Mission To Mideast Begins Wednesday

Pact Signing Termed 'Most Likely'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a drive to wrap up a Mideast peace treaty, will leave for Egypt Wednesday night, then proceed to Israel later this week to try and clear away remaining roadblocks to a settlement.

Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in Cairo that Carter's trip "will most likely lead to a signing."

And Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin told members of the U.S. Congress in Washington, "now there is a ray of hope." Noting that Israel has accepted U.S. proposals for wrapping up a treaty, he added:

"Let us hope Egypt will join the effort. Then if this happens, in a short period of time, we may have the ceremony of signing."

Khalil told The Associated Press in a telephone interview: "When an American president puts down all his stakes, it is natural that it has to have a positive result."

To Visit Cairo, Jerusalem

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Monday that Carter will arrive in Cairo on Thursday afternoon for talks with President Anwar Sadat and then go on to Jerusalem Saturday night for talks with Begin.

Powell also announced that presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Ambassador Alfred Atherton would fly Monday night to Egypt to "preview (with Sadat) the discussions" Carter will hold with the Egyptian leader. The White House spokesman said regional security also would be discussed.

At this point, Powell said, there are no plans for a three-way meeting among the leaders. However, a U.S. official who asked not to be named said later such a session was not being ruled out.

This same official said Carter likely would be away from Washington for at least a week.

Asked if a treaty signing was envisioned during the trip, the official said simply, "We have said on several occasions we would hope to bring this to an early conclusion."

Mrs. Carter Accompanying

Carter's wife, Rosalynn, will accompany him.

Before flying to New York Monday night, Begin said he was leaving with the conviction that "we made serious progress in promoting peace."

He said he was hopeful that Egypt and Israel soon would sign a peace treaty that would be the first step toward a general settlement in the Middle East.

Begin planned to stay in New York until Wednesday. He will then fly home for what he said would be Carter's "memorable visit."

Appearing earlier before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the Israeli leader pledged that Israel would never attack Syria or Jordan, but would defend itself if attacked.

The committe chairman, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., said Begin also promised not to attack any Arab country. Begin was responding to a question of what Egypt might be expected to do if Israel were to attack Syria or Jordan after signing a peace treaty with Egypt.

Past Optimism Recalled

While expressing optimism about treaty prospects, Begin also noted that a settlement seemed at hand several times in the past but was not achieved.

"The world was happy and then came the disappointment," Begin said.

He stressed that Israel's concern has been that it must be able to defend itself against other Arab countries if the peace does not last.

The White House announcement marked another upturn in peace prospects after a long siege of gloom.

Egypt and Israel have been stalemated since November over the future of the Palestinian Arabs and other controversial issues surrounding the treaty.

After a series of meetings between Carter and Begin beginning last Thursday, the U.S. mediation effort appeared to be headed toward defeat.

But late Sunday, after their fourth session, there was a sudden reversal.

Cabinet Okays Proposals

Carter gave Begin new U.S. proposals for breaking the deadlock. They were submitted to the Israeli cabinet, which voted Monday to accept them.

Begin then reported the action to Carter at a 10-minute White House meeting. Powell's announcement of the presidential trip followed.

The recommendations were not disclosed publicly.

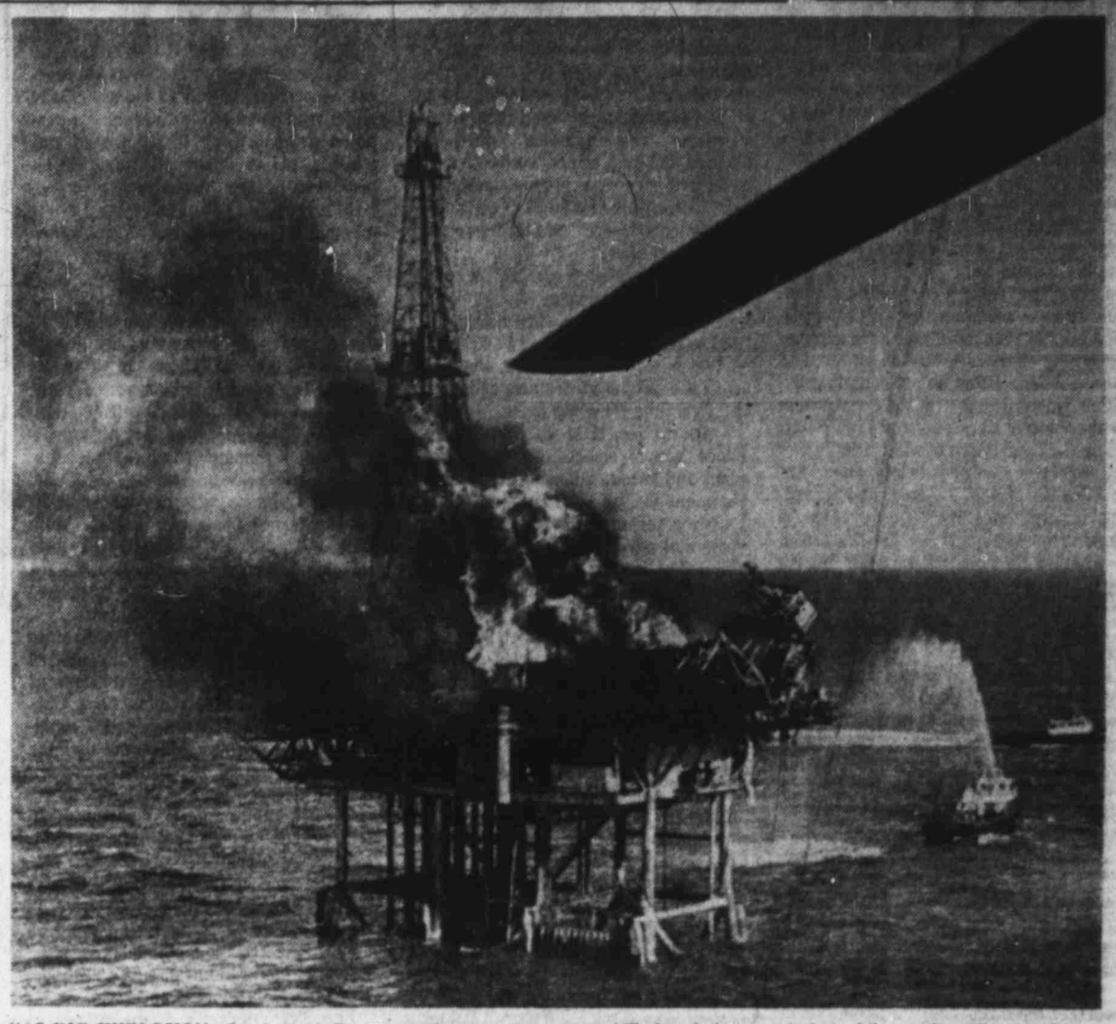

The Israeli cabinet vote of 9-3 with four abstentions was a sign of considerable opposition within the cabinet, indicating Israel made some hard concessions in accepting the proposals.

The principal sticking point has been Sadat's demand, backed by the Carter administration, that a timetable be included in the treaty package for establishing

PROVENZANO TRIAL DELAYED

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge disqualified himself Monday from hearing a trial on racketeering charges against former Teamster local leader Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano and four others. U.S. District Judge Frederick B. Lacey said one of the defendants was indicted while he was U.S. Attorney for New Jersey and he was stepping down to remove any hint of bias.

Jupiter Fly-By: 'Spectacular!'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 1 soared dramatically near Jupiter Monday, dazzling scientists with rich detail of the planet and its exotic moons before sailing on into space for a lonely journey to Saturn.

"Spectacular" was the word scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory used over and over as Voyager came within 172,475 miles of Jupiter and its television eyes peered closely at the swirls in the dense cloud cover around the solar system's largest planet.

"It's been an overwhelmingly successful encounter," said project scientist Edward Stone. "We have accomplished everything we intended to accomplish and we have observed things we didn't expect to see."

THE NEW PICTURES raised more questions about the famous Great Red Spot, 13,000 miles wide, which has been compared to a gigantic hurricane.

Bradford Smith, head of the Voyager photography team, said richer details show the center of the spot to be strangely quiet, although it is surrounded by violently rotating clouds. "Perhaps the motion slows or stops near the center," he said.

When the cameras turned to Io, one of Jupiter's 13 moons, they revealed for the first time details that look like rugged highlands, complex patterns of channels and flat, sprawling plains.

Planetary geologist Larry Soderlbom said Io's "very complicated and beautiful details" hint at complex, erosion-like processes and perhaps a history of volcanoes.

Pictures of Jupiter from Voyager in black and white on television monitors at JPL revealed clouds curled like waves hitting a rocky coast as well as delicate swirls and streamers.

Hanoi Disputes China Pullout

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — China said Monday it was withdrawing its invasion army from Vietnam after a bloody 16-day war of "punishment," but Hanoi claimed the fighting was escalating and ordered a general mobilization "for national salvation."

Peking's official news agency said Chinese troops began pulling out Monday after achieving their goal of "dealing devastating blows to Vietnamese armed forces." It warned Vietnam against new border provocations.

Several hours later, the newspaper of the Vietnamese Communist Party said the Chinese announcement "is contrary to the real situation in the battlefields."

China "is stepping up its aggression, and its troops are frantically destroying Vietnamese villages," the paper Nhan Dan said in a commentary reported by the Vietnamese News Agency.

It said Vietnamese President Ton Duc Thang signed a general mobilization decree Monday instructing all miltary-age citizens to join the armed forces. "All necessary manpower, material and financial resources shall be mobilized to meet the needs of war for national salvation," it said.

The Japanese Embassy in Hanoi said Vietnamese officials had instructed it to prepare air-raid shelters for its personnel, Japan's Kyodo news service reported.

In its first casualty report, China claimed Monday its forces killed or captured 16,000 Vietnamese soldiers in three home-guard and five regular army divisions. The figures were given by China's ambassador to Thailand, Chang Weilie (Chang Wei-lie), during a meeting Monday with Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chamanan, Thai officials said.

They said Chang made no mention of Chinese casualties and did not give the time period in which the Vietnamese suffered the losses.

Vitnamese Claim Kills

Vietnam has given no casualty figures for its units but has issued frequent reports of losses it said were inflicted on the invaders. In a communique issued in Hanoi Sunday, Vietnam claimed the Chinese have suffered nearly 42,000 killed and wounded.

Western analysts consider that figure inflated, but independent observers have been barred from the battle areas and there was no way to confirm either the Vietnamese or Chinese claims.

A Hanoi battle report Monday claimed the Vietnamese had killed hundreds of Chinese trying to take the provincial capital of Lang Son, 80 miles north of Hanoi, in a three-pronged attack Sunday. But intelligence sources in Bangkok and elsewhere said the Vietnamese had lost Lang Son days earlier.

Intelligence sources in Bangkok said Monday they had no evidence of a Chinese pullout or signs the Chinese were preparing new attacks. But the reports by these sources have lagged behind events throughout the largely secret war.

Some observers said the Chinese troops might be following a "scorched-earth" policy in withdrawing from Vietnam, and this could be the 'stepped-up aggression" the Vietnamese reported. Others noted it was likely the fighting would not end abruptly but would wind down to small-scale border skirmishing.

Tensions Remain

Even if a Chinese withdrawal takes place, it will not end the tensions in Southeast Asia. Vietnam's rebel proteges Monday scored a new victory in Cambodia against Chinese-backed guerrillas, and the fighting there moved closer to the Thailand border.

In announcing the pullout, China's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency called on "peace-loving" nations to "urge the Vietnamese authorities to stop promptly their aggression against Kampuchea

Jury Selection Commences In Murder Trial

CROSBYTON — After almost four hours of questioning, attorneys Monday afternoon selected a Mount Blanco community housewife as the first juror in the capital murder trial of John Thomas Carter of Lubbock.

Mrs. Anthony Ladda, whose husband farms in the small community northeast of Crosbyton, was sequestered in a Crosbyton motel where she will stay throughout the trial.

The jury panel, consisting of 40 prospective jurors, spent Monday morning listening to preliminary briefings. The panel then was divided into blocks of eight persons, and attorneys began individually questioning the first block at 1:15 p.m.

Of the four persons questioned Monday, two women and a man were dismissed.

Attorneys only were able to interview four prospects before ending for the day, but the other four persons and today's block of eight persons will be in court this morning.

Carter, 34, is accused with Paula Bruce, 57, of Lorenzo, of the shooting deaths of Valton Vernoid Gandy, 73, and his wife Cora, 68. The couple was found dead Oct. 2, 1978 outside their home two miles north of Lorenzo.

Carter was indicted on two counts of murder and will be tried first for the death of Gandy.

Pair Perishes, Six Missing In Rig Blast

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — Fire erupted Monday on a Gulf of Mexico drilling rig 45 miles off the Louisiana coast, killing at least two crewmen and slightly injuring four others. Six men were reported missing.

"The message traffic indicates they might not have had time to don lifepreservers, but that's not confirmed," Coast Guard spokesman Bob Baeten said of the missing crewmen.

"We've got 27 people accounted for, two bodies recovered and six still missing," said Baeten. "The rig was totally engulfed in flames. It is a jackup rig, a portable-type rig.

The Coast Guard said the two bodies were recovered by fishing boats soon after the blaze broke out. No names were released.

The fire occurred on the Penrod 38 rig leased to Placid Oil Co. to drill a natural gas well in South Marsh Island block 281. Company spokesman James King said no pollution occurred and the flames did not spread to other producing wells on the same platform.

Cause of the blaze had not been determined.

Well-fire specialist Red Adair of Houston was en route to the scene to direct the firefighting. King said no decisions

Desegregation Snag Avoided

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK'S court-ordered desegregation plan, intended to enhance education for eastside students, almost had the opposite effect by denying them full-time transfers to Lubbock High next year to take special "magnet" courses.

But school officials believe they now have solved the problem for students from the Dunbar-Struggs High School area.

Unlike other students in the city, Dunbar-Struggs pupils won't get to transfer to Lubbock High on a full-day basis, because, officials say, that might violate the school system's court-ordered desegregation plan.

However, Dunbar-Struggs youngsters who want to take Lubbock High's unique offerings will be able to commute to Lubbock High on a part-day basis, Superintendent Ed Irons said Monday.

The school district will provide transportation for such students, he added.

"In no way are we trying to exclude Dunbar-Struggs from participation" in the Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program (LEAP) which will be initiated this fall at downtown Lubbock High, Irons said.

"It's just that our desegregation order makes things a bit complicated."

The major complication, Irons explained, is that the school district is bound by its desegregation order to beef up the enrollment of eastside Dunbar-Struggs High.

According to Irons, school officials fear they would be violating that provision if they were to allow Dunbar-Struggs students to transfer wholesale to Lubbock High.

Thus, Irons and his top assistants have decided that Dunbar-Struggs students will be allowed to attend Lubbock High just for part of the day — to take things they can't get at the Dunbar-Struggs campus.

"In other words, a Dunbar-Struggs student would continue to take his regular courses at his home school. But he would commute to Lubbock High to take the special honors courses" and other features unique to Lubbock High, Irons said.

For students from the city's other high schools, the situation will be just the opposite, he added.

If they want to take something special at Lubbock High, they will have to transfer to Lubbock High on a full-time, full-day basis — for both their regular and magnet courses.

Irons does not believe the Dunbar-Struggs conditions will discourage transfers from that school into LEAP. In fact, Dunbar-Struggs students may prefer the arrangement, he said.

"Dunbar-Struggs students will have the same advantages as other high school students participating in LEAP. The only difference is that Dunbar-Struggs students will continue to attend their home school for regular courses."

Since LEAP was announced last week, rumors circulated in the Dunbar-Struggs community that students there would be barred completely from the Lubbock High magnet. Irons stressed such rumors are false.

School officials Monday went to the Test Of State Authority May Stem From Dispute

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

What appears on the surface to be a disagreement between Lubbock and Texas Department of Health (TDH) officials over the merits of the controversial proposed city food ordinance could develop into a legal challenge to the regulatory authority of state agencies, with potentially significant ramifications for many Texas communities.

Under the Texas Constitution, home-rule cities — communities with a population greater than 5,000 that have adopted governing charters — are empowered to pass ordinances that do not contain provisions "inconsistent with the Constitution of the State or of the general laws enacted by the Legislature of this State."

Lubbock is a home-rule city, one of 214 in Texas as of Jan. 15, 1977, and according to assistant City Attorney Donald Vandiver, "The question that has arisen is whether the rules of the State Health Board (overseer of TDH) will prevail in a home-rule city."

Vandiver said that regulations promulgated by a state agency may not possess the same authority as laws passed by the state legislature. If Lubbock's contention proves correct — and it perhaps will only be resolved in a courtroom — then home-rule cities may find themselves in the ambiguous position of competing with state agencies for final authority over local matters.

Asked whether regulations promulgated by a state agency might not have the authority of legislative statutes, Hal Nelson, assistant chief of the legal division of the State Health Board, said, "I do not happen to think that is a valid position.

"The crux of the matter, as I see it, is whether the ordinance of a home-rule city must be at least as stringent as regulations concerning the same matter adopted by the State Health Board."

In response to the state attorney's opinion (which Nelson stressed was his own and not necessarily that of the State Health Board), Vandiver said, "It is absolutely essential to make changes to meet local conditions."

The simmering debate over the power to amend the state food sanitation regulations to suit a local food ordinance is of consequence to several Lubbock organizations.

Perhaps the most concerned group is the City Health Department, which modeled the proposed ordinance closely to the state regulations but included a number of additional requirements, one of which is the controversial food handlers training program.

Lubbock Health Board chairman Dr. Ray Santos defended the proposed ordinance at a Feb. 22 city council hearing, saying the ordinance simply complies with existing state and federal food regulations, and "we can't be in conflict with them."

But substantial modifications to the proposed ordinance may result if the city discovers it can successfully challenge TDH.

Among the changes to the proposed ordinance recommended by Associated Foods Industries of Lubbock, a recently formed organization representing a large number of local food establishments, are the following:

—Designated clothes-changing rooms in food establishments be limited to new structures and facilities which are planned and built after the effective date of the ordinance; the proposed ordinance would require the facilities in existing establishments where "employees routinely change clothes."

—Food establishments which under the proposed ordinance would require structural changes, modifications, additions or deletions exceeding $2,000 be given five years to comply with the standards; the proposed ordinance does not specify a time for compliance.

—Add to Sec. H of the proposed ordinance, which requires the submission of plans and specifications to the health department for approval prior to the construction, eetensive remodeling or conversion of a food establishment, the condition that approval of the plans by the health department shall prevent the city from "assert(ing) a claim of non-compliance against any person when such structure or building is completed according to such plans and specifications as approved."

—Food establishments failing an inspection by the health department (score of less than 60) will be allowed 24 hours to correct the deficiencies. The failure of the required inspection the next day is cause for suspended operations. The proposed ordinance would immediately suspend the operating permit after failure of the initial inspection until the violations were corrected.

—"Substantial hazard to the public health," which in the proposed ordinance is immediate grounds for a suspended operating permit once the permit holder is notified, should be more clearly defined "to be sufficiently definite to comply with the requirements for a constitutional criminal law." The proposed ordinance would empower the health department to suspend the permit upon the inspector's finding "unsanitary or other conditions in the operation of a food service establishment which, in his judgment, constitute a substantial hazard to the public health."

—Inspections of food establishments by the health department be made within 24 hours of receipt of the written request; the proposed ordinance stipulates that reinspections will be made within 10 days of receipt of written requests.

—Food handlers school training be offered free to all employees to permitted food establishments, and all Lubbock permit holders must satisfactorily complete a course offered by either the health department or the Texas Restaurant Association within 12 months of the effective date of the ordinance; the proposed ordinance would require all employees of establishments failing an inspection to take the course.

Determination of whether the recommended Associated Foods changes violate state regulations is in several cases a matter of interpretation — a future headache for the city council.

For example, while the proposed ordinance speaks of "substantial health hazard," the state regulations say "if an imminent health hazard exists, such as complete lack of sanitization, refrigeration, or sewage backup into the establishment, the establishment shall immediately cease food service operations."

Hugh Anderson, attorney for Associated Foods, said recently that the state "imminent health hazard" clause, though somewhat vague, still offered a clearer definition than the proposed "substantial health hazard" phrase.

Another example of the difficulty of interpreting the exact intent is the allotted period for reinspecting establishments that have failed earlier inspections. Lubbock food businesses, interested in avoiding revenue-losing shutdowns by the health department, are seeking mandatory reinspections within 24 hours of receipt of written requests. The state regulations merely state that "one or more reinspections shall be conducted at reasonable time intervals to assure correction."

Just how soon the city council will be able to settle this squabbling between the Lubbock food establishments and the city health department is uncertain.

The city attorney's office intends to meet with attorneys from the State Health Board in the future, and representatives from the Texas Attorney General's office may also attend, said Vandiver.

Nelson confirmed this statement, saying the State Health Board legal staff has received an extensive letter and legal brief from the Lubbock city attorney, but he added that his department had not yet determined its course of action.

"I can't give you an exact date," Nelson said of the proposed meeting.

And looking beyond the impending meeting between local and state interests, if Lubbock succeeds in obtaining the right substantively to enact its own food ordinance, each provision differing in intent from existing state regulations must be examined for its constitutionality, Vandiver said.

Woman Gives Birth To Quadruplets

PARK RIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Three boys and a girl were born Monday to a young Streamwood mother, a spokeswoman at Lutheran General Hospital said.

She said the mother, Cherie Tenneyson, 25, was doing well and that the children, delivered by Caesarean section, were stable.

Mrs. Tenneyson and her 25-year-old husband, Scott, an engineer, also have a 3½-year-old son, Billy.

After Billy was born, Mrs. Tenneyson had difficulty getting pregnant again, the spokeswoman said, so she was taking a fertility drug, Colmid. She was aware since she was four-months pregnant that she was carrying quadruplets.

The quads, born within two minutes of each other, have not been named. The girl weighs 2 pounds 1½ ounces. The boys weigh between 2 pounds 12½ ounces and 2 pounds 13½ ounces.

Dance Planned To Aid Crash Victims

A benefit dance to help pay medical expenses for a Lubbock couple injured in a car-pickup accident Feb. 9 in Amarillo will be at 9 p.m. Wednesday in Westernaire Lounge at 4805 Ave. Q.

Byron and Nancy Eldredge were seriously injured when a pickup truck apparently left the southbound lanes of Interstate 27 and struck the Eldredge vehicle after being airborne for about 40 feet, according to police reports.

Eldredge, 35, was reported in fair condition today in Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas after recently undergoing surgery to relieve pressure on the brain. He was transferred to the Dallas hospital from Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo Feb. 26.

Eldredge sustained head lacerations and a concussion in the accident and a subsequent bladder infection has complicated his medical problems, according to Kathy Parker, a family friend.

Mrs. Eldredge, 26, was released from the Amarillo hospital after being treated for severe head cuts and a shattered bone in her right arm. Mrs. Parker said she is still under a doctor's care.

Eldredge is employed by South Plains Communications and his wife by Citibus of Lubbock. They have two sons, Vaughn, 12, and Danny, 8, and a daughter, Stacy, who is 4.

A trust fund has been set up at First Federal Savings and Loan in Lubbock to help the couple meet their mounting medical bills.

