Schools face the rap of reform

Area districts plan budget cuts, tax hikes for 1985-86 year

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

Big Spring and other school districts in the Crossroads Country have found education reform can be expensive.

Taxpayers will get a glimpse of the rise in education costs as separate districts approve 1985-86 budgets in public hearings throughout the area.

Several school districts are calling for tax rate hikes; others are being forced to make spending cuts. Still others are using a combination of tax hikes and cuts to meet their budgeting needs.

Big Spring and Coahoma both have called for tax rate hikes for 1985-86. Spokesmen from the districts said the need for additional funding was a direct result of the requirements of House Bill 72, which included teacher salary raises and a required 1 to 22 teacher-student ratio for kindergarten through second grade.

"The state's requiring everybody to have a Cadillac when some of us can only afford a Chevrolet," Jerry Doyle, Coahoma superintendent, said Tuesday.

"The state's requiring everybody to have a Cadillac when some of us can only afford a Chevrolet."

All reporting districts, with the exception of Westbrook and Stanton, have been forced to make reductions in staff, spokesmen said.

Big Spring is calling for a 2-cent tax increase for its district, Don Crockett, assistant superintendent for business, said last week.

Coahoma trustees have not determined the amount of a tax hike necessary for its budget requirements, Doyle said.

Borden County Independent School District increased its tax rate by 5 cents, James McLeroy, superintendent said.

City's 'rural' status to affect insurance

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The first change in auto rating territories in almost 20 years, including one for Big Spring, won unanimous approval Wednesday from the State Board of Insurance.

Board actuary Gaylon Daniel said expanding from 40 to 52 territories is likely to lead to rate reductions in more rural counties and rate hikes in urban ones that have more vehicles per mile of roadway.

No auto insurance rate changes were approved by the board, only territory changes, which are expected to go into effect with the adoption of new auto insurance rates on Jan. 1, Daniel said.

But even with the changes, he said, any rates adopted in 1986 are expected to change only slightly because of the territory expansion.

"I think it's fair to say that the rates will go down more than go up," he added later.

Daniel also said that counties pulled out of bigger rating territories to stand alone or in smaller groups probably will see rates go up in the coming years.

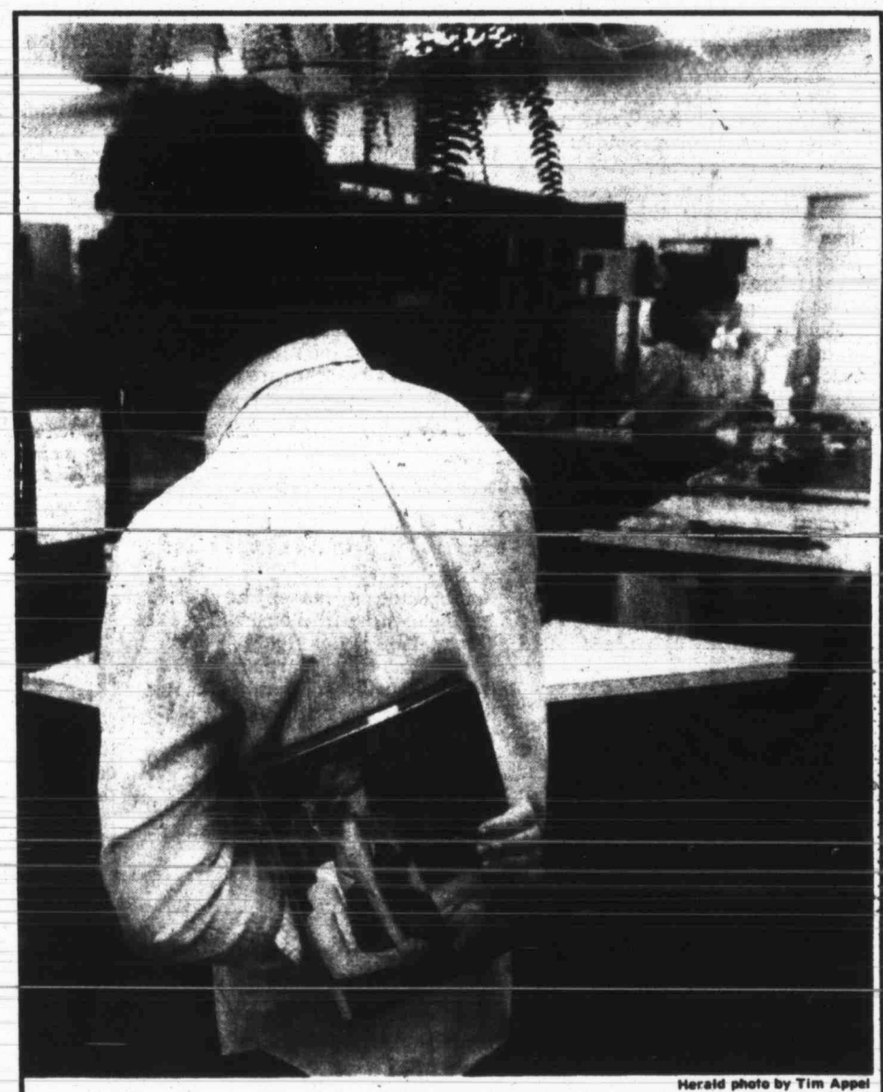

Those territories that see bigger counties or counties with more cars per mile of roadway pulled out should see rates go down, he said.

One example of a territory where rates are likely to go down includes Howard and Midland counties. Currently, both are lumped together with Ector County, which has a much higher density of automobiles per mile of roadway. Ector County is being pulled out to stand alone in its own territory.

The number of vehicles per mile in Howard and Midland counties averages 59, while Ector County's is 106.

Chances for an accident are much greater in counties with a higher vehicle density, and that means rates must be higher to cover the cost of repairing more automobiles, insurance industry officials said.

Almost 30 territories, including those that cover the major cities of Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Abilene, San Angelo and Wichita Falls, remained unchanged. Rates in those territories may go up or down but not because of the territory change.

The Howard County Library loses thousands of dollars every year in stolen books. The library lost 876 books from 1978-81, said librarian Judith Gray.

Library larceny

Coding may curtail theft, says librarian

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Book theft and an archiac inventory system threaten to become expensive problems for Howard County Library, and librarian Judith Gray is hoping county commissioners will fund solutions.

From 1978-81, Gray said 876 books worth approximately $13,000 were reported missing or stolen. The numbers were tabulated when the library conducted its last stock inventory in 1982.

She said the library loses approximately $3,750 per year from stolen and missing items. The proposed installation of a $12,000 Echo Tag detection system from the 3-M Company would include mounting of column detectors at the library's two entrances and coding of all books. The system would eventually pay for itself, Gray said.

She requested about $22,000 during a recent county commissioners budget workshop to install a Stand Alone Automated Circulation System to handle inventory duties in addition to the book theft detection system.

Big Spring receives anti-crime funding

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White announced Tuesday the award of 479 grants totaling $18.4 million for anti-crime programs in communities throughout Texas, including Big Spring.

"Safe communities are the result of both effective law enforcement and active citizen participation in programs such as neighborhood watch and juvenile crime prevention projects," White said. "I believe that there is no greater deterrent to crime than a community-based alliance between citizens and police."

The grants, handed out by the governor's criminal justice division, will fund programs relating to crime prevention, police training and juvenile crime prevention and treatment efforts. Many of the grants allow for the purchases of services for juveniles, ranging from juvenile detention facilities to transportation for runaways.

The money comes from a fund fueled with fines collected from lawbreakers.

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, which includes Borden, Dawson, Glasscock, Howard and Martin counties, received 14 grants totaling $422,492. Grants include: $35,559 to Big Spring to continue funding a crime prevention unit; $1,469 to Lamesa in Dawson County for a comuter system to cut the backlog in the Lamesa Municipal Court; and $21,300 to Lamesa to continue funding for a crime prevention-major crimes officer for the city.

Baseball strike pact reached

NEW YORK (AP) — A "tentative understanding" was reached today in the day-old major league baseball strike, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said. A union source said the package included changes in eligibility for salary arbitration, a form of revenue sharing for financially troubled teams, increases in owner contribuions to players pensions and no salary cap.

A spokesman for Ueberroth said a news conference would be held in New York at 4 p.m. CDT and neither side would have any comment before then.

Fehr, who said he would meet shortly with MacPhail, said of Ueberroth's announcement, "Yes, absolutely, positively, baseball is back," said John Sevano of the California Angels' public relations department.

SEN. PHIL GRAMM faces lawsuit.

Board's lawsuit calls for Gramm records

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Federal Election Commission has filed suit to force a campaign committee for Sen. Phil Gramm to obey a subpoena for the release of its records.

The FEC suit, filed Monday in Dallas federal court, seeks to obtain the committee's books for an investigation of alleged election law violations in Gramm's 1984 campaign.

The federal agency, which has sought the records in court for five months, has alleged that some committee expenditures were improperly reported and that individual contributions may have exceeded the legal maximum.

Gramm, who was unavailable for comment Tuesday, last June filed his own suit to block the FEC's attempt to audit the campaign. The FEC has until Aug. 19 to respond to the senator's suit, which is pending before U.S. District Judge Robert Porter.

Sharon Snyder, a FEC spokeswoman, said the agency is not expected to file the response for at least a week.

James Schoener, Gramm's Washington attorney, said a federal audit would be a waste of taxpayer's money. In a response filed last March with the FEC, the attorney attributed the alleged campaign violations to bookkeeping errors.

"The volume of contributions and specialized bookkeeping proved too great for them (the accounting firms)," Schoener stated. "The demands of running a complicated, large state campaign with multiple headquarters . . .(and) well-meaning but error producing volunteers also contributed to delays in obtaining receipts and delays in obtaining correct invoices."

FEC officials refuse to comment on the specifics of the case. However, a 10-page "summary of allegations" compiled by the agency's staff says the Gramm's campaign may have been in violation of campaign law in six areas:

- Failure to report outstanding debts.
- Failure to report expenditures.
- Joint fundraising violations.
- Excessive contributions.
- Failure to report correct contribution information.
- Improperly reported contributions.

Pope John Paul II embarks on third journey to Africa

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II today embarked on his third trip to Africa, seeking to strengthen the rapidly growing Roman Catholic Church and improve relations with Islam, the continent's largest religion.

The pontiff has said the main objective of his 12-day tour of seven countries is to stimulate "harmonious" growth of the Christian faith in Africa.

Vatican officials this week called Africa a "key battleground" for evangelization. The church of about 800 million followers worldwide has been making substantial gains there and in Asia.

Roman Catholic missionaries sometimes compete with Moslems to convert animists — people who follow tribal religions based on the belief that all objects are imbued with spirits and demons. Animists are in the majority in many African nations.

Of nearly 500 million Africans, Islam has an estimated following of 150 million. Of some 140 million Christians in Africa, about 60 million are Roman Catholic.

With its aggressive aid and evangelical programs, the Vatican expects to raise the number of Roman Catholics in Africa to 100 million by the year 2000 — 18 percent of Africa's predicted population, compared with 1 percent at the end of the 19th century.

But Vatican-based Nigerian Cardinal Francis A. Arinze says the pope will stress cooperation with Islam, not competition.

"Christians and Moslems live together, and we should work together to fight against hunger, poverty, disease, injustice, repression and violation of human rights," he said.

In the process, the pope will seek to "erase wrong perceptions" by Moslems and other non-Christians that the church is a a Western-run vestige of colonialism, said Arinze, president of the Vatican Secretariat for non-Christians.

The church is involved in the continent's social and economic life, helping in famine relief, education, health care and community development.

Roman Catholic missionaries from various religious orders including the Jesuits are actively engaged in educational efforts — running schools and organizing special courses to eradicate illiteracy in black Africa.

No figures are available, but Vatican sources say an increasing number of Africa's ruling class have gone to Catholic-run schools. Prime Minister Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe, a Marxist, was educated in Catholic missionary schools. Leaders of three of the countries the pope is visiting — the Ivory Coast, Zaire and Togo — are Catholic.

In some places, such as Kenya, the church is playing a major critic's role, denouncing the East African country's campaign of sterilization and artificial birth control.

While in Kenya the pope is expected to reaffirm the church's strong stand against abortion and artificial contraception. Kenya has the world's highest rate of population growth: 4 percent a year.

As in his previous overseas trips, the pope has set a demanding itinerary. He will cover 15,803 miles, starting from tropical Togo, the Ivory Coast and Cameroon on the west coast to the Central African Republic and Zaire in central Africa, then to Kenya in the east before heading north to Morocco.

