Guerrilla 'Cleanup' Goes On

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Planes and ground troops battled leftist guerrillas in the third week of a "cleanup" operation near the Honduran border as El Salvador's armed forces awaited the arrival later this week of 12 more U.S. advisers and four transport helicopters.

Military sources reported at least one government soldier killed in the fighting Wednesday 120 miles east of San Salvador. Residents said 10 other soldiers were killed when guerrillas ambushed a military convoy in the village of Aceituno, 25 miles north of the capital.

Machine Robbed By Cards

AMARILLO (AP) — A swindling scheme using stolen credit cards to obtain airline tickets from vending machines has cost Southwest Airlines $28,000, company officials said.

"This has gotten so bad ... we may have to discontinue the use of the automated machines," A.W. Donelson, Southwest Airlines manager in Amarillo, said Wednesday.

Since December, at least five stolen credit cards have been used in the airline's automated ticket sellers in Amarillo, Dallas, Houston, Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi, Donelson said.

Fire Alert In East Texas

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — All outdoor burning in East Texas should be postponed until further notice because of an "extreme" fire-danger situation in the area, a Texas Forest Service official said Wednesday.

"The last four days we have lost 4,400 acres of East Texas forests to forest fires, 2,128 acres yesterday alone," Bill Terry said Wednesday. "For the year so far that makes 15,400 acres of forest lost to fires."

Terry said dry, windy weather this week is the major problem.

The SDN Column

Tuesday's big blow came just as we were beginning to realize that it had been a calm winter, not only from the standpoint of cold weather, but also the winds had been tolerable.

We could not pinpoint a comparison on the spur of the moment, but we believe Tuesday's sandstorm probably had more muscle than any other we have had the past few years.

This is the season for capricious weather. The arrival of the vernal equinox always seems to set the elements into lively motion, and perhaps this was our spell heralding the official arrival of spring, although it doesn't actually get here till Friday.

Then, we usually can expect some cold and-or blustry weather around Easter.

But, getting back to the high winds of Tuesday, a West Texan cannot say that it was unusual, although we certainly are not accumstomed to a steady diet of them.

It is nice when one ends. We have said before that skies are never bluer and the sun never shines brighter in West Texas than on the day following a sandstorm.

One positive product of the times is a renewal of efforts to make the most of our resources.

Texas Tech University researchers reported the other day that they are studying mesquite beans to gain more knowledge about their full nutritional value. Although we were not in this part of the country then, we have been told that a lot of West Texans discovered some of the good qualities of the mesquite bean during the "Great Depression" of the early 30s, and that the mesquite bean tided over some of the early settlers.

Now, the researchers say that the mesquite bean has one of the highest protein contents of any legume and it is rich in iron. Moreover, the pod contains twice as much sucrose sugar as the sugar beet or sugar cane.

Traditionally, we have a tendency to overlook some of these resources until problems arise in other areas. We have suggested in the past that this country would really come into its own if someone could develop a method to obtain beneficial products from the mesquite tree and the goat head vine.

Actually, they say the potential of the mesquite as a food already is fairly well established due to those pioneer experiments born of necessity. People in the early days ground the beans into meal, from which they made cakes. They made jelly and even a drink similar to coffee and a beer from it. In additon, the mesquite tree has been a source of firewood in an otherwise barren terrain. It may well be one of the most versatile plants in the country.

WINDY WEATHER

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Wednesday, 56 degrees; low, 30 degrees; reading at 7 a. m. today, 32 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1981 to date, 1.66.

West Texas — Fair and warmer through tonight. Windy Panhandle and extreme southwest Friday, otherwise partly cloudy and warmer. Highs near 60 Panhandle to near 80 Big Bend. Lows mid 30s Panhandle to upper 40s extreme south. Highs Friday near 70 Panhandle to mid 80s Big Bend.

CLEANING UP—Eta Mu Theta (EMT) members at Western Texas College braved the cold north wind Wednesday to pick up trash and debris along a stretch of Round Top Road. They are shown as they met at the northwest corner of the WTC golf course to begin their clean-up.

Despite Cold Wind...

More Students Join Clean-Up

Western Texas College Students who are members of Eta Mu Theta joined the Alpha Study Club's local cleanup campaign Wednesday by collecting trash along the road from the college golf course to the Cogdell Memorial Hospital area.

Eta Mu Theta (EMT) is a campus organization for students majoring in electromechanical technology. David Higgins, engineering technology instructor and faculty sponsor for EMT, and Dr. Gene McClurg, dean of occupational education and technology at WTC, joined in the pick-up effort.

EMT members are planning a longer outing in May. The group will be going to Houston to attend the Off-Shore Technology Conference sponsored by a number of oil industry organizations and businesses.

Special Gifts For Heart Fund Sought

The work of the American Heart Association was reviewed Wednesday as the Scurry County Special Gifts campaign got underway.

Susan Schmucker of Abilene, a representative of the Heart Association, met with the local group to distribute packets to the volunteers who will be participating in the special gifts campaign and to help acquaint them with the work of the association.

The work includes helping the young to develop good heart health habits as well as to help adults who may suffer from heart problems or be disabled by heart illnesses.

Dr. Ben Brock is chairman of the Heart Association's 1981 fund-raising drive in the Snyder area. Persons who have not been contacted during the fund campaign are invited to send their donations to Brock's office at Western Texas College. Memorial gifts may also be sent to him.

The special gift campaign is to continue through the end of March and persons who would like further information are invited to contact Dr. Gene McClurg at WTC.

Ask Us

Q.—I have heard that at one time there was direct bus service between Snyder and Big Spring. Is this true?

A.—Yes. The late R. L. Terry operated a bus line on Texas Highway 350 for several years after this road was completed in the early fifties.

Senate Cuts More From New Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recommending even deeper overall cuts than President Reagan has asked, Senate budget writers are slicing more money from some social programs to make room for restoring export subsidies that benefit big business.

By the time it quit work for the night Wednesday, the Senate Budget Committee had approved more than $35 billion in cuts, a net of about $2.4 billion more than Reagan recommended for the areas covered.

One of the panel's votes was to restore $110 million — a third of Reagan's proposed cut — for the Export-Import Bank. The bank subsidizes exports through loans and loan guarantees to purchasers of American goods, and most of the benefits go to a few large American corporations.

At the recommendation of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., the panel supported deeper cuts in housing for the poor and community services aid to more than make up the money put back in the Ex-Im Bank budget.

U.S. Considers Plans To Stop Arms From Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said today the administration is considering a full range of steps to take if necessary to stop Cuban supply of arms to Latin American rebels, but said it has no specific plan for military action against Cuba.

"With respect to a specific plan, why no. The president has not had an opportunity to approve or to consider in detail any courses of action for the period ahead," Haig said.

Haig gave that reply when pressed at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on an administration official's testimony Wednesday that specific administration plans do not exclude military action against Cuba.

"It is the responsibility of the executive branch to consider a whole range of options, then prepare a full range of options to deal with this serious problem," Haig said. "And I can assure you that process is underway.

"But in no sense does it represent an approved game plan, if you will," he said.

Undersecretary of State Walter J. Stoessel had told the committee under questioning that the administration does have specific contingency plans and "I would say they do not exclude anything."

Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., had asked Stoessel the question and he pressed Haig today on whether there in fact are such plans.

