Expert says oil destined for $40

Dallas Federal Reserve Bank Vice President W. Michael Cox

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant Business/Oil Editor

Long-term strength in oil prices — possibly as high as $40 by the end of the century — "has little to do with OPEC solidarity" and will be driven by increased demand pushing toward full production, according to a top economic adviser for the Federal Reserve Bank in Dallas.

W. Michael Cox, vice president and assistant director of research for the Dallas Fed, told more than 150 Midland Chamber of Commerce members that based on research conducted in his offices, "current oil demand and prices are too low to be sustained and we are projecting $25 (in current dollars) per barrel oil by the mid-1990s."

While the prospect of improving prices is certainly welcome news in Midland and throughout Texas, Cox said that the projection has a down side as well.

"I'm afraid that's what you've been waiting for," he said. But higher oil prices are not the only opportunity available to the state.

Cox warned focusing on oil prices obscures other economic opportunities presented by the "unprecedented rate of technological change" in today's world.

"The rate of technological development is controlled by that tiny .000001 percent at the upper end of the population distribution of genius mentality. But with today's population — instead of having a Kepler or a Newton per generation — there are as many geniuses alive today as have ever lived," Cox said.

Embracing new developments to stay on the leading edge of technology can work as a means of reindustrializing our national and regional economy.

"When I am asked 'How's the Texas economy doing?' I'm never quite sure how to answer," Cox told the before-hours breakfast crowd at the Midland Hilton.

"There are two separate economies working today in Texas: one isn't doing well at all; but the other on is going completely gangbusters."

He explained the distinction isn't geographic, but is more closely tied to the extent to which a particular area or industry is involved with technological changes. The benefits are not limited to the obviously high-tech arenas such as Austin, with Sematech and other computer-related firms or the concentration of sophisticated defense contractors around Dallas and Fort Worth.

The petrochemical industry, for instance, with new polymers and other materials is currently thriving, Cox said. Biochemical and biogenetic research and telecommunications firms are other components of the booming side of Texas' economy.

Futures reach $19-a-barrel mark

From Staff and Wire Reports

Oil futures spurted to a 14-month high in a gusher of speculation that oil-producing nations will succeed in controlling their perennial overproduction.

In early trading today, the February contract for West Texas Intermediate crude was fluctuating between $18.90 and $19 on the New York Mercantile Exchange and reached the $19 mark shortly after 10 a.m. (CST).

The near-month WTI contract jumped 40 cents Monday to settle at $18.88 a barrel. The last time the near-month contract settled higher was Nov. 20, 1987, amid hostilities in the Persian Gulf in the Iran-Iraq war, when it settled at $18.93.

At least two Permian Basin crude purchasers responded to the continued futures runup by raising their posted price by 50 cents for the second time in less than a week. Marathon Oil Co. and Phillips Petroleum Co. boosted their postings for WTI to $17.75 effective this morning.

Other buyers cited the wide price spread between February and subsequent month contracts as justification of a wait-and-see posture on postings this morning.

The March contract rose 27 cents Monday to $17.95 a barrel; the April contract rose 21 cents to $17.37 a barrel; and the May contract rose 14 cents to $16.98 a barrel. Many traders interpret the smaller gains in later months to mean the price surge could be short-lived.

Shooting by officer causes riot in Miami

MIAMI (AP) — A police officer shot a fleeing black motorcyclist in the predominantly black Overtown neighborhood, touching off a six-hour riot that left cars and a store ablaze. Sporadic gunfire and looting continued today.

Mayor Xavier Suarez declared the situation under control early today and called for an investigation.

The riot occurred on the night of the federal holiday for slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. and as national attention was focused on the city as the host of Sunday's Super Bowl. It also rekindled memories of Miami riots in the early 1980s.

"It just exploded," said City Commissioner Rosario Kennedy as she prepared to enter the 1½-square-mile area with a police escort. "People have been celebrating Martin Luther King's birthday all day. Maybe they were drunk. We just don't know."

The riot was triggered by the motorcyclist's death Monday night as he was chased for an alleged traffic violation, said Sgt. Michael Mazur, a police spokesman.

At least two officers were pursuing the motorcycle, and one of the officers fired a shot, hitting the 21-year-old driver in the head, said Assistant Police Chief Don March. The motorcycle crashed into a moving car, March said.

March said on NBC's "Today" show that he believed the shot killed the motorcyclist, but said police could not be certain until an autopsy was conducted.

Police refused to give the officer's race.

The motorcyclist's 24-year-old brother, who was a passenger, was in critical condition today, said Jackson Memorial Hospital officials.

Within minutes of the shooting, at least 100 blacks began throwing rocks and bottles at police, who called for reinforcements. About 125 officers cordoned off the area.

Four people, including one police officer, were treated for cuts and minor injuries, said Jackson Hospital spokesman Tony Fallon.

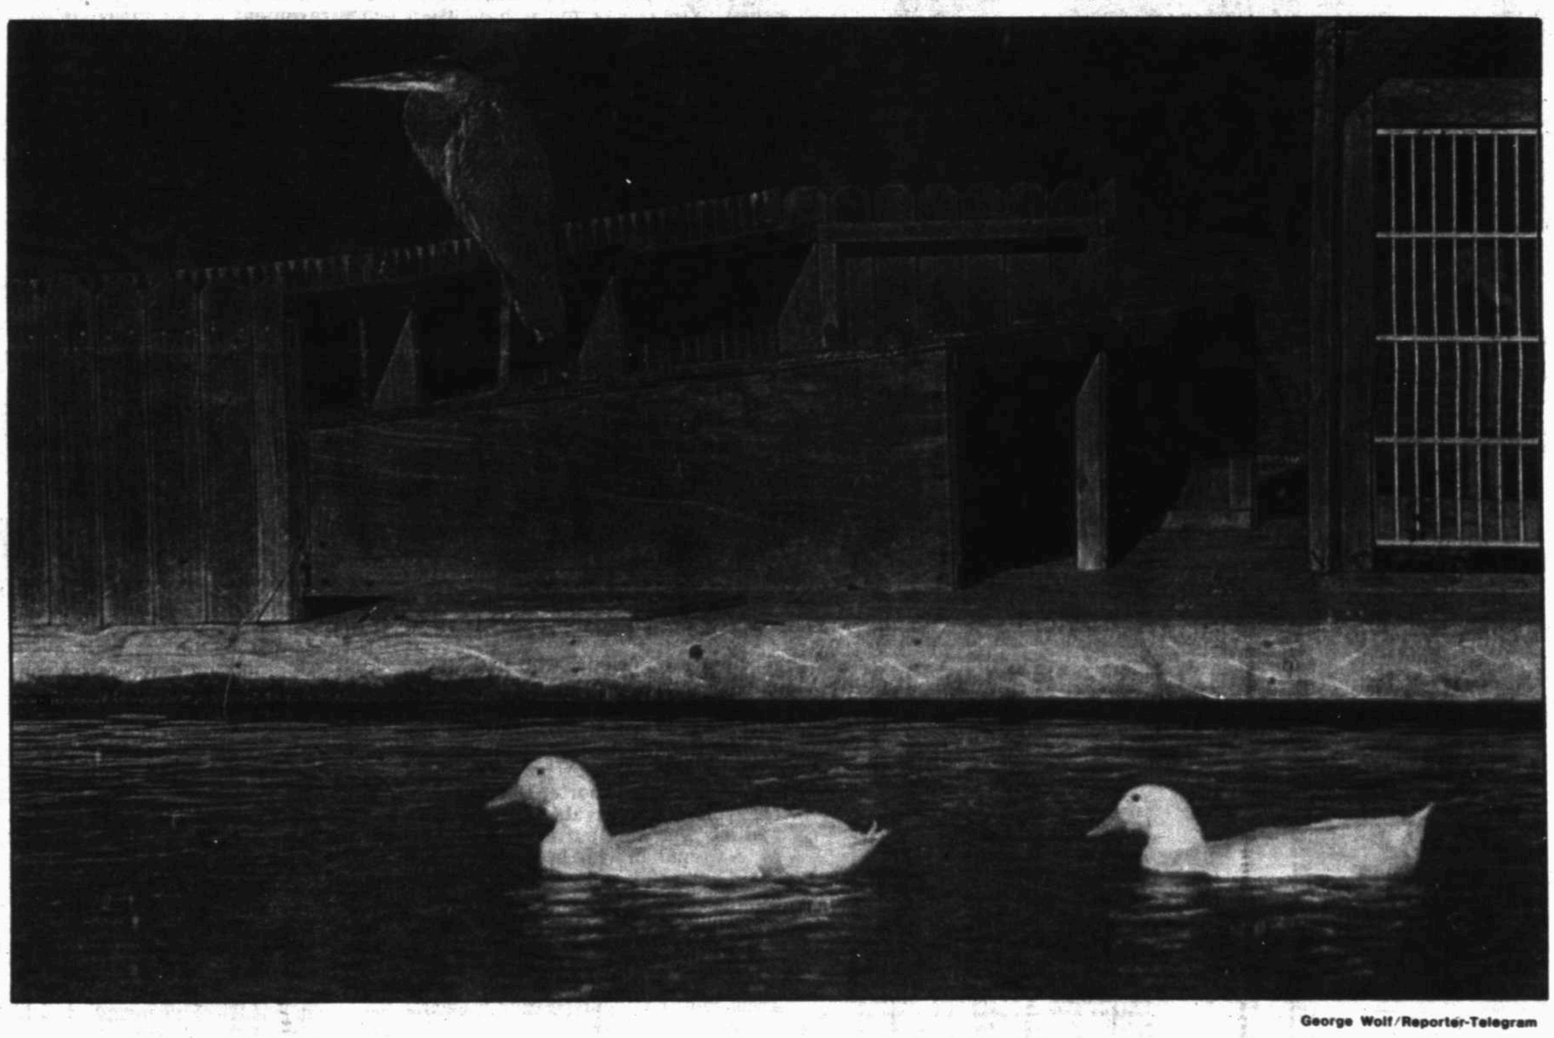

The mob set two cars and an auto parts store on fire.

The store burned to the ground after firefighters were shot at and had to leave the area, said Mazur.

WCIX-TV reporter Lourdes Ruiz-Toledo, who had gotten out of her car earlier, said she feared for her life.

"All of a sudden they threw a big huge rock right on the side of the driver. I blocked it with my elbow. They were yelling 'Get that white woman out of the car!' " the 27-year-old reporter said.

She's back!

...Or is she...or he? It appears the great blue heron seen at Wadley Barron Park pond Monday afternoon didn't stay around long enough for knowledgeable observers to determine if it was "Big Blue" or not. "Big Blue," as some neighbors came to call the heron, was a resident at the pond for weeks beginning around Thanksgiving until a major cold spell sent it on its way. That visitor was determined to be a female.

Clements names Loeffler UT regent

Loeffler

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Republican congressman Tom Loeffler, former state GOP chairman Chester Upham Jr. of Mineral Wells and Robert Cruikshank of Houston today were named to the University of Texas System Board of Regents.

Gov. Bill Clements named the three to replace Robert Baldwin III of Austin, Jess Hay of Dallas and Mario Yzaguirre of Brownsville. The three new appointees, subject to Senate confirmation, will serve terms ending Feb. 1, 1995.

"The management and leadership skills of these outstanding appointees will move higher education in Texas into a new era of excellence and accountability," Clements said.

Loeffler, 42, of Mason, is a lawyer. He served in the U.S. House from January 1979 through January 1987, and he was an unsuccessful GOP candidate for governor in 1986, losing the primary that year to Clements.

Cruikshank, 58, is a senior partner of Deloitte Haskins & Sells, an international public accounting firm. He also is director of the Dean's Associates for Faculty Development in the College and Graduate School of Business at the University of Texas-at Austin.

For most of nation, winter hasn't been very white

By JERRY HARKAVY
Associated Press Writer

January usually means harsh winds, bone-chilling temperatures and lots of snow, but not this year. From the Midwest to Maine, snowfall has been below normal and temperatures have been above normal.

"Looking at the weather map and temperatures across the nation...one would never realize that it is the middle of January," the National Weather Service said in a statement Monday night after the mercury had climbed into the 40s and 50s across much of the country. Temperatures early today generally were in the 30s and 40s.

The relatively mild season has been a boon to motorists, joggers and municipal budgets but a bane for snowmobile dealers, winter festival organizers and some ski resort operators.

"We've really had to scrap with nature to get every bit of snow this year," Matt Kelly said at Brodie Mountain Ski Resort in western Massachusetts, which reluctantly "loaned" Grafton, N.Y., snow for its winter festival last weekend.

Meteorologists say climatic conditions, such as upper-atmosphere winds, haven't encouraged the kind of storms that leave a heavy snow cover.

"It's pretty free of snow from the southern and central Plains to the Atlantic Coast," Hugh Crowther of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today.

"They have quite a bit of snow across the Northern Tier, but it's remaining up there."

Much of the area from Burlington, Vt., to Bangor, Maine, was as brown and bare Monday as it was last summer. Even in the region's far northern snow belt, snowfall has been far below normal.

As of Monday, Portland, Maine, had received a paltry 4.2 inches of snow this winter, compared with a normal 30.2 inches.

Buffalo, N.Y. — often the butt of snow jokes — has received just 16 inches, 30 inches below normal.

"We're enjoying the weather right now," said Buffalo streets commissioner Stan Buczkowski. "But we're not going to kid ourselves. We know we've got two months of winter left, and we're going to get some snow."

Bentsen's father killed in accident

EDINBURG (AP) — Lloyd Bentsen Sr., father of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, was killed in a traffic accident early today, police said.

The senior Bentsen, 92, was killed in the two-vehicle collision at an intersection between Mission and Edinburg, said Edinburg Police Chief A.C. Gonzales.

Bentsen's ranch, the Arrowhead, is about 30 miles northwest of the intersection.

Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said Bentsen was pronounced dead at the scene by Mission Justice of the Peace Juan Rosel.

Bentsen, who was driving a Buick Park Avenue north on Farm Market Road 494, apparently failed to yield the right of way to an eastbound car on Highway 107, Wells said. Bentsen had a stop sign; the other car did not, Wells said.

"I do not know if he stopped and then pulled out in front of this oncoming vehicle or didn't stop," Wells said.

The driver of the second car, Ramiro Rosales, 22, and his sister Margarita, 19, were taken to Mission Hospital. Rosales was scheduled to be released after treatment for cuts and bruises, said hospital administrator Thomas Symonds. Ms. Rosales was in stable condition, awaiting surgery for nose and throat injuries, he said.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Clear skies in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Clear skies are in the forecast for tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. The low will be in the upper 20s and winds will be southwesterly 5-15 mph.

Wednesday will be sunny with the high near 60, winds will be northwesterly 10-20 mph shifting to the northeast by late afternoon.

Monday's high of 61 was 23 degrees cooler than the record temperature of 84 set for that date in 1974. The overnight low of 23 was nine degrees warmer than the record low of 14 set for this date in 1957.

STATE

The weather was tranquil across Texas with only some showers and rain in South Texas breaking up pleasant weather across the entire state.

Forecasts called for clear skies over northern and western sections of the state and clouds on the increase and a chance of rain and showers over South Texas through tonight.

Some light rain fell in the Brownsville area of the Lower Rio Grande Valley early today. The only clouds reported during the pre-dawn hours were in South Texas.

NATION

Dry, mild weather prevailed across the nation today except for a dusting of snow in northern Minnesota and rain in the Pacific Northwest.

Strong winds and rain swept through Washington and Oregon on Monday.

In the Puget Sound area, winds gusted to 62 mph, knocking trees onto power lines and disrupting service to at least 57,000 customers.

In Oregon, gusts hit 55 mph along the coast and Astoria received just over nine-tenths of an inch of rain in the six hours ended at 1 a.m. EST.

Dry weather prevailed elsewhere today, with clear skies over much of the southern two thirds of the country. Fog developed over eastern sections of Oklahoma and Texas, and south central Texas had clouds and drizzle.

Today's forecast called for widespread snow in northwest Pennsylvania and from western New York state to Vermont and Maine; lingering snow in northeast Minnesota and western upper Michigan; strong, gusty winds along the eastern slopes of the northern Rockies; and fair weather in much of the country.

Reagan bitter about 'kiss and tell' books

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying he's bitter about former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan's "kiss and tell" book, has disclosed that he quietly prepared for his former aide's departure for months before he left.

The president, in an interview broadcast on Cable News Network on Monday, insisted, "There was no firing at all."

However, the president added that he planned to use a letter of resignation Regan had submitted months before. "I set out at the same time, then, to start quietly, and hoping, leakproof, to have a successor on hand for when he announced the time he was going to go," Reagan said.

Reagan acknowledged in the interview that Regan had been having problems with Nancy Reagan, the first lady, and that one of his weaknesses as president is that "I know that I have a soft heart."

Regan, who had been Treasury secretary, and then-White House chief of staff James A. Baker III told the president they wanted to switch jobs in early 1985, and he approved the request.

Regan left at the end of February 1987, at the height of the Iran-Contra scandal, and was replaced by former Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. Reagan insisted at the time he did not fire Regan, saying Regan had indicated at some earlier time he wanted to return to private business.

In the Monday night interview, however, Reagan said he quietly hoped to be able use a letter of resignation which Regan had submitted months earlier when the chief of staff indicated he would not likely serve through Reagan's entire second term.

"There was one of those leaks that seems to be so prevalent in this institution," the president said. "And it leaked publicly. And I guess he felt insulted."

Regan was infuriated when there were premature news reports of his resignation, coupled with reports of Baker's selection.

CNN anchorman Bernard Shaw, at one point, asked Reagan about Maureen Reagan's interview statement that allowing Regan to become chief of staff had been her father's biggest mistake.

"I saw that. Happened to be watching television and saw that," he replied. Asked if he disagreed with her statement, the president said, "No, I said, 'That's my girl.'"

Reagan said he is bitter about Regan's book, "For The Record," in which the former chief of staff harshly criticized Reagan's executive management style and also maintained that first lady Nancy Reagan played a heavy hand in White House affairs.

"I was very displeased with that, and yes, it hurt," Reagan said. "None of the attack was leveled at me — only at her. And she didn't deserve it anyway."

"...If I can use some rather rough language, I've had a belly full of these kiss-and-tell books, and so many of them that avoid criticizing me, but lay into Nancy," he said.

In a separate CNN interview, Mrs. Reagan was asked to describe Reagan's reaction to Regan's comments in the book about the first lady.

"He was upset," Mrs. Reagan said. She added the president also "didn't like it" when she told him that his chief of staff had hung up on her twice.

"He didn't know about the hanging up the first time, because I didn't tell him," she said. "The second time, I told him."

Mrs. Reagan charged that Regan "didn't tell the truth" in his book and said that she intended to "tell everything — everything the way it really happened" in her memoirs, due to be published later this year.

Reagan also was asked about reports that his administration had recently considered attacking a Libyan plant that is believed to be producing chemical weapons.

"I never like to talk about what the options might be that are considered in anything of that kind...And no, we had — we were not planning such an option," the president said.

Gramm: There will be more cowboy hats, boots in Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush is bringing a tidal wave of Texans with him to the capital city, and they promise to make their way of doing things felt on the social as well as political scene.

In addition to a Texas president — albeit a transplanted Yankee — a Texas speaker of the House, appointees from defense secretary-designate to FBI director, and four committee chairmen in Congress, Washington will have to reckon with their families.

"Batten down the hatches," warns The Washington Post on Sunday's front page. "Nervy, sexy, filthy rich Georgette Mosbacher, wife of the incoming commerce secretary and a certified social cyclone, is headed our way."

But Mrs. Mosbacher, wife of Houston oilman Robert Mosbacher, isn't the only sign that Texas has arrived.

"You'll see more boots than you've seen. You'll see more hats than you've seen," says Texas Republican Sen. Phil Gramm. "And if the emergence of Texans into positions of power brings good Mexican food to the capital, the achievement will be miraculous."

"The quality of the barbecue is going to pick up, the quality of the Mexican food is going to pick up," says Rep. Charlie Stenholm, a Democrat and Texas farmer. "The social scene is going to pick up and we'll have a little high culture; the cotton-eyed Joe and the two-step are going to be right at the top of the list."

A.C. Greene, director of the Center for Texas Studies at the University of North Texas in Denton, said that despite the influx, the days of the wheeler-dealer, swashbuckling Texas politicans are gone.

Greene says he's not convinced Bush and his coterie of nationalized Texans will wield the same sort of behind-the-scenes clout as Lyndon B. Johnson did as Senate majority leader, vice president and president; as Sam Rayburn did when he was House Speaker; and John Nance Garner did as Frankin D. Roosevelt's vice president.

If any Texan has real connections, Greene says it's House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth, who "has fought those battles in the corridors of power," and may actually be more influential in Washington than Bush, at least for now.

LBJ's inaugural chairman 24 years ago, Dale Miller, isn't expecting any Texas invasion at all, he says, because the state has always had a presence in Washington in the 47 years he's been in here.

"There's always been a pronounced Texas influence here in town," Miller says. "I've known a very strong Texas influence in Washington for 47 years."

But others are expecting a flock of Texans who will leave a Texas-size style imprint on the government.

"Texans are really going to be here in a big way. Texas will have a big part to play," says veteran journalist Sarah McClendon, who predicts less "gobbledygook" in government publications because of the Texas preference for simple and direct language.

Gramm says he thinks the four Cabinet appointments and other high-profile jobs already awarded to Texans are just the tip of the iceberg. "There will be literally hundreds of Texans in decision-making positions. People tend to hire people they know and people they trust."

But Greene says: "A lot of these are cosmetic positions, especially the appointed positions. Bush doesn't have the connections LBJ did, and there is just no substitute for on-the-Hill politics in Washington."

Still, Gramm says it's a "plus for Texas and America."

"I know all of these Texans care about our state and those who are not Texans know the guy at the top cares about Texas and that's obviously going to help," Gramm says.

COX

The capacity to capitalize on new technologies is within reach but requires a couple of fundamental changes in thinking — a dedicated focus on education and an international attitude toward marketing.

Cox used a riddle to drive home his point: "What would you have if for some reason the Permian Basin's oil reserves 'dried up' or for some reason could not be recovered, and there were a 'fence' around the Midland-Odessa area that would not allow people to leave the area?

"What you would have is Japan. An area with no petroleum resources, little agriculture and few cattle. But what they do have are their minds."

And, Cox said, the Japanese have made a concerted effort to get the most out of that resource, which this area could do just as well.

Financing continues to be one of the minuses on Texas' economic balance sheet, Cox said, but "putting together international deals that bankers can understand" is one way Texans can take advantage of foreigners' fascination with Americans in general and specifically with Texas.

"Slack resources" — under-utilized office space, manufacturing capacity, and to some degree the work force — is a major plus for Texas in relation to the rest of the country which is beginning to run into capacity restraints as a barrier to continued economic growth on both the East and West coasts and parts of the upper Midwest.

The Dallas Fed's outlook calls for continued vigorous growth in the national economy through the end of the century. "I don't see that it can fit in a recession in the next 10 years," Cox said. He added the members of the Federal Open Market Committee, which regulates federal monetary policy, are not going to allow inflation to "raise its ugly head" in the foreseeable future.

OIL

Although Persian Gulf troubles no longer are an issue, the price of the near-month contract for West Texas Intermediate has soared 50 percent since an intraday low of $12.28 a barrel on Oct. 5.

One reason for the spot market increase is speculation that some kind of production agreement may be reached at a meeting beginning Jan. 26 in London between members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and non-OPEC countries, according to Gene Nowak, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Nevertheless, analysts said the latest surge seemed more the result of emotion than news.

"The main thing we've got getting this market up is momentum. I'd have to list that as the first cause," said Peter Beutel, assistant director of the energy group at Elders Futures Inc.

"There's no underlying structural reason. There's no shortage," said John Lichtblau, president of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation.

Miss Ruiz-Toledo, who had stayed in her car while two colleagues got out, said she drove a block and was rescued by an officer who led her from the car behind a plastic riot shield. The car was later burned.

WINZ radio reporter Doug Phillips said he had to abandon his car, which was also burned.

A woman driving home from work said her windshield was shattered by a 5-pound concrete block.

"I had no idea it was going on," said Kay Worthington of Miami Beach. "There were about 20 kids all throwing things. I was worried that I was going to be hurt. I didn't see any cops around there."

Many blacks have felt more frustrated than usual since Miami officials began providing free shelter for about 250 Nicaraguans seeking political asylum.

"They feel that other folks are being recognized and getting a piece of the pie but things are different for them. They feel they don't have nothing and what do they have to lose?" said Preston Marshall, who had organized a parade in King's honor that drew an estimated 100,000 people of all races in nearby Liberty City.

"Of all days, I didn't want this to happen," said Marshall, who was among black community leaders called in by city officials to help calm the crowd.

No damage estimates were available. Some looting and gunfire continued in Overtown early today. Five schools in the area would remain closed, officials said.

March said the officer who fired the shot that killed the motorcyclist had been taken off duty.

During three days of rioting in Overtown in 1982, arsonists torched buildings and mobs broke into stores, causing millions of dollars worth of damage. The riot was sparked by the fatal shooting of a black man by a Cuban-born police officer. A police internal affairs report in 1985 concluded that the officer was justified in using deadly force.

In 1980, racial violence in adjacent Liberty City left 18 people dead, 400 injured and $100 million in damage. That rioting occurred after an all-white jury acquitted several police officers of manslaughter in the beating death of a black businessman.

The scene of the disturbance was at least 10 miles from Joe Robbie Stadium in north Dade County, the site of the Super Bowl. But the Cincinnati Bengals are staying less than a mile away at the Omni Hotel.

The Miami Arena, where the Miami Heat of the National Basketball Association has a game scheduled for tonight, is on the edge of Overtown.

WINTER

In the Midwest, Iowa received just 1.3 inches last month, the seventh lowest December total in 102 years. Large areas of the state had no snow at all. Temperatures averaged 25.9 degrees, 1.6 degrees above normal, and on Dec. 2 Sidney and Indianola basked in balmy 65-degree weather.

Illinois normally has had 16 inches of snow by now, but only 6 inches have fallen. Temperatures have been 6 to 8 degrees higher than the normal 29 degrees.

"The 30-day outlook calls for continued mild weather, with temperatures averaging about 60 to 65 percent above normal," Allan Morrison of the weather service said in Chicago.

In some sections of the Midwest hit hard by last summer's drought and heat wave, the low snowfall is not expected to hurt the replenishment of depleted water supplies, officials said. However, a lack of snow cover can cause wind erosion, they said.

In the West, winter has been more familiar. Colorado, for example, has had an average snow year, with ski resorts reporting bases of 30 inches to 86 inches.

While Western ski resorts have had little to worry about, some cross-country ski resorts in the East have had to close, officials said.

Some Eastern downhill ski resorts stayed in business by putting snow-making equipment to use, but others said bare ground in major cities has made it tough to persuade would-be schussers to head for the slopes. Cross-country races at festivals in several New York communities have been canceled.

Many of the New York festivals, which bring in $5 million to $10 million annually, don't start until late this month or early February, but organizers are worried. Syracuse, where Winterfest begins Jan. 27 and which normally gets 109.9 inches of snow, is barren.

The weather has also put the brakes on snowmobile sales. In Brunswick, Maine, preseason sales were healthy but "after December it just fell flat on its face," said Chris Gould, who said fellow dealers reported it was the worst season since 1980.

But for those who miss the snow, there's always the chance of a change in the weather.

BENTSEN

Bentsen managed about 42,000 acres of farms and six ranches scattered over a South Texas empire he started carving out of the brush and thorn forest in 1920.

He and his wife Dolly, who died in 1977, had four children: Lloyd Jr.; Kenneth, a Houston architect; Don, a McAllen businessman; and Betty, the wife of Rio Grande Valley businessman Dan Winn.

Lloyd Bentsen Jr.'s Washington office declined to comment on reports of the death.

The senior Bentsen, one of six children of Danish parents, grew up thrashing wheat and busting wild horses in the South Dakota Badlands. He had little schooling, giving up his studies at 13 to follow the grain harvests.

He and his pals bought and tamed wild mustangs trapped in the canyons of the Dakotas, paying $3 a head for the animals and selling them for $12.

In 1915 he almost lost his life in a motorcycle accident. After months of treatment he enlisted in the Army, bluffed his way into a 16-week ground-training school at Princeton University and wound up in the aviation section of the Signal Corps.

He came to Texas in 1917 and met Dolly in Mission.

By the 1970s, Bentsen's holdings ranged from farm, cattle, oil, gas and nursery operations to control of six Rio Grande Valley banks, stock in other banks and land sales estimated at $1 million a month.

Although he had since sold his bank holdings, Bentsen still was farming, running 5,000 head of cattle, operating a nursery, counting oil and gas revenues and managing a real estate business.

In his final years, Bentsen was up at dawn every day and on the road to his real estate office or one of several farms and ranches in Hidalgo and Starr counties.

Even in his 90s, he showed no evidence of his motorcycle mishap nor any physical reminders of two more recent episodes in which he was trampled by stampeding cattle.

Baker says U.S. should stand by Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State-designate James A. Baker III, appealing for the renewal of bipartisanship, said today the premier task of U.S. foreign policy is to arrange events so that responsible and constructive policies remain in the interest of the Soviet Union.

Baker

Baker, testifying at a confirmation hearing by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said the United States cannot abandon the Contra rebels opposing Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

"We must stand by them until our mutual goals are achieved," Baker said, adding that the United States must insist on protection for human rights not only in Nicaragua but in El Salvador and other Central American nations as well.

Providing a broad outline of the foreign policy goals of the incoming Bush administration, Baker said experience has shown that a bipartisan foreign policy is an indispensable ingredient of success as the nation faces the problems and turmoil of an increasingly complex world.

"Bipartisanship does not mean that we must always agree," Baker said. "There are and always will be differences in approach and substance."

"But eventually we must proceed," he said. "And when we do it is best that we do so together if we are to achieve the national interest."

"Yes, this is an appeal for a kinder, gentler Congress," Baker said. "Bipartisanship...is the lubricant that enables the branches of government to overcome their natural constitutionally designed friction, a friction that arises from our differences of perspectives and our different responsibilities."

