a screwdriver from the vehicle during the chase and officers found evidence of a recent burglary inside the vehicle.

The screwdriver was found off Highway 80 at South County Road 1257, an officer on the scene said.

Garcia said police believe Bonnette is from San Antonio, but has ties to Odessa. He was staying at an Odessa motel, where Odessa police found his wife.

Odessa officials said they questioned Bonnette's wife and she turned over jewelry and other items believed to have been stolen during the monthlong series of burglaries.

Garcia said Ms. Bonnette was linked to the burglaries through her possession of stolen property.

Garcia said Bonnette, on parole from the Texas Department of Corrections for burglary and other offenses, had been in and out of prison several times.

Authorities said that the residences Bonnette is believed to have burglarized were in the north and west areas of the city, along Loop 250.

In most of the burglaries a knife or screwdriver was used to pry open doors, and rags and towels were used to handle items — thus the burglar became known as the "rag burglar."

At one home, dogs were drugged; at another, two ferrets were beaten to death.

No trial date has been set for Bonnette.

San Angelo education center to host workshop

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — Teachers who want to give their high school students "Learning Power" are invited to attend a summer workshop Monday and Tuesday at the Education Service Center Region XV in San Angelo.

The two-day workshop "Learning Power: Student Success Instruction for High Schools" is designed to help teachers boost the learning power of their students.

The program goes beyond the teaching of academics and study skills to include teaching students self-management and life skills, goal-setting, developing new habits and methods for resolving personal problems and stressful situations.

Developed by Learning Technologies Corp., based in Rapid City, S.D., the program features a student work text and teacher's guide.

David B. Ellis, co-author of "Learning Power," also wrote "Becoming a Master Student, a best-selling college textbook.

Principals from several school districts throughout the state have attributed improved grades to the program.

"Now that I have taught a Learning Power class for a full year, I am convinced we are capable of raising grade-point averages and standardized test scores, including the ACT (American College Testing program) and SAT (Scholastic Achievement Test) scores," said Al Cononcio, director of instruction for the Pendleton County Schools in Franklin, W.Va.

"I would not have believed a year ago that we would have such an impact on students," he said.

In Texas, Learning Power is being tested and evaluated by school districts in Dallas, Austin, Lubbock, Fort Worth, San Angelo and Wichita Falls.

Teachers interested in attending the workshop may call Region XV ESC at 658-65711. The registration fee is $150 a person, or $500 for teams of four to six teachers from the same school.

MISD: Board approves posting, interviewing only the teaching positions.

"Given the current economic condition of the school district and the community, I sincerely doubt we can raise the tax rate to pay for all these positions," Hightower said.

"The teachers have to have a pay raise and I can understand that. But, I think it needs to come from the existing budget. And we need more teachers in the district, so I move that we approve the teaching positions only."

Baressi said the list had been pared down significantly from what had been requested. He said most of the posts were needed.

"I am as sensitive as anyone to the tax rate and the budget," he said. "I would like us to stay within the existing budget, but we need to remember that we are getting no extra money from the state this year. And we also need to remember that we are not approving money for these positions.

"If the budget can't handle it, we wouldn't hire them. I really recommend waiting to discuss the tax rate and budget after it has been presented next month."

After hearing descriptions of the various positions — including an assistant caretaker for one of the high schools — trustee James Fuller said residents who expect more from the district and want more activities should realize that the extras have a price.

The recommendation to post and interview for just teachers failed to pass the board. The board then approved the recommendation for all 27 posts, with Hightower voting against it.

The board tabled a recommendation to add "AIDS Is No Game" — a teaching supplement — to the district's health curriculum in seventh through 12th grades.

Richard Torres, executive director of secondary operations, said the district had received the game and a group of Midland residents had reviewed it.

The games consists of two levels of questions concerning AIDS. The first, which Torres recommended for the seventh grade, presents basic facts on AIDS in an age-appropriate and community-sensitive manner. It teaches abstinence as the best way to avoid getting AIDS.

The second level — which was recommended for high school students — teaches abstinence, but also deals with the consequences of not practicing abstinence.

Torres said the second level presents the questions in a more frank manner.

"One question asks what bisexuality is," he said. "The questions in level two include topics such as vaginal, anal and oral intercourse and condoms."

Torres said the residents who previewed the game were supportive of the teaching aide, which would be used to supplement the district's current AIDS curriculum.

"One parent even suggested starting it in sixth grade," he said.

"It was refreshing to see parents who want this to be addressed in a straightforward manner."

Board members voted to table the item until trustees had a chance to see the game.

Board President Jackie Hamilton also suggested that all parents be given the opportunity to see the game before the board considers it.

In other business, the board awarded its MISD Board of Trustee scholarship and the Julie Conaway scholarship.

MISD scholarships went to Shanika Hopes of Lee High School and Jeremy Hernandez of Midland High School. Conaway scholarships went to Todd Green of Lee High School and Luis Saucedo of Midland High School.

N.Y. Times News Service

In what may be an early expression of anti-incumbent sentiment, voters in South Dakota on Tuesday ousted Gov. Walter Miller in favor of a former governor, Bill Janklow, in the Republican primary.

But Miller was not an entrenched incumbent. He inherited the job last year when his predecessor, Gov. George Mickelson, was killed in a plane crash in Iowa.

Three Democrats were also seeking the nomination.

Voters on Tuesday also chose two incumbent senators, Trent Lott of Mississippi and Frank R. Lautenberg of New Jersey, as nominees for second terms.

Lautenberg, a Democrat, had little trouble defeating two primary opponents but is expected to face a tough challenge in November. He faces Chuck Haytaian, the State Assembly speaker, who also won easily.

Lott is considered to have a relatively safe seat. A Republican, he holds one of the highest home-state ratings of any senator seeking reelection this year.

In addition to Mississippi and New Jersey, voters on Tuesday went to the polls in California, Alabama, Iowa, Montana, South Dakota and New Mexico, making it the busiest primary day so far this year.

The most closely watched contest was in California, where Treasurer Kathleen Brown was seeking the Democratic nomination for governor. She was opposed by John Garamendi, the state insurance commissioner, and Tom Hayden, a state senator and antiwar organizer.

On the Republican side in California, Gov. Pete Wilson faced token opposition from Ron Unz, a millionaire businessman in the computer industry.

But Wilson is one of five governors who faced challenges on Tuesday from members of their own party. The others are governors Terry Branstad, R-Iowa, Jim Folsom, D-Ala., Bruce King, D-N.M., and Walter Dale Miller, R-S.D. Branstead, seeking a fourth term, was opposed by a more moderate Republican, Rep. Fred Grandy, a former actor on the "Love Boate" television program.

Also in California, Sen. Dianne Feinstein had slight opposition in the Democratic primary. Among Republicans, Rep. Michael Huffington, a millionaire, was viewed as the favorite over former Rep. William Dannemever

North wins support of GOP national chairman, Gramm

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Despite expressions of dismay by some GOP leaders over Oliver L. North's candidacy for the U.S. Senate from Virginia, party chairman Haley Barbour pledged Tuesday that the Republican National Committee will "do everything possible" to help North win.

North

Barbour told reporters that since the controversial Iran-Contra figure was nominated at a state party convention Saturday, the "national committee and I will do everything possible . . . to help Virginia Republicans elect Ollie North senator. I'm very comfortable with that."

The party chairman went beyond the expected endorsement that the national committee always gives GOP primary or convention winners. He insisted his support was "unqualified and unswerving."

Meanwhile, North won the backing of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, headed by Sen. Phil Gramm.

Judge OKs curfew for Orlando teens

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A curfew intended to curb teen-age crime in downtown Orlando withstood an initial constitutional challenge Tuesday.

Circuit Judge William Gridley denied a request by lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union to temporarily block the curfew. The law prevents those under 18 from being in a 12-square-block area between midnight and 6 a.m., with certain exemptions.

Teens who break the curfew can receive a verbal or written warning or be charged with a misdemeanor.

ADD A PAL FOR A PENNY.

No advance purchase. Fully refundable.

Hurry, seats for this summer are going fast. Now when you fly Continental roundtrip in coach (via specific connections) to one of the cities shown below, you can take a Pal along for just 2¢ more. It's called Add-A-Penny-Add-A-Pal.™ There's no advance purchase required. And all tickets are fully refundable.

From Midland/Odessa

Austin • Baton Rouge • Brownsville Corpus Christi • El Paso • Harlingen • Houston Kansas City • Lafayette • Little Rock • Louisville McAllen • Milwaukee • New Orleans • Oklahoma City Omaha • San Antonio • St. Louis • Tulsa

Very few, very small, very reasonable restrictions. However, this great Add-A-Penny-Add-A-Pal deal does have a few small restrictions.

First, you have to be at least 18 years old, but your Pal can be any age. Both of your roundtrip reservations have to be made at the same time, for the same flights, and at least one day in advance. With such a tempting offer, demand will be high and seats are limited. (Certain flights may not be available between all cities.) So, go ahead make your plans now. You will need to stay over for at least one night, but any night is fine. You're also eligible to earn mileage from our frequent flier program: OnePass.™ It's really a pretty good deal, don't you think? (Unfortunately upgrades are not available, and your Pal is not eligible to receive OnePass miles.)

The best summer days for you and your Pal to fly. To take advantage of this great offer, we encourage you to travel Monday through Thursday or all day Saturday. Typically, Fridays, Sundays and holidays (i.e., 4th of July) are the most popular days to travel, and most seats have already been sold so plan carefully. It's just that simple. Buy yourself a roundtrip coach ticket on Continental and bring a Pal for a penny more each way.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Look for ways to put your money to better use. Setting long-range financial goals will give you a strong base on which to build. A fresh romantic start lifts your spirits and sets you on a happier course. Those in their early 30s find many of their dreams moving within reach. A Christmas bonus makes a trip possible early in 1995. A legacy or award is featured next spring.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: legendary architect Frank Lloyd Wright, TV host Joan Rivers, singer Nancy Sinatra, comedian Jerry Stiller.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A partnership that is held together by mutual trust is bound to be enduring. The two of you do not have to agree on every issue. Rediscover your special love for the land and nature.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You can expect important tidings — some good, some bad. Instead of getting all hot and bothered, face a tricky situation calmly. Be patient with a loved one who is going through a rough patch.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The idea of teaming up with an extraordinary companion should be as tempting as ever. Love is bound to play a starring role. When other people speak, listen with rapt attention. Be an optimist.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Ignore distractions. By concentrating on the matter at hand, you will be able to come up with a positive solution. Inventive ideas will come to you from out of the blue. Jot them down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When people discuss their differences openly and rationally, there is less likelihood that they will quarrel violently. You could be closer to agreement than you realize.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Not a good day to gamble, speculate or commit your deeper emotions. Remain out of the reach of temptation. You must not compromise your high ideals! Tonight, turn your attention to a diverting pastime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not despair just because there is no solution to a problem yet. An answer will be found! Strike out on your own if you think you have a better idea. Innovative thinking pays off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Establish the day's agenda along practical lines. You are not inclined to waste either time or money. Loved ones will cooperate if you appeal to their better nature.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take the initiative in solving a recurring domestic problem. A compromise may be necessary. Make certain the letters you send say exactly what you mean.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The emphasis today is on honoring your commitments. Stick to previously arranged engagements, even if something more enticing pops up. Resist distractions that may be too expensive for your wallet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Domesticity holds special appeal now. Home-related purchases will bring lasting pleasure. Preparations for tomorrow's work schedule should also be made. Consult coworkers before finalizing things. A marriage proposal may come as a surprise.

