Coahoma ISD chief resigns

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — In an ironic move, Superintendent Richard Souter of the Coahoma Independent School District resigned last night after trustees approved a two-year extension to his contract.

The CISD board of directors had just approved the contract extension by a vote of 6-0 when Souter gave them his resignation.

"I feel at this time I cannot be effective anymore," Souter said this morning.

In his fourth year at the CISD, Souter said he has not decided on future plans.

Although the move seemed unexpected, two board members said this morning there were indications Souter might be leaving.

"We had discussed it (the resignation) previously," said board member Kirby Brown. "But I'd rather not talk about it."

Board member Ronnie Wood said the directors were aware that Souter "had checked on other jobs" in an attempt to move from the CISD.

Board president Donnie Reid was unavailable for comment as were members Bruce Griffith, Ken Cobb, Warren Jeter and Stanley Phillips.

In other business the board:

- Voted to move the election polls in Coahoma and Sand Springs to community centers in each town. The polls had been located in fire stations.
- Voted to send a $500 donation to Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.
- Approved the installation of a phone in the high school's vocational building.
- Amended the budget to include $2,289 for a computer for the junior high English program.
- Adopted qualifications for band jacket awards.

Mark White takes oath

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Houston lawyer Mark White took the oath of office as governor today and cautioned Texans that their state is "on the very edge of greatness," a precipice from which other states have toppled.

"Are we doomed to repeat their mistakes, or will we learn from them?" White asked in his speech on the Capitol steps. "Can we be the masters of our destiny, or will we be its victims?"

"We have only a fleeting moment in history to decide how our future is to be shaped. We had better use that moment wisely," he said, calling Texas "the state of the future."

The 42-year-old Democrat replaced Republican Bill Clements, whose $13 million re-election campaign fell short in November.

Also today, Bill Hobby, who has been lieutenant governor for a decade, was sworn in for another four years. Hobby warned that oil and gas, "long the mainstay of our economic life," is not as plentiful as it once was.

"We are being put to the test to prove that we are not an accident of geology," said Hobby.

On a rainy day in Austin, White told the inauguration crowd that Texas "can be the greatest state this Republic has ever known, or we can enjoy our brief moment in the sun and go the way the states have gone before us. The choice is ours."

"Other states have stood where we now stand — the the very edge of greatness. And yet today, in many of those states, the residue of progress is more tangible than the blessings of progress: decaying, congested, crime-ridden cities, men and women permanently out of work, mounting budget deficits, foul air and filthy water and a ravaged, ugly landscape almost everywhere you turn."

White promised, "The people's interest will have a fresh start in my administration.

"There will be new faces and new ideas as a new generation of Texans prepares to take over the reins of government.

"It is a generation that was educated after World War II, that grew up in the shadow of nuclear terror, that lived through our transition from a rural to an urban state, that watched towering buildings rise from the ground, that saw the first signs of progress choking our cities and despoiling our environment.

"It is a generation whose time has come," he said.

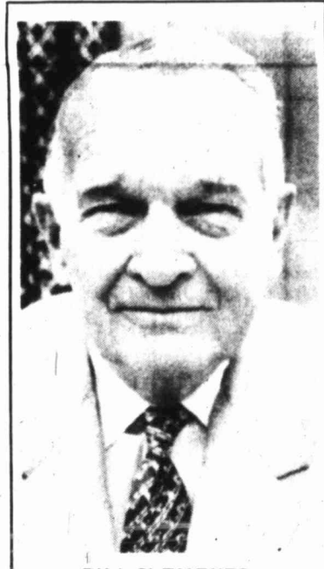

White said he owed "a great debt of gratitude" for his election victory, but he said, "I owe nothing to any group or to any special interest.

"My philosophy of government is basic and uncomplicated. It asks two questions before any others. Is it right? Is it fair?" he said.

The morning-to-midnight celebration of White's inauguration began today with a breakfast that had to be moved to a coliseum because of the huge crowd.

Clements leaves town

AUSTIN — Bill Clements spent his last full day as governor Monday clasping the hands of old friends and staff. His successor, Mark White, fits neither category, which helps explain why Clements plans to be 200 miles away when White takes the oath of office Tuesday.

"If Mark White had wanted him to have a role in the inauguration, and if he had been a gracious winner who wanted some advise or guidance, I'm sure he (Clements) would have

Bogus police hit El Paso

EL PASO (AP) — Police are trying to catch some counterfeit cops, possibly former patrolmen, who have conned at least five motorists into paying traffic fines on the spot.

Authorities also say that publicity about the incidents, which began about three weeks ago, has prompted many calls from residents reporting that legitimate El Paso officers look suspicious and should be checked out.

One patrolman said he has pulled up several times alongside motorists who have

Court turns down student prayer at Lubbock schools

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to reinstate a policy whereby students here were allowed to meet voluntarily — like any campus organization — before or after school for brief moments of prayer.

The Lubbock school superintendent says the Court's refusal to reinstate the policy allowing students to pray on school grounds doesn't matter because the practice had been scuttled anyway.

Two dozen senators had spoken out in support of school prayer, arguing that federal courts were making unwarranted stands against religion.

But the Supreme Court, without comment, upheld a March 1982 ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans that called Lubbock's policy a violation of constitutional requirements of separation of church and state.

Under the Lubbock regulation, elementary and high school students desiring to pray were allowed to "gather at school with supervision either before or after regular school hours on the same basis as other groups, so long as attendance at such meetings is voluntary."

Monte Hasie, president of the Lubbock School Board, said Monday's decision is "bad for the country."

"That's really a shame," he said. "I feel the community will feel about like I do. I think they'll be real disappointed."

But Superintendent Ed Irons said the district practice already had been discontinued after the 5th Circuit's ruling.

C-City grand jury indicts hitchhiker in teen-age rape

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A 22-year old Pennsylvania hitchhiker who was given a ride by three Ohio girls was indicted Friday on four charges by the Mitchell County Grand Jury.

Clifford Bart Dunbar was indicted on three counts of indeceny with a minor and one charge of aggravated rape.

All three of the girls involved in the episode were minors.

Law enforcement officers say the three juvenile females were raped and forced into sexual acts with each other at knife point by Dunbar Jan. 5.

The attacks occured in Mitchell and Howard counties, according to police.

The three juveniles left Akron, Ohio, Jan. 2 and were given a ride in Sweetwater, Tenn. The three then took their benefactor's car and money that night at a motel and left for Texas.

They picked up Dunbar, who was hitchhiking on Interstate 20, and he pulled a knife and "forced them into various sexual acts with the knife to their throats," the police report said.

One of the girls escaped in Mitchell County during one assault. The other two were released ½ mile southeast of the Hwy 821 and I-20 intersection in Howard County following a second assault.

The two girls then flagged down Department of Public Safety Trooper Jim Lasater on I-20.

Dunbar was in possession of the stolen car when he was arrested in Midland.

Dead body found still not identified

Howard County law enforcement officials are still unable to positively identify a body found northeast of Big Spring nearly two weeks ago, according to Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Although Standard said officials are "reasonably sure" of the identity of the body — believed to be a local male — positive identification has not been made. His office sought dental records from Huntsville, Standard said, but none were sent for the individual in question.

"We are checking out of state and locally," Standard said today. "We're still in the identification stage."

Any information for identification purposes will be turned over to the doctor performing the pathological examination of the body, Standard said.

Dr. Robert Rember examined the remains at the order of Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

A case will be presented to the next Howard County grand jury for possible indictment, Standard said.

Law enforcement officials, acting on a tip, discovered the body in a shallow grave the morning of Jan. 5. The body had been buried for at least one year, officials say.

County establishes bail bond committee

The Howard County Bail Bond Board has been established to oversee the bail bond business, according to 118th District Judge Jim Gregg.

Gregg said the inception of the bail bond board — created by state law — was unanimously approved by its members, composed of elected officials of the county.

The members include District Attorney Rick Hamby, County Judge Milton Kirby, Justices of the Peace Lewis Heflin, Bobby West and Willie Grant, Sheriff A.N. Standard and Gregg.

A representative of the local licensed commercial bail bond companies will also serve on the board, the judge added.

The primary function of the board will be to supervise and oversee the commercial bail bond companies, Gregg said. According to state law, the board will have the authority to hold hearings and investigations concerning bail bonds.

The board can also revoke the license of a bail bond company, Gregg said.

"Some of the bail bondsmen felt it was needed," Gregg said. "This will give some control over it (bail bonds)."

The board has scheduled a second meeting for Feb. 1 to organize and select officers.

Gas pipeline erupts

COLORADO CITY — A natural gas pipeline erupted Monday and burned for more than an hour after it apparently was struck by a construction grader.

Police said the machinery operator, Henry Rivera, was building a terrace at a site southeast of here and struck the pipeline. Rivera jumped from the grader after the accident happened and was at a safe distance when the fire erupted. No one was injured, police said.

CENTIPEDE — The Big Armored Centipede, five attached station wagons with guardrails bolted to one side, is ready to crawl back into action to help protect Texas highway department crews. The centipede was sidelined almost before it could be used because of work cutbacks.

Big Armored Centipede

Crash barrier protects highway crews

HOUSTON (AP) — A mobile crash barrier being used to protect Texas highway workers sounds like the answer to a riddle — it has 20 tires, one guardrail, seats 45 and weighs 14 tons.

The Big Armored Centipede, with five attached station wagons and a guardrail bolted to one side, acts as a fence between workers and moving traffic, said Hunter Garrison, district maintenance engineer for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

But the barrier, acquired in January by the Houston office of the highway department, was sidelined almost before it could be used because of work cutbacks.

"We found it is applicable to Houston, but we reduced a lot of our highway work for a while and couldn't use it," Garrison said. "Now we are doing more and will certainly use it more."

The return of the Centipede is a welcome sight for highway department workmen, who must perform their duties in the midst of high-speed traffic.

"Our employees say they felt this is the safest thing we've ever used," Garrison said. "The peace of mind of the workers is just as important. I've had some say, 'It looks funny but I'm sure happy it's there.'"

The Centipede was developed by Don Ivey, Hayes Ross and Ted Hirsch, researchers at the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M University.

The lead car in the brightly painted entourage can be driven comfortably at 45 to 50 miles per hour, and can give workmen a 28,000-pound barrier of protection.

Highway department officials hope to use the Centipede on lengthy projects as the department expands its work load.

