WE MAY FIND OUT WHAT OUR NEIGHBOR IS LIKE

Split-Second Firing Readied For Moon Shoot Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—With the target moving rapidly out of position, the United States today readied its most powerful rocket for an attempt to launch a spacecraft to the moon. Its mission: To take television pictures and land an instrument package to record moonquakes.

Scientists have an 82-minute period, beginning at 3:25 p.m. Eastern Standard Time today in which to fire the 102-foot tall Atlas-Agena B vehicle to put the spacecraft—Ranger 3—on the proper course.

If troubles prevent the rocket from getting off the ground in this time, only Saturday will remain in a six-day period when the moon is in the desired position. Failure to launch by Saturday will mean a postponement until the next favorable period starting about Feb. 20.

4-DAY DELAY
The shot originally was set for last Monday, but fueling trouble caused a four-day delay.

Ranger 3 is the most complex unmanned space experiment ever attempted by the United States. It involves launching the Agena B second stage of the booster into orbit and, at the precise moment, re-starting the engine to boost the spacecraft's speed to 24,500 miles an hour and start it on its 66-hour voyage to the moon.

If successful, Ranger 3 will relay television pictures of the moon from as close as 15 miles away and will produce the first recordings of seismic activity and other information about the composition of the lunar surface.

The data, plus that to be gathered by more sophisticated machines in the next few years, will help stake out the landing site for the first U.S. manned lunar landing, hopefully by 1967.

The intricate mission involves dozens of events which must occur on a split-second timetable. Included is the firing of another engine 16 hours after launching to jockey the spacecraft into a collision course with the moon.

ODDS 3-1
On the odds for success, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the assignment is so complex that it has "assigned three identical spacecraft to the task in the hope that at least one will be successful."

Rangers 4 and 5 are to be launched later this year. Rangers 1 and 2 were launched last fall to test techniques for the moon-landing attempts. Neither was aimed at the moon and each was only partially successful. However, the space agency felt they provided sufficient data to proceed with Ranger 3.

The United States has shot for the moon six times previously and failed each time. These launchings were designed to either fly close to the moon or orbit it.

The Soviet Union successfully got off two lunar launchings in 1959. Lunik II crashed on the moon but took no pictures and relayed no data after impact. Lunik III whirled into a gigantic orbit around earth and moon and took the first pictures of the moon's dark side.

TO 15 MILES
The Soviet moon pictures were snapped from a distance of 37,284

miles. The Ranger 3 camera was designed to start operating at an altitude of 2,400 miles and to transmit a picture every 10 seconds for 40 minutes down to an altitude of 15 miles. The picture receiving equipment is at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Goldstone, Calif.

At 15 miles, the spacecraft is to eject a 12-inch sphere wrapped in a 24-inch coating of shock-absorbing balsa wood. A small reverse rocket attached to the 96.5-pound ball is to slow its speed so it will land at a velocity of 80 to 120 miles an hour. The main body of the payload is to crash on the moon at 6,000 m.p.h. and be destroyed.

The 56.7-pound instrument capsule, built by Aeronautics, contains a seismometer and radio transmitter designed to relay data to Goldstone for 30 to 60 days. The highly sensitive seismometer is to measure moonquakes and meteor hits on the moon.

MOON'S CORE
The body wave data produced by moonquakes or meteor impacts could tell much about the presence or absence of a liquid or solid core at the center of a moon. The presence or absence of a lunar crust, such as the earth's crust, could be determined by the type of moonquake wave.

Two other devices attached to the main body were built to take surface measurements to the point of impact: a gamma ray spectrometer to detect uranium, thorium, radium and potassium radioisotope emissions; and a radar antenna to test the moon's radar reflectivity.

Ranger 3 is five feet in diameter at the hexagonal base, with the various instruments extending upwards 8.25 feet. In flight position, two large solar paddles are to fold down like butterfly wings to a span of 17 feet. Total weight is 727 pounds.

Seattle, Here We Come (?)

Cora Sue Turner, secretary-treasurer, and Eric Brewster, drum major of the Big Spring High School band, hope the band doesn't have to go this way in order to make good on plans for a trip to the World's Fair in Seattle this summer. Saturday the band begins its big push by selling tickets to the annual concert of the senior high, and the Goliad and Runnels Junior High bands on Tuesday evening. If they produce a sellout on this, it will give their trip plans a real strong start.

Probe Of Lobbyists On Loan Bill Asked

AUSTIN (AP)—Rep. Criss Cole said today he wants an investigation of what he called unregistered lobbyists working for House acceptance of the Senate's loan shark bill.

Cole said he would ask the House to reject the Senate bill and appoint House members of a conference committee on the measure.

Sponsors said Senate action on the House-passed bill Thursday left it only a shadow of the original bill. Senators voted 25-4 for its passage after making 20 changes.

"I don't believe the House will swallow such a thing," Cole said. "I think we have enough members who see through this bill that they won't vote to concur in the separate amendments."

"I do know there are a lot of people in town to work on members of the House. Some are not registered as lobbyists. I'm going to find out who the proper authorities are and get them to check this out."

Cole said he wants the House conferes to represent various shades of sentiment on small loan regulation. He said he doubts the Senate will name a fair group of conferees.

Cole had the bill printed and placed on members' desks today, to show what changes had been made by the Senate.

Gov. Price Daniel said he would sign today the $15 million farm to market road construction bill that provides also for maintaining present roads. It will be the first bill passed by the special session to become law.

The Senate voted 15-10 against taking up the San Angelo College bill for debate. There was no discussion before the vote. The bill would make San Angelo College fully state supported—a measure that prompted a two-hour Senate filibuster Thursday.

MONSTROSITY
Southern Methodist University professor Harvey Davis, chairman of the Committee to Prevent Unreasonable Interest Rates, issued a statement calling the Senate small loan bill "a monstrosity that would cure no evils and would create new ones."

Davis said charges authorized by the bill "can easily be manipulated by lenders to produce over 500 per cent per year on loans under $50."

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, who has won a number of usury suits against small lenders, told newsmen he was "disappointed in the bill as it came out of the Senate."

Here are some of the differences a conference committee would have to work out:

1. Regulation: House bill, a new small loan commissioner with broad powers; Senate bill, the present banking commissioner.

2. Size of loan regulated: House bill, $1,500; Senate bill, $200.

3. Interest: House bill, 36 per cent a year on a loan under $100, scaling down to 18 per cent a year on a $1,500 loan.

4. "Small, small" loan charges: House bill, $4 per three months on a loan of $20 to $45; Senate bill, $1.50 per month in lieu of interest.

Thrill Killer Faces Murder Trial On Reaching Age Of 17

STANTON — Enrique Juarez, 13-year-old self-confessed thrill killer, will be tried for murder in the 118th District Court of Martin County when he attains the age of 17 years.

Meantime, the boy, who said last Monday he kicked and stomped his 6-year-old cousin, Pedro Hernandez, to death, will be held at the State Training School for Boys in Gatesville.

Officials at the state training school will be notified by Gil Jones, district attorney, that Martin County wants custody of the boy when he has reached the age of 17. Jones said that he proposes to clear the way so that the youth can be tried for the murder of Hernandez.

Martin County, at a closed hearing on Friday morning, ruled that Juarez is a delinquent and instructed Sheriff Dan Saunders to remove him to the state training school.

Martin County Attorney Roy Pickett sat in as state representative. In attendance at the hearing, which was behind locked doors, were the families of the young defendant and his victim. The only witnesses were the sheriff, Deputy Sheriff Earnest Althart, A. C. Fleming and James Bullard.

Juarez took little interest in the proceedings. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selferino Juarez, distraught, sadly watched the proceedings, Mr. and Mrs. Elesio Hernandez, the parents of young Pedro, quietly listened to the testimony.

Saunders said he would probably remove Juarez to Gatesville early next week. Meantime, he is being detained in a cell in the Howard County jail.

Juarez was arrested at midnight last Monday after Saunders and others in a searching party had found the battered body of young Pedro buried under cotton seed in a gin house at Lenora.

The 13-year-old youth calmly confessed to the sheriff that he had killed the boy—stomping and beating him to death. Asked why, he said that "he got a thrill out of killing something other than birds and rabbits."

NASA Admits Perils As Astronaut Readies Orbit Attempt Early Saturday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. was described today as being well prepared to make his historic trip tomorrow around the world in a space capsule.

Meanwhile weather conditions for the flight still looked good; that is, the seas were fairly calm and the skies were still clear, both here and downrange.

For the first time since the news briefings began for the launching of the astronaut, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman, Lt. Col. John Powers, emphasized the element of risk involved in the program.

He said he had talked to Glenn earlier and Glenn felt that everything possible had been done to reduce the risk, but that the risk remained nonetheless, and Glenn hoped everyone understood that fact.

Powers said that if the braking rockets, for example, failed to fire, thus preventing Glenn's return to earth, the space capsule would remain in orbit for a week or 10 days before slipping back to the atmosphere.

He pointed out that Glenn would have oxygen only for 24 hours, and that the carbon dioxide removal unit would function for about 24 hours in space.

In the course of the discussion about the projected man flight, Powers also said there was no firm commitment to go three orbits, but that this would depend on launch time.

THREE ORBITS

Barring unforeseen launching difficulties or in-flight problems, the NASA spokesman said that Glenn probably would make three orbits if launched around 7:30 a.m. Saturday. Glenn will make only two orbits if launched after 9:30 a.m., Powers continued, and only one orbit if launched after 11 a.m.

The flight time was amended by Powers for three orbits to approximately 4 hours and 50 minutes, rather than the 4½ hours previously indicated in news releases.

Powers pointed out, however, that all these times were tentative and subject to revision if troubles are encountered at any point in the launch procedure.

TO TALK REGULARLY

The NASA spokesman said that throughout the flight, Glenn would talk to the earth every 30 seconds. The element that will possibly limit the number of orbits for Glenn is daylight. Hunter aircraft and ships must have daylight to see the descent of the capsule into its ocean landing areas.

A big huddle was held at this missile range headquarters Thursday and Walter C. Williams, Mercury operations director, called the roll.

The Air Force reported the Atlas D booster was "go" (ready to go). This Atlas, plus the space shuttle atop it and a 16-foot escape tower on top of that, stands 93 feet tall.

Another officer mentioned that the worldwide tracking system has some minor problems—nothing unusual in view of the tremendous complexities and nothing to pose "any serious threat to the mission."

The Navy said "aye, aye, sir"—all ships and aircraft assigned to recover Glenn were on station, or nearing station.

Weathermen pronounced climatic conditions favorable.

Then it came Glenn's turn to answer.

"The crew is go," said Glenn. The crew consists of Glenn, unless for some reason this cool, evidently nerveless man has to bow out and his backup pilot, Scott Carpenter, takes his place.

The word went out that Glenn, an early-to-bed man when big things are looming, hit the sack in good season Thursday night in the big Hangar 8 that is his home away from home.

Newsman were told by Joseph B. Gillerman, a systems engineer for the Air Research Manufacturing Division of the Garrett Corp., that the life support system in Glenn's space capsule was in perfect order.

FORCED DELAY

A bit of trouble in this breath-of-life system forced a postponement this week, but a valve that was acting up has been replaced.

The system, one of the scientific marvels in the capsule, includes: Oxygen supply lines; a little "debris trap" to prevent Glenn from breathing in dust, hairs or what not that might be floating around in a weightless state; a lithium hydroxide tank which prevents Glenn from breathing in the carbon dioxide he has exhaled; a cooling system and a device to squeeze excess moisture out of the air.

The whole system can keep Glenn alive for 32 hours. The schedule calls for Glenn to be in flight about five hours, including extra time to get into orbit and slowing down to land.

Montana's Governor Dies In Air Crash

WOLF CREEK, Mont. (AP)—Gov. Donald G. Nutter of Montana, his executive secretary, the state agriculture commissioner, and three crew members perished Thursday in a plane crash.

Death of the Republican governor, who recently refused to proclaim United Nations Day in Montana, shocked this state of about 675,000 inhabitants.

Nutter, 46, a World War II bomber pilot and former state GOP chairman, completed his first year in office Jan. 1. He was elected in November 1960 to a four-year term ending in January 1965.