Stoessel, asked by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., if Central America could turn into another "quagmire" like Vietnam, replied, "We are determined that this situation will not develop into another Vietnam ... the situation is containable."

Arms from Cuba and other communist countries into El Salvzdor have "substantially abated" and the administration hopes they will stop altogether, he said.

But if they increase instead, he said under questioning from Dodd, "we would have to consider what steps to take to stop that flow."

Effects Of Late Freeze Are Awaited

Many Snyder area residents were keeping their fingers crossed this morning as they waited to learn the effects of freezing temperatures on fruit trees and gardens.

The mercury dropped to 30 degrees this morning, catching fruit trees with blooms or young fruit after trees had budded early.

Apparently, the subfreezing reading was short-lived, as the thermometer had gone back up to 32 degrees by 7 a. m. and continued a steady rise. There was speculation that, although there may have been some damage, it could be light.

The first freezing temperature in several weeks came just a day before the official beginning of spring. Forecasts called for warmer weather today and tomorrow.

BCD Okays Month's Bills

Approval of a financial statement and discussion of housing problems were main items on the agenda Wednesday at a meeting of the Scurry County Board of Development.

Expenditures for the past month totalling $2,077.77 were approved.

Bill Warner, BCD consultant, reported that the rental housing situation was virtually unchanged, but that there has been some indication of interest in construction of rental units. Also, he reported on the chamber of commerce survey on a possible need for housing for the elderly. Response was sufficient for the chamber to pursue the issue further, Warner said.

Russians Test 'Killer' Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hunter-killer satellite damaged a target satellite in the first full-scale Soviet test of such a weapon in more than three years, Pentagon sources report.

Although the target was not destroyed, the sources said shrapnel from the non-nuclear explosion aboard the hunter spacecraft probably would have disabled the sensitive cameras and electronic equipment spy satellites usually carry.

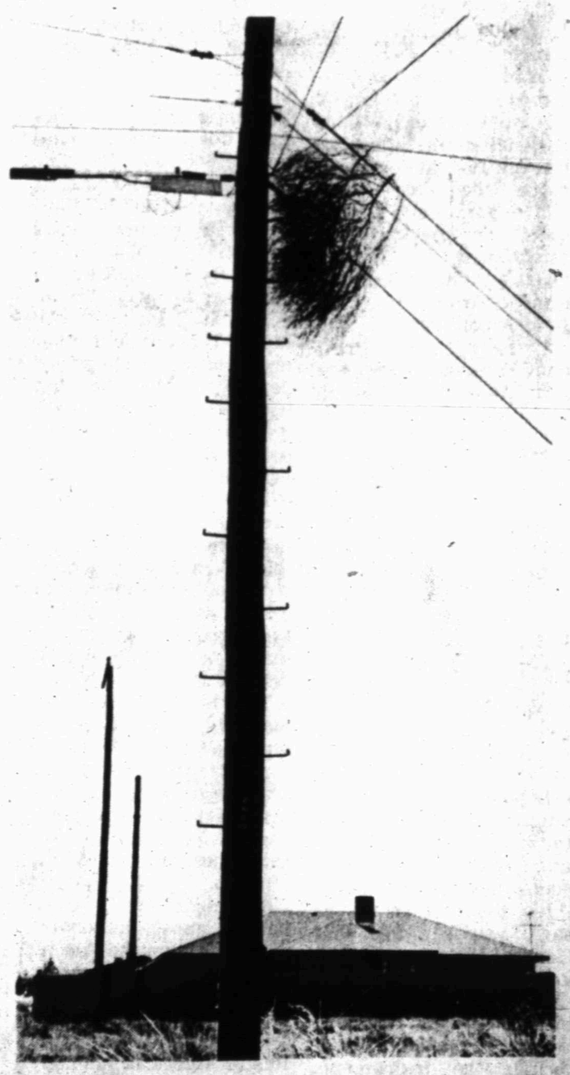

The hunter vehicle used an early-model radar guidance system to approach the target, said the sources, who asked not to be identified. They said in other tests monitored since late 1977, the Soviets have sought with mixed results to perfect an infrared system that would home in on heat radiated by the target.

The disclosure Wednesday of the successful test Saturday over Eastern Europe followed by one day an announcement from the Air Force that it will establish a control center at Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado for U.S. military missions in space, including manned space shuttle flights.

U.S. officials, who generally believe the Soviets are ahead in space weapons, have been paying close attention to Soviet work on killer satellites. Such weapons could knock out communications satellites, thus cutting links to commanders in the field, and could blind photographic satellites keeping watch on Soviet military moves.

Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in his annual report to Congress last month that "most of our military space systems are vulnerable to damage and require survivability enhancements to assure operation in a hostile environment."

What this means is that the United States has been working on ways to "harden" some satellites so they could survive a conventional anti-satellite attack or a remote nuclear blast.

SANDSTORM SOUVENIR—Besides burying everything from homes to autos under a fine layer of dust, Tuesday's sandstorm left a tumbleweed atop this telephone pole at 27th and Ave. V. The weed, a symbol of West Texas' infamous winds, is uncustomarily stationary in its perch among the electrical wires. It stands as a graphic reminder of Tuesday's terrible storm, but hopefully is not a harbinger of things to come. (SDN Staff Photo)

time for blunt talk

The Reagan administration has chosen, quite deliberately, to begin its tenure with some blunt talk about the Russians.

In his first press conference as president, Ronald Reagan was asked his view of the long-range intentions of the Soviet Union. The president could hardly have been more direct: "Well, so far, detente has been a one-way street the Soviet Union has used to pursue its own aims... I know of no leader of the Soviet Union since the revolution, including the present leadership, that has not more than once repeated... that their goal must be the promotion of world revolution."

Nor did Reagan stop there. Characterizing the Soviets' pursuits of their objectives, he added, "...they have openly and publicly declared that the only morality they recognize is what will further their cause, meaning they reserve unto themselves the right to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat, in order to attain that..."

Only the day before Reagan's candid comments Secretary Alexander Haig had also used the occasion of his first press conference in office to accuse the Soviet leadership of involvement in "conscious policy, in programs if you will, which foster, support and expand this (terrorist) activity... throughout the world today."

As an observation of demonstrable fact, the Reagan-Haig remarks are beyond dispute.

Marxism-Leninism, the official, secular religion of the Soviet state, requires its adherents — which surely include each and every member of the ruling Soviet politburo — to promote the international proletarian revolution at every opportunity.

As for the means to this end, the writings of Lenin especially are permeated with contempt for "bourgeois morality," a contempt manifestly shared by every Soviet leader since.

And what of terrorism? The Soviets, believing as they do in their historical duty to abet the destruction of non-communist governments and societies, have been funding, arming, training and encouraging selected terrorist organizations for decades.

At present, the Palestine Liberation Organization is but the most notable of the terrorist groups receiving open or clandestine assistance from the Soviet Union or from such Moscow clients as East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Cuba.

Granted then that President Reagan and Secretary Haig spoke the truth. But do such statements from an American president and his secretary of state serve such a constructive purpose?

We think so.

The Reagan administration has sent a message to Moscow in unmistakable terms: The government of the United States entertains no illusions whatsoever about the nature of its chief adversary.

Putting the Soviet leaders on notice of this fact diminishes the prospects for the kind of miscalculation that prompted Leonid Brezhnev's predecessor, for example to precipitate the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

The Russians, fond of testing the mettle of each new American president, now have less reason to risk a truly reckless opening probe against Reagan.

it worked in new york

New York is sick with the same sickness our nation is suffering.

