Reduction of Cotton to Bring Money to State

"that reminds me..."

What an opportunity West Texas are passing up on this R. F. C. money and labor. Hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile lands in West Texas are lying idle seventy percent of the cycle year for lack of water. Yet the possibilities are at hand to meet this need instantly . . . every year . . . every month, day or week if necessary.

When the season happens to naturally furnish the need . . . which are few . . . then West Texas is in clover . . . but in the lean years, years of drouth, the trail of loaded trucks with family bedding and furniture start a trek . . . just anywhere to get out of this drouthy country. It has been so for years.

Not long ago the writer of this column was taken for a trip through a section of this country by an old timer who has seen them come and go. "Why look there; there used to be a house within a half mile of each other all through this section . . . there's the spot where I went to school . . . nothing but the old chimney left standing." There wasn't a house within ten miles of each other to be seen on that trip. All gone . . . drouthy years just simply drove them off.

And yet . . . there were acres and acres of the most fertile land that could be found anywhere. All that need was water at the right time.

During the years 1928, 29 and 30, the Breckenridge Chamber of Commerce had a complete survey made of the possibilities of irrigation as could be furnished by the Clear Fork of the Brazos. This survey was as complete as ever made by the highest salaried engineers. If engineers had been hired to do it, the cost would have been around $200,000 for the survey work alone. But the cost was small because there were members of the Breckenridge Chamber of Commerce who were expert Engineers and they gave their time and knowledge gratis.

This survey developed that near-by 150,000 acres could be irrigated at a nominal expense on that one survey in Shackelford and Stephens counties.

The Leon river of Eastland county . . . the water sheds of the county offer even greater possibilities for irrigation in this and surrounding counties.

With labor and money being furnished by the government . . . in all sections . . . this should be one of the major ideas of the Chamber of Commerce to promote with the government for assistance.

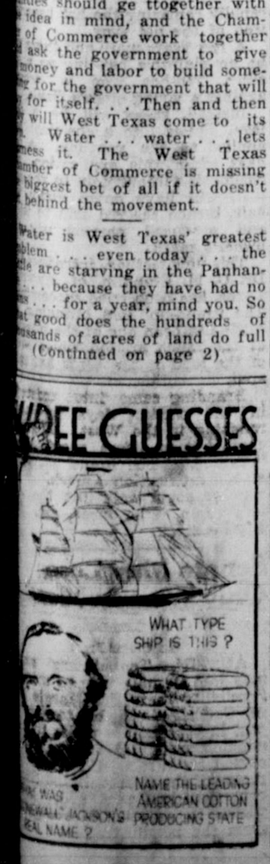

Such an investment by the government will pay the biggest dividends of all. Parks . . . and swimming pools . . . recreation units as supported by tax money are tax free and have no possible chance of revenue. Irrigation is one of the biggest dividend payers of all.

We need parks . . . we need swimming pools . . . we need recreation . . . but now while the government is helping in reconstruction . . . lets let that construction be one of lasting possibilities. All these West Texas counties should ge ttogether with the idea in mind, and the Chamber of Commerce work together to ask the government to give money and labor to build something for the government that will last for itself. . . Then and then only will West Texas come to its own. Water . . . water . . . lets harness it. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is missing the biggest bet of all if it doesn't get behind the movement.

Water is West Texas' greatest problem . . . even today . . . the people are starving in the Panhandle . . . because they have had no water . . . for a year, mind you. So what good does the hundreds of thousands of acres of land do full

Governors Office Is Crowded Daily

By United Press

AUSTIN.—Not since the early days of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's administration has her office been so crowded as in the recent two weeks.

The outer office daily presents a scene almost like those so common in January until former Governor Jim Ferguson told the crowds there were no jobs to be had.

Now there is again some prospect of employment being at the governor's disposal. Wholesale changes in the highway department personnel are not unlikely. The Texas rehabilitation and relief commission is an expanding organization. Its work is calling for increased forces.

The governor's announced policy of leniency toward convicts with good records, particularly liquor law offenders, bring a horde of celemency seekers to the office.

Many members of the legislature are also among the governor's visitors. They are here for follow-up work on bills they put through the legislature. They come to urge the governor to approve them. Some are summoned to answer objections made to their bills.

Socialists and Communists Hide Out in Germany

By United Press

BERLIN, June 23.—Socialists joined Communists in hiding throughout Germany today as Nazi storm troopers and local authorities began rigid enforcement of the cabinet decree outlawing the socialist party, second largest in Germany.

The decree, one of the most sweeping ever issued, deprived all socialists elected of their offices, confiscated the party's property and prohibited socialist newspapers or socialist meetings. The socialists hold 121 seats in the Reichstag and many in state diets all of which are now eliminated.

The decree and the order outlawing the communist party, deprived 30 per cent of the German electorate of direct representation.

Public employes and workers in public plants were forbidden to adhere to the socialist party.

Man Serving Life Term on Charge Of Selling Liquor

By United Press

AUSTIN—News that a man had been sentenced to life imprisonment in Texas for possession of liquor came as a start to most people. Another law provides that on third conviction of a felony a person becomes a habitual offender and can be sentenced for life.

Trade Trippers to Put On Program at Olden Tonight

Eastland trade trippers will go to Olden tonight where they will put on a good will program similar to those they have been putting on at other places in the county during the past two or three weeks for the purpose of advertising the big July 3rd and 4th celebration in Eastland.

The party, expected to be composed of by far the largest number of Eastland people that have gone on any of the good will tours, will leave Eastland from the north side of the courthouse at 7:45 for Olden where the program will be staged in the open air.

Olden is only a short distance from Eastland, in fact it is so close and its interests so closely allied with those of Eastland that the two towns seem almost as one one and the same.

The trade trippers will put on a program next Tuesday night at Staff; Thursday night at Rising Star and Saturday night at Moran. Places already visited are: Flatwood, Pleasant Hill, Alameda, Yellow Mound, Colony, Morton Valley, Okra and Gorman.

Other communities are calling for a program and these requests will be granted if it is at all possible, but just when the programs can be put on is yet to be determined.