Taking over as chief executive will be the lieutenant governor, Republican Tim M. Babcock, 42, a Billings truck firm operator and former state legislator.

"I've lost the best friend I had and Montana has lost the best friend it had," said Babcock from the governor's mansion where he was called by close friends of the governor's attractive, dark-haired widow, Maxine.

OTHERS KILLED
Killed with Nutter when the plane apparently went out of control in turbulent weather and crashed in a mountain canyon near Wolf Creek, were his executive secretary, Dennis B. Gordon, 38, former Billings oilman and lawyer; State Agriculture Commissioner Edward C. Wren, 43, a Cascade grain farmer and stock rancher; and crew members, pilot Cliff Hanson, co-pilot Joseph Devine and engineer "Chico" Ballard, all of Great Falls.

The twin-engine C47 National Guard plane was carrying the governor and his party to a speaking engagement at Cut Bank in northern Montana near the Canadian border. The plane crashed about 3:30 p.m., about 30 minutes after the plane left Montana's capital city 35 miles south of Wolf Creek.

BUT HOPES SAG

U.S. Seeks Hard Action On Cuba

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP)—The United States fought today for stern action against Castro communism, but hopes sagged sharply under the pressure of mounting opposition among its hemispheric partners.

Uruguay joined the ranks of the so-called soft seven favoring kid glove treatment of the Havana regime.

The eight nations evidently intended to pull the teeth from U.S. proposals to quarantine Castro, set up safeguards against infiltration, sever trade links and drum Havana out of deliberations of the Organization of American States.

The sudden adherence of Uruguay, the host nation, to the soft seven bloc imperiled prospects for the necessary two-thirds vote for stern measures.

IMPASSE

Some delegates admitted an impasse had been reached, but still expressed confidence some solution will be found this weekend.

Rusk and Venezuelan Foreign Minister Marcos Falcon Briceño met throughout the morning with foreign ministers of three nations of the group—Argentina, Chile and Brazil. The session broke up without any progress toward budging the opposition, particularly Brazil. The men arranged further meetings this afternoon.

The deadlock tossed the inter-American foreign ministers conference back another 24 hours. The ministers agreed to extend the deadline for presentation of a resolution for inclusion in the final conference act. The deadline is now 7 p.m. Saturday.

Brazil and Mexico—probably with the support of most if not all other members of the so-called soft seven—objected bitterly to the U.S. plans for a watchdog committee against subversion. The United States wants the committee set up by the inter-American defense board. This would tend to give it a military character.

MILITARY LOOK
Opponents object to the military look and demanded that any such committee be within the framework of the OAS council as a sort of political consultative body. This could be regarded as watering down the impact.

There are also objections to the process by which Cuba would be read out of OAS bodies. Working groups were trying to devise a formula that would be acceptable to most. The main point in this is that Brazil, Mexico and the others of their group stand on the legalistic ground that Cuba is a member of the OAS and cannot be read out within terms of the OAS charter. If they have their way, the effect could be at least to delay Cuba's election.

Members of the seven—perhaps all of them—also disagree with the U.S. call for an end to the present limited trade between Cuba and Latin America. This proposal, in effect economic sanctions, is aimed primarily at stopping the arms trade in both directions.

Brazil led the nations balking at stern treatment of the Havana government. The stand by Latin America's largest nation provoked outspoken criticism from congress-sional members of the U.S. delegation to the hemispheric foreign ministers' conference.

DEADLOCK

There was still talk of a prospective deadlock between the points of view of the seven nations advocating a go-slow approach and the other 13, including the United States, backing a tougher line. Fourteen nations—two-thirds of the OAS membership—must approve the declaration on Cuban communism with which the conference is scheduled to end Monday.

Rusk Thursday urged the ministers to adopt a declaration incorporating these four points: (1) Recognition that Cuba's alignment with the Communist world is incompatible with the inter-American system; (2) Exclusion of the Castro regime from OAS functions; (3) Intervention of trade between Cuba and the rest of the Americas, particularly in arms, and (4) Establishment of individual and collective defense against political and indirect aggression in the hemisphere.

Brazil remained the major obstacle to the U.S. drive. But Brazil had support from six other nations—Argentina, Chile, Mexico, Bolivia, Ecuador and Haiti—in its stand against economic sanctions. Uruguay also was reported ready to balk at any economic punishment.

DIFFICULTIES

There also were difficulties between the seven and the rest of the nations over the time element involved in removing Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime from OAS organs.

All are willing to declare Cuban communism incompatible with the inter-American system, but Brazil and Mexico particularly seem to want to delay the process by which Cuba would be ousted from inter-American family deliberations.

Glenn's Calm, Confident As Takeoff Day Nears

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—It is T minus one, the day before takeoff. All the rehearsals are over. Everything that man can see or foresee has been done. And the countdown begins.

Like the rocket that will fire him into space, the capsule that will orbit him through a soundless world, the ships, the planes, the men, the complex system of electronic eyes and ears that will track him around the world, John Herschel Glenn, Jr. 40, is in a "go" condition.

How does he feel? He feels "calm and confident and anxious to get going," report doctors and others in close contact with the astronaut in the antiseptic quarters at the Canaveral missile center.

To us laymen, the answer remains vaguely incomplete. Yes, but how does he really feel? Surely, he must be frightened, even a little bit? And the answer returns the same, somehow unreal to men lacking Glenn's experience, knowledge and courage: "Calm and confident."

"He is aware of the dangers but they are not in the front of his mind," says Dr. Robert Voas, astronaut trainer and psychologist, who saw him Thursday night.

Despite the postponement earlier this week, Glenn continues to be meticulous about detail but is impatient to take off. Despite the years of training, the weeks of checking and rechecking, the endless rehearsal, the long days of waiting, he retains, we are told, almost a boyish enthusiasm for the great adventure.

For the broad vistas of the earth he may see with a 1,900-mile sweep of the horizon, for the almost total vacuum he will travel in, the floating weightlessness he will feel, the whole, eerie world of outer space where the sky turns black and the stars hang limp and round and untwinkling in the ever-beckoning beyond.

3-Car Crash Kills 5 People

VICTORIA (AP)—Five persons died as three cars piled up in dense fog 25 miles south of here on U.S. 77 Thursday. Seven were injured.

The crash killed William Hammack, 62, of Texas City; his wife Ruby, 56; his mother, Mrs. Mary Hammack of Atlatla, Tex.; Harvey Mathis, 61, of Leesville, La., and his wife Elma, 56.

The dead rode in two cars which collided head-on as one sought to pass a semi-trailer truck.

Deputy Sheriff C. E. Brown said Guadalupe Marec, driver of the truck, reported the Hammack vehicle tried to pass him and collided with the car driven by Mrs. Mathis.

There were no skid marks and the drivers evidently did not see each other until a split second before the collision, Brown said.

Seven persons suffered slight injuries as their car rammed into the wreckage of the first two. Treated at a Refugio hospital and dismissed were Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Garcia of Sugar Land, their two daughters and three grandchildren.

Tom Porter Leaves Hospital Position

Thomas L. Porter, vocational rehabilitation counselor at the Big Spring State Hospital, will leave Saturday after a tenure of more than two years, according to Dr. Preston E. Harrison, superintendent.

Porter has been with the department since October, 1959. He is a Big Spring man, born here May 22, 1933, and has lived here all except four years when he was in Lubbock. He attended college there, graduating with a master's degree in counseling and guidance in 1958.

Among his accomplishments while working here, Porter has helped institute the housekeeping program for women patients. Since mid-1961, 31 patients have been placed in jobs outside the hospital. All had been hospitalized 5-25 years.

A Halfway House, which may be arranged shortly, is another project on which he has worked. It will enable patients who are almost ready to be discharged to live off hospital grounds and work during a period of transition from hospital life to normal living.

Porter will be leaving for Columbia, Mo. where he will attend the University of Missouri.

"I want to advance my knowledge of the field in which I work," he said. He will be taking counseling psychology for about two years.

Woodfin Mann will be holding down the job of vocational rehabilitation counselor alone until a replacement can be made. Mann has been working with Porter since September, 1961.

He is also a Texas Tech graduate.

THOMAS L. PORTER

Zales Earnings At Record High

DALLAS—Net earnings of Zales Jewelry Company, Inc., soared to an all-time record high for the nine months ended December 31, 1961, it is announced by President Ben A. Lipsky.

He said the net sales rose to a peak of $52,878,789 for the current period a gain of 15.42 per cent as compared with last year's record of $45,816,537.

Earnings for the current period were $2,534,413, up from $2,386,889 reported a year ago, a 6.2 percent higher than the previous peak of $2,637,714 reported in 1959.

Per share earnings of $1.73 represents a 14 per cent increase over the $1.48 of a year ago, and is 5 per cent higher than the previous record of $1.64 in 1959. Per share earnings are based on 1,436,213 shares currently outstanding.

Kiwanis Hear Y Program

Big Spring Kiwanians heard of the work of the YMCA at a luncheon meeting in the Y building Thursday noon. It was the club's way of observing National YMCA Week.

Kiwanians were told of the work the organization does here and of the opportunities it offers for relaxation and exercise for many persons who are not availing themselves of the facilities available.

Speakers were three members of the YMCA staff—Francis Flint, Curtis Chapman and Joe Leach. A 5-minute film on the approved mouth-to-mouth method of artificial respiration was screened as a closing feature.

Announcement was made that captains have been named for ticket selling campaign activities in connection with the club's annual Pancake Supper. The supper is slated for the evening of Feb. 23 at the Howard County Junior College Student Union Building.

Ernest Welch, acting for himself and Sherman Smith, chairman of the project, announced the names of the captains and handed out tickets. The club members left the meeting with $900 worth of tickets to sell. Tickets for adults are 75 cents and 50 cents for children.

The club hopes to serve as many as 2,000 at the supper.

Captains are Jay Banks, Stanley Bogard, Ernest Welch, J. E. Smith, V. Ward Jackson, Bruce Dunn, Robert Travis, Harve Clay, Bill Johnson and Walter Eubanks. Each captain has selected his team members from the club.

Points Checked By Cub Den 5

Cubs in Den 5, Pack 137 discussed plans for a pack meeting scheduled Tuesday and checked points for which they will receive credit at a meeting held Wednesday at the home of Den Mother, Mrs. Doyle Hale. Attending the meeting were Glen Spoon, Rodney Hale, Harvey Jones, Scott McLaurin, Greg Birrell, Richard Everett and Danny Ballard.

DEAR ABBY

Dependable Teen-Agers

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-ager who is not trusted by my parents. I don't know why they don't trust me but I know they don't. Will you please tell me how I can prove to my parents that I am dependable and can be trusted? I know lots of other teen-agers with the same problem.

NOT TRUSTED DEAR NOT TRUSTED: Trust must be EARNED. Your parents should give you a few added privileges and then let your actions determine whether you are able to handle them. If you prove to be unreliable, then those privileges should be withheld for a while. Most parents would be pleasantly surprised to know how dependable their teen-agers could be if given the chance.

DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column from the wife who wanted to leave her husband because he had an affair with another woman. Perhaps my story will help her and others like her. My husband had an affair with a married woman for about six years. They enjoyed their "secret love" for one year. And he spent the next five years trying to get rid of her. Legally she could do nothing, but she made life miserable for him, threatening to tell me if he quit seeing her.

Finally, in desperation, he came to me with our minister and told me. He had been such a wonderful husband and father that I thought he was joking. Oh, how he suffered inside for his mistake! That was 18 years ago, Abby. We since have reared four wonderful children in the happiest home you could imagine. My pride was wounded, too, but only for a day, for I knew he really loved me. He has made up for that hurt in a thousand ways. I am glad I forgave him. WISE DECISION

DEAR WISE: How very wise you are. No one should be punished a lifetime for one mistake.

DEAR ABBY: I wish there were a magic mirror for grandparents who brag about their grandchildren. I can excuse grandparents who are still thrilled with their first grandchild, but I cannot for the life of me understand people who have had four and five grandchildren and continue to bore their friends with their pictures and cute sayings. Don't think I am jealous because I have six grandchildren of my own and, believe me, I could brag plenty, but I have too much consideration for others. Please print this. I want to buy 20 newspapers, and clip this item and send it to some of my friends. BORED STIFF

CONFIDENTIAL TO EMMA: If you have to ask me if you are "in love"—you aren't.

