Fixing Of Prices Of Gasoline Sold In Ten Middle West States Charged In Indictments Against Firms

(By The Associated Press)

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 3.—United States District Attorney John Boyle announced tonight a federal grand jury had returned indictments against 23 major oil companies, three trade journal publishing companies and 58 individuals charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The indictments were the result of an extensive investigation by the special federal jury into a complaint of the National Oil Marketers association that major companies were attempting to "squeeze" independent dealers out of business. Boyle said the names and identities of the defendants were being withheld until warrants are served.

Boyle said the specific charges are that the defendants "combined and conspired," beginning February, 1935, and continuing to the present, to increase and fix prices of gasoline sold in inter-state commerce, mainly in ten states of the Middle West.

The grand jury's report, made to

REFUSE TO COMMENT

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 3. (AP)—Prominent figures of the petroleum industry in the mid-continent area refused tonight to comment on the indictments returned at Madison, Wis., charging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

During the protected hearings by the grand jury a number of Tulsa oil men were known to have been called to appear before the grand jury.

Their identities were withheld under instructions of the court that to make their names known or to make any statement regarding testimony given would be considered contempt of court.

Unofficial observers forecast, however, that the oil companies would marshal their legal talent in a hard legal fight against the charges.

"Deadly Parallel" Drawn By Ickes

Interior Secretary Says Kansas Governor Has Gone A.W.O.L. From War On Poverty

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 — Secretary Ickes drew tonight what he called "a deadly parallel" between present and past statements by Governor Alf M. Landon, and said it appeared that "candidate Landon has gone A. W. O. L. from the war against poverty and want and the exploitation of the weak in which he enlisted in 1933."

The Roosevelt cabinet officer, in a radio address entitled "Governor Landon—'Practical' Progressive," in which he criticized such a designation discussed what he termed Landon's altered oil regulations views.

As presiding officer at an oil conference at the interior department here in 1933, Ickes said, Landon declared for "the iron hand of a dictator" unless the industry could solve its problem within 90 days. In his acceptance speech last month, Ickes added, the Kansas governor declared against governmental regulations of industry.

The interior secretary said Landon praised "the courage with which President Roosevelt has attacked the depression," in his 1933 speech at the oil conference. He then quoted Landon as adding the following words to this statement:

Quotes Statement

"If there is any way in which a member of that species, thought by many to be extinct, a Republican governor of a middle western state, can aid him in the fight, I now enlist for the duration of the war."

The "laughter" indicated by the stenographer taking down Landon's speech at this time, Ickes added, "is nothing compared with the laughter that goes up today when a deadly parallel between Candidate Landon's (acceptance) speech at Topeka, Kansas the night of July 23, 1936, is drawn with the speech of Governor Landon in Washington in 1933.

Adopted By Hearst

Ickes criticized also the Republican party and its platform, parts of Landon's record in Kansas, and said the Kansan had been "adopted" by William Randolph Hearst.

Ickes said:

"So we have a platform that faces both ways upon which stands a candidate whom the west is asked to support because he is a 'progressive,' while, at the same time, he is entirely satisfactory to Wall Street and the predatory interests because he is 'practical'."

Took Advanced Position

He said the Republican nominee took an advanced position on civil service reform in his message to the Republican national convention. Nevertheless, he added, "the spoils system, in all its glory, has prevailed in Kansas under Governor Landon."

Landon's labor views, he continued, have left "nothing to fear" on the part of "those great industries

Dallas Woman Has Utopian Society Idea

DALLAS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Mrs. A. C. Zehner, Dallas club woman and political leader, announced today the Society For The Prevention Of Mud Slinging would be formed among Texas women.

Its purpose, she said, would be to fight what she termed the practice of candidates for office hurling personal abuse at opponents.

She said state and Dallas county run-off candidates would be polled on whether they would promise to refrain from mud slinging.

"It probably is too late to make much headway in a fight against mud slinging in the run-off campaign on a statewide basis," she said. "Plans could be laid for the next campaign, however, and organizations formed by women in other counties to stop dirty campaigns."

Direct Attack On Madrid Is Given Delay

Loyalists And Rebels Push Battle Front In Northern Sector Of Spain's Bloody Civil War; Captures Claimed

Battles Looming

Major Encounters Are Expected Tuesday; Rebels Within 12 Miles Of Capital City On Monday

(By The Associated Press)

MADRID, Aug. 3—Loyalists and rebels pushed the battle front of Spain's bloody civil war into the north tonight, rebel troops withholding for the moment direct attack on Madrid.

The American embassy warning that developments might make it impossible to provide security for American citizens here urged them to leave for Valencia while the railway still was open. Most of the 74 still using the embassy as a refuge elected, however, to remain.

Government forces claimed capture of La Zaida, to the south of Zaragoza, in a renewed attempt to quell that center of revolt.

Fascists advanced toward San Sebastian, determined to rout loyalists in that northern area and insure against attack from the rear when the long-predicted march against Madrid is begun.

Ten thousand troops from Pamplona reinforced Gen. Emilio Mola's rebel forces for the San Sebastian encounter. Mist and fog halted ar-

"FREE" TO MOVE

PARIS, Aug. 3. (AP)—France tonight felt "free" to move war supplies into Spain if her proposed neutrality agreement with Great Britain and Italy is not accepted quickly.

France does not consider herself bound in any way to reject Spanish orders for munitions, officials said, but prefers to enter an agreement with other nations against furnishing either rebels or loyalists with any supplies.

Acceptance of the agreement, informed sources said, was expected tomorrow from Great Britain but there was no indication when the Italian government would reply. It was believed here, however, that a favorable reply from Rome eventually would be received.

Campaigns Show Signs Of Speeding Up; FDR's OK Given Demo Drive

Aggressive Campaign To Be Waged; GOP Parleys Held

By LLOYD A. LEHRBAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Both Republican and Democratic campaigns today showed signs of speeding up.

At a conference with his campaign aides at Hyde Park, President Roosevelt approved plans for what James A. Farley, national committee chairman, described as "an aggressive campaign beginning immediately.

Landon Holds Conferences

Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, the Republican nominee, sandwiched a radio talk on the drouth in between political conferences at Topeka and John D. M. Hamilton, the Republican chairman, took off from Chicago on an aerial campaign tour of the west.

Primaries tomorrow in Kansas, Missouri and Virginia will top off a series of eleven this month, which party leaders believed might give a hint of the trend of the political tide.

Tennessee, Arkansas, Idaho, Wyoming, California, Mississippi, and South Carolina will hold primaries before August ends, and Texas voters will return to the voting booths to settle election contests in a run-off primary.

Back at Hyde Park after a two weeks sailing vacation, and a visit to Canada, President Roosevelt met with the Democratic high command headed by Farley.

Situation Now Is Said Worse Than In 1914

Many Observers Believe Wheel Of Destiny Has Turned An Almost Complete Cycle From Peace To War In 22 Years

Push Arms Races

Suspicions And Hatreds Are Increasing; Developments In Endless Scramble For Security Are Cited

(By The Associated Press)

THE 22-year-old memory of the first battles of the World war is pinioned today on the bayonets of European rearmament.

An armaments race, mutual suspicions and hatreds and failure of efforts of collective security and peace have brought about a situation which most statesmen declare is worse than that which plunged Europe into war in August, 1914.

Cycle Almost Completed

Many believe the wheel of destiny has turned an almost complete cycle from peace to war in 22 years.

The situation today, based on a survey in European capitals, reveals:

London—Chancelleries of Europe fearfully wonder whether the great issues the statesmen in 1919 tried to settle for all time in the Treaty of Versailles will provoke another and still more catastropric conflagration.

Hitler Already Rearmed

In defiance to the treaty, Chancellor Adolf Hitler already has rearmed, introduced conscription to bring his army up to 600,000 (instead of the prescribed 100,000), created an air force, reoccupied the Rhineland and is refortifying the Rhineland and North Sea islands of Helgoland.

Britain virtually accepted the violation.

There is the further question of the attitude of the so-called neutral states such as Spain, Holland, Finland, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

Watched From Sidelines

During the war they watched from the sidelines. They saw the League of Nations born of war.

In the league the neutral states became willing participants.

Today, confronted with league failure in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, these neutrals make no secret of their growing anxiety over the future.

Mary Astor's Testimony Is Sensational

Movie Actress Says Physician-Husband Condoned Affair With Playwright; Upset By Relentless Examination

BY RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3. —Wilting into one small corner of the witness chair and visibly upset by a relentless cross-examination, Mary Astor uttered two sensational statements today about George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright.

She was testifying in her battle with her divorced husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, for custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Marylin.

In Love With Kaufman?

"Isn't it a fact," asked Attorney Joseph Anderson, "that the reason you let the divorce go by default was because you were in love with a man by the name of George S. Kaufman?"

"It is not a fact," the film actress retorted, her trained voice hitting the "not" like a hammer.

And then, hours later, near the end of a hot, draining day in court, she was asked, "what was said at the first discussion between you and Dr. Thorpe about seeing George Kaufman?

Condoned Affair

"I told him," she replied, wearily. "You know George Kaufman has nothing to do with this divorce. You've known about George Kaufman since last fall. We've been living together since. You condoned it".

One of the high points was Miss Astor's statement that she was "mortally afraid" of Dr. Thorpe, and

Tax Rate Will Remain Same, Officials Say

Constitutional Limit Of 62 Cents To Be Retained By Automatic Tax Board Setting Today, Indicated

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Aug. 3. — Officials said the 1936 state property tax rate expected to be set tomorrow, likely would be about the same as in 1935. It was 62 cents per $100 valuation last year.

Levies for general revenue and confederate pensions will remain at their constitutional maximums of 35 and seven cents, respectively. Both funds have large deficits. Officials said they believed the school tax rate would be kept at 20 cents to pay the $19 per capita public school aid apportionment highest in the state's history.

Levy Reduced Last Year

The levy for schools was reduced from its constitutional limit of 35 cents to 20 cents last year because of large income from special taxes such as those on oil, gasoline, cigarets, beer and horse racing.

R. S. Calvert of the comptroller's department and R. B. Anderson, tax commissioner, completed estimates of school fund revenue from special taxes during the next school year.

Figures Not To Differ

Calvert said his figures would not differ greatly from those he submitted to the board of education last month. At that time he calculated property levy of about 22 1-2 cents would be necessary to pay a $19 per capita apportionment. He added that his estimate of special tax income was conservative and collections might be substantially larger.

A majority of the board of edu-

Railroads To Carry Fight

New Maneuvers To Gain Permanency Of Emergency Freight Surcharges Planned; ICC Decision Rules Against It

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. — New meneuvers to have emergency freight surcharges made permanent were indicated by a spokesman for the nation's major railroads today after an initial failure before the Interstate Commerce commission.

A. F. Cleveland, vice president of the Association of American Railroads, said a committee of railroad presidents and attorneys would meet soon "to consider what can best be done."

May Ask Individual Increases

He added the carriers either could ask the commission to reconsider the blanket authority which it denied, or seek permission to effect individual increases in specific rates which now carry surcharges — a course which railroad spokesmen previously had said would involve the re-publication of numerous rate schedules at "enormous expense."

Without comment, the commission denied the request of class one roads that the emergency surcharges, which they said provided $104,000,000 annually of sorely-needed additional revenue, be superimposed permanently on the present rate structure.

The surcharges were put into effect last year and were scheduled originally to expire July 1 this year. Shipping interests vigorously opposed any extension, but the carriers recently won a commission order continuing them for six months—until December 31.

Freer Slayer Is Arrested

Former Ft. Worth Nightwatchman Is Apprehended For Slaying Of Officer; Talks Freely Of Case

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Aug. 3. — City detectives late today apprehended Robert L. Grafft, 30, who admitted he was the slayer of Assistant Police Chief Ed Etter of Freer, beaten and shot there Tuesday night.

The suspect, a former Fort Worth nightwatchman, had been sought here since Wednesday. Etter died Thursday in a San Antonio hospital.

Discusses Case Freely

Grafft discussed the case freely with reporters, but declared that he did not know the officer had been shot until he read it in a newspaper.

He said he first felled Etter with his fist, then picked up the officer's pistol as the weapon slipped from its holster. Grafft said he struck Etter with the gun and supposed that it discharged during the affray. Etter was shot three times.

The arrested man said he plunged into cactus wastes outside the little Duval county oil town and walked until he caught a ride to Benavides. He rode a bus to Fort Worth.

Grafft was arrested by detectives in a residential section. He was carrying Etter's pistol but he offered no resistance.

He said he had owed a Freer man

Death Claims Walter Taylor

Architect-Author Dies Monday At Home Of Daughter In Amarillo; Has Lived Here; Funeral Plans Not Made

Walter E. Taylor, 80, until 1922 one of the section's well-known architects, died peaceably in his sleep at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Amarillo.

A physician said Taylor had been in ill health several years, and recently had suffered from a stomach disorder. Death was attributed to old age.

Death was at the home of a daughter, Mrs. John Snyder of 1008 Tyler street. He had removed there six months ago from the home of a Lubbock son, Sidney A. Taylor of 2410 Tenth street.

Taylor wrote a book, "Knights of the Dixie Wilds," which was published by a Boston publishing concern, and numerous newspaper and magazine articles which were sold. Also, he wrote "Children of Dixie" and "Cattle Kings of Today," articles on reconstruction days, and numerous short stories, said relatives. Sixty articles were sold at one time to a Des Moines magazine.