"As a realist, I know we need bipartisanship to succeed," Baker said. "In order to succeed we must work together."

The first order of business between the Republican administration and the Democratic-run Congress, he suggested, is a "meeting of our minds on how to proceed with a changing Soviet Union."

Baker suggested that if that happens, conclusions will include the need to modernize U.S. conventional and nuclear weapons, to set "realistic and prudent standards" for conventional arms control and to reach a common approach on the issue of loans and credits to the Soviet Union.

"Realism forces us to be prudent," Baker said. "However fascinating the twists and turns of perestroika (economic restructuring) may be and however riveting the details of decline as reported in Soviet newspapers, the Soviet Union remains a heavily armed superpower."

"The talk is different but the force structure and policies that support far-reaching interests and clients have not changed commensurately," the nominee said.

Baker proposed a multi-step approach to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's new policies, among them:

- Continue to welcome reform and changes.
- Recognize that U.S. policies and strength have contributed to Moscow's new sense of realism.
- Continue to probe the Soviets on arms control, human rights, regional conflicts and overall relations.
- Place additional emphasis on ending regional conflicts in Asia, Africa and Central America and "not allow the rhetoric of restraint to become a substituter for restraint itself."
- Seek help from the Soviets in dealing with such global problems as drugs, terrorism and the environment and if it is not forthcoming, find out why.

Talks begin to consider repaying Soviet debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sudden Soviet willingness to consider making good on bonds issued by Russia's czarist government is spurring interest in the obscure securities, which long ranked as the financial world's equivalent of a deed to the Brooklyn Bridge.

Like the worthless deeds offered by hucksters to unwary immigrants, the Russian bonds were considered for years to be worth little more than the paper they were printed on, of interest only to collectors.

But on Monday, the State Department said U.S. and Soviet officials have started talks on repayment of the Russian debt, which was owed by the czarist government but repudiated after the Soviet revolution of 1917.

Similar talks with Britain produced an agreement two years ago that brought a nearly $68 million windfall to investors there who had hung onto or acquired Russian bonds, often for mere pennies apiece.

U.S.-Soviet talks began in London Nov. 28, said Nyoka White, public affairs officer for the State Department's bureau of European and Canadian affairs. She said the two sides plan to continue the talks in hopes of reaching an agreement, although the time of the next session is indefinite.

In 1919 the new Soviet regime defaulted on $193 million worth of loans made by the United States during World War I, when the imperial Russian government was among the allies fighting the Germany of Kaiser Wilhelm II. Since then, unpaid interest has brought the total to almost $900 million.

The Soviets shot the last czar, Nicholas II, and his family in 1918.

Old Russian bonds are still occasionally traded in Wall Street for a few cents on the dollar, often valued more for the beauty of their engraving than for any hope they will be repaid. They have been considered in the same class as Cuban debt repudiated by President Fidel Castro and debts incurred by the nationalist government in mainland China before the communist takeover there. The U.S. government's Export-Import Bank still carries such Cuban and Chinese debt on its books as assets, but does not have any old Russian bonds.

"The bonds were more valuable as lamp shades than anything else for many years," said London banker Robin Broadley when Britain reached agreement on its claims against the Soviets in 1986.

"We know of collectors who may have recently paid 300 pounds ($450 in 1986) for Russian bonds with a nominal value of 10,000 pounds (then $15,000)."
Peter Johnson, auctioneer

Broadley was managing director of Baring Brothers and Co., which held $72 million in frozen Russian accounts.

"We know of collectors who may have recently paid 300 pounds ($450 in 1986) for Russian bonds with a nominal value of 10,000 pounds (then $15,000)," said Peter Johnson of the London auctioneer Phillips.

But Johnson said collectors had already burned hundreds of other Russian bonds because they wanted only those in mint condition.

"They must be feeling very sick," he said.

The British agreement was signed by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe. In the negotiations, the Soviets made counterclaims against the British for damage suffered in the Soviet Union during the international effort to overthrow the Soviets between 1918 and 1921. U.S. troops also took part in those campaigns.

The London Stock Exchange halted trading in the Russian bonds a few hours before the agreement was announced in the House of Commons.

A similar agreement was signed last year by the Soviet Union and Switzerland.

In addition to giving the Russian bonds in the United States renewed value, a U.S.-Soviet accord on the 70-year-old debt also could encourage Americans to make more deals with the Soviet Union, as banks and investment firms in western Europe have already done.

These deals, which according to some estimates now reach $7 billion, evoked criticism from former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who called them a potential aid to the Soviet military.

"These may be all going into production of better fertilizer," he said in a speech to business executives last month. "The same chemicals, however, are used for chemical warfare in many cases."

But Tony Zehnder, press relations officer for the First National Bank of Chicago, said a distinction should be made between short-term loans for trade deals and longer-term lines of credit such as those being offered by banks in western Europe. He said his bank is interested only in short-term deals.

"These aren't for missiles that are going to be used to bomb Washington," he said.

King remembered with speeches, protest

Associated Press

Ringing bells and ringing speeches commemorated the legacy of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. amid renewed calls to strive for the goals of the slain civil rights leader.

Marchers filled city streets in San Franciso, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia was symbolically tapped, and national leaders descended on King's hometown to join his family in Atlanta on the federal day marking his 60th birthday.

"He lived a hero's life. He dreamed a hero's dreams," President-elect Bush told black leaders in Washington. "He left a hero's indelible mark on the mind and imagination of a great nation."

A unity march across the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor drew about 2,000 people, who paraded as the university's carillon played "We Shall Overcome," the anthem of the civil rights movement.

Later Monday, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young told a University of Michigan audience that, "The world King left is not a great deal different."

"But there seems to be an awareness that violence is not the solution to the world's problems, as we learned in Vietnam, as the Russians have learned in Afghanistan, and as the PLO has learned."

Nowhere was King's influence felt more strongly than in Selma, Ala., where he began the 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery march that helped establish voting rights for blacks throughout the South.

On Monday, three blacks were sworn in as members of the Dallas County Commission in Selma. They became the first black Dallas County commissioners since Reconstruction and gave the five-member commission a black majority.

"We bring home to Dallas County the harvest of the Martin Luther King voting rights act," said U.S. District Judge U. W. Clemon, the first black federal judge in Alabama, who administered the oath of office.

King's widow, Corretta Scott King, was joined by black and white political leaders for the annual ecumenical service at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King and his father preached.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, once one of King's young lieutenants, used the occasion to criticize the Reagan administration's civil rights record and President Reagan's suggestion that civil rights leaders bolster their position by fostering an attitude of oppression among blacks.

Jackson called Reagan's statements "petty comments from the same man who implied that Martin Luther King Jr. was a communist."

In Pretoria, South Africa, U.S. Ambassador Edward Perkins, who is black, marked the holiday by unveiling a bronze bust of King that will sit in a new U.S. embassay compound. The ceremony included blacks and whites who have been prominent critics of South Africa's system of racial separation.

In the United States, parades were held in places like New Orleans, Honolulu, Atlanta and San Antonio, where 15,000 people marching from four directions converged on Martin Luther King Jr. Plaza.

King would have been 60 on Sunday.

First blacks in 112 years sworn into county office

By KENDAL WEAVER

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Martin Luther King Jr.'s battles for voting rights were remembered as the first black county commissioners elected in 112 years were sworn in by Alabama's first black federal judge.

"We bring home to Dallas County the harvest of the Martin Luther King voting rights act," said U.S. District Judge U.W. Clemon, who administered the oath of office Monday to the three blacks and two whites in the county's new government.

The election of the first blacks to the Dallas County Commission since Reconstruction followed 10 years of legal combat that abolished the old at-large election system which had kept the panel all white for more than a century.

Under the new election plan, commissioners are elected from five districts, three with large or nominal black voting majorities. Dallas County, with a population of 55,000, is about 56 percent black.

The three black commissioners — Erskine Minor, D.L. Pope and Perry Varner — were sworn in along with white commissioners Deans Barber and Doug Morrow at a courthouse ceremony in which the overflow crowd of about 300 sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The ceremony coincided with Alabama's state holiday for both Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee and King, who led the 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights march.

The march took place with federal protection after a band of marchers were beaten and routed by mounted state troopers on the Edmund Pettus Bridge, which crosses the Alabama River at Selma.

"Bloody Sunday," as the bridge violence became known, drew national attention to the next march led by King, which helped inspire passage of the 1965 federal Voting Rights Act.

Snoshone set back in land dispute

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The Western Shoshone Indians have vowed to press their claim to full grazing rights on a half-million acres of land despite an appeals court ruling limiting the number of horses and cows they can have.

"This isn't the end to litigation. We don't consider this issue resolved," said Thomas E. Leubben, attorney for the Western Shoshone National Council. "Only Congress can resolve the Western Shoshone land issue."

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Wednesday reversed U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson's September 1986 order that gave sisters Mary and Carrie Dann, members of the Shoshone tribe, the right to graze cattle and horses at their 180-acre ranch in north-central Nevada's Crescent Valley.

Thompson had ruled the Danns had aboriginal and treaty rights to graze their livestock on 530,000 acres without being regulated by federal agencies or paying grazing fees.

The appellate ruling limits the Danns to grazing 26 cows and 79 horses, the number their parents had on the land when the 1934 Taylor Grazing Act took effect.

Furnace fumes kill four family members

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Edward Zarnow Jr. came from Australia to plan his father's funeral. Now other relatives must plan funerals for the son and two other family members who authorities say died from fumes from the same faulty furnace.

"It was a tremendous and gross loss of lives," Milwaukee County Medical Examiner Jeffrey Jentzen said Monday. "I think it makes everyone humble to see this type of disaster happen."

After the 89-year-old Zarnow died Wednesday, autopsy results revealed extensive heart disease and cirrhosis of the liver. The death was attributed to natural causes, and no toxicological exams were believed necessary, Jentzen said.

"There's not a medical examiner's office in this country that would have handled this case any differently," he said.

As relatives gathered for the funeral, they stayed at his suburban Greendale home.

Sunday morning, his niece, Audrey Brennan, called police when she telephoned the home and got no answer. An officer knocked on the door but got no response.

Hours later, Mrs. Brennan called police back to say she had found the three bodies in the house.

"My wife could have been there, too," her husband, Frank, said Monday evening from their Milwaukee home. "She was supposed to pick them up. Then the others said they would do it. They were going to pick them up at the airport and then stay at the house."

Jentzen confirmed Monday that carbon monoxide poisoning killed Edward Zarnow Jr., 57, of New South Wales, Australia; Zarnow Jr.'s 37-year-old niece, Karen S. Martin of Marshfield and her husband Michael, 38.

Zarnow Jr.'s wife, Rebecca, 56, was in critical condition Monday night after treatment in a hyperbaric chamber, according to a nursing supervisor at St. Luke's Hospital.

Jentzen said further tests on the elder Zarnow's body showed he too died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

"This was a very rare and unusual case because of the circumstances and the loss of lives," Jentzen said.

After the bodies were discovered, investigators found the gas furnace's regulator was not properly adjusted, causing too much gas to go into the furnace, Wisconsin Natural Gas Co. spokesman Paul Markovina said.

The overburning caused incomplete combustion that filled the house with carbon monoxide, a colorless, oderless and lethal gas, he said.

The coroner's report said five burners in the furnace were clogged, causing improper burning, although Brennan said the unit had annual inspections.

Brennan also said the senior Zarnow was a machinist and worked as a supervisor at a factory before he retired.

The home was built as part of the original Greendale development, part of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Green Belt program of the 1930s, Brennan said.

Edward Zarnow III, a resident of Orange, Australia, said his father was an elementary school teacher but had retired last month and hoped to spend time golfing, woodworking and traveling.

He said his father, who grew up in the house where he died, moved to Australia in 1971 with his wife and four children, and they became citizens of that country.

"At the time, Australia was bringing teachers over...and my father was looking at a new place to teach, and he thought it would be a good change, so we came across," Zarnow, 29, said from Australia.

Brennan said seven relatives planned to arrive today from Australia.

"This is so stupefying on the surface," he said. "Thankfully, there's been so much activity (at his home) that it's distracted my wife."

Review board to probe Long Beach police force

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The smashing of an off-duty black policeman's face through a window by a white officer during a "sting" to expose alleged police racism has renewed calls for a citizen board to investigate police conduct here.

A television news camera crew that arranged to follow Hawthorne Police Sgt. Don Jackson during his informal sting captured Saturday night's confrontation on videotape.

"We've never been able to come forth before with enough evidence (of alleged police racism). Now, it is brought to your living room in living color," said Frank Berry, president of the Long Beach chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The police chief in Long Beach declined to comment pending an investigation. City officials promised a thorough inquiry.

"We will pursue it aggressively," said Long Beach City Manager James Hankiad. "If there is evidence of brutality, we will act accordingly."

Long Beach Mayor Ernie Kell said on NBC's "Today" show this morning that he was disturbed by the videotape. The City Council planned to meet today to discuss the incident.

"I...do not support racism or police brutality, nor do the vast majority of the citizens of Long Beach, and we're a caring, thinking community and it disturbed us very much to see the tape," he said.

Long Beach, about 20 miles south of downtown Los Angeles, has about 450,000 people, including a sizeable black population.

Jackson and a companion were driving through a high-crime area of the city when their car was pulled over.

The NBC-TV videotape shows a white officer unleashing a stream of profanity and roughing up Jackson after he stepped out of his car and demanded to know why he was being searched.

The incident renewed calls for a citizen review board, debated last year amid allegations of police brutality.

But Jackson's boss said the black officer was looking for trouble.

"I submit that if Mr. Jackson had stayed in the vehicle, as did the driver, this incident would not have occurred," Hawthorne Police Chief Kenneth R. Stonebraker said at a news conference Monday.

Since the incident apparently was timed by Jackson to coincide with the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. the confrontation should be considered "nothing short of timed sensationalism at the risk of serious injury to all of the parties involved," Stonebraker said.

"As a police chief," he added, "I do not for one minute condone the unlawful use of force or police brutality."

Waiter arrested for stabbing for tip

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — A waiter was arrested for attacking two customers with a knife because they left too small a tip, police said.

Guang Da Shen, 19, of New York, was charged with two counts of first-degree assault after incident Saturday night's attack outside the Dragon House Restaurant, police said Monday.

Louis Pabian, 59, of Trumbull, and his son, Neil, 24, of Bridgeport, left a $2 or $3 tip on a bill of less than $50, said Lt. Ronald Chase. Da Shen considered that inadequate and "was waiting for them outside," Chase said.

The elder Pabian was stabbed in the abdomen; his son was cut on the hand, Chase said. Both were released after treatment.

Da Shen was subdued by plainclothes officers who witnessed the attack, police said. He was being held in lieu of $50,000 bond pending a Jan. 24 court appearance, police said.

Debt could lead to coups

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of experts on hemispheric affairs said today that Latin America's $420 billion debt crisis could lead to military takeovers in some countries and recommended five "priority tasks" to restore economic and political stability.

One key recommendation was for debt reduction agreements to be negotiated between individual debtor countries and commercial bank creditors.

"Six years after the debt crisis began, Latin America remains mired in depression," said a report by the Inter-American Dialogue, a grouping of 66 prominent citizens from the United States, Canada, Latin America and the Caribbean.

"Unemployment and underemployment are at record levels," it said. "Wages have declined sharply — by as much as 50 percent in some places. Average income per capita has fallen back to the level of 1978 and is not recovering."

The report, "The Americas in 1989: Consensus for Action," said the alternative for Latin America to decisive action is a "treadmill of austerity, stagnation and rising debt."

It said the crisis could condemn Latin America "to a long period of economic hardship and political turbulence."

Quayle's plans indefinite

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only a few days remaining before he becomes vice president, Dan Quayle has given few clues about how he will carry out his new role, in effect telling Americans to wait and watch.

Since the November election, the once-spotlighted Quayle has deliberately kept a low profile while President-elect Bush remained at center stage with personnel and policy pronouncements.

Until the end of last week, the former Indiana senator eschewed interviews, rebuffing reporters' attempts to learn what specific goals or projects he has in mind for his vice presidential tenure. His standard reply is that he wants to do Bush's bidding and become a close adviser to the president.

He told The Washington Post, however, in an interview published Sunday, that he plans "crusades" in such areas as education, anti-drug and crime-fighting efforts, that could include personal visits to crime victims, drug users or school dropouts.

Both Quayle and Bush have said they want to build an easy-access relationship of the type Bush had with President Reagan. Bush met privately with the president once a week and said that was generally the opportunity he used to relay his views and advice.

Mudslide kills woman

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — A man whose wife was killed and daughter injured in a mudslide that left their car dangling on the edge of a 100-foot cliff said he was "just driving along and the whole mountain came down on top of us."

Michael Edwards, 27, who suffered minor injuries in Sunday's accident, said the family was on a logging road and looking at snow when their car was crushed by a 20-foot boulder freed by the mudslide.

"It happened so quick," he said.

The impact of the boulder trapped the car on the steep, muddy hillside above the rain-swollen Coos River. Edwards was freed shortly after the accident. His wife, Vera Anne Edwards, 24, was pronounced dead at the scene, authorities said.

Rescuers spent seven hours working to free the Edwards' 6-year-old daughter, Tasha.

Man fined for harassment

HONOLULU (AP) — An Austrian tourist was fined $1,500 after pleading guilty to harassing whales off Maui.

"It seems perfectly clear that he was chasing the whales," U.S. Magistrate Daral Conklin said Monday in issuing the fine for Peter Gottwald. "Were he a U.S. citizen, he would spend several nights in jail."

In exchange for the guilty plea, the U.S. attorney's office dropped its request for a jail sentence.

Meese violated ethics standards, report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Attorney General Edwin Meese III violated federal ethics standards by acting at the request of a close friend to assist scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. and a proposed $1 billion Middle East oil pipeline, a Justice Department report concluded today.

Meese

"There are three instances in which friendship" between Meese and long-time friend E. Robert Wallach "dictated government action," it said.

The report by the Justice Department's Office of Professional Responsibility also found that Meese violated the executive order on ethics and the Justice Department's own standards of conduct by failing to disclose the sale of stocks in his 1985 federal income tax return on a timely basis.

The report also said Meese violated ethics standards by participating in official matters involving the regional Bell Telephone companies while he held some $14,000 in telecommunications stock.

In response, Meese's lawyers called the findings "a travesty of justice."

The report concluded that Meese engaged in "conduct which should not be tolerated of any government employee, especially not the attorney general."

If Meese were still attorney general, "we would recommend (to the next ranking department official) that the president take disciplinary action," it said.

"As a direct result of the preferential, improper efforts of Meese and his staff, the Army" awarded a $32 million engine-building contract to Wedtech in 1982 while Meese was counselor to President Reagan, said the report.

The next year, it said, "Meese and his staff injected themselves ... as a direct result of the friendship between Wallach and Meese" into a financial problem Wedtech was having with the Commerce Department's Economic Development Administration.

At the urging of Wallach, Meese tried to help clear up the problem Wedtech was having by making a phone call to then-Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, the report said. Meese's intervention is "precisely" the type of activity that is prohibited by a federal executive order spelling out ethical standards for federal employees, it said.

On the pipeline, Meese, again at Wallach's urging, arranged a meeting in 1985 for Wallach and his client, Swiss oilman Bruce Rappaport, with then-White House national security adviser Robert McFarlane in an attempt to help secure an insurance package that would support the project, the report said.

Meese said last July he had been "completely vindicated" by the decision of independent counsel James C. McKay not to seek an indictment against him. McKay found Meese had probably violated federal conflict-of-interest and tax laws, but he said prosecution was not appropriate.

"We trust that this analysis will lay to rest the claims by Mr. Meese that the appropriate standard for official behavior is whether an independent counsel seeks an official's indictment," the Justice Department report said.

"We found that the indpendent counsel's report far from vindicates Mr. Meese; rather, it details conduct which should not be tolerated of any government employee, especially not the attorney general of the United States."

The investigators said that if Meese were still attorney general, "we would recommend (to the next ranking department official) that the president take disciplinary action." It did not specify what action would be appropriate.

The Justice Department said in a statement that because Meese is no longer associated with the department, no further disciplinary action is warranted in connection with matters raised in the report.

In a statement, the department said Attorney General Dick Thornburgh has reviewed and accepted the report and considers the matter closed.

Thornburgh addressed the portion of the report that found that Meese had violated the executive order and the department's standards of conduct by participating in matters involving the Bell companies while holding stock in them.

"It appears to me that Mr. Meese's failure to fully dispose of his financial interest in the regional Bell operating companies resulted from a failure to obtain or act upon adequate legal advice rather than an intent to violate ethical standards," said Thornburgh.

Meese's accountant, John McKean, suggested that no mention of the securitiessales should be made on the tax return because the information necessary to detail the stock sales could not be located.

Arafat scheduled to speak in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Yasser Arafat has accepted an invitation to address Arab-Americans in Washington, says a Detroit attorney who met with the PLO leader in Tunisia, but such a visit could pose a dilemma for the Bush administration.

Attorney and American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee President Abdeen Jabara, who met with Arafat last weekend, said the Palestine Liberation Organization leader has agreed to address the group April 13 at its convention in Washington.

However, the State Department on Monday refused to say whether Arafat would be allowed to enter the United States.

Denying Arafat a visa could anger Arab leaders who consider the PLO a key part of the push for peace in the Middle East. Issuing the visa could anger Israel and its supporters.

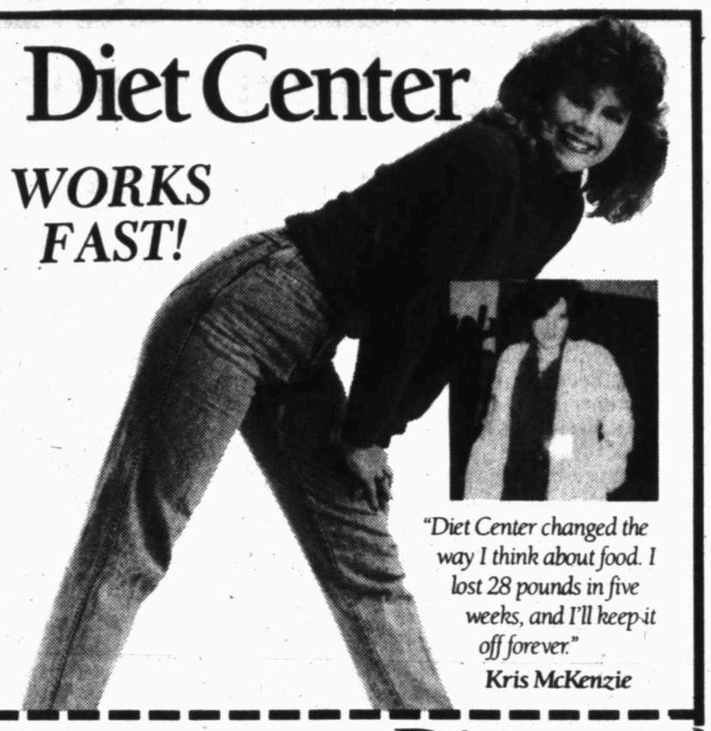

"There is a dilemma," said Sol Lachman, a former president of the Detroit chapter of the American Zionist Federation. "Even as a supporter of Israel, I can understand why the U.S. would want to talk to the PLO, and why it's completely appropriate to serve as an intermediary in the cause of peace.

"But Arafat in Washington? To deal with him on that basis is to legitimize him, who was a terrorist up until last month."

Last November, Secretary of State George Shultz rejected Arafat's application for a visa to address the United Nations, citing the Palestinian leader's support of terrorism.

But in December, the United States agreed to renew talks with the PLO after Arafat renounced terrorism and endorsed UN resolutions recognizing Israel's right to exist.

The April speech would "be recorded as an historic event in the relations between Americans of Arab descent and the Palestinian leadership," Jabara said in a statement from Tunisia.

Costs of borrowing have a grim face

The true costs of Third World borrowing are becoming all too clear. They're written in the eyes of thousands of children who are suffering because of what their governments have done.

At least half a million children died in the developing world last year because their governments slashed social spending to pay off debts to wealthier nations, the United Nations Children's Fund has reported.

Because of crushing debt, UNICEF says that after decades of progress in improving the lives of children, sub-Saharan African and Latin American nations are sliding into abject poverty.

Among the grim statistics are these:

■ In the 37 poorest nations, per capita spending on health has dropped by 50 percent and by 25 percent on education.

■ Child mortality is growing; 14 million children still die each year from common, easily-preventable illnesses and malnutrition.

We would add that political leaders of some developing nations must be subjected to world diplomatic efforts to halt corrupt and wasteful practices that punish their own people.

The main goal of any attempts to defuse the Third World time bomb is to allow economies of the countries in question to grow rapidly. If that's to be achieved, it means wealthy creditor nations must be willing to assist them. But it likely must be a decision that comes from the wealthier nations, not those that are seeking assistance.

It's an obvious humanitarian concern for the nations of the world that shouldn't be ignored any longer.

Another View:

Revising a 'fiction'

It's true that the 1990 federal budget that outgoing President Reagan sent to Congress is "an amiable fiction," as Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell dubbed it. When lawmakers sit down in February to begin hammering out the real budget, their attention will be focused not on Reagan's proposals but on the amended budget proposals George Bush promises to send to Capitol Hill after Inauguration Day. But irrelevant as it may be, the Reagan budget is illustrative of the problems ahead for the new president.

Reagan says that his $1.15 trillion budget shows that it is possible to bring down the federal deficit to the Gramm-Rudman target without increasing taxes. What it really shows is precisely the opposite.

As has been his habit, Reagan reaches his deficit target by dint of too-rosy economic projections, phony savings from the sale of government assets and machete attacks on federal domestic programs. Some of the 82 programs Reagan proposes for extinction wouldn't be missed. But Congress, with good reason, is not about to eliminate Amtrak, the Legal Services Corp. and mass transit grants, to name a few of the necessary programs he would jettison. Nor does the Reagan budget make provisions for the new social spending that Bush proposed during the campaign — for child care, health, the homeless and education — to deal with unmet national needs.

Although Congress could usefully cut some domestic programs, including agriculture and Medicare, along the lines Reagan has proposed, Bush and lawmakers seem headed in the direction of a net increase in social spending.

Where, then, will the new president find the deficit reduction he needs? Some will come from trimming Reagan's unrealistic requests for 2 percent real growth in defense spending. Bush recognizes that fiscal discipline requires the Pentagon to live with a steady-state budget, and he will have to be bolder than Reagan has been in eliminating weapons systems that the nation can't afford. But holding the line at the Pentagon won't be enough to get the deficit down. That leaves only Social Security, which is politically sacrosanct, and taxes to do the rest of the job.

In his budget, even Reagan asks for some new revenue, both from higher user fees for government services and from extending the Medicare payroll tax to public employees who are currently exempt. Bush and Congress will have to go further. Whether the task is accomplished through closing income tax loopholes, raising sin taxes or putting higher taxes on gasoline, it will take more than Reagan has proposed for George Bush to achieve his goal of a nation that is both gentler and more fiscally responsible.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1989. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 17, 1945, Soviet and Polish forces liberated Warsaw from the Nazis. That same day, Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, credited with saving tens of thousands of Jews from the Nazis, disappeared in Hungary while in Soviet custody.

On this date:

In 1706, Benjamin Franklin was born in Boston.

In 1806, Thomas Jefferson's daughter, Martha, gave birth to James Madison Randolph, the first child born in the White House.

In 1871, Andrew S. Hallidie received a patent for a cable car system that began service in San Francisco in 1873.

In 1893, the 19th President of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, died in Fremont, Ohio, at the age of 70.

In 1917, the United States paid Denmark $25 million for the Virgin Islands.

In 1946, the United Nations Security Council held its first meeting.

In 1950, eleven men in Halloween masks robbed a Brink's office in Boston of $1.2 million in cash and $1.5 million in checks, bonds and securities.

In 1961, in his farewell address, President Dwight D. Eisenhower warned against the rise of the "military-industrial complex."

In 1966, a U.S Air Force B-52 carrying four unarmed hydrogen bombs crashed on the Spanish coast. Three of the bombs were soon recovered, but the fourth wasn't found until the following April.

In 1977, convicted murderer Gary Gilmore got his wish to be shot by a firing squad at the Utah State Prison, becoming the first person to be executed in the United States in a decade.

In 1983, George C. Wallace, capping a political comeback, took the oath of office as governor of Alabama for a record fourth term as he succeeded Forrest "Fob" James.

Rafsanjani skims healthy oil nest egg

WASHINGTON — While Iran broke the bank fighting a no-win war with Iraq, the speaker of the Iranian Parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, amassed a personal fortune by skimming from Iran's oil sales profits.

Jack Anderson

Recent, highly classified Central Intelligence Agency reports place Rafsanjani's worth in the hundreds of millions of dollars — possibly as much as a billion dollars.

The reports say that Rafsanjani, the second most powerful man in Iran, invests his money in West European banks and stock exchanges under different names and socks some away in Swiss bank accounts. It is not clear whether his boss, the Ayatollah Khomeini, knows what Rafsanjani has been up to.

CIA sources told us that one of the reasons Lt. Col. Oliver North dealt with Rafsanjani for American hostages in 1985 and 1986 was that Rafsanjani appeared to be a moderate with a propensity for accumulating riches. In the eyes of North and his superior, Adm. John Poindexter, that made Rafsanjani "more American" than the Islamic idealogues who could not be bought.

The source of Rafsanjani's wealth, Iranian oil, has been plentiful, even during the long war with Iraq. Iran was able to pump large quantities of oil — more than 2 million barrels a day. About $10 billion was made in oil sales in 1987, according to some estimates, and 1988 oil income for Iran was at least $7 billion.

Intelligence analysts believe Khomeini used only half of that for the war. After buying imported food, medicine and other necessities, there was plenty of oil money for the taking by mullahs and officials under Khomeni.

Interestingly, the CIA has never had any substantial evidence that the cheerless Khomeini himself lives the high life from oil profits. His austere lifestyle reflects the unswerving loyalty to his warped view of Islam that makes him so difficult for the United States to understand.