Department spokesman Dick Kabat said increasing highway workman injuries also contributed to the recent work slowdown.

Much of the repair work was being done on Sundays, but Kabat said the department now is "running out of Sundays and has prospects for more funds."

The Centipede has been used twice, but no accidents occurred that might have demonstrated the barrier's protective capabilities.

White, fresh from stints as Texas Secretary of State and Texas Attorney General, heads into a four-year term as the state's chief executive; Hobby begins another four-year term after 10 years in office.

Clements, the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction and the loser to White in the November general election, will be in Dallas and absent from all the inaugural activities. A small detachment of Department of Public Safety personnel, assigned to Clements at his Dallas home and in Austin for around-the-clock security, will be discharged at noon and assigned to White.

Unlike presidents of the United States, security personnel are not assigned for life to former Texas chief executives.

Clements and his wife, Rita, moved their personal possessions from the Governor's Mansion last week and spent the weekend at their Dallas home. Clements was in Austin for only about six hours Monday.

About 20 reporters and photographers watched Clements pack his final belongings into a car Monday, a stark contrast to the thousands of supporters which greeted his arrival to the Capitol four years ago.

Turning to Ford, a former Capitol reporter, Clements joked: "Don't give any of those secret recordings to any of those friends of yours."

Four years ago, then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe and his wife, Janey, shared coffee with the Clements' shortly before their exchange of power. Briscoe was knocked out of his re-election bid by former Attorney General John Hill who lost to Clements in the general election.

Clements will continue the practice of highlighting a biblical passage for consideration by his successor. Clements' choice is Ecclesiastes 3-1: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven."

Police

asked him "if I'm real or not."

In one of two incidents over the weekend, an alert driver noticed that the uniformed policeman who pulled him over wasn't wearing a badge. The driver demanded identification, and the imitation officer jumped back onto his motorcycle and sped off, Sgt. Robert Wiles said Monday.

But the second incident netted a "patrolman" driving a sedan a quickie $7 "fine" when he stopped Alicia Garcia Perez for an alleged speeding violation.

The woman, on a milk-buying errand Saturday, was charged $10, but told the man she only had $7. He took the cash and sped away, said Lt. Eddie Agan.

"That's at least five times motorists here have been ripped off," Agan said. "These guys are dressing up just like we do."

In another case involving a suspicious citizen, two officers were trying to reason with a man urinating in a public park next to a police substation when another man — apparently intoxicated — wandered over and demanded to see their identification.

The officers produced it, but the man wasn't satisfied and continued to accuse them of being phonies. When he refused to leave, the officers arrested him for disorderly conduct, a misdemeanor.

"My God, you can't trust anybody anymore," Wiles said.

Police, who suspect the victims are being duped by former patrolmen, say they fear the rash of rip-offs could continue until one of the impostors is tracked down.

Officers believe that once one of the counterfeits is arrested, the others will be scared off.

Police Chief Bill Rodriguez said Monday that authorities set up decoys during the weekend hoping to trap the impostors, but weren't successful. He refused to discuss how the decoys were being used.

Police say at least three different men, two using motorcycles and another a white sedan with flashing yellow and red grille lights, are believed to have tricked motorists into paying fines.

All the victims spoke Spanish and some complained the phony officers' Spanish was bad, investigators said.

Murder suspect pleads innocent in killing spree

KERMIT, Texas (AP) — A man convicted of murdering an 8-year-old girl and suspected in several West Texas murders entered a plea of innocent to a capital murder charge in the stabbing death of the child's mother.

Michael Eugene Sharp was arraigned Monday before State District Judge James Clack on charges he killed 31-year-old Brenda Kay Broadway last June. Clack denied bond for Sharp, who is serving a life sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Sharp, 28, of Odessa was convicted of killing Ms. Broadway's youngest daughter, Christie Michelle Elms.

He was arrested June 16, 1982, five days after the bodies of Ms. Broadway and her daughter were found. Ms. Broadway, Christie Elms and another daughter, 15-year-old Selena Elms, were kidnapped from a Kermit car wash shortly after midnight June 11, 1982.

The mother and her daughters were driven to a remote area, where Ms. Broadway and Christie Elms were stabbed to death. Selena Elms managed to escape while her mother and sister were being killed, and ran naked five miles through the rough countryside — her arms bound — before finding help at an oil rig.

Girl, 10, killed by bus she had been riding

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old girl was killed today when she was struck by a bus that had just dropped her off at school in this Northeast Texas town.

Teresa Burns was pronounced dead on arrival at Fannin County Hospital.

The fourth-grader, who lived in the community of Randolph just south of here, dropped her books as she was passing in front of the bus, witnesses said. As she bent to retrieve the books, the bus began moving and hit her.

The driver of a second bus witnessed the accident, which occurred about 8 a.m., authorities said.

Police Chief Jim Bunch said results of his department's investigation will be turned over to the district attorney's office.

Officials say N-plant generators unstable

DALLAS (AP) — Vibration problems in four steam generators at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant have been confirmed by officials of both the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission and Texas Utilities Co.

The four generators are part of the first of twin atomic reactors at the plant near Glen Rose, about 80 miles southwest of here, which is scheduled to begin operating late this year. NRC sources told the Dallas Morning News, however, that operation of generators at full power could cause radioactive water and steam to be released into the environment.

Westinghouse, manufacturer of the generators, will present proposals to correct the vibration problem by Feb. 1, said Texas Utilities spokesman David Chapman.

Two nuclear reactors already in operation in North Carolina and South Carolina have similar Westinghouse generators and both have been limited to 50 percent of full power by the NRC.

Supreme Court

Fight for child on court agenda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald Kirkpatrick's desire to give his baby daughter a home has led him to the nation's highest court.

The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether Kirkpatrick has the right to prevent his daughter's mother from putting the little girl up for adoption.

The court's eventual decision, not expected until sometime in 1984, will affect the rights of other men who find themselves in Kirkpatrick's shoes.

Texas courts last year refused to give Kirkpatrick, who is 25 and lives with his parents and two sisters on the family farm in York County, Neb., legal custody of his 2-year-old daughter.

The child's mother, then 15, gave the infant up for adoption to Christian Homes of Abilene, Texas, soon after it was born out of wedlock.

The mother had testified that Kirkpatrick is "a wonderful man" but said she feels the baby would be better off with adoptive parents because Kirkpatrick lacks her religious convictions.

Under Texas law, courts may deny the father of an illegitimate child custody if they decide granting such custody would not be in the child's best interest.

That same child's mother can be denied custody only if the Texas courts find that she is an unfit parent.

Kirkpatrick's lawyers say that the greater burden placed on men is unfair.

"The Texas practice discriminates on the basis of sex and illegitimacy," they argued in successfully seeking Supreme Court review.

"No evidence was presented even suggesting that (Kirkpatrick) is unfit to raise his child or that she would suffer any harm as a consequence of being raised by her biological father," said the appeal on his behalf.

State of the Judiciary

Texas chief justice urges new legal service for poor

By DANA PALMER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Jack Pope came to the Legislature Monday to talk about the "State of the Judiciary" and to suggest a number of reforms and programs, including establishment of a new legal service for the poor.

But he left talking to reporters about whether his just-completed speech as chief justice might be his last.

Some of Pope's friends in the Senate have expressed worry that his November appointment by Republican Gov. Bill Clements might be among some 100 or more lame-duck nominations likely to be recalled Wednesday after Democratic Gov.-elect Mark White takes office.

"But he (White) and Pope may work something out (on a renomination), but then maybe that's just wishful thinking," one senator remarked.

Pope said he would hope to be renominated by White, "but I have no reason to believe he would or wouldn't."

Other reports, which Pope said he too has heard, keep surfacing that the Democratic Party wants the chief justice job to go to John Hill, former attorney general and Democratic candidate for governor in 1978 when Clements won his single term.

Pope noted that he may not be a big gun in the Democratic Party but that he has won election to office many times as a Democrat and only voted for two Republicans in his life. Clements was not among them, he said, adding "I voted for Mark White and he knows it."

However, Pope's nomination to fill the seat of retired Chief Justice Joe Greenhill came from Republican Clements after the governor lost the November 2 general election to White, and, as such, is in the middle of a more-or-less partisan fight over the appointments power of a lame-duck governor.

CHIEF JUSTICE APPLAUDED — Sen. Grant Jones (D-Abilene), left, joins in the ovation for Chief Justice Jack Pope, also of Abilene, as Pope steps to the House microphone to deliver his State of the Judiciary address.

Pope, who had planned to retire from the court before Clements offered him the chief justice spot, said he has stayed out of the controversy.

"I'm just being held ransom by two branches of government," he told reporters.

In any case, Pope said he happily agreed to swear in White at noon Tuesday during inaugural ceremonies on the front steps of the Capitol.

During his hour-long speech to a joint session of the House and Senate, Pope touted a number of changes in the judiciary, emphasizing at one point the need to ensure that the poor have equal access to the state's civil court system.

"The idea that this nation contributed to the world and to government is the unique one that the law is enthroned and should rule over all of us equally," Pope said. "This does not happen when the law is not even available to large segments of our communities because they are poor."

Also, he said, the U.S. Supreme Court may someday invalidate "a whole mess of cases" in Texas because its poorest citizens were not provided adequate legal counsel. He noted that present economic conditions are adding to the number of poor at the same time federal funds for legal aid are being cut drastically.

Volunteer programs by the state's lawyers, including successful ones in Corpus Christi and seven other cities, help, but not enough, Pope said.

He suggested that banks pay interest on trust accounts that lawyers often use for temporarily depositing large sums of money while a business or real estate deal is pending. That interest, Pope said, could fund an expansion of legal aid in Texas without the need for a tax increase.

Other ideas suggested by Pope include:

- Redistricting the state's judges for the first time since 1891 to even out the workload among the various judicial districts and thereby reduce the need for new judges and new courts.
- Turning municipal courts into small claims courts similar to justice of the peace courts.
- Using retired appeals judges to help solve a backlog of appeals.

Repeat winners dominate music awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kenny Rogers, Willie Nelson and Lionel Richie headed a list of familiar faces who were repeat winners on the 10th annual presentation of the American Music Awards voted by 30,000 record buyers nationwide.

The exceptions were Daryl Hall & John Oates, named favorite pop group; John Cougar, favorite male pop vocalist; Alabama, favorite country group, and Marvin Gaye, favorite soul single winner for "Sexual Healing."

