performance of our duties.

During my tenure of office there have been three things uppermost in my mind, namely: Efficiency, courtesy, and economy. I feel sure that all who are acquainted with our work will bear me out that our records show that we have efficiently handled your affairs in this office in a courteous manner and that we have consistently turned back thousands of dollars to the County Treasurer each year in excess money earned over and above all expenses of office. For the year ending December 31, 1941, we turned back to the County $12,575.30 in excess of our expenses.

In handling more than $1,000,000.00 annually of your money, we realize the responsibility of the many details connected with the assessing, collecting and distribution of this large sum to the various governmental agencies.

Daughters Of Legion Auxiliary Members To Sell Poppies May 30th

American Legion observance of Poppy Week is schedu'ed for the week ending Saturday, May 23rd, with the sale of paper poppies made by disabled war veterans.

The sale of the poppies this year will be conducted by the daughters of world war veterans with headquarters at the Corner Drug store.

While the Veterans of Foreign Wars have been observing May 30th which is Memorial Day, for a number of years, this year the poppy will be worn in honor of the dead of 1941-1942 in addition to 1917 and 1918. Proceeds from the sale of the flowers will be used for the welfare of disabled veterans and needy families of men of both wars.

"It's just a little bit of red to wear in your lapel . . . the copy of a flower that covers a field called Flanders. Proudly show your colors this Memorial Day by wearing this symbol of bravery. Wear a Poppy—in remembrance of our war dead. Buy a Poppy—to aid the families of all disabled veterans who have fought our battles in the name of liberty."

WHEREAS, many others were called upon to sacrifice health and strength, with resulting suffering and hardships to themselves and families which continue to this day;

WHEREAS, the memory of these patriotic sacrifices should ever be kept fresh in the minds of patriotic citizens, while the fullest aid should be extended to those still within the reach of human aid; and,

Hope Never Dies

Mrs. Green was proudly displaying a new hat to Mrs. Gray.

"It's lovely," said Mrs. Gray; "but how do you manage to get so much money from your husband?"

"Quite simple, my dear," was the triumphant reply. "I just tell him I'm going back to mother, and he immediately hands me the fare."

Simple as That

"Yes, I came face to face with a lion once," said the club liar, "and I was alone and unarmed."

"Heavens, what did you do?" asked a new member, who didn't know his man.

"What could I do? I tried staring straight into his eyes, but he just continued crawling towards me."

"How did you get away, then?"

"I just left him and passed on to the next cage."

★MOROLINE HAIR TONIC 10¢

The problem of what to send a service man has been solved by the men themselves. Tobacco tops the list of gifts service men prefer from the folks back home, according to numerous surveys. If you have a friend or relative in the armed forces—Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard—who smokes a pipe, or rolls-his-own, a pound of his favorite tobacco is very much in order. A big favorite with many service men is Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco. Local dealers now are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for the men in the service.—Adv.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

©BELL W-N-U Release

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to importer Arthur Mulford, is discharged by him and refused any explanation. She takes a similar post with handsome Karl Miller, proprietor of a night club who pays her generously for unusual late hours of work. He gets her sister Sybil a new job and Joan falls in love with him. His club manager, Paul Sherman, warns her about Karl, but refuses to give any reason, and later rescues her from the unwanted lovemaking of Eric Strom, Karl's business partner. Sybil suspects Karl's motives but Joan defends him. They board a freighter-ship, apparently as a lark, and as they leave, Joan notices that Paul Sherman had followed them. She remains silent about this. Later Karl sends Joan with a package to the freighter captain. Paul follows, again warns her. One night before Christmas Eric arrives suddenly and Karl asks Joan to leave the office.

Now continue with the story.

But it was Eric Strom who lay upon the floor. There was a gun beside his hand.

CHAPTER VIII

The club was crowded with a gay holiday group. Joan went into the bar and took her place on a tall stool.

"Something to drink, Miss Leland?" one of the attendants asked.

"No, thank you," Joan said, "I'm waiting for Mr. Miller." She looked at her watch. Exactly ten o'clock. She hoped Karl would not be long. She was jealous of each moment he spent with anyone else.

She was so deep in her own thoughts that she did not hear Paul Sherman until he spoke a second time.

"Fancy finding you here," he was saying as he caught her attention.

"I'm waiting for Karl."

Paul smiled ruefully, "I might have known it."

"Are we going through this again?" Joan asked. "It's Christmas time, Paul. I'm happy and I don't want to quarrel with anyone."

Paul's brown eyes twinkled. "Even me?"

"Even you," she said firmly, "Let's call a truce, shall we?"

"It's a deal. And to prove it, how about a dance with me?"

She hesitated, but Paul pulled her to her feet.

"I won't take no for an answer. Even Karl can't begrudge me one dance."

Paul was an excellent dancer and Joan was relieved that he seemed resigned to the situation. She really wanted to be friends with everyone, to share her happiness with the whole world.

There was pity in Paul Sherman's brown eyes but Joan did not see it. As light as a feather, she danced in his arms. Over her head Paul's serious face belied his gay attempt at bantering conversation.

"You have the cutest turned-up nose," he informed her. "But it doesn't suit the rest of you."

"That's a dubious compliment," Joan smiled.

