A public hearing on the 1970 budget for Aransas County will be held Aug. 29 by the commissioners court.

The court reviewed the budget and allocation of the tax rate proposed by County Auditor Robert D. Mosier last Thursday. No final action was taken by the court.

The proposed allocation of the $1.10 county tax rate is: General fund, 58 cents; farm-to-market and lateral roads, 30; road and bridge equipment, five, mosquito control, 5; jury, one, and permanent improvement, interest and sinking, 11 cents.

Mosier said the permanent improvement levy is to pay for a new county barn within one or two years. The general fund increase of three cents will defray expense of installing fire hydrants on the water distributions system outside the city limits of Rockport that is to be constructed by the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District.

Area's Economy Population And Land Use Plan

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on information in the Comprehensive Plan for Rockport prepared by Harland Bartholomew and Associates in cooperation with local advisory committees.

LAND USE PLAN

In Rockport, as in other cities, the location of residential, commercial, industrial and public areas reflects the arrangement and function of the city. The overall arrangement of land uses is fairly compact along the Coastal areas. Today, there is a continuous urban areas from Rockport to north of Fulton. The use of these shoreline areas indicates the primary function and purpose of the urban areas. Commercial functions are also associated with the existing urban development and are primarily located along U.S. Highway 35 as it traverses the peninsula.

Industrial activities are associated with the water areas where the various fishing fleets dock in the several harbors along the coastline. Heavy construction activity, servicing operations for offshore oil rigs, and the construction of fishing boats, are the major industrial activities in the community. Almost all of the industrial activities are located along the Coastal areas. In some instances, industrial uses are directly associated with tourism and recreation features and there are some areas of conflict.

Public and semi-public lands include schools, parks, and sim—more—floats tote ilar public facilities. These are located throughout the planning area. Little Bay Park and beach and the Aransas County Airport, located north of Fulton are the largest public land areas in the planning area. The inland areas are utilized for ranching and grazing activities to the largest extent. At the north end of the peninsula, the inland areas are situated on the Fulton oil field, which extends some distance into Copano Bay. Major mineral extraction activities occur in this part of the county and raw materials produced are exported through pipelines.

Land Use Study

The detailed land use survey made in Rockport and the surrounding areas, in March of 1968, included all lands within five miles of the corporate limits. The total study area included 30,000 acres. All lands were identified and detailed computations were prepared.

Land Use Areas

Due to the extensive amount of land promotion which has occurred in the county, the largest single land use category is found in streets and roads. This includes all of the platted roads dedicated as public rights-of-way. Single-family residential uses are the next largest category and this is followed by public and semi-public lands, including the sizable area utilized for the Aransas County Airport and the park areas at Little Bay.

Details of the land use study were tabulated for the Rockport city limits, Rockport and its environs (an area extending inland for approximately three miles), and for the planning area. Each comparison is inclusive of the one before. (Continued on Page 8)

Traffic Law Revisions Summarized

Austin — A number of changes in the State's traffic laws, some of which are highly significant to Texas motorists, were made by the Texas Legislature during its 61st regular session.

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, noted that the new laws will all be in effect by Sept. 1, and pointed out that Department of Public Safety patrolmen will begin enforcement on that date.

While the measures range from one establishing new motor vehicle inspection to allowing the owner of a parking lot to remove cars parked on the lot without his consent, one of the most important is the new "implied consent" law covering breath testing of drivers.

Under the terms of this law, a motorist is "deemed to have given consent" to a breath test if arrested for any alleged offense arising out of his actual operation or physical control of a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Refusal to (Continued on Page 8)

Aransas County oil and gas wells pumped some $12.6 million into the county's economy last year, according to a study just released by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

Value of production from oil wells was $6.7 million and from natural gas wells $5.9 million, based on the most recent U. S. Bureau of Mines figures compiled by the Association. The county ranked 84 in the state in value of production.

Last year, the county produced 2.3 million barrels of crude oil and 45 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Of this total, county landowners and others with mineral interests received royalty payments of $1.6 million.

The state received $721,000 in production taxes with crude oil accounting for $309,000 and natural gas $412,000. A number of school districts in the county lean heavily on oil production for ad valorem tax support, such as Aransas, 50 per cent.

Drilling expenditures were an estimated $3 million. Of the 26 wells drilled in the county, 6 were completed as oil wells and 13 as gas wells, according to Ira Rinehart's Yearbook. The 7 dry holes cost $337,000. There were 10 wildcats drilled.