NATIONS NOT TO DISPUTE MONEY VALUE

By United Press

LONDON, June 23.— The big nations are not going to engage in a currency struggle, despite the refusal of the United States to consider immediate stabilization, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, president of the world economic conference, announced today.

He made an important statement to the international press not long after an informal conference with Secretary of State Hull at which the foundation for Anglo-American cooperation were believed to have been laid.

MasDonald declared with the greatest emphasis that the conference would not adjourn and that work would proceed at full speed. He indicated his belief that the final success of the conference depends on eventual stabilization.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Roosevelt Administration has decided to concentrate everything on its domestic recovery program irrespective of international problems.

While the United States will not withdraw from the economic conference, the administration feels its chief hope is that other nations can be induced to concentrate in a similar way upon their internal recovery.

The Roosevelt administration is determined nothing shall hinder its drive at home. If the London conference can agree on any measures that will facilitate that program, so much the better.

Canada Plans Labor Session

By United Press

MONTREAL.— An effort to rally all Canadian provinces in a huge inter-provincial conference at Ottawa to study the enactment of uniform legislation limiting the hours of labor in trade and industry, is to be made by the Quebec Government.

The conference, which, it is hoped, will take place in September or October, will have as a basis for its deliberations Quebec's Limitation of Hours and Labor Act, adopted during the last session of the Provincial Legislature.

The Quebec Government already has undertaken the enforcement of this act. After a conference between Department of Labor officials and employers and employes recently, it decreed that the act will first be extended to the building trades in the District of Montreal. The decree limits the number of hours of employment in that industry at 40 a week.

Eventually, it is hoped to extend the law to trade and industry at large, thus assuring a larger number of workers employed.

FOUR ESCAPED BOYS BACK AT GATESVILLE

By United Press

GATESVILLE, Texas, June 23. Four badly frightened and unnerved boys were held in county jail here today, within shouting distance of the big state reformatory from which they fled Wednesday after one of their number had slain the blacksmith foreman to get keys to his automobile.

The boys, two of whom are reported to be 16 years old and therefore immune from prosecution in Texas on murder charges, were brought here today from Meridian after they had been caught.

District Attorney Cornell Robinson filed murder charges against the quartet—Grady Applegate of Wood county, Williard Scott of Oklahoma City, James Anderson of Fort Worth, and Clarence Raines of Centerville—yesterday before they had been captured.

Robertson said he was not certain if he would demand the charges and would determine action after interviewing the boys.

Scott, according to Robinson, has allegedly confessed to wielding the ax with which Will Leonard, 48, blacksmith foreman, was slain. The youth, according to reformatory records, is 17 years old and has a reputation of being incirrigible.

Applegate is also 17 years old and the othe two boys 16, the records disclosed.

The district attorney said feeling against the boys had lessened and no violence was feared. He said the case would be given the grand jury, which convenes the second week in July.

Butler, who lived under an assumed name of Frank Cooley, voluntarily told officers of a crap game in Sardis 33 years ago. Butler was in the game. So was Jim Gillespie, a white man.

Something happened, and, according to the negro, Gillespie grabbed a quarter that belonged to Butler. A gun battle followed and Butler said he killed Gilespie and then fled.

ONE FOURTH OF CROPS WILL BE DESTROYED

Estimated Amount To Be Paid To Farmers Is $4,000,000 To $5,000,000.

By United Press

FT. WORTH, June 23.—County agents from eight surrounding counties at a meeting today heard a noutline of the program for putting the federal cotton acreage reduction measure in effect in this state.

The plan was explained by district agricultural agent G. W. Orms, who conferred yesterday with federal administrator C. A. Cobb, of Dallas.

At least one-fourth of the present cotton acreage of Texas is to be plowed up or covered by the option plan, Orms said. The present acreage has been estimated at around 13,000,000 acres.

The cotton must be inspected by a county committee before and after it is plowed up Orms said. Estimates on the production of the acreage, the basis of the price to be paid, is to be based on the average of the last four or five years, he said. In event of dispute over production, the county committee will refer the matter to federal inspectors. The federal plan, he said, will bring between $4000,000 and $5,000,000 to Texas, the first of which wil start circulating next month.

Counties represented at the meeting were Wise, Montague, Parker, Hood, Palo Pinto, Somervell, Johnson and Tarrant.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 23.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today warned farmers they must restrict production or the government attempt to lift the price structure of agriculture commodities "will have been built on sand."

Discussing the farm relief act, he said it was a framework and would not endure unless the farmers wished it to, through cooperation.

Stevens said the message was in Russian and was unintelligible except for the word airplane and the code signal for "I have traffic for you." It was established the message came from the northern tip of Siberia.

Mattern's flight would have taken him near the vicinity where the radio flash was sent.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SAFE STEPS: The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delighteth in his way. —Psalm 37: 23.

WINE PROPOSAL UP IN THE AIR

California grape growers and the wine makers, speaking through Rep. Lea, introduced a bill to legalize the manufacture and sale of 11 to 12 per cent wine. It is said that the measure had the backing of William Gibbs McAdoo. Well, the house ways and means committee voted 11 to 9 to postpone consideration of the Leo bill until the January regular session. This measure had powerful pro backing.

Major A. V. Dalrymple gave a very flattering endorsement to the proposal. He is a lifelong pro; he is an anti-repealist; he is the federal prohibition administrator. He recommended the enactment of the measure as something "that would increase respect for the 18th amendment;" that it would have permitted public sale of naturally fermented wines which now may be manufactured in homes and the government would have taxed the new measure 20 cents a gallon. As drafted the Lea bill would have forbidden the addition of sugar to increase the alcoholic content.

Texans are reminded that there will be a tremendous vote cast in August on the repeal measure as well as the measure to legalize 3.2 beer. Veteran political prognosticators are forecasting a total ranging all the way from 800,000 to a million.

And the final showdown will take place in the closing month of dog day time. It is a free-for-all campaign and election. It is a non-partisan issue. It is a contest that will smash party lines, so to speak. It will divide families and communities. It concerns the final finish of "the noble experiment."

BANKER SISSON AS AN ADVISER

Francis H. Sisson of New York is the president of the American Bankers association. Members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in annual convention in the metropolis of America were told by President Sisson that "industry has received a green light and can be expected to make steady progress if not interfered with by traffic officers. Buying power of the country has been increased by 14 billion dollars as the result of activity in the security market in the last few months."