"Your nose gives you away for just what you are, a cute kid! Paul laughed and so did she. Cute kid! Karl called her beautiful, glamorous, exciting—Paul Sherman thought she was just a cute kid. It proved how much more sophisticated Karl was. Yet if she had never met Karl she would have been fond of Paul. He was young, good-looking and intelligent. Karl, however, had so much more to offer. He had lived. He was experienced. There was a mystery about him that set him apart from all others. There was even a subtle fascination about his guttural accent. Karl represented power and strength. Karl . . .

"I'm still here," Paul reminded her, breaking into her dream.

"Sorry," Joan admitted. "I'd almost forgotten."

The orchestra filed out for an intermission.

"I think I'll go back to the office," Joan said. "Karl said he'd send for me in ten minutes and it's been much longer than that. Eric Strom is there."

"Eric Strom!"

"That's right. And Karl didn't seem too pleased about it."

"I wouldn't advise you to go back then," Paul said, frowning.

"I'm worried," she confessed, "about Karl."

"Karl can take care of himself," Paul said, lighting a cigarette.

But Joan felt a sudden inner compulsion. "I'm going anyway," she told Paul. He made a step as if to detain her, then apparently reversing his decision, walked to the bar.

Joan hurried down the long corridor exactly as she had done so many times before. But fear hastened her footsteps, fear for Karl. She did not trust Eric Strom. She had been alarmed by his expression.

"If anything happens to Karl . . ." she thought.

As she reached the door she heard the two men arguing violently. Then there was a shot followed by a crash.

"Karl!" Joan screamed, flinging open the door.

But it was Eric Strom who lay upon the floor. There was a gun beside his hand.

Her eyes sought Karl's fearfully. "He killed himself?" she faltered.

Karl shut the door. "Pick up that gun!" he commanded.

Shuddering, Joan obeyed, placing it upon the desk.

"Karl!" She ran to him, seizing his arm, staring into his face, which had no glint of emotion in it. "Darling, you didn't kill him?"

Her green eyes were pleading from a chalk-white face. "Karl! Karl! Answer me! You didn't . . . You couldn't . . . Why that would be . . . Murder!"

Karl Miller smiled grimly as he took a cigarette from the silver box on his desk. "Some people might call it that," he said without a trace of excitement.

Joan leaned weakly against the desk. She was beyond fear, beyond tears. There was a terrible silence in the office, a heavy dreadful silence. A silence intensified by Karl Miller's face, narrowed eyes, hard mouth. A silence made more tense by the stillness of Eric Strom's body upon the floor. Joan's mind slowly tried to put together the pieces of this horrible picture. Karl had shot Eric—killed him. Beyond that she knew nothing.

Her hand reached for the telephone. "I'm going to call the police!"

Karl seized her arm with a violence that almost jerked it from its socket. "You will do nothing of the kind!"

She stared at him. Was this the Karl Miller she knew? Was this hard-faced man the one who had held her tenderly and murmured "liebchen"?

Someone was pounding at the office door. Karl had locked it. Paul Sherman's voice came distinctly through the opaque glass panel. "Joan! What's going on in there? Let me in!"

Karl walked to the door and opened it. "There has been an unfortunate accident," he said calmly.

Paul's expression did not change. "What happened?"

Karl Miller smiled a little as he regarded his white-faced manager.

"Joan was perfectly justified. Eric has tried to annoy her before. You can testify to that yourself."

"Just what are you driving at?" Paul demanded.

Joan tried to speak but her lips would not move. What was Karl saying? What did he mean?

"Joan shot Eric," Karl Miller stated.

His words were like an electric shock. "I didn't! Karl, you know I didn't! You did it yourself! You shot him!"

She ran to Paul and clutched his arm. "Paul, you believe me, don't you?"

Paul Sherman did not answer. He did not even look at her.

"Your fingerprints are on the gun," Karl said.

"But you told me to pick it up." She could not believe her ears. Karl, the man she loved and trusted, had turned against her, accusing her of a murder he had committed. It was like some fantastic nightmare.

"I have no wish to turn you over to the police, Joan. We will forget about this little matter. No one need know what has happened."

Rage blazed in her green eyes. "But I haven't done anything. I'm not afraid to go to the police! And I'm going to tell them the whole story.

She was not speaking to the Karl Miller she had loved. This man was a stranger.

"You will not go to the police!" His voice cut like a whip.

Paul Sherman stared straight ahead of him, seeming to see or hear nothing.

"I will!" Joan cried hysterically, turning towards the door.

Karl's powerful arm stopped her and forced her roughly into a chair. "There are two reasons why you will not. The first—if you do I will testify that you shot Eric, and Paul will back me up."

Her pleading eyes turned to Paul. He would not fail her.

But he said coolly, "I'm afraid that's right."

"But you can't! It isn't true! Karl, why are you doing this? Paul! Help me! I don't understand."

"Eric," Karl went on, "tried to double-cross me. You may observe for yourself what has happened to him. That is the second reason that you will do nothing."

Joan clutched the arms of her chair for support. She compressed her lips in a desperate attempt to control her emotions.

Karl Miller advanced towards her. "And if you double-cross me, you know what to expect. Now do you understand?"

"You wouldn't dare!" Joan said but the sightless eyes of Eric Strom refuted the statement.

