Rosalynn Off Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)-First Lady Rosalynn Carter leaves Monday on an official visit to Latin America, prepared to tell hemispheric leaders they have been overlooked too long and deserve a more active role in the global decision-making process.

Mrs. Carter will visit seven countries over 24 days, hoping to establish a "close, personal relationship" with government leaders and to explain the main lines of the Carter hemispheric policy.

Trudeaus Separate

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — A 73-word statement has ended months of speculation and gossip as Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and his wife Margarmade it official: they are separating at her request after six years of marriage.

Margaret, who once said she wanted to be "more than a rose in my husband's lapel," had recently made it clear she felt increasingly confined by the strictures of marriage, motherhood and life as a politician's wife.

The Trudeaus have been separated much of the past three months, with Mrs. Trudeau accepting free-lance photographic assignments in the United States and France from the New York-based People magazine.

Soviet Crash Kills 66

MEXICO CITY (AP)-A soviet jetliner attempting an emergency landing in fog at Havana airport hit a high-tension wire and crashed, killing 66 of 68 persons aboard, news agencies and diplomats in Cuba reported.

A dispatch from the official agency Prensa Latina, monitered in Mexico City, said 56 of the 58 passengers and all 10 crewmembers died in the crash Friday.

One sure-five source of irritation for us is the auto driver who sits still after the traffic signal has turned green, or the one planning to make a left turn who refuses to pull into the intersection until he has plenty of room to make his turn.

So, it is even more irritating to find yourself guilty of these same little nuisances. People around the office say it's a sure sign of maturity.

On a closely related subject, we were in a conversation with Police Chief Bill Stone, City Engineer Jim Dower and City Manager George Patterson the other day concerning some of the more common traffic violations. One which gets plenty of attention is the motorist who fails to slow down in school zones. Snyder has a new school zone, which barely became operative before the past term ended, on Twenty-fifth Street over around Avenue M and to the east. Being creatures of habit, a number of local motorists have indicated that they were not immediately aware that this school zone had been designated and equipped with warning lights, and consequently they were not observing it until suddenly it dawned on them that something had changed.

We finally came to the conclusion that drivers usually observe the rules they are accustomed to, but in a new situation, it may take time for it to soak in. This is true when we drive in a strange town. We are not familiar with the traffic patterns and the signs and this often leads to uncertainty if not downright confusion. And uncertainty when you are behind the wheel can be a dangerous thing.

LaVerta Lovell says she has a mocking bird around her house that she would gladly give away, if it were possibly to give away a wild bird. This one sings all night, and LaVerta says it is not a temporary situation. The same bird has been showing up around the Lovell house for several years, or else one of its descendants is carrying on the tradition.

Anyway, this mockingbird has a shrill voice that is not necessarily conducive to sleep—unless you become accustomed to it. And once you become oriented, it usually falls silent sometime during the wee small hours, which is enough to awaken anyone who fell asleep to the mockingbird's tune.

SNYDER HIGH SCHOOL'S 1977 COMMENCEMENT

SHS Seniors Are Urged To Help Solve Problems

Snyder High School's 1977 graduating class was told Friday night that it faced a world filled with problems, but that the class members would be able to do something about it if they keep several factors in mind.

Sam Kitching, minister of East Side Church of Christ, listed three major factors which he said were essential if the new gradates are to lead happy lives.

First, he said they must know who they are. Then they must dedicate themselves to helping solve problems, and third, they must become flexible enough to learn and adapt to various situations.

By adapting, Kitching said he did not mean compromise, but that all should learn to live with fellow human beings. He said that the graduates should never lose sight of the fact that they are human beings and that to solve problems they must become involved and must be willing to execute.

Diplomas were presented to the graduates by Ted Crenwelge, president of the school board, as they were presented by Bill J. Hood, superintendent of schools.

John Short, counselor, introduced honor students headed by Terri Eaton, valedictorian, and Greg Pavlik, salutatorian, and including John Edward Barnes, John Bradley Browning, Kathi Elaine Burk, Laura Cameron, Debra Lynnette Dyer, Kay Lynn Ellington, Kellye Diane Elrod, Trussha Renee Farquhar, Jeri Lynn Farren, Julia Dawn Glass, Vickie Lynn Greenfield, Cynthia Kay Hailes, Bobby Dwayne Hanks, Marvin Dale Hobbs.

Also, Deborah Ann Inman, Lee Allen Jarrell, Richard Kirk Johnson, Theresa Carol Killgo, Samuel Fletcher Kitching, Russell David McCain, Clinta Annette McCowen, Shirlesa Minyard, Samuel Canales Ortegon, Brenda Dawn Owens, Gregory Erwin Pavlik, Carolyn Jean Russell, Debbie Lynn Smithee, Patricia Diane Stewart, Sara Lee Sullivan, Cheryl Ann Taylor, DeLena Caye Vickers, Jeana Lou von Roeder.

The following scholarships awarded to members of the graduating class of 1977 were announced by Janet Wesson, counselor:

Freed Kids May Have Meningitis

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) Dutch officials said today some of the 105 schoolchildren freed after being held five days by South Moluccan terrorists may have meningitis. A physician said the disease has "serious implication."

Dr. Gotlieb Nellick, senior pediatrician at Assen's Wilhelmina Hospital, said about 17 of the youngsters appeared to have the disease, an inflammation of the membranes around the brain and spinal cord. He said more tests were being conducted at The Hague, the national capital.

The gunmen, demanding independence for their Pacific island homeland, are still holding four persons at the village school in Bovensmilde. Another group has some 55 passengers hostage aboard a commuter train about 10 miles from the school.

The children were set free over an 18-hour period starting Thursday after about half of them came down with a stomach ailment.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said negotiators warned the terrorists they would storm the school and train if any of the hostages were hurt.

Mrs. Toos Faber said the gunmen were told that "as soon as we hear harm has come to any hostage, the train will be stormed."

Two shots were heard Friday night from the train but there were no reports of injuries.

Mrs. Faber said authorities were concerned about the health of the hostages on the train, which has been baking under bright sun. The terrorists have kept the train windows closed and covered adding to the heat.

July 4th Tickets Are Ready

The "fireworks tickets" for the annual July 4th celebration have been delivered and may be picked up at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office.

The tickets are used each year as tokens of contributions to the fund for financing the annual celebration in Towle Memorial Park. All organizations that operate concessions in the park on Independence Day are asked to help distribute the tickets. Many individuals also help with distribution of the tickets each year.

The chamber hopes that contributions will increase substantially this year, since the cost of the celebration has increased in recent years and there was a deficit last year. Chamber directors this year had approved a 15 per cent fee for concessions, but the July 4 committee later decided to rely on voluntary contribution again, when some organizations said they were opposed to concession fee. Roy Kidd, chairman of the July 4th committee, said that many more tickets must be sold this year than in 1976 if the event is to break even, but greater support has been promised by the various organizations.

A new recreational facility, in use for the first time this summer, is the new golf course at Western Texas College, which opened Saturday. The gym and pool facilities at WTC will be in use for summer camp activities by various groups during the summer, but for the most part, the WTC facilities are shut down for the summer.

Hill Says House Bill Conflicts

AUSTIN (AP)-Parts of a House-passed bill limiting the right to abortions conflict with U.S. Supreme court decisions, Atty. Gen. John Hill says.

Hill gave his views in a letter requested by Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, chairman of the House Committee on Health and Welfare.

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, has delayed action by his Senate Jurisprudence Committee pending Hill's opionion.

The bill makes it a penitentiary offense to commit an abortion past the 22nd week of pregnancy except to save fetus or mother or prevent the birth of a genetically defective baby.

It also says that if an abortion is performed past the 20th week, a physician must be standing by to rescue a fetus that is born alive. Prior to the 22nd week, an abortion could be performed for genetic reasons or if pregnancy resulted from rape or incest or if a physician's "best medical judgment" indicates abortion is necessary "under all attendant circumstances."

HE'LL LEAD a campaign by governors if necessary to make President Carter deliver on a campaign promise, vows New York's Gov. Carey. Calling the administration's outline of planned welfare reforms a disappointment, Carey objected to the omission of candidate Carter's promise to have the federal government assume the local share of welfare costs.

Feds Hike Mortgage Interest

WASHINGTON (AP)-The government says it is raising from 8 per cent to 8.5 per cent the maximum interest rate for Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Administration-insured single-family mortgage loans.

The increase takes effect Tuesday, the Department of Housing and Urban Development said in an announcement Friday.

The allowable rates on multi-family mortgage loans will remain at 9 per cent.

"Higher FHA and VA interest ceilings will make it easier for people who are trying to sell their homes," said Kennon V. Rethchild, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

"It cuts the loan discount that the homeowner has had to pay and should make more government-backed mortgage financing available to home buyers."

HUD Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris said the new single-family rate was necessary to bring FHA and VA rates in line with those in the mortgage and financial markets.

Brewster Arrives In Great Britain

LONDON (AP)—"It's good to be here," was the only comment from Kingman Brewster Jr., who arrived at the Court of St. James to become the new Ambassador to Great Britain.

Brewster, 57 and the former president of Yale University, succeeds Anne Armstrong, who had been appointed to the post by then-President Gerald Ford.

Britain also is in the process of changing ambassadors to Washington. Prime Minister James Callaghan's son-in-law, journalist Peter Jay, 40, is replacing career diplomat Sir Peter Ramsbotham.

Bar To Hear Miss Bryant

AUSTIN (AP) — Anita Bryant has been invited to sing before the State Bar, after all.

The president of the bar of Texas has changed his mind and invited Miss Bryant to perform at the president's dinner at the bar convention in Houston June 16.

Gibson Gayle, Houston, revealed his decision to the bar's board of directors Friday, and received a standing ovation.

"I have concluded that I made a mistake in not consummating the original contract with Anita Bryant pursuant to our earlier oral discussions. I reacted to reports I had received that had caused me to believe the situation could not be controlled.

"We have been in touch with the Houston Police Department and with Dist. Atty. Carol Vance concerning security arrangements and have been assured of full cooperation," Gayle said.

Miss Bryant has been a leader against an ordinance in Miami that prohibits discrimination against homosexuals in housing and jobs.

And her opposition to the equal rights amendment for women has drawn criticism from many women lawyers.

"I regret that others, including some members of the bar, have erroneously assumed that Miss Bryant's stand on controversial issues or the bar's reluctance to become involved in controversy caused the initial decision to be made and have compounded the problem by not checking on facts before making such erroneous assumptions," Gayle said.

"I also regret the anguish which has resulted to Miss Bryant, her husband, friends, supporters, some members of the bar and all others who have been aggrieved by events of the past week.

"The president's dinner is supposed to be a happy evening of entertainment without speeches. Political matters are not on the program.

"The entire responsibility of matter is mine and is in no part attributable to the State Bar board of directors, the State Bar staff or anyone else," he said.

Border Chaos Is Threat To US-Mexico Relations

EDITOR'S NOTE-Between the United States and Mexico is something called the border. It's an international line of demarcation, a way of life, a mingling of two cultures. It's almost everything except what a frontier is supposed to be-the line behind which one country's sovereignty prevails against violations from the other.

BY PETTER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)-The legendary wild days of the Mexican-American border were supposed to have ended years ago when the last cowboy rode beyond the desert sunset and into a thousand movie reruns on the late late show.

But new stresses are clearly visible on the 1,966-mile frontier that begins in California with a single strand of wire alongside Tijuana's bullring-by-the-sea, darts unmarked across barren mountains and vast sand tracts to the Rio Grande, and ends where Gulf Coast waters lap against the shrimp floats moored at Port Isabel, Tex.

The vulnerability of this long, lonely border to violation used to be partly modified by its remoteness but the airplane, the automobile, the superhighway and the pressures of population have changed all that.

Today, the amiable border relations between the United States and Mexico, hard won after a century of stormy dispute, are threatened by what American officials see as a continued massive disregard of U.S. laws against smuggling and illegal entry.

Congressional investigators have demanded that something be done about the developing chaos, and President Carter is preparing a legislative package. Mexican officials are defensive.

In a two week trip along the border and visits to its cities and hamlets, a reporter saw that lawbreaking was not only massive but sometimes condoned by local residents. Dependent economically and culturally upon each other to a degree rarely found in any other major world frontier, people living on both sides are fighting to preserve the traditional permissiveness.