Rogers won as favorite male country vocalist and for the favorite country single "Love Will Turn You Around" at Monday night's nationally telecast ceremonies. He also was presented a special Award of Merit for his contribution to the entertainment of the American public.

The bearded singer, whose country hits have also enjoyed tremendous success on pop charts, lent a homey note to the ceremonies by bringing his wife, Marianne, and their 13-month-old son, Christopher Cody, with him as he accepted the merit award.

He also was the subject of a singing and spoken tribute by several artists, including Richie and show co-hosts Melissa Manchester and Mac Davis.

Not including the special merit award, which is given by a committee of music industry figures, Rogers' 10-year total now stands at 12 American Music Awards.

The winners are determined by a poll of 30,000 record buyers selected to reflect the age, sex, ethnic background and geographic locations of record buyers nationwide. Nominees are drawn from year-end charts of music industry trade publications.

Richie increased his total to six by taking favorite male soul vocalist and favorite pop single for "Truly." He said he was surprised to win the award over Survivor's "Eye of the Tiger" and "Ebony and Ivory" — the Paul McCartney-Stevie Wonder duet.

"I like surprises," Richie added.

Willie Nelson's hit LP "Always on My Mind" won in two categories, favorite country album and favorite pop album. The country singer, who accepted via satellite from San Diego, said simply, "All of you who voted for me, thank you. That's all I can say."

Olivia Newton-John brought her total to nine by winning as this year's favorite female pop vocalist. She accepted via a satelilte transmission from Hawaii.

Barbara Mandrell took her fourth award by being named favorite female country vocalist for the third straight year.

Another repeat winner was Diana Ross, voted favorite female soul vocalist for a second time. Last year she had won two awards for "Endless Love," her duet with Richie, and in 1981 she won a favorite soul single award for "Upside Down." Miss Ross was not present this year.

Kool & The Gang were declared favorite soul group for the second year in a row. "It is always good to know, through perseverance, that your work is appreciated," said Robert (Kool) Bell, who brought only one member of his nine-man gang with him to the awards show.

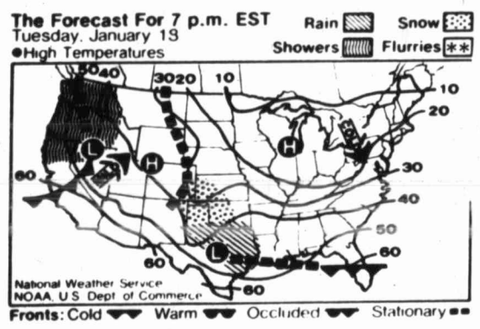

Aretha Franklin, another co-hostess of the ABC telecast, got her third American Music Award, winning favorite soul album for "Jump To It." She had won female soul vocalist honors in 1976 and 1977.

Other highlights of the show were Stray Cats' performance of "Rock This Town," Miss Manchester's "You Should Hear How She Talks About You" and Hall & Oates' "Maneater."

Conservatives threaten to challenge Reagan

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON — Frustrated conservatives, describing President Reagan as displaying a "lack of interest" in running the country, are threatening to challenge his re-election unless he fires several top aides and veers his administration to the right.

"I would think the conservative cause and the Republican Party would be better served if the president doesn't run for re-election," Richard Viguerie, a conservative publisher and fund-raiser, said in an interview.

"It would have been unthinkable a year ago to oppose Reagan," added Viguerie. "I think there's a strong chance that if he does run, he would be opposed by a strong conservative."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes declined today to comment on Viguerie's remarks except to point out that the conservative was not a Reagan supporter in the early stages of the 1976 or 1980 campaigns.

"I think there will be an all-out effort to persuade him not to run in 1984," said Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, in a separate interview.

Reagan has said he has not yet decided whether to seek a second term in 1984.

While Viguerie and Phillips have been persistent conservative critics of the Reagan presidency from its outset, this marked the first time they openly discussed challenging the president for the 1984 Republican presidential nomination.

John T. Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, said he saw little chance such a challenge could succeed.

When told some fellow conservatives were talking about finding an alternative to Reagan in 1984, Dolan commented: "Good luck."

"I obviously share their frustration, but I really don't know what we can do about it," said Dolan.

The latest administration decisions to anger and frustrate the conservatives were the president's endorsement of the compromise agreement on Social Security, which will result in accelerating increases in payroll taxes, and his appointment of former Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., to be secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Phillips said he still hoped the president would fire White House aides James A. Baker III, Michael Deaver, David Gergen and Richard Darman. Those four are often described by conservatives as leading Reagan away from the principles on which he ran in 1980.

"There is no way in which conservatives are going to get elected in 1984, running on a record of the biggest tax increases and the biggest deficits in the history of the country," said Phillips.

Viguerie referred to the "continual lack of interest by the president in running the country and letting Jim Baker and Howard Baker (the Senate majority leader) run the operation."

Talking about the prospects for a campaign against Reagan, Viguerie said, "It would be very easy to put together a significant campaign based on the Reagan campaign of 1980.

"In other words, reduce taxes, balance the budget, stop busing, bring school prayer back, you name it. Abolish the Department of Education, the Department of Energy.

"He's done so very little that it would be very easy to put together his campaign pledges and promises and for a major conservative to run on that."

We wish new governor well

We wish our new governor every success as he begins the job of managing the greatest state in the Union.

Admittedly, Mark White was not our choice for the job, but now that the shouting's over, and now that he has emerged as the indisputable victor, we throw our full support behind him.

Certainly we hope that he can rein in the state's expenses and prevent state tax increases. We pray a personal income tax in Texas will not be inaugurated during his tenure.

And obviously we'll be watching to see what White does in the areas of utility rate regulation, teacher pay raises, the water problem, highway maintenance, and college building funds. We hope that he will take actions that we can wholeheartedly support.

Singer Willie Nelson jokingly referred to Mark White as having had a "charisma bypass." White may have a bumbling, "Inspector Closeau" image, but what counts are the results he produces. We sincerely hope that he can do as much good for Texas as the outgoing governor did. Time will tell.

Around the Rim

Actor-watching

I've always wanted to be an actor.

What could be more fun and interesting? It may not be the most stable of professions, but when you have an acting job and you turn in a good performance, the emotional rewards must be the fullest.

I never thought I had the abilities or the drive, so I never went after it. Instead I do the next best thing: I watch actors.

That's one reason I enjoyed "Tootsie" so much, because it was about actors and acting and had some wonderful performances. Not great performances; there usually can be only one of those in a movie. "Tootsie" was filled with a lot of perfect little acting turns.

It was the kind of movie where actors and actresses can take a plain script and bring it a life by the way the lines are read. Some of the shortest lines (like Bill Murray's "You slut" or Sydney Pollack's "YOU WERE A TOMATO!") are the best.

MY FAVORITE actors are not always the great ones; I like the journeymen character actors, the kind with faces you know by heart but names you can't recall. Here's a few I do recall: Charles Durning (Judy's father in "Tootsie", the governor in "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," and the detective in "The Sting"), Strother Martin (the South American mine-owner in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid,") and Jack Warden (the Rams' coach in "Heaven Can Wait" and Ryan O'Neal's father in "So Fine.")

There is no rhyme or reason as to why I like a particular star actor or actress. I like just about anything Robert De Niro does, and almost nothing Al Pacino does. I can't say De Niro is the better actor, but for some reason I like him better.

There's something bothersome about these serious method actors, however. They are great at showing us inner turmoil and frustration, but can you see them getting through a normal day? Can you imagine Robert De Niro getting up in the morning, having a bowl of Cheerios and some toast, and then driving his kids to school? Without flying into a rage and wrecking the car or something?

WE'VE FINALLY got some good roles for women — but we've always had good actresses. Faye Dunaway, Sally Field, Sissy Spacek have for years done well with roles that didn't allow them very much to do.

There's one actress now at your favorite theater who gives me a problem. Meryl Streep. Actually, she doesn't bother me so much as the critics do. They slobber over her. She could stand in a McDonald's parking lot with green coveralls on and sing "We Got The Beat" in Chinese and the critics would cheer her for "the immortal proportions of her performance" or her "soaring sensitivity."

She's boring. In "The French Lieutenant's Woman" she seemed more bored than I did. She's so precise with her mannerisms and such, but you're always very much aware that she's acting, bucking for an Oscar. She can do what the character is supposed to do, but you don't think she's feeling what the character is supposed to feel. She's boring, humorless and sexless.

But it is the thing to do to praise her these days. I heard one person say how brilliant she was in "Sophie's Choice," but he hadn't even seen the movie yet. Hey, that's probably the best way to enjoy her.

Some of my favorite actors don't know how to act very well. They just play themselves. Clint Eastwood is one; I could watch him in anything (I long to see him host "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood"...just once). Burt Reynolds is good in his "real roles," like "Starting Over" over "Deliverance." He can sink his Trans Am in the lake for all I care.

A lot of bull

It seems every time there is bad economic news on evening television, the stock market goes up another 10 points.

The only thing I've been able to figure out is that either Wall Streeters don't watch television, or they're living in a world of their own.

I have a cousin who works for one of the large brokerage firms and I called him the other day to find out what was going on.

"I can't talk to you now," he said. "The new unemployment figures came out and I have to start buying stock."

"Why? Is unemployment going down?"

"No, but it only went up slightly compared to last month, so the bulls have gone into action again."

"Why are the bulls acting so bullish when all the indicators are bearish?"

"Because the bulls are betting the Fed is going to loosen up on tight money, and interest rates are going to come down."

"The feeling here in Washington is, even if the Fed lowers the interest rates, the $200 billion deficit will suck up any available investment money."

"The bulls aren't watching Washington."

"What are they watching?" I asked.

"They're watching each other. When one of the big bulls starts buying, the others have to follow suit, or they'll be left back in the stampede. The word out on the street now is if you see a red flag, bid on it."

"Don't the bulls read the papers? They're closing manufacturing plants all over the country."

"That's why Wall Street feels it's the time to buy. If the plants stayed open, stocks would not be a bargain."

"But if the plants are closed, earnings will be down and there will be no dividends for the stockholders."

"The bulls are not looking for dividends. They're looking to make a profit on their stocks. The big boys can get in and out in a few days and make millions on their investments."

"It sounds like a crap game to me."

"It is a crap game. But as long as there are enough guys rolling dice, nobody is going to close down the table."