In the offshore area adjoining the county, drilling expenditures were $723,000 for 2 wells, both dry holes.

The Texas Employment Commission lists 41 workers on oil and gas payrolls, which totaled $348,000.

Also adding to the county's economy, the Oil and Gas Journal shows one carbon black plant, two natural-gasoline processing plants with a daily capacity of 85 million cubic feet.

A wave of disappointment apparently has swept Toulouse (where they are building Concorde 001) because the Russian supersonic airliner made its first flight recently. Planemakers are especially prone to waves of disappointment but this one is uncalled for. The Russians have proved nothing yet beyond the fact that their aircraft will fly subsonically, which is not the main point. Concorde 001 probably will make its maiden flight within a month, and that will not prove anything important either. What matters about these two aircraft is whether they can carry their payload cheaply and dependably in airline service. No one can possibly predict yet whether either will do this.

The French and British publics will have invested such huge sums in Concorde by the time it is finished that we now all have a proprietor's interest. Kelly-Miculka Nuptials Read

Mrs. Pat Miculka and Harold D. Kelly were married at the First Baptist Church at 8:00 p.m. July 19. Rev. Chas. Fake performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and mums.

Given in marriage by her father Riley Van Matre the bride wore a blue street length lace dress, beige accessories and carried a white orchid bouquet.

Maid of honor was Miss Linda VanMatre, sister of the bride and she wore a baby blue dress trimmed in white and carried a spring bouquet. Best man was Sam L. Kelly, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony the couple's little boys Danny, Lawrence, Sammy, Philip and Tommy came to the altar and the two families were united as one family.

A reception was held at the Church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Out of town guests included the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Riley VanMatre of Johnson City.

Judge Joe Wade, of the 156th Judicial Court, is out of the hospital and convalescing in Houston.

Mrs. DeWilton Jeffries and twin daughters, Jennifer and Janette, of Houston, were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Delo Caspary and family.

Mrs. Roy Hinton returned Saturday from Ruidoso, New Mexico, where she saw their horse run in the Ruidoso Downs.

Col. and Mrs. Kautz Celebrate Their 50th Wedding Anniversary

Open house was held at the home of Col. and Mrs. H. G. Kautz, 1904 Percival Ave., in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary, Sunday afternoon from 2 to 6 p.m. They were married Aug. 2, 1919 at Fairbury, Neb. Seventy-seven guests attended.

The table was laid with a white cloth with gold bells. The centerpiece was a miniature wedding cake with the numbers 50 in gold, flowers and gold bells. On each side of the cake were two small bouquets of white baby's breath and yellow mums. Crystal punch bowls were on each end and the silver coffee service in the center.

A family dinner for 18 was held in the evening at the Sandollar. Those attending were Col. and Mrs. H. G. Kautz, Mr. and Mrs. James Kautz, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rouquette, Rocky and Kevin; Roy Anderson and Laurie of Cedaridge, Colo.; Mrs. Joan Litterell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pruett and Steve of Fresno, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kautz of San Antonio; Rev. Ullrich and Rev. Erdelt.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Picton have returned after a visit with her mother in North Carolina. Miss Susan Picton returned last week from Chicago where she visited the Lionel Thorsness and Miss Kevin Picton has returned from Florida where she visited in the home of Dr. George Stevens.

Swann-Gillit Wedding Solemnized June 28

Miss Vicki Gillit and Russell D. Swann was married in a double ring ceremony Saturday, June 28 at the First United Methodist Church in Rockport. Rev. Cecil H. Lang, Jr. officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill R. Swann, of Rockport.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's choice was a cage design of organza, pearl accented alencon lace bodice, short cap sleeves with lace wedding band neck. Wide bands of lace came from the lace bodice to the hemline on either side of the gown with a border of the lace at the hem. Tiny bridal organza buttons fastened the back of the gown which had soft folds and fell into panel train effect. Alencon lace petals etched in pearl and rhinestones accented by crystal tear drops held the bride's veil of illusion. The bride carried a large cascade of white carnations with a yellow orchid in the center.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Clifford Jemison, of Beeville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaid was Miss Charlotte Hale, of Rockport. They wore yellow bonded lace a-line dresses with the back center pleat and high neck band collar. The flower girl was Teresa Jemison, niece of the bride and the ring bearer was Jeff Jordan, cousin of the groom. Miss Junie Ledbetter played the wedding music with themes from Romeo and Juliet. Katherine Allgood sang "O Perfect Love."