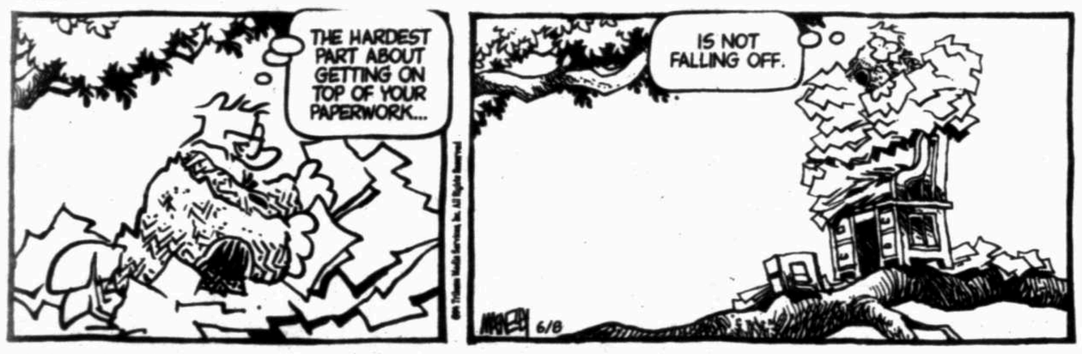

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Laying low today and tomorrow will help recharge your batteries. Inspiration comes when least expected! A family dispute could prove surprisingly difficult to resolve. Get better organized. A secret pal will offer assistance.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are energetic, health-oriented and strongly interested in nature.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠
Dbl	Pass	2 ◇	3 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

This hand is from the European Mixed Pairs Championship. Since overtricks carry a huge reward in this style of competition, see how many you can make on this hand after receiving the helpful lead of the ace of diamonds, followed by a shift to the jack of hearts.

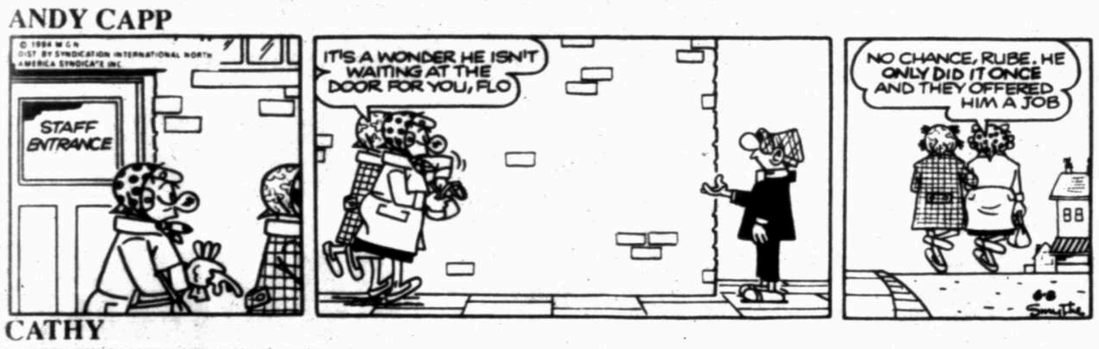

North showed a minimum opening bid by passing West's takeout double for the red suits. South made an invitational jump rebid of three spades, but nothing could tempt North to bid again.

Naturally, you finesse the queen of hearts, which wins, and then take the trump finesse. The ace of hearts is the entry for another trump finesse and the ace of spades draws the last trump. Three more rounds of spades reduces everybody to four cards, with declarer holding three clubs and the king of diamonds. To protect against declarer playing ace and another club, suppose East comes down to the same holding. Now declarer can cash the king of diamonds and lead a club, finessing the nine. East wins, but is endplayed and must return a club into dummy's ace-jack tenace. That nets two overtricks and a top board.

East can do better. If East retains a heart rather than a diamond, the endplay does not operate. When declarer then cashes the king of diamonds, West can come down to king-ten of hearts and a diamond and East can blank the king-queen of clubs. Now declarer must cash the ace of clubs to make 10 tricks. Any attempt at a second overtrick will result in the contract just making.

Beavis, Butt-head writers dip into politics with satiric takeoff

Sam Johnson and Chris March, who write "Beavis and Butt-head," have taken to the pages of the New Republic to dip into politics with a satiric takeoff on the diaries of H.R. Haldeman. Their mock entries describe the daily life of Richard Nixon (always P, the president, in the Haldeman diaries) in hell, a place where baseball is always rained out and the only thing on television is constant "Patton" reruns.

"P called early this morning, eager to work," writes the diarist. "Upbeat, positive, not at all brought down by being here. Like K (Kissinger) has always said, superb in defeat. Did complain about long waits during processing. Somebody told him Kennedy, LBJ sailed right through. I promised to check."

Later on in the diary, S (Satan) assigns P to interview Kurt Cobain for a story in hell's Sunday supplement. "Cobain evasive, unfriendly, rude, but P enjoyed writing the piece, which he says is 'not so much a profile of a subversive but the diagnosis of a national sickness.' . . . (P) sees Cobain as a man destroyed by the ones he had trusted most. P sees certain parallels."

ATLANTA — Curly's dead, but Jack Palance is back and he's still showing off those macho push-ups.

Jack Palance plays Curly's brother in 'Slickers' sequel.

Palance, Billy Crystal and other stars of "City Slickers II" attended the movie's premiere Monday to benefit former President Jimmy Carter's inner-city Atlanta Project.

The first "Slickers" killed off Palance's character, a knife-wielding old cowpoke named Curly. He plays Curly's brother in the sequel, which opens nationwide Friday.

And on the red carpet laid down for the premiere, Palance staged a reprise of his one-armed push-up demonstration from the Academy Awards night in 1992 when he won best supporting actor for the original "City Slickers."

Crystal joked that a third "City Slickers" is being planned: "It's gonna be subtitled 'Beating a Dead Horse.'"

NEW YORK — Believe this, Ripley: "Inside Edition" anchorman Bill O'Reilly isn't about to give up George, Abe, Teddy and Jimmy.

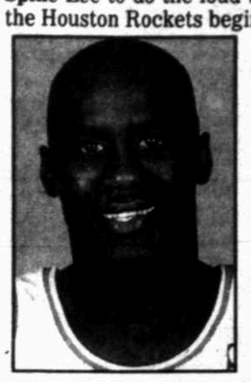

"Ripley's Believe It Or Not" approached O'Reilly about acquiring his collection of 42 presidential signatures, including Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Carter, the show's publicists said.

Similar collections have been appraised at more than $100,000, they said.

O'Reilly, a history buff, said he was flattered by the offer for his collection but responded: "It's taken a long time to put together and it has sentimental value to me."

HOUSTON — Vernon Maxwell expects Spike Lee to do the loud thing tonight when the Houston Rockets begin their NBA championship series against the New York Knicks.

Vernon Maxwell expects Spike Lee to do the loud thing.

But Maxwell says he won't let the film director's trash talking distract him.

"I feed off things like he does," the Rockets guard told the Houston Chronicle. "I'm a talker, so I'm sure I'll say a few things to him. It's going to be exciting."

Lee, a fervent Knicks fan who sits courtside at Madison Square Garden, traded barbs with the Indiana Pacers' Reggie Miller during the Eastern Conference finals.

Lee told The Houston Post he'll be at courtside Wednesday and he's not taking a vow of silence.

BOSTON — Biographer Nigel Hamilton said he has given up plans for a second volume about John F. Kennedy because the Kennedy family has blocked his access to material.

"It has been sad for me to watch how this family has sought to marginalize what I was trying to do and deliberately falsify my purposes, my aims and put out the word that I am some sort of scurrilous, muckraking Brit," he said in Tuesday's editions of The Boston Globe.

The first volume of Hamilton's biography of Kennedy, "JFK: Reckless Youth," was published in 1992 and sold 250,000 copies.

Carol Schneider, publicity director for Random House, Hamilton's publisher, said the second volume was shelved because there are too many Kennedy books already.

Charles Daly, director of the Kennedy Family Foundation, said Hamilton "had regular recurring problems with telling the truth."

DEAR ABBY

Hearing impaired's cry for help is heard

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you had a letter from Richard Zyman of New Jersey requesting consideration for older people with a hearing loss.

Van Buren

Your reply pointed out that hearing loss affects not only "older" people; more than 24 million people in this country have a hearing loss. Two million are deaf, and 22 million have varying degrees of hearing impairment.

You should have told Mr. Zyman to check with his local telephone company. Chances are they have telephones with a volume control — which would improve his chances of understanding callers.

Finally, it would have been a public service to refer your readers to Self Help for Hard of Hearing People Inc. (SHHH), 7910 Woodmont Ave., Suite 1200, Bethesda, Md. 20814. A self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) envelope is required. The organization keeps people up-to-date on the latest products, issues such as ADA (Americans With Disabilities Act), and what people with hearing loss can do to help themselves (in addition to writing to Dear Abby).

There are many services and products available for people with hearing loss, about which many people are unaware. I discovered this the hard way when I had a sudden hearing loss at age 50. I'd rather have people know I have a hearing problem than have them think I'm stupid when I make an off-the-wall reply because I misunderstood what was said.

Thank you for supporting those of us with disabilities. — MEL MCGUIRE, IRVING, TEXAS

DEAR MEL MCGUIRE: I hear you — loud and clear. Many of my readers will appreciate your helpful input.

DEAR ABBY: It's time for schoolchildren to be free for the summer. That means they'll be getting their annual yearbooks.

My son came home last year with some X-rated comments written in his yearbook. His father and I are so proud of his accomplishments and the great photos — and some of the lovely sentiments expressed by his classmates — but those off-color jokes, cursing and wisecracks ruined his book.

Abby, please remind kids to be careful what they write in their classmates' yearbooks. These books should be a treasury of memories for the student to enjoy for years to come. — SAVANNAH PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Thanks for the timely reminder. I hope the students will remember your wise warning when they are asked to sign a classmate's yearbook.

DEAR ABBY: Your column about snooping in medicine cabinets brought to mind something that happened in our home.