He designed the first high school building in Lubbock and that now

Waggoner was divorced in Texas Saturday by his fifth wife, the former Anna Belle Stinnett, with whom he was reported to have made a $500,000 settlement.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Green, an advertising solicitor of Dallas.

Waggoner has been married seven times, having married his first wife twice.

Sons Of Erin Given Day At Texas Centennial Exposition

DALLAS, Aug. 3. (AP)—The Irish, celebrating their day at the Centennial exposition, reminded Texas today of the part sons of Erin played in the state's fight for independence.

Two Men Charged With Giving Small Girl Drinks Of Whisky

DALLAS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Two men were charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and beaten by angry fellow inmates of the city jail today in connection with what the state claims was the forcing of a two-and-a-half-year-old girl to drink three glasses of whisky.

The men, Emmett Sigler and Joe Thurman, arrested yesterday, were placed in solitary confinement after they were beaten severely by other prisoners.

Floyd Smith Dies Of Gunshot Wound

CROSBYTON, Aug. 3. (Special)—Floyd Smith of Crosbyton, grandson of "Uncle Hank" Smith, Crosby county pioneer, died at 6 o'clock this afternoon of a bullet wound accidentally received late Sunday night.

He had been taken to a sanitarium at Lubbock for treatment, but was informed the 23-year-old man likely would not recover. He was brought back to Crosbyton to his home, upon decision of relatives.

Smith, recently married, was at his all-night cafe in Crosbyton when the accident occurred. The bullet lodged in his brain.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Williams of Crosbyton informed newspapermen that the pistol, in the hands of James Ellison, exploded unexpectedly, the bullet striking Smith over the left eye. Ellison, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ellison, was grief-stricken. The elder Ellison is a former commissioner in Crosby county.

R. B. Smith, father of the young man, recently was carried to Plainview hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when he fell 40 feet from a cliff in Blanco canyon. His condition was reported to be critical. He had not been informed of the mishap.

Funeral arrangements had not been announced late in the night. A friend of the family said burial likely would be at Old Emma, Tuesday.

School Action Is Dissolved

Temporary Injunction Restraining County Superintendent From Approving Transfers Declared Premature

Temporary injunction restraining County Superintendent Joseph R. Griggs and Lubbock county school board from approving any transfer application, or transferring any school children of the district to any other district, Monday afternoon was dissolved in a hearing before Judge Clark M. Mullican of 99th district court.

Defendants, through counsel, entered a plea in abatement, and recited the school district had not exhausted statutory remedies by appeal to the county board.

Injunction Premature

The court ruled that proper appeal from the county superintendent on transfers was to the county board and, therefore, the injunction case was premature.

Griggs, who had been restrained from making transfers from the County Line district, was released. Harral County Line can appeal to the county board when Griggs approves transfers.

Griggs Monday night said he would make careful study of each transfer application and act for the betterment of the child and for the best interests of the school district.

"If the school board at County Line is dissatisfied, the law provides it may appeal to the county board, which will meet at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in my office," he said.

C. C. Crenshaw and Jim Milam represented defendants. George Berry plaintiffs.

Stockholders Get More Dividends

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—The heavy flow of dollars from corporate coffers to the pockets of stockholders continued today, with a $54,275,000 quarterly common stock distribution by General Motors corp. as the outstanding award.

Directors of the big automobile company repeated their action of three months previous by ordering an extra dividend of 75 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 50 cents.

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, one of the largest of the Standard group, announced an extra distribution of 25 cents on the capital stock together with the usual quarterly dividend of the same amount.

These juicy payments, along with several more announced during the day were viewed by Wall Street circles as further attesting to the rising trend of corporate earnings generally.

Townsend Supporters In 17th District Deny Endorsements

CISCO, Aug. 3. (AP)—Townsend plan supporters voted in executive session here today to refrain from endorsing any candidate for congress from the seventeenth congressional district.

Rep. Thomas Blanton, the incumbent, will be opposed in the run-off primary this month by Judge Clyde Garrett of Eastland county, who led Blanton by almost 5,000 votes in the recent primary.

The Townsendites disclaimed any connection with the reported endorsement of Blanton's candidacy by Fred O. Jaye, the defeated Townsend candidate.

Eleven-Year High For Corn Posted

CHICAGO, Aug. 3 (AP)—An eleven-year high for cash corn and first government purchases of livestock signalized today the prolongation of the three months old drouth.

Leading grain prices to further peaks after a week of almost steady advances, corn climbed almost four cents at the start of trading on unofficial estimates. July's damage amounted to 700,000,000 bushels. It finished in a flurried market, 1 to 3¾ cents up from Saturday's close, September $1.09¼.

Cash No. 1 white corn was quoted at $1.20 a bushel, the top since 1925 and equal to the best current price for No. 1 hard wheat.

While other cereals advanced to new high levels in some cases not equalled since 1929, the heaviest run of cattle received at Chicago stock yards on three years brought inauguration of another government measure to aid drouth distressed farmers.

Barbers And Bald-Headed Patrons Eye Great Salt Lake; Compound Is Found

(By The Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 3.—Barbers and their bald-headed patrons eyed great Salt Lake with new interest today.

The dry lake bed near promontory point, they learned, is yielding hair oil.

Steam pipes, sunk 400 feet into the earth, melt a sulphur compound which comes up as "S," a germicide four times as powerful as carbolic acid, its San Francisco discoverers declare. There are three acres of the material, they say.

"S," according to its promoters, in addition to its use as a shampoo, makes a good furniture polish, squeak-eliminater, rubber bands and cures athletes foot, dandruff and poultry ills.

Church Women's Societies Conduct Varied Programs At General Meetings Monday

The Woman's Angle

BY MARGARET TURNER
Woman's Editor

PHILADELPHIA, July 31 (via air-mail) Tonight and tomorrow we are spending in the convention city of the recent Democratic party, the "city of brotherly love." Our experiences so far have led us to believe that the place is well named. If a pedestrian accidentally pushes you he offers an apology; the clerks in John Wanamaker's store are the soul of politeness and anxious for our welfare, the hotel management very hospitable.

The last day in New York was spent in various last minute tours, including a trip to Coney Island in the afternoon and, consequently, we missed the teeming millions, but even at that we saw thousands of funny freaks not in the sideshows. "Pre-Honeymoon," the last play, met with the group's approval. Of course it was hard to leave this morning, but we knew that the week would have to end and so it did.

SCATTERINGS

EN ROUTE here this morning we stopped by Princeton university and strolled through those beautiful grounds, enhanced by trees older than any in Lubbock county and gray stone buildings with ivy-covered walls. . . . A sign telling the distance to Flemington brought the Lindbergh baby case in brief conversation and crossing the Delaware river reminded some of that impossible picture of Washington and all of those men in that grade school book we all remembered. . . . The narrow one-way streets are all right once you get the knack but the Quakers must not have had a metropolis in mind when they laid it out. . . . There is a church with chimes directly across the street from our downtown hotel. . . . Some of us ate lunch in the famous Great Crystal Tea Room in Wanamaker's store and listened to an organ concert. . . . This is one of the most historic cities in the United States you remember. Tomorrow we are going to take a tour of marked sites. . . . Engraved on one of the walls in Wanamaker's is: "Let those who follow me continue to build with the plumb of honor, the level of truth and the square of integrity, education, courtesy and mutuality."

WE HAD VISITORS

WE failed to mention some of the former Lubbockites who called on us in New York. These included Mrs. Eileen Graves Heineman, who has had more encouragement and success than most Texas girls who go to Gotham to try their hand on the stage; Peyton Price, who is teaching some Bowery boys dramatics; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whiteside. A telephone call to Everetta Love's apartment disclosed that she is still in Texas.

Spencer A. Wells, Mrs. Vera Maxey and Frances Campbell called on our party last night.

DIFFERENCE IN PEOPLE

IT'S remarkable how much difference 110 miles from New York City can make in a city. In New York you are completely ignored. We saw a woman tearing her hair and yelling at a man in Dave's Blue Room the other night and no one paid her any mind except us. Here you would probably not see such a thing. It's fun to go in the drug stores and shops and see the ornate furnishings and interiors. Judging from the many candy shops, the citizens have sweet tooths.

CONCERNING LEGENDS

It's silly, but we've been wondering if everyone in Philadelphia subscribes to the Ladies Home Journal and the Saturday Evening Post, and if Benjamin Franklin really did walk down a street here with those rolls of bread under his arm. The trip continues to be a dream and we pinch ourselves to discover that we really are at the shrines where were created the foundations of liberty and other phases that our government was built upon.

BELMONT, N. Y., Aug. 3. (AP)—The "spirit well" of the Alleghany gas field was pronounced a failure today and drilling was abandoned.

The site of the well was picked more than 40 years ago through a spiritualistic message. The drillers then did not know about Oriskany sands, the rich gas-bearing strata, and drilling was stopped about 700 feet above them and the well was considered a failure.

Several weeks ago drillers decided to drive the well through to the sands but the flow of gas was reported under 25,000 feet a day, not enough to be considered a paying well.

Child's Custody Is Agreed Upon

FORT WORTH, Aug. 3. (AP)—An agreement signed today, removes Winifred Scott, nine-year old daughter of Winfield Scott of Fort Worth, from the custody of her parents and places the child in the care of her two grandmothers and our Lady of Victory academy here.

Winifred is the granddaughter of the late Winfield Scott, wealthy pioneer cattleman.

The settlement was made after hearing began on a request by the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Elisabeth Scott of Fort Worth, for custody of the child. She contended the mother, Mrs. Charlotte O'Neill of Los Angeles, to whom the child was awarded after her parents were divorced in 1929, was an unfit guardian.

The order provides the child be placed in the academy during the winter. The first part of the summer she is to spend with the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Lottie Morgan of Los Angeles, and the later part with Mrs. Scott.

When Will Their Secret Be Out?

As keepers of secrets, Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard seem to hold the championship in Hollywood. Just to make sure that they don't reveal the answers to the questions that are puzzling the film colony, Paulette is keeping her conversation to a whisper in the pose at right. Hollywood isn't sure whether they're just close friends, an engaged pair—or whether they're married.

Has Good Scheme
Cotton On Hiways Is Gathered Up

EDINBURG, Aug. 3. (AP)—A sure-fire scheme for getting cotton without investing a dime or worrying about crops has been worked out by a Rio Grande valley farmer.

This man supplies all his children with tow sacks, furnishes his wife with a car and altogether they tour out on the highways leading to cotton gins and gather the lint which has fallen or blown from cotton trucks.

He and his family collect several hundred pounds of cotton each day — with little risk, except from passing cars, and plenty of work for the entire family.

Fourteen years ago, when he was 16, G. G. Stringer of 1213 Eighth street had to withdraw from George M. Hunt school and support his mother.

It wasn't easy to get back into educational harness.

He became married.

He worked 10 years with a glass concern, seven years with tailoring establishments.

Three children were born.

In 1934 Stringer worked as a police patrolman, and he has been on the "force" since May 1 this year.

Had Time To Think

He had moments when on the beat to think, and in his mind fashioned plans for an illuminated "spotter" which would improve detection of sweet spots, water circles, specks, thread breaks and other easily-overlooked stains and imperfections in delicate weaves.

He set up a working model and sent it and drawings to the patent office. While patents were pending he fabricated six of the machines, selling one to Bray Tailoring company. Bray said he wouldn't do without the board.

Monday, Stringer received notice from the patent office full patent, No. 100,607, had been issued for his Ever-Lite spotter.

The machine is waist high, weighs 90 pounds, is 58 inches long, and graduates from 14 to 3 1-2 inches, the shape of an ironing board. Two 40-watt incandescent lamps are mounted under frosted glass that magnifies spots in clothing. Materials bearing stains or imperfections when passed across the spotter are rated clean or spotted almost immediately. Stains which cannot be detected by the eye without the board thus are found and removed.

Pendergast Power To Get Test Today

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Statewide strength of the powerful Thomas J. Pendergast Democratic organization of Kansas City will be tested in Missouris primary election tomorrow.

Chief interest was in the Democratic guberhatorial contest between Major Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., nurseryman who has Pendergast support, and William Hirth, militant Columbia, Mo., farm editor.

Stark repeatedly avowed his faith in the Roosevelt administration and promised a business like administration "without favors to any one man or organization."

Hirth likewise supported the national administration. His campaign was an out and out attack on the Pendergast faction.

Most active among a trio of Republican gubernatorial aspirants was Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis, former attorney general. He too, assailed the Kansas City machine at every opportunity. He is opposed by James J. Barrett of St. Louis (no relation) and Claude L. Lambert, of Kansas City.

Ill in New York from a heart attack, Pendergast will miss his first Missouri primary in 28 years.

John Garner Back From Fishing Trip

UVALDE, Aug. 3. (AP)—Vice President Garner, sun-browned and "feeling fine," had the first overnight fishing trip of his vacation behind him today—with the distinction of catching the largest fish of his party.

A four-pound channel catfish, hauled in when the vice president decided to try out some new tackle, brought him the honor.

Mr. Garner said on his return yesterday that rowing the boat for his three companions had put him in good physical condition.

"I must have rowed that boat ten miles yesterday," he said.

Mrs. Garner's vacation has been complicated a little by distractions from tourists and casual visitors who wish to see her husband. Her days have been kept full, as she manages her own household besides acting as Mr. Garner's secretary.