The pope's schedule calls for 40 speeches and daily Masses, meetings with church and government leaders and diplomats, visits to cathedrals and shrines and "interfaith sessions" with Moslem leaders and youths.

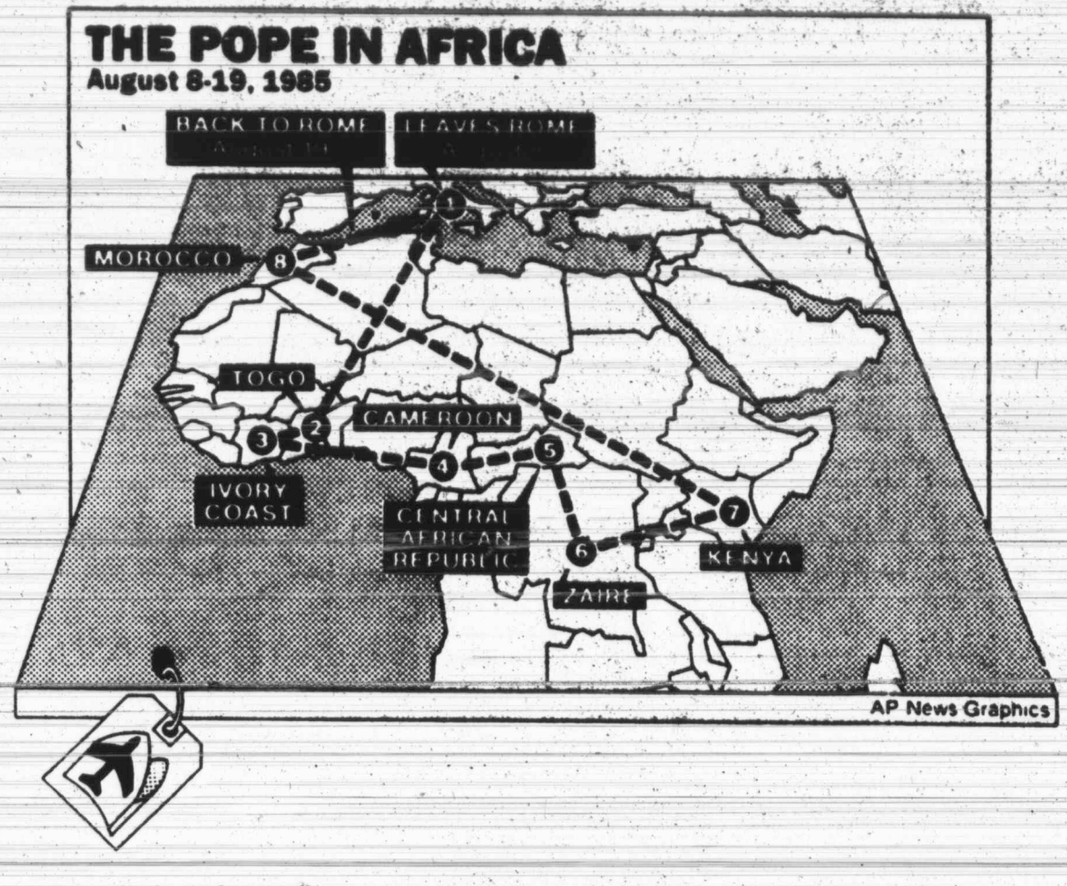

The pope will celebrate the virtually complete "Africanization" of its hierarchy on the continent, while at the same time setting limits on the mixing of indigenous African and Christian customs.

Such African customs as the use of tribal drums and music have been incorporated into church services. But serious differences persist between Vatican teachings and some African practices such as polygamy, ancestor worship and faith-healing.

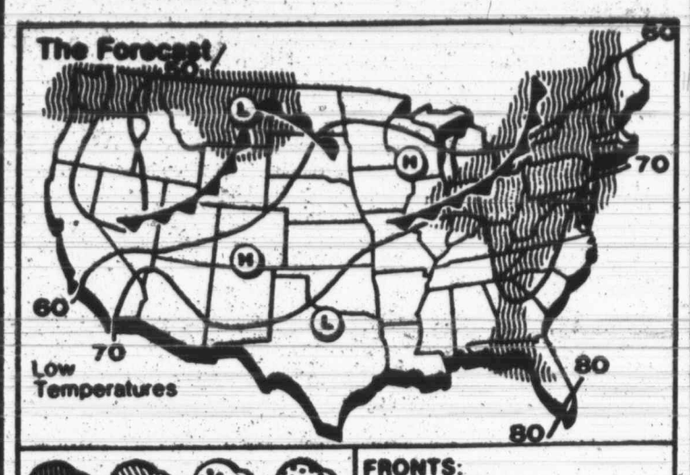

In Morocco, John Paul will be greeted by King Hassan II. Vatican circles are billing the meeting with Hassan — shortly after a summit of Arab heads of governments the king is hosting in Casablanca — as the pontiff's most important discussion with a Moslem leader.

In Casablanca, the pope is to address a predominantly Moslem crowd of some 80,000 young athletes from 23 Islamic countries on the last day of his African tour. The athletes are participating in the Pan Islamic Athletic Meet.

Vatican officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said John Paul hopes to counter anti-Christian prejudice and rhetoric by dealing with Islamic moderates.

3 injured in two-car accident

Three members of a Big Spring family were injured Tuesday evening in a two-car accident at the intersection of Lancaster and West 15th.

Treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokesman said, were: Edward Lee Hurrington, 31; his wife, Terry Hurrington, 24; and Latisna Hurrington, 6, all of 2507 Dow.

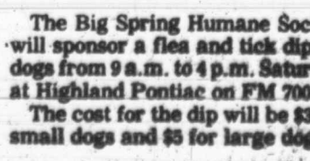

The driver of the second vehicle, Charles Preston Walter, 39, of Midland was not injured.

The accident occurred at 5:33 p.m. Tuesday, according to police reports.

Edward Hurrington, who was driving a 1982 silver Chevrolet Monte Carlo, was traveling north in the 1500 block of Lancaster when the accident occurred, police reported.

Walter, in a 1982 white and brown Dodge Prospector van, had stopped at a stop sign in the 300 block of West 15th facing west. The vehicles collided when Walter pulled into the intersection.

Stanton and Colorado Independent School districts will be able to meet their budget requirements without calling for tax hikes, spokesmen from the districts said.

The Colorado City district cut back on maintenance and money for supplies, Geneva Findley, tax collector and business manager for the district, said.

Stanton made no major cuts. It simply will not increase spending as it has in past years, a spokeswoman from the district said.

Stanton also will have an increase in local tax revenue because of a richer tax base, she said.

Big Spring made a net reduction of 19 teachers and also saved more than $150,000 by abandoning a roof repair project, Crockett said earlier.

Coahoma has "trimmed its budget down to bare bones," Doyle said, by eliminating seven teaching positions and four teacher's aide positions.

Most of the eight area schools have reported a considerable drop in state aid for the 1985-86 school term.

In state funding, Big Spring had a shortfall of more than $500,000, and Coahoma was short more than $100,000.

Other area schools and their drops in funding are: Colorado City, $108,000; Stanton, $199,000; Forsan, $135,000; Sands, $40,000; Borden County, $26,000; Westbrook, $2,000.

The reductions come to budgets ranging from $14 million in Big Spring to $1.6 million in Westbrook.

School boards which will be approving or discussing budgets this month are as follows:

- Sands trustees will meet Thursday in the board room of the business office at the school in Ackerly.
- Stanton trustees will meet in the board room at 200 N. College on Monday.
- Colorado City school trustees will meet in the board room at 534 E. 11th on Monday.
- Westbrook's board will meet Monday for its budget hearing and approval.
- Big Spring trustees will meet Aug. 15 at the board room in the high school.
- Coahoma trustees will meet Aug. 19 in the board room at the Administration Building in Coahoma.
- Forsan trustees will hold a budget hearing Aug. 19 in the board room of the Forsan Independent School District.

The Borden County Independent School District approved its budget on July 15.

An in-house computerized inventory system would "free the library staff from time consuming clerical work. We would be better able to serve people," Gray said.

She said the current inventory system that requires filing cards in alphabetical order was "like trying to ride a dinosaur home."

Gray said the circulation system would be the library's first budget priority because "if we keep handling everything manually at our present rate of growth, we will need to add about one full and one part-time staff members."

The requested circulation system would consist of a light pen used at the check-out counter that would read coded tags on borrowed library materials. The information on the borrowed items and patrons would be tabulated on an IBM PCXT terminal with a hard disc drive. Inventory information would be readily available, Gray said.

The book theft detection system would operate on a radio signal system that would activitate an alarm if a book tag was not desensitized at the check-out counter, Gray said.

"The coding devise would warn the library if someone was taking a book without checking it out. We would be in the same light as a store owner. We'd give the patron an opportunity to check out the items and if they refused, we'd have someone call the police. We'd hold that person at the desk until the cops came," Gray said.

She said the only alternative to not having a detection system would be to redesign the library to have one entrance or to have someone check all bags, purses and briefcases.

Lab tests fire samples

Samples from the scorched library at Airport Elementary School have been sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory, but results will not be available for about three weeks, arson investigator Burr Lea Settles said today.

He is continuing to investigate the case of the fire, believed to be arson, that occurred late Monday night.

The Airport School fire may be related to an arson earlier this summer in the teacher's lounge at the Washington Elementary School, Settles said. The schools have the same floor plans, and the same room in each school was torched, Settles said.

Those rooms, however, could have been chosen simply because they are not easily visible from the street, he said. "They could still be done by two different people."

Anyone with information on the fire can call Settles at 263-8311, or Crime Stoppers at 263-1151. Information can be given anonymously, Settles said.

In addition to any reward offered by Crime Stoppers, the Big Spring Independent School District may offer an additional reward for information leading to a conviction in the case.

Superintendent Lynn Hise said today he will propose to the school board at its meeting Aug. 15 that the school district cooperate with the Crime Stoppers program and offer a separate reward.

Explosion causes burns

A Big Spring man suffered serious burns in an explosion early today in his basement.

Steven R. Smith of 1201 Wright is in serious condition at Lubbock General Hospital with burns over 27 percent of his body, said a hospital spokeswoman.

He was transferred to Lubbock from Malone-Hogan Hospital in a specially equipped plane for burn victims. He suffered burns on his hands, legs and face, the spokeswoman said.

Arson Investigator Burr Lea Settles said the explosion occurred just before 1 a.m.

Settles said he did not know the cause of the explosion, but gasoline fumes may have been a factor. He is still investigating the case, he said.

Firefighters arrived at the house at 1:03 a.m. to find a small fire in the basement and smoke filling the one-story wood-frame house, according to departmental reports. Damage to the building was estimated at $2,500.

Smith was taken from the house before firemen arrived at the scene, Settles said.

Firemen used fans to disperse some of the smoke before entering the building and extinguishing the fire, according to reports.

- Homer Coberly, 90, of 912 Culp remains in critical condition at Lubbock General Hospital. Coberly suffered burns over 41 percent of his body in a fire at his house last Thursday.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Negotiators for Western Union and the union representing 6,500 workers reached an agreement late Tuesday calling for concessions, ending a 10-day-old nationwide strike, a union official said.

"The strike ends immediately, so we're telling people if they work the midnight shift to go back at once," said Richard Brockert, international president of the United Telegraph Workers Union, which represents technicians, operators and clerks.

The agreement is subject to ratification by the rank-and-file, and union officials would recommend that it be accepted, Brockert said.