Serving the groom as best man was his father Merrill R. Swann and James E. Gillit was groomsmen.

Chamber Happenings

Welcome to another new member, Toddy House, on Highway 35 at Market Street, owned by John Beasley.

The Board of Directors met at the Sandollar for their regular monthly luncheon meeting Tuesday. Attending were: Ben Howard, James Sorenson, Jr., John Mitchell, R. L. Eckman, J. D. Gray, Mrs. J. W. Harden, Mrs. Denver Agler, Vernon Kleypas, Mrs. Juanita Wagley, president and Mrs. Loyce Landrum, secretary.

A letter from Texas Air Tours was read in which they expressed the desire to make a "Howdy" stop at the Aransas County Airport on Oct. 13 during their 3 or 4 day tour. The Air Tour was created 21 years ago to promote interest in aviation and airports on a state and local level. The Air Tour is composed of 60% out-of-state people who are businessmen, bankers, lawyers, etc., interested in seeing Texas. The other 40% are Texans who are proud to show off their state.

Corky Agler will be chairman for their 45-minute refreshment stop at our airport on Oct. 13, and plans will be made for a welcoming group to greet these visitors and serve coffee and rolls. Last year 116 persons in 45 planes stopped overnight at Sea Gun Sports Inn and Sandollar Motel.

John Kinsey, Manager, is on the ailing list, and the Chamber of Commerce office will be closed on Saturday mornings during his period of recuperation. Loyce Landrum, secretary, keeps the office open Monday through Friday, handling in a very capable manner the myriad duties, answering the phone and correspondence, sending out literature and information on the area, giving varied information to visitors who stop in, and serving refreshments provided.

Thanks this week to Morrison's Sportsman Center for furnishing the coffee and cookies. Members and some non-members have been most generous in participating in this project, which makes a real hit with out-of-town visitors. Anyone who would like to join in this project may do so by calling the C of C office.

Mike Bohn, of New Orleans, La., arrived Monday for a visit with his grandfather, Zeph Rouquette.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Herring and children, of Austin, are vacationing in Rockport for the next two weeks. They are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hinton and Mrs. Jas. C. Herring.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Garrett and Mrs. Elroy Peters attended the VFW Council in Sinton, Texas, Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Bart Haynes and Linda of Harlingen, returned home Wednesday after spending the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Haynes. They also visited Miss Hettie Weber.

Mrs. Tom Fairbrother and children are visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones and her brothers Judge John Wendell, Jerry Wendell and Lynn Wendell and their families.

Mrs. William D. Parr has received word that her husband, Pfc. William D. Parr who is stationed in Korea, has been promoted to Sp-4.

Area Accidents Take 16 Lives

Rural traffic accidents during June took sixteen lives in nine fatal accidents that occurred in six of the twenty-one counties that comprise the Corpus Christi District of the Texas Highway Patrol.

Victoria County led with five rural traffic deaths; Cameron County, Duval County, and Nueces County each reported three rural traffic deaths.

A total of 262 rural traffic accidents was reported in this District during June 1969, a reduction of 163 from the amount reported in May. In addition to the 16 persons killed, there were 120 persons injured in the nine fatal accidents and in 75 personal injury accidents. There were 178 property damage accidents reported. The property damage in these 262 accidents was estimated to be $303,070. Largest amount in any one county was $73,570 in Nueces County.

The Comparison Summary for the first six months of 1969, as compared with the same period of 1968, shows a decrease of 11 fatal accidents and a decrease of six fatalities. There was also a substantial decrease in the number of property damage accidents reported and the total number of accidents reported decreased by 80. The amount of personal injury accidents and personal injuries reported is still higher than was reported in 1968.

Texas Legislature.

For 238; Against 198.

A total of 497 votes were cast at the courthouse, which was the only polling place in the county instead of the usual five polling places. The commissioners court recently cut the number of polling places from five to one for this election.

Officials in Aransas Pass kept the polls open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. as is usually done. Mrs. Glen Ellis, election judge, and three other election officials said that 44 persons showed up to vote.

Mrs. Ellis said she called the county clerk's office early in the morning to complain about the lack of ballots and was told about the change in voting. She said at 11 a.m. an official from Rockport put a sign on the door telling persons they would have to drive 10 miles to the county persons showed to vote.