Charles Beil Assigned Here

Charles Beil has been assigned to Big Spring as sales representative of the Burroughs Corporation, J. Howard Meadows, Midland, zone sales manager, announced today.

Beil, who came here from Oklahoma City where he has been with Burroughs for the past 2 1/2 years, will serve a nine-county area for all of the business machines, from adding machines through computers.

A native of Seminole, Okla., Beil is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a BBA degree. He was for two years in the Army in the Philadelphia Air Defense system before joining Burroughs. He and his wife, Joan, and their two daughters, Beverly and Brenda, reside on the Old San Angelo road. He is a Methodist and Pi Kappa Alpha.

He Also Won The Booby Prize

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Air Force officials said Donald Sass took the first, second, third and fourth prizes in a contest at the recreation center at Lackland Air Force Base.

As a result he was charged by FBI agents with theft. He was arraigned on charges of taking four handbags containing cameras, cigarette lighters and wallets.

They were used as prizes in contests at the center.

"FORBID NOT"

By T. H. Tarbot, preacher, Church of Christ, 5000 West Highway 50 P.O. Box 1283.

It is often asserted that "Forbid not to speak with tongues" (I Cor. 14:39) means we should not object to the doctrine that the miraculous gift of tongues is for today. In objecting to this doctrine, we are not forbidding anyone to speak in tongues. No one today speaks in "tongues," in the Bible sense. We would not forbid them if they did. The miraculous gift of "tongues" enabled a man to speak in as many as 15 different tongues which he had not studied; and to do so on one occasion so that the audience could understand in their native tongues. See Acts 2:4-11. If men today cannot do like the people of the First Century did, it only means they did not have the same gift. There is no denying it. We do not forbid them to do what the early Christians did who had this miraculous gift. On the contrary, we challenge them to "speak in tongues." Sunday's sermon: "How One is Called to Preach" (10:30); "How Right is the Bible" (7:00). Plan to come. —Adv.

MEN IN SERVICE

Jimmy Chandler, son of Mrs. Jenette Chandler, 1005 Main, is currently undergoing training as Electrician's Mate, at U. S. Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif. For Fireman Apprentice. Chandler, this is the first phase of his nuclear training, for which he enlisted in September, 1961. The next phase will consist of submarine school, then nuclear power plant training.

The nuclear field of enlistment is one way the Navy obtains new men for duty aboard nuclear powered ships, such as the atomic submarine Nautilus, the world's first atomic submarine. Qualified High School graduates may select their field of training before enlistment. Information is available at the local Navy recruiting station in the post office basement.

Billy J. Rose, aviation machinist's mate first class, USN, son of Thadis R. Rose, 1226 E. 15th, is serving with Utility Squadron Eight at the Naval Station, Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico. The squadron provides remote-control

Defends Modern Teaching Method

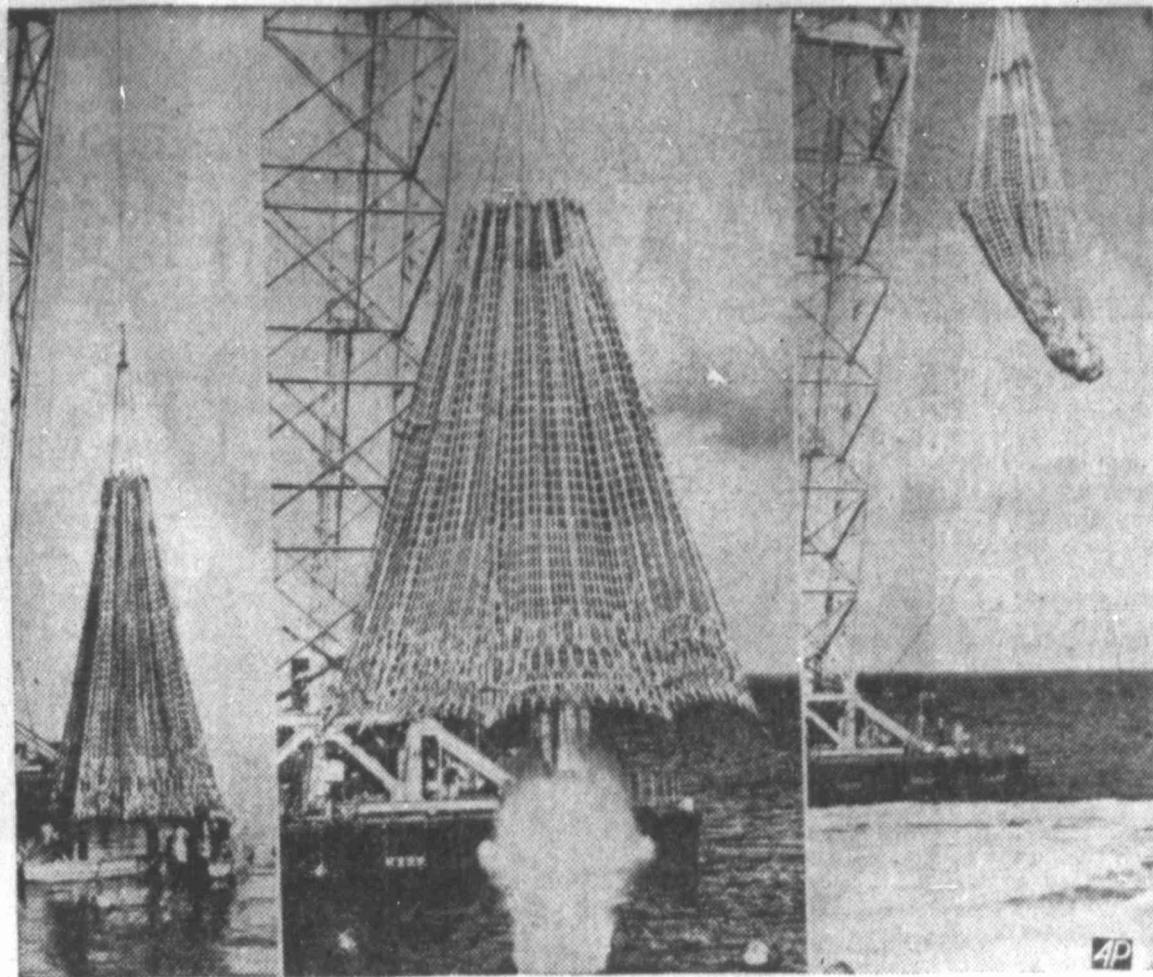

Dorothy Prince, instruction supervisor for the Ector County Independent School District, addressed 85 area schoolmen at the West Texas School Study Council meeting Wednesday at Texas Tech in Lubbock.

She spoke on "an effective reading program — grades 1-12." In her talk, she defended modern teaching methods of reading. She described a sound reading program as including a strong, interested school staff; a systematic teaching method; an evaluation of the reading program; proper communication between the faculty, parents and children.

Three members of the local school district attended the meeting, including Sam Anderson, superintendent; Mrs. Ruth Rutherford, elementary principal; and John Smith, high school principal.

Election-Year Civil Rights Battle Shapes Up In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—An election-year battle over civil rights legislation began shaping up today in the Senate.

The first move came unexpectedly Thursday when Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana introduced what he called an administration bill to prevent literacy tests from being used to deny voting rights.

Mansfield also pledged that if the measure should get bogged down in committee, he would move to attach it as a rider to some other legislation up for Senate action.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a leading advocate of civil rights legislation, promptly said that Mansfield's move would throw the door wide open for action in this field.

He told newsmen he would be ready to offer riders providing federal aid to schools that desegregate, arming the attorney general with authority to bring injunction suits for the protection of civil rights generally, and eliminating poll tax payments as a voting requirement.

Five states — Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia — require payment of poll taxes.

Mansfield's bill would make the completion of six grades in an accredited school the test of whether a person is qualified to vote, insofar as literacy is concerned.

in congressional and presidential elections.

Last September, in a report on voting, the Civil Rights Commission said six years of schooling should meet any state literacy requirement.

The measure was the first offered by the administration in the civil rights field since President Kennedy took office a year ago.

Exams Announced

Several examinations have been announced by the Civil Service Commission. Included are those for hospital recreation specialist ($4,345-$7,560 per annum); aviation safety officer ($5,305-$8,955 per annum); airplane pilot ($6,435-$10,365 per annum); Electronic equipment repairman ($2,092-$2,422 per hour). Information may be had from the civil service clerk at the post office.

No Promoting For Pet Ideas

TYLER (AP)—Texas A&M President Earl Rudder declared Thursday that "the extension service and its county agents are not going to promote anyone's pet philosophy, program or ideology."

Speaking at the East Texas Bankers Agricultural Conference, he also said:

"In recent months, some county extension agents in East Texas have run into difficulty and criticism because they held educational programs on the Area Re-development Act.

"The federal government gave the A&M System money and charged us with the responsibility to explain the ARA program. A&M College is not going to promote the ARA program."

Rudder said he had read a published report "that county agents are being asked by Washington to get into politics" and added:

"They will not do this as long as I am president of Texas A&M. If we are asked to explain a program or plan, we can do it without being overzealous."

Depressions Form Over Atom Sites

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Mammoth depressions have formed in the earth over the area where four of the current series of underground nuclear test explosions were conducted, officials said on Thursday.

The Atomic Energy Commission revealed the ground on the Nevada test site sank up to 50 feet in area up to several hundred feet wide.

The depressions developed 15 to 25 minutes after the blasts. All the detonations involved devices fired at the bottom of vertical shafts drilled into the earth and refilled prior to firing.

The AEC theorized the surface collapsed after underground cavities were formed by the force of expanding nuclear fireballs.

There was no marked increase in radiation around the depressions, the AEC said.

Party Convention Bill Is Approved

AUSTIN (AP)—A bill cleared the House and went to the governor's desk today which would change the basis for representation at political party conventions.

The House passed the measure 162-39 without amendments. It already had been approved by the Senate.

It provides representation on a basis of the vote for a party's candidate for governor in the last general election, whether in a presidential year or not. Present law allots delegates on the basis of the gubernatorial vote in the past presidential year election.

Jet Barge Firm OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final authorization has come from the Interstate Commerce Commission for the start of a unique barge service from New Orleans to Denison, Tex., via the Red River.

The ICC issued a certificate for the Mississippi Red River Transport Co. to begin the operation in the hitherto unnavigable waters.

In Fort Worth, the firm's owner Barney Holland Jr. said:

"There is nothing to do now but go to work. We've been waiting and waiting."

Mississippi Red River Transport Co. grew out of Holland's Heart of Texas Transportation Co., which originally sought authority for the barge service.

An ICC spokesman said the firm cleared the last hurdle by filing an acceptable schedule of tariffs for the 900-mile service.

The route includes a stretch of the Red River which Army Engineers had classified as unnavigable. The transport firm insisted in its application last year, and the ICC agreed, that its barges could clear this section of river.

This is possible, the ICC found, by using tugboats equipped with special hydrojet units.

Start Toward A Quarantine

Secretary of State Dean Rusk's four-point proposal to the OAS is less stringent than had been anticipated a few weeks ago, but observers feel they are more in line with expectations from the conference at Punta Del Este in Uruguay.
He got the most vociferous cheers to date when he delivered a blistering attack on Castro and his Red regime. What his proposals boil down to is a censor of Castro communism, identification of this as a hemisphere cancer, and the employment of steps to isolate and quarantine this intrusion into hemispheric affairs.
What Mr. Rusk pleads is for hemispheric solidarity against communism worming its way into the councils of government in American nations. Yet the approach is tedious for solidarity does not exist on any plane. Many Latin-American nations, while impressed with the

The Point At Issue

The fading days of the special session finds the loans regulation measure bucking tough times in the Senate. The House-approved measure has been altered by changing the title from "Consumer Finance Act" to "Texas Small Loan Act." This was the acknowledged first step in a series designed to modify the House proposal.

A number of small loan companies are, with considerable justification, suspicious that larger operators are backing severe restrictions which only they could live under, and then only until the smaller operators have been forced to retire from business.