New York is recovering.

Will the same remedies work nationally?

New York, from 1965 to 1975, suffered suffociation by taxation and was exhausted from carrying an overload of nonproducers on welfare.

State and New York City local taxes rose at twice the national rate. State income taxes increased and a further surcharge was added. State and city sales taxes were introduced, and quickly doubled.

Rockefeller was on a spending spree!

New York City was on a spending binge of its own when suddenly, in 1975, the bills came due and credit ran out and the orgy of extravagance ended with a skull-busting hangover.

New York unemployment escalated at two to three times the national rate. New York City and state faced a fiscal crisis.

Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayors Abraham Beame and Ed Koch had the good sense to recognize that taxes were killing their people.

The philosophy of Reaganomics is that -- instead of slicing the pie into smaller pieces -- you bake a bigger pie.

Carey, Beame and Koch arrived tardily at their appreciation for supply-side economics -- but better late than never.

State and city tightened purse strings on spending.

Gov. Carey cut state taxes, including the taxes of higher salaried workers.

Mayor Beame announced a five-year freeze on real-estate tax rates.

The state tax take was cut from a high of 8.3 percent to 7.5 percent.

The city tax rate, which had reached 11½ percent of the total city resident income, was reduced to 10.2 percent.

With citizens able to invest or spend more of their income -- instead of giving it to government -- the state had added 370,000 jobs by 1979.

The jobless rate, which had been 3 percent higher than the national average, is now equal to the national average.

The income growth rate, which had been running 65 percent of the national average, is now running ahead of the national average.

For the first time in 15 years, New York is doing better than the rest of the country.

While the state and city have reduced their tax rates, the economy has prospered to where city and state are receiving MORE total tax revenues, not less.

Thus proving that massive tax cuts can end up enriching the government.

And the Wall Street Journal, which had once recommended bankruptcy for New York City, has apologized. It is now recommending that our nation follow New York's example.

NEW YORK (AP) — Eugene Jennings was lamenting the weakened world position of American business. "Competitors in the international marketplace are beating us at our own game," the professor said.

The game and techniques for playing were established by U.S. firms years ago, he said. But as competitors learned, Americans forgot.

He forecast that "President Reagan's attempt to turn America around by investment incentives will surely fail if corporate chiefs don't return to wise management." America, he contends, "suffers more from a shortfall of wisdom than a shortfall of capital." The bitter pill, he said, "is that today's mistakes were yesterday's lessons."

1. Know your business. "It isn't determined by products or profits," he said, citing an observation by Harvard's Theodore Levitt that drill makers sell holes, not drills, and another by the inventor of the reaper, Cyrus McCormick, that his product was economics, not reapers.

By this reasoning, he said, you can see that General Motors and AT&T are in the same business, that of bringing people together. Their goals, he pointed out, are the same, though the instruments differ.

2. Technology and marketing must be married. "America was seldom first in technology, but we were first to marry it to markets in a timely, orderly fashion," he said. "Our asset was responsiveness,"

3. Other companies cannot be bought blindly. "To acquire the other guy's products you should know either the technology or the market. Without either you don't know what you're buying." The message is proved daily as companies divest holdings acquired a few years earlier.

4. Quality begets customer loyalty. "We invented the principle," with Model T Fords and other products, said a chagrined Jennings. "We shouldn't have to have Sony reteach it to us." They know, he said, what Henry Ford learned: Quantity doesn't offset poor quality, because people buy products one at a time.

5. Strategy precedes structure. "We knew that once a business organization was functioning the management style had to defer to it."

The best corporations, including General Motors and IBM, he said in illustration, don't reorganize every time a new chief rises to the top. Less successful, more erratic ones, he pointed out, often do.

6. People are a company's most important asset. We knew that too, he said. "But then companies abandoned their employees."

One of the oldest maxims in American management, he said, is that you cannot hire a pair of hands. "Andrew Carnegie observed that a man also has a mind and a heart, and that he thinks and feels. But management abandoned the mind and heart, and the unions eagerly sought them."

7. A business needs a sense of purpose. The greats of American industry knew it. "A company is too abstract to give loyalty to," the professor asserted. "We must turn an organization to a purpose. It must have meaning and justification. This is the art of leadership."

And so, said Jennings, author of many books on corporate life, these seven bits of wisdom have become the seven deadly mistakes.

Big Binges Hurt Heart

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — Going on a binge may be more harmful to your heart than a moderate daily consumption of alcohol, reports a health publication for business executives.

Researchers testing 275 male volunteers, says the Executive Fitness Newsletter, found that coronary-artery blockage was more than 60 percent greater in heavy drinkers than in a group of more moderate daily imbibers.

The study by the Medical College of Wisconsin and the Wood Veterans Administration Hospital defined binge drinking as the consumption of five ounces or more of pure alcohol (the equivalent of 13 ounces of 80 proof liquor or eight drinks) once or more a week. The researchers describe a moderate drinker as one who consumes less than three ounces of 80 proof liquor, or about two drinks, daily.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The Reagan-Bush Inaugural Committee has hired a New York security firm to investigate possible improprieties in the distribution of tickets for the inaugural ceremony, parade, balls and other special events.

Inaugural co-chairman Charles Z. Wick ordered the probe by O.C.S. Investigations into irregularities alleged by Walter Gold, who was the committee staffer in charge of ticket distribution. The problem is complicated by the fact that most of Gold's accusations are made at Wick's wife, Mary Jane, who was also a key inaugural planner. The Wicks are longtime friends of President and Mrs. Reagan.

Gold contends that Mrs. Wick took thousands of tickets that had been promised to and often paid for by rank-and-file Republicans and resold them to party bigwigs and California friends of the Wicks and the Reagans. Thus, he says, many people who "were not high enough on the political pecking order" traveled long distances to Washington on the assurance that tickets would be waiting — only to find tickets to less prestigious events or no tickets at all.

Gold says that Mrs. Wick would remove handfuls of tickets — most of them already assigned and many of them paid for — from the safe where they were kept and distribute them to friends and party officials. He further contends that Mrs. Wick ordered tickets taken out of processed envelopes and given to her for distribution.

Gold is careful to say that all such tickets were paid for in full by those who actually used them and that Mrs. Wick did not profit financially from her alleged activities.

Mrs. Wick has denied Gold's charges. Wick, who was recently named to head the International Communications Agency, insists that the accussations are "entirely scurrilous" and that the investigation will clear his wife of any wrongdoing.

But we have recently spoken with two former inaugural officials who confirm most of Gold's charges. Both asked that their names not be used because the husband of one is awaiting White House clearance for an administration job and the other is hoping to be appointed to a Republican Party post.

They say that Gold not only is correct but may have understated what transpired during the 10 days before the inauguration — especially with regard to tickets for the events in greatest demand, such as the Kennedy Center ball.

The ticketing process began in December, when the Inaugural Committee mailed out a large number of invitations that guaranteed tickets to those who responded by a certain date. The responses trickled in very slowly.

In early January, the committee panicked at the prospect of half-filled halls and sent many more invitations. Suddenly replies flooded in from the initial mailing. Many events became oversold while hundreds of invitations were still in the mail.