"I thought Wall Street was supposed to reflect the economy of the country."

"It used to. But now it's a game all unto itself. We're on a roll now, and as long as everyone is making money, we're going to keep betting no matter what the rest of the country is doing. The only ones who have lost their shirts in the last year are the bears because they believed what they read in the newspaper."

"Does this mean the bulls on Wall Street don't care if the recession is on or over?"

"It's not their business. As long as they can buy low and sell high, they look like geniuses."

"But surely they must have some faith the economy is going to turn around or they wouldn't be investing their money in all the companies listed on the stock market."

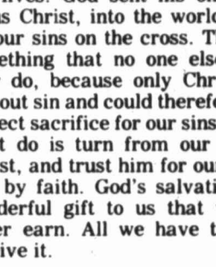

"Of course they have faith in the economy. But they don't have time to wait for it to turn around. When you're sitting on $500 million of somebody else's money, you want results now."

"So the market is doing up because the money managers have no choice but to buy stocks in the bull market which they made themselves, so everyone would look good?"

"It isn't that simple. When things were good most company stocks were overpriced. Now that things are lousy, most of them are underpriced. So everyone wants to get in on the fire sale."

"Well I guess if Wall Street isn't worried, I shouldn't be. After all, you guys seem to know what you're doing."

"Of course we know what we're doing. If we paid attention to everything that was going on in the country we'd all be jumping out of windows."

Billy Graham

There are no second chances

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you believe God will give people a second chance after they die to believe in him and go to Heaven?—D.F.

DEAR D.F.: The Bible does not teach this, and in fact it teaches the opposite. It stresses that the time to decide for Christ is now, because once we die it will be too late. As the author of the book of Hebrews in the New Testament declared, "Man is destined to die once, and after that to face judgment" (Hebrews 9:27). This verse also, incidentally, shows us clearly that there is no such thing as reincarnation—the idea that our souls return again and again to this earth.

The important thing for every one of us to realize is that God has done everything possible to bring salvation to us, and there is no reason for us to delay accepting his plan for our lives. God sent his only Son, Jesus Christ, into the world to die for our sins on the cross. This was something that no one else could ever do, because only Christ was without sin and could therefore be a perfect sacrifice for our sins. All we must do is turn from our sins to Christ, and trust him for our salvation by faith. God's salvation is a wonderful gift to us that we can never earn. All we have to do is receive it.

I have often asked myself why many people who know what Christ has done for them still delay because secretly they hope that somehow there will be another chance for them after they die. That is one reason I have wanted to answer your question, because it would be tragic for them to miss out on the joy of Heaven—because they mistakenly thought somehow they would have another chance. I am sure many people also delay turning to Christ because they think somehow that being a follower of Christ will be dull and unexciting, or because they want to continue in their sins as long as possible.

But none of these reasons is valid, and my challenge to you is to invite Christ into your life if you have never done so without delay. "I tell you, now is the time of God's favor, now is the day of salvation" (2 Corinthians 6:2).

Andropov implicated in shooting of Pope

WASHINGTON — The Soviet KGB has found a convenient, economical way to expand its worldwide espionage resources: It uses its Eastern European allies to do an increasing amount of the dirty work.

Last May, I broke the story of the KGB's suspected complicity in the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II. Since then, the evidence has been mounting.

In fact, Western intelligence sources now believe that the new Soviet dictator, Yuri Andropov, was at least a knowing accomplice in the pope's shooting, if he didn't actually orchestrate the whole thing when he headed the KGB.

The nearly successful "hit" certainly fit the pattern of the KGB's murder-by-surrogate technique. The confessed gunman, Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, was working with the Bulgarian secret police, Durzhavna Sigurnost (DS). He met with assassination planners in Bulgaria, and obtained his gun, his false identity documents and a large amount of cash there. Three Bulgarians have been arrested as accomplices.

The Bulgarian secret police have always been the closest and most willing of the Soviets' surrogate goon squads. As far back as 1978, Bulgarian killers were fingered as the ones responsible for the murder of a defector in London by means of a poison pellet fired from an umbrella.

And it was definitely Andropov who reorganized the KGB and decided to make greater use of satellite manpower. So the attempt on the pope can be traced indirectly, if not directly, to him. Here's how Andropov's worldwide network operates:

Killings, known as "morkie dela" or "wet affairs," because of the blood that is shed, are planned in Department V of the KGB in Moscow. If the Soviets want to put a little distance between themselves and an assassination, it will be turned over to Department 11 of the KGB's foreign division, once known as the "Advisers Department."

More than 100 KGB supervisors are stationed at the espionage headquarters of the various satellite governments — in Sofia, Prague, East Berlin, Budapest, Warsaw, Bucharest and Havana. These KGB "uncles," as they are called, approve or veto the satellites' spy operations. They monitor incoming intelligence reports and pass along the most important to Moscow. In some cases — at the Direccion General de Intelligencia in Havana, for example — the Russian supervisors even draw up the budgets and provide the funds for covert operations.

THE ADVANTAGES are obvious. For one thing, foreigners are less likely to be on their guard when dealing with, say, an East German instead of a Russian.

Perhaps the biggest advantage is in sheer numbers of agents available to work for the Kremlin by adding surrogate spies to the Russians' own undercover operatives. A top-secret intelligence review notes that there are more than 90 different official and quasi-official missions from communist countries in the United States alone. Of the 2,000 or so personnel attached to these missions, there are at least "544 known or suspected intelligence officers," the review states.

But the number is actually much higher, intelligence sources told my associate Dale Van Atta. The CIA reckons that roughly 40 percent of communist-mission personnel are intelligence agents. That means 800 foreign agents the FBI has to keep track of — and it can take as many as eight G-men to keep a single agent under proper surveillance.

The KGB has its favorites among satellite espionage personnel. The Czechs are at or near the top of the list, "because of their abject subservience," as one intelligence report notes. The East Germans "are of increasing importance from year to year," largely because of their obvious ability to infiltrate West German agencies and gain access to U.S. secrets.

And the Bulgarians are valued by the KGB "because they like the Russians and support them enthusiastically." It remains to be seen whether this enthusiasm will survive Andropov's letting the Bulgarians take the rap for the attempted assassination of the pope.

TORPEDOING LEGENDS: A ghastly specter from the past is about to rise up and smite three of the Navy's legendary World War II leaders — Navy Secretary James Forrestal and Admirals Ernest King and Chester Nimitz.

A new book, "All the Drowned Sailors," by Raymond Lech, deals with the sinking of the cruiser Indianapolis with the loss of 880 men. The Navy placed most of the blame on the skipper, Capt. Charles McVay. Despondent over the tragedy and the result of his court-martial, McVay killed himself in 1968.

But secret Navy files dug up by Lech show that Forrestal, King and Nimitz, among others, either covered up the tragedy's causes or were responsible themselves. The book proves that McVay was never warned by the high command that his ship — which had just delivered the Hiroshima A-bomb components — was in danger of a Japanese submarine attack.

TWO PLUS TWO EQUALS FIVE: The auditors at the General Accounting Office who check the books on the government's nuclear non-proliferation and arms-control efforts shook up their bosses a bit at Christmas. They hung up a sign saying, "Peace on Earth from the Nuclear Non-Proliferation and Arms Control Group." GAO brass apparently feared their scrupulously neutral agency had been infiltrated by peaceniks.

15 percent against

Early poll suggests Gramm's re-election chances

By WILLIAM GARLAND
States News Service

WASHINGTON — A Democrat-sponsored poll of former Rep. Phil Gramm's East Texas district shows that 15 percent of the voters have made up their minds to vote against Gramm in the Feb. 12 special election, according to a party source close to the polling.

Gramm is running against 10 challengers in the 6th District to try to reclaim as a Republican the seat that he gave up in protest as a Democrat early this month.

Less than 50 percent of the registered voters there have decided definitely to vote for Gramm, according to the source, who refused to divulge that exact figure. The poll was conducted by Democratic pollster George Shipley of Austin.

The source gave a general breakdown of the poll results among 422 registered voters to the question: "As of now, would you vote to re-elect Gramm to Congress or vote against Gramm's re-election?"

He said nearly one-fourth of the voters would consider voting for another candidate and 10 percent were undecided.

He also confirmed a statement by Congressional Campaign Committee Chairman Tony Coelho, D-Calif., who said Thursday that a third of those interviewed rated Gramm unfavorably, a third rated him favorably and the other third were undecided about how they would rate Gramm's performance as a congressman for two terms.

A spokesman for Gramm said he would not comment on the poll results.

"We don't know how it (the poll) was conducted, how the questions were asked," said Gramm spokesman Larry Neal. "The thing sounds a little skewed to me."

Gramm resigned his seat Jan. 5 after having been denied a seat on the House Budget Committee at the beginning of his third term. Democrats disciplined Gramm for his leadership in supporting President Reagan on budget legislation in the last Congress.

In the poll, Democratic challenger Dan Kubiak, a former state representative of Rockdale, rated highest in popularity among Democrats listed in the poll. The source said the poll consisted of 40 questions presented by telephone to voters throughout the 6th district a week ago. A third of those questions dealt directly with Gramm, the source said.

"He (Gramm) doesn't do too bad," said the source about the results. But he would not specifically describe all the results of the questions related to Gramm, and he also said the results showed opportunities for gains by a Democratic challenger.

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee is in the process of determining which candidate to back in the race against Gramm. Coelho visited the district for two days this week to get an assessment of the candidates' chances and determine which would get financial support from the state and national party organizations, which could total as much as $33,000.

The poll surveyed name recognition of Democrats, and listed Kubiak the highest. Kubiak also rated highest for being the most favorable among voters, while folklorist John Henry Faulk, considered another serious challenger, was rated the least favorable.

More than one-fourth of the voters gave Faulk an unfavorable rating, which still appeared to be better than the one-third unfavorable rating given to Gramm.

Kubiak was considered more than twice as favorable as Faulk, the source said.

Among those names presented to the voters besides Faulk and Kubiak were non-candidates state senator Kent Caperton of Bryan, state senator Chet Edwards, state representative Bill Presnall, and Jack Teague, son of former congressman Olin "Tiger" Teague. The elder Teague lost to Gramm in the 1982 Democratic spring primary.

One of the questions asked which of the Democratic challengers to Gramm would be the most qualified to serve as congressman for the 6th district.