About four years ago, my husband and I became the owners of a very obnoxious, light-activated, battery-operated pig. We kept it in the refrigerator as a joke. For months, every time someone opened the refrigerator door, sounds of "oink, oink" came from the refrigerator.

One day, just before company arrived, I stashed the pig in a drawer in the powder room next to the kitchen. You guessed it! A male guest opened the drawer, and sounds of "oink, oink" could be heard. He never said one word about it — and neither did we. Of course, he should not have been snooping in our drawers, but the episode has given our family many laughs. — KAREN IN GLENDALE, CALIF.

Chaparrals end round one in third

■ Jason Garduno shoots a 73 to lead Midland College to a three-way tie for third at the junior college golf championships.

Staff Report

SCOTTSDALE, AZ. — So far Midland College coach Delnor Poss's prediction of how the NJCAA National Golf Tournament would go are right on target.

"I said before the tournament started that there were eight teams that could win it and it's proven out," said Poss after his Chaparrals finished with a team score of 298 here Tuesday in the first round of the four-round competition at McCormick Ranch Golf Club.

Garduno

Midland is tied for third with Abraham Baldwin College and Wallace State. The Chaps Jason Garduno shot a 73 to lead his team. Midland's Chad Campbell, Shawn Savage and Jason Brooks shot 75 and Lance McCullough 78.

Midland trails host Scottsdale Community College (292) and Central Alabama College (294). Nine teams — including Odessa College, eighth at 302 — are within ten shots of the leader.

"Jason Garduno played extremely well today," Poss said. "Shawn Savage had a good round going and made a nine on the 16th hole to shoot 75. But it's early and there's lots of golf to play."

Savage hit a shot out of bounds and another behind a tree on No. 16 to inflate his score.

Garduno finished in a four-way tie for seventh in the medal standings. Jonathan Baker of Scottsdale and Frederick Jacobson of Wallace State shot 70s for the best rounds of the day.

The tournament concludes Friday.

Here are first-round results from the NJCAA National Golf Tournament Tuesday at the McCormick Ranch Golf Club in Scottsdale, AZ.

Houston Rockets Hakeem Olajuwon, left, tries to stop New York Knick Patrick Ewing from scoring in a 1991 NBA game. Olajuwon and Ewing will battle again when the Rockets host the first game of the NBA finals today.

Posts' time again

■ Tonight's first game of the NBA finals won't be the first time centers Hakeem Olajuwon and Patrick Ewing have met with a national title on the line.

By Jim O'Connell
AP Basketball Writer

Ten years ago in Seattle, two foreign-born centers met in the NCAA championship game.

For Patrick Ewing, it was the middle of his three NCAA title games with Georgetown. For Akeem Olajuwon, it was the last of his three Final Four appearances with Houston.

So little was known of the two off the court. Olajuwon had a heavy Nigerian accent and was difficult to understand. Georgetown was so protective of the Jamaican-born Ewing and the rest of the team that it rarely allowed anyone even a peek at the people behind the names they knew so well from the back of jerseys over gray T-shirts.

On the court was a different matter.

Olajuwon had 20 points and 18 rebounds the year before when North Carolina State and its wise-cracking coach, Jim Valvano, stunned the heavily favored Cougars for the NCAA title. Everyone knew Phi Slama Jama because awesome dunks cross all language barriers.

Rangers close in on Stanley Cup

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — The New York Rangers are almost there, moving within one win of their first Stanley Cup championship in 54 years.

Mike Richter made 28 saves, including a stop of Pavel Bure's second-period penalty shot, Brian Leetch had a goal and three assists and Alexei Kovalev scored the winner with 4:55 left Tuesday night as New York rallied from a two-goal deficit for a 4-2 victory over the Vancouver Canucks.

The Rangers lead the best-of-7 series 3-1 and can wrap up the Stanley Cup by winning Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

Since the Stanley Cup finals became a seven-game series in 1939, teams taking a 3-1 series lead have gone on to win the Cup 23 of 24 times. The only team to rally from a 3-1 deficit was Toronto in 1942 against Detroit.

Vancouver became the 12th team in any round to climb from a 3-1 hole when it beat Calgary in this year's opening round.

The Canucks, who won the opener in New York, are in danger of suffering the same fate the Rangers did the last time they were in the finals. In 1979, New York won the opener in Montreal but then was swept four straight.

Leetch leads all postseason scorers with 32 points, the second most for a defenseman in a playoff year. Edmonton's Paul Coffey had 37 in 1985.

Leetch began the Rangers' comeback by scoring 4:03 into the second period and Richter kept New York close by kicking out Bure's penalty shot at 6:31. Bure, the NHL's leading goal-scorer in both the regular season (60) and playoffs (14), is considered the league's best breakaway threat.

Richter, who was masterful in stopping the last 22 shots he faced, also stopped a penalty shot in a 1990 playoff game against the New York Islanders.

Sergei Zubov's power-play goal with 15.2 seconds left in the second period tied it.

York first Midland player to sign with Lady Chaps

■ Former Midland Lee starter Deborah York will play on Midland College's first women's basketball team.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

If she never plays a minute of basketball, former Midland Lee post Deborah York will have an asterisk by her name for those trivia fanatics of Midland College athletics.

York became the fist player from Midland proper to sign with the Lady Chap program Tuesday afternoon.

Earlier, Greenwood's Brandi Wright signed on to play for coach Ron Jones' first-year program.

York

York, a second-team all-district 4-5A member, scored 6.3 points per game for the Lady Rebels last season.

"I could have played at a small four-year school," said York, "but I didn't think I would play my first two years. If I stay here I think that I can get better and I'll be even better whenever I transfer to a larger school.

"My comfort zone that I am used to is here, my friends and my church are here so it will be really neat to stay here. It is also really exciting because it is the beginning of a new program and I'm a part of it."

York approached Jones earlier in the year about playing. After several workouts with incoming recruits Jones offered York a spot on the first-ever Midland College women's basketball team.

"I think what impressed me more than anything else was her attitude and the fact that she played hard, is very coachable and wants to become a better basketball player," said Jones. "She runs the floor well, has a pretty good shot. She is not as big as some of the players that she will beup against part of the time. She has the proper attitude as far as she is trying to get better. If she plays early in the year, fine, if it is mid-way through the season, fine."

"Right now I'm not really worried about playing time, I'm worried about getting better," said York. "If coach Jones wants to put me on the court I'm happy with that, and if he doesn't think that I can help the team at that time

Guards could decide NBA title

HOUSTON (AP) — The 3-pointers drop through the hoop. The trash talk flies. John Starks and Vernon Maxwell, who lead their teams in both categories, are well armed for their confrontation.

Derek Harper and Kenny Smith play a subtler game — getting the ball to the right man in the right spot and providing on-court leadership to the only teams with a shot at the NBA championship.

Centers Hakeem Olajuwon of Houston and Patrick Ewing of New York are getting the big build-up for the NBA Finals starting Wednesday night. The outcome very well may be decided by much smaller men.

"Coming out of this series, there will probably be one guard who will step forward and make his reputation," Knicks coach Pat Riley said Tuesday.

"There's a strong possibility that the marquee matchup could come to neutralize one another," New York backup guard Greg Anthony said. "It's going to be imperative that the guys supporting these players step up."

Each team has a star center. Each has a fiery shooting guard and a cool-headed point guard — the Knicks' Starks and Harper against the Rockets' Maxwell and Smith.

Maxwell "brings a great deal of intensity to our team, a great deal of enthusiasm and fire," Smith said. "I'm probably the even-keel guy."

Harper plays that role for the excitable Knicks, who are noted for bumping teammates' chests in celebration and thumping opponents bodies in the physical battles under the boards.

Harper's settling influence and defense helped the Knicks stave off elimination in Game 6 of the Eastern Conference finals against Indiana. With three more years in the NBA than Smith, an eight-year veteran, Harper feels he has the edge in leadership.

"If I have anything more than he has it's the fact I've been around longer," Harper said. "Our personality is night and day. He's more soft-spoken. I'm the exact opposite. I'm more aggressive and verbal. I talk a lot on the basketball court."

Which brings matters to Starks and Maxwell.

Starks was strangely silent Tuesday. After the Knicks arrived in Houston on Monday, he left the team to attend his uncle's funeral in Oklahoma. He's still expected to start Wednesday.

Once the game begins, Maxwell said with a laugh, "we might say one or two things to each other. ... I feel like I'm the emotional leader on the ballclub. I can't play any other way. If I do it's going to take away from me and the team."

Houston, losers in 1981 and 1986 in its only other finals appearances, is coming off a seven-day layoff following a 4-1 victory over Utah in the Western Conference finals.

New York, in its first finals since winning the NBA title in 1973, has survived two intense seven-game playoff series against Chicago and Indiana, wrapping up the Pacers series in the final seconds Sunday.

The Rockets like to run, a tactic that can help offset New York's physical style if they can get downcourt before the Knicks set up their defense. In a halfcourt setup, they love to fire up 3-pointers.

They led the league in 3-pointers made and attempted in the regular season and are tops in both in the playoffs. Maxwell, at 36-for-98, leads in both categories in postseason play.

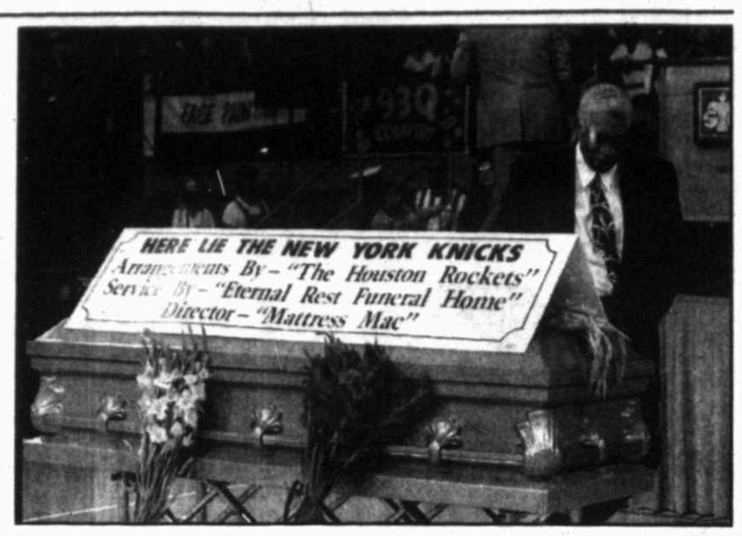

"All of that comes from the ball being passed to Olajuwon and playing off of him," Harper said. "He creates a lot of shots for their basketball team and we're going to have to find a way to not give them everything they want."

Starks also can be deadly with the 3-pointer, but the Knicks use the shot differently from the higher-scoring Rockets.

"They rely more on it as a weapon. With us, it's more of a secret weapon, kind of like a knockout punch," Anthony said. "They use it throughout the course of the entire fight."