Nevertheless, everything remained in reasonably good order until party officials and California friends of the president-elect requested additional hundreds of tickets at the last minute. It was also discovered at that time that many transition officials had not received their invitations because of a computer error. It seemed that the only way to accomodate these important people was to pull tickets already committed to others.

Recalls one of the former inaugural officials: "Dozens of Californians descended on our headquarters, saying they needed 10 tickets to this or that. We were told to simply pull the tickets for them no matter where we had to get them.

"At one point, I saw Mary Jane with hundreds of tickets that I knew were allocated to others. It even got to the point where committee staffers were going to her to get tickets for their freinds and families.

"Even after tickets had been sent to Union Station (site of the will-call operation), people were sent over to pull tickets out of envelopes to be brought back over to be sold directly to Californians. So, the people arriving in town were going to Union Station and finding that instead of four tickets to an event, as they expected, they were getting two or in some cases none.

"In many cases, we had to call people in the hopes of catching them before they left for Washington to tell them not to bother because we had no tickets for them."

Wick admits that many events were over subscribed and that the committee is in the process of returning about $1 million to people who purchased tickets that they never received. But he maintains that all of this was the result of "unprecedented response" and that there were no ticket irregularities.

Your Birthday

March 20, 1981

Old allies you've helped in the past when they needed you will rally to your banner when and if you need them this coming year. One pal in particular will prove very helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Steer clear of situations today where you feel others might look upon you as a backer. The solid proposition they propose may turn out to be a bummer. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Companions or associates won't appreciate it today if you take them or what they do for you for granted. Express your gratitude. Strive to be cooperative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you've neglected to take care of important tasks earlier in the week, there is a good chance they'll pounce upon you today and complicate your schedule.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to keep your involvements with friends today as low-key and simple as possible. Complicated arrangements will create unnecessary friction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It would be unwise today to compare the achievements of outsiders against those of a family member. Your statistics may be lopsided.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One sure way to have others come down hard on your bright ideas today is to try to find fault in theirs. Seek the positive. Shun the negative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be doubly prudent and cautious in financial and business dealings today. Impulsive judgments could cause you to lose, if you're either buying or selling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be your own person today, but try to do so without offending others. Coming on too strong really isn't the type of role you play comfortably.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unless you are very careful today you may assume more responsibility than you're capable of handling. If you volunteer, others will find you duties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Enjoy yourself today, but also be careful not to overindulge. Too much of a good thing can carry a negative price tag which you may not wish to pay.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you may have difficulty distinguishing between those who are in your corner and those who oppose you. Poor judgment could hamper your success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually you are able to deal better with large ideas than you are with little ones. Today, however, big schemes could lead to your undoing.

Islands Expect More Visitors

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (AP) — The two-island state of St. Kitts and Nevis is preparing for an expected 25 percent increase in visitors this year, according to Michael O. Powell, minister of tourism.

"We have expanded and upgraded our tourist facilities in what may very well be the most aggressive program of this sort ever undertaken in the West Indies," Powell said recently.

He said government-funded construction and development projects, totaling more than $64 million, were in progress.

DONATE ART—Members of the Snyder Palette Club donated 13 of their own paintings to go in the new wing of the hospital yesterday. Shown accepting the art works is Cy Miller, center, hospital administrator. With Miller are members of the Palette Club, from left, Pansy Ray and Evelyn Mebane, holding a landscape by Ethel Mae Sturdivant, and on the right are Emma Huffman and Myrtle Joiner holding a still-life painted by Ms. Mebane. Snyder Art Guild Has Federation Program

The Art Guild Study Club met March 17 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Mrs. Ben Thorpe and Mrs. Maurice Pilcher as hostesses and program leaders for the Federation Day Program.

Mrs. Thorpe led a discussion of the General Federation and what it involves. She said that it was the only organization that had spread to all nations of the world. It is open to all women.

Mrs. Pilcher presented Nettie Moss, an outstanding student of Snyder High School, who won a trip to Washington through the Mid-West Electric co-op Inc., by giving a five minute oral essay on rural co-operatives. She made the trip last summer.

She told of the things she saw on her trip to Washington and illustrated her talk with slides.

Mrs. Pilcher and Mrs. Thorpe served refreshments to 12 club members and two guests.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is one of those old-fashioned problem hands. South can make his slam against any lead, but a trump. He can't be beaten once a club is opened, but he has several lines of play that will probably succeed.

Let's look at the ordinary lines first. He ruffs the club lead, draws trumps and plays ace-queen of diamonds. East has followed to the first diamond with the deuce to show an odd number, so it isn't hard for West to duck. Now South leads a third diamond. West wins and gets out with his last diamond and waits for his queen of hearts to set the hand.

Suppose South starts by playing hearts. West must take his queen and lead a heart back. Still down one.

Now let's get to the line of play that wins against any defense.

South ruffs the ace of clubs high. Then he plays ace-king and deuce of trumps (note that East showed out on the king). Even if West has been smart enough to chuck the 8-7, he must win with the three.

Now he is stone cold dead. A club lead allows South to discard all his losers. A heart or diamond lead lets him in dummy to cash the clubs.

Note also, that this play should work against any combination of East and West cards.

Try This Easy Meat Loaf

ZESTY MEAT LOAF
Given on request.
1 large egg
1 envelope (from a 2-envelope 2.75-ounce package) onion soup mix 1½ cups soft bread crumbs ¾ cup milk 1½ pounds ground beef ¼ cup ketchup mixed with 1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Beat egg slightly; stir in well the soup mix (just as it comes from the envelope), the crumbs and milk. Let stand about 5 minutes; With a fork, thoroughly mix in the beef. Pack firmly into an 8½ by 4½ by 2½-inch loaf pan that has been rinsed with cold water; turn out on a foil-lined shallow pan — about 11 by 7 by 2 inches. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven, brushing once or twice with the ketchup mixture — about 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Get help for anxiety

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am female, 18, and have a problem that really worries me. I would appreciate your advice. For the past three months my doctor has prescribed Valium for me. I do have emotional problems that I cannot handle directly myself. I'm 50 pounds overweight and the Valium does help to control my emotional problems. I am afraid I am becoming totally dependent upon Valium. I don't want to run into more problems in the future. I am a very nervous and hyper person.

I also take nose drops every hour or my nose stuffs up. I can't breathe except through my mouth. For the past two years I have taken Excedrin every day. I wake up every morning with a headache. The headaches aren't bad, they are just there.

DEAR READER — So you are nervous and tend to have anxiety. It is true that tranquilizers such as Valium may give relief from these conditions. But you can't and don't want to go through life on tranquilizers. Your nose problems and your headaches may also be related to your anxiety.

I would suggest that you ask your doctor to refer you to a mental health clinic or a psychiatrist for some help. If you can work through your emotional tensions, perhaps you won't need to rely on medications and may well be able to enjoy life a great deal more.

Valium is one of many tranquilizers that can lead to drug dependency. I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-12, Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem, which lists most of the medications that lead to problems. You should be particularly careful not to use alcohol with any of these medicines. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You might try just using nose drops in one side of your nose for a while. That will enable the other side to recover from chemical reactions to nose drops. After one side has recovered so you will have one open normal side, you can stop using them entirely. That method helps many people who get hooked on nose drops.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information about autopsies. I thought an autopsy always showed the cause of death. Recently a friend of mine died suddenly. She was not sick and was not under a doctor's care. The death certificate read, "probable virus." This was based on the fact she had had a cold about a week before she died.