And this despite the rise of sinister crime, ranging from white slaving through gun running to raids on border supermarkets by gangs of Mexican children. Overburdened U.S. border authorities seem powerless to do much about the situation other than record the burgeoning statistics.

"Almost everyone around here bypasses the laws because they were written in faraway Washington, D.C., by people who don't understand us," says Dr. Ellwyn Stoddard of the University of Texas at El Paso, who is president of the Association of Borderlands Scholars that includes both Mexicans and Americans.

"Legally there is a border and we patrol it," he said. "but in reality there are local adjustments. We give the impression we follow the laws, but actually we manipulate them."

Cushioning the sensitivity of border people to outside criticism is their history of frontier interchanges that go back 250 years to when the highways were just burro tracks and the population only Indians and spanish missionaries. Traffic has grown so that last year there were 42 million border crossings into El Paso, Tex., from its sister city of Juarez across the Rio Grande. Local officials regard the region "the eighth largest city in the United States" with its combined population of one million.

Laredo, Tex., looks with equally fond eyes upon Laredo, Mex., just a bridge away, and they jointly benefit from being the most geographically ideal border station for Midwest exporters to Mexico. As in the other border cities, some Mexican children attend private schools in American Laredo, further leavening the mix, and bilinguality is common to both sides of the border.

"Socially, we've always had far more harmonious relations with Mexicans in the border towns than further north," said Harlingen painter Evelyn Wallace.

There are now so many Spanish surnames residents on the United States side, with a 98 per cent figure in Starr County, Tex., not so unusual, that some observers are joking that the Rio Grande border has already moved north into Texas.

The economic interdependence is so deep that when the peso was devalued about half last September, El Paso received 60 per cent less business from across the river, an economic blow that helped close down the White House department store, one of the city's largest.

Border people tend to look with greater tolerance on frontier wrongdoings than does the rest of the country, and in no area is this more evident than in the passage of illegal entrants.

"There has never been an immigration law functioning on the border," says Professor Stoddard, and his remark comes true each day as the sun rises on the concrete-walled Rio Grande where the river trickles a few inches deep between El Paso and Juarez.

Already a dozen young Mexicans are preparing to paddle across, carefully rolling up their trousers and carrying their shoes and socks. They squat at the other side while a U.S. patrol car rolls by the embankment, and then they scramble up and over to a maze of railyards on the American side.

But while the Juarez illegals are blatantly bold in their daylight crossings into El Paso, where they might just stay an hour or two to work or meet friends, the situation at Tijuana and the neighboring American border community of San Ysidro resembles guerrilla warfare.

There are even regular shoot 'em ups, especially in Dead Man's Canyon, a deep, rockstrewn ravine that runs from the Tijuana slum suburb of colonial Libertad into the United States, a popular clandestine entry point, a playground for bandits from both sides who prey on the illegals, and "the most dangerous part of the whole frontier" according to American border patrolmen who watch and listen from the mesa above to the noises below.

An estimated one-third of all the illegal frontier crossings pass through the few miles of these flat Californian borderlands. In all of 1966, 15,278 illegal aliens were caught in this region. "Now we pick up that many in two weeks," said Robert McCord, assistant patrol chief at the San Ysidro headquarters.

Each night Tijuana's bright lights reflect on bizarre scenes on the U.S. side. As holidaymakers clog the Mexican city's bars, restaurants and late-night shops, a helicopter roars overhead, its searchlight flashing along a decripit fence that in some places marks the border.

Another patrol squad is obeying the radioed instructions of an agent who is focusing a Vietnam vintage "starlight" scope on a hillside where he has detected movement. Another Vietnam relic, an electronic sensor hidden in the ground, had warned that traffic was on its way.

But the illegals seemed to be everywhere

While I was going to bed in a Travel Lodge, four illegals came running from a small canyon behind the hotel, but were caught.

What happens to them? They were all released back across the border. "What else can we do?" asked agent Jack Willingham. "These are mostly economic refugees, nice little guys. We chase 'em through the hills each night, then send 'em home. To charge them under the law would mean keeping witnesses on tap. For every 100 we caught we'd need to keep a thousand witnesses."

The San Ysidro policy is to prosecute only smuggling operatives and drivers of illegals after they reach the United States, and then only after about four arrests. In less busy parts of the border, drivers are prosecuted when first arrested, but almost all illegal aliens are sent home.

This policy is acceptable to many border people.

The use of illegal Mexican labor is a time-honored border tradition. In the towns of south Texas' "magic valley" along the Rio Grande, "every middle-class housewife has a maid whose credential would probably not pass muster," said a hotel manager in Brownsville, Tex.

"The real answer doesn't lie here at the border, said El Paso-Juarez area immigration director Charles Perez. "It is improving Mexico's economy or cracking down on employers who hire the illegals."

Southern California in particular has been plagued with child criminals known as "lobatos" or wolf cubs, who swim across the Tijuana border to steal cars, shoplift and engage in prostitution. Girls as young as 11 years old have been caught.

The proliferation of smuggling that has seen as many as 150 planeloads of marijuana a day flown into the United States from Mexico during the harvest season, according to Drug Enforcement Agency sources, has finally forced Washington's hand. It has established a James Bond-type operation called EPIC El Paso Intelligence Center housed in a five-story building accessible only by a single elevator and equipped with the latest computer and communications equipment.

Its mission, according to director Arthur Fluhr, is to use modern devices to zero in on planes and boats smuggling dope. Fluhr said his center has details on every licensed pilot and plane in the country.

Fluhr conceded that the problem of stopping airborne drug traffic was enormous. "In Arizona alone there are 200 abandoned airstrips from World War II days that can take a small jet," he said.

While controversy swirls around its inhabitants, the border itself seems impervious to much change.

The once-bawdy life of the border towns is tame by comparison with what's available in many U.S. cities now.

Some long-time residents of the border worry that the whole free and easy way of life is doomed.

The Nogales Daily Herald editor, Alvin Stark - whose father Hanson worked for the Associated Press and covered Pancho Villa's depredations in neighboring New Mexico in 1916 - mourns that pressures are mounting too quickly for the border to survive its free state.

"I hate to say it, but some day we may have to have troops along the border," he says. "There are just too many people down there trying to get up here."

"For the first time we're getting organized to handle this border situation - but in our own way."

Climber Fined Cent Per Story

NEW YORK (AP)—For the second time in two days, George Willig made his way to the top of the World Trade Center. This time he used the elevator.

Willig, the "human fly" who scaled the sleek outside wall of one of the twin towers Thursday, ventured inside for the first time Friday night at a celebration dinner in the posh restaurant atop the 110-story building.

The accompanying pack of reporters, camera crews, autograph hunters, guests and restaurateurs contrasted sharply with the solitude of his feat the day before.

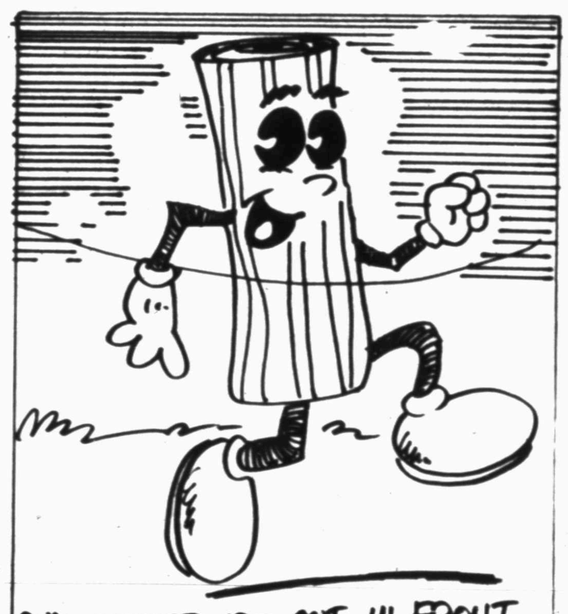

"This guy gets more attention than Nixon," said one startled diner.

The celebration came after an extremely favorable out-of-court settlement of the civil suit New York City had filed.

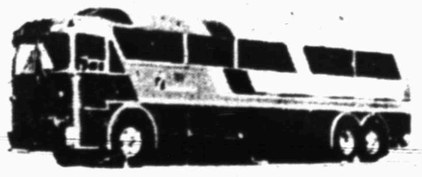

Instead of the $250,000 originally sought to pay for the cost of traffic control and crowd control incurred while Willig made his 3½ hour ascent, Mayor Abraham Beame settled for $1.10 - a penny for each story climbed. Willig's lawyer paid in cash.

Forego Bids For $2 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Forego, The shoe and high weight will be the story in the $100,000-added Metropolitan Handicap Monday at Belmont Park.

Fourteen other horses also be on hand to try to write an unhappy ending for Martha Gerry's magnificent 7-year-old gelding, the Horse of the Year in 1974-75-76 who is bidding this year to become the first racehorse ever to earn $2 million in a career.

Forego will carry top weight of 133 pounds, spotting from six to 30 to his rivals, and about 95 pounds to Bill Shoemaker, the world's winningest jockey.

The Shoe got the mount on Forego last year because of committments of and injuries to other jockeys, and so far it's been an all-winning relationship—the Woodward Stakes and the Marlboro Cup last year and a seven-furlong allowance race at Belmont last Monday.

A second straight victory in one-mile Metropolitan would move Forego within easy striking distance of second place on the all-time thoroughbred money-winning list.

Cooper Grad Signs Letter With College

Britt C. Lindsey, a spring graduate of Cooper High School in Abilene, has become the third golfer to sign a letter of intent and golf scholarship with Western Texas College for the fall semester, Coach Bob O'Day has announced.

Lindsey lettered in golf three years at Cooper and played on the varsity squad all three years. He won medalist honors during his senior year at the Lubbock Hillcrest Invitational with 72, Fort Worth Shady Oaks with 78, and Sweetwater Invitational with 76-75. He played 54 competitive rounds during his high school career.

The new Westerner finished in the top quarter of his graduating class with a grade point average of 3.0. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Lindsey of 2727 Southwest Drive in Abilene.

O'Day had previously announced the signing of two Midland graduates, Steve K. Wise, and Billy Sitton. He will have four lettermen returning from the team which won the Western Conference title this season and placed second in Region V.

Indy 500: A Race Of 'Firsts'

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, hands in his back pockets, scuffed boot pawing at the pavement, squinted at the sun and muttered: "Well, maybe this year we'll finish the damn thing."

Maybe.

In three of the past four years, America's most famous automobile race has, by dint of Midwestern weather, been renamed the Indianapolis 332½, the Indianapolis 435 and, last year, the Indianapolis 255.

That's quite a run of rain-shortented races considering that in the preceding 56 races, onlv two (1926 and 1950) got cut short, bathed by Indiana squalls.

So, despite a run of luck that has washed away 477½ of the last 2,000 miles officially run during Memorial Day weekends at venerable Indianapolis Motor Speedway, they persist in calling Sunday's million-dollar extravaganza the Indy 500.

It's a race of firsts, not the lest of which is Tom Sneva of Spokane, Wash., the man in first place, the pole position, after being the first and, thus far, the only driver ever to log an official qualifying lap of more than 200 miles per hour.

Alongside Sneva in the first of the 11 rows is Indy's best-known brother set, Bobby and Al Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., each a two-time winner of this classic. Bobby, in the middle of the front row, won in 1968 and again in 1975, when the rain enabled him to nose out Johnny Rutherford, who made an untimely pit stop and gave up the lead only moments before the first raindrops hit the track. Al, Bobby's kid brother, had successive victories in 1970 and 1971.

The Unsers aren't the only brother tandem. Sneva, 28, has his own sibling rivalry going with his brother, Jerry, of Spokane, about 11 months his junior and one of the race's seven rookies.

Foyt, the only three-time winner 1961-64-67 in the field, sits on the inside of the second row. In the middle is Johncock of Phoenix, winner in 1973. And on the outside is Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., the 1969 champ.

