Heavy Rains Drench Area

Heavy rains drenched Scurry County and some neighboring areas over the weekend as turbulent weather built up over much of Northwest Texas.

Snyder's official gauge at the city water plant measured 4.75 inches of rain, the biggest rain to fall in some five years.

The steady downpour Saturday night and early Sunday brought to memory another August rain back in 1972 which put Deep Creek on a record rise and flooded much of Snyder. However, the runoff from the weekend rains this time was considerably less than that of Aug. 13, 1972.

In fact, where some of the highest measurements were recorded this time, stock tanks were not even filled to capacity.

The rain reports over Scurry County ranged from around three inches to more than five inches.

Drew Bullard reported four inches 12 miles west of Snyder on the Bullard Ranch, but said most of it soaked into the ground. Stock tanks, which were depleted, caught some water, but were far from over-flowing.

Lake J.B. Thomas had three inches of rain at the dam, but the elevation of the lake had increased by only half a foot this morning. There was a trickle still flowing into the lake from the Colorado River, said O.H. Ivie, manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Among the heaviest rains reported were those in the Ira community. A report of 5.3 inches came from the Leon Sterling Farm.

Hermleigh had 3½ to 4 inches, and it was the same at Fluvanna, where crops had been suffering from lack of moisture.

A total of 3.75 inches was reported at the Carl Williams place on the Camp Springs Road east of town.

Rains returned to the Panhandle and South Plains last night, but these did not reach the Snyder area. Forecasts called for

Plot To Steal Presley's Body Is Disclosed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)-Four men were arrested for investigation of attempted burglary today near the cemetery where Elvis Presley is entombed. A newspaper said they were carrying explosives and apparently wanted to steal the rock 'n' roll singer's body.

Deputy Police Chief John Molnar declined to comment on the report in the Memphis Commercial Appeal that the men carried explosives and were planning to blow a hole in the mausoleum where Presley is buried. The newspaper said the quantity of explosives appeared insufficient to carry out the job.

"All we can give you at this time," said Molnar, "is that four parties were arrested at about 12:21 a.m. on Elvis Presley Boulevard near the Forest Hills Cemetery. All I can say is for attempted burglary. They are under investigation by the homicide squad."

Molnar said that as far as he knew, no extortion threats had been made. He would not explain why the homicide squad was given the case.

Asked whether the arrests had to do with Presley's grave, Molnar said, "Apparently so. It is in connection with the cemetery."

Presley, who was 42, was entombed Aug. 18 in a mausoleum at the suburban Memphis cemetery, two days after his death at his home, Graceland Mansion.

Molnar told a radio station that three men were arrested in a car outside the cemetery gates and that the fourth was arrested at the Baptist Hospital emergency room where he had gone to have a twisted ankle treated. He said the man was injured while attempting to elude police.

No Canal Protest

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)-A six-man committee of the Southern Governors conference refused today to send an anti-Panama Canal treaty to the conference body for a vote.

The vote was 3-3 which killed the resolution offered by Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards.

However, Edwards said he would attempt later to get a feeling from the 12 governors attending the conference on the controversial issue by making a motion to disregard the committee action and debate the resolution anyway. He said it would take a three-fourths vote and he had no hopes of winning.

"But we will get all the governors feelings on the matter," he said.

Carter, Lance Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)-Bert Lance, accused by a U.S. senator of lacking the qualifications to be budget director, met with President Carter today to discuss a budget matter: how much the government can afford to pay its employes.

Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, and two other top administration advisers conferred with the President at the White House about a recommendation to budget a 7 per cent raise in civil service salaries.

One of the advisers, Chairman Alan Campbell of the Civil Service Commission, said Carter was inclined to approve the recommendation. The President has until Wednesday to decide whether to reject it and send an alternative recommendation to Congress.

Young In Session

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)-Ambassador Andrew Young and British Foreign Secretary David Owen met for four hours this morning with Prime Minister John Vorster in their search for a peaceful settlement in Rhodesia, then scheduled another session for later today.

A British spokesman also said the two envoys' scheduled departure for Kenya Tuesday might be delayed.

Observers here took the announcement of a second round of talks and possible delayed departure as an indication the talks were not going smoothly.

Nude Aide Nabbed

NEW YORK (AP)-An aide to Vice President Walter Mondale has been arrested on a charge of sunbathing in the nude on a remote Southampton beach, the New York Post reported today.

Deborah Sale, 29, who works as an advance person on Mondale's staff, was arrested nine days ago as part of the resort community's crackdown on skinny dipping. The incident came to light in a check of arrest records, the Post reported.

Students At WTC Get ID Cards

ID cards and parking permits will be issued to students who pre-registered at Western Texas College today and tomorrow in the Christian Student Center.

Students are to bring the receipt they were issued when they paid fees at pre-registration, Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, said. This receipt is to be presented before ID cards are given.

Students should come prepared to have pictures made for the yearbook. Packets of pictures will be available for sale later for those who wish to purchase them.

New Bills Go Into Effect

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-Things will be different after today for voters, drivers, hotel patrons who want a bar-mixed drink in their rooms, motorcyclists and even condemned murderers.

Dozens of new laws passed by the 65th legislature took effect today, and several deal head-on with human life and death.

One legalizes manufacture and possession of Laetrile, the apricot pit deriviative promoted as a cancer cure. Another retires the Huntsville State Prison electric chair. In the future, condemned persons will be put to death with lethal injections.

The State Health Department said last week it has received inquiries about making Laetrile, but has had no applications to begin its manufacture.

"Living will" legislation also took effect today. Texans can leave directions in writing not to prolong their lives artificially if they become hopelessly ill or injured.

Doctors can follow the instructions without risking criminal charges or lawsuits, and dependents are assured that life insurance will not be impaired if life-sustaining measures are abandoned.

Hemophiliacs and their families received new hope of life with less worry through passage of a bill creating a state program to help them meet the crushing expenses of blood, blood deriviatives and drugs. Only $75,000 a year was appropriated, but similar programs have grown rapidly, such as aid to kidney patients, which now totals about $6 million a year.

On a less serious note, hotels and motels could sell mixed drinks through room service today for the first time.

And it was also the day mortorcyclists 18 and over could leave their crash helmets home if they wanted to risk riding without them. Younger riders, however, still must wear the protective headgear.

Voters with kids 10 and younger now can take them legally into voting booths with them. And when they cast paper ballots, voters no longer are required to sign the stub.

A new voter registration law took effect today. It will purge from the rolls all whose registration cards are returned by the post office, requiring them to re-register.

Sales of newspapers and subscriptions to Texas magazines are no longer subject to taxation.

City councils can boost their revenue by increasing hotel occupancy taxes from three to four per cent.

A major new law that took effect today but whose impact will not be seen for a couple of years is the Sunset Act, which will terminate state agencies that are not renewed by the legislature.

Twenty-five agencies will go out of existence in 1979 unless their lives are extended by the lawmakers. They range from the obscure Texas Navy, Inc., to the State Bar of Texas.

New laws also affect every Texas who owns or

Priscilla Tells Of Dissolving Affair

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)-Prosecution witness Priscilla Davis testified today she dissolved her "meaningful" relationship with ex-boyfriend W.T. Rufner without rancor or bitterness.

The socialite said under cross-examiniation by defense attorney Richard Haynes she and Rufner agreed at Christmas 1974 to begin dating other people.

"It was a mutual agreement," she testified as the second week of testimony began in the capital murder trial of her estranged husband, Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

Mrs. Davis, 36, launching her fifth day of withering cross examination, said she did continue seeing Rufner socially until May 1975 and travelled to Houston and Southern California with him.

She testified previously her "meaningful" relationship with Rufner did not occur until after she and Davis separated in July 1974.

Davis is on trial in the slaying last summer of his stepdaughter Andrea Willborn, 12, one of two killing during a midnight shooting spree at the Davis mansion in Fort Worth.

County Budget Hearing Set

The Scurry County Commissioners Court this morning set Monday, Sept. 12, as the date for a public hearing on the proposed county budget for 1978.

At their session this morning, commissioners were going over bills and later in the day were to meet with Louis Vaughan, county sanitarian to discuss mosquito control problems.

game of high stakes

Possibility that seeming diplomatic gains for one adminstration may turn out to be baffling problems for succeeding administrations was never so apparent as in the current efforts to move toward establishing normal diplomatic relations between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger were pressing for an agreement, hoping to get something accomplished before the end of Nixon's second term as President. Watergate put an end to that hope. Gerald Ford took up where Nixon was compelled to leave off. But Ford and Kissinger couldn't get the job done before the general election of 1976 changed their status to that of private citizens.

The heat is on again. Carter and Vance are moving with what appears to some as undue haste to succeed where Nixon, Ford and Kissinger failed. Official U.S. objectives are the same. The same can be said concerning the official position of the Peking regime. Changes in top leadership there haven't altered objectives or lowered the asking price of an agreement.

Cancellation of U.S. recognition of the Nationalist China government, exiled in Taiwan when Communist advances made its stay on the mainland no longer possible, must precede exchange of ambassadors and beginning of normal diplomatic relations. The little made public concerning details of negotiations during Secretary Vance's visit leaves no doubt that the obstacle to complete understanding between the two nations remains unchanged.