Now people tell me that it is not unusual for a young person to die suddenly and no cause is found.

DEAR READER — There are causes of death that cannot be seen by visual examination, even with the use of a microscope. To cite one example, if your heart suddenly stopped or beat in such an irregular fashion as to fail to pump blood, you would be dead in minutes. But the heart stoppage or irregularity isn't visible by a post mortem examination since all hearts are stopped with death (unless you want to use the definition of brain death for legal death).

By contrast, if you had a heart attack from an occluded artery to the heart, they would find the occluded artery and see the damaged heart muscle.

Incidentally, you may be able to see the effects of a virus infection. If it involves the heart, it is called viral myocarditis.

Supplies Of Gasoline Soar As Americans Buy Less

NEW YORK (AP) — With Americans driving less because of high fuel prices, gasoline supplies have reached a record high and the resulting competition among oil companies has brought a dip in prices, the industry says.

The American Petroleum Institute reported Wednesday that inventories of gasoline rose 2.6 million barrels in the latest week, to a record 284.3 million barrels. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

At the same time, the group reported that refineries operated at only 69.1 percent of capacity, down from 70.4 percent a week earlier and "the lowest figure in recent memory," spokesman Gene Johnson said.

The reasons for the surplus include sluggish economies around the world and increased conservation brought on by higher prices.

The latest Department of Energy report showed that in February sales of gasoline averaged just over 6 million barrels a day, down 8.6 percent from the same time last year.

Gasoline prices shot up earlier this year as increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries were passed on and after President Reagan ended controls on domestic crude oil prices.

But gasoline prices are now weakening because of the surplus. In a number of areas, competition has forced price cuts in the last few weeks, including reductions announced Tuesday of up to two cents a gallon in some areas by Shell and Sun.

Those cuts are in wholesale prices, but retail prices have also come under pressure and margins are declining.

The average dealer markup for regular unleaded gasoline sold at self-service pumps was 8.37 cents a gallon earlier this month, down from 12.31 cents a year earlier, according to the Lundberg Letter, an industry newsletter.

"Increasingly, there has been surplus gasoline available to sell, and there has been an increasingly competitive scramble to sell it," the newsletter commented in its latest issue.

Responding to the excess supplies, Gulf Oil said earlier this week it would close plants in Toledo, Ohio, and Venice, La. Earlier in the month Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) said it would close a refinery in Wood River, Ill.

The old record for gasoline inventories was 283.2 million barrels, set in the week that ended last April 18. Last week the figure was 281.7 million barrels, and the figure for a year earlier was 278.4 million.

While gasoline supplies rose, supplies of distillate fuel, used for home heating and diesel fuel, fell slightly in the latest week to 171.3 million barrels, from 172.9 million a week earlier and 179.3 million at this time last year.

Distillate production declined to 2.4 million barrels daily from 2.7 million barrels a week earlier and 2.8 million barrels a year ago.

Crude oil inventories increased to 388.4 million barrels from 380.7 million the previous week and 351.5 million a year earlier, the institute said.

Hopes Returning Rock Will Break The Curse

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Nixon Morris scoffed silently at a guide in Hawaii who warned vacationers on a tour bus not to take any rocks from the Mauna Loa volcano where the bus stopped to allow tourists to walk around.

"He said if we took a piece of lava the godess Pele would put a curse on us. I've never been a superstitious man. Right away I got the idea I had to have a piece of that lava," said Morris, 59.

Today, he's just hoping that mailing the rock back to Hawaii will break the curse and return his life to normal.

"I just got nine days to go before they take this cast off my leg," said Morris, a hardwood dealer who said he had always led a quiet life until he took the black rock home with him two years ago. That's when all the trouble started.

Morris fell off his roof, lightning struck an antenna and ruined several appliances in his house, and his wife got sick with a mysterious infection that left her knee swollen.

Then a burglar broke into their house and Morris fought with the intruder and suffered a broken hip and thigh, the family's cat was sleeping under the hood of Mrs. Morris' car when she started the engine and stripped one side of the pet bald, and Morris' granddaughter fell and broke her arm in two places just last week.

"That was really the last straw," Morris said.

He said he had broken the rock in two when he returned home from his Hawaiian vacation and had given a piece to a friend as a souvenir. But it brought his friend a streak of rotten luck too, Morris said.

"He brought the rock back to me after he wrecked four cars in less than two years, and he'd never before had a wreck in his life," said Morris, who boxed up the rocks and gave the package to his wife to mail Tuesday.

"I'm mailing them to the Chamber of Commerce in Hilo, with a letter telling them why," he said.

House To Pass Bill Raising Drinking Age To 19

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Ed Emmett wondered aloud how Rep. Henry Allee could sponsor a bill taking away 18-year-olds' drinking rights while pushing other legislation that would let them carry guns in their cars.

Allee's bill raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 won preliminary House approval on Wednesday, 115-20, and was expected to pass today.

The next step will be Senate action on an amendment added by the House which would make it harder for tavern owners and others who sell alcohol to under-age drinkers to defend themselves in court.

It is against the law to knowingly sell alcoholic beverages to minors, and the amendment would establish a presumption an illegal sale was made knowingly if the seller did not ask for a young person's driver's license or other proof of age.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, said he would ask the Senate to accept the amendment, which would send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements for signature into law.

"I have no problem with the amendment and, in fact, feel that it will strengthen the bill and help with its enforcement," Sarpalius said.

Allee said school officials, teachers and PTAs want the drinking age raised because too many teenagers drink on their lunch hours and return to high school drunk.

Many 18-year-olds are still in school but few 19-year-olds are, he said.

"Are you telling this body that 18-year-olds are not capable of handling alcohol but are capable of handling handguns in a car?" Emmett, R-Kingwood, asked Allee.

"I have found that as group, they can't handle it (alcohol), and for 14-and 15-year-olds the peer pressure is too great," Allee said.

Allee is the sponsor of a bill that would let Texans — including 18-year-olds, who legally are adults — carry handguns in their automobiles for protection.

Allee said 18-year-olds too often buy liquor for younger friends, who feel "peer pressure" to behave like the older students.

Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, said only eight states allow 18-year-olds to drink, and "almost all that went to 18 have gone back."

The House rejected an attempt by Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, to raise the drinking age back to 21, where it was before 18-year-olds were given all adult rights and privileges in 1973.

"I hope with this amendment we will agree we did make a mistake in 1973," Green said.

His amendment was tabled, 72-63.

State law provides a fine of $25 to $200 on first offense of possession or consumption of alcohol by a minor — defined in the bill as someone under 19 — and $100 to $500 on subsequent offenses.

Selling alcohol to a minor carries a fine of $100 to $500 and a possible one-year jail sentence on first offense. Subsequent offenses carry a $500 to $1,000 fine and-or a year in jail.

Arkansas Governor Asked To Consider Water Exports

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements says Arkansas officials shouldn't be too quick to say no to exporting the state's surplus water.

In a letter released Wednesday by Gov. Frank White, Clements said he recognized the state's power to control its water. But he said it would be prudent for the state to weigh the benefits of exporting the water to Texas and other western states.

Clements stirred up a hornet's nest last month when he said Arkansas officials had offered no great resistance to a plan to transfer water to Texas and other High Plains states.

"I recognize that your state may never allow such diversion of water, but it is prudent and proper that you explore the possibility that substantial and pervasive benefits may be available to Arkansas by exporting surplus water," Clements said in his letter.