Wednesday the Garners will be honor guests of the Texas Centennial exposition in Dallas. The day has been designated "Garner day" at the fair.

F. W. Fischer's reported expenditures to July 16 were $7,852, while those of Pierce Brooks to July 14 were $4,033.10.

Wool Crop To Be Lower This Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—The agriculture department estimated today 1936 wool shearing would total 361,265,000 pounds, approximately one per cent less than the amount shorn last year.

The estimated decrease was placed at 3,398,000 pounds. The estimated 1936 total was 6,023,000 pounds or 1 1-2 per cent less than the five-year average from 1931 to 1935, inclusive.

A decline in the average weight per fleece, the department said, caused the decrease in wool production this year. The number of sheep shorn and to shorn in 1936 was estimated to be practically the same as last year.

The average per fleece this year was 7.94 pounds compared with 9.02 pounds in 1935. Lower fleece weight was reported in all areas except the south central states.

The preliminary estimate of 1936 prodution of shearing wool included a forecast of fall-shearing in Texas and California and a total year shearing of commercial feeding stations in Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas.

Fall shearing in Texas was estimated to be 9,490,000 pounds compared with 7,049,000 pounds last year. The California estimate was 3,820,000 pounds compared with 3,567,000 pounds last year.

So Crippled She Couldn't Do Her Work; Lost Weight, Nervous, Couldn't Sleep; Gly-Cas Again Proves Unfailing

"Thirty days Gly-Cas treatment benefitted me greatly after thirty years of awful suffering," said Mrs. Beulah Dillinger, R. R. No. 5, Box No. 300, Little Rock, Ark. "Stomach disorders and constipation had allowed my entire system to become clogged with poisons and rheumatism settled in my limbs and back. I was so crippled with the pain I could not get about to do my own housework and the stabbing pains in my back and limbs would almost drive me frantic at times. I could not get a good night's sleep and was a nervous wreck. My appetite failed me and I lost in weight and strength. I was in a miserable condition until I finally began Gly-Cas, it was wonderful.

MRS. BEULAH DILLINGER

"I would not take anything for what Gly-Cas has done for me," she continued. "It is almost unbelievable but true—that dreadful rheumatism of years has disappeared entirely. All those sharp pains are now in the past and I now do my work which is a real pleasure feeling as I do today. My stomach and bowels have been regulated, eat and sleep good. My nerves have been quieted and I am gaining in weight and strength. Gly-Cas is undoubtedly the greatest medicine of the modern age."

Surprising Tip-Toppers Split Bill With Amherst To Win Tournament Honors

Lusty Huffman Crew Wins 5-4 Final Victory

Tournament "Orphans" Fail To Bow To Outstanding Club Of Tournament And Come Up For Top Money In Tourney

There are no substitutes for desire, hustle—and intestinal fortitude.

That goes in baseball as in anything else, and the Lubbock Tip-Top Cafe baseball team is a shining example.

It was a tournament of pitchers, and there was some very fine pitching from Sunday, July 26, through Monday, August 3, but as it turned out, an "outlaw" club with two—count 'em, 2—pitchers and presumably second rate chunkers at that, yesterday won the championship and top money in the sixth annual Avalanche-Journal Invitation Baseball tournament.

Can't Describe 'Em

The adjectives have been used up, the descriptions exhausted, but there are no adjectives nor descriptive terms to fit that hustling, slugging bunch of "ringers" who came into the tournament field the last minute—just to fill an eleventh-hour vacancy—and survived to beat out the classiest tournament field in the history of the event.

So frightfully did Manager Burl Huffman's Tip-Toppers shove aside the opposition in preliminary games that they came into the finals yesterday with the task of winning one game of a double header. Previously they had won three straight tournament games. They went into the fourth which would have been the final if they had won it.

But they lost it, then they came right back in the nightcap to defeat the pre-tournament favorite and outstanding club of the South Plains, H. N. Tapley's red-clad Amherst wrecking crew, by a score of 5 to 4, and the tournament was all over.

The final game was a fitting climax to nine days of steady and colorful tournament baseball.

Amherst, which had to win a game Saturday, a double header Sunday and the first game of Monday's double bill, was simply outhustled, outfought by a gang of pickups who had to be introduced to each other when they gathered at the new park to play their first game. Sponsored by the Tip-Top Cafe, the tournament "orphans" had two strikes on them before they played their first game, but they clung to that outside chance, and they came through triumphantly, gloriously, colorfully.

Get Over The Jitters

They put out the team which has dominated South Plains baseball for two season. It was their first meeting with Amherst and in the championship double header opener, they were visibly nervous.

Instead of playing it wild and careless like they've been playing all week, the Tip-Toppers nervously settled down to a careful study of the situation and they were unable to do anything much with the offerings of Ken Minyard, ace right-hander of the Amherst corps.

But they came back for that second game with all nervousness gone, they started swinging their war-clubs, and they drove Minyard from the mound in the fourth inning, the righthander staying in there after winning the opener, 10 to 4.

After that stinging defeat, the Tip-Toppers weren't given much chance, but there was the difference between second and first money to fight for, and the old "college spirit" came forth.

Demp Dumps Them

It was Lefty Demp Webster's fine pitching that counted most in the final analysis, but he could not have pulled through without fine support from a team that just wouldn't be beaten.

Amherst threw its three ace pitchers, including Lefty Gaut Hambright, against the Tip-Toppers, but when the sun had settled and the last out was made, they had gone the way of other Tip-Top opposition.

The Tip-Toppers were retired in the first two innings. Minyard giving up a hit in each but striking out four, including the last three Tip-Toppers in the second.

Webster had done the same thing with the Amherst batsmen, striking out the first two, causing the third to pop up, striking out the next two and seeing the third go down at second.

They'd been swinging hard, and they kept it up in the third. Demp Webster helped win his own game by leading off with a single. Cracker Carr, who had had lots of trouble in the first game, flew out to deep center, but Buddy Aderton, second baseman, was safe on Craig's error. Red Henderson then lashed out a double to center, scoring Webster and Aderton. Henderson was caught at the plate on a fine throw from George Harmon in right who picked up Harold Crites' single. Thompson struck out before Crites singled.

The Tip-Toppers made it three runs to none when Payne walked in the fourth, advanced on a passed ball and scored when Carr cracked a single. Two were out when the

MacDonald Smtih Defeats Guldahl In Seattle Play

SEATTLE, Aug. 3. (AP)—Scoring 10 birdies for a 65, MacDonald Smith, veteran golfer from Nashville, Tenn., and Glendale, Calif., today defeated Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, by six strokes on the par 73 Inglewood course in the play-off for the $5,000 Seattle open championship and $1,200 first money.

Although two under par himself with a 71 Guldahl was unable to keep the furious pace Smith set, largely through his deadly putting.

Smith bagged five birdies on each nine.

Second money of $750 went to the St. Louis star, western open champion, who tied with Smith with 285 yesterday to lead the field at the end of the 72 holes of regular play.

Smith gained a three stroke lead over Guldahl by a 32, five strokes under par on the first nine, and a 33, three under par on the second nine.

On the first nine, Guldahl shot a 35, despite the fact he drove in the rough and into a trap on the second hole, dropping two strokes and finished up the nine by blasting the ball into the rough again. He fired beyond the green into a road and scratched a par-five. He pulled through an even par on the second nine.

Tip-Top Softballers Retain Lead, Defeating City Bus

Tip-Top Cafe's softball team triumphed again in the local softball campaign yesterday, defeating City Bus, 10 to 3, and retaining the lead in the second half pennant chase.

Millard Webster pitched 3-hit ball for Tip-Top, while the Cafe boys jumped on Phillips of City Bus for 11 hits to make their 10 runs.

Burk hit a home run for City Bus in the third inning with one on, and Smith of Tip-Top hit one in the third inning.

In the Sunday game at Slaton, the Southern Auto Stores team of Lubbock defeated Slaton's Santa Fe entry, new member of the Lubbock City league, 16 to 4, with Forbes hurling triumphant ball for the Southern Auto team.

Bussey Fires 69 In Tour; 120 Here For Matches

Country club not only has a new grass greens layout—but, extremely likely, a course record which may be difficult to dislodge for some time.

It was Clint Bussey, former West Texas Golf association champion, who scorched the new grass before a 36-hole medal play, one-day tournament. One hundred twenty persons were registered for the joust, and fully 30 others toured the course.

Big Turnout

It was one of the biggest turnouts of local and visiting golfers since the West Texas tournament here several years ago, visitors from as far away as San Angelo, Paducah, Clovis, N. M., Big Spring and Sweetwater coming here to help celebrate the opening of the new greens, first grass greens on the South Plains. It was the realization of a ten-year dream by local, and especially Country club, golfers.

Bussey turned in his 69 in the morning or qualifying round, and the 74 he fired in the afternoon gave him a total of 143, one over par, for the 36 holes. He finished three strokes ahead of his nearest competitors, John Oliver of Amarillo and Obie Bristow of Big Spring. They had 146s. Oliver put an afternoon 71 with a morning 75, while Bristow cracked par by two strokes in the afternoon to add to his morning 76.

Praise Is Heard

Visiting golfers were loud and emphatic in their praise of Lubbock's new greens, and they met with favor of the local sportsmen who helped build them. The front nine drew especial praise, the back side nine having been installed later. All but two of the greens were started and finished this last spring and this summer, and for one-season old greens, they were given high commendation.

Mrs. Will O'Connell of San Angelo led a field of twelve women golfers in the ladies flight. She shot an 89. Mrs. Cliff Dean, Lubbock women's City Open champion, was second with a 92. The women played an 18-hole medal tourney. Mrs. O'Connell, one of the aces of the San Angelo and West Texas women's associations, and accustomed to playing grass greens, also praised the new carpets.

Others Are Present

Mrs. Gordon Phillips and Mrs. Obie Bristow of Big Spring, Mrs. Bill Garre, Mrs. Jess Rogers, Mrs. Mildred McGrath and Mrs. Jess Hill of Amarillo and Mrs. Charles Akey of Big Spring were other visitors who joined the local women. Mesdames Dean, W. F. Helwig, J. R. Farmer, Guy McAfee, and others, in the women's division yesterday.

Amarillo's delegation of men golfers included, besides John Oliver, George McGrath, J. C. Sanders, Wade Holman, sr., and Wade Holman, jr., and Erocl Blackburn.

From Big Spring were Bristow, Shirley Robbins, Fred Stevens, C. W. Cunningham, A. L. Rogers, Tom Ashley and Vaughn.

From Clovis came Bob Skaggs, winner of the Eastern New Mexico-West Texas Open tournament and champion of the Tri-State Senior Golf association; Red Gober, Shorty Hornbuckle, L. H. Randolph, Hugh Skiles, Lom Brown, A. A. Rodes, Roscoe Pierce, and C. Goodman. Gober turned in a pair of 74s for third place, Hornbuckle, ace of the Clovis organization, fired a 77-76, and Skaggs had a 74-77.

Paducah Players Here

Paducah players here Sunday were W. J. McGowan, Pat Jones, W. O. Jones and J. R. Lee. From Winkler came Melvin Dow, who qualified in the second flight, and from Spur were Charles Powell and T. A. Parrish.

J. C. Southworth, popular golfer from Sweetwater, a power in West Texas tournaments, finished well up in the first flight with a 150.

Post, Slaton, Crosbyton and Plainview were represented. From Post were Buddy Stewart, Frank Wright and Clyde Hundley. Slaton sent Royce Pember, Allen Farrell, L. S. Stoddard, Nick Carter, Tom Davis, and J. A. Reynolds. Frank Day, Frank Hart and Runt Adams of Plainview competed, and Roy Howard, Stanley Carter, W. P. Walker and Owen Crump of Crosbyton were here. From Lamesa came T. F. Vaughn and from Tahoka, Jess Lockhart.

The field was divided into three flights, morning rounds determining into which flight the players fell. Winner of the second flight with a 166 was Wade Holman, jr., of Amarillo. Donald Doherty of Lubbock was second with a 170 and Tom Davis of Slaton third with 171.

Third flight winner was T. A. Parrish of Spur.

The thorn of a rose is only a hardened hair.

American Sprint Stars Ring Up Lead For United States On Rainy Stretch

Dusky Bullet's Time Ruled Out, But Event Is Won

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

BERLIN, Aug. 3.—American speed ruled the Olympic straight-away today with smashing triumphs down a rain-drenched stretch before the third straight capacity crowd of 100,000.

Officials of the International Amateur Athletic federation ruled out Jesse Owens' world record-breaking performance of 10.2 seconds made yesterday, deciding there was too much of a favoring wind, but they couldn't keep the brown Buckeye bullet from capturing the 100-meter crown.

Gets First Objective

Owens achieved the first objective in his bid for three Olympic titles—he resumed work in the 200-meter run and the broad jump tomorrow—by beating Frank Metcalfe, Chicago negro, by a meter (39.37 inches) in world and Olympic standard-equalling time of 10.3 seconds. Frank Wykoff, Carpenteria, Calif., was fourth among the six finalists.

The negro pair shared speed honors with the 19-year-old Fulton, Mo., flier, Helen Stephens, who twice shattered the world 100-meter record of 11.8 seconds.

Twice Beats Record

She stepped the distance over a heavy track in 11.4 seconds in her first trial and then captured her semi-final test in 11.5.

Miss Stephens' record, made with a medium following wind, will stand overnight pending a possible recount as in the case of Owens by the ruling solons of the I. A. A. F. in their regular morning post-mortem session.