She covered her face with her hands and wept.

It couldn't be true. That wasn't Karl, her Karl! He must be driven by desperation to turn against her. It was some horrible mistake. In a moment it would be over. He would explain everything and hold her in his arms again.

But Karl was saying, "You know nothing! You will tell no one what has occurred here tonight. We will go on as if nothing has happened."

She wanted to laugh wildly, hysterically, "Go on as if nothing had happened"?

Karl wrapped the pistol in a handkerchief, put it in the safe, then motioned to Paul. "Give me a hand." Together they carried the lifeless Eric Strom from the office. Joan could hear them descending the fire escape, outside the back of the building. What would they do with Eric? The noise from the orchestra must have prevented the sound of the shot from disturbing the Club guests.

Joan stared at the telephone. She was alone. It would be easy to call the police—but she was afraid. She was afraid of the look in Karl Miller's eyes. There had been ruthless determination in those eyes. And in the safe lay the gun that had killed Eric. A gun bearing her fingerprints. Paul had said he would testify in support of Karl. What chance would Joan Leland have? The evidence was conclusively against her. What was behind this murder? Why Karl's attitude, Paul's sudden change of front?

She had no idea how long it was before Karl returned. He was alone.

"Let us understand each other," he said, sitting down at his desk. "It would be most unfortunate if I were to become involved with the police. I am not an American citizen."

"You are a German?" Joan asked dully.

"Naturally, as is everyone else associated with me here at the club."

"Paul, too?"

"Of course, Paul, too." Karl Miller smiled as he leaned towards her. "You see we are engaged in certain activities which are necessarily very private."

Then at last Joan knew the t . This was a spy ring. It must be. That explained everything — those mysterious letters to Mexico, Karl's reticence. The Club Elite was only a blind. But why was Karl telling her this?"

"I trust you now," Karl said with a wry smile. "You are in much too deep to get out. Not only would you be held for murder, but you are implicated just as much as the rest of us. You recall the portfolio you delivered to the freighter?"

She stared at him without answering.

"That envelope contained very valuable information. Information enough to convict you on many counts. You were seen delivering that envelope by several people. One of them happened to be Paul Sherman."

Little by little Joan Leland's confused brain began to see the picture. And she knew that what Karl said was true. She was in too deep to get out. But she must get out! She could not, would not continue to have anything to do with Karl Miller now that she knew the truth. A spy! So this was the mystery that she had once considered romantic and attractive! She looked at him now with loathing.

But Karl put a hand over hers. "Be sensible, Joan. You're hysterical at the moment but you'll be all right. You have nothing to worry about. I'm very fond of you. Is there any reason we should not go on . . ."

The girl leaped to her feet. "I hate you, Karl Miller! And no matter what you say, I'm not afraid of you!"

His hands were on her shoulders. "You don't mean that, liebchen!"

Commencement Time

There's a last-minute flurry of hair brushing and straightening of ties as Jane and Billy get ready for their graduation exercises. Yes, this is really the year the children are getting through with school. It's hard to believe, isn't it? It seems like just yesterday that they started school!

Your role is that of sitting back and beaming at their accomplishments, but, just as important, providing the children with a party and refreshments after commencement.

Simplest way of taking care of refreshments is setting up a table in the porch or dining room. Then fill this with assorted breads and cold cuts, add a few relishes for good measure, and you have the makings of a successful party. The informality of this setting will please the children, and at the same time relieve you of extra serving. Let the children help themselves and take their own time about it, for there will be plenty of conversation to go with refreshment time.

Provide white, whole wheat and rye bread so there will be variety from which to choose. It's smart to have this already sliced for the youngsters and it looks better on the table.

The meat platter provides an attractive assortment of sandwich filler. Arrange in clockwise fashion, the following: chicken pattie, cooked tongue, meat loaf and liverwurst. You can let the imagination of your guests run freely with making their own sandwiches, but in case they run out of ideas, you might suggest some of these:

Chicken pattie and boiled ham with sweet pickle relish and lettuce on whole wheat bread.

Meat loaf with tomato ketchup on white bread.

Liverwurst and chicken loaf on whole wheat bread.

Tongue and sliced cucumbers with horseradish and mustard on rye bread.

Balance the sandwich spread with a salad of some kind. If the youngsters are boys, they will go for slices of tomato on lettuce. For girls or a mixed group, a molded fruit salad will be tops:

Pineapple Carrot Salad Ring.
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup water
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup sliced pineapple
4 to 5 grated carrots (raw)
Lettuce or endive
Mayonnaise or french dressing

Heat water and pour over gelatin. Add cold pineapple juice and set aside to cool. Add grated carrot and pineapple cut in tidbits. Place in individual molds or a large ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Let jell, then turn out on a bed of crisp lettuce or endive, and serve wth dressng. If a large mold is used, the outside may be garnished with fruit such as sliced oranges, pineapple, and apricots.

•Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake
•Recipes Given

No party is complete without confections of some kind because there are moments when you actually want to nibble on something sweet. Here is a recipe featuring dried fruits noted for their high sugar content. They're easy to fix and full of taste.