The idea of importing water from Arkansas, Missouri and South Dakota rivers was discussed by the High Plains Study Council. The council represents six states that are preparing for the possible depletion of the High Plains' underground water supply. The water is used for irrigation in the arid regions.

Arkansas legislators were outraged at Clement's comments that state officials were not opposed to shipping water to Texas. Clements had said in a news conference in Washington, D.C., that he discussed the water transfer with White, former Gov. Bill Clinton and others.

White said he had not talked with Clements about such a proposal.

Tigers To Test Steers; Open Tourney Friday

Snyder and Big Spring baseball squads were to clash at 4 p.m. today, warming up Moffett Field for tomorrow's annual two-day tournament.

The pair tried to get a game in Tuesday, but strong, dust-blowing winds ended their efforts before five innings could be holstered.

Snyder goes into the game 4-4 after winning three straight, including the Monahans Tournament last weekend.

Lamesa and Levelland will open up Friday's first rounds of the Snyder Tournament, at 10:30 a.m. The host Tigers take the field against Lubbock Dunbar at 12:30, followed at 2:30 by Lubbock Estacado and Andrews. Odessa Ector and Brownfield complete the first-round action at 4:30.

Friday's slate continues with a pair of second round games, both involving winners and losers of the Lamesa-Levelland and Snyder-Dunbar contests. Losers of those two tilts enter consolation play at 6:30 p.m. Winners vie at 8:30.

The seventh place game is slated for 2 p.m. Saturday, followed by consolation at 4, third place at 6 and the championship game at 8:30.

Golfers Begin 2-4A Competition

FORT STOCKTON -- Coach Mackey Greene brings his Tiger golf team here Friday, set for an 11 a.m. tee off in the first District 2-AAAA boys' golf tournament.

Snyder placed third last weekend in the Snyder Classic, held at Western Texas College course, behind winner Andrews and runnerup Lamesa.

Lamesa, which features most of the returnees from a team which placed fifth in the state last year, is the district favorite.

Teammembers for Snyder include seniors Kris Seale, Barry Blackmon and Devin Donelson, juniors Joe League, Steve Neeley and Steve Gressett, sophomores Jay Eiland and Jim League, and freshmen Lawrence McCown, John Sullivan and Jerry Bowen.

Snyder can field two teams of five players each in the 18-hole tournament. The four low scores from each group are used for a total team score.

Gridder Faces 10-Year Probation In Abilene

ABILENE (AP) — An all-district high school football star who plans to play college football this fall faces a 10-year probated prison term today following his conviction on a charge of raping a 6-year-old girl.

A jury recommended the sentence Wednesday for Oscar Riggins, 17, an all-district running back at Abilene Cooper High School last year. Jurors earlier deliberated about seven hours before finding Riggins guilty.

"This is not real. It was a fake crime. I want my slate clean," said Riggins, who said he plans to appeal the conviction and sentence.

Formal sentencing was set for April 3 by State District Judge Don Lane who allowed Riggins to remain free on $2,5000 bond.

Noting that Riggins had been arrested as a juvenile for assaulting a 15-year-old girl, District Attorney Pat Elliot recommended that the jury hand Riggins a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

During the trial Riggins said that his goal in life was to become "a preacher at Abilene Christian University and a better Christian."

After the jury announced its recommendation, Riggins said he was looking forward to playing football this fall "like anybody else. I'll be playing with all my ability. I guarantee that."

Local Netters To Host Team Event

Snyder varsity tennis team, winner of last week's Sweetwater Tournament, will host a two-day meet of its own at the local courts beginning Friday.

Hereford, Borger, Pampa, Sweetwater and Snyder will compete in the team tourney which concludes on Saturday. Brownwood was to compete also, but dropped out earlier this week, causing some scheduling problems.

A complete time slate was unknown, but Snyder will begin its first play at 8:30 a.m. against Pampa. The tournament will make use of the high school, junior high, Towle Park, college and Sacroc courts.

Softball Registration

Snyder Girls Softball Association will hold registration today and Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. in Towle Park Barn, it has been announced.

All girls ages 8-19 from Scurry County are elgible to participate in the SGSA program. Registration fee is $10.

Girls should be accompanied by a parent or guardian and bring a valid birth certificate and registration fee.

Darwin Will Start, Says Texas Manager Zimmer

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Right-hander Danny Darwin is going to be a starter for the Texas Rangers throughout 1981, even if reliever Jim Kern is not able to overcome his neck and shoulder problem, Texas manager Don Zimmer said.

"He's going to start and that's it," Zimmer said.

Darwin struck out seven batters in four innings of the Rangers' 2-0 loss to Los Angeles Tuesday.

Last season Darwin worked almost exclusively as a relief pitcher because of Kern's physical problems, and became the Rangers' only dependable bullpen performer, posting a 13-4 record with eight saves and a 2.63 earned run average.

When spring training began this year, Zimmer said Darwin's status as a starter or reliever would be determined by Kern's comeback attempt, but Darwin's standout spring work changed his mind.

"I thought about it three days ago," Zimmer said Tuesday. "I decided he's going to start no matter what. If Kern can't do it, we'll find somebody else to pitch in the bullpen.

"I want to send him out for 38 starts and see what happens," Zimmer said of the 25-year-old, who has only one full season in the majors.

"It doesn't matter to me," Darwin said. "I can start and I can relieve."

Minor NFL Rule Changes

MAUI, Hawaii (AP) — Owners of National Football League teams have decided not to modify the pass interference rule because they felt such action would lead to more infractions.

The rule gives possession to the offensive team at the point of infraction by a defensive player. Offensive pass interference calls for a 10-yard penalty from the line of scrimmage.

Spokesman Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, said most of the owners were not in favor of changing.

The owners did pass several new rules, most of a minor nature.

One of interest will prohibit the use of stickum on players' hands. Lester Hayes of the Oakland Raiders, who led the NFL in interceptions last season with 17 (including post-season play), smeared stickum on his hands and arms. Many other players also used stickum.

Also, it will be against the rules to use any slippery substances to make a player more elusive.

Another rule passed concerned quarterbacks intentionally grounding the ball when about to be sacked. Instead of just a 10-yard penalty and loss of down, the defense will have the option of taking that or making the offense put the ball in play from the point of the infraction, plus the loss of down. So there will be no advantage in grounding if a quarterback is about to be hit 25 yards or so behind the line of scrimmage.

In a move for more safety in the game, the owners approved a resolution against chop blocking by interior linemen, a rule already in effect for the ends. Coaches must agree not to coach that type of block where a player goes after the knee of one already engaged by another.

The owners refused to change the rule concerning onside kicks that go out of bounds. The rule says that the kicking team gets a five-yard penalty and must kick again. Proposed by the Competitions Committee was a change that would give the receiving team the option of taking possession at the point where the kickoff went out of bounds.

Also kept on the books was the rule that the offensive line must hold its set for a second before the ball is snapped. Defeated proposals were for either no delay or a delay of two seconds.

Unsled Will Retire Soon

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Wes Unseld, the veteran Washington Bullets' center, bowed to injuries and Father Time and announced his retirement after 13 years in the NBA.

In 1968-69, Unseld was named both the NBA's Most Valuable Player and Rookie-of-the-Year, a feat previously accomplished only by Wilt Chamberlain.