The United States increased its margin despite the German challenge in the weight events. Teutons won the first two places in record-shattering hammer throw competition.

Yankees Maintain Lead

Completion of five men's events—high jump, shot put, hammer throw, 10,000 meters and 100-meters—in the first two days found the Americans with 46 points, 30 of which were gained by negroes. The Germans had 31 1-4 points, shading Finland by a point.

Meanwhile the United States was fortified strongly for tomorrow's feature, not only by Miss Stephen's dominance among the women sprinters, but by qualifying all three entries in both the 400-meter low hurdles and he 800-meter flat race.

Glenn Hardin of Greenwood, Miss., defending champion and holder of the Olympic and world marks, and Joe Patterson of the U. S. Naval academy and Oklahoma City, captured two of the three hurdle trials, qualifying for the semi-final, while Dale Schofield of Provo, Utah, ran second in his heat but also made the grade.

Rain Slows Course

John Woodruff, University of Pittsburgh negro freshman, Harry Williamson of High Point, N. C., and bespectacled Charles F. (Chuck) Hornbostel of Evansville, Ind., swept through the second 800-meter tests in which nine qualified for the final.

The final of the 100 meters was the focal point of a day marred by a virtual coldburst and a fight during a soccer match lost by the Americans to Italy, 1 to 0.

The crowd, including Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, watched Owens take command quickly, lead Wykoff by a yard halfway down the straightaway and then stand off Metcalfe's closing rush to win by ya good four feet.

Martin Osendarp of Holland outlasted Wykoff in a close fight for third place.

Hitler, Owens Salute

Chancellor Hitler exchanged hand waves with Owens who said later the track seemed heavy and he regretted there will not be another opportunity to regain the world record taken away from him because the wind exceeded four miles an hour.

The hammer throw, ordinarily a boring event, had German fans cheering. The American favorite, Henry Dreyer of Providence, R. I., failed to reach the final round.

Karl Hein overcame his countryman, Edwin Blash, for the gold medal, achieving 56.49 meters, 185 feet 4 1-16 inches on his final throw. The competition was marked by four throws bettering Matt McGrath's longstanding Olympic record of 179 feet 8 4-10 inches.

Americans Outclassed

The Americans were off form, but were outclassed. Bill Rowe of Pontiac, R. I., was fifth with 51.06 meters, 169 feet 5 47-64 inches. Dreyer's best throw was 165 feet 5 5-64 inches.

Miss Stephens dominated the women's sprints in which she and her teammate, Angtte Rogers of Chicago, joined three Germans and Poland's defending champion, Stella Walsh, for finals tomorrow.

The Missourian beat Jeannette Dolson of Canada by 10 meters in the first trial in 11.4, clipping four tenths of a second off Miss Walsh's world mark.

Woodruff's seven league strides featured the 800 meter semi-finals.

Negro Shows Class

The negro led from 20 to 40 meters most of the way, finally breaking the tape 20 meters ahead of Kasimiers Kucharski of Poland.

American coaches think that Italy's Mario Lanzi, who ran second to Hornbostel's 1.52.2, was playing possum along with Kucharski. Both are likely to be tough to beat.

Williamson won the most exciting heat, outrunning Backhouse and the veteran Phil Edwards of Canada in a blanket finish as only one-tenth of a second separated the American at 1:51.1 and Backhouse and Edwards who were timed alike at 1:53.2.

Qualify Under Wraps

Competing after the heaviest shower and when the track was in its sloppiest condition of the day, the American 400-meter hurdlers contented themselves with qualifying under wraps among the dozen advancing tomorrow's deciding competition.

Hardin and Patterson won their heats respectively in 53.8 and 54.4 seconds, while Schofield was clocked in 54.8 in running a little less than a meter behind Germany's Fritz Nottbrock.

To keep cool the interior of his delivery trucks, one Berlin butter merchant grew real lawns atop the trucks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Down the sports trial for a dash around the big league bases:

FRENZY

New York, the big town, where everyone is supposed to take things calmly, is excitedly talking about a "subway world series" again. The bludgeoning Yankees look like they're in while Bill Terry's Giants are driving down the stretch with a mad rush that's pushing them into serious consideration.

If you ask the Giants who's the one man responsible for their turn about face, they'll point to lean, lanky, quiet Carl Hubbell. The Yankees will point to Lou Gehrig.

Last spring, Hubbell said he didn't think he could last much more in the big time because, he explained, "everyone is learning to throw screw balls and the batters are getting used to them."

Action Belies Fears

But King Carl developed his to a greater degree so that now his screw ball is effective against southpaw hitters who rapped him for most of the many homers collected off his delivery last season. To date, he has won 15 games, capturing five of them during the last 17 days when the Giants began their drive.

"Loomotive Lou," who has passed his 1,750 consecutive game and probably will exceed the 1800 mark this year, strained a back muscle swinging at one of Dennis Galehouse's slants yesterday but none of the pitchers feel sorry for Lou. Many of them have strained arms trying to strike him out.

DIAMOND DUST

You can put it down in your future book that Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn fire ball king, won't be wearing the Flatbush livery next year. He's still sore because the Dodgers didn't let him go to the Cubs or some other team with a little support behind its pitchers. The Flatbush fans are booing their one-time hero, too.

La Belle And Hagen To Meet

Hairy-Faced Frenchman Is Due A Lesson In Wrestling When Shreveport Lad Faces Him In Semi-Final Wednesday

Gene La Belle, the hair-faced Frenchman from Canada, already is one of the most unpopular wrestling guys in the business. He will increase his unpopularity tomorrow night when he meets one of the best liked fellows of the profession, young Jack Hagen of Shreveport, in the semi-final or special event.

La Belle is one of the most cruel and merciless men who ever fought here. He has no friends, and he doesn't seem to care. He asks nothing, gives nothing. Hagen, by far the classiest grappler, is in for another rough evening. But he has survived a lot of rough evenings here, all of them, in fact. He lost a main even "clean" match last week to Dory Detton, but against the rough customers he has repeatedly come through with victories or ties.

"Nick The Greek"

Also on the supporting card this week is Nick Bosinis, another evil-tempered person who doesn't know his own villainy. He fights the clean and clever Herb Parks of Vancouver in the semi-final.

The supporting card promises lots of action, but the main event still stands out as the evening's feature. Cyclone Mackey and Dory Detton should get things done when they clash in the two-out-of-three-falls contest to settle the heroics of the evening.

Riding on unsafe tires is a gamble no motorist can afford to take. Your brakes and your steering gear may be in perfect shape—but could they hold you on the road if a whirling tire suddenly blew out? The law of averages is all against you, unless you're properly protected.

At today's high speeds the tire gets blistering hot inside. Rubber and fabric separate. A blister forms and grows bigger and BIGGER until—sooner or later—BANG! A blow-out—that might have been prevented if your car had been equipped with Goodrich Silvertowns.

Silvertowns have something no other tire in the world has—the Life-Saver Golden Ply, a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. By resisting this heat the Golden Ply keeps rubber and fabric from separating—keeps blisters from forming. And when you prevent the blister, you prevent the high-speed blow-out. Play safe. Have your Goodrich dealer equip your car with a set of Golden Ply Silvertowns. Remember, they cost not a penny more than other standard tires!

With great show of pistol and bluff a sheriff would "arrest" spooners on practically any charge. . . . A $20 bill was nothing beside the unwelcome publicity of an appearance in court.

Breaking Up the "SPOONERS' RACKET" that preyed on SOUTHERN CHIVALRY

Because no gentleman from below the Mason-Dixon line would let a lady's name be bandied about in the courts, crooked deputy sheriffs were getting rich—until the newspapers caught on and made the roads safe for parking

FAR down in the warm and fragrant south, where knighthood still flowers profusely, where Woman is still spelled with the sanctifying capital "W," a subtle racket has worked smoothly through the years—until a short time ago, when a crusading press rocked the boat.

The racket was based on love, a commodity that blooms profusely in Dixie under the softening influence of spectacular moonlight, warm romantic nights and powerful corn liquor. It was a form of gentle blackmail that functioned without a hitch—until the publicity of print withered it up and killed it.

The formula was simple: Deputy sheriffs cruised along country lanes, looking for parked cars filled with engrossed lovers. With a great show of pistols and bluff, they "arrested" the drivers on practically any charge.

The man in the case, even though realizing that the charges were faked, usually preferred to cross the deputy's palm with balm, ranging from $5 to $50 and more, depending on his finances. Anything at all that would keep the lady fair away from the predatory justice of the peace, the smirks of bystanders and the newspaper headlines.

In the hardy north, the man probably would hesitate not a second in facing the squire. Nor would the woman. But in Dixie—NEVER!

THE south is a paradise for young love, an Eden where the only evil influence used to be the serpents who loafed along in their scout cars, wearing brass badges and sometimes blue uniforms.

Tennessee is a good example. Like many another southern state, it abounds with colleges and universities of all degrees of size and prestige. Nearly every county has its institution of higher learning.

Almost 20,000 college students take advantage of the natural romantic atmosphere. And the deputies, until a short time ago, took advantage of the 20,000 college students, bleeding their petty bribes from school allowances.

Nor were college lovers their only prey. There was no distinction between town and gown. If the butcher or the baker was surprised in the arms of a lovely belle, he sighed heavily and paid the price with unhesitating gallantry.

Many a philanderer—good southern usage—was grateful for the easy official consciences of the arresting officers when caught in suspicious circumstances with somebody else's wife. A $20 bill was nothing beside the unwelcome publicity of an appearance in court.

So the racket floated along lazily, prospering more each year. The southern gentlemen continued to fork over their hush money and the deputy sheriffs continued to buy new cars each year—until the press went to work.

THE expose that soon developed made good reading. The loving public applauded the efforts of the newspapers. And now the south has been made safe for romance.

Belligerent Yankees sometimes startled deputy and squire by appealing to criminal court.

Now they can love in perfect freedom—not with one hand on the starting switch and one eye cocked on the rear view mirror to catch sight of approaching officers.

The uncovering process began when reporters, prowling around a criminal court clerk's office, found batches of old warrants charging trespassing, parking without lights, lewdness and creation of public nuisances.

The warrants represented appeals from some doughty lovers—probably invading and belligerent Yankees—who had balked at the purred suggestion of a suitable bribe, faced the sleepy justice of the peace, been fined and then startled squire and deputy alike by appealing to criminal court.

Grand juries, considerably more particular of legal rights and probably more sympathetic with lovers, had refused to return indictments, holding that affectionate couples had done nothing to offend the peace and dignity of the great commonwealth of Tennessee.

Attorney generals likewise had refused to push the cases, with only the most meager evidence to convince a skeptical judge and jury. So the appeals were stuffed away to gather dust—until the reporters found them.

They read up carefully on their legal rights; they conferred for hours with lawyers and judges—and with justices of the peace too, until they found the squires a bit loath to discuss the topic.

BUT they found they couldn't be fined for trespassing, even on private property, unless the land was plainly posted or unless they injured property.

They found that a "lewdness" charge was one of the most difficult to maintain in court, requiring the most intricate and impossible kind of proof.

They found that you could park without lights, just as long as you were well off a main road.

They found you couldn't be creating a public nuisance if you were far off in some pleasant forest or along some lonely road, with not another soul around except your companion-in-arms and the deputy sheriff.

In short, they found that in most cases the deputies didn't have any semblance of evidence to make a charge stand up in court. Then, armed with their legal knowledge, the reporters went to work.

From one paper, a man and a woman—both young, both reporters—set out to get themselves arrested. Their sole assignment was to park along inviting roads and wait for the waving of pistols and the "arrest" by some busy minion of the law.

It didn't take long. Within one hour after they parked, the outraged deputy came along. He said they were guilty of trespassing on private property and that they would have to come along quietly to court.

"BUT we might be able to fix this up," the deputy suggested helpfully. The reporter tried to look relieved. Out of his pocket he fished a $10 bill. The deputy grinned in anticipation.

"Can you use this?" the reporter asked. The officer thought he could. He took the bill, folded it lovingly, shoved his pistol back in its holster and went off whistling.

The reporter didn't hesitate. He drove off—straight to the nearest justice of the peace. He told the squire he wanted to swear out a warrant for the deputy, charging him with bribery. The squire balked, but finally gave in. After all, a citizen can swear out a warrant if he wants to.

They all went along to arrest the deputy, who was outraged and surprised. He blustered and denied everything. He had never seen the reporter in his life, he said, and he had had the $10 bill for several days.

But the reporter wasn't through. He drew out a paper witnessed by a notary public earlier in the day. It gave the serial number of the $10 bill and contained the reporter's sworn statement that he was going to use the bill in a test of the honesty of officers.

The deputy wilted. Later he was ousted and punished according to law. But the next morning the reporter wrote an account of the whole affair. Sheriffs throughout the state looked worried and warned their deputies about accepting bribes. The racket calmed down for a while.

BUT it soon sprang up once more. Even if the bribes were out, the fees of arresting officers were fat enough to look interesting. Deputies, once over their first scare, began hauling in hapless lovers again, even though they righteously refused bribes. The size of their cut of the fines depended upon the friendliness of the squires. And, since the squires depended for their business on the ambition and personal friendship of the deputies, they worked neatly hand in glove.

Once more the reporters went to work. Once more, armed with his knowledge of law, a newspaperman fared forth into romantic lanes, hoping to be arrested with a fellow (feminine) reporter. It took two hours.