Wilburn Roach, owner of the Westernaire, said admission to the benefit is $2, with all proceeds going to the Eldredge family. Local entertainer Tiny Lynn will provide the music

INTRODUCING THE WORD PROCESSING TYPEWRITER.
IT'S EITHER THE SIMPLEST WORD PROCESSOR OR THE MOST ADVANCED ELECTRONIC TYPEWRITER IN THE WORLD.

Never before has a company put so much word processing in so simple a package.
Olivetti's new TES 401. It brings word processing right to your secretary's desk.
Simple as it is, however, Olivetti's electronic word processing typewriter can effect some big changes in your office. The 401's memory function can take over the repetitive typing that now takes up so much of your secretary's time. And the 401's memory is so sophisticated it can automatically merge variable information like names and addresses with a constant form letter.
The 401 comes equipped with an easy to use window-into-memory for error free electronic text editing, minidiskettes that can store up to 7500 characters each, and a daisy printer that can print out an average business letter in less than 30 seconds.
If you're impressed with the 401 as a word processor you'll be equally impressed with it as a typewriter. Ribbons and type styles can be changed instantly. Dual pitch (pica and elite) and proportional spacing are available at the flick of a switch. Titles can be automatically centered on a page. Right hand margins can be justified. And decimals can be automatically aligned.
But in spite of all its advancements there is one feature of the 401 that is truly backward. Its price of less than 6,000 dollars is literally years behind the times.

Draft--Key To U.S. Security

WARS AND RUMORS of wars, revolutions, insurgencies and mutual defense pacts around the globe lend a sense of urgency to the need to reactivate the military draft in this country.

Even if no one is drafted in the near future, the mechanism at least needs to be on standby readiness in case of a sudden worsening in international crises.

As it is now, with its forces spread thin and its NATO alliance so weak that a Congressional committee says it is based on nothing more than "hopes and wishes," America is a sitting duck.

The all-volunteer Armed Forces, moreover, has proved to be an expensive experiment with its will and ability to react adequately in serious question.

"IN DECEMBER, for the first time, the Air Force was unable to meet its enlistment quotas with reasonably qualified applicants, a problem which has plagued the Army and Marine Corps for some time," says Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. R-Calif.

He and several of his colleagues have proposed what they see as one way to attack the problem.

Under their plan, every man and woman would be required to register for a National Youth Service at age 17. Each person would have four major options:

—Volunteer for two years of military service with a guarantee of 36 months of educational and training benefits;

—Volunteer for six months of military service and five and one-half years of Reserve obligation;

—Volunteer for one year's civilian service in a community or environmental capacity, including forestry conservation, work with the retarded, aged or handicapped and possibly seasonal farm labor when needed or;

—Be placed in a lottery pool as eligible to be drafted for two years between the ages of 18 and 24.

THE MILITARY PAY scale would be reduced to a subsistence level for the two years served and those in civilian service would receive the same kind of wage, Rep. McCloskey says.

A major drawback in this plan is that it would perpetuate the boondoggling Peace Corps, Job Corps, CETA and other youth employment programs.

Every boy and girl in America has access to a good 12-year public school education and the opportunity to go on to college or vocational school after that. If he or she is not prepared to hold a job by then, it's no fault of the system.

But the crying need facing America today is a defense posture strong enough to protect that system. A simple military draft, without all the extravagant extra trappings, is what we need.

AN EDITORIAL:

Fill 'er Up Regular, Mister?

PRESIDENT CARTER, following the collapse of Iran, played down the talk about an impending energy crisis.

He noted that the net shortfall of petroleum supplies caused by the loss of Iranian production amounts to about half-a-million barrels a day as far as the United States is concerned—or only about 2.5 percent of our consumption, by his estimates.

This could easily be met, he said, if we did what we were asked to do back in 1974—reduce our driving, honor the 55 miles per hour limit, form car pools or switch to public transportation, turn down our thermostats.

It was a call for a renewed conservation effort by all Americans.

AND THE FACTS indicate conservation may be forced upon us whether we want it or not.

The oil companies already are cutting allocations to their distributors. Even if the new Khomenini government eventually cranks up Iran's wells and resumes oil exports at prerevolutionary levels—which is by no means certain—it cannot happen soon enough to avoid an almost sure gasoline crunch beginning in the spring.

Long lines at stations and mandatory Sunday closings may be the least of the inconveniences we face. At the best, prices are going to soar.

A Lubbock motorist whose auto burns unleaded gas supplied by one of the major oil companies already doesn't have to drive out of his way to pay 75 cents a gallon for fuel... if he'll clean his own windshield.

AT THE WORST, if the other major oil exporters stop taking up much of the slack left by Iran and if the United States is called upon to share its oil with the countries it is aligned with in the International Energy Agency, that shortfall the President spoke of quickly could be doubled.

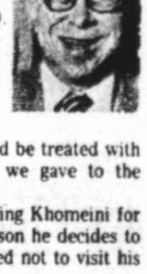

To call the developing energy situation a crisis may be overstating the case. But to pretend that we will be able to go along as we have been is the purest wishful thinking.

If we don't do it voluntarily as individuals now, it will only increase the likelihood that we'll do it involuntarily as a nation later—only much more strenuously.

ART BUCHWALD:

With Our Kinda Friends We Don't Need Enemies

WASHINGTON—One of the roles of a newspaper columnist is to keep everyone informed as to who are the good guys and who are the bad guys as far as the United States is concerned.

I would like all of you to get out your map, pencil and paper.

Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping of the People's Republic of China is a good guy even though he has just ordered an incursion into Vietnam, because the Vietnamese went into Cambodia and Teng thought Hanoi should be taught a lesson.

Teng will remain a good guy in our eyes unless he uses force against Taiwan, with whom we had a special and long relationship which we just gave up by normalizing our ties with the People's Republic of China.

SOVIET PARTY Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is a bad guy because the Soviets seem to be making mischief all over the world. But at the same time we want a SALT treaty with the Russians so we are "pretending" he is a good guy.

Brezhnev may be bad, but the feeling in Washington is that there are people waiting to take his place who could be much worse.

Therefore, it's better to talk to Brezhnev than to some of the other hardliners, who are furious because we asked Vice Premier Teng to come to dinner and claim we urged Teng to go into Vietnam which we vehemently deny, although secretly we're not too unhappy about.

THE SHAH of Iran "was" a good guy up to the bitter end, when he was forced to leave Iran on 24 hours' notice. As a matter of fact, he was the only good guy we would have anything to do with in Iran.

So when he flew the coup we didn't have any alternate good guy to support. At first we decided the good guys were the generals in the Iranian army who backed the shah and who would probably rule the country when he left.

But the army fell apart and we suddenly had to find a new friend in the Ayatollah Khomeini, who decided to found an Islamic republic, whatever the hell that is.

The United States is hoping an Islamic republic is one that will sell oil to the West, in which case Khomeini will be a good guy and be treated with all the reverence and respect we gave to the shah.

The one good thing about having Khomeini for a friend is that, if for some reason he decides to leave Iran again, he has promised not to visit his sister in Beverly Hills.

THE PRESIDENT of Mexico, Jose Lopez Portillo, is a good guy, even though he has publicly scolded our President at a luncheon.

The reason he is considered a good guy is that Mexico has large quantities of oil and gas, and when a country has these two things we must swallow our pride and explain to the American people that the president of Mexico was only speaking for domestic consumption, and that in his heart he really loves Jimmy Carter.

President Somoza of Nicaragua is a bad guy because he violates human rights and doesn't have any oil and gas. Libyan leader Muammar Khadafy is a good guy because although he violates human rights and supports terrorism he does have oil and gas.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel is a bad guy because he won't give up the West Bank of the Jordan. President Carter has been very harsh about Begin because he knows Israel has no oil and gas.

EGYPTIAN PRESIDENT Anwar Sadat is a good guy because he wants the West Bank of Jordan to go back to the PLO, which the United States does not recognize.

Besides individuals, the United States now has strained relations with most African countries, Canada, South America, Europe and Japan. On the other hand, we have strong ties with Saudi Arabia, North Yemen and the Vatican.

President Carter's foreign policies are working despite what you might read in the newspapers, thanks not only to him but to his brother Billy Carter, whom the President relies on to keep up his good ties with the American Jewish community.

To sum up, the United States has never been in a better foreign policy position and, with the friends we now have strong alliances with, we don't need any enemies.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Marine Has Landed

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Worry about the new image of American powerlessness around the world reached such a point in the Pentagon that the joint chiefs of staff met in private session over the then-boiling affair of Marine Sgt. Kenneth Kraus.

Kraus, who has since been released, was kidnapped from a Tehran hospital on Feb. 14 and held incommunicado, apparently at the headquarters of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Under the chairmanship of Gen. David Jones, the joint chiefs met in a darkening, somber mood following the murder of the U.S. ambassador in Kabul, Afghanistan, and the takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

The chiefs' fear: that Kraus might be made an "example" by the revolutionary government of Iran and either be sentenced to a long jail term or even executed—for carrying out his protective assignment as a Marine guard in the U.S. embassy.

As a result of the chiefs' meeting, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown was strongly advised to inform President Carter "with the bark on" (as one Pentagon official told us) that Sgt. Kraus could not be subjected to any such treatment, but must be given the full protection of U.S. power.

Brown got the message loud and clear and carried it to the White House, either personally to Carter or through Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

As it turned out, the good offices of the French government were already being applied to the Iranian government to free Kraus.

He was released Feb. 22.

The fact that the joint chiefs felt it necessary to make strong representation to the White House over the Marine sergeant shows the level of morale among the uniformed military.

Led by the chiefs themselves, the military may fear that Carter's acknowledged policy of restraint in the face of Soviet provocation is an invitation to more acts of violence against the U.S.

RONALD REAGAN may encounter 1980 trouble in Mississippi similar to his 1976 woes, thanks partly to the activities of his citizens organizations in last year's midterm election.

Sen. Thad Cochran, Mississippi's first Republican senator since Reconstruction, has made a private commitment to support John Connally—not Reagan—for President.

That casts a large cloud over a state that had been conceded to Reagan this time.

Cochran's decision may stem in no small part from the activities of Reagan's citizens organization, the Citizens for the Republic (CFR) under the direction of longtime Reagan operative Lyn Nofziger.

CFR CONTRIBUTED $5,000 to state Sen. Charles Pickering in his losing Republican primary campaign against then-Congressman Cochran.

Since Pickering and Cochran are both conservatives, some Mississippi Republicans attributed the CFR contribution to the fact that Pickering backed Reagan in 1976, while Cochran endorsed Gerald Ford.

Cochran might well have ended up endorsing Reagan this time had it not been for the intervention in his senate primary.

A footnote: Mississippi Republican national committeeman Clarke Reed, who broke with Reagan to back Ford in 1976, will not back Reagan this time either.

His probable first choice is Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. But if Kemp does not run, Reed may join Cochran in backing Connally.

BELATEDLY BOWING to pleas from loyal California Democrats, President Carter will expand his forthcoming California trip to include two other appearances in addition to the March 2 national Democratic fund-raising dinner in Los Angeles.

Carter backers in California had presented a wide range of possible events for the President.

After much prodding, the White House finally agreed to two of them: a regional press conference and a meeting with local public officials on March 2 and 3 respectively.

As we reported in a column just before the White House changed its plans, backers of Gov. Edmund G. Brown had been saying that the lack of activity by Carter betrays an interest in California limited to that state's prolific campaign funds, indicating Carter has little hope of carrying it.

The two additional events will raise the President's flag a little higher in his weakest region.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Tales Of A Whale

THE UNITED Nations Conference on Human Environment is meeting in Stockholm, 53 countries represented. All 53 voted unanimously to halt the killing of whales. So did the United Nations Environment Program—unanimously.

Whales are an endangered species. The British, Dutch, Greeks and Norwegians have given up whaling and urged the Japanese and Russians to stop. But this insistence is to no avail.

Both the Japanese and Russians have persisted. Both are members of the International Whaling Commission. But the IWC is not a part of the United Nations and is, in fact, merely a whaling club without authority.

LINDBERGH POINTED out to the Japanese that in only the past 50 years more than two million whales were slaughtered, saying that about 1,000 animals now face extinction. But Lindbergh's pleas were unavailing.

A mosquito is just as much an animal as a whale. The word "animal" derives from the Latin word "anima," meaning "to breathe." After the name came into common use it was discovered that plants, insects, etc., also breathe.

Our earth has about a million known kinds of animals. Half are insects. Of the other half about one fifth are vertebraes. Of these, only some 12,000 are mammals, including man.

Experts find the animal kingdom's most intelligent animals are whales, dolphins, chimpanzees and elephants. Until the age of six, whales are smarter than the average human.

WHALE'S BRAINS have taken about 50 million years to evolve. The wisdom of the whale is that you are most likely to be harpooned when you are on the surface spouting too much.

In fact, their brains are so highly developed that they can talk, distinguish each other, navigate and locate food all at the same moment. No other brain can do all that.

Ichthyologists know of more than 100 species of whales and are discovering more all the time. There are eight species of great whales, the Blue Whale being the largest animal ever to have existed on our earth, bigger than any prehistoric monster.

The Blue Whale's mating call can be heard at least 50 miles. And much deeper in the sea, between the warm surface layer and the dense cold layers in the sound channels, another whale can hear the mating cries about 400 miles.

SO SMALL IS a whale's ear that you can barely wedge a pencil into it. Yet the whale has better hearing than man.

Its muscles are stronger than steel, but more resilient than nylon. Overwhelmingly, the swipe of a whale's tail is the entire animal kingdom's most powerful blow. Second comes the kick of a kangaroo's foot.

After the Blue Whale, the Finback is the largest. But the Finback also is being driven to extinction, as is the Nothern whale. In addition, the southern Humpback whale is being slaughtered to extinction.

Whales were mankind's first bonanza; we have been hunting whales at least a thousand years. Yet their origin remains a mystery. The United Nations' protests fall on deaf ears.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Excesses Of Exes

PRESIDENT CARTER shouldn't be too downcast over the talk about not renewing his lease on the White House. That means he can get at the ex-presidential grab bag that much sooner. It is truly a bag worth grabbing.

Americans, in their infinite generosity (whether they realize it or not) have made sure that our former chief executives need never want for any of the little niceties of life.

We lavish them with taxpayer dollars to ease the pain that comes to every White House hasbeen when he finds himself pushed out of the spotlight. It's expensive medicine—more than $1 million a year so far.

Whenever they get the urge to travel, we foot the bill. And while we fly tourist, they don't.

We let them play big shot with fancy offices and a personal staff, too, although why they need it has never been clearly spelled out. "Putting their presidential papers in order is the usual explanation.

JIMMY MAY never lick inflation for the rest of us, but once he leaves the oval office he's got it made for himself. Every year he can ask Congress for more money to cover the rising costs of being an ex-President.

He probably won't solve the problems of the Postal Service, but, unlike the rest of us, he'll never have to worry about how often they hike the price of stamps. For him they'll be free, for the rest of his life.

It's all part of the Former Presidents Act, which provides living expenses for retired chief executives. Every year, they submit their proposed budgets to the House Treasury, Postal Service and Government subcommittee, which votes on their requests and passes the raises along with a minimum of courteous debate.

They all get it. Never mind whether they need it or not, and most ex-Presidents don't.

JERRY FORD barely had time to let Betty concede his defeat to Carter before he'd signed a $1-million contract with NBC to make a series of special appearances.

He also has a deal with Japanese TV, he gets around $8,000 every time he accepts a speaking-teaching engagement, and still to come are the royalties from his memoirs. Not to mention his yearly government pension of $100,000.

What with one thing and another, he's never going to have to apply for food stamps. Even after he pays for that million-dollar home in a super-exclusive corner of just-plain-exclusive Palm Springs. But he is applying for federal aid—$409,000 of it.

That's $6,000 more than he got last year, and includes $165,000 for staff, $56,000 for office space, $10,000 for printing, $35,000 for telephone and teletype, $10,000 for postage, and $35,000 for travel.

NIXON DOESN'T need quite so much, probably because he got the basics (millions in home improvements for his San Clemente villa) before he was kicked out of office. He allows as how he can make do in 1980 with expense money of $324,000.

That's $21,000 more than he's getting this year and breaks down to $104,000 for staff, $51,000 for office space, $2,000 for printing, $7,000 for postage, $30,000 for telephone and teletype, and $35,000 for travel.

He, too, is a full-fledged millionaire. There's his $78,000 annual government pension, royalties from his book, and the seven-figure deal he pulled off for those TV interviews with David Frost.

Still, it's probably safe to say that both Ford and Nixon would give up their government gifts for a chance to be President again. The pay is good ($250,000, plus a $100,000 tax-free expense account), but the clout is better.

IT'S THAT power bit that's giving Jimmy trouble these days. Too many folks are saying he doesn't have any, that he's lost control of everything from the economy to the foreign front to his chances of getting re-elected.

But if he misses the brass ring this time around, he can take some comfort in knowing that, thanks to taxpayer dollars, his "golden years" will be glittery ones.

He might even be rich enough to rescue the family peanut farm without having to borrow from Bert.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

HOW KANSAS City, Mo., turned out to be such a bachelor's paradise I don't know, but such be the case, evidently. Among unmarried souls in their twenties, the ladies outnumber the gentlemen by at least 5,000, maybe more.

And in the six-county metro area around that dandy city, the single girls outnumber the bachelors by at least 15,000. In fact, there are far more unattached women than men in all the groups over age 17. No, young fellow, our Love and War man does not file air fares. See your local travel agent.

The Bureau of Management and Budget is known as "OBM," because government officials didn't want to give it the more accurate acronym of "BOMB."

Q. "How much of the Salvation Army's money comes from those black-kettle street-corner collections around Christmas time?"

A. Less than 5 percent. Much less, probably. Those Yule bell ringers go out more as a public relations exercise than anything else. They let the citizenry know that the Salvation Army is still going strong. The organization's big money has come from the bequests, grants and systematized annual donations of multimillionaire operators.

Some of the prognosticators think the average age of retirement will drop to 38 by the next turn of the century.

When two chameleons fight, you can always tell which wins. The loser turns a dull grayish brown, the winner stays green.

Nowhere in the Bible is any mention of a cat.

Sir, have you accomplished the things the great Plato said you ought? Wrote he: "Every man, before he dies, should do four things: plant a tree, father a son, build a house and write a book."

Now the reptile experts know for sure that an alligator can't bite through a steel plate. They let one try. So great was its jaw strength that its teeth were pushed right out the top of its skull. They had to be extracted with pliers.

Offhand Thoughts...

The jury finally returned to the courtroom after deliberating three days.

"Have you reached a verdict?" the judge asked.

"Yes, we have, your Honor," the foreman said.

"Please tell us your decision."

The foreman cleared his throat and declared. "We, the jury, have decided not to become involved."

Constitutional Proposal's Smooth Sailing Ends

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A proposal to call a federal constitutional convention, now the subject of stormy debate, whisked virtually unnoticed through some state legislatures before its full ramifications were understood.

In Texas, for example, each legislative house adopted the measure the same day it was introduced in 1978, which normally could not have been done. "There was a suspension of the rules," explained the resolution's sponsor, Rep. Tim Von Dohlen.

In Florida, House Clerk Alan Morris recalled that in 1976 the resolution went through like other resolutions — "like peas through a funnel.... That's the way they handle memorials."

In these and a number of other states, it appears, the measure has been treated much like the numerous non-binding resolutions aimed at Congress that states routinely pass — matters not calling for the scrutiny and debate devoted to, say, a local highway project.

But this resolution is different. It calls for Congress to hold a constitutional convention — unprecedented since 1787 — to adopt an amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

If two-thirds of the states adopt it, Congress would have to hold the convention, and some constitutional scholars fear it could not be limited to one amendment and instead would open up the nation's basic legal document to all kinds of changes.

Sponsors are predicting success this year, and it could be achieved in part, it seems, because little attention was paid in the early stages.

Indeed, Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards didn't notice the Legislature had adopted the resolution in 1978 so two months ago he called on it to adopt such a resolution. Told the act had been passed, Edwards said, "That's all right, I'll let them do it again."

And after Florida passed the proposal in 1976, the Legislature reconsidered it and failed to pass it last spring. Clerk Morris' explanation for the legislators' repeat performance: "They forgot."

One state where the issue moved quickly from obscurity to the spotlight was California.

Last year, state Assembly Majority Leader Howard Berman happened to thumb through the list of measures on the floor one day and found a resolution calling for the convention to require a balanced budget.

Berman, a Los Angeles Democrat, recalled thinking this "was a pretty far-out notion." He had the measure pulled off the Assembly consent file — where its unanimous passage was almost assured — and it was eventually killed.

The resolution had quietly won State Senate approval and Assembly committee passage. It was a breath away from final passage when Berman saw it.

This year the convention issue has sparked much more publicity, fueled in part by an endorsement by California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

In fact, the current California Legislature's treatment of the resolution has shades of a Cecil B. DeMille spectacular — complete with an audience of 600 and 10 television cameras at one hearing.

At that hearing Brown himself made a rare appearance to testify. Another supporter was former U.S. Sen. Sam Ervin, testifying by videotape from his North Carolina law office. The resolution, opposed by Assembly Democratic leaders, was again defeated.

In other states, too, the issue is getting more scrutiny now. As Ohio Rep. William Hinig said of his pending convention resolution: "It's certainly not greased. In fact, it's not even oiled."

Thirty-four state legislatures must adopt the measure. The National Taxpayers' Union, which backs the convention drive, says 28 have done so. At least two states, Pennsylvania and Nevada, had governors veto the action, clouding the resolutions' legal standing. In most states, resolutions are not sent to governors for approval or veto.

The 28 states the Taxpayers' Union counts are: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Wyoming.

An Associated Press survey of legislatures also found these examples of the resolution's treatment:

KANSAS: Last year the Legislature took about three months to pass the proposal. Rep. Fred Weaver, a Democrat who was then chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, says he thinks most legislators thought they were voting on just the concept of a balanced federal budget and weren't aware of the ramifications. He said he wasn't.

Sen. Ed Reilly, a Republican and chairman of the Senate Federal and State Affairs Committee, recalled that the hearing on the resolution in his committee was brief, with the sponsor, Sen. Norman Gaar, the only person appearing. Asked if most legislators knew what they were voting on, Reilly said, "Not really."

COLORADO: Last year the House and Senate took about three days each to discuss the measure before it was adopted. While the time involved was fairly short, there was some debate, including a warning from an opponent, Sen. Regis Groff, D-Denver, that the resolution would not be "just a piece of paper going to Congress."

ARKANSAS: The resolution was introduced Jan. 8, the first day of this year's session. The House adopted it Jan. 17, and the Senate tried to adopt it that day also. But it had to readopt it Jan. 22 after senators realized they were legally barred from passing the measure on the same day as the House.

Administration Opposes Balanced-Budget Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale declared the Carter administration's vigorous opposition to a balanced-budget amendment Monday, saying the government needs flexibility in order to manage a sometimes cantankerous economy.

The government's economic responsibilities go far beyond developing a balanced budget, he told the National League of Cities.

"Sometimes we need a deficit in order to stimulate the national economy," Mondale said. "That's what Franklin Delano Roosevelt did in the depths of the Depression." He added that a surplus is sometimes necessary to slow inflation.

Mondale's speech to the 1,500 city officials, was the administration's strongest argument yet against a proposed amendment to force Washington to balance its half-trillion-dollar budget.

A leader of the budget-balancing movement, Gov. Jerry Brown of California, is a likely challenger to Carter should he seek a second Democratic nomination for president and the administration hopes to stop his charge before it gets started by blunting his main issue.