Rutherford of Fort Worth, Tex., the defending champion as well as the 1974 winner, might have been in the front row if he'd decided to go with his initial qualifying speed of about 197 miles an hour. But he tossed it out, deciding instead to try and top Tom Sneva's pole-winning 198.884 m.p.h. And when mechanical problems kept him from making any more qualifying runs two Saturdays ago, he was relegated to a distant 17th, in the middle of the sixth row.

Perhaps the most notable first in this year's race is the presence of the first woman driver, Janet Guthrie of New York, who doesn't have to prove a thing to anyone.

She did that a year ago, first by becoming the first woman to pass Indy's driver's test, then by running one of Foyt's cars at better than 181 miles an hour in practice. Only the lack of a decent car kept her from qualifying. She did that this year, at a solid 188.403 m.p.h. She's starting in the middle of the ninth row.

Survey Conducted To View Snyder Soccer Interest

A survey is being conducted to determine the possibility of forming a soccer league in Snyder for children of elementary school age to begin this fall.

"Soccer participation has increased rapidly throughout America," according to coordinator Rodney Smith, "and we feel a program could be started in Snyder. Obviously, we would begin on a small scale and use younger children who are not already involved in some type of exisitng extracurricular program.

"If it catches on and we receive calls from older children or their parents, we'll look into the expansion of the soccer league."

To express a desire to form the soccer league, please call the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Office at 573-3558 during office hours or Rodney Smith at 573-0389. If adequate response in received, a meeting of concerned parents will be called in the near future to organize the program.

Peppler Goes From Foe To Friend For Houston Oiler Owner

HOUSTON (AP) — Spending Houston Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams, money instead of bidding against it apparently agrees with new Oiler assistant general manager Pat Peppler.

Peppler, as assistant general manager at Green Bay, once out-negotiated the Oilers for Donny Anderson and on another occasion lost Baylor receiver Lawrence Elkins to the Oilers during the big contract explosion era of the 1960s.

Now, after serving in similar capacities at Miami and Atlanta, Peppler has joined forces with the Oilers and currently is busy doing what he does best, negotiating player contracts.

In addition to getting the signatures of the Oiler rookies, Peppler also faces negotiations with a group of veterans that includes quarterbacks Dan Pastorini and John Hadl, linebackers Greg Bingham and Ted Washington and defensive back C.L. Whittington.

"The thing that made signing Anderson so tough was the Oilers were very competitive and aggressive in those days," said Peppler, reminiscing about competing against his present employer.

"But Donny had a think about the Packers. He told me he could get $1 million out of the Oilers but he wanted to play at Green Bay."

Another of Peppler's duties at Green Bay was playing "the turk," a name given to the person on each pro football team that tells a player he's been cut, was Peppler's function under the Lombardi organization.

Peppler recalls one rookie however, who couldn't quite believe his head had been cut off.

"I think he was a little dingy," Peppler said. "When I told him he just looked at me and didn't say a word, I finally said, uh. 'Tom, you're on waivers.' He just couldn't believe he'd been cut. He came back to my office three or four more times before I finally convinced him."

Peppler's worst moment as the turk came when he had to cut defensive back Joe Scarpatti at Green Bay. Peppler, a former assistant coach at North Carolina State, recruited Scarpatti for NCS, where the plucky defender started three years and was captain his senior year.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW...
Brought to you by Danny Lunsford

Here's an interesting sports oddity...There are 5 men who played major league baseball—and then wound up in pro football's Hall of Fame!...They are Jim Thorpe, who was a big league baseball outfielder and one of the great runners in pro football...George Halas, who played rightfield for the Yankees,s then founded the Chicago Bears... Ace Parker, who was a shortstop in the majors and a star quarterback in the National Football League...Greasy Neale, a big league outfielder who later became a successful NFL coach...And Ernie Nevers, who was a major league pitcher and a star NFL runner.

Has any big league baseball team ever been able to stay in first place EVERY DAY from opening day till the end of a season?...Oddly enough, only 2 teams in history have accomplished this...They were the 1923 Giants and the 1927 Yankees.

Who hit the longest home run in baseball history?...The longest ever that was officially measured was hit by Mickey Mantle in a game at Washington in 1953...That record homer went 565 feet.

I bet you didn't know...That The Haberdashery has received a new shipment of robes and pajama's. They make excellent graduation gifts.

Foyt To Defend Texas 500 Title

HOUSTON (AP) — Texan A.J. Foyt returns to Texas World Speedway June 5 to defend his title in the fifth annual $75,000 Texas 500 stock car race sanctioned by the United States Auto Club USAC.

Foyt beat out Butch Hartman, South Zanesville, Ohio, in last year's Texas 500 for his first victory ever in his native state.

The Texas 500 will be the first USAC race following Sunday's running of the Indianapolis 500 for championship cars and will rekindle the race for the USAC stock car division lead.

Paul Feldner, Richfield, Wis., is the USAC stock car division leader going into the Texas 500 with 295 points followed by Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., with 210.

Ramo Stott, Keokuk, Iowa, who won the May 21 100-mile race at Indianapolis, is third and Foyt is fourth in the standings.

Feldner, named rookie of the year by USAC in 1969, finished third in the 1972 USAC stock car standings, his highest ranking.

Feldner earned the early 1977 lead after finished eighth and second in the first two races on the USAC stock car division schedule.

After finishing eighth in the 200-mile race at Ontario, Calif., Feldner was runnerup to Stott in the 100-mile race at Indianapolis.

Stott nosed out Feldner in a close finish on the final lap.

Other top stock car drivers entered include Johnny Rutherford, Fort Worth; Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz.; Sal Tovella, Addison, Wis.; and Bay Darnell, Deerfield, Ill. Practice for the Texas 500 begins Friday afternoon with more practice and qualifying scheduled Saturday. Thirty-three cars will start Sunday's race.

Debbie McDonald of Hasse is the newest signee for the Western Texas Dusters. An all-around athlete, having played golf and a member of the track team, Debbie played four years of varsity ball at Comanche High School.

Comanche won district and bi-district titles in her senior year. Debbie, coached in high school by Gene Westmoreland, plans to major in Physical Education. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hershel McDonald of Hasse.

"Debbie played in an outstanding high school program," noted WTC athletic director Sid Simpson, "and should be a real asset to the Dusters."

Big Clash, Big Bust; Forwards Look Weak

PORTLAND (AP)— George McGinnis of Philadelphia against Maurice Lucas of Portland-the two premier power forwards in the game, the reigning king against the brash young pretender to his throne, going head-to-head with National Basketball Association championship on the line.

It figured to be the kind of matchup basketball dreams are made of. Instead, it has been the bigggest bust of the playoff.

Neither has lived up to his reputation in the first two games of the best-of-seven playoff series, won by Philadelphia 107-101 and 107-89. Game Three will be played here Sunday.

Before the series started, Philadlephia assistant coach Jack McMahon savored the prospect of the McGinnis-Lucas matchup.

"George has had the name, the big rep, for the last few years," said Mc Mahon. "now you're starting to hear talk that Lucas is the best power forward in the game. It's like when you're the top gun and then they say you're slowing down and there's somebody quicker on the draw. I think George will really respond to the challenge."

It hasn't happened. McGinnis, coming off a groin injury, is trying to shake perhaps the deepest slump of his brilliant pro career. It is a tribute to his talented teammates that the Sixers have been able to win while getting painfully little production from McGinnis.

McGinnis, who has totaled just 20 points and 13 rebounds for the two games.

McGinnis showed signs of finally breaking out of his slump Thursday night, particularly in one stretch of the second quarter when the Sixers ran off three baskets, McGinnis scoring two of them and assisting of the third.

RCA ColorTrak System
RCA's most automatic TV ever

Automatic contrast/color "tracking" maintains a lifelike color balance at all times. A special ColorTrak circuit ties brightness, contrast and color together so that all three are balanced simultaneously.

Automatic color control holds flesh tones to the settings you select. After you set color and tint, switch on the automatic color control and the ColorTrak system then maintains color fidelity—electronically.

Automatic room light picture control senses changes in prevailing room light to keep pictures vivid. Picture brightness automatically increases when room becomes brighter, decreases as room grows darker.

RCA Super AccuFilter picture tube has color pigments added to the red and blue phosphors. These pigments act as filters to absorb room light. This filtering improves contrast so that colors appear sharper.

Powerful high-performance ColorTrak chassis is 100% solid state—no tubes to burn out. All functions are performed by reliable solid state circuitry designed to last longer for fewer chassis repairs.

US Trade Deficit In Spotlight Last Week

NEW YORK (AP)-The United States' monthly trade deficit continued at a record level in April, for the fourth consecutive month, according to figures released by the Department of commerce this past week.

The Commerce Department announced that April's deficit reached $2.62 billion, up from the previous record of $2.39 billion in March.

So far this year, the government figures show a trade deficit of $8.55 billion, or more than $2 billion above the deficit for all of 1976.

Although the figure for April was larger than some government economists expected, administration officials haven't shown much worry.

Commerce economist Courtenay Slater predicted that deficits would decrease some in the months ahead and said she saw no reason for a change in government policy.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, in a speech this past week, noted the increased U.S. deficit "is making a major contribution to the stability of the international monetary system."

He estimated that, on a current accounts basis-which includes trading in both goods and services, plus certain monetary transfers-the payments deficit might run about $10 to $12 billion this year. The comparable figure for last year was only $604 million.

While ending up in the red might seem to be a worrisome trend, government and private economists view a certain amount of trade deficit as beneficial at this point. It is, they feel, needed to achieve world economic stability in the long run by creating bigger markets for less developed countries to work off huge deficits they have accumulated partly because of costly oil imports.

While the over-all trade policy is designed to elevate less developed countries into trading partners in the future, individual trade policy questions still pose sticky problems.

In other business developments this past week:

A number of major commercial banks increased their prime lending rate for the second time this month. The increase in the prime rate, from 6½ to 6¾ per cent, could make business expansion more expensive and perhaps slow already-sluggish capital expansion plans.

That and other inflation worries helped push trading on the stock market down. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dipped below 900 for the first time in 16 months after a week of broad losses capped by the banks' announcement.

The government issued an economic forecast with brighter overtones, however. The Commerce Department's index of leading economic indicators went up one-half per cent in April, for the third monthly increase in a row. The index is a composite of 12 economic reports and intended to forecast economic activity.

The Interstate Commerce Commission issued a statement of interest to Americans on the move. The ICC says some American families may be paying as much as $500 extra on moving costs to unethical movers who add such items as bricks, boxes of heavy machinery and steel ingots to increase the weight on loads they move.

YOUR BIRTHDAY - May 29, 1977 Your social activities will be accelerated considerably this coming year. Be careful, however, that you do not make the pursuit of pleasure your first priority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be doubly courteous to all you come in contact with today. A display of rudeness or poor manners will tarnish your image.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It may be necessary to take on some of the responsibilities of a loved one today. Do your duty with a smile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The road to romance could be a rocky one today if you're bossy with the one you love. Let him or her be their own person.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid setting down rigid rules for the family today. They'll get everyone uptight, but won't be obeyed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Persons who don't agree with your every word will arouse your ire today. Are you sure you're right and they're wrong?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may be best to do without today rather than to borrow. The loan you would make has too many strings attached.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Hoping to please your mate today may turn out to be a trying task. However, it will be well worth it if you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could find yourself in a situation today where someone else gets the attention you think you're entitled to. Play it cool.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An impulsive friend could pull a trick today that could complicate your life. Steer clear of pals with wild ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You must be extremely careful today not to step on anyone's toes in order to get something you want. The scar will be slow to heal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An idea you feel strongly about will not strike a responsive chord with one whom you hoped it would. Watch your temper.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things you prize should not be loaned to irresponsible people today. They're not likely to come back in the same good condition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions made under pressure today won't be wise ones. Don't let anyone maneuver you into a corner where this could happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're performing a task you don't particularly relish today, take extra safety precautions. Frustration or even anger could lead to carelessness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend may do something you find highly objectionable at a social gathering today. Avoid using words that are too harsh in admonishing him.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Keep an especially watchful eye on the family today, particularly the younger members. Don't let them wander too far and get into mischief.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have a feather touch and not a lead foot on the accelerator today. So what if it takes you a little longer to get where you're going?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be the only one in the crowd with a checkbook today. You'll be put out if pals come up with excuses rather than a share of the expenses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the urge to be a leader today, but make sure your orders and ideas are sound. Erratic actions will not gain you followers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Curb your reactions to be bluntly critical of something a friend did in the past that's been bugging you. Today's not the day to comment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're liable to take a gamble today because of misplaced confidence in a proponent of the venture. Your chances of gaining are virtually nil.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are more people observing you today than you realize. One who is unfriendly is hoping you'll stub your toe.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Admit it if you don't know how to do something today rather than trying to tough it out. It's far less embarrassing than fouling up.