Kubiak rated highest with almost a third of the vote, and Faulk rated lowest with less than 5 percent, the source said. Kent Caperton and Chet Edwards rated second and third behind Kubiak.

Texas ranks fifth in Foundation money

DALLAS (AP) — Two Texas foundations rank among the top 25 private foundations in the nation in assets, and Texas ranks fifth nationally in the amount of money held by private foundations, a Dallas newspaper has reported.

The Houston Endowment, largest in the state with $242.6 million in assets, is 15th largest in the nation. The Brown Foundation, with $239.7 million, also ranks among the top 25, the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday

The assets of Houston Endowment Inc. have grown continually since its creation in 1937, according to records at the Foundation Center library in Austin, even though millions of dollars are doled out each year to various causes.

Founded by Houston publishing magnate Jesse H. Jones, the Houston Endowment annually gives more than $15 million to colleges, medical research and the arts. Some of the larger grants were awarded to Southwestern University in Georgetown and Trinity University in San Antonio.

Jones, the son of a Tennessee farmer, founded the South Texas Lumber Co. and by the mid-1950s, his company had built much of Houston's skyline. He established the Houston Chronicle, of which he was publisher.

The Brown Foundation of Houston was established in 1951 by Herman Brown, founder of Brown & Root Inc., and his younger brother George. The foundation, which grew by $40 million in 1980 alone, yearly awards gifts of about $18 million. Most of the gifts go to higher education generally and Rice University in Houston and Southwestern University specifically.

Most foundations are established to keep family fortunes intact and because they offer tax advantages, experts say. Money placed in a foundation is not taxable, nor is the interest it earns.

But another major reason many Texans started foundations is because they wanted to create a perpetual means of helping people, said Dr. Charles Bonjean, vice president of the Hogg Foundation in Austin.

Men accused in poison wine scheme

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal magistrate has appointed attorneys for two men jailed on charges they tried to extort $200,000 from the Gallo Winery by threatening to put poison in the wine.

U.S. Magistrate H. Lingo Platter set bond at $200,000 each Monday for Kennard James Stewart, 35, owner of Tour America, a charter bus company, and Gerald Orville Graham, 46, a bus driver. The two were arrested Sunday by FBI agents.

Both men told Platter they had no money.

Stewart said in court that his two buses had been repossessed and that he has sizable debts, including $11,000 owed to the Internal Revenue Service.

Graham said he works for Stewart's company but has not been called to work for six months.

An FBI affidavit alleged Graham made a Jan. 12 call to the Gallo Winery in Modesto, Calif., instructing the company to pick up a package at the Modesto airport.

Gallo officials received a 1.5 liter bottle of wine contaminated with hydrochloric acid, the affidavit said.

The caller also told company officials a representative should register Friday at a Holiday Inn in Dallas. An FBI agent, posing as a Gallo representative, checked into the hotel and was told to register at another Holiday Inn in Houston.

Price increase shown

(AP) — Grocery prices rose about 3 percent in 1982, according to an Associated Press market-basket survey which showed that the old year ended with a monthly decline.

The AP drew up a random list of food and non-food items and priced them at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket went up at the checklist store in seven cities during December, rising an average of 1.5 percent, and down in six cities, dropping an average of 2.4 percent. Overall, the marketbasket bills decreased an average of three-tenths of 1 percent last month.

—The December decline was the sixth monthly drop of the year. Prices also dropped in February, April, August, September and October.

—A look at prices at the start of 1983 compared with those a year earlier showed that the marketbasket increased at the checklist store in eight cities over the 12-month period and decreased in five cities. The average increase was 6.6 percent and the average decrease was 2.9 percent. Overall, the marketbasket bills were an average of 2.9 percent higher today than they were a year earlier.

—Prices of items surveyed by the AP decreased during 1981 — down almost 6 percent. But the drop was due to a decline in the price of sugar rather than to a broad-based range of decreases; when sugar was removed from the totals, 1981 marketbasket bills were almost unchanged.

—Decreases in meat prices were responsible for much of the December decline in marketbasket bills. Meats represented 21 percent of the items in the AP survey, but accounted for 47.5 percent of the declines. The price of chopped chuck decreased during December at the checklist store in eight cities; frankfurters were down in six cities; and pork chops in five.

Red meat supplies increased during the fourth quarter of 1982, helping keep down prices. Production of pork and beef in the last three months of the year is estimated at 9.4 billion pounds, up from 9.2 billion in the preceding quarter.

—Food prices are not expected to increase much in 1983. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is predicting a rise of between 3 percent and 6 percent — good news for consumers and bad news for farmers. J. Dawson Ahalt, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture, said at the USDA's annual outlook conference that 1983 probably would bring "continuing pressure on crop prices, modest gains in livestock prices and continued low returns in farming."

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed slightly more increases during December than during November.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the overall total.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 5 percent in another.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Journalism program given

Linda Adams, managing editor of the Big Spring Herald, gave the program "What's the News?" during the Thursday meeting of the Mary Jane Club of Coahoma. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Bobby Gee, Val Verde Road.

Mrs. Adams traced her career in journalism from the time she was given a toy printing press as a child, through working on various school publications, working in many different positions at the Abilene Reporter-News, and her present position.

Mrs. Adams told members about the beginnings of the Harte-Hanks newspaper chain, the chain which owns the Herald. The Harte-Hanks partnership was formed by the owners of the Abilene Reporter-News and the San Angelo Standard Times. The Big Spring Herald has been a member since 1929. The chain now includes 59 papers nationally, but each paper remains autonomous.

The Big Spring Herald won 16 awards last year in Associated Press, Harte-Hanks and West Texas Press Association competitions.

Mrs. Adams conducted a question and answer session following her speech.

Co-hostess for the meeting was Mrs. Kirby Brown.

Mrs. Dewayne Clawson read an invitation for the members to join the 1941 Study Club and Alpha Tau Rho sorority for a style show and salad supper slated at 7 p.m. Feb. 7 in the Signal Mountain Room of Coahoma State Bank.

Mrs. Dois Ray won the door prize.

The next meeting will be at the Kopper Kettle on Feb. 10 with Mrs. Larry Nix and Mrs. B.L. Mason as hostesses.

Dr. Donohue

Neck, face pain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please give me some information on what has been diagnosed as carotidynia, which has been bothering me for almost two years. Is this something you have to live with, or can it be cleared up with medicine? Is there surgery for it? — I.H.

Carotidynia is neck and face pain caused by a disturbance of the carotid arteries. You have two of those arteries, one on each side of your neck. Tenderness over those arteries will induce the pain.

It is thought that the events producing the pain are similar to those involved in migraine headaches. In migraine attacks, the brain's blood vessels first go into spasm (close down) then dilate. It is during the period of dilaton (expansion) that the throbbing headache occurs.

So, too, with carotidnia. Those carotid arteries first narrow, then dilate and pulsate. While it is not certain why all this begins happening, the treatment for the condition is the same as that used for migrane headaches. Medicines used are methysergide, ergotamine and, more recently, propranolol (Inderal).

There is no surgery to correct the vessel problem. Additional forms of headaches are discussed in the booklet "How to Tame Headaches." Other readers may order by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is your opinion on the removal of lipomas? I have one on my thigh. One doctor said to leave it alone. The other said to remove it. It doesn't bother me. — L.G.

A lipoma is a benign growth of fatty tissue under the skin. From that standpoint there is no need to remove one. My opinion is that a lipoma should be removed if it is in a place where it can cause pain or interfere with activity, or if a person feels it is unacceptably unsightly. One may be so large as to cause pressure, and in that case it probably should be removed. If I had a lipoma and if it wasn't bothering me, I'd leave it alone.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about it, write to Dr. Donohue for his booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Wives dispute term

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe the advice you gave "Not His Mother," who objected to being called "Mamma" by her husband. You said, "It's a loving title. Cherish it."

Abby, this is 1983! I am the mother of two little boys ages 2 and 5 and all I hear all day long is "Mommy this" and "Mommy that." The last thing I want to hear is my 29-year-old husband calling me "Mommy." I'm too young to have a 29-year-old son.

Whatever happened to "Darling," "Sweetheart," "Honey," and whatever her name is? I'd even settle for "Toots" or "Babe."

CALL ME SANDRA

DEAR SANDRA: My mail has been running 100-to-1 against "Mamma." The consensus: the only name that's worse is "my old lady."

DEAR ABBY: I was appalled that you saw nothing wrong with a man calling his wife "Mamma". Women in our society are continually identified as somebody's wife or somebody's mother rather than as people in their own right.

When a man refers to his wife as "Mamma" instead of Jane or Margaret, etc., he is saying, "She is not a person, she is only the mother of my children."

You should have told that husband to shape up, shut up or ship out!

COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: "Not His Mother" wrote: "My husband calls me 'Mamma' and I hate it."

Your advice, Abby, was "Change your attitude; Mamma is a loving title — one that you should cherish. Accept it as a compliment."

Abby, my dictionary says that mamma means "mother." It also says it is a term used by a child.

It may be too late for "Not His Mother," but I am a newlywed, and if my husband ever calles me "Mamma," I might just send him back to his!

BARBARA IN WALLA WALLA, WASH.

P.S. Yes, Abby, there is a Walla Walla — it's right between Waitsburg and Wallula.

CONFIDENTIAL TO UNEMPLOYED IN DETROIT: Yes, I think you were foolish to have turned down the job because you were "trained for something better."

"He that hath a trade hath an estate; and he that hath a calling hath a place of profit and honor. A plowman on his legs is higher than a gentleman on his knees." (Benjamin Franklin)

* * *

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Lady Steers drop game to Midland Lee, 60-50

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Lady Steers couldn't hold on to a one-point lead they held at the end of the third quarter, and Midland Lee came away with a 60-50 win last night in a District 4-5A battle for first place.

The two teams had been tied with Midland High School for the top spot with records of 5-1 before the contest.

Lee took an 18-15 lead in the first quarter, but the Lady Steers fought back to a 32-all tie at half. By the end of the third quarter, Big Spring held a slim 45-44 advantage.

The Lady Steers started the game in a 2-3 zone, and later changed to a 1-3-1 zone. Coach Annette Fowler said the zone "wasn't that effective, but it slowed down their game some."

Midland Lee worked a press against the Lady Steers the whole game, Fowler said. The Lady Steers weren't bothered a great deal by the pressure defense, she said.

But in the fourth quarter, things started to go sour for the Big Spring team.