Mrs. Frances Iles, Miss Becky Weber are attending the annual kindergarten teachers workshop at Park Avenue Day School in Corpus Christi this week. The program consists of many outstanding speakers. All the latest materials will be presented at the school.

John Wm. Johnson has returned home from Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi, where he had eye surgery. He is doing very well.

Traffic Law—

take the breath test may lead to suspension of the suspect's driver license for up to one year.

Another measure which directly involves drivers is one which requires that slow-moving vehicles, that is, vehicles traveling at less than the normal speed of traffic, be driven in the right-hand lane or as close as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the roadway except when passing.

Also effective on Sept. 1 is an act which establishes a new intersection right-of-way law for the State of Texas. Under this, there are four rules governing the right-of-way at intersections. In cases of collision, it will be presumed that the driver did not yield the right-of-way if the four conditions have not been satisfied.

The Legislature also made changes in the "following too closely" law. Drivers, after the effective date, must give due regard to the speed of the vehicles, traffic upon and condition of the street or highway, to insure that their motor vehicle can be safely brought to a stop without colliding with the preceding vehicle or bearing into other vehicles, objects or persons.

A change in the Motor Vehicle Inspection Act places Texas on a 12 month inspection period, raises the inspection fee to $2, and moves the location of the inspection sticker from the right of the windshield to the left. It also adds exhaust emission systems on 1968 or later vehicles, and exhaust systems on all vehicles, to the list of items to be inspected.

Still other new laws remove the restriction on protruberances, such as studs on tires, which do not injure the roadway; adopt a slow-moving vehicle emblem; prevent racing, horn blowing, contests for speed, etc., in privately owned parking areas; and make it illegal to modify any passenger vehicle so that the lower most portion of the vehicle has less clearance than the lower most portion of any rim of any wheel in contact with the roadway.

Another measure, which does not become effective until Jan. 1, 1970, makes an officer's accident report available to the public upon payment of a $2 fee.

Other articles in this series will review the more important and law changes in depth.

Shrimp Landings—

June usually determines the magnitude to the ensuing season. The movement was monitored within the considered normal time range, however, the numbers and longevity of the early June movement was the lowest in recent years, indicating a poor summer and fall season from Texas waters. Catches of juvenile browns by bay bait fishermen were comparatively poor as extremely hot, dry weather prevailed from mid-June.

Trawlers working offshore waters made fair to poor catches from off Tampico, Mexico, to east of the Mississippi River. Vessel captains reported trip averages of 100-200 pounds per 12 hours' effort at most major ports.

Sporadic catches of juvenile pink shrimp were somewhat higher in small areas off Galveston and south of Aransas Pass, but the number of vessels working these grounds kept this fishery short-lived. Catches of large white shrimp were considered heavy for Texas waters throughout June. Total landings amounted to 471,000 pounds compared with 300,000 pounds during June, 1968. The extremely heavy fishing pressure on spawning white shrimp further indicates the poor state of the brown shrimp crop for 1969.

Blue crab landings amounted to about 390,000 pounds in June, compared with 435,000 pounds in June, 1968. Crab catches reflected the drought conditions prevailing in coastal counties.

Seven new large trawlers entered the shrimp fishery in June along the Texas coast. The greatest number joined the Brownsville-Port Isabel fleet. All are of the 72-foot "super trawler" class and will work Gulf waters. The enormous number of new vessels that have poured into the Gulf shrimp fishery has reduced the catch per vessel to a dangerous low level of return on capital investment even for vessels in the upper production bracket. One vessel was lost at sea in late June.

Already, the winner of the 1969 pessimism prize is the fellow who goes through the obituaries looking for his own name.—Bostn Gibe.

This is the age that a thigh-high dress has a sky-high price. — Pattonsburg (Mo.) Call.

In each of the comparisons, the number of acres used per 100 persons has been indicated. These are based on calculations of the present population within the city, adjacent to the city and for the planning area. Population figures used in this analysis are: City of Rockport, 3,800; Rockport and environs, 5,000 persons; and the planning area, 8,800 persons.