But Rafsanjani is clearly cut from a different cloth. He seems to enjoy Western luxury. Rebuilding Iran's economy has been his obsession, not winning holy wars.

Rafsanjani's growing political support comes primarily from Iran's private businessmen, conservative mullahs who enjoy some of the "take," and the regular Iranian military. The military has always been more Westernized than Khomeini's fanatical Revolutionary Guards Corps who fought alongside the military in the war.

Inflation has soared in Iran, putting the cost of foreign goods out of sight, but not out of reach for jet setters like Rafsanjani. While he was building a nest egg, Khomeini was pinching pennies. When Khomeini accepted the United Nations cease-fire resolution last July 18, he literally could not afford to pay for the war anymore.

A secret account of a meeting in Tehran the day before that declaration bears this out. It was an eight-hour meeting called by Khomeini for 40 of his top officials. We have seen the account, which the CIA and other intelligence sources believe to be accurate.

The ailing Khomeini was not there. Instead, the meeting began with a lengthy statement from the him, read by his son Ahmad. Khomeini relied heavily on an assessment of the war by his Revolutionary Guards Corps commander Mohsen Rezai. Rezai had urged Khomeini to continue the war, but warned the ayatollah not to expect victory for the next five years. Only in 1993 would Iran be able to fight an offensive, instead of defensive, war, and only if the Guards Corps grew by 700 percent and the regular army by 250 percent.

More people and arms cost more money, and Khomeini's statement admitted that "the financial accounts are below zero."

EXPORTING POT — So much high grade marijuana is now being grown illegally in the United States that the county has become an exporter of pot. Marijuana users in the United States used to rely on imports, or on small, home-grown patches. But the Drug Enforcement Administration is seeing a boom in domestic growing. The DEA estimates that from 60 to 80 percent of marijuana grown in the United States is used in the state where it is grown. The other 20 to 40 percent is sold across state lines or exported to Canada, Mexico and several other foreign countries.

MINI-EDITORIAL — Suppose you moved into a mansion, rent free, but it needed a few repairs — $150,000 in repairs to be exact. Would you have the nerve to ask your friends to pick up the tab? You would if you were Dan and Marilyn Quayle. They're raising money to make the vice presidential residence more suitable for their family, just like George and Barbara Bush leaned on their friends for $187,000 to spruce up the same house eight years ago. It seems that the veep's mansion needs no end of tinkering, and there are apparently plenty of people willing to contribute. With friends like that, who needs a home equity loan?

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Self-study will reveal German character

WASHINGTON — What did they know and when did they know it? This question about an official "cover-up" of illegal acts, familiar to America's Watergate fans, is now being asked by a belatedly aroused free press in West Germany.

William Safire

Certainly for months and probably for years, the Kohl-Genscher-Stoltenberg government had evidence that Todeskramer — German "merchants of death" — were illegally supplying the technical know-how and materials for the production of poison gas in Iraq, Syria and Libya, as well as missile technology that would help Third-World dictators hold the world's cities hostage to "the poor man's atomic bomb."

But the men at the top of the world's largest exporting nation were afflicted with Wunschdenken, the stubbornly wishful thinking that enabled a previous generation to blind itself to the gassing of innocents. Today's German leaders did not want to know who built the plant for Iraq in Samarra that enabled Saddam Hussein to wipe out 5,000 Kurds with ease, or what German companies were building the plant south of Tripoli, ringed by Soviet SAM missiles, that would make Colonel Gadhafi far more capable of carrying out his threats to exterminate Israel and escalate his terrorism against the United States.

They arrogantly turned aside tips and protests from American officials for years, including recent pleas from President Reagan and Secretary Shultz. Only when reporters Stephen Engelberg and Michael Gordon broke the story in The New York Times, with those detailed revelations prominently displayed in The International Herald Tribune, were German leaders moved to deal with the scandal.

They covered up. The evidence offered by others was not conclusive, they said, as if that were a reason for failing to investigate themselves. Voluminous recordings and photographs "would not stand up in court," they insisted, as if they were defending democratic due process and not obstructing the exposure of a moral outrage. They concealed their earlier guilty knowledge and inaction in an explosion of indignation at what one government TV lapdog called "the Jewish press" in America.

When the term "Auschwitz-in-the-sand" was used in this space to describe Gadhafi's poison-gas factory, Foreign Minister Genscher's chief apologist in the German media denounced me for "impertinence" and trivializing the old war crimes as "small change and slapstick." Rudolf Augstein, boss of the often anti-American news magazine Der Spiegel, derided any interpretation of Gadhafi's vows to exterminate Israel as any kind of Final Solution: "Come on, William," huffed the offended media mogul, "you must have lost some of your marbles."

Then Augstein, instructing me to "look for other similes and reproaches in order to ease your conscience and to insult us," adopted what the Goebbels propaganda ministry used to call the technique of the Big Lie: "Who has prevented, and keeps on preventing, the outlawing of chemical weapons worldwide? It was the U.S.A. and it remains the U.S.A." This is a baldfaced canard; the United States has for years led the world in seeking a global ban on producing and stockpiling poison gas that would include on-site challenge inspections, which the Soviets and Geneva fellow travelers resist.

Fortunately for the reputation and self-respect of the free people of the Federal Republic, a competing publication set a team of reporters to work investigating the covered-up charges. The magazine Stern, by superb on-the-spot digging, showed the denials by officials to be a tissue of lies and shamed one prosecutor into launching a criminal investigation.

Then the Belgian government, in contrast to Bonn's legalistic foot-dragging, arrested the Antwerp shipper who knows which German companies wanted phony papers. Finally Chancellor Kohl's official spokesman, knowing that a third German magazine, Bunte, was about to publish documents proving the Kohl-Genscher-Stoltenberg crowd was forewarned by the sieve that passes for Bonn's spy agency, pre-emptively admitted prior knowledge.

Now Rudolf the Red-faced Presslord shows signs of permitting his deeply scooped Der Spiegel reporters to mirror the investigative journalism of Stern. Genschergate? We'll see; already the nimble foreign minister is distancing himself from his Kohl coalition partners in an effort to appear spotless as the Lambsdorff.

Real democracies do not tolerate cover-ups. The Federal Republic is going through a painful crisis of self-examination, led by an unintimidated press, that will illuminate the character of this generation of Germans.

CHARLEY REESE

Register complaint by writing 'Dear Crabby'

Time to call a meeting of our political lonely hearts club and open up the mailbag.

Dear Crabby:

Why can't we come up with a limited tenure in office for congressmen? Would we have to have a Constitutional change? It's probably not the sitting congressmen who will enact legislation to limit their terms but how could we do it? The incumbent is becoming unbeatable and the next feathering is an outrage.

Charley Reese

Jim Chaffee
Pharr, Tex.

Dear Jim:

The answers are can't, yes, you better believe they won't, and a Constitutional convention. To limit terms would require a constitutional amendment. Only two ways to get one. Congress may pass one out for the states to ratify or a majority of states may request a constitutional convention. I expect to see skunks buying deodorant before I see congressmen voting for an amendment to limit their time at the public trough. A Constitutional convention would be dangerous. Can you imagine Jim Wright presiding over it? The only answer is for voters to limit their terms by voting against incumbents.

Dear Crabby:

I have been seething ever since I learned about the surtax, passed by our wonderful Congress, to pay for their new catastrophic illness insurance for the elderly. Lloyd Bentsen has been bragging about how he got the catastrophic illness bill passed to help the elderly. If raising my taxes $2,050 per year is helping me, I'd hate to see what he would do to hurt the elderly. Is my thinking wrong? Are things better than I think or worse?

J. L. Avinger
Harlingen, Tex.

Dear J. L.:

Unfortunately your thinking is correct but things are even worse than you think. The catastrophic health bill was a con job — a tax increase disguised as a new benefit. It was bad enough when new taxes were called revenue enhancement or when what they didn't take in taxes was called a tax benefit. Now new taxes are called benefits. Shades of George Orwell. The only reason to pervert the language is to cover up misdeeds.

Dear Crabby:

Why do liberals scream about apartheid and are silent about the Sandinistas, Castro, and the Soviet Union's atrocities?

Allen Reding
Friendwood, Tex.

Dear Allen:

I've often asked that question of liberals and have never gotten a reasonable answer. After all, the Soviet Union denies people the right to vote in a meaningful election, requires them all to carry internal passports, denies them trade unions, and forces them to live and work where the government wishes. Moreover, while the number of blacks killed by the South African government for whatever reason is small, the murders committed by the Soviet Union and China number in the millions. Perhaps liberals, many of whom are closet socialists, believe that torture and murder, if administered by a socialist regime, don't hurt as much. What I really fear is the truth is that too many liberals assume that anybody killed, tortured or imprisoned by a socialist regime deserves it.

Probably the most benign explanation is that most of today's liberals are more stinking hypocrite than true liberal.

Address your letters to Dear Crabby, P. O. Box 2446, Orlando, Fla. 32802. We'll convene once a month from now on.

Soviet press respectfully bids farewell to Reagan, Shultz

MOSCOW (AP) — President Reagan, once referred to as a lunatic and Nazi by the Soviet media, got a respectful farewell from a government newspaper that credited him for helping to forge warmer superpower ties.

Another leading Soviet newspaper gave a glowing portrait Monday of Secretary of State George P. Shultz, calling him "one of the architects of the turning point in Soviet-U.S. relations."

"Of course, Reagan has remained Reagan, the anti-communist and the troubadour of Western society," the government newspaper Izvestia said Monday in a front-page article. "But the restructuring of international relations could not bypass the White House."

In 1984, Reagan quipped into an open microphone that he would begin bombing the Soviet Union in five minutes. In the last days of his presidency, however, Soviets recall not those "five minutes" but his five summit meetings with Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Izvestia newspaper said.

"And this is not because we have short memories, but because a long road lies ahead of us, which we can only overcome together," wrote Izvestia's Melor Sturua, a former U.S.-based correspondent.

Pravda, the Communist Party daily, carried an extraordinarily intimate profile of Shultz, Reagan's secretary of state since July 1982.

In the recent warming between the superpowers, Pravda said, "Shultz's realism had a telling effect, as well as his sober recognition of the fact that in the nuclear age, the self-preservation of our two countries can be guaranteed only by the avenues of dialogue."

Pravda also told its readers that the U.S. secretary of state is a father of five, an experienced gourmet cook, an ardent golf and tennis player and an avid devotee of ballroom dancing — surprising revelations in a country where most citizens know virtually nothing about the lives of their own leaders.

Pravda did make one barbed criticism of Shultz in its profile of the outgoing Cabinet member, saying he had been keener than former U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to send U.S. troops "to different corners of the planet to defend American interests."

It also said his Middle East policy had been a flop, but that it was necessary to pay Shultz "his due" for recognizing in the 11th hour of the Reagan presidency that it was time to begin a dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In his eight years as president, Reagan has been labeled a "lunatic" by the official Tass news agency in 1983, and likened by Pravda to a Nazi, an explosive comparison in a country that lost 20 million people in World War II.

The state-run media also made much of Reagan's own harshest comments, such as his March 1983 description of the Soviet Union as "an evil empire" and his quip the following year about launching a bombing attack.

The official image of Reagan began to warm with the coming of the 1985 Geneva summit, and with changes made in both domestic and foreign policy by Gorbachev, named Communist Party chief in March 1985.

"Without our 'perestroika' (restructuring), there would have been no 'perestroika' of Reagan," Izvestia said Monday. "New political thinking and a new world view dictated our 'docking' together."

"During his eight years in the White House, Ronald Reagan recognized this," the newspaper said.

WORLD

Czech human rights activists still in custody

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Fourteen Czech human rights activists were still in custody today after their arrests during demonstrations to commemorate a student who burned himself alive to protest the 1968 Soviet-led invasion.

The group included banned playwright Vaclav Havel and Jana Sternova, a former spokeswoman for the Charter 77 human rights group who last year had an audience with President Reagan in Washington.

Also among the 14 identified by Czechoslovak state-run media as being in custody were Alexandr Vondra and Dana Nemcova, Charter 77 spokespersons.

The arrests Monday came as hundreds of riot police and water cannons moved into Prague's central Wenceslas Square for a second straight day to disperse demonstrators, some of whom attempted to lay flowers in memory of Jan Palach, who set himself alight there on Jan. 16, 1969 and died three days later.

Palach was protesting the August 1968 invasiton that crushed "Prague Spring" liberal reforms.

On Sunday, 5,000 protesters had rallied throughout Prague, and an official report said 91 were arrested as police crushed the demonstration with clubs, dogs and water cannon.

About 500 people attended a Roman Catholic memorial Mass for Palach in the city of Brno on Monday, and the priest referred repeatedly to "Jan the martyr" without mentioning Palach's name, participants said.

Witnesses said they saw secret police inside and outside the church and riot police in side streets off Brno's central Freedom Square, where the crowd headed after the Mass.

The demonstrations have coincided with a meeting of 35 North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Warsaw Pact countries in Vienna to mark a comprehensive human rights accord between East and West.

In a prepared speech to the conference, Secretary of State George P. Shultz today condemned Czechoslovakia for suppressing the demonstrators in Prague.

Shultz said the fact that police used clubs, tear gas and water cannon on peaceful participants directly violated Czechoslovakia's commitment to 1975 Helsinki Accords. The Vienna agreement was a review of those accords.

Shultz also deplored what he called "the timidity" of East Germany, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia in not granting a greater freedom of expression and assembly to their people.

Witnesses in Prague said most of the people on the square Monday were passers-by on their way home from work.

As activists attempted to lay flowers, a crowd began to gather. Police then moved in in cars, vans and with two water cannons, said Anna Sabatova, a Charter 77 activist. They were later joined by hundreds of riot police, and the water cannon then began dousing the crowd.

Police also have used force to break up demonstrations by thousands in August and October.

The Prague daily Vecerni Praha charged that Charter 77 was "inviting people to Wenceslas Square and did not respect the wish of the majority to preserve peace."

In East Germany, church sources said Monday that authorities released most of the 190 people detained after police used clubs and water cannon to break up a demonstration by human rights activists in Leipzig.

Soviet grain harvest worst in three years

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's 1988 grain harvest was estimated at 195 million tons, 40 million tons short of the target and the worst harvest in three years.

The 1988 result, blamed on the worldwide drought, is hardly good news for Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Consumers have voiced unhappiness with empty shelves, particularly in food stores. Although bread is plentiful, the grain shortage is reflected in skinny chickens and a lack of red meat.

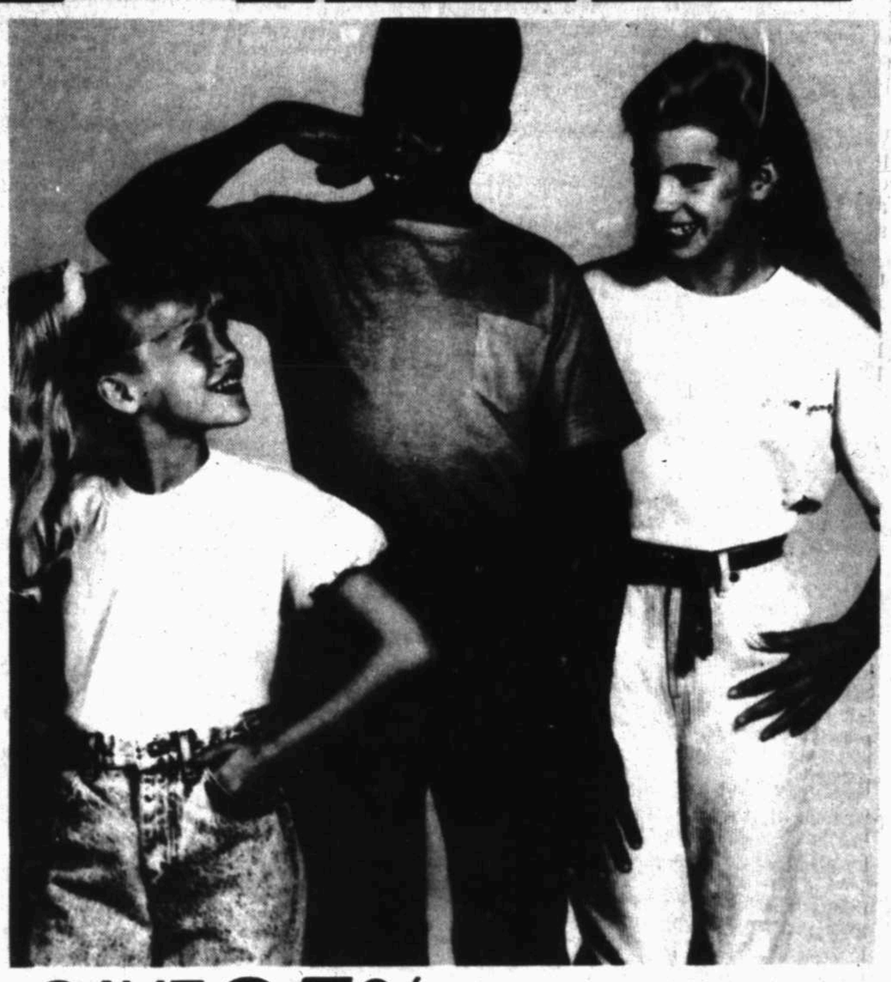

The harvest figure's importance is reduced by Gorbachev's admission that 25 percent of Soviet agricultural production is lost on the way to the store due to waste, rot and mismanagement.

The Soviet Union had said earlier that it did not expect to match its record years of 1986 and 1987, when it harvested 210 million tons of grain. No estimate was given for 1988 until Monday's news conference by Stepan Sitaryan, state planning committee vice-chairman.

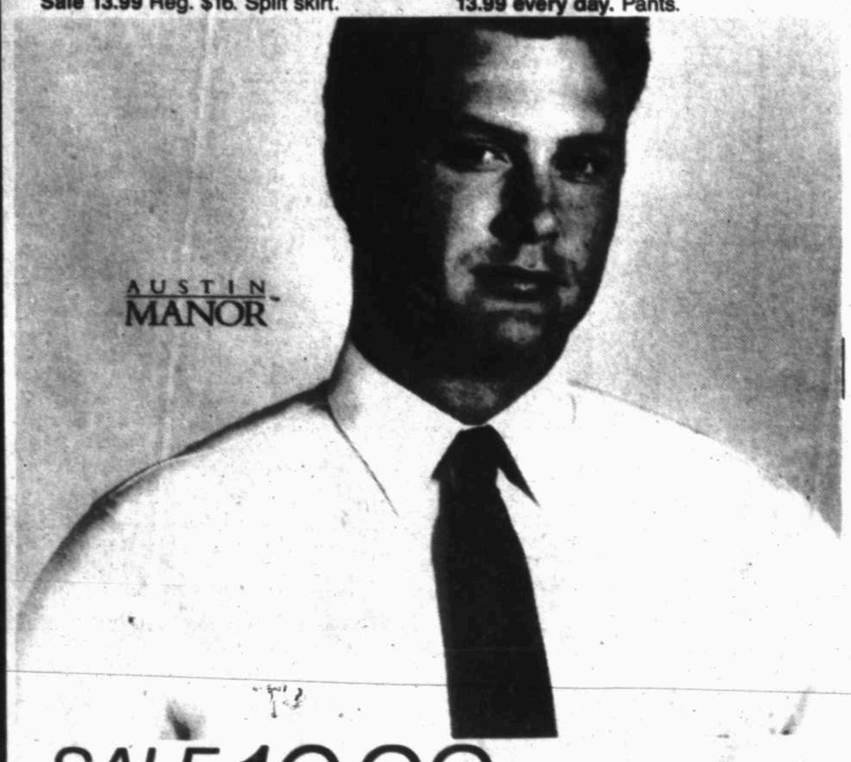

Still, the 195 million ton figure announced by Sitaryan was better than 185 million tons averaged in the first half of the 1980s.

Chinese minister apologizes for giving holiday bonuses

BEIJING (AP) — The head of China's Water Resources Ministry has apologized for handing out holiday bonuses in defiance of a government call for public frugality, the government news agency said today.

Xinhua reported that Minister Yang Zhenhuai acknowledged he indiscriminately used state funds by giving each ministry employee $12.40 — about half the average monthly wage — to help celebrate National Day on Oct. 1.

"I myself take responsiblity for the mistake," he said, adding that his predecessors had always encouraged plain living and hard work but he had failed to carry out this tradition.

His comments came after the State Council, China's cabinet, listed the ministry among government offices that ignored an order to cut spending by 20 percent by giving holiday bonuses.

China's leaders have called on government offices to take the lead in an austerity program designed to reduce nearly 20 percent inflation.

Xinhua said the Auditing Administration has warned staff members that indiscriminate distribution of cash and goods will be dealt with severely.

Next month is the Lunar New Year or Spring Festival, China's biggest holiday.

Catholics stone preacher to death

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An evangelist preacher was stoned to death by some 20 Roman Catholics leaving Mass in a town in the state of Mexico, the state Attorney General's Office said.

The Roman Catholics insulted Abelino Jerez Hernandez and ran him out of the town of San Diego del Cerrito before stoning him to death on Sunday for what they considered "an offense," Attorney General's Office spokesman Antonio Soto said Monday.

He said he did not know what provoked the incident.

Soto said state Judicial Police had begun to arrest suspects in the killing. More arrests were expected, he said.

San Diego del Cerrito is near Villa Victoria, about 70 miles west of Mexico City.

Letter links company, contractor

BONN, West Germany (NYT) — Der Spiegel, the West German news magazine, has published a letter that establishes further links between Imhausen-Chemie, the company accused of involvement in construction of a suspect Libyan chemical plant, and IBI Engineering, the principal contractor for the plant.

In the letter, dated Dec. 1, 1986, and published Monday IBI Engineering authorized two Imhausen employees and one former Imhausen employee to act as IBI consultants. Juergen Hippenstiel-Imhausen, the company's managing director, had previously denied any link to IBI.

IBI was established by an Iraqi entrepreneur named Ihsan Barbouti, who is reported to have opened an office in Frankfurt to coordinate bids for what was described as a "technology center" that Libya was planning in Rabta. The United States government says the center was, in fact, a complete plant for producing chemical weapons.

Rampaging rhino causes traffic jam

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A U.S.-bound rhinoceros tried to ram its way out of it shipping crate Monday, causing a three-hour traffic jam when the truck carrying it was forced to stop, the United News of India reported.

The black African rhino, headed to the airport for shipment to the Oklahoma City Zoo, panicked and rammed against the walls of the wooden crate, damaging it and causing the truck to sway to a halt, the news agency said.

About 30 police officers directed traffic while 20 Delhi zoo personnel escorted the 8-year-old black African rhino back to the zoo after the four-ton animal was tranquilized, the news agency reported.

The rhino, born at the zoo, was being sent as part of an animal exchange program. Cheetahs and a hippopotamus have arrived from the United States, zoo Director Kamal Naidu told UNI.

Naidu said the rhino's departure was deferred a week because the crate was severely damaged.

China to buy jetliners from U.S.

BEIJING (AP) — China's state-run airlines will buy five McDonnell Douglas MD-11 long-range jetliners under an agreement worth $500 million, the official Xinhua News Agency reported today.

China Eastern Airlines, a subsidiary of the Civil Aviation Administration of China, will receive the first jet, a 349-set passenger model, in July next year, Xinhua said in a dispatch from New York.

The second plane, a cargo jet, will be delivered in December 1990 and the other three passenger aircraft will be delivered in 1992 and 1993.

The official China Daily on Monday quoted CAAC Vice President Xu Zhengle as saying the airlines purchased more than 200 airliners for about $3 billion over the past three years and plans to expand significantly over the next few years.

The CAAC also flies Boeing, European Airbus and Soviet aircraft on its major routes. McDonnell Douglas is now assembling its MD-82 model in Shanghai in a co-production agreement with China.

U.S., France plan maneuvers

PARIS (AP) — France and the United States will conduct joint air and sea maneuvers in the Mediterranean during the first half of February, the French news agency Agence France-Presse reports.

Quoting unidentified sources in the Defense Ministry, the news agency said Monday that the French aircraft carriers Clemenceau and Foch and the American carrier Theodore Roosevelt are to participate in the exercise code-named Phinnia.

The defense source told AFP the exercises have been planned since April and have no connection to the Jan. 4 downing of two Libyan MiG-23 jets by U.S. Navy planes in international waters off the Libyan coast.

The number of troops to take part in the exercise and the precise date were not given, AFP said.

Commandos from France's Rapid Action Force will also participate in the exercises, which are designed to reinforce cooperation, the defense official was quoted as saying.

Ten people killed in bus crash

CHILPANCINGO, Mexico (AP) — A passenger bus ran off a highway in southern Mexico and plunged down a ravine, killing 10 people and injuring seven, officials said.

Tomas Hernandez Falma, an officer with the Chilpancingo police department, said the bus was traveling from Chilapa, 130 miles south of Mexico City, to the town of Hueycantenango in Guerrero state before dawn Monday when it crashed into the 150-foot ravine.

Ten people were killed immediately, Hernandez Falma said.

The other seven people on the bus were hospitalized in serious condition, said Javier Gomez, deputy commander of the Red Cross in Chilpancingo, the state capital.

The passengers lived in Chilapa and neighboring towns, Hernandez Falma said, adding that investigators have yet to determine the cause of the crash.

Number of major crimes down for county in '88

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

The number of major crimes reported to the Midland County Sheriff's Department dropped in 1988, marking a "very favorable year" for residents of the county, according to just-released statistics.

While the number of felony and misdemeanor offenses reported fell only from 1,602 in 1987 to 1,597 in 1988, the number of serious crimes, including burglary and narcotic offenses, fell "significantly" in 1988, Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said.

The figures vary greatly from those released last week by Midland police. According to those statistics, the number of serious crimes reported in the city in 1988 rose nearly 36 percent compared to 1987.

"It was a very favorable year for us," Painter said Monday. "It could have been better. But with the manpower we have, we're doing a tremendous amount of work and I got considerable productivity from them."

In 1988, residents and business owners reported 14 percent fewer burglaries to sheriff's officers, down to 250 compared to 291 in 1987, according to the statistics.

The drop is due to a decrease in the number of residential burglaries reported, according to the sheriff.

In 1987, 177 residential burglaries were reported, compared to only 130 during 1988.

Narcotics law violations, including misdemeanor and felony distribution of marijuana, heroin, cocaine and methamphetamine ("speed"), dropped nearly 30 percent in a year, from 114 in 1987 to 80 in 1988. In previous years, the sheriff explained, an increase in reported offenses was due to more aggressive enforcement by his officers.

"We're working more burglaries, and we have caught a lot of heroin addicts, but as burglar suspects," he said. "At the time they haven't had any drugs on them," Painter said, explaining the drop in reported narcotics offenses.

There was some bad news in the statistics. Felony thefts (of property valued over $750) rose 38 percent, with 181 reported in 1988 compared to only 131 in 1987.

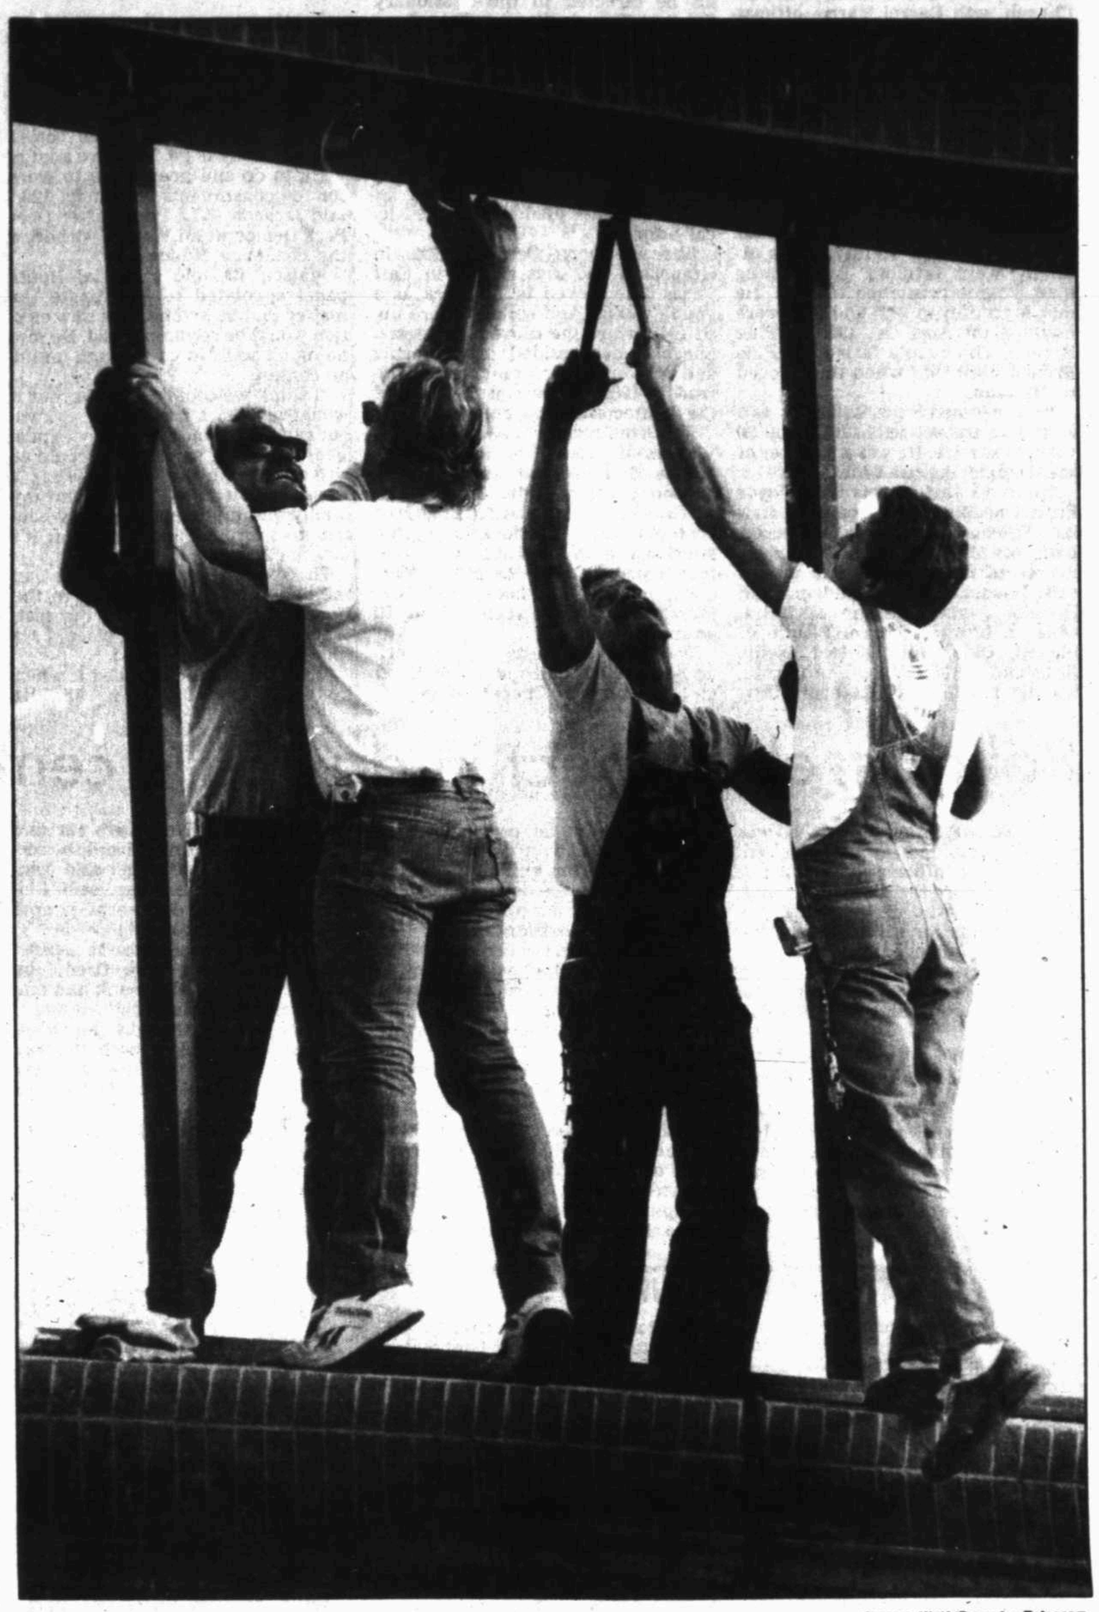

"That's going to be a little of everything," Painter said of the increase. "We have had some oil field thefts. We have had some pipe thefts. We have had some internal thefts, some white-collar crime this year."