Virginia, Others Trying To Avoid 'Upset City'

By Herschel Nissenson
AP Sports Writer

Upset City, alias the NCAA basketball tournament, resumes tonight with Virginia, North Carolina and Notre Dame putting their Top Ten rankings on the line and Louisiana State, Indiana and Utah hoping to take advantage of friendly surroundings.

The East and West Regionals tip off tonight with the Mideast and Midwest coming up Friday night. The regional championships to determine the Final Four will be played Saturday and Sunday.

The fifth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers will get things rolling against No.15 Tennessee in the opener of a doubleheader at the Omni in Atlanta. And All-American Ralph Sampson, their 7-foot-4 star, put things in perspective for all the remaining games, as well as most of those already played.

"It will be a battle," he said. "It will be a war."

The 48-team skirmish already has claimed 10 members of The Associated Press Top Twenty among its victims, including top-rated DePaul, runnerup Oregon State and third-ranked Arizona State.

In the Atlanta nightcap, seventh-ranked Notre Dame meets No.16 Brigham Young. Meanwhile, the University of Utah, ranked 14th, will be at home in Salt Lake City against sixth-ranked North Carolina. In the second game, No.19 Illinois faces Kansas State.

Friday night starts with a twinbill at Bloomington, Ind., where the Cinderella Hawks of St. Joseph's (Pa.) meet Boston College and the hometown Indiana Hoosiers tackle upstart Alabama-Birmingham.

At the New Orleans Superdome, little more than an hour down the road from Baton Rouge, fourth-ranked LSU faces No.20 Arkansas after intrastate rivals Kansas and Wichita State meet for the first time in 25 years.

Wichita State is hurting for its clash with Kansas since playmaker Tony Martin suffered a ruptured disc in his back in the Shockers' victory over Iowa and 6-11 Ozell Jones has been declared ineligible because of an error in his high school transcript.

LSU is bent on revenge against Arkansas, a team it lost to 86-76 in the Great Alaska Shootout way back at the start of the season. That was the Tigers' only blemish until a two-point loss to Kentucky in the regular-season windup.

WTC Students Place High In OEA Events

The Office Education Association (OEA) from Western Texas College won second place in overall competition in statewide contests in Waco.

Four first place awards were won by WTC contestants, helping bring their point total to within four of the sweepstakes winner, Hill Junior College.

Gina Willman, OEA president at WTC, led her delegation by winning first places in Job Application-Secretarial and Business Proofreading-Spelling. She also won second place in the Receptionist contest. She is a sophomore student from Roscoe.

Other first place winners were Jana Caffey, a freshman student from Seminole, and Jeri Bavousett of Snyder. Miss Caffey took first place honors in Business Arithmetic and third in Business Proofreading-Spelling. Miss Bavousett was first in Prepared Verbal Communications.

Geneva Martinez, freshman student from Colorado City, won second in Secretary II (shorthand) and Business Arithmetic. She also won fifth in Business Proofreading-Spelling.

Donna Layne, sophomore from Ira, won second in Records Management and fifth in Business Law.

Jill Linam, Loraine freshman, won second in Job Application-Secretarial and third in Secretary II (shorthand).

Alessandra Quiroz, sophomore student from Menard, was second in Medical Secretary and fourth in Business Law.

Kayla Truesdell, a freshman student from Seminole, won fourth in Prepared Verbal Communictions.

The top three contestants in each event are qualified to enter the OEA national competition to be held May 1-4 in Corpus Christi.

Charlene Light and Linda Wright, office occupations instructors and faculty sponsors of OEA, accompanied the students to Waco.

A highlight of the activities in Waco was the awards banquet. Grant Teaff, Baylor coach and former Snyder resident, was guest speaker for the banquet. He presented an inspirational message stressing the importance of hard work, determination and self-motivation in achieving a happy and fulfilling life.

Membership in the Office Education Association is open to all office occupations students at WTC.

Barbecue Set At Hermleigh

A barbecue in the Hermleigh School Cafeteria is being hosted by the Hermleigh Community Association Friday at 6:30 p.m. The high school one-act play will be presented at 8:30

Money raised at the event will be used toward air conditioning for the auditorium.

Delta Airelines Adds To Routes

DALLAS (AP) — Delta Air Lines has added four cities to a developing hub-and-spoke system at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and has beefed up service to four other "feeder" cities.

The new routes will provide added competition with already established routes held by Braniff International and American Airlines.

Oklahoma House Okays Castration Bill

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Convicted rapists and other sex offenders would have the option of undergoing castration in hopes of receiving reduced sentences under a bill passed overwhelmingly by the Oklahoma House.

The measure, contained in an amendment to a bill increasing the minimum penalty for rape to 10 years from five, was passed by a 66-25 vote Wednesday. It goes on to the Senate.

Democratic Rep. John Monks argued for the proposal, saying it was one way to "cure" mentally ill rapists and "make them productive members of society."

Democratic Rep. Frank Shurden, the bill's sponsor, said his mail has been running 25-1 in support of the asexualization idea since he introduced it two years ago.

The experience of European countries where castration of sex offenders is allowed indicates the surgery "is the only thing that works" in curbing sex crimes, Shurden said.

He said that in countries where castration of sex offenders is permitted, only 2 percent of those convicted are charged with a sex offense again. He said that compared with a recidivism rate of 50 percent to 75 percent for rapists in this country.

Democratic Rep. Don McCorkell was the only House member to argue against the proposal. He urged lawmakers to use caution in making "such a fundamental change" in dealing with rapists.

Prime Rate Falls Rapidly

NEW YORK (AP) — The prime rate is falling at an accelerated pace as new signs emerge that the economy is weakening.

Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth-largest commercial bank, cut its prime rate Wednesday to 17 percent as interest rates in the nation's credit markets plunged.

No other major banks followed Chemical's lead, but analysts said the prime rate was likely to fall below 17 percent in coming weeks as the demand for credit declines. Most banks are quoting a prime rate of 17.5 percent.

Three-month Treasury bills trading in the credit markets fell more than one-half percentage point Wednesday to about 12.3 percent, and six-month Treasury bills dropped below 12 percent for the first time in several months.

Vandalism, Mishaps Keep Police Busy

Criminal mischief, thefts and a spate of traffic mishaps kept police busy Wednesday.

Thomas McBroom reported to police that the oil had been drained from his car while parked at the high school. Consequently, the engine froze up after being started, causing an estimated $500 damage. That report was taken at 11:44 a.m.

Mrs. Emma Ramos told police Wednesday that a bicycle had been stolen sometime Sunday or Monday from her 1806 Ave. T residence. Value of the bike was given as $60.

Ms. Pearline Selmon, 1101 29th St., reported to police at 11:29 p.m. that an undetermined amount of cash had been taken from her car and residence.

The first of four minor traffic accidents occurred at 7:47 a..m. in the 200 block of 37th St. Involved were a 1977 Dodge, driven by Sallie Blythe of 4105 Eastridge, and a 1979 Buick, driven by Munawar Saleem, Box 942. A wrecker was called for both vehicles.

At 11:40 a.m., a 1978 Ford, driven by Jean Burkett of 2701 Ave. G. was in collision with a 1973 Chevrolet, driven by Lesa Moore of 1701 39th St. That mishap occurred at 2300 Ave. R.