In evaluating the land use information, it is apparent that the amount of land required to accommodate urban uses is much more efficiently utilized within the city limits where approximately 21 acres are required for each 100 persons. In the environs of the city, this figure more than doubles to 42.8 acres per 100 persons, and in the planning area the figure is even greater, at approximately 45 acres per 100 persons. Most of this increase is found in roads. With a considerable amount of the development outside the city only seasonally occupied, it is evident that a significantly larger public investment is required to maintain streets and roads to serve land uses which are occupied only infrequently.

At this time, there are approximately 800 acres used within the city limits for urban purposes. About one-fourth of this area is used for residential activities: single-family, two-family, multiple-family homes and trailers. About 60 percent of the total developed area is used for public and semi-public areas, with fully one-half of the urban area devoted to streets, roads, highways and public easements. Industrial activities and commercial areas each account for approximately five percent of the developed area. This unusually high degree of land utilized for public access has occurred because of the numerous streets and roads which have been platted, but have not been utilized or developed. In the surrounding areas of the city, primarily to the southwest and northwest, the land use map shows that substantial areas have been dedicated but not utilized. These areas constitute a rather serious liability to the community and to residents of the city.

Within the city itself, the urban areas are closely associated with State Route 35 and other major streets. The primary urban areas are adjacent to the coastal areas. Even within the developed portions of the community, however, there are substantial open spaces and to a large extent this creates problems in the community for the extension of public services and utilities. As urbanization continues in the city and its environs, a considerable amount of "filling in" should take place.

Environmental Conditions
In some portions of the city the physical characteristics of urban development have retarded growth. The land use study indicates those structures which were classified as requiring major improvements or as being substandard (below established standards for construction). Buildings classified as substandard were visibly deteriorated, having sagging roofs, broken or leaning walls, poor foundations and the like. Blighted conditions of this nature, when uncontrolled, can spread and affect large areas of the city.

The land use study identified 1,265 dwellings in the corporate area, of which 257 (20 percent) were substandard. In the immediate environs there were 2,145 dwellings and 389 (18 percent) were substandard. Enforcement of the building code, and adoption of a Minimum Standard Housing Ordinance would do much to upgrade housing conditions in the problem areas found in the north and west central areas of the city.

A senator was approached in the corridor by a colleague, who asked, "How was your speech at the dinner last night?"

"Well," replied the first senator, with a puzzled look, "when I sat down, the toastmaster said it was the best thing I ever did."—Grit.

NATURE TRAILS

By CONNIE HAGAR

"Mark the matchless workings of the power That shuts within it seed the future flower."

—Cowper
Now in August you see the seed of all the beautiful spring blossoms, some flying on the breezes, some sinking into the grass and soil, but Nature quietly prepares for her next lovely Spring show.

And on Broadway by Little Bay look at the laughing gulls in all their plumages, the small brown ones are this year's juveniles, next the second year almost pure white, then adult going into winter plumage, has lost its black head, then full adult in summer dress, black head, dark wings, light breast.

How I worked on the gull, never knowing it could be the same kind for three years, no books on birds published at that time.

Young skimmers are also in the group, their black feathers and red bill make them stand out, look again, yes a ring-bill gull has arrived, and on Aransas Bay side, three Pelicans are reported, who ever thought you could live on our bay and not see a Brown Pelican when they formerly sat on every piling head, let's trust they come back. Conservation needed.

But hasn't shelling been paying the collector well this summer, still many places to look, look, look, even in August.

First to see and to greet most customers at the First National Bank of Rockport is Mrs. Louie Hill, secretary receptionist. It is her job to help customers with their problems or to direct them to the appropriate member of the bank's staff. One of her principal responsibilities is to open new accounts and to make new depositors feel welcome and appreciated.

Mrs. Hill started with First National in September, 1968. Previously she had been secretary for the Biology Department at Southwestern Texas State College at San Marcos.

She was born in La Grange, Texas, and was graduated from the Beaumont High School. She attended Texas Tech College and the University of Texas where she majored in art.

Her husband is the Rev. Lester Hill, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. They have two daughters, Leslie Carol, 12 and Leah Clay, 9.

Mrs. Hill's hobbies are tennis, fishing, bridge, and painting. She is acting secretary of the Rockport Art Association.

Teen-Age Drug Use Research Is Vital

If we ever are to solve the problem of drug abuse in our youngsters, it is critical for us to focus on and try to solve the root causes of the problem.

Among these root causes is the matter of "alienation." Behavioral scientists use the term "alienation" to describe the gap in communicating with and understanding one another that we hear about so much these days.