The sheriff said it is "quite possible" there is a relationship between the crime rate rise in the city and the drop in the county. He said if a criminal has a choice he will probably commit a crime within the city limits.

"You have more to choose from in the city," he said. "And, there are not enough police officers on the street."

Painter said he, too, has to work with a manpower shortage. But he is pleased with the overall performance of his officers in 1988, he said.

"And if we had more officers, I'm sure we could reduce the crime rate," he said.

Budget staffers deliver bad news on prison proposals

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislative budget staffers started laying out the bad news about the state budget Monday as they reviewed prison and criminal justice budget proposals with the Senate Finance Committee.

The state has bond authority to expand the prison system by 4,600 new beds, the panel was told, but that leaves it 7,000 short of what the Department of Corrections sought to relieve county jail overcrowding.

The criminal justice proposal also includes an $8.6 million cut in the Adult Probation Commission budget, to reflect a reduction in state aid for misdemeanor probation supervision. That cost likely would be passed onto county governments, said Finance Committee Chairman Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Legislative Budget Office staffers also outlined for the House Appropriations Committee the entire $43.7 billion state budget proposal, which represents a 3 percent increase over 1989 levels and falls within current revenue estimates.

The budget blueprint, which has received the endorsement of legislative leaders and Gov. Bill Clements as a starting point for budget negotiations, includes $25.5 billion in general revenue (funds paid by state taxes) and would not require a tax increase.

But legislative leaders concede the budget is $1.1 billion short of maintaining current services. In an effort to make up the difference they are expected to consider other revenue sources, such as issuing more bonds, transfer of money among funds and dipping into a "rainy day" fund reserved to pay for court judgments.

The staff budget proposal would increase spending for public safety and prisons by 7.1 percent over the 1989 level of funding. The proposal would give elementary and secondary education a 0.7 percent increase from the 1989 level, but it would cut higher education by 5 percent.

"We ought to call it our conditions of surrender," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, a Finance Committee member as well as Education Committee chairman. "When our major spending priority is an increase for prisons at the same time we decrease the money available for students, we have given up."

The state's 34 senior universities would see an 8.2 percent reduction for the two year fiscal period, but that was partially offset by an 11 percent increase for the the state's 49 junior colleges and community college districts. The increase for junior colleges was due mainly to higher enrollments, officials said.

While the budget plan would use $138 million in bonds left over from a 1987 bond issue to pay for new prisons for 4,600 additional offenders, the Legislative Budget Office estimated 6,250 felony convicts already are backed up in county jails, awaiting transfer to state prisons.

"If you want to realize the full 11,000 (beds), you'll either need to appropriate general revenue funds or authorize the issuance of additional bonds," said Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Office, in the House Appropriations hearing.

The budget staff also reported that parole approvals are 71 percent higher than they were five years ago, and the governor has had to invoke a provision 10 times in the past two years to speed the release of low-risk prisoners to make room for others in the prisons, which are under a federal court order that limits admissions.

Insurance regulator says board 'inefficient, incompetent'

By THOMAS C. HAYES
New York Times News Service

DALLAS — A high-ranking regulator of the Texas insurance industry says he will resign because the state continues to be ineffective in disciplining a growing number of troubled companies.

"We do not regulate the insurance companies, the companies regulate us," said Lee Powell, acting deputy insurance commissioner in charge of financial regulation, in remarks published Monday in The Dallas Morning News.

He described many managers and the three-member State Board of Insurance as "inefficient, incompetent, indifferent and inactive."

In an interview, Powell confirmed those and other comments that appeared in the newspaper. But he declined to discuss his remarks other than to say he would leave the department on Friday.

State Attorney General Jim Mattox, at a news conference in Austin, noted the turmoil among regulators and warned that the Texas insurance industry could be headed toward a rash of failures similar to those that have enveloped banks and savings institutions in the state.

The state Board of Insurance said in a statement that Mattox's views were "unfortunate." It added, "Texas clearly is not facing an insurance solvency crisis."

A.W. Poge, the state's insurance commissioner, did not return calls.

The board has been in upheaval since October, when regulators announced the largest insolvency in the history of the industry in Texas. The company, the National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Dallas was closed with a deficit estimated at $56 million.

Susan Martin, a lawyer with the board's liquidation office, said that a final audit of National County was under way and that some officials had estimated the loss as high as $70 million. With 125,000 policyholders, National County was among the larger property and casualty companies in Texas.

More insurance companies operate in Texas than any other state.

In a lawsuit filed last month, the insurance board said at least $25 million had disappeared from National County's ledgers and accused the company's president, Robert H. Walker, of looting its assets. Ms. Martin said state officials had been unable to locate Walker and that he might have left the country.

Walker also had an interest in 23 insurance agencies, four insurance companies, four finance companies, 19 real estate ventures, two data-processing companies, and two oil and gas companies, according to state records.

Walker was the sole owner of two management companies that gave him effective control of National County's daily operations, according to the lawsuit. Policyholders paid premiums to thousands of independent agents affiliated with an agency he controlled named the Walker General Agency.

Ms. Martin said most of the premium payments, excluding money assigned for commissions to Walker General, were supposed to be forwarded to National County.

"The audit records that we have and that our own people have reviewed indicate that did not happen," Ms. Martin said. "The premiums went to the Walker General Agency and didn't go any further."

Nationally, the number of cases involving insolvent insurance companies has risen rapidly in recent years, the National Association of Insurance Brokers found in a recent survey. In most states, insurance companies are required to make annual payments to funds used to cover losses from insolvent companies.

The problem is most acute in Texas, where 132 companies and agencies are in the process of being liquidated. An additional 40 troubled companies and agencies are under close supervision by state regulators. By comparison, Florida ranks second after Texas with the highest number of receivership cases, at 61.

"Essentially, the insurance industry is overpopulated, and it's a very price-competitive industry," said Martin J. McFadden, a managing director of Marsh & McLennan, the nation's largest insurance broker, and president of the National Association of Insurance Brokers.

He said the brokers' group had urged industry regulators to tighten their supervision so they could close troubled companies before their losses mounted.

"We support regulators who get realistic and tough, and minimize the harm to the innocent," McFadden said.

In Texas, licensed insurance companies will probably be required to pay higher premiums to cover rising losses, and that ultimately will result in lower state tax revenue, said Kay Doughty, a lawyer appointed last year by Gov. Bill Clements to represent consumers in rate cases.

Payments to guaranty funds, which cover losses resulting from insurance company insolvencies, are deducted from tax obligations in Texas. Ms. Doughty added that insurance companies in Texas already face higher payments to cover a $450 million deficit in the state workers' compensation fund.

She described the troubles in the insurance industry in Texas as "severe" and said a portion was related to plunging real estate values.

In his comments to The Morning News, Powell accused regulators of ignoring the industry's troubled companies until they were beyond repair. He said he knew of 80 companies in Texas that are "in possible trouble" and need close supervision.

John Gavin, chairman of the House Insurance Committee in the Texas Legislature, said regulators had become lax in recent years and that some companies now in liquidation could have been saved if their problems had been caught earlier.

He added: "I don't think there is anything basically wrong with the insurance industry in Texas. We don't have more than our share of bad characters."

Texan spoons up success with 'chiming' hobby

Brian Crowley

By LOIS LUECKE

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Brian and Ahtah Crowley looked for a silver lining and found it in the highlands of Virginia.

An old mountaineer walked into Ahtah's gift and antique shop at Abingdon, Va., where the Crowleys were living, and pulled from a brown paper sack a set of wind chimes fashioned from silver-plated spoons.

"Oh, I like that," said Ahtah. "How many do you have?"

"Five," replied the mountaineer.

"I'll take them," said Ahtah.

The chimes sold so quickly that Ahtah later wished she could find the old man from the mountains to buy more.

"I'll be the 'old man.' Let me try to make those chimes," Brian Crowley said.

Since that day six years ago, Brian did learn the craft and came up with his own version of wind chimes. Through the years he has made 4,000 sets.

"No two sets are alike. Each has a different tone," said Brian, who works now from a garage at his home in Wichita Falls. The retired couple had lived in Graham for 15 years before moving to Virginia to be near their son, and have since returned to North Texas.

The wind chimes are made from five spoons that hang from the tines of a fork.

Crowley hammers the spoon flat on an anvil. He drills holes in the handles of the spoons and hangs them with plastic fishing line from the fork tines, which are twisted in clasp-like fashion.

DPS rejects discrimination claims

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety has disputed allegations by the NAACP that the state's law enforcement agency discriminates against black employees.

NAACP officials Monday filed a complaint against the DPS, alleging disparities in treatment between black and white employees in hiring, promotions and disciplinary actions.

The complaint was filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission on behalf of 30 black troopers and support staff, said Gary Bledsoe, president of the Austin chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

But DPS officials said progress has been made to increase minorities in the ranks. The DPS has more than 5,000 employees, of which 2,600 are commissioned law officers, said spokesman Mike Cox.

Cox said that as of last April, 21.8 percent of the personnel in law enforcement were minorities, up from 9.6 percent 10 years ago.

"We think there's been some very positive improvement over the last 10 years. We were working to make things better even before the original NAACP concerns were expressed and will continue to do so," he said.

A recent survey by the Texas State Troopers Association showed that many of its members believe a "good old boy" system exists, and promotions frequently have little to do with an employee's abilities.

UTPB reports big increase in 1988 grants

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The University of Texas of the Permian Basin reported that research grants in 1988 increased 358.96 percent over the previous year, a report by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board showed.

Texas universities and health science centers took in $686.6 million in research funds from all sources in fiscal 1988, up 12.6 percent, the board reported Monday.

Universities received more than $442.1 million for research during the year, an increase of 10.8 percent over fiscal year 1987. Texas A&M University and the University of Texas received 74.4 percent of those research funds, reporting $204 million and $124.9 million, respectively.

UTPB received $181,601 for research in 1988, including $95,263 for energy research, $18,369 for chemistry and $7,057 for engineering for a total of $120,689 in the physical sciences. It received $20,706 for history and $2,290 for humanities, $5,919 for linguistics, $24,827 for social work and $333 for other, or $54,075 in the social sciences. The university also got $6,837 for education research.

UTPB got $5,918 from the state, $45,343 from in-house funds and spent $2,495 for education research, $546 for psychology and $450 in physical sciences.

DEATHS

Ted R. Pearce

Services for Ted R. Pearce were to be at 3 p.m. today at Temple Baptist Church with Darrel Martin officiating. Graveside services will be at 1 p.m. Thursday at Lane's Chapel Cemetery in Clarksville with the Rev. W.A. Henager of Bible Baptist Church in Mount Pleasant officiating. Services are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Pearce died Monday at a local hospital.

He was born Jan. 8, 1907, in Lamar County and was reared in Arkansas and in Red River County where his family were farmers. As a young man, Pearce continued to farm. He met Joyce Key in 1925 and they were married on April 21, 1928 in Pine Branch. The couple farmed in Pine Branch until 1951 when they moved to Midland.

Pearce joined Superior Oil Co. as a custodian and retired in 1971 after 20 years of service. He was a member of the Temple Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Joyce Pearce of Midland; three sons, Garland D. Pearce and Jerry W. Pearce, both of Midland, and Charles G. Pearce of Jacksonville; two daughters, Imogene Irby of Midland and Deanna Joyce Stidham of Tulsa, Okla.; a brother, Darrel Pearce of Idabell, Okla.; four sisters, Nellie Butts and Lillie Key, both of Bogota, Maudie Burnett of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Flosie Howell of Euless; 13 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the Missionary Fund at Temple Baptist Church.

Avis M. Fletcher

Services for Avis M. Fletcher of Midland will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield, pastor of West Kentucky Street Baptist Church, officiating.

Mrs. Fletcher died Monday at a local hospital.

She was born Oct. 26, 1922, in Grapeland and was reared in East Texas. She moved to Lubbock as a young woman and resided there until 1949 when she moved to Odessa. She also had resided in California and Arizona before moving to Midland in 1982. She was a member of the Pentecostal Church.

Survivors include a son, Melvin D. Walters of Zapata; three daughters, Marcia S. Rodriguez and Mary E. Schooler, both of Midland, and Melody G. Garcia of California; five brothers, Don Murdock and Otie Murdock, both of California, Truman Murdock and Raymond Murdock, both of Lubbock, and E.V. Murdock of Waxahachie; and 10 grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland or the American Cancer Society.

Incumbent contender withdraws challenge

AUSTIN (AP) — State Rep. Mike Jackson said he's eager to go about his business as a lawmaker, after a challenge to his election was withdrawn by the 16-year incumbent he beat in November by seven votes.

"I am ready to go. We have a lot of work to do and need to go to work for the constituents in District 129," said Jackson, R-La Porte, after Deer Park Democrat Ed Watson withdrew the challenge Monday.

Watson, 68, told a special House panel appointed to investigate the matter that he had heard a new election would be recommended. He said he didn't want to go through another contest.

"I think we could've won it, but it would've been a nasty, long, drawn-out campaign, and very, very expensive," Watson said. "We could've raised the money, but what I would've had to put myself and my family and my friends and my contributors through, in my opinion, it's not worth it."

The special House committee had the option of recommending to the House that Jackson retain the seat, Watson be seated in his place, or a special election be called.

"I'm glad that he dropped it when he did," said Jackson, 35. "It would've only been more time-consuming and more expensive."

Recount results in the election showed Jackson beating Watson 13,009-13,002. Watson had contended there were discrepancies in vote-counting and that he should have won. Jackson had said he won fairly.

Watson asked that the special panel refer to the House Elections Committee some information discovered during an election investigation. He said 105 voters swore they were registered, but they were not.

Jackson said voter registration questions often occur in elections.

Rep. Jim Parker, D-Comanche and special committee chairman, said he probably would not formally refer the matter to the Elections Committee. Parker said he planned to ask the committee, the attorney general's election division and the secretary of state to unofficially look at whether the affidavit procedure for voters should be tightened.

"I hope Mr. Jackson the best in his endeavor. I think when he gets his first paycheck from the state, he's going to wonder, 'Why in the heck did I do this in the first place?' " Watson said. Lawmakers earn $600 a month.

Young Democrats to meet

From Staff Reports

The Midland County Young Democrats will hold their regular monthly meeting from 6 to 7 p.m. Friday at 102 Holly Drive.

Items to be discussed include election of 1989 officers and an upcoming fund-raiser.

People seeking more information should contact David Mandell, president, at 684-5548 during the day, or 694-4152 during evenings.

Police seek man with rifle

EL PASO (AP) — Police are looking for a man who chased a vanload of six teen-agers into the desert, threatened them with an M-16 assault rifle and hit one of them over the head with the rifle butt.

The teen-agers told police they were driving in east El Paso Saturday night when they passed a Jeep Scout and a pickup truck.

After they passed the vehicles, the teens drove their 1984 van onto a dirt road leading to a housing development. The other two vehicles chased the van and ran it off the road and into a dry wash.

A man believed to be in his 20s jumped out of the Jeep, ran up to the van and started beating on the vehicle with an M-16. He broke out a rear window and ordered everyone out, according to police.

The man held the teen-agers at gunpoint and told them to get on their knees or he would kill them, according to the police report. The man said the van had run his vehicle off the road.

The assailant hit a 14-year-old boy behind the right ear with the rifle butt when the teen tried to talk to the man, according to police.

Another man and two women accompanying the gunman calmed him and got him back to his vehicle. A loaded M-16 magazine was found at the scene, police said.

Bush invited to Legislature

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate on Monday adopted a resolution inviting President-elect George Bush to address the Legislature.

Sponsor J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, said Bush will have been sworn in as president by the time the invitation reaches him.

No date was menmtioned for the address.

Sims' bill first of year

AUSTIN (AP) — The first bill approved this session by a legislative committee would allow landscape architects to use only those plants and trees indigenous to Texas for landscaping the Capitol grounds.

"We don't want any Yankee bushes on our campus," joked Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The Senate Administration Committee routinely approved the bill 8-0 Wednesday to place it atop the Senate calendar.

Traditionally, all other measures will fall below the landscape bill, which means two-thirds approval will be needed to consider them.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo.

Police seek suspect in day care center shooting

PLANO (AP) — A woman who was mortally wounded at a day care center provided information about her assailant before she died, police said.

"We know who he is, we are getting warrants for his arrest and we are looking all over for him," Jon Giddings, a police investigator and public information officer in this North Dallas suburb said Monday night.

An arrest warrant has been issued for a 30-year-old Plano man, police said.

Police said Laurie Lee Newman, 25, of Richardson, was wounded Monday afternoon, then drove to a nearby bowling alley to seek assistance. She died later at a Plano hospital of a gunshot wound to the right side.

Giddings said he could not give further details about the search, but a witness said the gunman followed Ms. Newman to the bowling alley before fleeing as a crowd of people rushed to her assistance.

Police were first called to the Plano Super Bowl, the bowling alley to which Ms. Newman had driven about one-half mile from her attacker, said Luis Benavides, bowling alley manager.

"She drove to La Petite Academy at 4:30 p.m. to pick up her two children," Giddings said in a statement. "When she pulled into the parking lot, the suspect pulled up directly in front of her, exited his vehicle and began firing a large-caliber handgun."

The first bullet apparently entered the hood of Ms. Newman's car and lodged in the windshield and the second pierced a passenger-side window before striking her, said Giddings, who added several people witnessed the shooting.

"As she sped away from the scene, three more shots were fired," he said. "Two struck the trunk and one went into the unknown."

Police initially thought the shootings had occurred at both the day care center and the bowling alley where the woman fled, said Giddings.

"When she drove up, there were several customers and employees at the entrance who assisted her," Benavides said. "She evidently was shot at the day care center. She drove up, she got out on her own and said, 'Please help me. I've been shot.'

"I was working inside but went out when I heard all the commotion."

The gunman followed Ms. Newman to the bowling lanes but "evidently saw the crowd of people there and he took off," Benavides said.

An off-duty firefighter who was bowling at the center rendered aid to the woman as paramedics were called, he said.

"There was blood on the car seat. She was hit in the upper back, righthand side, under her arm but there wasn't much blood. From the way she looked, everyone assumed she would be OK," said Benavides. "It was just a real shock to us" when she died.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR VOLUNTEERS

Begin the new year by putting your talents and skills to work for someone in need. The Volunteer Center has many positions available. Here are just a few of the jobs currently open:

■ Put clerical and organizational skills to work. This position is short-term, to help an agency catch up on paperwork.

■ Enjoy meeting people, answering questions, being an ambassador for Midland? Consider manning an information booth at the Midland International Airport. Both morning and afternoon hours are open, Monday-Friday.

■ Make a difference in the quality of life for an elderly person by volunteering to be a court-appointed guardian. In-depth training and professional support will back up your efforts. Ideal for those who desire a one-on-one relationship.

■ Develop editorial skills by assisting an agency write and edit a two page monthly newsletter. Hours are flexible and work can be done at the agency or at home.

■ Consider coaching a sports team for a local youth club. Hours include late afternoon or early evenings either weekdays or Saturdays.

For more information about these and other volunteer jobs, call the Volunteer Center at 697-8781.

Firm hired to boost sales of Soviet space services

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston firm has signed a contract to market space scientific services, data and hardware for the Soviet Union, the company's president said.

Space Commerce Corp. will handle public relations activities on behalf of the Soviets, market Soviet satellites and provide engineering and technical services, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

The value of the contract was not immediately disclosed.

Arthur M. Dula, Space Commerce president, said the contract includes marketing and sale of the new — and up to now secret — satellite-borne nuclear reactor.

Dula signed the contract with Glavcosmos, the civilian Soviet space agency, in New York on Dec. 19. It became official Jan. 4 when Alexander E. Dunayev, head of Glavcosmos, signed it in Moscow.

Known in the international space community for his rapport with the Soviets, and his salesmanship abilities, Dula is kicking off the new venture with a highly unusual offer.

He wants to launch America's space station, Freedom, now in its design and development stage, on the giant Soviet rocket Energia, the world's mightiest rocket, sometime in the 1990s.

"It would save the American taxpayers about $5 billion," he said.

The Soviets not only have the world's most powerful rocket, and make dozens more rocket launches annually than the United States, they also have had their Mir space station aloft for two years. They recently broke their own man-in-space endurance record by keeping a crew in the weightlessness of Mir for 365 continuous days.

U.S. observers have said it might take as many as 18 shuttle missions, just in the first phase, to put the Freedom into space, an expensive operation that also would tie up the shuttle for months. The Energia could put the space station in orbit with two launches.

"The Soviet Union is going to have a commercial space program, there is no question about that," Dula said. "The only question is whether an American company is going to work with them to make it real."

Dula said he will set up tours of the secret Soviet Baikonur Cosmodrome, the Soviet equivalent of the Kennedy Space Center.

"I want to take people over there to show them the cosmodrome, as well as other areas of the Soviet space program, including mission control in the Moscow suburb of Kaliningrad," he said.

DPS

"It's unlikely that a good old boy is going to include a black and it sure isn't going to include a female," Bledsoe said at a news conference.

That charge was denied by Col. Joe E. Milner, DPS director. "I reject that. Our promotional system is very fair, and we welcome any examination of it," Milner said.

Bledsoe said the department's oral interview committee has disproportionately disqualified blacks and Hispanics from promotions; that blacks are penalized more harshly than white employees who commit the same violations; and that black recruiting numbers are consistently too low.

Bledsoe declined to give detailed examples, saying the EEOC complaint is an anonymous process and that the NAACP still is gathering information.

Charles Arnold, a custodian at the DPS, said he has worked there 15 years and was passed over for a promotion by a white employee. Arnold said the DPS did not even list the job to inform employees about the opening.

"I feel neglected. I just wanted to be treated fair," he said.

Arnold said after he questioned his supervisors about why he wasn't considered for the job, he was transferred to another building and his work hours were changed.

State Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, said complaints about racial harassment within the department are one of the major concerns of the Legislative Black Caucus.

"We are persuaded — with no ifs, ands or buts — that there are significant problems at the department," Ms. Delco said.

The NAACP, representing black troopers, presented demands to the DPS in January 1988 that included increased hiring of blacks and efforts to eliminate racial bias.

But Bledsoe said the NAACP broke off negotiations because they believed they weren't getting anything accomplished.

Milner said the department has "made a good-faith effort to make sure that not only all our employees are treated equally but that every applicant has an equal chance of getting a job with the DPS."

He said recent DPS recruiting classes have consistently included about 40 percent minorities. "Our goal is to achieve racial parity with the rest of the workforce in the state," he said.

BUDGET

The budget also provides for no new education or substance abuse treatment programs, which Corrections and Pardons and Paroles departments sought to cut down the return of convicts to prison.

Caperton said the state has done little to attack the root cause of crime — lack of education and drug and alcohol abuse.

"We've been content to put up walls and bars, but we don't even educate them," he said.

Caperton said he hopes more money is found, but he is not convinced of the value of financing new prisons with bonds repaid over 20 years, as Clements has suggested, instead of paying them off as prisons are built.

"We need to be real cautious about committing future legislators and future taxpayers to paying these bonds," Caperton said.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, noted that to pay off the bonds over 20 years cost twice as much as the prisons originally cost to build. He asked, "Why don't we just swallow hard" and put up the money from general funds.

In the House hearing, Appropriations Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, asked subcommittees to hold the line on their budgets despite the expectation that Comptroller Bob Bullock might make as much as $2 billion available later in the session.

If the Legislature ends up with more money, Rudd said, "We will as a whole put the money back in."

SPOONS

"The chimes make a delightful sound, each spoon having a different pitch when they are blown together by the wind," said Crowley.

"Silver-plated silverware is hard to find," said Crowley. "One lady came to make chimes out of what was left of the present to her and her husband."

"That's why many people want wind chimes from pieces of their early silver plate patterns because they had special meaning with special memories," said Mrs. Crowley. "They are the prettiest wind chimes I have heard. Ceramic ones break too easily and some wind chimes have an annoying sound."

Crowley works with a manual dexterity that perhaps reflects some of the expertise he gained in the pipeline fields during his 30 years with Texaco Pipeline Inc.

Most of the time he worked in the Wichita Falls division, but also traveled on major construction jobs for the company. He was welding inspector for Texaco and Gulf on the Trans-Ecuadorian Pipeline in Quito, Ecuador.

Jewelry hot fashion trend of '80s

By DIANE DORRANS SAEKS
Copley News Service

In a year when rising prices have made many women think very carefully and creatively about buying clothes, jewelry has become fashion's star.

With a beautiful pair of sculpted silver earrings, an eye-catching faux diamond necklace, a delicate gold chain bracelet, a dramatic gold-washed sterling silver belt buckle or a matte silver pin, last year's jackets and dresses can be updated instantly.

Even a basic black dress with a season or two under its belt looks brand-new with a bold pin or an elegant pair of vermeil earrings by one of this year's hot jewelry designers.

For women who love the sculptural purity of Donna Karan's designs, the jewelers of choice are Robert Lee Morris and Ted Muehling, with their timeless works in gold and silver. Just a chain, or three or four real or faux Chanel gold bead necklaces, plus big pearl and gold-tone earrings bring a classic cashmere sweater or cream silk blouse into 1989.

Best of all, the new jewelry doesn't have to be expensive. Gold and diamonds may be forever, but suddenly sterling silver has cachet, too.

CNS Photo

Dramatic jewelry, such as these faux gold and pave diamond link pieces by Ciro, has become fashion's shining star.

TOP JEWELRY designers such as Morris, Paloma Picasso, Barry Kieselstein-Cord, Angela Cummings, Charles Krypell and Patricia von Muselin offer costly gold jewelry but also craft the same designs in affordable silver. An 18-karat gold pin, necklace or bracelet are major investments. The same design in sterling silver can be a spur-of-the-moment purchase and just as stylish for a fraction of the price.

Judging by enormous increases in sales of silver jewelry, men as well as women are finding silver as desirable and collectible as gold. Sales of silver jewelry in the United States are reported at more than $600 million a year, which translates to about 10 million pieces, a 50 percent increase since 1986.

Among the sterling silver designs for every taste and pocketbook are bold and shiny abstract pins, semiprecious stones or pearls, refined chain bracelets and necklaces. Several silver collections come in subtle new matte satin finishes. Others are as shiny as a Rolls-Royce hood ornament.

It was Italian designer Elsa Peretti who first took sterling silver jewelry seriously when she started designing for Tiffany and Co. during the 1970s. Her sensuous sterling earrings, pins, alphabet pendants, sculpted cuff bracelets, curvy belt buckles and whimsical necklaces quickly became popular with young professional women and as gifts. Peretti's silver pins and earrings were perfect accessories for business outfits and unpretentious enough to wear with denim sportswear or everyday dresses.

A Peretti silver cuff bracelet or a black leather belt with her looped silver belt buckle give great style to weekend favorites, such as old jeans with a white cotton shirt.

Peretti's designs, now considered modern classics, continue to be extremely popular.

FIVE YEARS ago, Tiffany added Paloma Picasso to its stable of star designers. Picasso also decided to work in sterling silver. Although her prestigious designs in gold and precious gems cost in the tens of thousands, prices for her graphic silver pins and earrings start at $185.

Especially popular are the Paloma Picasso "Scribble" pin, her "Tic Tac Toe" pin and "Xs" earrings, all in highly polished sterling silver as well as gold.

Picasso also has designed new silver rings with semiprecious stones, such as citrines and amethysts. Tiffany manager Michael Moser reports that Picasso's newest silver collection — hammer-finish earrings, bracelets, rings and necklaces — are sold the moment they're displayed.