Comedy Slated At C-City Playhouse

COLORADO CITY — Colorado City's Playhouse production of 6RMS RIV VU will be presented June 6-11, in the Opera House.

Tickets for the comedy go on sale at the Opera House box office May 31. The box office will be open each afternoon that week and the week of the production from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. to take reservations.

The comedy revolves around prospective tenants for a six room apartment with a river view. Two of those prospective tenants get locked in the apartment together. They are married to each other. These two are played by a man and his wife, Fred and Donna McWhorter.

They play the parts of Paul Friedman and Ann Miller in the two act comedy.

Others in the case include Trina Taylor as the expectant mother and Don Crout as her husband. The woman in 4A is portrayed by Karen Gilliland and two other prospective tenants the mates of the two locked in the apartment together are played by Donna Watson as Janet Friedman and Larry Lange as Richard Miller.

Jim Hill plays the part of the building superintendent. Director of the play is Tandy Curlee, also president of the Colorado City Playhouse group.

Playboy Invitation Untimely

DALLAS (AP)-The Playboy Club, soon to open in Dallas, decided to drum up membership by mailing invitations to subscribers of Texas magazines, but at least one of its selections proved untimely.

John J. Hurt, editor of the Baptist Standard, received the Playboy Club invitation and sent a letter in reply saying he has no intention of allowing a "Texas Bunny" escort him, "Neither am I interested in 'Playboy-size cocktails.'"

Hurt continued, "No thanks, too, for the right to 'pick up either Playboy or Oui magazines' should I visit. An old Georgia friend of mine got into so much trouble with an interview in the former that I wouldn't be caught looking."

The tongue-in-cheek reference was to President Carter's controversial interview published in Playboy before the election.

PROPOSAL GOES TO CONGRESS

Navy Women Closer To Becoming Seaborne

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy women are a few nautical miles closer to becoming seaborne following a White House decision to allow them on board ships in peacetime.

Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor Jr. said Friday that the Pentagon and the Office of Management and Budget have approved sea duty for women.

The proposal now goes to Congress, because the law currently bars women sailors from all naval vessels except hospital ships and transports. In effect, Navy women have been landlocked since 1975, when the last hospital ship was retired.

Ironically, Claytor commented the same day that First Lady Rosalynn Carter helped steer the nuclear submarine Los Angeles.

If Congress approves, the Navy would assign women to auxiliary ships on a permanent basis and combat vessels on a temporary basis, Claytor said.

"I think that current law is silly," Claytor told a Norfolk, Va., news conference. "It's left over from another time."

The Navy began work on the proposal after six enlisted women and officers filed suit claiming the current restrictions infringe on their constitutional rights.

Despite the legal action, a former high-ranking Navy woman predicts most American women would not rush to sea.

"It seems to me most unlikely that the comfort-convenience-glamour-oriented young American woman would view such a life as her golden opportunity," retired Capt. Robin L. Quigley wrote recently in the Navy League's publication "Seapower."

Yet, the principle of equality requires that Navy women, like men, should be ordered to sea rather than have a choice, she said.

Cap. Quigley, who was chief of naval personnel for women from 1971-73, predicted that of those Navy women now servicing, "only miniscule numbers ... would be prepared to accept continued service under such conditions."

Claytor also said Friday there is a "strong possibility" that bell-bottom trousers and jumpers will return to the Navy uniform.

Claytor said the change would be phased in over several years.

He said there was a substantial desire for the old uniform - a statement confirmed by an official but non-scientific Navy poll.

That poll indicated the new uniform of coats, white shirts, black ties and peaked caps is unpopular in the ranks.

The new uniform became mandatory nearly two years ago.

Shepard Christens Disneyland Ride

ANAHEIM (AP)—America's first man in space and a couple of later astronauts were on hand to appropriately christen a new Disneyland attraction called "Space Mountain."

"My only complaint is that it's just too short," said Navy Rear Adm. Alan Shepard on Friday after a dizzying, high-speed, rollercoaster ride through swirling three-dimensional visual effects that include a shower of meteors.

"It was very spectacular," Shepard said, "I'm ready to go back on it again."

Capt. Walter M. Shirra, Jr., a veteran of the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo space projects, called it "great fun and its visual effects are gorgeous."

Ford Finds Club Course Tough

HAMILTON, Mass (AP) Gerald Ford took time for some golf at the Myopia Hunt Club course while in town for his son Michael's graduation from a seminary in nearby South Hamilton.

But the tangled, rough course proved too much for the former President, whose score on Friday was 94, 24-strokes above par.

The world's largest mint, covering three city blocks, with a capacity of producing eight billion coins a year, is in Philadelphia.

Worries about health and the cost of health care rank at the top of most surveys of older people's opinions about their needs and problems, says Mrs. Vivian Blair, family life education specialist-aging with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Double-Dipping Plan Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP)- Future retired military personnel won't be able to collect on their pensions while holding down civilian government jobs if a House subcommittee has its way.

Friday's action by a House appropriations panel may be the opening of the strongest attack yet on "double dipping," the practice of military pensioners also taking home vicilian government paychecks.

The practice has come under increasing attack in recent years. President Carter has said he opposes it.

The subcommittee approved a bill exlcuding the 141,000 military retirees now on the civilian government payroll, but those getting federal jobs after Oct. 1 would have to renounce their retirement pay for as long as they worked for Uncle Sam.

"It's a matter of principle," Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., the panel chairman, said. "People who make good pensions should not also get good government jobs when there are many unemployed people."

The provision is part of a $111.2 billion defense appropriation bill, which is $2.7 billion below President Carter's request.

About half of the military personnel retire after 20 years of service with full pensions are in their late 30s or early 40s. Under most private pension plans employes must attain age 65, and often receive a pension that is frequently less than what a retired military person gets.

Defenders of the present system say that if a retired member of the armed services is the best qualified person for a government job, he should get it without sacrificing any of his retirement benefits.

The subcommittee plan would save the government an estimated $26 million in the first year after it took effect.

Puppy Love Can Have Sharp Bite

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a teenager can experience love? Why do older people say, "It's only puppy love," or "a crush"? Isn't that real love?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: A teenager's "crush" or "puppy love" is as real as mature love is to an adult.

Teenagers suffer the same longings, yearnings, heartaches and excitement that older lovers experience. And the pains of puppy love are deeper because the frustrations are greater.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a boat. We both love boating and so do our children.

Here's the problem: My husband can't swim a stroke, and he refuses to wear a life preserver. He says he has to die sometime, and he doesn't care how he goes.

We have five children, Abby. They range from 13 years old down to 3. I get frightened half to death when we are in the boat with him, and the waters get rough or a storm comes up. I am becoming a nervous wreck over this. Can you suggest something?

NEWPORT

DEAR NEWPORT: Tell your "hero" that even if HE doesn't care how he goes, YOU do. And you also care WHEN! Remind him that you didn't have those five children without his help, and you don't intend to raise them alone, either. That ought to buoy the old boy up.

DEAR ABBY: Every year my daughter and her children have visited us and stayed all summer, and each year the children grow a little bolder.

Last summer my home was bedlam! The children kept the stereo going full-blast night and day, refused to pick up after themselves, ate all day long and abused our lovely furniture. They partied at night and left the mess for me to clean up in the morning.

They had their teenage friends running in and out and never bothered to introduce one of them to their grandfather or me. (Their mother said teenagers NEVER introduce their friends to anyone, not even to their parents.) I was shocked to hear the rude manner in which those children talked back to their mother, and she didn't say a word.

If I had treated my elders that way, my mother would have worn out a willow switch on me. Summer is upon us, and I am dreading it. Have you any advice for me?

GRAM

DEAR GRAM: No advice, just sympathy. If you put up with those hooligans another summer, you've asked for it. Apparently you failed to teach your daughter what your mother taught you: Respect for one's elders. For if you had, she'd have passed it on to HER children. And perhaps something else would have been passed on: the willow switch.

Cultural History

NEW YORK (AP)-The National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution is currently presenting an exhibition of documents and photographs covering more than a century of American cultural history.

"Artists and Writers" illustrates the close personal relationships that existed between such painters, sculptors and authors as artist Jerome Blum and author Sherwood Anderson, or 19th-century sculptor Hiram Powers and his friend, the poet William Cullen Bryant. The exhibit will remain on view through December.

COMPUTERIZED CONFERENCING

Big Public Blackboard Being Tested At NJIT

EDITOR'S NOTE— Someday you may report to work by sitting at a computer console in your home. You'll be using a system similar to one being developed at New Jersey Institute of Technology for use by scientists.

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)— Think of it as one giant electronic "blackboard" in the sky, with scientists from all over the country working on it whenever they want to.

The "blackboard" is a new computer system - called computerized conferencing - an alternative to the use of paper, designed to break down the barriers of time and distance.

An experimental program of this kind, involving 221 individuals in 33 groups of investigators, is just going into operation at the New Jersey Institute of Technology. It is aimed at providing new forms of communication in science and technology, but similar systems may some day reach right into your living room.

This system employs terminals around the country tied to a centralized computer system at NJIT by ordinary telephone. It allows scientists to send messages to each other. It gives each one a personal "notebook." It replaces face-to-face consuming conventions.

Beyond all this, those directing the project say that computerized conferencing will have more common, everyday uses in the future. It waits for the price to come down as equipment is mass produced.

This big public blackboard could be used for widespread education, recreation, town meetings.

"Any such applications of computerized conferencing systems would be likely to lead to widespread changes in work patterns and lifestyles," says Dr. Starr Roxanne Hiltz of Upsala College, who is working with Dr. Murray Turoff, a computer scientist who sees no reason why one's terminal of work, has to be separate in time and space from one's place of living or leisure. Wherever there's a telephone, you can plug into your computer and your conferences and go to work, whenever it suits you.

"This is especially important for women," Dr. Hiltz says, "to facilitate time budgeting between family career. If you can work in your own home, whenever it suits you, there won't be those minor crises that make it so difficult for the parent responsible for child care, such as what to do when the baby sitter doesn't come of if your school-age child is sick. One will be able to stay home near the children and work."

He says computer conferencing will mean more substitution of communication. It is built with the idea of the "invisible college" in mind: Informal groupings of scientists whose interests transcend their own universities and link them with scientists in the same field across the country.

Members of these "invisible colleges" communicate now by telephone, mail, journals, at meetings. The new computer system, called EIES or "eyes," for Electronic Information Exchange System is built for this need.

The new system, supported by the National Science Foundation, has four major features:

1. A message system. Any member can send a message to any other or all. It can be informal or temporary. A message will wait for the recipient to sign in on the system at his or her leisure. The message system is economically competitive with the telephone and mail.

2. The conference, a running series of short papers and discussions on a specific topic. The computer replaces a three-hour or three-day seminar. Or the computer conference could run on for weeks or months, with members signing in and contributing when they choose.

3. The notebook. Right now, each participant has space for his or her personal use, for composing scientific papers, for example. "It's the private space of the individual, but you can authorize any others to read five pages of it," says Dr. Turoff. "Instead of Xeroxing it and mailing it out, they just get it."

4. The bulletin, or journal. When an article is ready, the author notifies a human editor, who sends it to "referees" for evaluation. The paper could be "published" on the computer the next day, on the screen or as a print-out.

There are other features:

—Pen name. When discussing someone else's paper, for example, you can use a pen name for anonymity. This is to encourage critical or controversial ideas and comments.

—Hal Zylog. Hal, whose name is from the computer in the movie "Space Odyssey, 2001," is a microprocessor - a sort of computer within a computer. Hal is being programmed to perform a number of services, such as talking to other com-puters by dialing them to get certain desired information.