It has been applied particularly to the feeling too many youngsters seem to have about the older generation. It has been expressed in the term, coined by youth, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

Alienation has also been described as "rebellion without a cause... rejection without a program... a refusal of what is without a vision of what should be."

This really is nothing new. Lapses in communication between generations were noted by Greek philosophers over 2,000 years ago. We had our own "lost generation of the 1920s" and the "silent generation of the 1950s."

But the problem today appears wider, deeper, and more diffuse than at any time in our history. It affects the rich and the poor, the college student and high school dropout, the urban and rural youngster.

Some youngsters who feel helpless to accommodate to or try to change an unacceptable world consciously choose to alter their own by taking drugs.

This is why research is so important. Research is the only way to get information we do not now have, new methods of preventing drug abuse, and new ways of bridging the alienation gap.

This is why the NIMH is strongly supporting a broad pattern of scientific investigation in teen-age drug problems.

How does drug use in suburbia differ from that in hippie communities? What prompts a teen-ager to use drugs? Are youngsters who use drugs basically different from teen-agers who don't use them? How do friends influence the decision to use drugs? Are parents involved in the decision?

These are just a sample of the thousands of questions for which answers are being sought in one group of four research studies we are aiding. The four studies are only part of literally hundreds, some of which have been underway but many of which are newly launched.

Within a reasonably short time we are going to have vital and valid information we have never had before; and we are going to have to put it to use.

If we don't, there are serious dangers that large numbers of current and future youth generations will reach adulthood embittered, unequipped to be parents or hold jobs, and involved in some form or other of socially abnormal behavior.

The Story Of Thomas Mathis

The Pilot received from Mrs. W. C. Teague, of Corpus Christi, a copy of a story from a book given to her by her mother years ago. The book, titled "Prominent Men of the Great West," was given to her mother by her mother's uncle, both of whom are deceased.

The part of the book that Mrs. Teague sent was that portion which presents the story of Thomas Henry Mathis. The Pilot herewith presents the first of a series on Mathis.

No one who has been at all conversant with the southern coast of Texas for the past 25 years can have failed to hear the name of Thomas Henry Mathis. His manly form, well chiseled features and vigorous step form a fitting index to the volume of his good deeds.

Under any circumstances, he must have been prominent, and, indeed, the sequel to this narrative will show that he has developed a fine character, not under the favor of plain sailing, but despite the buffeting of dame Fortune. Such a success as he has achieved could not have been accidental. Accidents do not occur on such a colossal scale.

He was born in Stewart County, Tenn., July 14, 1834. His parents were James and Isabella Mathis, the former of whom died in 1864, and the latter in 1876. They were both highly esteemed for their sterling religious character.

Thomas received his early education in the country schools of Tennessee and Kentucky, and, being raised on a farm, he was taught the value of a dollar by digging for it early and late. As a boy he was proud to "hoe his own row," and as a youth to swing his scythe with the foremost.

At the age of 19, he resolved to strive for a higher education, and this marks a turning point in his life, as he was thenceforth thrown entirely on his own resources. Ardently as his father longed to encourage his aspirations, he could not do so in justice to his other children. But nothing daunted, Thomas left the paternal roof to enter the school of Dr. J. T. Mathis in Southern Arkansas.

At the end of the second session there he negotiated a loan of one thousand dollars from his father, to be paid by him, or deducted from the estate on final settlement of the same. With this aid he continued another session at the school. At the expiration of this time he took a school at Warren, Bradley County, Arkansas. In conjunction with a lady teacher, he conducted his school successfully one year, and then went to Bethel College where he finished his education in 1857. In 1858, he removed to Murray, Ky., where he assisted Dr. J. T. Mathis in teaching one session.

In 1859, he went to southwest Texas where his career as a businessman commenced. His very first enterprise was fraught with extreme peril, from which men of less courage shrank. It was on the 3d of February, 1859, that he left Gonzales, Texas, with a party of 13, to make a trading tour into Mexico. Any one familiar with border troubles and border characters, even at this late day, can have some conception of the hazards of this trip in the next decade after the Mexican War.

On reaching Rio Grande City the party was informed that it was out of the question to think of crossing over into Mexico as the country was full of robbers and brigands. Of the party of 18, only T. H. Mathis and his cousin, J. M. Mathis, had the nerve to cross the Rio Grande. Two young Alabamians, who were not of the original party, also crossed with them into the kingdom of the Montezumas, together with a Mexican guide.