It should be recognized that in the small loans insecure class, most are super-risk. The rates are high, but so are the losses. So there needs to be a realistic reconciliation of these two factors.

The sentiment which resulted in the loans constitutional amendment is not against legitimate operators but against an unscrupulous few who prey upon ignorant victims by pyramiding unconscionable costs upon them. How to deal with these without at the same time penalizing reputable operators is the sticky problem at issue.

The Managed Economy

WASHINGTON — Three hundred pages of "gobbledygook" on how the Kennedy administration intends to operate, if it can, a managed economy reminiscent of the 1930s have been submitted in a message to Congress. Part of it is a statement signed by the President, and part of it is a report to him by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

THE NET of it all is that the executive branch of the federal government intends to use its monetary powers, its controls of credit, its public-works appropriations and its powers of taxation to influence the operations of American business. But not the slightest measure of restraint is to be exerted upon labor-union monopolies which bring about inflation and depreciate the dollar's purchasing power.

Congress has yet to concur in the recommendations of the message, but there are many powers already vested in the executive branch of the government that can make all the difference in the world between having a recession or depression and having prosperity. Typical of the astigmatism of the administration is the following excerpt from the President's message:

"WHEN BETTER plant and equipment enable the labor force to produce more in the same number of hours, there is more to share among all the contributors to the productive process—and this can happen with no increase in prices. Gains achieved in this manner endure, while gains achieved in one turn of the price-wage spiral vanish on the next.

"The nation must rely on the good sense and public spirit of our business and labor leaders to hold the line on the price level in 1962. If labor leaders in our major industries will accept the productivity benchmark as a guide to wage objectives, and if management in these industries will practice equivalent restraint in their price decisions, the year ahead will be a brilliant chapter in the record of the responsible exercise of freedom."

BUT WHAT IS the "productivity benchmark"? The President's Council of Economic Advisers, in the very same report, puts it this way:

"How is the public to judge whether a particular wage-price decision is in the national interest? No simple test exists, and it is not possible to set out systematically all of the many considerations which bear on such a judgment. However, since the question is of prime importance to the strength and progress of the American economy, it deserves widespread public discussion and clarification of the issues. What follows is intended as a contribution to such a discussion."

scope and significantly omits all reference to the irresponsibility of trade unions and the monopoly power they wield through industry-wide bargaining. Somehow the entire document, including the President's part of it, shows a timidity, if not a fear, about dealing with the touchy subject of union excesses. Instead, there is emphasis on management's tendency to increase prices to absorb labor costs, as if this were a sin.

Both the President and his economic consultants, however, would have been well advised to study what happened in New York a week ago and take its lesson to heart. The Washington "Star," in an editorial last Sunday, called attention to a fundamental weakness in the economy when it said:

"THE 'SETTLEMENT' of the electrical workers' strike in New York City is a perfect example of what's wrong with the construction industry in this country. Originally the union demanded a 20-hour week. Now it has 'compromised,' settling for a 25-hour week plus an increase in hourly pay and assurances of five hours in overtime. Under the old contract an electrician worked six hours a day at $4.40 an hour and a seventh overtime hour for $6.60. Under the new agreement he will work five hours at $4.96 an hour and the sixth hour at $7.44. Should there be more than five hours of overtime he will make more for a 25-hour week than he did for a 30-hour week . . .

"THE SIMPLE explanation for this result is that the union, with a monopoly of workers in short supply and entrenched behind its statutory immunity from the antitrust laws, can get away with just about anything it pleases. Had an association of businessmen tried to work any such gouge as this, the Department of Justice antitrust lawyers would be sweating day and night to put them in the pokers. But in the case of the electricians not a voice of protest has been raised in official Washington."

This trend in the construction industry, just at a time when there is a lot of talk about the government subsidizing more housing, can gravely affect one of the nation's key industries and can spread to other unions.

ON MATTERS of this kind, the President's economic report reads lightly. Obviously the politician doesn't want to alienate his principal source of support in political campaigns—the trade unions and their financial contributions.

This is the kind of materialism which tends to negate the professions of high idealism that are sprinkled through the administration's messages to Congress. It's one reason why all the rosy predictions of economic prosperity in the President's latest message are accompanied by requests for power to deal with expected recessions. If not depressions, as well as with inflationary trends in recovery periods that weaken the purchasing power of the dollar.

Blind Chess

TORONTO — A new chess set for the blind has been designed by a Toronto furrier.

The pieces, developed by Abraham Rubin, have came-like tops so the blind can feel them. The board has round holes for the white and square holes for the black spaces. Diagonal moves are made easy by use of guide channels between the squares.

Rubin worked on the pieces and board in his home workshop for 17 years.

In the past year three clubs have been organized by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, using Rubin's board and the board is also used at the Ontario School for the Blind.

Tariff Battle Will Be Biggest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Of all his 1962 programs, President Kennedy will probably fight hardest—and have to—for the one he sent to Congress Thursday, asking power to cut tariffs in big swipes.

He knows what he's in for and acknowledged at his news conference Wednesday he may get hit from several directions.

For example: By sectional or local interests who are afraid that their particular product will be hurt by some European import which, through lowered American tariffs, can come in to compete with them.

KENNEDY SAID he needs the tariff-cutting power to bring the United States into a trading partnership with Europe's new Common Market countries.

If that market reaches its ideal state, the European members will wipe out tariffs on one another so completely that their products will move across one another's frontiers as freely as trade in America moves across all 50 state lines.

But, while wiping out tariffs on one another for their mutual benefit, they will keep them up or raise them on imports from nonmembers. That will apply to the United States unless this country makes deals with them to lower tariffs on our stuff if we lower tariffs on theirs.

Kennedy is not proposing this country join the Common Market. That could come later. Right now he's concerned with getting Congress to let him make tariff-cutting deals.

AT THIS TIME total American exports are roughly around $20 billion, imports about $15 billion. If this country should get shut out, that favorable export balance would get a big dent in it.

Then in order to compete with European-made products on their own ground—Kennedy pointed out in Thursday's message—more American plants will be tempted to open factories in Europe.

That would mean loss of jobs, income and industry in this country. But lower tariffs which made it easier for competitive European products to come in would without question hurt some American industries.

FOR THIS REASON some of the toughest opposition, and perhaps biggest damage, to Kennedy's tariff-cutting request will come from various sections and local communities which may feel they are fighting for their life.

For example, the AFL-CIO, as a national organization, can back up Kennedy by turning loose its lobbyists to buttonhole members of the House and Senate to persuade them to go along with the President.

But AFL-CIO union locals can do just the opposite. For example, say the local is in some town where the only industry — and main source of employment — is a factory making rocking chairs.

Suppose further Kennedy got the power to make bigger tariff cuts and did so on German rocking chairs in order to get a lower tariff from the Common Market countries on some other American item.

If the union local which makes rocking chairs felt the German rockers would put them out of business, they could and would put the heat on their own congressman not to let Kennedy cut tariffs. And so would their local businessmen.

Multiply this example many times—and even enlarge it from a town to a whole section of the country—and it is easy to visualize the kind of fight Kennedy has on his hands from a lot of members in Congress.

Hal Boyle

Why The Rush?

NEW YORK (AP)—The father was obviously deeply distressed.

"I'm worried about my son," he said. "He's 18, and can't make up his mind what he wants to be. 'Oh, he's doing well enough in his studies, and he doesn't get into trouble. But he can't seem to decide on a career."

"What's the matter with the younger generation today? So many of them seem lost and drifting. Don't they realize the world is getting more competitive every day? They can't dawdle forever about what they want to do in life."

"Why, when I was his age— and the man went into a long harangue about how, early in youth, he had decided on a profession, stuck with it, and everything had turned out pretty well for him—all things considered.

Unconsciously, what he really was saying was, "Why can't my son be like me?"

I couldn't help feeling sorry for the father. His distress was easily understandable. Every parent wants to see his children pick a worthwhile life goal as soon as possible, and buckle down to the pursuit of it.

But I couldn't restrain a deeper feeling of kinship and sympathy for that particular man's son. It seems to me that too many parents today try to hurry their daughters into marriage or their sons into a safe niche in some big safe corporation.

"I just want to see them settled in something," they say of their children.

They overlook the fact that nothing can be more unsettling to a young person than to find, a few years later, he has settled in the name of security for a role he isn't really suited for. Such a person often comes to disaster in middle age.

What is the real rush to pick a lifelong career so early anyway? While it is important for anyone to find out what he really wants to do with his life, it is equally important for him to find out what he doesn't want to do with it.

Youth is a reaching, questioning, uncertain time. Youth is the best time for trial and error. Youth is the time for trying on separate dreams until you find one that fits you, and can be worn ever after.

In most parts of the world a young man doesn't have to worry about a career. He does what his father did.

The glory of America is that it is a land of many choices. A young man or woman is surrounded by opportunity and change. Each can choose from a hundred or more callings, if he has the will and energy to do so.

To Your Good Health

Get Rid Of Cause To Get Rid Of Callus

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D. Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any particular way of removing a callus from the ball of the foot? We have tried all sorts of remedies. My husband is on his feet all day on hard cement.—MRS. J. T.

A callus is a thickening of the skin due to unusual pressure. Remove the pressure and in time the callus will go away of its own accord. The proof is in what happens to someone doing work that puts heavy and continuing pressure on the hands—hammering, chopping wood, digging in the garden, rowing a boat. Anything that causes substantial pressure.

Stop doing, and one day you realize that the hands have softened. The calluses have disappeared so gradually that you didn't notice.

It's similar with calluses on the feet, except that conditions aren't quite the same as a rule. A callus on the hand isn't so painful because it isn't jammed into the flesh. Or if it is a bit painful, you change your grip so the callus doesn't hurt — that is, doesn't press too hard into the flesh underneath.

On the foot, however, you can't "change your grip." Your foot stays in essentially the same position inside the shoe, within limits of a small fraction of an inch. The pressure comes repeatedly on exactly the same point. If you walk five miles in a day you step on each foot nearly 5,000 times; with the pressure always in the same place!

Or even if you mostly stand still, the pressure is there. So, with those facts, what can be done about a painful callus on the ball of the foot? Why, relieve the pressure. How?

First, if the person is overweight, reduce.

Second, have an expert examine for faulty "foot mechanics," meaning flatness, fallen arches, or other less common defects.

Third, if this examination indicates that shoes aren't properly fitting the foot, get new ones. There's sometimes more to "proper fit" than getting shoes long enough and wide enough. Arch supports or other modifications may be needed.

Believe me, some defect in the arch or structure can throw the foot into a position that isn't painful—except that it keeps the foot from distributing the weight properly, and the result is a callus where the weight is concentrated. Floors, whether wood, cement or other materials, don't make any great amount of difference.

If conditions are such to create a callus, getting rid of the callus means only that a new one will form. That's why trimming, paring, or medication are at best temporary. You've got to get rid of the pressure (the cause) before you are permanently rid of a callus.

Home remedies, for that reason are of hardly any use. Better a bill for an examination by your doctor or by a podiatrist, and, perhaps different shoes, than continued torture of the feet.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me a copy of "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." I enclose 20 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Are hemorrhoids the same as piles? —MRS. W.

Yes, exactly the same thing.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband drinks 5 or 6 shots of whisky before he eats his lunch. Is this harmful? He has a duodenal ulcer and belches a lot.—T. S.

Certainly it's harmful, and your husband doesn't need me to tell him so. His ulcer is telling him so, too—but he won't listen. Evidently he's one of those people who have to learn the hard way. I'm sorry.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

Old Principle Getting New Results

One of the definitions of the word "ranger" is to roam far afield, usually with a purpose. One who ranges, then, is a "ranger."

Early European military establishments, built around the new gunpowder devices which changed the nature of war for all time, included special units called "rangers" because commanders had learned that not even gunpowder had changed some of the more basic principles of warfare. Scouting, reconnaissance and nuisance raiding still were necessary.

IT WAS AMONG the early Americans that the modern ranger principle evolved. British arms were invincible on the Continent, as they were even in America in the open field where European tactics could be used. But Gen. Braddock's disaster proved the limitations of those tactics, and Rogers' Rangers plus other irregular units in the French and Indian skirmishes established the ranger principle for good.