"I thought the reffing was real, real, bad toward the end of the game," said Fowler. "It was just a free-for-all. They used the same refs for the JV game, and they were getting tired. They called 15 free throws in the last quarter, and we got frustrated."

The Lady Steers went to a press in the fourth quarter, a coaching gamble which can work for or against the team using the press. In this case, it seemed to hurt the Big Spring team.

"They got a lot of quick baskets off the press," said Fowler. "(Yshun) King scored six in the last quarter. She's their leading scorer and we had held her to nothing in the first half."

"The score wasn't indicative of the game," she said, "It was a real close game that went down to the last few minutes. We didn't play bad — if we'd played real bad, I'd be screaming."

"We shot 50 percent of our free throws the second half," she said, "but we only had four."

The Lady Steers hit 8 of their 15 free chances throughout the game.

Paula Spears came off the Big Spring bench to lead the Lady Steers' efforts with 16 points. "She's my spark plug," said Fowler, "so I kind of expect that from her."

Debra Rubio went out in the middle of the third quarter with a leg injury, and Fowler said she is "doubtful" Rubio will be back in time to take on Permian in the Lady Steer's next game.

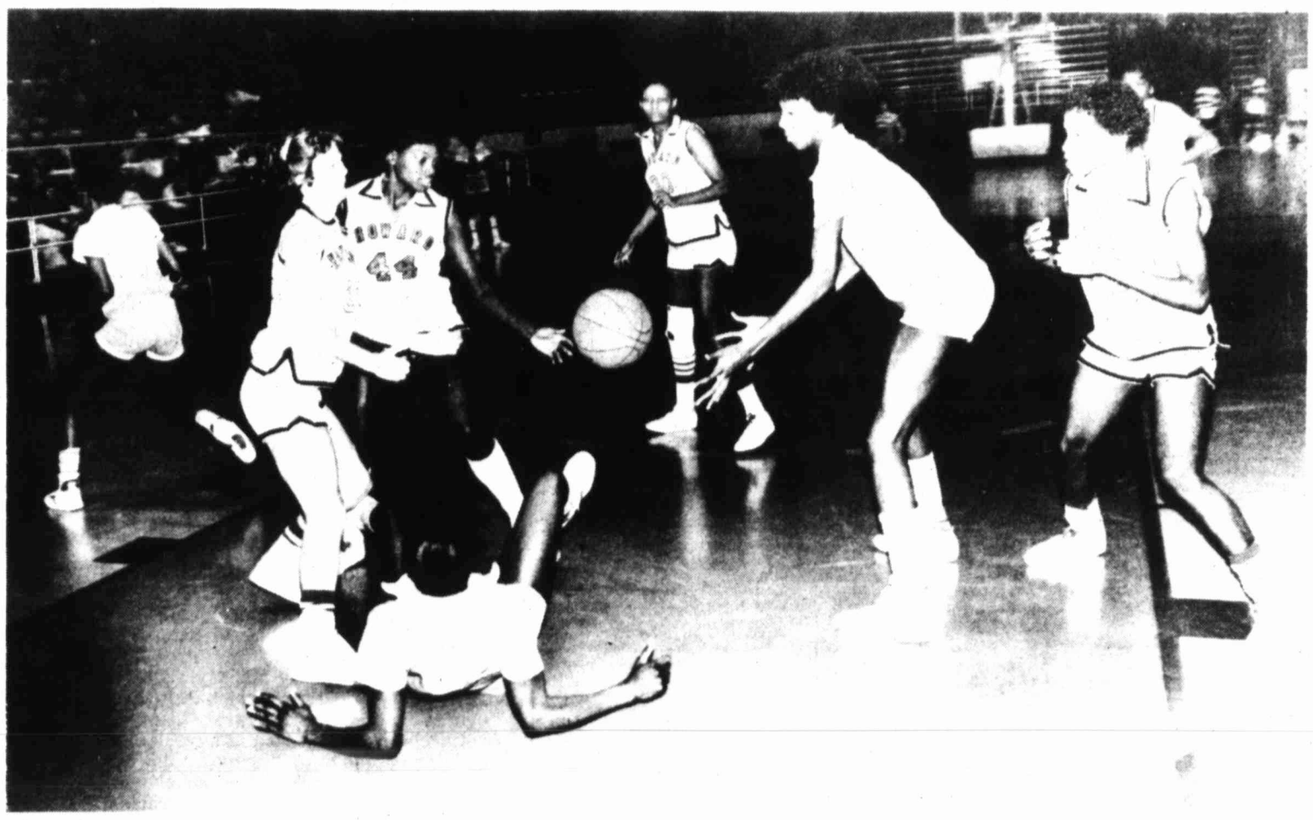

That game will feature a rematch with the team which trounced the Lady Steers 56-34 earlier in the season, and will get underway in Steer Gymnasium Thursday at 8 p.m.

Big Spring lost the Junior Varsity game last night by a 52-50 score.

SOMEBODY TAKE IT — The ball pops loose during last night's action between the Odessa Lady Wranglers and the Howard College Hawk Queens, and Hawk Queens Kari Robinson (32), Angela McGraw (44), Della Brown (30), and Pam Roberson (40), along with two Odessa players, seem unsure what to do with it.

Queens bench beats Odessa

By GREG JAKLEWICZ

Coach Don Stevens rubbed his chin and smiled. "We unveiled our no-post offense tonight," he chuckled. For sure, his Hawk Queens learned there is life after Nell Haskins and Susan Cordell.

With both players plagued by fouls in the second half — the pair eventually fouling out of the contest, the Queens looked to the bench to overcome a one-point halftime lead to toppled the Odessa College Lady Wranglers 75-64 in an important Western Junior College Athletic Conference victory Monday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The boosts the Queens to a 2-2 mark and dropped OC to the same record. Meanwhile in Snyder, Western Texas College tripped Amarillo 77-75 to tighten the WJCAC race. The Queens and WTC have a rematch Feb. 3. The Duster won the first meeting 81-80 in Big Spring.

The Queens were in peril with 13:02 to play when Haskins drew her fourth personal foul. HC had struggled into a six-point advantage and the departure of Haskins — and her 27 points — to the bench caused the natives to stir restlessly in their seats.

In came Cordell who had four fouls herself. She took control immediately, scoring four straight baskets and guiding the Queens into a

The Bruins are back:

UCLA in poll's top spot

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA basketball, the most successful program in college sports history, had been in a relative decline since Coach John Wooden retired in 1975.

But the Bruins are back.

With an 11-1 record under second-year coach Larry Farmer, UCLA jumped from fifth to first in The Associated Press Top Twenty college basketball poll this week. It marks the first time since February of 1979 that the Bruins, who won 10 NCAA championships in a 12-year span during the 1960s and '70s, have been ranked No.1.

UCLA became the fourth team to hold the top spot this season and the rapid move up the rankings came on the heels of losses by last week's top three teams — Memphis State, Virginia and St. John's.

The Bruins received 22 first-place votes and a total of 1,099 points in the weekly balloting by a 57-member national panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In the extremely close balloting, UCLA finished only eight points ahead of runner-up Indiana, fourth last week after being No.1 earlier in the season. The Hoosiers, 12-1, collected 29 first-place votes — seven more than UCLA — but only 1,091 points.

UCLA replaced Memphis State as the No.1 team after the Tigers were upended by Virginia Tech 69-56 last Monday night. Memphis State, 12-1, bounced back with an 80-63 victory over Cincinnati, but still slipped to sixth in this week's poll with 810 points, including one first-place vote.

Rounding out the top five this week are No.3 North Carolina, which is 12-3 and was No.11 last week; No.4 Arkansas, 13-0; and No.5 Nevada-Las Vegas, 13-0.

If the 1983 Bruins resemble the Wooden-guided teams who dominated college basketball for more than a decade, it's no mistake.

Farmer, 31, played under Wooden at UCLA during 1970-73, a period when the Bruins went 89-1. He still calls Wooden simply "Coach."

The school's fourth head basketball coach since Wooden retired, Farmer said his coaching philosophy is solidly grounded in on what he learned under his old coach.

"Our program now is pretty much the same as it was back then," Farmer said. "We do a lot of the same drills. Our basic philosophy is that, while we do try to prepare for each opponent, we believe it's most important that we do what we need to do. We spend a lot of time on what we want to do, not what we expect the other team to do."

Farmer laughed and added, "I would imagine if you went to a Lousville practice, or a BYU practice, they would look about the same as ours. After all, it worked pretty well for Coach."

Louisville is coached by Denny Crum and BYU by Frank Arnold, both of whom served under Wooden at UCLA.

While the Bruins are back in their once-accustomed spot atop the basketball poll, Farmer said he's well aware they won't necessarily stay there.

"I read where people say this team or that team was upset, and I don't think upset is the right word," he said. "At this time of the season, people are still jockeying their teams around; teams are going to lose one here or there, then not lose one for a long time

Outlast Odessa

Hawks win slow motion matchup

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

Ever seen the "Run and Gun" Hawks of Howard College in slow motion? Ah, you missed Monday night's game with Odessa College.

Outmanned and knowing it, Odessa coach Jim Yeaker employed a slow-down strategy against the Hawks in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Absurd as his plans seemed at times, the idea worked to an amazing degree and the No. 10 nationally-ranked Hawks had to earn a patient 60-53 Western Junior College Athletic Conference victory.

The win shoots the Hawks right back into the league race with a 2-2 mark. For the year, Howard stands 15-2 while Odessa falls to 1-5 in conference play.

Howard coach Harold Wilder was worried about this game prior to tip-off. Weighing the two teams' strengths, Wilder knew his squad held the upper hand. "I wrote 'Intensity, Enthusiasm and Patience' on the blackboard," he said later. The Hawks needed all three characteristics to overcome the wily Wranglers.

Not until Leon Issac hit three straight shots from Coahoma did the Hawks shake loose from the pesky Cowpokes. And beginning at 14:41, Yaeker and his staff made their fatal mistake.

Without Nate Givens in the Hawk lineup — the foul-plague super-scorer had a career low four points in the game, the Wranglers chose to go into complete stall. Their game to this point had been slow. But at 14:41, ball-handler Gene Mosby simply stood with the ball on the right side of the court.

The Hawks were ordered back into a zone. And so for three minutes, fans watched 10 players stand in their tracks. "Let them hold it until the end of the game," shouted Hawk assistant Greg Polinsky to his players. Without attacking the Hawks inside without the bulky Givens, the Wranglers inadvertently bought time for the Howard sophomore.