As they lay in camp on San Juan River, at China, the first night after reaching Mexico, the custom house office demanded of them a duty of six per cent of all their money on the penalty of being imprisoned and having all they had confiscated. They sent their interpreter to tell the officer that they were buying stock in his country and would leave all their money there; but that if he persisted in demanding the six percent, he might come and get it, that there were four of them well armed with shotguns and six-shooters, and that many of the Mexicans would bite the dust in the attempted robbery.

It is needless to say that Mathis and his party were left unmolested. They remained in the country six weeks, 'camping at night and throwing out pickets like a regular army. But for this, they would doubtless have been robbed or murdered. Though this trip was deemed prudent to repeat it.

After making another business trip to the Texas side of the Rio Grande, Mathis temporarily left the stock business and opened a five-months school in Gonzales County in the spring of 1861. In the summer of that year, he removed to Victoria and extended the scope of his business transactions; but was compelled to close his business in the fall of that year on account of the closing of the Gulf ports at the outbreak of the great Civil War.

He then went to Kentucky and Tennessee and bought a large lot of tobacco, the price of which was rapidly rising in Texas. He barely succeeded in getting out with this commodity from Paris, Tenn., before the town fell into the hands of the Federal troops. He shipped this tobacco to Alexandria, La., and to it added another lot purchased in New Orleans. Meantime he sold the whole lot in Texas for one dollar a pound, in Confederate money.

In the spring and summer of 1862, he was busily engaged in forwarding supplies from Texas to the Confederate soldiers of the Trans-Mississippi department. In the fall of the same year he joined Duff's regiment, Company E, and fought for the Confederacy till the close of the war. He is not ashamed of the cause he espoused, nor of the part he played in it. Yet when the flag of the Confederacy was furled, he realized that the war was over indeed.

The same magnanimous spirit with which he now treats the "boys who wore the blue" enabled him to speedily forget the bitterness of the struggle, and though with resources reduced, to recommence his business career. He again engaged in the tobacco trade between Tennessee and Texas, in which he continued a year.

In February, 1867, he settled on Aransas Bay, and selected the site on which the thriving little city of Rockport now stands. The firm of J.M.&T.H. Mathis built the first wharf which was established there, and chartered the first steamship, "The Prince Albert" that ever entered Aransas Bay for commercial purposes. After this was lost at sea, they induced the Morgan Line to run their ships to Rockport, and became their agents.

This part of our narrative deserves to be emphasized. The subject of this sketch was the founder of Rockport in a sense in which no one else can claim that honor. In 1869, the Mathis firm expended $5,500 for the improvement of Aransas Bay, thus blazing the way, like hardy pioneers, of the future highway of commerce.

It was about the same time that they built the Orleans Hotel, and erected a number of other good buildings in Rockport. They also built bridges, made good county roads and aided in securing many other public improvements.

Later on, T. H. Mathis contributed liberally toward bringing the Union Telegraph to Rockport, and to the building of the first telephone line to that part of the State.

He was also a liberal contributor to the establishment of the first cold storage meat refrigerating plant in Texas.

He was also one of the first men in the state to introduce blooded cattle and horses into southwest Texas, and he is said to possess the banner ranch of his portion of the State, with regard to the quality of his stock.

When the Aransas Pass railroad was built into Rockport, in 1888, he was one of the principal promoters of the enterprise and it is one of the best additions to the city which bears this name.

When in 1872, the firm of J.M.&T.H. Mathis was enlarged to that of Coleman, Mathis & Fulton, again the progressive spirit of the subject of this narrative was felt when the firm of which he was from the beginning a member, built the first large pasture that was ever established in the State.

In 1879, this firm was dissolved, and J.M.&T.H. Mathis were the following year again associated in business by themselves.

Since that time, T. H. Mathis has been doing business on his own account, with the exception of the purchase of a one-half interest in about 24,000 acres of land in Wharton County, which he subsequently sold. He now owns about 24,000 acres of fine agricultural land in San Patricio County on the Nueces River, well fenced and stocked with fine horses and cattle. On the same estate are several farms, orchards and vineyards.

The town of Mathis is named for him and is a portion of his original ranch. The growth of a town so near the body of his ranch cannot fail to appreciate the value of every acre of it. Even at the present low prices of land, this is a princely estate, while its prospective value is very considerable indeed.