They were haled into court by an indignant deputy, quickly tried and fined $20 for "creating a public nuisance." Not batting an eye at the fine, the reporter asked for an appeal bond. After some argument, he got one.

The case was never heard of again. The grand jury didn't bother with it.

The next morning the reporter wrote a complete account of the arrest and appeal. Later, he wrote of the grand jury's action, or rather even further.

He printed a condensed account of the laws on parking in the country. He told his readers what they could do and what they couldn't do. He explained just how the racket could be broken up.

So the racket wilted and died. The deputies couldn't take it. The cases have dwindled to a mere handful each year. Dixie is once more a paradise for lovers.

Take, for example, the views of J. Wesley Brewer, the High Sheriff of Knox County, Tenn. His county holds the state's largest school—the University of Tennessee.

The roads around Knoxville are crowded each night with cars that hold their quotas of young lovers. And, for all of Sheriff Brewer, they can love in perfect freedom—not with one hand on the starting switch, and one eye cocked at the rear-view mirror.

"They might as well do their courting in peace," is his philosophy. "They'll have enough trouble after they're married."

Not Isolation

THE world today is riding for a fall, and there seems to be precious little chance of stopping it before it comes down in a heap.

This is the sober opinion of Dr. William E. Dodd, United States ambassador to Germany, as expressed in recent remarks before a midwest luncheon club audience.

"Everybody thinks everybody is going to fight everybody," said the ambassador. "Things are worse than at the end of the World War. Masses of people who don't want war are all anxious to have enough to eat in the event of war and are trying to get along without trading with one another."

It is this, perhaps, which is the most discouraging part about the whole business. For it means that people have come to accept as inevitable, or at least as highly probable, the thing which they dread above everything else. Wanting above all things to stay at peace, they are schooling themselves for war—and by that very act they are helping to make war more probable.

FOR the alternative to war, which is the sharpest and most obvious form of international discord, is international co-operation; and international co-operation involves a great deal more than simply refraining from fighting. It involves the steady interchange of goods, the building up of international prosperity, the maintenance of a complicated social and economic web in which nations benefit themselves and their neighbors simultaneously.

For a good many generations the world made steady progress along those lines. Nations exported the products they were best fitted to produce, and imported those which they could not produce economically. The whole structure of modern civilization was erected on that basis.

The World War cut across that intricate fabric like a gigantic knife, and the war's legacy of fear, suspicion, and hatred has made it impossible for us to reconstruct it.

BY making complete self-sufficiency the goal for every great nation, the world has not merely headed in the direction of war and turned its back on the old goal of co-operation and mutual help; it has elected to carry on its economics in the most uneconomical way possible, and has doomed itself to a progressive lower standard of living. And this, by increasing the pressure on the ordinary man, arouses his discontent, sharpens his grievances, and makes it just that much easier for the statesmen to sell him a new war when the proper time comes.

It is a vicious circle, and no one who studies it can find much ground for optimism. Because everybody is afraid of war, everybody does the very things which make war more likely. At a moment when modern science is making world society an indivisible unit, mankind is doing its level best to destroy that unity.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"Has any of you boys seen Chas. Armour Guy since he returned from the no'th?" asks Old Andy Jack Stricklin, the questioneer, in the Terry County Herald. "Well, we have. We bearded the lion in his den last Thursday night. You know he has been writing some near-Republican stuff since his return and personally, we think we are going to have to tie his and editor Smith's tails together and throw them across a pole. But Chas. tells us that he is still for Roosevelt, lock, stock and barrel, although filling station men and other road agents in the north told him what was what. Well, these oil men have been told by their big bosses just what to say. Did Charles interview any farmers who killed a few little pigs or plowed up a few rows of feed and got paid for it?"

"Don't let political propaganda confuse you," Forrest Weimhold says in the Sudan News." The candidate stoops to slinging mud to cover up his own faults. He does not have enough qualifications of his own; so he becomes an anti-opponent candidate."

"Machinery gets 'cranky" when the heat jumps the marker toward the top of the mercury bulb, principally because the machinery is operated by human beings, who cannot work at their best when the sun pours down and the tools with which they work scorch at the touch," Homer Steen points out in the Floyd County Hesperian.

MURDER TONIGHT
BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 36

SUICIDE

"It's about this 'ere business on Monday night, mister," Alf Durley said to Hylton at the Morechester station. "What I told you about meeting the young gennelman who 'ad the cigaret case was gospel. I'll swear to that in the box. It's about when 'e left I thought I ought to tell you of, like."

"What happened then?"

"Well mister after the young gennelman 'ad gone I thought to myself, 'Alf Durley where's yer supper?" and seeing I was near the big 'ouse up the lane, I thought I'd go up and see if there was anything doing—"

"See if you could steal anything," the Superintendent put in. "Go on."

Durley blinked his eyes virtuously at this interruption.

"To see if there was anything doing. 'Course I knew the old boy was pretty close and all that, but I'd thought 'no 'arm in 'aving a look round' so up I went. There's a kind of a back drive runs up to the 'ouse from the lane and I was just about turning in there when I 'eard someone acoming down it. I drew back a bit into the shadow and in about 'alf a minute along comes the sergeant—"

"The what?" Hylton asked.

"The police sergeant from Enderton, the same one as you took me to see last night—"

Hylton looked from Durley to the Superintendent. "You're talking through your hat Durley, you must have made a mistake."

"Not likely. I saw 'im as plain as plain. I've seen Sergeant White about on the roads fifty times and I reckernized him."

"What time was this?"

"Not many minutes after the 'arf-hour."

"What half hour?"

"Seven, mister. I was in Enderton before eight."

Hylton stared at the tramp with a worried expression on his face—he was recalling vividly that unexplained moment in the police cottage when Alice White had plucked him by the arm.

"You're spinning a yarn Durley," he said suddenly, "what's at the back of it? What have you got against Sergeant White?"

"Honest to Gawd mister it's the truth. I haven't go a thing against the Sergeant, 'e's never 'ad me up on anything. All I know is the truth and that is Sergeant White come down the back drive there as near after 'arf past seven Monday night as doesn't matter."

"Um. Supposing we pretend to believe you for minute, what did you do then?"

"Mister," Alf Durley said with great earnestness, "I beat it straight to the 'Oops at Enderton — I was there before eight. I can prove it."

"Why are you suddenly telling us this yarn Durley?" Hylton asked. "Why one tale last night and another now?"

"Because I've been thinking Mister, and I'm not quite a fool yet. First thing I says to myself when I 'eard the old boy had been kiboshed was 'You 'old your tongue Alf Durley; them as don't speak can't get into trouble,' I says. All right. Then comes yesterday, me asking for a lift innocent-like and copping all this packet of trouble.

"I was fair put about I can tell you, especially when you ran me into Sergeant White's 'ouse I told the tale as I thought best at the moment leaving out about going any nearer the big 'ouse than the end of the lane. But last night in the cell I 'ad tim to think a bit more, and I thought, 'suppose the Sergeant saw me same time as I seen 'im'.

"My Gawd, that put me in a sweat, I don't mind telling you Mister I could see meself 'anging next. So this afternoon I decided I might as well tell the extra bit, and that's Gawd's own Gospel truth mister if it's on me death-bed."

"Send him back to the cells Super," Hylton said after a long pause, and when Mr. Alf Durley had been duly disposed of the two police officers faced each other.

"Well, what do you make of it?" the Superintendent asked.

Hylton shook his head. "I honestly don't know what to make of it. He must be lying of course, but why?"

"Why should he go to all this trouble to lie?"

"Dammit all that's just what I'm asking."

"Unless he really is scared that White saw him there then."

"But White wasn't there then, that's the whole point; he didn't get to the house until well after nine, we know that."

"No, that's right Inspector. I wonder if White has had any dealings with Durley before—had him up for vagrancy or anything?"

"He didn't say so last night, but it's possible."

"Do you know, Inspector, I can't help thinking that fellow is telling the truth, somehow."

"Who, Durley?" Hylton laughed. "Well, to put your mind to rest I'll go straight back to White and see what he says about the whole thing."

"Well, maybe that's best. Shall I order the car for you?"

Hylton stopped the car at the Hoops and sent it back from there. He was feeling so ravenously hungry that he decided his interview with Sergeant White could be postponed for twenty minutes. This interval was put to excellent use in the back room at the Hoops and it was a more cheerful Hylton who set out on foot later for the Police Cottage.

Reflection during his meal time had made it more evident than ever to him that Alf Durley's tale (for some inscrutable reason best known to that strange individual) must be a tissue of lies. Men usually lie from vanity or fright, the Inspector knew. Vanity is a quantity so incalculable that it admits of no reasoning; but if Alf Durley was lying from fright, what was he really frightened of?

Hylton sincerely hoped that White did know something about the man, for more, certainly, would have to come to light before they could be satisfied. All this went forward on the surface of his mind; underneath, aided by the feeling of ease consequent upon good food and tobacco, was the comfortable thought that when the Durley business was disposed of a game of chess with Sergeant White would be a very pleasant thing.

No light was showing in front so the Inspector made his way round to the back. All this, too, was in darkness, rather to his surprise—surprise which was increased considerably when on making to knock on the kitchen door he found it to be jar.

He felt certain that the house would hardly be left unlocked with nobody in it and pushing the door wide open he stepped inside and called "White."

His voice ran round the little kitchen and died away in the dark interior of the cottage. There was no answer; but the Inspector standing there on the areshold of the dark kitchen got the distinct impression that something moved near him.

Once again he called out "White" and once again there was no answer; he took an undecided pace into the kitchen to investigatte and brought his face into contact with something twixt floor and ceiling which gave at his touch. In complete bewilderment he put up his hand to examine this unexpected object, and found that it swung away from him with a ponderous facility. His fingers encountered the roughness of serge cloth, the smooth roundness of a button.

"What the devil—" he muttered to himself and then suddenly stopped in a cold sweat of horror and fear.

"God," he swore stupidly to himself and without more ado backed away until he hit the kitchen wall and his hand stumbled on the electric light switch.

The merciless yellow efficiently lit up the small kitchen. The table had been pushed, or kicked, to one side, and what now adorned the centre of the room was the body of Sergeant James White dependent by a stout piece of rope from a tie rod that ran close to the ceiling.

Sergeant James White's face was not a pretty sight to look at; it was the face of a man who has deliberately choked himself to death by slow strangulation — which is what even the most skillful of self hangings amounts to. His hands were handcuffed in front of his body. On the kitchen table weighted down by a long, sharp bread knife lay some sheets of paper, the top one inscribed,

"Detective Inspector Kingsley Hylton."

A very blind lead becomes a very good one, tomorrow.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

NOTHING save a last-minute miracle can prevent the first major split-up of American organized labor as a result of A. F. of L. executives' conference here today. President Roosevelt's emissaries are reconciled to the prospect, but are banking on assurances that the struggling factions will close ranks behind on Election Day.

An ex-miner himself, easy-going William Green, A. F. of L. chief, is reluctant to suspend the miners and other workers aligned with Mine President John L. Lewis. But the latter's affronts and aggressiveness have angered Mr. Green's aides—Arthur Wharton of the machinists, Tom Ricket of the garment workers, William Hutcheson of the carpenters. A conflict of personalities virtually overshadows the fundamental difference of industrial (Lewis) against craft (Green) unions.

Insiders foresee only one outcome. They look for the growth of a rival union which will eventually prove more powerful than the A. F of L. They predict that Mr. Lewis will try to rally under his banner employes in such industries as automobile, radio, textile, rubber, cement. In the end they believe there will be a streamlined organization of union forces in accord with the system which the Lewis-Hillman-Dubinsky spokesmen propose now.

DUD: William Randolph Hearst still remains on the New Dealers' trouble list as a political marplot. Their somewhat camouflaged move to counter-attack failed so flatly that they're stumped on future strategy.

The publisher's personal onslaught nettled certain Rooseveltians so sharply that methods of reprisal were discussed at a conference of Cabinet members, politicos, and publicists, including ex-Hearstian Charlie Michelson. They decided to reply with a brutal review of his 40-year record as a politician and journalist. Then arose the question of who should slay the red dragon. Harold Ickes begged for the assignment, but FDR ordered that nobody in his official household should be drafted. The only Senators available begged off because Mr. Hearst has newspapers in their bailiwicks.

Governor Paul McNutt of Indiana was finally chosen as important enough to command attention but not too important to reveal official concern. Democratic GHQ supplied him with supposedly devastating stuff. He even revived Elihu Root's charge that Hearst editorials had inflamed the mind of McKinley's assassin. But the McNutt blast got almost no space in the rival press—to the utter disgust of its behind-the-scene sponsors.

PENALTIES: President Roosevelt may dispose of the most pressing of many problems before he quits the White House for drouth and political trips. Here is part of the grist:

Patronage—Appointments of five members of the new Maritime Commission, three men to the Federal Alcohol Commission, an Under Secretary of State, an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, an Assistant Secretary of the Navy a member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Politics—Preparation of his campaign itinerary, selection of issues which he will headline, decision on the attitude he will assume toward his opponent (neglectful or courteous), and assignment of definite roles to his aides on the stump.

Foreign Affairs—Arrangement for a practical but not a diplomatic recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, consideration of problems which may be raised by future developments in the Spanish rebellion, expansion of the navy to meet construction other nations have secretly planned for January 1, 1937, when 1930 disarmament provisions die.

Like everybody else, the chief executive will be reminded that a vacation brings its penalties as well as its pleasures.