"If you try to put that sort of thing in the Constitution, how would you write it?" Mondale asked. "Would you exempt times of war and international strife? Would you exempt depression or recession?

"And how would you define a balanced budget?" he asked. "If the federal government defined a balanced budget the way many state and cities do now, we're already in balance."

Most states and cities separate capital spending and operating expenses in their budget accounting so they can borrow funds for large projects without assuming a deficit. But the federal budget lumps capital spending and operating costs together.

Another likely presidential challenger, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, took the stage immediately after Mondale and told the city officials that while he would oppose an amendment that would place a strict ceiling on spending, he favors one that would require two-thirds approval of both the Senate and the House anytime Congress approves a deficit budget.

"That way, we can't go into deficit by accident," he told the city officials. "I think this is the very least constitutional amendment that the country will agree to."

The local officials seem to oppose the efforts to amend the Constitution, perhaps because of warnings issued by private economists that an amendment could force tax increases or shift the burden of some social programs to state and local governments or to private industry.

Walter Heller, chief economic adviser in the Kennedy administration, told the Senate Budget Committee on Monday that Congress, "caught in the balanced-budget vise," might require private industry to support laid-off workers or mandate that states spend more for Medicaid.

Alan Greenspan, who was former President Gerald R. Ford's main economic adviser, also opposed the amendment, saying that even if it were passed and workable, it would not be enough to defuse inflationary pressures.

Mondale was especially caustic about efforts to call a constitutional convention should Congress fail to put an amendment on state ballots.

"I think it's a bad idea," he said. He said many scholars believe that "if we convene a constitutional convention ... it could open up every issue in the Constitution" to change.

"I don't want anyone opening up the question of freedom of religion, of the 14th amendment (equal rights protection), or the 15th amendment (voting rights), or the separation of powers," he said.

In Senate testimony, Michael K. Evans of Chase Econometric Associates, said, "If we can predict one thing with absolute certainty, it is that the average intellectual level of those attending the second contitutional convention will not rival the level of those who attended the first one," which wrote the Constitution.

Supporters of a balanced budget amendment say it is needed to prevent Congress from running up huge deficits that contribute to inflation and other social problems.

The National Taxpayers Union says 28 states have petitioned Congress for a constitutional convention to draft a balanced budget amendment.

Under the Constitution, Congress is required to call a constitutional convention if asked by at least 34 states. The provision has never been used.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am in doubt about the meaning of "dividends qualifying for exclusion" in the year-end statements I received from two companies in which I own stock. May I omit listing these dividends on my federal income tax return? Or should I list them and mention them as being excluded from income tax?

A. You are required to list all your dividends on your federal income tax return. The exclusion means that you don't pay tax on the first $100 of dividends received each year. For a husband and wife filing a joint return, that exclusion becomes $200 — provided that the stock on which the dividend was paid is jointly owned, or that each spouse owned stock on which at least $100 was paid.

For instance, if a wife owns stock on which the annual dividend was $500 and her husband owns stock on which the annual dividend was $50, their joint return could list an exclusion of $150 — $100 on the wife's stock and $50 on the husband's.

The point here is that it's smart, for tax purposes, for everyone to own stock paying at least $100 a year in cash dividends.

You report your dividends on line 10a of your Form 1040. And, if the dividends come to more than $400, you must report them in detail on Schedule B of your income tax return. After listing the total on line 10a, you list your exclusion on line 10b. Subtract the exclusion from your total dividends and you then report your taxable dividends on line 10c.

Dividends qualifying for exclusion include most "ordinary dividends" paid on stocks of American corporations. In a rare stroke of clarity, the Internal Revenue Service explains that "any dividend a stockholder receives can be assumed to be an ordinary dividend (and therefore qualified for the exclusion) unless the paying corporation indicates otherwise."

Those "year-end statements" you mention, no doubt, were "Forms 1099" listing the dividends paid to you. You get copies of those forms. The IRS gets copies. As long as the forms didn't state otherwise, you can assume that your dividends quality for the exclusion. Just don't try to take any more than a $100 or $200 exclusion.

Q. Some bonds I bought several years ago have dropped in value about 15 percent. Would it be wise to sell them, take my loss and reinvest in bonds with a higher yield? I do not have any gains, against which to write off losses for tax purposes.

A. Then there would be no real sense in making the move you are thinking about. Assuming that you bought those bonds at par value, the 15 percent drop means that they are now trading at $850 per $1,000 par value.

You would have to put the $850 you receive from selling each bond to work earning more interest than you are now receiving on each bond, plus an increment to adjust for the fact that the bonds you now own will be paid off at par when they mature.

You won't be able to get a higher yield on new bonds than the "yield to maturity" on your present bonds, unless you buy bonds of lower quality. "Reaching for yield" with lower quality bonds is not a smart move.

Q. I am interested in a bond issued by a New York bank which pays 9.95 percent interest. I asked my local bank about buying some and was told there would be a charge of $5 per bond. Will the New York bank sell me these bonds, without any charges?

A. Nope. Neither that New York bank nor any other outfit which has issued bonds handles the day-to-day trading of its bonds. A bond issuer does not make a continuous offering. A bond issuer sells its bonds to "underwriters" — usually a group of brokerage firms and the underwriters sell the bonds to the investing public.

After that, the bonds are traded in the market. The "$5 per bond" your bank mentioned was probably a service fee your bank wanted for handling your order and sending it to a broker. Other than in the case of municipal bonds, banks don't trade in the securities market.

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT DOWN

CINCINNATI (AP) — American four-year colleges and universities showed an unexpected .3 percent decline in enrollment this academic year, according to a study prepared for publication by the American College Testing Program. Dr. Garland G. Parker, a University of Cincinnati official who compiled the report, noted Monday that although the decline was modest, it came "in a year when demographic data would have been supportive of a modest increase." There was an increase in enrollment last year of 1.6 percent, a trend Parker said he had expected to contine this year.

Rice Jury Sequestered

MONROE, La. (AP) — A judge declared Monday that a federal jury will be sequestered during former Rep. Otto Passman's trial on charges of taking bribes to influence rice deals with South Korea.

"In the interest of justice, I have determined — not the attorneys — that sequestration is appropriate in this case," U.S. District Judge Earl Veron told prospective jurors as the trial opened.

The trial is expected to last up to a month because of a lengthy witness list.

Passman, one of two former congressmen indicted in the Korean influence-buying scandal, is charged with taking a total of $213,000 — including $98,000 in bribes — from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park.

He is also charged with failing to include $143,000 of the money on his federal income tax returns in order to get out of paying $77,000 in taxes.

Passman was indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington, D.C., last March 31. The trial was moved to his home town because of his age — he is 78 — and ill health.

Veron spent Monday morning talking with lawyers and with 32 people who asked to be let off from jury duty as hardship cases. Twenty-six were excused, leaving 84 for lawyers to choose from as they began questioning prospective jurors Monday afternoon.

Park has been promised immunity from prosecution and is expected to be the chief witness against Passman, who has repeatedly denied taking any money from the Korean.

Prosecutors have also indicated they may call the only other person to be indicted in the scandal, former congressman Richard Hanna of California. He is serving a 6-to-30-month prison term after plea-bargaining a 40-count indictment down to a guilty plea on one count of conspiring to defraud the government.

Passman's attorney, Camille Gravel of Alexandria, La., said the defense will hinge on Park's credibility.

Increasing Smoking Offered As Means To Help Kick Habit

WASHINGTON (AP) — You want to quit smoking, you say, but just haven't been able to motivate yourself?

If so, the National Cancer Institute has some suggestions for those millions who don't have the will power to quit cold turkey.

Before you give them up, try smoking a lot more than usual, so the experience becomes distasteful, the institute suggests. Then collect every cigarette butt you can find and put them all in a large glass container, to serve as a reminder.

And remember, never think about going without a cigarette for the rest of your life, concentrate on each day, one at a time.

Another possibility the institute suggests is to postpone lighting your first cigarette one hour each day, or decide to smoke only during the even hours or the odd hours.

If you decide to try quitting, at least during the first few days spend as much time as possible in places where smoking is prohibited, such as theaters, museums, churches and so forth.

Drink water or fruit juice, but avoid coffee, alcohol and other foods people usually associate with smoking.

Details of these suggestions and a variety of other ideas are contained in the cancer institute's new booklet "Clearing the Air."

Top Three U.S. Car Companies Report February Sales Jump

DETROIT (AP) — The Big Three U.S. car companies reported a 6.2 percent jump Monday in February sales compared to last year, while imports appeared headed for their best February ever.

With General Motors Corp. still dominating the 1979 market and Ford Motor Co. managing a small increase from levels of a year ago, the Big Three sold 654,436 cars compared with 616,428 in February 1978.

Analysts said the final February results would show a relatively strong month. If the pace continued through 1979, domestic and import sales would be about 11.2 million — higher than most analysts predicted.

No. 1 GM, which had a mediocre February last year, saw sales jump 9.8 percent last month to 387,391 cars. It was GM's second-best February showing.

Ford, which last year carried the industry during a winter sales slump, recorded a 2.8 percent year-to-year February improvement with deliveries of 188,845 cars. Chrysler Corp. saw sales slip 2.2 percent to 78,200 cars.

Separately, Volkswagen of America reported sales of 11,935 U.S.-built Rabbits for the month.

February results for American Motors Corp. and for many importers of foreign cars were not immediately available.

But big increases were posted by Volkswagen, Honda and Datsun, and imports appeared certain to break last year's record February of 148,100 cars.

Ford sales vice president Gordon B. MacKenzie said February sales followed a normal seasonal upturn from the early winter months. He also noted a "moderate movement to more fuel efficient engines and models as the month progressed," which would be good news for Ford and GM as they struggle to meet 1979 federal fuel economy mandates.

That could reflect current news about oil shortages and higher gasoline prices, according to one Ford analyst who asked anonymity.

Spokesmen for importers made the same interpretation as Honda and Datsun sales jumped more than 30 percent and Volkswagen was up 25 percent. Toyota's February sales, however, slipped 15 percent.

For the final 10 days of February, Big Three sales were up 5 percent to 236,826 cars. GM jumped 11.6 percent to 132,074 cars in late February compared with a poor showing a year ago.

Chrysler managed a 2.5 percent increased in late February to 32,815 cars and Ford slipped 4.2 percent to 71,937 cars.

Bird In Bush Drinks Alcohol From Hand

WICOMICO CHURCH, VA. (AP) — Herman is grayer now and has cataracts in both eyes. He has lost two toes and hasn't flown for almost two years.

Still, Herman, an 8-year-old quail, has led a full life.

Herman was hatched in an incubator by Christine and Alfred Winston, a retired couple who moved from Richmond 10 years ago to a small cottage on the Great Wicomico River.

"He's lived a charmed life and he's been a great companion for all these years," says Winston, a former stockbroker.

In his younger days, Herman was a womanizer and something of a drinker.

He would sit in a window, calling "bobwhite," and flocks of female quail would gather in the trees, Mrs. Winston said.

"He's gotten sort of old now and he's not too much interested in sex anymore," Winston, 81, said.

Several years ago Herman had a cold, so Mrs. Winston fed him brandy through an eyedropper.

"That was when he drank," she said. "He would drink anything — whiskey, beer, vodka — it made no difference."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This can be a confusing day since you are apt to be wool-gathering and preoccupied by other matters at hand and lose out where it counts the most. To prevent problems give whatever is at hand your fullest attention.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Follow through with agreements made with others conscientiously. Exercise extreme caution to prevent trouble, expense. Evening is fine for social fun.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Curb that tendency to spend money foolishly and find better ways of adding to income instead. Don't neglect care of a health problem.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to run away from promises you have made, but it is best to carry through intelligently. Improve health and appearance and become more popular.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You think you are being abused and want to do something irrational, but take it easy and all will soon change for the better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to be of help to friends and gain their good will. You have to sacrifice some if you are to gain a personal aim. Take no risks with money or credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Avoid criticizing a bigwig because you think things should be done differently. Be astute in the handling of your own affairs, credit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to run off to new interests, but it is wiser to do nothing at this time. A new contact is too glamorous, so steer clear of this person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle obligations carefully and well so that later you can study into new and profitable projects. If loved one is irritable, don't argue since the planets are not favorable. Think logically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not argue with a partner because of a seemingly disinterest in work; he or she may be making better plans. A civic affair also disturbs you, but it will turn out all right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on the work ahead of you and get it done so that you reap the benefits. Don't be upset by the gossip of a fellow worker. Keep working and ignore for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Cultivate a fine talent you possess and forget any fun ideas which could waste your time. Show more thought for loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't bring up debatable issues at home or you could start a battle royal there. Not a good day to do any entertaining, even though you want to.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY....he or she will abound with excessive energy. A fine linguist in this chart and one who will do well in writing, buying and selling. Teach never to go on to another activity until first finishing what is at hand.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

SWISS BOPYCOTT FILM

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A group of Swedes called for a boycott of the American film "The Deer Hunter," claiming the film "tries to reconstruct the myth of the United States as the defender of freedom, democracy and human rights." The group, in a statement issued over the weekend, said it objected to scenes of Vietnamese abusing Americans, when "no Americans were tortured in Vietnam."

Terrorists Kill Army General In Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Terrorists killed a brigadier general as he came home for lunch Monday, pumping four bullets into him and escaping by car.

Brig. Gen. Agustin Munoz Vazquez, 65, was the eighth Spanish military officer slain in seven months and the 26th person to die from political violence in the country this year.

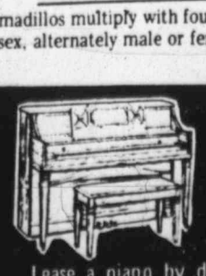

The killing occurred three days after Premier Adolfo Suarez' Center party won Spanish elections. Officials said the shooting by a four-member commando team appeared to be part of a leftist campaign to goad the government into a confrontation.

Shouts of "Long live Spain" were heard from a small crowd who gathered at the hopital where his body was taken. Police said they suspected a Maoist group known as GRAPO of the killing.

Most of Spain's political violence is blamed on the ETA, a Basque separatist group seeking independence for the Basque region of northern Spain.

Attorneys Outline Cases In Nurse's Murder Trial

BALTIMORE (AP) — Attorneys outlined their cases Monday as a former nurse at Maryland General Hospital went on trial on charges she murdered a comatose patient by unplugging his respirator.

Assistant State's Attorney Howard Gersh said he would produce evidence that Mary Rose Robaczynski told a colleague, "Good, he's going now," after shutting off a respirator hooked to Harry Gessner.

Other evidence will show Mrs. Robaczynski, 24, was involved in six other instances similar to Gessner's death last March 8, the prosecutor said.

Gersh said that when confronted with statements from other nurses and medical personnel that she had turned off respirators attached to patients in the hospital's critical care unit, Mrs. Robaczynski told hospital administrators: "I only do it to Gorks."

Gorks, Gersh said, is an acronym for "God Only Really Knows" and is frequently used by medical personnel to describe borderline life-and-death cases.

Joseph F. Murphy Jr., one of Mrs. Robaczynski's attorneys, told the six-man, six-woman jury during his opening statement that Gessner, 48, was already "brain dead" when the respirator was turned off and may have been since he entered the hospital four days earlier.

In one year the incredibly prolific oyster will lay 500 million eggs.

INSULATION USED TO BE A DETAIL. NOW IT'S A PRIORITY.

Used to be, insulation in commercial, industrial and institutional buildings was frequently taken for granted.

The energy crisis has changed all that.

Suddenly, insulation is one of the most important considerations in the planning of any new building. Simply because good insulation saves precious energy.

Which brings us to the buildings we build. Butler buildings. Because they're built around pre-engineered systems, the roof and wall systems are designed with superior insulation to provide you with the best available seal against outside heat and cold, regardless of the climate.

Butler building systems have always been time and money savers. But more important, now they're energy savers. We'd like to show you why. Call us. 774

Broad Rally Sparks Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Revived hopes for a Middle East peace settlement helped touch off a broad rally in the stock market Monday, carrying the Dow Jones industrial average to its sharpest gain in seven weeks.

Analysts said the beginnings of resumed oil exports from Iran and China's assertion that it was withdrawing forces from Vietnam also lifted investors' spirits.

Gambling stocks chalked up many of the biggest individual gains, along with some recently depressed glamor issues.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips jumped 11.61 to 827.36 in its best single-day showing since it climbed 12.39 points on Jan. 15.

The pickup in buying interest after a lackluster February on Wall Street seemed to rekindle speculative enthusiasm for the gambling issues, which racked up dramatic gains last year.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index advanced 1.05 to 124.72.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I sent for your booklet "Straight Dope on Drugs" and I learned a lot from it. It also settled my head about some stuff I thought was harmless. But I'm still unclear about a few things. I hope you will help me.

On pages 17 and 18, you listed some questions a person should ask himself to determine whether or not pot will get him into trouble. Here are my answers to those questions. Please read them and tell me if pot will hurt me.

1. Do you feel left out by the kids you would like to go with? — Answer: Yes.
2. Are you lonely a lot of the time? — Answer: Yes.
3. Do you get depressed and wonder if something is terribly wrong with you? — Answer: Yes.
4. Are you a disappointment to your parents? Do you feel they consider you a loser? — Answer: No.
5. Do your folks bug you so much and give you such a hard time that you have considered smoking pot to get even? — Answer: Yes.
6. Do you get uptight in situations which other kids your age seem to be handling with no problem? — Answer: Yes.
7. Do you cry for no reason? — Answer: Sometimes.
8. Do you hassle with friends over unimportant matters, behave badly and regret it later? — Answer: Yes.
9. Do you shoplift or steal from school? — Answer: Not really.
10. Are you overweight but don't have the willpower to stay on a diet? — Answer: No, but I always thought I was too skinny.
11. Do you lie a lot? — Answer: Yes.
12. Are you sick with headaches and stomach aches or other physical problems that the doctor cannot find a reason for? — Answer: No.

And then, Ann, you said that if a person answers yes to eight of the twelve questions, he should stop and think twice about fooling around with anything that might alter his mental machinery. According to you, I should not go near any kind of alcohol or drugs.

Now I have moved to another part of town and my life is completely changed. I am no longer self-conscious, I have more friends than I used to have, and my answers to some of these questions will be different in a few months. Do you think it would be safe for me to smoke cigarettes and use a little pot? — Trying To Grow Up Decent

Dear Trying: Cigarette smoking is not safe for anybody. We know for certain that cigarettes can cause lung cancer, emphysema and heart problems. There's been a great deal written about this subject and unless you've been living in a cave for the last ten years, I can't imagine how you missed it.

I don't believe pot would improve your life, but I do know it kills motivation, wastes time, alters visual perception, and has been the cause of many serious automobile accidents. My advice is to stay away from cigarettes for health reasons and pass up the pot because what you stand to gain is nothing compared with what you might lose.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (28 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have always heard that when your thyroid gland gets out of whack you get fat. I was surprised to read in your column that this is not so, or that it rarely happens. My doctor must agree, because when I suggested that my fatness might be caused by the gland problem, he pooh-poohed the idea. He said, "If you want the tests I can order them, but it's a waste of money." Can you clarify this for me? I am not greatly overweight, but do find losing weight difficult. This gland idea has me worried. — Mrs. T.E.

Incomplete medical knowledge can be worse than none at all in some cases. Thyroid gland deficiency (underactivity) can be a cause of obesity, but the idea can be oversimplified. The fact is that it seldom is, and in most cases the only one who really benefits from the testing is the laboratory.

The reason for saying this is that the symptom of overweight, if it is related to gland function, is usually a late-appearing one. There are a host of other symptoms that precede it, any one or group of which would probably get a patient in for examination. These include weakness, intolerance to cold, dry thickened skin and fluid retention (edema). There may be brittleness of nails and hair.

Confronted with such symptoms, a doctor might begin to suspect thyroid gland deficiency and want the tests. The symptoms indicate a general slowing of body metabolism; which is what helps promote weight gain.

Puffiness of the face and edema is a classic sign, but I presume you have had none of the ones I mentioned. Hence, your doctor has good enough reason NOT to suspect thyroid gland involvement in your overweight problem. But if you can't get the idea out of your mind it might be well to have the tests, an admittedly expensive way to ease your anxiety and convince you that willpower, not glands, is what is deficient.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have heard that chocolate and candy do not cause pimples and acne. My mother insists they do. Who is correct? — D.S.

Both of you are partially correct.

For years, doctors recommended certain diets for various conditions, including skin problems like acne. Your mother remembers well what she was taught. The restrictions usually included your chocolates, nuts, fatty or fried foods, seafood, alcoholic beverages, as well as limiting all kinds of carbohydrates (starchy foods, etc.) More recent studies, however, have failed to show where diet of any kind helps clear up or prevent acne or skin blemishes. In fact, your dentist would object more to the candy than would your dermatologist (skin specialist).

It is generally agreed today that acne results from a combination of things — hormones, skin gland activity and possibly skin bacteria. So why do I say that mother might be partially correct? It's because one's total diet may be a secondary factor. For example, overdoing any one food source (such as chocolates and other sweets) tends to throw a diet into imbalance. That can affect general skin health. If you do have acne, you have to look elsewhere than to diet for help. You may want to read a more extensive treatment of this subject in the booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." If so, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611 and I'll send a copy.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: With teenage sex increasing along with teenage VD and abortions, can you say something for parents of teenage girls who seem bent on experimenting in this? — Mrs. P.N.

VD is rising among teenage girls. Latest figures I've seen indicate that about a third of all abortions are performed on teenagers, so you are not overstating the dimensions of this problem.

Nothing I can say would be half as effective as what you might in a one-to-one discussion with your own daughter. Literature seldom is as effective, although the Planned Parenthood Federation of America has recently published a pamphlet on this subject for teenagers. It is called, "Teensex? — It's OK to Say 'No Way'." I have reviewed it and it appears to be a sensible approach, one teenage girls can relate to. A local branch of the organization will be able to tell you how to get a copy.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: My daughter-in-law tells me you can send a few strands of your hair away to a laboratory and be told what is lacking in your diet. True? — J.D.

I doubt this can be done efficiently. Hard enough to do with blood or other specific tests for various materials. At present the technique should be limited to research, not for diagnosis. Analysis might be able to tell if certain minerals are lacking.

Your thyroid plays a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood, gland. To get a copy, enclose 50 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON—MICHAEL REED

NEW YORK—He was possibly the vilest, slimiest snake to ever worm his way onto a soap opera. Marco Dane on "One Life to Live" made so many enemies that when someone pumped him full of lead, half the townspeople of Llandview were murder suspects.

Heroine Victoria Lord Riley appears to be the prime suspect, and, in fact she's on trial and losing what is left of her mind. She had doubts that half of her former split personality, Nicki Smith, blasted Marco to keep him quiet about Tina's (Vicki's ward) involvement in Marco's pornography ring.

Talk about motive. And talk about a whammo surprise witness. Just last week, "OLTL" audiences, not to mention Vicki, were thrown for a loop when the D.A.'s eleventh-hour witness appeared to be a "dead-ringer" for Marco. As it turned out, the guy is actually Marco's twin brother, Mario Corelli (the real family name). Aha, you say, it's the old soaperoonie twin twist. But hold onto your bated breaths, folks, because you ain't seen half of the surprises that the "OLTL" writers have concocted for this twisted tale. The week of March 15 is being hailed by "OLTL" as the most action-packed in the show's history, with confessions and revelations due to come out old kazoo.