Riding the crest of silver's popularity is New York jewelry designer Lisa Jenks, who started her jewelry company in March 1987 by selling hallmarked and signed sterling silver designs for women and men. Jenks now sells her bracelets, watches, pins, rings, necklaces, cuff links and earrings to more than 80 accounts around the country and is the stand-out young jewelry designer at stores including Barneys New York and Macy's California.

"Initially, I worked in silver because it's an affordable precious metal. I didn't want to make anything I couldn't afford myself. I love to work in silver because it has a life to it. It ages so well as it gets 'beat-up' with wear, taking on more character over the years," Jenks said recently in her Manhattan penthouse studio. The 31-year-old designer, who is married to noted photographer Chris Callis, was wearing an overscale round silver watch, a charm bracelet and pendant earrings, all her own works.

SHE DESCRIBES her designs as "modern primitive," inspired by the traditional silver designs of Peru, Mexico and early South American Indian cultures. Her works have dramatic and contemporary bold shapes, geometric outlines and graphic detail.

"I work very intuitively; one design leads to another," Jenks said. "I'm not influenced by fashion or what other designers are doing." Inspirations as diverse as auto hood ornaments, hubcaps of '50s cars and Incan jewelry designs show up in her earrings and pins.

Cleveland-born Jenks had been designing sportswear for Fenn, Wright and Manson, when she started taking jewelry design courses five years ago.

She decided to start her own business last year, with her former employers, Colin Fenn and Trevor Wright, as her backers.

"From my initial lack of experience making models, my first pieces came out heavy-looking, but now that's part of my look," Jenks said. Another signature of her collection is a low-luster finish.

Jenks uses the age-old lost-wax method of casting her jewelry. First she makes a wax model of the jewelry piece — an earring, a link of a bracelet, a pin — out of a block of jewelers' wax.

"I saw it out, file it, sand it, and then hollow out the back," she said. From that model, she makes a silver cast. She smooths the design, perfects it, then attaches the "findings." When it's to her liking, she has a rubber mold made.

In this labor-intensive method, Jenks still has to cast up additional wax copies and a plaster relief mold for every earring and link.

"WHEN I get the silver castings, the surface is rough and there's a lot of hand polishing and finishing still to do. Some pieces take days to polish, solder and assemble." An oxidation process gives black accents and more dimension to her designs.

For her next collection, Jenks is playing with images of "The Arabian Nights," Aladdin's lamp and harems.

Gentler, softer look is accessories' style

By ANNE-MARIE SCHIRO
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — When fashion follows a classic route, as it is doing for this spring, the extras make a difference. Accessories can set a woman apart from the crowd and establish her personal style. She can be as classic as a triple strand of pearls or as exotic as an armload of jangling charm bracelets.

Classic and exotic are the two main directions for accessories, and within each there are many byroads.

Pearls go along with the Chanel look, a stronger-than-ever influence on fashion. It includes an abundance of gold buttons and chains, of quilted leathers and small straw hats.

Other essentials are charms dangling from bracelets and pendants hung on gold necklaces. But if enough pendant necklaces and charms are piled on, the effect crosses over to the exotic side — what many designers are calling the ethnic look. Borrowed from North Africa and the Middle East, this look includes heavy beaded necklaces in ambers, browns and black, oversized dangling earrings and striped scarves wrapped around the head or waist.

The accessory that transcends all borders and barriers, the scarf, is the single most important fashion item.

"An oblong chiffon scarf can be wrapped around the head, around the waist, around the neck or trailed over one shoulder," said Joan Kaner, vice president and fashion director of Macy's. Kalman Ruttenstein, senior vice president for fashion direction of Bloomingdale's, said: "The chiffon scarf in soft colors or spice colors is No. 1."

"It's part of the gentler, kinder mood of accessories," he said. "In keeping with the ready-to-wear feeling, everything is softer, smoother, and less hard-edged."

Donna Karan combined tailored jackets with soft pants or skirts in pale colors. "It's all very relaxed," she said. "The colors are soft, accessories are soft, bags are soft."

Ruttenstein sees a return to softer handbags, in contrast to last year's geometric shapes, and suggests pale hosiery and flat shoes with all skirt lengths as well as with pants.

Jane Tooma, Saks Fifth Avenue's fashion director for accessories, said flats were the shoes of the season, but medium heels were also in the running. "But not high heels," she said. "The customer really told us she's going to work and doesn't want a high heel."

"The customer also told us," she added, "that the more constructed bags did not work. She can't put anything in them. The ladies who lunch can wear those little constructed bags, but not we who work."

Tooma believes in drawstring bags and totes that are large but soft. Metallic leathers and metallic trimmings are making a comeback, she believes, citing Carlos Falchi's leather bags with metallic appliques and Furla's gold moire bags trimmed with tan leather.

"But scarves and shawls are the most important trend for spring," she said. "Scarves can add color and change the attitude of what you're wearing. Chiffon is the fabric of choice, but it isn't the only fabric. There are also cottons and silk Jacquards trimmed with fringe. There are long oblongs and giant squares in solid colors, multicolored stripes and combinations of stripes, dots and florals."

Stripes and dots, both large and small, are also turning up on shoes, gloves and handbags. "The idea is to put several graphics together — a dotted bag with striped shoes and gloves and a scarf that combines all the patterns," Tooma said. "One alone doesn't make it this year."

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz — Men, more than women, are resolved to improve their physical fitness in 1989, according to a New Year's survey. Get in shape, lose weight and change appearance ranked first, fourth and fifth among men, while save more money and improve love life were second and third.

For women, saving money came first, followed by more exercise, weight loss, improved church attendance and improved love life.

The telephone survey of 1,000 adult men and women was made by Summit Poll for "Lifeplanning," a book and television series.

Bow tie wearers: The few, the proud

Associated Press

Wearers of bow ties may be in the minority but they include a range of individuals from Abraham Lincoln to Pee-wee Herman.

The Men's Fashion Association calculates bow ties normally amount to 2 or 3 percent of yearly tie sales, according to an article in the current issue of Town & Country, going up to 6 or 7 percent during periodic enthusiasms among normally straight tie wearers.

A partial catalogue of bow tie wearers, past and present, sums up the nature of this minority.

They include Lincoln, Herman, Winston Churchill, artists Salvador Dali and David Hockney, Sens. Paul Simon and Daniel Patrick Moynihan, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, attorney and Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and Dr. Alfred Kinsey of Kinsey Report fame.

Piano virtuoso Vladimir Horowitz is said to own 600 of them. Bow tie wearers know they are different. Among trial lawyers, it is common wisdom that bow tie wearers tend to be independent thinkers who could complicate jury proceedings.

Columnist George Will contends one advantage of wearing a bow tie is no one mistakes you for a lawyer, but the Manhattan law firm of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts holds a celebration of the bow tie in which all members of the firm are encouraged to wear one.

A decade ago, the executive director of the Neckwear Association of America described the classic wearer as someone who "operates politely within the system but is nevertheless a maverick."

Designer Bill Blass calls bow tie wearers a cult. Michael Korda, author of "Power: How to Get It, How to Use It," has warned ambitious young men to avoid bow ties.

Why do men opt for the bow tie? For some, it literally represents a tie to the past, to the traditions of grandfathers and fathers. Others hope it will give them a gravity the years have not yet provided, although Blass argues that a bow tie looks best beneath a craggy face.

Because the bow tie provides instant separation from the crowd, some men make the choice for strategic reasons — to provide a visual mnemonic device.

Sen. Paul Simon came to the steadfast wearing of bow ties via the image route. During his first campaign for the Senate, a newspaper called him "the bow tie candidate."

Fine jewelry is art form to this Picasso

Copley News Service

Paloma Picasso smiled delightedly, and those dark Spanish eyes — inherited from her father, Pablo Picasso — lighted up at the sight of her jewelry on display.

"It is fun when you see someone wearing a piece of your jewelry — the real thing — it is a kind of kinship," said Picasso.

Picasso's face is familiar from advertising campaigns for her perfume, "Paloma Picasso." Her dark hair is pulled back in a ponytail; dark eyebrows are in wings above piercing eyes. She wears gold and pearl earrings that are large enough to be fashionable, yet small enough to be real, and a red bolero with black pants for traveling.

"My look is so dramatic, I cannot escape it," she said. "I have strong features, so I wear strong jewelry and strong colors."

A massive gold bracelet and dramatic gold ring, both her own design, gleam on her hand and wrist. She is petite (5 feet 4 inches tall) and slender, wearing sizes 4 to 6 in the designer clothes she buys in Paris. Yves Saint Laurent, Karl Lagerfeld and Chanel are some of her favorites.

"It is very important to know your own style, what suits you," Picasso said. "Women have to learn that for themselves — what suits them. It is an inner sense one has. It is wearing what makes you feel good and more secure, because then you act in a more positive way."

CNS Photo

These two brooches, made of oxblood coral, emeralds, amethyst and diamonds, are from the Paloma Picasso line.

THIS INTEREST in fashion led to the jewelry she began creating in 1969 after graduating from the University of Paris at Nanterre. She showed some of her early work to St. Laurent, who presented it with his clothing at one of his shows.

Picasso began designing jewelry exclusively for Tiffany in 1980. This year, she and her husband, South American playwright Rafael Lopez-Sanchez, formed a company to begin marketing a line of accessories such as bags, belts, scarves and sunglasses she designed. She also will introduce a line of basic cosmetics next fall.

Picasso brings a rich artistic heritage to her designing. She is not interested in painting or sculpture as her father was, nor in painting as her mother, Francoise Gilot, is. It is, rather, "design, style and artistic work applied to beautify everyday life" that she says is her goal.

Picasso was born in France in 1949, the year her father, then 67, created the "Peace Dove" as a logo for the Communist World Peace Congress in Paris. He named his daughter Paloma, which means "dove" in Spanish.

For the first four years of her life, she lived with her parents until they separated. Gilot had reportedly complained that she had been "living not with a man, but with a historical monument." Afterward, Paloma lived in Paris with her mother and brother Claude, although both children spent many summers with their father and his mistress, Jacqueline, whom he married in 1961.

Paloma is one of four children Picasso had with three women. One of his sons, Paulo, died in 1975.

PICASSO, REGARDED as one of the major artists of this century and the father of cubism, died in 1973.

Picasso said her father gets a bum rap in a new biography, "Picasso: Creator and Destroyer" by Arianna Stassinopolous Huffington, who portrays him as cruel, especially to women.

"It's very stupid," she said, her eyes flashing with anger. "A new way of making biographies is to destroy the subject of the book. It's like a recipe — enough scandal to get on a best-seller list."

She shrugged away the idea that her father was a destroyer, pointing out that she had not been devastated by him.

There was a time in her life, Picasso said, when she rebelled against her father's name and "tried to escape it for awhile, but that didn't work.

"I dressed outlandishly and did many foolish things," she said. "I certainly was extreme. But there was no alternative. So now I work to be the best I can be."

That positive philosophy continues as she grows older.

"I've never been afraid of getting older. You need time to find out who you are. If you are happier in your work and your relationships, it is easier."

Picasso has apartments in New York and Paris but spends most of her time traveling, working on her designs wherever she goes. For her jewelry, she shops for semiprecious and precious gems, then sketches ideas for Tiffany craftsmen to execute.

Her jewelry sells from $50 for a sterling-silver stylized "X," her signature, on a chain, to more than $50,000 for a necklace of South Sea pearls and 390-carat kunzite stone held in place by diamond and gold Xs. She and Elsa Peretti, who made the "kidney bean" and "squashed heart" shapes famous, are Tiffany's only "name" designers.

PICASSO'S ROLES of designer and glamorous consumer give her a unique perspective on fashion. She predicts simple designs will grow more popular.

"Clothes will remain rather simple, and accessories will become more important," she said. "The personalization of every woman will continue, not so much by a designer but by her choices of what she can use to personalize herself. We want to show more personality now, to become more distinctive.

One of Picasso's designs, a sterling silver squiggle that looks like a pencil scribble, has been widely copied in cheaper metals and plastic. This bothers her somewhat, she said, although she knows that copying can be a form of flattery.

Hot new fashion is crystal-clear

Copley News Service

Need more tranquility in your life? Try wearing a rose quartz crystal pendant around your neck. Stimulation? A topaz ring might recharge your batteries. Patience? An emerald bracelet worn on your right arm.

But if you need a sparkling fashion statement, any of the above might be just the prescription.

Whether you believe in their healing powers, crystal jewelry is being transformed from New Age talisman to high-fashion statement. Big, bold and dramatic, haute crystal jewelry brings one-of-a-kind beauties straight from nature to you.

We're not talking little pieces of stone on a silver chain. In the new jewelry, spiky chunks of rock quartz explode in earrings and pins, rings and pendants.

Crystals are showing up everywhere. Vogue, Harper's Bazaar and Town and Country magazines have incorporated crystal jewelry into fashion layouts.

Even department stores are getting into the act. Crystals, along with costume jewelry, sunglasses rimmed with crystals — almost any crystal piece is a best seller.

Some people offer the theory that each stone has a personality and healing qualities. Others simply like the looks of the crystals. Whatever the reason, crystals are hot.

Brett Bravo, however, is a believer. A psychic counselor in Southern California who creates dramatic crystal jewelry, Bravo is the author of "Crystal Healing Secrets" (Warner Books).

Bravo began designing crystal jewelry about five years ago, after giving her clients crystal fragments for healing reasons.

When they asked for crystals to wear after misplacing the loose stones, Bravo began to design crystal jewelry.

Bravo advises wearing crystals on the body, usually at the heart or throat, at all times. Your personal electromagnetic energy — your aura — is activated by the right crystal, Bravo said, when the crystal is aligned with electromagnetic energy from the planets.

Bravo predicted that by 1991 crystals will be used as a source of clean industrial energy.

Until then, hang onto your crystal jewelry. You may not be enlightened, but you will be stylish.

Kings's brotherhood message has enduring power of truth

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This week we pay tribute to a great American, Martin Luther King Jr. His words of wisdom are even more meaningful today than they were 22 years ago, when he said: "One day somebody should remind us that even though there may be political and ideological differences between us, the Vietnamese are our brothers, the Russians are our brothers, the Chinese are our brothers; and one day we've got to sit down together at the table of brotherhood."

DEAR ABBY: If people wonder why grocery prices are so high, perhaps I can shine a little light on the subject.

I am a cashier for a large grocery store in a very well-to-do suburb of Chicago. You would not believe what we find in the evening when we close the store: Frozen turkeys and $30 roasts in the magazine racks, half-eaten bags of nuts and candy stuck here and there, frozen food thawing outside the freezer, and foods that shouldn't be frozen in the freezer!

We realize that shoppers have the right to change their minds while shopping, or at times could find themselves short of money, but all they have to do is give the unwanted items to the nearest cashier or stock clerk, who will gladly return the items to their proper places. It's a sin to see so much food wasted because people are either too embarrassed or too lazy to put them back.

If more customers realized that they are the ones who pay for all the spoiled food, perhaps they'd be more careful. — TIRED OF WASTE

DEAR TIRED: Thanks for the "food for thought" instead of food for the garbage pail.

DEAR ABBY: A relative who frequently visits our home has become a real pain. She is forever asking, "How much did this (or that) cost?" "How much do you get paid, and how often?" "Why do you have two cars when you only need one?"

Or she's always telling me what she thinks I ought to do, such as "Lose weight" or "Wash your car," "Do this," "Do that."

Mrs. Buttinsky gets worse every year. We may not be perfect, but we don't ask questions that are none of our business, nor do we tell people what to do.

How can we protect ourselves against this overbearing woman? — SICK OF HER IN OMAHA

DEAR SICK: To personal questions that are none of her business, turn the tables and ask, "Why do you want to know?"

And when she tells you what to do, simply say, "Thank you very much," then quickly change the subject.

The facts about drugs, AIDS and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy are all in Abby's new, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage is included.

Social kissers must learn to play by rules

Editor's Note: Erma Bombeck is taking a one-week vacation. This Best of Bombeck originally ran April 16, 1985.

By ERMA BOMBECK

Bombeck

I agree with Miss Manners. Social kissing is getting out of hand in this country.

What started out as an emotional embrace between families who had not seen one another in 20 years now has all the tenderness of a farsighted eagle feeding her young.

Everyone puckers and pecks these days. Starlets from the green room present their cheek to the talk show host whom they have just seen five minutes before. People at lunch hurriedly wipe crumbs from their mouths and bury their faces in your hair. From sheer habit, the other day I nearly bussed a man who came to change the thermostat in my oven.

The problem of kissing hello is twofold: First, either we all do it or no one does it. Second, if we decide to do it, there have to be some rules.

There is a bloc of diehard kissers who refuse to exchange lips with anyone but their mother and their dog. My husband is one of these. If someone wanted to give him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, he would refuse until he had been formally introduced.

He regards kissing as a clearing-house for germs and wants no part of it. When he is confronted by a social kisser, he stands with his arms hanging limply to his side and his body erect. It's like making a pass at a food blender.

There are a lot of people like my husband who must be converted if kissing is to continue. I am shocked that kissing has continued so long without rules. This has created a lot of problems, such as stepping on feet, bumping noses, getting hair caught in braces, having glasses lock, lipstick in strange places and general confusion.

There is no need for this. If ships can pass in the night without radar, people can kiss without hurting each other. When you approach the kissee, give a quick appraisal of things that puncture — pens, credit cards with sharp edges, key rings, packages, etc. — and mumble, "You look wonderful."

Then, stepping forward with your RIGHT foot to maintain balance, firmly grasp each other's hand and aim for the left side of the face. LEFT — that is important. Pucker the lips, close the eyes (to avoid foreign objects striking you blind) and whisper, "We must get together soon."

This is your standard greeting for someone you've never met before and probably will never see again. If the kissee is someone you really care about, you'll know what to do.

The American public and law enforcement agencies are getting tough on drunk drivers. It's no longer considered acceptable to look the other way if someone gets behind the wheel after having one too many.

★★★

What's not obvious in current publicity is how much drunk driving is costing all of us -- not only those who are convicted of driving while intoxicated, but everyone who pays insurance premiums.

★★★

More than 50 percent of all traffic fatalities are alcohol-related, and crashes involving alcohol are a leading cause of death among teenagers.

★★★

For those who are convicted of driving while intoxicated, the cost is direct: auto insurance premiums are often quadrupled, for at least three years. Frequent convictions could cause non-renewal of the policy.

★★★

And for the rest of us -- more than 25 cents out of every premium dollar we pay goes to cover the cost of damage done by the drunk driver.

Nearly 15,000 Freedom Marchers converge on Martin Luther King Plaza Monday in San Antonio to commemorate the birthday of the slain civil rights leader who was assassinated April 4, 1968. Marchers carried signs, banners and photos to participate in the event.

About 15,000 honor King with San Antonio parade

Associated Press

The largest Texas commemoration of the holiday honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. brought about 15,000 people from four directions to a San Antonio plaza, with other parades and marches statewide.

In the Alamo City, marchers gathered at sites up to four miles away from Martin Luther King Jr. Plaza, then met at noon Monday for speeches by city leaders and Numonde Ngubo, a representative of the Black African Miners from South Africa and United Mine Workers of America End Apartheid in South Africa.

A resolution on the "joyous yet solemn occasion" commemorating the life "of one of the most influential men of the 20th century, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr." was adopted Monday by the Texas Senate.

The Senate's two blacks — Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, and Craig Washington, D-Houston — were co-sponsors.

"Probably Dr. King was one of the greatest friends of this nation and this world, for he fought for the rights of all while teaching to love all at all times," said Ms. Johnson.

State Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, and Ms. Johnson have filed legislation to make King's birthday an official state holiday. State agencies were open while federal and many municipal and county workers had the day off.

Most Texas colleges were open as were some school districts.

Legislators, during their last session, made King's birthday an 'optional' holiday for state employees, allowing them to observe it in lieu of another state optional holiday.

The state should make King's birthday a full holiday, said Washington, suggesting it be combined with another optional holiday, Confederate Heroes' Day, celebrated Jan. 19.

"I know that my colleagues on this side of the rotunda have the courage to combine Confederate Heroes Day with Martin Luther King's birthday because there's nothing wrong with it — they're both heroes in the eyes of people who love freedom," said Washington.

After giving students the day off last January, the Corpus Christi Independent School District voted in March to drop the King birthday and Memorial Day from the list of school holidays.

But CCISD officials, responding to protests of local black leaders, voted to compromise and hold class Monday, dismissing students two hours earlier than usual.

"But rather than take a holiday, the district decided to have a regular day and early dismissal so kids could participate in any community activities going on," Chris Garcia, CCISD information officer, said.

In an hour-long demonstration organized by the NAACP, about 50 people marched outside the Grand Prairie school district office, said police. The district held classes Monday.

"There was a small opposition group but they stayed across the street," said Grand Prairie police Sgt. Ron Meine. "Everything was quite orderly."

Police did not identify the opposition group, said Meine.

In Houston, a parade moved through downtown and various church services and vigils were organized throughout the city.

A parade down Martin Luther King Drive in Dallas was led by the Wilmer-Hutchins High School marching band.

In Beaumont, ground was broken Sunday for the third phase of MLK Parkway, a $50 million highway construction project scheduled for completion in 1992.

Last week, the El Paso stretch of War Road, which links the city to the headquarters of White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, was renamed in honor of King.

More than 400 El Pasoans joined in tribute at the Community Baptist Church Sunday. Dr. Katheryn M. Brown, president of the Connectional Lay Organization of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in Atlanta and president of the World Council of Methodist Churches, was keynote speaker.

Two teens face formal charges in officers' deaths

DALLAS (AP) — Police prepared to present the district attorney with formal charges for two teen-agers' role in a car chase that led to the deaths of two police officers.

Ray Earvin McLin Jr., 17, and a 16-year-old whose identity won't be released because he is a juvenile are being held on probable cause charges of murder, says Bill Bateman, a police spokesman.

Officers Lisa Sandel and Mark Fleming died during a chase Friday night when their police cruiser went out of control and crashed into an oncoming pickup on a rain-slickened street.

An officer-trainee riding in the squad car's back seat and the pickup's driver were injured.

McLin was in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center Monday night in lieu of a $100,000 bond and the 16-year-old was in Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center. Bond has not been set, but police will try to have the teenager certified as an adult, Davis said.

Police investigating different facets of the case would have to get together to decide what charges would be formally presented to the district attorney, said Bateman.

McLin was brought by his mother Sunday night to police, who arrested him early Monday after questioning the 16-year-old.

The youths were allegedly in the stolen 1985 Oldsmobile 98 that Sandel and Fleming chased. But detective Roy Hodgens said it was too early to discuss the specific roles the youths may have played in the car theft and chase.

"The one person who'd probably be the best witness is the officer who is still in the hospital," said Bateman.

McLin's brother, Darryl Perkins, denied the suspect was involved in the chase.

"He didn't have anything to do with it, the police chase," said Perkins, saying he had talked with his brother about the allegations. "He wasn't there. He was at home. I believe him."

Nathaniel White, the 25-year-old recruit, was in serious condition Monday night in the intensive care unit at Baylor University Medical Center, said Brenda Griggs, a nursing administrator.

Bateman said police have been unable to question White, who is under heavy sedation.

Detectives canvassed the neighborhood where police found two stolen vehicles Saturday and residents provided them with a description of a teen-ager, said Sgt. Jim Chandler.

"This juvenile matched this description," he said of the 16-year-old.

200 Dallas officers to attend Tulsa funeral

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Authorities say nearly 200 Dallas police officers will attend the funeral Thursday of a fellow officer killed while pursuing two juveniles driving an allegedly stolen car.

Dallas police spokesman Bill Bateman said Police Chief Mack Vines, three busloads of officers and several squad cars will travel to the 10 a.m. graveside service in Memorial Park Cemetery for Officer Mark Fleming.

"It'll be a sad sight to see," Bateman told the Tulsa World in today's editions.

Bateman said the 24-year-old Fleming and Officer Lisa Sandel, 26, died Friday night in a car crash while chasing a stolen car apparently driven by a juvenile.

"These two officers were very well liked," Bateman said. "It's a rare thing, and a terrible thing, that we lose two officers like this."

Bateman said many of the officers at Thursday's funeral will return to Dallas to take a chartered airplane to Natchez, Miss., for Ms. Sandel's funeral.

The spokesman said Dallas police are holding two juveniles in connection with the fatal chase.

Bateman said a police radio recording indicates the chase on an interstate highway loop around Dallas lasted about 3 minutes.

Ms. Sandel had radioed a supervisor that she and Fleming, the driver, were chasing a stolen car about 55 mph on wet pavement. Seconds later, their car slid out of control and crashed into an oncoming pickup truck, Bateman said.

Elderly Houston man shoots, kills aluminum can thief

HOUSTON (AP) — An elderly Houston man who had been supplementing his income by collecting and recycling aluminum cans shot a 19-year-old can thief to death, police said.

Officers said Alvin Wells, 76, told them that someone had slipped into his backyard to steal cans for four nights in a row before the shooting Monday night.

Police said Wells fired from both barrels of a .12-gauge shotgun Monday night and killed Darrel King, 19.

Wells told officers that King climbed the fence behind Wells' small barbecue restaurant carrying a large plastic trash barrel, unaware that the elderly man was hiding with the shotgun just inside the back door.

Wells fired through his screen door, and the barrage of shotgun pellets hit King squarely in the upper chest, officers said.

Homicide Sgt. J.L. Ramsey said Wells had chased the man Saturday night and filed a police report about the thefts.

maj´i-kəl

magical — (adj.) Many people are enchanted with the idea of "magic" — illusionary or supernatural powers. Magic applies to any supernatural power or act, or to any natural power or act seeming to have miraculous results. During the recent drought, you may have read of certain Native Americans called upon to perform "magical" dances or rituals so rain would fall to water the crops. You may also have seen a stage magician performing tricks of illusion or sleight of hand. The "Magish" of ancient Persia were credited with tremendous powers of wizardry. The ancient Greeks, also believers in the supernatural, adopted "magus" as a title for magician.

Mid-West Door & Window suggests storm windows, doors

Winter is here and now is the time to lock in the heat and lock out the cold with beautiful storm windows and doors from Mid-West Door and Window Company.

Mid-West Door and Window, located at 2400 W. Front Street, has been providing beautiful, durable, storm windows and doors since 1976. Since it is locally owned and operated, you know that you can trust Mid-West for the best job in town.

Because Mid-West sells only custom fitted windows, you can count on the best fit and the least amount of air infiltration. Custom fitted storm windows and doors do more than keep the warm air in and the cold air out. They also give you a more dust free and quieter home, and in turn a more enjoyable atmosphere.

You might say storm windows and doors have six advantages. It's a protective investment in regard to heat, added beauty to your home, cooling, dust and protection from hail, noise and other elements.

Mid-West offers a wide selection of storm windows, such as Reynolds, Mason and Peerless brands. All are different shapes, finishes and prices, to allow you to pick the one that best suits your home and your pocketbook.

Mid-West offers the Peerless storm door for extra insulation, beauty and security. These doors come with tempered safety glass, adjustable door sweeps and double locksets with keyed exteriors. And to back up this door, Mid-West Door and Window puts a one-year limited warranty on it.

You can't go wrong with a Peerless storm door. With as much traffic that usually goes through doors, you need one that will last.

Think about the hail storm we had in May and the many homes that were completely left open to the rain, dirt, and other elements. In most cases storm windows would have prevented all the glass from being knocked out. Furthermore, the homes would not have been left completely open to the elements.

Storm windows and doors are moderately priced when it comes to looking at the cost of your home. So why not invest in the six-fold solution to a number of problems with properly fitted windows from the window specialist, Mid-West Door and Window.

Call 682-4632 or come by soon and see the professionals at 2400 W. Front. Free estimates are available.

Mid-West Door and Window wants you to have a warm winter with protective storm windows and doors. From left are Pam Todd, Todd McDaniel and Mike Smith.

Charlie's Delivery & Errand Service: Your personal servant

Are you too busy to run those time-consuming errands? Are you without transportation? Are you shut-in and unable to get out?

Let Charlie's Delivery and Errand Service be your personal servant. Just as close as your telephone, Charlie's will pick up and deliver almost anything you could need–from documents to prescriptions.

These days, when everyone is busy, and businesses are shorthanded because of cutbacks, it makes good sense to let someone else do the time-consuming tasks of errand-running.

Open less than one month, Donna Weaver, Charlie's owner, is dedicated to serving executives, housewives, senior citizens, shut-ins, businesses–in short, anyone who needs a little extra help. She is easily recognizable, thanks to the cheerful yellow rose which she wears on her lapel.

You can count on reasonable rates, prompt and reliable service for deliveries and pick-ups of packages, documents, contracts, food, groceries, clothes, cosmetics, gifts (wrapping available), dry cleaning, mail, prescriptions and more.

Donna is bonded for bank deposit and mail runs, and she is registered with the Secretary of State's office.

The possibilities are endless, but here's just a few ways in which Charlie's Delivery and Errand Service can help you.

Senior citizens receive discount rates on services, including grocery shopping, banking, delivery of meals from restaurants, prescription pick up and more. "Just the other day, I returned a pair of shoes for someone who couldn't get back to the shoe store," said Donna.

You can count on Charlie's Delivery and Errand Service if you have a gift for someone in mind but don't have time to get it. If you see something advertised in the newspaper, for example, just let Donna know what it is, and you'll have it in a flash.

If a sick child is at home, and you find it impossible to get to the store for groceries, diapers, prescriptions, etc., then Charlie's is the perfect solution.

Busy executives who find they can't spare the time for express mail, document and contract deliveries find Charlie's services extremely helpful.

Not only is Charlie's helpful in a pinch, you can count on prompt, reliable service. Donna wears a pager at all times, and phone calls are returned in 15 minutes or less, if she is away from the office. A 24-hour answering service keeps her informed of any need that may arise.

Rates for services which are rendered after office hours (6:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Saturday) are available.

It's as easy as a phone call to 689-0199 for Charlie's Delivery and Errand Service to start saving you valuable time. Call today!