Well, on March 4 the traffic officers commanded by Herbert Hoover marched out and a new brigade commanded by Franklin D. Roosevelt marched in. Red light signals have been cast aside and green light signals by night and rainbow signs by day are "the cheerful little earfuls" that are speeding the passing show marchers on their way.

Banker Sisson should join the ranks of the passing show and do his share of the hiking toward the top of Prosperity Hill.

LONDON CONFERENCE OF WHEAT GROWERS

A conference of delegates from the wheat growing countries of the world is in session in the city of London "in an attempt to reconcile their views of what should be done to raise prices."

This republic sent delegates. Australia and Argentina sent delegates. Canada sent delegates.

London dispatches indicate the United States delegates favor limited production and Prime Minister Bennett of Canada has taken kindly to the United States viewpoint. Australian delegates are opposed to restriction of acreage. Delegates representing Argentina are as silent as dumb oysters. There are 38 wheat growing countries. Our own country produces a large surplus of wheat and the Canadian yield is five times greater than the home consumption demand. Now just how will it be possible to control the world acreage of the golden grain which furnishes bread, "the staff of life?"

AWFUL MENACE OF BIRTH CONTROL

Place the face of Dr. Barton C. Hirst of Philadelphia in the national picture. Addressing the American Medical association in session in Milwaukee, the Philadelphia wise man discussed the practice of birth control. He declared that the practice by the "better elements of the nation" may have something to do with "the impotency of congress and bad government in cities and states." Publicity is the thing. It may be a violation of ethics, but the Dr. Hirsts of the world dearly love it. They not only love it, but they get it. In justice to the Quaker state scientists his conclusion should be placed in the record: "If a breeder of livestock defied the laws of eugenics as we do he would be ruined." That man has a mean disposition.

If "pigs is pigs," then "men are men."

There is nothing more detrimental to society than the otlerance of lawlessness (where there is not actually a misplaced tolerance) on the part of a state to uphold the laws. From this point of view petty breaches are as important as big ones, and may be even more so if their continual reputition brirgs authority into general contempt.

Tire Manufacture, Singing Color Fountain Draw Crowds at 'A Century of Progress'

Harvey S. Firestone and son Russell take the first tire from the mold at "A Century of Progress."

The Firestone Singing Color Fountain, one of the greatest marvels of the World's Fair.

During the early weeks of "A Century of Progress" the spectacular Firestone factory and exhibition building with its Singing Color Fountain, has been a magnetic drawing power. Always noted for his advanced factory engineering, Harvey S. Firestone is the only manufacturer with an exhibition of tire making at the fair, making it possible for millions of visitors to see the patented process and world's most efficient tire machinery.

The crowds have flocked to the amazing modernistic building at Lief Erickson drive and 23rd street. Thousands of people have always wanted to see tires manufactured—and particularly have wanted to see how Firestone tires were gum-dipped. They seee at this fair exhibition automatic machines that are almost human—chromium plated machinery that gleams as it rapidly transforms rubber into automobile tires. First in the production line, for instance, is a huge mixing machine—it weighs almost 50 tons—as the rubber is massed loud crackling sounds fill the building as if some giant were amusing himself with chewing gum.

The Firestone building differs widely from the majority in that much of the Firestone space is devoted to gardens where visitors may relax and enjoy the beauty of the spectacle.

In the great hall of the Hall of Science, Firestone has prepared for "A Century of Progress" an educational and scientific exhibit of rubber, which is attracting unusual attention.

In the gardens in front of the building is a pool 100 long by 15 feet wide, in which are installed six beautiful dome-shaped fountains of mist-like spray, with a jet of water in the center rising 20 feet above the surface. This marvelous fountain is known as the "Firestone Singing Color Fountain"—the first one of its kind in the world. It is a marvel of beauty and scientific development. The world's greatest electrical engineers have worked for years on the various principles combined in this construction. Voice and instrumental concerts are given day and night by this Singing Color Fountain.

Submerged beneath each fountain dome is a battery of colored lights that will reflect varied hues and shades upon the misty fountain domes, and these variations of color will be synchronized perfectly with the shadings of the musical notes, and with the rise and fall of the water.

Overlooking the building and gardens is another scientific marvel that is the first construction of its kind. It is in the form of a sign 80 feet long. Its shadow planes are placed one upon the other and the result that you get is an ever changing multi-colored array of gorgeous shadow effects, melting into one another—advancing toward you and then receding.

In the exhibition hall are the dynamic displays showing by the aid of scientific and engineering development and by electrical devices the marvelous progress that has been made in automotive products and their service to the motoring public. There is a remarkable racing display including famous cars and trophies. Other dynamic displays show tire developments, batteries, spark plugs, brake lining, and other products manufactured by the company. There are displays of cotton and rubber in all their stages.

Special to World's Fair Will Leave Sunday, July 2

ABILENE, Texas, June 23.—West Texans who were unable to take advantage of the low excursion rate to Chicago on the special train section sponsored June 11 by G. B. Sandefer, manager of the Simmons university Cowboy band, will have another opportunity to visit the Century of Progress exposition economically. Another West Texas train section will be sponsored by Sandefer.

The section will leave West Texas Sunday morning, July 2, as part of the Sunshine special, crack passenger train of the T. & P. railway. Four days and nights will be spent in Chicago. The top fare will be $36.50 from Abilene, which includes railway fare and lower Pullman berth to and from Chicago and the four nights there.

Decision to sponsor the section was reached by Sandefer as a result of requests received from persons throughout West Texas that he do so to enable them to obtain the low railway fares obtainable only by large parties and the success which attended the June excursion from West Texas to the World's fair.

The first excursion party consisted of 117 West Texans, comprising one section of a special train which carried 473 Texans to the exposition. The facilities and accommodations provided, which consisted of standard Pullman coaches from Fort Worth to Chicago and while there received high praise from all members of the party. Hot shower baths were available on the train. Meals were reasonable in cost and numerous members of the party made the entire trip at a cost of less than $60.