Mathis possesses an ordinary fortune, entirely aside from these fine lands. He owns one of the best homes in Rockport, besides thousands of dollars worth of realty in different portions in that city. He is liberally insured, to the amount of $60,000 in old line companies. He is a principal stockholder in the First National Bank of Rockport, of which institution he is also president.

Such is an imperfect statement of the material results attending a successful business career. But no correct inventory of Mr. Mathis' wealth can be made that does not include his character as the main part. He has not achieved financial success at the expense of character as is too often done. He was well-equipped for his career, both by nature and acquirements, and hence had no occasion to resort to dishonest methods. His experiences in the school room made an indelible impression on his life. Possibly he would have made as much money without it, but he would not otherwise have held money in as strict subjection to higher ends as he now does.

Without such culture, he might have been made slave instead of the master of his large possessions. He impresses one as being a man who was not shut up to run in a narrow groove.

There are jets of wit, coruscations of humor, and keen logical observations in his ordinary conversation which show that he would have been a successful literary or professional character had he turned his attentions in that direction.

His public utterances are as rare as they are weighty. The writer remembers an occasion when hundreds of people from all parts of Texas, and beyond its borders were assembled at Rockport to consider matters of great public weal. Naturally, there was a good deal of "orating" and that too by professional speakers.

Mr. Mathis was called on for a speech with a unanimity that was irresistible. He arose, and his well-chosen words sped like arrows from a strong bow. There was no resisting his logic. He made the best speech of the day, though he sat down entirely unconscious of it.

No one ever doubted his convictions. An instance will suffice to show that he is not a man to count the number of his opponents. A few years since an effort was made to change "Rockport" to "Aransas Pass." In fact, the name of the post office was so changed. This, Mr. Mathis resented. There was no good reason for it, he thought. He threw himself into the breach, and his influence with the Legislature prevented the change of the name of the city.

Later on, the same influence, exerted in a different direction, caused the post-office name to be changed back to "Rockport." This was not a mere triumph of opinion, but it prevented endless confusion among the half-dozen places around the bay that have appropriated the name "Aransas" in some connection or other.

He is a Democrat of the Jefferson-Jackson-Cleveland type. He is a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church. Religiously, as otherwise, his professions are not loud, and need not be. Instead of them, he presents the broad front of a consistent life, and deeds of constant benefaction. It would be hard to find a beneficent institution near him that has not been helped by him or that might not have been for the mere asking.

He was married twice; in 1869 to Mrs. Cora C. Caldwell of Gonzales, County, Texas, who died two months afterwards and in 1875 to his present wife (nee Miss Mary J. Nold) in Murray, Ky. She was born in Goddard, Tex., July 15, 1856, and educated in Kentucky. Her parents were Henry and Mrs. E. M. Nold.

Her father, an eminent educator, died at Murray, Ky., November 2, 1886. Her mother is still living in Murray.

Mr. Mathis is the father of eight children: Walter N.,

Henry, May, Thomas E., Edgar, Arthur, Lizzie Belle and Allie. Until a few months ago (1894) it was an unbroken family, when little Allie, aged 17 months and 13 days, was taken from the bosom of the family, demonstrating that "our life is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time then vanishes away."

THE STATE OF TEXAS, TO JAMES PIERCE STUART SMYTH, natural father of LISA MARIA SMYTH:

You are hereby commanded to appear before the 36th Judicial District Court of Aransas County, Texas, to be held at the Courthouse of said county in the City of Rockport, Aransas County, Texas, at or before 10:00 o'clock A.M., of the first Monday after the expiration of forty-two (42) days from the date of issuance hereof; that is to say, at or before 10:00 o'clock A.M. of Monday, the 15th day of September, 1969, and answer the Petition of W. W. HILLIARD, Jr., Petitioner, in Cause Number 4302, styled IN RE; A MINOR, which Petition was filed in said court on the 30th day of April, 1969; the nature of which said cause is as follows: Petitioner, W. W. HILLIARD, JR., respectfully petitions the Court for leave to adopt LISA MARIA SMYTH, a minor.

If this citation is not served within ninety (90) days after date of its issuance it shall be retained unserved.

Witness W. E. Beasley, Clerk of the 36th Judicial District Court, Aransas County, Texas.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court at office in the City of Rockport, this 28th day of July 1969.

(SEAL) W. E. BEASLEY, Clerk, District Court, Aransas County, Texas.