Japanese ship ablaze

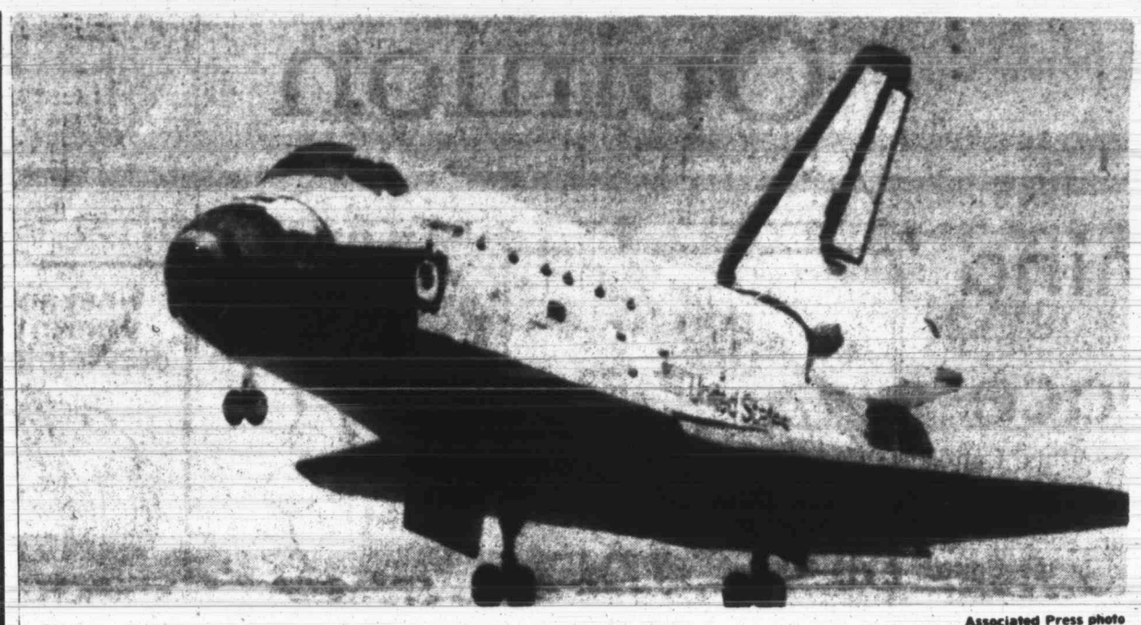

JUNEAU, Alaska — The crew of a ship loaded with Japanese cars continued today to pump water from the North Pacific to fight a fire that was spreading as the Coast Guard raced to help, authorities said.

The Coast Guard cutter Monroe was expected to reach the Coral Ace early today about 500 miles south of Unimak Island in the Aleutians, said Coast Guard Lt. Eric Rosenberg. The 500-foot vehicle carrier was registered in Panama.

Challenger sails back to earth after 7-day trip

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Challenger sailed smoothly back to Earth on Tuesday, its seven astronauts bearing a scientific treasure trove gathered during a voyage that began precariously but ended in triumph.

The 100-ton shuttle streaked across the California coastline, passed over Los Angeles with window-rattling sonic booms, spiraled down to Edwards Air Force Base and landed in a cloud of dust on the Mojave Desert lake bed runway.

Technicians stood by to remove the heat sensors from Challenger's main rocket engines as soon as possible after landing.

Jess Moore, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said the sensors will be analyzed to determine if they were responsible, as believed, for the premature shutdown of a rocket engine during last Monday's launch, an event that created the shuttle's first launch crisis.

"We'll be looking very hard at the sensors," said Moore. "As we learn, we'll phase it back into the program and try to avoid this sort of thing from happening."

Despite the problems, said Moore, Challenger's mission "returned a wealth of information.

Guyana's new president

GEORGETOWN, Guyana — Prime Minister Desmond Hoyte was sworn in as president following the death of President Forbes Burnham, who led Guyana to independence from Britain in 1966 and then into his self-styled "cooperative socialism."

Truckloads of soldiers and paramilitary troops patrolled the streets within hours of the 62-year-old Burnham's death Tuesday from an apparent heart attack during throat surgery.

Will hostages be freed?

BEIRUT, Lebanon — French, American and Lebanese officials say they have no information to confirm a Kuwaiti newspaper report that American and French kidnap victims in Lebanon would be freed soon.

The Kuwaiti newspaper as-Siyasah said Tuesday that Syria would arrange the release of five Americans and three Frenchmen to steal the limelight from an Arab League summit opening in Morocco today.

Syria and other leftist-governed Arab countries are boycotting the summit, which is scheduled to discuss a Jordanian-PLO effort to form a joint delegation for preliminary talks with the United States.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The state radio today praised President Reagan's comment that the state of emergency reflects a need to curb violence, while youths waged street battles with police in black townships of the port city of Durban.

The youthful protesters in Durban erected burning barricades across roads and set fire to houses, trucks and a school, police and witnesses said today.

New Pentagon study reveals contractors earn small profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite horror stories about $659 ashtrays and $7,600 coffee makers, the nation's defense contractors as a whole are not earning unreasonable profits, a new Pentagon study asserts.

Moreover, defense contractors have been investing money in new equipment and facilities at a substantially higher rate than their commercial counterparts, which suggests that Pentagon incentives to encourage such modernization are not merely becoming a second, improper source of profits, the report says.

The new study, the "Defense Financial and Investment Review," was released Tuesday. It is the first such research conducted by the Pentagon in a decade. Its release comes at a time when the Pentagon has acknowledged problems with its procurement programs and moved to crack down on contractors because of improper claims.

Most recently, for example, the General Electric Co. pleaded guilty in federal court to defrauding the Pentagon of roughly $800,000 on a missile contract. The General Dynamics Corp., after disclosures it had submitted overhead claims for such things as dog kennel fees, is still facing a ban on receiving new Navy contracts.

The new study does not address such problems. Instead, it focuses on another question that recently has become the focus of congressional concern: whether the Pentagon's basic procurement policies are flawed even when companies abide by contract regulations.

The new report says contracting policies "in general ... are balanced economically, are protecting the interests of the taxpayer and are enabling U.S. industry to achieve an equitable return for its investment in defense business."

To back up that claim, the study uses a complex economic model designed to compare the profits of defense contractors with those of durable goods manufacturers — firms that make appliances, automobiles and other products for consumers.

The study found the before-tax profits of defense contractors and durable goods manufacturers were roughly similar from 1970 to 1979 when expressed in terms of the firms' assets. Defense contractors averaged a 6.5 percent return on the special index, while the profits of firms making goods for consumers were slightly lower at 5.8 percent.

From 1980 to 1983, however, the period during which the nation suffered one of its worst recessions ever, there was a dramatic change in the comparison.

Opinion

Lagging behind in nuclear race

Fourteen percent of the electrical energy in the United States is generated by nuclear plants.

Ninety-four such plants are licensed to operate and 33 more are being built. But since 1978 no future nuclear electric generating plants have been planned in the United States.

Around the world 26 countries are producing nuclear-generated electricity, and seven more plan to join them by 1990.

Countries that lead the United States in the percentage of nuclear-generated electricity are France with 59 percent; Belgium, 51 percent; Finland and Sweden, each 40 percent; Switzerland, 37 percent; Japan, 23 percent; West Germany, 17 percent, and the United Kingdom, 17 percent.

France can build a nuclear generating plant in about six years, half the average time it takes the United States to build one.

Japan has 28 nuclear plants operating, is planning eight more and has firms working on new designs that could far outpace the United States in nuclear technology.

Coal, natural gas and oil are much more abundant in the United States than in many countries. Gas and oil have better uses than fueling power plants.

Coal provides 56 percent of U.S. electricity. But as demand increases, so will the need for supplemental energy sources.

The United States, which pioneered in nuclear research, is now lagging behind many other nations in nuclear applications. As time goes on, if present attitudes and policies prevail, the lag will increase.

Is this smart?

A life does have purpose

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't have anything to live for. My job is dull, I have financial problems and no one really cares for me. Can you give me any encouragement? — Mrs. G.L.K.

DEAR MRS. G.L.K.: Imagine for a moment that you knew beyond a shadow of a doubt that God had a plan for your life, and that He loved you and wanted to help you. Do you think your life and your attitude would be any different? Of course it would! You would have hope for the future, as well as a sense of purpose and meaning in your life. You also would know that you are not alone, because God (and His people) love you.

And this is exactly what you can know! You are not here by accident; God created you and put you here. More than that, He sent His only Son, Jesus Christ, to cleanse you of your sins and make you a child of God. For those reasons, we are not meant to drift through life without purpose; God has a plan for every one of His children. I can't know how God will help you with your problems; sometimes He changes our situations for us, and other times He gives us strength to overcome them. But I do know that your life will never be the same once you know Christ. Jesus declared, "I have come that they may have life, and have it to the full" (John 10:10).

You can discover right now the joy and peace of being a child of God, by inviting Jesus Christ to come into your life and committing yourself to Him as your Lord and Savior. You can take that step of commitment with a simple prayer, asking Christ to cleanse you and come into your heart. Yes, you do have something to live for, because God wants to reshape your life and make you into the person He created you to be. Don't go on living in the rut you are now in. Give your life to Christ and discover the new life He wants to give you through faith in Him.

Profile of a perfect psycho

Psychological testing in the U.S. government has come under fire from several congressional committees, who feel that asking job applicants a series of questions to gauge their personalities is an invasion of privacy. The test that has come in for the most criticism is the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory, a 566-question true or false quiz.

As an answer to the MMPI, one of its critics has developed the North Dakota Null-Hypothesis Brain Inventory, which the reader is invited to take right now. Answer true or false:

1. I salivate at the sight of mittens.
2. If I go into the street, I'm apt to be bitten by a horse.
3. Some people never look at me.
4. Spinach makes me feel alone.
5. My sex life is A-okay.
6. When I look down from a high spot, I want to spit.
7. I like to kill mosquitoes.
8. Cousins are not to be trusted.
9. It makes me embarrassed to fall down.
10. I get nauseous from too much roller skating.
11. I think most people would try to gain a point.
12. I cannot read or write.
13. I am bored by thoughts of death.
14. I become homicidal when people try to reason with me.
15. I would enjoy the work of a chicken flicker.
16. I am never startled by a fish.
17. My mother's uncle was a good man.
18. I don't like it when somebody is rotten.
19. People who break the law are wise guys.
20. I have never gone to pieces over the weekend.

Now for the results. If you have answered more questions false than true, you should try for the Peace Corps.

New warfare: 'Not with a bang, but a whimper'

WASHINGTON — Can the human mind be short-circuited or even destroyed by extremely low-frequency radio waves?

Preposterous as such an idea may seem, scientists on both sides of the Iron Curtain have been conducting secret studies on the subject. And though it bears the acronym ELF, there's nothign pixielike about the possible effects of Extremely Low-Frequency transmissions. Reputable scientists say they could be developed into yet another grisly weapon of mass destruction.

The Navy is installing more than 50 miles of underground antenna in Wisconsin and Michigan to beam extremely low frequency messages to our submarines deep under the oceans. Lacking such a system, the subs now have to come close to the surface to receive their long-distance communications from the Pentagon, thereby exposing themselves to enemy tracking devices.

The ELF transmissions, the Navy maintains, are not of the level harmful to humans and animals.

For years ELF research suffered under the cloud of "parapsychology," into which it was lumped with such cockamamie concepts as time-warp machines and intercontinental mind-reading. Unfortunately for the human race, there's nothing silly about the potential effects of very low-level electro-magnetic radiation on the nervous system.

Ironically, the Soviets conducted the pioneer research in electromagnetic radiation back in the 1930s in hopes of giving scientific respectability to the notion of mental telepathy. But the lowest-frequency ranges were difficult to detect with the primitive instruments of that era, and Soviet scientists eventually abaondoned the electromagnetic mechanism as a means of perfecting telepathy.

But brain researchers in this country and elsewhere now acknowledge that those early Soviet scientists — like Columbus looking for India and stumbling across the New World — were the first to realize that very low-level radiation could have profound effects on the human organism — and frightening military uses.

American researchers have told us that within 10 or 15 years scientists on both sides may learn how to interfere with the electrical impulses of the human brain by means of long-distance transmission of electromagnetic radiation. This interference could extend to "switching off" the brain's vital functions — that is, killing the targeted victims.

In fact, the Navy once funded a project called "ELF and Mind Control," to determine whether ELF signals could upset individuals' brain function and lead to hypertension or sudden death. The project was killed by a high-level Navy official when he found it in his budget — not because it was too horrifying, but because it smacked of psychic research, which he opposed.

Mug shot law not 'justice for all'

To the editor:

All this time I thought I was living in America — land of the free — liberty and justice for all. That's a laugh! I'm referring to the new conquest of our chief of police and city council. "All employees of an establishment that have dancing and pool tables, must have a mug shot taken and this mug shot must be displayed at our place of employment."

If they can force one type of business to march like criminals to the police station for "mug shots," what will keep them from forcing every business in town to do the same? If a new industry were thinking of locating in Big Spring, this should really impress them — "Hi, welcome to Big Spring, now march down single file to the police station and have your mug shot taken."