Guards on both teams, however, have shot inconsistently. In Game 6 against Indiana, Harper was 5-for-11 and Starks 8-for-11. Two days later, Harper was 5-for-14 and Starks 5-for-16.

Maxwell hasn't made more than half his shots in his last nine games.

CENTERS: Ewing won in last title meeting

(From 1C)

Ewing had 23 points and 11 rebounds as a freshman when another college rookie, Michael Jordan, hit a jumper from the corner that gave North Carolina the lead in the championship game and set the stage for Fred Brown's pass to the wrong team that sealed the matter.

The 7-foot All-Americans dominated the talk before Georgetown's 84-75 victory that Monday night in April and some tried to make it into a second meeting of Elvin Hayes and Lew Alcindor when those centers were at Houston and UCLA in the late 60s.

"This game doesn't have that feel at all," said Guy Lewis, who coached both Hayes and Olajuwon. "It's not the same."

Georgetown coach John Thompson wouldn't be dragged into the pregame frenzy.

"Patrick and Akeem are the two primary figures," he said, "but it won't be just a one-on-one matchup. If you look at team defense, we'd lose a lot of gams if Patrick guarded just one person. Those kids are great because they help out a lot of people."

Ewing played the party line leading to the only matchup he would have as a collegian with Olajuwon.

"It's not Olajuwon against Ewing," he said. "It's Houston against Georgetown."

He was right. His strong supporting case of freshmen Michael Graham and Reggie Lewis and sophomore David Wingate came up big in the 84-75 victory over the Cougars who were led by sophomore guard Alvin Franklin.

Ewing had 10 points and nine rebounds. Olajuwon, saddled by foul trouble as he picked up his fourth foul less than 30 seconds into the second half, had 15 points and nine rebounds.

Ewing, who would lose two championship games by a total of three points, had his NCAA title.

"That was what we worked for all those days, long hours, long nights," he said. "We finally reached the goal we set for ourselves."

Olajuwon never got the chance to cut down the nets. He was beaten by a miracle shot one year, shackled with foul trouble the next. Now known as Hakeem Olajuwon, he was the NBA's MVP this season, not bad for a guy who started playing basketball in 1981.

Now Ewing and Olajuwon meet with another title at stake. This will be more of a one-on-one matchup, the style of the NBA dictates that, but there are still the supporting casts to consider.

But for the next 10 days or so the eyes of the basketball world will be fixed on Houston and New York as two foreign-born centers are about to meet in the NBA Finals.

MC: York twelfth player in new Chap program then I'm happy to stay on the bench. I'm just a team player. I'm not worried about being a star."

(From 1C)

"Deborah really came through for us being a first-year varsity player," said Midland Lee girls basketball coach Elise Kail. "She came through as far getting rebounds and taking away attention from Krissy (Woodard)."

York becomes the twelfth player to sign on with Jones.

Joining York and Wright in the fall will be Keona Carter, a 6-0 center from Mustang, Okla. She is the niece of former Midland Cub and current Toronto Blue Jay Joe Carter. Others are: Amber Follis, a 5-3 guard from Houston; Pam Hicks, a 5-6 guard from Winnsboro; Holly Houston, a 5-8 guard-forward from Slaton; Stacie Johnson, a 5-10 forward from Bloomington; Shannon Jordan, a 5-7 guard-forward from Meadow; 5-9 forward Tomenia Porter from Jacksonville; 5-8 Tiffany Rhodes from Houston; Shandi Stabeno, 5-9 forward from Slaton, and Roslynn Dunn, a guard from Plainview.

"I think we have got depth, some excellent shooters and good quickness," said Jones. "Now we are waiting on some (college entrance exam) scores of those big people we are trying to come up with. If we get them then we will have had a very successful first recruiting year."

ANGELS: Sweeney burns El Paso for six RBI

sion title for at least one more game.

And if the home plate umpire had been a little more lenient, Midland third baseman Chris Smith might not have had his moment in the sun (or rather stadium lights). With two outs and the Angels trailing 9-8, Smith asked for a timeout during his at bat. The umpire denied but Smith had already stepped out of the batter's box only to realize the opposing pitcher was in the windup.

Smith's solution: hit the ball anyway. The result: a two RBI line single up the middle of the field and a 11-9 Angels lead that would hold. The hit also resulted in reliever Shawn Purdy's first win of the season (1-6). Ron Watson pitched the last two innings for his first save.

While Smith was the game-winner, rightfielder Mark Sweeney was the game-breaker.

Sweeney drove in an Angels' season-high six runs — five off hits and one off a walk in the seventh when Midland brought 11 men to the plate. He almost single-handedly kept the Angels in the game after the Diablos rattled starter John Fritz for 12 hits in the first 4⅓ innings.

Sweeney hit his fourth home run of the season, a two-run shot in the first to pull Midland to within 3-2. He then drove in two more with a double in the third and hit an RBI sacrifice fly in the eighth to put the game out of reach. The six RBI tops the two five-RBI performances for Luis Raven, who is now playing for Vancouver.

"It felt good because we came back," Sweeney said of the win. "You've got to be able to do that, especially at this field. The game is never over here."

The effort by Sweeney and the rest of the Angels was impressive considering their position in the Western Division with 10 games to play. The Diablos clinched at least a tie for the first-half title with a 5-4 win Monday night. All they have to do is win one of their next 10 games to clinch the title.

But the Angels weren't ready to treat El Paso to champagne on Tuesday.

"If they win the first-half, then they win," Sweeney said. "We're not going to concern ourselves with that. But we've got to prove to ourselves that we can come back and win games. Wins like this can turn around a season."

The large Tuesday-night crowd (3,481) was treated to a gripping ball game. There were four lead changes and three double plays, all by Midland, including a nifty solo job by Watson. After walking the first batter in the ninth and giving up a single to put Diablo runners at first and second, Watson neatly gloved a Mike Harris line drive then tossed over to first to put out Duane Singleton. Watson then struck out pinch hitter Mark Stefanski for the save.

ANGEL DUST: Second baseman J.D. Ramirez missed hitting in his 22nd of 24 games for the Angels, but he did produce two runs with some good work on the basepaths after walking his first two times at the plate...Dom Johnson (3-2, 4.63) will start on the mound for the Angels tonight at 7 p.m. in Game Three of the six-game series with El Paso. Francisco Gamez (6-2, 3.47) will go for the Diablos.

Stats show Knick defense NBA's best

HOUSTON (AP) — The New York Knicks were the NBA's leading defensive team during the regular season, permitting a league-low 43.1 opponents' shooting percentage and allowing an average of 91.5 points.

The Knicks, who meet the Houston Rockets in Game 1 of the NBA Finals on Wednesday night, had the lowest defensive average in 39 years and the fourth-lowest since the advent of the 24-second shot clock in 1954-55. The three lowest figures all came in that first season with the shot clock.

The last time the league's best defensive team won the NBA championship was 1990 when the Detroit Pistons, who gave up 98.3 points per game, won their second straight title. Before that, the last No. 1 defensive team to win the championship was Seattle in 1979.

NBA AIRS IN CHINA

China is the latest addition to a list of countries where the NBA Finals will be televised.

CCTV-China will televise the games, which are carried in the United States by NBC. The addition of China brings to 117 the number of nations in which the games will be aired. Fans in 64 of those countries will see some or all of the games live, while the rest will watch on a tape-delay basis.

Last year's series was televised in 109 countries.

For the fourth year in a row, there also will be an increase in the number of broadcast teams in New York and Houston. Broadcasters from 15 countries will work the series, to be aired in a record 25 languages.

ROCKETS FAVORED

The Houston Rockets are favored by British bookmakers to win the NBA championship.

The Rockets are an 8-15 shot to defeat the Knicks in the best-of-7 series starting Wednesday night, according to bookmaker Ladbrokes. The Knicks can be backed at 11-8.

"We rated the Knicks as 11-10 favorites before the conference finals, but after the contrasting conference performances, and the Rockets' rest period, we have to make Houston favorites for the final," spokesman Paul Austin said.

■ NBA Notes

SHAVED HEADS

Rockets sub Mario Elie said he will shave his head before Wednesday night's game, fulfilling his promise to bald-headed teammate Vernon Maxwell if Houston made the Finals.

"My head can't look any worse than Charles Oakley's," Elie said, referring to New York's forward who joined several Knicks in shaving their heads for the playoffs. "Mine will be shaved tomorrow."

HOMECOURT ADVANTAGE?

The Eastern Conference champion has won the last five NBA titles by dominating its road games in the Finals.

The Detroit Pistons won five consecutive road games in their championship years of 1989 and 1990, and the Chicago Bulls won eight of nine on the road en route to titles the last three years.

To continue that streak of 13 wins in 14 road games, the East champion Knicks will have to turn around their 2-6 road record in this year's playoffs. Houston is 7-2 at home.

Despite losing the last five Finals, the Western Conference champion is a respectable 5-7 on the road in those series.

This marks the 10th straight year and the 14th time in NBA history that the Finals will be played in the 2-3-2 homecourt format. Despite initial fears that the team with the middle three home games had an open road to the championship if it could split the first two games, the results haven't borne out that fear.

Chicago was only the second team in 13 Finals under the 2-3-2 format that the team with the middle three games at home was the winner. The only other time was in 1985, when the Los Angeles Lakers opened in Boston and won the title in six games.

Overall, the team with the extra game at home has won 34 NBA Finals and lost 13, but the champion was crowned on the road four of the last five seasons.

FEW COMEBACKS

No team has ever come back from a 3-0 or 3-1 deficit to win.

Expansion committee holds off recommendation

CINCINNATI (AP) — The head of baseball's expansion committee said Tuesday night that his group isn't ready to make a recommendation on whether or when the major leagues should add teams.

Boston Red Sox owner John Harrington said no votes will be taken at this week's quarterly meetings. When it was suggested his group was a long way from making a recommendation, he responded: "It may be longer than that."

Phoenix and St. Petersburg, Fla., are pushing for the major leagues to expand by 1998. Phoenix Suns president Jerry Colangelo has assembled an ownership group for a team, and the Maricopa County Board of Supervisors on Feb. 17 approved a sales tax to fund a $238 million domed stadium. But the sales tax wouldn't begin until Phoenix is awarded a franchise.

Report: Tyson negotiating

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson is negotiating to be released early from prison, possibly by next week, Sports Illustrated reported. Attorneys for both sides Tuesday denied the story.

Sports Illustrated reported in its June 13 issue that Tyson would pay Desiree Washington $1.5 million to settle a civil lawsuit. He also would apologize for doing something wrong and causing Washington harm, but would not admit to rape, the magazine reported.

"There is no deal, and I told Sports Illustrated unequivocally that that was false," Tyson attorney Alan Dershowitz said in a telephone interview from his home in Boston. "There's just no deal in the works that requires Mike to apologize and I don't know who is leaking it, but they are doing it to achieve an agenda."