The next accident happened at 2:24 p.m. in the 700 block of 13th St. Involved were a 1976 Oldsmobile, driven by Darla Tatum of 1802 Scott and a 1972 Chevrolet, driven by Kelly Deavers of Rt. 2.

The final mishap occurred at 1100 Lubbock Highway at 5:56 p.m. Involved were a 1973 Dodge, driven by Librada Martinez Ramos, Rt. 1, and a 1974 Ford Truck, driven by Roger Carl Overton of Rt. 2.

Drug Suspect On Nuke Plant Safety Crew

TAFT, La. (AP) — One of the nine workmen arrested on marijuana charges at the Waterford 3 nuclear power plant was a welder who worked on sensitive safety systems, officials say.

The workers were arrested Tuesday and Wednesday, and authorities say they have evidence of drug use at the construction site for the plant, 20 miles up the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Meanwhile, officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said that work done by the drug suspects would get a special review.

"We intend to single out places where these people worked and to look them over more thoroughly than we normally would," said Karl Seyfrit, regional director for the NRC.

Louisaina Power & Light Co., owner of the plant, said there was no evidence that drug use caused poor workmanship at the site.

OBITUARIES

Streety Rites

Funeral service has been set for 10 a. m. Friday at Bell-Seale Funeral Home for C. L. Streety, 68, who died Tuesday night at his home in Patterson, La.

Doug Allee, minister of East Side Church of Christ, will officiate, and burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale.

A former Snyder resident, he is survived by his wife, Lillis Merrian Streety of the home; a daughter, Dianne Falgout of Lafayette, La.; two sons, Douglas Streety of Patterson, La., and Doyce Streety of Lafayette, La.; a sister, Gerthie Cromeans of Hurst; and two brothers, Virgil Streety of Snyder and Gail Streety of Hurst.

L.A. Crenshaw

Funeral service has been set for 2:30 p. m. Friday at First Baptist Church at Possum Kingdom Lake for L. A. (Pete) Crenshaw, 65, former Snyder resident.

He died Wednesday morning of an apparent heart attack while on duty as a park ranger for the Brazos River Authority.

The Rev. Frank Page of Gatesville and the Rev. Alan Welch of Possum Kingdom, will officiate at the funeral service and burial will be in the McAdams Cemetery, under direction of Baum Funeral Home of Mineral Wells.

Mr. Crenshaw was a veteran of World War II, serving in Co. G of the 36th Division. He was associated with the Scurry County Sheriff's department before moving from Snyder in 1958.

Surviving are his wife, Jettie; a daughter, Mrs. Dru Sein of Graford; a son, Randy Crenshaw of Fort Worth; his mother, Mrs. Feddie Crenshaw of Snyder; and a brother, Howard Crenshaw of Snyder.

Judge Denies Refund Request

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A judge has turned down a state request that he immediately order former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to repay Maryland $200,000 he allegedly received in bribes while governor.

Ex-Hostage Asks Patriotic Number

CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands, (AP) — Comedian-pianist Victor Borge played and sang "God Bless America" at a hotel dinner-dance at the request of a former American hostage who was on a free vacation here.

Air Force Col. Tom Schaefer made the request Tuesday night at a St. Patrick's Day dinner-dance at a hotel on the island of St. Croix, a part of the U.S. Virgin Islands.

The party was held in honor of the 52 former hostages, all of whom had been invited by the hotel for a week's free vacation in the Caribbean. Seven accepted.

Dear Abby

Man's Seizures Are Good Cause for Seizure

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I feel as though I should be doing something about this problem, but I don't know what. A relative of my husband has epilepsy. He's on medication, but he forgets to take it and keeps on having seizures.

The law here states that if an epileptic hasn't had a seizure for a full year, he can apply for a driver's license. Well, this relative has had seizures right along, but he lied about it and got a license anyway.

Last year while driving alone, he had a spell, lost control of his car and hit another car. Fortunately, nobody was seriously injured. Three months ago while he was driving, he had another seizure. His wife grabbed the steering wheel, but the car jumped the curb and struck two children playing on the sidewalk. They were lucky they weren't killed. After that, he swore he'd never drive again. In less than two weeks he was driving again!

Abby, for his own safety and the safety of others, this man should not be permitted to drive, but I don't want to be the one to turn him in. What should I do?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Write to the department of motor vehicles in care of your state capital and describe what you have told me. Your identity will be held in the strictest of confidence. Please do this today, before he maims (or kills) himself and innocent people. You will be doing the man — and society — a tremendous service.

DEAR ABBY: I have had this problem for as long as I can remember, and I am sick of it. All a person has to do is say "hi" to me and I turn red. I don't consider myself extra shy, but for no reason at all, even when I'm with people I know well, I feel my face getting hot and I know I'm turning red. The people I'm with think they have embarrassed me, which makes me blush even more. I feel so dumb.

My grandmother told me that she had the same problem when she was a girl, but she outgrew it. Abby, I'm 24 and I haven't outgrown it yet.

Is there anything I can do about this dumb blushing?

BLUSHING IN FLUSHING

DEAR BLUSHING: Yes. Make up your mind that if you blush, you blush, and you don't give a hoot! Your fear of blushing contributes to your blushing. Once you overcome that fear, you'll have the problem licked. (P.S. In the meantime, it might be a consolation to know that blushing is "in." Women who haven't blushed in years are buying "blush" at the cosmetic counter.)

DEAR ABBY: Concerning friends and relatives flocking to visit Florida: I was once one of those friends who went to Florida in the winter and stayed with friends. In the near future I expect to be a resident there and will undoubtedly have friends visiting me. I have penned these lines to express my thoughts about visitors:

"ONCE, A GUEST
TWICE, LESS ZEST
THRICE, A PEST"

ETHEL IN N.Y.C.

These posters are displayed in the vacant building next to Men's II on west side of the square.

Each year some 25 million women suffer serious illness or complications during pregnancy and childbirth, according to U.N. figures.

Iwo Jima Photographer Joe Rosenthal Retires

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Rosenthal got it all, captured the whole Pacific theater of World War II with a 4-by-5-inch photo: battle-weary Marines wrestling aloft a wind-whipped American flag on Iwo Jima in February 1945.

The picture electrified a country weary of World War II, won Rosenthal a Pulitzer Prize and became a symbol for the Marine Corps. It has been widely reproduced, including a bronze monument at Arlington, Va.

This week, Rosenthal, 69, retires from the San Francico Chronicle and tonight his colleagues are throwing him a party at Treasure Island Navy base, with music by the 1st Marine Division band.

The photographer, then working for The Associated Press, was in his element aboard a landing craft that stormed Iwo Jima Feb. 19, 1945. He had been with the Marines at Guam and Peleliu.

"I preferred going with the Marines because of the types of pictures that were available," Rosenthal said later. "Assault landings appealed to me. All you had to do was screw up your courage and go with them."

The 60,000 Marines at Iwo Jima met savage opposition from the troops under Lt. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi. Twenty-six days after the assault, Iwo Jima fell. The Marines and Navy killed more than 20,000 enemy troops at a cost of some 6,000 American lives.

"No man who survived that beach can tell you how he did it," said Rosenthal. "It was like walking through rain and not getting wet, and there is no way you can explain it."

Four days later, a small U.S. flag was planted on the smoky slopes of Mount Suribachi. Because the flag was so hard to see, a bigger flag was taken up by a patrol, Rosenthal not far behind it.