Proportionately low rates will be available at all points along the T. & P. Reservations can not be made through ticket agents, however; all of them should be directed to Howard Barrett, publicity director of the Cowboy band, Abilene, and should be made several days prior to train departure in order that accommodations may be guaranteed.

Penney Sales Show Largest Increase In Three Years

Gross sales of the J. C. Penney company for May 1933 were $14,432,845.34 as against May 1932 sales of $12,646,443.84. This is an increase for the month of $1,787,401.51 or 14.13 per cent—the largest percentage of increase shown by this company since April 1930.

Cumulative gross sales from Jan. 1 to May 31, 1933, inclusive, were $56,402,697.47 against $57,255,271.30 for the same period in 1932, a difference of $852,573.83 or 1.49 per cent.

Commenting on this striking increase in May sales, E. C. Sams, president of the J. C. Penney company, said:

"It is gratifying to note that this increased volume has been shown by stores in all sections of the country. Since retail prices had not yet been advanced by our company during May, but were actually lower on the whole than those existing a year ago, the increased sales reflect a definite and marked increase in customer buying. Reports from our stores indicate that people are actually feeling better and during May were replenishing, in part, depleted wardrobes."

Male Locust Is Only Musical One

By United Press

MACON, Mo.—The musical member of the locust family is the male, and contrary to popular belief, he plays an accordion instead of singing.

Gomer Hughers, who has been studying the locusts, said the females do not carry the musical instruments, which are carried under the male locusts' wings and closely resemble a telescope.

In the distance, the noise that comes from the accordions sounds like the word "Pharoah," as if coming from an invading concert troupe, according to Hughers.

"But whatever it says," he added, "the chickens take to it with eagerness."

In fact, the locusts are good poultry feed, his studies have convinced him. Aside from that, they serve other useful purposes.

For instance, the birds that attacked the cherries finally abandoned them for locusts, and the chances are that the cherry crop will be larger than usual on that account.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

of cattle . . . if vegetation is not there . . . The Panhandle being mountainous . . rocky and impossible to farm in many portions, naturally the only thing that could exist on it are cattle . . . and nature must furnish the water necessary to keep the grass growing. But where the big wheat fields are possible . . . the cotton lands . . . in other words the lands that can be cultivated . . . and there are hundreds of thousands of them in West Texas . . . irrigation is its only permanent protection. It can be done . . . and more economically now than at any other time.

And now for Eastland. The major problem is a Bank . . . the business men should become a determined set . . . and go after it until it is done . . . that there is a growing tendency to bring a bank to Eastland . . . is indicated by the many reactions this columnist has had from some of the leading citizens of Eastland. We cannot help but believe that action will be in order in this instance . . . It simply must be done . . . thats all there is to it.

The Connellee Hotel should be opened from top to bottom . . . with service that any town the size of Eastland is entitled to. Just because the major controlling interests of this intitution is living in another large city is no reason why Eastland should suffer as a consequence when the citizens of Eastland put up their money to help in its building . . . Mr. Jesse H. Jones . . . who is given credit for building cities . . . and philanthropic in his activities should see that the Connellee Hotel . . . which is one of his properties . . . not become a menace to the progress of Eastland . . . it would be out of tune and harmony with the reputation that he has built for himself.

J. . Earnest, one of the popular proprietors of the Cash Grocery & Market, showed us a comparative price of eats as he was advertising in 1930 and prices now. For instance crackers were 18c for a pound box . . . now they are 15c. Peanut butter 16 oz. jar was 27c . . . now you can buy a whole quart for 29c. Pork sausage was 17 1-2c a pound . . . now you can buy it for 5c. Pork roast was 21c a pound . . . now you can get it for 10c. Country butter was 45c . . . now you can buy it for 25c. Sliced bacon was 3 pounds for 89c. Now you ca nget 3 pounds for 57c. Potatoes were 10 pounds for 28c provided you made a two dollar purchase. Now they are 15c . . . which all goes to show that we can live cheaper than ever . . . and get twice as much for our money . . . yet.

And that reminds us particularly that it pays to buy what ever you need right here in Eastland . . . Its a great town . . . and above all, it your town and my town. Let's don't ever forget that.

Football Originated As Punching Game

By United Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—As a means to end, Yale students, back in 1840, evolved a game, called it football, and achieved the desired end, which was an opportunity to take good resounding pokes at each other without being accused of brawling. At least that is what a Yale News reporter's research work uncovered.

In 1840, just as in 1933, there was the same feeling between freshmen and sophomores, and the game was designed to permit some of this pent up emotion to escape.

The ball used was a sawdust-stuffed affair. Freshmen lined up on one side with the ball, and opposite them were the sophomores. There were no uniforms, and a top hat was considered as fair as a cap. The freshmen tried to advance the ball. The sophomores were equally intent on stopping them. The ball usually burst at the first impact, the reporter learned, but this was just as well, as it allowed the classmen to devote their full attention to the important business at hand, which seems to have been a modified sort of mayhem.

The good people of New Haven and New York, it seems, were horrified. A writer for the New York Evening Post, in 1860, wondering what this younger generation was coming to, wrote that the game "made the same impression on the public mind as a bull fight. Boys and young men knocked each other down, and tore off each other's clothing. Eyes were bunged, faces blacked and bloody, and shirts and coats torn to rags."

Rep. Blanton 'Survives 65th Attack' Given Tribute by House Colleagues

Congressman Thos. L. Blanton of Abilene, expected home in the next few days from the historic session of congress, "survived the sixty-fifth consecutive attack" made on him by the Wahington Daily Herald, according to one of his closing speeches as it appears in the Congressional Record, copies of which have been received here.

The Herald for months has been lambasting the Abilene congressman because he opposed certain appropriations and prerogatives which the Herald thought the capital city ought to have. For years a member of the district committee of the house, which rules the District of Columbia, Blanton was called "the mayor of Washington." Now, as a member of the all-powerful appropriations committee, his influence in the district is stronger than ever.

Tributes

In the midst of a speech reviewing the work of the appropriations committee, Blanton was interrupted by Rep. Byrns of Tennesee, democratic majority leader of the house, who paid this tribute to the Texan.