A spokeswoman for the Indiana attorney general's office also denied there had been any negotiations with Tyson.

"This office has never engaged in any kind of negotiations with Tyson's attorney, nor do we intend to," Lis Daily said.

Sports Illustrated reported Washington, after receiving Tyson's apology, would tell Marion Superior Court Judge Patricia Gifford that Tyson should be released. Gifford would have the final say, but Sports Illustrated said Tyson could be released as early as next week.

Central College grabs Kendrick

Midland Lee's Dee Kendrick has signed a national letter of intent to play basketball at Central College in McPherson, Kan., this fall.

Kendrick, a 5-4 guard, averaged 7.2 points, four rebounds, 2.8 steals and two assists per game for the Lady Rebels as a senior.

Former Lee player Debbie Kuntz was a two-year starter for Central College.

"This is the second player that has come to Central from Coach (Elise) Kail's program," said Central coach Gary Turner. "Dee has similar potential as Debbie. Kail's players are already fundamentally sound and that is a big plus for me."

Kendrick hit 33.8 percent of her shots from three-point range and with the graduation of four guards, Turner is looking for immediate help.

"Kendrick can play at either a point or shooting guard position and will be asked to play like a veteran from day one," Turner said. "At this point, she is only one of two outside shooters that I have for next year."

Central has had back-to-back 20-win seasons to go with a regional championship in 1994 and was also a district finalist.

Ross to play at Sul Ross State

ALPINE — Tricia Ross, a Greenwood graduate, has declared her intent to play basketball for the Sul Ross State University Lady Lobos this fall.

At Greenwood, Ross competed in basketball, volleyball, softball and tennis. She was a four-year starter in basketball and was an All-District choice for three seasons, averaging 5.8 rebounds and 9.9 points per contest.

Sul Ross competes in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association against Austin College, Midwestern State, Howard Payne, Hardin-Simmons, McMurry and the University of Dallas.

Ranger inks MHS runner Weber

Steve Weber, who just graduated from Midland High, has signed a scholarship agreement with Ranger Junior College to run cross country next fall.

Weber will join Ranger coach Wes Kope on Aug. 18 to begin work for the fall cross country season.

Weber was named as the most improved cross country runner at Midland High this past fall. He also runs for the Tall City Christian Track Club in the summers.

Arizona State smacks Miami

Associated Press

■ College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Jacob Cruz and Antone Williamson each hit two homers Tuesday night to lead Arizona State to a 9-5 victory over top-seeded Miami and keep its absent coach's hopes alive for another College World Series title.

Jim Brock, who has won two national championships with the Sun Devils, is fighting life-draining cancer and he left Omaha earlier Tuesday. He returned to the Phoenix area on the advice of his family physician. He was resting comfortably in a Mesa hospital, according to the school's sports information office.

Brock missed his team tied a CWS record with five home runs — Todd Cady also hit one — and his 1,100th career win.

Arizona State (45-17) handed Miami (49-14) both its losses in the tournament. The Sun Devils beat the Hurricanes 4-0 in the opening round Saturday.

Miami didn't get a hit off Sun Devils starter Jason Bond until Alex Miranda's two-out single in the fifth. But the Hurricanes had scratched a run in the first when Wicho Hernandez walked, went to third when Williamson threw wild to first on a sacrifice bunt and scored on Danny Buxbaum's groundout.

Fullerton St. 10, Florida St. 3

OMAHA, Neb. — Mark Kotsay knocked in seven runs, including a grand slam, to tie a College World Series record, powering Fullerton State past Florida State in an elimination game.

Kotsay had a sacrifice fly in the fifth, a two-run double in the seventh and a grand slam.

Two other players had seven RBIs in a CWS game: Carl Thomas of Arizona in 1954 and Stan Holmes of Arizona State in 1981.

Fullerton State, the No. 7 seed, moves into Wednesday's semifinal against No. 2 seed Georgia Tech (49-16). The Titans (46-15), 2-0 losers to Tech in Friday's first round, would force a second semifinal Friday if they beat the Yellow Jackets. A Fullerton State loss Wednesday lets Georgia Tech move into Saturday's championship.

U.S.'s German star no celeb

■ World Cup Soccer

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — He is a celebrity in Germany, approached on the streets and in restaurants, where everyone wants to talk soccer.

Eric Wynalda is another country now, his own country. And, for the most part, he is a stranger.

"In Germany, if I'm out, a lot of people recognize me, although they're very polite about it," he said after practice at the training center for the U.S. national team. "Here, I can walk on the streets, walk down the beach, without anybody recognizing me."

Wynalda played on the 1990 U.S. World Cup team that was routed in Italy. He is back home for another shot at soccer's showpiece event after playing two years in Germany. He and the U.S. squad open June 18 against Switzerland in Pontiac, Mich.

Wynalda, who's extremely fast and has good ball control, earned some notice last weekend. On the play of the game, he dribbled past three defenders then made a perfect pass to teammate Roy Wegerle for the game's only goal as the United States beat Mexico for only the fourth time in 42 meetings.

Wynalda turns 25 on Thursday. He says he is a much different player from the hot-headed one who played four years ago in Italy.

In his World Cup debut, against Czechoslovakia, he drew a warning for elbowing a player in the face, then was ejected for stepping on another opponent's foot. Wynalda thus became the only American ever red-carded in a World Cup game, and he also became the answer to a trivia question.

"A friend called me a few years back from Miami, woke me up in the early morning, and said that he wanted to thank me," Wynalda related. "He said that he had needed to answer just one question to win a Trivial Pursuit game, and I was the answer."

Wynalda, who grew up in the Los Angeles suburb of Westlake and played at San Diego State, used to think of himself as a "bad boy of soccer." He said San Diego State's athletic director received letters from opponents complaining about his conduct on the field.

However, getting red-carded in Italy was a learning experience, Wynalda said.

"I've changed a lot since then" he said. "I would hope so. I was pretty young and I let my emotions run away with me sometimes. I've learned to channel them, playing smarter than I did then."

Airlines drop fine print; flying's easier

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Those 14-day advance purchase restrictions, Saturday night-stay requirements and nonrefundable tickets are slipping out of the fine-print conditions that clutter the bottom of air fare ads.

Led by small new carriers, big established airlines are scrapping restrictions that have forced vacationers to decide on an itinerary months ahead of time, often with only a few days before a sale expires.

The trend is part of a broader move toward consistently lower pricing and Spartan service to satisfy air travelers who insist on the cheapest fare.

"The full-service airline as we have known it since the dawn of aviation may become a thing of the past," said Raymond E. Neidl, an industry analyst at the brokerage Furman Selz Inc. " 'Wal-Martization' of the industry is now under way in earnest."

Southwest Airlines' simple and relatively affordable fares have become common in the West. Now Continental and USAir are mimicking Southwest's strategy on the East Coast, and United Airlines is preparing its own version of a low-fare airline.

The unfettered conditions give new flexibility to vacationers, who previously had to time their ticket purchases like stock market speculators — buy now or bet on a better price later.

To attract many bargain-hunting vacationers who typically travel in pairs, many airlines are offering two tickets for the price of one.

Some are even offering refunds, breaching what had been a solid trend in discount airline pricing — nonrefundable tickets. Continental Airlines will give full refunds of its Peanuts Fares, while others will charge between $25 and $100 for a refund.

Along with the recovering economy, the spread of cut-rate air fares is expected to draw 140 million Americans to the air this summer, the Air Transport Association estimates. If the trade group's figure is correct, it would surpass the 139.7 million travelers who flew in the summer of 1992 when air fares were cut in half.

The airline industry is still governed by a complex web of different fare levels and occasional sales, but more airlines are moving closer to a flat-rate pricing strategy.

In some cases, the new prices result in vacationers paying more.

Between its Denver hub and the West Coast, Continental heavily promoted a $99 one-way Peanut Fare. While far lower than the highest fares charged last-minute travelers, the fare is also higher than previous sales.

The result was an average fare higher than the $87 per seat the airline had been collecting, said Don Valentine, Continental's senior vice president for marketing and sales.

The airline has narrowed the gap between the highest and lowest fares, meaning travelers who buy their tickets just before a flight pay substantially less, while many discounts aimed at vacationers are dropped.

But for the most part, the fares are cheaper.

Prices slide

NEW YORK — Oil prices finished lower Tuesday amid expectations of an increase in weekly inventories and a report that Iraq was ready to discuss recognizing Kuwait's borders.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in July settled at $17.75 per barrel, down 36 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers lowered their posted price 25 cents to $16.50 a barrel.

An Iraqi official said Baghdad wanted to reopen talks with Kuwait, according to a Jordanian newspaper. The newspaper, Al Dustour, said a member of Iraq's central legislative body said Iraq wanted to restore relations and consider recognizing Kuwait and its borders.

Iraq has claimed Kuwait is part of Iraq and has refused to recognize a U.N. Security Council resolution demarcating borders. Iraqi recognition of Kuwait would move it a step closer to a lifting of an embargo against oil exports.

After the market closed Tuesday, the American Petroleum Institute said crude oil stocks fell by 4.33 million barrels to 328.84 million, gasoline supplies rose by 973,000 barrels to 216.77 million and distillates, which include heating oil, rose by 4.21 million barrels to 114.53 million.

Refineries cut production to 95.1 percent of capacity from 95.3 percent.

Natural gas prices were mostly higher, with contracts for delivery in July settling at $2.022 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 5.2 cents.

Dollar plunges

NEW YORK — The dollar plunged against the Japanese yen in late trading Tuesday after U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor threatened sanctions to force open Japan's markets if the current trade talks fail.

In New York, the dollar plunged to 104.20 yen from 105.30 a day earlier.

The British pound rose to $1.5095 from $1.5075 in New York.

Other late dollar rates in New York compared with late Monday: 1.6660 German marks, down from 1.6700; 1.4130 Swiss francs, down from 1.4167; 5.6815 French francs, down from 5.6955; 1,615 Italian lire, down from 1,618; and 1.3723 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3725.

Stocks retreat

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks pulled back in a lethargic session Tuesday as a negative day for the bond market left investors lacking a buying incentive.

The Dow Jones industrial average and other major measures of market performance finished an uneventful session with lower readings.

The Nasdaq Stock Market composite index dropped 4.13 to 739.30 while the American Stock Exchange market value index slipped 0.10 to 442.49.

Bush stumps, bashes federal policies on oil

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush campaigned Tuesday for the votes of independent oil producers and kept with a running industry theme: bashing federal oil policies.

"I believe Texas ought to have a governor who has got the political will and leadership to stand up to the Congress and the president of the United States and say, 'Stay out of Texas,' " Bush said.

Bush told the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association that past federal policies such as natural gas price controls were disastrous for the petroleum industry.