"They really played into our hands there," Wilder said. Taken out of the game at 17:52, Givens was to go just as the Wranglers went into the stalemate. Instead, he re-entered the game at 10:23.

Odessa came out of the stall at 11:31 and Al Penny missed a shot rebounded the Hawks. All this was done with Howard on top 36-31. Downcourt, Dwight Harris scored to give HC a seven-point lead. What the stall had accomplished amount to big zero for Odessa.

From that point, the Hawks pulled into a 10-point lead as James Barnett scored both from the field and foul line. Reggie Childress found Danny Grayson open for an easy hoop and with just 3:05 to play, Howard led 52-39.

The final three minutes, however, stretched an eternity. Turnovers and fouls gave Odessa a chance to cut the score and OC accepted the challenge. Delbert Jones hit a three-point play with two seconds to go and then sank two free throws with no time left to bring Odessa back to a respectable 60-53 loss.

"That was good strategy on Odessa's part," Wilder complemented his opposing coach. "That was the only way they felt they could win the game. And it kept them in the game. I thought our guys showed a lot of character in the second half. We made the big plays when we had to to win."

Wilder got good defense all game long from his charges. Harris spent most of the first half playing shadow-like defense on his man. "They were trying to slow the pace down," Harris said. "Coach wanted us to get ahead and force them back into our game. Once we got ahead, they had to play our way."

With Givens having a terrible night — perhaps making up for a career up superb games, Wilder sent 6-10 freshman Willie James into the game. Although he had just four points — one of those a resounding slam dunk in the second half, he grabbed his share of rebounds and intimidated the Wranglers.

"Big Will keeps improving every day," Wilder smiled. "In practice he's been making some great plays and now he's get them into the game."

"I could play better," James admitted, "but I'm starting to get more time and it's helping my confidence." Even he had to be awake on the slow-down game. "Yeah, you've to be alert and watch everything on the floor."

DALLAS (A) — Three Dallas players were listed as questionable for Saturday's National Conference championship game against the Washington Redskins, team officials said Monday.

Defensive tackle John Dutton has a bruised thigh and did not even suit up for Sunday's game against Green Bay, which Dallas won 37-26.

Back up running back James Jones has a hurt left knee, and fullback Ron Springs has a sprained right knee, team spokesman Doug Todd said.

"Some other players have bumps and bruises, but these are the only three listed as questionable," Todd said.

BASKETBALL

● As Howard College did last night, the Big Spring High Steers will see a version of the slow-down game when Midland Lee visits Steer Gym for an 8 p.m. game.

The stall worked wonders for the 2-17 Rebels Friday night as Lee knocked off Permian 36-33. Meanwhile, the Steers subdued Cooper 54-52 in overtime to even their District 4-AAAAA record at 2-2. The Permian win was Lee's first in league play.

Lee had tried the same strategy against Abilene High but abandoned the idea went the Rebs fell behind in the first quarter.

Jerald Wrightsil enters the game with a 26.8 scoring average in league play. Tony Randle has scored just 10 points in the past two games but still holds a 9.8 average.

Leading Lee are Alvin Henry with a 9.4 average. Sylvester Johnson is scoring 8.0, Derek Westbrook 7.3 and Tryone Thurman 6.3 points. Tod Brown had 11 points in the win over Permian while Thurman went over 20 in a narrow loss to San Angelo.

KEEPING HIS DISTANCE — Rodeo clown Leon Coffee of Austin uses a barrel to keep "Frontier Airlines the bull a safe distance away during Monday's performance at the National Western Rodeo in Denver.

Queens

56-43 lead. The 6-6 post fouled out with 7:27 to go but the Queens had a healthy enough lead to hold Haskins on the pine for safety precautions.

With a little over two minutes to play, Haskins entered the game and quickly hit two free throws to put HC ahead 70-57. She fouled out with a minute to go but the Hawk Queens had survived without her play for 12 minutes in the second half.

"Like I told them in the dressing room after the game, this should do us good," Stevens said, much relieved the Queens had pulled out this game. "We can play without Nell and Susan if we work and move the ball around. I'm really glad it turned out this way. It's something we've needed.

Odessa has perhaps the best individual talent in the conference. With Sharon Cain keeping the Queens honest with 20 points from outside, Tricia Clay scored 19 from inside. Still, the Queens made the necessary second half adjustments to knock off the Lady Wranglers.

The first half was as close as the 31-30 intermission lead of OC indicates. Howard led 5-2 early but Odessa powered into a 14-9 lead at 13:25 with crisp passing to the open girl underneath. Howard battled back to take a 17-16 lead on a rebound basket by Cordell.

Late in the first half, the teams scored six straight times downcourt, swapping leads with each hoop. Cordell broke the string with a miss and Odessa had its one-point halftime advantage.

Haskins scored to open the second half and the Queens were never to trail again. The 5-11 sophomore post went on a scoring binge, hitting 12 points in the first five minutes of the half. A charging call against her and a fourth whistle at 13:02 could have turned things around for the Lady Wranglers.

But in stepped freshman Della Brown and sophomore Andrea Fowler. Although the pair scored just two points, they teamed with a resurgent Pam Roberson to break the game open.

"Della really did a good job," Stevens agreed, praising her defensive play. "Andrea and Pam picked up the slack. Our spot players played pretty well tonight."

But without Cordell and Haskins in the game, the Queens had no height. "I still don't know who our principal rebounder was," Stevens laughed, "but I was happy with the way we handle d the situation."

What got the high-scoring pair in trouble were their shot-blocking attempts. "Yeah, they're trying to block too many shots. They've gotten carried away. They are in there for the offense and putting their hands up on defense," Stevens instructed.

The Queens hit 46 per cent for the game, including 11 of 19 during the second half rally.

Odessa managed just 38 per cent.

Auburn loses to Vanderbilt

The Auburn basketball team was playing Vanderbilt, but thinking "Kentucky," according to Coach Sonny Smith.

"We left our game in Kentucky in the first half," Smith said, referring to Saturday's upset of the Wildcats.

The poor first-half play Monday night put the Tigers into a hole from which they never recovered and the new Top Twenty team lost a 64-62 decision to Vanderbilt as a result of it.

"It was a case of us getting too far down in the first half and overextending ourselves to catch up," said Smith, whose 20th-ranked Tigers trailed 43-28 at intermission.

The Auburn comeback fell short, however, when Vanderbilt's Ted Young sank a 15-footer with 57 seconds left. Auburn actually led, at 58-55 with about seven minutes remaining on a field goal by Odell Mosteller.

The Commodores battled back to tie the contest at 60 on a basket by James Williams and a three-point play by Phil Cox with 3:20 remaining. The teams traded baskets before Young put in his game-winning shot.

Cox led four Commodores in double figures with 17 points. DarrellLockhart, Charles Barkley and Mosteller each had 16 points for Auburn.

"I was scared to death down the final few minutes," said Vanderbilt Coach C.M. Newton, "but I'm glad our players weren't. Our guys didn't panic down the stretch and really executed our delay game to perfection in the last minute."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 7 Virginia tripped Georgia Tech 66-52, No. 11 Kentucky stopped Florida 70-63, No. 14 Houston walloped Texas Tech 98-73 and 15th-ranked Syracuse rolled past Boston College 102-85.

Ricky Stokes scored five points during a 13-0 spurt that erased a six-point, second-half deficit and helped carry Virginia over Georgia Tech. Georgia Tech, riding a 20-point flurry from Mark Price, held a 40-34 lead with 15:12 remaining before the heavily favored Cavaliers made their move.

Othell Wilson sank two free throws and Craig Robinson scored off the baseline before Stokes converted a three-point play on a driving layup with 11:51 remaining to give Virginia the lead for good at 41-40.

Ralph Sampson, who led the Cavaliers with 18 points, drilled in six free throws after that, and Rick Carlisle also added six points as the Cavaliers won handily.

NY Knicks look to big scorers for win

NEW YORK (AP) — With meal ticket Bernard King on the sidelines with an ankle injury, the New York Knicks needed a big scorer.

Bill Cartwright came through for them. So did Truck Robinson. Ditto Paul Westphal.

The three veterans, each of whom has averaged more than 20 points per game at least twice in his career, have rarely reached that total this season. But all three players exceeded their season highs in scoring Monday night to lead New York to a 119-109 National Basketball Association victory over the Chicago Bulls.

In the only other NBA game, Atlanta defeated New Jersey 102-96.

Cartwright led the Knicks with 28 points, one more than his season best, while Robinson had 26 points and scored more than 16 for the first time since he reached his previous high this season of 21 on Nov. 3.

Westphal's 25 points were six more than he has had for the Knicks in any game since they signed him last March 13.

"Truck, Cartwright and I have historically been scorers," Westphal said. "We have been running plays for Bernard this year, but with him injured we had to pick up the slack. Usually, we want to have balanced scoring, but we got in a rut and have been going to King."

King was injured Friday night after leading New York in scoring for 18 straight games. He is averaging 22.6 points per game, while Cartwright, Westphal and Robinson have combined for an average of only 28.9.

"Only getting eight or so shots a game is kind of hard for me to take when I used to get 20 a game," said Robinson, who leads the team in rebounding but is averaging only 7.5 points. "But we have a system that calls for King to shoot. I'm not washed up at 31. I need to be in the flow of the game."

Robinson said he realized that when King recovers, "we'll go back to Bernard King. But my confidence will be better. It'll also help Paul, who also has been an offensive player all his life."

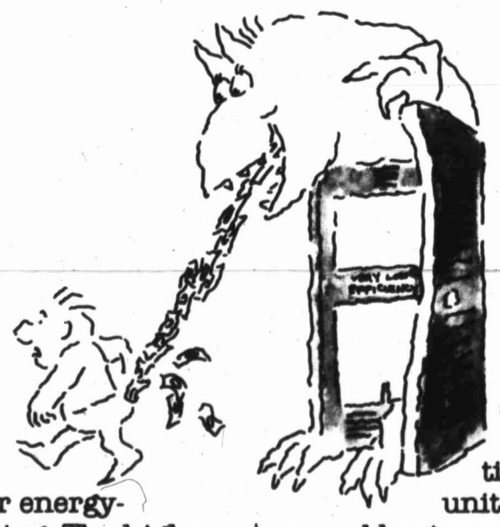

Reggie Theus, who had only six points at halftime, led Chicago with 31, while Dave Corzine had 18 and Orlando Woolridge 17 for the Bulls.