The experimental program at Newark is to last for three to five years.

The cost estimates so far? Only $8 an hour for each user for nationwide communications, cheaper than a long-distance phone call. For 800 or more users, that would drop to under $5. The cost of a terminal should drop enough by 1980 to begin opening up the possibility of widespread home terminals the scientists say.

The harvest in the Clarksburg area of California's Inland Delta region can yield some corn farmers up to 280 bushels to the acre, or almost twice as much as the average crop output in Iowa, the center of the U.S. corn belt.

(Photo By Craft Studio)

Westfall, Stephens Wed In Formal Ceremony

Lesa Marlene Westfall and Mark Harrison Stephens were united in marriage in the Colonial Hill Baptist Church May 7 at 7 p.m. Rev. Miller R. Robinson officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Judge and Mrs. Wayland G. Holt, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulks of Tulia.

The bride's father, Judge Wayland G. Holt, gave her in marriage. She wore formal length gown of candlelight sheer knit with a deep scoop neckline edged with a narrow band of Venice lace and accented with Alencon lace appliques and scattered seed pearls. A band of Venice lace encompassed the high-rise waistline and tiny self covered buttons fastened the back. The softly gathered A-line skirt extended into a chapel length train surrounded with appliques of Alencon lace and seed pearls. A deep self ruffle formed the hemline of the skirt and train.

Her veil, fashioned by the bride, was ballerina length and of illusion. The Juliet cap was covered with Alencon lace and pearls. A string of tiny pearls bordered the scalloped edge of the veil and scattered appliques of Alencon lace completed the ensemble.

Keeping with tradition she wore for something old, a gold locket belonging to her mother and worn by her and the bride's sisters at their weddings. Something new was her gown and veil. Something borrowed was a lace handkerchief belonging to her sister and something blue was her garter.

The groom wore a Burgandy tail coat tux with a white ruffled shirt with matching trim. His boutonniere was pink roses and baby's breath.

The bride carried a cascade of white feathered carnations entwined with English ivy and satin streamers with love knots atop a white Bible given to the bride when she was a baby. A white Japhet orchid centered the bouquet and was removed later for the going away corsage.

Suzanne Doolittle was matron of honor and wore a formal length gown of pink floral chiffon with sheer caplet collar and softly flowing skirt. She carried a long stem pink carnation and forget me nots with satin bows and streamers tied with love knots. She wore pink dogwood flowers in her hair trimmed with net and ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Dana Huckle of San Antonio, June Williamson of Midland, both sisters of the bride, and Melinda Stephens of Tulia, sister of the groom, each wearing gowns like the matron of honor.

David Stokes was best man. Goomsmen were Mike Stephens of Arlington, brother of the groom, Westey Stephens, cousin of the groom, and Max Stephens of Tulia, brother of the groom. Ushers were Will Huckle of San Antonio, and Kim Cobble, John Kacqyk and Tony Lolis all of Snyder.

The church was centered with an altar which stood before a twenty branch candle tree with long white tapers, white gladiolas and greenery flanked on either side by white wicker baskets filled with pink spring flowers on white Roman columns.

Micah Mitchell played traditional wedding music. Lynda Burgess accompanied Kay Hopper on the piano as she sang "Evergreen" and Marguerette Shamburger and Kay Hopper sang a duet "Wedding Song", then Mrs. Shamburger, sister of bride, sang "Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Micah Mitchell.

The bride's mother wore a formal length pink chiffon tiered gown and the groom's mother was attired in a formal length pink with a floral poncho. Each wore corsages of sweetheart burgundy roses with pink trim which were grown in the yard of the bride's parents. Grandmothers of couple, Mrs. W.A. Holt and Mrs. E.M. Bruce of Barnsdall, Okla., wore corsages of gigi pink carnations.

The fathers wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and white carnations. The ushers were dressed in black tuxedos and pink ruffled shirts with gigi pink carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Colonial Hill Baptist Church Fellowship Hall. Sue Harper of Midland served at the registry table which was covered with a white lace cloth adorned with a book and two long stemmed pink roses in a crystal bud vase. Serving were Karen Greene and Marta Hanks.

After a wedding trip to Galveston, the couple will reside in Snyder. The bride chose for the trip a silk floral dress and bone sandals and bag.

The bride is a Snyder High graduate, also WTC and Texas Tech with a degree in elementary education with a minor in English. The groom is a graduate of SHS and WTC with a degree in Mid Management and is employed by Oilwell Supply.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from San Antonio, Tulia, Midland, Andrews, Sweetwater, Pecos, Amarillo, Loraine, Brownfield, Arlington, Lubbock, Somerville, San Angelo, Athens, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Barnsdall, Okla., Ruidoso and Carlsbad, N.M.

The rehearsal dinner was held at The Shack and was hosted by the groom's parents.

Since the sun started to shine, it has lost 113 times the mass of the earth, says the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium.

SALMON, CLIFTON WED—Jane Louise Salmon and Michael Dean Clifton were married May 14 at 7 p.m. in the bride's home, 107 Lubbock Hwy. Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, performed the double ring ceremony. The bride's father gave her in marriage. Cheryl Smith was maid of honor and Natalie McCravey was flower girl. Michael McCravey was ring bearer. Keith Proctor served as best man. The couple will reside in Midland. Both are graduates of Snyder High School and the groom attended WTC.

NUPTIAL PLANS MADE—Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Border announce the engagement and future marriage of their daughter, Diane, to Michael Dorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dorman. The wedding is set Aug. 12, 8 p.m. at the Calvary Baptist Church.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Henley of Norphlet, Ark. announce the engagement of their daughter, Holly, to Glenn Rambin, son of Mr. and Mrs. M.M. Rambin of Snyder. The ceremony is planned for July 2 at 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Norphlet, Ark.

Homemaking Class Set For Adults

Classes have been set for summer homemaking for adults to begin June 6-17 at Snyder High School in room 101, from 9-11 a.m. A nursery is provided for children 2-5 years old.

Individualized instruction on sewing techniques, shortcuts, altering, patterns, and constructing suede garments.

High Cost Of Cooling

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Many Americans will pay more to cool their homes this summer than they did to heat them last winter, says Charles Hartman, of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. who says "people generally don't conserve the electricity used to run their air conditiners because they don't equate it with the fuel used to heat their homes."

Electricity rates have risen 7.1 per cent in the past year Hartman points out, and adds, "more than half of all U.S. homes remain uninsulated or under-insulated and are, therefore, wasting energy."

Attic insulation alone can shear surprising amounts of money off summer fuel bills, Hartman notes. "Since a home gains most of its heat through the roof, attic insulation helps prevent it from passing through the ceiling, thus keeping the home more comfortable and reducing the amount of air conditioning necessary."

Palestrina, Italian composer of liturgical music, was born Giovanni Pierluigi in the ancient town of Palestrian in 1525. The name of his birthplace was later added to his family name.

Grimmett, Lee Repeat Vows

Paula Darlene Grimmett and Jerry Bob Lee exchanged vows in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Ken Andress, pastor, officiating the double ring ceremony April 29 at 7 p.m.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jacky Grimmett, 4401 Houston St., and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lee, 1707 28th St.

Jacky Grimmett gave his daughter in marriage under two arched candelabras containing 15 tall burning tapers each with 14 branch tree candleabras on each side. Along either side of the church was an eight-branch candelabra entwined with greenery. The pews were marked with satin bows.

The bride wore a traditional wedding gown in polyester organza trimmed with Venise lace. The gown featured a wedding band collar, a camisole bodice and a double cape effect over long fitted sleeves.

The skirt front fell in a soft graceful panel effect then turned sharply to encircle the complete hemline of the chapel length train in multi-flounces of soft fabric. The gown was an Alfred Angelo original designed by Edythe Vicnet. The full veil was trimmed with Venise lace and attached to a lace head piece.

She carried an all white bouquet of baby roses, hyacinths, baby's breath timmed with satin bow and ribbon, backed up with greenery. Also she carried two long stemmed roses which she presented to her mother and to the groom's mother.

For something old the bride carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her grandmother, Mr. C. A. Dorman. Something borrowed was the wedding gown belonging to the matron of honor and also cousin of the bride, Mrs. Steve Beck of Portales, N.M. Something blue was her traditional blue garter made for the bride by Mrs. Peggy English. She carried pennies in her shoe minted in the year of the couple's birth.

Dody Robinson was maid of honor wearing a floor length, summer A-line dress with floral sheer shoulder drape trimmed with lace.

Mrs. Beck, the matron of honor, wore a blue floor length dress, fashioned after that of the maid of honor's.

Bridesmaids were Gini Grimmett, the bride's sister-in-law, and Kim Davis, each wearing a yellow and mist green dress, respectively, identical to the maid of honor.

Marvin McClanahan was best man. Groomsmen were Jerry Fore, cousin of the groom, Steven Grimmett, brother of the bride and David Lee, brother of the groom. Ushers were Allen Grimmett, brother of the bride, Ricky Hopper, Kenny Kornegay and Frankie Grimmett, uncle of the bride.

"The Twelfth of Never" was played beginning the ceremony by Mrs. Floral Gladson. Pianist was Bobby Wells. "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer" was sung during the wedding by Mrs. Kay Hopper.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown with a sleeveless fitted bodice with a floral sheer overlay and a front pleated skirt. A green velvet tie accented the waist. She wore spring flowers in her hair.

The groom's mother chose a floor length sheath dress with V-neckline and long sleeves, it was the color of spring flowers with a butterfly pattern, which was belted. Her corsage was peach colored baby rose.

The bridegroom's boutonniere was of the same white hyacinths as the bride's bouquet. The groomsmen and fathers all wore white carnations.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall. The tablecloths were in rainbow color. The bridesmaid's baskets decorated each table. The 5-tiered cake set on a table covered with a floor length, organdy cloth trimmed with lace under a lace cloth trimmed with pearls. The house party included Debbie Watson of Abilene, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. Mike Pollard of Midland, both cousins of the groom, Tammy Lee, Debbie Newman, Clinta McCowen, Pam Kohl, Carolyn Rylander, Mrs. Bob Burney, Mrs. Carl Stokes and Mrs. Don Sealy.

For the wedding trip to Fort Worth the bride chose a red and white checked sundress with white accessories. The couple will reside at 1203 24th St.

The bride is a student of cosmetology at Western Texas College and is a 1977 graduate of Snyder High School. The groom, also a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School, attended WTC and is now employed by Snyder Heating and Air Conditioning.

Out of town guests for the wedding were from Portales and Hobbs, N.M., San Antonio, Roby, Rotan, Midland, Fort Worth, Abilene, Denver City, Colorado City, Karne City, Hermleigh, and Amarillo.

First Dad's Card Written In Babylon

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)-The first known Father's Day "card" was written in Babylon about 2000 B. C. It was in the form of a clay tablet which asked the gods to grant good health and long life to the father of the individual named Elmesu, reports Hallmark historian Sally Hopkins.

Later, the ancient Romans, though not known particularly for their sentiment, celebrated Feb. 13-22 as the Feast of Parentalias, honoring departed fathers and mothers.

This year, some 75 million Father's Day cards will be mailed, says Ms. Hopkins, many of them carrying sentiments similar to those of Elmesu-whose name was honored on such a card.

Many Plants Are Poisonous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eating daffodils may be hazardous to your health. These and many popular flowers, ornamental shrubs and colorful weeds are poisonous, says National Geographic.

Young children are particularly vulnerable, but even adults often become unthinking nibblers of poisonous plants. "For many it's just sort of an automatic thing to do," said one naturalist. "You snap off a blade of grass or whatever and absent-mindedly stick it in your mouth."

Commonplace plants like wisteria, Carolina jasmine, azaleas, rhododendron and even honeysuckle have poisonous parts. The bright berries of privet hedges, pokeweed, ornamental yew trees, mistletoe and night shade can be dangerous if not deadly. Glossy leaves of English ivy or poinsettia plants or a twig of oleander may be fatal.

ACS Officers Installed

The Scurry County Unit of the American Cancer Society met Wednesday at the Steak House for their annual meeting. Winnie Poyner, president, presided over the business session. She thanked the board members for their cooperation in making the Scurry County Unit one of the most enthusiastic and successful units in the district.