"Governors and governments must create environments in which producers and small business people and entrepreneurs are willing to risk capital," he said.

The Texas governor ought use "political capital and political leverage" to fight for favorable federal legislation and against bad policies that cut into the livelihood of oil producers, Bush said.

Gov. Ann Richards spoke to the TIPRO convention Monday. She also criticized federal energy policies that have kept the United States dependent on cheap foreign oil and said tax incentives should be used to help spur domestic production.

Bush, eldest son of the former Republican president, reminded the oil producers of his background in their industry.

"I sought my fortune in Midland, Texas. I thought I had it made until the 1986 bust," he said.

Bush said he favors some federal legislation, like a proposed $3-per-barrel tax refund for stripper wells and newly discovered wells if oil prices drop below $20 per barrel.

Like Richards, Bush referred to the oil business as a matter of "national security."

Bush stressed his other campaign themes, criticizing the growth of state government and declaring his support for decentralizing education, providing for swift, certain punishment for criminals and embarking on tort reform.

PNC agrees to buy Associates' mortgage portfolio

N.Y. Times News Service

Further expanding its fast-growing mortgage-banking business, the PNC Bank Corp. said Tuesday that it had agreed to buy the $10 billion mortgage-servicing portfolio of the Associates Corp. of North America, a division of the Ford Motor Co.

The acquisition, which will put PNC in the top 10 mortgage servicers with a portfolio of $46 billion, is yet another sign of the increasing attractiveness of mortgage servicing as new mortgage loan originations decline. Mortgage servicing is basically the sending of bills and the collection of payments on mortgages.

Associates, based in Dallas, is retaining its worldwide consumer and commercial loan operations, which had $30.2 billion in assets as of March 31. "Associates and Ford will continue to be in the financial services business," David Krupp, a Ford spokesman, said. The mortgage service business "is only a small part of what Associates does," he added

PNC, based in Pittsburgh, said it signed a letter of intent to buy the mortgage-servicing portfolio for about $117 million in cash. The companies said they expected to close the deal later this month.

New Kids Academy offers day-care services

By Mella McEwen

McEwen

For the summer, she said there are a number of "thematic" units that the children study, which include making costumes and related items. Themes range from the solar system to Indians to musicmakers.

Summer activities also include swimming lessons, sewing and cooking lessons and science experiments. The building has separate rooms for such activities as woodworking and sewing.

Kids Academy, for ages 3 to 12, can accommodate up to 60. Twenty-three now are enrolled. Hours are 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A grand opening is scheduled for today for the AIRPORT RAMADA RESTAURANT AND PUB (Smarty's II), located at the Airport Ramada on the Highway 80 Airport exit.

The restaurant offers breakfast, lunch and dinner. Features include a salad bar, early bird dinner specials and banquet rooms.

The Pub, which will have an official "Rush" Room, is open daily from 11 a.m. to midnight.

Ken Crowson, a franchisee of CD WAREHOUSE, has opened a CD Warehouse location in Midland at 4706 N. Midkiff Road.

The store specializes in used compact discs ranging in styles from rock and roll to country, jazz, soundtracks and classical. Also carried are new releases and best sellers.

Most of the inventory — expected to reach 10,000 in the near future — comes from customers through purchase or trade.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Midlander Jack Grunenwald, who spent 20 years with General Electric, including seven here in Midland, has opened an appliance parts business.

JG SPECIALTY PRODUCTS is located at 4322 Andrews Highway. Grunenwald said he can order parts for all major home appliances and carries a wide inventory of parts for the major brand names. The store is geared toward "do-it-yourself" repair or for those who do apartment maintenace.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

ANN'S DRESSED IN TIME has opened its doors at 4311-B W. Illinois Ave.

Owner Cynthia Wadleigh said she rents bridal and formal wear and costumes, rents and sells vintage clothing and does alterations and restorations.

She also has a large collection of party books with party ideas and recipes that she loans out.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Evening appointments can be made.

On the move is State Farm Agent Laura Ingram, who has moved her office to 1202 Andrews Highway, the building previously occupied by retired State Farm agent Bill Dillon.

Also in a new location is JOHN'S TRANSMISSION AND AUTO SERVICE, which has moved to 1422 Rankin Highway.

Owner John McGraw said he specializes in anything associated with automatic transmissions on both foreign and domestic makes of automobiles.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:

- You may request a quote, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.

- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

Atlanta pounds Padres

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Fred McGriff homered for the third time in four games and drove in five runs as the Atlanta Braves pounded the San Diego Padres 12-3 Tuesday night for their seventh win in eight games.

■ NL Roundup

McGriff tied his career-high for RBIs as the Braves increased their record to 36-19, best in the majors, and their mark to 19-2 against NL West teams.

Kent Mercker (4-1) gave up two runs and six hits in 5 2-3 innings. He also snapped an 0-for-38 hitting drought with a third-inning single off Scott Sanders (2-4).

McGriff hit his 17th homer of the season in the fourth after Jeff Blauser and Ryan Klesko had singled. The three-run shot erased San Diego's 1-0 lead and also increased McGriff's RBI total to 40, including 10 in the last four games.

Expos 3, Astros 2

MONTREAL — Marquis Grissom's single in the seventh inning scored the go-ahead run and lifted Montreal to their sixth straight win, beating Houston.

Grissom's one-out liner off David Veres (2-3) scored Sean Berry as the Expos moved 12 games over .500 for the first time this season.

Gil Heredia (2-2) pitched 1 1-3 innings of hitless relief for the win.

Mel Rojas gave up a pair of two-out singles in the ninth before John Wetteland hit pinch-hitter Kevin Bass to load the bases. But Wetteland struck out Steve Finley for his ninth save.

Giants 3, Pirates 2, 10 innings

PITTSBURGH — Matt Williams hit his league-leading 21st homer on reliever Rick White's second pitch in the 10th inning, carrying San Francisco to a victory over Pittsburgh.

Rod Beck (2-3) pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for the victory, only the Giants' third in nine extra-inning games. The Giants are 5-0 against Pittsburgh this season.

Reds 5, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Erik Hanson rebounded from two miserable starts by pitching one-hit ball for eight innings and Cincinnati beat St. Louis Cardinals.

Hanson (4-5) gave up a single to Ozzie Smith with one out in the first inning, then retired 20 batters in a row. Smith was erased on a double play and Hanson pitched to the minimum number of hitters through seven innings. He struck out one and walked one.

Phillies 7, Cubs 6

PHILADELPHIA — Pinch-hitter Billy Hatcher's first hit for Philadelphia drove in the go-ahead run in the eighth inning and Philadelphia beat Chicago, the Cubs' eighth straight loss.

Darren Daulton singled with one out against Randy Myers (0-3), moved up on a groundout and was running on the pitch when Hatcher singled to left field.

Dodgers 2, Marlins 0

MIAMI — Ramon Martinez pitched a three-hitter for his second consecutive shutout as Los Angeles Dodgers beat Florida.

Los Angeles snapped a four-game losing skid and stopped Florida's five-game winning streak, the longest in team history.

Martinez (5-2), who has won his past five decisions, also singled in a run and helped himself with flawless glovework. Raul Mondesi drove in the Dodgers' other run with a second-inning single — after a rare first-strike call.

Rockies 10, Mets 8

DENVER — Shortstop Jose Vizcaino's error enabled Colorado to score the go-ahead run in the eighth inning for a victory over New York.

Colorado scored five runs in the seventh inning to take an 8-4 lead, but the Mets rallied with four in the eighth.

Although he allowed five hits and four runs in the one inning he worked, Bruce Ruffin (3-2) got the win. Mike Munoz pitched the ninth for his first save.

DETROIT — Roger Clemens had a season-high 12 strikeouts, and Rich Rowland hit a two-run homer as the Boston Red Sox ended a four-game skid with a 5-1 victory Tuesday over the Detroit Tigers.

Clemens (6-2), who gave up one run on four hits over seven innings, has had only moderate success against Detroit. But he was in control from the very start this time, striking out Tony Phillips to open the Detroit first and getting seven of his first nine outs on strikeouts.

It was the 57th time Clemens has reached double figures in strikeouts. The record is 215 by Nolan Ryan. The Tigers lead the majors with 410 strikeouts.

Clemens, who yielded Mickey Tettleton's ninth homer in the seventh, entered the game with a 10-8 record and 5.15 ERA in his first 22 career starts against the Tigers. But Alan Trammell's two-out single in the second — when Clemens struck out the side — was the only well-hit ball until Phillips hit a two-out single in the fifth.

Rangers 10, Yankees 9

ARLINGTON — David Hulse and Jose Canseco each homered to key a six-run first inning as Texas outlasted New York.

Will Clark also homered and Esteban Beltre went 3-for-4 with two RBIs as Texas won for the seventh time in nine games.

Don Mattingly, Paul O'Neill and Bernie Williams homered for the Yankees, who have dropped five of six.

O'Neill went 3-for-5 to raise his major league-leading average to .431.

Rangers rookie starter Hector Fajardo (2-1) was the beneficiary of the big early lead, surviving a two-run first and sixth-inning homers by O'Neill and Williams.

Fajardo allowed five runs and seven hits in six innings.

The Yankees scored three runs in the ninth but Cris Carpenter got Mike Gallego to fly to left with the bases loaded for the final out and his fourth save.

After the Yankees jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first, Texas tagged Scott Kamieniecki (4-1) for six runs and six hits in its half of the inning.

Blue Jays 9, White Sox 5

CHICAGO — Wilson Alvarez had his 15-game winning streak stopped as Toronto scored in each of the first six innings to beat Chicago.

Roberto Alomar hit a two-run homer and an RBI single as the Blue Jays handed Alvarez (8-1) his first loss since Aug. 11.

Alvarez, who won his last seven regular-season decisions in 1993 and Game 3 of the ALCS, shared the club record with LaMarr Hoyt, who won 15 straight games in 1983-84. Cleveland's Johnny Allen and Baltimore's Dave McNally share the AL mark at 17 consecutive wins.

Alvarez allowed six runs and eight hits in three innings. He walked two and struck out one.

Darrin Jackson drove in all five runs for the White Sox.

Pat Hentgen (7-5) settled down after giving up a grand slam to Jackson in the first. Hentgen didn't allow another run and left after six innings, giving up eight hits.

Royals 7, Orioles 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — David Cone became the first nine-game winner in the American League when Kansas City rallied for five runs in the sixth inning to beat Baltimore.

Chico Lind and Wally Joyner each had two-out, two-run singles in the inning as Cone (9-2) beat Ben McDonald, who was also after his ninth victory.

Cone had won eight straight before losing a game and getting a no-decision in his last start June 1 at Boston. He gave up five hits and two runs in eight innings.

McDonald (8-4), who was knocked out in the sixth, was making his first start since he sustained a groin injury on May 28. McDonald, who had missed a start because of the injury, gave up six runs and eight hits.