Theus had 10 Chicago points in a row, including two three-point plays, early in the third quarter to reverse an 11-point deficit. But a 9-0 streak by the Knicks gave them an 81-73 lead.

New York then scored the first eight points of the fourth period for a 93-79 edge, the first of three occasions on which the Knicks led by 14.

Is your heating/ cooling system gobbling up too much money?

If electric bills are taking too big a bite out of your budget, consider equipment with a higher energy-efficiency rating. The higher the rating, the less electricity it takes to heat and cool your home. And using less electricity will help hold down your bill.

High-efficiency equipment costs more, but when the equipment qualifies, Texas Electric will give you a bonus check to help pay the difference. So if you're planning to install or replace central air conditioning, a room unit, or a year-round heat pump, ask your dealer about equipment that qualifies for a bonus check from Texas Electric.

And put money back in your pocket.

Card of Thanks 115

The family of Camille K. Patterson would like to thank all of you for your letters of comfort, your thoughts of care, and your words of love during our loss. Happiness comes to all of us in our capacity to feel deeply, to enjoy simple things, to always think freely, to risk life, and to feel needed. Big Spring has always given these things to Mother and she has always been happy here...and this is where she wanted to be. She loved you and you have returned that love three fold. Thank you for being her friend.

Affectionately,
Elena Massey

A tip to the charitable: Ask before you give

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The recession and government budget cutbacks have prompted more appeals from private charities, and a philanthropic expert says people should ask questions before they open their wallets.

Helen O'Rourke, vice president of the Philanthropic Advisory Services of the Council of Better Business Bureaus Inc., says it is particularly important in today's hard times to find out just who you are giving to and what the money will be used for.

"If they (contributors) give that dollar to the wrong charity, then they're hurting," she said. "They're hurting themselves and they're hurting the charities."

Mrs. O'Rourke said there already are signs that people are becoming more selective about giving. She said the Philanthropic Advisory Service, which answers questions about national and international charities, had almost 250,000 requests for information in 1982, compared to about 150,000 in 1981. Individual Better Business Bureaus, which keep tabs on local groups, reported a one-third increase in inquries last year, she said.

"We're also getting a lot of organizations that we never heard of," said Mrs. O'Rourke. Many of them are asking to be included on the advisory service's "Give, But Give Wisely" list which covers the charities about which there are the most inquiries, and indicates whether they meet standards for charitable solicitations established by the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

Mrs. O'Rourke said the current listing includes about 300 charities; the next listing, due in February, will cover 1,000. Copies of the "Give, But Give Wisely" brochure are available from the Philanthropic Advisory Service at 1515 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, Va., 22209. Send $1 via check or money order and a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope for each copy.

Another brochure from the advisory service, "Tips on Charitable Giving," offers advice on making sure your money goes to the place where it will do the most good. It is available from the same address as the "Give, But Give Wisely" listing. There is no charge, but you must send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope.

Developing nations get good deal

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — It's too bad that farmers and businesses whose loans are being foreclosed couldn't be treated like developing countries.

The so-called LDCs, or less developed countries, suffer from illiquidity rather than insolvency, says William Ogden, vice chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank. Walter Wriston backs him up.

According to Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, banks really don't demand that nations repay principal, only interest. And if they can't pay the interest, he suggests, the loans are renegotiated so that they can.

These are not mere words either; the scenario is acted out, as in the cases of Brazil, Argentina, Poland and Romania, as Edward Yardeni, chief economist of Prudential-Bache observes.

Brazilian officials in late December told officials of 126 international banks that it needed more loans in order to meet 1983 interest repayments. And that if it didn't get them it would be insolvent. It got them.

On New Year's Eve Argentina received a $1.1 billion bridge loan from 250 international banks, with the proceeds to be used in settling overdue payments to certain banks. It also asked to banks to refinance other loans.

A couple of days before, the Polish parliament approved a 1983 budget that anticipated $3 billion in credits from non-Communist banks. Earlier, foreign bankers agreed to delay repayment of principal on $3.5 billion of loans.

As the year ended Romania informed 200 Western creditor banks that it didn't plan to pay $1.4 billion of principal due this year but instead wants a meeting to reschedule the loans.

In each instance the debtor called the shots. And "in most instances, the bankers actually must lend more money so that the debtors can repay their interest due," says Yardeni.

More demands may be coming. Yugoslavia has fallen behind in repayments to foreign creditors, and banks already are trying to arrange an economic aid package. Venezuela is behind on payments to a Bank of America syndicate. And many creditors fear that Chile soon will insist on renegotiating its loans.

Ogden states the obvious: "The LDC debt difficulties represent a problem not just for the international banks, but for the entire world economy."

If the creditor nations refuse to accede to the LDCs demands, then the LDCs will go bankrupt, and like a run in a pair of silk hose, that in turn will force lenders into bankruptcy and bring even more nations down.

The web is intricate. As Yardeni observes, Poland's sixth-largest creditor is Brazil, which is the world's largest debtor.

But now some reassurance from Ogden. "Liquidity problems are readily solvable. But they rarely solve themselves if ignored," he said.

To some people, "solvable" may not be the proper term. The problems can be delayed for a while, and if in that time the borrower's economy regains its strength, the problems may possibly be solved.

Braniff liquidation foreseen

FORT WORTH (AP) — Braniff International probably will liquidate nearly all assets not returned to its creditors or used by a venture with another airline, and reorganize as a corporation servicing planes for other carriers, according to Braniff's chairman.

Braniff intends to pay off $46 million in claims and loan another $42 million in cash or cash equivalents to Pacific Southwest Airlines, a California-based airline, chairman Howard Putnam testified Monday.

Braniff has between $33 million and $43 million on hand, and the remainder would be raised by liquidating nearly all that remained of what was once the nation's eighth-largest carrier, he said.

"There are other assets that have not been liquidated yet," Putnam told a federal bankruptcy court here during his second day of testimony.

Braniff ceased operations May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors in bankruptcy court the next day.

Putnam testified during the third day of a trial here on the merits of Braniff's plans to pay back at least part of its $1 billion debt and to lease 30 planes to PSA.

If Braniff is liquidated by the bankruptcy court, creditors who hold no collateral will receive some partial repayment. Analysts have said that could be as little as 10 cents for each dollar.

Putnam declined to say how much he thought the grounded airline was worth. Other Braniff officials said a "liquidation analysis" has been written and should be filed with the bankruptcy court soon.

Putnam, the only witness during Monday's day-long hearing, said Braniff intended to pay $2,000 each to up to 8,000 former employees who still are owed compensation by the airline.

In addition to that $16 million tab, Putnam said Braniff also intended to loan PSA $42 million in cash and cash equivalents such as fuel, pay $10 million in state and federal taxes, and also pay at least part of a $20 million claim against the airline by the International Air Transport Association, which serves as a clearinghouse for airline tickets.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers is expected to hear testimony all week before ruling on Braniff's plans for reorganization.

Texan dies during movie stunt

CALIFORNIA CITY, Calif. — The death of a skydiver during filming of a movie about the original NASA astronauts will not affect the project's completion, a film executive said Saturday.

The skydiver, Joseph Svec, 35, of Houston, died Friday when his parachute failed to open during the last shot for the movie, "The Right Stuff." The remainder of the film based upon Tom Wolfe's book had been finished since October, said Alan Ladd Jr., president of the Ladd Company.

"The movie is basically completed already," Ladd said, adding that he didn't think it would be necessary to re-shoot the scene in which Svec died.

Ladd, speaking by telephone from San Francisco, said the movie will be released by Warner Bros. as scheduled in October. It stars Sam Shepard, Scott Glenn, Dennis Quaid and Barbara Hershey.

Svec's parachute apparently failed during a leap from 10,500 feet above the Mojave Desert near Edwards Air Force Base, about 120 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

The scene called for Svec to tumble out of control down to 4,000 feet and then deploy his parachute as a skydiving partner filmed the scene, according to Bob Phelps, manager of the California City Airport. But at 4,000 feet, neither parachute opened.

Phelps, who also is a skydiving trainer and a parachute rigger, had said Friday that Svec's main and reserve parachutes appeared to be okay when inspected after the tragedy.

The scene was to be a re-enactment of an actual incident in which famed test pilot Chuck Yeager bailed out of a plane with his helmet on fire.

Phelps said a smoke device attached to Svec's helmet had failed, but Svec appeared to be conscious during the fatal fall.

Christmas holidays bring glut of movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD — "Here's a story for you to look into," said Paul Newman, pointing a finger like an autocrat of the city desk.

"Find out why the studios pour so many pictures into the marketplace every Christmas," he said, while scouting locations for a new movie. "It's suicidal. Movie critics have told me that they sometimes have eight films to review in one day.

"How can films get the proper recognition? Some are bound to fall by the wayside. Wouldn't it be better to release them at a time when there isn't such a glut? Ask those marketing geniuses who run the film companies. Ask Norman Levy at Fox. I pleaded with him to release 'The Verdict' in October."

"It's simple," he said. "At least I think it's simple. During the two weeks over Christmas and New Year's, people go to the movies more than at any other time between Labor Day and Memorial Day — more than Easter Week, when kids are out of school, but winter is over and they can find other things to do.

"During that two-week holiday period, it's not unfair to believe that if your picture can place among the top seven grossers, you'll make a lot of money. If you can't reckon with that, then you'd better release your film some other time in the year."

Newman expressed his concern last month, before "The Verdict" had been released. The film was a holiday winner, along with "Tootsie," "The Toy," "48 HRS," "Best Friends," "The Dark Crystal" and "Airplane II."

Would the losers — "Honky Tonk Man," "Six Weeks," "Still of the Night," "Trail of the Pink Panther" — have succeeded at another time?

"Most of those that died would have died any time of the year," says Marvin Antonowsky, marketing president for Columbia Pictures. "You can't hide a bad picture."

He agreed with Levy that a Christmas release was a worthy risk. "Theaters can do more business in those two weeks than they can in four weeks at any other time," he said.

Adds producer Alan Ladd, Jr.: "For the picture that works, Christmas is a great time for release. But for those that don't, it can be disastrous. One of the largest grossing pictures in the last six months was 'First Blood,' which was released during a dull period.