Pamper yourself with a massage by Salon Unique's Pamela Smith

Take time out from the stress of everyday living with a soothing, pampering massage by Salon Unique's Pamela Smith. Pam is a registered massage therapist whose goal is to offer a healthy outlet from the struggles of the day.

"When a client comes in, I help them take time out from stress and tension–I want to create a nice experience for them," said Pam.

Massage is a body-centered approach directed towards achieving and maintaining better physical and mental health through the use of therapeutic touch. Massage involves three basic techniques: gentle, active and deep approaches, and Pam performs both gentle and active touch.

Gentle touching brings about deep relaxation by calming the nervous system. "Everyone responds well to gentle touch massage," Pam explained.

Active touch massage always involves movement, such as rocking, for example. "This serves to stimulate circulation, digestion and it improves energy flow. It is wonderful for the client who needs such stimulation."

The third form of massage, which Pam avoids, is deep touch. Deep touching's increased pressure may cause intense pain and inhibits relaxation.

Pam's thorough treatments last from one to one and half hours. An hour session is $35, and a 90 minute session is $50.

Registered massage therapist Pamela Smith is Salon Unique's answer to fighting stress.

If you have an area of chronic pain, Pam can focus on it with a treatment which includes hot towels and special oils to promote additional relief.

In addition to her medical training as a registered nurse, Pam completed a 250 hour requirement to be a Texas licensed massage therapist. She feels it is important to adhere to registration standards for her clients' sake.

Massage increases the circulation in the blood and lymph systems, thus carrying off harmful metabolic waste by-products, Pam said. These accumulate in the cells of the muscle tissue from overwork, tension and/or fatigue. Increased nutrition and oxygen from the blood assists healing processes and heightens the body's overall vitality.

Other additional benefits include:

- Alleviation of pain in sore muscles
- Release of tensions in the body brought about by psychological stress
- Aid in weight reduction
- Tonification of skin and muscle tissue
- Dilation of the blood vessels
- Stimulation of nerve supply to virtually every cell and organ in the body

Doctors may recommend to their patients that massage treatments be taken at regular intervals, according to Pam. As a prescribed treatment, massage may be covered by the client's insurance.

Take advantage of this "time-out" experience, which provides body-mind refreshment and allows for re-integration and balance. Call Salon Unique at 697-8711 and set up an appointment with Pam Smith today.

Smokey starts a fire

McCovery's 47 sets school record

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Charles "Smokey" McCovery said his Midland College Chaparrals needed someone to step forward offensively.

What a step!

McCovery not only stepped forward, his 47 points against Clarendon Junior College was good for a new MC single-game record.

Oh yes, the Chaps hammered Clarendon 106-81 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play Monday at Chaparral Center — MC's first league win at home.

In other WJCAC play, top-ranked Odessa College edged South Plains 81-80 to take sole possession of first place in the conference race. Also in league play, Frank Phillips nipped New Mexico Military Institute 70-62.

McCovery was 16-of-22 from the field (five-of-seven from three-point range) and 10-for-11 from the free throw line during Monday's romp. The sophomore guard broke Puntus Wilson's 1981-82 record of 45 on two free throws with 4:12 left — after which he left the game.

He had four rebounds, six assists and six steals. And all this from a guy who went two-of-nine from the floor against Odessa College last week.

Okay, so Clarendon may not match up with No. 1 Odessa. Nevertheless, McCovery said it was important that he get untracked offensively.

"I wanted to get going, because we play better when I score," the LaPorte soph said.

"I hope he can save some of that for the rest of the season," MC coach Reggie Franklin said.

Clarendon hadn't played a game in 36 days, and had only practiced three days since coming off the holiday break. But the Bulldogs showed how they had played conference power South Plains close last month by staying with the Chaps through the first 10 minutes Monday.

"We weren't going to the free throw line enough to set our press up," Franklin said. The Bulldogs led several times in the first 10 minutes, but McCovery took care of any illusions held by the visitors with seven points in a 32-second stretch of the first half.

Peter Sam gave Clarendon its last tie with a layup at the 9:49 mark. McCovery then hit a three-pointer, and two layups in rapid succession to give the Chaps a 30-23 lead with 9:04 left in the half.

The Chaps led by 17 at halftime and were never seriously challenged in the second half.

Clarendon coach Joe Mondragon said his Bulldogs didn't display their talent well after the first 10 minutes.

"We're very much better than we showed," he said. "We just turn the ball over too much right now."

Both the Bulldogs and Chaps committed 24 turnovers. But while McCovery was supported by inside stalwarts Fred Campbell and Tim Owens — with 18 and 13 points, respectively, Clarendon got a less-than-thundering 20 points from its three inside starters.

New Yorker Cleveland Phelps led the Bulldogs with 26 points, followed by backup guards Peter Sam with 14 and Tim Prewitt 10.

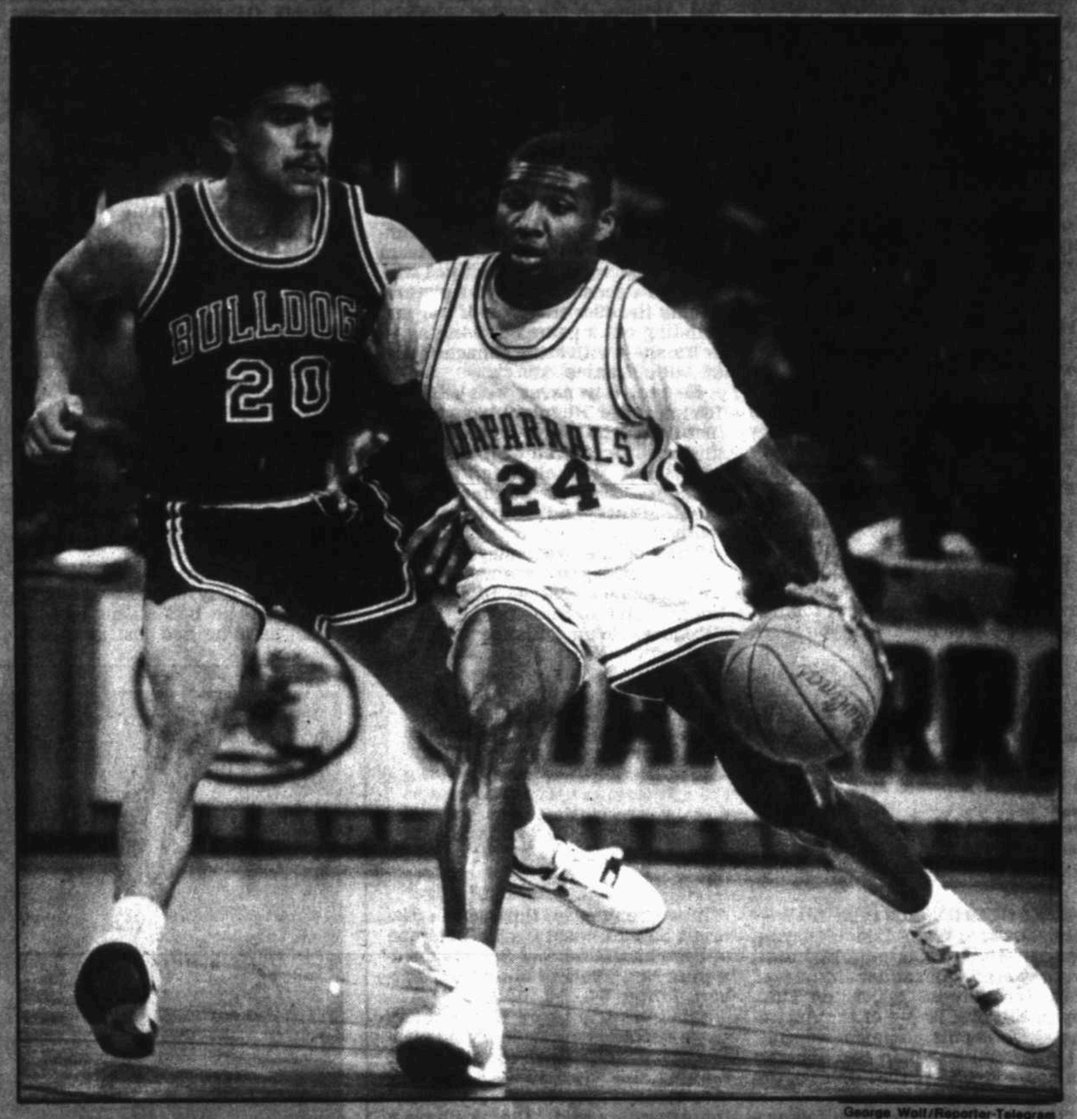

MC, 12-7 overall and 3-3 in WJCAC play, travels to Frank Phillips next Monday.

CHAPSTYQUES: MC freshman Tim Owens came off the bench to play about 20 minutes Monday in his first game back from academic limbo. Owens missed a holiday tournament in Arizona because of poor first-semester marks, and needed an interim session to become eligible for the last part of the season.

Clarendon (81): Cleveland Phelps 9-18 8-10 26; Peter Sam 5-10 3-6 14; Tim Prewitt 2-8 4-7 10; Tracy Walker 3-8 3-4 9; Russ Winters 4-8 1-2 9; Laparka Langston 2-4 2-2 6; Jerome White 1-3 1-2 3; Elgin Leslie 1-5 0-0 2; Danny Lazos 1-2 0-0 2; Totals 28-66 22-33 81

Midland College (106): Charles McCovery 16-22 10-11 47; Fred Campbell 6-8 3-4 16; Tim Owens 5-10 3-3 13; Darryl King 3-4 2-2 8; Troy Taylor 3-6 1-2 7; Randy Williams 2-5 2-5 6; Kethus Hanks 1-6 2-2 4; Kevin Chaisson 1-1 0-0 2; Kerwin Harris 1-3 0-1 3; Louis Clay 0-2 1-2 1. Totals 37-66 24-33 106.

Halftime: MC 51, Clarendon 34. Three-Point Goals: MC 8-16 (McCovery 5-7; Campbell 1-2; Hanks 1-4; Harris 1-1; Williams 0-2); Clarendon 3-8 (Prewitt 2-4; Sam 1-1; Phelps 0-1; Leslie 0-2). Rebounds: MC 42 (Campbell 9), Clarendon 27 (Walker 6); Assists: MC 14 (McCovery 6), Clarendon 5 (Prewitt 2). Steals: MC 13 (McCovery 6), Clarendon 5 (Phelps, Lazos 2).

Ankle injury to WR Jerry Rice puts 49ers on hold

By HAL BOCK

MIAMI (AP) — It was, according to quarterback Joe Montana, a routine pass pattern, not unlike many that the San Francisco 49ers run in practice every day.

Montana dropped back and threw the football. Jerry Rice went out and caught it. Routine.

"He was running a comeback," the quarterback said. "I threw the ball to him and he caught it and it looked like nothing happened."

And then, it was no longer routine.

"He just limped off," Montana said. "I guess it just flared up a little bit."

The diagnosis was a twisted right ankle that will keep Rice out of practice through Thursday and, the 49ers said, make him questionable for Sunday's Super Bowl against Cincinnati.

Others may have questions. Montana, however, does not.

"He'll play," the quarterback said. "If he can't walk, he'll play. Believe me, he'll play. I'll drag him out there."

That's how important the All-Pro wide receiver is in San Francisco's scheme of things. He caught 64 passes this season for a team-leading 1,306 yards. He also caught 10 passes, five for touchdowns, in the playoff victories against Minnesota and Chicago.

"He's the best receiver in the league," said defensive back Ronnie Lott, who works against Rice in practice. "I've seen a lot of good ones in Pro Bowls and he's the best. He comes to work every day. He makes everybody better. His attitude is, 'If you play with me, you'll play hard or I'll beat you.' "

Coach Bill Walsh said Rice was injured when he tried to change directions. He called the twisted ankle "haunting," because it is a recurrence of an injury the wide receiver suffered earlier in the season.

"He went through much of the season with problems," Walsh said. "The last six or eight games, he played well but not great. Prior to that, he was limited and more of a decoy than anything else."

San Francisco trainer Lindsy McLean said the pain was in the tendon area of the ankle. "So it's more tendinitis than anything else," he said. "We feel like with a couple of days' rest, he'll be all right."

The injury originally occurred Oct. 16 against the Los Angeles Rams, a game in which Rice caught four passes. He caught four more the next week against Chicago, but just one the following week against Minnesota and then three the next week at Phoenix.

After that, Rice's production went back up and only once in the last six weeks, including the playoffs, has he caught fewer than five passes in a game.

Walsh called the injury "moderate, not severe. He'll be with us all week, but he'll stay off the ankle."

How effective Rice could be on game day without practicing all week is open to speculation.

"Certainly, we'd prefer that he practice to get his timing down with Joe Montana," Walsh said. "So much of our offense is related to getting the ball to Rice."

What would the 49ers do without him?

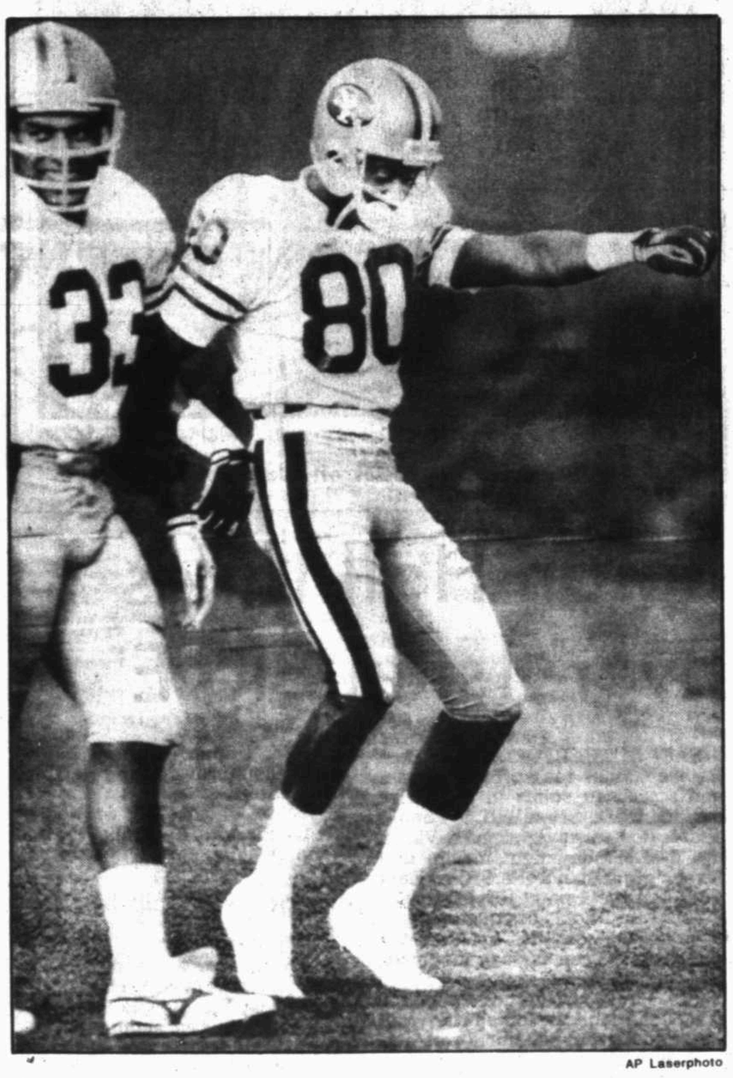

Walsh said he would use Mike Wilson, who caught 33 passes for 405 yards during the season, as a split end and Pro Bowl return specialist John Taylor (14-325) as a flanker.

"We still have other weapons," the coach said. "We will carry on."

Rice's speed was the catalyst for his lines in the recently released 49er rap song:

"Hello, my name is Jerry Rice;
"Please don't try to cover me
"Cause you'll pay the price.
"I move so fast;
"I'll give you a buzz;
"You'll be thinking that you're next to me,
"Thought you was, Cuz."

With Rice running on a lame ankle, Cuz just might be.

Vandy AD favors Prop 42

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt athletic director Roy Kramer said the NCAA's new policy on athletic scholarships is "a step in the right direction."

Passed last Wednesday in San Francisco, Proposition 42 is designed to create more stringent entrance and scholarship requirements for incoming freshmen.

"There are less than two percent of our young people who have a chance to play as a professional and it is important that the other 98 percent have a chance to gain college degrees and make themselves employable in society," Kramer said.

"Intercollegiate athletics has been criticized for not addressing this in the past," Kramer said. "They (all students) must know that they need a sound foundation coming into college if they want to be successful."

Billy Hatcher, Glenn Davis among Houston Astros seeking salary arbitration rulings

HOUSTON (AP) — Four front-line Houston Astros players filed for salary arbitration prior to Monday's deadline.

First baseman Glenn Davis, outfielder Billy Hatcher and pitchers Jim Deshaies and Juan Agosto agreed to arbitration after failing to reach agreement on new contracts.

Davis, voted the club's most valuable player last season, earned $340,000. He hit .271, drove in 99 runs and hit 30 home runs.

Hatcher earned $240,000 and hit .268, driving in 52 runs and stealing 38 bases.

Soccer makes debut in Midland as UIL sport this week

Grimes

History will be made in Midland this week.

No future politicians are starting oil companies (that we know of), nor shall any little girls fall into wells (or so we hope).

Okay, so our descendants aren't going to read about it in the history books. But a lot of little kids 40 and 50 years from now are going to be hearing about some long-ago soccer matches, because those future granddaddies are making history this week.

Midland Lee and Midland High host Wichita Falls in the first-ever varsity soccer matches in Midland played under the auspices of the good ol' University Interscholastic League. The Rebels face Wichita Falls at 5 p.m. Friday, while the Bulldogs will hunt some Coyote at 1 p.m. Saturday. Both matches are somewhere at the Hogan Park Soccer Complex.

SOCCER HAS been billed as an up-and-coming American pastime for the past two decades. On the youth level, that's essentially true.

On the spectator level, forget it — outside of traditional hotbeds such as St. Louis and ethnic areas of major cities. Underscoring that analysis in the fact that the North American Soccer League is no more, while the Major Indoor Soccer League nearly went belly-up last year.

But the lack of interest inspired by big-time soccer in the U.S., must be blamed on the narrow-mindedness, ethnocentrism and provincialism of the American sporting public rather than the qualities represented by soccer.

I SUBMIT that soccer hasn't caught on because it's somehow perceived as un-American, even though millions of young'uns (and adults) play every week. (And there's no chance for TV timeouts, because there are no timeouts.)

That's too bad.

Soccer really does have many good qualities. For one thing, you see a lot of athleticism at a soccer match.

There's a lot of ball-control involved, for example. Good soccer players can make the ball do many tricky things with their feet (and heads).

And who's to say that soccer goalkeepers can't match up with stars in any sport for sheer athleticism? While good goalies need not have tremendous foot speed, they must jump well and have outstanding reflexes.

A measure of toughness is a prerequisite for soccer success. While fouls are called (sometimes), soccer includes a strong dose of physical contact (and none of the pads that those namby-pamby football players wear.)

Keeping in mind that many soccer players run several miles a game with only a halftime break, and you can see where endurance could come into play.

While soccer may never become the great spectator sport in the U.S. that it is in most of the civilized world, high school soccer can do nothing but help the sport.

PLAYOFFS ARE PLAYOFFS ARE PLAYOFFS, whatever the sport. Word around is that both Midland teams have a good shot at representing our city in playoff action this April.

And that's nothing to sneeze at, even if you are an ignorant xenophobe that thinks soccer is only for those with names ending in "a", "o", "ski" and "vich."

Unfortunately, the newness of interscholastic soccer coupled with the time of year in which it is played will mitigate against attendance approaching the levels of other high school programs. Despite what has been claimed by some local soccer fans, look for few besides moms, dads and girlfriends at most of these games.

(Of course, I could be wrong. Let's hope so.).

No matter if five or 5,000 show up at these events, these kids are representing our high schools. Even if one can't fathom sitting out in the cold to watch these guys, one could ask them how they did, wish 'em good luck.

You could even have a pep rally for them.

The wrong arm got right results for 49ers greatest passer

Murray

True or false: Joe Montana is the greatest quarterback in the history of the San Francisco 49ers.

Well, I would have to say, False. Not proven, anyway.

Well, then, the greatest quarterback in 49er history is (choose one): Y.A. Tittle, John Brodie, Billy Kilmer or Steve Spurrier. Or maybe you liked George Mira?

The correct answer would be, none of the above.

A very good case could be made that the best quarterback of the San Francisco 49ers is a guy who threw with the wrong hand, and not very far at that. He was small and slow. He was easy to overlook. That's why he isn't in the Hall of Fame. It's also why he deserves to be.

NO LESS an authority than the late Clark Shaughnessy, who might have been the most cerebral football coach who ever lived — if you think Bill Walsh is in the genius category, you should have seen Clark Shaughnessy's X's and O's, you could have built a moon rocket with them—thought Frankie Albert was the greatest quarterback who ever lived. I never argued with Clark Shaughnessy when he was alive and I'm not going to start now.

I guess you had to have been there, but Frankie Albert was the slickest thing you will ever see running a ballclub. He played his team like a great organ. He didn't just win. He gave a concert, painted a picture. I think the 49er tradition of not just grinding out a game but winning — or losing — with some panache started with Frankie Albert.

He probably never weighed over 165 in his life. He might have been 5-foot-10, but no more. He didn't have this howitzer for an arm, but when everything was clicking, the San Francisco 49ers were one of the great sights and sounds of pro football.

Some of the great players in the history of the game roamed the 49er backfield: Joe Perry, Hugh McElhenny, Strike Strzykalski, Lenny Eshmont, Norm Standlee.

NONE OF them was any greater than their quarterback. An exasperated rival coach once lamented that he was beaten by a guy who had "a million-dollar head and a dime-store arm."

Albert was like a poker player who could bluff you out of the pot even if you had better cards. And he relished doing it.

He did all the punting, passing — and thinking. Unlike Otto Graham, Frankie called his own plays. And they usually worked.

Long before Fran Tarkenton became known for his elusiveness, Albert worked that corner, too. It was Deacon Jones who said of Tarkenton that he figured chasing Fran cut his career short by 2 years, but Don Paul of the Rams once said:

"At least with Tarkenton, those guys knew Francis had the ball. With Frankie Albert, we weren't always sure. Then he would stand there and laugh at you. He always acted as if he just heard the funniest joke. And it was you."

Albert's personal invention was the bootleg play, one in which he would hide the ball on his left hip and act as if he had just handed it off. It worked so well sometimes that the halfback who got the fake handoff actually thought he had the ball. So did the opposing linebackers. Albert had to be careful not to laugh too soon.

Frankie Albert went to Stanford, not your basic football factory then, any more than it is now. The team went 1-7-1 in 1939, Albert's sophomore year. Then Shaughnessy became the coach and he brought over from the pros — the Chicago Bears — the T-formation.

IT WAS LIKE giving Napoleon a cannon. Instant history. Albert and Shaughnessy — and Stanford — rocked college football that year with their diabolical sleight-of-hand. With a backfield of Albert, Standlee, Pete Kmetovic and Hugh Gallarneau, the scholars who scored 54 whole points the year before rolled up 196 in 1940 and won every game they played, including the 1941 Rose Bowl game against Nebraska, 21-13.

The system worked like a diamond watch under Albert. Every college, virtually, in the land immediately junked the single wing as soon as they got a load of Albert working the T grift.

Albert went into the Navy for 4 years, and played some semipro ball around L.A. But when the 49ers were formed, they grabbed him first and built a franchise around him.

Football fans have largely forgotten that the 49ers, now recognized as a solid Establishment NFL franchise, actually started in the old All-America Conference, the league that belonged in fee simple to Paul Brown, whose Cincinnati Bengals will play the 49ers in next Sunday's Super Bowl.

Paul Brown's precision unit, the Cleveland Browns, lost only 4 games in the entire history of that benighted conference. Two of them were lost to Albert's 49ers. Frankie beat them once, 56-28, throwing 5 (count 'em) touchdown passes.

ALBERT THREW 29 touchdown passes one season, which was good enough to stand for 17 years in the 49er record book.

If he wasn't the best passer in San Francisco history, he was the best left-handed passer. Before Albert, left-handed passers were about as common as left-handed third basemen. Today, no one raises an eyebrow when Boomer Esiason grips the ball with the nether hand. In Albert's day, it was considered a form of devil worship.

Why he isn't in the Hall of Fame is something for Canton, Ohio, to reason out. The five 49ers in there — Tittle, McElhenny, Perry, John Henry Johnson and Leo Nomellini — were no more a part of 49er mystique than this unfrantic Francis.

He set the mode and style of a team that wins with a kind of nonchalant detachment to this day. The 49ers kind of make you feel like peasants. And Albert used to like to make linebackers look like rubes at a carnival, or someone who came to do the lawn.

He was fun to watch. He kept even the lunch-pail, hard-hat pro game at a kind of Ivy League level. He always tended to downplay his resources.

IF YOU ask him about his key memories, as I did, Frankie Albert will tell you about the time he had a chance to beat UCLA in 1939 —and

Lendl registers easy Aussie win

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Second-seeded Ivan Lendl, playing against an outclassed opponent, overpowered Alexander Mronz of West Germany 6-0, 6-1, 6-3 on Tuesday in the first round of the Australian Open tennis championships.

Lendl took less than two hours to eliminate Mronz, ranked 276th in the world.

"He was even better than I expected," Mronz said. "He didn't miss any balls, and I had to hit an unbelievable shot just to win a point."

Lendl, who has never won the Australian Open, was pleased with his opening effort.

In women's play, third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini beat Cecilia Dahlman of Sweden 6-0, 6-1 and Belinda Cordwell of New Zealand upset No. 7 Barbara Potter 6-3, 6-3.

Sabatini's trip Down Under shows she is serious about challenging teenage rival Steffi Graf for the No. 1 ranking this year.

"I think I'm getting very close," the Argentine said. "I think I have a chance to get to the top."

Name pitchers eye big bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — Orel Hershiser, Roger Clemens and Dwight Gooden are beginning their quests for the big bucks.

The three pitchers were among 132 players who filed for salary arbitration on Monday. In all, 136 players filed for arbitration this year, the second-highest total ever. After 1986, when 159 filed, rules were changed so that players needed three years, instead of two, of major-league experience to file.

Hershiser, Clemens and Gooden could top the record arbitration-awarded salary of $1.975 million won by first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees in 1987.

HERSHISER, the National League Cy Young Award winner and the Most Valuable Player of the playoffs and World Series for Los Angeles, was 23-8 with a 2.26 earned-run average and ended the season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings. He made $1.1 million last year.

Clemens, winner of the American League Cy Young Award in 1986 and 1987, was 18-12 with a 2.93 ERA and league-leading 291 strikeouts in 264 innings. He made $1.5 million in 1988 and recently rejected offers of $6.6 million for three years and $2.2 million for one year.

Gooden, who lost in arbitration last season at $1.4 million, was 18-9 with a 3.19 ERA. The Mets have offered a two-year contract with an option but Gooden wants three years at around $6 million.

JOSE CANSECO, the AL's MVP in 1988, was the top non-pitcher to file. He made $355,000 with Oakland last season and probably will seek a raise of more than $1 million. Players and clubs exchange figures on Thursday.

The New York Mets and California Angels each had nine players file, while Seattle, Montreal and Pittsburgh had eight each. At the othe end was Baltimore, which had only pitcher Mark Thurmond file. He won in arbitration last year.

Tom Henke of Toronto, John Franco of Cincinnati and Tim Burke of Montreal, relievers who lost their cases last year in their first test of arbitration, filed again.

Most players who filed will settle before hearings are heard from Feb. 1 to Feb. 20. Of 108 players who filed last year, 90 settled. Of the 18 that went to hearings, owners won 11 and players seven, the seventh consecutive year owners held the majority.

Outfielder Tony Armas of the Angels and pitcher Scott Bailes of Cleveland filed on Monday and agreed to one-year contracts later in the day. Armas will get the same $425,000 he made last year. Bailes will get $300,000, double his salary of last season.

Steve Lyons, the Chicago White Sox infielder, filed for arbitration even though he already has agreed to a one-year contract for $325,000. The contract calls for a reopener if he is traded later in the week.

Two players who filed last Friday exchanged figures with their clubs on Monday. Pitcher Sid Fernandez asked $898,000 from the New York Mets, who offered $705,000. Fernandez settled for $580,000 after filing for arbitration last year. Pitcher Keith Atherton asked for $500,000 and the Minnesota Twins offered $400,000. He made $345,000 in 1988.

Nine players who had been eligible to file for arbitration agreed to one-year contracts on Monday.

OUTFIELDER Carmen Castillo and the Cleveland Indians agreed to $432,500, a raise of $122,500. Pitcher Jeff Dedmon and the Indians agreed to $300,000, a $50,000 cut.

Catcher Mike Heath and the Detroit Tigers agreed to $425,000, a $25,000 raise. Bill Schroeder, another catcher, agreed with California to $375,000, a $2,500 raise.

Infielder Paul Runge and Atlanta agreed to $145,000, a $30,000 raise. Infielder Otis Nixon and Montreal agreed to $175,500. He earned the minimum $62,500 last season.

Henry Cotto, an outfielder who was eligible for arbitration for the first time, will get $250,000 from Seattle, a raise of $90,000.

Chewers suffer lesions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly half of a group of professional baseball players who used snuff or chewing tobacco regularly had lesions in their mouths, researchers said Monday.

Samples of tissue taken from some of the lesions showed they were not cancerous, but some are likely to develop into cancer, said Virginia Ernster of the University of California, San Francisco.

Ernster was part of a 16-member University of California dental team that examined 1,109 ballplayers in locker rooms, on the field and in a stadium canteen during spring training in Arizona last year.

The team, assembled by Dr. John Greene of the university's dental school, found that 39 percent of the players from major and minor league teams had used snuff or chewing tobacco in the week before they were examined.

An additional 4 percent had used smokeless tobacco during the previous month and 13 percent were former users.