It would be helpful in evaluating the larger situation if it is kept in mind that the real issue is national credibility. Cancellation, or modification, of U.S. commitment to defend the independence of Taiwan would give to World Communism its greatest diplomatic victory since it seized control of Russia and became the dominant power in both Europe and Asia.

U.S. allies around the world would be forced to reassess their status. Japan would be surrounded by unfriendly neighbors, assuming the Carter Administration goes through with plans to eliminate U.S. military presence in Korea.

U.S. depandability as an ally is at stake, and once damaged or destroyed, repair or restoration could be accomplished only at great cost in this nuclear age.

a matter of taste

For reasons best left to speculation, officials at the Agriculture Department in Washington have named their new grill after Alred E. Packer, the Colorado mountain guide convicted of killing and eating five prospectors in 1874.

Several of them went so far as to chip in a few dollars apiece so that a $29 plaque could be purchased in his memory.

Predictably, the building manager took down the plaque because he thought it might be in "bad taste," which shows how out of touch with popular sentiment building managers can be.

In fact, Packer (who was sentenced to hang, but never did) is a folk hero in Colorado, where he spent his declining days handing out candy to small children in the Denver suburb of Littleton.

It seems to us that the $29 plaque should be put back up so that Packer's ghost - which is likely to be sensitive about such things - can go back to Littleton and rest in peace.

The SDN thanks Mrs. Aliene Parks, Dr. Duane Hood, Mike McBride and the WTC administration for their assistance in publishing the first back to WTC guide (published in Sunday's SDN).

Also, we thank the advertisers who made the new tabloid possible. We plan to expand the publication, if sufficient advertisers can be located, next summer to give WTC's 1,300 students and its new faculty members and new staffers not only a look at WTC but a more detailed look at the community of Snyder.

Publications of this kind have proven effective, from an advertiser's point of view, in college or university towns such as Lubbock, San Angelo and San Marcos in bringing students and merchants together. Many times students do not shop in their "college hometowns" because they are not aware of the merchants' products, locations or services. Many times they make special trips "home" on Saturday to shop for a particular brand of cosmetic or particular brand of shoes or boots because they were not aware that a store -- downtown -- in their college town had the same product or service.

If college students shop once in a college town store, or restaurant or repair shop they tend to be repeat customers. It's that first visit that is the toughest nut to crack -- from the merchandiser's point of view. If the college student knows you have a good product or service, he'll come see you.

High school football is back. The Snyder High Tigers take to the field in Tiger Stadium Friday night against Monahans. SDN sports editor Bill McClellan says he's ready.

Around the area, Borden County opens in Roby. The Hermleigh Cardinals host Grady and the Ira Bulldogs welcome Devine.

The 3-B (six-man) district race will be covered closely this season by the SDN. Look for coverage with photos, statistics and quotes from the coaches of Scurry Counties County's three 3-B teams--Hobbs, Hermleigh and Ira.

And Borden County we have not forgotten you. We'll be out to Gail to cover several games this Fall. We'll be there for Homecoming for sure. The Coyotes, although in only their second year in 11-man ball, are expected to win the 3-B zone championship, easily.

This year the SDN will name an outstanding Tiger each week and an outstanding area class B player each week. Look for them each Wednesday.

Wednesday is the kick-off for the SDN's annual football contest. The mid-week SDN lists the games. You pick the winners and mail your predictions. We give cash to the best prognosticators.

Whether or not area high school teams are ready to play Friday night will not be known until Saturday morning, but one aspect of the game--the playing field--should be ready. The 5-plus inches of rain this past week-end around the county should provide the natural turfed playing fields with excellent foliage for Friday night games. By the end of October they'll be rock hard and virtually barren between the 30-yard lines.

That deluge Saturday night brought back memories of an inundated downtown Snyder and an island known as the "Square" in August, 1972. But the dirt work on Deep Creek's water shed proved its worth--but of course the rainfall was not nearly as much as fell that eventful Sunday afternoon. When we crossed the Colorado River tributary Sunday morning it was not even above the 28th Street culverts.

Several Snyder merchants were in Dallas over the week-end at "market." Another group goes this upcoming week-end.

The bargain hunters' "find" this week will certainly be at Snyder Athletic Center. Rather than move it, Milton Ham has made substantial price reductions on his stock in anticipation of moving to the athletic center's new building.

Around town...Farm and Ranch Western Wear opens this week. J.R. Robin says they should be ready "bout Thursday". Look for an ad in Wednesday's SDN.

Pam West opens the Curiosity Shop next to the Sunshine Shoppe in Snyder Shopping Center Thursday. She says she is doubling floor space, compared to Cogdell Center location, and adding more stock.

Workers spent the week-end painting at Everybody's Thriftway. Manager Thom Moore also pointed out that the check-out stands were renovated.

Martin Brooks, President of West Texas State Bank, said customers should enter the bank from the east door on College Avenue. The bank is about halfway through its remodeling project.

Sunshine Shoppe has a new salad bar opening today.

Teal Carpets will stage its grand opening next week. Ken's Pizza Parlor assistant manager Robert White (we won't mention the accident) says Ken's has finalized property acquisition in Colorado City and construction of Ken's new parlor will begin in Colorado City shortly.

Robert will manage the C-City (that's short for Colorado City to save space) parlor.

More and more C-City shoppers are frequenting Snyder business. The new shopping center should attract even more regional" shoppers.

"The public's response in Snyder has exceeded even our most optimistic expectations," Charles Beil, president of First Federal Savings and Loan, told SDN advertising director Dan Ellington last week.

"Our deposits are running far above expectations. We had our formal opening in Snyder in a cold downpour and more than 600 people turned out. We were extremely pleased. And we see nothing but continued growth." Beil continued "for Snyder and First Federal in Snyder in the years to come."

Beil also said that First Federal--which opened in Big Spring in the 1930's and in Snyder last January--is opening in the near future in Midland and Odessa. The Big Spring-based savings and loan now has deposits totaling more than $55 million.

Manager of the Snyder office is Brenda Hedges.

Terry Holt, Holt Music Company, was adding selections of one PARTICULAR artist to his juke boxes around town last week. Who? Who else--Elvis. The box at Ken's Pizza received three Elvis records. Will someone please lend John Long a quarter?

The American Restaurant Petroleum Club says its Jimmy Bishop sizzles the best steaks in Snyder and we must agree. One of the ad bunch devoured a mammoth T-bone there last week and reports that it was the best steak he had ever eaten in Snyder. "I ordered it medium-well and that's the way it was cooked," he added, "it didn't bellow when I cut it."

looking for smoke

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)-Some Wall Streeters yelled fire last week and now everyone is sniffing for smoke.

The word used wasn't really fire-it was recession-but the effect of using that word anywhere in the securities trading network is the equivalent of shouting fire in a crowded theater.

That is, the setting is similar-everyone lost in concentration on the big screen before them; and the reaction is predictable-some will bolt, others will file out orderly, and the rest will hang in until they see the flames.

There is no recession, and so there's a chance that some of those investors who bolted will come back. But for the next few months they and everyone else in the market are going to be sniffing for telltale scents.

Tucker, Anthony and R. L. Day Inc. wasn't the first brokerage house to use the feared word, but they probably shouted it with the greatest clarity and force, saying the economy "will be in a minirecession within six to nine months."

Predictably, the Dow Jones industrial average fell to its lowest in nearly 20 months as the word traveled through the securities grapevine, perhaps the speediest transmitter of bad news, rumors and sometimes of facts.

Others brokers too had been wondering about the chances of a recession; they always are, because even schoolboys know the economy goes up and it comes down, no matter what economists say or the government tries to do.

Most brokers, however, had reserved their judgments, at most intimating that serious investors would not overlook the possibility that such an occurrence might be out there in the future. They didn't yell fire. Some even continue to forecast a bull market.

The truth is that the economy does seem to have reached a peak in its rate of growth, but it is not headed downward. It still has momentum; it is still expanding, but at a slower pace than earlier this year.

Investors, of course, aren't concerned so much with the present as with the future. If they smell smoke they don't always hang around to see if flames verify the accuracy of their first sensual impressions.

It is for this reason that many forecasters are cautioning against extremes of thinging. They concede the signs but they argue that one sign should not be interpreted as a theological message. It may take many signs.

Are there many signs? A matter of semantics; there certainly are some:

Employment in July fell for the first time in nine months. The rate of industrial production was at its slowest of the year. Retail sales have been rather flat. Personal income gains aren't making people rich.

True, but looking back over the same measures you might choose to say that unemployment is gradually falling, that industrial production is still advancing, that retail sales haven't stopped growing altogether, and that personal income is still rising, although not at a heady pace.

Meanwhile, you can find many evidences of strength. Automobile sales remain strong, and Thomas Murphy, General Motors chairman, says they'll remain that way. And housing starts in July rose to a two million annual rate.

That suggests some people have money to spend and apparently are willing to spend it. And since the consumer makes up two-thirds of the Gross National Product, his and her views are probably as significant as those of any economic forecaster.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—If there is a bottom line to the whole Bert Lance affairs, it is that F. Scott Fitzgerald was right: The rich are indeed different from you and me.

That may not qualify as the century's most shocking disclosure, but it's not exactly the message which Jimmy Carter has tried so hard to convey about his administration.

And in embracing Lance so fervently, Carter may have jeopardized his own carefully cultivated political image as a man who shares the average American's anger at the special privilege of the wealthy.

It is a safe bet that precious few of the voters who cast their ballots for Jimmy Carter last year ever got away with the kind of financial hijinks that Budget Director Lance indulged in as a Georgia bank owner.

Most people who make a habit of kiting checks find themselves in hot water rather quickly. But not Bert Lance, whose campaign accounts while he was running for governor of Georgia were overdrawn as much as $152,000 between January and June of 1974 - without a nickel's penalty.

Just being related to Lance was good enough, in fact. His wife's account at one of his banks was overdrawn by $110,000 at one point, and nine of his relatives accumulated overdrafts "in the $200,000 to $450,000 range" during one seven-month period.

Borrowing huge sums of money was also a snap for banker Lance, who managed to wheedle millions of dollars in loans out of a whole slew of banks without putting up anything like full collateral.

There's nothing to it, apparently, if you own a bank yourself and can toss a little business in the direction of those lending you the money. Or if you are widely known to be a very close friend of the next president of the U.S.

The Comptroller of the Currency, after scrutinizing the record of Lance's conduct as a banker, concluded that none of the information uncovered "to date" warrants a criminal prosecution, although he carefully added that some allegations have yet to be thoroughly investigated.

There are, for instance, still questions about Lance's personal and political uses of airplanes owned or leased by his old bank, the National Bank of Georgia. And questions about the purpose of, and payment for, at least five trips which Carter himself took in bank aircraft.

But never mind the fine print. Lance, Carter and the White House cheerleaders have chosen to view the comptroller's report as a vindication of the budget director. The president himself rushed to Lance's side, crying, "Bert, I'm proud of you!"

There will be further developments, no doubt, when Congress returns from its August recess and at least three House and Senate committees start raking over any glowing coals in the comptroller's report.

But don't count on major fireworks from Capitol Hill. The principal investigating panel is the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, whose members last month tripped all over themselves in their haste to exonerate Lance of any wrongdoing- largely on the basis of his own denials.

These senators understand how the rich do business, as well they might. The committee members, after all, include a half dozen men who are either millionaires or close to it: Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.; ranking Republican Charles H. Percy of Illinois, John Danforth, R-Mo., John Glenn, D-Ohio, Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and H. Jonn Heinz III, R-Pa.

What Carter apparently refused to recognize, to his own political peril, is that ordinary Americans may not be quite as understanding as the congressional fat cats, nor as legalistic as the comptroller of the currency.

Bert Lance may not be a crook, but he sure isn't a commoner either. And Carter, by effusively praising his old friend's "honesty...competence... integrity," appears to be condoning what many believed he previously deplored: separate standards of conduct for the rich and the poor.

growing older

by harold blumenfeld

The number one killer in most industrial countries today is heart disease. And it is the one present or future ailment which causes more worry than any other to the aging population.

For the information is this column I am indebted to my golfing partner Dr. Benjamin Littman, who gave up a busy private practice in New York to study the coronary problems of the aging at Mount Sinai Hospital in Miami Beach, Fla. and the Miami Veterans Administration Hospital.

By this time we should understand the risk factors associated with coronary heart disease. These include heredity, aggressiveness, perfectionism and tension, cholesterol, obesity, inactivity and too much smoking. And we are constantly told what to do and what not to do to prevent and delay our own heart attack.

But those who have already been stricken by atherosclerosis are in a higher risk group to have another heart attack. Atherosclerosis is basically insufficient nourishment to the heart because of clogged coronary arteries. The heart becomes less efficient as a pump and this induces chest pain, disturbed rhythm, heart failure — and death. The cause probably is that the arteries are coated with plaque, which Doctor Littman compares to rust in a pipe.

There are billions of particles called platelets in the bloodstream. They drop out at a point of injury or bleeding and help form a clot, thus preventing bleeding to death. However, in a channel already narrowed by an atheromatous plaque, an additional clot could close off the artery and prevent nourishment to the heart muscles supplied by that artery and so bring on another heart attack.

Cardiovascular surgeons now provide new pathways for these clogged areas. But this is major surgery, a drastic and often necessary approach to prolong life. However, the surgery doesn't slow down the natural progression of arteriosclerosis.

People who have already had heart attacks are known to have plaque in the coronary arteries. Can they be protected from having their arteries become more clogged or will they be required to undergo surgery as a last resort to stay alive?

Man has produced many wonder drugs to overcome the ravages of disease — foxglove or digitalis for heart failure, quinine for malaria, morphine and its derivatives for relief of pain, diuretics for dropsy and penicillin and antibiotics to control infectious disease.

And now the National Heart and Lung Institute may have come up with another wonder drug which may prevent clogging on top of the existing plaque in the coronary artery, and prolong life for many.

The name of the new wonder drug is aspirin. The institute had started a nationwide program seeking 5,000 men and women under the age of 70 who have had their last myocardial infarction within the last five years, and who can normally tolerate aspirin. They will participate in a program to ascertain whether this common drug will actually prevent further heart attacks.

They will be given complete cardiological checkups, chemical profiles, electrocardiograms and chest X-rays three times a year. The results will be given to the person's own doctor so there will be no interference in the normal physician-patient relationship.

Who knows? Maybe that little white pill we've been taking for our headaches may also prove to be a life saver or a life extender for so many of us.

(If your local medical societies or personal physicians aren't aware of the program, further information can be obtained from the National Heart and Lung Institute at Bethesda, Maryland.)

Dance Chapter Awarded Charter

Ms. Elaine Lambert and her sister, Marilu Musgrove, returned last week from Atlantic City, N.J. where the National Convention of Dance Masters was held.

The climax of the eight day convention of study and meetings was the night of the Presidents reception when Ms. Lambert was presented the National Charter for a new chapter of Dance Master in West Texas known as "Lone Star State Chapter No. 35.

This fulfilled four years of effort on Ms. Lamberts part to get a charter. The other chapter known as South Texas Chapter had to give permission for the new chapter to be formed. The contacting of eligible, educated teachers in this area began. When seventeen such teachers took examinations in Ballet, Tap, Jazz, Acrobatics, Gymnastics, and Modern dance, the group applied for the charter. The seventeen teachers boast five B.A. degree teachers, three Masters degrees in Dance and one PHD in Dance Arts.

The opening of the new Chapter offers to member teachers and their students, workshops and conventions with instructors from the best teachers in the United States and abroad to come to this area and study.

Ms. Lambert has been a member of Dance Masters of America for twenty years. She served the Oklahoma Chapter No. 27 as president for two years. She has served on the National Board for six years. Ms. Musgrove has been a member for seven years. All instructors at the Lambert Studio are required to pass the examination to qualify to teach.

Officers for the new chapter are Elaine Lambert, president; Barbara Thompson of Lubbock, first vice president; Diana Baker of Lubbock, second vice president; LaVoil Parker of Lubbock, secretary; Pat Owens of Plainview treasurer; Patty Harper of Abilene, Minnie Wright of Roswell N.M., and Dian Simpson of Borger; directors.

Cable Car Idea Simple

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- It took him 20 years to convince Municipal Railway here his simple idea would save thousands of dollars, but cable car wire mechanic Al Eggen is being philosophical about it all.

He estimated that Eggen's idea would save the Muni about $100,000 a year, based on today's costs. It took only 12 hours recently to put it into effect at a cost of $3,400.

Eggen,63, wondered why two underground cables were needed to power the Powell-Mason Cable cars. He began doodling on paper and eventually devised a way one cable could do the job of two, eliminating 1,100 feet of cable, 40 pulleys and about 57 yearly splices.

Jim: "How about some articles on experts at their best and worst, with maybe a little emphasis on their mistakes."

Oswald: "I have a jim dandy for you. It is taken from the finals of the life master pairs of 1940. I sat North and my partner was one of the great players. He became declarer at six spades. West thought a long while and finally led the queen of clubs. As you can see, that lead gave him his contract on a silver platter. Yet, he refused to finesse against the jack of clubs, tried the heart finesse instead and went down one."

Jim: "Down one would not be a bottom. I assume most pairs were in six notrump or six spades. Without that queen of clubs lead or a heart lead against notrump by North, they all were down one."

Oswald: "That is just why my partner did not make the hand. He had noted West's long study before leading that queen of clubs and decided that it might well have been from queen-small. He also saw that after the spade finesse lost he would have lots of company at one down, if the heart queen was in the wrong place also. So down the expert went."

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader asks if the Stayman convention was invented in England in the early '30s.

We have seen no evidence to this effect. It is purely an American invention although numerous people other than Sam Stayman have claimed it.

It is a mighty good convention.

Chilympiad To Accept Fems

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP)-The steering committee of the Texas Chilympiad Chili Cook-Off has voted to erase its female ban by inviting Charlie's Angels of television fame to the cook-off next month.

There is precedent, however, for women to compete in the cook-off, the committee said. In 1975 it adopted a resolution to allow women over 100 to take part. Mrs. Genive Guiterrez, 117, of San Marcos accepted the challenge.

Workers In Carnival Wed

RHINEBECK, N.Y. (AP)-Carnival workers Linda Myer and William O'Dell Jr. got married, thanks to the Dutchess County Fair Board.

The couple said they planned all summer to marry but they were never in one place long enough to satisfy license requirements.

When fair officials heard of their problem, they got a local judge to waive the 10-day waiting time so they could be married Sunday.

About 700 fairgoers watched the ceremony in a talent tent. The horticultural division supplied flowers and the carnival's carillon supplied the music.

Sports In Summary

SWIMMING

BERLIN-The United States, with the men setting three world records, defeated East Germany 176-168 in a two-day swimming meet but by the narrowest spread in this series which started in 1971. Joe Bottom snatched away Mark Spitz' last world record, winning the 100-meter butterfly; Brian Goddell bettered his own mark in the 400-meter freestyle, and the 400-meter freestyle relay team won in a sizzling 3:21.11, surpassing the former world mark set by Americans in Cali, Colombia, in 1975, by more than three seconds.

WORLD UNIVERSITY GAMES

SOFIA, Bulgaria - Sid Moncrief of Arkansas scored 16 points to lead the United States to a 87-68 victory over the Soviet Union to capture the basketball gold medal at the World University Games. However, The Soviet Union's women's basketball team defeated the U.S. 107-90 to win the gold medal in that competition.

LITTLE LEAGUE

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. - Pitcher Chaing Chen-jung, whose .833 batting average set a new tournament record, drove in two runs with three singles and fired a four-hitter to lead Li-Teh Little League of Taiwan to a 7-2 victory over Western Little League of El Caljon, Calif., in the championship game of the 31st annual Little League World Series.

GOLF

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland - Hubert Green dropped a six-foot birdie putt on the last hole to win the $70,000 Irish Open golf championship.

Tony Dorsett is gone. Darrell Royal is gone. Frank Broyles is gone.

College football is back.

With eight more teams newly classified as major football schools by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, bringing the total to 144, the 1977 season gets under way next weekend with a modest slate of 19 games, only two of which feature any sort of pretender to the national championship.

Penn State, long the dominate team in the East until unseated by Pitt last year, and upstart Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak is the longest in the major college ranks, kick things off Friday night at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

On Saturday, Mississippi State, another highly rated club, entertains North Texas State.

Of the 144 major schools, no fewer than 25-including defending national champion Pitt-have new head coaches. Johnny Majors, the miracle worker who led Pitt to glory, albeit with some assistance from Tony Dorsett & Co., has moved on and will try to restore Tennessee, his alma mater, to some of its past prestige.

Replacing Majors at Pitt is Jackie Sherrill, who was Major's top aide until he went off to become head coach at Washington State for one year.

Other prominent coaching changes find Fred Akers, who led Wyoming to a share of the Western Athletic Conference crown and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl, replacing the ultra-successful Royal at Texas. Lou Holtz, who discovered pro life with the New York Jets wasn't to his liking, returns to the college ranks at Arkansas. Both Royal and Broyles remain on at their respective institutions as athletic directors.

Lou Saban, another former pro coach, is back with the undergraduates at Miami, Fla.

In addition, Bob Blackman, who couldn't crack the Big Ten domination of Ohio State and Michigan in six years at Illinois after a celebrated career at Dartmouth, returns to the Ivy League with Cornell. His successor at Illinois is Gary Moeller, a former member of the Michigan staff.

Besides the moves made by Majors and Sherrill, the game of musical coaching chairs finds Tony Mason going from Cincinnati to Arizona, Jim Young from Arizona to Purdue, Wayne Howard from Long Beach State to Utah and F.A. Dry from Tulsa to Texas Christian.

Other new head coaches are Denny Stolz at Bowling Green, Ralph Staub at Cincinnati, Charley Pell at Clemson, Chuck Shelton at Drake, Dick Tomey at Hawaii, Charlie Cowdrey at Illinois State, Dave Currey at Long Beach State, Rich Brooks at Oregon, Bill Michael at Texas-El Paso, Chuck Stobart at Toledo, John Cooper at Tulsa, Warren Powers at Washington State, Bill Yung at West Texas State and Bill Lewis at Wyoming.

The eight new major college teams are Alcorn State, Grambling State, Jackson State, Southern University, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Tennessee State, Texas Southern and Western Carolina. UT-Chattanooga and Western Carolina are new members of the Southern Conference, along with Marshall, while the others belong to the predominantly black Southwestern Athletic Conference.

The rest of next Saturday's schedule includes Wofford at The Citadel, Alabama State at Jackson State, Western Carolina at Jacksonville State, Memphis State vs. Mississippi at Jackson, Miss., East Carolina at North Carolina State, Texas-Arlington at Northwestern Louisiana and Appalachian State at South Carolina.

Also, Tulsa at Southwestern Louisiana, Middle Tennessee at Tennessee State, Southern Mississippi vs. Troy State at Montgomery, Ala., Norfolk State at William & Mary, Alcorn State at Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan at Northern Illinois, West Texas State at Wichita State and Southern Illinois at New Mexico State.

Irwin Goes 20 Under At Fame

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)-Leonard Thompson was bewildered.

He'd just played the back nine in a course-record 29. He had a round of 66 and, on the feared No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club - one of the nation's most demanding layouts - had finished 72 holes a dizzying 15 strokes under par.

"What do you have to do to win around here?" Thompson inquired after finishing a distant second to Hale Irwin, who was 20 under.

Irwin, who had to win to prove a personal point - "there was no alternative," he said - compiled rounds of 65, 62, 69 and 68 into a 264 total, the best score of the year on the pro tour, and won by five strokes over Thompson in the Hall of Fame Golf Classic Sunday.

"The score, on this golf course, is amazing," Irwin said. "It is not amazing that I won. I had to win. Any win is nice. This is particularly so."

It may have been the sweetest of his nine career triumphs, most of which have come over the most difficult courses America can offer. The authoritative manner in which he subdued famed old No. 2 made it one of his most artistic.

More importantly, to Irwin, at least, it proved a point.

It got him back in the World Series of Golf, to be played this weekend at Akron, Ohio.

"I'd been shuffled off, told I wasn't good enough," Irwin said. "There've been two World Series under the new, expanded format and I've had to qualify three times."

...It was not fair."

When Irwin won the Atlanta Classic May 29 he was told he'd qualified for the World Series off a point list. He made his plans accordingly, taking some time off, turning down some financial offers to play in the World Series.

Only his victory here, which qualified him as a double winner for the year, got him in. He could make it in no other fashion. It was, he said prior to the tournament, "a must-win situation."

No one really got close. Rookie Jeff Mitchell finished third with a 67-272, eight shots back. J.C. Snead, with a closing 68, and Lou Graham, with a 70, were next at 274, 10 behind.

Tigers Cage 'The Bird'

DETROIT (AP)-"It's just one of those years in life," said Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, as he packed his gear for the trip home to Northboro, Mass.

Fidrych was told Sunday by Tigers General Manager Jim Campbell that he would not come off the disabled list before the season ended.

The Bird had not pitched since July 12 due to tendonitis in his right shoulder. Campbell, after conferring with Fidrych, Manager Ralph Houk and team physician Dr. Clarence Livingood, decided it would be better to give Fidrych complete rest than risk further injury by rushing his return.

Rain, Sudden-Death Mark 1st Annual WTC Partnership

Rain and wind marred the First Annual Western Texas College Partnership Saturday and Sunday, but not enough to dull the action as several sudden-death playoffs climaxed the two-day tournament.

Mel Callender and Dennis Northington coupled from Texas Tech to shoot a six-under 134 for Championship Flight honors. The pair netted a low of 67 both days.

Taking second place in the flight were Greg Reynolds and Kim Coulter of Lubbock. Both Reynolds and Coulter will be joining the WTC golf team this fall. A 70 the second day tacked to their 65 Saturday gave them a 135 for the tournament.

In third place were another duo expected to play with the WTC team this year. Billy Sitton and Steve Wise of Midland shot a 66-70-136 in the Championship Flight.

Strong winds swept the newly opened par 70 course Saturday, but Sunday rains caused the most problems. The Championship and First flights had to be delayed over an hour as rains reportedly five inches deep were allowed to run off in low areas throughout the course.

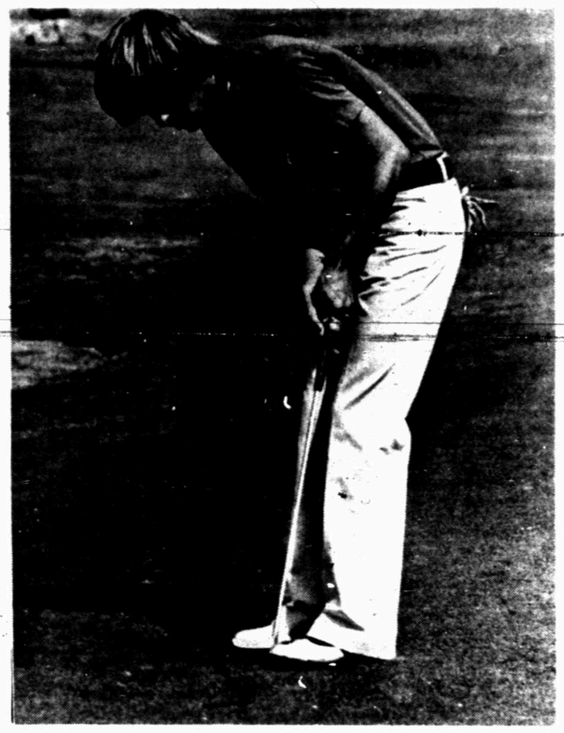

Lee Baird and Rich Huelster, another WTC pair, fired a 75-68 to grab the First Flight championship. Baird is from Abilene while Huelster hails from Fort Stockton. Taking second place were Britt Lindsey and Mike Waller of Abilene and Fort Stockton. The pair, also joining the WTC crew this season, shot a 73-71-144.

Suddent death marked the third place finished in the First Flight. Melvin Lindsey and David Slaughter edged out Gus White and Art Ayers by a stroke to grab the position.

Snyder's Pete Greene and Bill Atwood finished a 78-75 for first place 153 in the Second Flight. In sudden death play, Ewell Mackey of Snyder and J.T. Pope of Roby rolled past Tommy Perry and Loren Molleur of Andrews. Mackey and Pope shot a 82-74-156 in tournament play, while Perry and Molleur fired an equal 80-77-156.

Three groups tied for third, with John Reed and Mike Reed winning in sudden-death. They shot a 80-77-157 to tie with Billy Wayne Harris and Larry Hildreth, and the team of Joe League and Don Gallagher in regular play.

Another Snyder duo, Jeral Beard and Ricky Beard won the Third Flight in sudden-death. The couple fired a 83-76-159 to tie with Don Head and Pat Smith of Snyder. In sudden-death play, both teams bogyed number two, but the Beard's parred on three while Smith and Head bogyed for second place. E.F. Franklin and Barry Bynum of Snyder shot an 83-78-161 for third.

TAKES THIRD--Billy Sitton of Midland, an addition to WTC's golf team this year, placed third in the WTC First Annual Partnership with Steve Wise, another WTC golfer and Midland resident. (SDN Staff Photo)

Athletic Number Changed

The telephone number for the athletic department of Snyder Public Schools has been changed, Athletic Director Roy Carter has announced.

The new number of the athletic director's office is 573-8528. Carter said that persons who need to call concerning any phase of athletics should call that number.

Cowboy Kicker Comes Through

DALLAS (AP)-There's just something about Efren Herrera and Texas Stadium that spells agonizing death for the Baltimore Colts.

"They say lightning does not strike twice but it certainly did," said Colt Coach Ted Marchibroda, referring to Herrera's 33-yard field goal at the gun that gave Dallas a 23-21 National Football League pre-season victory Saturday night.

Herrera kicked a field goal in the final seconds in the regular season last year for a 30-27 victory.

"It was just the same as last year....even the man (Herrera) jumped in the air the same way," said Colt halfback Lydell Mitchell. "You really hate to lose anything but losing like last year really hurts you. At least it's always an exciting game when we play Dallas."

Colt quarterback Bert Jones, who threw two touchdown passes in the half he played, snorted "I hated to lose this game... it's absurd isn't it? Two years in a row we lose the same way."

Little kick returner Howard Stevens said "Man, it hurts to lose the same way."

Rangers Drop Another Rung

NEW YORK (AP)-There were, Ron Guidry said, only three better presents he could have received on his 27th birthday than the two-hit masterpiece he pitched Sunday.

"The only things I can think of besides this are a one-hitter, a no-hitter and a perfect game," the slender left-hander said after hurling the New York Yankees to a 1-0 triumph over the Texas Rangers, keeping them two games ahead of Boston in the American League East.

To go along with his two-hitter-Jim Sundberg's two-out first-inning triple and Bert Campaneris' leadoff single in the seventh provided the Rangers' only baserunners-Guidry also went home with a huge bottle of champagne, courtesy of owner George Steinbrenner.

"I don't really like champagne, but I'll drink it anyhow," Guidry said, the lilting accent of his upbringing in Louisiana's Cajun country still discernible.

Respect Phone Caller's Right to Privacy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In my judgment, you are somewhat misguided concerning telephone courtesy.

The proper answer to someone who asks, "Who's calling, please?" is, "None of your business!" The exception might be a daughter who is not allowed to speak to anyone on the phone without her parents' permission, which in this enlightened age is ridiculous.

If the person who is called REQUESTS that the person answering the phone ask who is calling, it is perfectly proper to ask, but the caller should never get the impression that he must identify himself before he can find out if the party he is calling is available to speak.

The point I make is this: It's the obligation of the person answering the phone to tell the person who is wanted that he has a phone call. And only if the person called WANTS to know who is calling, should the party who answers the phone ask, "Who is calling?"

T.E.F.

DEAR T.E.F.: I agree, people should respect each other's privacy, and one should ask, "Who is calling, please," only when the callee wants to know. Your suggested, "None of your business," response is both ill-tempered and ill-mannered, and therefore ill-advised. And in the case of minor children, it is indeed a parent's business to know who is calling his or her child.

DEAR ABBY: I am a gal—well over 21. I mind my own business and wish other people would mind theirs. I have a friend (male) who buys my groceries. In return, all I give him is home cooking—believe it or not. He's in the process of getting a divorce, and hates to eat out. I think it's a good deal for both of us.

He usually sleeps here on weekends because we have wine with dinner and he's afraid to drive after he's been drinking on account of he doesn't have a driver's license. Some of my neighbors have slipped some very insulting notes under my door. I haven't done anything to be ashamed of. Is it fair to be judged on appearances?

UNJUSTLY JUDGED

DEAR JUDGED: No, but your neighbors can't be blamed for thinking there's more cooking at your place than home-cooked meals. If you don't want to be mistaken for a duck, don't walk like a duck, quack like a duck, or shack up with odd birds.

DEAR ABBY: I just read your advice to YOUNG WIDOW to try "Parents Without Partners" and I want to shout my approval.

I am a 43-year-old male with two grown children and 22 years of what I thought was the "perfect marriage" when my wife (now my ex-wife) told me to get out and make room for a married bus driver. Needless to say, I fell apart.

A friend suggested I go to a P.W.P. meeting and meet new people. I went, and it was the smartest thing I ever did. It helped me more than I had ever hoped for.

P.W.P. has chapters in every state of the union, Canada and Australia. And it's run by volunteers—all members of P.W.P. They have all sorts of activities, get-together parties, dances, picnics and even camping trips. It's geared to help parents without partners and their children.

Thanks for mentioning this great organization, Abby. It's worth checking out.

ALONE BUT NOT LONELY

DEAR ALONE: I have checked it out from every angle and have found it to be straight arrow, nonprofit and worth the plug.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box, No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

drives a car.

Accidents in which nobody is hurt need not be reported to the Texas Department of Public Safety any longer unless there is damage of $200 or more. Twenty-five-dollar accidents had to be reported under the old law.

Starting Thursday, auto inspection fees will jump from $2 to $4.

Another new law says that if one's car can be driven after an accident, it must be moved off of freeway lanes or ramps and onto frontage roads.

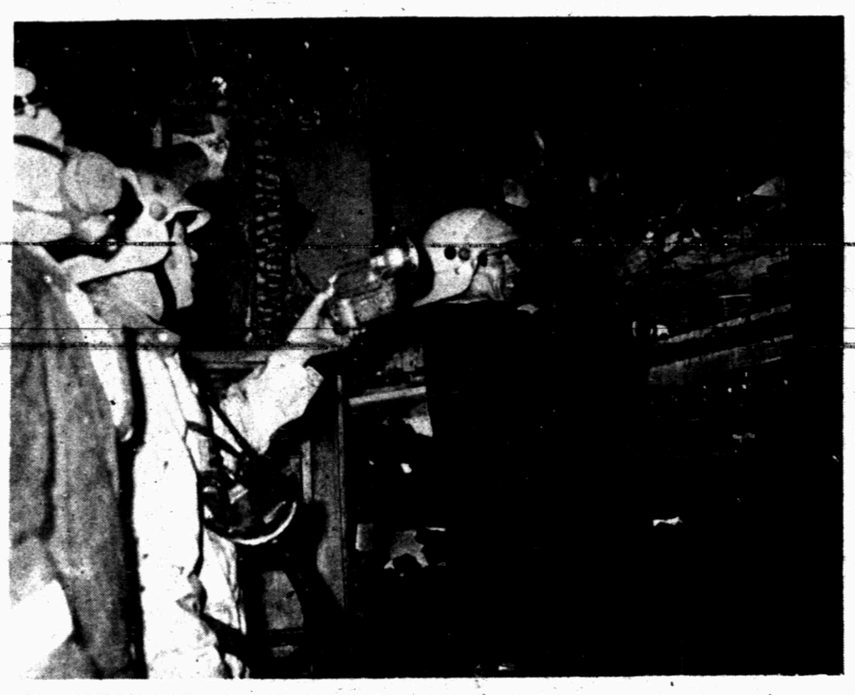

Automobile owners can now buy "under-insured motorist" policies that provide coverage in excess of the present $20,000 per accident for injuries.

Hunters and fishermen will see the end to an experiment started several years ago that made their licenses good for a full year. The legislature restored the old Aug. 31 expiration date for all licenses, no matter when purchased. There is one exception. Licenses bought between May 31 and Sept. 1 this year are good until Aug. 31, 1978.

In the energy field, a new law prohibits gas companies from curtailing supplies to agricultural users except as needed to maintain service uses that are vital to the public health and safety.

Criminals or those accused of being criminals will have a harder time of it. Tape-recorded oral confessions can be used in court to discredit a defendant's testimony on his own behalf. And convicts released after serving their sentences will face parole-type supervision. Probation and parole will be harder to get.

And finally, farms that grow grapes in "dry" areas can make wine commerically if they get a $20 state license, and boxing and wrestling matches can be held on Sunday-so long as it's after noon.

BLAZE EXTINGUISHED—Amid a thunderous rainstorm early Sunday morning, Snyder firemen extinguished a house fire at 2900 34th St. The fire occurred in a home owned by Bob Dupree. Former tenants of the house, A.L. Vandiver family, had recently moved out. The fire was reported at 12:10 a.m. Sunday and appeared to have started in the kitchen, firemen said. (SDN Staff Photo)

Burglary Loot Found As Another Reported

A rifle and approximately $10 in cash taken in the burglary of the Ruby Butts home was recovered Saturday by police, following the questioning of a 15-year-old juvenile.

Officers also reported they plan to question another suspect in connection with the burglary.

In another burglary, Charles Boaz and Gary DeWitt told police that $18 in cash and a .12 gauge shotgun were taken from their 1913 Coleman St. apartment by someone who had apparently gained entry through the front door.

The burglary is believed to have occurred between Friday and Sunday. The incident was reported to police at 9:50 p.m. Sunday.

A possibly unsuspecting thief was hoodwinked Saturday when he took a defective watch from the Cash Food drive-in grocery.

The watch reportedly had been placed on a shelf to be sent back to the manufacturer for repair. The watch is valued at $30, according to police reports.

Five traffic accidents were also reported to police during the weekend.

The first mishap occurred Saturday at 12:14 p.m. in the 2500 block of 26th St.

Involved in the mishap were a 1971 Ford pickup driven by Jesse Lee Townsend and a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Suzanne Wilson.

The next mishap occurred in the parking lot of the Rainbow grocery. A 1972 Rambler driven by Lem Benton Holamon was in collision with a parked 1974 Ford owned by Sauina Rodriquez. The mishap occurred about 2:02 p.m. Saturday.

The next mishap occurred in the business district of U.S. 84 at 4:09 a.m. Sunday. The mishap involved a 1972 Chevrolet driven by Thomas Sealy Mathis of Lamesa and a 1973 Volkswagen driven by Robert Dalton White Jr.

The 2500 block of College Ave. was the scene of a two-vehicle collision Sunday at 11:22 a.m.

A 1971 Pontiac driven by Frank Foster of Duncan, Okla. was in collision with a 1977 Kenworth truck driven by Wilker Cheek of Lubbock.

The final mishap of the weekend was reported at 3:23 p.m. Sunday in the 500 block of 30th St.

A 1974 Chevrolet driven by Ollie Freer was in collision with a parked 1971 Chevrolet driven by Lloyd Merritt.

Welfare Dept. Has New Name

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-The State Department of Public Welfare got a new name today.

Officials say, however, the department will be doing the same job - primarily providing assistance to the needy, aged, disabled and dependent children.

The new name is the Texas Department of Human Resources.

The legislature made the change during the regular session this year.

Agency officials said publications carrying the old welfare name will be used until supplies are exhausted, but beginning today telephones will be answered with the new name.

Temperatures were expected to be a little cooler, but most readings were predicted to again be in the 80s and 90s. Snyder's high readings were in the mid-90s over the weekend, but dropped into the 60s at night.

The total rainfall for the year in Snyder has reached an official 21.94, which is nearly two inches above the average for a whole year.

Mrs. Shaw Director Of Senior Citizens Center

Gloria Shaw has been named director of the Senior Citizens Center located on the campus of Western Texas College.

Rosa Walker will continue to serve as assistant director of the Center.

Mrs. Shaw comes to Snyder from Paris where she was branch manager for Prophet Foods at Paris Junior College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gann. Gann is also associated with Prophet Foods and is manager of the cafeteria at WTC.

One of the first activities planned by Mrs. Shaw for the Senior Center is a Get Acquainted Tea in the near future. The date will be announced when arrangements for the gathering can be made. Mrs. Shaw hopes that Senior Citizens will bring along suggestions for activities they would enjoy in the Senior Citizens Center, whether they would be classes in crafts such as macrame, games days, or lectures or other programs which Mrs. Shaw could arrange.

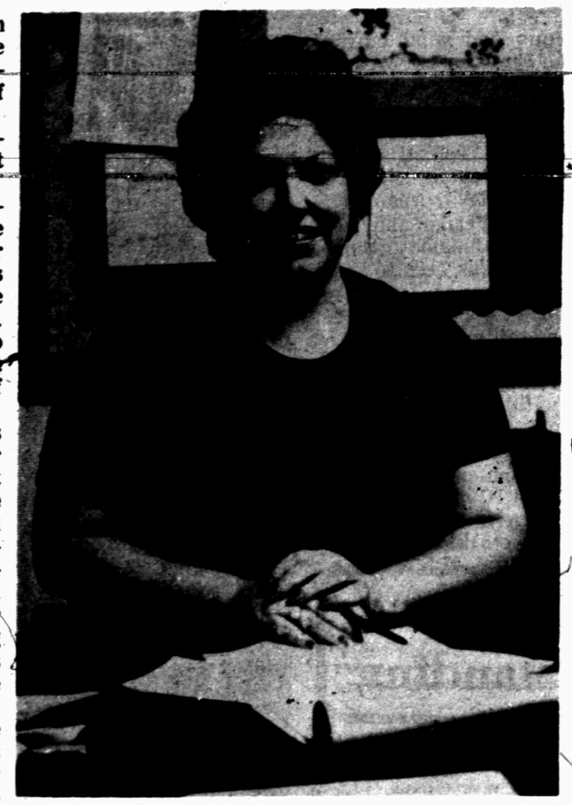

The Center will resume its twice-monthly Covered Dish Luncheons immediately, with the first September luncheon set for September 2. Table games will begin at 9:30 a.m. and lunch will be served about 12 noon. Each person attending is asked to bring a favorite dish for the meal.

Part of Mrs. Shaw's responsibilities in the future will include work with the Title VII Nutrition Program for Senior Citizens. This program calls for meals to be prepared in the WTC cafeteria and served in the Senior Center starting Oct. 3.

Title VII differs from the Meals on Wheels program in that it does not include home delivery of meals, Mrs. Shaw said. She worked with Meals on Wheels through Prophet Foods in Paris. They began with 35 subscribers there and were serving meals to 240 persons by the end of 16 months.

The Title VII program is new in Snyder and additional information about it will be available as the time for its beginning is nearer.

Outside her office, Mrs. Shaw enjoys bridge, golf, and other outdoor activities. She enjoys cooking for her husband, Ron, an accountant at WTC, and her son, Mark, 13, an eighth grade student. In Paris, she was a member of Beta Sigma Phi and the National Secretaries Association.

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Time may add weight

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I am a 20-year-old female, weigh 126 and am 5 feet 8. I'm basically healthy and active. I can't gain more than three to five pounds at a time or keep them for very long. My appetite is poor most of the time, especially if I become upset. And I cannot eat fresh, raw vegetables and fruit. My mouth starts to itch and I break out in a rash on my face or arms. I also smoke about a pack of cigarettes a day.

What can I do to increase my appetite and gain weight? What can I eat in place of fresh, raw fruit and vegetables that would be comparable in nutritional value? How can I decrease my smoking?

I am beginning to feel sluggish upon arising in the morning and am getting from seven to eight hours of sleep. I have already been to my family physician for vitamins.

DEAR READER — Time may take care of your problem and you may wish you could have the old problem of not gaining weight back again.

Your appetite might increase if you did quit smoking. Food might taste better too. Why don't you contact your nearest chapter of the American Heart Association or American Lung Association and see if they can tell you about local stop smoking clinics that you might join. A sincere desire to stop is often important in the success of such programs.

Fresh raw fruits and vegetables are seldom high caloric foods. If you want to gain weight these are not the foods you need to emphasize in your diet. Rather you want starches, fats and sweets, the high calorie foods — if you are sure you want to add fat to your torso. Muscles result from strength type exercises. Your emphasis on "fresh and raw" makes me wonder if you can tolerate canned or cooked fruits and vegetables. If so, they may be your next best substitute. If not, you need to get bulk some place and you can get that from whole cereals or bran. You can get some potassium from milk and milk products although it is not as good a source as fresh fruits and you might need vitamin supplements if you truly cannot use fruits and vegetables. They are one of the four basic food groups for a reason.

To give you a better idea of a balanced diet I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, ... City tation, New York, N.Y. 10019. The values for the different vitamins and minerals your diet should include are listed in it as well as which foods contain them.

If you are not as active as you think you are a regular exercise program, preferably doing something you enjoy, may stimulate your appetite. The best example here is a good walk before mealtime. Housework doesn't usually take a lot of physical energy, no matter how tiring it may become. Regular exercise may also give you more energy. But I doubt you will get much help unless you stop cigarettes and if you are a coffee drinker, stop or cut down on it as well.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Repress any gambling urges that may beset you today. If you're involved in any speculative financial ventures, move very cautiously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Opportunity may come to you today but you could waste it through impulsive judgment. Try to see the long-run potential.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your heart could be bigger than your bank balance today. If someone needs your help, do what you can within the realm of possibility and prudence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Financial surpluses should not be tapped frivolously today. If you've put something aside for a rainy day, wait for a cloudburst.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your luck and good looks get you into the starting gate today. The only thing that'll win the race, however, is sheer determination.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) In an important matter you may feel you have a trump card up your sleeve. Check before playing it. It may have been lost in the laundry.

Carter Says Debate Level Raised

Fireside Chat Due On Canal Issue

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Carter administration, stepping up its task-force drive for ratification of the new Panama Canal treaty, says opponent Ronald Reagan has raised debate to "a more productive level" by focusing on alternatives to the treaty now in force.

Carter predicts the Senate will ratify his treaty and says he will use a fireside chat to take his campaign for the pact to the American people. He said the consequences would be very severe if the treaty is rejected.

Announcement of the fireside chat came as Hamilton Jordan, the President's top political aide, mounted an all-out drive for ratification. Jordan put assistant Joe Aragon to work on the effort and enlisted help from virtually every sector.

Jordan heads a task force to win the 67 Senate votes needed for approval. Political and business leaders who have helped Carter efforts in the past are being summoned to briefings and dispatched back to states with wavering senators.

White House officials see Reagan's call for "alternative courses of action" that would "recognize the aspirations of the Panamanian people" as an end to his demand that the United States' present treaty with Panama be maintained intact.

"Even Gov. Reagan is saying the status quo is not a real alternative," one administration official said Sunday. "That leaves the question: Are we better off ratifying our new treaty or tearing up the past 13 years of negotiating and starting the process anew?"

The official, who declined to be identified, said he was reporting the views of Carter and his top foreign policy advisers.

"Regan has elevated the debate to a higher and more productive level," the official said. "Now we'll deliberate alternatices to the terms in the treaty. It won't be a matter of dreams, like keeping the status quo, versus reality, which says we can't."

Actually, there are two new agreements, one to yield control of the canal in the year 2000, and the other to guarantee the permanent neutrality of the waterway along with the right of the United States to keep it open and secure.

The agreements are to be signed here Sept. 7, before the Senate takes up the pact. The signing ceremony, designed to whip up enthusiasm, will be attended by the presidents of South American countries including Chile, Argentina and the Dominican Republic as well as the vice president of Brazil.

Most public opinion polls reflect voter opposition to the treaty. The White House is waiting for a poll of its own to use in its efforts.

Federal Officials Plan Laetrile Case Studies

By LARRY MARGASASK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Federal officials are mapping plans this week for conducting case studies of several hundred cancer patients who claim the controversial substance Laetrile helped them.

The officials believe the patients' experiences will confirm their diagnosis that the purported cancer cure is worthless.

They said, however, that if the review does not conclusively support their stand, the government would consider testing Laetrile for the first time on volunteer cancer patients.

The director of the National Cancer Institute, Dr. Arthur C. Upton, said Sunday the government will decide how to pick the cases it will review in a meeting among representatives of his agency, the Food and Drug Administration and the Center for Disease Control.

He did not say when the meeting will be held.

Warning that the government still sees no evidence of Laetrile's usefulness, Upton said, "the only basis on which one would decide to do a trial comes from anecdotal information about patients who have received the drug" - in other words, the patients' own stories.

Upton was questioned on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Laetrile is banned from shipment across state lines by federal law. A dozen states have legalized its sale, however.

Upton's deputy, Dr. Guy R. Newell, said public pressure played a part in the decision to study human cases.

In a telephone interview Sunday night, Newell said the planned review hopes to "collect cases of people who have been treated with Laetrile to collect objective information, so we can determine whether there are some bona fide remissions."

The government has said its reviews of Laetrile supporters' claims show the proponents "do not provide the kinds of adequate and self-controlled studies needed to show the effectiveness of a drug...."

Newell said the government may study X-rays, slides and charts of several hundred patients who used Laetrile.

Investigators would try to confirm that the patients actually had cancer, if their tumors were reduced and whether they had conventional cancer therapy that could have been responsible for the change.

If imporved patients had conventional treatment, it would be "difficult to prove the effects were from Laetrile," he said.

Ford Grants Obituary Interview

NEW YORK (AP)-Former President Gerald R. Ford has granted an interview to the New York Times for publication upon his death, Newsweek magazine says.

The magazine reports in this week's issue that the Times had been after Ford for a year for the obituary interview but was stalled by Donald Rumsfeld, Ford's former chief of staff, who objected on grounds that it was a "morbid" idea.

Newsweek said Ford enthusiastically ordered approval of the interview, the contents of which will be kept secret until Ford's death. That guarantee allowed Ford to be more candid about such subjects as Watergate and the pardon he granted Richard M. Nixon that he would have been otherwise, the magazine said.

Coed Prison System Reverts To 'One Sex'

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Two federal prisons in California that house inmates of both sexes will be forced to revert to "one-sex" institutions because of overcrowding, The Los Angeles Times reports in today's editions.

Plans have been in the making for several weeks to change the Terminal Island facility near San Pedro to an all-male prison and the Pleasanton facility near Oakland to an all-female status, said The Times.

Prison officials deny that the change is because of problems with what they call "cocorrectional" institutions. The only reason for the change, they said, is a 25 per cent national increase in federal prison inmates in the last two years.

The switchover should be complete by Jan. 1, although no public announcement of the conversion is planned, said The Times.

Until then, the 177 women at Terminal Island who will not be paroled more than likely will be transferred to Pleasanton, said the newspaper. The 179 men now at Pleasanton will move to Terminal Island, the federal prison at Lompoc or a number of minimum security prison camps.

After the change in the California facilities, only two other institutions - in Lexington, Ky. and Ft. Worth, Tex. - will be sexually integrated.

Prison officials evaluating the cocorrectional prisons said they were generally pleased with the program, and said it had "stabilized" the prison atmosphere.

The Times quoted Terminal Island's warden, Lee B. Jett, as saying during a recent interview: "I sense - it's only a feeling - a lot less homosexual involvement by men and women, though I have no data to support it."

"It's just the presence of women that does it," said the warden. "I'd stake a lot on it."

Terminal Island inmates aided in drafting a code of conduct when women were integrated into the prison 2½ years ago. Continued abuse of the code generally leads to the offender being transferred to a one-sex institution, the newspaper said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Washington said the shutdown of the cocorrectional programs at the two California sites hopefully is only a temporary measure that can be switched back if conditions change.

In the winter of 1838-39, the Creek of Cherokee Indians who lived in Georgia were forced to move beyond the Mississippi, so that settlers could cultivate the land. During that trek westward, nearly one out of four died, leaving behind what came to be known as the Cherokee Trail of Tears.

Three Die In Plane Crash

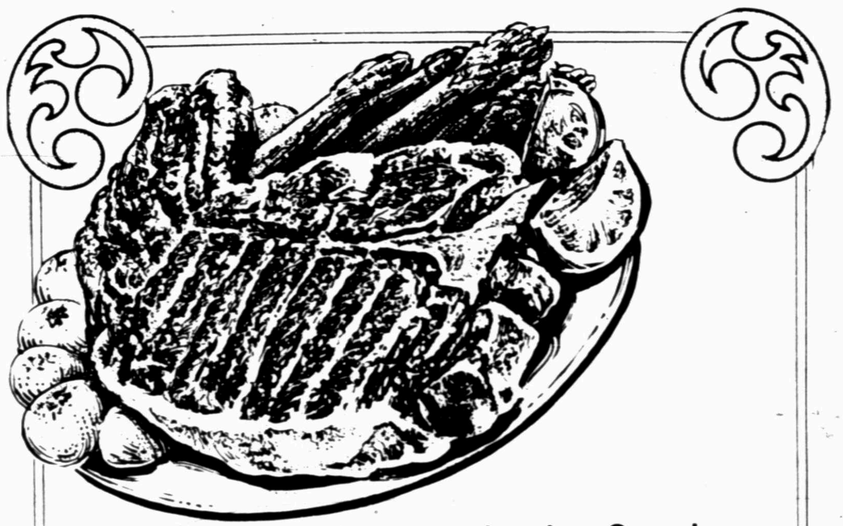

CANYON, Tex. (AP)- Federal Aviation Administration officials were expected today to investigate the crash of a single-engine plane that killed three Roswell, N.M., residents.

The Piper Commanche aircraft was en route from Roswell to nearby Amarillo, Tex., when it went down Sunday in a field seven miles northwest of this Texas Panhandle city.

The Texas Department of Public Safety identified the pilot as William Martin Lea, 75, and the passengers as Marion D. Hopkins, 34, and William P. Kurtz, 33.

Witnesses were quoted by the DPS as saying the plane crashed after making a sudden turn in some low clouds.

Officials said the crash occurred at 9 a.m.

Ex-Head Of NOW Finds Name In File

WASHINGTON (AP) Karen DeCrow was linked by the FBI in 1953 to a group trying to save condemned spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg but the former head of the National Organization for Women says she was just 15 and interested in "clothes, boys and cashmere sweaters" then.

Ms. DeCrow learned of the Rosenberg link in 44 pages of heavily censored FBI files on her that she obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

Ms. DeCrow, a Syracuse, N.Y., lawyer, says "my memory of myself in 1953 is that I was completely nonpolitical...it's possible someone came up to me in the schoolyard and asked me to sign a petition but I don't recall anything like that."

The memo also said that a suspected security risk whose name was deleted, "received correspondence from Karen Lipschultz" Ms. DeCrow's name before she married in 1955. She said she knows of no New York political figures to whom she would have been writing at the age of 17.

Several of the memos concern Ms. DeCrow's 1969 and 1970 activities in the women's movement, primarily in Syracuse, but there were no entries for the years she was NOW's president.

Ms. DeCrow said her files show "the most incredible waste of the taxpayer's money" in compiling such information.

San Quentin's Crisis Typical Of The Times

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)-Burly "Big George" Sumner, warden of San Quentin Prison, glared across the shiny conference table and spit out the words like they were tough meat: "We will be in control!"

Despite all the authority the 6-foot-3, 250-pound prison boss put into the statement, it remains more hope than fact. For San Quentin, in the 125th anniversary of its tempestuous existence on a sunny hook of land jutting into San Francisco Bay, is a prison in crisis.

In July, gang-inspired racial battles left three convicts dead. Now, nearly a third of the cons are "locked down" in the east block - 600 men penned in their cells all day under maximum security.

Another 100, hardened gang leaders and members, are isolated under the gun in the north block with little likelihood of ever returning to the main population. The rest go about their business within the walls in an uneasy peace Sumner prays will stick. Officers scan this last group for "underground" gang members who face the north block if found.

"I don't have any reason to believe the same thing would not happen again," Sumner admitted ruefully of the day of violence.

His main complaint is one shared in varying degrees by most of the men who have held the warden's post at one of the world's most notorious penitentiaries.

In short, trouble brews when hard cases are mixed with peaceful inmates who are unable to defend themselves against hate-filled crazies whose solution to disputes is sudden death at the end of a filed-down spoon.

"I think the great, great majority of inmates want to have a peaceful, tranquil place," he said in an interview. "But we've been at the mercy of gangs for some time. We were controlled.

"If they decided they wanted to kill somebody, we weren't in a position to do a heck of a lot about it."

On July 12, the decision came. Sumner said it was little consolation that the bloody explosions were the result of a "mistake" that pitted the normally peaceful Black Muslims against the Nazi-type whites of the American National Socialists and Satan's Few motorcyclists.

As Sumner told it, the whites mistakenly killed a Muslim in the morning, thinking he was a member of the Black Guerrilla Family. The Muslims, who profess to be law-abiding and aloof from the troublemakers, backed up a standing threat to retaliate when one of their members is hurt.

Nine hours later, the warring factions clashed with clubs and knives, turning prison corridors into a bloody battlefield. When it was over another two inmates, whites, were dead, including a man who was hurled from a third-story tier.

Within a few percentage points, the racial mix at 2,200-inmates San Quentin is fairly representative of the statewide prison population: White, 41.9 per cent; black, 39.7; Mexican-American, 16.7; other, 1.7. The average age at Q is about 30.

Sumner says there are signs peace may return to the old bastille now that the gangs are isolated from the mainline. The warden guesses the "really hopeless bad guys" make up no more than 2 or 3 per cent of all inmates, and "the guys that belong to the gangs and have to do what the gangs decide at between 15 and 20 per cent at most."

Their segregation, says Sumner, has brought hope to the peaceful inmates who could not stand up to the killers.

"Now that most of the gang guys are out of the population, the peaceful prisoners are expressing opinions that it's a good thing," he said. "It's my intention to keep the gang guys completely separate from the rest of the prison."

In the same vein, Sumner plans to create a number of small "prisons within a prison," in the face of the legislature's rejection this year of an administration proposal for $92 million to build at least two new flexible-security prisons in California.

"I'm trying to divide San Quentin up into small sections. ... It's impossible to work with masses of people," Sumner said.

Even in the hard-hitten north block, swarming with hostility, Sumner entertains hopes of spiritual reconstruction.

"I think some of the gangs can be dissolved, if we can work with these people as individuals and have them make individual decisions." Then Sumner sets his jaw again:

"As far as the gangs go, we have to be in control - and I'm going to do so. And they know it."

He admits to much anxiety about the crowded east block, calling it a "large, unmanageable situation," and the inmates there "600 question marks," He adds wistfully:

"It' hard to really know inmates. ... It's difficult to determine when to let them out. I don't have any reason to believe the same thing (repeat violence) would not happen."

Sumner is unhappy with the lockdown because "it's unfair. When lockdowns occur, many who aren't guilty of anything are locked up with the bad ones."

He noted with profound disappointment that feeling guided his release of a lockdown prior to the July killings.

He said he had met with gang leaders "and impressed on them my intention of having a peaceful prison here. They assured me they would work together in harmony. They made truces with each other ... then they went out and broke them."

The gang members, he said in a voice that almost trailed to a whisper, "trusted each other, but it didn't come about. ... They were inundated by their own hatred for each other."

Submerge In Cold Water

Drowning Victims Can Sometimes Be Revived

EDITORS NOTE - Each year, some 8,000 Americans drown, but in a handful of cases, victims who appear clinically dead can be revived because they were lucky enough to be submerged in waters cold enough to trigger two vital defense mechanisms.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) -- Brian Cunningham's car broke through the ice, rolled over and lay submerged in a pond for 38 minutes.

Cunningham, 18, recalled "struggling, inhaling water and losing consciousness." A companion fell on top of him.

Both appeared dead when lifted from the water. Just as an ambulance was about to take them to a morgue. Brian's body gave an agonal gasp, a kind of involuntary belch and rescue workers immediately started resuscitation while the ambulance raced to the University of Michigan Hospital.

Four minutes is usually considered the upper limit of time the brain can go without oxygen before damaged. But Cunningham, submerged for more than half an hour, was revived, left the hopital two weeks later an lives a normal life. In fact, he's an "A" student.

His companion, whose body had made no sound, was not resuscitated. He became one of 8,000 Americans who drown each year.

More people such as Cunningham could be saved if rescuers bet upon two natural defenses of the body in cold water drownings, says Dr. Martin J. Nemiroff of the University of Michigan.

He tells of nine documented cases of healthy survival of person submerged without oxygen in cold water for four to 38 minutes and says:

Don't give up too soon in rescue efforts.

One key defense is that cold water, below 68 degrees Fahrenheit, lowers body temperature, slowing blood flow, with the brain needing less oxygen. Such cooling of the body is frequently done to permit openheart surgery without brain injury.

Another defense is the "mammalian diving reflex" that permits air-breathing seals and porpoises to stay under water for 30 minutes or so.

The reflex slows heart beat. Less blood is pumped to tissues such as muscle, skin and gut, that can get along with little oxygen; more goes to the brain and tissues needing more oxygen.

Humans experience this reflex, but to lesser degree, when the face is immersed in water cooler than 68 degrees F. Dr. Nemiroff says. The face somehow triggers the reactions for the diving reflex.

The heart slows. There can be no detectable breathing, no pulse at the wrist. The skin get little blood and turns blue and cold. The eyes can become fixed and dilated.

"To the lay person even to some experts, the patient appears clinically dead," Dr. Nemiroff says, but might be saved with quick and aggressive rescue efforts.

Police, emergency medical technicians and the public "must learn that just because someone looks dead when you pull him from the water, you don't just say, 'Well, that one's gone.' and forget it," says Dr. Nemiroff, assistant professor of internal medicine, pulmonary division, at the medical school.

The colder the water, the more profound the diving reflex, with perhaps more protection for the brain, he adds. The reflex is stronger or more active in children and young people, and rescue should be tried particulary with toddlers who drown in cold water.

There is much less reflex effect in warmer waters.

Another protective mechanism is the concept of "dry drowning." The first in-rush of cold water may cause spasm of the larynx. This protects the lungs from drawing in water, but the person may become asphyxiated. If taken from the water soon enough, persons who haven't flooded their lungs may have rapid recoveries with standard heart-lung resuscitation. Ten to 15 per cent of drownings may be the "dry" kind.

Reporting on 13 "cold water below 70 degrees F. Dr. Nemiroff says nine were resuscitated and suffered no brain damage or other ill effects. Two suffered brain damage. Two died of lung infections contracted in the water.

One survivor was a physician submerged for 15 minutes, now back in practice.

Resuscitation must begin immediately, at the water's edge, Dr. Nemiroff says. It should include external heart message and "Ventilation with as near 100 per cent oxygen as your have available. Warm the body gradually from the inside by raising the temperature of oxygen to 110 degrees F with a nebulizer."

He advises continuing resuscitation "at least until the body temperature reaches normal." Defibrillation-shocking the heart into action-may not succeed until normal temperature is reached.

There's a risk that the resuscitated person may have suffered brain damage, the physician says. But there's also the chance the "dead" person could have lived in health.

Of the total 262,000 homes insured by the Federal Housing Administration last year, 34,000 were new homes and 228,000 were existing homes, reports the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.