H.W. Cargile reported that $9,769.65 had been collected during the recent crusade drive with some monies yet to be turned in.

Officers for the ensuing term were elected. These include Mrs. Wraymond Sims, president, Clay Mullins, vice-president; Mrs. Kenneth Wood, secretary, and H.W. Cargile, treasurer. Bill Keys was elected to serve on the local ACS board.

At this point Mrs. Sims took charge of the meeting. She pointed out that she had high hopes for the success of the organization and stated many areas of work she hoped to accomplish. She asked each member to be on at least one committtee, and accept the responsibility to help plan and carry out the most effective cancer program possible within the geographical boundaries of the Unit.

The president presented Kye Hudson of Abilene, Director of District XVI who gave a resume of the meeting to be held in Abilene June 21. Mrs. Bentley Baize, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Clay Mullins, Winnie Poyner and Mrs. Sims will represent the local unit. The State Annual Meeting will be held in Houston July 14, 15. Mrs. Sims was elected a delegate.

Greg Johnson of Fort Worth, Area VI Director of Public Education and Information gave the program. He stated that, "hope for the final success in conquering cancer is in a massive extension of the present research program, and each unit had a vital part in it. Past research projects are now evident in improved methods for earlier diagnosis and treatment of cancer."

The speaker gave special emphasis to three special programs directed toward groups previously overlooked or touched on lightly. First, instructing hospital nurses in breast self examination. Nurses are available to teach BSE to any female over 14 and others who desire it. Statistics show that 80 percent of patients taught BSE in hospitals will practice it in one year as opposed to 17 percent who will not. Films are available for this type of program. Next, a five year project to reduce the number of youths who smoke 50 percent and adult smokers by 25 percent, also to back legislation to stop government subsidies to tobacco growers.

Third, teaching ministers about rehabilitating the cancer patient as part of a team, working with and referring physicians assist surgeons, nurses and radiologist. Material for these programs are available for the asking. Those requesting materials are asked to contact American Cancer Society, Austin, Tex. 78766.

Guests attending the meeting other than the above mentioned were Susan Tulley and Rosa Tulley of Sulpher Springs.

The next regular meeting will be September 12.

NEW OFFICERS—American Cancer Society's newly elected officers are: Mrs. Wraymond Sims, president; Mr. Hubert Cargile, treasurer; and Mrs. Kenneth Wood, secretary. Not pictured is the incoming vice-president, Mr. Clay Mullins.

An unkind reader sent us the North and South hands and asked us the best percentage play to make six hearts.

Our reply was that we would try to get some diamond discards from our opponents by simply leading out six trumps while chucking three diamonds from dummy. Somewhere there may be a couple of players who won't fall for this swindle, but it sure looks good to us. Just suppose we run off those six hearts while discarding a spade, a club and then all four diamonds from dummy.

Maybe the defender with three diamonds will hold all of them. If he has we are likely to go down to defeat and will look mighty silly if a simple attack in diamonds would succeed due to the presence of the King in the West hand.

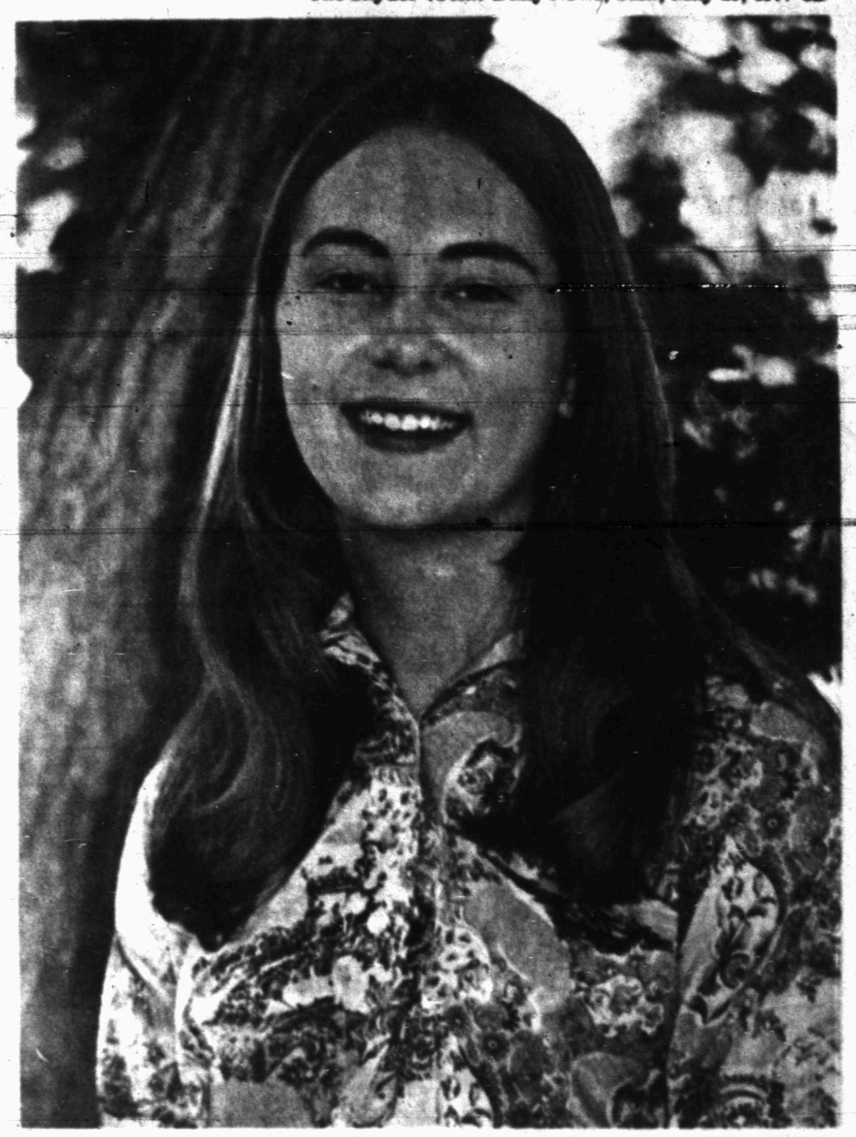

We have set up East-West holdings that will defeat the contract against any line of play. Of course, if South draws trumps, leads the queen of spades and lets it ride East must refuse to win the trick. But anything is possible when you see all the cards.

Jews Form A Congregation

DETROIT (AP) — The city's Jewish population is forming a Jewish congregation in the downtown area almost within the shadow of the new $337-million Ranaissance Center.

And in the ecumenical spirit, Rev. John Nader, pastor of Old St. Mary's Catholic Church, has offered rent-free use of school buildings nearby for their synagogue.

Toby Citrin, a Detroit attorney and spokesman for the group, said that "by forming a congregation in downtown Detroit, we're saying we have roots here. Our ancestors lived and worshipped here, and we feel a close relationship with the city as a melting pot of humanity and that we're tied to its future."

COOKING IS FUN

DEAR CECILY: You once published a recipe for biscuits that I loved. It called for cream of tartar, but I've lost the recipe and I can't remember the exact proportion.-MOTHER OF ONE.

DEAR MOTHER OF ONE:Here's the biscuit recipe, updated. Originally called for sifting the flour; we retested it, stirring the flour before measuring instead of sifting. This saves a step and the biscuits are still delicious. -C.B.

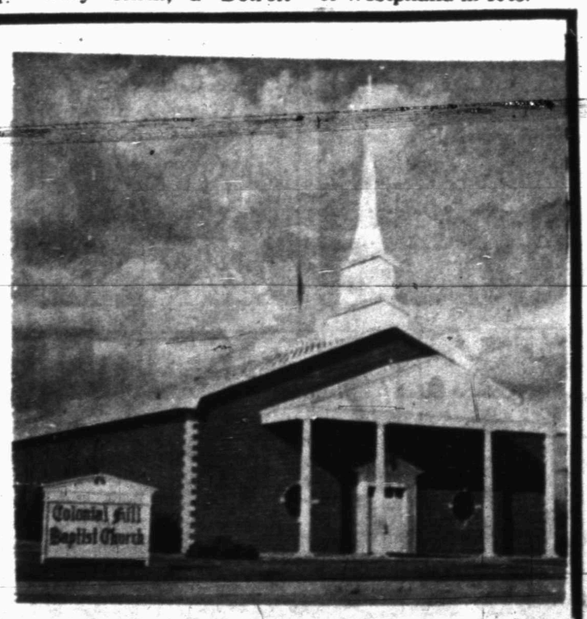

OLDTIME BISCUITS
1 cup flour, fork-stir well before measuring
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
1-3rd cup of milk

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. With a pastry blender cut in the butter until the particles are tiny. Gradually sprinkle with the milk, stirring as you do so with a fork, until the dough comes away from the sides of the bowl. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth; knead about half a dozen times. With a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out a little less than ½-inch thick; cut out with a floured 2-inch round cookie cutter. Place, a few inches apart, on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until lightly browned-10 to 12 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 11.

Cancer in offspring

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in one of your columns that girls born from a pregnancy where the mother had taken hormones to prevent a miscarriage were in danger of developing cancer. You also said that boys born from such a pregnancy were not in danger of cancer but sometimes had other problems. Since that time I heard again that this is true concerning boys.

I am concerned what the other problems are, the chances of boys developing ill effects and what can be done to prevent them.

I had hormones prescribed to me at the time of my pregnancy since I had suffered two previous miscarriages.

If you have any information on this I would appreciate hearing from you.

DEAR READER — Fortunately, the number of cancers occurring in daughters that can be attributed to the mother taking DES is small. Current figures show that between 500,000 and two million women in the United States took DES to maintain a pregnancy and only 300 cases of daughters with that type of cancer have been found. So, while the threat is real, and any girl whose mother was treated with DES to maintain a pregnancy deserves careful examination and follow-up, the outlook is not all bad.

The sons of DES mothers do not have cancer but many of them may be sterile or have abnormalities of their reproductive system. The estimates run as high as 30 per cent.

Dr. Marluce Bibbo of the University of Chicago discovered the problem in about 25 per cent of sons of DES mothers. Some of the abnormalities were of little consequence.

Animal studies confirmed that giving DES to pregnant rats was associated with a high percentage of minor abnormalities in the male offspring. DES concentrates in the cells that develop into the genital tract in the developing fetus. The presence of excess female hormones in a genetic male animal appears to be an important factor in causing abnormalities of the male genital tract.

In a more recent study of 39 DES sons compared with men from normal pregnancies 28 per cent had such low sperm counts that they would normally be considered sterile. The presence of sterility, however, does not mean an absence of other normal masculine qualities or abilities.

Any male who was the result of a DES pregnancy should have a careful examination when he is an adult to see if he is sterile — if that is an important question for him. Otherwise, a fairly simple examination of the male genitals will reveal any of the minor variations that can occur that are not so important. These variations include small cysts of the testicle (epididymal cysts) and varicocele (varicose veins of the testicle) or small organs.

It should be pointed out that despite these problems with DES, the mothers of these offspring would not have been able to have had offspring at all without the help they received. Many normal healthy persons have been born because DES made it possible.

For information on the acute infections, enlargement and cancer of the prostate gland send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019

DEAR DR. LAMB — My problem is that I am constantly getting hives on my face. They vary in size from a pea to as large as a quarter. They itch and greatly resemble mosquito bites in appearance.

I am 20 years old and have had these for several years. There is rarely a day that I don't get one and have had as many as three in one day.

The problem is that I have no idea what causes them although I have tried to switch make-up and shampoos. I have also tried to keep track of a particular food substance without much success, as I still get them even if I haven't eaten for hours.

I frankly don't know how or where I can go to be rid of this problem. I would be terribly grateful for any advice you can give me as it is so frustrating as well as embarrassing.

DEAR READER — Hives are allergic reactions. The most common cause is a food allergy. Finding out what the food is that causes the problem is not always easy. Some doctors put patients on a rigid diet with unseasoned foods least likely to cause allergies. If the patient gets along all right then foods such as milk and milk products are added one at a time to be sure it is not the offending agent. In the course of time the foods that a person is allergic to will be identified. Often it is some spice that is used in foods that is really the offending agent.