Mr. Turner and Mr. Councilmen, please show me where there is "Justice" in this type of persecution. So what if I work in a dance hall. I enjoy working with people. Should I be presecuted for this just because I choose to work the only place that people act normal, by that I mean when the citizens of Big Spring come in where I work, they are not tryinig to impress anyone, they are simply there to "let their hair down" and have fun. I like to see people laugh.

Mr. Turner, I and my fellow workers are not criminals and shouldn't have to have a "mug shot" hanging where we work just so, and I quote, "we can be quickly identified." OK I'll have my mug shot taken but "let's show justice for all." You and the city councilmen stand in line with me and then we will post your mug shots on the walls so we can quickly identify you.

Lastly I would like to remind you, since you are into the law, there is one law that was written way before your times that evidently has been filed away and forgotten. You can't lock it away, it's here to stay — "Judge not lest you be judged."

'Ribbon' protest moves to different beat

By R. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) — At first there was surprise, followed by the realization it was supposed to happen that way, followed by the further realization that a lot of things happen that way.

Washington-based reporters are supposed to know before nearly everyone else what is happening in the nation's capital, aren't they?

People in Washington are accustomed to things happening from the top down. The president or Congress starts something and word spreads in an orderly fashion through Washington and out into the country.

But the first this reporter heard about "The Ribbon," commemorating the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima, was in church.

The pastor of Beverly Hills United Methodist Church in nearby Alexandria, Va., the Rev. Rob Vaughn, asked during a recent Sunday service for volunteers to house some of the participants overnight in their homes.

The plan was that as many as 25,000 people would come from all over the country — paying their own way — to stand shoulder to shoulder, holding individually sewn cloth banners that would stretch in a long "ribbon" around the Pentagon and other major public buildings.

It was a ribbon of peace, and the individual panels were to reflect what people would most fear to lose in a nuclear war.

The event was held as scheduled Sunday.

At 2:05 p.m., the ribbon was connected across the city. The makers of the panels stood silently, forming a line that wound around the Pentagon, across Memorial Bridge, past the Lincoln Memorial, around the Washington Monument, along the Washington Mall in front of the Smithsonian museums and on up to the Capitol steps — a loop of 15 miles.

It was a festive event in appearance. The panels were colorfully sewn and sparkled in the sunshine.

But it didn't attract a crowd. At most locations, there was only the ribbon and the estimated 12,000 to 15,000 people holding it. Passing automobiles occasionally honked, and tourists headed into the monuments and museums stopped to look.

> "I wouldn't call this a protest. It's more an affirmation of life."
> 'The Ribbon' organizer Marie Grasso.

Most people in Washington, including many reporters, probably didn't even know it was happening.

There was news coverage. ABC-TV had a correspondent's report midway in its Sunday evening newscast; NBC-TV gave it brief mention, and CBS-TV carried a report on its West Coast update and its late-night news after its regular Sunday evening news was pre-empted by a golf match.

It was on the front page of The Washington Post, but not in most newspapers around the country.

The people sponsoring the event did not go all-out in search of media coverage. They informed the news media, but spurned the advance news conferences or previews designed to provoke interest, the normal technique for those seeking large turnouts for demonstrations.

They didn't seem to care that Congress was in recess. There was no government involvement beyond the usual coordination with police and the National Park Service.

As a result, there was comparatively little advance publicity — considering the novelty and size of the event. Much smaller demonstrations have received much greater coverage.

By and large, the ribbon was a demonstration for the demonstrators. They hoped the government would get their message of peace. But it didn't need that to be successful.

Hibbard Thatcher, a Quaker from Nashville, Tenn., said he thought it would have some impact in Washington, but, "The impact is more significant back home, with people having made the effort."

Organizer Marie Grasso said the purpose wasn't to denounce anything or anyone. "I wouldn't call this a protest," she said. "It's more an affirmation of life."

It all started with a 61-year-old grandmother, Justine Merritt of Denver, who came up with the idea while saying her prayers one day in 1982. It spread to all 50 states and 20 foreign countries.

It was loosely organized by churches and peace groups. Washington-area churches arranged the lodging and helped with food and logistics.

When people talk about grass-roots movements, the ribbon is the kind of movement they are talking about. It builds and gathers momentum without the participation of government or politicians, but may force them eventually to pay attention.

There are some other recent examples: the protests on college campuses aimed at toughening American policy in South Africa; anti-abortion campaigns; the opposition of most of the nation's mainline churches to U.S. policy in Nicaragua; and the efforts by popular music stars to raise money for starving millions in Africa.

Harry Nagel, a housepainter from Durham, N.C., talked about the grass-roots effort behind the ribbon. "People feel helpless about what's going on in the rest of the world. Peace begins in our hearts and our communities, and I think we have the strength to initiate this."

Big Spring State Hospital students visit training camp in San Angelo

Residents of the adolescent unit at Big Spring State Hospital visited the Houston Oiler's training camp on the campus of Angelo State University in San Angelo recently.

Larry Moore, a staff member at the hospital, arranged the visit. Moore played defensive end with the Edmonton Eskimos of Alberta, Canada, when Hugh Campbell, Oiler coach, was there.

Moore called Campbell, set up an interview and made arrangements for youngsters from BSSH to visit with the Oilers.

Upon arrival in San Angelo, Gregg Stengel, media relations director for the Oilers, distributed stickers and schedules for upcoming games. The youngsters watched drills, calisthenics and maneuvers of the 85 rookie and veteran players.

Students and employees of the Adolescent Ward at Big Spring State Hospital talk with a Houston Oilers player. At right is Larry Moore, organizer of the trip.

After the training session, the Oilers met with the students, signed autographs, visited and posed for pictures.

Accompanying the group to San Angelo were Moore, Frances Ferguson and Gary Tibbs, all unit staff members.

Dr. Donohue

Milk leg is vein inflammation

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please let me know something about milk leg, which a friend of mine, age 77, has been told she has. She has never had any children. I say it is old-fashioned dropsy. — Mrs. A.B.

You're right. At 77, your friend can hardly be said to fit the "milk leg" diagnosis. It is a term seldom heard today. Years ago it ws used to describe leg swelling that occurred after a woman had delivered and was nursing her baby. Throughout pregnancy there is a progressive increase in blood flow and subtle changes in vessels themselves. At this time there is also the potential for vein inflammation (phlebitis) and this frequently happened in the nursing period. Today, with better medicines and better post-natal care, it doesn't happen so often.

Dropsy is another of those old terms we don't use today, although it probably comes closer to describing your friend's condition. The term has its roots in the Greek word for water, the implication being of an accumulation of fluid in the leg. But let's call it what it is, edema (eh-DEE-muh).

There are many possible explanations for that, even the vein inflammation spoken of earlier. She could have a heart dsease or kidney disorder, each of which can prevent proper collection of body fluid and lead to swellings. If the lymphatic drainage system is damaged (as from an old infection) there can be subsequent swelling as the lymph fluid collects in tissue outside of vessels.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Elderly are victims of fund-raisers

DEAR ABBY: "Frustrated in Palm Springs" complained because her 91-year-old sister had sent thousands of dollars to politicians in response to their letters soliciting for campaign funds. When Sister realized that the letters were only "form" letters and not personally written to her, she wanted her money back. "Frustrated" tried, but not one cent was returned, so she wrote to you and asked if you thought she could get a refund. You said she stood about as much of a chance as a snowball in Palm Springs.

Well, I've lived in Palm Springs for 22 years, and I have seen it snow several times. In 1979, enough snow fell in Palm Springs to make a 5-foot snowman. The Desert Sun had a picture of that snowman on its front page.

I can sympathize with "Frustrated" because my mother, who is 90, is also a victim. Only she's trying to buy her way into heaven by sending money to those smooth-talking religious orators on TV.

OLD TIMER

DEAR OLD TIMER: Live and learn. I should have come right out and said, "You don't stand a chance of a snowball in hell." That's what I get for trying to be refined and ladylike.

DEAR ABBY: Your column on irritating speech habits hit some well-chosen targets, but missed one of them completely. You wrote that it was incorrect to use "apropos" as though it meant "appropriate," and went on to add, "It doesn't. It means 'concerning,' 'regarding,' 'pretaining to' or 'relevant.'"

In fact, "apropos" has two correct usages. One of them is as you define it; the other is when it is used as a noun. Larousse's French Dictionary defines it as: "something said or done in an appropriate time or place," and gives as an example, "to have the sense of what is apropos."

As one who claims to respect correct usage, you should set the record straight.

RAMON B. JENKINS, M.D.,
CHEVY CHASE, MD.

DEAR DR. JENKINS: Apropos "apropos": Mercy! And merci.

'Shoe Box' float competition slated at fair

The state-wide Sesquicentennial "Shoe Box" Float Competition will culminate at the State Fair of Texas.

The float designs are to be received by the creative arts department of the State Fair of Texas by July 9, 1986.

All entries must first be judged at their respective fairs, expositions or by individual contests held by county extension agents. Geraldine Posey, president of the Howard County Fair, said exhibitions will be judged at this year's fair.

Only the first place winners of those contests will be forwarded to the Sesquicentennial Judging Committee, Creative Arts Department, P.O. Box 26010, Dallas, Texas 75226, 214-421-8744.

It is recommended that all designs be displayed in the local community at least until the first place winner is sent to the Sesquicentennial Committee.

Each local sponsoring agent is responsible for the entry blanks and format of individual contests, although the following rules must apply:

1. The Sesquicentennias "Shoe Box" Float Competition is open to all age groups.

2. All float designs require the Sesquicentennial theme, and according to the designer, best represents the Sesquicentennial idea.

3. If the design is not self-explanatory, drawings and/or patterns, as well as written expianations must accompany the float.

4. The designer's name, address and telephone number must be attached to the bottom side of the float.

5. The "shoe box" design can consist of a basic foundation of an actual shoe box or the use of any material.

6. The float is not to exceed 18" in length and 10" in width.

From the first place winners forwarded to the Sesquicentennial Committee, a first, second and third place special Sesquicentennial rosette will be presented. The "Best of Show" float design will receive a specially designed rosette and possibly a monetary award.

The "Best of Show" will be duplicated in an actual working float which will be presented nightly at the State Fair of Texas in the Torchlight Parade.

All the first place winners forwarded to the State Fair will be displayed in the Creative Arts Department during the Sesquicentennial Celebration Sept. 5, 1986 through Oct. 26, 1986.

Herald recipe exchange

Grill chicken patties for quick summer meal

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

A number of recipes are delivered to the Herald each week and this week we received a neat idea — grilling prepared chicken patties outdoors over charcoal for a quick summer meal.

The recipes can also be prepared in the oven.

The patties are frozen, breaded and fully cooked. The chicken patties can be served with various sauces and some of those sauce recipes appear below. The patties can be served with the sauce alone or can be served as sandwiches on buns.

Among other recipes featured in this week's Exchange are various chicken dishes and portable light salads and other summer treats.

Among recipes we've received this week:

SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN PATTIES

¼ cup prepared sweet and sour sauce
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
1 pkg. (12 oz) frozen prepared breaded boneless chicken patties

In a small bowl, combine sweet and sour sauce and soy sauce. Set aside. On cookie sheet, arrange chicken patties. Heat in 425 degree oven for 10 minutes. Turn chicken over. Brush sauce on top of chicken. Heat an additional 6 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

GRILLING INSTRUCTIONS: In small bowl, combine sweet and sour sauce and soy sauce. Set aside. Place frozen chicken patties on grill 6 inches above hot coals. Heat, covered, 15 minutes, turning occasionally. Brush sauce on both sides of chicken. Heat an additional 5 minutes or until hot, turning occasionally.

3 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
2 Tbsp. Dijon-style mustard
1 Tbsp. parsley flakes
1 tsp. instant minced onion
¼ tsp. hot pepper sauce
1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen prepared breaded boneless chicken patties

In small bowl, combine oil, vinegar, mustard, parsley, onion and hot pepper sauce. Set aside. On cookie sheet, arrange chicken patties. Heat in 425 degree oven for 10 minutes. Turn chicken over. Brush sauce on top of chicken. Heat an additional 6 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

2 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. crushed tarragon leaves
¼ tsp. ground black pepper
¼ tsp. onion powder
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen prepared breaded boneless chicken patties

In small bowl, combine lemon juice, tarragon, pepper, onion powder and garlic. Set aside. On cookie sheet, arrange chicken patties. Heat in 425 degree oven 10 minutes. Turn chicken over. Brush sauce on top of chicken. Heat an additional 6 minutes or until hot. Makes 4 servings.