Cone joined Atlanta's Greg Maddux as baseball's only nine-game winners.

Calcium alert

If your daughter is between 5 and 10, now is the time for action to save her from bone-crippling osteoporosis in old age. That startling advice comes from new research by pediatrician Steven A. Abrams at Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston.

It's critical that young girls get lots of calcium several years before they reach age 11. That's because "most bone-forming activity occurs in the years just before and just after the start of puberty," which on average is age 10, says Dr. Abrams. Menstruation begins two or three years later. By age 15, most bone-forming activity has come to a virtual halt, he says.

Thus, it's during bone formation that girls really need high doses of calcium to add as much bone as possible. The higher the bone mass, the lower the odds of osteoporosis later in life.

Previously, researchers recommended high calcium of 1,200 milligrams a day from ages 11 to 24. Dr. Abrams says it's needed much earlier. Age 5 is not too early to start emphasizing calcium, he says.

Four eight-ounce glasses of milk have about 1,200 mg of calcium, Dr. Abrams notes. Use non-fat or low-fat milk which has slightly more calcium than high-fat whole milk.

Tea for teeth

Drinking plain old tea helps keep cavities away. That's what some researchers have been claiming for years. Now there's new confirming evidence from several animal studies done in Japan.

Researchers at Osaka University studied rats infected with bacteria that can cause cavities. The animals given oolong tea in their drinking wafer had far fewer cavities and accumulation of plaque on their teeth than those not getting the tea.

In two other recent tests, Japanese researchers documented the same cavity-fighting powers from chemicals in Asian-type green tea. The tea seems to keep the cavity-causing sugary-bacteria complexes from sticking to the teeth.

What's tea's secret ingredient? Most likely specific chemicals called polyphenols or catechins. However, tea is very rich in fluoride which may also act as a cavity-deterrent. Another recent Indian study found that fluoride definitely leaches from tea leaves and powdered tea into hot water.

Incidentally, while black tea, most popular among Americans, has anti-cavity activity, green tea seems more potent. Herbal teas do not contain the cavity-fighting chemicals, however.

Iron cancer threat?

When you think about cancer-causing agents, you probably don't think about iron, as found in fortified foods like cereals and vitamin-mineral pills. But excessive iron in blood may be an overlooked cancer threat, according to Richard G. Stevens of the Pacific Northwest Laboratory in Richmond, Wash.

In a new study of 8,000 persons, reported in Science News, Dr. Stevens found that the higher the iron in blood, the greater the risk of developing cancer. Bladder and esophageal cancers were most firmly linked.

How could that be? For one thing, iron has been shown to stimulate free radicals, renegade chemicals that damage cells, triggering cancer. Also, iron may serve as fuel to help cancer cells grow and replicate.

In Stevens' study, those with twice the normal amount of iron stored in a specific blood protein were most prone to cancer. A new Finnish study suggested similar iron dangers.

Some experts advise all women past menopause and adult men to avoid iron supplements. If you are not anemic, donating blood, as one study showed, may reduce cancer risk, notes Stevens.

OTC pain relievers have more than 150 names

By Carolyn Poirot
N.Y. Times News Service

Remember when you took two aspirins for pain — and called your doctor in the morning if it didn't get better?

It didn't matter what the pain was — headache, arthritis, cramps, bruises, sprains, muscle aches. Aspirin was the only drug available over the counter (OTC) to relieve pain, fever or inflammation, and it was sold primarily under two brand names: Bayer and St. Joseph.

Today there are still only four basic over-the-counter pain relievers, but they are sold under more than 150 names and are available in buffered, coated, time-release, extra-strength, effervescent and generic forms.

All the OTC pain relievers contain aspirin, acetaminophen, ibuprofen or — just this year — naproxen sodium.

Naproxen joined the multibillion-dollar OTC painkiller market with Food and Drug Administration approval in January, after being sold by prescription only since 1976. It was the first new OTC pain reliever since ibuprofen received OTC approval in 1984.

Most drugstores and supermarkets have a vast selection of OTC pain relievers with very subtle differences, making it sometimes more difficult than it should be to chose the right pill for the pain.

All four chemicals — aspirin, acetaminophen, ibuprofen and naproxen — are analgesics, which means pain relievers, and all four also reduce fever.

The difference is that acetaminophen does not have the anti-inflammatory action of aspirin and the others, nor does it inhibit blood clotting, said Dr. Harbans Lal, chairman of the Department of Pharmacology at the University of North Texas Medical Center in Fort Worth.

Acetaminophen, sold as Tylenol and Panadol, does not reduce inflammation, so it may not be as effective for arthritis pain, but it has the advantage of fewer side effects (especially stomach upset and gastrointestinal bleeding), Lal noted. It is a good choice to relieve headaches and other pain, especially if it must be taken often or on a regular basis.

The other three are classified as "nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs" (NSAIDs). Some studies indicate that ibuprofen, sold as Motrin IB, Advil and Nuprin, may be more effective for sore muscles and menstrual cramps, and Naproxen, which was developed as a prescription arthritis medication, may be more helpful for arthritis, but the NSAIDs are all very much alike, Lal said.

All except naproxen, which currently is sold only under the brand name Aleve, are available as generics.

"Generics are very equivalent now. They must be," Lal said. "The FDA requires that companies producing them do the studies to prove they give the same blood-level concentrations as the originals. They don't have to prove effectiveness because that is already proven with the original, but they must prove they deliver the same amount of the drug, where it is needed."

Lal said many pharmaceutical companies make generics of their own brand-name drugs, so you are getting the exact same thing when you purchase the generic.

The form of the drug — tablet, capsule, caplet, liquid, gelcap, coated tab-

Steer clear of fad or quick weight-loss diets

Associated Press

Many fad diets or quick weight-loss diets restrict calories severely (under 1,000 calories). According to Better Homes and Gardens magazine, following a diet that restricts calories and foods you enjoy decreases the chances of sticking with it and increases the risk of failure. Here's why:

■ Studies show that the body's metabolic rate tends to slow down during drastic dieting. In fact, it appears that the more restrictive the diet, the bigger the drop in metabolism. The body is reacting to the drastic changes by becoming thriftier in using fewer, not more, calories — a distressing consequence for the diligent dieter. That's why you don't lose as much weight as you expect.

■ When you lose and gain repeatedly (known as yo-yo dieting), you may actually increase your total amount of body fat with each cycle. Yo-yo dieting can take a toll on the body and has been shown to cause heart disease and early death.

■ Quick weight loss often turns into quick weight gain. Sadly, within six months, many swift weight whittlers have gained back the weight plus a little extra. When weight is lost too fast, most of the loss is just water. Unfortunately, you'll also lose lean muscle, which sabotages your weight-loss efforts. The more muscle you have, the more calories your body uses — even while resting. That's why two people of the same weight — one who is fit vs. one who is fat — may not need the same number of calories. The fit person needs more.

Study: AIDS virus may hinder body's defenses

NEW YORK (AP) — The AIDS virus may be able to hamper the body's attack on the cells where it hides, which could help its infection persist, a study says.

The study, and a similar one with hepatitis B virus, are the most direct demonstrations yet that some viruses can hinder the immune system's killer cells by making variants of particular proteins.

Normally, killer cells destroy cells harboring the AIDS virus, called HIV, and so kill the virus. Killer cells recognize their targets by bits of HIV protein displayed on the surface of the target cells.

The new work found that in the test tube, killer cells that encountered naturally occurring variants of HIV protein bits were significantly inhibited in their ability to destroy cells.

The effect seemed to be a slowing of cell-killing rather than a permanent prevention, said researcher Dr. Paul Klenerman.

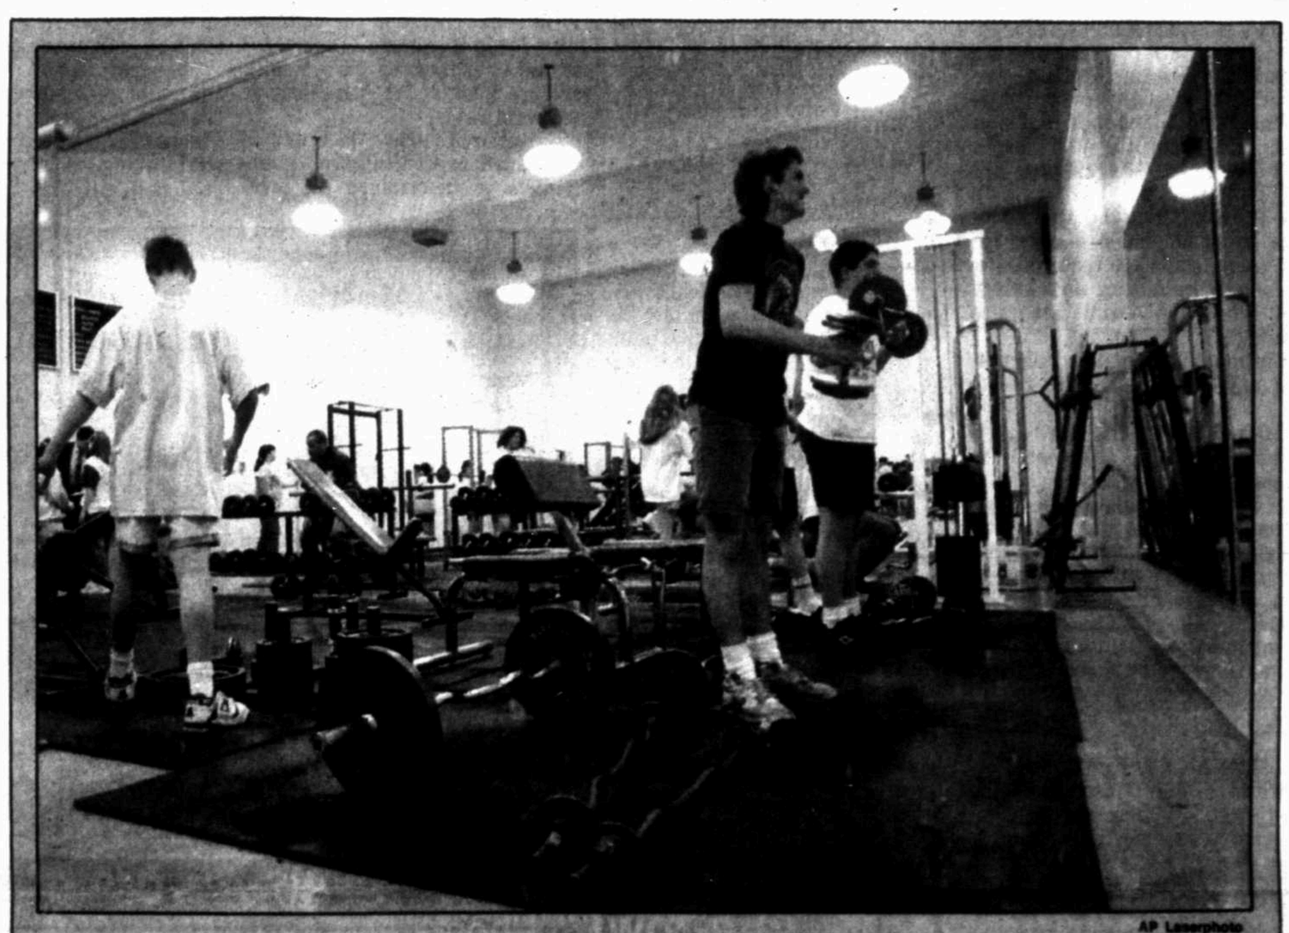

Apparently, the killer cells bind to the variant bits as usual, but then they fail to kill the target cell and may be slowed in killing other HIV-bearing cells as well, he said.