MR. BYRNS. The gentleman has paid a very high compliment to the several members of the Appropriations Committee, all of which every Member of the House knows is deserved. Of course, the gentleman is too modest to speak of his own efforts upon that committee, but I want to say that I served with the gentleman for two years upon that committee, and there is no more vigilant member of the committee in the interests of the people and in the interest of saving money for them than the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Blanton). We all know that the gentleman, in the course of his service, has saved multiplied millions for the people and that he gives close and valuable attention to this legislation. (Applause).

Resuming his speech, Judge Blanton was presently interrupted by Rep. Boylan of New York, with whom he has had several "run-ins" over prohibition and other issues. Rep. Boylan said:

MR. BOYLAN. I would like to say that the people of his district are fortunate in having so able a Representative as you, sir, and I trust that they will keep sending you here for years. (Applause.)

From Cannon

The tributes to the Texan were topped off by a speech from Rep. Cannon of Illinois, who said:

Mr. Speaker, there is one of the many virtues of the gentleman from Texas which I think should be particularly emphasized at this time. That is his absolute fairness. The local press may have taken occasion from time to time to criticise him for advocating reductions in appropriations for the benefit of the District which he considered excessive or extravagant. I hope it will not overlook the fact that he has been just as ready to oppose reductions in appropriations which he considered unjustified. His fairness in this respect and his friendship for the District are shown by an item in this report. When the bill came back from the Senate it carried an amendment reducing the appropriation for the traffic department from $45,000 to $10,000. It was an unreasonable cut, but we were in a position where it would have been accepted but for the staunch objection of the gentleman from Texas, who insisted that in justice to the city of Washington the service could not be adequately maintained if the amendment was agreed to, and on his insistence the original appropriation was restored. The city of Washington and the taxpayers of Washington have no better friend than the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Blanton). He insists on rigid economy in all Government expenditures, but he is just as insistent on adequate provision for all legitimate functions of government.

Let me repeat what I have said many times before both publicly and privately: The gentleman from Texas is, in my opinion, one of the most valuable men who ever sat in the American Congress, and the country as a whole owes a debt of gratitude to his constituents who year after year send him back defending the pub-

Woman Enjoying Her Jungle Ranch

By United Press

NEW YORK.—A woman who gave up her career when her husband's work took him to the interior of South America is the first hostess of a "dude ranch" ever established in the jungles.

This feminine pioneer, Mrs. Richard C. Gill, presides over the Hacienda Rio Negro, a guest ranch, built three years ago on a jungle-enclosed site 5,000 feet above sea level, half way between Guayaquil, chief seaport, and Quito, the capital of Ecuador. Mrs. Gill, who returned to New York with her husband recently on the S. S. Canta Clara of the Grace line, is enthusiastic about her jungle home.

The jungles, she said, are an ideal place in which to live.

Entertaining guests is an easy task, as she sees it. To begin with, there's never any fear of guests becoming bored. During the day there are exciting monkey and jaguar hunts and there is volcano climbing. At night a tropical moon, haunting native music and the magic of jungles relieve the hostess of all worry.

In addition to her duties as hostess, Mrs. Gill finds time for her flowers and pets. In her garden are fern trees 12 feet high, bougainvillea, carnations, exotic jungle flowers, and 28 different varieties of orchids. Mrs. Gill's pets are equally as varied—monkeys, kinkajous, dogs, parrots, macaws, parakeets, a honey bear, and a marmoset.

Woman Wins 25 Year Fight to Get Damages From State

By United Press

AUSTIN.—Miss Annie (Senator) Cooke, 70, who established the first correspondence school in the south only to see it amalgamated with the University of Texas' extension service, held her graying head higher today.

For 25 years or more she paced between House and Senate pleading with the legislature for damages sustained in the progress of education. Her constant vigil won for her the title of "senator."

When Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson signed the claims bill passed by the last legislature, a claim of $2,400 for Senator Cooke was approved.

Today Senator Cooke was determined the money would be spent in furthering the project on which she has spent a life-time—education by correspondence.

Her Cosmopolitan Correspondence College was established in 1898. By the end of the year students from seven southern state had enrolled. The 26th legislature passed a bill creating the Texas State School of Correspondence, but Senator Cooke was not reimbursed for the time and money expended in building up the mail-order educational system.

Miss Cooke was born during the stormy winter of 1863, the daughter of F. J. Cooke who battled at San Jacinto and whose name was prominent in business and religious fields of early Texas times. She claims one law on Texas statute books at her very own—the permanent primary certificate law of Texas.

Her 25 year fight for approval of her claim has accentuate gratitude for final success, governor's signature of the bill was an "act of bigness," approval of all major a tion a "compliment se legislature."

THOUSANDS KILLED OR INJURED

Don't Wait! Let Us Show You How to Banish Fear of Blow-outs

WHEN you travel at 40, 50 and 60—mile after mile—the heat inside your tire becomes terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. Then a blister forms—and grows bigger and bigger—until BANG! A blow-out! You can't steer . . . you can't stop. And then CRASH!

New Tire 3 Times Safer

To prevent such tragedies, Goodrich has built into every new Silvertown Tire the amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. This invention resists terrific heat—inside the tire—where blow-outs really start. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus blisters don't form. Blow-outs are prevented by overcoming their cause.

At gruelling speeds on the world's fastest track, the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown, with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, lasted three times as long as first quality tires that did not have this feature.

Skid-Resisting Tread

Moreover, actual road tests prove that the Goodrich Safety Silvertown has the most skid-resisting tread. Gives your car extra road-grip . . . reduces danger of skidding to a minimum.

Let us show you these remarkable tires—made three times safer from blow-outs at high speeds. They cost no more than other standard makes!

How U. S. Plans to Help Cotton Farmer

The Federal Farm Relief Administration plan for helping southern cotton farmers is to withdraw up to 10,000,000 acres from production through payment of cash benefits of $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 The government will begin a campaign June 26 among cotton growers for leasing, and if enough agree the plan will go into effect. Farmers would get from $7 to $20 an acre for leasing 20 to 30 per cent of acreage on which cotton is growing at from $7 to $20 an acre.

The farmer then would plow under the growing cotton on the land he leased to the government. If he wished he might plant it to new crops for feeding his family and animals. Another plan is offered under which the farmer might buy options on government-held cotton at six cents a pound in amount equal to the cotton he agrees to take out of production. The cash payment for this cooperation would range from $6 to $12 per acre, depending on productivity of the land.