Of course, the same actor, Gerald Anthony, who played Marco is also portraying Mario. "I knew months ago, when Marco was killed," says Gerry, "that I'd be returning. The two months off the show gave me a chance to rest and to work on a few other projects I have bubbling, including a theater company and a rock show I'm putting together." Gerry, a former Pittsburgher, headed his own rock and roll band, "Satan's Men," before turning to acting in his college days.

"Being back on the serial is a challenge," says Gerry. "Mario is the complete other side of Marco. I've shaved off Marco's beard, cut my hair shorter, and I dress more urbanely, lower my voice to make Mario less 'street-smart' than Marco since Mario is an establishment figure. While Marco was turning tricks, Mario educated himself and became a responsible citizen. And I gotta tell you that even around the set, the attitudes of other castmembers toward me have changed. Before, they assumed I was similar to Marco because I was so 'into' the part that I carried around a lot of Marco's wise-acre traits. Now, they see this nice, genteel, straight-laced guy and they can't figure out where I'm at." Which is exactly the sort of ambivalence that the "OLTL" writers have in store for Mario.

"As the audience will soon discover," adds Gerry, with a glint of glee, "the stakes are much higher for the character than they appear on the surface."

So are the stakes in Vicki's trial when you tune in tomorrow.

SHORT TAKES:

ANTHONY CALL, who for years portrayed Dr. Joe Werner on "Guiding Light," is portraying the D.A. prosecuting Vicki on "One Life to Live."

ELOISE ALBERNI, the Des Moines housewife who has alternately tried to seduce and mug Ray Slater on "Love of Life" is portrayed by New Orleans actress Patricia Arnel.

YES, THAT was Judith Barcroft who appeared as April's ma in memory flashbacks on "The Edge of Night." Judith was the original Lenore on "Another World," as well as Anne Martin on "All My Children" until Anne was carted off to the booby hatch two years ago.

OF COURSE, if you've been tuning in tomorrow, you know that April's mother is actually Margo Huntington, who's been hot after April's brother, Miles. Again, in a story twist, April and Miles are half-brother and sister, so no incest is involved. But there is a big, juicy murder involved. Who knocked off blackmailer and all-around nasty guy Wade Meacham?

Tune in tomorrow.

MICROWAVES

Thirty-five percent of all households will have microwave ovens by 1983, compared to 10 percent today, says Nancy Granovsky, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Consumers can expect to find new lines of housewares and food products designed exclusively for microwave oven use, the specialist adds.

We don't think too highly of the bidding of today's hand. Notrump is clearly a better place to play the hand than hearts. At the same time, you don't want to be in seven and at least this pair kept out of seven.

South's five notrump was the grand slam force and North's six-heart reply denied two of the three trump honors.

In any event, any rubber bridge player who stops at six hearts and makes seven has played the hand badly. The reason is that he can use a safety play to insure his contract against any 4-0 trump break.

At trick two, he leads a trump and sticks in dummy's seven. This guards against finding all four trumps in the West hand.

Of course, if West shows out South will be able to guard against East's four trumps.

East gets an unexpected trick with his jack, but since both opponents followed to the first heart the suit can't break 4-0 and South makes his slam without the overtrick.

North opens one spade. A Texas reader wants to know what we bid with the South hand.

The correct response is two clubs. We have a good hand and want to bid our longest suit first. We intend to show spades later.

NUTRIBIRD — The symbol of National Nutrition Week is Nutribird. His lettuce head and carrot nose remind families to include plenty of vegetables in daily menus.

National Nutrition Week Stresses Diet, Exercise

CHICAGO (Special) — "Set the Pace! Take the Food Way for Good Nutrition," is the theme set for the seventh annual National Nutrition Week, March 4-10, sponsored by the American Dietitic Association.

NUTRIBIRD has been selected as the symbol for the week's emphasis.

Top-rated nutrition and daily exercise that you enjoy are the cornerstones of protective health care and fitness. Make sure that you enjoy your food, too. You don't have to be a biochemist or mathematician to put together nutritious meals. It just takes a little time to learn the basis of nutrition in order to avoid most foibles and follies propagated by the food fadists.

It doesn't have to cost a lot of money to eat right if you know what you are buying. Our food supply has an abundance of nutrients; so eat a wide variety of foods. The basis of a sound diet is to build on minimum servings of the essentials: milk and milk products, meat or a meat alternate, fruits and vegetables, and enriched or whole-grain breads and cereals.

Be sure to add just enough of these four or other foods to meet your needs for energy and satisfying meals. Moderate exercise helps to burn up calories and keep energy in balance.

The National Nutrition Week message is conveyed jointly by the ADA and its affiliates in the 50 states and more than 200 district associations throughout the country. ADA's 36,000 members work in hospitals and clinics, universities, government, school lunch programs, public health programs and in private practice.

In observance of National Nutrition Week 1979, Clara Zempel, ADA executive director said, "Set your own pace. Make your nutrition fit your need for calorie-counting nutrients and for energy. Couple the food you eat and the exercise you enjoy. They add up to a winning combination — you and your health."

Alcove Provides Sewing Corner In Unused Area

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

It's a fact: you'll sew more if you have a space where you can keep your machine set up, your fabric out and all your equipment conveniently at hand.

Even if you live in a one-room apartment, you may be able to set aside a portion of the room to serve a sewing area.

Designer Carl Fuchs set up just such a one-room apartment in Celanese House and created, with fabrics of Celanese fibers, a setting that is colorful, imaginative and very practical.

If your room has an alcove, use it for your sewing room. If not, create a 4-foot by 8-foot alcove by building a plywood wall. Then create storage space with a dropped ceiling. Add a work table and shelves and curtain the whole thing off with draperies. A library ladder on wheels (put a wood ladder on casters) glides along the rod, for easy access to the ceiling storage area.

The reason you should make the alcove 4-by-8 is so one sheet of plywood can form the dropped ceiling. Cut pieces of two-foot pine to frame the area and attach to walls. Glue and screw plywood or cover with fabric.

To cover front of storage area, cut fabric to fit plus two-inch allowance for stapling. Then set four industrial zippers (two for each side of storage area) into fabric on two matching semicircular paths. Since each zipper takes up only half a semicircle, it will bend to fit. Clip the outer edge of the tape if necessary.

Mark curves on fabric, pin and cut. Pin zippers and steam to match the curve. Machine-stitch with zipper foot. Staple fabric to framing, folding in raw edges and stapling through fold. Make a flat welting strip and glue in place to cover staples.

The walls inside the alcove may be covered with fabric to match the curtains. This treatment finishes the walls nicely and gives a surface which may be used as a bulletin board for pattern instructions.

The work table is on casters and has a hinged section that opens to enlarge the work surface. The ottomans, covered in plaid cotton and Fortrel, are also on casters.

With fabric, plywood and imagination, you can create your own sewing room — even in a one-room apartment.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

After years of being frustrated at myself for cutting out recipes I thought would be good from newspapers and not being able to find them again because I didn't copy them onto recipe cards right away, I finally found a surer solution.

I bought a big fat, three-ring looseleaf binder like the ones my children use for school and a box of plastic sheet protectors with the punched edges, which have a sheet of sturdy black paper inside, and a set of dividers.

This has become my "quickie idea cookbook." When a printed recipe strikes my fancy I cut it out and glue it onto the inside black sheet (sometimes I also cut out the picture) and, presto, I've made a "cookbook" of all kinds of recipes.

It's handy to use and the pages do not get frayed because they're all under plastic!

Also, it has helped me give up all of the old magazines I saved because of the recipes I was "going to copy" when I had time. My husband thinks it's a super idea for that reason alone! — Kay Cook

DEAR HELOISE:

Ode to leftovers:

DEAR HELOISE:

Without breaking an egg, here is a simple test to tell if it is hard-boiled or not.

On a flat surface, stand the egg on one end and whirl it around. If it spins, it is boiled.

DEAR HELOISE:

To remove the crease left from a hem use a piece of twine string.

Lay the article flat and place the twine along the crease on the wrong side. Press with a damp cloth.

I have used this method for years and it works every time for me. — E.B.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

I have three dogs of different sizes so I buy two large-sized flea collars and cut them to fit the two larger dogs. The leftover pieces are enough to make a collar for the smaller dog.

Punch holes in the ends of the pieces and join them making the size collar needed, using good twine and square knots.

I checked with my veterinarian to be sure the strength of the insecticide was the same in all collars regardless of size. It is...Presto! Three collars for the price of two. — Betty Arons

Use an old pair of nylon pantyhose and go over the floor. It picks up lint, etc. quicker than you can imagine, and you can just drop in the garbage. — Bira Layman

Hart Trial Gets Slow Start As Selection Of Jury Begins

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — The first-degree murder trial of Gene Leroy Hart got off to a slow start Monday as court officials became bogged down with jury exemptions and last-minute defense motions.

Jury selection was to have begun Monday for the trial of Hart, charged in the June 13, 1977, sex slayings of three young Girl Scouts their first night at a camp in northeastern Oklahoma.

But the first group of 20 jurors was not summoned to the courtroom of District Judge William Whistler until 11:45 a.m., nearly three hours after the court session was to have begun.

Only two prospective jurors were questioned before a noon recess. One was dismissed and the other was temporarily seated. Questioning continued in the afternoon.

Hart nervously puffed on a cigarette and spoke with his attorneys as the jury selection continued. Guards stood at each of the four doors to the courtroom throughout the morning as Hart sat at the defense table, clad in a tan sports coat and plaid pants and wearing gold-rimmed glasses.

Earlier in the day, Garvin Isaacs, Hart's chief attorney, unsuccessfully sought a continuance of the trial. The motion was one of four he filed Monday and the latest of more than 70 filed in the case this year. All four were denied by Whistler.

The 35-year-old Hart was charged with murder 10 days after the bodies of Lori Lee Farmer, 8; Michele Guse, 9, and Doris Denise Milner, 10, all of the Tulsa area, were found where an attacker had dragged them from a tent. But it was 10 months before he was captured in an isolated shack about 50 miles from the camp.

Hart was a jail escapee at the time of the slayings.

Jury selection was expected to continue throughout the week with 900 Mayes County residents called for examination. A group of 128 waited in an auditorium across the street to be summoned to the courthouse Monday. Some 40 persons were excused by the judge earlier in the morning because they fell under statutory exemption from jury duty.

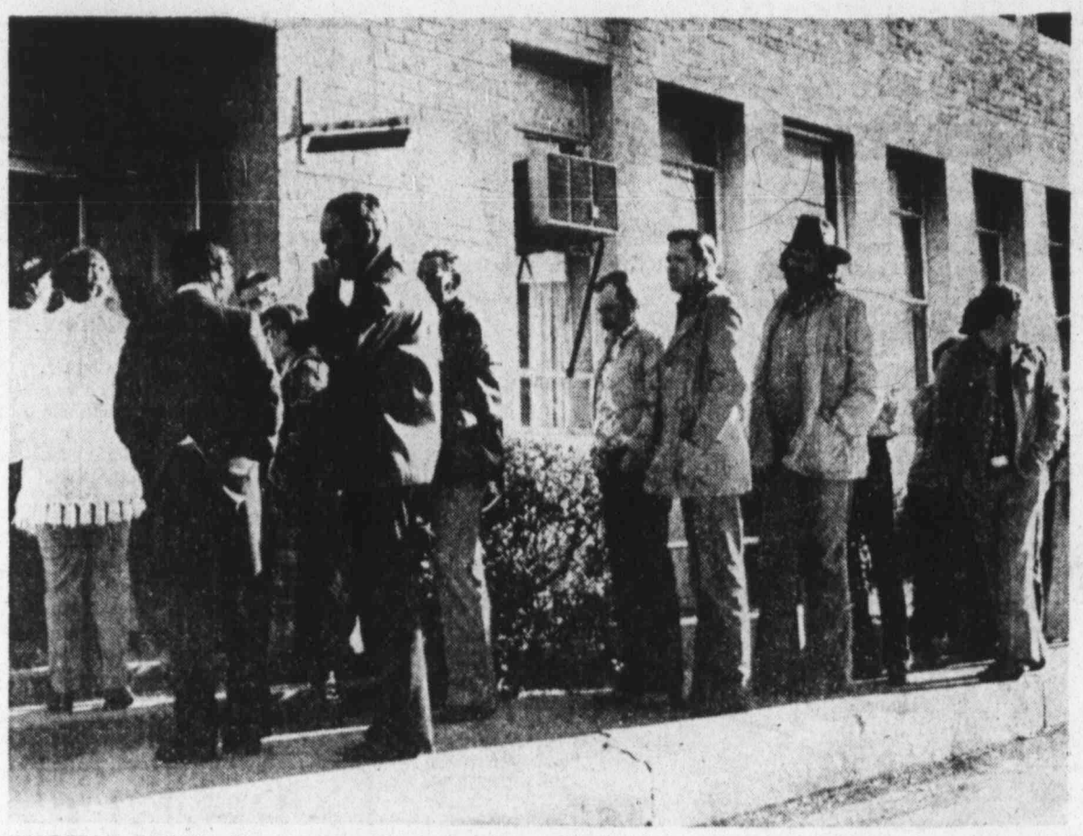

Whistler met in the auditorium early in the morning with 175 prospective jurors to begin the jury selection. At the time trial was to begin, he was still talking with them.

Isaacs indicated he would ask for a material witness warrant for former Pryor newspaperman Ron Grimsley. Isaacs said Grimsley failed to answer a subpoena requiring his attendance at today's court opening.

It was Grimsley's testimony at a motions hearing last year that he had seen dozens of pages of investigative reports not turned over to the defense that led to a ruling last week by the Court of Criminal Appeals for the state to give Isaacs any investigative reports that might bear on Hart's innocence. The state says it has done so.

Once the judge finished with the prospective jurors, they were taken to the courtroom in groups of 20 for questioning by Isaacs and prosecutors T. Jack Graves, Mayes County district attorney, and Tulsa County Distrit Attorney S.M. Fallis Jr.

Hart was bound over for trial at the end of a month-long preliminary hearing that included testimony from nearly 100 witnesses. It was one of the longest such hearings in state history.

Public Confidence In Congress, Media Higher

By LOUIS HARRIS

Confidence in most of the key institutions in the country has slipped again. Medicine, organized religion, major companies and organized labor are the areas that showed the greatest decline in ratings. By contrast, public regard for television news, the press and Congress is up.

Significantly, in this latest ABC News-Harris Survey of 1,199 adults nationwide, Congress is now held in higher esteem by Americans than either the executive branch of the federal government or the White House. Traditionally, the president and the executive branch have almost always enjoyed more confidence than the Congress. The present more favorable rating of Congress could be a signal for more initiative in both foreign and domestic affairs by the legislative branch of the federal government.

Here is the trend of what is happening to public confidence in various institutions:

•Clearly, the days when doctors and medical leaders were the sacred cows of the establishment now appear to be at an end. No more than 30 percent of the public express high confidence in them in this latest survey, a decline of 12 points just in the past year, 25 points in the past two years, and 43 points since 1966. These results undoubtedly reflect the growing public concern about medical and health costs.

•The leaders of organized religion now generate no more than a 20 percent vote of high confidence from Americans. This represents a drop of 14 points in the past year alone and is the lowest confidence level for the clergy since such ratings were first recorded in 1966, when 41 percent held the clergy in high regard.

•Only 10 percent of Americans express high confidence in labor leaders, down five points from last year and 12 points from the top score of 22 percent registered 13 years ago. Despite a successful settlement of the oil workers' contract within the anti-inflation guidelines, labor unions and their leaders are widely seen as not cooperating with President Carter's voluntary controls program.

•Business leaders come up with no better than an 18 percent high confidence rating, down four points from last year, five from the year before, and 37 points below the high 55 percent rating in 1966. During a period when Americans are very worried about high prices, people clearly do not trust corporate leaders to keep prices in line voluntarily. The all-time low rating of business leaders took place in 1974, at the height of Watergate, with its disclosures of widespread illegal corporate political contributions, when the level of high regard stood at 15 percent.

•College presidents receive a high confidence score of 33 percent, down from the 41 percent recorded in each of the past two years, but still two points above the lowest rating of 31 percent in 1976. However, the current rating is 28 points below the high-water mark of 61 percent in 1966.

•In contrast to all these declines, high confidence in television news stands at 37 percent, up two points from last year, up seven points from two years ago, and only four points below the high 41 percent rating recorded during the Watergate hearings of 1973.

•The press receives a high confidence rating of 28 percent, which is five points better than last year and nine points above the 1977 mark of 19 percent. This current relatively high rating of the press is the third best in 13 years, surpassed only by the high 30 percent recorded in 1973 during the Watergate disclosures and the 29 percent rating registered in 1966. The ratings of both the press and television news tend to go up when those of most of the rest of the establishment go down, due in large part to the role of the media in reporting the excesses of other institutions.

•In rating government, the most significant change is the rise of Congress from a lowly 10 percent high confidence rating a year ago to 18 percent today. This is the highest mark for Congress since 1973, when it received much credit for its investigation of the Watergate affair. However, Congress is still well below the 42 percent high confidence level it enjoyed way back in 1966.

•The executive branch of the federal government now has a 17 percent high confidence score, up from 14 percent last year, but six points below the 23 percent registered in 1977. The White House now has a 15 percent high confidence rating, up a point from last August, but down 16 points from the top marks of 31 percent recorded in the early days of 1977, just after President Carter took office.

Judge Drops Contempt Charges Against New Orleans Officers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Contempt of court charges were dismissed Monday against police officers who upset the city's Mardi Gras celebration before they ended a 16-day strike by breaking their own union and returning to work without a contract.

Civil District Judge Richard Garvey threw out the charges on a motion to clear the union leadership of all responsibility for the strike. Earlier in the day, the city had moved to drop the charges against the rank-and-file union membership, but continued the case against seven union leaders.

The Policemen's Association of Louisiana itself still faces a contempt charge for ignoring Garvey's back-to-work order after the judge ruled that the strike was illegal.

The job action cost the city an undetermined part of the $50 million usually earned during the Mardi Gras celebration.

Key testimony in Monday's brief trial came from Sgt. George Bonnett, who said City Attorney Donald Hoffman told him the day before the strike ended that the city would not press contempt citations against any men who went back to work — whether or not a contract was ratified.

He said he went to the union meeting and told the members what Hoffman said. Then they voted down the contract and quietly went back to work, only to be told Monday that some of them would be prosecuted.

The walkout ended Sunday with the union admitting defeat and losing recognition as the bargaining agent for the 1,514-man police department.

Police had begun returning to work Saturday after union leaders said they would recommend approval of the city's last contract offer.

The contract was rejected by a vote of 447-173, but police continued to return to work anyway.

Mayor Ernest Morial then announced the city no longer recognized the Teamsters-affiliated police union as the bargaining agent and withdrew the last offer.

Morial said Sunday that the city could "no longer determine who represents the organization." He also said, "There is nothing to be accomplished by further negotiations."

He said the city would abide by its offer to increase uniform allowances by 10 percent to $275 a year, increase insurance coverage and develop a new formula to determine overtime payments.

The move by the city to lay the blame on the union leaders followed a morning of negotiations in which the city tried fruitlessly to get them to accept the responsibility voluntarily.

The first proposal was to get all 17 members of the union board to take the blame and plead guilty. But every effort was rejected by the 60 blue-uniformed policemen who crowded into the courtroom in the unusual position as defendants.

Military Science Instructor Receives Service Award

Military science professor Clayton S. Roberson of Texas Tech University has been awarded the Defense Meritorious Service Medal for his performance as Action Officer in the Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs in the Pentagon, Washington, D.C.

Lt. Col. Roberson is the 19th person to receive the relatively new medal. The formal presentation was made by Arts and Sciences Dean Lawrence L. Graves in ceremonies in the Army ROTC offices on campus.

Roberson, a 1965 graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor's degree in geology, assumed the Texas Tech assignment Sept. 1 after seven years in the Pentagon, the last four years in the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Affairs. The three years prior to that he was on the Department of Army Staff.

Hospital Release Set For Billy Carter

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter will be released from the Americus-Sumter County Hospital either Wednesday or Thursday, according to his doctor.

The president's brother has been hospitalized 10 days with a severe case of bronchitis, but his physician, Dr. Paul Broun, said Monday his condition has continued to improve.

"He's doing very well. He's coming along nicely and will get out of the hospital either Wednesday or Thursday," Broun said.

Last week, published reports indicated that Carter had been admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital for treatment of alcohol abuse.

But that report was denied by Broun and officials at Bethesda. Later, Billy Carter was interviewed through the window of his Americus hospital room by reporters from WALB-TV in Albany, Ga.

End Sought To Conflict In Public Broadcasting

NEW YORK (AP) — A great deal of conflict between the two agencies running the nation's non-commercial radio and television system can be resolved without congressional action, says Newton N. Minow, chairman of the Public Broadcasting Service.

"We're talking now with Robben Fleming of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, trying to analyze what we can do without changing the law," says Minow, a former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission who took the PBS post last June.

"We want to know what steps can be taken administratively to reform our structures to enable us to work more harmoniously," he says.

In fact, CPB and PBS have been embroiled for several years in what amounts to a jurisdictional dispute. Both were created by the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, the corporation to administer financing of non-commercial radio and TV, PBS to oversee programming and station interconnection.

PBS officials have complained loudly of CPB interference in programming, and of the corporation's failure to insulate programming from political pressure.

The Carnegie Commission on the Future of Public Broadcasting, in its report issued Jan. 30, examined the troubled CPB-PBS relationship, and recommended an overhaul of the system.

Revision of the law governing public broadcasting appears inevitable, but it's Minow's that position a number of changes can be made in the meantime to protect both agencies' interests.

"The main thing I want, speaking personally, is to assure we are insulated from politics," Minow says. In fact, that was a prime concern of the Carnegie Commission.

Documents from former President Nixon's Office of Telecommunications Policy, opened to the public within the last several days, demonstrate clearly a failure of the CPB to protect public radio and TV from political pressure.

"The idea at the start was for CPB to insulate and protect us from the politicians," Minow says. "We found they were the politicians.

"CPB should be the people who represent us before Congress. We shouldn't ever have to go to Congress. They should be there protecting our independence."

Those who doubt the need for an independent programming agency should examine carefully the administration papers, Minow says.

"Many people thought we were being paranoid when we complained about political interference," he says. "I think the release of these papers confirms we had a right to be concerned.

"There was a lot in those papers we didn't know about. To see this campaign against public affairs programming and our independence laid out so flatly is frightening."

Minow says a number of relatively recent developments, including the appointment of Fleming, a former University of Michigan president as CPB president, and the Carnegie Commission's report, have improved the climate for constructive change.

"I think the Carnegie Commission identified a number of problems — they call them 'structural flaws' — and I think they identified them correctly," Minow says. "I think they have contributed a very valuable service to us and to Congress and the administration, in suggesting a better structure for public broadcasting.

"I think there is a lot we can do with CPB on our own, and I hope by June we can go to our membership with a common position to effectuate a lot of the changes we consider necessary."

Network Approves Programs Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 235 stations of the Public Television Service have agreed to finance 22 programs next season at a cost of $23.4 million, a $4.2 million increase over this year and by far the largest amount ever.

The programs include such popular attractions as "Sesame Street," "Great Performances," "Bill Moyers' Journal," "Nova," "The MacNeil-Lehrer Report" and "Washington Week in Review."