Still, neither Europe nor the American republic learned this principle, except in a limited way—such as use of U.S. Army Rangers and British Commandos in World War II. The U.S. Cavalry, for example, took a continued and vicious drubbing from those all-time champion guerrillas, the Redskins, before the latter finally were worn down.

THE APACHE NATION kept us hopping and bleeding from the 1840s to the late 1870s. Final victory came with the aid of science (use of the heliograph to keep Geronimo's band constantly spotted) plus deployment of thousands of cavalrymen.

And all this against a few dozen Apache warriors.

The Comanches were the only other nation that ever whipped the Apaches—and with finality. It would seem that the Comanches should have been the tribe to hold out longest—and would have been but for one thing: the Texas Rangers. These were specially selected men who knew all the ways of the Indian, and the keys of their own advanced civilization besides.

THEIRS WAS A DOUBLE advantage. The Rangers were formed primarily as a military unit to destroy the Comanche nation, and only later came into the law enforcement field. Their training and organization were flexible and adaptable to the peculiar circumstances of anti-guerrilla fighting. Indeed, the famed six-shooter first was designed for Ranger use—the chamber for quick-fire and fast, easy re-loading; the long barrel for rifle-type accuracy; the barrel and the heavy butt for use as a club. Again, technology to the rescue, but this time in the hands of experts.

TODAY, THE WORLD is faced with Communist guerrilla warfare, methods that can and have toppled rulers of small nations in spite of the latter's beefed-up regular military establishments. But it seems we finally have learned our lesson. News reports in the last year or so have contained references to U.S. "anti-guerrilla" experts helping train both our own and allied troops. Further, special ranger-type units are being formed and trained. Somewhere, there is some obscure decision-maker or idea-man who deserves a medal. —BOB SMITH

Everybody Lauds Jackie's Elegance

American fashion designers and Seventh Avenue, the heart of America's dress industry, are agreed that Jacqueline Kennedy is the greatest thing that has happened to and for American fashion since wash-and-wear.

AS FOR Clare Boothe Luce, who criticizes Mrs. Kennedy's liking for French clothes in the current issue of McCall's magazine, she can go climb a tree. A galling poll of the garment industry shows it is lined up solidly in the Kennedy column.

"The New York fashion industry owes Mrs. Kennedy nothing but a vote of thanks for her influence, wholly beneficial, on American fashion," in the opinion of Mollie Parnis, who was Mrs. Eisenhower's favorite designer during Mamie's eight years in the White House. "The First Lady is a designer's dream!

"WHAT WOMAN'S heart doesn't warm occasionally to a Paris dress?" asks Miss Parnis, who is not only a distinguished designer but an engagingly frank woman. "Mine does. And I make American clothes! To pick on a young woman of such elegance and taste as Mrs. Kennedy, when she is a great credit to fashion as a whole, is surely scraping the bottom of the barrel."

"Why this fuss about Paris clothes when there is so much French influence in American fashion? Let's be honest. Why do most American designers go to Paris constantly?"

LARRY ALDRICH, president of the New York Couture Group, which includes many of the country's most famous designers, agrees that Mrs. Kennedy has had the most beneficial effect on fashion. "A woman of such exquisite taste as Mrs. Kennedy, who is constantly in the public eye, cannot help but elevate the taste of all her countrywomen," he contends.

Jane Derby, one of America's top-notch designers, believes that the First Lady not only has a beneficial influence on American fashion but on American manners.

"MRS. KENNEDY makes women want to put their best foot forward, and that's what counts," says Mrs. Derby, famous for her "Lady-like" clothes.

Rosalie Macmillan, whose speciality is fine cocktail and evening clothes, says, "Mrs. Kennedy exudes elegance. I think she could help the American dress industry by wearing more American clothes. But, in the meantime, her influence on American fashion has been all to the good."

VERA MAXWELL, famous designer who counts Princess Grace of Monaco among her close, personal friends, is jubilant that "there is an elegant woman in the White House. She makes other women want to spruce up. Her taste is impeccable, and has had a notable effect on American women and fashion. I think Mrs. Kennedy ought to foster American fashion and materials. But I think she should also have the privilege of buying real French clothes if she wants them."

JO COPELAND, long a leading designer of the American couture, asked, "Where can you find a 100 percent, all-American, foolproof dress wholly unflattered by the French or Italian couture? Mrs. Luce is splitting hairs. I think Mrs. Kennedy has had a wonderful influence on American fashions, no matter where she buys her clothes. And I still think she should be able to buy what she wants."

The final comment comes from a couture designer who says, "I think Mrs. Luce just confused her last year's mumm with her this year's meow. meow." (Copyright, 1962, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

JFK's Troubles Under Divided Powers

(Second in a series of two articles)

WASHINGTON—An important part of the conditioning of every member of the Kennedy family from childhood onward is hard, daily exercise of the most fiercely competitive sort. From touch football to skiing to tennis to skin-diving they play to win.

President Kennedy has been less a prisoner than many previous occupants of the White House. He has insisted on a private life which has even included occasional outside parties. But increasingly the unceasing demands of the office have closed around him.

HOW FRUSTRATING is the confinement? Does he regret the free-wheeling life of the past when he could forget himself in a game of touch football or fly off to Jamaica on an impulse without benefit of the Secret Service or any other restraint?

The President's answer is: no. Because of his back condition, which put him on crutches after the meeting in Vienna last summer, he cannot go in for violent exercise. Twice a day he swims in the White House heated swimming pool.

THE NOMINATION meant that he had an apparatus to carry him along. And now at the end of a year in the White House he feels at ease with the incredibly complex machine of government. He has his own people in the departments, people he knows and trusts.

The decisions he must take bear down hard and that applies with special force to the question of whether to resume the testing of nuclear weapons in the atmosphere. He admits to a visceral reaction against such a step. The only real purpose would seem to be with respect to the anti-missile missile that appears almost impossible of achievement. But both the scientists and the military press to test what they believe may be technological breakthroughs.

HAVING MOVED from the Congress to the office of chief executive, the President sees at the end of a year how nearly impossible it is to govern under the system of divided powers. He believes that it is quite clear what powers the executive should have to prevent another recession. But he has little expectation the Congress will grant him the powers he proposed in his State of the Union message and which he will elaborate later.

He mentions a prominent senator long resistant to any increased authority for the executive. Another recession, perhaps in two years, would cost $15 to $20 to $25 billion of loss a year in productivity. But this does not seem to matter to those who resist any change.

PEOPLE SAY HE should fight the committee chairmen who are masters of the blocking strategy and then carry his fight into the congressional campaign in the fall. But in their safe districts they are immune from attack or from any pressure of opinion. He has talked with one or two of these chairmen, and he was left with the impression that they simply did not understand the problems he talked about.

For this fall there are a few "gut" issues, medical care for the aged being one of them. How do you dramatize the advantages of a liberalized trade program in partnership with the European Common Market against a Republican senator who goes around his state saying that imports made with low-cost labor are taking jobs away from Americans? The President is hopeful that some of his legislation rejected at the last session—the retraining bill to help alleviate hard-core unemployment for one—will be passed this time.

BUT HE SEES the fall campaign as the realist that he is. In 1948 President Truman had what appears in retrospect almost to have been an advantage in the Republican Congress that killed or blocked one Truman proposal after another. Truman could run against the "80-worst Congress." But how does a Democratic President campaign when there are Democratic majorities that can be blamed for obstructing the administration program?

The realist in the White House—his critics to the left of center accuse him of too much realism—sees no easy answer. You try to resolve Berlin, Laos and the other immediate and glaring threats and perhaps progress here will bring progress elsewhere. (Copyright, 1962, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Make-Up Technique

Marianna Hill reveals her technique in applying make-up in today's Hollywood Beauty.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Gets Natural Look By Skillful Make Up

By LYDIA LANE — "Men say they like a girl to look natural, that is something quite different from being natural. It is like a plain dress you make at home and a simple one that some famous designer creates. I like naturalness, but in order to achieve it, I use every glamour trick in the bag. It's a great deal easier to plaster or make-up than to apply it so skillfully that people do not think you have used much. Two mistakes that are most common are to stop make-up at the chin line so that the neck and face don't match, and the other is to choose a shade that doesn't blend with your own coloring." Marianna can be proud of her artistry in applying make-up for her complexion does look untouched by cosmetics. We were chatting on "The Tall Man" set as Marianna explained her routine. "I cleanse my face thoroughly, apply a light film of moisture lotion and then a few dots of a liquid make-up that is sheer but gives coverage to circles or blemishes. If the circles are very pronounced," Marianna added, "I pat a little white make-up on before the liquid and then powder with a light-colored finishing powder. "Then I'm ready to make up my eyes," she went on. "With a very fine point on my eyebrow pencil, I draw a black line next to my lashes, bringing it from the outer edge to the bridge of my nose. Then I use eye shadow and mascara. I like the roll-on, waterproof kind. "Sometimes if I'm going to be in the sun or have a noon-time date, I hold my face over a little steam. I do this quickly before combing my hair. After a slight steaming, I pat my face lightly with a tissue. The steam has just enough moisture to keep me from having a powdered look. Then I apply lipstick, and sometimes if I want a gloss to my lips, I apply a tiny touch of baby oil. MORE MAKE-UP TRICKS Every star has her own glamour secrets. What do they do? Cake Decorating Service Planned By TSFSA Meet

Cake decorating services will be offered by members of the TSFSA, local school cafeteria workers, according to plans made at the Thursday meeting at Goliad Junior High School. The group completed a fund raising plan as a means of financially assisting 24 workers when they attend the summer Work Shop, held each year at Texas Tech. Services may be had by calling Mrs. Roger Miller, Goliad; Mrs. J. D. Knouse, Marcy; and Mrs. James Porter, senior high school. The Goliad cafeteria staff was in charge of the meeting and set as their theme, "Happy Birthdays." The table was centered with a large decorated birthday cake and each place setting was marked by a place card bearing the birthdate of the individual. A decorated cup cake and a rose was featured in the decor. On the program were Mrs. Miller who read a birthday poem, Mrs. Oliver whose reading was titled, "Pin a Rose on Me," and

Mrs. B. E. Pennington who read, "Shows in Your Face." Prizes were won by Mrs. Howard Reed and Mrs. Oliver. Mrs. Pennington led the dismissal prayer. The Feb. 6 meeting will be held at Marcy School. Twenty-four members and their director, Mrs. John Annen, were present.

Opti-Mrs. Meet With Mrs. Hyer

Plans for publicizing the play to be sponsored by the Optimist Club were discussed Thursday evening when members of the Opti-Mrs. Club met in the home of Mrs. Reg Hyer with Mrs. R. L. King as cohostess. The play to be presented is titled "The Money Sucker" and the women's group will aid the club in advertising the project. Mrs. J. D. Davenport was named to replace Mrs. King as historian-reporter. The Feb. 22 meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Jack Parrott, 605 George.

Fading Of Fabric Can Be Pre-Tested

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Garments that lack colorfastness to dry-cleaning can be pre-tested, says Marjorie Mead, University of Illinois extension textiles and clothing specialist.

If the label does not say whether the garment can be dry-cleaned or you have lost it, saturate a piece of white cheesecloth with water or drycleaning solvent and rub the fabric. If any color is transferred from the fabric, you can be certain that dry-cleaning will cause removal of colored pigments. Color will become less intense.

Scene Changers' Program Topic

"Scene Changers," a new slide program on home fashions was presented as the program for a meeting of Pot Pourri held Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. James Tidwell. The program stressed the ease with which home scenes could be changed by using ready made.

Nine members were present and planned for a tour of Mabel's Antique Shop, Feb. 13. Guest for the evening was Mrs. Charles Houston.

ALPHA CHI MEETS

Children Subject In Talk For ESA Chapter

Children were discussed for the program presented to Alpha Chi Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, meeting Thursday night in the home of Mrs. Robert Hamilton. Bo Bowen was co-hostess for the occasion.

Mrs. Bill Estes, the speaker, chose for her topic, "My Children and Me," and in relation to the program subject, questionnaires were distributed to those present who afterward read what they had written concerning their own children.