If the farmer elected to buy options on the government cotton, at selling time he would market the remainder of his crop in the usual way. He would receive for his options the difference between their cost and the current cotton price. The theory is that reduced production would send up the price and that the farmer who accepts options will profit. The government's cotton pool was established when the Federal Farm Board was operating.

It is hoped that the plan can be put into effect August 1. Funds are available for starting it and additional money would come from imposition of a processing tax. It is believed the scheme would raise the price of cotton, which would always bring prosperity to the south, and would revive industry and stimulate employment. Also the burden of carry-over cotton would be reduced because of the smaller production. Cotton mill activity at the present time is at the highest level in four years.

Lesson from Mark 7, Through Chapter 16

By BEULAH K. HICKS

Far back in the days of prophe- Isaiah visioned Jesus and said name shall be called Wonder- Counsellor, the Mighty God, Everlasting Father, the Prince Peace."

Following the life of Jesus with k through these few chapters find him all that those wonder- names express and one even re comforting today—friend.

"Ye are my friends, if ye do atsoever I command you," are words of Jesus of whom the lmist sang, "He shall have do- ion also from sea to sea, and m the river unto the ends of earth.

"Blessed be the Lord God, the of Israel, who only doeth derous things."

In this series of lessons Mark phasizes his theme, "Judah is a ng lion," and he depicts the iour as the conqueror of the es of Satan with a brevity that force to all the characters trayed. He adds beauty not to his theme but to the office Christ which is visioned by ah as

To comfort all that mourn: to unto them beauty for ashes; oil of joy for mourning; the ment of praise for the spirit of iness; and to proclaim liberty the captives.

Yet one so great, this Prince of ce, walked here in human and humility and taught us t truths, as he healed the sick, we might be his friends.

The old law such as "Eye for " was discarded and such sim- truths as "Love one another," ide in me," "Love thy neigh- as thyself," were placed in r stead as this great teacher mighty counsellor walked with steadfast tread in the purple ows of cross straight through Golgotha's hill.

Even here His great love for hu- ity expressed itself, "Father, ve them."

His resurrection the third day the tomb has robbed death s terrors for all time for all bear the name of "friend."

"Peace be unto you," are His ds as he "stood in the midst of " and opened their under- ding that they might catch His ous vision, making them to rstand the words:

"I will pray the Father, and he give you another comforter, he may abide with you for- .

"But the comforter, which is the Ghost, whom the Father will in my name, he shall teach all things, and bring all things your remembrance, whatsoever ve said unto you."—John 14: 16.

"So then after the Lord had en unto them, he was received into heaven, and sat on the t hand of God."

Fully we can say with the mist, "Thou hast ascended on , thou hast led captivity cap- ."

What a privilege today in all the s of doubt and sin to have Friend and Comforter who lead us in the paths of peace let us catch the visions of ce through love for the d of Friends.

"Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Al- mighty;
Thy works shall praise thy ame in earth, and sky and sea.
Holy, Holy, Holy, merciful and mighty;
d in three persons, Blessed Trinity."

BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after four years, meets 20-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD and falls in love with her. Barrett is 35, wealthy and has made a name for himself as an archeologist.

Elinor's beautiful mother, LIDA STAFFORD, has kept the girl in the background, wanting attention for herself. Lida is carrying on a flirtation with VANCE CARTER and is constantly scheming to keep in the good graces of MISS ELLA SEXTON, her husband's aunt, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune. Elinor hates this hypocrisy.

Barrett's half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, is terrified for fear her husband will learn of an unfortunate episode in her past. Years before Barrett shielded Marcia when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. The boy is nine years old now. Marcia insists that if her husband learns the truth he will never forgive her.

HAROLD DEXTER, the boy's tutor, threatens blackmail. Barrett, hinting at knowledge of Dexter's past, frightens the man into promising he will not make trouble.

Barrett takes Elinor Stafford for a drive. She seems as attracted toward him as he is toward her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

ELINOR rose quickly and left the room. She returned, flushed and smiling, from the telephone conversation with Barrett Colvin.

"He wanted," she said, "to know if I didn't think it would be better to take our drive tomorrow since the weather forecast is clear. We were going to go Tuesday."

"Did it take seven minutes for him to say that?" her father asked.

Elinor laughed. "Oh, but that wasn't all. He said he hoped I hadn't been chilled driving this afternoon and he said he'd never enjoyed an afternoon more and thanked me for it. And I thanked him and said I'd enjoyed it too—"

"Twenty in June, weren't you, dearest?" Bentwell asked.

"Yes, but why bring that up?" she replied lightly. She was so happy!

They moved to the room Lida called the library, arm in arm. Stafford's heart was cracking to small, sharp slivers that cut at each beat. He didn't want his little girl to grow up, to fall in love and leave him. But, on the other hand, he did want her settled and away from her mother's bold lies and frail deceptions, from his drinking himself to forgetfulness.

In the big room Elinor turned to put her arms around his neck. "You mustn't feel sorry!" she entreated. "You're first! You'll always be first with me, darling!"

He held her close, laid his cheek against her soft hair. And when she stood away she saw that his eyes were wet. "I'm so foolish!" she admitted. "And I've made you so! Aren't we being rather dramatic over nothing? I don't know what's the matter with me!"

Her father knew what was the matter and the recurring possibility of Colvin's hurting her brought color to his cheeks. "Thank God," he thought, "Lida will be out of the way for a while!" If only they could have everything settled before Lida's return—assuming, of course, that Colvin really cared for Elinor as she seemed to care for him. Then it would be all right. If the affair were still in the air when Lida returned she could—and would—smash it if she wished. Stafford knew her—her strength, her lack of principle which made her the most formidable of foes, her willingness to stoop to and use any weapon.

Lida heard voices—Elinor's and some man's. She stopped to listen frankly.

MARCIA had telephoned, Barrett learned when he arrived home. He called her for the second time that day—a day that had been stretched to unnatural length by worry and ecstasy. That the unpleasant interview with Dexter had occurred only that morning he could hardly believe.

"Is that you, Marcia?" he said into the telephone.