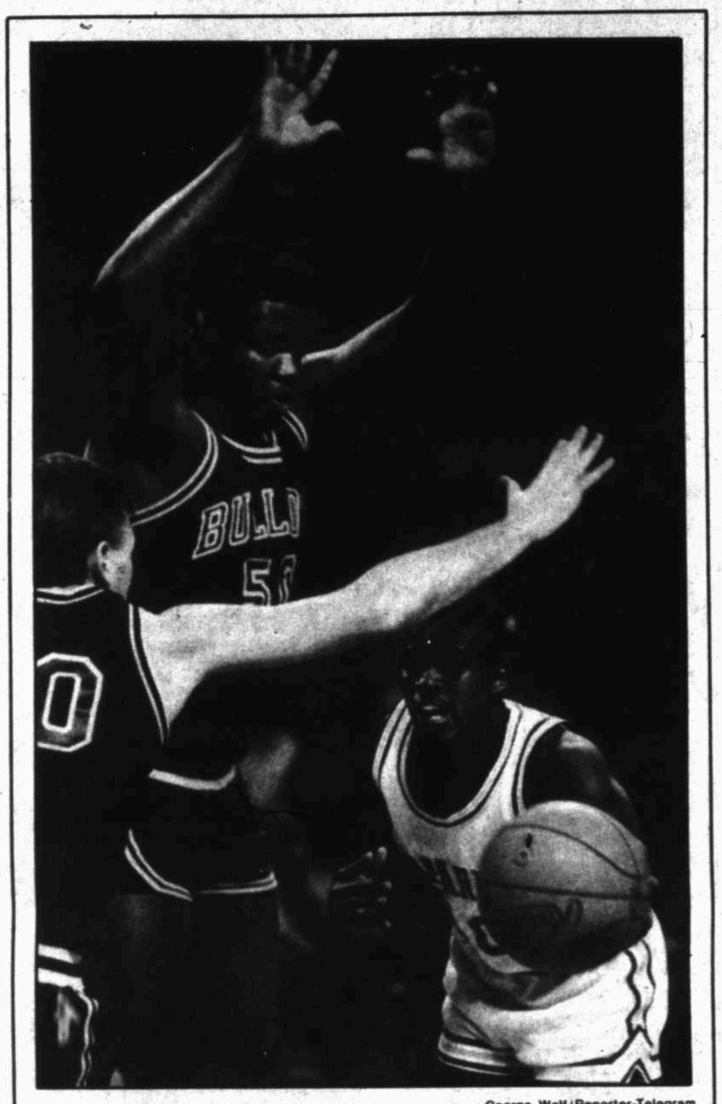

Of those who used smokeless tobacco at least weekly, 46 percent had oral lesions. Less than 2 percent of non-tobacco users had such lesions, Ernster said.

Most of the lesions were of lesser severity, and those that were sampled were found to be non-cancerous, but "some of them were quite ugly," said Ernster in describing her findings at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Neal Benowitz, a physician on the team, said that long-term use of smokeless tobacco, which increases the risk of cancer of the mouth, also increases the likelihood of high blood pressure, heart disease, ulcers and cancer of the digestive system.

Smokeless tobacco users absorb more than twice as much nicotine as cigarette smokers, Benowtiz found.

Nicotine causes blood vessels to shrink, raising blood pressure and also contributing to delayed wound healing and reproductive problems.

Seton Hall takes over 1st in Big E

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Ramon Ramos took off his goggles and scored 10 points in a decisive run and No. 12 Seton Hall, 16-1 and 4-1, defeated turnover-plagued Villanova 78-61 Monday night, moving into first place in the Big East Conference.

Seton Hall holds a half-game lead over Providence, the first time the Pirates have been alone in first place this late in the season.

The Pirates, who got 22 points from John Morton, forced the Wildcats into 17 first-half turnovers and took control with a 23-11 spurt that began late in the first half and continued at the start of the second half.

Morton ignited the burst with a 3-point field goal that ended a five-minute dry spell and gave Seton Hall the lead for good at 18-16 with 5:49 to play. Anthony Avent followed by banking in a rebound and Andrew Gaze added a 3-point shot.

After Villanova, 10-7 overall and 2-3, closed to 25-21, Ramos took over. The 6-foot-8 center, who missed the Pirates' last game with an eye injury, entered the game with goggles, but quickly shed them. The move paid dividends as he scored the final four points of the first half and six of Seton Hall's first eight in the second half, giving the Pirates a 38-27 edge with 17:10 to go.

Gaze added 16 points, Ramos 12 and Gerald Greene 11 for Seton Hall. Tom Greis had 13 and Doug West 11 for Villanova, which finished the game with 22 turnovers.

UConn 68, Syracuse 62

HARTFORD, Conn. — Cliff Robinson scored 24 points and Phil Gamble had 21 Monday night as Connecticut, 10-4 and 3-2, upset 11th-ranked Syracuse, 14-4. The Orangemen, who fell into last place in the Big East with a 1-4 mark, led for the last time at 39-35 with 15:07 to go on a 3-point shot by Matt Roe and a layup by Sherman Douglas. But Gamble hit a 3-point basket and a three-point play to put the Huskies back in front for good.

Connecticut then hit 14 of 15 free throws in the final 5:31 to seal the victory.

Tate George had 12 points and five assists for UConn, 10-4 and 2-3, before a sellout crowd at the Hartford Civic Center.

Syracuse, 14-4 overall, was led by Billy Owens with 19 points. Roe had 14 and Douglas 13.

Michigan 99, Ohio St 73

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Glen Rice sank five 3-point shots and scored 23 points as sixth-ranked Michigan, 15-2 and 3-1, beat No. 16 Ohio State, 12-4 and 2-2, in Big Ten action.

Terry Mills also scored 23 points and Loy Vaught added 22, giving the Wolverines three 20-point scorers in a game for the first time since the 1987-88 opener against Miami, Fla.

Rumeal Robinson had 14 points and Sean Higgins 10 for Michigan.

Perry Carter led Ohio State with 17 points. Jay Burson had 12, well below his 23.9 average.

Missouri 104, VPI 99

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Byron Irvin scored 35 points and No. 8 Missouri, 15-3, held off a late Virginia Tech, 6-8. The Tigers, who had led by as many as 20 points in the second half, also got 19 points from Anthony Peeler, 14 from Doug Smith and 11 from Lee Coward as they extended their winning streak to six games and pushed their record to 15-3.

Virginia Tech got 36 points from Wally Lancaster, who hit five 3-point shots and extended to 61 his NCAA record of straight games in which he has hit at least one 3-pointer. The Hokies lost their fifth straight.

Goldsmith faces toughest grid task

HOUSTON (AP) — New Rice football coach Fred Goldsmith said he is facing the most challenging job in college football.

Goldsmith replaces Jerry Berndt who resigned Dec. 28.

The Owls finished last season 0-11 and have the nation's longest losing streak of 18 losses.

"It's probably the biggest challenge in college football at this time," Goldsmith said as he arrived in Houston.

"At this stage of my life, I'm prepared to meet that and its going take a lot of work by myself, our football team, the staff and the whole organization."

Bobby May, associated athletic director at Rice, is expected to assume the duties of athletic director. Berndt, now head coach at Temple, held both titles at Rice.

Rice's search committee wanted a coach familiar with Texas and with Rice's high academic standards and Goldsmith thinks he fits the position.

"One of the keys to Rice football is to really hone in on recruiting in the state of Texas," Goldsmith said, "and to have people on the staff that know the state of Texas and know the football coaches in Texas."

As defensive coordinator at Arkansas, Goldsmith recruited the Houston area.

Goldsmith took over the head job at a school that hasn't won a football game since Sept. 26, 1987, went 0-11 last year and has lost 18 in a row, the longest major college losing streak in the country.

Berndt, who had two years remaining on his contract, replaced Watson Brown, who left after the 1985 season to return to his alma mater Vanderbilt as head coach.

Goldsmith, 44, was head coach at Slippery Rock in 1981, posting a 2-7-1 record.

Goldsmith has been an assistant under Coach Ken Hatfield for the past nine years at Air Force and Arkansas.

Arkansas breezes past Aggies, 75-60

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Oliver Miller scored 12 of his 16 points in the second half as Arkansas broke away from a halftime tie and defeated Texas A&M 75-60 Monday night.

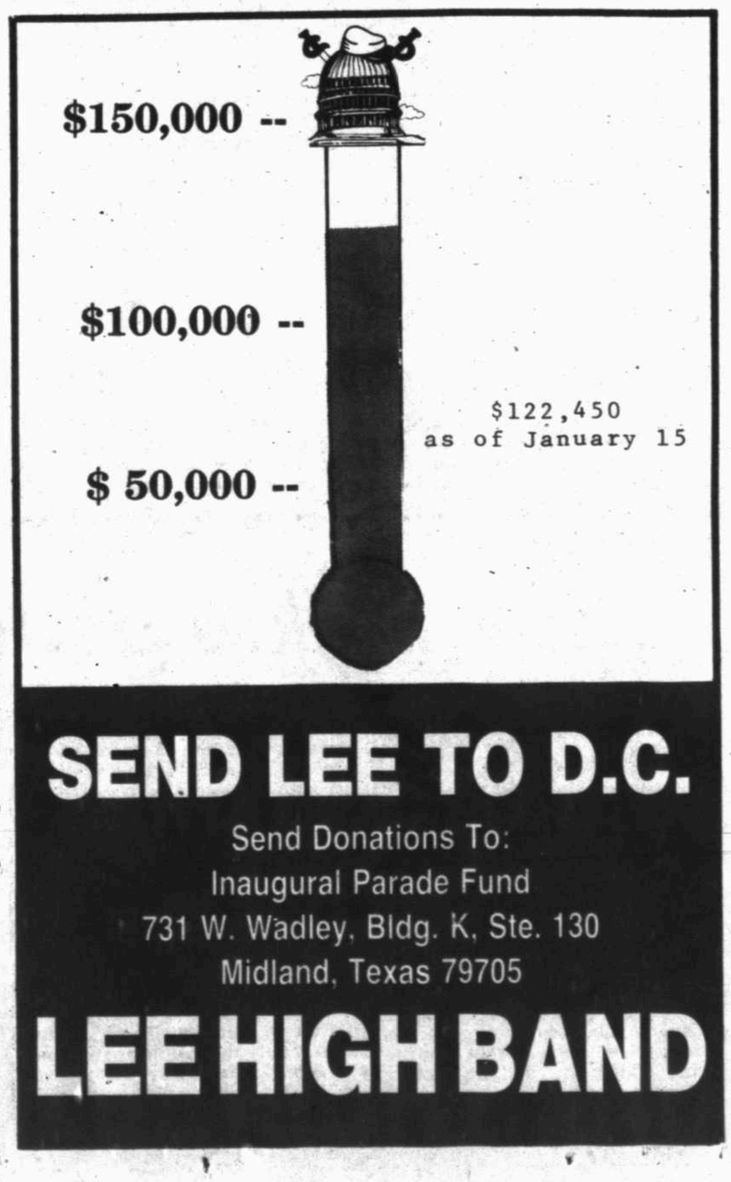

Texas A&M led by as many as 10 in the first half but it was 36-36 at intermission.

Miller got the second half started with a slam off a fast break and then Keith Wilson stole the ball and followed suit. The Razorbacks came up with the loose ball and then Wilson fed Larry Marks for another slam and it was 42-36.

An offensive rebound basket by Wilson, a basket inside by Miller, and a free throw by Wilson put Arkansas on top by nine. A three-point play by Wilson made it 56-44 and then Mario Credit followed with a slam for a 14-point lead with less than 12 minutes remaining.

The Aggies were as close as 11 but Miller slammed another one, Wilson put back a rebound and Cannon Whitby got loose on a fast-break basket and Arkansas led 66-49 with five minutes left.

JORDAN PICKED— The Bulls Michael Jordan, who led Chicago to four victories, was named NBA Player of the Week, after averaging 38 points, 10.3 assists, eight rebounds and 3.5 steals per game during the week. He shot .549 from the field on 50-for-91 and hit 52 of 57 free throw attempts for a .912 percentage.

NO MORE WALKOUTS— Georgetown coach John Thompson said he will take no more symbolic walks off the basketball court to protest a new NCAA rule on scholarships, but he left open the possibility that he would continue his demonstration by skipping the Hoyas' game at Providence Wednesday. "I have no more intentions of going to the bench and walking off. I think that point was made. But I will not go to the bench until I am satisfied. ... I just have to feel sincerely that we are moving in the right direction."

SANTA ANITA CLOSES TURF— In the wake of several complaints, the turf course at Santa Anita won't be used for an undetermined amount of time. The track said continuing cold weather has interfered with drying of the turf course.

Over the weekend, Feraud and Noble Minstrel suffered injuries while running on turf and had to be destroyed. Also, Miracle Horse had to be vanned off after suffering an injury to his left hind leg. His status was unknown.

MILLION FOR INKSTER— Julie Inkster's 34th-place finish in the LPGA Jamaica Classic made her the 17th millionaire on the women's circuit.

MAINE HIRES COACH— Tom Lichtenberg, Colorado State's offensive coordinator, was named to replace Tom Murphy as football coach at the University of Maine. Lichtenberg, 48, is the 32nd head coach in the Black Bears' history, and the fourth in less than a decade.

Lichtenberg had just joined Colorado State as assistant head coach and offensive coordinator under Coach Earle Bruce and had not even coached one season when he accepted the Maine job.

Hornets end road slump

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Kelly Tripucka scored 40 points, including nine in overtime, as the Charlotte Hornets beat the Philadelphia 76ers 127-122 Monday to snap an 11-game road losing streak.

A basket by Rex Chapman, who scored 25 points, gave the Hornets the lead at 120-118 with 1:21 left in overtime. Tripucka and Tyrone Bogues scored baskets to make it 124-118 with 50 seconds remaining, putting the game out of reach.

NBA

Mike Gminski scored 25 and Hersey Hawkins 19 for the 76ers, who saw their five-game winning streak end.

The victory was the first in overtime in the history of the Charlotte franchise and only the tenth win of their first season in the NBA. The Hornets have lost one game in overtime.

Hawks 117, Bullets 106

LANDOVER, Md. — Dominique Wilkins scored 28 points as the Atlanta Hawks snapped a three-game losing streak.

Cliff Levingston and Moses Malone led a fourth-quarter Atlanta comeback that erased an 11-point deficit in less than four minutes. Levingston had seven points, including the tying basket with 8:06 left in the game, and Malone six in a 15-4 Atlanta run.

Knicks 116, Spurs 106

NEW YORK — Mark Jackson had 24 points, 10 rebounds and 12 assists for his third career triple-double as the New York Knicks won their 14th straight home game.

It was only the third time in the Knicks' 43-year history that they have won as many as 14 straight at home.

The Knicks have won five in a row overall and have a 17-1 mark at home this season. The Spurs have lost five straight and 10 of their last 11 road games.

Cavaliers 126, Suns 110

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Mark Price scored 11 of his season-high 29 points in the third quarter as the Cleveland Cavaliers turned back a Phoenix rally.

The Cavaliers won for the 16th time in their last 19 games and improved their NBA-leading record to 27-7. They have won 10 straight at home. Phoenix lost its third in the last four.

Denver 116, Sacramento 110

DENVER — Walter Davis scored four of his 27 points in a 30-second span late in the fourth quarter to lead Denver past Sacramento, ending the Nuggets' four-game losing streak.

The Kings led 100-94 with 5:09 to play, but Denver came back on a 3-point basket by Davis and a field goal by Alex English at the 3:07 mark.

With the game tied for the 13th time, at 104-104, Davis stole the ball from the Kings' Harold Pressley and scored on a layup. Then, Davis hit a driving shot from the left side. Denver led the rest of the way.

Lakers 124, Rockets 113

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Mychal Thompson came off the bench to score 13 points without missing a shot in the first half as the Lakers remained the only NBA team with a perfect home record this season.

The two-time defending champion Lakers are 15-0 at the Forum this season and have won 22 straight regular-season home games dating back to last season.

James Worthy led the Lakers with 26 points. Byron Scott added 24. Magic Johnson had his eighth triple-double of the season with 17 points, 13 rebounds and 18 assists.

Mike Woodson led the Rockets with 24 points and 10 assists.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1989

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will get the financial security you seek and find more time for your favorite pastimes. You escape from the pressure cooker and travel in search of new experiences. A valuable stone you admire could become yours on a very special anniversary. You and mate share more with each other, strengthening your bond. Children and pets bring joy and add to your appreciation of life.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Kevin Costner, food writer Johna Blinn, actor Cary Grant, comedian Danny Kaye, author A.A. Milne.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A new plan and advanced technology will bring you great success. Do not rest on your laurels when you have the ability to do much more. Let go of the negative and undesirable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Let events develop naturally and you will be a major beneficiary of what happens. One of your dreams could now come true. It may take you some time to forgive someone. Try hard.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your attitude could be misconstrued by partner. You receive money from investments or a family trust. Be aware of new tax laws. Furthering your education holds strong appeal. Investigate night school.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Others see you as warm and seek your help. Find more time for recreation and your own interests. You will soon get more responsibility and authority at work. Financial rewards follow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This week's events will shape your immediate future. You could have a very emotional meeting with someone you encounter today. Resist impulse buying, but purchase a small luxury or two.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Heed experts' advice where your work or finances are concerned. Your career gets back on track when a rivalry ends. An older person makes a strong ally. Pool ideas and information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Develop your financial resources and your income could double. Observe your family's traditions while establishing some of your own. Community affairs capture your imagination. Help out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sharing your hopes and aspirations with loved ones may result in greater domestic harmony. Your intuition helps you uncover a mystery. Confide only in those who have proved loyal in the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family get-togethers can be a lot of fun if you avoid subjects known to be controversial. Keep your evening free so you can tend to personal chores.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Group activities stimulate your creativity. Outdoor sports enjoy favorable influences. A good afternoon to inspect property. Influential person wants to know you better. Suggest a meeting.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Creative endeavors mean extra dollars in your piggy bank. Postpone asking favors of influential people. New social contacts will boost your career in meaningful ways. Request introductions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Discuss your work concerns with mate or partner. Welcome new ideas and suggestions. A visitor from another shore could give your spirits a lift this afternoon or evening.

Opening lead: Ace of ◇

At rubber bridge, the play largely revolves around safety plays and daring defense in an attempt to beat the contract. At duplicate, the key features are overtricks and undertricks, major suits and minors.

On this hand from a pair tournament, those Norths who became too mesmerized by the extra points earned in a major suit were justly penalized for electing to play six spades rather than six clubs. The spade break meant that they had an unavoidable loser in each major.

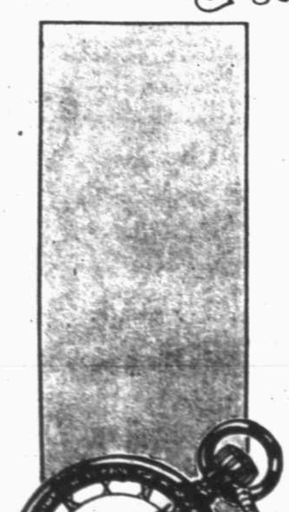

Six clubs was often reached on an auction such as the one above. Note that, despite his excellent offensive potential, South never made a jump bid. He devalued his hand because of his spade void, but that did not prevent the percentage slam from being reached.

After the lead of the ace of diamonds, most declarers made only 12 tricks. The diamond lead was ruffed in dummy and the outstanding trumps were drawn. Declarer crossed to the ten of clubs and cashed the high spades, taking four heart discards. When the suit did not break, he could set up a long spade with a ruff, but the club spots prevented him from getting back to the table to enjoy it.

At one table declarer had no trouble making all the tricks. After ruffing the diamond in dummy, he immediately ruffed a spade in hand. Now after drawing trumps with a high trump in hand, he had no problem getting back to the board with the ten of clubs to cash five spades and get rid of all his hearts.

Jackson's manager says 'Bad' concert tour to be superstar's last

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of fans howled as superstar Michael Jackson took center stage adorned in silver chains, resuming a concert tour curtailed in November when he suffered swollen vocal cords.

Jackson's manager, Frank Dileo, had announced that this would be Jackson's final concert tour.

The 30-year-old pop phenomenon was clad in black when he opened Monday night's show to about 17,500 people at the Sports Arena. He hit the stage at 8:45 p.m. complete with synchronized light show and heart-thumping choreography.

Diehard Jackson fans didn't seem to care too much about his cancellation of several concert dates, the first of which was Nov. 14.

"We figure it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Glenn Busse, a 26-year-old San Diego resident who made the long trip with his wife, Nancy.

The reclusive pop star embarked on a 16-month solo tour to promote his best-selling "Bad" album. At least 19 million copies of the record have been sold.

Jackson will finish out his shows at the Sports Arena on Jan. 26 and Jan. 27.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Michael Reagan made his debut as a news announcer for a radio station, and his dad marked the occasion with a congratulatory phone call.

"Good morning, Mike. This is your old man," President Reagan kiddingly told his eldest son in a call from the White House on Monday.

"I'm a little far away to hear your first program but I just wanted to congratulate you on the first day and wish you well," said the president, who was a radio sports announcer in Iowa in the 1930s.

"Well, thank you very much, dad," said the younger Reagan, who was surprised and pleased by the call.

Michael Reagan was hired by KSDO to deliver news and information during morning rush hour. He worked for the station for a month last summer on a temporary basis as a talk show host.

"The people of San Diego really liked him," said Mike Shields, the station's president and general manager. "The name Reagan has a lot of magic in Southern California and that's because of his father."

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired NBA greats Walt Hazzard, Wali Jones, Bill Bradley and Dave DeBusschere didn't know what they were in for when they showed at "The Cosby Show." They were enlisted by Bill Cosby for a surprise game, and then lost to a group of women.

The women, including Olympians Nancy Lieberman and Teresa Edwards, defeated the men 83-80 in a taping Monday of the NBC sitcom episode scheduled to be broadcast in March.

Hazzard and Jones were enlisted to appear as extras in a restaurant scene but then found out they were going to play some basketball.

"Just as the tape started rolling, out of the other locker room rolls the women's team," said NBC publicist Mary Neagoy. "None of the guys except Cosby knew they were going to play women. They were surprised."

"We did a lot more passing than the women. You appreciate passing when you get to be over 50," Cosby said later.

Lieberman was on the '84 Olympic team and Edwards won the gold in '88. Also on the women's team were Rhonda Rompola, assistant women's basketball coach at Southern Methodist University; college player Anucha Sanders and Stephanie Givens, actress Robin Givens' sister.

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-Colo., went "back to the blanket" last weekend, an Indian phrase for returning to tribal settings.

Campbell, who has been making Indian jewelry since he was 12, was the featured artist at the Colorado Indian Market.

Wearing Western attire and a white cowboy hat with beaded hatband, Campbell talked to passers-by about art and politics. He markets his art under the name Ben Nighthorse.

Born to a Portuguese mother and a Cheyenne father, Campbell is the only American Indian in Congress.

He turns out 130 to 150 pieces of jewelry each year, most of them small rings and earrings, from a small workshop in his Washington apartment.

LONDON (AP) — A Royal Navy mine sweeper once commanded by Prince Charles is being converted into a floating museum.

The 420-ton Bronington has been sold to a business consortium that intends to maintain the vessel as a museum portraying life aboard a mine sweeper, said Defense Ministry official Tim Sainsbury.

The ship will be moored in Manchester, he told Parliament on Monday.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Actor Griffin O'Neal is due to appear in court Friday for allegedly violating his probation by failing to perform 400 hours of community service.

The 25-year-old son of actor Ryan O'Neil was ordered to perform the community service as part of his sentence for a boating accident that killed a friend, Gian-Carlo Coppola, 23, the son of film director and producer Francis Ford Coppola.

O'Neal and Coppola were boating on the South River on Memorial Day 1986 when their 14-foot runabout struck a towline connecting two larger vessels. Coppola died of head injuries. O'Neal suffered minor injuries.

Six OPEC members have 70 percent of world's oil

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Six members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries now have 70.5 percent of the world's proven oil reserves, the Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday.

The respected oil industry newsletter said that, according to revised estimates, reserves for the "big six" in the last five years has risen from 308 billion barrels to a total of 699 billion barrels.

It listed Saudi Arabia with 255 billion barrels, Iraq with 100 billion, the United Arab Emirates with 98 billion, Kuwait with 95 billion, Iran with 93 billion and Venezuela with 58 billion.

The five Persian Gulf states alone account for nearly two-thirds of the world's proven reserves.

Saudi Arabia last week upgraded its reserves by 85 billion barrels to 255 billion following a six-year study.

The Arabian American Oil Co. noted that with additional development and exploration their "remaining reserves could be as high as 313 billion barrels of oil."

Describing the Saudi revision as "a staggering increase," the Nicosia-based survey noted: "The reassessment of reserves in Saudi Arabia represents the latest stage of a truly massive upward revision of proven oil reserves by the major OPEC countries in recent years."

Texas Eastern cautious on Coastal tender offer

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Eastern Corp. stockholders today are being asked to consider a $2.6 billion cash tender offer in a takeover attempt by Coastal Corp., a move that would make Coastal the nation's largest natural gas company.

The announcement Monday that Coastal is offering $42 per share for all outstanding stock in Texas Eastern caused a surge in the price of Texas Eastern stocks, but Texas Eastern officials urged stockholders to wait for their recommendation before responding to the offer.

U.S. District Judge Lynn N. Hughes issued a preliminary injunction Monday afternoon that prevents Texas Eastern from taking legal action in response to Coastal's bid in any other court. Hughes set a Friday afternoon hearing in the case.

"We really aren't in a position to respond to this yet. We have to get a copy of their tender offer," Texas Eastern spokesman Fred Wichleb said Monday. "We will present the offer to the board of directors, which will examine it, consider it and make a report to the stockholders in how they view the offer."

A board meeting had not yet been scheduled, Wichlab said Monday night. The company said it would make its recommendation to shareholders within 10 working days of the tender offer.

The $42-per-share Coastal offer was about 40 percent more than the $30.25 Texas Eastern stock was bringing when the market closed Friday.

After Coastal's announcement, however, Texas Eastern stock soared

Losing bidder seeks to undo Gibraltar deal

By GREG STEINMETZ
Hearst News Service

A losing bidder for a group of thrifts that included Gibraltar Savings Association of Houston has filed a petition seeking to overturn investor Ronald O. Perelman's winning offer.

Reliance Group Holdings Inc., the investment vehicle for New York financier Saul Steinberg, has asked the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York to review the process by which regulators put the package of five Texas savings and loans out for bid, according to a Reliance spokesman.

Steinberg had entered one of about 20 bids for the package. He once owned Gibraltar and retained an interest after selling it to First Texas Financial Corp. in 1984.

"In several important respects, our bid was superior," said Brian Martin, spokesman for Reliance. "Our intention is to challenge the bid process so we can resubmit an offer to acquire the savings and loans."

Martin said Reliance filed the appeal last week. He declined to specify how Reliance's bid was better. As previously reported, Reliance had at one time offered to invest more than $250 million in the group of thrifts. It is unknown whether he later revised his bid. In his winning bid, Perelman agreed to invest $315 million in the five thrifts, which took the name First Gibraltar Bank.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., the insurance arm of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, agreed to pay about $5.1 billion over 10 years to cover the new institution's losses. The savings and loan has a combined $12.2 billion in assets.

The Bank Board was closed Monday for the Martin Luther King holiday, and officials could not be reached for comment.

"It was a competitive bid process, and we were the most com petitive," said Sam Hart, spokesman for First Gibraltar. "We are happy to have gotten the institutions we got and look forward to building First Gibraltar into the premier financial institution in the state."

Hart said that in addition to price, regulators were satisfied with Perelman's managers for the thrift.

"The Bank Board was comfortable with our management team, and our management team has the best track

Survey: Liability laws costing state

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer interests are voicing skepticism over a new study that showed business fears over the Texas liability law system are costing the state jobs and money.

Economist M. Ray Perryman of Waco released his study on Monday, saying the current civil justice system had cost Texas 79,361 jobs and more than $8 billion in recent years.

"While the major announcements of new (business) activity are trumpeted with tremendous fanfare, the liability law system is ... quietly negating these gains," Perryman's report said.

The survey was done for the Texas Civil Justice League, a pro-business organization. The group's executive vice president, Ralph Wayne, said it will ask the Legislature for changes in the liability laws this year.

But a lawyer who represents consumers disagreed with the study and said the changes being sought aren't needed.

"This is simply another greedy grab with an attempt to manufacture a crisis where there is none. This will be fought by all consumer groups," said Joe Longley, a former chairman of the consumer law committee of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association.

"This so-called study is interesting for what it doesn't show," Longley said. "It's interesting to see that the manufacturers who they claim might be moving from Texas are not ceasing to do business in Texas" where they still would be covered by the state consumer-protection laws.

Perryman said his survey of manufacturers and industrial recruiters found worries over the fairness, equity and predictability of the liability laws in Texas, including the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, product liability and workers' compensation system.

"The negative economic impact caused by the costs associated with the current liability law system in Texas was greater than the combined positive direct and indirect impact of Sematech, the super collider, Fujitsu, Formosa Plastics and GTE," his study said.

According to Perryman:

— Some 3,200 Texas manufacturers, employing 340,000 workers, claimed to be considering ending manufacturing operations in Texas, moving to another state or both.

— About 30,000 Texans have lost jobs due to layoffs in which liability costs were cited as an "important consideration."

— Three thousand manufacturers decided not to introduce a product because of liability considerations, while 1,500 discontinued a product.

— Some 90 percent of Texas manufacturers involved in a liability lawsuit in the past five years said they were treated unfairly.

Mitsubishi picks Texas City for new $280 million plant

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Mitsubishi Metal Corp. officials say they plan to begin construction next fall on a $280 million copper smelter that would mark the first significant industrial addition to Texas City in 22 years.

The plant, offering 250 permament jobs and generate an estimated $5 million payroll, must first prove it would meet federal environmental standards and return sufficient profits for the Tokyo-based company.

Mitsubishi plans to apply for environmental and construction permits in April. The plant should be commercially operating by September 1991, officials said.