1 cup zucchini slices
2 red plums, cut into chunks
1 medium red pepper, cut into strips
½ cup salad dressing

Pour dressing over combined chicken, pasta, beans, zucchini, plums and red peppers. Cover; marinate in refrigerator several hours or overnight, stirring occasionally. Combine salad dressing and chicken mixture; mix lightly. Makes 6 servings.

BUTTERMILK DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

Unsweetened cocoa powder

2½ cups firmly packed light brown sugar
3 eggs
3½ squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup buttermilk
1 cup boiling water
2¼ tsps. vanilla
Sour Cream Frosting (recipe follows)

Preheat oven to moderate or 375 degrees. Butter 3 9-inch round layer-cake pans. Line bottoms with wax paper circles; butter paper; lightly dust bottom and sides with unsweetened cocoa powder. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt onto piece of wax paper. Set aside. Beat butter in large bowl until light and smooth. Slowly beat in sugar until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Blend in melted chocolate. Mix flour alternately with buttermilk into butter mixture, beginning and ending with flour, until well blended. Stir in boiling water and vanilla. Pour into prepared pans, dividing equally. Bake in preheated oven 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool cakes in pans on racks 5 minutes. Turn out cakes on racks. Remove wax paper; cool. Place a cake layer on serving platter. Spread evenly with some of the Sour Cream Frosting. Repeat with remaining 2 layers and some of the frosting. Frost sides of cake.

Stepfamily may eventually become dominant family

By COSMOPOLITAN
A Hearst Magazine

The stepfamily may eventually become the dominant form of the American family, but for many new stepmothers the honeymoon is over when they face the reality of their husband's children.

One out of every two American marriages ends in divorce, according to an article in a recent issue of Cosmopolitan, and more than half a million new stepfamilies are formed every year.

Jealousy is a common problem.

"Many of the things you endure as a new stepparent have little to do with you personally," said psychologist Bonnie Maslin, coauthor of "Loving Men for All the Right Reasons." "You're really a blank screen on which the child projects conflicts and problems he is experiencing vis-a-vis the divorce."

She told of a recently remarried father who, in his new wife's presence, asked his daughter to set the dinner table. She set the table with two places.

The stepchild also may be torn by the feeling that to like his stepmother is to be disloyal to his real mother.

"Helping him understand that he can love both parents and still be loyal to both is terribly important," Maslin said.

Jeannette Lofas, founder and executive directed of the Stepfamily Foundation Inc., a New York counseling center, was a stepchild herself who now has four stepdaughters of her own.

"The more I would step back and let my stepdaughters be with their dad," she said, "the more they would want my presence."

The presence of stepchldren means a new wife must deal with her husband's ex-wife. "When children are involved," Maslin said, "divorce doesn't terminate the relationship."

The ex-wife is a "living reminder to the new stepmother of a previous life, a previous marriage, a previous family," said Aphrodite Clamar, psychologist and stepmother. "She appears everywhere in the new family, especially in the children's behavior, dress, personalities and general appearance." She also may try to drive a wedge between stepmother and children.

"As children get older, they recognize that as divisive behavior and dislike it," said Lois Meredith, a Gestalt therapist and stepmother of five. "At first, though, it makes their loyalty conflict more pronounced."

A stepmother must not criticize her stepchildren's mother, Meredith said, but she can tell older children, "I know your mother isn't happy that I married your father, and that makes it hard for you to like me. But I hope you'll try to see me for myself, regardless of what your mother may have said about me."

"You have every right to take a stand about what happens in a household that's half yours," she said.

Dominguez family holds reunion

The children of Victor and Luz Dominguez hosted a family reunion at Comanche Trail Park July 27.

A family mass was held at 10 a.m. July 28 at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. A luncheon followed in the educational building.

A total of 104 people attended the reunion. They traveled from Pecos, Monahans, Midland, Odessa, Houston and Eagle Pass.

Auxiliary meets in Houston

The American Legion Auxiliary held its 65th convention at the Astro Village in Houston July 25-28. National President Helen Adams and National Commander Clarence Bacon attended the department convention.

Annie Bransom of Big Spring was elected 19th district president. Other officers are: Joyce Satterfield, president, Marie Gregory, vice president, Ora Tristan, sergeant at arms, Cleo Wren, historian and Amey Robinson, 4th division president.

Officers will be installed at 6 p.m. Friday at Carlos' Restaurant.

Cassie Henkel is double crown winner

Cassie Henkel, 6, daughter of Billy and Tena Henkel of the Sterling City Route, was a double crown winner in modeling and talent during the American Star Youth Pageant in June.

The pageant was held in Dallas. Cassie also competed in the sweepstakes modeling division where she won first place.

Lakeview reunion slated

STANTON — The Lakeview community reunion will be Aug. 17 at Cap Rock Auditorium on West Highway 80.

Activities will begin at 10 a.m., and sandwiches and dessert will be served at noon. All residents and former residents are invited.

Survey shows divorced men face problems

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Divorce may be harder on men than women, and practice doesn't make it any easier, a sociologist has concluded from a survey of Dayton area residents.

Leonard Cargan, sociology professor at Wright State University, included never married, once-divorced and twice-divorced residents in a survey he spun off a singles program. He says he's interested in the topic because "up until 1981 I was a single man."

"Back in 1973, I started a singles program in Dayton called Interaction," he said. "I've always been interestd in singles and dealing with singles."

He made an earlier study of singles and marrieds to separate myths and realities of being single.

"Out of that study came the fact that it appears that the people that have the most trouble with being single would be the divorced male," Cargan said.

That led to the second study on which he compiled data last year. That was the basis of an article by two professors from the University of Windsor, Canada, that is being edited for submission to sociological journals.

"There have been a few comparisons of singles and marrieds, but none that I know of did divorced and redivorced," Cargan said.

Out of 1,400 questionnaires sent to the Interaction mailing list, 205 were returned by females and 111 by males. Of that sample, 146 women and 58 men had been divorced once; 25 women and 20 men had been divorced more than once.

"When we think of divorce, we usually think a woman comes out the poorest," Cargan said. "If you're dealing with finances, she does. She's going to have financial problems. Maybe she didn't have the education. Going back to the job market, she's going to get perhaps a lower-paying job.

"But she's got almost everything else going for her. Usually she gets the familiar house, custody of the children. Being a woman, she has a nurturing, different kind of relationship with friends than a man does. Usually, she has the kind of relationship where she can talk to friends about things that are troubling her. Usually she gets more support from her family and other relatives.

"What does the man get? He had to leave the familiar home, neighborhood, perhaps even the friends. He doesn't have that kind of relationship with friends that a woman does, doesn't have the children, he's usually alone, and he's lost his main role, that of provider. He finds himself sitting home alone slurping his beer and watching the tube. He also finds that single life isn't as great as he thought it would be."

Lack of a satisfactory sexual relationship is among the top male gripes, Cargan said.

Redivorced men listed depression as a problem twice as often as redivorced women, but were the least likely to seek therapy.

Single males are more likely to have tried suicide than females, but for the redivorced, the woman is most likely to have tried suicide. Extreme drinking behavior is more characteristic of men.

Seventy percent of redivorced women and 72 percent of divorced women wanted the divorce, while 49 percent of the males wanted the divorce, and 22 percent of redivorced males wanted the divorce, Cargan said.

Bow tie back in style

By CONNOISSEUR
A Hearst Magazine

The bow tie — that butterfly of masculine fashion — is back in style.

It is not yet a trend, according to an article in the August issue of Connoisseur, but it is spreading its wings among a certain exclusive minority.

For some, it never left. Jack Dunbar, a well-known New York interior designer, wears bow ties not only because he likes them but because he has twice chopped up his long necktie in his paper cutter.

"That doesn't happen with bow ties," he said.

Historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr., another bow tie diehard, explained his loyalty:

"They're part of my past. When I was growing up in the '30s, they were the common mode. But there is a more practical reason — nothing short of immense physical agility is required to spill soup on a bow tie."

The late James Beard wore a bow tie so it wouldn't dip into the bechamel.

Bow ties made their big splash in the U.S. in the 1930s — confident Franklin D. Roosevelt with his bow tie at the same jaunty angle as his cigarette holder; Winston Churchill signaling V for victory with his bow tie askew; Cole Porter insolently debonair in his formal tie, or Humphrey Bogart "deferring" to the Nazis in "Casablanca."

The necktie goes back at least to the mid-17th century, when it was used simply to tie a gentleman's collar around his neck. The bow tie descends from the flowing cravats of Regency rakes.

It was taken up by Baudelaire and other 19th-century bohemians and the "artist's bow" did not dwindle until the 1890s when Oscar Wilde carried bohemianism too far.

With the era of boiled shirts and wing-tipped collars came strict standards. A 1917 periodical recommended rounded, never pointed ends for a tie exactly one and seven-eighths inches wide. In the U. S., the bow tie was worn for evening dress by the rich.

In the years between the two world wars, the bow tie became a U.S. institution. Immigrants such as Balanchine, Thomas Mann and Albert Einstein adopted it to look American. John Houseman still wears one.

The butterfly came into its own in the 1960s, flaring out to complement broad lapels and "superfly" hats of the peacock menswear revolution, or worn more modestly by Walter Cronkite.

Bow ties were "out" for men in the 1970s, but were adopted by women who were dressing for success. By 1985, things had come full circle and women were relinquishing bow ties to men once more, Clara Pierre wrote in Connoisseur. But that leaves the question of ready-tied or self-tied.

"Ready-tied is too perfect," noted clothing designer Alan Flusser said. "A bow tie had to have character, like the man who wears it. And with pride in wearing had better come the ability to tie it."

'Back to the Future' regains spot as top money maker

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Science fiction took four of the top 10 box office spots during the past weekend, with "Back to the Future" surging back to the lead and "Weird Science" debuting in fourth place.

"Back to the Future," the Steven Spielberg-produced film about a teen-ager who goes back in time and meets his parents when they were youths, earned $8.7 million.

"National Lampoon's European Vacation," which features comedian Chevy Chase and the rest of the Griswold family, mopped up $7.4 million but dropped to second place.

Horror also continued to draw. The toothy vampire saga, "Fright Night," grossed $6.1 million in its first week to finish third.

But Sci Fi was the big draw last weekend, with the let's-make-a-girl comedy, "Weird Science," earning $4.9 million in its debut in fourth place, and "Cocoon," about eternal life, and the rerelease of "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" in sixth and seventh. "E.T." took in $2.8 million, "Cocoon," $2.6 million.

For the younger crowd, Disney's newest animated feature, "The Black Cauldron," and Sesame Street's big-screen effort, "Sesame Street Presents Follow that Bird," also took their place in the top 10, with "The Black Cauldron" picking up $3.1 million for fifth place, Big Bird in ninth with $2.4 million.

The western "Silverado" continued to show signs of life with $2.5 million, and the Mel Gibson sequel "Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome" took in $2.3 million.

Here are the top 10 films at the box office over the weekend with distributor, weekend gross, number of screens, total gross and number of weeks in release.

1. "Back To The Future," Universal, $8.7 million, 1,516 screens, $81.9 million, five weeks.
2. "National Lampoon's European Vacation," Warner Bros., $7.4 million, 1,546 screens, $27.4 million, two weeks.
3. "Fright Night," Columbia, $6.1 million, 1,542 screens, $6 million, first week.
4. "Weird Science," Universal, $4.9 million, 1,158 screens, $4.9 million, first week.
5. "The Black Cauldron," Disney, $3.1 million, 1,252 screens, $11.5 million, two weeks.
6. "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial," Universal, $2.8 million, 1,427 screens, $25.4 million, three weeks.
7. "Cocoon," 20th Century Fox, $2.6 million, 948 screens, $56.5 million, seven weeks.
8. "Silverado," Columbia, $2.5 million, 1,040 screens, $19.2 million, four weeks.
9. "Sesame Street Presents Follow That Bird" Warner Bros., $2.4 million 1,129 screens, $2.4 million, first week.

Investing in Southfork

Former Odessan makes fictional ranch pay

Texas Topic

PARKER (AP) — A year ago, Terry V. Trippet got a telephone call from a friend about a Dallas-area quarter horse ranch that was up for sale.

"I had no interest in buying a place like Southfork, until I saw it," Trippet recalled.

Love at first sight prompted the Dallas real estate tycoon to purchase the ranch of "Dallas" television series fame last August.

"I didn't even know where it was," said the 40-year-old Trippet, who, since he earned a bachelor's degree in finance at Texas A&M University, has amassed a tidy sum buying and selling property, including more than 15 ranches.

Trippet, of Terry V. Trippet & Co., said recently that he instantly knew the spread had one heck of an investment potential as a tourist attraction.

Sightseers average 1,000 to 1,500 a day, he said. One day in June, 3,800 made the trek to the home of the fictional Ewings, 27 miles north of Dallas.

"I think we hit the home run," said Trippet, who won't divulge how much he paid for the 160 acres and the 14-year-old, 8,500-square-foot mansion, except that it was "a whole bunch of money."

"Since I bought it, I've put in over $2 million in improvements out here," said Trippet, who is a 1964 graduate of Odessa High School.

Those improvements include the addition of a party pavilion to seat 2,000 and improving the house's interior to the tune of $500,000.

Following the lead of the previous owner, J.R. Duncan, Trippet continued to charge visitors $4 a head to view the grounds. At the same time, he added stagecoach and surrey rides, square dancers and cloggers, and food and soft drink sales.

Guests who hanker for more can rent the five-bedroom house for a night for a mere $2,500, Trippet said. Or groups can convene there for two hours of cocktails for $1,000.

A planned polo ground and rodeo arena will "go hand and glove with the operation," said Trippet, who also breeds and races thoroughbreds and quarter horses.

And he donates Southfork for fund-draisers, he said. At the recent Cattle Baron's Ball, 200 employees served 2,000 attendees and brought in $1 million for cancer research, he said.

The "Dallas" cast films at the ranch no more than 25 days a year, from mid-June through August, Trippet said.

He also declined to disclose how much California-based Lorimar Productions forks out for that privilege.

"It's quite a lucrative thing. It pays to do business with them, believe me," he said.

V. Trippet and Cherry Trippet, his late parents, owned a grocery in Odessa, and Trippet remembers working in the store and oil fields.

His goal was always "to get out of Odessa," he said.

Early acquaintances of the 6-foot-3 Trippet, who attended college on a basketball scholarship, remember him for his athletic prowess.

Mary Neil Johnson, a veteran Odessa High business education teacher who retired this year, recalled, "He threw a shot from one end of the fieldhouse to the other and made it."

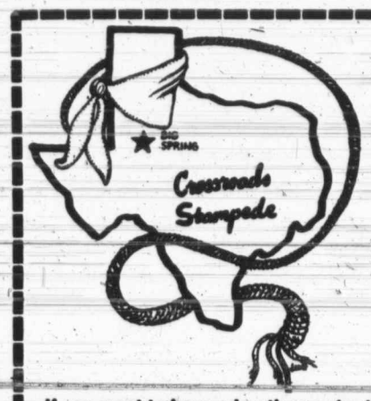

Trippet was "a fun-loving, happy-go-lucky kid," she said. "He didn't have too much interest in books."

E.H. Cavin, who was Trippet's principal at Bowie Junior High and later at Odessa High, agreed the youth was "a nice, likable person," — traits needed by a successful person.

But, "I hadn't anticipated that he would become just super, which I'm sure he has," Cavin said.

The former principal said when he went to catch up on work on weekends at the junior high, "the first person who would be here knocking on the door would be Terry Trippet. He would want to shoot baskets."

Today, Trippet places his worth "in excess" of $1 million.

Delaware man to head Texas economic agency

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Delaware man will head the economic development agency primarily responsible for bringing new industry into the state.

The Texas Economic Development Commission on Tuesday chose David Brandon, director of business development for the State of Delaware Development Office, as its executive director. He replaces Harden Wiedemann, who resigned in June.

The commission is working to improve the economic vitality of Texas through development and diversification of the economy. It also encourages industrial and corporate relocation and expansion.

Brandon, 37, was picked from a pool of 300-350 applicants, said commissioner Joe Kloesel, chairman of a selection committee. "We had excellent, excellent applicants from within the state as well as outside the state," he said.

After the commission's unanimous vote for him, Brandon outlined three things he would like to accomplish when he assumes his duties later this month.

First, Brandon said, he wants to familiarize himself with Texas and its economy. "Secondly, I want to bring some of the lessons I've learned regarding diversification to Texas," he said.

Finally, he wants to "make this the best economic development agency in the country."

Brandon said it is conceivable that Texas soon will diversify its economy by luring new industry into the state — such as automobile manufacturers. But he refrained from making any predictions.

Fellowship announces '85 Bible Fund

With a goal of $15,000, members of the Howard County Minister's Fellowship are again seeking donations for the Bible Fund, said Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor of the First Baptist Church and chairman of the campaign.

Letters were mailed out yesterday to past supporters of fund.

Money raised through the campaign has supported Bible classes in area high schools since 1946. The money is used to pay the teachers and to cover costs of the program.

Virginia Powers will teach a class at Big Spring High School. If enough students register for a class at Forsan High School, Patrick will be the instructor.

The course is a survey of the Old and New Testaments, said Patrick. Elective credit is given.

Powers said 70 students took the course last year at Big Spring High School. No class was offered at Forsan.

Donations for the fund may be taken to or mailed to the First Baptist Church, 705 W. Marcy Drive, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Donations also will be taken at the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry or may be mailed to the Herald at P.O. Box 1431.

Checks should be made to the Bible Fund.

Local businesses seek songwriting contest entries

Entries are being accepted through Aug. 30 for the ninth annual National Amateur Songwriting Contest, sponsored locally by radio station KBYG and Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Winners at the local level will be eligible to compete in the contest finals for a chance at the national grand prize.

The two national winners will travel to Nashville to see their songs recorded by superstar Charly McClain on a special 45, which will be distributed to radio stations nationwide. Other national winners will receive televisions, stereos and other prizes.

To enter the contest, amateur songwriters must submit a cassette tape of original music and lyrics to KBYG at P.O. Box 1713. The entry cassette must be accompanied by a written version of the lyrics and a signed statement that the song was written by the entrant, who is an amateur composer.

Entries will be judged on originality of music and lyrics, quality of composition and uniqueness of expression, said KBYG program director Chuck Riley.

Negotiations come up short

NEW YORK (AP) — The strike is on. For the second time in four years, major league baseball players walked out in midseason Tuesday when the clock ran out on a last-minute effort to settle a dispute over salary structure.

"We are on strike," union lawyer Gene Orza said in late afternoon.

Tuesday's 13-game schedule was wiped out, chief players' negotiator Don Fehr dampened hopes of a quick settlement when he said the two sides remained so far apart on the central issue of salary arbitration that "at the moment, I don't see a way out."

"We are hung up still," Fehr said. "Earlier today there were rumors we were close to a settlement. If that's true, then negotiating must have been going on with someone else. I have never had that opinion."

The owners' chief bargainer was slightly more optimistic.

"Lee expressed the opinion that they had made some progress, not overwhelming but some progress, especially in the area of salary arbitration and the benefit plan," said Bob Fishel, a spokesman for management negotiator Lee MacPhail.

After 11 hours of negotiations, talks recessed for the night, with another session scheduled for 10:30 a.m. CDT Wednesday.

Fehr, however, said the union had "tried every avenue we know how to get through this dispute. My conclusion right now is that there's no possible way."

BOB FISHEL
...some progress made

DON FEHR
...players still not happy

Fehr's assessment came at a time when games would have been wrapping up in East Coast and Midwest cities. Instead, stadiums were dark, and players and fans were at home, wondering how much of the final two months of baseball's 1985 season would be lost.

While Tuesday's games were called off by the American and National leagues, Wednesday's schedule was left officially intact pending developments from negotiations spead over 13 hours on strike deadline day. There even had been talk of making up lost games the next day with doubleheaders.

The strike interrupted an exciting season highlighted by Pete Rose's pursuit of Ty Cobb's all-time record for hits, Tom Seaver's 300th win and the Toronto Blue Jays' bid to bring the World Series to Canada for the first time.

It appeared for a while Tuesday that the season might go on intact. It was the busiest day of the 8½ months of negotiations, with bargainers meeting for a total of about nine hours.

Fehr, MacPhail and their aides reportedly made progress in talks that started on an "informal" level, with a strike appearing all but certain, and lasted until it just became too late to try to save the night's games.

The stumbling block, both sides said, was salary structure, especially arbitration. The union sought to keep the basic system of the last decade, while the owners wanted to limit eligibility and the amount of awards to trim escalating salaries now averaging $360,000 a player.

The owners' contribution to player pensions also was on the table, although it seemed to be less a sticking point.

Four years ago, the players struck for 50 days in a dispute over free agency. At least one player who was involved in that strike said Tuesday night that this summer's dispute was beginning to remind him a lot of 1981.

Among possibilities being discussed, the source said, was a graduated minimum salary for second- and third-year players, with exceptions as suggested by Ueberroth last week for "superstars," including players winning Most Valuable Player, Rookie of the Year or Cy Young Award honors.

MacPhail has said projections show baseball will lose $86 million by 1988 and that changes are necessary to get the industry back to a break-even point.

Fehr offered Monday to take less than a one-third share of network television revenue — which would amount to $60 million annually for six years — and instead accept about $40 million each year for the pension fund. The resulting difference, about $125 million from a total TV package of $1.1 billion, would be redirected to the teams that most need it.

The players made the proposal, however, provided the owners agreed not to change salary arbitration rules.

Fans have mixed reactions

By The Associated Press

After a month of preparation, a group of 30 people went on an outing to an Atlanta Braves-Los Angeles Dodgers game. They rented a double-decker bus, they brought beer and a barbecue. The only part missing was the game.

They were 30 of thousands whose planned outings to major league baseball games, but were foiled by Tuesday's strike.

The entire night's schedule of 13 games was postponed by the dispute, and fruitless negotiations threatened to ensure the scene would be repeated across the country. Baseball was closed.

Sam Vickery, one of the organizers of the Atlanta outing, said the group "decided to come out and make the best of it." They played their own mixed version of softball and wiffleball.

Their 30 tickets together formed home plate.

"It's a bunch of rich people fighting one another," Vickery said of the strike. "Nobody's right."

Vickery said the group would probably continue to attend major league baseball games after the strike ended, and a collection was taken up for the striking players. It yielded $1.53.

Evelyn Totten of New Jersey and her three children also had long-standing plans wrecked. Their two-hour drive from Columbus, Ohio to Riverfront Stadium was a waste of time.

"It was supposed to be a highlight of the vacation," Totten said as she stood in front the closed ballpark. "I guess it's a lowlight."

Two fans at empty Busch Stadium in St. Louis, where 32,000 tickets had been sold in advance for a Cubs-Cardinals game, expressed similar feelings.

Karen Lea said "I think it will be a short strike." Her friend Clentery Jackson said, "We are angry about it. I'm infuriated . . .

"We'll be back tomorrow night. We're not that angry."

Another St. Louis fan, Wilbert Dodson, said "I think it's for the birds. I hope they don't come back for the next year. We waited all year to come to the game tonight. We come to one game a year."

Cardinals ticket director Mike Bertani said fans as a whole weren't hostile, and some were buying tickets for September games.

James Tapp, of Fort Smith, Ark., who drove more than 270 miles in a camper to bring his family to see the Milwaukee Brewers-Texas Rangers game, said, "I brought my family for our annual trip to see a major league game. I had heard the game might be cancelled, but our vacation plans were already set. I hate to say it, but, yes, I'll come back. I may be upset for a few weeks, but I'm a fanatic fan and I'll come back."

100 freestyle world mark falls

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Matt Biondi broke Rowdy Gaines' 100-meter freestyle world record, but he wasn't satisfied. So Biondi went out and broke his own mark.

In the encore performance in Tuesday night's finals of the Phillips 66-U.S. Swimming Long Course National Championships, Biondi became the first swimmer ever to break 49 seconds when he touched the wall in 48.95. That time shattered his own record of 49.24, a preliminary-heat effort that had washed away Gaines' four-year-old mark of 49.36.

Why wasn't he satisfied with his first world record?

"Two reasons. The first is technical," said the 19-year-old resident of Moraga, Calif. "This morning, my start and my turn were a little bit off.

"And secondly, I always swim faster at night."

Biondi, an imposing sight at 6-feet-6 and 195 pounds, had to fight complacency while waiting for Tuesday's final.

"I wanted to stay calm, but I didn't want to get too relieved about the record because then I wouldn't go faster.

"I wanted to be the first to break 49. I was only five-one hundredths under it, but I'll take it."