If you really want relief I would suggest that you see an allergist and let him start you on a program. Some hives are caused by contact with chemical but not as often as from food allergies.

Less commonly a person may be allergic to animal dander and contact with the offending animal may cause hives. People who are allergic to bees may not be able to eat honey without the lips and mouth developing hives.

An insect bite may cause a hive at the site of the bite and also may cause generalized hives all over the body — a condition doctors call generalized urticaria. Infections of all types can induce an allergic reaction with hives. So can the medicines used to treat infections. A rash induced by an allergic reaction to a medicine is nothing more than genetalized hives.

Still other patients develop hives in response to cold and others to heat and sun exposure. Screening compounds used to prevent sunburning often help to prevent solar hives. For information on screening compounds I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer.

Not all of the so-called screening compounds work and a person sensitive to the sun needs year around protection. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The hive is caused by a release of a chemical substance in the body called histamine. For that reason treatment of the actual urticaria (hives) usually employs one of the antihistamine medicines. These can also be used in prevention, for example, immediately after you have eaten something that you know causes an allergic reaction.

The drawback to antihistaminies is the side effect of feeling drowsy. In severe intractable cases the adrenal cortex hormone, prednisone, may be used for immediate relief.

Odd Coupling

PHOENIX (AP) — Sometimes putting a square peg in a round hole is a good idea, say computer designers.

Machines force square pins into round holes at Honeywell's computer manufacturing center here. Since the holes - lines with a soft metal - are smaller than the pins, the fit is tighter, ensuring better electrical connections for sensitive computer parts.

GENERAL PEST SITUATION:

During the past week it seems many insects and pests made their presence known in Scurry County. Not only in field crops, but garden and home products as well.

The cutworm and the armyworm made special nuisance of themselves, since they have infested most any plants around. Damage from these have been leaf eating and also eating the plant off at or near the surface of the ground.

These worms have shown little if any preference since cotton, flowers and vegetables have all been subject to damage.

Control has been erratic and diligence in applying an insecticide appears to be the answer. Malathion and diazinon seem to give fair control. Application should be made at 3-5 day intervals until control is obtained. A good practice includes throughly wetting the ground around the plants, as well as spraying the plant, will help in the control of the cutworm, which spends most of the daylight hours underneath the surface of the ground.

When spraying garden products with these pesticides be sure to follow directions on the container as to application and waiting period before harvest. Consider also the type of product being sprayed, such as where the edible fruit is located, underground or above ground and adjust spray volume accordingly.

Producers should be alert to the possibilities of these pests causing damage.

SCAB DISEASE:

Scab on apricots has caused considerable loss and concern lately. Scab, which later turns to brown rot is a fungal disease which attacks stone fruit in blossom stage and develops with fruit until late in the season the dark brown and black areas appear on the fruit. This disease causes loss in both production and flavor.

Control measures for scab and brown rot must be applied during the blossom period.

PECAN NUT CASEBEARER:

May 25 to 31 are the dates for insecticide control of the pecan nut casebearer. Applicaiton of insecticides should be made during this period for best control of casebearer.

Benomyl, Cyprex or Du-Ter should be used with the casebearer insecticidal spray to control pecan scab.

BLACK SPOT ON ROSES:

The damp weather and high humidity has encouraged the spread of black spot on roses.

Black spot is serious disease of roses and can cause defoliation of the rose bush.

Sprays or dusts containing benomyl, Captan or phaltan will aid in control of black spot. Regular applications at 5-7 day interval may be necessary for control.

MESQUITE RUST:

If you have noticed yellow to brown leaves on many mesquites this year, you have probably seen a disease called mesquite rust. This disease has caused a good bit of leaf defoliation on mesquite trees over a large area this year.

our dilutvd education

Dr. John Silber, formerly on the faculty at the University of Texas at Austin and never known as a conservative educator, has been President of Boston University for several years now and he undoubtedly startled the academic world the past week by commenting on what he calls a "flight from excellence" in education.

First off, Dr. Silber said that schools that can't graduate students able to pass 12th grade competency tests should be shut down, saving taxpayers money. Then he disclosed some of the things he believes to be responsible for low test scores in both high schools and colleges. Lowering standards for women and minorities shows that less is expected of certain groups, Dr. Silber said, according to a review of an article in Harper's magazine. And these groups will perform accordingly, he said.

"Lowered expectations are a threat to all our students since their ability to develop is very largely dependent upon goals we establish for them. Calls for the maintenance of standards often are denounced as racist and sexist, but only a sexist or racist could believe that women, or members of minorities, are in fact inferior to white males and not able to compete with them on an equal basis."

Dr. Silber suggested that it is an outrage against minorities to claim that they cannot learn when high standards are maintained. Moreover, he thinks all of them should be taught standard English.

"Nothing could be farther from racism or elitism than requiring students from the ghetto to learn standard English," the noted educator declared.

This tends to go along with a theory that some observers have at least tentatively explored, that any group which feels that it must have special legislation declaring that it is "equal" is in effect telling the world that it does not really believe it is equal to others.

Although most of Dr. Silber's remarks were directed toward the colleges and universities, it clearly could apply to public schools as well in some respects. Special programs are the rage now in public schools. Some educators are concerned that these have proliferated to the point that basics are being slighted and that perhaps some of the special programs in lower grades are merely prolonging a variety of problems while trying to solve one and that pupils with certain so-called deficiencies might even catch up more quickly in a regular classroom.

Dr. Silber minces no words in declaring that special provisions for certain groups represent a "flight from excellence" and that those who are concerned about test scores should be awakened to this fact. It will be interesting to see what heed, if any, is paid Dr. Silber's challenge. And it will be even more interesting to see how many educators and legislators continue to wring their hands and wonder what has happened to the test scores and achievement measurements of their students.

the postal crisis

Saturday delivery of mail seems fated to go the way of the three-cent stamp.

Unless Saturday service is eliminated, Postmaster General Benjamin J. Bailar has told a Senate subcommittee, the first-class rate will have to be raised to 16 cents early next year, along with increases in other classes, to meet projected deficits. Without Saturday service, however, the first-class rate could be pegged at 15 cents. For a while, anyway.

But while the Postal Service cites surveys showing that most people would be willing to trade mail-less Saturdays for a smaller increase in the cost of a stamp, no combination of service cuts or postage increases can do more than postpone a crisis that is fast approaching.

That crisis is in the form of instant electronic, computerized communication, a development which critics of the Postal Service say it has utterly failed to anticipate or become involved in.

Since some 70 per cent of first-class mail is business and banking transactions, which are especially adaptable to electronic handling, the loss of this volume to private companies would be a tremendous blow to the Postal Service.

"Take these regularly and get plenty of rest."

counting your chickens

Tomorrow is here. There's more of everything in it. Come and get it!

There's got to be a Fourth of July every year, you know.

That's what the Positive Mental Attitude (PMA) rallies are all about.

The fruits of freedom are not somethng won for us once-and-for-all at Ticonderoga or Valley Forge, thereafter forever to be consumed in leisure. They must be replanted and tended and harvested over and over again every year of every generation.

That's what the PMA rallies are all about.

Our 1976 Bicentennial binge was a lot of fun, but the steam blew off in the whistle. Our enthusiasm is stalling out again.

Individually and nationally we need our batteries recharged ceaselessly.

That's what the PMA rallies are all about.

Call it "positive thinking," or call it "faith in the future," or just call it "counting our chickens"!

I mean it. Count your chickens!

This next Fourth of July let's declare our independence from the hackneyed, pessimistic proverbs of precaution which have intimidated us.

Presently our leadership is preoccupied with "conservation," with thinking smaller and fewer and cheaper and less.

A philosophy of less is not like us!

We Americans are dreamers of big dreams.

From prairie schooners to spaceships we count chickens before they are hatched; we cross bridges before there are bridges there!

Don't misconstrue: The expedient of resource conservation is appropriate. Momentarily our account is overdrawn.

But what I'm saying is that a philosophy of less is a retreat.

We've not let despots turn out our lights; let's not us do it!

This country was not "carved out of the wilderness," you know.

This country was hacked and sawed and dug and clawed and mopped and hoed out of the wildeness by bare-handed men who asked nothing for nothing.

But what they did with courage and with faith in their God, their country and themselves—in that order.

They committed themselves during this earthly while to leaving the woodpile a little higher than they found it. And most did.

That spirit is not dead in our country. It's dormant. It's been diluted by the unbecoming spoon-feeding of grown-ups. It's been neglected due to our preoccupation with other-than-homefolks.

So that's what the PMA rallies are all about.

We are not going to sit back and do less and use less and have less while our muscles atrophy and our stamina stagnates and our energy is exhausted.

Chicken-counters—sound off!

Every pessimist in history has been buried in an unmarked grave.

This will be the decade of the doers; moving us—U.S. — up to the front again.

Tomorrow is on the table and it's delicious. Come and get it!

That is what the PMA rallies are all about.

WASHINGTON (NEA)- Sen Harrison H. Schmitt believes the Senate's new code of ethics is unenforceable. Sen. John G. Tower says the measure is "a hoax." And Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. calls it "a smelly piece of legislation."

Those three men, all Republicans, are members of the small band of 14 senators who thought so little of the Senate's effort to upgrade its ethical standards earlier this year that they either were absent when it was adopted or voted against it.

But Schmitt of New Mexico, Tower of Texas and Weicker of Connecticut have another distinction: They comprise the entire Republican membership of the Senate Ethics Committee, which has full responsibility for implementing and enforcing the new legislation.

The fox-guarding-chicken-coop analogy is an overworked cliche, but it certainly seems applicable in this case. Without tough but fair oversight on the part of the committee, the highly touted code of ethics will serve as little more than a paper facade for the questionable practices which Congress has allowed to flourish for so long.

Indeed, the recent history of ethics enforcement in both the House and Senate suggests that there is little enthusiasm for consistent, meaningful implementation of the high-toned moral standards which the legislators have rushed to formulate in order to improve their image after every major scandal of the past 15 years.

The influence-peddling controversy surrounding Robert G. (Bobby) Baker during the early 1960s led the Senate to vote on July 24, 1964 to establish a Select Committee on Standards and Conduct.

But it was not until July 9, 1965-almost one year later-that the Senate got around to naming the committee's members. And it took another three-plus months, until Oct. 21, 1965, for the committee to gather for its first organizational meeting.

In its almost 13 years of existence, the committee has conducted a full-scale investigation of exactly one legislator, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. Even that probe probably would not have been undertaken were it not for the months-long drumbeat of criticism of Dodd's questionable financial activities.

The House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct was not formed until 1967—just after the Senate censured Dodd and the House was forced to deal with the scandal involving Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y.

In its almost 11 years of operation, the House committee has matched the Senate record of inaction by also initiating precisely one comprehensive investigation, involving Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla. That probe probably would not have been undertaken if Common Cause had not shoved the committee into it.

If that record offers little promise for the future, then the hostile attitude of Republicans on the Senate committee is an even more ominous sign.

"The end product of this effort is nothing more than a blatant public relations effort designed to justify the recent pay raise which Congress received," said Tower, one of four senators who weren't present to vote on the measure. "This bill is a hoax."

Weicker, who voted against it, called the proposal "ah amalgam of arbitrary restrictions and incomplete regulations." He predicted that if the ethics code ever faces a court test, "it will clearly fall on constitutional grounds."

Schmitt, who also voted in opposition, said: "The proposed resolution assumes that the rules can be enforced by the Senate. Common sense would suggest that nothing could be further from the truth."

Those three men are highly unrepresentative of the rest of the Senate, 86 of whose members voted for the code of ethics. They are not even in step with most of their fellow Republicans because 27 GOP senators voted for the reform. Yet they now cast half of the votes on the Senate Ethics Comittee.

COUNSELING AFTER DIVORCE?

Dear Roy:

I am very sorry to hear about your divorce. Knowing you and Barbara, I know that both of you tried to avoid it. I am sorry that you did not try Marriage Counseling two or three years before the pressure to break up mounted this high.

You asked me if you needed counseling after your divorce. I think, really, you are asking two questions: "Do I need it?" And "Can it help?" And perhaps a third: "How?"