Luther HD Club Has Program

Members of Luther Home Demonstration Club met with six present for a program on dental care, Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis Underwood. Mrs. M. F. Bryant was a guest. The meeting opened with a devotion given by Mrs. Underwood and the program followed presented by Mrs. R. W. Harrison.

Recommendations for 1962 were read and accepted, after which Mrs. Regis Fleckenstein was awarded traveler's prize. Mrs. Fleckenstein will be hostess for the next meeting, Feb. 8.

GS Week To Be Observed

Plans for the observance of National Girl Scout Week were formulated Thursday morning when leaders of Neighborhood Two met in the home of Mrs. George Peacock, 529 Hillside. The week will cover March 11-17.

Plans were made for a Father-Daughter box supper with Mrs. Mel Stinson, leader of Troop 205, as chairman. Members of the program planning committee are Mrs. E. L. Jones, Troop 437, Mrs. R. D. Tyndol, Brownie Troop 67, Mrs. Lester Goswick, Brownie Troop 215, Mrs. Harold Summers, Troop 142.

Mrs. Akin Simpson will be in charge of public relations for Neighborhood Two. Girl Scout cookies will be placed on sale Jan. 26 and may be picked up at the home of Mrs. W. L. Bryant, 1207 E. 16th.

Mrs. D. M. Costlow, district supervisor, and Mrs. Larson Lloyd were guests. Other leaders in the neighborhood are Mrs. D. W. Holcombe, Brownie Troop 205, and Mrs. H. E. Grifford, Troop 336. Refreshments were served prior to the business meeting.

International Theme For Altrusa Program

Each spoke of her homeland and afterward conducted a question and answer period. Places were marked with miniature flags of various countries with larger flags forming centerpiece arrangements on the tables. A standard bearing the Stars and Stripes was background for the main table.

Twenty-four members were present and another guest, Edith Gay,

Steeple's Make A Comeback

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

The church steeple, immortalized by pen and brush as a symbol of that old time religion, is making a comeback in America.

According to a leading steeple maker, use of spires on the nation's churches has increased 40 per cent in the past five years, and they are being used more widely today than at any time since the days of Currier and Ives.

One reason is because many churches have had renovation experiences like that of the First Presbyterian Church of Milton, Pa.

For years the tower of this venerable church, built during the 1850's, stood truncated. Its 57-foot wood and slate spire had been damaged by a storm years ago, removed as a hazard, and for a variety of reasons never replaced.

Recently a crew of engineers, working from a yellowed photograph of the old church, duplicated the original spire in aluminum, prefabricated it in a modern plant, trucked it to the church and hoisted it atop the tower.

Grace Methodist Church of Wilmington, Del., similarly replaced its original twin spires, built in 1866, with aluminum structures towering 20 stories above the ground.

Lightweight, versatile metals, many of them developed or perfected since World War II, have made heavy and expensive supporting structures no longer necessary.

Before these new materials appeared, however, congregations often had to sacrifice aesthetic considerations to expanding budget needs.

Except for duplications of original steeples, contemporary churches (some call them modern) have spires bearing little resemblance to the old-fashioned square structures of colonial days.

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church in Weston, Conn., for example, has a broad-based spire made of glass and located above the altar. The bell tower of St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Norwalk, Conn., is an open structure of vertical and horizontal beams with the bells exposed to view.

Christ Lutheran Church of Carey, Ohio, has a 66-foot needle like spire visible for miles across the flat countryside. And the Church of the Brethren in Huntington, Ind., has a simple five and a half foot spire topped by a 5 foot 10 inch cross.

H. W. Webb Jr., executive vice president of Overly Manufacturing Co., whose spires adorn churches of nearly every denomination in all parts of the country, says there are both geographical and denominational preferences for spires.

Surprisingly, the colonial type spire, a hallmark of old New England, now has its largest market in the South. New England church builders today install as many contemporary spires as colonial.

PRAYER POWER

Child Gave The Alarm

By HELEN REAGAN SMITH
In the little Armenian village of Kora Kola during 1855, the elders were suddenly startled by a 12-year-old who began writing, drawing pictures and communing with the unseen.

The youngster had never been to school and did not know his letters, yet words flowed fluently, correctly upon paper. His excitement was intense.

"The town is in danger," he announced, his eyes wide with fear. "If you want to save your lives, you must leave; go to a land across the waters. The Turks are coming to kill us all!"

The startled inhabitants wondered if this were a childish prating or a "wolf, wolf" story; or could it be a message given from heaven? The strange writing made the Penecostal church members fear truth might be within the youngsters words. (*) But no one left.

As the year 1900 arrived, the elders suddenly announced, "Now is the time to move!"

For 12 years, those who accepted the child's words as prophecy began migrating to America, most of them settling near Los Angeles. By 1912 all who wanted to leave were gone.

In 1914, World War I began and one of the first towns to be wiped off the map was the little Armenian village of Kora Kola destroyed by the Turks.

"The Lord also will be a refuge for the oppressed, a refuge in times of trouble." Psalms 9:9.

*Writings and pictures now in a Los Angeles Penecostal church.

Former Pastor Preaches Here

Rev. John A. English, district superintendent of the Childress District, will be preaching at Wesley Methodist Church Friday evening at 7:30. He will fill the pulpit for both the morning and evening services Sunday.

Rev. English was pastor at Wesley at the time that the old sanctuary was built. The public is invited to visit the church and hear the former pastor.

Reverence For God's Name

EVERY MENTION OF THE NAME OF GOD SHOULD BE IN ACCORD WITH HIS HOLY CHARACTER

Scripture—Exodus 20:7; Leviticus 19:12; Matthew 5:33-37; 6:5-9; Luke 6:46.

By N. SPEER JONES
THE THIRD Commandment prohibits the irreverent use of God's name.

It does not prohibit swearing, but it does prohibit profanity.

What is the difference between the two?

The word "profane" comes from the Latin, meaning "before (outside of) the temple."

Thus it is not sacred, but common and—ultimately—disregarding of anything holy.

Profanity has come to mean, therefore, any irreverent, common or cheap usage of the name of God or of God's Son.

Often this is called swearing. Swearing, however, is not always cheap or irreverent. On the contrary, some of the most solemn and holy occurrences of life are accompanied by swearing of a different type. The

"in vain" can have two meanings, as G. A. Chadwick points out ("Peloubet's Select Notes," pp. 30-31). It can mean "uselessly" or "falsely."

The fundamental importance of the way in which God's name is treated is allied to the usage of names in ancient times.

Nowadays, as Shakespeare comments, "What's in a name?"; it has no real connection with the person who bears it, that is, it tells nothing of the person's character or history, but only serves to distinguish him from others.

In ancient times, on the other hand, a man's name meant his reputation; it also meant his authority or dominion. Finally, it often indicated his personality or character, as, for example, David came to mean "beloved." Thus God's name president of our country swears when he enters into that office. So do witnesses in our courts of law.

For this custom we find Biblical basis. D. Martyn Lloyd-Jones in "Studies in the Sermon on the Mount," cites the instance of Jesus on trial; only after the high priest charged him with an oath did He reply (Matthew 26:63-64). In Hebrews 6:16-20, we find a reference to God Himself taking an oath, as a confirmation, an end to strife and a reassuring consolation.

When Christ says to "Swear not at all," He elaborates that His meaning is not to profane any object or creature, for all belong to God.

means His revealed authority and character—it really means God Himself.

In the Lord's Prayer, we petition for God's name to be kept holy ("Hallowed be Thy name"). This becomes even more meaningful for us when we observe that we are natural imitators, and that whatever we think about God, we ourselves are apt to become, as much as possible. The more we hallow God's name, the more holy our lives will become.

In the reference in Luke 6:46, we find still a different meaning of taking the Lord's name in vain. Giving lip service to God while acting against His wishes is hypocrisy. In Amos 5 and Isaiah 68 we find dramatic references to God's displeasure with ritual holiness unaccompanied by holy living.

A CHRISTIAN HOME

For Adam and Eve, Paradise was home, and for the good people of their race "Home is paradise." Home, however, is what you make it, as one good man said, "Without hearts there is no home." Henry Drummond declared, "The home is the supreme conductor of Christianity;" and Hans Christian Andersen rightly said, "Eighty per cent of our criminals come from unsympathetic homes."

The modern blow-up, explosion and sabotage of home life is due to ignorance and baseness, the like of which has not been seen and the end of which the world has not yet begun to feel. Dr. Christlieb of Germany once said, "What Christianity most needs in her antagonism with every form of unbelief is holy living."

A Christian home comes by taking heed to it by God's Word, Psa. 119:9. "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way, by taking heed thereto according to thy word." Let us pointedly ask, how it would be possible for children to accomplish this without cooperation from their parents in the same kind of living? Psa. 144:11-12, "Rid me and deliver me from the hand of strange children, whose mouth speaketh vanity and whose right hand is the right hand of falsehood; that our sons may be as plants grown up in their youth and that our daughters may be as corner stones polished after the similitude of a palace." Here is a wonderful contrast between strength and beauty of character from the base and vile. How will this beauty of character be possible, without parents leading the way? Are children supposed to accomplish it all alone? Prov. 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart therefrom." The process of training, of gentleness combined with firmness, or watchfulness on the part of parents never ceasing. How many are willing and able to match this duty? Parents, what in the world are you doing to your child? Your habits, speech, your manners, honesty, or hypocrisy?

Ours is the seed time, God alone Beholds the end of what is sown Beyond our vision weak and dim The harvest time is hid with him.

Give God A Chance—God Will Open Doors For You!

THE CALL FROM MOSCOW

"WE WILL BURY YOU," growled the harsh voice at the other end of the line.

"WHAT!" cried Ed Bryson, hardly believing his ears.

"Your belief in God . . ." the voice went on. "... an out-worn superstition leading to foolish notions about democracy and freedom and human rights. Communism will correct this."

"Who do you think you're talking to?" blustered Ed.

"To you, Mr. Bryson. The Party needs you to liberate your countrymen. Encourage them to forget morality for it is a myth. Conscience, it is cowardice. Worship, it is weakness . . ."

"NO," Ed exploded! "NYET if you understand that better! We aren't going to forget the spiritual principles that make the Free World strong. Our kind of liberty is built on God's Truth—and you'll never bury That. Go sell your party line somewhere else. I'm on my way to Church!"

Of course, it was just a dream, Ed admits. (Too much pie at bedtime.) And, thoughtfully, he adds—it shouldn't take a nightmare to make us realize what we believe—and how to preserve that Faith.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Another Full House Expected For Waring Show Saturday

A couple of years ago when Fred Waring brought his Pennsylvanians here as a Big Spring Concert Association offering, there was standing room only at the Big Spring Municipal auditorium.

Saturday evening he brings his troupe back to town with a brand new show, and another full house is in prospect.

Curtain time for the perennial favorite and his orchestra and singers is 8 o'clock. Only concert members may attend, and there are no reserved seats.

Waring presents his new production under the format, "Let Freedom Sing" and he rates it as the major effort of his almost 50 years of showmanship.