Biondi came into the meet with the credentials to go after the world mark. He already had smashed Gaines's records in the 100- and 200-yard freestyles earlier this year. And last summer, he swam the third leg for the United States' Olympic gold medal-winning 400-meter freestyle relay team.

Mary T. Meagher, a winner of three Olympic golds last summer, narrowly missed breaking her four-year-old record in the 200-meter butterfly. She slapped the wall in frustration when the scoreboard posted her final time of 2:06.09, her best in the evnt since she established the world mark of 2:05.96 in 1981.

"I had trained a lot like I did in 1981, not so much endurance and more concentrating on stroke," said Meagher, a Louisville, Ky., native who attends California-Berkeley. Breaking that mark is "going to come down to the last 50 or 100 meters and I'll have to keep my stoke perfect."

Meagher, who was ahead of the record pace through 150 meters, said she "didn't hurt as bad the last part" as when she had set the record.

The Long Course Nationals, which began Monday, continued today with preliminaries and finals in six events, three each for men and the women — the 200-meter freestyle, 400-meter individual medley and the 800-meter freestyle relay.

John Moffet, whose chance at an Olympic gold medal last summer was dashed by a groin injury suffered in a preliminary, won the men's 200-meter breaststroke Tuesday night.

"If I had done better last summer, I wouldn't be doing this," Moffet said after posting a personal best of 2:17.41.

"I'm not satisfied here," he said. "I think I have a chance to go faster. I definitely think it's in me."

Double Olympic gold medal winner Rick Carey easily won the men's 200-meter backstroke, but his time of 2:01.64 was well off his best of 1:58.86.

Carrie Steinseifer of Saratoga, Calif., prevailed in the most competitive race of the evening, the women's 100-meter freestyle. She won with a time of 56.41 with four swimmers within one-half second.

Also winning Tuesday were Pablo Morales with a 1:59.15 in the men's 200-meter butterfly; Andrea Hayes with a 2:12.65 in the women's 200-meter backstroke; and Susan Johnson with a 2:36.00 in the women's 200-meter breaststroke.

U.S., Soviets try to mend athletic fences

MOSCOW (AP) — After the two countries took turns boycotting each other's Summer Olympic Games, the United States and the Soviet Union have taken steps to patch things up.

The heads of the Soviet and U.S. national Olympic committees met in Moscow Tuesday for what was believed to be the first such bilateral meeting since Moscow announced its boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics in May 1984. The U.S. boycotted the Moscow Games in 1980.

In a separate action, American and Soviet broadcasters announced that athletes from the two nations will participate in a world class multi-sport event next summer.

The announcement, at a joint news conference in Moscow, London and New York, was made by Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System, Inc., the U.S.S.R. State Committee for Television and Radio (Gosteleradio) and the All-Union Association Soyuzsportobespetsheniye (Soyuzsport).

Officials with the three sponsors said they hoped to hold the Goodwill Games once every four years.

In Moscow, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Soviet NOC head Marat Gramov held talks with Bob Helmick, president of the USOC, and George Miller, secretary general of the U.S. committee.

Tass said the men "exchanged views on topical problems of the international sports and Olympic movement and discussed possible ways of developing sports contacts between the Olympics committees of the two countries."

No other details were given and it was not known if Gramov raised the question of Soviet participation in the 1988 Seoul Olympics. There apparently was no relationship between the Moscow meeting and the announcement of the Goodwill Games.

Leonid Zamyatin, a senior spokesman for the Communist Party's Central Committee, was quoted Friday as saying that Moscow has already informed the International Olympic Committee that there will be a Soviet team at the Seoul Games. But officials at the IOC in Lausanne, Switzerland, said they had not received official word from the Soviets about their participation.

It was not known how long Miller and Helmick had been in Moscow before Tuesday's meeting.

Ted Turner, chairman of TBS, said in Atlanta that the first Goodwill Games will occur principally in Moscow during July 5-20, 1986, and will feature top male and female amateur athletes representing the United States, the Soviet Union and other countries which are invited to participate.

The games, which will be held in the United States in 1990, will feature traditional summer sports events such as track and field, gymnastics, swimming, boxing, cycling and volleyball.

TBS, Gosteleradio and Soyuzsport plan to make broadcasts of the Games available to other broadcasters through syndication.

Odessa duo garners scramble play win

The team of Luisa Searls and Billie Uzzell came away with top honors at the Two-Member Ladies Scramble Golf Tournament held this past Saturday at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Searls and Uzzell combined for a 9-under par 66 to claim first place in the Championship Flight. Second place with a 7-under par 68 went to the team of Nancy Swann and Jean Abbott, also of Odessa.

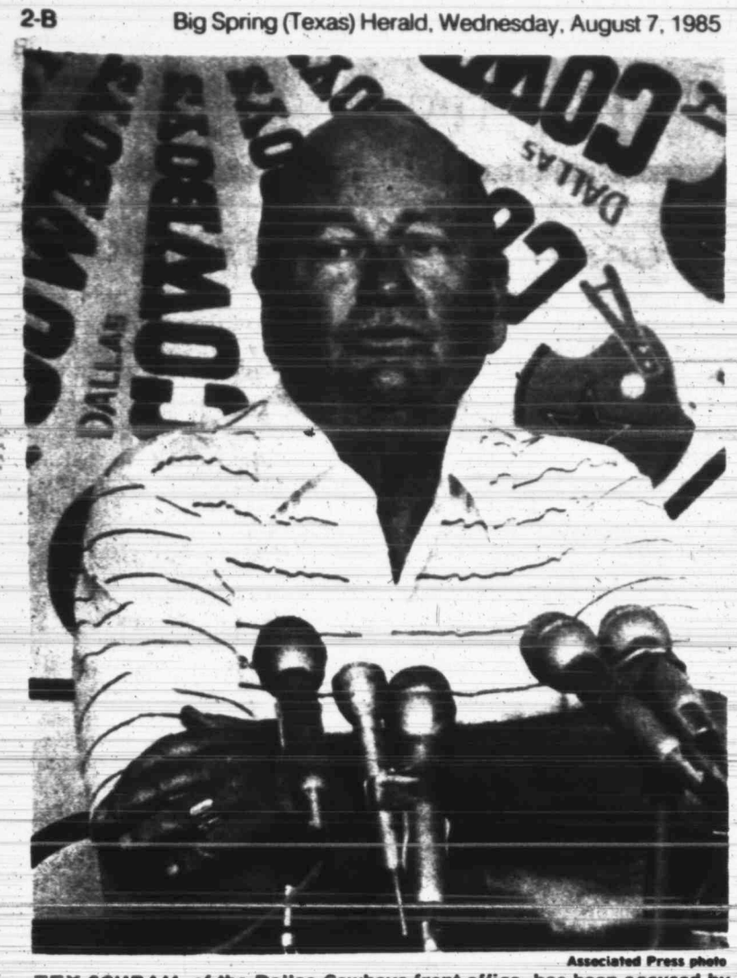

The local duo of Angela Parks and Vicki Broadrick finished third in the Championship Flight with a one-under par 74.

The mother daughter combination of Kristy Cambell and Rocky Belew won the First Flight with a two-over par 77. Belew is from Big Spring while her mother resides in Big Lake. The Midland duo of Beverly Johnson and Joyce Cramer place second with a 80 while Sandy Armstrong and Rene Edwards of Big Lake placed third with a score of 83.

Armstrong and Edward won third by virture of their playoff with locals Tammy Newsome and Marcia Wilkinson. Playoff was by progression of holes on the score cards. The winner was decided on number two where Armstrong and Edwards had a birdie and Wilkinson and Newsome shot an even par four.

The duo of Pat Brotherton of Wichita Falls and Sharon Subia of Big Spring, won the Second Flight with a score of 92. Sharon Walker and LaDonna Ragsdale of Andrews finished second with a 93.

Third place went to Dee Rogers and Linda Touchtone. The Big Spring duo shot a 99.

TEX SCHRAM, of the Dallas Cowboys front office, has been accused by TONY DORSETT of planting the story of DORSETT'S financial problems in order to put pressure on the star running back at the contract negotiating table. SCHRAM has refused to comment on DORSETT'S accusations.

Skulduggery cited in Dorsett case

DALLAS (AP) — Holdout running back Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys told the Dallas Times Herald in a front page story published today that he felt "double-crossed" by club management and is prepared to retire or ask to be traded if his contract demands are not met.

In a telephone interview from Los Angeles to Times Herald staffer Jim Dent at the Cowboys camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., Dorsett said he was promised by club president Tex Schramm two years ago that his contract would be renegotiated.

He accused Schramm of not fulfilling several promises and of "spreading my financial business all over town."

Dorsett said: "Right now, I'm prepared to sit out for as long as I have to sit out. If that means retiring, I might have to do that if the Cowboys don't pay me what they promised."

Dorsett, whose problems include an Internal Revenue Service claim of $400,000 in back income taxes and a $250,000 divorce settlement, hinted that he might ask the Cowboys to trade him "so I can bargain in good faith with another team."

The athlete said that Cowboys vice president Gil Brandt told agent Witt Stewart last year that Dorsett's contract was going to be renegotiated and that he would get the same amount of money as defensive tackle Randy White, who signed for some $650,000 a year after holding out prior to last season.

Dorsett, who was to be paid $400,000 this season in the fourth year of a seven-year contract, told the Herald he wants an annuity funded that would pay him $6.4 million over a period of 20 years.

Dorsett also said that he didn't get all of a $662,000 signing bonus promised him in 1977 when he was a Heisman Trophy winner out of Pittsburgh.

He claimed he got only $100,000 of the bonus.

"They have talked about how much they loaned me. But ask them about the $662,000 signing bonus. And ask them where it went. They know where it went. It's still in their pockets," Dorsett said.

Schramm said, "Only three weeks ago did I learn that Tony thought we didn't pay him his money. That was finally articulated to me by (agent) Howard Slusher. I am very sorry that Tony is saying that, but there is absolutely no basis for his statements."

Dorsett continued, "I'm not being greedy. It's just that I want some money. Schramm has said that he wants me to see the light at the end of the tunnel with my money problems, but what kind of light does he want me to see — a low light, a high light, or a Randy White kind of light?"

The running back said he felt he had been taken advantage of.

"Once Schramm found out what my problems were contractually, he leaked my information to the media and made my business public information. We had a talk with the IRS on a Monday and all of a sudden they were besieged with phone calls on Tuesday. The story was planted by Tex," he said.

Schramm refused to comment on Dorsett's charges except to say: "I'm disappointed that he is saying these things, but he hasn't said it to my face yet so I will reserve judgment. I'm just disappointed with the way he is acting."

Dorsett, who last year persuaded the Cowboys to give him $1.5 million in deferred money, lost some of it in stock deals that turned sour.

Dorsett, in his first interview with the media since he failed to report to camp, also said that famed Texas attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes has agreed to handle his "litigation problems" that deal with some bad oil investments.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram also reported today of Dorsett's hiring of Haynes concerning a possible suit against Dorsett's former tax advisers. In a telephone interview Tuesday night from his home in Houston, Haynes declined to disclose to the newspaper the names of any advisers who might be targeted in suits.

Haynes did say that Stewart "is on our side on this."

The back taxes demanded by the IRS were the result of failed oil investments that were originally intended as tax shelters. A government audit disallowed the shelters, meaning Dorsett owed taxes on the lost investment plus penalties.

Steers set practice

Big Spring head football coach Quinn Eudy will welcome back 12 returning letterman and a fine crop of underclassman on Monday, August 19, when fall two-a-day practice officially begins for Class 5A schools.

Eudy, who just recently returned from the Texas High School Coaches Association meeting in Dallas, is encouraged about the 1985 season after a good spring training. "We saw some real improvement this spring, especially with our offensive personnel. The defense will be young but their speed and aggresiveness will hopefully make up for the lack of experience."

Eudy has also cited an improved off-season weight training program as one reason for optimism in the upcoming season. The Steers have been working out at the high school facility and at the YMCA under the tutelage of Eudy and assistant coaches Benner and Briscoe. "We've seen more players involved this summer than any season before," commented Eudy. "Our team strength will be much improved this year."

67 players will be returning from the varsity and junior varsity programs. Eudy plans to keep around 40 players on the varsity with the remainder filling out the junior varsity squad.

Socks, shorts and shoes will be issued to all players on Wednesday, August 14. The Steers will practice in shorts from the 19th through August 22, then put on the pads for a week and a half.

The first intra-squad scrimmage is scheduled for Saturday, August 24 at either Memorial Stadium or Blankenship Field. The Steers will hit the road for their lone controlled scrimmage against Sweetwater on Thursday, August 29.

BYU punter impressive in Oiler camp

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Pro football fans attending Houston Oiler training camp workouts usually center their attention on the team scrimmages.

The punters and kickers work on a side field in anonyminity — until rookie Lee Johnson starts his workout, complete with an noticeablely louder thud of foot meeting ball and punts that bring oohs and ahhs.

"I can get them up, but a lot depends on your cover team, too. I had a 45-yard net in college, so I guess that's okay," he said.

Johnson kicked for national champion Brigham Young last season, finishing with a career average of 47 yards per punt. He had one punt sail 80 yards in a game where he set an NCAA record average of 60.4 yards on five punts.

Johnson, a fifth-round draft choice, was a shoo-in for the Oiler punting job.

Houston released veteran punter John James prior to the opening of training camp, and the Oilers were so confident of his competence they cut all other punters before the first preseason game.

"I'm starting to feel more comfortable now. When I played the first game, I was a little nervous, but I guess that's normal. Now I'm getting my rhythm down and feeling better," Johnson said.

"All summer you're practicing on your own without a center, so it's getting used to the snap."

Although Brigham Young won the national collegiate championship last season and the Oilers were 3-13 in the National Football League, Johnson doesn't see to much adjustment in his first season as a pro.

"It's not like I have to do anything different," he said. "I just keep punting the ball the same. It's not like you have to make an adjustment. Things are a little faster but you've got better people blocking for you."

In addition to his strong leg, Johnson is a left-footed kicker, which causes problems for kick returners.

"It falls different, and the way the ball drops in different," Johnson said. "It will confuse someone for awhile. I listen to what the return men say. They say I have a hard ball to catch."

Johnson averaged 50.6 yards per 24 punts as a junior at Brigham Young but didn't qualify for the national punting title because he didn't have enough punts.

Bingham retiring

SAN ANGELO — (AP) One week after he asked to be traded, Houston Oilers defensive linebacker Gregg Bingham announced Tuesday he is retiring and taking an administrative job with the National Football League team.

Bingham, 34, said he had signed a four-year contract with the Oilers, but terms of the agreement and his specific duties were not disclosed.

"This isn't the proper place to divulge what they want me to do, but it's in the best interest of the Oilers," he said at a news conference.

Although Bingham will not be on the Oilers' roster this season, he said he later might consider playing again or coaching.

Bingham, an alternate last season for the Pro Bowl, asked the Oilers to trade him, citing "irreconcilable differences" with Head Coach Hugh Campbell.

Oilers owner Bud Adams offered Bingham an administrative post with the team if he decided to retire.

Campbell said the Oilers, in the midst of a youth movement, had decided to go with younger, quicker Avon Riley at Bingham's inside linebacker position.

Bingham, who started his pro career with the Oilers in 1973, was a cornerstone on the 1978-80 playoff teams.

Californian leads junior golf

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Joan Pitcock led the girls' division and Chris Robinson and Dudley Hart were tied for the lead in the boys' division after the first round of the 72-hole American Junior Golf Association Tournament of Champions.

Pitcock, 18, of Fresno, Calif., fired a 72 over the par-72 Horseshoe Bend Country Club course for a 3-stroke lead over Katie Peterson of Plantation, Fla.

Robinson, 17, of Bakersfield, Calif., and Hart, 17, of Miami Beach, Fla., each shot a 4-under-par 68.

McEnroe teaches little brother a lesson

STRATTON, Vt. (AP) — It was a day, and a tennis match, that the McEnroe family had hoped would never come. It pitted brother against brother.

John McEnroe Jr., age 26 and the top-ranked player in the world, defeated Patrick McEnroe, age 19 and ranked No. 437, 6-1, 6-2 Tuesday night in the opening round of the $315,000 Volvo International tennis tournament.

"We're all glad that's over," John McEnroe Sr. said after watching his sons play against each other for the first time in a professional event.

"It was inevitable they would have to play together in some tournament, but I would have preferred if Patrick just had a chance," the elder McEnroe said.

But Patrick had no chance.

John put in a workmanlike, 65-minute performance in getting past Patrick. He served six aces, the last on the final point of the match.

"I was relatively confident John was going to win," the father said. "And it turned out that John wasn't pressed that hard."

"I hope it doesn't happen again," John Jr. said "I didn't really enjoy it. I just feel that now the tournament is starting."

Added Patrick, a sophomore at Sanford University and the No. 4 singles player on his college team, "We just knew it wasn't going to be a real tight match. I took it as another practice. ...I had to work hard for every point. I had to work my butt off."

The two never acknowledged each other during the match. On several occasions, John loudly criticized rulings by line judges. His only comment to Patrick during the match was to say "sorry" after a judge made a questionable ruling on a shot.

"He doesn't talk to anyone during a match," Patrick said.

The two brothers often practice together at the family's New York home when their schedules permit it.

Last year, Patrick had a very successful season in junior play and was ranked as one of the top players in the 18-and-under category. He also played in five professional tournaments, winning $5,640. John, ranked the best in the world for more than four years, won more than $2 million last year.

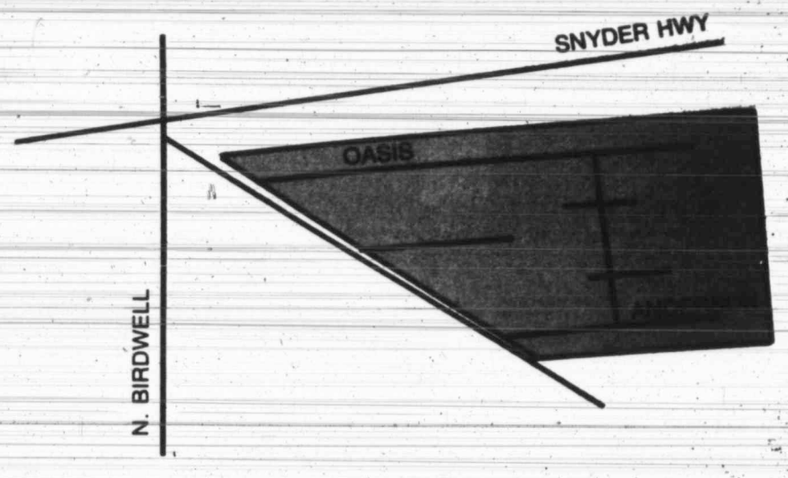

The brothers' paths crossed once before, when they competed as a team in the WCT-Richmond doubles tournament last year. They won, and the whole family enjoyed it.

There was no enjoyment Tuesday night.

After the match, as the elder McEnroe sat in the player's lounge, pro player Tim Mayotte walked by and said, "Tough game, huh? No one wins."

"That's right," McEnroe Sr. said. "No one wins."

Top seeds fall in boys tennis championship

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Unseeded Andre Agassi and John Falbo shocked second-seeded Murphy Jensen and Al Parker to highlight the third round of doubles play in the 16-and-under division of the United States Tennis Association Boys' 16-18 championships.

But all four players won their singles matches Tuesday to advance to today's scheduled third round.

Agassi, of Las Vegas, Nev., and Falbo, of Charleston, W. Va., downed Jensen, of Ludington, Mich., and Parker, of Claxton, Ga., 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 at Kalamazoo College's Stowe Stadium.

Top-seeded Jeff Tarango of Manhattan Beach, Calif., and David Wheaton of Deephaven, Minn., edged Jim Rogerson of Wilson, N.C., and John Yancey of Morganton, N.C., 6-2, 6-7, 6-4.

Jensen and Parker fared better in 16-and-under singles play. Fifth-seeded Jensen trailed 5-2 in the second set before pulling out 6-4, 7-5 victories over Marc Kudelko of Largo, Fla., while top-seeded Parker swept to 6-2, 6-0 triumphs over Nicky White of Bethesda, Md.

Agassi, No. 7 in the 16-and-under division, outlasted Yancey 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, while No. 6 Falbo downed Tom Blackmore of Rolling Hills, Calif., 6-3, 7-6.

In 18-and-under singles play Tuesday, top-seeded Buff Farrow of Wichita, Kan., disposed of David Ramirez of El Paso, Texas, 6-1, 6-2 to complete a match delayed one day by rain. Only nine matches were completed Monday.

No. 2 John Boytim of Spring, Texas, earned a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Jack Salerno of Aurora, Ill.

"I lost a little intensity in the second set," Boytim said. "I was cruising along and instead of keeping tense I let up. Today was just one of those humid days when I think everyone would have rather stayed in bed when the alarm went off."

Sixth-seeded John Carras of Midland, Mich., had little trouble with James Johnson of Palo Alto, Calif., defeating him 6-3, 6-0.

The field will be reduced to 16 players in both the 16-and-under and 18-and-under divisions after today's scheduled third-round singles action.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 8, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is no day or evening to take any chances where your practical or financial affairs are concerned. You as well as others are apt to be stubborn and unyielding in attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Give financial affairs your greatest attention today and be sure you are sensible about them in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Although you may meet with frustration in going after personal aims, if you are patient all will work out fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have private worries that could keep you from accomplishing a good deal in the outside world.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be more objective if opposition is trended your way where a personal aim is concerned, and you win out.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be most tactful in the business world today and don't jeopardize your good reputation. Steer clear of bigwigs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to garner more data before you get into that new interest that appeals to you. Show that you know what you are doing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Your intuition is not good today and in the evening so use only good judgment, particularly with your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to force your views on an associate or much friction can arise. Later don't worry about public affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid an argument with a co-worker otherwise it could affect your work considerably.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't be forceful in trying to have a good time today, or you alienate others badly. Come to a better understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy at outside duties today and sidestep a possible quarrel at home. Not a good time to do any entertaining at home.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to be careful not to irk anyone by making mistakes either orally or in writing.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very magnetic and others will want to spoil your progeny. However, your son or daughter will have the desire to become a success in life and should be taught to be kind to everyone if that is to become an actuality. Sports are a must here.

there is no excuse for you to be in the dark when we are only too willing to give you our professional opinion on the market value of your home, to tell you about how much it will cost to move into that larger home you need, and to answer the many other questions you have.
After all, it's our business to have the answers.

IF SOMETHING GOES WRONG AFTER YOU BUY, ERA® REAL ESTATE PAYS FOR REPAIRS.*

ERA pays for all the surprises homeowners insurance doesn't always cover ... like the interior plumbing and fixtures, built-in appliances, the hot water heater, furnace, electrical wiring, exposed duct work, the central air conditioning, water softener ... even swimming pool components.

The ERA Buyer Protection Plan covers more homes and more working components than any other home protection plan. And it's available from ERA in all 50 states.

So if you're in the market to buy, call the qualified professionals at your neighborhood ERA office.

We've got what it takes to protect home buyers ... even after the sale.

There really is a difference in real estate companies.

Mugabi keeps fight record intact

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — John Mugabi preserved his Nov. 14 clash with undisputed middleweight champ Marvin Hagler by overpowering and stopping Bill Bradley after four rounds of a scheduled 10-round fight Tuesday night.

Mugabe appeared sluggish after weighing in 1¼ pounds over the 160 pounds limit and fighting at 161 pounds. Yet despite lacking timing, the Ugandan-born Mugabe, now residing in Tampa, Fla., landed numerous one-punch bombs to the head of Bradley.

Mugabe, 26-0, jolted Bradley with a left-uppercut to the chin and a right to the head in round one. Left hooks to the head punctuated his second-round attack while several short left and right uppercuts in the third and fourth rounds made Bradley appear defenseless.

Chief Physician Frank Doggett and Referee Larry Hazzard, considering the swelling around Bradley's left eye and his nonexistent offense, stopped the fight in the corner.

"I went back to Uganda to be with my mother and after I came back I only trained about three weeks." Mugabe said.

"All he kept hearing about was the fact he was fighting 'Marvelous Marvin Hagler, Marvelous Marvin Hagler,'" said Mickey Duff, who holds promotional rights to Mugabe.

"He was a good 10 pounds over his normal weight. When he fights Hagler it will be at about 156 pounds," Duff said. "But since this wasn't Hagler, not even John realized he was going to be in a fight here."

Bradley, who said Mugabe's body punches "threw me off key," fell to 22-8 with 12 knockouts. He weighed 158¼ pounds. He is from Middletown, Ohio.

Hagler and Mugabe will fight at Caesers palace in Las Vegas.