Fruit Dreams.
(Makes 60 squares)

1 14-ounce package pitted dates
¼ pound nutmeats
¼ pound figs
¼ pound apricots
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 tablespoon orange juice

Put dates, nutmeats, figs and apricots through the meat grinder. Knead orange rind and juice into the mixture. Roll with a rolling pin into a square sheet ¼ inch thick. Cut in squares and dip into powdered sugar.

If your sugar ration dos not extend to making cool drinks with sugar, here is a lemonade made with honey. To make a really "partified" drink, add a scoop of lemon, orange, raspberry or pineapple sherbet for the lemonade. Use carbonated water instead of plain and garnish with berries or fresh cherries.

Honey Lemonade.
(Makes 1 serving)

1 lemon
1 to 3 tablespoons honey
1 cup water

Extract the juice from the lemon and add the honey. To this add cold water and ice to chill. Serve this in individual glasses with a slice of lemon on the rim of each glass. Or, if you prefer using a punch bowl, set the drink in that (increasing the recipe to take care of as many people as you are having), and let blobs of sherbet float on top of the lemonade.

Cake 'n' ice cream have high rating among the younger set, so for this occasion I would suggest the following cake:

Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake.

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2¼ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
½ cup milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift togethr three times. Cream shortening with orange rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add ¼ of the flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well after at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch pans in a moderate (375-degree) oven 30 minutes or until done. Cover with:

Chocolate Chip Frosting.

Place cake layers on a baking sheet, having one layer top side down. Cover tops with semi-sweet chocolate chips, using 2 packages. Heat in a moderate (350-degree) oven 6 minutes or until chips are just softened. (The cake may be frosted while warm. Heat only 3 minutes.) Remove from oven. Spread softened chips over bottom layer, letting chocolate run down sides. Arrange top layer and spread as before. Then spread sides evenly.

Have you a particular household or cooking problem on which you would like expert advice? Write to Miss Lynn Chambers at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois, explaining your problem fully to her. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Lynn Says:

Did you know that it is perfectly proper to wash the American Flag? Of course, you know it is disrespectful to display a badly soiled one, but perhaps you were a bit worried about trying to wash it.

A recent survey made by professional laundries reveals that flags made of woolen material should be washed and rinsed as other woolens: squeeze the flag through rich suds whipped up with a mild soap and warm, softened water of not more than 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Rinse in two or three changes of lukewarm, soft water.

Cotton flags should be rubbed lightly, but only lukewarm soft water should be used for the suds. Both wool and cotton flags should be air-dried.

Textile experts at professional laundries also point out that flags raised outdoors naturally deteriorate more quickly than those displayed indoors. If a flag launders well, its service period is increased with frequent washing.

LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.

Lesson for May 31

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34).

This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins.

As Krummacher says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of history.

Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him

When disaster strikes, the Red Cross is first in and last out.

VOLUNTEER Special Services of the American Red Cross have been geared to meet war requirements and war priorities.

Although a shortage of materials has cut down production work, women who have sewed and knitted for the Red Cross will be glad to know that, under an agreement with the War Production board, a certain amount of wool and yard goods will be available for Red Cross workers, according to Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of this Red Cross program.

The Red Cross Motor corps has been active since the early days of the First World war, but since last year its work has tripled. Many of the 6,576 members, on account of tire priorities, are restricting the personal use of their cars so that their motor corps work may be continued. Motor corps volunteers drive the ambulances which provide transportation for hospitals and Red Cross chapters, and hold themselves ready for service in any kind of emergency. Besides their basic training in motor mechanics and advanced first aid, many members are now studying map reading, stretcher drills, and convoy and ambulance blackout driving in co-operation with their local police and fire departments.

A new canteen aide corps has recently been formed in preparation for wartime emergencies, when feeding of large groups of people such as evacuees or disaster victims may have to be hastily organized.

The other general wartime volunteer services of the Red Cross include home service to the families of the men in the forces, the hospital and recreation corps which brings cheer to the sick and wounded, and the staff assistance corps, which provides volunteers for all kinds of office work in hospitals, clinics and Red Cross chapter and to man information desks and register disaster victims.

The Long and Short of It

Customer—I suspect that you're giving me awfully short weight for my money!

Grocer — Well, I'm positive you're giving me an awfully long wait for mine.

OUT AND IN

"I say, it's odd this being in society."

"How so?"

"Why, to keep in it you must be continually going out, don't you know."

Appreciated

Jean—I wouldn't marry the best man living.

Bert—I'm sorry you feel that way about me, but thanks for the compliment.

Good Proof

Congressman—And why do they say that talk is cheap?

Voter—Because the supply usually exceeds the demand.

We are told that millions of germs cling to our paper money. It's more than most humans can do nowadays!

Trial Treatment

Sufferer—I wish I had some drops to cure this toothache.

Friend—It's all a matter of the mind, not medicine. Yesterday I was feeling terrible. But when I went home my wife put her arms around me and kissed me, and consoled me, so that I soon felt better.

Sufferer—You don't say. Is your wife at home now?

Another Type

"How did Smith hurt his hand?"

"Reckless driving."

"Smash up his car?"

"No, just his finger. He missed the nail."

Anyone can recognize opportunity after the other fellow has seized it.

Slow Going

As the secretary of the golf club was crossing the course he saw a player driving off about a foot in front of the tee-mark.