"Yes, dear. Thank you so much for calling. I wanted you to know that I've been so relieved and happy since I heard from you at noon."

"I'm glad of that," he answered but he could not feel the situation as he had before; the menace of it, the hopelessness of it. He could feel only the understanding and loveliness and gentleness of the girl who had ridden beside him in the gray of the early evening and the truth that had come to him so suddenly that he was still dizzy from its strong impact.

"Dear," he heard next, "can you run up to have dinner with us? We had an engagement but we begged off."

For the first time in his life Barrett lied expertly. He couldn't talk to Marcia this evening. He had to be alone to think!

He said goodby to her and then telephoned Elinor.

"Are you dining in, sir?" Higgins questioned a short while later.

"Yes, Higgins," Barrett answered happily. Before he left the room he wrote, "Flowers, candy, pink box" on a day-by-day pad. That it was an absurd and unnecessary reminder he realized, feeling slightly a fool. Nevertheless it was a satisfaction to write it. He stood looking down at the words. She didn't think he seemed old. He had said, "I usually feel frightfully decrepit when I'm with anyone your age," and she had answered with a bluntness that had elated him, "That's the silliest thing I've ever heard!"

HE had said, "Really do you mean it?" and she had replied, "I certainly do!" They had talked of it for some time; he confessing his hatred of old fools who crashed in on the buds and she was saying that was "quite different." He had admitted his 35 years and she her 20.

And later, over the telephone, she had said she had enjoyed the afternoon. Her voice had been not quite steady and he had wanted to say, "You darling! You darling!" Instead he had only said, "Be sure to dress warmly enough tomorrow."

Barrett looked at the clock; tossed his cigaret into the fire. At this time tomorrow night he would be with her in that pleasant, small inn which Marcia had said was unchanged. He'd telephone ahead and order something special. And wear the London tweeds he liked about as well as anything he had. He decided suddenly that he had been neglecting his wardrobe for a long while. Have to remedy that. See his tailor tomorrow.

Tomorrow seemed a long time away. He studied the laggard clock.

What an adventure coming home would be with her in the house! What a magnet she would be! He saw himself slipping from his coat, hurrying into the drawing room, stooping to take her in his arms. Was it fair to her to dream this way, not knowing how she felt? He must hold himself in a bit. But he had never wanted anything very much without getting it, he reassured himself. He knew he had force, and if he thought he could make her as happy as she should be he would use that force. Then—together for the rest of their lives! His lean cheeks warmed, thinking thus.

If she could ever say, "I love you!" he would ask nothing more!

LIDA, in a way, had enjoyed Miami. Vance Carter had been there, as devoted as usual, and she had been amused. True, his infatuation had a few times made him difficult for even her to handle. She had had to make promises she had never intended to voice. These bothered her a trifle, although time, Lida had found, often untangled the webs that follow the first deceit. Still she did wish Carter hadn't made her say she would divorce Bentwell to marry him as soon as Miss Ella died.

She wrote Miss Ella dutifully, telling her that the cough which had forced her to leave "dear Bent and Elinor" was almost gone. She knew Miss Ella approved a mother who remembered her obligations.

At the end of three weeks Lida got reservations for the trip north. Carra and Hal were going on to Havana. They had spoken of it frequently and a bit too pointedly, with eyes fixed above Lida's head.

Lida told Carter that it was tragic how friends disappointed one. She had really liked Carra until, living in the same house with her, she had found Carra disapproving of "nothing at all," stiffening with each day and becoming more and more combative.

Carra had said, eyes narrowing, "Lida, if I were you I wouldn't play much more with Vance Carter. It's rather cruel, don't you think?"

And Lida's innocent, "But Carra—I can't think what you mean!" had done nothing but make the other woman look at her with a disconcerting steadiness, laugh unpleasantly and say bluntly, "Don't be a fool! You know damned well what I mean!"

The visit had, as this continued, been rather disappointing.

Lida loathed trains and the people one saw upon them. She arrived in New York in a smoldering mood to find that the motor for which she had wired was not waiting for her. Fuming within, she gave a taxicab chauffeur the Park Avenue address and planned the stinging reprimand she would voice to Bentwell and Elinor. They should have seen that she was met!

She let herself into the apartment with her key, taken from a bag Carra had given her—forced by Lida's envious, loudly voiced admiration. Later Carra had said to Hal, "She's hopeless—completely without pride and a schemer. I can't see how I was fooled for so long!"

Inside the apartment Lida paused a moment in the foyer. Then she heard voices beyond. Elinor's voice and some man's. She couldn't place the man but she knew it was not Bobby Telfair who had long been devoted to Elinor.

Deliberately evesdropping, Lida stepped to the door to hear what they were saying.

Convicts Rival Famous Fictionists

By United Press

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif. Prison authorities claim the greatest prevaricators live in prison. San Quentin guards cite the following tales as examples:

"San Quentin has held a score of men whose imaginative talents, if turned to fiction, would have netted them fortunes instead of landing them in prison," said Warden Hoolahan.

Latest rival of Baron Munchausen, San Quentin guards believe, is Manuel Duke Ledbetter, artist and sculptor, serving a life term. He pointed proudly to the fith horse in a picture of the huge memorial being carved on the sides of Stone Mountain, in Georgia.

"I wielded the chisel on that horse," Ledbetter solemnly averred.

He acquired much renown among the prisoner's intelligensia until Clinton Duffy, the warden's secretary, returned from a trip to Georgia with a photograph he took of the memorial. Only the first two horses are completed, the rest are merely outlined.

Genevieve Paddleford, oft-married adventuress, who has served two terms at San Quentin, aroused the envy of fellow prisoners with stories of her rich and noble relatives in Europe and the banks filled with money awaiting her release. Paroled recently, she was almost immediately returned to prison when her checks began to come back marked "no funds."

Montreal Ready For Italian Air Fleet

By United Press

MONTREAL—Preparations for the anchoring of General Italo Balbo's Italian air armada on the St. Lawrence river, near Longueuil, during its stop here en route to the Chicago World's fair, are rapidly nearing competion.

The work of preparing the seaplane base for the arrival of the planes is being carried out under the supervision of two non-commissioned officers of the Italian air force, sent here by the Italian government. The 24 cork buoys which will be used in anchoring the planes are now being manufactured.