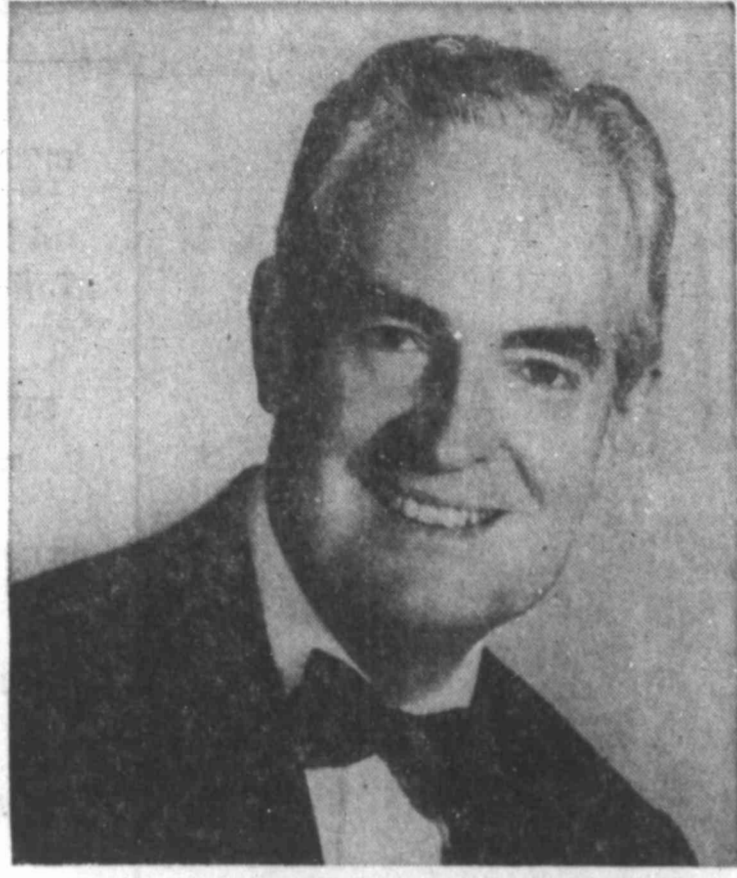

The program is a portrait in sound and color of the American scene from the rivers, mountains and ships to the farms and cities—a musical chronicle of the nation's history and traditions.

The finale is Roy Ringwald's inspiring work, "The Song of America." First performed in June of 1950 by the Pennsylvanians, "The Song of America" has won wide acclaim, and former President Eisenhower rated it as "my favorite patriotic composition."

Elaborate settings and massive lighting and sound systems add to the impact of the show, but Waring's master showmanship is still the levelling.

From the days when he used his mother's curtain rods as a baton for the Boy Scout Drum Corps in Tyrone, Pa., Fred Waring has been making music. As a lad he formed a band, including the frog-voiced Percy McClintonck. Today McClintonck is the ranking member of the Waring organization.

In college, Waring organized an orchestra called the Collegians, and they sang as they played. His mother, a stalwart in the Tyrone Methodist Choir, was the inspiration for the choral adaptations.

HOUSE-PACKER IN RETURN ENGAGEMENT Fred Waring brings troupe back in new show which have become a Waring distinctive. In the 1920's the name Pennsylvanians was applied, and it stuck. The troupe has been an institution ever since.

The Pennsylvanians have been heard by multiplied thousands on the stage, and by millions more over the radio, by recordings and on television. During the Christmas holidays Waring presented his group in a Yuletide TV smash.

McClintonck, noted as the frog-voiced drummer, actually has a fine tenor voice, and with the exception of two years out in the mid-40's when doctors said he would never again sing, he's been with the Pennsylvanians from the beginning.

Censor Probe Reveals Some Cuts Senseless

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators investigating alleged censorship muzzling of military men's speeches against communism said today some of the censoring made little sense.

They used words such as "picaresque" in describing some of the changes censors had ordered or suggested in texts of speeches before clearing them for delivery by top-ranking military officers.

All, however, said they reserved judgment until their special investigating subcommittee gets the full story. They noted that so far no military witness, although critical of the censoring, claimed to have been "muzzled."

The hearings were in recess today to let members join the rest of the Armed Services Committee in a closed-door meeting at which top Army officials will unveil details of the new defense budget. Included are plans to streamline commands and create two additional combat divisions.

The first three days of the subcommittee's inquiry have brought testimony from Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; retired Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, former chief of naval operations; retired Gen. Thomas D. White, former Air Force chief of staff; Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, head of Army research and development and a former intelligence chief. Statements were submitted by others, including one by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Through much of the testimony have run charges that there seemed to be no clear policy or pattern to guide either speech writers or censors, and that a result has been some "frustrating" censoring of anti-communist speech texts.

Hospital Volunteer Council Approves Budget For 1962

A budget for the coming year was approved by the Volunteer Council for the Big Spring State Hospital at its first quarterly meeting Thursday night at the hospital, D. M. McKinney, chairman, said today.

The budget totals $1,830 and is divided into seven categories. The Christmas party fund was allocated $1,000 to purchase a gift for each patient at Christmas, $300 went for cigarettes for patients, Junior Volunteers will have $180, the entertainment committee received $150, ward decoration and prizes were allocated $100, and $100 went into a miscellaneous fund.

"There was a good crowd on hand," McKinney said. "About 40 visitors were present and 20 organizations were represented." Steps will be taken to better coordinate volunteer activities in other cities within the hospital district this year, McKinney said. A general chairman will be appointed in each city so civic organizations and other volunteer groups can learn about needs and how they can help patients from that area.

"Many such persons and groups would like to help. They just do not know what to do or where to find out our needs here," McKinney said.

A new program to be used this year by volunteers is a suggestion box. Suggestions can be signed or made anonymously.

"We are enthusiastic about this idea," Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent, said. "Hospital personnel are sometimes too close to patients to see improvements which volunteers can suggest. It should bring us many ideas about how to do the job of treating patients better."

Other areas to receive special emphasis this year are the Christmas program and providing shade areas for ambulatory patients on wards 10-A and 10-B so they can stay outdoors more during good weather.

The July meeting of the Council has been deleted, McKinney said. Other meetings will be held in April and October. McKinney urged volunteers and members of the general public to attend each meeting to find out what is being done in the field of mental illness.

Officers Seek Link In 2 Area Slayings

WICHITA FALLS (AP)—Investigators said today they are trying to determine whether there was any connection between slayings near here and Lubbock.

A search is on for a man and a woman seen leaving a Wichita Falls night club Tuesday night with Sgt. Robert Reed, 32, whose body was found a few hours later in a roadside park.

Police in Lubbock said they were working on the possibility of a link between the slayings of Reed and J. R. Castle, 46, a carpenter.

The body of Castle was discovered Sunday in a pit near Lubbock. Detectives learned he was in a night club outside Lubbock shortly before midnight Saturday. Lubbock officers noted that both men were stabbed, shot and beaten.

Williams, Anderson Named To Board

Dwain Williams and Roy Anderson were named members of the school board for Common School District 25 (Vealmore) by the Howard County School Board at a special meeting on Friday morning.

They were named to fill two vacancies and will become trustees as soon as they qualify.

Williams was actually reappointed. He had been elected to the board at the last election but had resigned some time ago. He resigned when a relative was appointed to teach in the school since it is stipulated by law that trustees cannot have any kinsmen employed in the school. The relative is no longer with the school and Williams is again eligible to serve.

Anderson was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from the district of L. D. Smith, third member of the original board.

Max Zant, the only member remaining of the original board, appeared before the county board this morning. Also present was Mrs. Mamie Clanton, long time resident of the community, and now a teacher in the Big Spring schools.

Zant told the board that appointments had to be made as he

Employees Earn Safety Banquet

Employees of the Big Spring District Production Department of Phillips Petroleum Co. were treated to an annual banquet Thursday for 33,063 hours of work without a disabling injury, according to C. N. Watson, district superintendent.

The banquet is held only when this requirement has been met. This year, the safety record was absolutely clean without even a minor accident, Watson said.

There were 48 persons at the banquet, including company personnel and guests.

L. E. Fitzjarrald, vice president of the production department, Bartlesville, Okla., was guest speaker. He presented safety certificates for the three foremen areas of the Big Spring District and for the district office personnel here.

Safe driver awards were presented to drivers of company vehicles by Watson, who praised the persons for their accomplishment.

"One person can keep the entire district safe from having this banquet," he said.

Other speakers at the banquet were C. A. Daniels, area manager of the production department, and Dennis Basinger, safety director.

Sen. Tower Asks Bracero Changes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Intended benefits to farmers are restricted by administrative action of the Mexican farm labor program, Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) said Thursday.

Tower asked Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg in a letter for changes in administration rules.

"When a farmer needs laborers," Tower wrote, "he cannot afford a delay of several days or possibly weeks in sending a formal request to the Department of Labor for permission to use bracero labor under the extreme hardship clause, which in my understanding, presently is required."

There were 580 students registered this morning compared to 511 at the same time last year. Between 80-100 more are expected to enroll before the deadline of Feb. 2.

Late registrants must pay an extra fee of $2, Dean Johnson said. In addition, they miss out on classes and must compensate for the loss on their own time. Classes began Thursday.

Five Hospitalized After Two-Car Wreck Thursday

Five persons were taken to hospitals shortly after 5:30 p.m. Thursday following a two-car accident at 1709 W. 4th. Four occupants of one car, all teen-agers, were taken by River and Nalley-Pickle ambulances to the Howard County Hospital. One of the injured was serious.

Loyd Thomas McGary, 18, driver of the car which was listed by police as a total loss, and three passengers, Skeeter Anderson, 14, Marcus Copeland, 14, and Barbara McGary, 13, were taken to Howard County Hospital Foundation where they were treated and held for observation.

Mrs. Velma Melton, 35, wife of Herman Travis Melton, 35, driver of the second car, was taken to Medical Arts. She was complaining Friday morning of pains in her neck, but was not confined to the hospital.

The accident was investigated by Sgt. Robert Dugan and Patrolman Sam Fuller. They said both cars were traveling east on Fourth, with the Melton car in the south lane, when the collision occurred. Damage to the Melton car was listed at $150. Melton was not injured.

Three other accidents were investigated by police, including one hit and run, Thursday afternoon and evening.

Luis O. Valverde, 406 Donley, and Margaret Newton Conway, 104 1/2 Nolan, were drivers of vehicles involved in a collision at North Third and Lamesa Drive.

Bertha Froman, Ackerly, was driver of a car in collision with another at East Fourth and Birdwell Lane. The second car left the scene. Police said damage was minor.

Dorothy Murphy Box, HCJC student, and Norma Odell, 1009 E. 14th, were drivers involved in a collision at Sunset and Birdwell Lane.

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Lillie Maxwell Wasson in Anchorage, Alaska. She had been ill a long time with cancer.

Mrs. Wasson, a native of Big Spring, moved to Fort Worth and worked for Cox's Department store before moving to Alaska in 1939.

She was buried at Kennedale, Texas where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Maxwell Sr., are interred. Survivors include her husband, W. C. Wasson; three sisters, Mrs. W. B. Cramer, Kennedale, Mrs. R. E. Blanton, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Martene Verrege, Dallas; and one brother, Ed Maxwell, Fort Worth. She also leaves two nieces and two nephews.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Mattie Yates; two sons, James Yates, San Antonio, and Harold Yates, Odessa; a daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Dressler, Big Spring, and seven grandchildren.

Palbearers will be Joe C. Cooke, Millard Anderson, Bill Cartwright, Bob Cates, Jim Milligan, Jess Witcher, Howard Swinney and Roy Chapman.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the River Funeral Chapel with T. H. Tarbet and Oscar Batton, ministers of the Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park, with River Funeral Home directing.

The family has requested that memorials be made to the Australian Church Fund, a missionary program of his church in which Mr. Yates was deeply interested. Checks may be forwarded in care of the West Highway 80 Church of Christ, Box 1383.

Mrs. Allmond Rites Set

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Mrs. Lon Allmond, 76, longtime resident of Colorado City, died Wednesday night in a Fort Worth hospital after a short illness.

She was born Oct. 27, 1885 in Temple and came here with her family shortly before 1900. She married Lon E. Allmond Aug. 20, 1907 in Colorado City.

She was a member of the First Christian Church.

Funeral services were to be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Kiker and Son Chapel with the Rev. Rush Barnett, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating. Burial was to be in the Colorado City Cemetery under direction of Kiker and Son Funeral Home.

She is survived by her husband of Colorado City; three sons, Ed Allmond and Hardison Allmond of Fort Worth and Tom Allmond, Odessa; two daughters, Mrs. Q. C. Black, Fort Worth, and Mrs. Lister Ratliff, Dallas; one sister, Viola Hale, Colorado City; and seven grandchildren.

Palbearers will be Adolph Wood, Pete Warren, Joe Bell, Curtis Latimer, Sam L. Majors Jr., Ed Majors, Warren Coston and P. H. Pace.

Legislators Pound Bill Against Impact

AUSTIN (AP)—House committee members spoke out today against two bills permitting court action over the formation of the town Impact next door to Abilene. The bills were sent to a subcommittee.

The bills would validate the incorporation of cities under 6,000 and 4,500 population, but allow litigation pending against such titles to continue.