So a mutated virus that produces variant protein bits might protect itself and normal HIV in surrounding cells, said Klenerman, a research fellow at Oxford University in England.

Nobody knows whether this happens in people or how important it may be in allowing HIV infections to persist, Klenerman said.

The effect may be temporary if the stymied killer cells are replaced by others that kill as usual, he said.

Klenerman and British colleagues present the HIV work in the June 2 issue of the journal Nature. The results for hepatitis B virus are presented in the same issue by scientists from the universities of Parma and Florence in Italy, with colleagues in Italy and the United States.

Students work out in the weight room at Shorecrest High School in suburban Seattle. Experts say physical education classes have to be fun if children are to use what they learn in school to maintain a healthy lifestyle after they graduate.

Schools strive to make P.E. a lifetime habit

By Carole Feldman

SEATTLE (AP) — They're pumping up in the Shorecrest weight room, practicing leaps in the dance studio, shooting baskets in the gym.

Sound like a fancy new athletic club? No. It's the latest in physical education offerings at a suburban Seattle high school.

By all accounts, America's children are in worse shape physically than their counterparts a decade ago.

And experts say physical education classes have to be fun if children are to use what they learn in school to maintain a healthy lifestyle after they graduate.

"We try to give them as many looks at what's available so they can take off later in life and do it on their own," said Paul Lesch, who has created a Healthy Lifestyles program at Shorecrest High School.

Judy Young, executive director of the National Association for Sport and Physical Education, ticks off the fitness problems of today's youngsters:

■ The proportion of fat to lean body weight is high.
■ Children don't have well-developed muscles.
■ They have low upper-body strength.
■ Many have low aerobic capacity.

And unfit children tend to grow up into unfit adults.

At a recent White House ceremony, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala estimated that "about 40 percent of Americans are really couch potatoes, and those physically inactive people are almost twice as likely to develop coronary heart disease as people who engage in regular physical activity."

Schools have the ability to fix all that, Young said.

In an ideal world, she said, children should have 30 minutes of physical education each day in elementary school and 50 minutes daily in middle and secondary school.

But in the real world, physical education has to compete with math, science, language arts, history and art classes. There's only so much time in an academic day, and with the push for students to master the academic subjects, physical education advocates fear that they're going to lose out.

An association survey found that only one state — Illinois — requires daily physical education for children in grades kindergarten through 12.

"You cannot have a child well-educated and physically unfit. The mind and the body work as one," said Florence

Protect skin from aquatic organisms

By Dr. Michael B. Whitlow
Associated Press

Along with the pleasures of frolicking in ocean and lake waters this summer comes the risk of various skin diseases caused by contact with a number of aquatic (water-borne) organisms.

But being informed and taking some precautions make it possible to protect oneself against them and, if necessary, to seek appropriate treatment.

The most common aquatic skin disorder is swimmers ear (otitis externa), an infection of the external auditory canal which runs between the eardrum and the auricle, the visible portion of the ear.

Three factors interact to cause otitis externa. The first is moisture retention. The ear canal is somewhat tortuous in shape and is therefore prone to retain moisture.

Moisture retention is related to the amount of exposure to the aquatic environment; the greater the amount of exposure, the greater is the likelihood of moisture retention.

The second factor is temperature, and the temperature of the ear canal is ideal for the multiplication of microorganisms.

Microorganisms, the third interacting factor in the generation of otitis externa, are present in most people, and more are introduced into the ear canal by aquatic activities. The ear canal normally has a protective acid mantle that is inhospitable to bacteria. Exposure to water can wash away this protective layer.

The combination of moisture and temperature allow microorganisms to multiply, resulting in inflammation which manifests itself as pain in the ear canal.

To avoid the problem, moisture in the ear must be made to evaporate. Alcohol drops are a simple means of achieving this, but there are other medications which are not as irritating as alcohol. This therapy is very effective for treating swimmers ear when used before and after participation in water activities.

Sea urchins are small marine animals that live on the bottom of tropical seas and often perch near rocks. They have very sharp protruding spines on which people accidently puncture themselves while scuba diving, snorkeling, or wading.

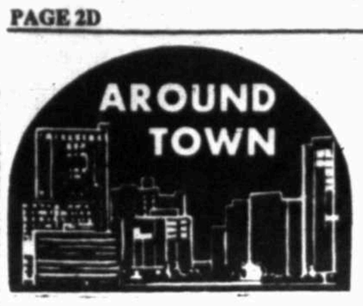

Punctures most often occur in the extremities — hands, feet, or buttocks — when swimmers inadvertently touch or sit on a sea urchin.

Treatment includes removing the spines as quickly as possible and is similar to that for a splinter: the spine should be pulled straight out and should not be broken while it is still in the skin. Watch the area carefully; and if infection occurs after the spine has been removed, visit your physician, who will probably prescribe oral antibiotics. A tetanus shot is generally recommended as well.

Months after the puncture, a reaction can cause tender bumps in the area where the spine pierced the skin. This reaction is not a recurrent infection, but is the body's natural means of ridding itself of any residual particles.

Jellyfish also may pose a problem for people swimming in the ocean and walking on the beach. The tentacles of

STUDENTS: School teaches healthy lifestyles

(From 1D)

Griffith Joyner, co-chair of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport.

At Shorecrest, freshman Justin Ell likes working in the weight room to stay in shape. "It helps your physical strength and ability. You're not being a couch potato. You're looking good and feeling good about yourself."

Classmate Aron Olson is a runner, and would work out with weights even if it weren't required. "It helps build speed," he said.

Shorecrest students are required to take three semesters of Healthy Lifestyles during their four years of high school, with time divided equally between health instruction and physical education. The issues of human sexuality and substance abuse run through all three courses.

The health portion of the programs focus on the student as a person, nutrition and relationships. The physical education sections address the different components of fitness, aerobic conditioning and strength fitness.

Students also may take physical education electives like dance, weight training, archery and tennis. For those who want to get in a little extra conditioning, the weight room opens at 5 a.m.

"We try to emphasize how fitness has got to be made fun, and usually to make it fun you make it social," Lesch said.

"Dance class is really fun," said sophomore Jaclyn Hulit, taking a break from practicing steps in a performance class.

Is she physically fit?

"Yes," she responded., "I'm flexible, I'm keeping my weight down, I'm exercising a lot. I like to run. I don't like to stop and take a breath."

The President's Council is planning to survey schoolchildren next year to see just how many of them are physically fit.

Jerry Foster, who oversees physical education programs for the Illinois Board of Education, said he has no evidence that Illinois children are more fit because of their daily physical education classes. But he drew an analogy:

"Children who read a book a week are more likely to be lifelong readers," he said. "The fact that schools are encouraging and placing a priority on physical education, that teachers are modeling those kinds of behaviors by being physically involved and fit, I think all of those things do lead to a more fit population."

Joyner and Tom McMillen, a former professional basketball player and member of Congress who now serves as co-chair of the President's Council, called on parents and community groups to pick up the ball when it is dropped by local schools.

"Little League waiting lines are sometimes a mile long," McMillen said. "You go to a school and you see the lack of opportunities there, the lack of community programs. Not only are we not educating kids in healthy lifestyles, but we're not giving them an opportunity to recreate."

let or gum — determines whether it is tamper-proof and also can make a difference in how quickly it dissolves and is absorbed, Lal said.

"Different coatings allow the drug to dissolve in different parts of the gastrointestinal tract," he said. "Some will dissolve in the acid environment of the stomach and some in the alkali environment of the small intestine. They are designed to get the drug to dissolve where most appropriate and help reduce stomach irritation."

Time-released granules have their own coatings within a gel capsule that dissolves immediately in water. Some of the coatings dissolve in the stomach and some in the intestines, so the granules release their active ingredient at different rates.

" 'Buffered' means the drug has an added ingredient that maintains a predetermined pH level around the drug," Lal said. "(Buffering ingredients) react with acids and bases to maintain their own mini-environments, usually to reduce acidity in the stomach."

Lal said most doctors recommend taking OTC painkillers with food to slow absorption and make the absorption rate more even, as well as to avoid an upset stomach.

Anyone taking prescription drugs or other OTC drugs should consult a doctor or pharmacist about possible drug interaction before taking an OTC pain reliever, Lal said.

Microwaveable sandwich tasty but too expensive

By Linda Anderson

Anderson

It's amazing the things you can find in the supermarket. One latest discovery is On-The-Go! Hickory Smoked Ham and Cheddar Cheese Pretzel Sandwich from Weight Watchers. These little gems are found, naturally, in the freezer section.

Evidently the whole premise behind the soft-pretzel sandwiches is that people are so busy these days they only have time to zap something in the microwave oven for four minutes or so, grab it and run. Now I'll admit that some days seem that busy, but most aren't.

Anyway, I couldn't resist buying one of these sandwiches (I love soft pretzels. And ham and cheese, for that matter) to check it out for taste, price and advertising accuracy. The young taste-testers were less than impressed with the product, so I had it all to myself.

A 4-ounce package of On-The-Go! (isn't that a goofy name?) cost $1.89. Let's face it, that's a little much for one small sandwich.

Weight Watchers, as a general rule, use very little specific advertising on their labels. Stuff like "Hickory Smoked Ham" and "Lunch in 4 minutes" are common, but not very lengthy. The products, however, often carry claims like this one: "This product was prepared to fit the Weight Watchers program and is useful for weight control when used strictly in accordance with the Weight Watchers Food Plan. If you are not a member you should take the 260 calories per serving into consideration when planning your weight control program."

Then it goes on about Weight Watchers group meetings and stuff like that. It even has a toll-free number — 1-800-651-6000 — to call if you want to know more about Weight Watchers meetings.

Nutrition labeling revealed that, in addition to the 260 calories, one sandwich contains 8 grams of fat (72 calories from fat).

The sandwich itself was tasty, but nothing to write home about. And for $1.89, I can probably find sandwiches that are just as nutritious and a whole lot bigger.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

A small deposit is required.