The air armada is expected to reach here in the middle of June.

Air Speed Records May Topple At Chicago Races

CHICAGO.—A world airplane speed record over a one-mile course is expected to be set here during the American Air Races July 1-4 when the Laird Super Solution, one of the fastest airplanes in the world, will be flown by E. M. "Matty" Laird, its designer and builder.

The plane, which is owned by Arthur Knapp, of Battle Creek, Mich., is capable of more than 300 miles an hour. The present world landplane record is 294 miles an hour and was set last year.

Three years ago in Chicago, the Super Solution won the first Thompson Trophy race at a speed of 201.9 miles an hour with an engine of 450 horsepower. It was piloted by the late Charles "Speed" Holman.

The following year the ship placed third in the Thompson race at Cleveland, despite the fact that the pilot, the late Dale "Red" Jackson of endurance record fame, flew through a tree, tearing the fabric from the lower left wing panel.

Last September the ship was purchased by Mr. Knapp, the present owner, a prominent automotive parts manufacturer. Since then more than 1,500 hours of labor have been expended on the plane in an effort to add 100 miles an hour to its speed.

One hundred and fifty horsepower has been added to the Wright whirlwind navy type engine by supercharging, giving it a claimed horsepower of 600; the ship has been completely streamlined, even to the bolts that hold the cowling, while the wings and landing gear have been redesigned to give it the utmost in speed and lift.

A controllable pitch propeller manually operated from the pilot's seat while the plane is in flight, has been added and this alone has increased the speed by more than 17 miles an hour. The cockpit has been enclosed and frontal area considerably reduced to increase speed and lessen air resistance. The ship is painted white with its department of commerce and racing numbers in red.

"I am confident the plane will do better than 300 miles an hour," declared Mr. Laird, who has been building famous racing planes in Chicago since 1914. "I plan to make an attempt to set a new world speed record over a one-mile course each of the four days of the American Air Races. Four trips over the new straight-away course will be made each day—two down wind and two against the wind and the average time of the four dashes taken to figure the speed. In case I break the existing record the first day, I will attempt to better my own mark each succeeding day."

More than 300 airplanes, piloted by some of the worlds' most famous fliers, will be seen in the elaborate program of races, aerial maneuvers and stunting exhibitions at the American Air Races here next month.

Lewis "Lon" Yancey, who flew from New York to Rome with Roger Q. Williams in 1929, will attempt to set a new altitude record in his Champion autogiro. The existing 'giro altitude record of 21,500 feet was set by Yancey last fall.

Another trans-oceanic flier who will be in Chicago for the four-day program next month is Clyde Pangborn, who in company with Hugh Herndon Jr., made the first non-stop flight across the Pacific in 1931.

A famous Finnish flier, Captain V. Bremer, making a solo round-the-world flight from Helsingfors, Finland, will reach Chicago from San Francisco a few days before the American Air Races open and likewise will take part in the Chicago aviation spectacle.

Among the noted racing pilots who have definitely agreed to be here are John Livingston, who has won more air races than any other pilot; Lee Gehlbach, noted cross-country racer; Roy Liggett, designer and builder of famous racing planes; Arthur J. Davis, who has won more than 250 races at air meets; Bettit Lund, world's premier stunt flier; Dick Granere, former member of the British Royal Flying corps; Frank Faulkner, one of the few pilots who stunts an autogir, and George Burrell, who puts a Ford tri-motor plane through stunts ordinarily attempted only with small ships.

Numerous novelty events also have been given places on the program. Early-day "pusher" planes will be demonstrated. Delayed parachute drops from 10,000 feet will be featured. Dead stick landings, balloon bursting contests, precision flying and all manner of stunt flying will be a part of the that is open to other than a comparatively few of the nation's elaborate program which is under direction of Major R. W. Schroeder, world-famous pilot and aeronautical engineer.

The American Air Races is the only major aviation event this year pilots. Ninety per cent of the racing pilots and airplanes in the United States have been barred from other meets owing to sizes of their engines or types of their ships. Twenty thousand dollars in prize money has been placed in escrow for the protection of pilots tainkg part in the races here in July.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

ALL through the summer months, while the days are long, many home-makers are confronted with the problem of keeping meals hot and palatable for the members of the family who like to make every minute of daylight count for gardening or sports. The dinner hour becomes quite indefinite and foods which need not be served immediately after cooking must be chosen.

You will find that casserole-cooked foods and oven dishes of various sorts as well as chilled and molded foods are especially adaptable for meals that must wait. Hot soups can be kept in good condition in the double-boiler, while a cold jellied soup can be kept perfectly and without inconvenience in the ice box. Molded salads and desserts, in fact any dishes prepared in the refrigerator, are easy to serve at a minute's notice and keep almost indefinitely.

Certain vegetables can be baked and cooked in various ways without danger of losing their flavor on long standing. Scalloped Irish potatoes, sugared or twice baked sweet potatoes, baked spinach, buttered beets and carrots are some vegetable dishes that do not suffer if kept hot.

In order to preserve all the moisture and heat without overcooking and drying, bake all casserole combinations in a slow oven and then keep them hot in a larger pan of hot water. Part of the dish may be served whenever wanted and the remainder returned to the hot water bath without harm.

Casserole of fresh salmon and potatoes makes a seasonable two-in-one main dish.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Oranges, cereal, cream, toasted tomato and bacon sandwiches, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Ham and egg timbales with creamed peas and browned carrots, strawberry salad, rye bread, milk, tea.

DINNER: Casserole of salmon and potatoes, beet greens, celery and apple salad, sugared cherries, milk, coffee.

Casserole of Salmon

Two pounds fresh salmon, 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups diced celery, 2 cups potato marbles, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup boiling water.

Choose a middle cut of salmon and remove the skin. Squeeze lemon juice over fish. Season with salt and pepper and put in a buttered casserole. Surround with celery and potatoes. Dot vegetables with bits of butter and sprinkle potatoes with parsley. Add water and cover casserole. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven or until potatoes are tender and the fish leaves the bones. Set casserole in a pan of hot water in a slow oven until wanted to serve.