Similar bills are pending in a Senate committee.

Rep. Truett Latimer of Abilene told the committee that a bill was passed in last year's session which validated incorporations, but it was intended to affect only Plano and not Impact.

Controversy over Impact has been going on since before 1960 when the village voted to incorporate itself. It has since voted for legal sale of liquor and beer in Taylor County, which otherwise is dry.

Latimer asserted the whole scheme of the incorporation was "simply a matter to get around the liquor laws."

Tom Eplen, Abilene lawyer, said the bills would allow him to continue litigation against the incorporation "with impediments."

Rep. V. E. Berry of San Antonio called Abilene "the most alcohol-drinking town in Texas." He said the bill was discriminating against one area only.

Rep. Dan Struve of Campbellton said he heard rumors that "There is an unholy alliance existing between the prohibitionists and the bootleggers."

Eplen said that the zoning and granting of permits for liquor and beer sales at Impact "is a monopoly set-up." He said most of the elections have had only about 20 persons voting.

One committee member suggested that Abilene residents opposed to drinking should move to Impact "and outvote them instead of spending all this money on attorneys and court cases."

John Cofer, who represented Impact Mayor Dallas Perkins in a Supreme Court hearing on a case which held that the county judge had to canvass the incorporation votes, told the committee this bill was a bad precedent. He said that E. E. Egan and others objected to "the impact monopoly, they can have a local option election, there."

Buchanan Rites Were Set Today

Funeral for John Buchanan, 77, president of Big Spring for 70 years of his life, were to be at 3 p.m. Friday at the River Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was to be in the City Cemetery.

Mr. Buchanan, who was a retired Baptist minister and a former railroad engineer, died in Dallas Wednesday afternoon. He was visiting in that city at the time.

Born in Bosque County on July 18, 1884, Mr. Buchanan came to this part of the country as a boy. He was a member of the Phillips Memorial Baptist Church. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Lelia Buchanan, Big Spring; two sons, John J. Buchanan, Odessa, and Phil Buchanan, Montgomery, Ala.; two daughters, Mrs. Sam Houston Snyder, and Mrs. S. O. Shellman, Los Angeles, Calif.; four brothers, Marshall Buchanan, Dallas, Sam Buchanan and Floyd Buchanan, both of Luther, and Charles Buchanan, who lives in Arizona; three sisters, Mrs. Rachel Lawley, Odessa, Mrs. Grace Wilke, Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Fannie Lee Vallejo, San Jose, Calif. There are 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Three Receive County Jail Terms

Three youths, who admitted theft of a quantity of copper wire, were each sentenced to serve 30 days in the Howard County Jail by Judge Ed Carpenter Thursday afternoon. They are David Rawls, Norman McNew and Carroll Rawls.

Another guilty plea accepted by the county court was that of A. C. Bienser, who pleaded guilty to a charge of writing a worthless check. He was fined $200 and costs.

A $40 Idea

Ideas which result in savings for the Veterans' Administration Hospital are worth money to the employee who makes the suggestion. Carl W. Ford, central service, received a $40 cash award and a certificate for his idea about saving time in his job.

VA Employee Gets Cash For An Idea

Carl W. Ford, a member of the central service staff at the Veterans Administration Hospital, found out Thursday that ideas pay off, even those which seem quite simple.

He was awarded a certificate and a check for $40 for a suggestion he made, according to V. J. Belda, director.

Instruments and other equipment, which must be sterilized before they can be used, are wrapped in Central Service and sent on their way. Ford figured out a way to save about one and one-third hours each day in this procedure. His idea means an annual saving of $737.

Ford suggested that a false bottom be built into the wrapping table so paper could be stored within reach. This allows an employee to work steadily without having to move each time paper is needed.

Employees at the hospital are constantly urged to turn in their ideas about saving time, effort or money in hospital operation. Frequently they pay off, just as did Ford's idea.

Belda pointed out that such ideas are a saving in more than one way. They bring down the cost of operation for the hospital; employ work is made easier through the saving of time and effort required to do a job; and there may be a cash bonus for the employee.

Choate Re-Elected By Credit Union

Wade Choate has been re-elected as president of the Howard County Employees Federal Credit Union. Directors of the union met on Thursday to organize for the new year.

Other officers are: Wayne Burns, vice president, and Zarah LeFevre, secretary. Both were re-elected.

Doris Owens was named treasurer to succeed Mrs. Roberta Oldfield, who has resigned. Ralph White is assistant treasurer.

The union, organized last May, now has 121 members.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals, addressed to the President, Board of Trustees, Howard County Junior College, Big Spring, Texas, for the construction of paving and site grading will be received at the Howard County Junior College, Big Spring, Texas, until 5 o'clock p.m. on the 15th day of February 1961 and then publicly opened and read aloud in the board room with titles of projects proposed.

The successful bidder will be required to enter into a contract with Howard County Junior College, Big Spring, Texas; however the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

A cashier's check, certified check or acceptable bid, bond payable without recourse to the order of President, Board of Trustees, Howard County Junior College, Big Spring, Texas, in an amount not less than five per cent (5 per cent) of the contract price, must accompany each bid as a guarantee that, if awarded the contract, the bidder will promptly enter into contract and execute bonds as outlined in the specifications and instructions to bidders.

A performance bond in the amount of one hundred per cent (100 per cent) of the contract price will be required. No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for receipt of bids for at least thirty days.

Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum rates prevailing in the locality in which the work is performed for work of a similar character, and not less than the general prevailing rate of per diem wages of legal holidays and overtime work, shall be paid to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed in the construction of public works. The minimum wages to be paid laborers and mechanics on this project as determined by the owner are listed in the instructions to bidders.

Plans and specifications may be procured in the office of the Engineer, 600 East Fourth Street, Big Spring, Texas, upon a deposit of $5.00 as a guaranty of the safe return of the plans and specifications. The full amount of the deposit will be returned to Contractor on submission of a bona fide bid, or upon return of the plans and specifications prior to date set for opening of bids; otherwise, deposit shall be forfeited.

Howard Garrett, President
Board of Trustees
Howard County Junior College
Big Spring, Texas.

Audience Gives 'Rainmaker' Warm Reception Thursday

The cast of "The Rainmaker," current production of the Big Spring Civic Theatre, received a warm reception for its opening Thursday as the play began a new era for the organization here. For the first time, the BSCT will attempt five major productions in one year, plus the annual Easter Pageant.

"The Rainmaker" gets the organization's plans off to a good start. Other performances are scheduled tonight and Saturday in the Big Spring High School auditorium, beginning at 8:15 p.m. each night.

The cast has done a creditable job with their parts, being exceptional in several cases as evidenced by the reaction of the enthusiastic audience. And the people on stage appeared to enjoy the play as well.

MRS. JIM WADE

This play gives local audiences an opportunity to see some of the best in local "little theatre" and includes some of the outstanding workers in such work here. Mrs. Jim Wade, as Lizzie, carries the lead part exceptionally well, as does John Holdun, playing Starbuck, the rainmaker. Mrs. Wade has done a long list of yeoman work for the theatre group and handles this part as would be expected of her. Holdun, though relatively new to the local stage, comes through splendidly.

A pleasant surprise is Chuck Worley playing the elder brother, though perhaps it isn't so surprising as he has played in many parts locally, for both the BSCT and the junior college. But he does an extraordinary job with this part and will certainly be sought after by directors of future plays.

Experience always shines through, as is the case of Dave Brinkley, playing Lizzie's father. It's not a flashy part, but Brinkley gives as good a performance as has ever been in a BSCT production. He will probably be the "find" of the year for the group.

Athol Atkins and Joe Davenport look as if they stepped right out of Sheriff Miller Harris' office in their parts as law officers. They might have swiped some ideas from that department in preparing for the parts.

Arthur Clonts can add another big mark to his record with the theatre group for his performance as the younger brother. He captures the audience the first time he is on stage and holds them every time he speaks a line. He is one of the local group's outstanding talents.

The set, largely attributable to Brinkley, is one of the best for a local stage in a long time. It is about as professional as an amateur group is likely to get. There are some technical problems in some scenes, but by and large it's going to be difficult for future productions to have a better one.

Bob Lewis has proved, with this production, that the group has a much-needed director for its stable that has grown much too small. His first time around for the BSCT, he has given them a play that will go into the record books as one of the better ones.

It isn't too late to buy tickets, they are available at the door at $1.75. The theatre-goer is assured of a delightful evening of entertainment.

Fog, Rain For Texas

By The Associated Press

A weak norther shoved more fog and misty rain across Texas and kicked up an occasional thunderstorm Friday.

Moisture tapered off and skies cleared behind the latest weather front. Its leading edge lay along a line from near Sherman in North Texas to Del Rio on the Mexican border by early morning.

The cool front proved so mild that snow failed to develop in the Texas Panhandle.

Temperatures before sunrise held above freezing throughout the state, ranging from 35 degrees at Amarillo up to a stuffy 68 at Brownsville and Houston before sunrise.

The norther promised to clear away most of the fog and drizzle which lingered in a broad band from the Texas coast to 200 miles inland Thursday.

Forecasts called for more showers and thunderstorms in East and South Texas during the day. Partly cloudy skies and cooler weather were promised all areas of the state Friday night and Saturday.

Dallas News Writer Says Daniel Considering Race

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Price Daniel definitely is considering a race for a fourth term, the Dallas News said today.

"As of today," a copyrighted article by the newspaper's political editor Allen Duckworth said, "he is leaning more to making the race than to retiring from politics."

Daniel has until Feb. 5, the deadline for candidates to file, to reach a decision. Duckworth also wrote:

"A source close to Daniel says he is getting more encouragement to seek an unprecedented fourth term than he received two years ago while pondering a third term. Daniel himself is encouraged by his successful special session of the legislature.

"Many of those encouraging him to run again express concern over the candidacy of former Navy Sec. John Connally, for many years the closest man personally to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson. In announcing for governor, Connally said he was doing so on his own, wasn't fronting for Johnson in a political power drive.

Duckworth also wrote that Daniel was displeased at Connally's announcement and asked him to delay it a bit, but was told Connally's decision to run was final.

Probationer Is Ordered To Prison

One defendant had his probated sentence set aside and heard himself ordered to the state penitentiary for two years; another was given two additional weeks to do what he has failed to do in nearly three years; and a third was given one more chance with a stern admonition that one more misstep on his part would mean he must go to prison for two years.

Floyd Bell Davidson, youngest of the trio, must serve the two years that a forgery conviction of last Feb. 27 earned him. It was shown that he was recently convicted in county court of stealing gasoline. He had been granted probation at the time he pleaded guilty to the forgery charge.

W. D. Robbins, who was convicted on Feb. 27, 1959 of theft by false pretense in connection with defrauding Homer McKinley of $12,500, would have completed his three years probation on Feb. 27, 1962. However, one stipulation set up was that he must recompense McKinley in the sum of $3,500. It was shown that in the time which has passed since his probation began, he has paid back only $850 in cash and 50 shares of stock believed worth $2 a share.

Judge Ralph W. Caton gave Robbins until Feb. 9 to dig up the unpaid balance due to McKinley and thereby clear his record. If he fails to do so, the court warned him that he faces the alternative of serving the three years in prison.

Jim Buck Matthews, former pawnshop operator and railroad employe, under a two-year probated sentence for murder with an automobile, was before the court on charges that he had been arrested and pleaded guilty in police court to a charge of drunkenness in a public place.

This, under the terms of his probation, was a violation.

It was also testified that on one other occasion, a police officer had encountered Matthews and noted he had been drinking. He was not arrested on that occasion but was taken home.

Gil Jones, district attorney, told the court that under ordinary conditions he would not have moved revocation of the probated sentence for one offense such as was alleged against Matthews except that drinking was a major factor in the original case. Three persons were fatally injured in the accident for which Matthews pleaded guilty to the charge of murder with a motor vehicle.

However, the district attorney said, in view of Matthews good record prior to the tragedy of last summer, he would not press for revocation of the probation at this time. He warned that one more episode involving intoxicants however would impel him to demand immediate revocation of the probation.

Judge Caton agreed to the proposal that Matthews be given one more chance to make good.