First, about need. If you are thinking about killing yourself, or even how nice it would be to just die, you really do need counseling, and you need it fast. You see, Roy, a lot of people really do kill themselves within about a year after their divorce. Usually these are the brighter and more sensitive people, like you. These are the people with the most potential, and it is a real pity to waste our best people on suicide. I know the pain seems to grow and get worse, and there isn't ever any letup, and it seems hopeless, but talking to a counselor can help. It can make the difference between life and death for you, Roy. The best years of your life are ahead of you, Roy, if you want it that way. You can choose between killing yourself, or dragging around in the dumps for years, or learning how to find the peace and joy that is there for you.

You may not need counseling to save your life, Roy, but you may be able to use it to make life easier for you. Right now you are almost overwhelmed with runaway emotions. You may be discovering feelings you never knew you had. There is probably a feeling of horror that this could be happening to you, and a great bitterness, much anger, terrible guilt, and running through everything else: a deep hurt. You have probably cried more in the last few weeks that you ever have before in your life.

All these feelings and emotions are normal after a loss as great as yours. Counseling will not keep you from feeling these deep emotions. They must run their course. However, I have seen some people get locked into some of these feelings for three years, once it was moe than thirty years! There is no need to hurt that long over any loss. Usually it takes about a year or so to get through all the hurts until you are ready to rebuild your life. With counseling, you can keep yourself from being locked into your agony too long, and a good counselor can help you work through your grief and despair in sometimes half the usual time.

How can you find a good counselor? There are places you can write: The American Association of Pastoral Counselors keeps a list of its members at its main office at 3 West 29th St. New York, NY 10001. They will be glad to give you a list of its members in your area. In Texas the Texas Psychotherapy Association will do the same. Their address is: 3215 West Alabame No 105; Houston, Texas 77098.

Make sure you find someone who is in a recognized association like the above, who police their members and make sure that they keep growing in their work. Good luck, Roy.

Your friend,
John

letters to editor

To The Daily News:

In response to Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Bailey's letter to the editor, with all due respect to them, I did not hear Dr. Ralph W. Steen's speech, but if he said what you quoted, I sincerely agree with him.

Look around you and read your papers. With so many mothers working and trying to do the men's job, who, in the name of God, is around to correct the children when they need correcting? Yes, God entrusted His children to our keeping to rear correctly, to teach right from wrong and to punish when punishment is needed. I quote Proverbs, chapter 13, verse 24: "He that spareth his rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." Chapter 19, verse 18: "Chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying." Chapter 22, verse 15: "Foolishness if bound in the heart of a child; but rod of correction shall drive it from him." Chapter 23, verses 13-14: "Withhold not correction from the child, for if thou beateth him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell."

I think every parent should read Proverbs at least once a week.

What does TV teach children these days? Robbing, killing, sex, drunken brawls and cursing. You name it, it is there. The movie theaters are just as bad.

If children don't get correction and guidance at home, who is left to teach them but the teachers? Parents that don't want the teachers correcting their children should keep them home and teach them themselves.

A teacher is bound to love children, or they couldn't stand to teach them every day, year after year, and I don't believe they will abuse, cripple, maim or kill any of them.

I am a mother very much interested and concerned about the children's education.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Imagination makes you think you are having a wonderful time when you are really just wasting money."

Summer baseball is well underway, and the program involves a vast majority of the city's youth. A few years ago we ran across the following article.

The thought contains not only fits Little League baseball, but Little anything involves the youth. We think it's worthy of passing along and it's entitled, "Just a Little Boy."

"He stood at the plate with his heart pounding fast.

The bases were loaded, the die had been cast.

Mom and Dad cannot help him; he stands alone.

A hit at this moment would send the team home.

The ball nears the plate; he swings and he misses;

There's a groan from the crowd, with some boos and some hisses.

A thoughtless voice cries: "Strike out the bum."

Tears fill his eyes; the game's no longer fun.

Remember he's just a little boy who stands all alone. So open your heart and give him a break.

For it's moments like this a man you can make.

Keep this in mind when you hear someone forget.

He's just a little boy and not a man yet.

General Motors Corporation recently disclosed the results of a study it made of the economic effects of proliferating government.

In the test year 1974, GM found it spent an estimated $1.3 billion complying with, or in anticipation of, government regulations to all levels.

In 1976, General Motors estimated that government regulations had cost it more money than it cost the entire federal government for all the first 75 years of out nationhood, including the purchase of Louisiana.

Larger Feet

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czech children have larger feet than previous generations, according to a market research study conducted here.

The study has found that more than 50 per cent of 13-year-old boys and over 80 per cent who are 14 and 15 must buy men's sizes. Twenty-five per cent of the girls in 13-15 age group buy women's shoes.

Children's clothing and shoes are state-subsidized in this country, and the price difference between shoes for children and adults is greater than in the West.

Natural Gas Producers Using 'Vintage' More

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)-Natural gas producers selling to interstate markets are making more and more use of the word "vintage" these days.

The Federal Power Commission EPC now is designating newly discovered gas by "vintage," meaning the time period in which wells are drilled and gas sales made.

The EPC already has established two vintage prices and is working on a third.

With the addition of prices for "old" gas and for renewed contracts, this means five categories of sales are involved in the final determination of interstate consumer prices.

Bryan C. Edwards, Amoco Production Co. vice president for natural gas sales, says Amoco's interstate sales range from 29.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for "old" gas to $1.45 for gas from 1975-76 vintage wells. He places the average Amoco sales price at 50 cents a thousand.

Amoco, a Standard Oil Co. Indiana subsidiary, is the nation's third largest producer of natural gas and the second largest seller of gas to interstate markets.

Amoco's total interstate sales last year were about 550 billion cubic feet, which Edwards says is more than enough to supply all the homes that use natural gas in all of Illinois where residential consumption exceeds that of any other state except California.

Edwards discussed Amoco's interstate prices in a recent edition of span, a quarterly publication for Indiana Standard's stockholders and employes.

By Vintage, Amoco, under base ceiling wellhead prices, sells 67 per cent of its gas at 29.5 cents a thousand as old gas, 10 per cent at 53 cents under renewed contracts, 13 per cent at 94 cents for 1973-74 wells, 7 per cent at $1.45 for 1975-76 wells, and 3 per cent for 1977 wells at a price not yet determined by the EPC.

Edwards said the old gas is the vintage developed prior to Jan. 1, 1973, and obviously accounts for most of Amoco's reserves, the largest part of which were found and developed in the 1940s, '50s, and '60s.

"In equal energy terms, 29.5 cents per thousand cubic feet is one-eighth the price of imported crude oil delivered to the United States," Edwards said.

A new pricing policy setting a nationwide ceiling price for new gas was established by the EPC in 1974.

"This was the first of the so-called 'new-vintage' gas and covers that from wells commenced after Jan. 1, 1973, but before Jan. 1, 1975," Edwards said. "The ceiling price on that 'new' gas is now 94 cents a thousand cubic feet."

A $1.42 price was set later for a more recent vintage, which Edwards said might be called "new-new" gas.

"This covers gas produced from wells commenced between Jan. 1, 1975, and Jan. 1, 1977," Edwards said.

"That natural gas now has a ceiling price of $1.45 a thousand, after adding three one-cent quarterly increases allowed since Oct. 1."

Edwards said the 53 cents a thousand the EPC allows for renewal contracts with the same purchaser follows expiration of old contracts that usually covered 20-year periods.

"Although the EPC sets ceiling prices for all the vintages, the producer does not always get the ceiling price, which is the maximum," he said.

"Some contracts with interstate pipelines do not provide a price as high as the ceiling. The average price we receive for all the gas we sell interstate is only 50 cents per thousand, equal to crude oil at less than $3 a barrel. Yet, the current government controlled price of domestic crude oil at the well averages $8.76 a barrel."

In equal-energy terms, Edwards, said Amoco's volume of domestic natural gas production has averaged at least as much as its domestic crude oil production.

"Yet we've had to produce the equivalent of about three 'barrels' of natural gas energy to equal the revenue generated from the sale of only one barrel of domestically produced crude oil," he said.

"And our experience is typical of all producers of interstate natural gas."

Time Runs Out On Agnew Watches

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) —It seems that time has run out on the Spiro Agnew watch.

A family firm which copyrighted the watch stopped making it about fours years ago. No more will be made.

In early 1970, Dr. and Mrs. Hale Dougherty and their 10 children hired a graduate art student to draw a caricature of the former vice president. They copyrighted the design and were soon boxing and shipping Agnew watches.

The Doughertys have kept sales figures secret but a published estimate reported sales of 100,000 in the first year. Demand spurted again in 1973 when Agnew resigned.

"The people who have been buying them for the last two years or so are strictly collectors," said Larry Dougherty, 23, general manager of the firm.

There are two living former Presidents of the United States, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford; and five former Vice Presidents, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Nelson Rockefeller, Hubert Humphrey and Spiro Agnew.

It was potentialed to pump 45 barrels of 28-gravity oil per day plus 45 barrels of water. Production was through perforations from 2,250-2,554 feet which were treated with 50,000 gallons and 100,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to a total depth of 3,195 feet it was plugged back to 2,730 feet and had 4½-inch casing set on bottom.

Location is 330 feet from south and 330 feet from east lines of section 131, block 97, H&TC survey.

Knox Industries, Midland, completed its No. 1-F Morrison as a north extension to pay in the Lyn-Kay field of Northwest Kent County, about 14 miles southwest of Spur.

The 24-hour potential test gauged 52 barrels of 36-gravity oil and 63 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 834-1. Gas-oil ratio was 520-1.

Completion was through perforations at 6,201-6,211 feet.

MIT Sex Survey Suspends 1

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) —A student editor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was suspended and three other students were put on probation for publishing an article rating the sexual performance of 36 MIT men.

John Roselli, editor of the undergraduate newspaper "Thursday," which published the article April 28, confirmed on Thursday that the originator of the idea, Scott Betterman, had been suspended for three months.

Betterman is a senior and feature editor of the paper.

The two authors of the article, juniors Roxanne Ritchie and Susan Gilbert, were given formal probation by the faculty committee on discipline, which means that a notation of disciplinary action will remain on their school records for 10 years.

Both have been subjected to considerable harassment since the article appeared, Roselli said, and are moving from their Cambridge apartment as a result of complaints from neighbors.

"I regret having hurt people by running their names," said Roselli. He was given internal probation which will not remain on his record. "If I had to do it over again, I'd run the article, but without their names."

"It depends on the kind of seed," you say. And you are absolutely right. A peach seed won't make a fig tree, nor will an apple seed produce a pear tree. This involves a simple but indisputable law of nature. A seed will produce only after its own kind. This is an important law to remember.

Did you know that God's word is a seed? In explaining the parable of the sower, Jesus said, "Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God" (Luke 8:11). Yes, Jesus teaches that the word of God must be planted in human hearts before the new birth can take place. Early Christians were reminded of this truth in such passages as:

". . . for in Christ Jesus have I begotten you through the gospel" (1 Corinthians 4:15).

"Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth" (James 1:18).

"Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever . . . But the word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you" (1 Peter 1:23,25).

It is important, therefore, that we recognize the Bible is God's word, and without it there could be no new birth. There must be preaching of the word in order to create faith in the hearts of those who hear (Romans 10:17).

The Bible claims to be all-sufficient in matters of faith and religious practice (2 Timothy 3:16,17). It alone is our safe and infallible guide in religion. Further, there are clear warnings against receiving additional revelation, such as:

"But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed" (Galatians 1:8).

Indeed, if men add to the Bible, if they subtract from God's revealed will, or if they substitute their opinions for Bible teaching, they are sowing a mixture of seed, and pure Christianity simply cannot result. New Testament Christianity will grow only when the word of God is preached in its original purity, believed, and obeyed. The Bible only will make Christians only.

To write a creed based on some things the Bible teaches, but at the same time modifying or ignoring other teachings, is to deny the all-sufficiency of the word of God — the seed of the kingdom. Men are warned not to tamper with the God-given seed of truth. For example, "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God" (2 John 9), and "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God" (1 Peter 4:11).

Churches of Christ respect God's word as their sole rule of faith and practice. To speak only God's revealed truth is to sow the pure seed of salvation. Christianity, in the New Testament sense of the term, is the inevitable result!