"Here," he exclaimed indignantly, "you can't do that! You're disqualified."

"Why?" demanded the player.

"You're driving off in front of the mark."

"Don't be an ass!" was the terse reply; "I'm playing my third shot."

Farmer-Melton Rites At Thrift Church

A ceremony beautiful in its simplicity was performed in the Thrift Baptist church at 12:00 o'clock noon, May 24, to unite Miss Mildred Melton of Olney, Texas, and Rev. Louie Farmer Jr., of Weatherford, Texas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Melton of Freeport, Texas, formerly of Olney, Texas. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Farmer of Weatherford, Texas.

The rites were read by Rev. G. W. Bales, pastor of the church, before an audience of people who had just heard the groom preach in the morning service. A double ring ceremony was used to unite the attractive couple.

The bride was beautiful in a dress of green and beige and a beige turban of soft crepe. She wore a shoulder corsage of white carnations and a strand of white pearls.

Mrs. Farmer is a graduate of North Texas State Teachers college at Denton, Texas and is employed at the present as teacher in the Fairview public schools near Burkburnett. She is well known in this community having taught at Fairview during the past school year.

Mr. Farmer is a graduate of Baylor University of Waco, Texas, and the Southwestern Theological Seminary of Fort Worth. He recently returned from Louisiana where he served as educational director of one of the Baptist churches of that state, to cast his lot for the present with the North Side Baptist church of Weatherford, serve as editor to the church paper and Training Union director.

They will make their home for the present with the groom's parents in Weatherford, where he will assist his father at the dairy, on account of present labor shortage.

Mrs. Hershel Cecil was leader and also brought the devotional.

Topics discussed was on foreign missionary with scriptures taken from II Isiah 1-4. Mrs. J. C. Martin gave a talk on "Catastrophe or Civilization"; Mrs. H. L. Ray discussed "Ethrophia Shall Lift Up Her Hands"; Mrs. J. A. Moore on "Jarvis College and Its Needs," and Mrs. Arthur Lively on "International Prayer Meeting Day."

In the business session, Mrs. S. A. King was elected president of the society and other officers elected were Mrs. Neal Hall, vice president; Mrs. Arthur Lively, secretary; Mrs. Otto Meyers, treasurer,

The next regular program meeting which is on the fourth Monday of each month, will be held on June 22, and will meet with Mrs. A. J. Moore, 602 East Main street.

Those present were Mesdames W. M. Ratliff, Neal Hall, C. M. Sills, H. L. Ray, Arthur Lively, James Haley, R. P. Long, J. H. Cecil, J. A. Moore, C. E. Holmes, and the hostess, Mrs. J. C. Martin and Mrs. W. D. Casey.

YOU and YOU and YOU!

In the days of Caesar it cost approximately 75c to kill a man. During the Civil War it cost approximately $5,000 to kill a man. During World War No. 1 it cost approximately $50,000 to kill a man. In this current Mechanized War it costs approximately $125,000 for every casualty.

A 35,000 ton battle ship costs $70,000,000 . . . takes 362,000 man-hours, or approximately 4½ years to build . . . requires 62,000,000 pounds of steel . . . 2,000,000 pounds of copper . . . 1,000,000 pounds of zinc . . . 1,000,000 pounds of aluminum . . . and 750,000 pounds of nickel.

This war is costing a tremendous sum, isn't it? But at any monetary cost it is a cheap price to pay for victory, isn't it? . . . A cheap price, indeed, to guarantee the perpetuation of our Democratic way of life . . . A cheap price to guarantee that our privilege of doing whatever w please whenever we please will not be lost. Freedom, our freedom, cannot be measured in dollars and cents. It has more, much more, than monetary value. But is takes money, huge sums of money, to make our nation secure against our attackers.

Last year total income in the United States exceeded $90,000,000,000. How much of this sum do you think the individuals earning it would be permitted to keep, and to enjoy, if we lost this war and we were ruled by our conquerors? In the countries defeated by the Axis powers, and now occupied by them, the subjects have been stripped of everything. Even food sufficient to sustain healthful living has been denied these unfortunate people. The wealth that they had spent their lives in accumulating has gone to the victors.

Draw your own conclusions of the fate of this nation should our armed forces fail to repel our enemies.

You and You and You . . . . Every loyal American is needed now to buy Defense Stamps and Bonds with all the resources at his command . . . . to work more diligently that ever before to produce all the things required—food, clothing, guns, ships, tanks, planes, ammunition—to keep our fighting forces fed better, clothed better, and armed better than the enemy, for the key to victory is held by the nation or group of nations with the ability to equip, supply and sustain its fighting forces best on the battle field. Your clear-cut duty is to help to accomplish that end.

Uncle Sam desires that the retail merchants, the service institutions, and the professional men of our nation carry on as noramlly as possible, considering that we are at war. Locally, the people who man and manage the firms and institutions which serve you are doing all they can to serve you the best they can. If war has forced certain restrictions or made limitation of certain services mandatory, accept the changes with gracious understanding and remember one fact . . . . It is their wish and their responsibility to adopt those business practices designed to lend greatest help in the battle to insure victory and the survival of our American way of life.

Defeating Inflation

The President's talk on the evening of April 28 was probably received with more unanimous approval than any other message he has ever delivered to the American people. They had been forwarned, in much of the material of his address, by the newspaper reports of the day before, but the support he won for his program originates from the fact that the nation, generally, believes it to be fair. That it is harsh and restrictive all will admit, but to this the public is agreeable because of the necessities with which the nation is confronted.

There is widespread feeling that the seven point program has been planned o nthe basis of the rights and needs of the common man. The provision that limits individual incomes to $25,000 per year has elicted almost no criticism. The memory of thousands of new millionaires following World War I is too fresh in the minds of the people.

Mr. Roosevelt has strengthened his personal position, as well as popularizing the program of the government, by the announcement of this wartime program which is aimed to defeat inflation before it begins. The fairness of ceiling and wage fixing commends the program to all but the agitators and those who would profit by organizing protests. The essentials of democracy appears in the very evident effort that has been made to distribute the load equitably.

Give Bags Good Care

Each burlap or cotton bag carefully handled is a national asset, serving to assure the movement of food and other vital materials to our fighting forces and to our domestic workers.

We make these suggestions for conservation of sacking materials: 1. Open bags by untying strings—don't cut the bag. 2. Protect filled bags from rodents—rats and mice are No. 1 enemies. 3. Store filled bags in a dry, protected place. This will protect both the bags and the contents. 4. Remove acid chemicals such as fertilizers from bags as soon as practicable. Do not place bags near oils, manure or objectionable chemicals. 5. Empty all bags as soon as possible—they'll last longer if emptied, beaten and hung up over a wire. 6. If bags are wet, dry in sun to prevent mildew and rot. 7. Sell bags you do not need. Let them do double duty. 8. Sort bags by fabric and by size.

Spring House Cleaning Brings Toll

Be careful during your Spring souse cleaning, for this annual clean-up brings with it a heavy toll of accidents affecting both the woman and the man of the house, records show.

During the course of a year home accidents cause between 4,500,000 and 5,000,000 non-fatal injuries and some 33,000 fatal injuries. Half of the fatl injuries have resulted from falls alone.

Falls from step-ladders, from windows while cleaning them, from roofs, on slippery or soapy floors, and over articles out of place are among the causes of such accidents.

Oscar Frye Post No. 264 of the American Legion will hold memorial services in the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 according to an announcement from Neeley Vaught. Sam Spence of Wichita Falls will deliver the principal address for the occasion.

A number of business men and members of the Chamber of Commerce attended a meeting Monday afternoon to discuss plans for the celebration of Burkburnett's twenty-fifth birthday. Thursday, June 23, was decided upon as the date for the jubilee and a committee of five was appointed as committee on arrangement. This committee with M. C. Tucker as chairman, consists of H. D. Smith, R. P. Thaxton, J. H. Davis, and H. H. Pearlman.

Because of the unusual amount of study and research he has experienced with typhoid fever, Dr. Ruel Slaughter of this city has been requested by the chairman of the radio committee of Wichita county Medical Society, to read and discuss this subject over radio station KGKO at Wichita Falls Tuesday at 10:12 a. m.

Irish Potatoes, Apples, Pears, Off Blue Stamp List

Blue stamp foods available during June to families taking part in the food stamp program in Wichita County were announced today by David G. Guthrie Jr., area supervisor of the A.M.A.

The foods for June are the same as those listed for May except for fresh apples and fresh pears, removed because of a seasonal short supply position, and Irish potatoes, removed because an increasingly favorable price position no longer warrants additional market support. With these changes, the complete list, as issued by the Agricultural Marketing Administration for the period June 1 through June 30 in all stamp program areas, is as follows: shell eggs, butter, fresh oranges and grapefruit, sweet potatoes, fresh vegetables (does not include Irish potatoes), corn meal, dried prunes, hominy (corn)grits, dry edible beans, wheat flour, enriched wheat flour, self-rising flour, enriched self-rising flour, and whole wheat (Graham) flour.

Currently serving more than 3,324,000 persons over the entire country, the program gives farmers wider domestic markets for their crops, Mr. Guthrie said.

Edward (Spike) Howard of Philadelphia, Penn., a retired strong man, at 65 devotes most of his energy to giving blood transfusions. Hardly a day passes that he isn't called on for transfusions. He has given blood to 953 persons.

INVASION PRELUDE: RAF Blitzes Reich

While Royal Air force bombers blasted war factories and chemical plants in Germany and blitzed Nazi submarine bases in France and enemy airdromes in Holland, the Churchill government announced that the RAF's heavy air offensive was a prelude to an ultimate invasion of continental Europe.

Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and government spokesman in commons said:

"These bombings are, in our view, of material assistance to Russian resistance and the best way in which we can give assistance until such time as we are able to make a carefully planned attack on the continent of Europe, which we intend to do."

The accelerated tempo of Britain's air offensive was seen in the performance of one detachment of bombers which unloaded 40,000 fire bombs over the city of Mannheim in southwest Germany, second largest inland port of Germany and the site of a number of important chemical, armament and engineering factories.

NEW TAX PLAN: Collect at Source

To help Americans pay heavy income taxes that would affect millions of workers in the small-income group for the first time and to combat inflation, the treasury department outlined to the House ways and means committee a "collection-at-source" program.

Under the new plan, employers would withhold on behalf of the government part of the pay of single workers making more than $11 a week and childless married persons making more than $26. The amount deducted would be used as a credit against income taxes.

Increased individual income surtaxes ranging from 12 per cent on the first $2,000 to 80 per cent on taxable earnings exceeding $200,000 yearly were written into the pending war revenue bill.

The ways and means committee's plan did not incorporate President Roosevelt's suggestion that no American's income should exceed $25,000 a year after payment of all taxes.

REDS VS. NAZIS: Soviets Still Ahead

Stubborn battles on which the decision of World War II appeared to hinge still persisted on the Kharkov and Kerch fronts.

On the Kharkov front the Russian armies under Marshal Timoshenko continued their advances in the face of stiffened German resistance and sharp counterattacks. On the Kerch front, the Russians denied Nazi claims of a clean sweep to the gateway of the precious Caucasus oil fields.

That the Red army was keeping alive its offensive in the Kharkov sector at a swiftly rising cost to the Nazis in men, heavy weapons and supplies was indicated by the latest war bulletins.

"On one sector near Kharkov," said a report, "our troops annihilated 1,650 German officers and men and destroyed 27 tanks, an ammunition dump and a gasoline dump. Booty captured included 37 guns, 57 mortars, 10,000 shells, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, three wireless stations and other material."

In commenting on the situation on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, a communique said Russian forces were barring the way to the Caucasus in a way that resembled the long American defense of the Bataan peninsula in the Philippines.

Hitler's Scheme

From indisputable diplomatic sources your reporter learns that the Nazis hope to win, with their fifth and sixth columns, what they could not win on the battlefields. If the Russian campaign fails, Hitler is to be deposed—and the German General Staff will pose as the savior of the world from Bolshevism. There is only one rub—Hitler is planning it all to save himself from the allied armies and the armies of Germany.

The only thing Hitler has to offer the civilized world is his death. The only people more double crossed than the conquered are the appeasers. The only people more brutally treated than captured civilians are the German industrialists, who gave Hitler his first money.

Hitler believes he can bribe American business men with their own bank deposits and the American people with the deeds to their own homes. The American answer will be with American scrap-iron—not on Nazi scraps of paper. Hitler's offer will be seventh heaven for the sixth column. But American business will not be fooled by Hitler's profits in dollars. The United States Constitution has paid too many dividends in peace and dignity. MacArthur, Stilwell, O'Hare, Wheless and Bulkeley are building a firm foundation for peace—with a wall for Hitler's back.

Scrambled Eggs:

The picture of wrecked Rotterdam, in the Times mag. is something the United Nations must remember to bring to the treaty table. It's a convicter. An unarmed town, destroyed to show how tough the Nazzys are. And a good argument for a deal that will keep them from ever getting tough again . . . Washington correspondents have a phrase for colleagues who will square social obligations by plugging their hosts' angle in their sheets: "They can be bought for a canape."

Lots of Congressmen would be jumpier than they already are if they knew their letters were being shown around. These are the soreheads who are being goody-goody in public but as Bund-loving as ever in private. It's the old racket of trading their faces for a few votes . . . It's going to be very interesting to see what the dailies, that have been warning there won't be any elections, will do about sponsoring candidates. They have a choice of admitting they have been lying or skipping all mention of the balloting. Which isn't a very smart limb to get yourself out on, Bud.

Archibald MacLeish, in an interview, discussed his hecklers, who have grown since he took over the Office of Facts and Figures. "The criticism most often expressed against me," he said, "is the fact that I am a poet. Not that I am a bad poet. Simply to call a man a poet is, apparently, to throw a bad egg at him" . . . He might have been answering a small-timer, who columned a crud about winning the war with poetry, "sock 'em with a sonnet." That's the crackerbarrel style of satire, the easiest kind to write. It appeals to the dopes by ridiculing education — very small time.

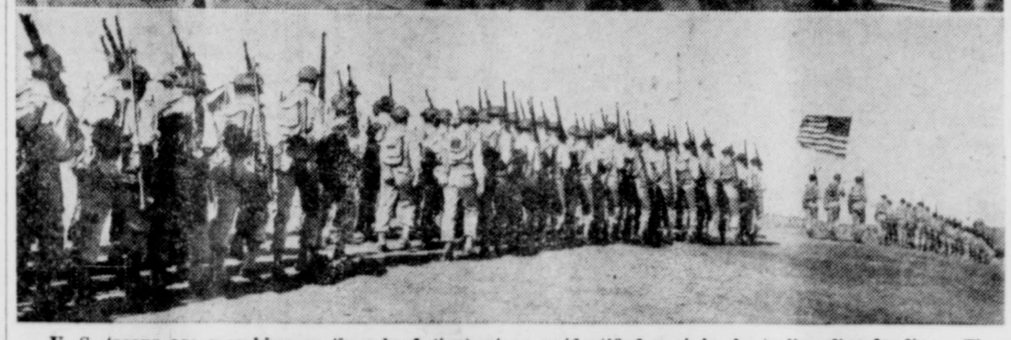

An editorial writer keeps repeating that we should win the war as quickly as possible, because peace is better than war . . . Do you have to have brains to figure that out? . . . How come nobody ever gives medals to critics for going to so many dull shows all season? This one was so dull both the Critics Circle and Pulitzer Committee agreed no show was worth a prize . . . This gives you an idea how temporary fame is. If DiMaggio doesn't get a hit one day—they boo him . . . Whatever happened to those people who said they had proof Hitler was dead? . . . Here's one to make you dizzier: "Blithe Spirit," the play, is barred from Army camps. Too risgay, they said . . . So what happens? . . . "Blithe Spirit" gives a performance for—you'd never guess . . . West Pointers!

Italy has celebrated the sixth anniversary of its empire—which has ceased to exist. A lost people clinging to a lost dream . . . It takes great men to look big in defeat. Willkie, wno missed the Presidency, and O'Dwyer, who ran second for mayor, are still good men for those offices . . . Did you hear why that New Yorker writer was rejected for military service? The doctors found out he had a brain murmur.

Sad to read about Graham McNamee's death. He pioneered a lot of things on the networks. He was the first to get all het up about his subject. He had the kind of pipes that could convey excitement, as too many of his mockers haven't. He also was one of the few laughing m. c.'s who got away with it. The usual giggling feeder is an ear torturer. The straight man who laughed at the act's sallies never hit the big time. He was a sensation at Loew's Wichita but never played the Palace.

Two Changes in Detroit Assembly Lines

Production lines are moving again in Detroit factories, but planes are now being made instead of automobiles. Then, too, there are women in the plants. All This, We Find, Was According to Orders

Out for a drive in her pony-cart, an elderly lady managed to get involved in some army maneuvers. As she approached a bridge a sentry stopped her.

"Sorry, madam," he said; "you can't cross this bridge. It's just been destroyed."

The old lady peered at it through her spectacles.

"It looks all right to me," she murmured. Then, as another soldier came along, she asked:

"Excuse me, but can you tell me what's wrong with this bridge?"

The soldier shook his head.

"Don't ask me, lady," he replied; "I've been dead two days."

WE'RE DOING Our Part

HOTELS of Southern California are doing their part in this great national cause by maintaining normal facilities and operations in every department for the use of Americans seeking mental and physical release from strain and fag.

To facilitate the business of Americans, and in the interest of war production, there is augmented service at the great metropolitan hotels of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Long Beach, San Diego and the other large cities of Southern California.

There are no rations of fun at the fine resort hotels located on the desert at Palm Springs; by the sea at Carlsbad, Coronado, Laguna, LaJolla, Santa Catalina, Santa Monica and Santa Barbara; and amid the beauties of Pasadena, Beverly Hills and Riverside. Health and energy still bubble from the earth at the famous mineral springs resorts.

Golf, tennis, riding, swimming, cycling, badminton and a multitude of other sports and recreations are still to be enjoyed every day of the year by the visitor to this sun-blessed land.

Hotel rates in Southern California will continue at pre-war levels. Nowhere is there a greatar variety of hotel accommodations to suit every budget and every taste.

Freezer Locker Use Studied By Club

The use of freezer lockers was demonstrated by Louise Mason, agent, at the Hardin Home Demonstration Club which met in the home of Mrs. Fred Minick Wednesday afternoon.

In preparing food far a freezer locker, the newest methods for storing food, be sure it is in the right stage of growth, such as berries, which must be full ripe, handle small amounts at a time; have them clean. Pack in a paraffin container, tin or fruit jars, don't fill to the top as the contents expand when cold.

In cooking frozen food, cook while still frozen: vegetables should be put in boiling salt water; meat should not be washed and is cooked as ordinary meat. After a frozen food has thawed do not refreeze as it destroys the taste.

As woolen products cannot be obtained by civilians, it is necessary that everyone take special precautions against moths. Have the garments dry cleaned, spot cleaned with some good spot cleaner, or clean with soap and water. Let the garment sun and air then put in a moth-proof bag of which PDB crystals or moth balls have been tied at the top.

Recreation consisted of several songs by Gloria Minick.

Revival At The Calvary Baptist

The revival now in progress at the Calvary Baptist church is growing in interest and attendance. Rev. Wm. T. Savage, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church, Altus, Okla., is doing the preaching. He is a Baptist preacher of the old school—preaching with vim and enthusiasm, and presenting scripture for everything he preaches. We dare you to come one night and not want to come back to hear him again. He believes what he preaches and can show you by the Bible why he believes it.

Services begin promptly at 8:30 each night, and are dismissed early enough for all to get home and get a good night's rest. So come on out, friends, and enjoy these services. This is not a campaign to get church members, but an endeavor to present the Truth to everyone that all might know the Truth, and judge themselves accordingly. You come, you hear you act by your own will and desire, without any high-pressure from anyone. You will be the loser if you miss a single night of this meeting. We also invite you to the morning services which begin at ten o'clock.

Following is a regular schedule of the Sunday services:

10 o'clock, Sunday school, lesson, I John, chapter 1, "How to have fellowship with God."

11 o'clock, preaching. Sermon by pastor, "Knowing the Truth."

8 p. m., prayer groups and young people's groups meet in their respective places.

8:30 p. m., sermon by pastor, "Come Let Us Reason Together."

The revival will continue next week with Bro. Savage preaching every night at 8:30 and every morning at 10 o'clock. Come and bring your family and your friends.