Two new specials also were selected. They are "Border Traffic," an hour-long documentary from KERA, Dallas, about smuggling of illegal drugs across the Mexican border, and live coverage of the 1979 Drum Corps International Championship from Birmingham, Ala., next August.

Since its inception five years ago, the station program cooperative has become one of the principal sources of funds for public television. The monetary value this year compares with $19.2 million financed in the current season.

In each market, stations individually select from a master list the programs they are most interested in airing. The price each station ultimately pays for a specific program is determined by taking into account the number of stations carrying the program. Each pays a proportionate share of production or acquisition costs.

This year's purchases included two new series. They are "Sneak Previews — Take 2" from WTTW, Chicago, a companion to an earlier series of film critiques, and "Dancing Disco" from WGBH, Boston, an eight-part series on mastering the latest dance steps.

Purchased for the first time were "Bill Moyers' Journal," produced by WNET, New York; "Over Easy," the Hugh Downs program from WQED, San Francisco which is aimed at senior citizens, and "World" from WGBH, Boston, a documentary series examining conditions abroad.

Other programs which are being purchased by the cooperative are "Another Voice" from WHYY in Philadelphia-Wilmington, black and other minority news; "Austin City Limits" from KLR, Austin-San Antonio, progressive country music; "Crockett's Victory Garden" from WGBH, Boston, a gardening program; "The Dick Cavett Show" from WNET and Daphne Productions, interviews;

"Evening at Pops" from WGBH, Boston, the Boston Pops Orchestra; "Firing Line," with William F. Buckley Jr., from the Southern Educational Communications Association; "Mark Russell Comedy Specials" from WNED, Buffalo, N.Y., featuring Washington's resident satirist;

"Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" from Family Communications, Pittsburgh; "Soundstage" from WTTW, Chicago, jazz, folk, rock, country, blues; "Wall Street Week" from the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting.

The public stations also will finance a daily exchange feed in which stations throughout the country contribute film reports on news events. The feeds are assembled at WGBH, Boston.

Czech Police Offer To Buy Coffin For Writer Under House Arrest

LONDON (AP) — Police have dissident Czech playwright Vaclav Havel under strict house arrest in Prague — not letting him go out even to buy food — but have offered to find him a coffin if he starves, according to a letter attributed to him.

The letter purportedly is a copy of a protest note Havel, 42, sent Saturday to Czechoslvak Interior Minister Jaromir Obzina.

It was obtained by The Associated Press from Palach Press Ltd., a private news and literary agency founded three years ago by Czech exiles, and reportedly was smuggled out of Prague by Havel's friends.

Havel is a leading member of the Charter 77 human rights movement in Czechoslovakia. He was given a three-year suspended sentence in 1977 after being convicted of sending "anti-state literature" abroad.

Charter 77 was formed to press Czechoslovakia's communist government to comply with the human rights declaration it subscribed to at the international Helsinki conferece in 1975.

The letter attributed to Havel said, "This house arrest is getting increasingly worse. Until recently I was allowed ... at least to go for necessary household purchases. But as from yesterday, that is March 2, 1979, I have been prevented from leaving the flat even to buy something to eat.

"The policemen who guard my flat told me that they didn't mind if I starved to death; they would gladly find me a coffin when that happened."

It said police occasionally "while away their time" by ringing the doorbell of the apartment and shouting abuse.

It was not known where his wife, Olga, is staying, but the letter said Havel was alone in the Prague apartment. They have no children.

Czech sources in London said it is possible the government of President Gustav Husak is trying to harass Havel into emigrating. Two other Charter 77 members, playwright Pavel Kohout and actor Pavel Landovsky, recently left the country.

Havel has turned down two government offers to emigrate, but the letter referred to that possibility, saying, "Sorry to realize what can happen in the country in which I live, which I love, and which I don't want to leave."

There are conflicting reports from Prague about the status of the Charter 77 movement, which initially involved 242 Czechoslovaks.

The number reportedly has increased to 1,000, but many of the founders have died, been jailed, gone into exile or become disillusioned.

In a recent essay, novelist Ludvik Vaculik said they had acted "heroic" over issues that no longer excited anyone.

The movement has protested the lack of free speech, free press, freedom of assembly and freedom to travel as called for in the Helsinki pact.

Members say dissidents are fired from their jobs and have difficulty placing their children in secondary schools or colleges. Charter 77 has started a welfare fund, with help from abroad, for such families.

Marvin Property Trial Goes Into Eighth Week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin returns to the witness stand when the Lee Marvin property rights trial enters its eighth week today.

Court was in recess Monday while the judge handled other cases.

Lawyers representing the 55-year-old actor called Miss Marvin to the stand Friday. They say they will present testimony from six more witnesses, including Marvin, before concluding their defense case, possibly this week.

Miss Marvin, 46, in her second turn on the witness stand, is to be questioned by her own lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson.

Mitchelson said he would have Miss Marvin explain in detail why her name was on the lease for a Hollywood apartment during the time she lived with Marvin at a Malibu beach house.

Marvin's lawyers produced the lease in court, seeking to prove that Miss Marvin never expected to live permanently at the actor's home and didn't think he would support her.

Miss Marvin said she signed the lease as a favor to her manager, Mimi Marleaux, who had just moved to California and had not established credit. She said Miss Marleaux paid the rent and lived there.

Marvin's lawyers are fighting the former showgirl's claim to $1.8 million, an estimated half of Marvin's assets during the six years he lived with Miss Marvin.

Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall has estimated the trial will conclude March 20, following rebuttal testimony by Miss Marvin's lawyer.

Business Group Sets Planning Meeting

Lubbock area members of the Texas Association of Business will hold a planning meeting at noon today at the Hilton Inn to consider state legislative matters.

Topics scheduled for discussion include an up-date on TAB's priority issues before the Texas Legislature, a report on TABPAC (TAB's political action committee), and presentation of the 1979 affirmative action program for members in Region III.

L.V. Durland, 1979 chairman of the association and refinery manager of Amoco Texas Refining Co., Texas City, will serve as chairman for the program.

If You Can't Beat 'Em, Abolish 'Em

GREENACRES CITY, Fla. (AP) — When Leland Elliott received a $5 parking ticket, he decided that in addition to fighting city hall, he would try to abolish it. And his campaign is worrying officials of the tiny city in Palm Beach County.

He already has collected the necessary signatures from 15 percent of the city's 2,253 registered voters. A referendum will be held April 10 on whether to unincorporate the city.

Elliott says it was the ticket for parking in a handicapped zone outside city hall that was the last straw.

Elliott subsequently proved to a county judge that he is a disabled veteran, suffering from fibrosis of the lungs and unable to walk long distances. A few days later, he began distributing the petitions.

"I'm sure people don't realize the services they're going to lose," said Mayor Gordon Spinney. "I don't think it's dawned on them that they'd lose police, fire, library services, parks and every bit of street lighting."

But supporters said most of those services could be obtained cheaper from the county.

As for Elliott, he's just tired of unresponsive governemnt.

"You can't fight it and I can't fight it. So there's got to be an end to it all."

Kiddie Ads Battle Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer and industry groups resumed their struggle Monday over the question of whether the federal government should regulate advertising aimed at children.

A spokesman for the grocery industry charged that the Federal Trade Commission is trying to inspire a new national diet, while a consumer group urged the agency to go beyond the regulation it has proposed.

At stake in the FTC proceeding is about $600 million in children's advertising on TV.

After two weeks of hearings in January in San Francisco, the opposing sides resumed their charges and countercharges Monday in an FTC hearing room in Washington that was inadequate to handle the overflow crowd. A closed-circuit television broadcast of the hearing was beamed into a second hearing room.

Peggy Charren, founder of Action for Children's Television, recommended that TV ads aimed at children 12 years old or younger be banned. This went beyond the FTC proposal last year to ban ads aimed at children up to 8 years old.

Mrs. Charren contended that children up to age 12 are unable to understand the selling purpose of TV ads. "Even the older child cannot bring enough experience to decide rationally on these commercial messsages," she told Administrative Law Judge Morton Needleman.

Mrs. Charren said every commercial aimed at children up to 12 is inherently deceptive even when the message itself is truthful. She said this is because children are unable to understand the profit motive of the advertiser and therefore are deceived.

But Robert W. Harkins, vice president for scientific affairs of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, said the FTC proposal would result in "a new national diet."

"... The idea of an FTC-inspired national diet, based upon the personal tastes and fears of a few individuals, is offensive in concept and would be dangerous in practice," Harkins said.

He said the logical conclusion of the FTC proposal would mean allowing no food with more than 20 percent sugar.

The grocery trade group brought out trays of typical foods consumed by American youngsters and then subtracted dairy products, fruit and vegetables, leaving a diet in which about half the calories come from fats.

Harkins said the subtractions would be made necessary by the diet he said was a logical extension of the FTC-proposed regulation. Harkins said this diet would be "severely unbalanced."

After the hearings, Judge Needleman will issue a report giving his recommendations on the original proposal. Then the FTC will decide what regulation, if any, to put into effect.

Ex-Indian Bandit Dotes Now On 5-Foot Mustache

JAISALMER, India (UPI) — They once called Karna Ramdhin the terror of the Great Indian Desert, but the ex-bandit has now settled into retirement to devote full time to his new passion — grooming his 5-foot mustache.

Not that the strapping 65 year-old Karna has lost any of his skill. He can still outride the best of the younger camel jockeys and is also a crack shot with his vintage Lee Enfield .303 rifle, which he is forbidden to use under his parole.

But then there's that mustache that adorns his sun-darkened face.

"From end to end, my mustache measures only 5 feet now, but the day isn't far off when I shall be displaying double its length," Karna said proudly. "It takes me a couple of hours each morning to clean, comb and curl my mustache," he said. He uses mustard oil and butter with a dash of wax to keep his whiskers in good shape.

Born to a family of farmers in Jaisalmer, in the heart of the Great Indian Desert, Karna took to gun running across the India-Pakistan border at the age of 35.

Arrested by the Pakistanis, he escaped only to be arrested by the Indian police in 1971 and sentenced to life imprisonment on charges of robbery and manslaughter. Three years ago he was released on parole for good conduct.

Now Karna spends his time caring for his prodigious mustache, playing the "nad," a local wind instrument, or gossiping about his past adventures. In far-flung and sparsely populated districts such as Jaisalmer, banditry is still a major business. "But the returns aren't big," Karna said.

"Once I robbed an entire village of seven families and all I walked away lith was a fez bags of coarse grain and a couple of camels."

"No, I don't thing I shalt ever return to banditry again. But I also do not know how I shall live without using my rifle," Karna said.

Swimmers Ignore Piranha Warnings

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — A sign reading "caution: piranhas attacking" would discourage most people from going into the water, but not the intrepid crowd at two beaches 75 miles west of Sao Paulo.

Despite dozens of minor attacks by the man-eating fish in the past two weeks, swimmers regularly show up in the lake formed by Salto Grande Dam.

"Every weekend it's the same, the beaches are full," complained one of the six firemen in charge of lifeguard duties.

"Even after suffering an attack, no one believes the piranhas are really biting," he said. "Even those who are hurt go swimming again. Bat what can we do? We can't prohibit them from swimming".

The attacks have occurred off the twin beaches of Namorados and Azul, formed by the dam on the Atibaia River. The beaches are popular weekend spots for many of Sao Paulo's 8 million residents.

The swimmers are not fazed by warning signs such as "Caution: Piranhas Attacking." Nor does it bother them apparently that in the past 15 days 30 people have been bitten, none very seriously except for a boy who lost part of a toe.

The lifeguards, none of whom wished to be identified, say the attacks are worst in late February and March.

FCC Denies Review Of Order For Exchange Of TV Stations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Monday that it has denied KEMO-TV, Inc., reconsideration of a July order permitting the exchange of UHF television channel 60 for channel 14 at San Francisco and UHF TV channel 14 for channel 60 at San Mateo, Calif.

The two San Mateo channels are reserved for educational use. KEMO-TV holds the license for the station with those call letters in San Francisco.

The change permitted KDTV to change its channel from 60 to 14 and KCSM, San Mateo, to change from channel 14 to channel 60.

Opposition to the reconsideration request was filed by Bahia de San Francisco Television Co., licensee of KDTV-TV, San Francisco, and the San Mateo Community College, licensee of KCM-TV, San Mateo. They are competing Spanish-language stations in the Bay Area.

The FCC also announced receipt of these petitions for transfer of ownership or control:

•Muskegon, Mich.: WQWQ-FM, voluntary assignment of license from Multi-Com, Inc., to TPS Broadcasting Co.

•Vero Beach, Fla.: WTTB-AM, voluntary assignment of license from Tropica, Inc., to Atlantic Communications, Inc.

•Compton, Calif.: KJLH-FM, voluntary assignment of license from John La-mar Hill to Taxi Productions, Inc.

•Pensacola, Fla.: WAJB-FM, transfer of control from Barba Broadcasting Co. to Thomas A. Barba, Thomas A. Barba Jr. and Carole Lynch, joint tenants, and Marlyn F. Lynch, as a family group.

•El Paso: KIO-AM and KLOZ-FM, voluntary assignment of license from Mesa Radio, Inc., to Jalapeno Broadcasting, Inc.

•Odessa: KOYL-AM and KOYL-FM, voluntary assignment of license from Mid-Cities Broadcasting Corp. to Stream Broadcasting of Texas, Inc.

Large Coffee Firms Announce Price Cut

Several major coffee companies announced Monday a series of reduced wholesale prices of their ground coffee brands by a nickel a pound in the second round of price cuts of the past three weeks.

Procter Gamble Co., the nation's second-largest coffee roaster, said "declines in imported green coffee prices" led to the wholesale reductions in its Folger's brands. Hills Brothers, the third-ranked roaster, gave a similar reason in announcing its price reductions.

General Foods Corp., the No. 1-ranked roaster, did not immediately follow the moves by Procter Gamble and Hills Brothers, but "obviously, if Hill's has done it, we're going to have a look at it," said spokesman Jack Whiteman.

Retail coffee prices have been declining for more than 1½ years from their record high of more than $4 a pound, and the wholesale price cuts may be reflected in retail prices when new shipments reach supermarkets. But many retailers already sell coffee at or below wholesale as a promotional item.

The last round of 5 cents-a-pound price reductions came in mid-February

Among Monday's price cuts:

—Folger's ground coffee declined 5 cents a pound to $2.43. Folger's Flaked brand coffee declined 4 cents to $1.96 for a 13-ounce can.

—Hills Brothers, the nation's third-largest roaster, reduced the wholesale price of ground coffee from $2.48 to $2.43 a pound. Its High Yield brand was cut 4 cents to $1.96 for a 13-ounce can. Another San Francisco-based roaster, M.J.B. Coffee Co., also cut wholesale prices of ground coffee by 5 cents to $2.43 a pound.

Farmers Face Loss Of Chemical

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the government decides to ban completely a brush-killing chemical called 2,4,5-T, farmers and ranchers will be deprived of a popular tool for improving livestock pastures and rangelands.

A partial ban on 2,4,5-T was announced last week by the Environmental Protection Agency, including elimination of it in forestry because of potential health hazards.

As it has in the past, the Agriculture Department is continuing to allow 2,4,5-T to be used for clearing brush and weeds from grasslands under the Agriculture Conservation Program which helps them pay for the spraying.

Millions of acres have been treated with 2,4,5-T over the years to rid it of brush and other growth so that livestock can have better grazing.

The ACP, as the program is known, has been available since the mid-1930s to help farmers pay part of the costs of conserving soil and water.

One of the "practices" that has been available involves the improvement of pastures and rangelands by clearing away competing brush and other vegetation.

Although this can be done mechanically, chemical treatment with 2,4,5-T is generally more economical and just as effective over time.

In recent years, Congress has insisted that ACP be oriented more to practices with conservation and pollution-control benefits. Certain practices that in the past have helped boost crop productivity have been eliminated or curbed.

When the 1979 ACP was announced as a proposal last fall, the practice of helping producers pay for clearing brush was dropped because it was felt by the department that it did not fully meet the conservation-oriented standards.

Vincent Grimes, who works with the program in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said that after the proposal to eliminate it last fall "we got a lot of comment on this, with lots of data to substantiate it as a desirable practice" in the program.

As a result, the practice was placed back into ACP for 1979 as a component of "permanent vegetative cover improvement," Grimes said.

But the final decision will rest with state committees of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, he said. If a county unit wants to continue or begin the practice it must supply the state committee with documented evidence that it has merits for saving soil and water in that locality.

Grimes said the controversy about 2,4,5-T was another reason that USDA initially proposed to drop brush-clearing as an approved practice.

Exact figures are not available because the ACP brush-clearing practice has been juggled many times over the years among different approved practices. Also, the agency says it does not make a distinction in its records to show whether payments have been made for spraying pastures with 2,4,5-T or other means of controlling plant growth.

But the most recent figures show that some 85,886 farms and ranches were involved in "permanent cover and rangeland improvement" operations. Almost 2.9 million acres were involved, with federal payments totaling almost $23.4 million.

Some agency officials have estimated that perhaps 50 percent of the brush contol has involved chemicals, notably 2,4,5-T.

The Agriculture Department last week sent a 900-page draft report to the Environmental Protection Agency in which a panel of experts assessed some of the economic impact on agricultural products if 2,4,5-T were banned completely.

The heaviest economic load of a ban on the chemical would be in forestry where it is used to hasten reforestation and to kill competing growth.

On grazing lands, the report said, 2,4,5-T is applied to 1.6 million acres annually to control mesquite and other growth in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri. It is used also in other states against brush and weeds, but on a "more limited acreage," it said.

If the chemical is banned, producers in the major states where it is used would lose an estimated $872,000 in the first year, the report said.

The chemical gained notoriety when it was used extensively by U.S. forces — as a component of "Agent Orange" — to defoliate jungle.

"Critics of the herbicide's use in Vietnam contend that in addition to killing plants the herbicide killed people, livestock and wild animals, and caused human birth defects," says a USDA background paper.

"A committee of the National Academy of Sciences investigated these charges in 1974 but could find 'no conclusive evidence of association between exposure to herbicides and birth defects in humans'," the report said.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC., has learned that an "onerous change" in 1979 farm program regulations will not be allowed to stand as announced.

Following instructions from the USDA's state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in College Station, county ASCS offices on the High Plains have informed producers during the past two weeks that the 1978 provision for "failure to fully comply" would not be in effect this year.

Under that provision last year, a producer who unintentionally erred in measuring and reporting to ASCS his acreage of program crops and-or set-aside acreage by more than the allowable 5 percent tolerance was subject to a rather heavy penalty but qualified for other program benefits.

IF THE ANNOUNCED CHANGE HAD BEEN left in effect, a mistake of more than 5 percent in the acreage a producer reported would have put him completely out of the program and ineligible for Commodity Credit Corp. loans, disaster or deficiency payments.

Objections to the more severe treatment of erroenous acreage measurements were made by both producers and county ASCS personnel.

Producers pointed out the inequality of denying all program benefits to someone who conscientiously tried to meet program eligiblity requirements.

County ASCS spokesmen, and eventually USDA officials at higher levels, foresaw that the change would result in a greatly increased and hard-to-meet demand for the measurement service offered by ASCS.

Reversal of the decision to do away with the failure to fully comply allowance, according to a state official, essentially reinstates the regulations in effect last year except that penalities in certain instances will be somwhat smaller.

THE EXACT PENALTY SCHEDULE for 1979 is not yet known but should be available soon to producers from county ASCS offices.

The state official did say that a "determination of good faith" will be necessary in every instance where acreage is misreported by more than 5 percent.

County ASCS committees will be able to make good faith determinations for producers who err in their reporting by more than 5 percent but less than 10 percent, he said, but mistakes of more than 10 percent will have to be considered by the state committee.

It also was pointed out that penalities will be extracted only from producers who earn program payments and that the penalty assessed any individual cannot exceed the amount of his payments.

Cattle Futures Rise On Chicago Exchange

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 10 to 100 points higher except for January at a loss of 20 Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. August was up the most after October at 110. Sales totaled 18,325 cars.

April rose to a new historic high at 73.10 with most other contracts at new highs for the season on record high cash cattle and beef. A leading local sold April with a cash connected commission house buying on the scale-down.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 101 to 102 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were up $1 to $3 with the best top $71 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $70.50. Both were all-time highs.

Slaughter was 95,000 head. The major markets are expecting 12,800 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 10 to 55 higher led by November with May exceptionally off 15. Volume was estimated at 4,382 lots. Prices were up 80 led by November on continued strength in cash cattle and beef.

March escalated to a new historic high at 91.90 on short covering and other buying touched off by record high cattle and beef. Traders ignored increased feeder cattle arrivals although other marketings were slowed by wintry weather.

There have been 48 deliveries thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to up $5 with the best top $142 per hundredweight at San Antonio. The major terminals are expecting 2,000 head today.

Hog futures closed 80 to 150 lower led by December at the limit decline. Prices closed at the lows for the day after an early gain of 35 in October. Outset buying on weather-reduced hog runs and sharply higher prices encouraged profit-taking and other selling. Volume was 7,862 contracts.

Prices slipped to three-week lows, more than three cents under recent highs on local and commission house selling. Heavy kill last week also brought pressure.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 1 cent at 87B to 91 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up $1.75 to off 50 cents with the best top $55 per hundredweight. Kill was 258,000 head. About 24,500 head are expected today at the major markets.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 35 to 97 lower led by July which fell 112 earlier. Sales totalled 4,631 cars. An early gain of 65 lacked follow through.

Initially, the market gained on weather-reduced hog runs and higher prices. Selling was touched off by heavy kill last week and reduced bacon slicings coupled with input of 374,000 pounds of bellies into local storage last week.

Deliveries total 12 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged at 55 3/4 to 60 1/2 cents a pounds, f.o.b. river.

Moulton Man Promoted At Plainview Facility

PLAINVIEW (Special) — A native of Moulton has been chosen by the Southwestern Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., to fill a newly created position at the Plainview production facility.

Don Michalec, who joined the Southwestern Division as assistant plant manager in 1978, has been promoted to the new post of plant operations manager, according to Duane Griffith, general production manager.

"The operation of the Pioneer plant at Plainview has become very complex over the past three years," Griffith said in making the announcement. "The plant has the capability and capacity to simultaneously handle several crops. In fact, on any given work day, the operations of sorghum and corn harvest plus corn sizing, rework, drying and shipping may be occuring.

"With this expansion, an increased need has developed for planning and scheduling to insure efficient operation. The position of plant operations manager was designed to fill that need," Griffith said.

Before his employment with Pioneer, Michalec worked for another seed company for 11 years in various management position.

Lamb And Castro Counties Set Elections For PCG Directors

Elections of producer directors to Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. will be conducted March 12 in Lamb and Castro counties.

Lamb County cotton producers and businessmen will elect a director at a 7:30 a.m. breakfast meeting at the Tasty Taco Restaurant, 5th and XIT Drive in Littlefield, according to J. D. Smith of Sudan, current Lamb County producer director, and Guy Walden of Sudan, businessman director.

At 7:30 p.m., Castro County cotton producers and businessmen will choose a director in the Assembly Room of the Castro County Courthouse in Dimmitt, according to Edd C. McLeroy, Castro County businessman director, and Charles Axtell of Springlake, current producer director.

Following the Castro County election, the Texas Agriculture Extension Service will present a program on cotton production practices. A member of the PCG staff will review the present cotton legislative situation and the organization's work in that regard.

Each of the 25 counties in PCG territory has two directors, one a businessman and the other a cotton producer. They are elected on alternate years for two-year terms. Each is eligible for re-election every second year.

All producers and businessmen are invited to the meetings. However, under new PCG by-laws, only current dues-paying members of PCG will be eligible to be elected a director or to vote in the election. This provision of the by-laws will be explained at the meeting.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures rose today on the Chicago Board of Trade on commission house buying and rumors of new export demand.

Analysts said rumors of a new soybean export sale were triggered by heavy brokerage house buying and talk that the purchases could have been transferred to an exporter.

A reported purchase of vegetable oil by Egypt and indications of other upcoming buying tenders also lent support to prices in the soybean complex.

Soybean futures were lower at the open in response to a sharp decline in silver futures and other precious metals, where an inflation-hedge buying wave collapsed on news of an easing of tension in the China-Vietnam war and a possible compromise by Israel on Middle East peace. Slow farmer selling also was a factor.

In wheat futures, nearby delivery or old-crop months made gains of up to 6¼ cents a bushel, while more distant deliveries were lower. A tightness in supplies of soft red winter wheat in Chicago and of other types of wheat deliverable against futures contracts continued to be a factor, analysts said.

At the close, soybeans were 2¾ to 11½ cents a bushel higher, March $7.52; wheat was 1½ cents lower to 6¼ cents higher, March $3.86¼; corn was ¼ to ¾ cent higher, March $2.37¼; and oats were 2¼ to 2¾ cents higher, March $1.32.

Tax Break On Sale Of House Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service notes that many older people can avoid taxation on the gain they may make from selling their home.

Under a new law gain on a home sale can be excluded from income — one time only — up to $100,000.

This applies to persons aged 55 and older and the home must have been owned and the principal residence of the individual for three of the five years before the sale.

This provision became available last July 26 and persons who want to take advantage of it should use Form 2119 when computing their taxes.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline prices, which have risen about 2 cents a gallon since Jan. 1, will continue to go up sharply over the next few months — especially if the government forces service stations to close on weekends, analysts said Monday.

But just how large the increases will be or when they will come is uncertain, the experts add, because of continued questions about world crude oil supply.

"The key variables to me are the OPEC price, which has yet to be determined, and the marketplace," said Eugene Nowak, an oil industry analyst at the Wall Street firm of Blyth Eastman Dillon.

The price increase since the first of the year varies by area because of local market factors. For example, regular-grade leaded gasoline bought at a full-service station now costs an average 76.8 cents per gallon in Chicago, up from 74.8 cents two months ago, according to the Lundberg Letter, a gasoline industry newsletter. The average price in Newark, N.J. has risen from 65.6 cents per gallon to 67.4 cents.

The price rise for unleaded gas is even more pronounced. Motorists in Omaha are now paying an average 80.5 cents a gallon, up from 77.3 cents in January. Cincinnati prices are up from 73.4 cents to 75.68 cents.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg letter, says the increases so far this year are mostly the result of inlfationary pressures on dealers, who have some margin under government controls to push prices up.

OPEC Action Felt

Lundberg said the impact of the rise in OPEC crude oil prices that became effective Jan. 1 is just now being felt. He also points out that in the next few weeks, prices will rise as much as a nickel because the Department of Energy loosened price controls last week.

This move, known as the "tilt," allows refiners to pass along more of their costs to consumers. The move is designed to encourage companies to build refineries, but it will also raise gasoline prices 10 cents in the next two years, the DOE estimates.

Prices will also rise in the next few weeks because of the supply squeeze brought on by the Iranian revolution. Several OPEC members have raised oil prices on their own to cash in on the tight supply, and this will soon be felt at the gas pump.

May Exceed Predictions

OPEC could decide when it meets later this month to raise crude prices even more than the 3.9 percent increase scheduled April 1. Nowak, who predicts a 10-cent-a-gallon rise in the price of gasoline by the end of 1979, said that would change his prediction. "If the OPEC price goes higher, that would be a bit conservative," he said.

Nowak says he is more optimistic, though, than Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, who said last week prices of unleaded gasoline could top $1 a gallon a year or so from now, with leaded regular up to 75 cents.

Lundberg, on the other hand, is pessimistic. He said the inflationary pressure that drove prices up in January and February "is a trend that we are likely to see continue." He said prices could rise 15 more cents by year's end.

And he predicted that mandatory weekend closing of gasoline stations would drive prices up further. The weekend closing is part of President Carter's proposed conservation plan that Schlesinger said would only be used if shortages continued into the summer.

Calling that possibility "a ticking bomb," the Lundberg Letter this week says weekend closings "would create massive congestion at stations during the remaining open hours. Worse, it could be the psychological trigger needed to send prices into orbit."

The newsletter said dealers could raise profit margins beyond federally mandated ceilings if sales were curtailed by the government, because they would have to get more return on less gasoline to make the same amount of money as before sales were cut.

The Energy Department estimates that weekend closings would cut gasoline consumption by about 3 percent, but Lundberg said it would be almost impossible for gas stations to sell 97 percent of what they do now if they were closed for two days a week.

The Xinhua statement also warned that China reserves the right "to strike back again in self-defense" if the Vietnamese resume border provocations against China. When it sent its troops storming across the Vietnamese frontier Feb. 17, Peking said it was "punishing" Hanoi for border incidents.

Vietnam Charges "Failure"

A Vietnam radio broadcast Monday said China's leaders "failed in their large-scale invasion to teach Vietnam a lesson and could not fulfill their expansionist aims."

The Xinhua announcement called for immediate talks between the two countries "to discuss ways of ensuring peace and tranquility ... and then proceed to settle the boundary and territorial disputes."

Reports from Peking quoting unidentified Chinese officials have indicated that China may hold on to some disputed territory previously controlled by the Vietnamese. One report said it involves less than 40 square miles scattered along the 700-mile border.

The Vietnamese newspaper report Monday said that in some border areas seized by the Chinese troops "they built Chinese-style houses and flew the Chinese flag in an attempt to permanently occupy the area."

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Peking announcement "confirms that China continues to covet Vietnamese lands." Moscow has repeatedly warned China to pull out of Soviet-allied Vietnam but has not threatened any specific reprisal.

Fresh Troops Reported

Both Vietnam and the Soviets contend that China has brought up fresh army units to the battle area in recent days, and they charge that Peking may be plotting an attack on Vietnam-dominated Laos as well.

In Cambodia, soldiers of the new regime set up by Vietnam hoisted their flag at Poipet, a key Cambodian crossing point at the Thai frontier. Thai sources said guerrillas of the ousted Pol Pot government retreated from Poipet toward the south.

A local resident told an Associated Press writer that he had encountered Vietnamese troops on the Thai side of the border Sunday during an unexplained outbreak of fighting in which a Thai policeman was killed and two other Thais were wounded.

Seven Rescued From Flooded Georgia Cave

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (AP) — Weary and wet, an assistant college geology professor and six students walked out of a mountain cave Sunday, 29 hours after they were trapped in an underground room by rising water.

Nineteen-year-old Cheryl Gillis was the first to leave the cave in Pigeon Mountain, walking into the arms of her waiting mother.

"Thank God you're safe," Calonia Gillis of Macon, Ga., cried as the two women embraced.

Most of the Georgia Southwestern College expedition members climbed the steep banks of a rushing stream that had filled the cave on the arms of divers who made three attempts before reaching the party.

Tell Jopkes, Sleep

Psychology major Warren Moore, 22, said the group huddled together to keep warm and told jokes or slept through the long night.

"We were 40 feet above water. Nobody panicked. There was no doubt we'd get out," said Moore, who added it had been his first — but certainly not his last — caving experience.

He said the party was preparing another escape attempt when rescuer Larry Bean, 38, of Smyrna, Ga., arrived after making his way through a water-filled passageway.

A medical team flown in from West Virginia checked their vital signs and wrapped them in blankets and heavy protective bags. All seven were taken to Tri-County Hospital at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., for examination.

The blankets and protective bags are designed to warm victims of hypyothermia — loss of body heat. Some in the party were also given oxygen, but all soon appeared to be in good spirits.

Leader Last Out

Assistant professor Barry Beck, who led the expedition, was the last man out. He'd taken the party of five men and two women into the subterranean passage about 11 a.m. Saturday.

Authorities said the group was trapped about 4 p.m. Saturday when rising water from the rain-swollen stream flowed through the cavern, blocking a narrow passageway.

Rescuers said the group remained dry in a large room. They had entered the cave with only enough food for a day's outing. The temperature inside was estimated to be about 57 degrees.

Rescue workers stood by through the night and all day Sunday as the water continued to pour from the triangular opening on Pigeon Mountain about 15 miles west of LaFayette. Warren County cave rescue squad chief Steve Hudson led four divers into the cave Sunday morning, but the team could not get past the passageway about 100 feet beneath the surface of the mountain.

Several churches in the southwest Georgia city of 17,000 held special services to pray for the safe return of the cavers.

Iran Oil Supply Flowing Again

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran started supplying the world's hungry oil market for the first time in 10 weeks Monday with a shipment of crude oil bound for Japan. The Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary government, meanwhile, executed eight more members of the Shah of Iran's toppled regime.

"The days when foreign tankers could come to Iranian ports and load as much oil as they wanted, under prices and conditions dictated by them, are over," said Hassan Nazih, the new managing director of Iran's state-owned National Iranian Oil Co. "We will export only enough to meet our financial needs."

Rig Blast

about how to extinguish the fire would be made until Adair arrived, though fireboats were working to contain the blaze.

Baeten said the rig was a diesel-type platform that "could have up to 24 wells working at that time."

The other wells were reportedly equipped with anti-pollution valves to close them in the event of an accident.

"They were drilling on this one well," King said. "The platform was a producing platform, but it's only this one well that's involved."

The drilling derrick atop the rig collapsed amid the flames several hours after the fire started. Six boats surrounded the rig and sprayed water on it in an effort to prevent further collapse and keep the fire from spreading to other wells.

Baeten said the 27 survivors escaped in an evacuation capsule and were taken aboard another Penrod rig several miles from the fire. Four suffered minor injuries and were flown to a Lafayette, La., hospital.

LEAP Tagged Answer To Educator's Dream

"Students from Coronado High, Estacado High, Lubbock High and Monterey High are eligible for LEAP at Lubbock High School as full-time students only. Because of the present court-ordered desegregation plan, students living in the Dunbar-Struggs attendance area are eligible for LEAP only as commuter students."

The Lubbock Independent School District already has had some experience with commuter students.

Under the desegregation plan implemented last fall, the district concentrated its work-study and certain art and music programs as magnets at Dunbar-Struggs High.

Shuttle Buses Provided

Dozens of students from Coronado, Lubbock High and Monterey attend Dunbar-Struggs only for a few class periods, to take jazz-rock, for instance. The district runs shuttle buses all day among the high schools involved.

The school board decided to require all LEAP students except those from Dunbar-Struggs to transfer to Lubbock High on a full-time basis as a way to boost the declining Lubbock High enrollment.

Knox Williams, Lubbock High principal, calls LEAP "the answer to every educator's dream." He said the program will "take students beyond what we normally offer in high school."

LEAP will consist of regular courses, academic honors courses, pre-professional courses and expanded elective offerings, Williams said in "Public Schools Report" broadcast on radio station KFYO.

New Courses Planned

The program will include dozens of courses new to Lubbock, including Russian and Chinese languages, electronic guitar, dance, gymnastics, film production and second-year biology and physics.

Many of the courses will be geared to help students be "extra-specially prepared" for college work in engineering, law or medicine, Williams said.

"Field trips will be a very integral part of this program," he added. The school district, for example, plans to send a Western cultures class on a tour of Europe, and a government honors class to Washington, D.C.

Students will have an opportunity to sign up for LEAP in the next few weeks, Williams said.

Floods Plague Several States

The Associated Press

Rivers and streams were brimful and overflowing from chilly Michigan to balmy Alabama on Monday as the winter's record snows melted under driving rains and rising temperatures.

In the wake of weekend storms which killed at least 12 persons across the nation, flash floods splashed through the suburbs of Chicago, nearly 1,000 people were trapped by high water in an apartment complex in the suburbs of Grand Rapids, Mich., and sandbags were thrown up in the lowlands of Alabama.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham planned to tour the Panhandle City of Pensacola where residents were digging out from under the debris of "Soggy Saturday," a weekend deluge of 14 inches of rain that drove 5,000 persons from their homes and left property damage estimated Monday at more than $15 million.

"We didn't have rivers running over or anything like that," said Pensacola Red Cross spokesman Wally Renken. "It was just plain old water from the heavens."

Graham said he may ask President Carter to declare the region a disaster area.

In Alabama, where scores of secondary roads were washed out earlier, including a large section of Interstate 59 just west of Birmingham, flood warnings were issued along most rivers and streams.

The flooding claimed another victim Monday in northwest Missouri. Raymond Henderson, 78, of Rosendale was drowned when his pickup trucks was swept into the flooded Hundred and Two River.

Rain persisted from the Great Lakes southward to the Carolinas and eastward to New England, while snow was falling from eastern Iowa through Wisconsin into upper Michigan.

Palestinian self-rule on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza.

An informed source in Jerusalem said Israel made some movement on that demand.

Another problem which the U.S. proposals also reportedly dealt with was the clause saying the treaty supercedes all previous conflicting agreements. Sadat, backed by the United States, has insisted that the treaty not take precedence over Egypt's commitment to assist other Arab countries in wars of self-defense against Israel.

The impact of the new U.S. proposals on these issues was not clear. However, American officials have stressed that not all the remaining differences are covered by the suggestions.

Begin, Senators Meet

Begin met with more than 50 U.S. senators for over an hour Monday afternoon and told reporters later he believes Sadat can accept the new proposals.

Several senators who were in the meeting said they gained the impression one major U.S. proposal deals with assurances to Israel that Egypt would live up to peace treaty terms despite what other arrangements it might have with Arab governments.

Powell's announcement said the talks "will focus on the peace process, regional security and bilateral issues."

Apart from the peace treaty, both Egypt and Israel are looking for large quantities of U.S. military and economic assistance from the United States.

After Monday's Israeli cabinet action, Powell said "this is a positive sign, but the president is still concerned about the peace process. Difficult issues remain, and the consequences of failure are no less grave than they were a few days ago."

CRASH KILLS FOUR

PALMERTON, Pa. (AP) — Four Philadelphians died in the crash of a private plane in a wooded area near this lower Carbon County community, the Federal Aviation Administration said Monday. There were no survivors, said regional FAA spokesman George Calverly in Allentown. The plane apparently was a PA28 Romeo from the Philadelphia area which had been reported missing previously, Calverly said.

Jupiter Pictures Elate Scientists

color shots showed a delicate, beautiful interplay of orange, tan, blue and white.

Scientists weren't the only viewers impressed. About 450 invited guests, including actor Sidney Poitier, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and science fiction writer Ray Bradbury, waxed enthusiastic as the transmissions came in.

"It was a very spectacular mission," said Lonne Lane, assistant project scientist. "The results were just remarkable. It's going to take us a while to digest all this new information."

Voyager I passed within 12,000 miles of Io after flying 172,475 miles above Jupiter. The closest approach to Jupiter came at 4:42 a.m., but it took 37 minutes for the pictures to be sent back across 420 million miles of space.

WHILE IT HEADS for a November 1980 look at Saturn, Voyager 1 will examine two more of Jupiter's moons. Trailing behind is Voyager 2, due at Jupiter on July 9 and at Saturn in August 1981.

Project officials said Voyager 1, launched 18 months ago, seemed to survive its trip through Jupiter's harsh radiation with only minor problems.

One problem occurred several hours before the close encounter when an instrument designed to study the makeup of the Jovian atmosphere began drawing too much power. Officials said it completed its major function and then was temporarily turned off.

Project manager Robert Parks said technicians had discovered "an apparent slowdown of the timer — the basic heart of the spacecraft" which governs its operation.

Parks said the timer seems to have slowed down by about 1½ seconds per hour which means "everything will be happening a little slower than we had predicted. At this time, it does not appear to be a major problem, but we are watching it very carefully."

Voyager also looked briefly at little Amalthea, the dim, rocky moon closest to Jupiter. The pictures showed a boulder-like object looking like a misshapen and battered potato some 150 miles across.

Amin Planning Major New Offensive

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin abandoned his cease-fire efforts Monday and called on his army to "fight to the last man" in a major new drive planned against Tanzanian invaders, Radio Uganda said.

The broadcast, monitored here, called on every Ugandan in the occupied areas to "evacuate immediately before a major offensive is launched to liberate Ugandan territory." There was no indication when the drive might start.

The Tanzanians, backed by Ugandan exiles and dissident Ugandan soldiers, control much of southwestern Uganda and kept up pressure Monday on Lukaya, 52 miles from the capital of Kampala and 70 miles inside Uganda.

Lukaya, on the main road from the Tanzanian border to Kampala, has been under heavy artillery fire for days, apparently to soften it up for a Tanzanian attack.

Sources in Kampala reached by telephone said the capital was calm and there was no evidence the Tanzanians would advance on it. Diplomats said there were no plans to evacuate the 3,000 foreigners, including 130 Americans, in Kampala.

Most of the Americans are missionaries or have vested interests in Uganda and have refused previous offers to leave.

Amin's threat of a new offensive was a change from his efforts last week to seek peace through the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity.

The Tanzanians, enraged by Amin's invasion of northern Tanzania last October, have rejected mediation efforts. Speculation here is that Tanzania will not attack Kampala but will try to keep up enough pressure on Amin's eight-year-old regime to cause it to crumble from within.

Monday's broadcast told fishermen to keep off Lake Victoria at night because of "measures being taken to combat enemies who cross into Uganda via the lake," whose shores are shared by Uganda, Tanzania and Kenya.

The Nation newspaper of Nairobi quoted an unidentified Ugandan close to Amin as saying 2,500 Libyan and Moroccan troops had arrived in Uganda to help Amin, a Moslem. Western diplomats in Nairobi said they could not confirm this.

In the Tanzanian capital of Dar es Salaam, exiled former Ugandan President Milton Obote admitted for the first time that his supporters are now fighting Amin's forces in Uganda.

Obote said in an interview for television that his guerrilla forces are "marching towards Kampala." Obote was overthrown by Amin on Jan. 25, 1971, while he was in Singapore attending a meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers.

Amin and Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere have been bitter enemies since Amin ousted Obote and Nyerere gave the former president asylum.

Obote says he is certain Amin will fall but said he does not plan to return to Uganda as president.

"I will return as a Ugandan," he said. "We want to liberate the country first before we talk about leaders. First we must liberate the country, then we will sit down to decide how to elect our next president."

He added, "I have a lot of support inside Uganda. That is a fact."

In statements released in Nairobi and Dar es Salaam, Ugandan exiles said that raiders who struck the border town of Tororo last week seized arms from a government armory there and killed 300 to 400 troops loyal to Amin.

The anti-Amin expatriates said the raid had been planned well in advance with dissident soldiers in the town, and "all objectives were achieved." Their claims could not be verified.

Sources in Totoro, however, reported that truck and rail traffic from Kenya through the key border town has been reaching Kampala normally. They said the anti-Amin guerrillas tried to cut the supply line Friday by attacking Tororo, but government forces repulsed them.

Uganda invaded northern Tanzania five months ago, occupying 700 square miles of territory which Amin claimed, but the Tanzanians drove the invaders out.

Reports from Ugandans in Nairobi and Dar es Salaam indicate the Tanzanians have occupied the two biggest towns in southern Uganda, Mbarara and Masaka, within 50 miles of the border. Telephone communications with both towns have been cut.

Last week Amin pleaded with the Organization of African Unity and the United Nations for a cease-fire, but Nyerere said he would pull his troops back only if Amin publicly abandoned territorial claims to Tanzanian land and paid reparations for damage done during his invasion.

Three Students Arrested After Apartment Burglary

Three Lubbock Christian College students, two 19-year-olds and a 20-year-old, were arrested on suspicion of burglary about 2 a.m. Monday while reportedly stashing their loot in the LCC field house.

In reported break-ins, Irma J. Wheeler of 2610 E. Bates St. told police that thieves took $1,320 worth of household goods from her home sometime between 9:45 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Monday. The stolen property included a couch, color TV and jewelry.

William D. Holder, owner of a business at 2905 Texas Ave., said someone removed $1,000 worth of turquoise and silver jewelry from his store sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Monday.

Savario J. D'Angelo of 1706 26th St., Apt. F26, said her place was burglarized between Friday morning and 10 p.m. Sunday and $2,500 in property, including a TV set, stereo and assorted household items, was stolen.

Odell Missildine of 2701-B Boston Ave. reported that someone took $150 from his bedroom sometime late Sunday or early Monday.

John David Warren of 2302-B 14th St. said he lost $696 in jewelry and a stereo to house burglars Sunday.

Maria Elena Gonzales of 102 Waco Ave. said that she had left her car, valued at $3,500, idling in front of her residence and when she returned she found the car was gone. The incident reportedly occurred sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. Monday.

Harold Ribble of 7502 Ave. H told officers that someone drove away in his 1973 station wagon while it was parked in his driveway sometime early Monday.

Larry Robertson of 7822 Ave. V said his $6,000 pickup was stolen while it was parked in front of his residence between 10:30 p.m. Sunday and 3 a.m. Monday.

Jessie O. Jones of 7803 Vernon Ave. said he noticed his vehicle, which he valued at $3,000, missing from in front of his house about 1:45 a.m. Monday.

A $4,300 car, owned by Gerald A. Gonzales, reportedly was stolen while parked at 13th Street and Avenue G sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Sunday.

Darren Curtis Welch of 4007 48th St. told police his car, worth about $2,000, was parked at 1411 Ave. J Sunday afternoon when thieves apparently drove it off.

City Employees Vote Twice In Two Days

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) Public works employees were voting on a tentative settlement of a four-day-old strike Monday for the second time in two days.

The vote, by secret ballot, followed an inconclusive standing vote Sunday night. Union officers said they called for a standing vote because they had not had time to prepare ballots after long weekend sessions at the bargaining table.

Samuel Baker of the city's labor relations department said at mid-day Monday that the turnout among the 435 members of Local 2002 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees was "respectable." He declined to say how many had voted.

The proposed 18-month agreement provides for a 5 percent wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and would put the total wage increase at 9.5 percent by the end of the contract.

The union had sought a one-year contract with a 10 percent raise and protection against inflation. The city had offered a two-year contract with a 5 percent wage increase the first year and 10 percent the second.

Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert Webster ordered the union and city to resume bargaining Saturday after talks broke down Friday night and a federal judge refused to step in. Officials of this city of 85,000 people 35 miles north of Detroit had asked for a back-to-work order from Webster.

Area Schools Prepared For Lubbock County Spelling Bee

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Avalanche-Journal Staff

With the Lubbock County Spelling Bee coming up at the end of the week, Lubbock schools have been hurriedly holding school spelling bees.

The county contest will be at 9 a.m. Saturday in Evans Junior High School Auditorium. School winners from Lubbock County elementary and junior high schools will be entrants in the county bee.

Vickie Manning, eighth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Manning of 3102 69th St., was the winner of the Evans Junior High spelling bee. In a contest lasting 42 rounds, Vickie correctly spelled the word "assess," missed by alternate Howie Moyes, eighth-grade son of Dr. and Mrs. James R. Moyes of 3702 67th St. She went on to correctly spell "bailiff" to win the contest.

Winner of the recent Alderson Junior High spelling bee is Don Armstead, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Armstead of 1502 E. 10th St. Alternate is Michael Madrid, a seventh-grader and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Madrid of 307 E. Tulane Ave. The word misspelled by Michael was "ballad." Don spelled it correctly and spelled "bandit" for the championship.

"Excel" was the word missed by alternate Roger Valdez Valdez, son of Mrs. Mary Valdez of 2272 E. 48th St., in the recent Brown Elementary spelling bee. Winner Candice Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole of 3704 Ave. R, correctly spelled the word, and spelled "faculty" to become winner of the bee.

Anne Ellsworth, fifth-grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ellsworth of 4910 13th St., is the winner of the Mahon Elementary school spelling bee. Fifth-grader Amy Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Vaughn of 4605 Eighth St., is alternate. The word missed by Amy was "adoration" and after correctly spelling that word, Anne went on to spell "alimony" to win the contest.

Nelda Dunn, director and pronouncer of the Christ The King Elementary School spelling bee, reported the winners of that contest. "Lilt" was the word missed by alternate Dawn Rhoden, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rhoden of 1501 E. 78th St. "Linkage" was the winning word for Laurie Nienhuser, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nienhuser.

More Than Just A Game

IT WAS CENSUS time, and although work had not been completed, word leaked out in this city not far south of here that the signs on the edge of town boasted of about 15,000 folks the feds had not located.

Jokes weren't too funny around the C of C. Then this big civic leader's collar caught fire. He wanted those folks on the census rolls. He called the newspaper and radio stations and wanted an appeal to the uncounted. . .Put coupons in the paper so the people could volunteer their information; that'd help.

In fact, he was so pleased with this idea that, "I've been counted, but I'll take three of them home myself."

That's civic spirit.

Now, this morning, when the custodian puts the lock to the key leading to Tech's ticket office, Gerald Myers could be there, nose pressed against the glass, his hand clutching a handful of five-spots.

What it all involves in getting lots of folks into Lubbock Coliseum Thursday night for the first round of the National Invitation Tournament, and this is serious business for the Raider coach. There's the matter of preparing for the Hoosier invasion, but for Myers, just as important is a clamor for tickets to that battle.

• • •

WHEN MYERS SPOKE Monday as his weekly press conference, he mentioned the Aggies and Arkansas and his Raiders and the Southwest Conference tournament, but he spent most of his time boosting the NIT and Tech's present and future relations with the New York City-based promoters.

Tech never had a serious sniff from the NIT prior to this season. In years past, there have been some words about the Raiders getting an invitation, but most of the talk originated in Lubbock and followed that wishful trail out of the coffee shop.

Actually, until this decade, SWC teams were not even allowed to accept invitations. (It all went back to the scandals of the late '40s, after Texas had played there and its game had been mentioned as a possible fix.)

But, Sunday night, the Raiders got one of those infrequent invitations, and Myers is hoping it will not be the last. And that's where the ticket sale and comes civid pride come in.

• • •

"WE WANT A big crowd, a capacity crowd," Myers said Monday. "I don't know why they decided to play the game here, when Indiana has averaged more than 14,000 a game (Tech averaged 8,194 in conference this year).

"But, I think they (NIT officials) want to see if the Southwest Conference is growing as much as we say it is. So, I feel it's really important that the people get behind it and support the game.

"If we are to get any consideration for a second-round game, we need a capacity crowd. . . as well as for future NIT consideration.

"I'm sure that the team would like to have a big crowd in there to support them, but for us to continue to get any recognition, we need to have a good showing — in the stands as well as on the court."

• • •

SINCE THE TOURNAMENT is being administered by Tech under instructions from the NIT, there will be no reserved seats, and thus, Tech's regular season ticket holders will not have first shot at their regular spots.

Those season ticket holders who send in their checks, get their tickets but never attend has been a delicate subject around Tech for years. The money comes in, true, but there is not the enthusiasm or support Tech officials have wanted.

And since there is little turnover in the adult section, more and more younger Tech fans — recent graduates included — are being kept out in the cold where, naturally, their interest is slipping.

But, Thursday night provides a barometer by which Tech officials can measure both that support from the non-ticket holders — who have yelled so loudly about their desire to buy — and those now holding tickets.

Lines outside the Tech business office this morning will indicate how much support there really is — and if those young fans who have yelled the loudest for tickets are willing to put their money behind their gripes. This works from both adult and student directions. The students have demanded, at various times, better seating arrangements, prices and ticket plans. A solid student section Thursday night will speak much louder to athletic officials than the regular complaints.

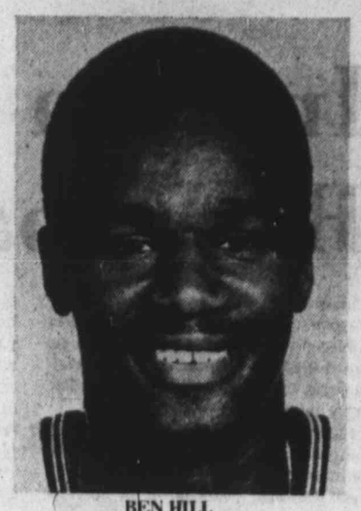

There is interest in some areas, for sure, Indiana officials called Monday and requested 500 tickets. The game is to be televised back to the Hoosier fans over three stations, and a 17-station radio hookup is being readied.

Tech officials have been given the hint that, should the Raiders win over Indiana, they will be in good shape for a home site in the second round.

But, even as that possibility hinges on the Raiders winning, so it could be changed abruptly by a sparse crowd in Lubbock Coliseum.

More than the Raiders will be tested when they turn on the lights Thursday night.

BEN HILL

Myers Respects Woodson, Hoosiers

By DON HENRY
Executive Sports Editor

Ben Hill doesn't know Mike Woodson, but he will have a good opportunity Thursday night to get acquainted.

Already, Hill, the 6-6 sophomore forward from Camden, N.J., has tangled with some good forwards. He renewed his friendship with all-America Sidney Moncrief last Friday.

But, Woodson is the man that Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers fears the most right now, and Woodson and his Indiana University teammates will be in Lubbock Coliseum Thursday at 7:30 p.m. as the National Invitation Tournament opens.

Tickets for that game will go on sale this morning at 8 at the Tech athletic offices. Prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Just as lining up at the ticket window today, so the seats in Lubbock Coliseum will be first-come, first-served Thursday night.

Myers was trying Monday to learn something about the Hoosiers, who will come in with an 18-12 record but a showing of coming on strong in the latter stages of the Big Ten season. And Woodson is the man to watch, says Myers.

"Woodson made the trip to Russia with us (Myers helped coach a U.S. team which played in a tournament there last summer), so I was with him a month. He's a quick shooter, great shooter.

And later, Myers said he might put the 6-6 Hill on the 6-5 Woodson. Hill, while scoring 9 points a game on the offensive end of the floor, has been drawing tough defensive assignments on the opponents' best forwards.

"He has such a quick release on his shot, and they (his teammates) do a good job of setting picks for him and getting him the ball," said Myers.

"They're always looking for him. And he got 48 their last game (in a 72-60 win over Illinois)." (The forward is averaging 21.2 points a game).

The Raiders will enter the game with a 19-10 record after falling to NCAA-bound Arkansas 93-77 in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament at Houston last Friday.

"I think our guys will be ready to play," said Myers. "We're very happy to be invited (to the NIT), and I think the Conference office did a good job of staying on top of it (the selection work) and promoting the conference."

The game here Thursday will be one of five being played in the NIT that night. The other seven first-round games will be played Wednesday.

From there, the teams will be drawn for second-round games, also on home sites. Two of the second-round winners will receive byes to the semifinals in New York City, with the others playing off at home sites for tickets to New York.

Dunbar, which fell to the Coronado JV 19-0 on Monday, and Estacado will be the only two city schools that won't pile into the bus and head out of town today for baseball action.

Monterey, with a 1-2 season record, travels to Big Spring and Coronado (2-1) will be in Midland to face Lee High School. Lubbock High will also go on the road to Abilene to face AHS. LHS currently sports a 1-1 season mark.

The Mustang JV squad simply overwhelmed the Panthers Monday, and CHS led 11-0 after five innings. However both coaches agreed to finish the game (despite the 10-run rule) since both schools were playing almost everyone on its roster.

Indiana State Retains Basketball's Top Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana State, impressive in winning the Missouri Valley Conference tournament last weekend, retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday, easily outdistancing runner-up UCLA.

The Sycamores, 29-0 and headed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament as the No. 1 seed in the Midwest Regional, collected 55 of 58 first-place votes and 1,150 points in balloting by a nationwide committee of sports writers and broadcasters. Indiana State, which defeated New Mexico State, another NCAA tournament-bound team, 69-59 in Saturday's Missouri Valley final, also received one second-place vote, a fourth-place vote and a seventh-place vote.

UCLA, seeded first in the NCAA's West Regional, received the remaining three first-place votes and 1,077 points. The Bruins, who clinched the Pac-10 championship last week with victories over California and Stanford, held a 43-point margin over Atlantic Coast Conference champion North Carolina, 23-5. The Tar Heels, seeded first in the NCAA East Regional, captured the ACC championship last week with a 71-63 triumph over Duke.

Michigan State, which shared the Big Ten championship with Iowa and Purdue, remained in the No. 4 spot with 932 points. The Spartans are seeded second in the NCAA's Mideast Regional — behind Notre Dame, ranked fifth. The Irish, No. 2 last week, collected 850 points after losses to DePaul and Michigan.

Duke slipped one notch to sixth with 810 points — 13 more than Southwest Conference tournament champion Arkansas, No. 10 last week.

DePaul, unranked three weeks ago and 15th a week ago, continued its rapid rise, moving into the No. 8 position with 678 points. Louisiana State, No. 8 last week, collected 612 points to edge Syracuse, No. 6 last week, by two points for the No. 9 position.

Georgetown, which defeated Syracuse 66-58 last Saturday and earned an NCAA tournament bid, was 11th this week with 556 points. Marquette, No. 10 last week but upset by Nevada-Las Vegas 86-83 Sunday, was 12th, followed by Temple, Iowa, Texas, Purdue, Detroit, Louisville, San Francisco and Southeastern Conference champion Tennessee, the only newcomer to this week's Top 20, replacing Ohio State.

Every member of the Top 20 except Purdue will play in the NCAA tournament, which will determine the national champion. The Boilermakers will play in the National Invitational Tournament.

The AP's final poll of the season will be conducted next week.

Broken Thumb No Problem For ISU Star

ATLANTA (AP) — A broken left thumb won't keep all-America Larry Bird of No. 1 Indiana State out of the lineup when the unbeaten Sycamores play Sunday in the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament.

"I fractured the tip of my left thumb in the second half of our game against New Mexico State Saturday, but that won't keep me from playing in the NCAA tournament. I know I can shoot," Bird said Sunday after he accepted the Atlanta Tipoff Club's Naismith Trophy.

Bird, a 6-foot-9 senior, averaged nearly 30 points a game in leading Indiana State, 29-0, to the Missouri Valley Conference title and into the NCAA tournament.

Bird was a first-round choice of the Boston Celtics in the National Basketball Association draft a year ago, but he decided to play his final season at Indiana State.

The Celtics have until the day before the June NBA draft to sign him, or Bird will go back into the regular draft.

"Well, when I came there they were drawing 2,000 a game. Now every game is a sellout. I was one of the causes, but there were seven or eight other guys who came in with me," he said.

Bird and his teammates, however, have resented implications that the school's record is the result of an easy schedule.

"The rankings don't matter all that much now, because we are in the NCAA and that's what counts," he said. "If a team beats us, it will pay the price."

Scales Suspended By LSU Coach

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Star forward DeWayne Scales was suspended from the Louisiana State University basketball team Monday for having repeated contacts with a professional player agent and lying to his coach about it.

Scales will not play when LSU begins play in the NCAA championship elimination tournament Saturday against Appalachian State University in Bloomington, Ind.

Sources close to the team said Scales had taken the agent's advice to ignore his coach's instructions and show off his own abilities as a ball handler. The agent allegedly told Scales that pro scouts already knew he was a shooter, but had to be convinced he could put the ball on the floor.

The change in Scales' style destroyed LSU's game plan against Mississippi State in the final regular season game and against Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference tournament. LSU lost both games.

"In my 23 years of coaching, this has to be the most difficult decision I have ever made," said Brown's statement. "I believe that interference by sources outside our basketball family have forced us to make this decision. I am deeply saddened and I regret I do not have the power to penalize those who have disrupted our basketball team."

The Associated Press learned, however, that Monday's suspension was the second time this season that Scales has been dismissed. After the Mississippi State game, he was suspended but reinstated within 45 minutes, after the rest of the team begged Brown to give the star a second chance.

When Brown learned just before the Kentucky game that the agent had again been in touch with Scales, the coach confronted the player representative in two stormy sessions — once before the game and once afterward.

The agent allegedly told Scales that he could get a $1 million contract over five years if he would bypass his final two years in college and make himself available as a hardship case in the National Basketball Association draft.

Brown was upset because the agent had not checked with him or Scales' mother before contacting the player and because Scales had twice lied to him about contacts by the agent.

Under NCAA regulations, a player is ineligible for further college competition once he has given either a verbal or written commitment to an agent. There was no evidence that Scales had made such a commitment.

"If the agent had gone to Coach Brown, he'd have taken him to meet Scales' mother, introduced them and told him that if he could get him a million, take it. It's once in a lifetime," the source told the AP.

In a joint statement with LSU president Paul W. Murrill, athletic director Paul Dietzel said they agreed with Brown's decision.

"We still consider DeWayne a member of our basketball family and I am particularly fond of this fine young man. I certainly hope our fans will show compassion toward DeWayne. He will return for the 1979-80 season."

Coronado Fem Team Wins Title

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Coronado and Monterey: The two mix about as well as gas and water.

It doesn't seem to matter what the sport, these two schools are bound to be getting after it. The Plainsmen have claimed the football and basketball honors this year, but they're having a little tougher go of it in tennis.

The schools' girls squads met Monday afternoon, and the CHS netters came out on top 7-2 by taking five of six singles matches and two of three in doubles.

That cinched the district title for the CHS girls who now own a 7-0 slate, and that marked the 15th straight district title for the Coronado girls.

And Coronado's tennis domination doesn't stop with the girls. For the last seven years either the boys or girls team — or both — has won the loop crown.

The Plainsmen boys team gave CHS all it could handle last time the two met and could nab at least a share of the district crown with a victory today.

"We beat them 5-4 last time," recalled CHS coach Jim Carter. "And that's about as close as you can get.

"It's going to be another close one, but I think it'll come down to whoever is sharper mentally. The talent is even, it'll just be a matter of which team plays harder."

The CHS boys are led by team captain and two-year letterman Phillip Catuogno. Curt McFarlin heads the MHS roster, comprised mostly of juniors and sophomores.

In Monday's girls contest, Lori Humphries of Monterey defeated Beth Nickels 2-6, 6-2, 6-2 for the only MHS victory in the singles. Susan Mangum, Maggie McNamara, Molly McNamara, Missy Johnson and Eva Thompson all picked up singles wins for the Mustangs.

But Miss Nickels got a little revenge in the doubles competition as she teamed with Miss Mangum to defeat Kriss Etheridge and Miss Humphries 6-0, 6-4.

NCAA Official Pleased With Cage Tourney Field

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — There may have been some surprises in Sunday's list of the 40 teams who will vie for a trip to Salt Lake City and the NCAA basketball championships, but Wayne Duke feels pretty good about the field.

"We had 72 pages of material that the average fan doesn't see," said Duke, chairman of the NCAA selection committee and commissioner of the Big Ten Conference. "We looked at won-loss records, who they played and the records of the teams they played."

Expansion of the playoff participants from 32 teams to 40 also provided additional latitude, Duke noted.

The tournament is divided into four geographical regions, with the regional winners advancing to the national semifinals and finals March 24 and 26 in Salt Lake City.

First and second round playoffs are scheduled at several locations, with those winners advancing to regional finals at Greensboro, N.C. (East) and Indianapolis (Mideast) March 16 and 18; Cincinnati (Midwest) and Provo, Utah, (West) March 15 and 17.

No. 1 seeds went to North Carolina, 23-5, in the East; Notre Dame, 22-4, in the Mideast; Indiana State, 29-0, in the Midwest, and UCLA, 23-4, in the West.

There were some tough choices, despite the increased number of berths. Kentucky, the defending champion, was not able to secure one of the two spots awarded to the Southeastern Conference.

And the rule limiting any conference to two teams also hit Duke's Big Ten, where Ohio State and Purdue were bypassed despite their finish in the Top 20. Michigan State and Iowa will represent the conference.

Duke said he would be inclined to allow additional teams from the same conference, but said the limit was necessary to protect the national flavor of the tournament. He said it was important for teams such as North Carolina-Charlotte, the fourth-place finisher in 1977, and Cal State-Fullerton, the Cinderella team of the West Regional last year, to have a chance at making the finals.

East Regional participants include North Carolina, St. John's 18-10; Temple 25-3, Iona 23-5, Penn 21-5, Rutgers 21-8, Georgetown 24-4, Connecticut 21-7, Syracuse 25-3 and Duke 22-7.

Mideast Regional teams will be Notre Dame, Detroit 22-5, Lamar 22-8, Tennessee 20-11, Eastern Kentucky 21-7, LSU 22-5, Appalachian State 23-5, Iowa 20-7, Toledo 20-7 or Central Michigan 19-7 (to be determined tonight) and Michigan State 21-6.

Midwest Regional teams are Indiana State, Virginia Tech 21-8, Jacksonville 19-10, Weber State 24-8, New Mexico State 22-9, Louisville 23-7, South Alabama 20-6, Texas 21-7, Oklahoma 20-9 and Arkansas 23-4.

West Regional participants are UCLA, Utah 20-9, Pepperdine 21-9, Southern Cal 19-8, Utah State 19-10, Marquette 21-6, Pacific 18-11, San Francisco 21-6, Brigham Young 20-7 and DePaul 22-4.

Chaps Divide Doubleheader With Jarvis

HAWKINS (Special) — Tommy Inman's sixth-inning double plated what proved to be the winning run in the opener, but host Jarvis Christian exploded for 12 runs in the third inning of the nightcap to split a doubleheader with Lubbock Christian here Monday.

The Chaps, now 2-2, took the opener 5-3. The Bulldogs, now 3-5, managed their first victory over LCC in 17 attempts in the nightcap — and handed the Chaps their first 10-run rule defeat ever, as the game was halted in the last of the sixth at 15-5.

The teams will play two more today, beginning at 1 p.m., with freshman lefthander Chris Cook and frosh righty Kevin Burk to get the calls for LCC.

Walks hampered LCC's pitching Monday, as first game winner Dave Hanna issued seven passes and the foursome of Dan Sanders, Micky Crum, James Martin, and Randy Vinson allowed 12 free tickets in the nightcap.

Tim Leslie's 2-run homer gave LCC a 2-0 advantage in the third inning of the opener, but JCC tied it their half of the frame on a bases-loaded throwing error by third baseman Kenny Toney.

After swapping unearned runs, the Chaps came to bat in the six tied at 3-3. Pinch hitter Bobby Doe walked and rode home on Inman's double.

Inman ripped Jay Reed's fifth pitch of the nightcap 385 feet to right center. Inman doubled home a run in the third but was thrown out trying for a triple. Minutes later Steve Brigante uncorked his third homer of the year, a 2-run blow to left which made if 4-0.

Sanders blew sky high in the bottom of that frame following the second balk call on him. JCC sent 16 men to the plate as Sanders, Crump and Martin threw 74 pitches, 52 of which were called balls.

Seven Bulldogs drew walks and big blows were 2-run doubles by Sam Mayberry and Reggine Washington and a 2-run single by Hollis Barrett as the Chaps suffered through a 45-minute frame, the longest ever by an LCC foe.

'Spectacular' Heads List In Florida Derby

At least the six 3-year-olds entered against Spectacular Bid for the 1⅛-mile Derby would appear to be friends. They have won a total of three races in 15 starts this year. The only stakes winner in the group is Stephen Peskoff's Fantasy 'N Reality who won the seven-furlong Floridian Handicap at Gulfstream Jan. 24. He was listed at 12-1 in the early line.

The favorite among the six outsiders is Frederic Lehman's Lot O' Gold, who was listed at 8-1. He is winless in three starts this year but was second to Spectacular Bid in the Hutcheson Stakes and the Fountain of Youth, both at Gulfstream.

Spectacular Bid, who has lived up to his name and is rated a 1-5 choice, has won seven straight races, all stakes. Hawksworth Farm's 2-year-old champion of 1978 won his last five starts last year. He began with the world playground at Atlantic City, winning by 15 lengths, then scored by 2¾ lengths in the Champagne at Belmont Oark, a neck in the Young America at The Meadowlands, 8½ lengths in the Laurel Futurity and six in the Heritage at Keystone.

Spectacular Bid has not missed a beat since turning 3. He opened with a 3¾-length score in the Hutcheson and his margin over Lot O' Gold in the Fountain of Youth was 8½ lengths.

The son of Bold Bidder out of Spectacular prepped Monday morning, going three-eighths of a mile in 33 3/5 seconds, according to trainer Bud Delp. Some clockers caught him in 36.

Spectacular Bid is scheduled to next run in the 1⅛-mile Flamingo at Hialeah March 24 before shipping to Kentucky and the 1¼-mile Blue Grass Stakes at Lexington April 26. The Blue Grass will be his final prep for the 1¼-mile Kentucky Derby May 5, which he is favored to win. . .at this time.

The lineup in post position order for the Florida Derby is Mrs. Helen Brach's Brach's Dancer, ridden by Jean Cruguet; Lot O' Gold, Darrel McHargue; Fantasy 'N Reality, Jorge Velasquez; Sigmund Sommer's Musical Phantasy, no rider; Spectacular Bid, Ronnie Franklin; Jean-Louis Levesque's Medaille D'or, Craig Perret; and Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Sir Ivor Again, Angel Cordero.

HOLE-IN-ONE

Tack Hammer nailed down his first hole-in-one Monday, when he drilled a 4-iron shot into the hole on the 168-yard 17th hole at Lubbock Country Club. Hammer was playing with J T King, Buster Hicks and Gerald Davis.

Connors Finds Love With Ex-Playmate

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The secret wedding of tennis star Jimmy Connors to former Playboy Playmate Patti McGuire was confirmed by several sources Monday, but the usually outspoken Connors was not available for direct comment on it.

Connors, whose on-court comments and gestures often get him into trouble, was "away for a rest" after his $40,000 National Indoor Tennis Championship victory over Arthur Ashe Sunday in Memphis, a spokesman said.

Mrs. Gloria Connors, the 26-year-old star's mother, told Memphis radio station WHBQ her son had married Miss McGuire "some time ago." The Memphis Press-Scimitar said in Monday's editions that the two were wed Oct. 2 near Tokyo. The story also said the couple was expecting a child this summer.

Joe Rountree of St. Louis, who handles Connors' business affairs, also confirmed the marriage Monday but said he was reluctant to make too much of it. He said he agreed with Gloria Connors' attitude on the subject.

"His mother's attitude has always been, 'If you're going to get married, do it and don't make a symphony out of it.' She's very happy about it," Rountree told The Associated Press.

Connors reportedly left Memphis for St. Louis shortly after his victory Sunday, but Rountree said he did not know where the tennis player was Monday. A spokesman at Tennis Management Inc., Mrs. Connors' business in St. Louis, said only that the star "went away for a rest."

The Press-Scimitar said an announcement was to be made through an unidentified St. Louis newsman Monday, but there was no indication of who that newsman might be.

Miss McGuire has often been seen at Connors' matches around the country recently. Observers at the Memphis tournament said she obviously was several months pregnant.

The auburn-haired Miss McGuire was Playboy's Playmate of the Month in November 1976 and Playmate of the Year in 1977. Both she and Connors are from the St. Louis area but have known each other for only about two years.

Prior to posing for the magazine's centerfold photographs, Miss McGuire majored in political science at Southern Illinois University and worked in former Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond's successful 1972 campaign.

Connors, considered one of sportsdom's most eligible bachelors, was engaged to tennis star Chris Evert in November 1974. They later broke their engagement but said they remained friends. In 1976 Connors was seeing Marjorie Wallace, a former Miss World who previously had dated soccer star George Best and the late Peter Revson, a race car driver.

Miss Evert is to marry British tennis pro John Lloyd next month in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Baylor, TCU Sweep Games

By The Associated Press

Andy Beene and Shane Nolan turned in strong pitching performances for Baylor Monday as the Bears swept both ends of a doubleheader from Texas Arlington, 4-2 and 6-2 at Waco.

Beene, 3-0, got off to a shaky start giving up three walks and a wild pitch in the first inning. But he settled down to record seven strikeouts while limiting the Mavericks to just three hits.

Nolan, pitching in relief of Jerry Arnold, gave up just one hit in the 3 2/3 innings he worked and drove in three of Baylor's runs with a double and a single.

Rick Turner got the loss in the first game for UTA, now 4-6, and Ernie Balmides was the losing pitcher in the second game.

At Fort Worth, junior righthander David Novey fired a four-hitter as Texas Christian took a 2-1 victory over Dallas Baptist in the nightcap to sweep a doubleheader.

The Horned Frogs won the opener 9-5 behind the six-hit pitching of Cameron Young, who picked up his second victory against no defeats.

Rightfielder Scott Ringnald smashed a three-run homer in the opening game and drove in a total of five runs in the two contests, including one with a double in the close second game.

TCU raised its season record to 7-3 while Dallas Baptist fell to 3-3.

Mid-American Teams Battle

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — It wasn't exactly a flashy basketball season for Kent State, but two big homecourt wins by the Golden Flashes threw the Mid-American Conference race into a tie between Central Michigan and Toledo.

The two teams, each 13-3, face each other in a playoff tonight for the right to the MAC's berth in the NCAA post-season tournament.

And it's all because of Kent State, a lowly 7-9 in the league and 13-14 overall.

"We're just really happy to get a shot at playing in the NCAA," said Toledo assistant coach Jim McDonald. "Kent State did us a favor Saturday night by beating Central."

While the Golden Flashes were upsetting Central 79-68, the Rockets were burning over Eastern Michigan 79-43 to seal the league tie.

But it was more like Kent repaying Toledo a favor — Kent beat Toledo last month 69-68.

"We would have liked to have avoided the playoff game," said Central coach Dick Parfitt. "But we can't — and the tough thing about this is the loser will have to play after one day off on their opponent's (Purdue) home court.

The last time a playoff determined the MAC champ was in 1972 when Ohio University defeated Toledo in overtime.

"We're not going to change much for the playoff," McDonald said. "We can't — Central has always presented us with a problem. They're a quick team and their quickness has hurt us in the past."

The winner of the game proceeds to Bloomington, Ind. Saturday for the first round of the NCAA Mideast Regional. They will face Iowa, 20-7, which ended the season tied with Michigan State and Purdue for the Big Ten title.

"We don't know a real lot about Iowa," McDonald said. "But people have told me that they play a game style similar to ours. We both use a lot of movement in our offenses and play some kind of pressure defense."

Monterey Golfers Outlast Brownfield

Clif Baggett picked up the medalist honors with a par 36, Bobby Knox of Brownfield was next at 37 and in third was Plainsman Brian Sheffield with a 38.

In junior varsity action MHS shot a 170 to the Brownfield JV's 183. Phil Barnett and Greg Howitt of MHS shot 42s for low honors.

Monterey, which currently leads the district with a team score of 312, will travel to Plainview on Friday for its second District 4-AAAA competition.

Texas, OU Play On TV

DALLAS (AP) — Texas and Oklahoma will meet at 1:06 p.m. Saturday at Moody Coliseum in a regionally televised NCAA Midwest Regional, second-round basketball game, it was announced Monday.

The South Alabama-Louisville clash will follow 30 minutes later, NCAA officials announced in Shawnee Mission, Kan.

Texas shared the Southwest Conference championship with Arkansas, and Oklahoma won the Big Eight championship.

Foster Gets 'Recognition'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds president Dick Wagner said Monday that George Foster's new baseball contract "recognizes George's position in baseball," but neither party would confirm reports that the agreement called for $750,000 a year for three years beginning in 1980.

"I didn't really want a contract for much longer," Foster said. "I'm pleased with it or I wouldn't be standing here right now."

Foster had hinted Sunday that the signing was imminent, but the final bargain was not completed until Wagner, Foster and Foster's attorney, Tom Reich, sat down in a 7½-hour session that went into Sunday night.

Wagner and Reich had been saying for several days that negotiations were progressing well, and Foster had been extremely optimistic Sunday.

"I'm happy with the deal I have in mind. The question is if they will be," Foster had said. "If they are, then today is the (signing) day."

Foster led the National League in home runs (40) and runs batted in (120) last season. It was the third straight year the 30-year-old slugging left fielder led the league in RBIs and his second year as home run king.

He acknowledged that he benefited from the trend toward high-priced free agents, but said it did not matter how much former teammate Pete Rose made or how much Reich got for another client, Pittsburgh slugger Dave Parker.

"The money was not an ego trip, not a matter of being the highest-paid player in baseball," the soft-spoken Foster said. "The few extra dollars I might have gotten by playing out the year and signing as a free agent was not as important as the other ingredients.

"I don't like to relocate. I'm becoming established in the city of Cincinnati, and I don't want to just go from one place to another.

"Hopefully, I will finish my career with the Reds."

Wagner said it was not club policy to disclose terms of contracts. But veteran Reds observers familiar with Pete Rose' negotiations last year estimated that Foster's total compensation would be in the neighborhood of $2 million spread over three years.

That includes bonuses, incentives and deferred payments. There also is a strong possibility that the Reds relented from their hard line position against guaranteed contracts to keep Foster happy.

Foster predicted an "interesting and exciting year" in the National League West race that starts April 4 with the traditional season opener at Cincinnati.

"I like playing with the Reds and in Cincinnati," Foster said. "Right now all I need to think about is the need to be consistent, productive and to stay healthy."

Macha Replaces Horner

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rookie third baseman Mike Macha will start in place of holdout Bob Horner, the 1978 National League Rookie of the Year, when the Atlanta Braves open their exhibition season Friday against Houston.

Manager Bobby Cox made the announcement Monday after the Braves went through a three-hour workout.

"I like what I've seen of him with the bat and he's doing a good job defensively," Cox said of Macha. "He's better with the glove than I had been told and we all knew he could hit. I'm anxious to see just what he can do."

The 25-year-old Macha hit .261 with 17 home runs and 69 runs batted in last season at Richmond of the International League.

"I'm looking at this as an opportunity to show what I can do," said Macha.

SPRING CAMP RUNDOWN

Harrah Pleases Tribe

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Veteran infielder Toby Harrah, acquired in an off-season trade by Cleveland, Monday made his playing debut in an Indians uniform and gave manager Jeff Torborg reason to smile.

"Harrah stood out with his desire and aggressiveness," Torborg said following a seven-inning intrasquad game in which Harrah, playing third base, came up with a triple, a single, drove in two runs, stole third base and made two fine fielding plays.

The former Texas Ranger star led the returning starters, managed by coach Dave Garcia, to a 7-5 victory over the reserves, managed by coach Joe Nossek.

"That's the only way I've ever seen Toby play — all out," Torborg noted. "Earlier today, while we were doing our running, he told us he felt his leg pulling a little bit. Then, he hit that triple off Waits. When he got to third Dave (Garcia) asked him how it felt. He said, 'You know, Dave, I forgot all about it.'"

Harrah, who came to the Indians in exchange for third baseman Buddy Bell, also brought cheers from the small, sun-drenched crowd at Hi Corbett Field when he caught a popup while falling into the dugout and later when he made a bare-handed pickup of a bunt and threw out the runner at first.

The Garcias did most of their damage against starter Rick Waits and Paul Reuschel. Waits, bothered by a cut on the index finger of his pitching hand, gave up three runs on four hits, while Reuschel was socked for three runs on five hits before coming out because of tightness in his pitching shoulder.

Rick Wise, the other starter, and Don Hood held the Nosseks scoreless through the first four innings, but Dan Spillner was roughed up for five runs on six hits before Rick Kreuger put out the fire.

"The hitters were a little ahead of the pitchers today," Torborg noted. "That's not the way it's supposed to be at this time of the season, but it happens."

The Indians are scheduled to play two more intrasquad games before opening their exhibition season Thursday at Palm Springs, Calif., against the California Angels.

Orioles

MIAMI (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles received a scare Monday when outfielder Al Bumbry was hit on the left heel by a pitch during batting practice.

Bumbry, who fractured his left ankle last May, was given an ice pack treatment. He still limped slightly afterwards and may not be able to work out today.

Manager Earl Weaver announced Monday that the Orioles would play a series of intrasquad games, starting Wednesday. One club will be managed with Coach Jim Frey, the other by Coach Cal Ripken.

Yankees

Manager Bob Lemon said that only seven regulars — Ron Guidry, Cliff Johnson, Brian Doyle, Fred Stanley, Paul Blair, Juan Beniquez and Reggie Jackson — would make the trip to Grambling.

Lemon also named his pitchers for the next four exhibitions. Dick Tidrow will open Thursday against Texas, Luis Tiant starts Friday against Kansas City, Tommy John goes Saturday against Baltimore and Ed Figueroa pitches Sunday against Baltimore.

Royals

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — The off-season rumor mill had Kansas City Royals center fielder Amos Otis being moved to first base to make room for a young outfielder, but the Royals' veteran has his own ideas about where he'll play.

"When the season starts, I'll be in center field," Otis said Monday as the Royals moved into their final four days of practice before the first exhibition game Friday against the New York Yankees.

"When I can't play center field any longer," said the 31-year old Otis, "I'll be the first one to know. I'll be the guy who goes over to left field or first base. Nobody is going to take my job away in center field."

Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Manager Les Moss will get his first look at his team in action when the Detroit Tigers play an intrasquad game at Marchant Stadium today.

The Tigers will play another game Wednesday before opening the exhibition season against the Boston Red Sox.

Except for Mark Fidrych, rookie manager Moss will have all his pitchers work one inning in the intrasquad games. Although Fidrych has thrown well in his bid to overcome shoulder problems, the Tigers do not want to rush his return, a team spokesman said.

Nice Guy Johnson Turns Tough

No more understanding stupid mistakes, fluffed balls, booted pitches, falling down, diving to the left for balls that fly past on the right and that kind of stuff.

Smiling Darrell Johnson is about out of patience as manager of the last place Seattle Mariners baseball club that sometimes looked like it was coached by the Marx Brothers last year.

"Mistakes by experienced players in basics like base running will see me tougher on them than before," said Johnson, in his third year with the Mariners, who finished in the division cellar.

"Let's say my patience will be at a lower level. . .What I'm saying is that they will have to start producing."

For the first time, a player from the Mariner farm system — pitcher Greg Biercevicz — has a shot at making the big league club, Johnson said. So does Rafael Vasquez, another pitcher obtained from Pittsburgh.

"I long ago said that pitching depth will be our strength this season," said Johnson. "I haven't seen anything here (at spring training) to change my mind."

Adams Calls For Amtrak Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pleading against a congressional veto of proposed rail cutbacks, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Monday that passenger trains can't bail the country out of any energy crisis.

Adams also rejected arguments that better-equipped trains that run on schedule would improve Amtrak's ridership and reduce the system's subsidy from taxpayers — $552 million in operating costs in fiscal 1980.

The secretary testified before a Senate panel in the first congressional hearing on the administration's plan to eliminate 11,800 miles of Amtrak passenger routes — a 43 percent cutback — at an advertised savings of $1.4 billion over the next five years.

Congress could kill the plan if either house votes against it within 90 working days, a period ending in mid-May.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., sponsor of a veto resolution, called the plan "premature" and said it "ignores a reordering of transporation priorities" stemming from the loss of Iranian oil.

He and other members of the Senate Commerce surface transportation subcommittee repeatedly took issue with rail cutbacks targeted in their states. The only apparent sympathy for Adam's proposal was expressed by Sen. Howard Cannon, R-Nev., who said that, "if Amtrak's route system is not reduced, the alternative may be the total elimination of the system."

Adams told the panel that, "If there is an energy crisis in this country, Amtrak is not going to solve it, the buses aren't going to solve it, the airlines aren't going to solve it. You're going to stop driving."

He said that if every train on every route were filled to capacity, "You would not get 1 percent of the people traveling intercity," and it would take from five to 10 years to build enough trains "to pick up a small percentage — 5 to 10 percent — of those who ride autos."

Only three-tenths of 1 percent of Americans travel on Amtrak, said Adams, and "the whole world lives under the constraint of what the taxpayers will pay." He said the taxpayer subsidy has been growing every year and "I do not think the federal government should go any higher in federal subsidies."

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., arguing against elimination of the "Montrealer", train through northern and central New England, said the administration is capitalizing on budget-cutting fever.

He said the Transportation Department "is taking advantage of this money-conscious mood and using it as a smokescreen to cripple our national passenger rail system."

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the panel, said the issue raises the question of whether Amtrak should continue operating with more personnel than the railroads think they need. He said reducing labor costs could remove the need to eliminate some trains.

"The question is, is it easier to shut down the service than it is to do something about featherbedding," said Long.

Schmitt, who complained about elimination of the "Southwest Limited" to his state, told Adams that improved marketing techniques and better equipment would improve ridership. "The first thing you do is try to get people to use your system and I don't think you're doing that," he said.

Adams said the Southern Crescent, flagship of Southern Railways, was the best passenger train in terms of service, schedules and equipment, but "has a staggering loss. ...

"No matter how good the scheduling and equipment," said Adams, "you've got to get people to ride on it."

Chicken Coop Said Used For Residence

VINELAND, N.J. (AP) — More than a dozen elderly loners may be living in abandoned chicken coops like the one where the rat-gnawed body of a 70-year-old man was found last week, a city spokesman said Monday.

"I'd say there may be as many as 15 or 20 of these old-timers who have never become Americanized, living in what you might call the shadow of society," said Alex Urban, public relations officer for this southern New Jersey agricultural community of 50,000 people.

"As long as they had a roof over their heads that was enough, if they didn't have to spend money," Urban said.

Police Capt. Joseph Callavini said many coops were built "back in the 1940s when refugees came into the area and went into the chicken business." The chicken business is almost gone from Vineland now, but the old coops remain.

Authorities said most of the men were refugees of Eastern European countries.

Last Wednesday, police found the body of Herbert T. Hutcheson lying on a bed in an old coop where he had lived for several years. Officers said they found a savings passbook with a balance of $6,879, an assistance check for $148.50 and $18 in cash.

"The chicken coop was filthy and rat-infested," said a report filed by Patrolman Steve Schneider, who discovered the body.

Callavini said the residents of the coops often have permission from the property owners, as did Hutcheson. "If there are no complaints, we don't know it," he added.

Hutcheson apparently died of natural causes several days before his body was found, Callavini said. No autopsy was performed because there were no known survivors, officials said.

Hutcheson's body remained unclaimed at Newcomb Hospital on Monday, Diane McDaniels, the hospital's director of social services, said.

Police said there was no running water in the 150-foot-long coop and the refrigerator and stove did not appear to work. The glassless front window was covered by a blanket and a piece of plastic.

Police Capt. Mario Brunetta said, however, that not all the coops were in such bad shape.

"They're not uninhabitable, they are of block construction. They might be 300 feet long, and chickens never lived where these guys lived," Brunetta said.

Last December, Ivan Rusin, a 72-year-old Polish immigrant, decided to end 28 years of living in a coop after he was admitted to the hospital for frostbite.

Rusin now lives with a Vineland family. Mrs. Hedweg Galagan, his host, said Monday that Rusin's only complaint is that publicity about his bank-account nest egg of several thousand dollars caused him to lose his assistance payments.

Ex-Solon Criticizes Alteration Of Act

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Ignoring charges from a former Lubbock senator that proposed changes to the state's Consumer Protection Act so thoroughly gut the law that it would be a fraud to continue calling it a source consumer protection, the Senate Economic Development Committee Monday approved pro-business revisions of the law sponsored by Euless Sen. Bill Meier.

"It what has been passed is so bad, repeal it. But, if you pass these changes it will encourage every shyster to more violations, more deception and more unconscionable acts," former senator H.J. Blanchard told committee members.

Blanchard criticized the bill's key provision, an elimination of triple damages for consumer fraud, and warned senators that without the provision the public effectively would be denied the right to recover damages.

Echoing the same warning, Page Keeton, former dean of the University of Texas Law School, told senators that "unless you provide triple damages, the public has no remedy "because it will not be able to afford to hire attorneys.

"If you take out the triple damages, you take out the guts of the bill and you might as well not have the law," said Keeton.

Critics of the current law, including realtors and auto dealers, contend it is unfair to subject businessmen who make honest mistakes to triple damages and attorney fees that can bankrupt them, and they have sought to restrict triple damages to only those cases where the plantiff can prove the businessmen intentionally committed a fraud.

However, Keeton explained to senators that the burden of proving a state of mind is so difficult that "whoever has the burden of proof will probably loose most of the cases."

Attorney-General Mark White has supported a limitation on triple damages to cases involving intentional fraud, and, according to First Assistant Attorney-General John Fainter, is "flexible" on assigning a burden of proof.

As approved by the Senate committee, the bill also reduces the current four years statute of limitation to two years, limits the kind of cases that can be prosecuted under the law and removes breaches of warranties from the bill's protective provisions.

Representatives of the Bexar County Legal Aid Association testified that the elimination of warranties alone will "wipe out two-thirds of the consumer complaints that could be brought under the present act."

Cockpit Tapes Indicate Jet Ran Out Of Fuel Before Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crew of a United Airlines jet that crashed in Portland, Ore., last December had no idea until the last terrifying minutes that the plane was running out of fuel.

"Boy, that fuel sure went to hell all of a sudden," Flight Officer Forrest E. Mendenhall, 41, said four minutes before flight 173 from New York and Denver crashed, killing him and nine others of the 184 people aboard.

The transcript of the cockpit conversation of the last half hour of the flight was made available Monday by the National Transportation Safety Board which is trying to determine the cause of the crash.

After the plane went down in a residential area Dec. 28, investigators found scarcely any fuel in the tanks. Soon after, the board released control tower tapes of conversations with flight 173, including much of the conversation captured by the on-board recorder.

"How much fuel we got, Frostie?" First Officer Roderick D. Beebe asked at 5:47 p.m. Portland time.

"Five thousand (pounds)," was the reply from Mendenhall. The plane crashed into power lines seconds before 6:15 p.m.

At the start of the tape, a half hour before the crash, the crew was making arrangements for an emergency landing. The crew was worried that the landing gear was not locking properly into place, although that worry is not clear from the tape. Capt. Malburn A. McBroom talked about signaling passengers "for brace position," and a flight attendant said passengers were being reseated.

At 5:51, McBroom instructed that personnel on the ground be notified "we'll land with about 4,000 pounds of fuel and tell them to give that to the fire department."

The flight engineer radioed: "We have souls on board, one seven two, 172, plus five ba...ah, lap children." Later, when the tower asked again, eight members of the crew were added in and the ground was told 185 were aboard.

Beebe worried about "the shutdown" after landing in case "we do indeed have to evacuate, assuming that none of us are incapacitated."

The captain responded: "You just haul ass back there and do whatever needs doing."

Thirteen minutes before the crash Mendenhall reported that the passengers were "pretty calm and cool. ... Some of them are obviously nervous but for the most part they're taking it in stride."

At 6:06, the attendant reported, "Well, I think we're ready." Able-bodied men had been placed by the windows, she said.

Captain: Why?

Beebe: We're losing an engine.

Captain: Why?

Beebe: Fuel ... open the crossfeeds, man.

Mendenhall: Showing fumes.

Captain: Showing a thousand (pounds) or better.

Captain: Okay, it, it's, a...

Beebe: It's flamed out. (Meaning, the engine was dead.)

Mendenhall: We're going to lose number three (engine) in a minute or two. ... It's showing zero.

Captain: You got a thousand pounds, you got two.

Mendenhall: Five thousand in there, buddy, but we lost it.

At 6:11, Portland Control told the crew that it was 18 flying miles from the field and, in the cockpit, Mendenhall commented: "That fuel sure went to hell all of sudden."

The crew was looking at the ground for an emergency landing site. "There's a kind of an interstate highway type thing along that bank on the river in case we're short," Capt. McBroom said. And then he pointed out Troutdale.

"Let's take the shortest route to the airport," said Beebe. The tower said they were 12 miles from the airport. "About three minutes," McBroom said.

"We've lost two engines, guys," Mendenhall said at 6:13. "We just lost two engines, one and two."

At 6:13:29, the tower said they were eight or nine miles from the airport.

Captain: Okay, declare a Mayday.

Beebe: Portland tower, United one seventy three heavy Mayday ... the engines are flaming out. We're going down. We're not going to be able to make the airport.

Rule Changes Okay Transfers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has changed its rules to allow automatic transfers of funds from one person to another.

The rule permitting transfers from savings to checking accounts to cover checks previously limited the service to accounts of the same person.

The change will allow a person with a savings account to authorize transfers to the checking account of someone else to cover checks written on that account. For example, a parent might choose to authorize the bank to transfer money, when needed, into the checking account of a child in college.

School District Audited In Strike By Teachers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — State Auditor James Antonio began an audit of the St. Louis School District on Monday to determine if the district has enough money to meet demands of teachers who have been on strike 50 days.

The union also was ordered Monday to show cause in St. Louis Circuit Court why an injunction should not be issued to end the strike. After hearing arguments over whether the suit should be a class action, Judge Ivan Lee Holt adjourned the hearing until this morning.

The suit was brought by a parents' group known as School Options for Parents and Students. Judge Michael Hart had granted the school board permission to intervene in the suit in behalf of the parents' group.

The audit was ordered by Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale Friday after he had separate meetings with the board and leaders of Teachers Union Local 420. Talks between the two sides, which had broken off 10 days earlier, resumed over the weekend and were scheduled to continue Monday night.

Teasdale has said that an additional $1.4 million in state funds might be made available to help the board meet teacher demands.

The teachers walked out Jan. 16 and all 156 of the city's public schools were officially closed two days later, keeping more than 74,000 students from their classrooms.

The teachers have refused to budge from their demands of a $3,150 wage increase over a two-year period. The board has said there is only enough money for a $2,150 boost over that period.

There was no indicati of whether any progress was being mac in the negotiations. Federal mediato have placed a news blackout on the atest round of talks.

The strike is the longest walkout by teachers in the city's history, and officials say that even if it ended immediately, classes would have to continue well into July to make up the days required by state and federal guidelines for funds.

The longest previous teachers strike in the city was 28 days in 1973. The longest in the state was a 54-day strike by Kansas City teachers in 1977.