DECISIVE: The President has frequently turned a stony stare on advisers and newspaper correspondents who dared to suggest that the government's handling of the drouth problems could be capitalized politically. Nevertheless, he will probably develop his ideas on the campaign's major issue—national planning from Washington—during his tour through the West.

He is expected to cite the drouth's ravages as evidence that only a long-time, integrated and federal program for soil conservation can preserve national fertility and prosperity. He will point out that winds and floods which blow or wash away top soil do not exhibit any regard for state lines hallowed by Supreme court opinions. He will defend expenditures for distressed farmers and challenge those who complain of high taxes and unbalanced budgets under such circumstances.

FDR will not talk politics in the raw. He will not indulge in partisan oratory. But the elaborate preparations for the trip indicate that the White House regards it as one of the most important, perhaps decisive, ventures in the campaign. It may mean the winning or losing of the West for the Democrats.

SWELLING: You can best detect FDR's flair for mingling humanitarian and political instincts by a between-the-lines study of his recent allocation of funds for War Department surveys of projects in areas damaged by last spring's floods. No. G. O. P. critic dares to dispute the need for these expenditures, but the fact remains that they ought to win votes for Mr. Roosevelt where he needs them most.

He allotted $150,000 each to Boston and Providence—which happen to be centers of Democratic disaffection. He turned over $325,000 to south central New York—the so-called "Republican tier of counties" where Nominee Landon must roll up a heavy vote if he is to carry the Empire State. The sum of $100,000 fell to Maryland, a pro-Landon state, and $200,000 was allocated to the Pittsburgh district in Pennsylvania. Los Angeles, where emigrants from Iowa and Kansas lean toward Landon or Dr. Townsend, got $75,000.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

NEW YORK political observers have an especially watchful eye on the farm vote. Trusted scouts are kept busy sounding out sentiment in the agricultural areas and especially among the leaders of the big farm groups. There's a growing conviction that agriculture holds the balance of power in the election. In the past week developments have been reported decidedly encouraging to Republican hopes.

For example, a high official of one of the largest and most influential farm organizations—a lifelong Democrat and ardent Roosevelt supporter in 1932—expressed himself forcefully to a friend as follows: "We were double-crossed at Philadelphia. We were led to believe that we could have anything we wanted—including a plank that would leave the door open to managed money—and all we got was dry bones and sawdust. Ed O'Neal and his Farm Bureau Federation may string with the New Deal because O'Neal and Wallace are buddies, but it's the only important farm outfit that will.

"Personally, I'm working my head off to get Roosevelt out of there, and plenty of my associates feel the same way about it. We just can't trust him."

OPEN-MINDED: On the other side, Landon has made an excellent impression on farm leaders. Several of them who were frankly skeptical about his understanding of their problems are now convinced—after personal conferences with the G. O. P. candidate—that he knows what it's all about.

One farm chief privately comments: "Funny thing about Landon. He doesn't try to make you think he's a big shot. On the contrary, he goes out of his way to impress it on you that he's just an average fellow—or even sub-average. And yet you come away feeling that he has a real grasp of economic fundamentals and that he means what he says. I thought at first the G. O. P. had picked a lemon, but I certainly have changed my mind since I had ah opportunity to chat with him."

Curiously, although Landon has not offered them any specific encouragement, managed money advocates among the farm leaders are convinced that they have a better chance of getting somewhere with him than with Roosevelt. They get the impression that the Kansan is genuinely open minded on questions of monetary policy, whereas FDR is definitely and permanently opposed to their pet remedy for agricultural ailments.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN, No. 8

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Little Nkima looked down upon Tarzan's still form and whimpered miserably: "Tarzan is dead!" New and terrible fears crowded his small brain. Who now would protect Nkima from savage jungle beasts and cruel men? In all the world, Tarzan was Nkima's greatest friend. Now Tarzan was dead! . . .

. . . The dawn-light danced among the tree tops above the grass-thatched huts of the village of Tumbal. Orando, dauntless warrior and mighty hunter, stood with hands outstretched in supplication to his mutimo, the spirit of the long-dead ancestor for whom he had been named.

"Bring the animals near to me," he pleaded, "and ward off all danger, O Mutimo." Then Orando set out for the hunt. He followed a familiar trail, now made unrecognizable and almost impassable by the fury of the storm. Several times he was forced to make detours into the heavy underbrush.

It was upon such an occasion that his attention was caught by the sight of a human leg protruding from beneath the foliage of a newly uprooted tree. He recognized the bronzed flesh as that of a white man, and he knew no white man as a friend. The foliage moved. Orando raised his spear!

Not Isolation

THE world today is riding for a fall, and there seems to be precious little chance of stopping it before it comes down in a heap.

This is the sober opinion of Dr. William E. Dodd, United States ambassador to Germany, as expressed in recent remarks before a midwest luncheon club audience.

"Everybody thinks everybody is going to fight everybody," said the ambassador. "Things are worse than at the end of the World War. Masses of people who don't want war are all anxious to have enough to eat in the event of war and are trying to get along without trading with one another."

It is this, perhaps, which is the most discouraging part about the whole business. For it means that people have come to accept as inevitable, or at least as highly probable, the thing which they dread above everything else. Wanting above all things to stay at peace, they are schooling themselves for war—and by that very act they are helping to make war more probable.

FOR the alternative to war, which is the sharpest and most obvious form of international discord, is international co-operation; and international co-operation involves a great deal more than simply refraining from fighting. It involves the steady interchange of goods, the building up of international prosperity, the maintenance of a complicated social and economic web in which nations benefit themselves and their neighbors simultaneously.

For a good many generations the world made steady progress along those lines. Nations exported the products they were best fitted to produce, and imported those which they could not produce economically. The whole structure of modern civilization was erected on that basis.

The World War cut across that intricate fabric like a gigantic knife, and the war's legacy of fear, suspicion, and hatred has made it impossible for us to reconstruct it.

BY making complete self-sufficiency the goal for every great nation, the world has not merely headed in the direction of war and turned its back on the old goal of co-operation and mutual help; it has elected to carry on its economics in the most uneconomical way possible, and has doomed itself to a progressive lower standard of living. And this, by increasing the pressure on the ordinary man, arouses his discontent, sharpens his grievances, and makes it just that much easier for the statesmen to sell him a new war when the proper time comes.

It is a vicious circle, and no one who studies it can find much ground for optimism. Because everybody is afraid of war, everybody does the very things which make war more likely. At a moment when modern science is making world society an indivisible unit, mankind is doing its level best to destroy that unity.

WITH OUR CONTEMPORARIES

"Has any of you boys seen Chas. Armour Guy since he returned from the no'th?" asks Old Andy Jack Stricklin, the questioneer, in the Terry County Herald. "Well, we have. We bearded the lion in his den last Thursday night. You know he has been writing some near-Republican stuff since his return and personally, we think we are going to have to tie his and editor Smith's tails together and throw them across a pole. But Chas. tells us that he is still for Roosevelt, lock, stock and barrel, although filling station men and other road agents in the north told him what was what. Well, these oil men have been told by their big bosses just what to say. Did Charles interview any farmers who killed a few little pigs or plowed up a few rows of feed and got paid for it?"

"Don't let political propaganda confuse you," Forrest Weimhold says in the Sudan News." The candidate stoops to slinging mud to cover up his own faults. He does not have enough qualifications of his own; so he becomes an anti-opponent candidate."

"Machinery gets 'cranky" when the heat jumps the marker toward the top of the mercury bulb, principally because the machinery is operated by human beings, who cannot work at their best when the sun pours down and the tools with which they work scorch at the touch," Homer Steen points out in the Floyd County Hesperian.

SUICIDE

"It's about this 'ere business on Monday night, mister," Alf Durley said to Hylton at the Morechester station. "What I told you about meeting the young genneiman who 'ad the cigaret case was gospel, I'll swear to that in the box. It's about when 'e left I thought I ought to tell you of, like."

"What happened then?"

"Well mister after the young genneiman 'ad gone I thought to myself, 'Af Durley where's yer supper?" and seeing I was near the big 'ouse up the lane, I thought I'd go up and see if there was anything doing—"

"See if you could steal anything," the Superintendent put in. "Go on."

Durley blinked his eyes virtuously at this interruption.

"To see if there was anything doing. 'Course I knew the old boy was pretty close and all that, but I'd thought 'no 'arm in 'aving a look round' so up I went. There's a kind of a back drive runs up to the 'ouse from the lane and I was just about turning in there when I 'eard someone acoming down it. I drew back a bit into the shadow and in about 'alf a minute along comes the sergeant—"

"The what?" Hylton asked.

"The police sergeant from Enderton, the same one as you took me to see last night—"

Hylton looked from Durley to the Superintendent. "You're talking through your hat Durley, you must have made a mistake."

"Not likely. I saw 'im as plain as plain. I've seen Sergeant White about on the roads fifty times and I reckernized him."

"What time was this?"

"Not many minutes after the 'arf-hour."

"What half hour?"

"Seven, mister. I was in Enderton before eight."

Hylton stared at the tramp with a worried expression on his face—he was recalling vividly that unexplained moment in the police cottage when Alice White had plucked him by the arm.

"You're spinning a yarn Durley," he said suddenly, "what's at the back of it? What have you got against Sergeant White?"

"Honest to Gawd mister it's the truth. I haven't go a thing against the Sergeant, 'e's never 'ad me up on anything. All I know is the truth and that is Sergeant White come down the back drive there as near after 'arf past seven Monday night as doesn't matter."

"Um. Supposing we pretend to believe you for minute, what did you do then?"

"Mister," Alf Durley said with great earnestness, "I beat it straight to the 'Oops at Enderton — I was there before eight, I can prove it."

"Why are you suddenly telling us this yarn Durley?" Hylton asked. "Why one tale last night and another now?"

"Because I've been thinking Mister, and I'm not quite a fool yet. First thing I says to myself when I 'eard the old boy had been kiboshed was 'You 'old your tongue Alf Durley; them as don't speak can't get into trouble.' I says. All right. Then comes yesterday, me asking for a lift innocent-like and copping all this packet of trouble.

"I was fair put about I can tell you, especially when you ran me into Sergeant White's 'ouse I told the tale as I thought best at the moment leaving out about going any nearer the big 'ouse than the end of the lane. But last night in the cell I 'ad time to think a bit more, and I thought, 'suppose the Sergeant saw me same time as I seen 'im'.

"My Gawd, that put me in a sweat. I don't mind telling you Mister I could see meself 'anging next. So this afternoon I decided I might as well tell the extra bit, and that's Gawd's own Gospel truth mister if it's on me death-bed."

• • •

"Send him back to the cells Super." Hylton said after a long pause, and when Mr. Alf Durley had been duly disposed of the two police officers faced each other.

"Well, what do you make of it?" the Superintendent asked.

Hylton shook his head. "I honestly don't know what to make of it. He must be lying of course, but why?"

"Why should he go to all this trouble to lie?"

"Dammit all that's just what I'm asking."

"Unless he really is scared that White saw him there then."

"But White wasn't there then, that's the whole point; he didn't get to the house until well after nine, we know that."

"No, that's right Inspector. I wonder if White has had any dealings with Durley before—had him up for vagrancy or anything?"

"He didn't say so last night, but it's possible."

"Do you know, Inspector, I can't help thinking that fellow is telling the truth, somehow."

"Who, Durley?" Hylton laughed. "Well, to put your mind to rest I'll go straight back to White and see what he says about the whole thing."

"Well, maybe that's best. Shall I order the car for you?"

Hylton stopped the car at the Hoops and sent it back from there. He was feeling so ravenously hungry that he decided his interview with Sergeant White could be postponed for twenty minutes. This interval was put to excellent use in the back room at the Hoops and it was a more cheerful Hylton who set out on foot later for the Police Cottage.

Reflection during his meal time had made it more evident than ever to him that Alf Durley's tale (for some inscrutable reason best known to that strange individual) must be a tissue of lies. Men usually lie from vanity or fright, the Inspector knew. Vanity is a quantity so incalculable that it admits of no reasoning; but if Alf Durley was lying from fright, what was he really frightened of?

Hylton sincerely hoped that White did know something about the man, for more, certainly, would have to come to light before they could be satisfied. All this went forward on the surface of his mind; underneath, aided by the feeling of ease consequent upon good food and tobacco, was the comfortable thought that when the Durley business was disposed of a game of chess with Sergeant White would be a very pleasant thing.

No light was showing in front so the Inspector made his way round to the back. All this, too, was in darkness, rather to his surprise—surprise which was increased considerably when on making to knock on the kitchen door he found it to be jar.

He felt certain that the house would hardly be left unlocked with nobody in it and pushing the door wide open he stepped inside and called "White."

His voice ran round the little kitchen and died away in the dark interior of the cottage. There was no answer; but the Inspector standing there on the threshold of the dark kitchen got the distinct impression that something moved near him.

Once again he called out "White" and once again there was no answer; he took an undecided pace into the kitchen to investigate and brought his face into contact with something twist floor and ceiling which gave at his touch. In complete bewilderment he put up his hand to examine this unexpected object, and found that it swung away from him with a ponderous facility. His fingers encountered the roughness of serge cloth, the smooth roundness of a button.

"What the devil—" he muttered to himself and then suddenly stopped in a cold sweat of horror and fear.

"God," he swore stupidly to himself and without more ado backed away until he hit the kitchen wall and his hand stumbled on the electric light switch.

The merciless yellow efficiently lit up the small kitchen. The table had been pushed, or kicked, to one side, and what now adorned the centre of the room was the body of Sergeant James White dependent by a stout piece of rope from a tie rod that ran close to the ceiling.

Sergeant James White's face was not a pretty sight to look at; it was the face of a man who has deliberately choked himself to death by slow strangulation — which is what even the fost skillful of self hangings amounts to. His hands were handcuffed in front of his body. On the kitchen table weighted down by a long, sharp bread knife lay some sheets of paper, the top one inscribed,

"Detective Inspector Kingsley Hylton."

A very blind lead becomes a very good one, tomorrow.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

NOTHING save a last-minute miracle can prevent the first major split-up of American organized labor as a result of A. F. of L. executives' conference here today. President Roosevelt's emissaries are reconciled to the prospect, but are banking on assurances that the struggling factions will close ranks behind on Election Day.

An ex-miner himself, easy-going William Green, A. F. of L. chief, is reluctant to suspend the miners and other workers aligned with Mine President John L. Lewis. But the latter's affronts and aggressiveness have angered Mr. Green's aides—Arthur Wharton of the machinists, Tom Ricket of the garment workers, William Hutcheson of the carpenters. A conflict of personalities virtually overshadows the fundamental difference of industrial (Lewis) against craft (Green) unions.

Insiders foresee only one outcome. They look for the growth of a rival union which will eventually prove more powerful than the A. F of L. They predict that Mr. Lewis will try to rally under his banner employes in such industries as automobile, radio, textile, rubber, cement. In the end they believe there will be a streamlined organization of union forces in accord with the system which the Lewis-Hillman-Dubinsky spokesmen propose now.

DUD: William Randolph Hearst still remains on the New Dealers' trouble list as a political marplot. Their somewhat camouflaged move to counter-attack failed so flatly that they're stumped on future strategy.

The publisher's personal onslaught nettled certain Rooseveltians so sharply that methods of reprisal were discussed at a conference of Cabinet members, politicos, and publicists, including ex-Hearstian Charlie Michelson. They decided to reply with a brutal review of his 40-year record as a politician and journalist. Then arose the question of who should slay the red dragon. Harold Ickes begged for the assignment, but FDR ordered that nobody in his official household should be drafted. The only Senators available begged off because Mr. Hearst has newspapers in their bailiwicks.

Governor Paul McNutt of Indiana was finally chosen as important enough to command attention but not too important to reveal official concern. Democratic GHQ supplied him with supposedly devastating stuff. He even revived Elihu Root's charge that Hearst editorials had inflamed the mind of McKinley's assassin. But the McNutt blast got almost no space in the rival press—to the utter disgust of its behind-the-scene sponsors.

PENALTIES: President Roosevelt may dispose of the most pressing of many problems before he quits the White House for drouth and political trips. Here is part of the grist:

Patronage—Appointments of five members of the new Maritime Commission, three men to the Federal Alcohol Commission, an Under Secretary of State, an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, an Assistant Secretary of the Navy a member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Politics—Preparation of his campaign itinerary, selection of issues which he will headline, decision on the attitude he will assume toward his opponent (neglectful or courteous), and assignment of definite roles to his aides on the stump.

Foreign Affairs—Arrangement for a practical but not a diplomatic recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, consideration of problems which may be raised by future developments in the Spanish rebellion, expansion of the navy to meet construction other nations have secretly planned for January 1, 1937, when 1930 disarmament provisions die.

Like everybody else, the chief executive will be reminded that a vacation brings its penalties as well as its pleasures.

DECISIVE: The President has frequently turned a stony stare on advisers and newspaper correspondents who dared to suggest that the government's handling of the drouth problems could be capitalized politically. Nevertheless, he will probably develop his ideas on the campaign's major issue—national planning from Washington—during his tour through the West.

He is expected to cite the drouth's ravages as evidence that only a long-time, integrated and federal program for soil conservation can preserve national fertility and prosperity. He will point out that winds and floods which blow or wash away top soil do not exhibit any regard for state lines hallowed by Supreme court opinions. He will defend expenditures for distressed farmers and challenge those who complain of high taxes and unbalanced budgets under such circumstances.

FDR will not talk politics in the raw. He will not indulge in partisan oratory. But the elaborate preparations for the trip indicate that the White House regards it as one of the most important, perhaps decisive, ventures in the campaign. It may mean the winning or losing of the West for the Democrats.

SWELLING: You can best detect FDR's flair for mingling humanitarian and political instincts by a between-the-lines study of his recent allocation of funds for War Department surveys of projects in areas damaged by last spring's floods. No. G. O. P. critic dares to dispute the need for these expenditures, but the fact remains that they ought to win votes for Mr. Roosevelt where he needs them most.

He allotted $150,000 each to Boston and Providence—which happen to be centers of Democratic disaffection. He turned over $325,000 to south central New York—the so-called "Republican tier of counties" where Nominee Landon must roll up pa heavy vote if he is to carry the Empire State. The sum of $100,000 fell to Maryland, a pro-Landon state, and $200,000 was allocated to the Pittsburgh district in Pennsylvania. Los Angeles, where emigrants from Iowa and Kansas lean toward Landon or Dr. Townsend, got $75,000.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

NEW YORK political observers have an especially watchful eye on the farm vote. Trusted scouts are kept busy sounding out sentiment in the agricultural areas and especially among the leaders of the big farm groups. There's a growing conviction that agriculture holds the balance of power in the election. In the past week developments have been reported decidedly encouraging to Republican hopes.

For example, a high official of one of the largest and most influential farm organizations—a lifelong Democrat and ardent Roosevelt supporter in 1932—expressed himself forcefully to a friend as follows: "We were double-crossed at Philadelphia. We were led to believe that we could have anything we wanted—including a plank that would leave the door open to managed money—and all we got was dry bones and sawdust. Ed O'Neal and his Farm Bureau Federation may string with the New Deal because O'Neal and Wallace are buddies, but it's the only important farm outfit that will.

"Personally, I'm working my head off to get Roosevelt out of there, and plenty of my associates feel the same way about it. We just can't trust him."

OPEN-MINDED: On the other side, Landon has made an excellent impression on farm leaders. Several of them who were frankly skeptical about his understanding of their problems are now convinced—after personal conferences with the G. O. P. candidate—that he knows what it's all about.

One farm chief privately comments: "Funny thing about Landon. He doesn't try to make you think he's a big shot. On the contrary, he goes out of his way to impress it on you that he's just an average fellow—or even sub-average. And yet you come away feeling that he has a real grasp of economic fundamentals and that he means what he says. I thought at first the G. O. P. had picked a lemon, but I certainly have changed my mind since I had an opportunity to chat with him."

Curiously, although Landon has not offered them any specific encouragement, managed money advocates among the farm leaders are convinced that they have a better chance of getting somewhere with him than with Roosevelt. They get the impression that the Kansan is genuinely open minded on questions of monetary policy, whereas FDR is definitely and permanently opposed to their pet remedy for agricultural ailments.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN, No. 8

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Little Nkima looked down upon Tarzan's still form and whimpered miserably: "Tarzan is dead!" New and terrible fears crowded his small brain. Who now would protect Nkima from savage jungle beasts and cruel men? In all the world, Tarzan was Nkima's greatest friend. Now Tarzan was dead! . . .

. . . The dawn-light danced among the tree tops above the grass-thatched huts of the village of Tumbai. Orando, dauntless warrior and mighty hunter, stood with hands outstretched in supplication to his musimo, the spirit of the long-dead ancestor for whom he had been named.

"Bring the animals near to me," he pleaded, "and ward off all danger, O Muzimo." Then Orando set out for the hunt. He followed a familiar trail, now made unrecognizable and almost impassable by the fury of the storm. Several times he was forced to make detours into the heavy underbrush.

It was upon such an occasion that his attention was caught by the sight of a human leg protruding from beneath the foliage of a newly uprooted tree. He recognized the bronzed flesh as that of a white man, and he knew no white man as a friend. The foliage moved. Orando raised his spear!

New York Curb Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—Late selling jolted the stock market into an irregular close today after a number of industrial specialties had put up an earlier show of strength.

Brokers said the failure of good gains in a number of leaders to stimulate broader demand had discouraged traders and paved the way for increased offerings.

When offerings finally appeared only a handful of shares remained on the downturn. Among them were Gulf States Steel which closed up 4¾ at 58, Eastman Kodak up 3 at 160 and Wright Aeronautical up 4 at 95. The latter had the stimulus of a war department order for 150 engines.

American Telephone gained more than 3 points but eased to close 1¾ higher at 175½. Others which proved sensitive to profit taking were U. S. Steel, off ⅝, at 64½; Bethlehem, down ⅞ at 54¾ and Chevrolet, down 1⅞ at 119.

General Motors gained ⅝ to 82¾. After the close the corporation declared an extra dividend of 75 cents in addition to the regular rate of 50 cents.

The most active issue on the board was Continental Motors which rose ⅛ to 3⅛ on receipt of an order for 1,000 aviation engines.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Cotton dipped a few points today in quiet dealings. Hedge selling was the main feature factor.

The speculative support which has sustained prices during recent sessions was absent today. Professionals have deserted the ring until after the first crop estimate of the government on Saturday.

With "guesses" on the new crop ranging from 12,000,000 bales to 13,000,000 bales, operators evidently believed the only safe place over the week-end was out of the market.

A little new selling, reportedly for speculative account, appeared in the early dealings when prices were under the 12-cents a pound level as Oct. sold off to 11.87. Dec. touched 11.90 and May 11.97. They recovered partially in late trading and Oct. closed 3 points lower at 12.04 and Jan. ended 6 lower at 12.00.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today with prices sagging off under scattered selling.

December touched to 12.020 but met a little more trade buying at that figure and closed at 12.02. Spot, the (report) market steady at net declines of 7 to 9 points.

The opening was unchanged to 3 points lower and prices moved fractionally declines after the call under hedging and liquidation. The latter was attributed to the recent trend toward increased estimates of the crop.

Offerings tapered off following declines of 17 to 18 points from yesterday's close. The figures and last prices showed rallies of 6 to 9 points from the lowest on covering and a moderate demand from the trade.

Private crop estimates issued during the day ranged from 11,736,000 up to 12,700,000 bales.

Reports for the day and prompt interior receipts 8,500. U. S. port stocks 1,301,217.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten designated spot markets was 12.50 cents a pound.

MAN FOUND HANGED

LAREDO, Aug. 3. (AP)—The lifeless body of Patrocino Castillo, 35, was found hanging from a water pipe, a belt around the neck, in the city jail of Nuevo Laredo, Mex., last night.

His death was learned 45 minutes after he had been arrested on complaint of a woman who said he had attempted to kill her.

CAR KILLS PEDESTRIAN

LAREDO, Aug. 3. (AP)—An automobile struck two pedestrians here last night, killing Juan Rodrigues, 27, and injuring critically Espiridon Soto.

Kurt Zippert was charged with negligent homicide.

Livestock

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Aug. 3. (AP)—(USDA)—Hogs 600; top 10.35 to small killers, 10.25 to packers; bulk better grades 180@280 lb. weights 10.25@10.35; 150@175 lb. average 9.50@10.20, good packing sows largely 8.500 to packers; few smooth lightweights up to 9.00 to small killers.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. (AP)—Increasingly sensational adverse crop conditions on both sides of the Atlantic, with a market crisis probable in filling September corn contracts, skyrocketed grain values anew today.

Corn in Chicago soared 3¾ cents a bushel and wheat at Winnipeg 4 cents.

Despite immense selling to realize profits, corn closed buoyant 1 cent to 3¾ above Saturday's finish. Sept. 1.09¾@1.09¾. Dec. 95¾@99. May 97½@97¾, wheat 4@4½ up. Sept. 1.13½@1.13⅝. Dec. 1.14¼@1.14⅝. which, by fair means or foul, have prevented their employees from organizing according to their own wishes."

Is A "Practical" One

"It is indeed fortunate that if Governor Landon is a progressive at all, he is a 'practical' one. Who can doubt that it takes the highest degree of practicality to drive a four-in-hand made up of William Randolph Hearst, William Allen White, Gifford Pinchot and a DuPont selected at random."

Ickes dwelt at length upon the speech he attributed to Landon at the 1933 oil conference. After asserting that the Kansas governor now "pretends to see in President Roosevelt a potential dictator," he quoted Landon as saying in 1933:

"... Even the iron hand of a national dictator is preferable to a paralytic stroke."

"No one thought to ask Governor Landon whom he had in mind when he referred to a 'paralytic stroke' but I suspect that it was the general belief that he meant Mr. Herbert Hoover."

named Hensley some money. He said Hensley had requested payment and he had told him he would pay him as soon as he received his wages.

Later, Grafft continued, Hensley came to his (Grafft's) tourist camp cabin with Etter, whom he did not know. Another conversation regarding the debt ensued, Grafft said, and Hensley called Etter to join the talk.

"You're going to pay him now," Grafft quoted the officer as saying.

"I told him that I had always paid by debts and that I did not need anybody butting into my damn business," Grafft said. "He came closer then—close enough for me to hit him."

Grafft said he did not know what became of Hensley during the fight.

Miller said J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of Universal Pictures' board of directors, telephoned from New York he would be in Austin Friday. He said the contract would be signed in the office of Gov. James V. Allred.

Miss Jarratt was born in Jacksonville, educated in San Antonio, and became a professional photographer's model in New York. She is 22 years old, blonde and weighs 110 pounds.

Tip-Top Wins

run came in.

Big Lefty Goes In

There were two scoreless innings then, Amherst having never threatened as Webster continued to play 'em close.

Leading 3 to 0 after four innings, hot as a double barreled six-shooter, the Tip-Toppers than had to face the offerings of the "Great Lefty" Hambright, the team captain and master mind and certainly the most imposing figure in the tournament. Says Lefty to himself and the Amherst mates: I'll just have to go in there and cool that bunch off. I guess."

And Hambright, who had pitched nearly every day, went in there. He struck out Henderson, walked Bull Thompson, then struck out Crites and Chuck Webster.

He came back in the sixth and struck out Payne, Galey and Demp Webster in order. Then he left, with "Well, I guess that'll hold 'em. Now you go in there, John Bradley, and keep it up." Besides, he had a sore arm.

But it didn't hold the Tip-Toppers. As soon as Bradley came in, they started swinging again, and they got in scoring position in the seventh. They didn't score then, but by now they were one run behind. Amherst having reached out for four runs in the seventh. But in the eighth, Crites got himself hit, and Chuck Webster walked. Payne grounded to short, and Crites was forced at third. Then big Hershel Galey, who had been waiting for such an opportunity but who had not hit very loud in the tournament, strode up, took a mighty poke, and the ball rolled to the right field boards, barely inside the foul line. It scored Webster and Payne with the tying and winning runs. Demp Webster struck out and Carr grounded to first. Aldridge, first baseman, came in to relieve Bradley after Galey's double. He pitched about ball for the next five outs.

Amherst made its rally when Sam Harmon led off in the last of the seventh with a double. Bill Weaver singled to score him, and Weaver advanced on a passed ball. Bennett walked, was later nailed at second trying to steal. Steffy, playing right field, grounded to second. George Harmon struck out as Webster seemed to regain his poise, but Daddy Gee, probably the most important man in the tournament, came up then and lashed a long one to right which cleared the fence on the first bounce for a home run, clearing the bases. Aldridge singled, but Dixon was retired on a grounder to third to end the inning and Amherst's scoring.

A Close Finish

There were critical minutes in the last half of the ninth, when Amherst came up for its final gesture.

Bennett grounded out, but Steffy walked. George Harmon singled, a Texas leaguer over third, which Crites could not reach, and Steffy went to third with the tying run, and one out. Tip-Top hopes faded again, because Daddy Gee was coming up. But Webster served him a southpaw curve, and Gee hoisted it high to Carr at short. That relieved the tension, but the winning, as well as the tying run was on base. Aldridge looked over three balls and a strike, cut mightily at the second strike. Then he blasted a mighty wallop to left. But Crites was there to sack it, and the ball game and the tournament passed into some of the most noted baseball pages of history in the South Plains.

Amherst was far and away the classiest team of the tournament, although it was weak in the hitting department when hits meant most. It coasted through the first game yesterday, running up a three-run lead before the Tip-Toppers scored in the fifth. The game had everything in baseball, squeeze plays, double plays, numerous errors, extra base hits, etc. The Tip-Toppers hung tight to give Bull Thompson lots of support, but they also failed him in crucial moments. Amherst did not earn but two of its runs, errors around second base accounting for most of the other tallies.

Anton Is Third

Amherst scored four times in the fifth, again in the sixth, and added two more in the seventh. Lubbock made two in the seventh, but the club which eliminated four teams in the tournament, including the defending champions, Sled Allen's Lubbock Hubbers, were gone to town, and they seemed pretty sure to keep up the good work.

It didn't work out that way.

Anton, which handed the Hubbers their first defeat and which in turn were defeated Sunday by the lusty Tip-Toppers, finished third in the tournament.

The prize money triples that of any previous tournament, and tournament officials called by far the largest and most enthusiastic joust in Lubbock's history. On both Sundays, the park was jammed far past its seating capacity, although extra bleachers were brought in.

He also discussed agricultural affairs with Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

Between conferences, Landon urged Kansas businessmen, in a radio talk, to "work out practical plans" for cooperating with farmers in saving livestock.

cation took the position that Calvert's estimate was low by around $1,000,000 or possibly $2,000,000. It expressed the hope the property levy would not be boosted above 20 cents.

Three On Board

The tax board consists of Governor Allred, Comptroller George H. Sheppard and State Treasurer Charley Lockhart.

Anderson, adviser of the governor on tax measures, and Lockhart said they did not believe an increase in the school tax rate would be necessary. Sheppard said he hoped the board could avoid an increase.

Representatives of certain property taxpayers groups have contended the board is required only to levy a tax sufficient to pay a per capita apportionment of $17.50. The board may discuss that contention.

Another was the admission by one of Dr. Thorpe's attorneys, A. P. M. Narlian, that John Barrymore, great lover of the movies, would be subpoenaed.

Still a third was a fruitless effort to introduce parts of Miss Astor's diary in evidence, with the climaxed coming in the declaration that the other parts of it, at this time, are missing.

Except for ten minutes, Miss Astor was on the stand all day.

She said she permitted Dr. Thorpe to obtain the divorce by default "because he said that unless I allowed him to get the divorce, the custody of the child, and disposition of our community property, he would scandalize me. While troops massed in the northern area for what promised to be major battles tomorrow, smaller rebel forces left to maintain positions in the mountains claimed capture of Guadarrama City and Navalperal.

Another War Is Looming

All Of Europe Is In Fear Of Another Great Conflict As Suspicions And Hatreds Are Showing Increase

lovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia solemnly have warned that an attempt at restoration would mean instant mobilization of their fighting forces.

Rome—Italy has set the wheels of her cart of state on the road to war. Said Benito Mussolini: "Italy's economic plan is dominated by a premise—the inescapability of the fact that the nation will be called to the tasks of war."

Count Friends And Foes

Paris—War dangers in Europe's shifting balance of power are driving nations to count their friends and foes while trying to put off the day of conflict.

The French consider deliberate war out of the question for an indefinite period. France wants to avoid war, they say, and Great Britain is unprepared for it.

Il Duce Eager To Fight

Hitler is not yet ready to unleash Germanys new forces, it is said, and Mussolini is eager for a fight while Italy is pacifying and developing Ethiopia.

Fears of the future, however, are widely expressed in responsible French quarters.

They are alarmed lest Europe's numerous nations with their conflicting interests slide into two dangerous camps—one headed by Germany and Italy and the other by Great Britain and France.

Two Camps Suggested

Here is how the French suggest the two European camps might line up Eventually:

Germany	Great Britain
Japan	France
Italy	Russia
Austria	Belgium
Hungary	Czechoslovakia
Poland	Yugoslavia
Bulgaria	Rumania
	Turkey

Berlin—Diplomatic observers say Adolf Hitler, dictator of Germany, wants today:

1. To impress the world with Germany's peaceful intentions.
2. The Olympic games, it is asserted, are to "sell" Germany's pacifism to the world.
3. To fill the world with awe at communist designs, and with contempt for the jew.
4. To rid Germany of the scourge of unemployment.
5. To fan the flames of nationalism to fever heat.

Anti-Trust Charges

Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, was a partial one delivered to the court July 28 and not made public until today.

To Resume Investigation

The jury meantime has recessed until August 19 when Boyle said the investigation would be resumed.

Previous to the July 28 recess the jury had returned another indictment against William A. Tracy, of Fort Worth, Tex bulk sales manager of the Sinclair Refining company, charging perjury.

Prices Manipulated

Boyle said that the 84 defendants were named in a single true bill charging that gasoline prices were manipulated by means of two concerted buying programs or pools, one operating in the East Texas and the other in Oklahoma and the nearby Mid-Continent fields.

The indictment charges, Boyle said, that the defendant companies acted in concert to purchase large quantities of gasoline in spot transactions from independent refiners at artifical prices which are maintained as going market prices.

More Tests To Be Sent Down

At Least Five New Locations Are To Be Made In Yoakum, Hockley, Cochran Counties By Major Companies

Following two oil showings in Yoakum and Gaines counties last week, centering interest of oil scouts, geologists and production officials of major companies in these areas of the Permian basin, has come reports in oil circles of at least five new locations.

One new test was spudded in Sunday, in Hockley county. Another test in Cochran, awaiting new equipment, is expected to start with standard equipment this week and digging of cellar and slush pit is the operation in another test, in Terry county.

Two More Tests Planned

Yoakum county is to have two tests, offsets to the Bennett ranch test of Cascade-Honolulu. Three offsets are planned for Gaines. Garza county is again in the limelight, with one producer and another expected nearing the pay.

Grisham & Hunter have acidized their No. 2 Double U or Post estate test and it is producing about 34 barrels daily. Bottom was 2,796 feet, or about 16 feet lower than the No. 1 M. L. Richards. The new producer is in section 3, block 5 K. A. Cox survey.

Drilling In Hard Lime

M. L. Richards No. 2 Post estate was reported drilling below 3,000 feet, in hard lime. The hard lime was topped at 2,590 feet. It is in section 1232, block K. A. Cox survey.

Two Lubbock men, E. L. Klett and George R. Bean, are interested in a proposed test that Landreth Production corporation plan for section 18, block A-21, Gaines county, south of Seminole.

In Seminole it was reported that Amerada would drill a test on the 40 acres in which the Walsh and Adams No. 1 S. L. Averitt, a 12,500,000 foot gasser is located. It is in section 228, block G. W. T. Ry., survey, and is 230 feet out of the northeast corner.

To Start Drilling

On the section about six miles south of Seminole, owned by Carrol Cobb of Seminole, Landreth Production corporation is to begin drilling. It is in section 20, block A-21, public school lands. Report was operations were to start by the last of the month.

Two offsets to the L. P. Bennett No. 1, in Yoakum county, in section 678, block D, John H. Gibson survey, are to be made soon. No indication was given of the probable direction. One location is expected to be announced within a short time. Other locations are pending.

Decision was made following reports of geophysical tests that have been made during the past six or eight weeks on the Bennett ranch.

Well Spudded In

The Texas company's No. 1 Bob Slaughter, in Hockley county, southwest of Levelland, was spudded in Sunday afternoon. C. J. (Red) Davidson, Fort Worth driller, moved in his rotary outfit from the Tom Duggan, et al test, nine miles southwest of Whiteface in Cochran county. The location is 725 feet from the south line and 666 feet from the west line of labor 83, league 38, Zavella county school lands. The spudding took place at 3:15 o'clock said W. P. Soash, agent for Mr. Slaughter.

A new engine was to have been taken to the Cascade-Honolulu No. 1 Duggan, et al, in Cochran county, Saturday. As soon as it was installed, drilling is to be resumed with a standard rig. The location is in the center of labor 13, league 55, Oldham county school land. Bottom was reported as 2,297 feet.

Digging Is Started

Digging of cellar and slush pits was started late last week on the Ray Brownfield ranch test in western Terry county. Derrick is being erected and C. J. (Red) Davidson, driller, expects to spud in shortly. The test is in the center of the north half of section 54, block K. P. S. L. survey. Uncan Oil company has the contract and the test will be its No. 1 Brownfield.

Bahan, Rhodes and Fitzpatrick No. 1 Henard, which struck oil Saturday, was reported drilling below 5,293 feet, in lime.

Last report from the Humble Oil and Refining No. 1 C. H. Eubanks, in Gaines county, was that it was coring ahead at 4,850 feet.

Fishing for a bailer was the job in the W. H. Kirk of Landreth Production, in Gaines county. The producer is to be shot when sulphur water is definitely cut off. It was bottomed at 4,870 feet and plugged back to 4,855 feet. It is located in section 22, block A-21. The Eubanks is in section 6, block A-X.

Deadline Set On Payments

Subsidy Payments Should Be Applied For By August 15, County Agent C. C. Jobson Announces Monday

Cotton producers of Lubbock county who have not made application for their subsidy payments for the 1935 crop, have only until August 15 to make their application, C. C. Jobson, county agent, said last night.

"Those who have cotton in the government pool may now apply, but it will be necessary for us to know the number of pounds of lint they have in the government pool," said Mr. Jobson.

"Many farmers apparently believe that by turning in their slips, they would get their subsidy payments. They must make application for the payment. Many buyers turned in to us slips for their customers. This is not enough; producers must make application."

Lubbock county probably has between 400 and 500 farmers who have not made an application for subsidy payment. More than 2,000 have done so, the agent added.

Why Gulf is the Gas for August

"C'MON IN, FELLAS, and cool off!" Most days are hot in August. Gasoline must be refined specially for this weather. If it isn't, part of the fuel goes out the exhaust unburned, wasted . . . and you don't get the mileage you should. Use That Good Gulf Gasoline in August. It's refinery-adjusted for summer weather—"Kept in Step with the Calendar"—all of it goes to work, none of it goes to waste.

Aimee's Income Is Placed At $30,000

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 3. (AP) Aimee Semple McPherson's 1935 income from church organizations was more than $30,000, Attorney Joseph Painer said today.

The lawyer declared details of the Evangelist's finances were obtained by him in a series of depositions intended for use in Vivian Denton's $500,000 slander suit against Mrs. McPherson.

The case comes to trial Aug. 31. Mrs. McPherson has denied the charges of the former Angelus Temple publicity agent. Painer is Miss Denton's attorney.

Miss Denton charged the evangelist called her opprobrious names when she was dismissed from her temple job.