"The final decision to proceed is subject to the project offering a satisfactory financial return and being technically feasible and environmentally acceptable," Izumi Sukekawa, general manager of Mitsubishi's U.S. Copper Project Department, said Monday. "Now we will dedicate our energies and effort to try to actually make this plant happen."

Mitsubishi touts its copper processing system as compact, pollution-free and highly efficient. Similar plants already are in operation in Naoshima, Japan and Ontario, Canada, the company said.

More than 1,000 construction jobs would be created during the two-year construction period. And once in operation, the plant would generate another 700 indirect jobs, add $23.6 million in personal income and $100.3 million to the gross state product, officials estimated.

"We stand ready to join Mitsubishi Metal Corp. in a long, prosperous and successful future relationship," Texas City Mayor Emmett Lowry said during a Monday press conference announcing the plant.

The smelter initially would produce about 150,000 metric tons of copper from South American ore, plus sulfuric acid and other byproducts to be marketed in the United States and Europe.

The company had narrowed the selection of the plant site to between Texas City — about 40 miles southeast of Houston — and Uncle Sam, La., a small Mississippi River town between New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

No final site has been determined although several locations in the Texas City port area are under consideration. One of the criteria for the site was a 40-foot-deep ship dock.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said he was confident the plant would be built and environmental considerations would be met.

"These are conservative Japanese business people," Gramm said. "If I was investing $280 million, I'd be cautious too. We have every reason to believe the technology will be the best in the world ecologically."

Gramm said the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has been involved in the negotiations and he was certain the agency would approve the project.

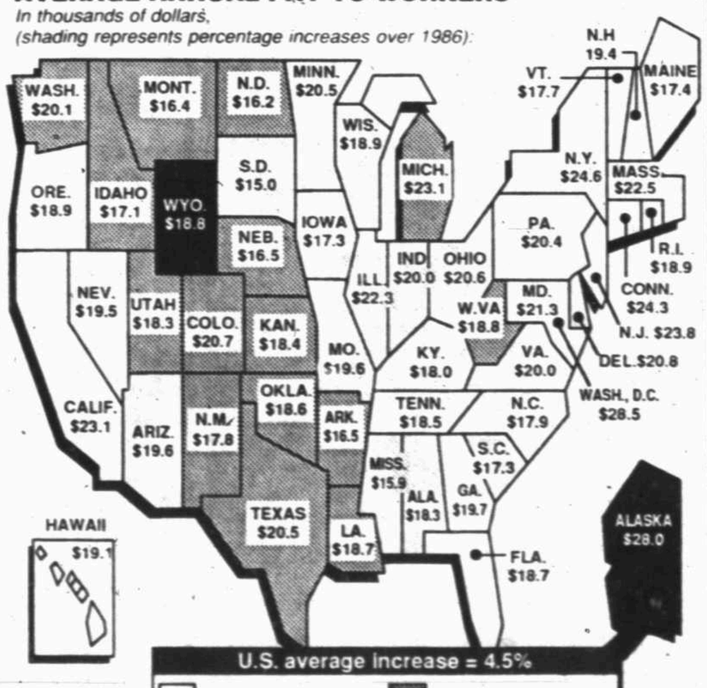

He also said he assured Mitsubishi officials that there was "no one who had made a long-term investment in our state and had not made money."

U.S. annual pay averages

In 1987, workers in the District of Columbia topped the nation with an average annual pay of $28,477, edging out Alaska with $28,008. Connecticut, ranked fourth in average pay per year, also led the pack with an 8 percent increase in wages over 1986, followed by Massachusetts with 7.5 percent. All but 10 states were below the U.S. average of $20,855 per year.

Oil prices at $19 level

From Staff and Wire Reports

Oil prices continued their upward trend, standing at the psychologically important $19 level at mid-morning.

The February contract for West Texas Intermediate jumped 40 cents to settle at $18.88 a barrel.

Oil futures prices had surged Monday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, reaching their highest levels since November 1987. The market was pumped up by speculation that OPEC nations would be able to keep a cap on their output.

Dollar trading at lower levels

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was lower against most major foreign currencies in moderate European trading today. Gold prices rose.

Traders in Italy said they expected the dollar to fluctuate within a tight range ahead of Wednesday's release of U.S. trade figures for November. The figures are expected to show a slight widening of the trade gap from October's $10.35 billion.

They also suggested the market was determined to give U.S. President-elect George Bush some breathing space in his first few months in office.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose 1.05 yen to a closing 127.70. Later, in London, it was quoted at 127.65 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Monday:

— 1.8474 West German marks, down from 1.8575

— 1.5750 Swiss francs, down from 1.5835

— 6.3010 French francs, down from 6.3285

— 2.0828 Dutch guilders, down from 2.0965

— 1,354.25 Italian lire, down from 1,359.50

— 1.1965 Canadian dollars, unchanged

In London, one British pound cost $1.7695 today, more expensive for buyers than 1.7615 Monday.

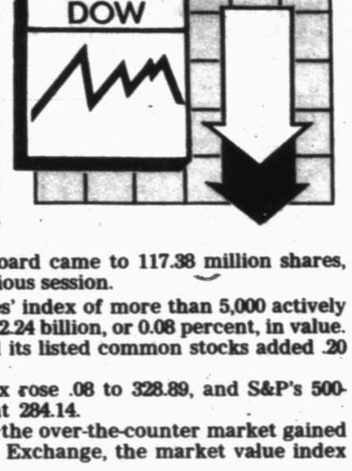

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $402.40 a troy ounce, up from $401.75 bid late Monday. At midmorning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $402.10.

In Zurich, the bid price was $401.50, up from $401.35 bid late Monday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $1.78 to close at a bid $404.43.

Silver was quoted in London at a bid price of $5.91 a troy ounce, up from Monday's $5.89.

Stocks off 1.4 points in quiet session

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in an inconclusive showing Monday in quiet holiday trading, pausing after the rally of the past several weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had gained ground in seven of the eight preceding sessions, slipped 1.43 to 2,224.64.

Advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 695 up, 679 down and 574 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 117.38 million shares, down from 132.32 million in the previous session.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market increased $2.24 billion, or 0.08 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .20 to 159.78.

Standard & Poor's industrial index rose .08 to 328.89, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .27 at 284.14.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market gained .27 to 387.36. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 316.81, up .88.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

National Semiconductor plans layoffs

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — National Semiconductor Corp. announced plans to lay off about 2,000 workers, or 5 percent of its worldwide workforce, to cope with sluggish business.

The Silicon Valley chip maker also said Monday it would take a charge against earnings in the current quarter to cover costs of the dismissals, but said it had not yet decided how big the charge would be.

Reagan may relax restrictions on Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is considering executive action to relax a prohibition on U.S. oil companies doing business in Libya, an administration official said.

This official, discussing the possibility of such a move before Reagan's term ends at midday Friday, said Monday administration officials are concerned that retaining the ban would have the effect of helping Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi to eventually seize the companies' assets.

Forecasters see lackluster retail sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic forecasters had few surprises for retailers when they told the storeowners that 1988's lackluster sales would continue in the new year.

Stuart Robbins, a retail industry analyst with the investment firm Donaldson Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corp., said he expected "more of the same kind of muddling along" in the economy this year, resulting in a mediocre retail environment.

Rosalind Wells, chief economist of the National Retail Merchants Association, was more upbeat, although she forecast retail sales would rise 6 percent overall during 1989.

Burger King gets new chief executive

MIAMI (AP) — Burger King Corp. is getting a new chief executive officer, Barry J. Gibbons, who has experience in overseeing extensive restaurant operations overseas.

Gibbons replaced Jerry W. Levin, who resigned as chairman and chief executive officer of the Miami-based chain, the company said.

The announcement Monday was made by Ian A. Martin, chief executive of U.S. operations for Grand Metropolitan PLC, the British conglomerate that bought Pillsbury, Burger King's parent company, earlier this month.

Five more firms to eliminate saturated oils

NEW YORK (AP) — A multimillionaire who crusaded against the use of highly saturated coconut and palm oil in processed foods declared victory as five more major food companies said they would stop using the fats.

Phil Sokolof announced Monday that General Mills Inc., Ralston Purina Co., Borden Inc., Pillsbury Co. and Quaker Oats Co. had agreed to switch to vegetable oils with less saturated fat.

The companies joined four others that earlier said they would stop using the so-called tropical oils in their food products: Kellogg Co., Sunshine Biscuits, Pepperidge Farm and Keebler.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Crane gas discovery recorded

From Staff Reports

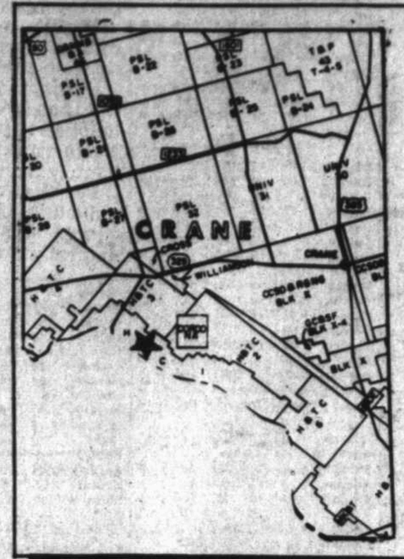

A Clearfork discovery has been completed in Crane County, immediately east of the Abell field.

R.C. BANKS, Midlnad, finaled the No. 1 Pearson for a calculated absolute open flow of 318 Mcfd from perforations 3,050 to 3,210 ft. The interval ws acidized with 2,500 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid.

Permitted as a 3,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 3,450 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 3,413 ft.

The well topped the San Andres at 2,263 ft. and Clearfork at 2,992 ft. on ground elevation of 2,352 ft. Pay was topped at 3,050 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from northwest and north lines of Section 13, Block 1, H&TC survey, 23 miles southwest of Crane.

Midland oil operator extends Borden field

MARSHALL & WINSTON INC., Midland, has added a second producer to the Mesquite Creek (Mississippian) field of Borden County, extending the pay a half-mile northwest.

On potential test, the No. 2-A Clayton pumped 45 barrels of 41.4 gravity crude and 25 barrels of water from perforations 9,298 to 9,302 ft. The interval was acidized with 5,000 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio is 1,156:1.

Permitted as a 9,900 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,592 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 9,537 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and 660 ft. from west lines of Section 5, Block 31, T-5-N, T&P survey, five miles northwest of Gail.

The field opener, Marshall & Winston's No. 1 Clayton "A" was tested Sept. 7 1988 to flow 175 barrels of 39.5 gravity crude and nine barrels of water on a 20/64 inch choke from perforations 8,730 to 8,734 ft.

Sterling field gains two gas producers

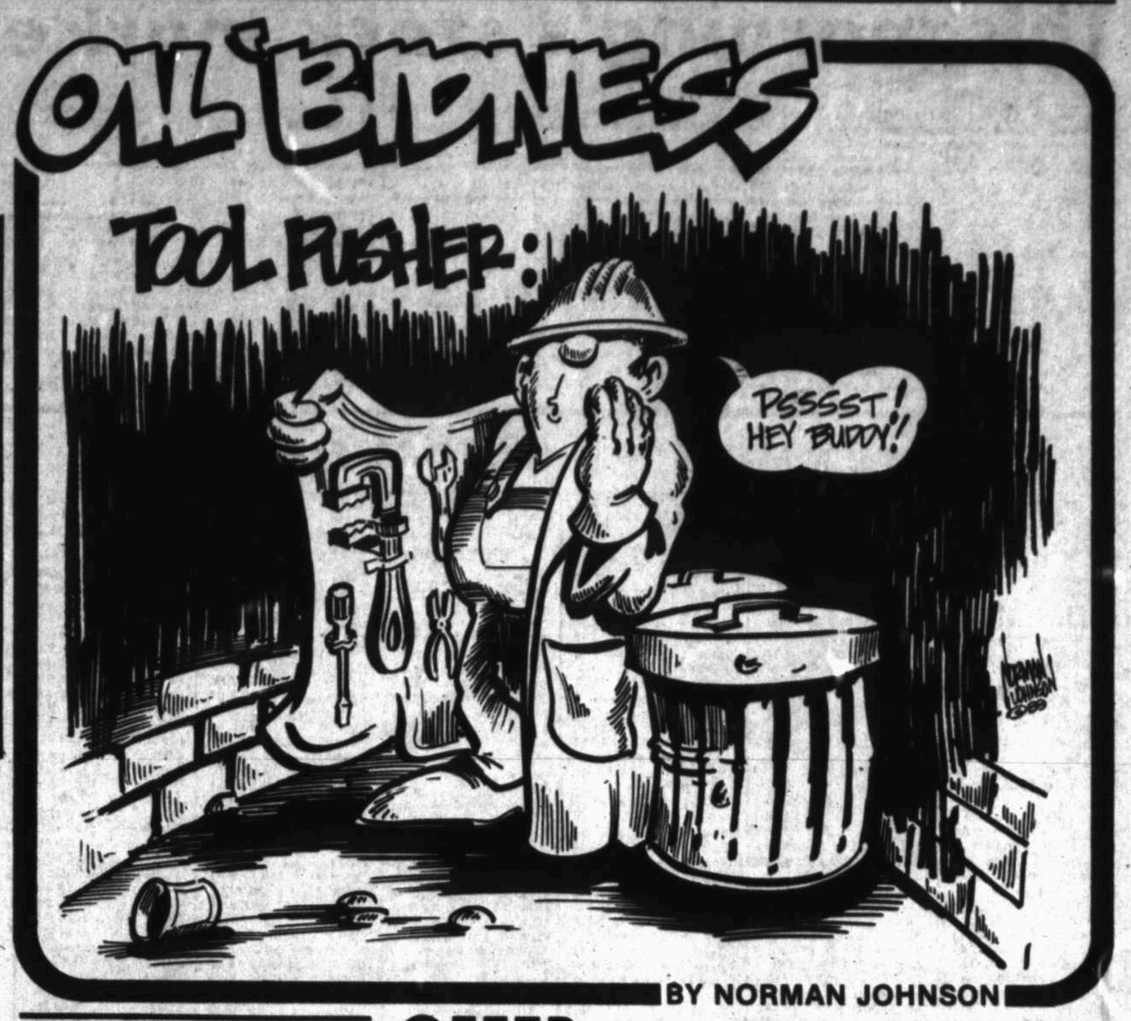

Two new Penn gas producers have been added to the Conger (Penn) field of Sterling County as AMERICAN COMETRA INC., Fort Worth, completes activity in the area.

The No. 4 Terry "6", permitted as a 7,850 ft. wildcat, was finaled for a calculated absolute open flow of 950 Mcfd from perforations 6,957 to 7,240 ft.

The well is located 503 ft. from south and 2,000 ft. from east lines of Section 6, J.B. Hiler survey, Abst. 724, seven miles southwest of Sterling City.

The No. 5 R.T. Foster "11" was completed for a calculated absolute open flow of 750 Mcfd from perforations 7,418 to 7,520 ft. Condensate gravity was 66.6 API and gas-liquid ratio is 104,751:1.

Location is 2,400 ft. from south and 2,600 ft. from east lines of Section 11, Block 21, H&TC survey, 11.6 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Former Tenneco employees form oil and gas company

HOUSTON (AP) — The sale of Houston-based Tenneco Inc.'s oil company holdings has spawned a new company created by former employees that will explore for oil and gas in the Gulf of Mexico.

Newfield Exploration Co. will be based in Lafayette, La., and initially will be staffed with about 25 former employees of Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production.

"The concept is very simple. We will have management and employees who have worked together and established a superior track record in oil and gas exploration," said Joe B. Foster, former executive vice president who will serve as chairman and chief executive officer at Newfield.

Duncan Cook & Co., a Houston investment firm, is providing initial funding and investment advice for the new venture. The stock of the new company will not be traded publicly.

"We were attracted by the team, the timing, and the focus of this investment," said Charles W. Duncan Jr., former U.S. Secretary of Energy and chairman of Duncan Cook & Co.

"These people have proven they can find oil and gas," Duncan said. "They have participated in discoveries containing over one trillion cubic feet of gas in the past three years."

The company's first-year budget is expected to be about $10 million.

"We will fund the operation so that it can conduct a data-intesne, team-oriented, technically strong exploration effort in the focus area to that of a major oil company," Foster said. "But we will operate with the cost structure, economics, incentives, and flexibility of an independent."

A.A. Wilkinson, vice president and general manager of Tenneco's Eastern Gulf Division, will become managing partner in Newfield's Lafayette office.

Foster was responsible for Tenneco's oil and gas operations and its pipeline companies before resigning when Tenneco completed the $7.3 billion sale of its oil and gas properties last year. Earlier, he had served as president of Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production.

Geodyne purchases producing property interests

TULSA (SWN) — Geodyne Resources, Inc. has announced the signing of an agreement with Primary Fuels, Inc., a subsidiary of Houston Industries, to purchase for approximately $75 million interests in producing oil and gas properties on behalf of the partnerships it sponsors through the PaineWebber/Geodyne Energy Income Programs.

The acquisition includes interests in 1,300 properties located primarily in West Texas, New Mexico and the Oklahoma panhandle.

$14.75 to close at $45 per share Monday on the New York Stock Exchange, prompting analysts to predict that Coastal may have to sweeten its deal to $45 or $48 per share.

Coastal's stock dropped 37 cents to close at $34.13 on the exchange.

Although company officials would not discuss any increase in the offer, Coastal's president and chief operating officer, James R. Paul, wrote in a letter to his counterpart at Texas Eastern: "We are prepared to discuss all aspects of our offer, including price."

Paul's letter to Dennis R. Hendrix, president and chief executive officer at Texas Eastern, requested a meeting with the company's board of directors.

"We are convinced that a combination of Coastal and Texas Eastern would be in the best interests of our respective stockholders as well as employees, customers and suppliers," Paul wrote after Coastal's board of directors approved the tender offer in a Sunday night meeting.

Coastal is the third-largest natural gas company in the country while Texas Eastern is among the top six. A third Houston corporation, Enron Corp., holds the top position, analysts said.

"In my view, Coastal and Enron are two prototypes of interstate pipeline networks of the future," said Charles Strain, director of energy research for Lovett Mitchell Webb & Garrison in Houston. "Texas Eastern seemed the most logical. It was just a question of which one was going to suck it up and do damage to the balance sheet."

— Eighty percent of economic development specialists believe the current liability law system increases costs of doing business in the state.

— Seventy percent of industrial recruiters, based on their own experiences, believe Texas has lost a new business or industry to another state because of the system.

"Just doing something with workers' compensation in this session is not solving all the problems of our civil justice system and the way they affect our business climate," he said.

Longley disputed arguments that businesses are being scared away by the laws, citing the size of the market and the fact that state laws still cover products sold in Texas.

"Any liar, cheat or thief who does his nasty work in Texas doesn't escape liability by scurrying across the state line into Oklahoma," he said.

record in the state for turning around troubled institutions," he said.

The appeal is the latest in a series of criticisms that has plagued the First Gibraltar deal since it was announced in late December. In hearings last week, the House banking committee seized on the transaction as a symbol of regulator ineptitude. Led by Rep. Charles Schumer D-N.Y., officials blasted regulators for not attracting enough private capital to the five savings and loans.

Critics also attacked the $1 million-a-year salary and $1 million finder's fee Perelman offered to pay Gerald J. Ford, the Dallas banker who became chairman and chief executive of First Gibraltar.

The Bank Board's bid process has been criticized before. Last year, a Miami thrift, Citizens Savings Financial Corp., reportedly challenged the Bank Board for reopening the bidding for an insolvent Illinois thrift after regulators had already awarded it to Citizens.

The Bank Board launched an internal investigation into the complaint and found that Board Member Roger Martin had acted wrongly by soliciting a new bid for the sick thrift.

OPEC

In other OPEC news Monday, Venezuelan president-elect Carlos Andres Perez arrived in Abu Dhabi as part of a Gulf swing designed to bolster unity within OPEC and stablize oil prices.

He said he would discuss with Gulf leaders the possibility of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries holding a summit. Such a summit, if held, would be the second since 1975.

However, U.A.E. oil minister Mana Saeed Otaiba, who is participating in the talks with Perez, said he believes that such a summit is premature.

During his gulf tour, Perez was scheduled to visit Iraq and Iran, OPEC members who have been at war for eight years until a cease-fire agreement was reached in August.

The U.A.E. has been one of the OPEC states often accused of overshooting OPEC production quotas and contributing to the glut that weakened oil prices.

Roddy Blackshaw, 8, of Richardson, looks at the Spring Valley Apartments where four people, including an infant, died Monday in an early-morning fire.

Officials told loud noises preceded fire which killed 4

RICHARDSON (AP) — Results of autopsies, conducted after four people died in a roaring apartment fire, were not released pending investigation by authorities who were told loud noises resembling explosions preceded the blaze.

Fire and police investigators were also told three other people may have left the unit at Spring Valley Apartments about an hour before the fatal fire was reported.

"A lot of things have been said, but so far we haven't been able to put two and two together," Richardson Assistant Fire Chief Steve Brown said Monday.

Dead in the 3 a.m. blaze were Jenny Kale, 30, of Dallas; her 14-year-old daughter, Nancy Stall; and Nancy's 1-month-old daughter Christina Marie. The identity of a male victim, who was staying with Ms. Kale, had not yet been determined.

Authorities said the man, apparently a hitchhiker, had duplicate identification listing two different names. Autopsy results were pending, said a spokeswoman for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Neighbors said loud noises like a gunshot or explosion preceded the blaze.

Neighbor Danny Davidson said his brother Jerry heard an explosion before the fire was discovered.

"Jerry was here typing a letter and he heard something like a gunshot or an explosion go off," said Davidson.

Richardson police officer Bud Renner said that he tried to alert apartment residents of the danger.

"There was smoke and a lot of flames. And at that time, I called for more officers," he said, "and we just went from there, trying to get as many people out as we could. We couldn't get close to the apartment. It was too hot."

Flames began in the apartment and spread to two others, but occupants in the adjoining units escaped safely.

Ms. Kale, the man and infant were found in an upstairs bedroom of the two-story apartment. The teen-ager was found near the stairwell about 8 feet from the door, said Brown.

The apartment did not use natural gas, said Marie Allison, manager of the complex.

Dogs prove up to snuff in war against drugs

EL PASO (AP) — Fourteen keen-nosed Border Patrol dogs are en route to sniffing their way into the record books, officials say.

The dogs are trained to sniff out drugs and people hidden in vehicles. Last year, the canines helped set a record for drug seizures in the Border Patrol's El Paso sector, and the Border Patrol appears to be on the road to setting another record this fiscal year.

In the year ending last Sept. 30, the Border Patrol recorded 908 drug seizures in the sector, which comprises West Texas and southern New Mexico. In the first 3½ months of the 1989 fiscal year, the sector has made 421 seizures of drugs valued at $138 million. Sixteen of those seizures, worth $1.1 million, were made last weekend alone.

Sniffer dogs detected most of the drugs and are responsible for the rise in seizures and arrests over the past year, said Gus De La Vina, chief deputy of the Border Patrol's El Paso sector.

"The dogs have been extremely productive for us," he said. "We started out with them a year and ago and initially they were a hit."

One of those hits is Rex, a Belgian malinois who discovered 84 pounds of marijuana his first day on the job at a Border Patrol highway checkpoint. But the dog is capable of finding much smaller amounts.

One day, Rex alerted his handler, Ray Sanchez Jr., to a suitcase after other agents had opened it, searched and found no drugs.

"I told them to look again," Sanchez said. "They opened it, took out all the clothes and found one marijuana seed in the bottom.

"His sense of smell is amazing. I know now if something's there — no matter how it's hidden — he's going to get it."

In his three years with the Border Patrol before he got Rex, Sanchez made one drug bust. In the year since he began handling the dog, he has made about 100 drug seizures.

Rex and two other dogs began working for the Border Patrol's El Paso sector in December 1987. Now 14 dogs work the sector, which covers West Texas and southern New Mexico. The Border Patrol wants to add at least 10 dogs to the El Paso sector this year; each dog costs about $8,000.

Besides detecting smuggled drugs and people, the dogs are trained to lead search and rescue missions.

FOI groups plan meeting in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Freedom of information advocates who work independently in about half the states and the District of Columbia will hold their first national meeting in Dallas next month.

"It (the meeting) grew out of what appeared to be a real need for not only the media but citizens to understand what it means to have freedom of information. It's important for citizens to know because the law is for them," said Nancy Monson, executive director of the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas.

The foundation will host the first National FOI Assembly at Southern Methodist University on Feb. 10-11. It is co-sponsored by Student Media Co. Inc. and the SMU Center for Communication Arts.

John Seigenthaler, board chairman and publisher of The Tennessean and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, will give the keynote address.

FOI advocates also will hear from experts on fund raising, management, taxes and public relations, in a series of workshops for media professionals, attorneys and journalism academics.

The Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas, formed in 1978, is one of the oldest advocacy groups in the country, Ms. Monson said.

She said she knows of such groups in 26 states and the District of Columbia. Most were founded in the last few years and are struggling, she said. Their efforts prompted the national assembly.

"It came about because I was receiving calls from around the country from organizations that are either partially formed or trying to form," Ms. Monson said. "We've become a model."

STATE IN BRIEF

3 questioned about killing

EL PASO (AP) — A woman and two men were questioned Monday about the killing of a Tucson man after they were found driving the man's vehicle, police said.

Tucson police detectives went to El Paso Monday night to question the three about the death of Art Ryan, 73, whose body was found on Sunday stuffed in the closet of a Tucson motel room, police said.

Marilyn McKinsley, 35, Ben Livingston, 23, and Kelly D. Gumelt, 29, were taken into custody after they were pulled over near downtown El Paso in a 1986 Chevy Suburban, El Paso Sgt. Manuel Salcido said Monday.

Their hometowns were not known.

The vehicle was stopped by an officer who noticed it had no license plates, and the three were arrested after police determined the vehicle was stolen in Arizona, Salcido said.

Dad seeks shooting facts

SAN MARCOS (AP) — The father of a 17-year-old who was shot in the unlighted bathroom of a mobile home by police says he wants more details about the shooting that left his son with a bullet lodged near his spine.

Johnny Lee Brady, who is in the intensive care unit of Central Texas Medical Center, was charged Sunday with burglary of a habitation.

Ernest Brady, the youth's father, said he doesn't believe that all the facts about his son's shooting Saturday have come to light.

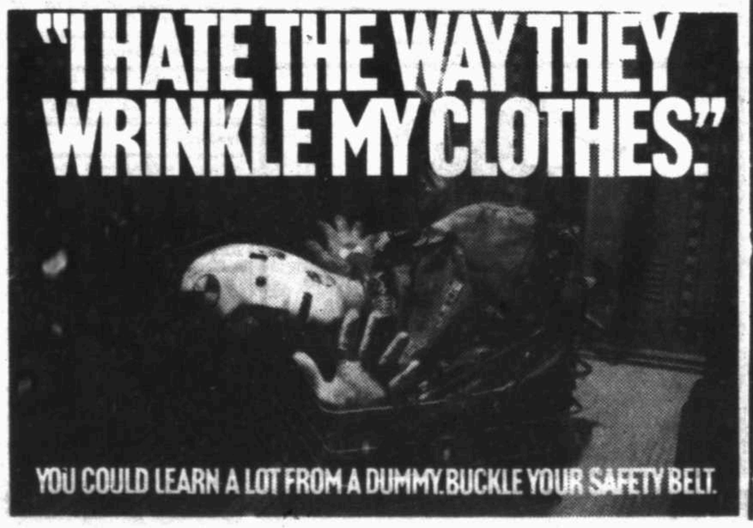

Police Chief Myron Galchutt said criminal and administrative investigations should be concluded this week by detectives and internal affairs personnel. Findings will be submitted to the district attorney for review by a grand jury.

Galchutt said he has seen no evidence of wrongdoing by the officer who fired the shot, patrolman Wayne Sneed. The officer is on administrative duty while the investigations are being conducted.

Prisoners may have to pay

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. L.P. "Pete" Patterson has introduced legislation that would require parolees and probationers to pay jail costs for their time in county jail prior to their convictions.

They would pay the lesser of $45 a day or actual jail costs established by the county for incarceration prior to their convictions, said Patterson, D-Brookston.

Wish you were here — It's great!

Chris-
Just wanted to drop you a line to let you know I'm all settled into my new spot at Saddle Club Apartments. And it's just fantastic! This place has everything I need and even more! I never imagined that apartment living could be like this, or I would have moved here months ago. Spacious and affordable. Private, but the people are really friendly. And the amenities are out of this world!
Give me a call soon. Or drop by sometime-I'm sure you'll enjoy it. Life at Saddle Club Apartments is simply...GREAT!

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. The name of the successful offeror and sales broker will appear in subsequent publications. VA will accept cash offers up to 10 percent below the advertised term sales price. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. However, the combined loan discount points, buyers' closing costs to be paid by VA and the discount for cash may not exceed 10 percent of the term list price. Offers must be submitted at term listed price when buyers request a new GI loan with $1.00 move-in. Interest rate of available financing is 10 percent (APR 10.1 percent).
Purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing (Term Sales) must have VA Form 26-6705B, Credit Statement of Prospective Purchaser and Verification of Employment/Income, as outlined in Sales of VA-Acquired Properties Manual, attached to their VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale. Effective June 8, 1988, all credit underwriting for purchase offers requesting VA vendee financing is being referred to Miller and Davis PC. All brokers are reminded to refer to PM letter #17-88 dated May 25, 1988, outlining these new procedures. Purchase offers not accompanied by the required employment/income verification WILL RESULT IN REJECTION OF THE PURCHASE OFFER.
VA has properties for sale statewide. If you desire to purchase properties in other areas, please contact any sales broker located in the area in which you are interested.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, broker must deposit in broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The Earnest Money Agreement (Exhibit "H") must be signed by the purchaser(s) and submitted along with the VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on all offers. The $500 earnest money deposit will be remitted to Miller and Davis PC upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchaser, the earnest money deposit WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to the VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all brokers interview their buyers to assure they want the property prior to submission of an offer to purchase. VA pays 6% sales commission. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705, Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:
